Johnny May Not Be Able To Read but — there are adults around town who can't spell. These warning signs are to be seen at Goliad Junior High and at Airport Elementary School.

Time For Some To Go Back To School

DEAR BOSS: The lady on the telephone asked, "Have you noticed the traffic warning signs near our schools?" I told her I had not — what about them? "Why don't you drive out with Goliad Junior High and Airport School?" she suggested. "I think you'd find the signs interesting."

see signs where gross spelling errors existed. "Spelling errors like what?" I asked. "Oh," she said, "with the word 'children' spelled 'childern' or 'chridren'."

to get so confused that I even started to make a photograph of one which had the word spelled right. "Maybe like the lady said, Boss, Johnny has trouble learning to read. Well, one thing's for sure, he's going to have trouble learning to spell if he has to keep on seeing these signs."

Nation's Gross Product Hits $552 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's Gross National Product reached an annual rate of $552 billion in the second quarter of this year. President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers reported today.

The second quarter figure was $7 billion higher than the $545 billion annual rate for the first quarter, but nevertheless fell well below the administration's hopes. It could have an important bearing on whether Kennedy asks for a tax cut this year to spur the economy.

Kennedy predicted in January the GNP for 1962 would jump to a $570 billion rate for the full year compared with $518.7 billion in 1961.

To have any chance to reach this figure, the second quarter rate should have been in the $560-$570 billion range. The GNP, which measures the output of all goods and services, is one of the key economic indicators closely watched by all government and business economists.

The $552 billion figure was a preliminary estimate by the council. These advance estimates, however, usually have closely approximated the final figure computed by the Department of Commerce.

Insurance Firm Folds

AUSTIN (AP)—Notices were in the mail today advising about 18,000 servicemen and government employees their auto liability insurance is no good.

State liquidator, C. H. Langdaun said Thursday all policies of Government Services Insurance Underwriters were cancelled July 18. The firm was placed in receivership June 1. Several efforts at rehabilitation failed.

The liquidator said liabilities of this and two connected firms also placed in receivership totaled $839,000, compared with assets of $694,000. The other companies are Government Services Underwriters, Inc., and Nationwide Auto Insurers Agency.

All three firms are based in San Antonio.

Norstad Resigns NATO Command

Gen. Lemnitzer Reported In Line As Successor

GEN. LAURIS NORSTAD

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy accepted today the resignation of Gen. Lauris Norstad as supreme Allied commander in Europe and chief of NATO forces.

The White House had nothing to say immediately as to a successor.

Reports were circulating that Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff, might replace Norstad. But there also was talk of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, now presidential military adviser.

Norstad has held the Allied position with headquarters in Paris since 1956. He is known as a strong advocate of increasing unity among the Western European Allies and between them and the United States.

Word that the general has submitted his resignation came first from the newspaper Le Monde in Paris.

Norstad said in a letter to Kennedy: "We live in a time of continuing crisis, but for the moment, at least, there is no unusual pressure on my office. I request therefor that I be relieved of my assignment . . . on or about 1 Nov. 1962."

The chief executive replied in a "Dear Larry" letter, voicing deep regret at Norstad's decision to step out of uniform after 36 years and also lavishing high praise on a man he said has had a military assignment of unparalleled importance to the defense of the free world.

Kennedy said he knows of no one who has been better able to bear the burdens and that Norstad has become "a living symbol of the United States commitment to the Alliance and of the strength of the Alliance itself."

U. S. Cuts Off Peru Aid To Thwart Dictatorship

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department said today that the U.S. military aid program for Peru has been suspended along with the pending economic assistance commitments.

This means that the new military junta which is strongly opposed by the United States has been denied arms help worth several millions of dollars a year. The crackdown on aid ordered by President Kennedy is directed toward bringing about an early return to civilian democratic government in the Latin-American country.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, confirmed under questioning today that military aid as well as economic aid has been suspended.

White said, "The military aid program has been suspended." He declined to give any figures on value of military aid, but it amounted to more than $14 million in the year ended June 30, 1961, the last period for which figures were readily available.

Announcement of the cutoff of aid, except for relatively minor humanitarian assistance, came late Thursday shortly after the White House had denounced the military takeover in Lima as dealing a serious setback to the cause of democracy in the Western Hemisphere.

President Kennedy "has noted the developments in Peru with great concern," the White House statement said. Washington officials said the drastic steps which have been taken by the administration to bring pressure on the military group which seized power in Peru Wednesday were considered essential to protect and promote broad Kennedy aims for all of Latin America.

At least one more U.S. action is in prospect—the suspension of sugar purchases from Peru at premium prices. Peru's annual quota of sugar sales to the United States at present is 190,000 tons with a value to Peru of about $19 million.

Kennedy reportedly was motivated by several considerations in his decision to put his personal prestige behind what amounts to U.S. political and economic intervention in a situation traditionally regarded by the American nations as internal.

For one thing, in launching the Alliance for Progress last year, Kennedy committed himself to the promotion of broad, long-range social, political, economic and governmental reforms in Latin America according to the needs and growth capacities of the different countries which were willing to cooperate.

Another consideration in administration policy making in the present circumstances is that a military seizure of power such as that at Lima may prove to be contagious. Kennedy obviously wants to discourage the spread of military dictatorship wherever possible.

Still a third point in the minds of the President and his advisers, officials said, is the fact that Communist agitators operating in many nations to the south are certain to seize upon the military action in Peru as an argument to restlessness civilian populations that their only choice lies between dictatorship at one extreme and communism at the other. Kennedy obviously intends that the United States shall do everything possible to invalidate that argument.

Stocks Missing, Are Presumed Stolen, From Brokerage House

NEW YORK (AP)—A block of stocks has been reported missing and presumed stolen from a second Wall Street brokerage house. The district attorney's office indicated it may have been an inside job but that a nationwide ring may be operating to dispose of the securities.

The latest loss of $122,828 in stocks—of which $52,612 worth has since been recovered—was confirmed Thursday by Carl M. Loeb, Rhoades & Co. The firm's offices are in the same Wall Street building as Bache & Co., which reported last week the loss of $1,370,475 in stocks.

Two men have been arrested here and in Denver—in connection with the Bache theft and $88,512 worth of securities has been recovered, authorities said.

Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said police were notified last Friday of the stock disappearance at Loeb, Rhoades, which reportedly discovered at least part of the loss during an inventory May 24. The time lapse was not explained.

The missing securities were insured, according to a firm spokesman. Recovered were 2,300 shares of General Dynamics worth $52,612. According to Hogan, this was the chain of events that touched off the official investigation.

About two weeks ago, a man calling himself Sam Harris, "a retired millionaire" from Miami Beach, Fla., went to W. Reich & Co., a broker, to sell the 2,300 shares of missing General Dynamics stock. He was asked to produce proof of ownership. He returned last week with what was purported to be such a document.

Reich sent the securities to its bank, Meadow Brook National, which in turn sent them to the Bankers Trust Co. agent for the transfer Bankers Trust, however, knew this stock had been reported missing.

Detectives accompanied Reich employees to the Statler Hilton Hotel, where "Sam Harris" had asked that his check for the stock be sent. But "Harris" failed to appear. He was being sought by police today.

Judge, Realtor Indicted On Perjury Charges

HOUSTON (AP)—Grand jurors indicted suspended Probate Court Judge Clem McClelland and Robert Duren, a real estate man, on perjury charges Thursday. The McClelland indictment cites conflicting testimony given June 14 during a court of inquiry about his court. Duren is accused of making false written statements in his final accounting of the Mary Hogan estate, filed for record June 1.

McClelland testified under oath he had not made a notation on a stock prospectus "when in fact he did write this notation and was knowingly making a false statement," the grand jury said.

The 28-page Duren indictment contains 37 separate accusations of false statements under oath. It accuses Duren, a m.o.n.g other things of listing payments from estates to persons who died before any such payments were made.

Revised Relief Bill Is Passed

WASHINGTON (AP)—An administration bill aimed at encouraging families on the relief rolls to make themselves self-sustaining finally has reached President Kennedy's desk.

The Senate sent it to the White House Thursday night by voice vote after brief debate. The House had approved the measure earlier in the day 357 to 34.

The final $300-million version gives the President most of what he wanted in the way of revised welfare laws.

House Passes Farm Bill, Although Barely Palatable

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House has passed a compromise farm bill that most members found barely palatable. Passage came late Thursday on a 229-163 roll call vote.

The measure continues, with some changes, the existing voluntary crop reduction programs for wheat and feed grains, and provides for new voluntary curbs for milk production. It replaces the more restrictive administration bill rejected by the House last month.

The bitter farm bill battle is far from over, however, as the Senate, which has already passed the administration measure, is now being asked to reverse itself and accept the House version. Senate leaders have given no indication they are willing to do so.

Nobody who spoke in Thursday's House debate on the bill could find a good word to say for it.

The chief argument used to win support was that the bill was better than none at all. Failure to pass it would mean reverting to the 1958 program of unlimited production and high price supports that built up the present huge surpluses, the House was told.

"I'm going to hold my nose and vote for it," said Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, summing up the general attitude of the members. Dissatisfaction with the bill was deepest among representatives of the big cities, who favored the more rigid controls of the administration bill.

Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif., offered an amendment to cut off price supports on all crops at the end of 1963.

"That will give you a year to write a decent farm bill," said Roosevelt to rousing cheers from his city colleagues.

"I don't think we should stand here and have the city fellows come in and try to run the farm program," countered Rep. Harold D. Cooley, D-N.C., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, as he rallied the rural representatives to defeat the amendment 107 to 74.

The leadership, bolstered by ranking Republicans on the Agriculture Committee, pleaded successfully against making any changes that might upset the delicate bipartisan agreement that carried the bill through.

Under the bill the acreage under both the corn and wheat programs that could be retired voluntarily in exchange for government payments would be increased from 40 per cent of the base acreage to 50 per cent.

Steels Do Well In Rising Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels did well in a moderately rising stock market late this afternoon. Trading was quiet.

Volume for the day was estimated at 24 million shares compared with 3.99 million Thursday. Gains of key stocks went from fractions to about a point.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Budget Bureau has approved plans for a $38.6 million flood control project on the Clear Fork of the Brazos River in the Abilene, Tex. area.

Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today confirmed President Kennedy's nomination of Mayor Anthony J. Celebrezze of Cleveland to be secretary of welfare.

Two Variances Turned Down

Unanimous votes of denial... two requests for variance from Big Spring zoning ordinances at a public hearing conducted Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. W. J. Barnes, 2306 Johnson had asked for a variance to build a carport to the property line in the side yard on the north side of her house. Members of the Zoning Board of Adjustment agreed there was a need to comply with the side yard requirements.

One letter had been received by John Davis acting chairman for the board, in which a person objected to granting a variance. Another letter from a neighbor stated the writer did not care whether it was granted or not. The objection had been denied a variance request.

B. R. Spier, 1111 Ridgeway, was denied permission to build a carport in variance with the ordinance. Board members pointed out that the carport could be built elsewhere on the property and comply with the ordinance.

No action was taken on a request by Mrs. A. N. Jackson, 2211 Johnson, to extend a non-conforming use by addition to a third living unit located in a one-family residential zone. The matter had been tabled at the June 21 meeting and board members tabled it again for more study.

Burglaries, Thefts Cost Residents Estimated $300

Five burglaries or thefts were reported Thursday involving losses up to $300.

The largest loss was reported by Tom Elnor, 1119 Lynn. He told police sporting equipment valued at $300 was taken from the bed of his truck while it was parked in his driveway between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 4 a.m. Thursday. The loss included golfing and fishing equipment.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Edwards, 1024 E. 3rd, reported the theft of clothing and jewelry valued at $40 from their residence. It was taken between 3-8 p.m. Thursday. The house was left unlocked at the time.

The Linder Service Station at 110 N. Gregg reported the loss of $250 in change taken Wednesday night. It was obtained from the cash register and from a locked storage box. The building was entered by prying off boards from the windows to the test room.

A stolen hood and motor were reported stolen from 3600 Eastwood. The house belonged to Classic Homes Co. It was taken some time between Sunday and Wednesday. Entry into the house was made by prying open a glass door at the rear of the residence.

Zona Harrison, 202 State, told police a pressure cooker was taken from her house some time between July 1-14.

Fire Damages Two Residences

Two houses were damaged extensively by fire Thursday. The occupants of the residences managed to escape injury.

The residence of Juan Hare, 415 NW 4th, owned by Richard Salsola, was damaged when a fire broke out shortly before noon. The cause was attributed to children playing with fuses. The kitchen received heavy damage and furniture in the entire house received smoke damage.

A cigarette was said to have started a blaze at 1011ares, the residence of Mrs. J. L. Hare, about 9:30 p.m. Thursday. The living room was damaged extensively, with its furniture a total loss. Smoke damaged the interior of the whole house.

Damage Suit Asks $45,000

The Torres and Trinidad Torres have filed a suit against Gibson Discount Center, Richard Gibson and Murray Watson for $45,000 damages as outgrowth of the arrest and prosecution of the woman on a charge of shoplifting.

Trinidad Torres was tried last week in Howard County court and a jury found her not guilty of shoplifting. She was accused of stealing some children's tee shirts from the store. The suit was filed in the state court.

She contended that she should be paid for the shirts. The prosecution charged she intended to steal the merchandise. In the petition filed in 118th District Court Friday, the Torres charge that Trinidad Torres was seized while she was in the store and taken to the city police. She asks $25,000 actual damages for the incident and $20,000 for the humiliation of being tried on a criminal charge.

Kiwanians Give Check For Tennis Court Fund

A check for $1,750—the contribution of the Big Spring Kiwanis Club to a fund to build four modern tennis courts at Howard County Junior College—was presented to Dr. W. A. Hunt, president of the college, at noon Thursday.

J. C. Pickle, president of the Kiwanis Club, made the presentation. The club members have named the club members the Rev. Ward Jackson, chairman of the Kiwanis Club committee on the tennis court project, there had been two additional gifts to the fund.

He said that checks for $25 had been received from Mrs. T. S. Currie and Miss Agnes Currie. He mentioned the club members the original plan was for the club to pay $2,500 toward the cost of the courts. Gifts of $100 each from Miss Arab Phillips and Miss Anna Smith and $500 from the Cap Rock Cooperative had brought the club contribution down to $1,800 and the two new gifts reduced it still further.

Dr. Hunt told the Kiwanians that the courts are now nearly completed and that the interest and donation made by the Kiwanis Club had led to the college being able not only to build the courts but to complete two other worthwhile and long awaited projects.

Your effort and donation," he said, "left us enough money to go ahead with the courts which we had long hoped to build and to plan for the paving of the street past the stadium and the street by the dorms."

He said the four courts will cost about $10,000. Without the help of the Kiwanians which enabled the college to build the courts with its own staff instead of contracting the job, the cost would have been about $16,000.

He said that the concrete for the courts was provided at wholesale prices by Clyde McMahon as an added gift to the college. The tennis courts project developed as an aftermath to a speech made by Miss Smith, dean of women to the Kiwanis Club last spring.

Miss Smith challenged the Kiwanis Club to sponsor a project to provide the college with tennis courts. She pointed out the lack of tennis facilities and the need for the courts.

On the heels of her speech Jackson and other Kiwanians began to look into the proposal. It soon was the club borrowed the money for its part of the cost and obtained the cooperation of the H.C.J.C. board. Work was started immediately on the project.

The courts are to be called the Big Spring Kiwanis Club Tennis Courts.

Donation To HCJC

J. C. Pickle, left, president of the Big Spring Kiwanis Club, hands Dr. W. A. Hunt, president of Howard County Junior College, a check for $1,750—the club's contribution to the construction of four tennis courts at the college.

Ira G. Rice Dies While Roping Calf

Ira G. Rice of Big Spring, a well-known rodeo figure in this area, died, apparently of a heart attack, in the second round of a calf roping event in the 26th Annual Scurry County Rodeo Thursday evening.

Mr. Rice, 54, was stricken as he was attempting to tie his second straight calf at the start of the second round in calf roping competition. He had tied his first calf—the last in the first chute—and was first from the chute in the second event. After roping the second one he jumped off his horse and fell to the ground.

Upon his arrival at the Coghill Memorial Hospital in Snyder, he was declared dead.

Mr. Rice was born June 15, 1908, in Big Spring and had resided here his entire life. He was married to Estelle E. Warren, Feb. 11, 1935, and had later been employed as a driller for the Duncan Drilling Co.

Witness Thinks Marshall Was Setting Trap For Estes

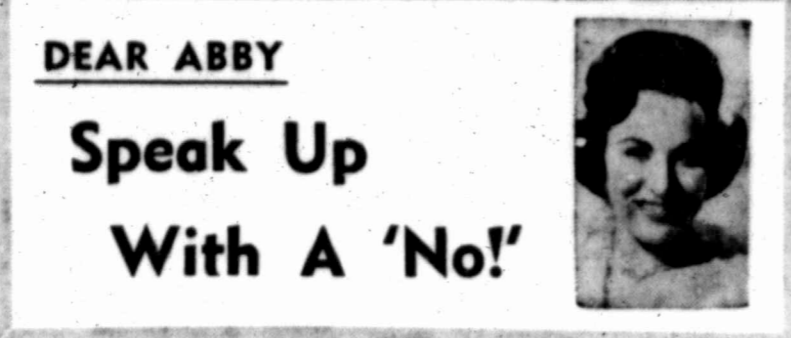

WASHINGTON, AP—An ousted farm aid official testified today that late Henry Marshall, either was trying to trap Billie Sol Estes and others in illegal cotton acreage allotment deals or had somebody putting pressure on him from above.

William P. Mattox, fired last month as vice chairman of the Reeves County Tex. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, made the statement in testimony before the Senate investigation subcommittee. He said he had no proof to back either theory.

Mattox acknowledged Thursday that Estes had paid his hotel and airplane travel bills for a week's trip to Washington. But he said Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman fired him in an attempt to shift the blame for wrongdoing which must rest on his shoulders.

Hunt Reports On Convention

The bonds of service have tied over 650,000 men together around the globe in concern for their fellow man. This was one of the impressions which Dr. W. A. Hunt brought back to the Downtown Lions Club from Nice, France...

Per Stahl of Sweden, the outgoing president reminded the thousands who packed Exposition Hall on the Riviera that service is still the chief justification for Lions Clubs. Dr. Hunt said he quoted Stahl as saying that three impressions resulted from his worldwide travels as head of the world's largest service organization...

One of the most impressive parts of the program, said Dr. Hunt, was the presentation of the 48 flags of nations. Today Lions International has 14,407 clubs, 720 more for the year in 117 countries and territories. J. H. Greene was given a standing ovation for his 40th anniversary as a member of Lions International. He was a charter member at Colorado City where on Aug. 16 party was held in honor of the event. President James Tidwell said he hoped a large delegation would go from here.

BEING GOOD

Being good is necessary to getting to heaven (Matt. 25:21, 23). Christ did not come to save us in our sins; but "from our sins." And sin will condemn the soul of man, whether or not the man has previously come to Christ.

Two Damage Suits Filed

Two damage suits were filed Thursday in 118th District Court. One is styled Howard Dupree et al. vs. the Texas & Pacific Railroad. The other is Laurent Potras vs. George Thomas. Both stem from traffic mishaps. Dupree's suit against the railroad alleges that Jan. 17, 1961 he and his wife, Lena, were in their car and attempted to cross the defendant's railroad east of Big Spring. The car, the plaintiff alleges, struck on the crossing. The Duprees were hard pressed to get it free and had just pushed it to the edge of the crossing the railroad asserts, when a train approached. The train, Dupree charges, did not slow or otherwise seek to avert the problem and as a result it caught the stalled car and dragged it along the side of the tracks. He claims his car was damaged $773.89 which he wants the railroad to pay him.

Jury Finds Liner Guilty

Weaver, defense attorney, immediately announced his intention to seek a new trial. He filed a formal motion which Judge Ed Carpenter said he would hear and rule on within 10 days. Meantime, Liner was released under his old bond.

A Devotional For The Day

Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name.
(Matthew 6:9. ASV.)
PRAYER: O Father, forgive us for ignoring Thee in the common affairs of life. As we submit ourselves to Thy guidance, replace our carelessness with a sense of Thine eternal presence, that we may be witnesses to Thee even unto the uttermost parts of the earth. In our Master's name. Amen.

(From The 'Upper Room')

Breath-Taking Advances

Scientific achievements have a way of happening with such rapidity that none of us has time to be properly impressed, let alone to properly appreciate their significance.

Consider what has taken place within the past week.

The Telesar has been put successfully into orbit as a cooperative private business government accomplishment. Immediately, because it outstripped in performance even its rosiest expectations, Telesar was used in intercontinental television broadcast.

Next, Maj. Bob White piloted the X-15 into space, zooming upwards for 58 miles or 310,000 feet to become the first man to fly into space in a winged aircraft.

U. S. troops in maneuvers involving use of troops, lobbed nuclear missiles.

And now the United States has announced that the Nike Zeus anti-missile, fired from Kwajalein Island successfully intercepted an Atlas missile fired from California 4,500 miles away. Consider that a missile like the Atlas normally soars several hundred miles into space at 16,000 m.p.h. or better and you get an idea of how demanding are specifications upon an effective anti-missile. That there could be an interception staggers the imagination. Yet it has been done, and we have done it.

Russia claims to have an anti-missile, perhaps so. At worst, we are not at a disadvantage here. In the overall race of technology and space, we are scoring on a broad front consistently and heavily.

Holding Tight Rein

Texas faces another 8-day oil production pattern.

After hearing nominations, the Texas Railroad Commission held to the 2,722,035 barrels per day allowable which accrued from the 8-day July pattern.

This is the seventh straight month that production has been limited to eight days. This significant that only one purchaser wanted to increase the figure to nine days. One also wanted to cut it to seven days.

With a record such as this, it would seem that we are stabilizing on this low level. With a record of overproduction in refined products, this seems logical. In fact, the industry likely would be better off if processors exercised the same degree of prudence in their runs as the Texas Railroad Commission has exercised in its allowances.

Curbing production is better than chaos. One of the chief concerns is to make certain that Texas does not have to carry a disproportionate share of the load, both as concerns domestic and foreign supplies.

Marquis Childs What Kind Of A Tax Cut And When?

WASHINGTON—In quantity if not in quality the dialogue between government and the business community the President called for is going on apace. As it increases in volume, the talk follows the lines of long familiar fixed positions, with little new added to the debate.

The economists, whether speaking from the perspective of business or from the viewpoint of government, know what they want. The formula of an immediate tax cut takes various forms. It is advanced with wide support from business and labor.

in the federal budget. A stimulus to business must take precedence.

AT THE SAME time, however, he talks about the tax policy of Andrew W. Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury in the Coolidge era. Mellon in 1924 asked for a 25 per cent reduction in the personal income tax to overcome a Treasury surplus which was, according to Mellon, having a regressive effect on the economy. A Republican Congress was happy to comply.

Another substantial reduction occurred in 1908, and a smaller one, together with a downward revision of corporate tax rates, to 12 1/2 per cent, followed in 28 as the boom reared on. One year later the Great Depression began with the collapse of the stock market.

WHILE THE ECONOMISTS know a lot about economics, they know little about politics. Any one of several prescriptions they put forward might give the necessary boost to a sluggish economy. But the President must take his final judgment on both the economic and political realities as they appear to him in a complex and difficult situation.

Seldom in the long history of the wars fought between the two ends of Pennsylvania Avenue has a President faced such a divided and recalcitrant Congress. Not only are there sharp divisions between the two parties, but the Democrats, as in the instance of the quarrel over jurisdiction of the money bills and who shall do what and where are warring among themselves. Not surprisingly then, the speaker that haunts the White House takes the following form:

SEN. PAUL DOUGLAS of Illinois, who probably knows more about economics than anyone in Capitol Hill, is presently opposed to a cut. He argues that the country is not now in a recession and that if the ammunition of a cut is used up at this point, there would be nothing left to fight a slump should it develop in the next four to six weeks.

But if the figures for July and early August indicate the need for tax reduction, Douglas wants the cut concentrated on the lower income brackets. He holds that there is a deficiency in consumption and that business needs little incentive in terms of lower tax rates to increase plant capacity.

ASSUMING that the production and employment figures for July when they are analyzed early next month show a worsening of the economic picture, the President sends to Congress a recommendation for an immediate reduction in both personal and corporate income tax rates. In making his case for such cuts, he must say that the danger of a recession is real.

What follows is a pronounced hassle. Sen. Harry F. Byrd, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, would resist to the bitter end of the closing days of Congress any such cut. So also might Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee.

THIS IS THE VIEW of the AFL-CIO and Americans for Democratic Action. It is diametrically opposed to the claim of industry. Several of the business leaders whom the President invited to lunch last week argued that reductions in federal spending should accompany any reduction in taxes. In an election year, the argument over what is the right cut and when it should be applied might well end in stalemate.

One rather notable change has taken place in the debate on the economy. Following Black Monday on the stock market, something like a panic psychology began to develop. Reason has been injected and conspicuously in the sensible and on the whole, hopeful analysis of Per Jacobson, whose knowledge of economics is worldwide, believes the economy is still strong.

BUT THE DIVISION over the kind of tax cut would be equally sharp. Harassed and frustrated with an election day just ahead, the Congress adjourns without acting on the President's recommendation. Having pressed the alarm signal, he is left without any means to fight the rising tide of recession.

Consider the differences over the form a tax cut should take. H. Ladd Plumley, the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, speaks with evident sincerity of the need for a cut, even though this should mean a greater deficit.

THE PRESIDENT must not be asked to do the impossible. He can act only in accord with the political as well as the economic facts of life.

James Marlow Now, Excuses For The Old Folks

WASHINGTON AP—Medical care for the aged will be a political punching bag for Democrats and Republicans in this year's elections although both parties, in their 1960 platforms, pledged a program.

Now the old folks—who wind up without a program—must listen to the excuses. The fact is that Republicans' blocked passage of President Kennedy's program and so did his own Democrats.

The Democrats in both houses outnumber Republicans so overwhelmingly that if they had stuck together, they could have rammed Kennedy's program through with ease. They didn't.

NEVERTHELESS, Kennedy—who can hardly claim his Democrats made an all-out try—called the failure a "most serious defeat for every American family."

In the Senate, the only place where the issue came to an open vote, it was the Republicans who stuck almost solidly together to defeat the measure, but only with the help of Democrats who joined them.

As a forerunner of what the old folks can expect from the Republicans' explanation in this year's elections, William F. Miller, Republican national chairman, called the administration program a "cruel hoax" anyway.

ALL OF WHICH adds some heat to the dispute but not much light for the old folks who are around to watch the political footwork in Washington.

The Kennedy program was supposed to get its first test in the House. But, before it could get up to the full House for a vote, it had to be approved by the Ways and Means Committee where Democrats' outnumber Republicans 15 to 10.

Hal Boyle Research, Anyone?

TOWNSEND, Tenn. AP—1 guess hundreds of people have been here to get their warts taken off," said the old lady of the hills, folding her gnarled hands in placid pride.

Della Effler, 69, and her husband, Barefoot Jerry, 71, operate a small grocery store here at the edge of the Great Smoky Mountains.

They charge for the groceries, but Della, one of the hand-picked human storehouses of old-time mountain medicine, dispenses freely her cures for what ails you.

Her reputation is based on her ability to get rid of warts and there are those who "swear" here in these eternal hills who swear that nobody this side of kingdom come can eradicate warts better.

It's not me that takes them off," said Mrs. Effler. "It's the good Lord that does it."

"Nobody taught me how to get rid of warts. It just come into my mind."

Her recipe is her own secret. But she is profoundly certain the warts will come back if the patient tries to pay her, thank her, or accuses the form of treatment.

Physicians might question the efficacy of some of Aunt Della's and Barefoot Jerry's home remedies, but they couldn't well quarrel with the Effler family health record.

The Efflers have been married 32 years. They raised eight of their nine children. And they have 39 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

To Your Good Health Fats Are Fats In Gall Bladder Cases

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: I had my gall bladder removed a few years ago and was told not to eat any fats or fried foods.

However, I would like to know if the new polyunsaturated fats would have the same detrimental effects.—M. C.

Removal of the gall bladder takes away a reservoir in which we store an extra supply of bile. A digestive juice from the liver. With the gall bladder absent, we still get bile from the liver but we can't save a reserve supply for use in some special moment of need.

Bile is especially necessary for digesting fats. Some of us, because of individual variations or differences in taste and habitual diet, eat normally whether the gall bladder is still with us or has been removed.

NOTE TO T. R.: No, I don't see any physical harm in taking one sleeping pill per night if you need it. But I most sincerely urge an effort on your part to learn to control or combat the nerves, because sometimes people begin telling themselves that on special occasions they "ought" to have an extra pill. Two pills lead to three, and so on. One sleeping pill is certainly better than two, physically, than tossing and fretting sleeplessly. But it's still better to learn to sleep without the pill.

Others, after gall bladder removal, may find it more comfortable to eat less fat and to avoid fried foods. That's about the whole story.

Now what about "animal fats" and "polyunsaturated fats"? Both are fats. Bile aids the digestion of either type. There may be some statistical difference as to which type of fat needs more bile, but if so it has not been called to my attention.

Rather, the scientific suspicion is that animal fats in excess quantities may be detrimental over a period of some years, to the arteries. Certainly in our prosperous part of the world we have gradually become used to diets rather high in animal fats, which are the expensive ones.

NOTE TO T. R.: No, I don't see any physical harm in taking one sleeping pill per night if you need it. But I most sincerely urge an effort on your part to learn to control or combat the nerves, because sometimes people begin telling themselves that on special occasions they "ought" to have an extra pill. Around The Rim A Theory Of Ants And Instinct

I suppose some naturalist somewhere already has beat me to this one, and I haven't had time to look it up.

In any event, celebrating the Fourth of July provided me with a rare observation of insect behavior—and provided me with grounds for a theory.

My neighbors and I drove out into the country for the big day, shooting off all the costly newfangled items first to thrill the kids, and then set about inventing ways to elaborate on the popping of firecrackers. We blew up the usual assortment of bottles, knocked stones and tin cans into the air, and used cardboard tubes and pebbles as cannon.

I intend to correct as soon as I can find some more firecrackers. (Odd, isn't it, how the fireworks just flat disappear between holidays?)

My theory, which I thought of a few hours later, after all the fireworks stands had closed, was this:

The ants were obeying an ancient instinct which may not have been used for millions of years—and yet is still intact and needs only the proper trigger.

THE QUESTION IS—just what in the ants' past environment would cause them to pack up everything and move clear out of the country? Well, millions of years ago about the only fireworks were provided by volcanic eruptions. These disturbances would send shock waves through the ground, some heat (depending on the distance) would be generated, and there would be plenty of sulphur fumes in the atmosphere.

A firecracker (or, more exactly, gunpowder) creates a shock wave and sulphur fumes—apparently, under the right circumstances, enough to trigger the age-old instincts of the ants.

UNDER THE LAWS of natural selection, one might expect that any highly instinctive creature would learn to flee volcanic eruptions.

As soon as I get the necessary ammunition, I'm going to find out if I can make the ants completely leave their nest and, if so, just how far away they will travel. —BOB SMITH

CAMP COBRA, Pak Chong, Thailand—How Master Sgt. North East Woodall of Jackson, Miss., got to be a high priest of the Eboe Cult is a story that takes some telling.

Sgt. Woodall is an old hand with the Wolfhound (U.S. 27th Infantry) Battle Group. He's a Negro and top-kick in Echo Company of the Wolfhounds.

it was, so to speak, a hothouse variety.

At the end of the main and only street in Ban Kara Eboe is the temple of the Eboe Cult, and presiding over it is a tall, white-robed, dignified man who carries himself with the bearing appropriate to a man of the cloth.

THERE'S ALSO a village headman and a tiny outdoor fruit stand where a genuine Thai haggle enthusiastically with customers. There are old men, women and children. Every effort has been made to make Ban Kara Eboe authentic.

The village is used for training problems. A platoon leader, perhaps a second lieutenant, is told simply to take his men into the village, usually by helicopter, and to secure it against Communist guerrilla aggression—without use of force except as a last-ditch measure to save his men and himself if the villagers or guerrillas attack. In a typical training program, the American officer will land perhaps a half mile from the village, set up roadblocks and a perimeter defense and then go into the village with only a medic, a rifleman or two and an interpreter.

THE KENNEDY program was supposed to get its first test in the House. But, before it could get up to the full House for a vote, it had to be approved by the Ways and Means Committee where Democrats' outnumber Republicans 15 to 10.

ALAS, HOWEVER, the leader of our forces is never cut in on the script.

In one "action," I watched the Eboe priest insist that the platoon leader remove his boots before entering the temple. A villager promptly stole the boots. The priest's personal pig broke loose and went careening down the main street—and then hidden guerrillas opened fire. It was lively and exciting for a few minutes, and short of the real thing, it is hard to imagine better training for American troops who may have to fight a sure-thing guerrilla war sooner than any of us think.

David Lawrence Government Spending Not The Answer

WASHINGTON—Everybody irrespective of party or faction, wants America to enjoy an era of prosperity, but if unbridled counsel prevails at the White House and in Congress, the United States may experience in the next few years its deepest depression of this century.

A dangerous doctrine has lately been warmed up from New Deal days and has been given respectability by advisers to President Kennedy. It is that "spending" by the federal government, even if it produces deficits will somehow, by some magic of its own, produce an economic utopia.

What this experience tells us is that if the environment is not favorable to an increase in private spending, an increase in federal spending even a large increase, is a well-justified futility exercise.

"IN THE FIRST four months of this calendar year, the cash budget of the United States ran a deficit of close to $10 billion, on a seasonally adjusted annual-rate basis. In the comparable four months of the 1958-59 recovery, the federal cash budget showed a surplus of $4.6 billion on an annual-rate basis.

"Yet the unemployment rate has actually been somewhat higher under the recent deficit than it was under the earlier surplus. There were clouds on the economic horizon in those months of surplus in 1958, but it must be conceded that the economic sky in 1962, under very large deficits, is far from entirely clear."

THE IDEA that mere spending of money produces prosperity is fallacious. It is the way the money is spent which counts—especially whether the funds are used in private investment for productive purposes that last beyond just a short-term period.

The key is not how much is spent, but what the money is spent for. Defense money expended on weapons doesn't develop a high volume of transactions that percolate through the whole economy. Private spending, on the other hand, is usually for goods that have a long-term value and that multiply the number of transactions in the business world.

DR. SAULNIER said pointedly that to those "who regard budgetary deficits as a more or less guaranteed formula for producing a brisk recovery, the present cycle must be a veritable nightmare." He argued bluntly that "reductions will not by themselves furnish a remedy. He added:

"If there is a need to cut taxes in the expansion phase of a cycle, when we already have a large deficit, then there is equally a need to consider whether we are now spending too much money on programs that make no contribution whatsoever to our capacity for growth and to consider whether we are doing other things, entirely outside of the tax field, that are tending to suppress private investment spending.

A DEVASTATING rebuff of the "spending" theory was made recently by Dr. Raymond J. Saulnier. He was chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers from 1957 through 1960, but his advice wasn't always followed. In a speech on June 19 before the Babson Institute of Business Administration, he said in part:

"What recent history tells us about the effect of increases in federal spending is not very favorable to the view that an

Followed That Dream

Dorothy Provine says she can't remember when she didn't want to be an actress and she was willing to work and be patient. She is currently shooting Warner Bros. "Perils of Pauline" TV series which will debut in the future.

Dream Came True For Young Blonde Actress

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — "Pinkie was good to me, and I hated to see her go," Dorothy Provine said, referring to her role in the late "Roaring 20s" TV series "I was fascinated by the 20s, and I think it's interesting to note that the clothes we are wearing today were inspired by that period."

"I've often thought of cutting my hair," Dorothy continued. "I've been tempted many times, but I can wear it more ways when it's long. I wash it myself at home in the tub and rinse it in the shower. It's naturally blonde and I brush it a lot to keep it shiny. I have found that it's economical to buy expensive brushes. If you take care of them, they last a long time and the bristles stay stiff."

We were lunching in the Green Room at Warner Bros. and a young starlet came in with a deep, even tan.

"When I was in school, it was a great disappointment that I could never get a tan. Some of my family could, but I burned myself to a lobster red many times before I was convinced that it was hopeless. Now I am wiser and I know there is no use being unhappy about what we can't change. I know happiness is a point of view. It has less to do with things than most people think. I know rich people who are miserable and happy people who are poor. You have to learn to face problems, not run away from them. Ask yourself what the situation is, what you can do about it and figure out how well you can handle it."

"I was from a happy home, but my big problem was one of insecurity. It was something I created and something I had to deal with. I can never remember when I didn't want to be an actress. I had a big dream and was willing to work hard and be patient. I never dreamed that when I came to Hollywood things would break so easily for me. People tell me

Newcomers Are Bait For Neighborhood Borrowers

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer There's nothing that old-timers in a neighborhood enjoy more than the arrival of a new neighbor—and the prospect of raiding his brand new tool chest.

Mr. New Man is usually too timid to borrow from old established tool bins because he wants to make a good impression. He is likely to move into his new garage such neighbor-bait as a new power lawn mower, shiny extension ladder, electric drills and saws, garden tiler, tools that make an old homeowner's mouth water.

Neighbors may line up like cord wood to borrow from him, and not be too prompt about returning the equipment.

It's fine to be a good Joe, but power tools are likely to wear out in a few years with normal usage, and replacements will be needed. Why work them overtime?

Start off on the right foot with a plan, informing borrowers that your wife also uses the equipment and you'd like to keep it available and in top-notch shape for her. Post your plan on the wall of storage shed, garage or basement that harbors the tools.

brand your equipment. An identifying color such as shocking pink, vivid orange, bright yellow, is ideal. Paint the handles of all tools and yard equipment in the color you choose. Misaid tools and equipment are easier to spot that way too, and the color will serve as a constant reminder to the borrower that he is using your tools.

A card on your storage wall could be available for borrowers to sign out, with the date. Lenders frequently forget to whom the borrowed object has been loaned, just as borrowers forget from whom they have borrowed.

KEEP IT LIGHT Be facetious with your list and you won't hurt anyone's pride.

Suggest that ladders be returned before 6 o'clock to avoid accidents in the dark.

You'd like your lawn mower to be cleaned before it is returned, and you'd like it refueled so it will be available when you are ready to use it.

Tools borrowed on weekends should be returned the same day.

Men with limited time do most of their yard work on weekends. Remind your neighbors that a hammer is a man's best friend in a new house. Suggest that you'll need a couple of months to get used to it.

A time bank on tools is a wonderful neighborhood idea if you can swing it. Trade hours even- Steven, with everyone keeping track of what he has loaned or borrowed.

One neighborhood plan that is wise to avoid is pool tools. Three or four men who buy an expensive tool like a chain saw could find part ownership doesn't work. There are arguments about priorities of use and upkeep, and when one person moves away, he must dig up another co-owner or the remaining owners must pony up the share and buy him out. This out-of-pocket emergency often occurs at a most inconvenient time.

Barnum Leads Field With New Record

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. (AP)—John Barnum is 50 years old, grey-haired and slightly paunchy. He plays in senior golf tournaments and occasionally when his club near Grand Rapids, Mich., is closed in PGA winter tour events.

He looks like the affable guy you'd like to have as pro at your own club. He is leading the 44th Professional Golfers' Association championship by two shots after a first round 66 and nobody is giving him a tumble. As far as the public is concerned, it's still a duel between Arnie Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

WEEKEND MEET

Broad Jump Rivalry Renewed

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—America's Ralph Boston and Russia's Igor Ter-Ovanesyan renew an old rivalry in the broad jump Saturday as the Yanks and Soviets open their two-day track meet at Stanford, threatening world records.

Ter-Ovanesyan's pending world record of 27 feet 3 inches will erase Boston's 27-1/4, yet the Russian never has outjumped the American in four head-to-head meetings.

Colts Hang On To Record; Beaten Again

HOUSTON, AP—The Houston Colts maintained their perfect record against the Philadelphia Phillies Thursday night. The Colts still haven't won a game.

The Phillies broke up a 2-2 tie by scoring three times in the top of the eighth at the expense of Houston starter Hal Woodeshick, who was finally pulled.

Farquhar-Blancas Lead Tourney

AMARILLO, AP—John Farquhar of Amarillo and Homero Blancas of Houston led the Amarillo Invitational Partnership Golf Tournament Saturday with a tie for 139.

Farquhar, seeking his fourth straight championship with a new partner, shot a 76. Blancas did 69, the low round of the day.

10-6 THURSDAY

Yanks Had Typical Series Beating Boston 3 Times

By The Associated Press. It was a typical Yankee series. First they beat you with seven runs, then Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris beat you. Then you recover, score, and the boys at the bottom of the batting order beat you in another game.

That's how the New York Yankees won a three-game set from Boston, extending their winning streak to seven and finishing a 12-game road trip with 10-2 mark.

71s on their first round. That wasn't bad scoring by any reckoning. There were eleven players who did better, all of them good sound golfers who might stay in there and win. But the law of averages says that most of them will blow a shot or two between today's second round and Sunday's final. Palmer and Nicklaus are the kind of players who seldom blow one.

SECOND PLACE

In second place, with a 68, was another grey-haired gaffer from Michigan, Chuck Garbert, who won the PGA title in match play in 1954 and who has played in only two tournaments so far this year.

Webb And Forsan All-Stars Advance In Tournament

Pirates Using Old Formula

By The Associated Press. It is beginning to look like 1960 all over again for the aroused Pittsburgh Pirates. By winning 22 of their last 27 games, the Pirates have pulled within 2 1/2 games of the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

Three passed balls by catcher Dick Bertell in the same inning gave the Cards their tie-breaking run in the seventh against the Cubs. Fred Whitfield struck out for what should have been the final out, but reached base safely on the first passed ball as Bertell was having his trouble handling Barney Schultz' knuckler. Whitfield, attempting to steal, went all the way to third on the second passed ball and scored on the third.

GAIN GROUND

The double victory enabled the Pirates to gain ground on both the Dodgers and the second-place Giants. When the Dodgers lost to Cincinnati 4-3, their lead shrunk to one game over San Francisco, a 7-3 winner over Milwaukee.

Charley's Cops Marathon Tilt

Charley's Package Store rode the strag right arm of Cotton Mize to victory in 11 innings over Odessa Barber College in the Odessa Softball Tourney Thursday night.

FROM BEHIND

Pittsburgh came from behind twice to tie it up before Skinner settled matters with his home run into the left field stands leading off the 10th Face, who took over in the ninth, won his second in the ninth but relief man Ron Peranoski couldn't hold it. Manager Walter Alston called for Peranoski after starter Johnny Podres walked the leadoff man in the ninth. Don Blasingame's sacrifice and a single by Don Zimmer tied the score. Eddie Kaskas' triple with two out won it for Bill Henry.

Aid Money Well Spent, Hunt Says

Money provided by the Marshall Plan for the rehabilitation of war-torn Europe was well spent, in the opinion of Dr. W. A. Hunt, recently returned from a tour of 10 European countries.

Speaking at the Thursday meeting of the Spring Kiwanis Club, the president of Howard County Junior College said that in general he found the Europeans are grateful for the aid this country has afforded them in recovering from the ravages of war.

Europeans, with the exception of the Germans, live in the past, he said.

After a while, he said, "one gets the impression that anything as late as the 1700s is right up to the minute."

Germany on the other hand, is pushing into the future. They are doing a marvelous job of rebuilding their nation and its economy, and he recalled one German told him that Germany could lend the United States money now.

"I believe it," said Hunt. One of the problems which should be solved, the speaker said, is the elimination of "ugly Americans" from the ranks of those people from this nation who visit abroad.

Most of the group we were with, Hunt said, were fine. But we had our sprinkling of the other kind—the ugly Americans just as they are pictured in the book. These do our nation and its relations with our European neighbors irreparable damage.

Congress Not Excited Over Deficit Report

WASHINGTON, AP—Congress appeared pleased today but hardly excited at word that the government wound up its 1962 bookkeeping year with a budget deficit $700 million less than estimated in January. The final red ink figure was $6.3 billion.

None of the House members who commented on the development, though, the "moderately pleasant" fiscal news would have much influence on any decision for an income tax cut now or later.

Some thought, however, that even a modest reduction in the deficit would mean the necessary rise in personal income tax rates.

Announcing the fiscal 1962 deficit, the Treasury said Thursday both income and spending were overestimated in January, when a $7 billion deficit was projected. Spending on defense, space, foreign and national security programs was down $248 million and other government agencies spent $1.1 billion less than anticipated.

But corporate income and other business-linked revenues were down also more than offsetting a rise in personal income tax yield. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana House Republican leader expressed the reaction of many colleagues when he shrugged off the improvement in the deficit figure as too small to make any difference in anyone's plans.

Some high priced Democrats privately agreed one who would not be quoted, said the difference within the margin of error with which all Treasury projections should be treated. But he added, "Anyway, I'm glad it wasn't all in the other direction."

Chairman Wright, Fatman, D. Tex., of the joint Senate-House Economic Committee said the improved fiscal picture was bound to do some good but a 10 per cent reduction is not too meaningful.

But Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Missouri, a Republican who frequently criticized President Kennedy's fiscal policies, hailed the budget news as a good indication that should help the stock market and the country's international payments position.

Curtis, a member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, as well as of the joint Economic Committee, said this should help the market for government bonds and therefore the balance of payments.

The deficit is the largest in peacetime except for tax years 1956 when the government had $12.4 billion in the red and 1957 when a $9.4 billion deficit reflected the peak spending of the Korean fighting.

The fiscal 1962 budget was the first with a deficit in the 16 years stretching back to fiscal 1947, when the tide of World War II spending ebbed.

Final figures for the fiscal year which ended June 30 were in the Treasury Department's monthly statement it showed.

Receipts: $81,360,967,259
Expenditures: $87,667,969,122
Deficit: $6,306,901,863

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent the fiscal 1962 budget to Congress before he left office.

Girl Falls From Plane

Mrs. Frances Frotten of East Brewster, Mass., gently consoles her daughter, Lois Ann, 20, at the Cape Cod Hospital. The young woman suffered only minor injuries in a half a mile fall from a plane into a lake when her parachute failed to open.

Young Bandit Never Knew Best Friend She Ever Had

BURBANK, Calif., AP—Maureen Claire McLaughlin never met the last friend she had in the world.

She was a detective. The first time Lt. Ernest Vandegrift saw her was the night of May 29. She was lying dead in a street near a liquor store.

The liquor store owner, Arthur Nelson, said she had tried to rob him and a customer at gunpoint. Vandegrift whipped out his own pistol and shot her twice in the chest.

He wrote sundays were in the door, she had run out of them in her terrified flight. Next to her was a white purse. There was no identification in it.

Who was she? She was very blonde, very young and very pretty. Usually, with dead criminals identification is easy.

But this girl had no police records. The FBI had no record of her fingerprints. Thanks to Coroner's aides suggested burying her as Jane Doe.

No, said Vandegrift. She should have her right name back before anyone buries her. It's only right.

Through stipsters, Vandegrift learned she had frequented bars on Hollywood's summer side. Few of her male acquaintances would talk. Six of them, through Vandegrift's efforts, now face possible prison terms.

Then last week the mother of a young man the girl had dated remembered that she had said she had bought an insurance policy before leaving Cincinnati, Ohio. And the mother remembered her using the name McLaughlin.

After 45 days, Vandegrift closed his case. The girl he announced was Maureen Claire McLaughlin, daughter of Harry McLaughlin, a professor at the University of Cincinnati. Thanks to insurance company records, the identification was positive.

Tuesday, under her right name, they buried Maureen at Valhalla Memorial Park—ironically enough, two blocks from where she was killed.

Her father reported in ill health, didn't attend. There were no mourners. Maureen would have been 19 Thursday.

University Fund Not Hurt By Stock Fall

AUSTIN, AP—Investors of the University of Texas permanent fund say they are not concerned over a multi-million dollar drop in the market value of the fund's common stocks.

On June 22, in the midst of the stock market's recent fluctuations, a special report to university regents showed the market value of the fund's stocks $3,106,619 above original cost.

On Aug. 31, 1961, the regents heard a report that the fund's common stock portfolio had a paper profit of $26,032,140—a 46.1 per cent increase in 1961 market value over original cost.

These are just statistics as far as we are concerned, said Dr. James Dolley, vice chancellor for fiscal affairs. We don't expect to realize either a paper profit or a paper loss on these stocks. We think they are all good issues.

We don't intend to sell them no matter what the market price is. We are really interested in the long-range yield.

LONG-RANGE YIELD The university figures show that the long-range yield based on original cost of the stocks held June 22 is 3.8 per cent, the same yield percentage as it was a year ago when the total market value was much higher.

Before the purchase of common stock was authorized in 1956, the permanent university fund could obtain a long-range yield of only 2.78 per cent from government securities.

What is the University of Texas permanent fund and how come it is holding in the stock market? The 1875 state constitution called for the establishment of "a university of the first class, that included an agricultural and mechanical department. First, one million acres of public domain, mostly in West Texas, was set aside, and then a second million.

Discovery of oil under the land in the 1890s greatly increased the value and income.

The permanent university fund now totals more than $380 million. Only the income from the permanent fund may be spent—two-thirds by the University of Texas and one-third by Texas A&M.

CHANGE MADE Originally the fund could be invested only in government securities. In 1956 voters authorized an amendment to the constitution allowing the university regents to invest no more than 30 per cent in corporate stocks and bonds.

Not more than 1 per cent could be invested in any one corporation nor could the fund own more than 5 per cent of the voting stock of any corporation. The investments are to be recognized United States stocks that have paid dividends for at least the past 10 years.

In general, we are very pleased with our common stock purchasing program, Dolley said. It has not done as much as we had hoped but the return is greater than it was from government securities alone. We had hoped to earn at least 4.25 per cent on corporate stocks and bonds. It stands at about 4.17 now.

Even then, the market value of our stocks showed a 4.6 per cent paper profit over cost, he said. The market values have moved back up to a great extent since then.

A breakdown of stock purchases by industry groups as classified by the university fiscal department showed three groups of industrial stocks with lower market values on June 22 than the cost: A group containing stocks of building materials, electronics of free equipment, petroleum products and rubber firms had a market value of $14.3 million while the cost had been $15.3 million.

Astronaut's Reward

Maj. Robert M. White is kissed by his wife after she pinned the wings of an Air Force Astronaut on his tunic at a Pentagon ceremony in Washington, Maj. White, first to qualify for Astronaut status in a winged aircraft, rocketed to a height of 58.7 miles in the X15 over Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., on July 17. To earn the pilot-Astronaut wings, Air Force pilots must fly powered space vehicles above a height of 50 miles.

Supporters Hail Nike-Zeus, But Defense Dept. Is Calm

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional supporters of the Army's Nike Zeus antimissile today hailed its first successful test as a major weapons breakthrough. But the Defense Department maintained a let's wait and see attitude.

The Pentagon announced Thursday that a 48-foot Nike Zeus missile killer fired from Kwajalein in the mid-Pacific had intercepted a target vehicle lobbed more than 4,500 miles from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California.

The target vehicle launched by an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile had flown in high trajectory at speeds up to 16,000 miles an hour.

Sources indicated the Nike Zeus did not actually strike its warhead target, but came close enough to have destroyed it if armed. Neither the Nike Zeus nor the test warhead carried a nuclear charge.

MAJOR EVENT
Thursday's success was the major development to date in a seven-year program that has cost about $1.2 billion and could cost as much as $15 billion if the Nike Zeus ever is put into production.

However, there was nothing to indicate that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had changed his position of long standing: Until a complete series of tests has been conducted there should be no start of production on hardware for the antimissile system.

Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the House Space Committee, said of Thursday's success: "This represents the greatest breakthrough in our defense system. The country that can come first with an antimissile weapon is in the driver's seat."

And Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., advocate of the Zeus and a reserve major general of the Army, said he hoped the test would "open the eyes" of military leaders he described as lukewarm toward the program.

ANSWER FOR NIKI
The successful test provided must relay signals back from a record distance. The present space relay record is 22.5 million miles set by America's Pioneer V.

Russia launched the only previous Zeus probe but lost radio contact with it a few million miles from Earth. Tracking data showed it came within 62,000 miles of Venus, but it produced no information.

A complicated system of earth and sun sensors, gas jets, gyroscopes and radio command signals from the ground are to guide Mariner I to its intended December rendezvous.

Mariner's course is a tricky one. To achieve success thousands of complex parts must work in unison, and the radio transmitters something tangible that the United States could use in answer to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's recent claim that Russia had global range missiles and antimissiles that could hit a fly in the sky. The U.S. government took care to see that the report of the Nike Zeus success had the widest attention at home and overseas.

But the fact remained that this was only one test, with others more severe to come.

Moreover, it developed that there was a previous test which, in the words of a Defense Department spokesman, "was not a complete success." The spokesman declined to say what went wrong in that test. But unofficial reports were that failure in the second stage of the Zeus rocket engine was responsible.

RESERVED
McNamara's official statement that accompanied the department's announcement was reserved. He said the test showed that the program is intended to present the "capabilities and limitations of antimissile systems."

Then he turned to the topic of ICBM development, saying that the United States is carrying on a program "to insure that our missiles will penetrate antimissile systems which might be encountered" and that there is confidence our missiles can get through any antimissile systems developed by anyone.

McNamara had gone on record about the Zeus tests last January during testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

He said then, "I think we can almost guarantee the success of this year because it is such a simple test. Possibly we will have mechanical failures because the equipment is still in the design stage, but those are types of failures we can correct rather quickly."

TOP PRIORITY
"Because of the serious questions as to the practicality of the Nike Zeus system, we are not recommending funds for its procurement and deployment at this time, but we are requesting the maximum amount of funds which can be effectively used in 1963 in the research and development program to continue development and testing on a top priority basis."

Behind McNamara's reference to these being simple tests appeared to lie several points:

1. At least the first part of the test series involves only the trials of one Zeus missile against one target. The Atlas missiles fired by the Air Force in these opening tests of the series do not have the decoys that would be released along with an actual warhead under combat conditions.

2. The ability to discriminate by radar, between the real warhead and the false decoy targets is vital to an antimissile system.

3. The confidence that McNamara expresses in the capability of U.S. ICBM to penetrate enemy antimissile defenses is based, to considerable degree, on the decoy devices.

4. Neither the Zeus nor the Atlas used in Thursday's test carried a nuclear warhead. In the case of missiles, "interception" does not necessarily mean physical contact between the defensive and offensive missile. Detonation, with accompanying neutron radiation, in the proximity of the enemy warhead is designed as the knockout punch.

Venus Beckons As U.S. Readies Probe For Saturday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The pretty planet Venus beckons and the United States is ready to launch a Mariner I spacecraft in her direction to probe mysteries that have puzzled astronomers and scientists for centuries.

Before dawn Saturday, this nation's most powerful operational space booster, an Atlas-Agena B, is scheduled to blaze skyward to start a 446-pound gold and silver plated space messenger on a 140-day trip to the cloud-shrouded planet.

If all goes right, Mariner I will sweep within 10,000 miles of Venus' sunlit side on Dec. 8. In a brief 30-minute pass sensitive instruments will reach their electronic fingers into the planet's heavy cloud mantle and relay what they find to Earth in a series of blips and beeps.

Scientists will be able to translate these radio signals into concrete information about some of the secrets masked by Venus' cloud layers.

The signals may reveal whether Venus has a magnetic field, a Van Allen type radiation belt, the range of temperatures on the surface and in the veiled atmosphere, how fast the planet rotates, and other answers long sought by science.

Scientists believe plant and animal life as we know it does not exist on Venus because of steaming temperatures which Earth measurements indicate surpass 600 degrees Fahrenheit.

Despite her cloud veil, Venus is the third brightest object in the Earth's sky, dimmer only than the sun and moon. The planet's brilliance when she appeared as the morning and evening stars prompted ancient Roman astronomers to name her for their goddess of love and beauty.

Mariner's I observations will not be confined to the 30-minute Venus fly-by. As the spacecraft streaks to its target on a 226-million mile course, it is to radio data about conditions in interplanetary space. The results could tell what hazards lie ahead when man ventures deep into space and will add to knowledge about Earth-sun relations.

Before Mariner I reaches Venus, a twin spacecraft, Mariner II, will be winging along the same course.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration scheduled two Mariner launchings at this time to take advantage of a 50-day period when Venus and Earth are in favorable positions for such launchings. It will be 1964 before the bright planet again is available.

Mariner's course is a tricky one. To achieve success thousands of complex parts must work in unison, and the radio transmitters

Have We Priced Our Contact Lenses Too Low?

You might think so, if you consider the exclusive advantages our contact lenses have, and then compare our $65* price with the much greater amount others charge. We agree, it's difficult to conceive of contact lenses priced so low, especially when they are the finest made today. Here's how this is possible:

It is Texas State Optical's policy to provide the very finest eye care and eyewear at the lowest cost possible. Therefore, every factor which reduces our cost also reduces yours. Because no outside source produces our contact lenses, as they do for most other practitioners, you benefit from both quality control and lowered cost. We not only examine eyes, prescribe and fit lenses, but also, in our own laboratory, we process them according to individual patient prescription. So that we can provide each TSO patient with the very finest service and eyewear at low cost, we expect a reasonable, not exorbitant profit in each case.

As a pioneer in the field of contact lenses, TSO has fitted over 26 thousand pairs... vast experience which assures the finest quality and the most precise fitting. Our laboratory has advanced the design and finishing techniques to such degree, we believe our contact lenses to be the most comfortable-fitting available today. These outstanding improvements provide each TSO patient faster adaptation with maximum wearing comfort... more readily accomplished all-day-long wearing time.

Our contact lens price of $65, complete with initial and progress examinations, is low. If it is too low, that's to your advantage, just as we want it to be. From a logical viewpoint, there is no good reason for paying more when you can't get finer quality or better made contact lenses elsewhere at any price.

Jeremiah Urges Submission

A PROPHET PERSISTS IN UTTERING DIVINE PROPHECIES EVEN THOUGH THEY PREDICT DOOM FOR HIS NATION

By N. SPEER JONES
IN THIS week's lesson we return to Jeremiah, the prophet who spent so many years trying in vain to turn the people of Judah from their evil ways. The 18th, 19th and 20th chapters in the assignment belong to the reign of Jehoiakim (608 to 597 B.C.), and the remainder to that of Zedekiah, last king of Judah (597 to 586 B.C.).

Opening the lesson is what is probably the most famous parable of the Old Testament, that of the potter. Most of the Biblical parables belong to the teaching of Christ, in the New Testament; this is one of the few from the Old. The idea of the potter and his clay is later used in the New Testament by Paul in his letter to the Romans (chapter nine, verses 19-21). An inspiring point in this parable is that although the vessel was spoiled, it was still in the hand of the potter; he did not disregard it, but patiently reworked it to a more useful and beautiful purpose. So it is with God and us; no matter how spoiled we seem to be, He never discards us, but patiently continues to mold us.

This chapter also includes an interesting insight into the character of Jeremiah. Although he always maintained a good, courageous front before the people, to God he revealed his fears and his despair. How human it is for him to fall back on the bitter invectives of verses 19-23. The 19th chapter includes a continuation of the potter's parable. The potter's flask here becomes a symbol of Jerusalem's doom. First, the prophet speaks in the Valley of Hinnom, an idolatrous place, then in the temple itself, repeating his message to the crowd there. Chapter 20 deals with Jeremiah's first recorded imprisonment. CHURCH AND RELIGIOUS UNITY
It should be the thank offering of every man and woman who believes the Bible to know that Christ prayed for and desires unity of all believers. BUT we ought on the other hand to consider it the malediction and curse of the ages on our part as His professed followers that we have not come together in that unity for which Christ prayed. That they may be one, even as thou Father, art in me and I in thee that they also may be one in us that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.— John 17:20-21 Christ did not pray for an impossibility. He prayed this prayer for unity. It is true knowing of the stubbornness, the opposition and prejudice that blight the souls of men. Jesus promised that there shall "be one fold and one shepherd"— One thing over which so many people are prejudiced is the Bible teaching of the ONE CHURCH. After all prejudice means that you are down on something that you are not up on! He who is up on the Bible is not down on the "unity" of the church or the one body as we read in Eph 4:4 and 2:16, and he who is down on the unity is not up on the Bible. Bible unity is in the one body, the body is the church— Col 1:18, Eph 1:22. There is only one way of unity, there is only one church. This is what Christ promised in Matt. 16:18— upon this rock I will build my church. When this was fulfilled and the church commenced in Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost— Acts 2— we are told in verse 47 that "the Lord added to the church daily such as were saved." This indicates the oneness of the body or church of Christ. It is unthinkable that Christ would add one person saved from his past sins to a different denomination than He does another man. The truth is that Christ has nothing to do with building or maintaining denominations. The duty that lies squarely before us all is one of positive action, it is a duty of unselfishness and loving kindness; Christ has invited us all to faith and to obedience thereon, simply to confess this faith, repent and be baptized for the remission of sin and be raised to walk in the newness of life— Rom 6:4-6; herein lies the positive action; the unselfish life of loving kindness for every person who performs his duty to God in becoming a Christian has added his own weight and life and influence on the side of Christ and His church, His unity, His way and this in turn will automatically destroy division.

Baptists Open Vacation Bible School Monday

Vacation Bible School begins Monday at the Settles Baptist Church, Nineteenth and Settles.

Classes will be conducted in four departments, with age groups ranging from 3-15 years. Two spring graduates of colleges in East Texas will help with the school, both working as superintendents of classes and one also holding the post of principal for the school.

Assisting are Betty Britt and Becky Henderson. They were sent here by the Texas Baptist Sunday School Board.

Classes will include handbook, Bible stories and Bible study, character stories, music, recreation and worship. Refreshments furnished by the church will be served each day. Mrs. Bonnie Dickerson is in charge of serving.

Superintendents for the classes are Mrs. Jack Swearingen and Mrs. Charles Morgan, beginners of ages 3-5 years; Mrs. J. T. Grantham, primary of ages 6-8 years; and the two visitors will have charge of the juniors, ages 9-11 and intermediates, ages 12-15.

Members of the general public are invited to send their children to the school.

A week's revival will begin at the Settles Baptist Church, 19th and Settles, Aug. 5-12. Hanklin D. Beck, pastor, has announced.

Evangelist for the meeting will be the Rev. Woodrow McHugh Vincent. Helping with the program will be the two college girls.

Dinner Slated

A Mexican supper of tacos and mashed potatoes will be served at the Northside Methodist Church, 600 N. Goliad, Saturday from 5 to 8 p.m. Cost will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Proceeds will go to the regular church budget.

Presbyterian Calls For Experiments

NEW YORK (AP)—A young Presbyterian minister, who calls his belief "Christian Agnosticism," is using plays and abstract paintings in his work.

The Rev. William B. Glenesk of the Spencer Memorial Church in Brooklyn says "I am sure that God exists but I can't prove it—that's the agnostic element."
"To believe in God's existence is a matter of faith, but within the framework of this faith there is this doubt as to the whereabouts of God," he added.

In an effort to re-affirm his own faith and that of his parishioners and in an attempt to discover more about God's manifestations in the world, Rev. Glenesk believes in experimentation.
"It is an exploratory type of faith, faith grows with exposure. This is an old Greek idea, that is, to begin with things you don't know," he adds.

Because the Rev. Mr. Glenesk does not subscribe to a division between secular and religious activities, but believes that everything is under God, he feels free to draw upon the greatest works of art and literature.
He has discussed modern and classic plays, the dance, and art in his sermons as examples of God's spirit at work.

Hamlet was used to explore problems of personal freedom and pride. King Lear, self discovery, "Death of a Salesman," self deception. "The Tenth Man," supernatural elements in the universe and Gideon war between men.

After the sermons, there are seminars which at times include the Broadway actors who played leading parts. One of Glenesk's reasons for using literature is that, "God speaks as strongly through the great poets and artists of today as through the prophets of yesterday."
He reports that his congregation, which numbers about 200, has a new approach and that about 100 attend the Sunday services of which an average 50 stay on for the seminars.

His views first became widely known last June 30 when he appeared on an early morning radio program and espoused "Christian agnosticism." Since then, he says, he has received about 100 calls, most of them favorable, but some bitterly critical.

The Rev. Mr. Glenesk does not believe his ideas are widely divergent with most of Christianity, except for his belief that God does not directly intervene in the lives of individuals aside from the laws he has set in motion for all mankind.
Next Sunday he is starting a new series of sermon parables on "The Meaning of Man in Modern Art." He said he will bring paintings and some sculpture into church done by William Zorach on the subtitle, "The Taste for Life." Zorach's style is in between cubism and representationalism.

William Bell Glenesk, 35, was born and raised in Toronto, Canada where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Glenesk, still live.
He is a graduate of the University of Toronto and studied at Toronto's Royal Conservatory of Music. He took a master's degree in ethics and literature at Columbia University where he studied under the noted theologian Paul Tillich. He says that he follows Tillich's ideas of "romantic existentialism."
He came to the Brooklyn church five years ago. In the meantime, he studied acting under actresses Eva Le Gallienne and Uta Hagen and modern dance under Ruth St. Denis.

Catholics Add Thirteen Million
WASHINGTON (AP)—There are 42,104,900 Catholics in the United States, according to new figures compiled by the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade of Cincinnati. Only two other countries, Brazil and Italy, have more Catholics than the United States. Catholics added about 13 million persons world-wide in the year which ended June 30. The Crusade reports, thus keeping pace with the increase in world population. The report says 560 million persons, or 18.3 per cent of the world's population, are Catholics.

Scientist Digs In Parking Lot For Indians' History

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—The parking lot in front of a historic mission may hold the clue to the life customs and religious practices of a pagan people who lived in the Southwest long before the first Spanish Christians arrived.

Dr. Bernard L. Fontana, a University of Arizona anthropologist, is nearly convinced he has found the site of the once-flourishing village of Bac whose people probably abandoned their homes because of a curious belief concerning the dead.
His archaeological diggings are located in front of the Mission of San Xavier, recognized as one of the finest examples of mission architecture in the nation. It is the oldest Spanish mission still in use—an Arizona landmark.
But the village of Bac, the biggest Indian community on the Santa Cruz River when the first Spaniards arrived, slipped into oblivion unnoticed.
Dr. Fontana began his search for the old village of Bac four years ago. He figured it must be near the known site of the original San Xavier Mission built by Father Eusebio Francisco Kino S.J. in 1692. In the present mission, built in 1783, is a different location. By studying the terrain, Dr. Fontana figured out the logical spot for the village in relation to Father Kino's mission. It turned out to be where the parking lot of the present mission is located so that's where he began to dig.
Father Kino, picked Bac for his mission because it was an important community," Dr. Fontana said. "When he returned after an absence in 1699 he was met by 300 people. Even if only half that number lived in the village they'd leave a lot of trash around for archaeologists to find."
"Why were the buildings of Bac abandoned?"
"The Papago believed that when a person died in a house, his ghost returned. When there was an epidemic disease, this might have been a good thing. I wouldn't be surprised if the buildings are now uncovering were abandoned as people died in them."
There is still a village of Bac built around the fringes of the parking lot with 200 people. It is still the most important of six units on the San Xavier Reservation.
"These Indians are interesting," Fontana says. "For more than 250 years, white men have been coming and going, trying to get them to change their ways. They are still here, and in temperament I believe they are about the same today as when Father Kino first arrived back in 1692."

FIRST DATE

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

It was in May, several years ago that Mildred moved next door. That was a break for Eric. It is so easy to get acquainted with one's neighbors. The first date naturally called for careful strategy. You don't want to seem too eager — but you want to know what she likes . . . and what she's like. Eric's and Mildred's first date was a Youth Fellowship supper at the church. Eric happens to be a leader of this group. And Mildred happens to be an earnest Christian girl. Of course, happens is a very broad word. It means that Eric's and Mildred's parents had once decided that a son or a daughter ought to be given the advantage of religious training. Now Eric and Mildred are engaged. And everybody says they were meant for each other. And the altar before which they take their vows will be the heart of the religious life of their family. Thus it happens!

Bids Opened For Lamesa Disposal Plant

LAMESA (SO) - Bids were opened Wednesday for the new sewage disposal plant with the apparent low bidder being Mitchell Darby Inc. of McAllen. The bid was for $352,896.75.

The contract was not awarded at the special session of Lamesa City Council since engineers have to tabulate the bids and check for errors or omissions.

The announced low bid was just $883.50 better than the one submitted by Mid-West Contracting Co. of Dallas. Nine bids ranged from $352,896.75 to $451,287.

Voters approved a $395,000 revenue bond issue last November to finance the project. Lamesans also decided in a straw ballot to rebuild the plant at its present site rather than locate at a new place.

Other bids: Shiflett Bros. of Abilene, $390,615.50; United Construction Co. of Dallas, $385,578; Brown-McKee Inc. of Lubbock, $386,170; Mid-West Const. Co. of Dallas, $353,782.25; Purcell Construction Co. of Lamesa, $390,328.90; R. B. Hodgson & Co. of Midland, $389,266; Mitchell Darby, $352,896.75; Graham Const. Co. of Cameron, $451,287; Anderson Const. Co. of Abilene, $378,466.25.

Cambodian Warns Of Red Menace

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) - Cambodia's chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, declared today that unless the government cuts its budget deficit the nation will turn Communist.

Sihanouk, presiding over the opening session of the National Assembly, said the budget deficit has been increasing every year, bringing great strain upon the nation.

So far, Sihanouk added, Cambodia's economic development has not done enough for the people.

Events Suggest Alliance Plans Near Moment Of Truth

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
An AP News Analyst

Latin American events these days suggest that President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress is heading rapidly toward its moment of truth.

The Alliance is cast in the role of nervous mortician, waiting for the death rattle of a moribund system. But the patient is struggling desperately to survive. And the struggle is churning up revolutionary ferment.

The well intentioned Yankees often can do little but stand on the sidelines and wring their hands in frustration. They are becoming painfully aware that democracy as it is known in the United States has little meaning in nations where the vast majority are impoverished and illiterate.

The Public Affairs Institute in Washington released a study today picturing the Alliance for Progress as engaged in "a life and death struggle with completely unscrupulous men who seek power through violent means."

The Alliance, it says, has failed to make itself believable to key groups in Latin America that will determine whether change will be peaceful or violent. It urges the program to aim its benefits directly at those groups on a people-to-people rather than government-to-government basis.

"The odds against your success are so great," the institute tells the Alliance, "that unless you change direction of our aid and the methods of operation very quickly, you are likely to fail in your great task."

But there is danger in this approach, too. It implies end runs around existing governments that could, in the long run, undermine them. And whatever they may be, these governments are all the Alliance has at the present time to work with.

The struggle of military leaders and entrenched oligarchies to survive spurs the battle-scarred old Argentine Socialist leader, Alfredo Palacios, to comment that the new military takeover in Peru was "one more example of the situation Latin America is going through."

"Some time ago," he said, "President Kennedy stated that Latin America was going through a revolution. I think the action by armed forces in the continent indicates they have resorted to violence at the service of reactionary revolution. If cannot be said chaos is coming, we live in chaos."

Palacios is fairly representative of a broad sector of popular Latin American opinion, reflecting impatience with the inability of the continent to tailor its systems to the 20th century.

Peru's military deliberately interrupted six years of hopeful democratic development. Brazil is in such chaos at the moment that, in the words of former President Juscelino Kubitschek, it is in the preparatory phase of revolution. In Argentina the military is in control, with the result that Communists, extreme leftists and Peronists are considering joining forces in a combined stab for power.

There is worry elsewhere that the oligarchies in others in their desperate search for quick solutions. If so, they will be flirting with disaster.

Communists don't worry about military dictatorships. They welcome them as indicative of the last stage before violent popular revolution.

Implicitly, the Alliance for Progress sought to contribute to a merciful death for the antiquated systems. It asked these in power to reform in return for aid that might provide orderly progression to a more humane distribution of rights, privileges and wealth.

The message does not seem to get across. Waiting in the wings are organized extremists, waiting to pick up the pieces of the Alliance falls.

Katie Neill Day Set In Lamesa

LAMESA, SC — July 20 will be "Katie Neill Day" in Lamesa, honoring Miss Lamesa of 1962.

The big event of the day will be a reception in Miss Lamesa's honor from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m. in the Woman's Study Club building under the auspices of the Lambda Phi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority, sponsors of the last pageant.

Invitations have been extended to 600 citizens and the general public is also invited.

Miss Neill will leave on July 29 to participate in the Miss Texas pageant. The 18-year-old beauty is the daughter of Mrs. Beatrice Neill.

A Matter Of Concern

Race Group Aims At Roadside Cafes

NEW YORK (AP) — Preparations are under way for a "Freedom Highways" drive in the South by the Congress Of Racial Equality to end segregation at roadside restaurants.

Marvin Rich, the organization's community relations director, said a picked team of 30 participants is in training at Greensboro, N.C. for the six-state operation, to begin July 31.

It will last through August, the sponsors say.

"The effort will be to desegregate major chain restaurants in the South for Negroes who travel by car," Rich said.

Principal targets, he said, will be restaurants of the Howard Johnson's chain and of the Holiday Inn motel chain, whose networks of roadside eating places are among the largest in the South.

The anti-segregation party, traveling in several automobiles, plans to cover Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, and possibly some points in Georgia, in the drive.

Rich said local supporters in each area also will supplement the team's 30 members, all veterans of sit-in demonstrations and "Freedom Rides."

Although the 30 already know the disciplines required for "non-violent methods and for holding their temper when insulted," Rich said, they're getting special training for travel tactics and possible jail life.

The training at Magnolia House in Greensboro, site of the first sit-in demonstrations at chain store lunch counters in 1960, is under direction of Gordon Carey, CORE's program director.

Negroes and whites, about half and half, are included in the group. Generally he said, they'll stay together in the anti-segregation tour, but only limited numbers will participate at each point.

The tactics will be to enter the restaurants "just as ordinary customers and expect service," he said. "If we get it, we'll go on. If we don't, we'll try to negotiate."

Rich said that singular CORE operations already have obtained the desegregation of 85 Howard Johnson's restaurants in Florida, North Carolina and Virginia.

The new efforts would be directed at 130 Howard Johnson's restaurants in the campaign region that "still discriminate," he said.

Rich said that in national negotiations with the chain, Howard Johnson's has said it is doing all it can to eliminate segregation, but individual restaurants are leased to operators who set various policies.

Arrives Late, Pleads Guilty

Billy J. Randell, who failed to report at 9 a.m. Wednesday when his case was called for trial in Howard County court, showed up an hour later.

He said his failure to be on hand at 9 a.m. was due to a misunderstanding — he thought he was to report at 10 a.m. His bond had been ordered forfeited but Judge F. J. Carpenter set aside the forfeiture order.

Randell then agreed to plead guilty to a simple charge of drunkenness instead of facing trial for the DWI charge against him. Wayne Burns, county attorney, permitted the plea to the lesser offense.

Judge Carpenter fined Randell $100 and costs.

Base Paintings

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Paintings by young Mexican artists will be exhibited at several United States military posts. Included are Ft. Sam Houston, Ft. Bliss, Camp Wolters, Killeen Base and Ft. Hood, all in Texas.

Membership Group Elects Officers

At a meeting of the Contact Club Wednesday evening, new officers were elected. Jeff Brown is the new president, taking over from Rod Ware, and Jerry Mancill became vice president in place of Byron Alexander.

The club is the membership committee of the Chamber of Commerce. A backyard party honoring Mr. and Mrs. Byron Alexander, who are moving, will be given by the club the evening of July 24 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Reed.
