Experimenting With Wind Tunnel

13-County Farm Training Meet Held

Forty-five farmers, soil conservation, and extension service conservationists, met at the Big Spring Experiment Station Tuesday for an area supervisors' training meeting. They came from 13 counties in the West Texas area. Jack Buchanan, chairman of the Martin-Howard District board, was in charge. Highlight of the meeting was a visit to a grain-sorghum stubble area west of the State Hospital where Dr. W. S. Schepel had set up a wind tunnel. The tunnel was designed to evaluate the effect of stubble in reducing wind erosion. Dr. Schepel, of Manhattan, Kan., brought the tunnel to Big Spring for a study in various situations to show the effect of wind erosion. It is designed with a tunnel through which wind is blown at 85-miles-per-hour. The blower is powered by a 40-horsepower industrial engine. Soil is measured as caught on the funnel-end with a standard soil-catcher. Settings and measurements were made at different locations and under different conditions to show wind erosion effect. Dr. Jim Box, superintendent of the Big Spring Station, told the men of the purpose of the station after the tour of all facilities. "The purpose of this station," he said, "is to develop soil and water conservation practices for this region through a program of systematic research. This includes improvement of present practices as well as development of new ones. Solutions for regional problems are constantly being sought. Solutions for the problems must, for the most part, be sought in the area where the problems exist. "Problems needing solutions are endless. However, some soil and water conservation problems are relatively more important than others. We must work on the more important ones first. Personnel of the Soil Conservation Service have established guidelines for soil and water conservation research in the form of published 'research needs,'" he said. The group paid special attention to skip-row plantings on the station farm, as well as the new bench terrace study. The livestock pens were visited where Dr. C. R. Crookshank of Texas A&M College, animal nutrition division, agricultural research services, of the Department of Agriculture, told the men of research evaluating the influence of various chemical additive compounds to feeds to prevent urinary calculi in steers and sheep. The special research tools being used on the farm were explained. The Martin-Howard Soil Conservation District was host to the meeting. Representatives from Howard, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Dickens, Kent, Seary, Borden, Dawson, Gaines, Andrews, Midland, and Mitchell counties were present.

Clouds May Yield Needed Moisture

Cloudy skies, which appeared quite promising of possible moisture, greeted early risers Wednesday. They inspired the weatherman to hopefully predict scattered showers for the Big Spring area. He amplified this prediction with a hint there would be wind and some dust. He was not too definite in his promise of rain, however, merely asserting there was a chance for it to happen. Tuesday night was mild and the low was a warm 49 degrees.

Students To Take Office For One Day Here Friday

Forty-one elected and appointed officials of the City of Big Spring and Howard County will host student counterparts Friday on Student Government Day. The students will spend the day observing the officials in their work and learning first-hand how government operates. A breakfast at 7:30 a.m. at the Settles Hotel will begin the day. Ed Foreman, businessman from Odessa, will be the speaker. The remainder of the day will be spent with the officials. Election of officers from the senior class at the Big Spring High School and at schools in the surrounding communities has been completed. Regular election procedures were followed and candidates ran either as Nationalists or Federalists. Elected officials are Dick Irons, Steve Kite, Chap Smith, Cara Ste Turner and Jack Irons, for mayor, and city commissioners: Jerry Tucker, county judge; Susan Zack, Eddy Herm, Sands, and Susan Elrod, Forsan, county commissioners; Nancy Tobin, county tax assessor; and Robert Mahoney, county attorney. Others are Ann Drinkard and Wynn Richbourg, justices of the peace; Sherry Alon, county clerk; Rickey Wisener, district judge; Carol Odom, district clerk; Jay Hatch, district attorney; and Dina Baxter, sheriff. Appointed officials include Cal Boardman, city attorney; Carolyn Lewis, city judge; Lynn Wortham, director of public works; Coy Mitchell, chief of police; Marilyn Gum, district court reporter; Ray Minks and Marianne Bell, civil defense; Katherine Hepper, city manager; Jerry Younger, city tax assessor; Carolyn Hoover, fire chief; and Chester Smith, county juvenile officer. Others are Sandra Long, county health nurse; Charles Leek, county welfare department; Junior Holland, street superintendent; LaJuana McPherson, airport manager; Pat Wiley, water distribution and production; Claudia Richardson, county librarian; Pat Patterson, city warehouse; Lana Fulbright, county auditor; Jeanne Watts, parks and cemetery; Jimmy Schuelke, Sands, county agricultural agent; and Carla Joe Hughes, Forsan, county home demonstration agent.

Promise Of Rain

Thickening clouds gave promise Wednesday of a little rain for West and North Central Texas. It was clear to partly cloudy in other sections. Early morning temperatures were in the middle 30s to high 50s. Weather Bureau observers said a low pressure system headed into the state from New Mexico would spread clouds over most of Texas by Thursday. Occasional light rain or showers were expected to start Wednesday night in the Texas Panhandle. Forecasters saw a chance for showers Thursday over most of West and North Central Texas. Brisk winds fanned the Panhandle-Plains and all areas warmed a bit more Tuesday, with afternoon temperatures ranging from 55 at Galveston up to 77 at Presidio.

Train Wreck Delays Many Local Checks

A train wreck in the northeast part of the nation on Feb. 28 seems to have played havoc with Social Security clients in Howard County. E. C. Boatler, postmaster, said he had been besieged with phone calls, both at the office and at home, from persons who normally receive Social Security checks soon after the first of the month. A telegram disclosed that the train wreck had occurred and caused a delay in many checks from the Social Security paymaster. Boatler was not informed when new checks will be mailed to the clients.

Officials Begin Final Parley Over Algeria

Spy Pilot Is Exonerated U.S. Rockets Observatory Into Space But Right-Wing Terror Unabated

WASHINGTON (AP)—Praise from several senators has capped Francis Gary Powers' story of his U2 flight over the Soviet Union, his capture and imprisonment in one of the cold war's hottest episodes. It was an exciting story the soft-spoken pilot told Tuesday in a 90-minute appearance before the Senate Armed Services Committee—of a mystery explosion 12 miles up, a spinning plane and long hours of questioning. Then as secretly as he came, the high altitude flier slipped away for a vacation. CIA Director John A. McCone told reporters Powers will continue to be employed by the CIA. "We have additional work for him to do," McCone said. "I hope today's hearing has cleared up any cloud that may have been hanging over him." After the hearing Powers linked his arms with two sisters and set off for what he said will be a vacation at an unannounced place. He indicated he plans no news conference such as President Kennedy said the pilot would be free to hold. In the faint country twang of southwest Virginia Powers told the committee in a packed hearing room, where spectators often broke into applause, that he doesn't really know what caused the explosion that downed his plane. He said the blast, which fired the sky with orange, "sounded like a 'shump.'" He conceded it might have come from a near-miss by a Soviet rocket. Powers' recital of his efforts to destroy the secret equipment in his stricken craft, his agonizing fight to get out of the U2 and his disposal of a map while riding his parachute down obviously impressed senators and spectators. Senators nodded approval as he testified that when his efforts to invent a cover story failed he decided to tell the Russians he was linked with the CIA—as he said he had been instructed to do if he was captured—but withheld some vital information. The biggest outburst of applause came when Powers raised his voice to say that during his ordeal of capture, imprisonment, endless hours of questioning, trial and sentence he always remembered that "I am an American." At another point he cried loudly, "Oh, no" when he was asked if he were under obligation to kill himself if captured. Even before Powers testified the CIA said in a report the 32-year-old pilot had lived up to his instructions and "his obligations as an American." The report said he would get his back pay, amounting to about $50,000. Not all the senators commented during the session. But Sen. Everett S. Saltzman, R-Mass., led off the praise when he told the flier he wanted to commend him as a "courageous, fine young American citizen who lived up to his instructions and did the best you could under very difficult circumstances."

Road Work Planned

Improvement of a section of Ranch Road 33 in northern Reagan County is scheduled for a letting at the March 20-21 bid openings of the Texas Highway Department. The department is asking for proposals to install base, structures and paving on 10.2 miles of road from the Glasscock County line south. The state has been steadily upgrading this road, more popularly known here as the Big Lake highway.

Lenten Season Begins With Ashen Crosses

By GEORGE W. CORNELL Associated Press Religion Writer NEW YORK (AP)—"Remember, man, that thou art dust, and unto dust thou shalt return." With the pronouncement of these Biblical words, ashes in the form of a cross were being imposed today on the foreheads of millions of Christians around the world. It is "Ash Wednesday," the beginning of Lent, a 40-day interlude of penitence before Easter. The midnight tolling of bells marked the beginning of the period in some areas, such as Austria and southern Germany. There and elsewhere, worshippers were called to services this morning with other special devotions scheduled throughout the next six weeks. For church people, it is a time of self-denial and spiritual disciplining to get rid of habits—whether of work or pleasure—that distract from making God the prime object of love and service. Roman Catholics and some Protestants observe rules of fasting for the period, except Sundays. Generally, this means taking only one full meal a day. The other two combined should be less than the main meal. Aside from such formal features, the churches put the main emphasis on personal reform to lighten spiritual sensitivity and clear away obstacles to devotion to God. This might mean a sharp cut-down on entertainment, the professional work schedule, a reduction in social activities, less television watching, no drinking, or more time in prayer. It is an individual matter, between each person and his conscience. The 40 days is in token of the 40 days and nights of fasting by Christ before he began his ministry. The ceremony of ashes is used mainly by Roman Catholics. Protestants discard the practice at the time of the 16th century reformation. In recent years some have resumed it. It is an ancient custom, going back to the fourth century. Ashes were a symbol of penitence in Judaism. Christianity carried on the tradition. Originally it was used only for "public sinners"—and was a far harsher affair than now. As time went on, however, most all Christians began submitting to the imposition of ashes. The practice became general by the 11th century. Even the Pope gets ashes on his brow.

Red Guerrillas Ambush Rangers

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Communist guerrillas reportedly ambushed an under-strength company of South Vietnamese rangers in the Mekong River delta Tuesday, killing 24 government troops, capturing five and leaving seven wounded. It was the fourth considerable success for the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam's southern and delta provinces in two weeks. In the same period government forces have reported two victories in which more than 100 Viet Cong troops were killed and hundreds wounded.

Union Election For Bus Drivers

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP)—An election will be held at Pharr and Harlingen March 15 to determine if the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (AFL-CIO) will represent Valley Transit Co. bus drivers. Representatives of the union and drivers announced the election Tuesday about a month after the union had petitioned the National Labor Relations Board for an election. Some 35 drivers are employed by the transit company, which serves Lower Rio Grande Valley cities.

Savannah Area Razed By Fire

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—Civil defense authorities say about 200 persons are homeless today as a result of a fire which leveled a two square block area near downtown Savannah.

Asks Support

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy appealed to the nation's advertisers and publishers today for support of his trade expansion program, declaring it one of the most vital issues facing the country.

EVIAN, France (AP)—French and Algerian rebel officials sat down at the conference table again today for what may be the final round of talks in their long search for an agreement to end the Algerian rebellion. Three Swiss army helicopters flew the Algerian delegation across Lake Geneva from their hotel headquarters on the Swiss side. Rebel Vice Premier Belkacem Krim led the Algerian team. Louis Joxe, French minister for Algerian affairs, headed the French negotiators waiting in Evian's Hotel du Parc to hammer out final details of an accord providing for a cease-fire and referendum to give independence to strife-torn Algeria. Amid widespread expectations that a peace agreement would be reached in a matter of days, violence and bloodshed continued unabated in Algeria. Tuesday's toll there was 24 killed and 32 wounded as the rightist European Secret Army Organization bent on keeping French control of the territory, kept up terror raids, and the Moslems retaliated. Krim predicted "a lasting, satisfactory and happy solution" as he arrived in nearby Geneva. Carrying on from recent secret negotiations, the two sides will try to fill the gaps in their tentative accord. They already have agreed on general provisions of the accord calling for Algerian self-determination and eventual independence for Algeria's 10 million people—90 per cent of them North Africans. A cease-fire proclamation may end the war between the rebels and the French army. But the peace agreement is expected to intensify the terrorist campaign by European settlers who bitterly oppose an independent Algeria which the Moslem majority will control. Algerian spokesmen have complained that President Charles de Gaulle's government and the French army have not been as energetic as they could be in combating the European terrorists. They charge that many French officers sympathize with the secret army and some officers are actual accomplices. One point still to be settled in the Evian talks is the future role of the French army in checking terrorism and preventing an uprising by the European population of Algeria. The tentative accord reportedly runs to about 100 pages, to be issued as a joint statement of French and rebel intentions, once the cease-fire has been proclaimed. Reliable sources give this summary of its provisions: Algeria will be governed by a provisional French-Moslem regime pending a referendum which both sides expect to result in a landslide vote for independence. The provisional regime will supervise the referendum with its own local Moslem militia. The bulk of the French army in Algeria, now numbering more than 400,000 men, will gradually withdraw to Europe, leaving some troops on certain airfields and bases. France will retain long-term leases on the important naval base at Mers-el-Kebir, outside Oran, and certain other installations. There will be a close economic and cultural association between France and the new Algerian nation. The oil and mineral resources of the Sahara will be exploited on a 50-50 basis.

Sabotage? FORT WORTH (AP)—Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., has asked for a probe of possible sabotage in the Monday night crash here at Carswell Air Force Base of a supersonic bomber.

body and is making the trip to Rusk in company with the sheriff and his prisoner to observe how this phase of a peace officer's job is carried out. Meantime, Gil Jones, district attorney, and Bobby West, his investigator, were busy assembling the material they will need at the trial of Myers for the murder on last Sept. 1 of Arthur DeKraal, an Iowa transient. DeKraal was shot to death as he rode in a car with Myers and Donna Marie along IS 30. Later his body was dumped beside a lonely ranch road near the western boundary of this county. Myers, who is held in Rusk, will be tried in 145th District Court on a charge of venue from the 118th District Court here. His case is set down for trial on Monday. Jones and Hulon Brown, Cherokee County district attorney, want Donna Marie available as a witness if the defense strategy makes her testimony important.

Donna Marie Goes To Another Jail

A smiling, carefree Donna Marie Stone, outwardly unconcerned over what the future may hold for her, was en route to the Cherokee County jail at Rusk today where she will be held as a possible state witness in the murder trial of John Edwin Myers, her 32-year-old boyfriend. Donna Marie, now 14, was dressed in a white blouse and dark skirt. She had her belongings in a battered suitcase and in two or three paper bags. A portable radio, which she said her mother had sent her for Christmas, was clutched in one hand. She walked briskly to the official car where Sheriff Miller Harris and Mrs. Ruby Phillips, county public welfare officer, were waiting for her. The party stopped en route to pick up a fourth passenger. This was "Sheriff" Dina Baxter, Big Spring High School senior. Miss Baxter has been elected as honorary sheriff by the student

Businessmen Visit School For Lunch

Rotarians, and members of other Big Spring service clubs, met at the high school cafeteria at noon Tuesday in response to an invitation to visit the schools during Texas Public School Week. Around 200 club members and businessmen ate the regular school lunch for Tuesday. School Supt. Sam Anderson introduced High School Principal John Smith who told the men of some of the special activities being conducted during the week, including the student election held at the auditorium at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday. Bob Moore, president of the student body, was introduced and explained the elections were being held according to regular election and campaign laws. Primaries were held with the two parties, Nationalist and Federalist, having candidates. Students were required to vote according to party

Wife Sues Catholic Church, Charges Ex-Priest Abducted

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—A mother of four—contending that the Roman Catholic Church broke up her marriage to a priest and is keeping him from his family—has sued the Church for $2,375,000 in damages. Alice Ryan, 41, of Glen Head, N.Y., filed the suit in State Supreme Court here Tuesday. She said her husband is Walter A. Ryan, 57, former assistant pastor of the Glen Cove, N.Y., Catholic church and a native of Somerville, Mass. In addition to the Church, defendants include Francis Cardinal Spellman, the archbishop of New York; and the dioceses of Brooklyn, New York City; Rockville Centre, N.Y.; Springfield, Mass.; Worcester, Mass.; San Francisco and Los Angeles. The various dioceses were named defendants because M.s. Ryan contends they or their members are keeping him in the case. A spokesman for the New York archdiocese declined comment. Mrs. Ryan said in her complaint that she and Father Ryan were married secretly in Maryland on Nov. 13, 1950, after which he left the Church and worked as a salesman of plumbing and real estate in Fort Salonga, N.Y., where they bought a home. On April 4, 1955, she contends, her husband was abducted from their home "with force and by means and aid of intoxicating beverages and liquors." Her suit contends the church

Red China's Grip Its Own Undoing

TOKYO (AP) — Red China's leaders may be endangering their own economic ambition by squeezing the peasant and factory worker too hard, a group of economists reports.

Communist China's industrialization has been making remarkable progress, the economists said, but at the expense of the Chinese consumer.

These views are contained in a survey published by the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East, a United Nations regional body.

With the exception of massive loans from the Soviet Union in 1950-1952, funds to finance industrialization in China have come from the Chinese themselves. The main economic weakness lies in agriculture, because of natural calamities and peasant resistance to the commune system, the survey said.

The rest of Asia made economic progress but is still "a long way from attaining sustained growth and reasonable per capita incomes."

Tract Found For Projects

Tentative arrangements have been made for a 10% acre tract south of Big Spring to be used by students in the vocational agriculture program, according to Wesley Deas, chairman of the agriculture committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

A subcommittee of the group is studying ways to assist members of the Future Farmers and the 4-H Club secure an economical place to keep their animals. The new location has a part of the required pens and shelters, but more will have to be built should it be used.

Another meeting will be held soon to determine improvements which will need to be made and ways to finance those needs. Heading the subcommittee is Garner McAdams, a co-chairman of the agriculture committee. With him are Truett Vines, Herb Helbig and Harvey Adams.

Final approval or disapproval for use of the land should come within about a week.

Union Men Win Appeals

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Convictions of nine present or former union leaders were reversed and indictments against two of the men were dismissed by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The men had been charged with filing false non-Communist affidavits.

New trials were ordered for the other seven.

The court held that testimony of a key government witness amounted to hearsay.

The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (I.M.S.W.) officers were convicted in U.S. District Court of charges of conspiring to file false non-Communist affidavits with the National Labor Relations Board between 1949 and 1955. Seven of them were sentenced to three-year prison terms and fined $2,000 each. The other two received 30-month prison sentences and $1,500 fines.

The appeals court dismissed indictments against James H. Durkin, 48, Chicago, who had been sentenced to 18 months; and Chase J. Powers, 56, Spokane, Wash., who had drawn a three-year term.

It said mere knowledge of the alleged conspiracy did not make a conspirator of Durkin, a former union organizer.

The court said there was no evidence that Powers was a Communist in 1949 and thereafter and no evidence that he knew union officers who might have been Communists. Powers is a member of the union's executive board.

Divorce Suits Lead List Of Cases Filed

Divorce suits in February matched the total of all other civil suits filed in the 118th District Court, Wade Choate, district court clerk, announced.

There were 28 new divorce suits and 28 civil suits of other types filed. There were 24 criminal cases lodged in the court during the month. All were tried before the court.

Applications for adoption continued to be important items on the district court agenda. There were nine such applications filed during the month. Two petitions were granted and four applications for adoption were dismissed.

Seventeen divorce petitions were dismissed during March and seven decrees granted. Five civil suits were tried and disposed of and 11 dismissed. Two jury trials of civil suits were handled.

Six contempt of court (child support) cases were filed and three were tried by the court. Three new child support accounts were added to the records of the clerk.

One tax suit was dismissed and three petitions were filed for writs of habeas corpus. Two of these petitions were heard and writs granted.

Choate and his office assisted in the application for 10 passports during the month.

Rites Held For Mrs. Winn Tuesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Joanna B. Winn, former resident of Big Spring, were held Tuesday in Fort Worth. She died Monday.

The Wwins made their home here for many years until the offices of the Texas and Pacific were moved to Fort Worth. The late Mr. Winn had been a brakeman on the railroad.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Millard Boyd, Fort Worth; and two sons, Raymond Winn Jr., Fort Worth, and the Rev. Wilkin B. Winn, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

WHY SOME FAIL

By A Christian Writer

Some fail in the Christian life because they do not worship, at home or in the church. Men must live close to the Lord to succeed. (Jas. 4:7, 8).

Some fail because they neglect to study the Word. Without study, one's faith cannot grow (Rom. 10:17). Do not fail to attend the Bible classes and preaching services, nor forget to study at home!

Some are half-hearted about following Christ. No man can serve two masters (Matt. 6:24). Christ will occupy only one position in our hearts, — the first position.

Others fail because they get dis-

Furr's Stores To Sponsor Circus In Midland May 1

A full two-hour, three ring circus with stamping elephants to dizzy clowns, headed by the cowboy star Rex Allen and his horse Koko, will be brought to Midland High Stadium, May 1, by Furr's store markets.

Free tickets will be available at all Furr's markets. Roy Furr, president of Furr's, Inc., announced. Customers will redeem sellon cash register tapes for free tickets to the big show. Tickets will be given on the basis of the redemption of $25 in tapes for each ticket between now and circus time.

Furr's, it will be remembered by many, brought the Jerry Lewis show to its customers in 1959; Herb Shriner and Julius LaRosa in 1958 and Mickey Rooney and Mamie Van Doren in 1957, all on the same plan as the 1962 three-ring circus.

Starring with Rex Allen will be The Frontiersmen and Jeanie who have made many appearances with Cowboy Allen. Rex is an Arizona-born cowboy, loaded with talent for this type of show. He has just come from the San Antonio and Houston rodeos, where he "headlined." His latest television was in late February when he took over the Perry Como show. He is a singer of Decca labels, a movie star of Republic motion pictures.

Featured acts of the circus will include the Flying Trapeze Artos, Pink and June Madison Elephants, Bears, Dam Brothers Tightwire, Portis Sims Liberty Ponies, Bob Johnson equilibrist, Myriam France acrobat and Four Kelros Trampoline.

Jackson Seeks To Appeal Case

W. C. Jackson, who was found guilty of theft over $50 and his punishment fixed at five years in prison, now is seeking to initiate an appeal in his case.

He dispatched a hand-written notice of his intention to the clerk of the 118th District Court from the state prison where he is serving his sentence.

Gil Jones, district attorney, said that Jackson's motion is invalid. He pointed out the law requires that such appeals be launched before the end of the term of court at which the defendant was tried and convicted.

The term at which Jackson was tried has since expired. However, Jones said that final decision on whether to permit the appeal would probably rest with the judge of the court.

Daniel Leads In Texas Poll, Connally Shows Sharp Gain

Price Daniel has taken the lead in the race for governorship, a state-wide Texas Poll just finished shows. But John Connally of Fort Worth, in what amounts to a spectacular jump into Texas politics, is revealed by the survey as a serious challenger to the governor's fourth-term bid.

Together, Daniel and former Secretary of the Navy Connally today commanded the support of about 60 per cent of the voters. All other candidates running as Democrats have started the race for the May 5 primary way behind the two leaders.

Among the Republican candidates, who this year are subject to a Texas primary election, Jack Cox is in undisputed first place. For every seven or eight voters likely to vote Democratic, there is today only one likely to vote Republican, the survey indicates.

Not until the very day of the election, however, does a Texas voter have to make up his mind in which party's primary he will participate. So in effect, right now all voters are among the potential electorate of each party. Texas Poll reporters, who completed this survey ten days ago, asked all people interviewed to express their opinions on candidates of both parties.

They were asked, "Regardless of what primary you might decide to vote in, we'd like to know who is your first choice for governor among the Democrats?" A list of the candidates was shown; then the question was repeated for the Republican candidates, using another list.

These were the results among the total potential vote, without regard to the voter's party leanings now or his intention to turn out on election day:

Democratic candidates:
	Per cent
Price Daniel	33
John Connally	25
Will Wilson	10
Don Yarborough	10
Edwin A. Walker	6
Marshall Formby	5
Undecided	11
Total	100

Republican candidates:
	Per cent
Jack Cox	45
Roy Whittenburg	7
Harry R. Diehl (withdrawn)	3
Undecided	44
Total	100

Let us look at the results, however, in what we might call a simulated primary election: first allowing the voter to select a party, and then asking him to select a candidate for governor. Party choice was established through a series of questions asking for both regular party affiliation and party primary in which planning to vote. Here, then, are the findings by primary in which people are likely to vote:

Likely Democratic voters only:
	Per cent
Price Daniel	33
John Connally	27
Don Yarborough	11
Will Wilson	10
Edwin A. Walker	6
Marshall Formby	4
Undecided	9
Total	100

Likely Republican voters only:
	Per cent
Jack Cox	60
Roy Whittenburg	6
Harry R. Diehl (withdrawn)	4
Undecided	30
Total	100

The above standings among likely Republican voters takes into account the fact that the GOP will not hold a primary in every Texas county.

There are some people, of course, who have not yet decided in which primary they will vote, and who refuse to classify themselves as either Republicans or Democrats. Among these, Governor Daniel appears to have more friends than does Connally.

In the Texas Poll previous to this one, conducted in November of last year, Daniel led with 29 per cent of the total electorate; Connally was selected by only 4 per cent. Wilson had 6 and Formby 1 per cent.

But the election is yet to be won. The campaigns of such veterans as Daniel, Wilson, and Formby have already swung into action. The experience of The Texas Poll in feeling the state's political pulse during the past 22 years indicates that major changes in the standings can be effected in the two months of campaigning still to come.

This survey is based on a cross section of 1,000 qualified voters. All the information was gathered through personal interviews proportionately distributed over all regions of the state, in cities of all sizes, farms and ranches, controlled by age, sex, race, and economic level.

Eden Arrives For Checkup

BOSTON (AP)—British diplomat Anthony Eden arrived Tuesday to undergo a three-day checkup at New England Baptist Hospital. He was accompanied by his wife.

The 64-year-old former prime minister said he wasn't here to have doctors examine anything specific.

Eden underwent surgery here in 1953, having his gall bladder removed. He said this visit had nothing to do with that illness. Eden, now Lord Avon, has spent the past three months in the West Indies putting the finishing touches on the second volume of his memoirs.

Educators In Hot Water Over Protest Of AF Interference

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Principals of two nearby schools were suspended Tuesday at a school board meeting they did not attend.

San Antonio newspapers said the suspension resulted from letters to Washington officials alleging interference by Air Force officers in local school affairs.

The two are George Ward, principal of Schertz-Cibola High School, and Homer Dancer, principal of the district's elementary school. The district adjoins Randolph Air Force Base.

Mrs. Dancer said her husband and Ward were informed of the suspensions as they reported.

They were told a hearing will be held in about 10 days, she said.

The San Antonio News quoted an unnamed Air Force informant as saying the letters were written to Secretary of the Air Force Zuckert, Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., and "probably the two U.S. senators from Texas."

"Both of the Randolph AFB officers reportedly are fathers of two boys recently whipped by school authorities," the News said.

Ward declined comment.

The News said the Air Force also refused to make any comment.

Braceros Still Wait For Jobs

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Men seeking to go to the United States and harvest crops show up daily outside government buildings despite being told that no braceros are being contracted now.

"It's a problem we haven't been able to avoid," said Minister of the Interior Gustavo Diaz Ordaz.

He said contracting of braceros probably will not be resumed until next month.

Lewis Is Only Incumbent In County Board Election

Jim G. Lewis, trustee from Precinct 3 on the Howard County school board filed for re-election Tuesday afternoon as the only member of the present board to seek return to the post he holds.

Lewis was one of a number of candidates who entered the county board contests on the last day filings were accepted.

Others who listed their names with the county judge's office Tuesday are:

Ross Hill, candidate for trustee, Precinct 3; Harvey L. Adams, trustee Precinct 4; and Charles R.

(Club) Jones, trustee at large, county board.

Candidates who had already entered the race for the county board posts are: Paul Bishop, trustee, Precinct 4; Dr. William T. Crane, trustee, Precinct 3; and Jack Buchanan, trustee at large.

Jack Cook and Truman Jones, who are presently members of the board representing Precinct 4 and at-large posts, did not file for re-election. Holdover members are Fred Romans and J. D. Gilmora.

Election day is April 7. Complete filings in other races where the candidates filed with the county judge are:

Foran County Line Independent School District: M. A. Dunagan, Lloyd V. Arnold, Stanley Willis, John M. Nobles, Bob Cowley and Paul Lancaster.

Gay Hill Common School District: R. W. Harrison, H. L. Moates, Weaver Brown, and Hollis Puckett.

Center Point Common School District: Joe Mangum.

No candidates filed for the posts at Vealmore. Write in votes will be determining factors in election of trustees at this school.

Bob Rogers Files For School Trustee

Bob Rogers, sales representative for KEDY-TV, filed his name Tuesday for a place on the ballot in the forthcoming election for trustee of the Big Spring Independent School District.

"I am interested in doing what I can to continue good educational standards in Big Spring," Rogers said. "If favored by the voters with a seat on the school board, I will work for sound fiscal policies and support high standards of instruction for our youngsters."

Rogers is a graduate of Texas Tech and has been a resident of Big Spring for six years. He is connected with radio station KBST for more than four years, then joined the local television station.

He and his wife own the Gilbert Shoe Store, 110 W. 3rd, and Mrs. Rogers operates the store. They have one son, Chris, who is a student in the fifth grade at Washington Place Elementary School.

Rogers has been active in many civic enterprises since coming to Big Spring. He is a past president of the American Business Club and now serves as a member of its board of directors.

He is a former member of Junior Chamber of Commerce and served on its board. He has been active in various YMCA activities.

He now serves on the advisory board of the Salvation Army and is a former secretary-treasurer of the Big Spring Quarterback Club. Rogers is also a member of the Chamber of Commerce Contact Club.

"A number of my friends have encouraged me to offer for election," Rogers said, "and I am prepared to do what I can in behalf of our school system. I want to add that I have no ax to grind and my sole purpose is to be of service."

Cigarettes May Be Causative In Other Diseases

LONDON (AP)—A committee from Britain's Royal College of Surgeons reported today after a two-year study that cigarette smoking may be a contributing cause of death from a number of diseases besides lung cancer.

The committee studied thousands of case histories and examined more than 200 other medical inquiries into smoking. Some of their conclusions leaked out several weeks ago. But the full 70-page report was not made public until today.

Here are some of their findings: Cigarette smoking is the most likely cause of the recent worldwide increase in deaths from lung cancer.

The habit probably increases the risk of death from coronary heart disease, particularly in early middle age.

It may be partly responsible for tuberculosis deaths among elderly men.

Smoking may be a contributory factor in cancer of the mouth, pharynx, esophagus and bladder. It may be a reason for the increased mortality from peptic ulcers; and

It is an important predisposing cause in development of chronic bronchitis.

Jackie Recovering From Sinus Ailment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy is responding to treatment for the low-grade sinus infection that caused postponement of her trip to India and Pakistan, the White House reports.

Mrs. Kennedy is scheduled to leave Friday for her trip abroad. She's due back March 29.

Harte-Hanks Buys San Antonio Paper

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Sale of the newspaper and broadcasting interests of the Express Publishing Co. to the Harte-Hanks group of Texas newspapers was disclosed today.

The firm publishes the San Antonio Express and News. It owns KENS Radio and KENS-TV, plus a Cessna aircraft agency, Airnews, Inc.

An announcement in the Express said the buyers will take over management after the Federal Communications Commission approves transfer of the radio-TV licenses. It gave these details:

Harte-Hanks has contracted to purchase the stock of the Brackens estate, Frank G. Huntress Jr., Frank G. Huntress III, Mrs. Merton M. Minter and W. A. Druce, who is secretary of the publishing company.

Before acquiring the additional stock, Harte-Hanks owned about 37 per cent of the company.

Contracts for the sale were signed Tuesday. They call for payment of the Brackens estate of about $3,300,000 and to the others of about $2,900,000.

Frank G. Huntress Jr., president and publisher of the Express and News, will become chairman of the board.

Two executives of other Harte-

Hanks papers will move here. Conway C. Craig, publisher of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times, will become president and publisher of the Express and News. Houston H. Harte, president of the San Angelo Standard-Times, will be prominent director.

Harte is a son of Houston Harte of San Angelo, senior partner of Harte-Hanks & Co.

Edward H. Harte, vice president of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times, will succeed Craig as publisher in Corpus Christi.

Other Harte-Hanks newspapers are the Abilene Reporter-News, Big Spring Herald, Denison Herald, Greenville Herald-Banner, Marshall News-Messenger and Paris News.

The Harte-Hanks group acquired a minority interest in the Express Publishing Co. in November of 1960 with purchase of stock held by Mrs. Carrie S. Frost and Mrs. Dorsey Brown of Kaufman, Mrs. James Grace Dabney of Arlington, Va., and Mrs. G. J. Wood of Laguna Beach, Calif.

Houston Harte Sr. of San Angelo and Bruce Mendor of Abilene, general manager of the Harte-Hanks organization, were named to the board of directors of the Express Publishing Co. in January of 1961.

District Sales Take A Jump

Water use took a substantial jump during February, according to monthly production figures by the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Deliveries were up by 17.71 per cent for the month in comparison with February of 1961. The volume delivered to customers for the first two months of the year now stands at 1,194,604,000 gallons, up 15.4 per cent.

The big gain for February was in municipal use, and Odessa delivered the biggest increase in consuming 235,835,000 gallons, a gain of 36.35 per cent. Big Spring, with 137,447,000, was up 15.63 per cent, and Snyder with 32,779,000 was up 14.89. The total draw of the cities was 406,121,000, a gain of 28.75 per cent.

The oil companies took 200,814,000 gallons, a gain of 2.93 per cent for the month. There was no great variance among them in the spread of gain.

Total deliveries for the system stood at 605,935,000 gallons, up from the 498,362,000 for February of last year.

Dry warm weather during most of the month contributed to the robust increase in municipal demands, said O. H. Ivie, assistant manager.

The Webb AFB procurement office has announced a successful bid of $9,090 to fence in the POL area. It was awarded to the Amco Fence Co., of Houston.

Also announced by procurement office were the invitation for bids on the laundry, dry cleaning and hospital laundry, construction of a power check pad and access taxiway, and modification of the security fence of the ADC area at Webb.

Mrs. J. H. Stiff Dies Wednesday

Mrs. J. H. Stiff, long time resident of Big Spring but who has lived with her husband in McKinney for the past several years, died in a McKinney hospital early Wednesday morning.

She had been ill for a long time. Mr. Stiff was employed in Big Spring by Texas Electric Service Co. until his retirement, when they moved to McKinney, where they had been reared, and acquired a new home at 901 Inwood Street. While here, they were active in the First Christian Church.

Funeral services will be held in McKinney Thursday.

Reply Expected To Glenn Visit Bid

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said Tuesday President Kennedy has promised an early reply to an invitation for L. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. to visit Britain.

"We all hope it will be possible for Col. Glenn to visit this country," Macmillan told the House of Commons. "No doubt the Americans have to take into account all the other demands made upon him."

Zone Change Hearing Called

A public hearing has been called for the April 3 meeting of the Big Spring Planning and Zoning Commission to consider a zone change for a four-acre tract south of Wason Road and east of Parkway. E. C. Smith requests the change from IF-2 residential to Neighborhood Service - Planned District for a shopping center.

A request from Lee Porter for an opinion on possible rezoning of two acres on Wason Road, west of Navajo, was discussed. The commission members were of the opinion that the zoning could be changed if requested.

A small area at the southwest corner of Birdwell Lane and Marcy Drive, already zoned as a planned district, was discussed and a plan of planned development approved. A service station and small drive-in grocery are planned on the tract now being filled and leveled.

The area being annexed to the city, east of Birdwell, and north of Twenty-fifth, will be brought into the city as a IF-2 residential area. The Planning and Zoning Commission approved drafting of an ordinance by the City Commission for the initial zoning to IF-2.

Red Cross Slates Disaster Meeting

Executives of the Red Cross in West Texas will meet Saturday at the Red Cross headquarters in Odessa, according to Mrs. Moree T. Sawtelle, executive secretary for the local chapter.

The meeting will be to institute plans for stimulating interest in disaster work in smaller chapters of the Red Cross. A plan will be proposed whereby larger chapters will send persons into the less active areas to assist them with disaster planning.

Attending the meeting from Big Spring will be F. W. Huffman, field director at Webb Air Force Base; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Moody, and Mrs. Sawtelle.

A Devotional For Today

Today I must abide at thy house. (Luke 19:5.)
I say unto thee, Today shalt thou be with me in paradise. (Luke 23:43.)
PRAYER: Almighty God, we pray for a repentant heart. Help us to hear Thy words of salvation and turn to Thee. Guide us to hear the knock at the door of the heart and open it to Thee by the act of repentance. In Christ's name. Amen.

Equipped To Meet A Demand

Norman C. Harris of the University of Michigan pointed out to the 17th National Conference on Higher Education that there is now — and there is going to be — an increasing shortage of technicians as well as engineers.

He reminded that during the orbital flight of Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., the Mercury control center at Cape Canaveral was manned by 20 scientists and engineers, and 40 technicians.

"We just don't have enough engineering technicians to staff our projects for landing a man on the moon unless they are stripped from industry," declared Rep. John Brademas. A minimum need is one technician for each engineer, and the ratio likely will go higher. Right now only one technician is being turned out to each four engineers.

Harris declared that the "real potential for semi-professional and technical education lies with the community junior college." Only the junior colleges, he added, can balance the technical training needed with college-level courses in English, history, mathematics and economics.

This is but another bit added to the weight of testimony of the inevitably greater role of the two-year college in the nation's higher education. It is not simply a matter of numbers, but one of technology also. We are fortunate to have in our own community a quality junior college equipped to make its contribution to the demands of today and tomorrow.

Give Birdwell Job Top Priority

Memo to the City Commission:

It is noted that you have the city's 1962-63 budget under study.

Please, we urge you, find some financing method to pave Birdwell, from 15th to Marcy.

There is a situation there that is an indictment against a progressive community. It is getting worse by the day. The traffic coming in from new additions to the southeast, and the traffic involved in getting to Washington Place School and the Junior College makes this segment part of a most important thoroughfare.

Our understanding is that lack of budgeting has kept the work from being done.

Now that an appropriation has been included in the preliminary draft of the new budget, it should be left there. It is, in our opinion—and we think many people will agree—a project of highest priority.

Spying Gets Big Business Look

WASHINGTON (AP) — Francis Gary Powers' case takes romance out of spying — like knocking the air out of a parachute that hit ground — and gives it a big business look.

It's big business for the CIA, America's super-spy organization, which spends perhaps $1 billion a year although the exact amount is hidden from all but a few people in government.

And it was good business for the short, trim, 32-year-old Powers himself who was paid $30,000 a year by the CIA for becoming

The Story Of The Goodies

NEW YORK (AP)—Everybody in our building feels sorry for Jack and Betty Goody.

They were such a nice young couple. It's a shame what happened to them.

Maybe if I tell their sad tale it might prevent some other young couple from meeting a similar fate.

Here goes:

When Jack and Betty moved into our building five years ago they were newbies. Jack was a junior executive in a wholesale plumbing firm. Betty worked as a secretary.

They knew nobody in the building, and at first found it hard to get acquainted. Then an older woman asked Betty to help her sell tickets for a church raffle.

Together they went through our building, knocking on every door. Betty did so well she was asked to sell tickets for a different church raffle.

Except for pleading not guilty to charges of singing for my supper, of turning middle road, of betraying my profession, I present the profile of the President as a public service without comment.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

The wife's hometown weekly newspaper arrived yesterday morning carrying news of a drunken driver who drove on the wrong side of an unloading school bus, struck and killed a six-year-old girl getting off the bus at her farm home.

The penalty meted out to this "businessman gone astray" was a $1,000 fine and a five-year suspended sentence. It cost him less to kill a first grader than it did to buy the car that killed her.

A rare miscarriage of justice? Not at all. It happens every day of the year in this enlightened country of ours.

Last year a local driver received an identical sentence, less the fine, for killing a mother and two children of a family in an accident on the freeway south of Eugene. Returning home from an all-night party at Cottage Grove, the young driver entered the wrong lane of the freeway and struck the family station wagon, killing three of five members of the family.

Part of a two-car caravan going to the lake for a two-week vacation, a family driving in front hit the ditch to avoid an oncoming drunk. The second car was a sitting duck for a head-on crash.

The penalty for this quadruple murder was a $100 fine and no sentence, suspended or otherwise.

And so it goes . . . and nauseum.

Who's to blame for this accepted state of affairs?

You are . . . the smug, complacent citizens who cluck like an old hen over murder at their back door and neither say nor do anything about it.

The drunk driver is still "socially acceptable" . . . a poor, unfortunate critter who has simply had one too many and too little sense left in his befuddled head to know better than to drive.

Why shouldn't the drunk driver? What has he got to lose if he gets caught? What is there to make him pause before getting behind the wheel or to ask someone else to drive?

It's a matter of court record right here in the Emerald Empire that he can get away with murder for relatively nothing.

Rumination By Child May Become A Habit

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When my baby was small he spit up, just like any other child. Now at seven months he doesn't just spit up, he brings it up little by little throughout the whole day.—M. H.

From the letter I'm not sure whether this is drooling, or whether the baby is bringing up food. If it is just saliva, probably it will clear up in time.

If, on the other hand, it is a matter of bringing up food, then some causative trouble may exist. A spasmodic partial obstruction of the gut or stomach can cause this sort of thing.

There's another trick that some of the little tykes can perform. It's called rumination—a willful regurgitation of food.

In such cases facial expression or movement of the mouth may give you a clue that he is up to such a stunt.

If this is the case, it may be a bid for attention—and it can become a habit. By careful watching (truly a chore!) and distracting his attention, you may be able to help break the habit.

In any event, consult your doctor to rule out the possibility of any physical disorder.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was told I have a polyp in the large intestine. Is there any difference between a polyp and a diverticulum? And is surgery the only way to get rid of polyps?—M. F.

Difference? Yes, indeed. A polyp

Around The Rim

The Courageous Flame

March 30, 1960. "This will be as big a shock to you as it was to me—Dr. Loeb and Dr. Hill have diagnosed my trouble as a 'mild' case of leukemia. They seemed pleased that it is in the early stages and are optimistic about my improvement under treatment."

This was the way Anne LeFever, our women's page editor, broke the news to us that doctors had at last pinned down physical troubles that had plagued her for at least two or three months.

She went on to list some instructions about where things were in her desk and which should be turned back to the composing room.

"I'LL PROBABLY drive to Abilene when they finish with me Friday, and then on home Saturday," she added. "I have to present a program at my club that afternoon. Bet it'll be a dilly!"

For the next two years her pattern was to be, more or less, a visit to the blood clinic in Dallas every other Monday. Sometimes when other ailments intervened, she went more often or stayed longer. When things went right, she stretched out those intervals between visits to three weeks. Frequently there were letters from her, and all of them reflected that same cheerful attitude.

TOWARD THE END of last year, however, she obviously was tiring, and not even a buoyant outlook could mask physical facts. Every little bug that came along seemed to pick on her, and early in December she caught the mumps. Her regular checkup was delayed, but when it did materialize there appeared to be but a slight change in the regimen. The following week, however, her doctor took one look at her and ordered a sharp change in treatment. She spent a week in the hospital, but she found time to write, "I'll be back Tuesday," she said.

AND SHE WAS. She worked all that week, although her strength obviously was limited. The change in medication produced some side effects, she explained, and as soon as she could get off certain things she would feel better.

The next week she returned to the clinic, and her letters relayed a not-too-favorable report. She anticipated a return to the office again, but the following Monday brought a letter of regret. Within a few days there was another, hopefully speaking of a return to her desk but demurring to the doctor.

"They won't hear to my coming home this week," she wrote, or "they won't say just when I can get back."

THE TESTS WERE numerous, for "I've been stuck so many times that I feel like a garden sprinkler." Always there was something light about the situation, or a note of appreciation for a card or a letter or a bundle of papers.

The sands were running inexorably out. The letters were more widely spaced. She had been moved to another room with a telephone, but although she talked hopefully, her voice was weary, too.

THE LETTERS STOPPED. Friends returning from her bedside explained that "she's felt so wretched she didn't feel like writing." And others said that she slept more and more, and on her table were unopened letters and cards.

Still, she talked with her family about coming home—maybe not this week, but next. Then, after burning brightly and courageously for nearly two years after the bleak news of her ailment, the splendid flame that was Anne LeFever's life suddenly ceased to burn. Her trial over, she was brought home to final rest.

Now We Belong To The Chinese!

Not without cause, ours has been called the Aspirin Age, the Age of Anxiety, etc., etc. "Worry wart" is a new phrase invented in my generation to succeed "Nervous Nelly," which merely described someone with the jitters.

On the threshold of the Space Age, I find that I am not yet geared to worry about things that are out of this world. Give me a year or so to adjust, and I'll probably come up with as fine an interplanetary anxiety syndrome as the next fellow.

BUT AT THE moment no worries assail me because the Russians claim "indispensable priority" in the discovery of a third radiation belt around the earth—a third belt that our N.A.S.A. believed had been nailed down for our side by findings of Explorer XII, launched last August.

Berlin, Laos, Viet Nam, the Congo and the O. A. S. may send me screaming for the aspirin, but only calm assails me about a radiation belt lost in the stars. But don't think I haven't been nipping at the aspirin bottle! Ever since I read a short announcement from the Red Chinese saying that the continent of North America, with particular reference to the U. S. A. had FIRST been discovered by Chinese navigators and adventurers. I have been subject to nervous indigestion, palpitations and tennis elbow.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT out of Peiping named no names and pinpointed no dates; just a flat statement that the Chinese got here FIRST.

By inference even Leif Ericsson, who supposedly first discovered and explored some of the East coast of this continent about 1,000 A. D., was Johnny-come-late.

1. The CIA made the hearing as unnecessary as two tails on a horse by releasing its clean-bill-of-health for Powers two hours before the hearing started. That left the senators with little to ask.

2. Powers himself, a relaxed kind of man, is neither exciting nor excitable. From the way he talked he didn't even seem excited when his plane was falling to pieces.

EVER SINCE his plane went down, questions have been raised about his performance in the plane and at his trial. Some of the people who seemed to take a dim view of him probably expected more of him than they might be willing to do under similar circumstances.

WASHINGTON — A new book has just been published which will certainly be widely talked about wherever the influence of religious groups in politics is discussed. It is an authorized biography of Cardinal Spellman. It tells for the first time the inside story of how and why, after a lapse of 53 years, relations were resumed in 1939 between the White House and the Vatican. It covers a period of ten years during which the late Myron C. Taylor, formerly head of the U. S. Steel Corporation, served as the personal envoy of the President of the United States to Pope Pius XII. Mrs. Taylor, who had been appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, submitted his resignation to President Truman in 1950.

THE INTIMACY portrayed between the Vatican and President Roosevelt will doubtless cause some Catholic publications to repeat recent comments that a President who is a Protestant evidently can do some things to please Catholics of voting age that a President who, like Mr. Kennedy, happens to be Catholic feels it would be unwise politically to do.

Whatever the comment may be, the fact is that the book, which was written by Father Robert I. Gannon, a former president of Fordham University, contains an authorized version of a very interesting chapter in American history. Excerpts from Cardinal Spellman's diary and quotations from unpublished letters written by President Roosevelt to the Cardinal tell of a contact between dignitaries of the Roman Catholic Church and the White House which has never been duplicated. In fact, the author of the book, after reviewing President Truman's unsuccessful attempt in 1950 to get Congress to establish diplomatic relations formally with the Vatican, says wistfully:

"AND THERE the matter has rested ever since. Mr. Truman's successor, with no pressure from Catholic America, seemed satisfied with sleeping dogs; a policy that is not likely to be changed by the present administration."

It would appear that some very good news stories were missed or suppressed at the White House in the 1930's. The Gannon book, for example, discloses an entry in the Spellman diary on Feb. 16 and 17, 1937, as follows:

"Arrived in Washington at 1:15 in the midst of a snowstorm. James Roosevelt at train to meet me and bring me to White House where I was assigned to the yellow bedroom.

"WE WORKED in his (the President's) office on speech that he is to deliver ly. The announcement left the other great explorers, Christopher Columbus, Amerigo Vespucci, Pedro Cabral, Hernando de Soto and Ferdinand Magellan, lashed to their own mast.

What is causing my ganglia to vibrate like an aspen in a high wind is the hunch that this Peiping announcement is merely the first step to pave the way for a Red Chinese claim to all the North American continent.

IT IS NOT at all unlikely that they will fortify their claim by pointing out this country's long-time addiction to chop suey and chow mein as clear indication that Chinese adventurers discovered, colonized and laid the basis of the nation. Perhaps while there is still time, we ought to offer to return the chop suey and the chow mein, and serve them jolly well right.

As part of their historic claim, the Chinese can prove the Sino-origin of a phrase deeply imbedded in the American consciousness and vocabulary, to wit: "No tickee, no shirtee." And what about little Ah Sin, Bret Harte's "heathen Chinese"? A possible descendant of the early settlers?

OH, THE BASIS for a claim to all the continent is there, all right. It is with dread that I search the papers daily for further chapters in the Communist demarche, with names, dates and the ultimatum that we right a fearful wrong and turn ourselves over to Mao.

Let the Russians have that third radiation belt while we gird ourselves to keep the kitch and kin of Ah Sin from taking over down below.

White House-Vatican Relations

WASHINGTON — A new book has just been published which will certainly be widely talked about wherever the influence of religious groups in politics is discussed. It is an authorized biography of Cardinal Spellman. It tells for the first time the inside story of how and why, after a lapse of 53 years, relations were resumed in 1939 between the White House and the Vatican. It covers a period of ten years during which the late Myron C. Taylor, formerly head of the U. S. Steel Corporation, served as the personal envoy of the President of the United States to Pope Pius XII. Mrs. Taylor, who had been appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, submitted his resignation to President Truman in 1950.

Saturday night over national hook-up urging Massachusetts to ratify child labor amendment. Had tea with President and he was wonderful. He made the cocktails before dinner. For dinner he had as guests Colonel and Mrs. Watson, Commissioner and Mrs. Allen, James and Betty Roosevelt, Miss Le Hand. We saw movies after supper. It was quite an experience.

"Said Mass (next day) in the Monroe room of the White House. It was the first time Mass was ever said in the White House. Miss Le Hand, Miss Tully, Miss Eben and Miss Hackmeister present. Breakfast afterwards with them. The coffee cups were as large as bowls.

"SAID GOOD-BYE to the President in bed. He said he had intended to get up for Mass."

The name of President Kennedy's father is mentioned in the chapter telling how informal relations with the Vatican were begun. The author says that Cardinal Spellman, who was then a bishop, suggested to Joseph P. Kennedy "that he mention to the President the possibility" of a representative to the Vatican, and "was delighted to learn from the account of the meeting that Roosevelt was sympathetic." The author adds: "It was, however, the visit to Hyde Park of Cardinal Pacelli, Secretary of State at the Vatican, (later Pope Pius XII) that forged the most important link in the chain of events leading up to the final decision."

THE BOOK MENTIONS the fact that the elder Kennedy, while U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, was appointed by President Roosevelt to act as his special representative at the coronation of Pope Pius XII. Father Gannon writes that "it was another first, the first papal coronation at which the United States government had been officially represented."

Bishop Spellman's diary says in this connection on March 17, 1939:

"Joe Kennedy phoned me from London expressing his joy at all that has taken place and the honors he has received from the Holy Father. He said Cardinal O'Connell (Boston) is against recognition of the Vatican by the U. S. A."

PRESIDENT TRUMAN on February 3, 1950, in a letter to Joseph Kennedy, wrote:

"It is indeed helpful to have all this background information concerning the origin of the Taylor mission from one who had so large and influential a part in the preliminary negotiations."

SCIENCE AT WORK

By The Associated Press
Some hints for resetting your alarm clock, the question of whether an insect thinks, and sparks from the surface of the moon are subjects for Science at Work.

To Sleep, Too Long

Most folks can get along on only six hours sleep a night—and the same goes for spacemen, an Air Force study claims.

The study also finds some other interesting points about sleep.

It's hard for anyone to perform critical jobs well when they have been working on a 24-hour-awake schedule.

When you do sleep, sleep for at least two hours. And then, for best results, don't perform monotonous jobs continually for longer than two hour periods.

Under conditions of stress, schedules should not be more severe than two hours on and two hours off.

Thinking Insects?

Ever wonder what a mosquito thinks as it sinks its feeding proboscis into your arm, and you raise your hand to retaliate? Well, it's unlikely that insects have any individual consciousness, as we understand it, says Dr. R. E. Snodgrass of the Smithsonian Institution.

They are apparently governed by some sort of incomprehensible and unconscious instinct—not like human or animal instinct either.

The queen or mother apparently governs insect societies through some sort of transmitted instincts, which do not leave the subjects of the colony individual freedom, Dr. Snodgrass suggests.

Science has yet to define what this insect instinct is, and how it operates, but many feel that it must exist. It is hard to imagine insects as mere machines when you scan their varied activities, Dr. Snodgrass adds. It would be like imagining automobiles driving themselves on crowded streets without ever colliding.

Moon Sparks

For 10 days each month, while the earth's shadow shields the moon from the brilliance of the sun, a telescope with an electronic eye is watching the moon for meteoric collisions.

The electronic eye—without the human frailty of becoming bored and unwatchful at a monotonous job—is expected by scientists at Martin Marietta Corp. to pick out meteor flashes or "flares" as the fragments of space matter strike the moon at some 34,000 miles an hour.

Mirror, Mirror

From earth, man has for some time used the upper layers of his atmosphere as a mirror to reflect and bounce back radio signals. Now he is planning two satellites that will beam radio signals back to earth from 600 miles above—and may tell him what radio signals he will have to use to reach the earth from planets like Mars or Venus.

Extremely high radio frequencies do penetrate the atmosphere—some fast vibrating signals and some slower vibrating signals. The faster the rate of vibration or the frequency of the signal, the farther into the atmosphere it can penetrate before meeting its particular mirror and bouncing back to earth.

Many of the repeaters—mostly the out-of-towners—kept Bourbon Street and the French Quarter jammed until nearly dawn as city workers began cleaning up more than 100 tons of debris.

Observers hailed the 1962 Mardi Gras as the most spectacular in the history of this Deep South city.

A bright sun shone throughout the day's activities, which included nine parades, but the mercury got only to 54, unusually cool for this time of year.

Money Bill To Senate
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House sent to the Senate by voice vote Tuesday the first regular money bill of 1962 — a $3,461,671,000 measure financing the Treasury and Post Office Departments and several small agencies.

No efforts were made to change money recommendations of the Appropriations Committee, although several members grumbled because the funds provided were $148,312,000 more than the same agencies were given last year.

Despite this increase, however, the bill cut $113,715,000 from funds requested by President Kennedy for use during the fiscal year starting July 1.

Free 20 Years, Back To Prison

TYLER (AP) — Robert Williams, 61, who escaped from a prison work farm 20 years ago, was returned to North Carolina Tuesday to complete his sentence. He was identified as a fugitive after his arrest here on a shop-lifting charge.

Mardi Gras Breathes Last

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—With Mardi Gras costumes put away until next year, New Orleans began the solemn Lenten season today after its annual Carnival fling.

Rex, king of Carnival and lord of Misrule, drank a champagne toast with Camus, Mardi Gras' patriarch deity, as the tower clock in historic St. Louis Cathedral struck midnight.

Many of the revelers—mostly the out-of-towners—kept Bourbon Street and the French Quarter jammed until nearly dawn as city workers began cleaning up more than 100 tons of debris.

Observers hailed the 1962 Mardi Gras as the most spectacular in the history of this Deep South city.

A bright sun shone throughout the day's activities, which included nine parades, but the mercury got only to 54, unusually cool for this time of year.

Billing Date Being Changed

Some residents may get two water bills relatively close together in the coming weeks, Roy Anderson, assistant city manager said today.

With the changeover to cycle billing, the first bills out may come pretty close behind the last bills under the old system, he explained. Under the old system, all patrons received bills about the first of the month. The new system may result in a few bills coming out about the same date, meaning some patrons will get two bills only a few dates apart.

"This will happen only while getting the new system going," Anderson explained. From now on, patrons will get their water bills on the same day of each month. Of course, not all city residents will be billed on the same date as it was in the past. Some parts of the city will get bills one day and other parts on another day.

DEAR ABBY

Can't Jail 'Em For Thinking!

DEAR ABBY: My husband tends bar in a cocktail lounge that hires only shapely waitresses who wear as little as the law allows. One girl started to work there last month and my husband came home and told me what a "swell kid" she was. He couldn't stop talking about her. He met her husband and said they acted very much in love. Then he added that the husband reminded him of HIMSELF when he was about 30!

I told him that he really was coveting another man's wife, but took comfort in the fact that the woman HE wanted loved a man who resembled HIM! He said I was crazy and should quit reading Freud. In your opinion, was my husband mentally unfaithful to me? I am 32 and he is 56.

NO FOOL
DEAR NO: Men are not jailed for their thoughts, nor should your husband be condemned by you. P. S. Freud would have been more interested in you than your husband.

DEAR ABBY: Since when do they pick bridesmaids according to weight? My daughter's friend is being married in June and she told my daughter if she lost 20 pounds by that time, she could be a bridesmaid. Otherwise, she could preside at the guest book. My daughter is a little overweight, but I don't think that should make any difference. She doesn't know what to do. She wants to be a bridesmaid, but what if she can't stay on her diet? — FAT GIRL'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The decision should be your daughter's. Perhaps her friend is trying to do your daughter a favor and give her an incentive to lose weight. If I were your daughter, I would accept the challenge—and win!

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who calls a relative to thank her for a Christmas gift she sent her daughter? She said her daughter was "too busy" to write thank-you notes and I should excuse her. Do you think this is a proper "thank you" from a 17-year-old girl?
DISGUSTED AUNT
DEAR DISGUSTED: I do not. But don't blame the girl. Her mother obviously hasn't taught her better manners. And if you want to do a real service, wise up the mother.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MAZIE: Just because there's chrome on the dome doesn't mean there's no power under the hood. Many a man of 66 is still hitting on all cylinders.

Storms' Remnants Batter Northeast

By The Associated Press
The remnants of a killer storm, shorn of snow and freezing rain but strong in battering winds and inundating tides, continued to lash the populous Northeast today.

The storm, by far the area's worst of a waning winter, was born of systems that converged from the west and south and hurried up the Eastern seaboard Tuesday, piling up to three feet of snow in some inland areas and flooding vast coastal areas.

At least 11 deaths were attributed to the storm. At least that many more were missing and hundreds had been evacuated. Damage was expected to run into the millions of dollars.

HIGH WINDS
Winds at 40-50 m.p.h. with higher gusts were expected to pound the area north from Virginia into central New England through most of the day.

Tides running 3 to 5 feet above normal promised little relief for the coastal areas flooded at the height of the storm. Tides accounted for a lion's share of the deaths.

At Dover, Del., five children—members of the John A. Waters family—drowned as they started to flee the flooded shoreline of Delaware Bay. A sixth child was missing and presumed drowned.

Two New Jersey couples were washed away and declared missing Tuesday night when a Coast Guard amphibious vessel evacuating them was smothered by a 10-foot wave near Beach Haven Inlet. Three other evacuees and two Coast Guard men managed to hang on.

OTHER DEATHS
There were other known storm dead in New Jersey. Marvland, an increasing Texas crime rate.

Most of the other candidates for attorney general likewise called for stronger law enforcement. James conferred with backers in Amarillo, his former home, late Tuesday. He appeared earlier at a "Tom James Day" observance in Panhandle.

Reavley moved across North Texas from Paris to Texarkana Tuesday. He went stumping in the Longview and Tyler areas Wednesday.

ENDORSEMENT
Proctor called attention in San Antonio to an endorsement from former Atty. Gen. Robert Lee Bobbitt. He said Bobbitt has known every Texas attorney general since the era of Gov. James Hogg.

Among the candidates for lieutenant governor, Sen. Robert Baker addressed a civic club group Tuesday at Liberty. Crawford Martin headed from West Texas to Dallas, Jarrard Secest met with backers in Houston. Gene Smith was at Victoria to confer with a booster club and James A. Turman and Preston Smith opened state headquarters Wednesday in Austin.

New York and North Carolina—through drownings, electrocutions from fallen wires, highway accidents and heart failures.

Schools were closed in many places. Thousands of homes were without power for hours.

Atlantic City, N.J., and Ocean City, N.J., two famed shore resorts, were completely cut off from the mainland at the height of the storm when winds reached 75 m.p.h. and 20-foot waves poured ashore.

Part of the famed Steel Pier at Atlantic City was torn away and 2,000 feet of boardwalk was destroyed at New Jersey's Asbury Park.

Waves cut completely across Fire Island, a summer vacation mecca off Long Island's south shore.

DISASTER AREA
Monmouth County, N.J., with much of its eastern section blitzed, in the word of one official, was declared a disaster area. A state of emergency was declared at Brick Township in New Jersey, and police used school buses, garbage trucks and other vehicles to evacuate 22 people and three dogs along submerged Route 38.

Rivers overflowed their banks and in Wildwood, N.J., fire destroyed summer dwellings while firemen fought the blaze from rowboats afloat on flooded streets at Sea Isle City, N.J., five Roman Catholic nuns were evacuated from their flood-ravaged convent by Coast Guard boats.

Hotels in downtown Philadelphia were filled with storm refugees. That city's suburban trolley line system was knocked out at the height of the storm. In metropolitan New York, ferry service was suspended for a time between New Jersey and New York, and Manhattan and Staten Island.

NEW YORK HIT
While New York City escaped the full force of the storm, it was lashed by winds of 60 m.p.h. that cloaked skyscrapers in rapidly melting coats of snow and ice. Some low-lying sections were flooded by the surging tides. A South Shore branch of the Long Island Rail Road was knocked out for two hours when high tides flooded the third rail. The flooding Passaic River marooned 494 rush hour commuters aboard a Hudson River tube train for 3½ hours.

The 40-foot yacht Guinevere out of New York was missing in stormy seas off the South Carolina coast with three persons aboard. Off the New Jersey coast, a destroyer in tow with no one aboard broke loose and ran aground.

Minimum Wage, Precinct Pleas Candidates' Topics

By The Associated Press
A plug for a higher state minimum wage and an appeal for more voters to participate in party precinct meetings figured in Texas' political campaigning Tuesday.

These were among the topics discussed as candidates in the crowded races for governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general toured all corners of the state and much of the territory in between.

The Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees meanwhile said it will not endorse anyone for governor or lieutenant governor, as some other labor groups have done, for the present.

ASKS INCREASE
Don Yarbrough, one of the five Democrats contesting Gov. Price Daniel's re-election bid, called for an increase in the minimum wage. He told a Fort Worth Press Club audience, however, that he would rather see this accomplished through attracting new industry instead of legislative action.

Yarbrough likewise criticized Texas' sales tax and merit rating plan on auto insurance, and asserted a lack of leadership in the governor's office has caused the state to lag in gaining new industries.

Roy Whittenburg, Republican candidate for governor and himself a precinct chairman, brought up the matter of precinct activity. "It is very difficult for anyone to place enough importance on precinct meetings or precinct business, Republican or Democrat," Whittenburg said at a Hutchinson County precinct chairman's conference in Borger.

ONLY CHANCE
"They are the only chance for party members to control their party machinery," Whittenburg is chairman of the Piersons Precinct 15 miles from Borger, where he was born on his father's ranch.

Daniel was back in Austin, where he opened the Texana exhibit, a private collection of historical books and documents at the University of Texas.

Marshall Formby wound up stumping in far West Texas in El Paso. Next on his schedule were a series of appearances in Amarillo Wednesday and Lubbock Thursday.

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson was in Dallas, his home town, for several days of handshaking and visits with various groups.

CONNALLY TOUR
John Connally, on a swing through Central Texas, wound up at Hearne in the evening. He planned a television appearance Wednesday at Bryan and stops at College Station and Marlin.

A former chief of security training for the Atomic Energy Commission, Dr. Medford Evans, announced in Dallas that he is aiding Edwin A. Walker, also in the Democratic race for governor, as a campaign adviser.

Speaking as chairman of the union's legislative committee, Robert R. Wheatley of Amarillo announced the Brotherhood of Railway Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees was not ready to endorse candidates for the top two state offices "at this early date."

"Gov. Price Daniel and the present attorney general, Will Wilson, among the candidates for governor, have been as helpful and cooperative as possible with our problems and legislative efforts as they could reasonably be expected to be," Wheatley said. "There are a number of highly qualified candidates for lieutenant governor."

GRATITUDE
Former House Speaker Waggoner Carr voiced gratitude for endorsement of his candidacy for attorney general from 331 or 365 Dallas Bar Association members taking a stand on the race. The group gave Tom Reavley 256 votes, Tom James 118, Les Procter 87, W. T. McDonald 24 and Bob Looney 4.

Carr said that as attorney general he proposed to seek amendments to outdated and ineffective laws which he blamed in part for

Salvation Army Books Audited

Major Harlan Cleveland, divisional secretary for the Salvation Army, was in Big Spring Tuesday to make a semi-annual audit of the books.

He arrived from San Angelo late Monday night and left Tuesday evening after completing the audit. Maj. Cleveland is from the divisional office in Dallas, where he has been stationed the past two years.

"Everything is in pretty good shape," Maj. Robert L. Short, local post commander, said. "We are operating on a tight budget and have a current deficit of about $500, but at this time of the year our expenses are greater."

"The financial condition should improve later in the year," he added.

Maj. Cleveland checked the accuracy of accounting and uses of the funds spent. The audits are made twice each year by different auditors. The last audit here was for the month ending Oct. 31, 1961. The current check goes through Feb. 25.

Pack 46 Has Award Feast

There were 120 on hand for the Pack 46 Blue and Gold Banquet held recently. Capt. Robert Lillie and T. Sgt. James Prindahl had charge of the program, and Capt. Lillie made the Cub awards.

A trip to Carlsbad Caverns was discussed and Capt. Lillie made a presentation about astronauts. Den 3 gave a skit. Den 4 served refreshments. Den 1 had the opening ceremony and Den 2 had the closing ceremony.

Awards went to:
Wolf badge—Mark Herschick;
Bear Badges—Peter Carlson, Rusty Osborn, Perry Fletcher, Byron Cole, Jerry Maness, Morris Gun;

Last-Minute Execution Stay

AUSTIN (AP)—Leo Luton, 33, convicted in the Dallas robbery slaying of a grocer's wife, won a 10-day stay of execution Tuesday.

It was granted seven hours before Luton was to die in the electric chair at the state prison.

Gov. Price Daniel approved a recommendation by the Board of Pardons and Paroles for the delay. The purpose is to give Luton's lawyer time to ask a writ of habeas corpus in federal court at Houston.

Word at the state reached the Huntsville prison after Luton had eaten a supposedly last meal including filet mignon and banana pie.

He already had told newsmen: "I'm ready."

Luton received the death sentence for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Frances Bryant during a holdup Sept. 9, 1960, of a food store in Dallas.

Poll Tax Lists Being Assembled. Viba Cormas, deputy in the office of Mrs. Zarah LeFevre, tax collector, assembles copies of the lists.

Official Poll Tax Count Is Completed

There are 9,519 qualified electors in Howard County. This is the final and official count. Mrs. Zarah LeFevre, county tax assessor, said that her staff has completed the final preparation of the poll tax rolls and the bound booklets of such records are now available. Candidates frequently want copies of the total list as an aid in their campaign efforts. Copies, in limited numbers, are available. The complete list can be provided for $25; a list covering any specific commissioner precinct costs $15. Individual voting lists for boxes will range from $2.50 up—depending on the size. First copy of a box list was handed to C. J. Lamb, mayor of Forsan. This list will be required in the $50,000 bond election to be conducted at Forsan on Saturday. Mrs. LeFevre's staff cut the stencils and mimeographed the lists after the original receipts had been carefully checked and classified as to voting boxes. The receipts were then arranged in alphabetical order and mimeographed. Each precinct judge on election day is provided with a copy of the list of voters in his box. The county Democratic and Republican committee chairmen are supplied with complete lists. One copy is kept as an official file. Mrs. LeFevre pointed out that a person moving from one voting box to another should bring his poll tax receipt to the tax office four days before an election to have the new voting box noted. The lists give the name of the voter, his address, occupation, party affiliation and other pertinent information.

Restaurant Owner's Mother Dies Today

Mrs. Mannie Harris, 91, mother of T. L. Harris, local restaurant owner, died at 6 a.m. today in Eastland. She had been ill for several years. Mrs. Harris lived in Big Spring for about three years before moving to Eastland. Funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Church of Christ in Rising Star. Burial will be in the Rising Star Cemetery.

Funeral Thursday

Services for Mrs. W. L. Smith, mother of H. W. Smith, have been set for 2:30 p.m. Thursday at the Robertson, Mueller and Harper Funeral Home in Fort Worth. Burial will be in Laurel Land Cemetery beside the grave of her husband. Mrs. Smith, a long-time resident of Fort Worth, died Tuesday after a short illness.

Former Resident Dies In Arizona

Henard Tingle, 51, a former resident of Big Spring, died at his home in Wilcox, Ariz. Saturday and funeral was held Monday. Mr. Tingle attended high school in Big Spring and lived with his aunt, Mrs. W. D. McDonald. Other relatives here who survive are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kitchener and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sevey. He was the brother of Mrs. Burke Summers. He also leaves his widow, Mrs. Lois Tingle, and four sons, Burton Tingle, Billy Tingle, Clinton Tingle, and Bruce Tingle.

Enrollment Has Increase Of Two

Airport Elementary School showed an increase of 17 students on the last enrollment report Friday, according to Sam M. Anderson, superintendent of the Big Spring Independent School District. Kate Morrison and the Senior High School each were down by six students and Washington Elementary was down four to almost balance out the gain. The tally at all schools showed a net increase of two students, with a total in elementary and secondary schools of 7,115 pupils. Total elementary enrollment was 4,305, a gain of eight; secondary schools had 2,671, down seven; and special education stood at 139, up one.

Mrs. Holmes Ill

Mrs. C. S. Holmes, 90, former long-time resident of Big Spring, has suffered a stroke at the home of her son, U. B. (Brent) Mellon at 2688 1/2 Regency Way, San Diego 1, Calif. Mrs. Holmes has been making her home with her son for several years. Until she sustained the stroke on March 4, she has been extremely active for one her age.

TEXAS EDUCATION WEEK

Education Develops Art Of Communication

The supreme purpose of what is called education is to improve the talents and skills of the individual in making himself better understood by his fellows. Such achievement might collectively be termed development of communication. Educators point out that from the time the first primitive individual was able to signify to a fellow some meaning by a grunt, a gesture or some other symbol, communication has been the desired end of most social relationships. Unless the teacher possesses skill in making himself understood clearly by his students—in other words, unless he is able to properly and effectively communicate with them—he cannot instruct them in any other art, skill or science. SEVERAL BRACKETS Teachers classify communication roughly as falling into several general brackets. Reading, for example, is a form of communication and one that cannot be over-emphasized for its importance. Other forms of communication are composition, grammar, writing, speech, foreign languages, spelling, drama, and art. The Big Spring schools are well aware of the vital role skill in communication plays in the life of the individual. From the day a boy or a girl enrolls in school until he or she completes college, the stress on communication development never stops. Reading, for example, is a subject given special emphasis in the

Coahoma Area Discoverer Finals For 312 Barrels

Texas Pacific Coal and Oil No. 1 A. D. Shive, the project which caused a flurry of oil interest around Coahoma at the end of January, has been completed as a lower Leonard Reef discovery. It flowed 312 barrels of 20 gravity oil through a 16-64 choke on initial potential. The well is the only Leonard pay in Howard County at this time. It paid from perforations between 5,270-301 feet in a pay topped at 5,269 feet. The well is about 3/4 miles northeast of Coahoma. Pico No. 1 Spears, a one-quarter mile southwest offset to the discovery, is still tight. Another project about 1 1/2 miles northwest of the well is still a location. It is R. S. Brennan Jr. and F. O. Herren No. 1 Florence Reef. Other oil wells included four new locations. They are in established fields in Howard, Mitchell, Martin and Sterling counties.

Baptists OK Church-State Defense Study

DALLAS (AP) — The 192-member Texas Baptist Executive Board has approved a recommendation for a study of church-state separation questions in any civil defense programs that might involve Baptist institutions.

The board asked its chairman, K. Owen White of Houston, Tuesday to name a committee for studying whether Baptist organizations should accept federal grants for civil defense construction programs.

The recommendation from the convention's Christian life commission did not spell out what construction programs would be involved. It was implied, however, that the committee would study any offers of federal money for Baptist institutions to build community fall-out shelters.

The executive board approved ownership of two new schools by the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

They are the Mexican Baptist Bible Institute in San Antonio and the Valley Baptist Academy in Harlingen. Both will be deeded to the state convention by the present area association owners if the BGCT approves at its fall meeting in Fort Worth.

A progress report on the $28 million crusade for Christian education noted that $2 million has been raised. The campaign is spread over four years.

The Rev. Cecil Sherman, pastor of the First Baptist Church of College Station, was named staff associate in the division of evangelism to succeed the Rev. C. B. Jackson.

Contestants To Meet With Legion

Students who participated in the American Legion oratorical contest will be guests of the organization at the Thursday night meeting, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Bedford Forrest. Forrest serves as coach for the group.

The activity is sponsored by the Americanism committee and chairman Roscoe Cone urges all members to be present. Winora Richbourg will present her speech that won the contest and advanced her to the District at Lubbock.

Chester Cathey will serve as Legion host at a dinner for the group preceding the 8 o'clock meeting.

Ellsasser Shows Artistry In Closing Concert Season

It was no rest for the weary Richard Ellsasser, organ virtuoso, closed out the Concert Association's season on a vibrant and harmonious note. He was so well received he had to come back for three encores.

Ellsasser is still recovering from a bad case of the flu, an ailment that can be especially exhausting for a man on a concert tour. He already had lost a week out of his present itinerary.

It takes an accomplished artist to hold an audience for more than an hour by himself, and Ellsasser proved onstage the same mettle reflected in his varied recordings.

But in addition to his artistry, Ellsasser showed common sense in his program selections. The first part, and perhaps the best from a professional viewpoint, included classical works by Vivaldi, Mozart and others. The second portion was a mixture of semi-popular and contemporary.

"Some of my colleagues and many critics," he commented after the performance, "are down on me for not going all - classical. But I know what the audience wants, I plan to give it to them — and besides, I just can't see what all the fuss is about. Some of the more popular numbers I play today may be classics a hundred years from now."

Ellsasser's fast footwork on the bass keys and his marvelously agile technique on the keyboards did not diminish even at the end of the last encore — only his strength was gone.

A big event of the evening was the program's third portion, featuring members of the Big Spring High School band under the baton of Director Douglas Wiehe, in concert with Ellsasser. Their number was "Concerto for Organ and Band" by Don Gillis, gifted composer who wrote the concerto on commission by Ellsasser. The piece had American syncopations and rhythm changes that should have thrown any high school band, but the youngsters stayed right with the soloist — and if they missed a beat it wasn't noticed.

Before his encores, the artist had praise for the band members and their conductor. "I wonder if you know how blessed you are to have a band like this and a man like Mr. Wiehe," he told his audience.

"Flight of the Bumble Bee" was one of the encore numbers. Ellsasser's feet pumped in amazing high speed during the first portion of this number, drumming out the melody on the bass keys. Those familiar with this classic may imagine what kind of footwork that would entail.

The organist spent three days here rehearsing with the band. There were as many as three workouts a day.

Actually, Ellsasser prefers to work with bands in all but the large cities. It was this liking for bands that prompted him to commission the Gillis concerto.

"Only the big cities," he noted at a reception, "have really good symphony orchestras, or conductors able to instill proper discipline. But there are bands all over the country, in smaller cities, and many of these are excellent. It's a pleasure to work with most of them."

Special Education Meeting Discusses Vocational Needs

A vocational officer may soon be appointed to serve special education students in Big Spring and the surrounding cities, according to Sebron B. Williams, assistant superintendent for the Big Spring Independent School District.

At present, one such officer serves a 15-county area, Williams said.

Williams discussed vocational and pre-vocational training for special education children at a regular meeting of their parents Tuesday night in the Special Education Building.

Children who are 16 years old or more may be placed in vocational training sponsored by the State Department of Special Education. It includes such assistance as vocational aptitude testing and help with locating an employer.

"As students get older, they often develop skills which cannot be seen readily when they are children," Williams pointed out. "Many times they can become self-sustaining."

The program embraces persons handicapped physically as well as mentally. One problem encountered in vocational training for these persons is resistance of employers to hire them. Williams pointed out.

The discussion was followed by a short business meeting.
