Best Quarter Horse

Irish Cupid, filly owned by Robert Haney, 12-year-old Big Spring 4-H Club member, was declared grand champion of the Odessa Livestock Show Monday.

Big Spring Youngster Takes Odessa Honors

Robert Haney, 12-year-old 4-H Club member, took his two quarter horses to the Odessa Livestock show. He won first place and grand championship of the 4-H Club-FFA quarter horse division with one, and second place in the 1960 filly division with the second. Two other Howard County 4-H Club members had quarter horses entered in the show. They placed fourth and fifth in the competition—leaving only the third place to go to another competitor. Haney's beautiful Irish Cupid, bred by Bob Ballenger, Midland, was declared first in her class and grand champion of the show. There were 25 quarter horses entered in the junior division of the Odessa show. Haney's Leo's Dawn took second place. Third honors went to Babe Val, owned by Jack Horne of Coleman. Lucy Thornton, Howard County, took fourth place with her Duchess Dodger and Wanda Boutler, another local exhibitor, won fifth place with Shona Buck. Reserve champion of the show was Dilly Dandy, shown by Jim Espy Jr., Fort Davis. Lamb competition was tougher for the Big Spring and Howard County entrants. Allowed to show only five lambs, the best of the local youngsters could do was a sixth place won by Nancy Phillips in the lightweight division. There are five local steers entered in the 4-H-FFA steer competition. Judging will be Thursday in this division. Lovell Kuykendall, assistant county agent, is in Odessa keeping an eye on the local entries. Herb Helbig, county farm agent, is "commuting" between Odessa and Big Spring as the show progresses. The county agents were highly pleased at the fine achievement of young Haney in grabbing the grand championship in the quarter horse competition.

Prisoners Quiet Following Outbreak

MONTREAL (AP)—Some 400 prisoners returned quietly to their cells today after they had rioted and battled police for four hours in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail Monday. The men spent the night tramping about in two flooded, unheated cell wings where they were herded after the violent outbreak. Authorities had expected more trouble getting them back to their regular cells, but officials said they returned without making any difficulty. Lt. Col. Leon Lambert, governor of the jail, said prisoners in a block for persons awaiting trial took part in the rebellion and "some of them looked drunk—possibly from goof balls (barbiturates)."

Samoa Is New Nation

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Western Samoa became the modern world's first independent Polynesian nation Monday. Ceremonies at Apia, the capital of the island group in the South Pacific, ended New Zealand's 48-year administration of the pre-World War I German colony. With New Zealand Prime Minister Keith Holyoake in attendance, New Zealand's flag was lowered in Apia and Western Samoa's a red and blue cross on a red and blue background—was raised.

Troubled Dredge Escapes Blizzard

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP)—The trouble-plagued dredge Cartagena reached Halifax harbor today barely in time to escape getting caught in a blizzard. The $4-million dredge, owned by the Standard Dredging Co of New York, tied up alongside a salvage pier. The Canadian tug Foundation Vigilant brought her into port in a snowstorm. The Cartagena Christmas Day broke away from the Vigilant towline while being towed from Quebec City to Baltimore. The 10-man crew abandoned the dredge the next day and was taken ashore by a U.S. Coast Guard vessel. Two days later four crew members from the Vigilant managed to board the dredge and Saturday the tug got a line on her and started towing her to Halifax.

Katanga Area Is Lost, But One Holds Out

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Katanga President Moise Tshombe has conceded the loss of the north Katanga stronghold of Kongolo to troops of the central Congolese government but claims his forces have beaten off Congolese attacks at Kapona, south of Baudouinville. Tshombe charged at a news conference Monday in Elisabethville that 13,000 Congolese troops advancing on Kongolo had murdered hundreds of civilians and burned villages. He claimed that the Congolese abandoned heavy equipment and fled in the face of strong Katangan resistance at Kapona. The secessionist leader said both sides suffered heavy casualties there, asserting that most Katangan casualties involved civilians. Tshombe also declared that he has rejected an order by Congo President Joseph Kasavubu that the Katanga Assembly convene Wednesday in Kamina under U.N. protection. He said he had informed the U.N. Command in Elisabethville that the order for the Assembly to meet and ratify Tshombe's Katanga unity agreement with Premier Cyrille Adoula was "contrary and in direct violation of the Congo constitution" and "an abuse of power."

New Citizen

Felix Subia Cevallos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luis Cevallos, Vincent Route, Coahoma, is the first baby born in Howard County during 1962. He weighed six pounds and 14 ounces and has black eyes and dark brown hair. Felix was born at 2:39 p.m. Monday at the Howard County Hospital Foundation and Clinic. Another child born earlier at Cowper Clinic and Hospital did not qualify as the first new citizen because the parents were not residents of this county.

FELIX SUBIA CEVALLOS

He's Year's First Baby

Felix Subia Cevallos weighed in at six pounds and 14 ounces at 2:39 p.m. Monday to qualify for the awards due the first baby born in Howard County during 1962. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luis Cevallos, Vincent Route, Coahoma. The newcomer is apparently doing well on his second day as a resident of Howard County. The birth was normal and there were no complications, according to the attending physician. He was born at Howard County Hospital Foundation. Felix was the fourth addition to the Cevallos family. He has two brothers and one sister. Luis Jr. is five years old, Irene is four, and Johnny is two years old. The child was not the first born in the county this year, however. A girl born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Johnson, Midland, was born at 10:54 a.m. Monday at Cowper Clinic and Hospital. The parents are not residents of the county so the child does not qualify for the first baby awards. In addition to congratulations, the baby and parents are due for more substantial awards. Mr. Cevallos will receive a box of 50 cigars from Piggly Wiggly and Mrs. Cevallos will get a special kitchen tool set from White's. Gifts for Felix include a gift from Blum's Jewelers, a baby blanket from Anthony's, and a pair of shoes from the J&K Shoe Store. Furr's Super Market will provide a case of baby formula and Gandy's will help out on the milk bill by furnishing a quart of milk each day for 30 days. The first citizen of 1962 will have a nine-piece layette set provided by Montgomery Ward. It includes a receiving blanket, quilted pad, wash cloth, plastic pants, package of cotton buds, plastic rattle, bib, 10-inch plastic hanger and a plastic fine-tooth comb. Most Special Elections Get Wilson Stare

AUSTIN (AP)—Atty. Gen. Will Wilson asked Gov. Price Daniel today to submit to the special session of the Legislature Saturday a bill to abolish most special elections. Wilson, a candidate for governor, said reports of the possible candidacy of Sen. Ralph Yarborough for governor, prompted his request. "During 1961 the taxpayers of Texas have had to pay in excess of $750,000 for 10 special elections to fill unexpired terms," Wilson said in a letter to Daniel. "In the most recent of these, the winner will serve less than a month before he will have to announce again in the primary, and for the winner of the congressional election to Mr. Sam Rayburn's place, his first official act will be to announce for another election in the primary." The runoff election between State Sen. Ray Roberts of McKinney and former Dist. Judge R. C. Slagle of Sherman for Rayburn's post in Congress will be held Jan. 30. The filing deadline for candidates in the 1962 primaries is Feb. 5. Wilson said that when Yarborough ran against Daniel for governor in 1956, Yarborough "persistently and effectively criticized you for running for governor without resigning from the Senate and this was a major factor in contributing to the extreme closeness of that election."

Self-Determination Demand Dropped

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)—The Dutch government announced today its willingness to discuss the future of West New Guinea with Indonesia without setting conditions beforehand. Premier Jan de Quay read the government declaration in the lower house of Parliament at the start of debate on West New Guinea, last remnant of Holland's East Indies colonial empire which Indonesia has threatened to invade. President Sukarno Monday proclaimed the disputed territory a province of Indonesia and ordered a special military command set up to direct the invasion if he orders it. De Quay said the Netherlands is willing to enter into negotiations without making self-determination of New Guinea's Papuan population a prerequisite. Previously the Dutch had said they would negotiate only if the Papuans were assured the right of self-determination. The Labor party opposition had been pressing the government to announce willingness to relinquish the territory and then to negotiate for some autonomy for the Papuans. Foreign Minister Subandrio of Indonesia recently said Indonesia might consider giving West New Guinea "a great measure of autonomy."

Frozen Bodies Of Boys Found

RATON, N.M. (AP)—The frozen bodies of two boys were found in the snow on a high mesa in northern New Mexico Monday. A third boy is missing in the mountainous area near the Colorado border. A search party of about 150 men resumed the hunt for Joe Darris, 13, today. Found on rugged Johnson mesa Monday were the bodies of Morris Salazar, 9, and his brother, Carlos, 7. The three boys, along with Joe Darris' brother, Billy, 17, left their home here Thursday to hike to a deserted cabin on the mesa. Billy spent Thursday night in a cave and walked out of the area Friday. He was in a hospital with frostbitten feet. Bodies of the Salazar brothers were found behind a large rock about 12 miles east of here. Tracks leading from the rock indicated young Darris had fallen and stumbled frequently. The mesa, 10,000 feet above sea level, is pitted by deep ravines. Snowdrifts six feet deep dot the landscape which is used for a summer cattle range. At night, temperatures drop to zero. Young Darris was believed thinly clad and without food.

Cargo Vessel Adrift In Gulf

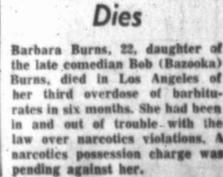

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—A general cargo ship, the Catalina S., reported it was drifting without power in the Gulf of Mexico today, then its radio went dead. A Coast Guard plane later located it 150 miles west of St. Petersburg, Fla. The pilot radioed that the vessel was dead in the water and another commercial vessel, the Irish Ash, was en route to assist. A Coast Guard cutter was also en route to the Catalina S., a 2,407-ton ship registered under the British flag. It is owned by a firm with headquarters in the Bahama Islands. The ship was en route to Nassau.

Proctor Quits As Travis DA

AUSTIN (AP)—Les Proctor, a possible candidate for attorney general, resigned today as Travis County district attorney, effective Jan. 15. "I am forming plans whereby, if they are successful, I may have the privilege and pleasure of resuming my—services on even broader scale to those who have been so very kind to me," Proctor wrote Gov. Price Daniel. Proctor said he will disclose his plans when his resignation is effective. He has been district attorney since 1955, and has prosecuted several cases involving the insurance and veterans land scandals. Most politicians viewed Proctor's resignation as the prelude to his announcement for attorney general. He was required by state law to resign before seeking another office. Two have announced as candidates for attorney general. They are Tom Reavley, Austin lawyer, and former secretary of state; and Rep. Tom James of Dallas.

New Dominican President Promises Civil Freedoms

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Rafael Donnelly, president-to-be of the new Dominican Council of State, promised Dominicans freedom of assembly and discussion Monday and warned the armed forces against interference in the affairs of the new anti-Trujillo government. Donnelly, named to succeed President Joaquin Balaguer as head of the ruling body, declared at the swearing-in of the seven-man council that freedom to meet and discuss all issues would be observed "because truth can be achieved only through conscientious and dispassionate discussion." He asserted that the council, which assumed all legislative and executive powers until installation of an elected government early in 1963, wished to emphasize "our decided endeavor to maintain unalterable" the armed forces' non-political status. The military, he said, must restrict its activities "to the defense of the independence and integrity of the republic, to maintain order and respect for the rights of man." Maj. Gen. Pedro Rodriguez Echavarria, chief of the armed forces, who has vowed to support the council, stood behind Donnelly as he spoke. Rodriguez Echavarria led a military move which crushed a coup planned by Trujillo diehards last October and paved the way for the expulsion of the family of the late Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo. Sworn in as vice president of the council, Donnelly will take over from Balaguer when the latter resigns, possibly within the week. Balaguer drew up the plan for an interim government and promised to quit when the Organization of American States lifts its economic and diplomatic sanctions against the Dominican Republic. Following lukewarm approval of the council plan by opposition factions, President Kennedy announced that the United States favored lifting the sanctions imposed against the old Trujillo regime for plotting to assassinate President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela. Donnelly represents the National Civic Union, major opposition faction which agreed to give the

Ben Fairless, Stee Man, Dies

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP)—Benjamin F. Fairless, 71, the son of a coal miner who rose to head a steel empire, died Monday at his home in the foothills of the Allegheny Mountains.

Fairless was president of the American Iron & Steel Institute and retired board chairman of the U.S. Steel Corp.

His life story was an American success saga. He was the son of a Welsh immigrant; he started his business career as a newsboy; he worked as a part-time janitor in his high school, and he financed his college education by teaching in country schoolhouses.

He started at the bottom and he worked his way up to the top by what friends and adversaries agreed was ingenuity, diplomacy and hard work.

Fairless was the very model of the rugged individualist. He was a staunch defender of big business, and if he had to talk gruffly to congressmen in pleading his case, he did.

"In what other country of this world could I have faced as well as I have here in the United States?" he once remarked in a speech.

Fairless recently spent six weeks in a Pittsburgh hospital under treatment for pleurisy. Just two weeks ago, he had been granted a divorce from his second wife, the former Hazel Hatfield, daughter of former West Fairless was born on May 3, 1890 to Mr. and Mrs. David D. Williams in Pigeon Run, Ohio, a mining town near Canton. His struggling parents sent him to live with an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Fairless, at Justice, Ohio, when he was only five months old. They later adopted him.

Legislators Moving Back To Austin For Session

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas legislators moved back to Austin today in preparation for the third special session of the 57th Legislature.

The 10 a.m. opening of the scheduled 30-day session marks the 176th day that senators and representatives have met in this legislative term to consider proposed new laws and changes in the old ones.

Actually the legislative process starts at 9 a.m. when senators gather in caucus to select a president pro tempore for the session.

Sen. Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi has been the interim head of the Senate and acting lieutenant governor since Ben Ramsey resigned to go on the Railroad Commission. Reagan could be re-elected or the Senate could follow seldom-ignored tradition and select one of the three men next in line on a seniority basis—Culp Charles Herring of Austin, Cens. Krueger of El Campo or Hubert Hudson of Brownsville.

Gov. Price Daniel returned to Austin Monday from his Liberty ranch home where his family spent the holidays. He spent a lot of his holiday working on his address to the new session. He probably will be asked to speak to a joint session Wednesday afternoon.

In calling the session, Daniel gave it the specific job of considering legislation that would bring Texas banks under the state's escheat or abandoned property laws. However, he has said he also will submit, probably the first day, the issues of regulating small loan firms and of providing more money for maintenance of farm to market roads.

The governor also has said he would like to present at least half a dozen other subjects to a special session, if he gets the chance. These include revisions in the new sales tax and pipeline gas tax, money for tourist attraction, strengthening of the juvenile reform system, city annexation control, lobby control, and more money for use in emergencies such as Hurricane Carla.

Ministerial and lay leaders of Baptist District 8 will meet Friday in Stanton for a regular planning session.

Usually these quarterly conferences deal with planning in specific areas of the work. But Thursday's parley will be concerned with the total program within the district. The meeting will be an all-day affair at the First Baptist Church in Stanton.

TEXAS STUDENTS Think Flying Is The Most

AUSTIN (AP)—There's no way like piloting a light plane to see the wide open spaces, members of a University of Texas club believe.

To back up its members' almost devout belief in the superiority of flight to earthbound transportation, the Longhorn Flying Club has collected in only 14 months a $60,000 fleet of six new airplanes.

The 90 members are mostly students. But some faculty members and local citizens also belong, including a grandfather who soled after 5 1/2 hours of instruction.

Five girls also are members. One will soon have her instructor's rating, a club spokesman said.

The Longhorn fliers have found that even the ample borders of Texas don't give them enough space. Last summer, several members made overnight flights to Chicago, Los Angeles and other cities outside the state.

In the past 12 months, club members have flown more than a quarter of a million miles without an accident or violation of the rules of the air.

A safety program run by the club gets much of the credit for this record, as well as the club's low insurance rate.

Man Burned In Explosion

A gasoline stove explosion in a small house on the Marion Edwards Property north of Lee's Store on the Garden City Highway sent the new tenant, Faustino Sanchez, 32, to a Big Spring hospital Monday night for treatment of hand and neck burns. The house and contents were destroyed. Sanchez had just moved in the house Monday.

About 100 sacks of cottonseed cake, stored in one end of the building, were lost. Firemen said the man attempted to light the stove, which used air pressure to feed the burner, and it exploded. He is a Mexican National.

Other fire calls made from three stations, included: grass fire on a vacant lot at 607 Main; trash fire in an old building at 904 E. 3rd; trash fire on vacant lot on Country Club road; an old couch outside the house at 603 NW 9th; bale of cotton on fire in the compress yard on the Andrews highway, with small damage; grass fire on a vacant lot at 214 N. Goliad; and a short in the wiring on a car at 1801 Gregg, with little damage.

The 90 members are mostly students. But some faculty members and local citizens also belong, including a grandfather who soled after 5 1/2 hours of instruction.

A safety program run by the club gets much of the credit for this record, as well as the club's low insurance rate.

No flying club in this country has ever received a rate as low, and some clubs cannot get insurance at any price.

Students receive full pilot training in the club, from ground school through solo flight. Three full-time instructors are available to the club through a local flying service. More than half the members now have their private pilot's license.

A Cessna Aircraft Corp. official describes the club as a typical Texas success story. "Bob Crutchfield, a young physics instructor, is given credit for the club's fortunes.

When Crutchfield became faculty sponsor in July 1960, the club had one dilapidated, 20-year-old plane, which many members were afraid to fly. In fact, Crutchfield refused to take it up.

The club junked the old plane and went into hock for a brand new Cessna 150.

"From then on, membership has boomed," Crutchfield said. New planes were purchased at the rate of one every month.

As clubs go, the Longhorn flying club is a pretty expensive, but flying as a club member is about half as high as for persons using commercial facilities.

Above all, the club stresses safety in the air.

Con's Story Tagged False, He's Arrested

LYNN, Mass. (AP)—A Mississippi convict who says he was given a leave of absence from prison to recover $500,000 stolen in a robbery, was arrested today as a fugitive.

Mississippi police said the convict's story was not true.

Kimble Berry, 24, of Greenville, Miss., was picked up at the Lynn home of his brother on a warrant signed by Arthur B. Clark Jr., judge of the Fourth Circuit Court of Mississippi. The warrant asked Lynn police to return him to Mississippi authorities.

Berry said he went to Lynn police voluntarily about two weeks ago and told them what he described as the true version of his departure from the prison at Parchman, Miss.

He was quoted by police as saying he was given a 10-day leave, and supplied with a loaded gun and a $7,000 automobile to go to a Keiser, Ark., bank to recover the alleged loot and return to prison.

Berry said also he was promised a pardon if he successfully completed his mission. He had only five months to serve in an 8-year sentence on a manslaughter conviction.

The reputed loot was from a robbery last May at a Hattiesburg, Miss., construction firm in which $15,000-$20,000 in cash, about $28,000 in negotiable securities and about $28,000 in promissory notes were taken.

Berry was not involved in the robbery. Fred Jones, superintendent of the Mississippi prison said Berry was lying in his story to Lynn police.

He said Aubrey Botts, serving 59 years for the robbery, apparently had given Berry instructions to pick up the loot. Jones said Berry and Botts were dormitory mates at the prison.

Jones said a warrant was issued for Berry's arrest when he over-stayed what the superintendent described as a 10-day annual Christmas leave from the prison.

A doll show featuring old, new, unique and foreign dolls proved quite successful, Flint said. Winners in the event were Linda Williams, Vicki Johnson, Dianna Powell and Nancy Flint.

Another new program which was well received was a social meeting of college students home for the holidays and others of college age who are not attending schools. Some 30 couples were in attendance.

On the other end of the scale was a planned train race. No one registered for the event and it was canceled, Flint said.

"We have not had a chance to evaluate the program yet, but when we do so, we can find out the strong points and use them to advantage in preparing a holiday schedule next year," he said.

James Coates, C. W. Creighton, Dr. G. T. Hall, and Leland Wallace are the local breeders who are to sell animals at the sale. Coates has one bull consigned, Creighton four, Hall two, and Wallace three.

In all, 91 pure bred Hereford bulls are to be offered at the sale. Fifty-eight of these are single bulls and 11 are pens of three bulls each. This is the first year the Concho Association has had pens in its listings.

Judging of the bulls opens at 9 a.m. with W. N. Reed, Sterling City, as the judge. The sale will start at 1 p.m. Walter Britten will be the auctioneer.

Portuguese Regime Hurts Leaders Of Coup Attempt

BEJA, Portugal (AP)—The hunt was on today for political associates of a rebel leader who tried unsuccessfully to seize a military barracks and touch off a revolution against Premier Antonio Salazar's government.

Captain Joao Maria P a u l o Vaz G o m e s, 37, an army officer turned politician, lay near death in the Beja hospital. Manuel Serra, a former Roman Catholic youth leader who authorities said shared leadership of the uprising with Gomes, was captured heading for the Spanish border with four heavily armed companions.

Between 40 and 50 persons, most of them workers, apparently were in the band that engaged Salazar's troops in a three-hour battle Monday at the barracks of the 3rd Infantry regiment. Officials at first announced all had been killed or captured. But so far the government has announced only one rebel killed, two wounded and 20 others captured. It appeared some might still be at large, although the rebel casualties were believed to have been much higher than the government said.

Most notable casualty on the government side was Lt. Col. Jaime Filipe da Fonseca, under-secretary for war, who rushed to the southern city of Beja from Lisbon. He ordered the government forces to hold their fire and then walked into the barracks to demand that the rebels surrender. They shot him down. He died later in the hospital.

The government tightened security precautions by placing all police and military units in a "state of prevention." There was no general alert, but a huge Lisbon rally scheduled for Wednesday night was canceled, officially in mourning for Da Fonseca.

Salazar was to have addressed the rally to outline Portuguese policy for 1962 following a year of painful and embarrassing setbacks ranging from the seizure of the liner Santa Maria on the high seas to the Indian seizure of Goa.

The ill-fated uprising began in the sleepy New Year's morning. Witnesses said the rebels burst past the guardpost at the barracks, smashed into the officers' quarters and overcame the drowsy men. Two junior officers managed to escape to another strong point in the barracks and sounded the alarm.

The rebels were pinned down in the officers' quarters by machine-gun fire but could not be dislodged. Then Da Fonseca arrived and tried to arrange a surrender.

The shooting of the under-secretary for war aroused the loyal troops and panicked the rebels. A number attempted to escape by seizing army vehicles and driving from the barracks. All were captured, and resistance crumbled.

Authorities said Gomes shared leadership of the uprising with Manuel Serra, a former Roman Catholic youth leader who until recently had taken political asylum in the Brazilian Embassy in Lisbon.

Gomes was an opposition candidate in last November's parliamentary elections and an outspoken critic of Salazar's 30-year dictatorship.

All opposition candidates withdrew from the race before the balloting, charging that the Salazar regime had not permitted them to campaign freely.

Phoebe, who is Mrs. Peter II, gave birth on New Year's Day while under water. Phoebe is a hippopotamus, and the underwater delivery is peculiar to the species. Her bouncing baby hippo bobbed to the surface of the Bronx Zoo's elephant pool. Since mama hippos are extremely protective, nobody could get close enough to the newcomer to establish its sex.

The weight of the Bronx Zoo's first 1962 arrival was estimated at between 50 and 60 pounds.

The first baby of 1962 born in Iosco County, Mich., is appropriately named. The baby has not yet been given a first name, but his last name is First. He is the son of Airman I.C. and Mrs. Larry First.

New Soviet Ambassador Is Just Another Smiling Russian

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
AP Foreign News Analyst
The Soviet Union is sending a younger smiling Russian to replace an older smiling Russian as its ambassador to Washington. Mikhail Aleksevich Menshikov, who sails for home Thursday after almost four years on the job, is known throughout the United States as Smiling Mike. Anatoly Fedorovich Dobrynin, who will arrive in about a month to succeed him, may well become known as Affable Anatoly. Dobrynin won his reputation for affability in almost three years at the United Nations, from 1957 to 1960, as the top-ranking Soviet citizen in the U.N. secretariat. He was an undersecretary, just below the then secretary-general, Dag Hammarskjold. He is a big, hearty, energetic, outgoing man well over six feet tall, with a booming voice, a bone-crushing handshake and a quick sense of humor. He is a party bald, graying blond with a high, round forehead, silver-rimmed glasses and ice blue eyes. He speaks good French and good English.

He is widely known as one of the friendliest Russians ever to hit U.N. headquarters. All acquaintances agree that he was an extremely capable U.N. official. They also agree that he should make his government an excellent Washington ambassador—for reasons like these:

1. Since leaving the secretariat, he has been chief of the Department of American Countries in the Soviet Foreign Ministry, having to do with the United States, Canada and Latin America. He knows U.S.-Soviet relations inside out.

2. He is not publicly identified with any particular Soviet line. He can easily become the channel for any change of policy directed by the Kremlin.

3. He faithfully reflects the Soviet view but tries to understand other views. His reports to Moscow on U.S. policy and public opinion are apt to be closer to reality than those of someone blinded by Communist dogma.

4. He is a good administrator. He easily grasps the inner workings of such small, specialized societies as the U.N. secretariat and the Washington diplomatic corps. He mixes well with all kinds of people.

Dobrynin's full name is pronounced "ah-na-toe-lee" (third syllable accented) "fyoh-dub-ruh-veeh" (first syllable accented) "doh-breen-yin" (second syllable accented).

He is only 42-1/2 years younger than Menshikov is now. He was born two years after the 1917 Bolshevik revolution and grew up entirely under the Soviet system. The son of a Moscow architect, he was graduated from the Moscow Institute of Aviation and later from the high diplomatic school. He has the degree of candidate of historical sciences—an academic distinction somewhat higher than an American master's degree. In 1946, he quit aeronautical engineering to enter the Soviet diplomatic service. Dobrynin is a member of the collegium, or top directorate, of the Foreign Ministry. In his spare time, he has lectured at the Institute of International Relations and other Moscow schools on diplomatic history and international relations. He reads widely in economics and politics. He has a pretty wife and a teen-age daughter. He and his wife met at the Aviation Institute. They have come a long way since then.

Turn Palace Into Hostelry?

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England (AP)—A Presbyterian minister suggested today Queen Elizabeth should invite some of London's homeless to come and live in Buckingham Palace. "There must be a great deal of spare room in the palace," the Rev. William Barbour wrote in his church magazine. "I know if the queen allowed people in need of accommodation to share her house many other people would follow suit."

There are about 3,000 homeless in London. The vast palace has more than 600 rooms, many of them unused.

Navy Activates Missile Division

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—The U.S. Navy Monday began the new year by activating the first all-guided-missile destroyer division in naval history. Rear Adm. John L. Chew, commander of Destroyer Flotilla 4, called the new five-ship division "a milestone in keeping (the) fleet up to date."

Activated was Destroyer Division 123 of what will become Destroyer Squadron 18 in a ceremony aboard the guided-missile frigate USS Dahlgren in the U.S. Naval Shipyard here. The squadron will form part of Chew's Atlantic striking force flotilla. The Dahlgren, commanded by Cmdr. Cary E. Landis, is in the naval shipyard for an inspection following a shakedown cruise to Guantanamo Bay. It will be the destroyer division's flagship. Capt. Isaac C. Kidd Jr. is division commander.

A Devotional for Today

"The Holy Spirit will tell you at the time what is the right thing for you to say." (Luke 12:12, Phillips.)
PRAYER: O Christ, lead us this year into paths of usefulness. Help us to forget ourselves, and lose ourselves in helpful service to mankind. In Thy blessed name we pray. Amen.

(From The 'Upper Room')

The Wiser Course

Writing in the East Texas Magazine, the publication of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, Millard Cope, publisher of the Marshall News Messenger, assails the rulings by which any agency of the federal government can limit advertising.

The most notable example is the internal Revenue Service ruling that advertising on controversial matters is not an item of business expense. This accomplishment, Mr. Cope correctly points out, is a measure of censorship which no one would dare to attempt by direct methods.

It may be argued that a business still may expend funds, but not claim them as deductions, to explain its position. It is nevertheless a reality that the IRS ruling all but chokes off such expenditure. The stockholders and owners of a business concern are the best and safest judges of what is a judicious expenditure of company funds. If new equipment seems necessary for the preservation and extension of a company, then the owners of business have a right and duty to expend them. If carrying a message which may contribute to the survival or continued welfare of businesses (which among other things provide jobs and service), then the owners have a right and duty to expend those funds without being penalized by the government.

Nor is the IRS alone in this deadly circumstance. Many other bureaus have adopted a similar tack, and now there is pending a measure to strike out all brand names from drugs. The effect would be to kill off brand advertisements.

A wiser course would be to kill off the authority to effect such censorship of and attacks on advertising.

Stabilizing Free World Monetary System

Working quietly in the highly complex and sensitive field of international finance, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon has over the past year brought to near completion a plan to strengthen and stabilize the free world's vital monetary system. Though it has not made sensational news, that achievement may make significant history.

In simplification, the plan basically is to build up the International Monetary Fund, which has mainly served to protect the currency stability of the smaller and less developed nations, as a powerful device for preserving a healthy balance among the currencies of the major industrialized nations of the non-Communist world. The purpose is to promote orderly and fairly shared economic development and trade and to bolster the economic foundation of the free world's security system.

The 10 leading industrial nations, including the European Common Market members, the United States, Canada, Japan and Sweden, have agreed to pledge a $6 billion special addition to the International Monetary Fund. The United States' share reportedly is $2 billion, a commitment expected to require congressional legislation next session. But, as the dollar should be a main beneficiary of the stabilization fund, along with the British pound sterling, it is not anticipated that the United States will actually have to put up cash for the pool.

The United States dollar and the British pound, heretofore the bulwarks of the Western world's monetary system, have been badly strained by defense expenditures in Western Europe, anti-Communist foreign aid, and the mounting competitive strength of the unified Western European economies. Symptoms of the strain have been depletion of gold reserves, inflationary pressures during recessionary conditions, and adverse balance-of-payments trends of worrisome proportions. The most important practical effect of the new monetary pool is the expectation that it will prevent any serious "runs" on American or British currency, especially during the difficult period in the years just ahead when the United States and Britain will be striving to readjust their trade structures to the new conditions posed by the European Common Market.

The agreement of the Western European countries to the basic features of Secretary Dillon's plan is welcome evidence of more responsible cooperation with this nation's effort to secure its own freedom and well-being by promoting free-world strength and stability. It therefore appears a concrete contribution to the power and unity of the Western Alliance.

Marquis Childs Common Markets Face Challenges

WASHINGTON — As in the year just ending, 1962 promises another heat in the race between political insanity and the kind of economic reason that can establish the base for a new and stronger world.

The conviction is growing that through the instrumentality of the European Common Market and its expanding relationship to all non-Communist areas there is a vasty important potential. It lies in the hope that economic ties will provide the cement for a union that political ties seem unlikely to achieve.

The coming year will provide some sharp and even decisive tests for this belief. America's trade policy must be reshaped so that this country can take part in the expanding market created by the new Europe. President Kennedy's primary challenge is to persuade Congress, against the pressures of those industries bent on keeping tariffs up, that the future lies with the new economic order.

WITH FAILURE there would almost certainly be an eventual trade war between the new Europe and the United States. American firms now dependent on exports for their profit margin would sooner or later be shut out of major markets. This would be a sure way to divide the West and, in effect, play the Communist game.

Whether Britain, now knocking on the door and asking for membership, will be admitted to the European community on reasonable terms is still another test. One of the things Prime Minister Macmillan wanted to tell President Kennedy in Bermuda was that this is by no means a foregone conclusion.

BUT FORMIDABLE as are the challenges they seem simple alongside what must be done if not in 1962 then in the years just ahead. Within the framework of an economic union evolving toward a political union of fearful destructiveness: must be confined or they will undo all that has been achieved thus far.

First in this category comes nuclear power for peace and war. France, following a go-it-alone policy bent on a national nuclear deterrent, is deeply resentful of what the French consider American favoritism in helping Britain and denying nuclear help and know-how to France. This is part of the deep-seated neurosis menacing the growing structure of European unity.

AMBITIOUS WEST Germans, such as Defense Minister Franz Joseph Strauss, feeling the upsurge of Germany's new power, are demanding a leverage on the use of nuclear weapons: either through NATO or directly in a national arsenal. This is one of the deeply troubling uncertainties that must somehow be resolved in the coming months.

If within a European framework the British could contribute their considerable nuclear development and this could be added to what the French have done and what the Germans clearly can do in the near future, then a third nuclear force will have been created. It would be collectively controlled and its evolution for peaceful purposes could thereby be more nearly assured. This is part of the vision of the makers of the new Europe.

IN ANOTHER and not so frightening but nonetheless formidable category is the problem of agriculture. The European Common Market in its present stage of development has not even faced up to the question of agricultural surpluses and the subsidies with which most European countries endow their farmers.

By comparison it was easy to knit together the coal and steel producers of the six European countries—France, Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg—in the first step toward a common market. Creating a common currency reserve and before too long a common currency, which is the big step just ahead, may not be too difficult. But the farmer, long convinced that he is not getting his fair share of reward out of an industrialized society and demanding more and more from government, is a tough nut to crack.

OVER WORLD markets hang America's huge agricultural surpluses. Whether they are sold at cut rates or given away, these surpluses threaten to undermine prices and force governments to lift subsidies even higher. Without concerted action there is no solution in sight. A world conference on commodities and farm prices, held within the framework of an expanding Common Market, might find the answer. This is another lien on hope that the farmers of economic union cherish.

With the political winds blowing at times at hurricane force this must seem a small and uncertain candle. But it has persisted and the light it sheds has steadily grown in power. If only for this reason its promise for the future cannot be ignored.

AND AWAY WE GO!

James Marlow No Surprises And Little Heat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's plans for 1962 — as outlined to newsmen over the weekend at Palm Beach — call for no surprises and little heat.

His views are authoritatively based on discussions he has had with men close to him.

What he is reported to have said adds up to leadership but of a kind neither sensational nor original. It was that way in 1961. He apparently wants it that way.

IN FOREIGN affairs he plans a steady plugging away at policies already established and, on domestic problems, a mild and cautious attitude which some may think too mild and overly cautious.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk once remarked to people around him that he does not want to be judged on the merit of some particular action but, when he is through, on the overall value of events, past and ahead, seems to have pretty much the same view.

While Premier Khrushchev at 67 is 23 years Kennedy's senior, it is the older man who sounds like a romantic, the younger, the one without illusions.

While Khrushchev has predicted the triumph of communism like a man taking pep pills, Kennedy has repeatedly regarded the East-West struggle as long, bleak and rugged.

THIS SHOWED UP again in the Palm Beach reports which said he thinks the balance of power is on the side of the West—but perhaps only marginally.

Over the long run, he thinks the West can keep the margin but not so much as to have full freedom of action.

Otherwise, what came out of Palm Beach on his thinking about foreign affairs can be boiled down to this: That this country will follow the Truman-Eisenhower policy of aiding newly emerged nations, neutrals included, to help them stay free of Moscow. It will keep strong militarily and stand with its allies.

In other words: he'll keep on doing in 1962 what he did in 1961. At home this year, as last, he has to deal with a Congress where, although his own Democrats are in a majority, the prevailing mood is and has been conservative.

His own performance last year, in dealing with Congress, was pretty conservative, too. He did not fight hard enough for his programs to make anyone very mad at home.

His own explanation for this may have been revealed at Palm Beach: that while he considers his administration progressive, his progressive aims are tempered by reality.

Hal Boyle The Eyebrows Are Up

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Here's an eyebrow-raising fact about the U.S. educational system: One fourth of all grade school teachers never completed college.

Some American firms now have an unusual "fringe benefit": In addition to coffee breaks, they allow their male employees shaving breaks—on company time.

Travel note: Alaskan taxidermists now accept credit cards.

How they got started: Film producer Darryl F. Zanuck at the age of eight played the role of an Indian girl in a movie. He was paid $1 a day.

Sobering statistic: In 176 years the nation lost a million men in wartime battle deaths. The automobile killed a million people in only 53 years. In 55 per cent of all car deaths liquor was involved.

Is your wife spending too much money at the beauty parlor? Tell her that Mary Martin and Princess Grace of Monaco both shampoo their own hair. Miss Martin washes her famed tresses every night.

Medical authorities are hopeful that in another decade they can wipe out leprosy in Africa. At present a million tribesmen there—one in every 100—suffer from this ancient scourge.

Our quotable notables: The Americans, like the English, probably make love worse than any other race.—Walt Whitman.

The Irish don't spoil their actors with cash. The 21 actors of the Abbey Theater in Dublin, considered one of the world's best, get only about $21 a week each, whether they play a star role or a walk-on bit. But they get paid even if they aren't in the cast of the current play on the boards.

Our screwball culture: There is a new greeting card out for those learning to do the twist, the newest dance craze. It contains a packet of motion sickness pills.

Probably everybody who ever made a $2 bet but he knew this already: Horses begin racing at the age of two. But every thoroughbred's birthday is officially the first of January, no matter what month or day he was actually born.

Wiserack of the week: Singer Helen Kardon says it was so cold in Miami Beach the other day that the lifeguards were only saving warm-blooded girls. (Aside to Miami papers: This is a joke. We all know the weather there has been wonderful.)

Careers in capsule: At 12 Eugene O'Neill was described by the nuns who taught him as "a gentlemanly little fellow." Ten years later he had abandoned his wife and child and was the said so himself "a bum" on the waterfront of Buenos Aires. Ten more years later, at 32, he won the Pulitzer Prize for "Beyond the Horizon," and was recognized as America's most exciting playwright.

Every child has a burst of pride when he first learns how to spell Mississippi. But it might have been simpler if he had stuck to the original Indian word, Mesipi, which means "The Great River."

Worth remembering: "Telling all you know is as bad as believing all you hear."

The mysterious East: Indonesian police have banned hula hoops, claiming they "stir sex passions and lead to crime."

Nature news: many people still believe that ostriches stick their heads in the sand in the face of danger, and that the phrase "blind as a bat" has meaning. The truth: an ostrich will kick with killing power when wounded or cornered. And a bat can see very well in bright light.

I was James Stephens who observed that "women are wiser than men because they know less and understand more."

To Your Good Health Saccharin Is Not Considered Harmful

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: As a former dietician, I was taught that saccharin, being a coal tar product, places an added burden on the kidneys and might be harmful. Am I right?"—M. H.

Coal tar's excess may be detrimental—but saccharin in small amounts cannot be harmful. In large amounts (relatively, that is, but still very small) it becomes bitter. This is an automatic protection against getting too much. Saccharin is from 500 to 1,000 times as sweet as sugar, so users of it never take more than a tiny amount.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can anything be done for bowed legs? Mine are that way. Is there any exercise or treatment that you can recommend? The older I get, the more self-conscious I become."—Mrs. J. H.

I have noted the current skirt lengths—in a purely professional way, of course. I have also noted that, whatever the dress designers may "decree," women vary their skirt lengths quite a bit regardless of the current fashion.

Very short skirts are worn sometimes by girls whose legs are less than perfect, and by my use of this term you can readily see my charitable attitude at the moment. The fact is that some women with terrible legs wear the shortest dresses.

This may not be a bad thing.

Because if you will stand on any downtown corner for 20 minutes and study the variety of leg shapes that go by, you will lose all your own self-consciousness.

There is no exercise or treatment that will help bowed legs in an adult, but nobody's perfect, and the possessor of bowed legs worries more than anyone who looks at them.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I live in the Rocky Mountain area. Should I use iodized salt?—L. E."

I'd consider iodized salt very much worthwhile in that area.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My 11-year-old son has diabetes insipidus. I have been giving him injections of pituitary extract but it is very difficult to obtain. Is there any other medicine that might help him?—Mrs. D. P."

A sniff of pituitary powder is often effective. If this hasn't been tried, it may replace the injections. (Diabetes insipidus is NOT the same as diabetes mellitus, which is the "usual" form of diabetes.)

"Dear Dr. Molner: Since my teens I have occasionally had a light discharge from my navel. I told my mother and she said, 'Bath oftener and more carefully.' This led me to think it was an unclean condition and I never mentioned it to another soul since. I am now 50 and it seems to be occurring with more regularity and profusion.—D. V."

The most usual cause of this sort of trouble is the establishment of a fungus in the navel, or dust, or both. Some navels are deeper than others, and it makes a lot of difference. If a fungus is responsible, rinsing with hydrogen peroxide usually clears it up.

There is a much rarer condition, incomplete closing of the umbilical cord. If this is the situation, it is curable by surgery. It's too bad that the idea of "unclean" developed from your mother's comment decades ago—but that's the way life is. Some casual remark may cause years of worry or feeling of guilt when the remark was long ago forgotten by the person who made it.

"Don't Quit Because of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of the Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover the cost of handling.

Dr. Molner is always happy to hear from his readers, but he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters due to the great number received daily. Wherever possible he uses readers' questions in his column.

Around The Rim If You Take Colds, Also Take Advice

It is my considered opinion everyone in this wide, wide world has a sure remedy for the common cold with the exception of two groups.

One group comprises the individuals who have a cold.

The other group consists of all qualified physicians and medical men.

All others can—and will, at the drop of a damp, wrinkled handkerchief—provide what they will assure you is an infallible remedy.

THE AMAZING THING about it is that the remedies are so varied. Indeed, it appears that there are as many sure cures for the common cold as you have friends.

It may be puzzling to you sometimes to have a friend, himself obviously near bedridden with the disease, assure you he has exactly the remedy you need to beat the attack of sniffles which has left you a runny-nosed quasi-idiot.

Odd though it may appear and much as the impulse may push you to demand nastily if this friend's panacea is all he claims, why in tarnation hasn't it cured his own cold, do not yield to that urge.

LISTEN TO YOUR friend. He means well. He really believes that the treatment he suggests is the final word on what to do about your cold. He probably has a bottle of the drug he regards as the sure cure in his pocket and, if he insists, gulp down the pink pills prescribed for pale people. They won't cure your cold but your acceptance will make your friend happy. And, as you and I both know, there's little enough happiness in this world as things are.

As to physicians—well, those fellows know there ain't no cure for the common cold. So they tell you to go to bed, get lots of rest, eat sparingly and drink lots of liquids. They'll usually give you a shot of some sort, but they just do that to make you feel you're getting your money's worth. The advice—i.e., going to bed, getting lots of rest, etc.—is undeniably the one and only way to lick a common cold. It's a pretty darned good remedy for nearly any minor ailment which may lay a poor body by his heels. Just stay down until you feel like getting up.

THE TROUBLE IS—there's very few of us in this hectic world who can do what the doctor tells us. Ironically, we have to work at our jobs, hence we can't go home, peel off our clothes and holl away our time in bed. It'd be swell but we just can't do it.

There's the old story, you remember, of the doctor who told the cold sufferer: "If you treat yourself for this cold, it will take you two weeks to get rid of it. If I treat it for you, you'll be well in a fortnight."

And that's about the way it is. You wear out the cold or the cold wears you out. Two weeks ordinarily is the length of time required.

Inez Robb Milady Should Be Mechanical-Minded

About six weeks ago Dean Judson White of William Woods College for women at Fulton, Mo., flattered me out of my wits when he asked me to put my mind to work on the type of curriculum that ought to be offered college women in the sixties.

The dean feels — and rightly — that college curriculums were originally tailored for men only, and that women are merely added starters. In short, Dean White believes the time has come to study a curriculum oriented toward women and not just thrust on them by custom and careless chance.

TRUTH TO TELL, at the time the dean got in touch with me, I didn't have any red-hot ideas for reforming higher education for women. But I did and do cherish one hard and fast conviction: As long as the world is worth living in, women will be primarily homemakers.

That doesn't bar the girls from law, medicine, the sciences, arts, government or any other exercise of their talents. But the inescapable fact — and to me a most happy one — is that no matter what the members of my sex do outside the home, they are primarily homemakers for their respective husbands and children.

SO, ON THE ABOVE premises, it is obvious that what women need, educationally, to face the future is not less masculine-oriented education but more. If the American home is to survive, some philanthropic or foundation must double the size of Cal Tech, M.I.T., Rensselaer Poly and similar technical institutes and fill the added facilities with women.

Unless the American wife of the future, and it's nearer than you think, is a master plumber, electrician, carpenter, architect and decorator, the American home by 1970 will be shambaling wreckage.

THE HANDWRITING has been on the wall for a long time. But I didn't really get its message until Local 3, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, announced that it would go out on strike unless granted a four-hour day! As this is written, the lads already receive $42.90 in wages and benefits for a seven-hour day (i.e., a six-hour day plus one hour of overtime.)

Under a new contract such a seven-hour day would cost the householder anywhere from $80 on up. Some estimates run as high as $13 per diem.

The only answer is to send us women to technical institutes where we can learn to keep the mechanized, push-button household in working order. Never mind Chaucer and Kant and all that. What the modern woman needs is mastery of the monkey wrench, watts and amperes, hammer, saw, level and screwdriver. And she ought to be able to do a little lathe and plaster work on the side.

AMERICANS ARE discovering that the care and upkeep of the mechanized home is like that of a yacht. If the cost of upkeep continues to rocket in geometric ratio, a lot of us are going to regress to the old-fashioned kitchen with the wood-burning stove and the redheaded man who tossed 75 pounds of ice in the icebox three times a week.

Last summer, when one of our air conditioners was ailing, the head surgeon received $18 per hour and his helper, who handled him the scalpel and sponges, got $4.50 per hour, for a total of $14.50 per hour. It costs a trifle more to treat and put a dishwasher back on its feet.

UNFORTUNATELY, neither my husband nor I have the slightest talent at do-it-yourselfing. Here is the blindest spot in our respective educations. In the past 10 years there's been many a day when we wished we knew less about Proust and Tolstoy and a lot more about simple wiring. We grew up in the golden age of the handy man, who is, alas, no more.

What profit it me, Dean White, to bake a cake or parse Freud when I don't know a conduit from a circuit breaker? (Copyright, 1961, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Holmes Alexander The Peace Corps And Conservatives

WASHINGTON, D. C.—On a torrid day last August a lady from the White House phoned and invited me to attend the Rose Garden ceremony at which President Kennedy was giving a send-off talk to the Peace Corps.

I didn't go, and for reasons that aren't very journalistic. The truth is the President always sends me when he makes a patriotic emotional address, which this occasion would demand. And the sight of the First Lady in her gracious role practically puts me into a swoon.

THERE DIDN'T SEEM any way I could write an objective piece on the great Peace Corps—even if I'd wanted to, which I didn't. I have a great big prejudice against an amateur going out on a professional's job. And much of the woe that flesh is heir to, in my opinion, is brought on by the do-gooders, the world-savers, the small people who think they're strutting big when they address their efforts to the cosmos instead of to the neighborhood, and who love the Family of Man, better than men.

But you live and learn. Or maybe you just resolve every New Year to write more constructively, and try to conserve what good there is in any project, rather than condemn it out of hand. Sargent Shriver, the Peace Corps generalissimo, was recently asked on "Meet The Press" why the conservatives have been reasonably charitable to his outfit which, by June, will be operative in 20 foreign countries—and, of course, by invitation only, Shriver named some features of the Corps which he thought were attractive to right wing thinkers, and in a subsequent conversation with me he went into it more deeply.

HE SAID that the staunchest Southern Conservatives—Senators Talmadge, Ervin, Jordan, McClellan—had supported the enabling legislation which turned it from a presidential to a national effort. Many voted for the lower appropriation of $25 million, rather than the $30 million figure which prevailed, but this was not necessarily disapproval of the project, which in every way is the most economical foreign aid measure on the books. Shriver said he had tried to contact Sen. Goldwater, the GOP's right wing orator, but hadn't been able to get to him.

Had Shriver and Goldwater come together they would have had a congenial talk. For many years, long before getting into politics, Goldwater has been director of an Arizona organization, the American Institute For Foreign Trade, which has purposes similar to those of the Peace Corps. Shriver and Goldwater would have agreed, I think, that with the proper selection, the proper training and with objectives narrowly limited to technical training and education, young and eager Americans can be sent to foreign places where they are welcome to do humble work that makes for peace and friendship.

THE WORK, if it is pro-American, is automatically anti-Communist. Goldwater is no night rider for the Rightist cause, I think he would feel it takes more courage, and does more good, to attack Communists in Tamanyuka and Nigeria than it does in Texas and California.

Initiative, adventure, frugality, go-getterism, pride in America, disapproval of dictatorship and a sense that friendship will come if it will come but can't be bought—all this the conservative philosophy and the Peace Corps have in common.

If things go well, we might have here a late blooming romance and a marriage of like minds.

Colorful Celebration Notes The New Year

Some 300 persons were present for the New Year's Eve celebration held at the Officers' Club. Little John Beecher and his orchestra provided music for the occasion and favors for the evening were noise makers, hats, confetti, balloons, etc. Colored streamers, hanging from the ballroom rafters, were used for decoration.

Black and white sheath cocktail dresses were predominant in the ballroom scene. Noticeable too were Mrs. Max Odle and Mrs. James Chestnut, both brunettes, in their respective frocks of crystal and pearl embroidered black and full skirted raspberry chiffon accented with jacket of poodle yarn.

Mrs. W. A. Mason was attired in a long black lace sheath, having broad sash and accessories of red; Mrs. Robert McManigill in white brocade with full skirt and rhinestone pin accent; and Mrs. D. E. Jonker in black velvet, a maternity fashion with scoop neckline, worn with pearl jewelry.

A full-skirted white chiffon, featuring crystal beaded bodice and pastel embroidered, was worn by Mrs. William Niles, while Gail Campbell, guest of Capt. Howard Austin, was attired in a beige satin sheath embroidered in burnt orange matching the burnt orange cummerbund and her slippers.

Mrs. James Phillips, on the dance floor, was attractive in a frosted brocade blouse and black bell skirt, accented with a large pink rose at the waistline. Mrs. James Fletcher was in a maternity frock of blue shantung, styled with draped bodice.

Following the dance, breakfast was served to a great number of those attending.

Terrariums For Winter Pleasure

AP Newsfeatures

Miss Freda M. Baudendistel of Port Dickenson, N. Y., does much arranging in glass - enclosed winter gardens - terrariums.

All you need, says Miss Baudendistel, a retired school teacher, is a glass jar, bottle or other container, such as a tank vacated by tropical fish. The container doesn't require a formal lid. A piece of glass will do to contain the moisture and humidity. Among her gardens are a five gallon pickle jar, a big mayonnaise jar, brandy snifters, goblets and candy jars.

Dark moss and contrasting light materials are a favorite combination.

In nearby woods, Miss Baudendistel gathers sheet moss she finds growing on rocks and tree stumps. This she places face down in the terrarium so that the mossy side shows through the bottom. Atop this she places a mixture of one part sand, one part peat moss or humus, one part loam, a bit of fertilizer and pulverized charcoal.

She builds up the forest scene with more moss, then adds such items as hepatica, fern, fungus growth, lichens, driftwood, semper vivum and red partridge berries. Fossils, quartz, lava, shells, pebbles or bits of rock are added.

Miss Baudendistel suggests trying to fashion natural woodland scenes.

Tea Dancing

An annual affair, the New Year's Eve tea dance at the Big Spring Country Club was held Monday evening followed by a buffet. Mrs. Marge Ramsey, club manager, (left photo), was in charge of arrangements. Seated at the table with her is Larry Peters. Noted in the ballroom scene, above, were the holiday dresses and decor. Some 200 members and out-of-town guests attended.

New for windows are plastic blinds built of three-inch vented squares. Squares may be removed for use of blinds in a smaller window and added for a larger window.

Blinds Can Be Made

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you don't see what you want when you are shopping for the home, ask for it. You'll probably find that what your mind has conjured up as the solution to some dilemma in home furnishings does exist. If it does not, chances are you can find a reasonably good substitute.

Products for walls, floors, room dividers, windows, furniture and accessories offer unlimited possibilities in interior design these days. Home fashion is available since practicality is combined with good looks. More custom styling is available at the local level and manufacturers are realistic, offering more products with features that have long-range possibilities.

Window treatments are typical of the new trend. One solves the problem of what to do about old blinds that do not fit the windows of a new house. Jayliss blinds are built on three-inch rigid plastic squares so that units may be removed easily to fit smaller areas or added to accommodate a larger expanse. Surplus squares can always be stored until you can use them again, perhaps at a larger window.

Little vented areas in the squares keep out glare and let in diffused light. While small apertures in a home furnishings product often make for a cleaning chore, these blinds are treated with an anti-static preparation

White Vinegar

When you want to preserve the color in homemade pickles and relishes, use white distilled vinegar.

that is said to repel dust for years.

The blinds are available in 22 colors and any number of interesting effects are achieved by combining colors and borders, stripes and other patterns to fit into contemporary or traditional rooms. When the blinds are drawn back they take up about one inch of space for every foot of the extended blinds.

Blinds offer many possibilities other than in conventional window arrangements. The new vented blinds may serve as room dividers, cover a beat-up wall area or extend beyond a window to give the illusion of a window wall.

From the WMS, Mrs. Carl Tipton read the devotion, challenging members to renew their strength in the months ahead. The group was dismissed by the Rev. Carl Lee, and a supper was served. The new year was welcomed by those attending with the song "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," as they clasped hands.

Frenchman Writes For Small Fry

By MARY CAMPBELL AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—"I know what I like in children's stories but I don't know what I don't like," muses Laurent de Brunhoff, French author now making his first visit to the United States.

De Brunhoff writes books about the adventures of a little elephant king named Babar (published here in English translation) and illustrates them with pictures of Babar, his family and friends.

FANTASY The writer does not agree with critics who deplore fantasy in children's books and recommend 100 per cent realism.

De Brunhoff adds that suspense, important for childhood fiction as it is for adult, is often lacking in a rigidly realistic tale.

"A boy or girl has to wonder what is going to happen, to be sometimes excited, to be sometimes afraid of what is going on. He has to be surprised from one page to another."

FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS

De Brunhoff, a slender man in his middle 40s, with a friendly face and a receding hairline, is continuing the Babar series begun in 1931 by his father, Jean de Brunhoff. He had produced six Babar books before his death in 1937.

Although today the household contains two children, Anne, 9, and Antoine, 7, and De Brunhoff does show them his books, he says. "I think to remember the childhood for an author may be more important than testing children. I still try to do that."

Chargers Sign Lance Alworth Following Tilt

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The rest of the American Football League may not be faring well in its fight with the rival National Football League for the top collegiate players, but the San Diego Chargers are more than holding their own.

Charger end Coach Al Davis handed Arkansas halfback Lance Alworth a contract under a goal post at the end of the Sugar Bowl game between Arkansas and Alabama Monday.

Alworth immediately signed it. A few yards away, Coach Red Hickey of the NFL's San Francisco 49ers, looked dejected. He had reached Alworth first as the 178-pound halfback walked off the field. The 49ers picked Alworth in the first round of the NFL draft.

Alworth, a Brookhaven, Miss., product, said he picked San Diego because "The AFL is a new league. I'll have a chance to grow with it."

He became the second No. 1 choice of the NFL to be signed by the Chargers, who two weeks ago got Kansas Quarterback John Hadl — Detroit's selection. Hadl was picked the outstanding player in Saturday's East-West game at San Francisco.

Otherwise, the NFL has signed seven of its first round selections — headed by Heisman Trophy winner Ernie Davis of Syracuse, who went to Cleveland, after a 14-0 Browns obtained rights to him from Washington.

The jubilant Al Davis said terms of the contract wouldn't be released.

"It was very respectable. That's all I can say," said the 32-year-old Charger assistant.

Alworth was Oakland's second choice in the AFL player draft, but Davis said the Chargers "swapped several players" for the speedy player.

In Oakland, Raider General Manager Wes Fry said his team got four Chargers for rights to Alworth. He said Oakland has decided on two, but hasn't picked the others and did not announce any names.

As one of the 28 teams entered in the big tournament in the Reagan County capital, Stanton will be confronted with two stern foes at the outset. The first round pits Stanton against Iraan, and if the Buffs survive that, they then will likely draw the talented Fort Stockton aggregation.

The Big Spring Steers seek their 13th victory in 15 starts in an 8 o'clock game with Midland Lee here tonight, at which time both quintets open their district 2-AAAA campaign.

This will be the first conference basketball game ever played by Lee, since the high school was opened only last fall.

Playing without their top scorer last weekend, the Steers lost to Andrews in Andrews, 51-49. The winning field goal was scored in the final four seconds of play.

Ebling was on the sidelines with a turned ankle. He's due to be shipshape tonight. Dick has counted 224 points this year in 13 games, having tossed in 81 field goals and added 62 free pitches.

Eddie Nelson, the club's ace rebounder, is next in the Steer scoring parade with 193 points.

Those who will be on the floor at the opening tipoff, along with Albert Fierro and Deetoby Garman, two sophomores, and a senior, Coy Mitchell. Sophomore Richard Bethell will see a lot of action, too.

In its last start, Midland Lee was clobbered by the Abilene Eagles, 56-25. Overall, the Rebels own a 4-13 won-lost record.

They own this advantage over the Steers, however. They have played a tougher schedule than the Longhorns, having met several Class AAAA schools along the way. The Steers have limited their play to AAA, AA and Class A teams.

Art Fowler leads the Lee attack while Bob Lambert lends him a lot of help. Others who will play for Lee include J. Adams, McClenon and Patterson.

B teams of the two schools tangled at 6:15 p.m. The scorers: Dick Ebling 81, Ed 62, 234; Eddie Nelson 78, 27, 183; Albert Fierro 16, 16, 39; D. R. Garman 28, 17, 39; Coy Mitchell 18, 21, 28; Richard Bethell 19, 10, 28; Jeff Brown 5, 7, 17; Roy 2, 1, 11; Michael Peters 2, 1, 11; Baitles Barber Shop 2, 1, 11; Lonnie Ransom 2, 0, 4; Walter Minter 2, 0, 4; Ricker Wisener 2, 0, 4; Tommy Tompkins 0, 1, 1

San Angeloan Tommy Ford intercepted the second of five passes the Longhorns picked off, coming in low to take the ball just off the ground at Mississippi's 34 in the opening period. Jerry Cook, who grabbed the first interception for Texas, didn't know he had the ball for an instant.

Ole Miss' chances were hurt when fullback Buck Randall was injured early in the second quarter. He was used sparingly thereafter.

Randall, a sophomore from Greenwood, Miss., had replaced Billy Ray Adams in the Rebel lineup. Adams had been injured in a car wreck in Mississippi several weeks ago and didn't suit out.

When Mike Cotten pitched to David Collins for Texas' second TD late in the second quarter, Collins walked the tight rope up the sidelines for the score. The play covered 24 yards.

Misguided passes practically wrote the story of the game but Texas had only a so-so record on interceptions during the regular season, having picked off only 12 in ten games. The opposition for the most part, however, might have been afraid to throw against the Steers.

One of the game's great plays occurred in the third period when Saxon quick kicked the ball 74 yards to Mississippi's 14, far over the head of the deepest Rebel backs. There, of course, was no rubback.

It was Saxon's second quick kick this year. On his previous try, the boot went 54 yards. The terrific boot might have taken the fight out of less courageous teams but Ole Miss slashed right back down field for its lone TD.

The Dallas newspapers did fans from other areas a disservice by trumpeting claims that housing was impossible to get in the area over the long weekend.

The downtown hotels were full but very few motels sold out at any time. Practically all had their "vacancy" signs blinking throughout the holiday period.

Cincy Second To Buckeyes In AP Basketball Poll

By JIM HACKLEMAN Associated Press Sports Writer If there is any dissension about it, it isn't apparent. Ohio State seems to have convinced everyone it is the undisputed leader in college basketball.

The ten teams the mighty Buckeyes have rolled over so far are convinced. So are the 42 panel members voting in The Associated Press poll. They again made Ohio State the unanimous choice for No. 1 in this week's balloting.

The Buckeyes, deep in talent and experience and with a magnificent leader in Jerry Lucas, swept to three victories and the title in the premier event of the hectic holiday tournament program, the Los Angeles Classic. They beat Washington, UCLA and nationally ranked Southern California.

Cincinnati (10-1), Kansas State (10-1), Kentucky (8-1) and Duke (8-1) bolstered their national ratings with a successful week, while Villanova (11-0), Mississippi State (9-0) and Bowling Green (8-1) climbed into the top ten with tournament triumphs. Southern Cal (9-2) and Duquesne (8-1) slipped in the rankings, and West Virginia (7-1), Wichita (10-2) and Purdue (7-2) fell out entirely.

Cincinnati took a firmer grip on second place by beating St. John's, LaSalle and Wisconsin in the Holiday Festival at New York. Kentucky jumped from sixth to third after victories over Yale and Notre Dame. Kansas State advanced one place to fourth following decisions over Nebraska, Missouri and Iowa State in the Big Eight tourney, and Duke's 75-73 squeaker over Wake Forest moved the Blue Devils from tenth to eighth.

Villanova powered its way from nowhere to No. 5 on the strength of three impressive performances in the Quaker City tournament in Philadelphia. The spirited Wildcats knocked over Niagara, Duquesne and Iowa.

Tide Retains Status; UCLA Is Routed

By ED CORRIGAN Associated Press Sports Writer

Alabama's convincing Sugar Bowl victory over Arkansas left the Crimson Tide still towering over the field today as the No. 1 college football team in the country.

Alabama's 10-3 decision in New Orleans Monday turned out to be pretty much of a routine job—a rock-ribbed defense and enough offense to keep the enemy off balance.

But if Alabama didn't get much satisfaction out of its Sugar Bowl victory, Minnesota and Texas, two other bowl victors, were walking on air.

Minnesota defeated UCLA in the Rose Bowl 21-3 to make amends for its loss a year ago. The Gophers got in the back door, when Big Ten champion Ohio State declined a bid.

Texas, playing before a home crowd in Dallas in the Cotton Bowl, defeated Mississippi 12-7. Ole Miss was installed as a 3-4 point favorite. The Rebels were the only favorite to go down.

Louisiana State polished off Colorado as expected 25-7 in the rain in Miami's Orange Bowl.

Alabama managed to score only one touchdown, and that is a tribute to Arkansas. It came in the first period when Pat Trammell climaxed a 79-yard march by going over from the 12. The big gain during the drive was a 43-yard jaunt by Mike Frachia, who shrugged off a broken nose to play.

Tim Davis added a field goal and Mickey Cissell kicked one for Arkansas. This was another feather in the Razorbacks' hat because Alabama had shut out its last five opponents during the regular season.

Alabama coach Bear Bryant said he had "nine heart attacks" during the game.

"Arkansas was in better shape than we were and was well prepared for us," he added.

"It was their defense," said Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles. "We couldn't move the ball on the ground."

It was a good victory for Alabama. After all, the Crimson Tide had little to gain by beating unranked Arkansas and a lot to lose.

Minnesota lost last year's Rose Bowl game to Washington, 17-7. This, combined with the fact they were the second choice, made the game a critical one for the Gophers.

All-America Sandy Stephens was the big gun for Minnesota, scoring two touchdowns, both on line bucks. Bill Munsey plunged over from the 3 for the other. Bobby Smith kicked a 28-yard field goal for UCLA in the first period.

"This squad heard a lot about that loss to Washington for a solid year," said Minnesota Coach Murray Warmath. "I guess the boys were as tired as I was listening to it."

Said UCLA Coach Bill Barnes: "Minnesota didn't surprise us with anything. They just overpower you. They have a big strong line and can move anybody around."

Texas' big problem was to stop Mississippi's ace passer Glynn Griffing. The problem was solved and that spelled the difference. Griffing did connect with Reed Davis on a 20-yard flip in the zone in the third quarter for the Rebels' only touchdown, but otherwise spent a frustrating day.

The Rebels, for their part, pretty well bottled up All-America Jim Saxon. He bucked over from the 1 for the first Longhorn score. Otherwise, Mike Cotton handled the offense and tossed a 25-yard pass to Jack Collins for the other touchdown.

"I had never beaten Mississippi," said Texas Coach Darrell Royal. "This makes up in part for the drubbing they gave us in the Sugar Bowl in 1958."

Mississippi Coach Johnny Vaught said his club was surprised by a man-in-motion series.

"We didn't know what to do with it until after the half," he commented gloomily.

Louisiana State, the heaviest favorite of all four bowl teams, appeared in for trouble at the start.

Hawks With Title Loot

Coaches and captains of the HCJC Jayhawks are shown with some of the loot they won in the tenth annual Howard County basketball tournament. The locals emerged as champions for the fifth time in the meet, beating Decatur in the finals, 86-73. Left to right, they are coach Buddy Travis, Elvis Spradling, Larry McElyea (in civies because he had been hurt), Jerry Tillman and coach Verdell Turner. The Hawks play South Plains in a Western Conference game here tonight at 8 o'clock.

HC Hawks Oppose South Plains At 8

Fresh from a sweep to the championship in their own tournament, the HCJC Jayhawks kick the lid off their Western JC Conference basketball season with a home game tonight against South Plains of Levelland.

Although South Plains finished dead-last in the tournament the Hawks (11-1 on the year) have their work cut out for them.

The Jayhawks, coached by Bill Powell, compel a lot of respect. They have won five and lost nine this season. The Levelland team plays a deliberate brand of ball that often upsets a fast-breaking foe.

Bill Butts and James Collins make the South Plains attack go. The two are good rebounders and can hit the basket.

Others who lend help to the South Plains cause include Noel Carter, Derrill Jennings, Donald Ivie, Cecil Marshall, Roy Sage and Alton Robertson. The latter is a Stanton boy, by the way.

HCJC is apt to start a lineup composed of Jerry Tillman, Ernest Turner, Walter Carter, Elvis Spradling and Lou Balenton. Larry McElyea, an ace guard for the locals, is still favoring a turned ankle and coach Buddy Travis expressed doubt that he would be able to play.

This will be the final home game for the Hawks until Jan. 20, at which time they play the tree-top tall New Mexico Military Institute Cadets.

This weekend, the Hawks are scheduled to go to Lawton, Okla., where they compete in the fourth tournament of the year, HCJC's only loss this year was a three-pointer to Paris in Paris. The Hawks have won tournament championships at Odessa and San Angelo, as well as Big Spring.

horn line that crippled Mississippi's ground attack and fellows like Tommy Ford and Pat Culpepper and Jerry Cook, who intercepted three passes, that brought thrills to a roaring crowd of 75,394 who jammed the giant saucer.

Ford intercepted one of Glynn Griffing's passes to set up the first Texas touchdown in the opening period, scored by All-America Jim Saxon on a one-yard smash.

Texas slammed 72 yards for the clincher with Cotten's passing and running leading the Longhorns. Cotten threw to Jack Collins for the touchdown, the play covering 24 yards.

Then Texas had to fight off the blistering Mississippi aerial attack the rest of the way, yielding one touchdown to it but stopping other dangerous threats with that defense that bloomed when the time was ripe.

Griffing, who passed for 163 yards but had three passes intercepted, pitched for 37 yards and ran for another 37 in spearing the 86-yard surge climaxed with a 20-yard TD throw to Reed Davis.

The massive Rebels roared to the Texas 23 with minutes to go but out of the pack came Bob Moses to fell Griffing on the 24 as the Rebel quarterback tried desperately on fourth down for the two yards that would have given Mississippi life.

That was the ball game, and meant the Southwest Conference had won a Cotton Bowl game for the first time in five years.

hadn't been getting the credit and recognition we deserved."

The Packer defensive unit held the New Yorkers to 31 yards rushing, 119 in the air and six first downs. The defensive corps grabbed four Giant passes and recovered one New York fumble.

The Packer offense, directed by quarterback Bart Starr and sparked by halfback Paul Hornung, did the rest.

Starr's play calling produced 19 first downs, gained 181 yards on the ground and 164 in the air. Starr passed for three touchdowns, and when his passes were not wrecking through big holes in the New York line.

Hornung, on leave from his jeep-driving chores with the Army at Ft. Riley, Kan., carried the burden of the ground attack. His running mate, fullback Jim Taylor, was slowed by a back injury.

Hornung, the league's most valuable player in the past season and its scoring leader for the past three years, carried 20 times for 89 yards. He scored 19 points, setting an individual title game record. He scored one touchdown, booted four extra points and kicked three field goals to break the mark of 18 set by Cleveland's Otto Graham in the 1954 game with Detroit.

Hornung said "it was our day. We could do nothing wrong and they could do nothing right."

Each Giant received $3,339.99 as his share of the gate.

Weather Holds Down Turnouts

By The Associated Press

The four big bowl games Monday drew a total of about 311,109 spectators. Cold weather held down the Sugar Bowl crowd in New Orleans and rain fell in Miami for the first time in the history of the Orange Bowl.

Here is a breakdown of the four games: Attendance Bowl Rose 98,214 Sugar 73,000 Cotton 75,394 Orange 62,391

ALLEN TEAM GEAR LOST

Anyone found any stray basketballs? Coach Roy Die of Allen Academy called coach Buddy Travis of HCJC from Bryan Monday to reveal and appeal.

He said that a bag containing six balls broke open on the Allen bus somewhere between here and Sterling City on the Ramblers' trip home following the HCJC tournament and the balls slipped out along the road.

He'd appreciated it, he said, if the finders would contact him at the school in Bryan.

Kennedy Plans Policy With Top Officials

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy holds policy-framing conferences today with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and top defense officials.

The vice president was scheduled to arrive in early afternoon from Johnson City, Tex. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Deputy Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatric and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Kennedy's personal military adviser, were also due here for a later afternoon meeting on the nation's security status.

From all appearances, they intend to go over the preparedness situation which Kennedy has depicted as giving the West an overall edge on the Communists.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the meeting would not directly concern the defense budget, which is likely to absorb more than half the President's anticipated $92-billion spending proposals for 1962-63.

Neither, Salinger said, was it called to make a decision on whether the United States needs to resume nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

The discussions will continue Wednesday after the arrival of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The entire Kennedy family was heartened by word that the head of the clan, Joseph P. Kennedy, 73, is making such improvement from his stroke that he was able to leave his hospital bed for a short period in a wheelchair. The President and other members of the family visited the elder Kennedy Monday at St. Mary's Hospital in neighboring West Palm Beach.

The chief executive spent a quiet New Year's Day, cheated by foul weather from his usual cruise on Lake Worth.

He made public a report from Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy claiming significant advances in the government's war on the underworld. The attorney general, summarizing 1961 activities by federal crimebusters, said laws passed during the year could be thanked for much of the progress.

Without being specific, he said the Justice Department could use additional legislation to fight racketeers, gamblers and hoodlums.

The attorney general cited the indictment of officials at Newport, Ky., in declaring his department is conducting a major effort to nail racketeers who try to corrupt public officials. He said a majority of race wire services have shut down and contended betting on football games slumped during the 1961 season.

An exchange of greetings between the President and Soviet leaders was made public on New Year's Eve. Both the Washington and Moscow messages expressed hopes for peace and better relations in 1962.

Kennedy plans to remain here until Saturday, when he will fly to Columbus, Ohio, to speak at a fund-raising birthday dinner for Ohio Gov. Michael DiSalle.

Freeman Claims Agriculture Surplus Down, Income Up

WASHINGTON (AP)— Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman in a year-end report asserted today that 1961 had enlarged opportunities for American agriculture by reversing a buildup of crop surpluses and by enlarging farm income.

Freeman listed what he called major accomplishments of his department:

1. Donation of 1.7 billion pounds of surplus foods to 23 million Americans in need, participating in the school lunch program, living in public institutions and suffering from natural disasters.
2. Increased price supports for most grains, milk, oilseed crops, dry beans and honey.
3. Halted a long buildup in feed grains surpluses.
4. Loans and insured private loans to low-income and distressed farmers totaling $490 million, a 46 per cent increase over 1960.
5. Loans of $222.6 million to expand rural power systems and $110 million to expand rural telephone service.
6. Helped move a record-breaking $5.1 billion of farm products into export markets.

Freeman also outlined other new programs and actions in the farm and food field. They included the setting up of an experimental program for the food stamp plan for helping the needy and establishment of a field organization for advance planning to offset effects of a nuclear attack on agriculture and on food supplies.

Big Snowstorm Heads Into East

By The Associated Press
A New Year's Day snowstorm which dumped up to a foot of snow in parts of Virginia and Tennessee and heavy falls in other sections of the South and East, headed into New England today.

More than six inches of snow hit Atlantic City, N.J., during the night but smaller amounts were reported north and south of the Atlantic Ocean resort. Snowfalls measured 4 to 8 inches in western sections of the Carolinas. Rain fell along coastal areas, with some sleet and gusty northerly winds as the storm moved northeastward.

Extended emergency livestock feed assistance to farmers in 330 counties adversely affected by drought and other natural hazards.

Guatemalan Chief Admits Role In Cuban Invasion

GUATEMALA (AP)—President Miguel Ydigoras says last April's invasion of Cuba by forces trained in Guatemala so frightened Fidel Castro "that his warlike activities outside Cuba ceased since that date."

He said Guatemala reached an understanding with the exiled Cubans and "they entered into arrangements with a friendly government able to give arms and sustain training and a military campaign."

Such auspices must go on with the great task of decommunizing that part of the American territory. There are signed commitments in South America.

Sweepstakes Winner

A South Seas motif is featured in this float which won the sweepstakes prize as the most beautiful entry in Tournament of Roses at Pasadena, Calif., for the city and county of San Diego. Classes resume at 8:45 a.m. and buses, meals and classwork will be on regular schedule. At Howard County Junior College, classes begin again at 8 a.m. following the regular schedule, according to Dean Ben P. Johnson Jr. The dormitories will be open tonight and the evening meal will be served at the cafeteria, he said.

January, if the U.S. Weather Bureau's forecast for the month holds true, will provide this part of Texas with weather considerably colder than usual for the season. At the same time there will be less rain than customarily falls in January.

Dominican Assets Greatly Reduced

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The new Dominican government sworn in Monday finds itself with assets sharply reduced from the days when the country was run as a family affair by the Trujillos.

President Joaquin Balaguer has been busy giving away millions of dollars worth of Trujillo property, chopping taxes and behaving mostly like a generous politician seeking another term. Balaguer is not a candidate, however, and his official party soon will be dead as such.

What is behind the president's give-away program? The political opposition, thinly veiling its irritation, calls it demagoguery.

The 14th of June group, most outspoken in censuring Balaguer's donations, claims the president is trying to bribe labor. Alluding to plans to give shares in Trujillo companies to employees, the 14th of June group said in its newspaper: "We point out that some shares that were obtained through the blood and sweat of all the Dominican people should not benefit only part of the people."

Some agricultural experts criticize the distribution of developed land and cattle among the poor, contending this will break up efficient operations and endanger the cattle industry through slaughter of breeding stock. There seems no intention of disrupting farm and cattle operations which were owned by the Trujillo family. Government sources say these will be used for experimental purposes, agrarian reform and other state projects.

Generally Balaguer's program has been applauded by many Dominicans and foreign observers who see it as an idea to deprive future political leaders of the use of these resources for political purposes.

After the Trujillos departed the government took over 51 firms they owned outright or in part. The over-all value is not disclosed. The Haina sugar operation alone is likely worth $100 million.

The president has been using Trujillo funds to donate taxicabs to needy operators; tricycles in wide use here as portable vending stalls; land and livestock.

He also ordered home mortgage interest rates cut from 8 to 4 per cent and extended payments to a maximum 20-year period instead of 10.

The coffee-cacao monopoly of the Trujillos was dissolved and the arbitrary export tax eliminated. This dissolution has created a field of at least 60 independent exporters, the government says.

Reduction of sales taxes will cost the government $20 million annually in revenue. Balaguer says new sugar tax legislation—the Trujillo companies paid no taxes—will more than make up the difference.

Traffic Toll Rises Sharply On Last Day

By The Associated Press

Traffic 331
Fires 83
Miscellaneous 59

The New Year weekend traffic death toll, with a sharp rise Monday, surpassed the pre-holiday estimate of 330 and soared far past the record low mark.

The count at midnight Monday, at the end of the three-day holiday period, showed 331 traffic deaths. Fires claimed the lives of 83 persons, a record for a New Year period since World War II, and 59 others lost their lives in miscellaneous accidents. The over-all toll was 473.

Belated reports were expected to increase the traffic death toll for the 78-hour period which started at 6 p.m. (local time) Friday.

The National Safety Council, which had estimated that 330 persons might be killed in traffic accidents during the extended weekend, earlier had hopes that the toll might be a record low for the three-day New Year period.

The record low of 269 highway fatalities was set in the 1949-1950 New Year period. The record traffic toll for a three-day New Year period is 374, set in 1959-60.

In the three-day 1960-61 New Year celebration, there were 338 traffic deaths, 66 perished in fires and 78 were killed in miscellaneous accidents, a total of 482.

Traffic deaths totaled 524 in the recent three-day Christmas weekend, while 83 persons died in fires and 86 others in miscellaneous accidents, an over-all toll of 693.

The previous record of fire deaths for a New Year period since World War II was 74, set during the 1955-56 three-day celebration.

For comparative purposes, The Associated Press made a survey of accidents deaths in a non-holiday weekend, from 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 8 to midnight Monday, Dec. 11. The count: 347 in traffic, 42 in fires and 57 in the miscellaneous group, a total of 446.

By The Associated Press

The New Year's weekend violent death toll in Texas stood at 43 persons this year, compared to a total of 92 such deaths over the Christmas weekend.

Twenty-seven persons died in traffic accidents over New Year's compared to 50 during the Christmas holiday. The other deaths were from fires and other causes.

In both cases The Associated Press tabulation covered the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday.

7 People Collapse In Heated House

HOUSTON (AP)—Two families, seven persons in all, collapsed in an overheated house in Houston but one of the occupants managed to call for an ambulance before he blacked out.

Police said several fires were burning in stoves and all the windows and doors were closed when they arrived yesterday.

Isreal Tomayo Sr., 22, one of the two men in the house, said he got to a telephone before he passed out. Only one of the seven, Mary Gonzales, 18, required hospital treatment overnight.

Kennedy Reported After Income Tax Leverage

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration is reported to be seriously considering asking Congress to give the President authority to increase or reduce income tax rates as a hedge against inflation or recession.

The proposal, sources said Monday, may be presented in one of President Kennedy's major messages to Congress this month. Presumably it would be apart from the White House's tax revision program.

Behind the plan is the knowledge that getting tax legislation through Congress is often a drawn-out business. The inform-

DEAR ABBY

Contract Expired

DEAR ABBY: I burst into tears as my lover of ten years (a lawyer) told me he had decided to go back to his wife. He said, "I have no contract with you." Please warn other stupid women about this phrase.

Respectfully,
"TEN YEARS SHOT"

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man who tells you he wants to go to jail? He says he is thinking up a way to get in. He isn't a violent man, but he is planning to throw a brick through a window or talk back to an officer, or do something that he can get arrested for. He tells me he can't stand the noise around here. We do have six little ones. I can't tape their mouths shut but, if I can stand it, so can he.

He says he is fed up with me, married life and the children, and the only place for him is jail where nobody can bother him.

DEAR WORRIED: I've heard of men trying to break OUT of jail, but never INTO one. If your husband is joking—laugh. If he is serious, call a doctor. He should have his head examined.

DEAR ABBY: Every year my husband's favorite aunt comes to visit us for about two weeks. She is very jolly and pleasant but she keeps her suitcase locked and she has one fault that bothers me, she sews the key to her girdle. I don't know what she has that is so valuable, but certainly no one in this house would take anything. I think this is an insult to a hostess. How would you feel about a guest who locks everything up while visiting in your home?

HURT

DEAR HURT: We all have our little peculiarities. Security is hers. Overlook it.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I have a difference of opinion on something, and want your advice. My boy friend is going to give me an engagement ring very soon. My mother thinks he should give it to me in front of everybody at the engagement party she is going to give. I think he should give it to me in private. What is your opinion?

IN THE CLOUDS

DEAR IN: Have him give it to you in private, and announce it at the party.
