Kennedy Now Can Be Nice To Business

By JACK BELL WASHINGTON (AP) - President Kennedy, having shown Big Steel who is boss, can be expected to deal tenderly with business in the next few months.

Although Atty. Gen. Robert F.

Kennedy says a New York federal grand jury will continue its investigation of possible collusion on steel price increases which were later rescinded, the President is represented as not being in any vindictive mood. The President, who felt he was kicked in the pants by the steel executives after he had helped get what he called a non-inflationary wage settlement with the Steelworkers Union, was said to feel that this is the time to be magnanimous in victory.

Beyond that, Kennedy obvious

y has no hankering for the kind of political vendetta with business that Franklin D. Roosevelt seemed to enjoy. He needs business support to attain several major ob jectives of his administration. The most pressing of these, of course, is to get the economy rolling in higher gear so that it will absorb some of the unemployed and help dispose of this, one of his most troublesome problems. Additionally, he needs coopera-tion from business men to put across his international trade pro-posals. They can help him bypass ome of the stumbling blocks certain to be encountered by that program as it inches its way through

If businessmen in general turned on his program, it could wind up in shambles and he knows it. Similarly, any massive opposition from business could cripple his foreign aid program which already is under heavy attack.

While business may have been shocked by the display of raw power the President put on to roll back the steel price increase, Kennedy believes that many industrialists sympathized with his feeling that he had been doublecrossed in his efforts to check in-

A Devotional For Today

He hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him. (II Corinthians 5:21.)

A Worthy Project

A project often much talkied about but which has borne no abundance of fruit is the beautification or the development of a more attractive approach to Webb AFB. Big Spring is proud to be the home of Webb AFB, and there ought to be some way in which this fact could be made known in a positive way. Perhaps there could be more prominent display to the signs which direct traffic from US 80 Highway to the base, Perhaps the road from FM-700 could be more plainly marked so strangers would have no difficulty finding it.

Perhaps the driveway, at least from FM 700 to the base could be improved and bordered in such a way that it would give an appearance of neatness. Perhaps the entrance itself could be dressed up or landscaped.

Ruling Should Help Cities

State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert has wisely found a way, short of a costly and tedious wait for amending the law, to patch an apparent flaw in the state sales tax that was obviously in conflict with legislative intent. And the clarification is a welcome one in the public interest.

The state, its political subdivisioncounties cities school and special districts - and charitable, religious, educational and eleemosynary nonprofit institutions are exempt from paying the sales tax on items they purchase. However, anearlier ruling by Calvert held that contractors would have to pay the sales tax on materials they used in doing jobs for the exempt institutions. As contractors would simply include the tax costs in their bids on such jobs, that ruling would have left the exempt institutions actually paying the tax indirectly. In many instances, the state would be taxing itself; and in may others, it would be taxing its local governments.

After a stormy hearing in Dallas last week, before the Texas Tax Policy Commission, Calvert reconsidered this ruling which he had indicated at the hearing that only legislative amendment could change. The result was a new ruling this week which approves a method of bidding by which the sales tax can be avoided on materials used by contractors in doing work for public and nonprofit institutions.

The main beneficiaries of this revised interpretation of the state sales tax law will be taxpayers of local governmental units, It is hoped that the confusion of this point, which was thoroughly debated the legislature, has been finally cleared up.

Holmes Alexander The Re-Making Of A Senator

WASHINGTON-The United States Sen- when Proxmire, a witness before the Senate is good for what ails most of its new members. If they come here acting bumptious or biased, surly or vain, a few years in the Citadel will cure some of them and improve practically all, I have learned that it's a mistake to take anything approaching an inflexible dislike of senators. If you can't stand their idiosyncrasies-wait a year or so.

AS A PREAMBLE to a column about Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis), it should be noted that he succeeded the bestknown senator in the world at that time, the late Joe McCarthy who died in May, 1957. Coming to Washington that summer by special election, the tall, lean, balding Proxmire, 41, attracted more than ordinary attention, McCarthy's enemies bitterly hoped the new man would commit some macabre insult to his departed predecessor, while McCarthy's friends undoubtedly resented seeing anybody else in their hero's place.

TO PROXMIRE'S credit, he did not trade upon McCarthy's memory, but he soon achieved notoriety of a different sort-as the most unbridled money spender (on paper) of the Eisenhower opposition. President Ike, who prided himself on never dealing in personalities, did refer anonymously but disapprovingly of Proxmire as the fellow whose bills, if passed, would just about double the size of the federal budget.

Proxmire gained a six-year term in 1958, and in the next session he scandalized the Democratic regulars by the brazen heresy of attacking their peerless Majority Leader, Lyndon B. Johnson. The audacious newcomer called upon the party to revolt from Johnson's leadership and to divest him of many cherished powers and privileges.

IT WAS THE ACT of a know-it-all freshman in a body which changes its members by political attrition and human mortality, but always remains the same. Proxmire became something of a pariah within the Club and a laughingstock in the galleries.

I first met him at the unveiling ceremonies that session of the Famous Five Senators (Clay, Webster, Calhoun, La Follette and Taft) in the Senate Reception Room. Johnson openly snubbed him. Proxmire retaliated by cropping Johnson out of the photographs taken in front of La Follette's portrait and sent by Prexmire to Wisconsin voters. It was a childish way for two alleged statesmen

BUT PROXMIRE is a different person today. The salubrious atmosphere of the Senate chamber has worked wonders on the ego which was swollen with the self-importance of being a bright boy of Yale '38 and a Master of Arts from both the Harvard Business School and the Harvard Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. Instead of preening himself on these distinctions, as he did at the beginning, Proxmire began to make use of his undoubted brains and excellent edu-ate Finance Committee, gave concise and cogent testimony that drew praise from the entire panel, beginning with the Jovian approval of no less than Sen.

BYRD SAID that Proxmire's critique of the tax credit aspect of the administration's tax bill was "one of the ablest statements made before this committee" and that Proxmire had scored one salient point that no other witness

Harry F. Byrd, chairman.

Praise from Chairman Byrd is praise indeed. When Douglas of Illinois and Williams of Delaware, speaking from the opposite ideological poles, added their encomiums, nobody could doubt that Proxmire had come all the way home from the Limbo where his early performance as an egghead extremist had

THIS RECOVERY did not surprise those of us who had watched the Wisconsin senator's hard work and impressive performance in committee and on the floor. Too much education becomes a peril only to an incurable liberalissimo, Proxmire is nothing of the sort.

As a member of the lofty Joint Economic Committee, Proxmire has for some time been identifying himself with the Republicans, Sen. Bush and Rep. Tom Curtis. For the past two years, Proxmire has filed individual dissenting reports in which he specifically dissociates himself from the Democratic members, chiefly Rep. Patman and Sen. Douglas.

PROXMIRE'S evolving economic philosophy, as I read it, amounts to skepticism about the efficacy of fiscal planning and manipulation. The "honest position," he writes, may be for "public officials frankly (to) admit that they do not know the answers to the really hard problems that perplex us." This confession of ignorance and humility, he goes on, "may be necessary if the real answers are to be developed."

You don't often find a trained economist who is without prefabricated theories and who will admit to such openminded modesty. In the late 1950's Proxmire knew it all. In the early sixties, he mainly knows his own limitations. Such is progress-and the healthful balm of the legislative body which is called the Citadel. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

ROCHESTER, N. Y. A - At a recent Democratic party dinner a man arrived early and mingled with others attired in tuxedos. While standing around, he was handed a slip of paper with a number on it by Jim Foley, the caterer.

Later as the program time neared, the man was seen near the head table,

"Are you sure you're at the right station?" Foley asked. "I don't think you're waiting on the head table." "Waiting on it?" the man said, "I'm sitting at it.

Time was when Little Red Riding Hood, a trusting soul, hiked over to her grandmama's quarters with cookies and a flagon of wine, or something-bent on repairing the old woman's health or buoying her spirits, maybe. Once arrived, she learned-after an unusual amount of ver-bal fencing-that the wolf had made a meal out of the old girl.

I'M HAPPY to report that the outcome of the ancient tale has been altered somewhat. The fadeout still doesn't show Little Miss Hood, El Lobo and Grandmama doing a song and dance at the picture window but the wolf fares rather badly in the new version. He might have had designs to spreading a feed for the neighbors and using the grandparent as part of the menu but the old girl, in the revised editions, showing more nimbleness and quick footwork than you ordinarily associate with infirmity, runs away to fight another day.

If there's one thing I do rather well, the story are spared the thought of bloodshed, since the four-legged animal with the big eyes, auricular appendages and teeth is merely allowed to beat a retreat. The woodman never swings the axe.

THE THREE LITTLE Pigs fare much the same way. The wolf might as well be a wombat in that story. True, he goes after the porkers with a gleam in his eye and succeeds in huffing and puffing at the houses of two of them until they collapse but the young hogs leg it over to the brick fortress of an older and wiser brother and ask for asylum.

I think the FHA should look into the construction of those first two houses, though maybe the wolf had just had a garlic or limburger sandwich.

IN THE NEW VERSIONS, even Old Mother Hubbard overlooked some bones and tidbits in her first trip to her cupboard and fares better the second time around. It still doesn't say, but I suspect the dog's chow was behind the bottle of sauce she keeps there for treatment of her cough.

At any rate, much of the violence has gone out of the books and they say it's because the mamas are having their say now. Psychologists who have studied the matter insist the books sell better if the characters show gentler sides and the manuscripts have happier endings.

No one consulted Mother Goose. No doubt, she's clucking about what they've -TOMMY HART done to her classics.

Mistreatment Of Our Teachers

In that far - off millennium of which we all speak so glibly, the meek may inherit the earth. But, to date, there is no evidence that they have been testamentary legatees to any part thereof.

So if the teachers of New York City went on strike for a wage increase that would help them, in these costly times, to keep body, soul and landlord together, more power to them.

THE METHOD BY which they chose to strike may have been unwise; there are persons most sympathetic with the teachers in this action who feel that the city administration could not negotiate with them under threat of strike.

But if I were a teacher in New York, trying to live in one of the world's most expensive cities on a teacher's salary, I am certain that my prudence and my judgment would be warped beyond endurance by the unwarranted $10,000 that Mayor Robert Wagner and his fat-cat cohorts voted themselves after Wagner's re-election to the mayoralty last November.

WAGNER'S political cronies, including the controller, the City Council president and the five borough presidents, all got a raise of ten grand. And never mind the merit system. They were Wagner's chums, weren't they? The mayor's heist amounted to 25 per cent, the controller's to 33 per cent and the borough presidents' 40 per cent of their previous take.

Very nice work, indeed, as they say in the political clubhouses. And oh, what a beautiful sugar-plum tree the mayor and his buddies prepared for lesser satellites in the name of palship, beautiful palship. There were all sorts of goodies and raises for friends. The raises began with modest hikes of $3,500.

NOR, WHILE we are examining the city's inability to scrape up modest raises for its teachers and its hypocritical moral indignation that teachers dare stage a walkout, can we overlook the $9,000 new Cadillacs to which the mayor, the City Council prexy and three of the five borough presidents treated themselves immediately after the November election.

Continuing our examination of the delightful fact that to the victor belongs the spoils, as recently as March 22, when Wagner was confronted with the possibility of a teachers' strike, that stalwart son of Tammany did not hesitate to add $136,-000 to the budget in pay raises and new jobs in several "deserving" city depart-

NO WONDER the well has run dry as teachers ask for a pay increase! The big boys got there fustest and took the most-

Let us also cast a cross - eye on the charge that New York's teachers have heartlessly gone on strike against the city's little children. What slop! In their one - day strike, before an injuction sent hem back to the classry were striking against adults who have a vote to express their sentiments on the public schools and teachers, together with proper support for both.

Too many parents today believe that teachers should be mild, meek, spineless baby - sitters, glad of the job at any pay. They are content that teachers shall live marginally, many drudging away at a second and even a third job in an attempt to support themselves and their

THE PUBLIC attitude toward teachers is shocking. Because teachers are economically depressed, the public is not only sneering and patronizing toward the profession, but everlastingly prying into their private lives. Americans never did rid themselves of that canard which has so crippled the teaching profession: those who can, do; those who can't, teach. Bravo that the supposed rabbit has turned on the tiger.

and (b) it's not their medicine. The National Association of Manufacturers is against it. So is the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Furthermore, the AFL-CIO objects to the proposal as a windfall. Opposition has driven the administration to redoubled defense of what only it seems

HERE'S HOW the administration puts its case: International competition is increasing. U. S. industry needs to be lean, mins, and it does them just as them; 3-don't talk too much; hearty, and modern. The credit will stim-4-using a steam inhalator, eiulate investment in new facilities. ther plain or with aromatic medi-So far, no argument. Who's going to kick modernization or Santa Claus? Business men say the proper cure for investment anemia is revision of Treasury Bulletin F, long-deferred and longpromised. This bulletin, which sets forth allowable depreciation rates on machinery, plant, and equipment, hasn't been revised adequately since 1942, though more liberal rates-shorter life-were granted to the textile industry on machinery.

SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D-Wis), usually an administration faithful, condemned the credit proposal before the Senate Finance Committee because it would grant tax benefits to business firms "even if they do not change their investment decisions one iota.'

I think Treasury experts are victims of analogy. They found that investment credits often supplemented depreciation rates on business equipment in Europe. They noted that production in recent years has expanded more rapidly in West Germany, Italy, France, Belgium and other continental countries than here.

Ergo: If investment tax credits imparted a lift in Europe, why not a similar incentive here! But is that logical?

WHEN THE WAR ended, European business men had to rebuild and re-equip. Shortages existed. Demand was greater than supply. Profits were promising. Consumers wanted the comforts and conveniences they had so long foregone. But business firms were short of capital. So governments helped with special tax

Moreover, growth here was rapid in early postwar years simply because consumers and business men quickly went castor oil and the investment credit. Medabout making up for wartime austerities. But since our deficiencies were less than those of Europe, the U. S. growth rate ultimately slowed down comparatively. GROWTH IN the Soviet Union has also been more rapid than that of the United States. Nevertheless, the U.S.S.R. has no investment credit to spur on its industrial commissars, Production in Europe and the U.S.S.R. during the war was catastrophically disrupted and diminished by war. Naturally, the catch-up process would last longer there.

For me, the investment credit is one more loophole in a tax structure full of loopholes. Tax rates-both individual and corporate-are too high; exemptions and exclusions too numerous.

BUSINESS MEN'S decisions are basednot necessarily on what's good for business-on how to save taxes. High personal tax rates set up a tug-of-war each year between a man's conscience and what he thinks he can get away with.

The sooner tax rates in general come down, the better it will be for the moral tone of society and the economic tone of business. And the investment credit, if, enacted, will be one more loophole to get rid of in a general overhaul and simplification of the tax structure.

The Senate will perform a public service by burying the proposal under an avalanche of "Nays." One more patch in a patchwork quilt is the last thing we need.

But if so, it will be a good thing. my Preston. An airman at Webb be a citizen of the community. He attends the First Baptist Church, has already made a wide work, tv, night clubs, community circle of civilian acquaintances, and is even going into a part-time

Essentially, what Tommy wants to do is exactly what many learned observers of the American scene have been crying for - to move people out of their apathy, out of the living room, and into activity. This is completely in line with President Kennedy's physical fitness program and with all other voices crying in the wilderness of vegetating humans.

THINGS TO DO

"An active community," Tommy says, "is a growing community. It is a living thing, where something is doing all the time, where there's always a place to go, things to see, something to do."

He even has a fire-eating act which he learned from his father who, it is related, learned the art from the Mayan Indians. Tommy also is an accomplished knife thrower, although he dares not try the act at present. Being a bit out of practice can be dangerous, although he claims there is little or no danger when the blade tosser is in prime shape.

A BIG PLAN Tommy's qualifications have caused him to be placed in Air Force special services, he reports, and thereby hangs one of his big the valves, so to speak, between the air bases and keep up a continuous shuttling of shows.

"It would give the airmen some-"It's not necessary," he gestures, "to open up night clubs said, "and would be a tremendous

But the young entertainer doesn't plan to stop there. He also would like, locally, to break down tween serviceman and civilian, take some of the base shows to for the community, he would like to find and develop local native talent for much the same purpose - including the possibility of awaking neighbor communities to the fact that Big Spring is by no neans a "dead" town.

OUTSIDE SHOWS In addition to local talent, Tommy also wants to see outside, professional shows brought through Big Spring.

This sort of thing doesn't have to be ballet or opera. What I would like to see here are the things the mass of people like whether it be gospel singers, pop-ular name bands or singers, hill-billy artists. Whatever it is that the people of Big Spring will turn in droves for is what they should have - they have the right

And here we come back to the problem of public apathy, which have decried many times. Here's what Tommy Preston has to say on the subject (with the full concurrence of this writer):

"Apathy is like a lot of other things. It's a habit, Pure habit. If you can get people up, get them to stirring around like they used to, then that activity will become a habit. Just get the people up and active again and it will make a habit of itself."

WHAT TO DO Of course, it would do little good to stir people up if there were no place to go and nothing to do or see. That's where Tommy is counting on his experience in show business and in promotion - as well as the contacts he has among entertainment personalities. Right now, he is a partner with Bobby Bolduc in a ballroom dance studio in the Settles Hotel. He's planning to extend his activities into a full-fledged theatrical agency to draw shows into town, and to sponsor local talent.

But I'm not simply trying to set up a monopoly on show business here," he says. "If the town begins to circulate, there will be many more promoters of activities than just me.

KNOWS KNOWLAND

Tommy's experience and contacts are not confined to the world of show business. He is a friend of former Sen. William F. Knowland, who has now returned to the business of newspaper publishing. Knowland once put his young acquaintance on a tv hookup out of San Diego, and Tommy previously had helped the former senator in one of his campaigns.

Between his church activities or the one hand, and his artistic appreciation of Mexican culture on the other hand, his parting salute was no surprise. Ambitious young Tommy Preston left the interview with one of his favorite sayings: "Vaya con Dios!"

Jo Polone Wins Second Place

Mrs. Jo Polone, local beautician, placed second with her style presentation Sunday at a clinic held in Odessa, First place went to a stylist from El Paso.

Model for Mrs. Polone was Kathy Haynes. She showed "dancing curls," in keeping with the trend of "dancing hair." There were 10 entries in the show, which was staged at the Lincoln Hotel. Don Martin, Fort Worth, was present to show new styles and
