Birth Control Pill Proves Help To Infertile Couples

SEATTLE (AP)—A study by the University of Washington shows that the birth control pill has helped many infertile couples. The study, conducted over a period of several years, found that many couples who had been unable to conceive for years were able to do so after using the pill. The researchers noted that the pill helped to regulate the woman's menstrual cycle, which often was a key factor in their inability to conceive.

Broilers To Hurt

WASHINGTON, AP—The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that the broiler industry is expected to be hurt by a sharp decline in demand for broilers. The department notes that the demand for broilers has been declining steadily over the past few months, and it expects this trend to continue.

Late Frost Now Needed

Now that good general rains have soaked fields and halted the ravages of heat and drought, Howard County farmers are crossing their fingers and hoping for a late frost, mild fall and scattered rains from now until cotton picking time. Herb Helbig, county farm agent, said that a survey of cotton in most parts of the county shows late planting effects. Plants are small and have had a hard time getting started due to lack of moisture and because of the intense heat of June and early July. When the showers stop, a few days of sunshine will be highly beneficial, especially in the areas where the rainfall was heaviest. Such areas include most of the northeast quadrant of the county and sections in the extreme southwest corner. Other areas, where more rain fell include some areas near Knot.

Elsewhere for the most part the rains were average but not heavy enough to pose a problem. In general, Helbig said, the drought problem has been solved by the rains—at least temporarily. Farmers, hampered by the lack of moisture in June, had to plant much later than they would have preferred. The seed was slow sprouting and the plants are small in most fields. These are the farms where a late frost is most a must if there is to be any cotton harvested.

The crop conditions are highly spotted. There are many fields where excellent cotton has developed. In other fields, the plants are extremely small and face a bleak future. Helbig said that rangelands have made remarkable recovery since the rains. Grass is flourishing and the pastures which until a few weeks ago were drab brown in color are now a lush green. Livestock is doing well and there is plenty of stock water in the ponds.

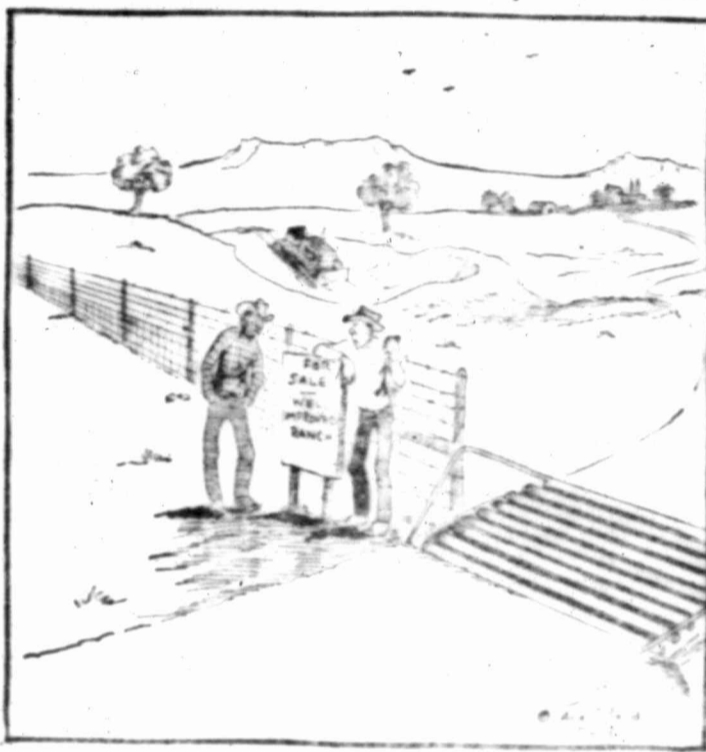

More rain on ranch lands will do no harm. Ranchers do not feel there can be too much rain in West Texas. Most of the feed stuff is railying on the heels of the rains. Like cotton planting date for sorghums has passed, and the farmers must rely on the fields already seeded for whatever crops they may get.

Not Choice Site

HOUSTON, AP—An 18-acre section of a garbage dump area has been set aside for a branch library and a health center by the City of Houston. It is of course a council action, but it certainly favors finding another site for the library and health center, said Mayor Lewis Carter.

FRIDAY TO BE HISTORIC DAY FOR WEBB AFB

August 2—next Friday—will be an historic day for Webb AFB.

On that day Class 63-A will complete the 55-week undergraduate pilot training and receive their wings. But this alone is not sufficient to warrant more than the traditional listing. The important thing is that 63-A is the first class at Webb to complete their pilot training on the new supersonic T-38 aircraft.

The class entered training at Webb on July 17, 1961 with 45 students. After three weeks of preflight, the class entered the primary phase for training on the T-37. Late in December, six members of the class were transferred to 3500 Pilot Training Wing at Reese AFB, at Lubbock. The same order authorized the transfer of six German students from other schools to Webb.

Second Lt. James N. Ahman was the first student pilot to solo the T-38. He is a graduate of the Air Force Academy.

Regent Appointed

AUSTIN, AP—Gov. Price Daniel appointed Ennis Favors Friday a regent of Texas Woman's University. He succeeds the late Harvey Quest of Seguin. Favors is a Stephenville lawyer.

Riley Burns Adds Another Reunion To His Long List

A resident of Glasscock and Howard counties since 1890 attended his 37th of 38 annual Howard-Glasscock Old Settlers reunions at the city park Friday.

Riley K. Burns, 611 Dallas, went to the park in an ambulance, furnished by Nalley Pickle, to meet old friends and mix with the crowd.

"I want everybody to know that I am happy to have spent two hours among those I have known for many years, and that I appreciate the loan of the ambulance so I could go," Nalley told the daisier that it was mine for the afternoon," he said.

Burns said he came to Glasscock County in 1890 and filed on land in the northeast corner where he was a ranchman. He later acquired more land and finally owned 3,320 acres. The home at 611 Dallas was built 32 years ago and he and Mrs. Burns have lived there since it was built.

"But I got just as big a kick out of it as ever," he said.

C-City Council Okays Paving

COLORADO CITY (SC)—The City Council held a special meeting Friday night to authorize 17 blocks of paving with the city picking up the tab for homestead owners who have refused to sign mechanic's liens with the Cen-Tex Paving Co.

The resolution calls for the contracts to assign the lien on reluctant homeowners to the city, and instructs the city attorney to bring personal liability suits to collect for the paving. It will require the city to pay out $1,451.90 for such paving.

Original plans called for about 50 blocks of paving but city officials say that demand has been spotty and that there has been considerable resistance to the assessment type of paving and to the price—$3.80 per running foot for 31 foot wide streets and $4.32 per foot for 37 foot streets.

Cox Predicts Duval To Help LBJ Downfall

SAN DIEGO, Tex. (AP)—Jack Cox predicted Saturday night that Duval County would have a part in the downfall of Vice President Lyndon Johnson, just as it played a part in Johnson's early success. "That a delightful page of poetic justice could be added to Texas history if it can be marked that here, at the scene of his tenuous triumph of yesterday, was launched also the decisive defeat of his bid for personal power, and with his defeat the end of an evil era," Cox told a rally on the San Diego courthouse square. "As surely as justice lives, this page of history will be written," said the Republican nominee for governor. The rally was advertised by state Republican headquarters as the first time a Republican nominee for governor ever spoke in Duval County. Cox's references to the vice president dated back to Johnson's election to the U. S. Senate in 1948 by an 87 vote margin over former Texas Gov. Coke Stevenson. Johnson's critics have claimed that the winning margin came from a "corrected" election return from Box 13 in Duval County. Cox repeated claims that Democratic nominee John Connally is backed by Johnson. "Texas, our Texas, is presently the political property of one party, and even worse, the personal plaything of one man," Cox said in his speech. "The very special significance of our meeting here attaches to the fact that the political career of one man who dominates and dictates to our party was cradled here under the questionable conditions well known to many of us and hatched out over the howling protests of some persons now present. "In broadest terms, the great task of our times which remains before us as Texans is to end, as quickly and decisively as possible, the rigid and absolute control of our political lives by one party, one-man rule."

Publishers Sue Drug Firms In Diet Book Case

NEW YORK (AP)—The publishing house of Simon & Schuster has filed a $7.5 million suit against two drug companies, claiming they infringed on the copyright of the best-selling diet book "Calories Don't Count" and traded on its title to sell safflower oil capsules. The suit, filed in U.S. District Court Friday, names Cave-Via-Min and Pharmaceutical, Inc., and CDC Pharmaceutical Corp., both of Glen Cove, N.Y. Simon & Schuster claimed the drug firms promoted the sale of their capsules by using the book's title in ads and by publishing a pamphlet "copied almost in its entirety" from the book. In addition to $7.5 million in damages, the suit asks an unspecified sum it says represents profits lost by Simon & Schuster or gained by the drug firms through the alleged copyright infringement. The action follows by a week a $6.5 million suit filed by the two drug firms against Simon & Schuster. They contended the publishing house had broken an agreement to sell the safflower oil capsules jointly with the book, authored by Dr. Herman Taller. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has charged that the book was written to promote the capsule. At one point, the FDA ordered seizure of both the book and the capsules.

Failure To Stop Charges Filed Against Sergeant

A charge of failure to stop and render aid, following an automobile collision, was filed against Sgt. Jimmy R. Wallace, Webb AFB, Saturday morning. The charge was filed with Justice of the Peace Jess Slaughter who set Wallace's bond at $2,000. He posted the bond and was released. Police said Wallace was involved in an accident at 906 Goliad at 6:58 p.m. Friday and left the scene at 7:01 he was involved in a similar accident at East Ninth and Rannels, officers said. He was arrested at Webb AFB at 8 p.m. by Capt. Walter Fuhanks of the Big Spring police department. Fuhanks said the driver of the first car was Joseph R. Snyder, 205 Jefferson. He was accompanied by Mrs. Snyder and their seven-year-old son. All complained of "whiplash" pains in the neck and back following the collision. Driver of the second car was Mrs. Lila Huff Carr, 1305 Tucson. She was taken to Cooper Clinic and Hospital with injury pains of the neck and back. She was still being treated Saturday afternoon, for the injuries. Statements were being taken from Mrs. Carr and from Mr. and Mrs. Snyder Saturday afternoon. A "treat and release" injury was sustained in a one-car accident at the intersection of North east Twelfth and Snyder High way. Mrs. Virginia Jones Swindle, Snyder, was taken to Howard County Hospital Foundation following the accident. She was traveling east on Twelfth and failed to make the turn. Patrolmen Robby Armstrong and Graydon Howell found Mrs. Swindle unconscious in her car, which did not turn over, but she had recovered when she reached the hospital. She was released after treatment for shock. A rash of minor accidents occurred Friday afternoon, night, and Saturday morning in Big Spring with no other injuries reported. Edwards Boulevard and Gregg was the scene of the first accident. Drivers of vehicles involved were Wanda Lou Logan, 4005 Dixon, and Jane Ann McElrath, 2404 Robin. DALLAS (AP)—God, and His Word, are being destroyed in the Soviet Union. It is planned, ruthless destruction by state decree. But there is still flickering faith, held by pitiable hands of the aged. Religion is now labeled "superstition" by the Soviets and the drive for "rational" belief is shocking in its nakedness. "Superstition," says the state, must be ended "from black cats to God."

Life On Edge Of Crisis Warps Fabric Of American Life In Subtle Ways

AP Newsfeatures writes about the life of the mind in the shadow of the atom. By SAUL PETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The sun was bright, but the air was heavy. The man looked up at the sky and saw only the dark, swirling clouds of the atom. He had been thinking of the atom for a long time. He had been thinking of the atom in the laboratory, in the office, in the classroom. He had been thinking of the atom in the home, in the street, in the crowd. He had been thinking of the atom in the shadow of the atom.

Shapeless Fear Of World Aflame Submerged In Nameless Anxiety

The times are unique. Never before has competing nations, distrustful and unfriendly, maintained their national guard by aiming nuclear-armed intercontinental missiles at one another.

Never before has handful of human beings had the ability to issue commands which would level cities, annihilate civilization.

Today they do have that power; tomorrow the command could be issued. How long a shadow is cast across American society by this stark, unprecedented fact of modern history?

A shadow is not easily traced, measured or weighed. But it's there. How the shadow of atomic war makes its influence felt, where it can most easily be detected, and what affects — conscious and subconscious — it has on the mass American mind are the subjects of a masterful combination of reporting and writing brought to you on these pages.

Seeking both to document and explain the vast yet largely submerged national anxiety, AP Newsfeatures Writer Saul Pett read hundreds of thousands of words touching one facet or another of the atom's fearful shadow.

Then he conducted interviews by the score: In laboratories of atomic physicists, in the campus studies of famous sociologists, theologians, historians, educators; in offices of psychiatrists and psychologists; the halls of Congress, chambers of the U.S. Supreme Court, even the White House itself.

The result is a skillfully guided tour through a fascinating and previously uncharted region of the national consciousness. You will read how the Cold War's constant crisis already has affected the minds of Americans, what it could cause in the future, how it has shaped or colored our approach to government, education, creative output, the economy itself.

The atom extracts its toll from all of us, in ways great and small. Many manifestations we all recognize; many others remain only vague misgivings in the recesses of the mind. For the first time on such a scale in any medium, this story traces the atom's insidious fallout of fear across the fabric of American life.

more profound than anxiety faced frankly on the surface. Why aren't people generally more actively, more consciously concerned by the ever-present threat of atomic Armageddon? People tend to ignore things which they cannot alter or avert, which they cannot imagine for which they cannot prepare beyond which they "cannot see". Says J. Robert Oppenheimer, the physicist and chief obstacle to the birth of the atom bomb: "Oppenheimer flaps; also to believe that in the next great war 'none of us can count on having enough bombs to bury our dead'."

Most Americans are not geared to live with ambiguity, says Dr. Leonard Duhl, a psychiatrist at the National Institute of Mental Health. Most people, he says, employ protective mechanisms for shutting out of their minds the menace of world crisis which is diffuse, complex and without apparent beginning or end.

The reaction to ambiguity to peace which is not peace and war which is not war, says Dr. Duhl, is a symptom of the victims of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Where the fire took a life immediately, the remaining family gravely, but then developed "leisure symptoms" — where the death was a lingering death, the victim was neither safe nor secure, a family frequently developed symptoms — allergic, heart disease and other ailments often linked with emotion.

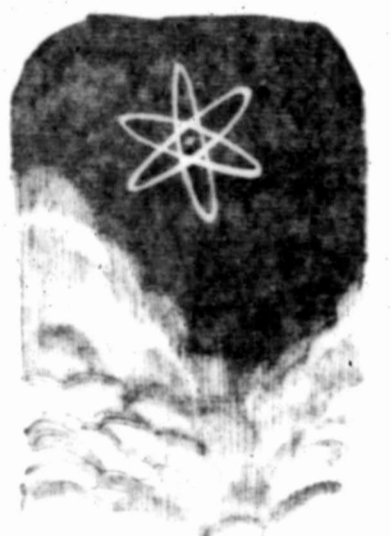

Dr. Duhl's implication seems to be that long exposure to doubt about life or death on this planet may ultimately produce mass symptoms.

RETIRED INTO APATHY. Meanwhile the human mind has many ingenious devices or temporary self-insulation. It can, through various thinking or helplessness, rationalize real danger away. It can, with automatic procedure, stop thinking about the unthinkable. It can close the inner doors of the horrible and having locked the door, may even deny anything on the other side to worry about.

Dr. Gordon Allport, Harvard social psychologist, calls the process an ego-defensive apathy — a defensiveness against facing the world. "He is reminded of a study made of the German Jew under Hitler, which showed that even as the persecution grew, many Jews refused to believe it."

reason, atomic weapons will never be used again. "A very important obstacle to facing up to the dangers of a modern world has been termed the insensitivity to the remote." Dr. Frank adds: "Nuclear weapons are not directly present to any of our senses. A few miles from me there is an accumulation of viruses, bacteria and toxins more than sufficient to wipe out the human race several times over yet it gives most of us not the slightest concern."

most Americans do not live in a daily state of anxiety. If they kept thinking about the bomb, they'd live in a state of hopelessness or they might become frustrated and frenzied and want to "flee forward" or backward or anywhere extreme.

some every part of movement apprehending of mind. The atom's shadow warps the fabric of American life in subtle ways. The atom's shadow warps the fabric of American life in subtle ways. The atom's shadow warps the fabric of American life in subtle ways.

INSTINCT FOR NORMALITY. But these are the exceptions, even if they total up to the hundreds of thousands. The majority of Americans, says Dr. Pett, "are not geared to live with ambiguity, says Dr. Leonard Duhl, a psychiatrist at the National Institute of Mental Health. Most people, he says, employ protective mechanisms for shutting out of their minds the menace of world crisis which is diffuse, complex and without apparent beginning or end."

of the federal government." President Eisenhower warned as he left office. "The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist."

It has changed political discourse and the very practice of government. Sen. Humphrey notes:

"Seldom does a senator talk these days on almost any subject without basing his argument on the threat of communism. Even in debate on the highway system, the discussion is no longer in terms of what good roads will do for the free flow of commerce but what they might do for our defense system."

"We talk about education but we no longer talk about it in terms of the richer life it could bring. Now we talk about it as an additional weapon against communism—about the scientists and our overall defense and space effort."

"All of this of course, is a kind of a negativism—or, as someone said, the red devil makes us do what we ought to do. Also, I'm afraid, what we ought not to do."

The continuing feeling of crisis also creates a tendency to be less thoughtful and more careless. In space legislation, for example, there is a tendency in Congress to hurry. Thus, we actually invite waste. I've seen us pass appropriations for space and defense in minutes without really understanding what we were doing."

Crisis, the senator says, polarizes authority and strains representative government.

"It used to be traditional that Congress would authorize the use or disposition of military forces only after considerable deliberation. Today there is no time for discussion. You just have to trust the executive branch."

"So far, so good. There has been no real abuse. But if it continues for long, it could erode almost entirely the tradition of congressional deliberation and create a new tradition of executive authority. Congress already comes in after the fact, after the troops have already been sent to Vietnam or Berlin or Lebanon."

EFFECT ON ECONOMY

For the first time in our history, we operate a "garrison economy" in time of peace. Ten per cent of our gross national product goes to defense, which also siphons off a higher proportion of our scientific and engineering talent. We spend $50 billion a year on arms, on military forces, on military research, all of which gives us a built-in public works program creating incomes without creating consumer products."

The cold war has made high taxes an inevitable part of 20th Century life. We pay more now than we ever did, more than during the hot war. Unlike other cycles of war and peace in our history, we were allowed no breather after hostilities ended in 1945.

Almost immediately the cold war was upon us with its huge appetite for gigantic military costs and foreign aid. There was little or no time to consolidate. There was little or no time to reduce the debt of World War II as there was in the '20s to reduce part of the debt left by World War I.

Thus, in a complicated age of complicated machinery, when one rocket can cost $5 million and we shoot off several a week at Cape Canaveral, when a single nuclear-powered carrier costs $500 million, when 5,000 different firms and 1,500,000 people are required to build the DEWLine radar fence, we spend 80 per cent of our tax dollar paying for past wars and present defense.

The cold war also has given new meaning to an old phrase—economic growth. Such growth has always been necessary to one's own needs and comfort. Now, we are told, it is also part of an ideological struggle, to maintain the strength of the West, to help and hopefully win the undeveloped countries, to provide that capitalism can provide better for humankind than communism.

Despite the high cost of the cold war, the average American is better off economically than he was at the close of World War II. He is paying more taxes but he is earning more and keeping more. His net real income is up.

FOUNDATIONS UNCHANGED

While the cold war has made big government bigger and put strains on free enterprise, it has not changed the basic character of our economy, in the opinion of Courtney J. Brown, dean of the Columbia University Business College.

"The spirit of free enterprise and self-discipline has been surprisingly strong in the past decade," he says. "Many of us would have doubted the ability of our society to maintain its basic character under all this stress and strain."

"By and large, in terms of business practices and the structure of business, even the relationship between government and business has changed less than one might have expected. This looks good for the future. But in terms of our business society we are still living rather dangerously. The U. S. Steel incident was but one expression of the tensions and taunts of our economy."

Another eminent economist, Marcus Nadler of New York University, thinks that the strength of our economy and the weakness of Russia's may eventually end the arms race. Both countries carry huge arms burdens. But because 50 per cent of Russia's population is engaged in farming, as compared to only 8 or 10 per cent of ours, Russia has fewer people to produce consumer goods.

"Therefore," concludes Prof. Nadler, "the high cost of defense presses more on their standard of living than ours. Thus, I think that before 10 years or so because of this great pressure for consumer goods, Russia may be genuinely interested in disarming."

LONELY INTELLECTUAL

An economist finds some encouragement in one phase of the cold war. The average man, while aware of the continuing peril and the lack of real progress toward peace, may be able to bury his dismay in his job or garden or PTA or power tools or children.

But the American intellectual generally finds little solace anywhere. He needs consciously to make order out of chaos and the world has never, it seems, made less sense to him than it does now. He sees life getting better while death grows bigger. He sees all the irony and all the danger and feels a futility. It is American intellectuals who evidently feel the greatest dismay about the cold war.

A few of them may think they see a way out and they join pacifist groups and sign petitions and march and demonstrate for nuclear disarmament. Some of the younger ones, the students, are attracted to the Peace Corps as one small way of affecting the world's dilemmas. But most American intellectuals appear immobilized by a feeling of "loneliness and even helplessness," in the phrase of James B. Reston of the New York Times.

It is a feeling which creeps into our literature, music and art which critics agree, suffers from a loss of vitality. Thus, in a world which makes little sense, "the theater of the absurd" seeks to catch up to modern music, which seeks to catch up to the harsh dissonances of life.

Thus today's fiction, notes critic

John Mason Brown, is inferior to the non-fiction, as for example "The Guns of August," "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," "The Making of a President." The non-fiction writer who picks on a subject fixed and settled in time does better than the fiction writer trying to deal with the confusing world around him."

Thus, a gifted writer such as J. D. Salinger, with a rare eye and ear to perceive the world around him is not content with the world around him and seeks order in the ancient mystiques of the Orient. Thus a gifted poet such as Tennessee Williams turns in on himself and finds his own expression of beauty in conflict and violence.

Thus, much lower down on the artistic scale, television writers dwell on violence. "The only way, apparently, to be heard in a noisy world," says Sen. Humphrey, "is to be noisier."

Thus, Robert Oppenheimer, who helped usher in the atomic age, notes its appalling irony:

"We live," he said, "with an expansion of knowledge overpoweringly beautiful, vast, ramified, quite unparalleled in the history of man. We live with a yearly enrichment of our understanding of nature, and of man as part of nature, that doubles every decade."

But he added:

"We have so largely lost our ability to talk with one another... We hunger for nobility: the rare words and acts that harmonize simplicity and truth."

Three Arrested In Bank Robbery

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Two Texans and another youth were arrested Friday in the $20,860 robbery of the American National Bank branch here.

Jerry Tucker, 19, of Dallas, was captured an hour after the robbery.

Arrested later were Wallace Deresaw, 21, of North Little Rock, and Robert Redmond, 16, of Dallas.

Each was held in lieu of $20,000 bond. All but $40 was recovered.

Italian Train Wreck Kills Two

FOGGIA, Italy (AP)—Two engineers were killed today in a head-on collision of a switching locomotive and a two-car passenger train just outside this south central city.

Authorities said 17 passengers were injured.

The wreck was the fifth fatal accident on Italian railroads in scarcely more than seven months. A total of 153 persons were killed in the five accidents. More than a dozen lesser mishaps also have occurred.

Britain's Common Market Entry Bid Runs Into Snag

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Britain's bid to join the prosperous European Common Market ran into a roadblock Saturday.

Britain also asked that the Common Market nations keep prices on farm commodities low so it can continue to import food and fibers from such commonwealth nations as Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Due to pressure from their own farmers, Common Market nations want to keep prices high for agricultural products. Farmers in France, for example, have staged riotous demonstrations demanding higher prices.

Informants said France led the opposition to concessions to Britain, and one delegate to the Foreign Ministers' meeting said the French are negotiating as if the British are standing with their back against the wall. France is cool toward Britain's entry.

Chairman Eugene Schauss of Luxembourg said the talks with Britain will resume Wednesday and expressed hope of a solution.

Deputy Foreign Minister Edward Heath of Britain said on his return to London the issue is "whether there is going to be room for imports of food from the commonwealth of the United States and the Argentine."

Stressing their neutral status, Austria and Sweden urged they be permitted to trade with the Common Market, which is reducing tariffs barriers among members while raising a common tariff wall against outsiders. The neutrals would avoid involvement in any moves toward political integration in the Common Market.

Carlo Russo of Italy said that France's opposition to the neutrals is "interdependent." The council will get an overall picture of the problems after Switzerland submits its application for membership late in September.

Foreign Minister Jens Otto Krag of Denmark asked for trade preference on some agricultural products, such as eggs, until its full membership is approved. The Danes fear the Dutch will take over their West German market. The council decided, however, to hold up action until the British negotiations are decided.

7th Soviet Sputnik Up

MOSCOW (AP)—The seventh unmanned Soviet Sputnik in the latest space probing series was launched Saturday, Tass reported.

Whizzing about the earth once every 90.1 minutes, the Sputnik is in an orbit ranging from 120 miles to 220 miles above the earth.

The Russians announced in March that the series was designed to obtain information on the earth's magnetic field, radiation belts and "bad" formation.

The data on radiation will be important in estimating hazards of long space flights, the Soviet news agency said.

The agency reported the Sputnik carried various scientific instruments but did not give its weight or size. None of the scientific data obtained in the various Sputniks has been made public.

Secretaries Given International Award

The Big Spring chapter of the National Secretaries Association has been given the Victor Frenkel international award, officers were told Saturday.

Mrs. Flo Short, division president for Texas and Louisiana, telephoned the report. She is attending the international convention of the NSA in Chicago, Ill.

The award goes to the chapter with the greatest participation in the certified professional secretaries examinations. The three local secretaries who took the exam, thus pushing the chapter toward its award, were Marguerite Cooper, Mrs. S. Gorman and Mrs. Camille Patterson.

President Signs Construction Bill

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—The White House said Saturday President Kennedy has signed legislation authorizing $1,535,672,500 in military construction, including expansion of facilities supporting several unified defense agencies.

The measure cleared Congress July 16.

More than 1,000 individual projects are authorized. They include housing, hospitals, chapels, clubs, mess halls and administrative buildings. There is also a $45 million emergency construction fund to be divided equally among the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Gen. Taylor's Book In Sudden Demand

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon bookshop is coping with a sudden run on a book that has been high on its worst seller list for about two years.

The book, "The Uncertain Trumpet" by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor.

Clerks in the privately run bookshop said they've sold about 200 of the books in the past few days since Taylor was named the next chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Asked how the book had been selling before that, one clerk smiled—hesitated—and then replied: "Slowly."

2 Marines Killed

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—An Indonesian army spokesman in Makassar said two Dutch marines were killed and 14 wounded in a clash near Merauke in West New Guinea, Antara News Agency reported Saturday. Indonesian paratroopers are reported to have landed in the vicinity of Merauke.

Local Professor Finds One Of Two Prizes In Diggings

LUBBOCK—A 53-year-old college professor and a pretty good digger, while Sherry Perry, Lubbock history major, discovered a stone tool. The tools were found during the last week of digging.

According to Dr. David H. Kelley of the Tech anthropology department, the tools could be at least 6,000 years old, depending upon when the Berclair Terrace was built.

Big Spring Archaeologist

Col. John Bayne, Howard County Junior College psychology professor, is shown in the Berclair Terrace near Beeville, where Texas Tech archaeologists spent six weeks. Bayne found an ancient bone tool while digging in the terrace. Dr. David H. Kelley of Tech's anthropology department said the tool could be at least 6,000 years old. Bayne was one of 11 Tech students enrolled in the class.

NO DATE HELP
The ancient instruments probably will be of no help in dating the area, but they did add some excitement to our excavations since they were the only ones found," Kelley said.

In addition to the tools found, 36 carbon specimens were discovered. The results of the specimens will not be known until the bones have been processed by a physicist with a special machine.

The Carbon-14 specimens were picked up in the diggings by using sterilized trowels and pinners. The findings were placed in germ-free plastic containers and special care given so that the particles would not be contaminated by human touch.

The specimens require around $150 each to be processed and must be done by an intricate machine for measuring radioactivity that is more sensitive than a Geiger counter. The closest machine in this area is in Arizona.

The machine measures the radioactivity of each specimen and by the amount found can be determined when the carbon sample was part of a living organism.

SAMPLES
The six week's "digging" course was primarily a dating trip, seeking carbon samples to determine the ages of fossils and artifacts found in the creek 23 years ago by a University of Texas team. Kelley said sufficient carbon samples were found on Tech's trip to complete the dating process.

On the same site where the students worked, several extinct animals and prehistoric instruments were found in 1938 by the Texas excavators.

Pits with straight sides were dug

Exterior construction will be of masonry and wood in modern design. Zoned refrigerated air conditioning and central heating will be contained in the building. Architects are Billingsley and Stracener of Lubbock.

Construction is expected to start in 10 days with 165 working days estimated for completion.

Algerian People Impatient As Leaders Fight For Power

ALGIERS (AP) — They were selling nationalist emblems in the streets of Algiers Saturday but few passersby looked at them.

Four weeks after proclamation of independence, bitterness and disappointment are replacing the intoxicating chant of triumph and victory by this capital's half a million Moslems.

Few men had jobs and women had little food to give their children while the politicians wrangled for power.

"The people will impose unity," proclaimed posters pasted over the city's walls.

And word seeped out from the squalid Casbah and crowded Moslem markets that the people will not stand too long for chaos and the political manipulation of their leaders.

In dingy meeting rooms youth leaders and trade organizations held feverish conferences. There was no word what they were preparing.

"It is our internal problem," they told newsmen. But some of them were saying that if the leaders don't come to terms "they will be swept away by the anger of the people."

"We did not suffer under colonialism only to witness this spectacle," one Algerian intellectual said bitterly.

Europeans who stayed behind watch cautiously.

"Will France intervene?" they ask anxiously every day.

"They would like to see French troops again take over the capital—not because it would solve anything but because it would prove they were right in saying the Algerians are not capable of being independent."

In street intersections, newly organized Moslem policemen in cork helmets direct traffic. Trucks loaded with French military policemen slowly cruise the streets.

Groups of people crowd around French newspapers displayed by vendors. Big headlines describe chaos in Algeria and the threatening civil war. And the radios announce that projects are being prepared to give the people bread. From official buildings, the green and white flags of new Algeria hang limp in stifling heat.

Explosion Aftermath

The wreckage of a truck (foreground) whose load of propane gas exploded lies across the road from one of a dozen homes the blast wrecked in Berlin, N.Y. In the background smoke still rises from one of the damaged buildings. The truck driver was fatally injured and 19 persons suffered burns.

Birth Defects Prompt Governmental Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prompted in part by recent disclosures that a new drug is being blamed for birth malformations, the government is seeking ways to reduce hazards from use of experimental medicines.

A Food and Drug Administration official said Saturday that agency for some time has been considering changes in its regulations concerning distribution of experimental drugs, and that reports on the dire effects of thalidomide when used by women during pregnancy has sharpened interest in the matter.

Thalidomide is a German drug blamed for some 3,500 severe birth deformities in West Germany and hundreds elsewhere in Britain and Western Europe.

The drug was kept off the U.S. prescription market when Dr. Frances Oldham Kelsey, an FDA physician and pharmacologist, insisted for more than a year that proof of its safety was inadequate.

Although her action prevented the drug from being placed on the regular prescription market, there was some distribution of it in the United States through physicians for "investigational use" under lawful procedure. It was prescribed for morning sickness. The W.S. Merril Co. of Cincinnati, an old and reputable firm, held exclusive U.S. rights to distribute thalidomide. It made samples available to about 1,200 physicians but there is no way of knowing exactly how many doctors gave it to patients.

A point in the law not widely known, is that a drug firm may make arrangements with doctors for the experimental or investigational use of a new drug without FDA approval. The law requires only that the firm keep a record of these shipments and that they are plainly labeled, "Caution, new drug limited by federal law to investigative use."

The doctor must sign a statement to the effect that he is qualified to investigate the safety of a drug. The doctor is not required to inform the patient that the drug is experimental and at his discretion may or may not charge for the prescription.

An FDA official shied away from the use of the term "human guinea pig" when it was used by a reporter. He hastened to say that no final proof of the safety and efficacy of a drug could be obtained until it had been used on human beings, and that has been the practice in production of new drugs.

FDA Commissioner, George P. Larrick said last week the firm which was distributing thalidomide in this country advised doctors to whom it had issued the drug to return all of the material it had on hand and to use no more on either males or females. Even before that, the Merril company had cautioned physicians to whom samples of the drug had been issued not to give it to any women of child-bearing age. That was last December—several months before the recall directive.

That recall order was issued in March. Reports of births with malformations may come in a few weeks, related to use of the drug.

Only last week a Phoenix, Ariz., woman who had used it petitioned the courts for authority to undergo abortion legally to avert possible birth of a deformed child. The FDA said that in this instance the drug had been obtained from abroad.

Under existing regulations issued by the FDA, firms seeking to market new drugs must get an FDA approval to distribute drugs in interstate commerce for general sale.

The firm must set forth research that has been done on animals, and results of use on humans. The overriding emphasis of the FDA in granting its approval or pre-clearance action is on safety.

JFK May Win Tariff Cut, Shock Absorber Faces Peril

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy appears likely to win from the Senate Finance Committee the sweeping new tariff-cutting, powers he seeks in the trade expansion bill.

But the provision for special aids to workers and companies hard-hit by import competition faces a tough fight and may be watered down.

This estimate of the bill's prospects emerged from a check of the committee's 17 members Saturday. The group has just completed the first of four scheduled weeks of public hearings on the measure.

One factor making for uncertainty over the proposal is the lukewarm attitude toward it on the part of Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va.

Byrd has fought for such legislation in the past and is fond of saying his maiden Senate speech 28 years ago was in support of Cordell Hull's reciprocal trade proposal.

But as of now he probably will vote to strike out or sharply cut down the trade-adjustment provision containing grants and loans for those who can show they have lost jobs or business because of imports.

The Virginian said he is concerned about this provision because he thinks:

- 1 It would set up a double standard of unemployment compensation payments, with workers affected by imports getting larger checks for a longer period than those who lose jobs because of domestic factors.
- 2 It could bring renewed pressure to federalize the unemployment compensation system — set federal standards for size and duration of payments which all states would have to meet.

Byrd said also that many large textile manufacturers who originally favored the bill have now switched, adding that they advised him they believe the White House had not carried out a commitment made to them.

The senator said the industry understood the commitment to be that the United States would quit selling raw cotton to Japanese companies at 8 cents a pound under the price which American firms must pay. This differential is a subsidy paid to U.S. growers to help get rid of surplus cotton production.

Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., second Republican in seniority on the committee, said in a separate interview he would vote to knock out the trade-adjustment aid.

But, aside from this special relief provision, most senators on the committee said they expect the final version to contain a broad new authority Kennedy seeks on tariffs.

The bill would give him power to reduce all present duties up to 50 per cent. An unprecedented provision in the bill would allow the chief executive to wipe out entirely tariffs on items on which this country and Western Europe dominate world markets.

Kennedy says he needs this power to negotiate an even terms with the European Common Market, and finance committee members generally appear to agree with him.

Aside from the trade-adjustment provision, most concern in the committee has centered on the problem of trying to assure that U.S. farm products are not excluded from the Common Market.

Carlson said he and other committee members are seeking to find language to give the President authority to deal with this matter, but so far have not determined what can be done.

The Kansan said he fears that, if Great Britain is admitted to the Common Market, it will be able to obtain special provisions for its commonwealth partners under which they will displace American farm product sales in Western Europe.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., another member of the committee, said he considers the trade-adjustment section essential to the bill.

"We would not need this if we had been able to get a good unemployment compensation program with national standards," said the Minnesotan. "But, failing that, I think it must be retained."

MOLLI HARTZOG
Today is the day all the officers wives at Webb turn out in their Sunday bibs and tuckers, and what a day it will be. From 3 until 4:30 p.m. they will attend a tea at the Officers Club to meet Mrs. Rex Fryer and Mrs. George Franks, wives of the deputy commander and M. and S. commander, respectively. Following that, there is to be cocktail hour in the Aqua Vista Room. Then Wing wives have a dinner party, after which the Tiki Room special buffet will be served from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. Also at the Officers Club will be O'Neill's All Star Revue and dancing until 2 a.m. in the ballroom, rounding out the festivities. Monday is really going to be an anticlimax this week.

Among the farewell events this week, a coffee was given by P. T. Group Hq. for Mrs. Cookley and Mrs. B. Lewis. The dessert table was graced by a mixed arrangement of zinnias in a white and blue bowl. White and blue napkins carried out the color scheme against a white cloth. The departing honorees received crystal and silver salad bowls, with silver servers to match. Mrs. Cookley's next home will be in Japan, while Mrs. Lewis leaves soon for Randolph AFB.

The home of Mrs. Robert Cepholis was the scene for a small informal gathering Monday evening honoring Mrs. John Tillander, also leaving for Randolph. As a farewell gift, Mrs. Tillander was presented with an infant seat for the youngest Tillander who is soon to arrive. After the gift opening, guests gathered around for a sugar frosted chocolate cake filled with ice cream. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Basden entertained guests on the evening of the 27th at a farewell party for Father Howard, Catholic chaplain for Webb soon to leave for Washington D. C. Also guests of honor were Capt. and Mrs. Ron Austin who depart Webb in August for Fort Worth. Mrs. Austin has had Miss Jacqueline Travers, her sister from Long Island, visiting her. Also a visitor, much to her consternation, is one wee-small baby sparrow, previous resident of a tree in her front yard. The bird was rescued after a fall and now considers himself a fortunate free-loader in the Austin household, disdaining all but canary seed and milk. Current plans have him lined up as a departing gift for Miss Travers.

Visiting at Webb this week were Mrs. William Egel and her daughter Carolann from New York City, guests of Lt. and Mrs. Robert Egel; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn H. Seidel from Princeton, Ill., who arrived after a cool and leisurely drive through Colorado to stay with Lt. and Mrs. Ray Seidel; Mrs. Kenneth Hales from Steubenville, Ohio, who is the mother and houseguest of Lt. William Hales; and Mrs. Richard Turner, sister of Lt. William Holcombe. Mrs. Turner is at Webb especially to meet her young niece and namesake who was born three weeks ago at Webb AFB Hospital.

Just returned from a trip to Boston are Capt. and Mrs. Ken Somers. While in the northeast they rented a beach cottage at Cape Cod and drifted through a sunny week eating lobster until it came out of their ears, according to Mrs. Somers. Then to top off a gourmet leave, they returned to Webb by way of Mrs. Somers' family home in Lake Charles, La., where they spent three days enjoying old-fashioned Creole cooking.

Miss Laurie Butera celebrated her sixth birthday with a traditional pink and white party recently. About 12 guests attended and partook of the ice cream, lollipops, bubble gum, and ballerina-crowned cake. Immediately thereafter one guest departed with a fist full of gum and a terse goodbye. The other 11 youngsters remained to play with the new toys and to admire Miss Butera's new pink cotton dress with the rows of lace down the front, designed and sewn by her mother, Mrs. Larry Butera. On hand to assist with the serving were Mrs. Max Odie and Mrs. Joe Matthews.

Like Big Spring

Clarks Hope To Make Permanent Home Here

After teaching high school math for seven years, Melvin Clark moved into the field of management. He is the new credit manager at the Montgomery Ward store. Although he enjoyed teaching school, Clark believes that there is a better chance for advancement in the business world.

With his attractive wife and three children, he moved to Big Spring two weeks ago from Denver City, where they lived for one year. Prior to that, the Clarks lived in southern Louisiana for nine years. The children are nine-year-old Toni Lynn, eight-year-old Rhonda Carol, and five-year-old Chet Toni and Rhonda fourth and third graders, respectively. They are making friends with the neighborhood children and looking forward to attending College Heights school. Chet is anticipating enrollment in kindergarten this fall.

The Clarks, a closely-knit family live at 1807 Young. Considering the purchase of a new home here, they spend some of their leisure time looking at houses and are hoping to be permanent residents. Big Spring seems large and advantageous to the Clarks after their Denver City sojourn. They are impressed with the hospitality of the downtown merchants and other town-people with whom they have come in contact. They noted that the shopping centers and the outward appearance of the schools meet their expectations. Clark said that during their first week here, the Herald edition on outdoor living served as an introduction to the local recreation areas for himself and his family during the summer. They all enjoy going to the lakes, golfing, water-skiing and fishing.

Social work and recreation are of importance to the Clarks. Also, he is a bird-hunting enthusiast, looking forward to the quail and dove seasons.

Mrs. Clark says that when she is not tending to her favorite hobbies, her family and home, she enjoys doing oil painting. She is active in the Beta Sigma Phi sorority and participates in charity work when possible.

Clark is a graduate of Northwestern State College in Natchitoches, La., where he majored in both business and math. While he was serving duty in the U. S. Air Force at Pyote Air Force Base, he met Mrs. Clark, a native of Comanche. She attended Comanche High School.

Members of the Mormon church, the Clarks plan to attend the new point on the old San Angelo highway.

Trees Tagged As Lures For Lightning

That tall, old specimen tree—perhaps your favorite arboreal pet—may be just the one that lightning will strike this summer, unless it is protected.

Height above all else tags trees as lightning bait. But despite such folklore as "oaks draw bolts," there is no scientific evidence that one kind of tree is more likely to be struck than another. Experience indicates no trees are immune from Nature's pyrotechnics. Summer lightning storms result in the loss of thousands of valuable shade and ornamental trees annually.

In practice the same procedure is used in protecting trees as is employed in protecting homes, buildings and other structures. In fact, a properly rodged tree in the right place can protect your home, too.

Lightning damage is caused by the searing heat which literally cooks the living cells and ruptures tissues as the trees' moisture suddenly turns to steam. Often the only visible damage may be a bark furrow on the outside. Yet death may follow. Favorite victims are trees with their branches high in the air and its roots spread deeply in moist soil.

If you do have an unprotected tree hit, give first aid by removing all damaged portions and dangerous splinters. But withhold further immediate remedial treatment. Wait until the next growing season—this because there is no accurate method of determining the extent of root damage following a lightning stroke.

The Sam McCombs are receiving reports from their daughter, Sappie, in Peace Corps training at Arecibo, Puerto Rico.

The country around Arecibo is humid and beautiful according to Miss McComb. The food is good, and water is safe to drink at the camp.

Farming Is Not New To Mrs. Brindley Now

By PATSY BRAZIER

Managing a 320-acre cotton farm southwest of Big Spring and a 320-acre wheat and barley farm in Montana is a man-sized job in the capable hands of Mrs. Earnest Brindley. However, such an undertaking is not new to Mrs. Brindley, who when a young lady went from Texas to Montana to homestead her land. This was back in the year 1911 when she settled on a piece of land six miles from the Canadian border, adjoining the land homesteaded by her brother, Ed Reagan. When she wanted to go to town, she traveled 20 miles by covered wagon and by horseback to Cut Bank.

For three winters, one with a 50 below zero mercury reading, and three hot summers she worked the land until she was granted a deed by President Woodrow Wilson.

After moving back to Texas, she married Edward Brindley, a passenger conductor on a Fort Worth railroad. In 1933 Mr. and Mrs. Brindley bought land nine miles southwest of Big Spring and started their cotton farm with six old mules, a few young ones, a couple of Mexican farm hands, and the advice of a neighbor.

Don't Fence Me In

Mrs. Earnest Brindley looks out on lots of land which stretches in all directions from her farm home nine miles southwest of Big Spring. The cotton farm, started 50 years ago by Mrs. Brindley, is still under her management.

a day during the winter months. Now, she owns a lovely colonial farm home boasting all the conveniences of nearby Big Spring dwellings.

Mrs. Brindley still has the urge to get out in the dirt and dig. She doesn't raise chickens and turkeys anymore, but when it comes time for wheat harvest and cotton picking, Mrs. Brindley, along with her foreman, supervises the work. She makes annual trips to Montana during harvest season, and has a hand in cutting the wheat and barley and storing the grain in elevators. A new cotton stripper will relieve her of many activities in the fields this cotton season.

Mrs. Brindley is a director of the Altrusa Club of Big Spring and is the founder of the Eastern Star in Cut Bank, Mont.

Her Hobby Is Horses

MONTREAL, P.—When the family doctor prescribed a change of hobby, or Celia Moorhouse, Celia changed doctors instead.

His medical tests had uncovered an allergy to horses, and says the 28-year-old equestrienne, "I'm sure if I had taken his advice and given up riding, I would have been much more unhappy than any allergy could have made me."

Fortified by another doctor's weekly anti-allergy shots, by hard work and by a host of horse-loving friends, she is still pursuing her hobby, a five-year-old former harness racer, named Toby, Herbert.

Her only regret is that his upkeep on a home-estate stable behind the Moorhouses' suburban home—makes such a large dent in her salary as clerk in a chemical company.

"It's not blankets, it's shoes," she says. "This year I had to pay $27 to have Toby re-shod. I never spent $27 on a pair of shoes in my life."

Big Attendance Reported For Old Settlers Reunion

Some 2,500 pounds of beef and 30 goats disappeared quickly as an estimated 2,500-3,000 persons went through the dinner lines at the 38th annual Howard-Glasscock Old Settlers Reunion Friday. Although only 996 persons registered for the affair, many unregistered showed up to help cut off the barbecue, beans, son-of-a-gun stew and all the trimmings of a genuine West Texas dinner. The sun shown most of the day, taking a breather to cool off with an overcast during the fiddling contests. Fifteen contestants treated crowds gathered under the pavilion shade to a variety of waltzes, hoedowns and plain old championship fiddling. Five old timers from Howard and Glasscock counties entered the first contest. E. H. Moore, 56, Big Spring, won first prize of $25. R. P. Luce, 72, Big Spring, took second place money of $13 and H. L. McCormick, 59, also of Big Spring, was awarded $10 for third prize. Others in the contest were B. F. Logan, 84, Big Spring, and Tom Castle, 72, Knott. Archie Simmons, 65, Odessa, took the $15 first prize in the open fiddlers' contest. Charlie Neel, 63, Lorraine, took the $10 second place money. Others making their plays for the money were M. T. Mitchell, 83, Stanton; Tommie Neel, 61, Colorado City; Perry Geurin, 40, Lenora; J. A. Thompson, 71, Ira, and D. B. Longley, 82, Andrews.

The top three winners of the first contest also took part in the open competition. Judges were Texas Shorty, world's champion fiddler, Sam Fitts and Sam Roberts.

Mrs. J. M. Morgan, whose husband was a masonry contractor here for many years, at the age of 90 turned out to be the oldest person present. Mrs. Edward W. Bauer, Quincy, Mass., came the farthest distance for the reunion.

After a brief interlude to allow participants in the celebration to freshen up, the gaiety resumed in full swing Friday night with a dance at the pavilion. The dance floor became crowded quickly and many others stood on the sidelines and outside the enclosed area listening to the music of Texas Shorty and the band. Some 134 couples purchased tickets for the dance, which closed out the day's activities. Cecil Long was elected vice president during the afternoon. President Jess Slaughter and Mrs. Earl Wilson, secretary-treasurer, have another year to serve on their terms.

Volunteer Advisory Committee Meets

Recruitment by committee members and setting dates for future activities will come up for discussion at the next scheduled meeting of the Veterans Administration Voluntary Service Advisory Committee meeting. It is slated for 3 p.m. Thursday in the Hospital Director's Conference Room at the local VA Hospital. Recommendations on activities and recruitment will be made by a subcommittee.

Just Depends On Where You Eat It

The Texas Restaurant Association in a bulletin to its members, answers some questions which have been asked about that portion of the general sales tax law dealing with meals served for human consumption.

Basically, a food served is taxable if there are facilities near or adjacent to the establishment where the customer can see the food, tables, chairs, counters and stools, trays, glasses, dishes or tableware are considered such facilities. Also, if the products are served by attendants, carhops, car hostesses, etc., they are taxable. A parking lot alone does not constitute a facility.

Regarding food ordered "to-go" if there are no facilities available for eating the food, the articles are not taxable. If items are sold from separate "take-out" facilities or departments, they are not subject to the sales tax. However, if the customer must come inside a restaurant or drive in where such facilities are available, the tax must be charged.

A park concessionaire, where tables and benches are a part of park equipment, is subject to the tax unless the benches and tables are not adjacent to the stand.

Food, ice cream or other products sold from a vehicle are taxable. However, food ordered and delivered to the home by a delivery truck or other delivery service is not taxable.

Food and drinks served by a caterer for on or off-premise consumption have been ruled taxable. The same holds true for food and drinks sold by vendors at public gatherings such as sporting events.

After six months of active duty training, where he will be schooled in physical fitness, military courtesy, first aid and drill with the M-1 rifle, he will drill with his Big Spring Guard unit.

The "Take Six" program consists of two phases of sixes, a division spokesman explained. Under the program, a young man may volunteer for six months active duty with the U. S. Army and then spend the remainder of his six-year military obligation as a member of the Texas National Guard.

Street Improvement Program Reported

Fifty-five blocks of streets on the North Side and 15 blocks on the South Side in Big Spring have received a four-inch asphalt stabilization treatment under the street improvement program inaugurated in 1961 and being carried into 1962. Thirty-four blocks of these stabilized streets are due for a one-shot seal coat and this program is about complete, Bruce Dunn, director of public works, toled the Big Spring City Commission at the last meeting.

Forty blocks of paved streets are due for one-shot seal coating this year, he said. Ten more blocks will be completed if possible. We will also complete some eight blocks of rock and concrete rip rap to prevent erosion and washouts.

Twenty blocks of alley improvement and stabilization are also included in this year's program.

Intersection Gets Signal Activators

The traffic light, at East Sixth and State, is getting the same treatment recently given the East Sixth and Goliad light. Roy Rogan, city electrician, is installing pressure activators in Sixth street to change the normally red signal to green for Sixth street traffic.

For the past year the light has been operating on normal red and green cycles during heavy traffic hours and then placed on blinker status, with Sixth street traffic getting the red blinker.

The light will normally be on green facing State street traffic, but will be changed to green for Sixth when vehicles pass over the activators.

Two Trainees Work With Local SCS

Two Soil Conservation trainees have begun a six-month tour with the local Soil Conservation Service. At the end of their training periods, one will remain here as a permanent staff member.

Monty Sowers, 22, from Graham, will become a member of the staff here, according to Ben Day, work unit conservationist. He is a May graduate of East Texas State, with a bachelor's degree in technical agriculture.

The other trainee is Edward Manning, 25, formerly of Round Rock. He graduated from Texas A&M College in July with a bachelor's degree in agricultural engineering.

Both men worked previously with the Soil Conservation Service during summers. Sowers spent one summer with the unit at Graham, and Manning worked at Liberty and Bryan.

Sowers graduated from Newcastle High School and attended Tarleton State College at Stephenville before going to East Texas State. He spent the summer of 1957 here with relatives. They have since moved away. He attends the First Baptist Church.

The Mannings live on Route 1. They have three children: Stephen is five, Teresa three, and Linda two.

Among his hobbies, Manning lists flying. He is a licensed pilot, but to date is not a member of the local flying club. He is also active in the Knights of Columbus. He attends the Catholic Church.

Vaccine Snub Ends In Death

HOUSTON (AP)—An iron worker who decided adults did not need polio shots is Harris County's first polio death since 1959. He died in an iron lung Thursday.

Graydon Cooke, 38, was completely paralyzed by polio. He contacted the disease June 21.

His widow and four children survive.

"Back last fall," his widow Mrs. Jimmie Cooke said, "Graydon insisted that the children and I take the Salk shots. I told him he ought to have them too and he said, 'No you and the children take them. It's not necessary for me. Adults don't get it'."

DEAR ABBY

Words Not Important

DEAR ABBY: Our 20-year-old daughter is very serious about a 22-year-old boy. The boy has a good character and we approve of him in every way except one. He is constantly calling our daughter "knucklehead, idiot, birdbrain and numbskull." I suppose he is only teasing her, but it rubs me the wrong way. I feel if they got married it would continue and maybe get worse. He treats her very well and seems to be very considerate of her feelings in all other ways. What is your opinion?

CONCERNED MOTHER
DEAR CONCERNED: If it doesn't bother your daughter, don't let it bother you. Better this way than to have him call her "darling, sweetheart and honey," and mistreat her.

DEAR ABBY: Is it proper for a mother to open the letters her 17-year-old daughter receives from her fiancé in the service? I know many servicemen who have the same problem.

"A LONG WAY FROM HOME"
DEAR LONG WAY: ALL mail is the private property of the person to whom it is addressed—and the government postal authorities will back me up on this. If, after the letter is received, the daughter wishes to share it with her mother, that's her business, but no one has the right to open another's mail.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your column about drop-in visits from the clergy. A discussion of the hospital visit may also be in order. Since clergymen are not restricted to regular visiting hours, many of them drop in whenever it is convenient for them, without considering whether it is convenient for the patient or the staff. Unexpected visits, especially from the clergy, may upset the patient. I think it would be a good idea if the family of the patient advised the clergyman when to visit the patient, if indeed the patient wishes him to visit at all.

MORRIS TELLER, (Rabbi), Chicago, Illinois

CONFIDENTIAL TO GETTING

MARRIED: The ceremony will be over in an hour, but the hurt could last a lifetime. Ask your sister to be your maid-of-honor.

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of the Big Spring Herald.

For Abby's booklet "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3363, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Bond Sales Reach Half Of Goal

Sales of Series E and H Savings bonds had reached 54.5 per cent of the 1962 goal in Howard County at the end of June, according to figures released by County Chairman Robert W. Currie.

June sales of $53,324 brought the year's total to $403,399, compared with the 1962 goal of $740,000.

District 5, including eight counties, has reached 49.3 of its goal, with Martin County registering 171.4 per cent for the highest. Martin County's goal is $40,000 and bonds sold totaled $68,569 through June.

Clean-Up, Fix-Up Campaign Moving

A street department crew has been assigned the task of repairing broken curbs at street corners in Big Spring. Bruce Dunn, director of public works, said this week. Another crew is cutting weeds and cleaning up behind curbs over the city.

"The new street sweeper has been busy 15 hours a day since it came in," Dunn said, "and is keeping the streets clean except where overflow water has deposited silt in big amounts. These are scraped up and hauled off as fast as we can get to them."

"The brooms have already been worn thin on the sweeper but will be replaced with steel as soon as possible to insure continuous work," he continued.

Dunn said several curbs have been broken or cracked where hit by heavy vehicles but that these are being rebuilt as fast as possible. Damaged sidewalks, between curb and regular sidewalks, are also being replaced.

City Manager Larry Crow has instructed Fire Marshal A. D. Meador to check on property in the city where weeds and rubbish have been allowed to grow or accumulate, causing unsanitary conditions or fire hazards and to take appropriate action to have them cleaned up.

Under city ordinance, lots may be ordered cleaned by the city and if property owners fail to clean them the cost of cleaning may be assessed against the property.

"An unsightly condition was called to the commission's attention last Tuesday night," Crow said, "and something must be done about it, along with other lots where weeds are allowed to grow."
