CORRECTION OF TRAJECTORY TO BE TRIED

Off-Course Mariner 2 Speeds Toward Planet Venus

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—An off-course Mariner 2 spacecraft is expected to speed toward planet Venus today on a 169-day trip to explore the planet. Despite a severe trajectory error, scientists were hopeful they could correct most of it by remote signals to an on-board motor.

Improper rocket performance released the 447-pound spacecraft on a course that, if followed, would cause it to miss Venus by more than 600,000 miles when the two make their closest approach Dec. 14.

This is far from the 10,000-mile distant fly-by that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration had planned.

Just how much the spacecraft can be commanded back to a Venus rendezvous course will not be known until more precise tracking information is available. This may be several days.

Jack James, Mariner manager for NASA's jet propulsion laboratory, said the on-board motor has the capability of making a 500,000 mile correction depending on the position of the spacecraft.

This would mean Mariner 2 could be jockeyed onto a path to pass within 100,000 miles of Venus—too great a range for its sensitive instruments to do much probing beneath Venus' heavy blanket of clouds.

But there was a chance refined tracking data might show the present course to be less than 600,000 miles off and that the probe therefore could pass closer to the mysterious bright planet. James said to be any value in exploring Venus, Mariner 2 would have to approach within 25,000 miles on the sunlit side. He said important data would be gained about interplanetary space between Earth and Venus even if the craft missed by a greater distance, but the main goal of the experiment would be lost.

The key to straightening Mariner 2's trajectory is a 37.3-pound motor which will be fired by ground radio signal eight days after launching when tracking computers have precisely defined the spacecraft's position, attitude and velocity. Then the vehicle will be more than one million miles away from Earth on its intended 180 million mile junket past Venus and into endless orbit about the sun.

Mariner 2 blasted away from Cape Canaveral at 1:53 a.m. atop a powerful Atlas-Agena B rocket. Just an hour later the rocket injected the spacecraft on an interplanetary trajectory.

ROLLING SUSPECTED

The exact reason for the spacecraft being off course in its early stages was not immediately known. But officials suspected that an abnormal rolling motion in the first stage Atlas rocket might have affected its trajectory. The rolling motion occurred for about 50 seconds of the five-minute Atlas flight.

A statement released by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration five hours after the launch said:

"Early tracking data from Mariner 2 indicates that the spacecraft will pass Venus by not more than 600,000 miles sometime in the second week in December. Because of incomplete early tracking data it is not now possible to refine this figure to a great accuracy.

"However, the midcourse motor on Mariner 2 may be capable of correcting this mis-distance to bring the spacecraft considerably closer to Venus."

Although Mariner 2 was released into space at a speed of 25,500 miles an hour, it gradually began to slow down as planned for the long haul on the 169-day, 180-million-mile journey that is supposed to take it within 10,000 miles of the sunlit side of Venus Dec. 14.

FUTURE EFFECTS

Jack James, Mariner project manager for NASA's jet propulsion laboratory, said rolling might have damaged other instruments in the spacecraft which might affect its operation in the coming weeks.

"The spacecraft was not designed for severe buffeting," he said.

"We probably won't know until Dec. 14 whether the mission is a complete success."

Shortly after the 447-pound payload was carried aloft NASA officials said both stages of the Atlas-Agena rocket appeared to have fired properly.

An hour after the 10-story tall rocket and spacecraft lifted off, the tracking station at Woomera, Australia, picked up its signals and confirmed that its 16½-foot span solar panels had unfolded properly. The panels collect the sun's rays and convert them to energy to run the spacecraft's batteries.

If Mariner 2 works as planned it will take the first close-up look at secrets which the bright planet conceals beneath a perpetual blanket of surrounding clouds.

SOLAR MYSTERY

It could help solve one of the most puzzling mysteries of the solar system. Can life as we know it exist on Venus? Most scientists doubt that life exists there because of steaming temperatures near the surface.

En route to Venus, Mariner 2 is to make the most comprehensive exploration yet attempted of interplanetary space.

Even though the early stages of flight were successful, the gold-and-silver-coated spacecraft has many hurdles to clear—such as temperature variations and radiation effects—as it zips along through the dangerous unknowns of space.

Another big question mark was how well it would send back information across great distances. America's Pioneer V sun satellite now holds the record, having

Getting Acquainted

Four elementary school teachers new to the Big Spring system were among 45 new teachers attending a coffee party at an orientation session this morning at the Dora Roberts Student Union Building. They are from left, Mrs. S. M. McGarrity, third grade, Cedar Crest; Mrs. W. T. Barefoot, first grade, Airport; Mrs. Buford Pitts, third grade, College Heights; Mrs. W. F. Cockrell, fifth grade, Marcy.

Teaching Is A Profession, New Instructors Are Told

"I am convinced that teaching is a profession and is becoming more so every year," Sam Anderson, superintendent of the Big Spring Independent School District, told some 70 teachers in the annual orientation meeting for new teachers this morning.

Anderson spoke on "The Teaching Profession" in the Dora Roberts Student Union Building at Howard County Junior College. "Some insist," he said, "that teaching is only a job or a vocation in the service field, but I believe it has become a profession because its service has become so essential that it has become extended to all the people. This is one of the criteria of a profession."

Forty-five new teachers were introduced by Anderson, who presided at College Heights and superintendent emeritus, gave the invocation. A get-acquainted coffee was held prior to the meeting, from 10 to 10:30 a.m.

William Dawes, principal of Marcy Elementary School, talked to the group of new citizens on "Big Spring Where It Is, and How It Got That Way."

You have shown remarkable astuteness in choosing Big Spring as your home," he said. "Big Spring has become as it is because of people who have come to it. Two kinds of people have come, those who want to mine it and those who want to cultivate it. I hope that you will cultivate it."

What's a Principal Good For Anyway? was the topic of Mrs. Ruth Rutherford's speech. Mrs. Rutherford, principal of Park Hill and Cedar Crest elementary schools, said, "The main function of a principal is the act as instructional leader in his school. In addition, he must give his teachers a feeling of belonging, as well as recognizing his staff's talents and putting them to use. A major job of a school principal is to keep up with and try new trends in education."

E. S. Murphy, assistant superintendent of business, spoke briefly on "The Business Aspect of Teaching," and Sebron B. Williams, assistant superintendent of instruction introduced special service personnel.

After a lunch break, a general faculty meeting for all teachers was to begin at 2 p.m., with Williams presiding. Maj. Benjamin Meacham, Chaplain, Webb Air Force Base and president of the Big Spring Pastors' Association, was to give the invocation.

Greetings to the teachers were to be delivered by Clyde McManon, president of the board of education. George Zachariah, mayor of Big Spring; Roy Reeder, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Col. Wilson Banks, commander of Webb Air Force Base; Mrs. Dwight B. McCann, president of the City Council of the P.T.A.; and Ben Johnson, dean of Howard County Junior College.

Supt. Anderson was to introduce other platform guests. R. W. Whipkey, publisher of the Herald, was to deliver the main address. "A Newspaper Editor Looks at Education." A faculty business meeting was to begin at 3:30 p.m.

Reds Call It 'War Stimulus'

GENEVA (AP)—Britain and the United States today proposed a treaty for an unpoliced ban on nuclear tests in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space—and the Soviet Union immediately turned a cold shoulder on the idea.

The Western powers proposed to continue working for a treaty to ban tests in all environments—but with provisions for international on-site inspection of suspicious tremors which might indicate underground tests.

Less than two hours after the West offered the partial ban at the 17-nation disarmament conference, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov turned thumbs down.

Kuznetsov told the meeting he would study the Western draft treaty for a partial ban excluding underground tests. But his subsequent remarks left no doubt his government would reject it.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean presented the Western proposal at the 7th session of the 17-nation disarmament conference.

SECOND VERSION

Dean also put before the conference a second British-American draft treaty to ban tests in all environments for all time.

Dean said that this draft includes ideas expressed by the neutralist delegations at the Geneva conference and takes account of improved Western methods of detecting underground explosions. But he stressed it also provides for international inspection on the site of a suspicious earth tremor, a provision that as-

Intruder Beats, Robs Local Elderly Couple

Stanley Williams, 90, 511 N. Benton, is in Howard County Hospital Foundation with serious injuries following an assault by an unidentified man Sunday night. His wife, Mrs. Aggie Williams, 84, is suffering from shock and minor injuries also received during the assault.

Williams was in critical condition Monday morning.

Williams was attacked about 10 p.m. Sunday by a man wielding a rifle. Police Patrolmen Graden Howell and Bob Broughton found the man in a pool of blood on his front porch when Mrs. Williams summoned them. Her account of the attack was hazy because of her condition, but officers were able to piece together a part of what occurred.

She said, according to police, that her husband had gone to bed at 10 p.m. and that as she went to lock the front door, a man carrying a rifle forced the door open and demanded money. Williams heard the commotion, police report, and came into the room. The intruder knocked him down with the rifle.

Mrs. Williams told police the man struck her husband several times, knocking him around the room and finally out on the front porch. She attempted to stop the man and said he struck her several times with the rifle, still demanding money. She then got what money there was in the house—around $40—gave it to the man and he left.

Officers are waiting for Mrs. Williams to recover enough to give them a better description or possible identification.

Soviets Blamed For Wall Incidents

MOSCOW (AP)—The United States in a note today held the Soviet Union responsible for shooting and disorders along the Berlin wall and again invited it to a four-power conference to deal with the problem.

Friends of the high school Bible Fund continued with help this morning, $40—but the total of unsolicited gifts was still short of the $2,000 mark and a long way from the $3,600 objective.

Public funds may not be used for this class, which draws a large part of its financing from residents who believe it deserves support. With school reopening this week, the appeal needs big steps to reach its goal.

CHINA DUE ATOM TEST THIS YEAR

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Disarmament Agency officials expressed belief today that Communist China probably will set off a nuclear explosion within a matter of months.

They made the estimate in explaining the urgency which lies behind the latest U.S.-British proposal for a limited treaty banning tests of nuclear weapons in the atmosphere, outer space and under water.

Under terms of the treaty, the Soviet Union, U.S., Britain and France would agree to refrain from causing, encouraging, or in any way participating in, nuclear weapons test explosions in other countries.

Over a period of years, it is estimated that at least 20 countries not now possessing nuclear capability will be able to develop nuclear devices. This does not mean, however, that they will be able to deliver such weapons without technical advice and the industrial strength needed to produce costly and highly sophisticated missiles.

Thus the proposed pact would at least put the brakes on development and trial by the Chinese of the means to put their weapons on target.

Well Scandal Is 'Big Scale'

DALLAS (AP)—The attorney for the Texas House Investigating Committee said today that the slant-well scandals cloud the entire system of oil and gas regulation.

The statement was made by David Witts as a committee probe into slant well drilling began here in a tiny, crowded courtroom.

The committee scheduled William J. Murray, head of the Railroad Commission, as its first witness, to be followed by Atty. Gen. Will Wilson.

Witts made an opening statement saying, "Recent revelations of the production of illegal oil on a huge scale by means of crooked wells, with the possible involvement of public officials, have brought into question the entire system of regulation of the state oil and gas industry."

Wilson and the railroad commission have been inquiring into slant well drilling since April.

Some wells have been found slanted 60 degrees from vertical. Legal deviation is 3 degrees.

LEGAL QUESTION

Fred Erisman Longview lawyer for 23 of the 107 oil operators under subpoena for the hearing, indicated the attitude of the committee may determine how much cooperation it gets from the witnesses.

"We don't intend to be obstructive in any way," he said to newsmen. But he said there is a very serious constitutional law question involved in the committee's actions.

My clients have been subjected to all kinds of adverse publicity and held up as thieves. Nevertheless, we intend to cooperate as much as we can."

The roll of witnesses was called, and 45 said they were represented by lawyers and 9 said they were not. Lawyers for six others gave reasons for their absence. Presumably others of the 107 had not been served with subpoenas.

Rep. Charles Ballman, committee chairman, said there would be at least three days of testimony.

KEY TO SECRET OF LIFE IS TURNED

Scientist Creates Test-Tube Viruses From Non-Living Matter

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—A Utah scientist has succeeded in making infectious viruses out of inert chemicals for the first time, it was reported here today.

Does this mean that life has been formed in a test tube?

"If viruses are considered to be living objects, then the answer is yes," said Dr. George W. Cochran, who described his experiments at a scientific meeting here.

However, he said the most significant result was that by producing viruses apart from a living cell, the virus-formation process could be studied more closely in seeking counter-weapons.

"It permits for the first time an understanding of the biochemical of the virus-forming process itself," he said in an interview.

"We can now examine it in great detail, and very accurately, and should be able to select chemicals to interrupt it."

Viruses are tiny agents which cause disease in men, plants and animals. In men, they cause colds, polio, measles, chickenpox, yellow fever, sleeping sickness and various other diseases.

There have been indications they may cause some forms of cancer. They cause world economic losses estimated at a billion dollars annually.

They are smaller than bacteria, so small they can be seen only with an electron microscope magnifying 10,000 to 200,000 times. They exist on an obscure borderline between living and nonliving matter, possibly a link between them.

It was noted, in Dr. Cochran's experiments, that the building of the virus structure was not entirely man-directed.

The code that guided the complex combination of chemicals to form the viruses was derived from a molecule with no living properties, taken from an infected plant. It was the command mechanism or pattern that organized the raw chemicals introduced by the researchers into the thread-like virus.

"It zipped them together like the zipper on a valve," he said.

Dr. Cochran, a plant pathologist at Utah State University, heads a research team there supported partially by grants from the National Institutes of Health and the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

"Viruses have never been produced before outside of a living cell," he said, noting that viruses often have been reproduced in test tubes by adding them to living cells, as in nature.

However, he said, the virus-forming operation was impossible to study clearly under such conditions, since it was mixed up with thousands of other biochemical reactions going on in the cell.

Separating the virus-formation process from the great biochemical complexity of living cells, he said, "places it in a more simple environment" for investigating it and finding means to control it.

"Our work should open entirely new vistas in virology and medicine, bringing us ever closer to an understanding of the nature of life itself," he said.

His technical report was for a meeting of the American Phytopathological Society at Oregon State University as part of sessions of the American Institute of Biological Sciences.

In producing viruses outside living cells, Cochran's team used four chemicals—triphosphates of adenosine, guanosine, cytosine and uridine—elements generally assumed before to make up viruses.

Finding the key to put them together in the exact way to form viruses was the hurdle. Essentially the virus is a complex chain of chemicals linked so as to form a particular nucleic acid that makes up the virus, Cochran said.

As the genetic guide for arranging or synthesizing the chemicals, Cochran's team took some juice from a tobacco plant infected with tobacco mosaic virus, and filtered it through an agar jelly filter to remove life cells and interfering elements.

"Synthesizing molecules," containing the secret formula for assembling the chemicals into viruses, were thus extracted. He said the molecule guides could be used over and over again to make more viruses.

With one molecule mechanism, about 100 billion new virus units could be turned out in less than 30 minutes, he said. In some cases the chemicals were made radioactive so the resulting radioactive viruses could be observed more easily.

Pilot Critically Hurt In Crash

STANTON (SC)—Robert E. Choate, owner of the Choate Flying Service, is in Midland Memorial Hospital with critical injuries following an airplane crash in Martin County this morning.

There were no witnesses to the crash, but officials believe Choate's plane struck a pole or guy wire while in flight. The plane caught fire and is a total wreck.

Choate was dusting cotton on the Houston Woody ranch, about 20 miles northwest of Stanton, when the mishap occurred about 10:15 a.m. He was alone in the aircraft.

The injured man was taken to the hospital in a car driven by D. Glendinning, with an Arrington Funeral Home coach acting as an escort. Deputy Sheriff Clarence Arrhart said Choate's condition was too serious to risk moving him into the ambulance.

DEAR ABBY

Take The Nearest Exit

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a man who is old enough to be my father, but who has shown more than a fatherly interest in me. Besides, he is married. I am a waitress and he is my boss. When I started to work here he gave me some very good advice on how to handle myself and I appreciated it. I noticed later that every chance he had to talk to me he got on the subject of "sex." I always changed the subject but he managed to get back on it again.

He even asked me some VERY personal questions about myself, which I answered truthfully because I am a nice girl and didn't see any reason to hide it. I am getting uncomfortable around him because he gets on the sex subject all the time. Do you think he has evil intentions? How should I guide myself?

A NICE GIRL
DEAR NICE GIRL: Guide yourself out the door and find another job. A man knows his chances are good as long as he can get a girl to talk or think about sex. (And his chances keep improving if she doesn't get him off it.) Take a big tip from me and quit while you're ahead.

DEAR ABBY: My future husband and I were making plans the other night and want to know what you think. We are both horse crazy and so are most of our friends. Even my mother is a good Western rider. We can't afford a big church wedding, so what do you think about getting married on horseback? We could have Western music. My fiancé said as much as he likes the horseback idea he kind of wanted to have me married in a gown, but you can't very well combine the two, can you? I don't suppose many people have heard about a wedding of this kind, but we know people who have done it and it worked out fine.

HORSE CRAZY
DEAR CRAZY: If you can find a galloping clergyman, go ahead and have your Western wedding—and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I am 35 and have just received my FOURTH divorce. Every woman I married was older than I. The last one was 14 years older but no one knew it. I seem to get hooked by the same kind of selfish, domineering bossy type woman every time. All I want is someone who will love me, take care of me and think of me before herself. Is that asking too much? Show me a girl under 35 with those qualifications and I'll marry her.

FOUR-TIME LOSER
DEAR LOSER: You don't want a wife—you want a mother. When you start to think in terms of what you can GIVE a woman instead of what you can GET, you'll be a man, my son. And only then can you expect a successful marriage. But not until.

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of The Big Spring Herald.

EASY AND HARD

By T. H. Tarbet, preacher
Church of Christ, 300 West Highway 80
P.O. Box 1280

It is hard to be a faithful Christian. "And there went great multitudes with him: and he turned and said unto them, If any man come to me and hate not his father and mother and wife and children and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple." (Luke 14:25-27). The Christian life is hard to live—hard; yet it is easy. It is a burden; but a light burden. It is a yoke; but it is easy to bear. Jesus promises he will provide a

State Was Looking
Bad Before Rains

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Scattered light to excellent rains in most of Texas during the week-end gave hope for revival of pastures and ranges in parts of Texas after a lengthy drought.

Before the rains, moisture remained at a critical level over most of the state, said John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, basing his survey on district agent reports before the rains. Hutchison said the cotton, corn and grain sorghum harvests were in high gear and the shipment of livestock from parched ranges increased. South Texas farmers prepared for the fall planting. Panhandle and High Plains producers prepared to harvest ripening crops.

District agents reported: Moisture in the Panhandle is adequate. Cotton is developing nicely and the potato crop is 80 per cent harvested. Sorghum prospects are excellent. Ranges are above average.

Irrigated cotton and sorghum are doing well on the South Plains but dryland crops need water soon to prevent severe damage. Yields of some dryland sorghum are below normal. The onion and potato harvests are completed. Castorbeans, sesame and soybeans look good. Bollworms are a problem.

Some cotton is being harvested in North Central Texas and the harvest will be in full swing next week. Corn and sorghum are being harvested with yields fair.

Florida Area
Jumps Gun
On Integration

PENSACOLA (Fla. AP) — Segregation in Escambia County schools ends today when 22 Negro pupils enter 10 white public schools.

It is the first school integration in northwest Florida.

The move was voluntary, jumping the gun on a court order which gave the county until next year to integrate its schools.

A court order issued last month decreed that at least two grades be integrated, and at least one grade each year thereafter.

The ruling added it is probably too late without undue confusion, to require the elimination as to any grade of such dual districts in time for the 1962 fall term.

The County Board of Public Instruction, however, approved the transfer of 29 Negro students to 12 schools this year. Seven withdrew, leaving 22 Negroes assigned to 10 schools.

We have had such complete assurance and cooperation of the law enforcement agencies of the community that we have reason not to expect anything other than a normal school opening," said the county school superintendent, W. I. Woodham Jr.

He said many Pensacola area citizens had pledged their support and cooperation.

He said he was just as confident of satisfactory adjustment by the pupils.

The 10 schools are scattered through the area. Six are in the city, four in the county.

Pensacola High School, just north of the downtown section, was assigned four Negroes—more than any other school.

Escambia is the sixth Florida county to desegregate schools. Dade County was the first in 1959, followed by Broward, Hillsborough, Palm Beach and Volusia on a token basis in 1961.

Monroe, Orange and Sarasota counties will begin desegregating this term.

Profs Convinced
Twain's Daughter
To Release Essays

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Mark Twain's daughter consented to publication of her father's anti-religious essays only after professors convinced her the works belong to the world, her husband says.

Mrs. Clara Clemens Samossoud fought publication of the essays for 20 years, her husband, Jacques said.

"Professors at the University of California at Berkeley argued that we had no moral right to suppress these works," Samossoud explained in an interview.

They will be published next month in a volume entitled "Letters from the Earth."

He said they decided about three months ago to allow publication of the essays, described as containing sharp criticism of religion, churches, the Bible, the Koran and the Talmud.

He related that Mrs. Samossoud read the essays eight years ago and then threw them away.

"My wife is a Christian Scientist and naturally does not agree with her father's views on religion," Mark Twain believed in God but criticized man's interpretation of Him, Samossoud said.

AUSTIN (AP) — A bolt of lightning during a drought-breaking rainstorm struck a tree in the yard of the Rev. Marvin Layman, northeast of Austin. After the storm, the minister counted 164 dead sparrows on his front lawn.

Professors at the University of California at Berkeley argued that we had no moral right to suppress these works.

They will be published next month in a volume entitled "Letters from the Earth."

He said they decided about three months ago to allow publication of the essays, described as containing sharp criticism of religion, churches, the Bible, the Koran and the Talmud.

He related that Mrs. Samossoud read the essays eight years ago and then threw them away.

"My wife is a Christian Scientist and naturally does not agree with her father's views on religion," Mark Twain believed in God but criticized man's interpretation of Him, Samossoud said.

Violence Over
Weekend Kills 27

By The Associated Press
At least 27 persons died in violence in Texas over August's last weekend, with 13 of the total killed in traffic accidents.

Shootings and drownings claimed the majority of the remainder of the fatalities. The Associated Press began the death count at 6 p.m. Friday and continued it through midnight Sunday.

The smallest baby born at St. Joseph Hospital, Albuquerque, N.M., is shown with her mother, Mrs. J. T. Hambrick of Albuquerque. The tiny girl, named "Little Miracle" by doctors, was born three months prematurely on May 31. She weighed 1 pound and 13 ounces and was 14 inches tall. She now weighs 4 1/2 pounds.

Leftists Seeking Algerian Power

ALGIERS (AP) — A group of young guerrilla officers proclaiming leftist, anti-Western views sought today to impose their will on Algeria.

The officers lead some 20,000 unruly troops of the guerrilla Wilaya "zone" No. 4 occupying Algiers and the surrounding area.

The guerrillas physical control of the capital gave them power and influence far beyond their relative strength. They paralyzed Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella's Political Bureau and forced it Saturday to abandon its powers as the provisional government only three weeks after taking office.

The bureau's withdrawal brought new chaos to the infant nation. Ben Bella flew to Oran, in western Algeria, where he felt sure of the loyalty of the Guerrillas of Wilaya No. 5.

The guerrilla warlords were more than ever in unchallenged control of their areas. Progress toward a centralized government was once more brought to a standstill.

The election of a Constituent Assembly scheduled Sept. 2 was put off indefinitely. No one could forecast when and how Algeria would obtain an elected legislature and an effective elected civilian government.

Wilaya No. 4 issued a fiercely worded statement accusing the Political Bureau of betraying the Algerian revolution.

The statement, read to a crowded news conference, demanded an emergency meeting of the old revolutionary "parliament," the National Council of the Algerian Revolution (CNRA), to revise the nation's political leadership.

The 72-man council met in Libya during the Algerian war and laid down general policy for the nationalists. Members of the council belong to various factions of the National Liberation Front (FLN), the dominant nationalist group during the rebellion against France. Their public following has never been tested at the polls.

The guerrillas' 3,000-word statement was filled with bitter attacks on Algerian "neo-colonialists," "feudalists" and former collaborators with the French.

The statement called for land reform and socialization of industry through unconditional expropriation. It justified the guerrillas' arbitrary arrests, seizures and searches in Algiers as a continuation of the struggle against terrorism by the European Secret Army Organization.

It dismissed Western diplomatic protests against rape, looting and general insecurity as coming only from "reactionaries" of NATO countries whose support of French imperialism is notorious. The statement suggested that the protests were not worth considering because they did not come from African, Asian or Communist diplomats.

A spokesman for the guerrilla command admitted that only one of the other five guerrilla zones, No. 3 controlling the Kabylie Mountains east of Algiers, had expressed support for Wilaya 4's position. There are an estimated 40,000 guerrillas in the other five Wilayas.

GI's Confession Checked Against Similar Cases

HOUSTON (AP)—Texas Rangers are checking to see if an Army private who said he shot his buddy was on leave at the time a woman was butchered and left in a ditch near Cleveland, Tex., earlier this year.

The soldier is Willie Joe King, 27, a former Houston resident. He is now in Army custody at Ft. Gordon, Ga. He is charged with robbing a Webbers Falls, Okla., bank of $2,700 April 20.

King said after his arrest he accidentally shot Pvt. Joe Poye, 23, of Many, La., and dismembered the body with a knife.

King Saturday denied cutting up the body and said he threw it off a bridge intact. A search of the area has failed to produce any clues.

Ranger Sgt. Pete Rogers said the Army is being asked to check to see if King was on leave about the time the woman was slain.

The case was similar to several others in other states and officers from the states came here for a conference, but none of the cases has been solved.

A Devotional For The Day

The gospel must first be published among all nations.
(Mark 13:10.)

PRAYER: Eternal Father, we pray fervently for our brothers in the far corners of the world. Open the way for them to hear of Christ and receive Him into their hearts. Then use them as ambassadors of Thy love and good will to others around about them. In the name of Jesus. Amen.

Right Educational Climate

Within the next week, schools will be opening their doors for another term. Quite naturally, we will all be preoccupied with the matter of numbers, space, records and other assorted problems associated with the physical aspects of getting the educational machinery going again. This is no small chore.

The consuming problem, however, is the productiveness of the educational institutions. How general and how thorough are the learning processes? What quality of work will be done? What challenge will be held out to the youngsters gifted with a quick grasp and an ability to absorb and assimilate information?

There is a simple answer to this—that it will be as the teacher or the administrator makes it. After all, teaching is the business of the teacher, schooling is the responsibility of the school men.

Educators, however, find it difficult if not impossible to obtain maximum results unless they have community understanding and backing. They cannot crack down with more intensive scholastic fare if they have parents who cry that the children are being overloaded or abused.

Education is something that our democracy must have to maintain its vigor, its purpose, its enlightened progress. But just any old kind of education will not get the job done. Parents demanding and supporting academic excellence can undergird the teacher and make our educational dollars yield greater returns. Schools which produce the outstanding crop of students are those which have this sort of community climate. How about ours?

Let's Keep Those Good Roads Good

You may have noticed a picture in Sunday's Herald of pavement damaged by farm tractors. Most of this ragging and chipping of surfacing occurs when tractors swing from the fields and use the road as a turnoff. Manifestly, it is more convenient, sometimes, to leave the plow points down while making the turn. The edges of pavement bear the unmistakable marks of farm implements.

Roads have been left open to fields as a convenience to producers, and this is a proper accommodation. This enables the average farmer to carry his furrows right up to the property line, in many instances, rather than having to drop back and allow for a turnoff as he must do at his own or his neighbor's fence.

Unfortunately, the picture we carried is not an isolated example. This damage is becoming a serious problem.

These permanent roads are too important to all the people they serve, and they are too expensive to build and maintain to have them subjected to unnecessary harm. This problem would be no problem at all if tractor operators will take that little extra effort, time and precaution to see that our good roads are left as good roads.

Time To Enforce Monroe Doctrine

WASHINGTON—The Soviet government has flagrantly violated the Monroe Doctrine which declares that no European government may establish a foothold or acquire any territory in the Western Hemisphere beyond what had already been established prior to 1923. This has been a basic principle of American foreign policy under all administrations since that time. Now, however, the Soviet Union has landed military personnel and equipment in large quantities in Cuba and will maintain a base under its control just 90 miles from this country.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY has made it clear in public statements heretofore that, while the United States may consult with the Organization of American States, this country is nevertheless free at any time to take unilateral action to deal with any violations of the Monroe Doctrine.

The facts about the latest operations in Cuba have been verified to the satisfaction of the U. S. Department of State. Here is what actually has happened:

1. Between 5,000 and 5,500 Soviet personnel arrived in Cuba in five Soviet passenger vessels between July 27 and July 31.

2. Eleven cargo ships of the Soviet Union arrived during the same period and unloaded large crates at the ports of Havana, Matanzas, Bahia de Nipe, Bahia Honda, and Mariel. This was accomplished during the night hours under strict security conditions.

3. Soviet personnel did all the unloading.

4. Eyewitnesses saw empty trucks loaded into the holds of the various ships, where they were loaded and covered with tarpaulins. They were then hoisted back on to the docks and driven away by Soviet personnel.

5. EYEWITNESSES reported seeing tanks, communications trucks, and large truck trailers carrying crates about 40 feet long. All indications are that military hardware and communications equipment formed a large part of the cargo. Crews of American airplanes, flying over the ships on their way to Cuba, also observed the military nature of the equipment.

6. Only one of the five Soviet passenger ships arrived openly, and it was ceremoniously welcomed by Cuban Communist officials. It carried about 400 genuine agricultural experts and technicians who were heralded as coming to assist in the agricultural development of Cuba. The other four vessels, however, arrived secretly at night, and these carried Soviet military personnel.

7. At least 15 additional ships from the Communist bloc, containing more of the same kind of cargoes and personnel, are on their way to Cuba.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY knew all about this when he referred briefly at his Wednesday press conference to the landing in Cuba of "supplies and technicians of a rather intensive quantity in recent weeks." He said that they came from the Communist bloc countries. Asked what the significance of it was, the President answered: "We are examining it now."

Actually, the Soviet military officers will train the Cuban army just as they have done in the case of the North Vietnamese army in Southeast Asia.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE—first proclaimed during the administration of President Monroe because of efforts of Russia and other countries to colonize certain portions of the Western Hemisphere—declared, in effect, that any attempt by a European power to establish a foothold in any country in this hemisphere not already colonized would be regarded as an act of aggression and as "dangerous to our peace and safety."

The countries of Latin America, by resolution, in recent years have concurred in the Monroe Doctrine as a hemispheric policy, but the question of how it should be enforced has never been defined. That's why President Kennedy made it clear in a public statement last year that the United States feels free to proceed on its own if the Latin American states do not wish to join in any cooperative action against an aggressor.

THE LANDING of military supplies and personnel is a natural sequel to the setting up of Communist party personnel inside the civilian as well as the military departments of the Cuban government itself.

From the standpoint of international law, the United States has every right to land troops, take possession of Havana, and occupy the country, unless the Cuban government answers satisfactorily the request of the U. S. government that all Soviet military personnel be sent home and that no further shipments of military supplies be sanctioned by the Havana authorities.

THERE MAY BE some connection between the Berlin crisis and the Soviet activities in Cuba. It may be that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is testing the United States. If he finds the Washington government "soft" and disinclined to take any counter-measures, the same procedure of infiltration by Soviet "advisers" and "technicians" may be followed in other countries in Latin America as part of a planned takeover of those countries. For this reason, it would indeed be a surprise if President Kennedy does not take advantage of the opportunity now afforded this country under international law and the Monroe Doctrine to safeguard the interests of the United States.

Marshall's Had Waiting Practice

WASHINGTON (AP)—Thurgood Marshall, the Negro lawyer who led the step-by-step fight of Negroes against segregation in America, got a lot of practice in waiting. He needed it.

Almost a year ago President Kennedy, deciding to appoint him to the federal Court of Appeals, sent his nomination to the Senate for approval. There has been no approval yet.

But the Senate whipped through in a few days with its blessing for Byron O. Whizzer. White when Kennedy last March appointed the former All-America football star to the higher position of Supreme Court justice.

NEITHER THE delay with Marshall nor the speed with White lay with the full Senate.

The responsibility in both cases rested with the Senate Judiciary Committee headed by James O. Eastland, Mississippi Democrat, and with another Southern Democrat, Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina, head of a subcommittee.

The 54-year-old Marshall, as chief counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, started in 1938 to argue before the Supreme Court, in case after case, against segregation of Negroes.

He won all but three. His crowning achievement was in the Supreme Court decision of May 17, 1954, outlawing segregation in public schools.

Last Sept. 23 Kennedy nominated him to the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals which handles cases from Vermont, Connecticut and New York and sent his name to the Senate. Congress quit before any action was taken. So on Oct. 23, 1961 Kennedy gave him a recess appointment.

WHEN CONGRESS returned this year, Kennedy sent his name to the Senate again, this time on Jan. 15.

As usual the nomination was referred to Eastland's committee where the procedure is to hold public hearings on the man's merits. After the hearings the committee votes for or against.

If the vote is against, that almost always ends it. If the committee approves, then the name goes to the full Senate for approval or the opposite.

But Eastland turned Marshall's case over to Johnston for his subcommittee to hold hearings.

The procedure here, after the subcommittee hearings, is for the full committee to vote. But Johnston stalled and held six hearings since January.

This is quite a contrast with the treatment White got. Kennedy nominated him March 30. White at the time was deputy attorney general. Before that he had been a practicing attorney.

In 1960 White, whose home is Colorado, had organized a Kennedy-for-President group and in 1961, during the presidential campaign, headed the National Volunteers for Kennedy.

WHITE'S NOMINATION didn't go to a subcommittee. Although the full committee probably knew far less about White than it did about Marshall, a brief hearing was held April 11 and White got unanimous committee approval. That same day the full Senate approved.

Some of the Judiciary Committee members who are not on Johnston's subcommittee—like Democrats Philip A. Hart of Michigan and John A. Carroll of Colorado and Republican Kenneth B. Keating of New York—have been publicly putting the heat on Johnston to get through with the Marshall case.

Johnston decided Friday he had had enough hearings. But he hasn't decided when he'll call his subcommittee together to consider Marshall's worthiness before reporting to the full Judiciary committee.

SINCE CONGRESS is in a rush to quit and go home, there's a chance the full Senate won't be able to vote on Marshall this year unless there's a quick action by Johnston and Eastland. Marshall's salary will be cut off if he's not confirmed before the Senate adjourns.

Keating and Carroll have said they'll try to force Marshall's case out of the Judiciary Committee, if they have to, to get it to the floor for a vote.

The Southern Democrats, no doubt, will be against him. It's doubtful the rest of the Senate will.

Edie Fills Void In Life

A few months ago, when Edie Adams was suddenly a widow after Ernie Kovacs' death in an automobile crash, she faced the future with some degree of uncertainty. Currently she has so many things on the fire that she keeps a large black notebook containing all the activity which is filling her life.

At the moment she is winding up the movie "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," in which she plays a full-size role.

"Before that I'd done what were really big parts," she said, as she submitted to a wig by the studio hair stylist. "But although this part is bigger, they still have me playing a dizzy blonde—I'm always Daisy Mae."

Producers may have Edie eternally typed by the part she played several seasons back in the musical comedy "L'il Abner," but she is a level-headed, well-organized young woman.

"Things are working out pretty well," she admitted. "I've just finished a new record album. When this movie is finished, I start on the first of my eight ABC specials. If I find the time, I will play Las Vegas for two weeks in October, and if I can't, I'll do four weeks in January. And I've got commitments for supper clubs in New York and San Francisco when you pull together an act, you want to play it in various places to make money with it."

High Blood Pressure Unusual In Young Persons

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D. pressure is from one of these causes that can be ascertained, and the flaw can be corrected. There is no reason why the person should not live a perfectly normal life span—if he doesn't get run over, or killed in a collision, or destroyed by some other such ordinary event which is much more common than youthful high blood pressure.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you write about high blood pressure in a younger person, say age 25? How long can one expect to live if treated for this?—Z. W.

High blood pressure is primarily a problem of older people of course, but there have been some recent improved treatments in the comparatively few cases found earlier in life.

One defect is coarctation or narrowing of the aorta, the main artery leading from the heart. This is a quirk in development. In that case, blood pressure is high in the arms but low in the legs, the opposite of the normal condition.

The can be corrected surgically. Arteriography X-raying the arteries by first injecting a dye into the blood stream has shown that defects may exist in arteries to the kidneys. Detailed study is required in such cases, but at times such abnormalities may be correctable.

Still another possibility is a tumor of the adrenal gland, or in tissues lying directly above the kidney. This can be determined by chemical tests and by a method of X-ray outline of the kidney by a process of air injections.

Still another cause is the use of stimulating drugs, which seems to be a pitfall for some unthinking young people.

How long can a person expect to live? You're asking an imponderable question. If the high blood pressure is from one of these causes that can be ascertained, and the flaw can be corrected. There is no reason why the person should not live a perfectly normal life span—if he doesn't get run over, or killed in a collision, or destroyed by some other such ordinary event which is much more common than youthful high blood pressure.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does an ultraviolet lamp have therapeutic value other than tanning the skin? Is it safe to use such a lamp without supervision of a doctor?—F. W.

The effects are essentially the same as from ordinary sunlight. Exposure to either deserves discretion, and the best rule is simply, "Enough to tan, if you like, but don't burn." And if you get the darkest tan in town, either because excessive tanning, even when you no longer burn, is hard on the skin. You've perhaps noticed that pimply skin blemishes tend to disappear in summer months. To that extent, I guess you'd call the rays therapeutic.

Dear Dr. Molner: The drugist gave me a powder for my burning feet, but it did no good. I've tried different shoes. I've tried baths, rubbing, walking and tried not walking, nothing helps. I have to see a doctor for fear I'll be laughed at. Most certainly not. It may not be an extremely common complaint but it is far from unknown. Different causes include flat feet, incorrectly fitted shoes, disturbances of circulation in the legs and feet, and some mineral or vitamin deficiency. An examination may produce clues to the cause in your case. It is certainly no laughing matter for anybody.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain "strangulation" in hernia. Can hernia cause high blood pressure?—R. H. L.

When a loop of intestine is gradually forced through the hernia or rupture, and then the circulation to that loop is shut off—it's a "strangulated hernia." It causes severe pain—and since it can result quickly in gangrene, it requires immediate, emergency attention. No, it has no effect on high blood pressure or the circulatory system.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Big Spring Herald for the booklet "Ear Noises—Their Causes and Cures" enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Effective New Preacher

One thing and another: I can't vouch for the fact that it happened here but a grocer was remarking to a customer about the wonderful new preacher who had moved into the community.

"How would you know?" asked the customer. "I haven't seen you in church."

"Oh, haven't heard him preach," the merchant replied, "but since he came, people have started coming in and paying their bills."

WHAT'S IT GOING to be like when they get to high school? My daughters are already asking me questions I can't answer.

The five-year-old approached me not long ago and, inquired, in rapid fire order:

"How do you spell B?"

"What comes after Riskey?"

"Why are all Daddies bigger than Mommys?"

Answering the first question was fairly easy, although I don't think I made my point with her. As for the second query, I finally figured out she was listing her friends and was groping for new additions after she included Riskey—who ever he might be.

As for the third question, I could only conclude that a king-sized helping of the dessert was more irresistible to the head of the household than the maternal parent.

SPEAKING OF TYKES, I liked the story of the little guy who came home from Sunday school deeply impressed with the story of how Eve had been made from Adam's rib.

Later in the day, the boy groaned: "Oh, I think I'm going to have a wife. I've got an awful pain in my side."

IT WOULD HAVE been a miscarriage of justice if there had been any other kind of verdict.

A man was jailed in Hattiesburg, Miss., not long ago, charged that he had robbed his wife of $75.

The defendant told police he had no other choice. He said he took her purse away from her because she was beating him over the head with it. The police let him go.

HEAR ABOUT THE beggar who approached the prosperous-looking man and asked him if he had 20 cents for a piece of apple pie?

To which the gentleman replied: "I don't know. I'd have to see the pie first."

Lipstick Is Downright Essential

As I was saying only yesterday, the human side of the news gets lost today in the unhuman—or maybe de-human—reports of multi-megaton blasts and stories of brave men flying through the air with the greatest of ease in a science fiction space trap.

The result is that in this worrisome time a news story out of Paris proving that the French are still the custodians of common sense, if and when they choose to use it, is reduced to three short paragraphs and buried among the radio logs.

THE STORY referred to above reports that the French government, in its brilliant economic decision, has just announced that henceforth the price of lipstick will be taken into consideration in the determination of the French minimum wage.

This decision points up, as nothing else has recently, the genius of the French people for meaningful action on basic issues. Because if there is a vital, basic factor in modern life, it is the lipstick. The French government is the first in the world to come out four-square on this issue, to acknowledge the essential nature of the lipstick and to make it a criterion of the minimum wage as bread, cheese and vin ordinaire.

WHAT FRENCH woman—indeed, what woman?—worthy of the name would not sacrifice the above three for a lipstick? What woman does not occasionally have nightmares in which she dreams of running naked without lipstick through the public streets?

It's a foregone conclusion that the one thing Lady Godiva had on during her ride through Coventry was lip pomade. La, I put it on every night just before I go to bed, in case of fire.

NOW IT IS time for the American government to face up to the facts of life and lipstick. Let our lawmakers tie the lipstick into the cost-of-living index and minimum wage considerations. And then let these noble men take that 10 per cent luxury tax off some.

A luxury? A luxury, my eye! It is as essential as soap, as fundamental as water and as basic as a license to hunt. The French have shown the way. Lead on, MacPerry!

Another story that failed to bounce off Teletar will, by and large, be of greater benefit to mankind than a lot that has bounced to date. Anthony S. Farinello of Dallas, Tex., has just invented a pair of shoes with a built-in electric fan to keep the feet cool, calm and comfortable even in Fort Worth.

THUS ENDS one of the scourges of mankind, the hot foot. The Farinello shoes are ventilated by a tiny electric fan built into the heel—a fan that starts pumping cool air to the tribes the moment the wearer puts them on and shuts off the second the owner shucks 'em.

The Farinello shoe is a great humanitarian advance, a literal Godsend to persons who tramp through world fairs, enter distance marathons, do their own Christmas shopping or just stand in line at the supermarket.

BUT THE STORY of the air-conditioned shoes created no more of an editorial stir than the recent introduction, in beauty salons, of mink eyelashes at $50 a pair. These are not eyelashes for mink who have beady little eyes that can bore a hole in the dark, but false eyelashes made of mink for women who feel as in the case of other falsies, that they were short-changed by nature.

Lipsticks, air-conditioned shoes, false eyelashes of mink. The trouble in the nuclear age is that editors don't THINK BIG.

Rising Republicanism In The South

WASHINGTON—Horse races, both equine and political, are said to improve the breed—and there are signs that this is happening in the South, where Republicanism this year are running seven Senate candidates and 62 House candidates in this section where Democrats generally had walk-over contests.

NUMBERS ARE NOT meaningful, but let us see what sort of runners the GOP is sending to the post. They are young. The Senate candidates average out to the age of 46, the House candidates to 42. Many are small businessmen, from small-town, family-owned enterprises. The dedicated professions are prominent. There are two physicians, three ministers of the gospel, two newspapermen and a retired Air Force colonel among the Republican candidates. There are two city mayors and at least two ex-Democratic political officers who apparently have seen the light of conversion.

PERSONALITIES tell more than classifications. In Kentucky, Senator Thurston Morton, a businessman and wartime Navy officer, is defending his seat against Wilson Wyatt, a wartime bureaucrat who ran the office of Price Administration and was the first president of Americans for Democratic Action in Arkansas. Dr. Kenneth Jones, an orthopedist in private practice and who saw service at two Jima and Okinawa, is trying to unseat Senator Fulbright, a former college president and wartime Congressman in Louisiana. Taylor O'Hearn, a certified public accountant and an attorney, runs against Senator Russell Long, princeling of the most powerful political machine until the Kennedys came along, a Southern liberal on all but racial rights. In South Carolina, Bill Workman, a columnist, author and combat soldier, 46, goes against Senator Olin Johnston, 66, one of the latter-day Claghorns. A major in Patton's famous Third Army and a petroleum distributor who married Miss Alabama of 1955, Jim Martin opposes Senator Lister Hill, 68, rated an 80 per cent liberal by ADA Emerson Rupert, a former Eisenhower aide, runs against Senator Smathers of Florida. Claude Green, 42, a tobacco farmer and former activist in the Young Republican Federation, runs against Senator Sam Ervin, 66, in North Carolina.

NORODY COULD complain of a lack of "image" and political contrast in these seven GOP Senate aspirants. With the exception of Rupert vs. Smathers, every race shows the voters a vivid difference in qualities which voters ought to find important.

Spot-checking the GOP House candidates, we may look for further trends. Two avowed Republican conservatives, Congressman Dick Poff (Va.) and Candidate Fife Symington (Md.) are opposing two Stevensonian eggheads in Professors John Wheeler, Dean of Hollins College and Clarence Long of Johns Hopkins. Cy Carney, 40, a small businessman, goes against the veteran Congressman Trimble, 68, in Arkansas.

BUT THE Republicans have a few oldsters, such as Victor Rule, 66, lawyer, broker and ordained Presbyterian minister in Tampa. The GOP slate is not anti-intellectual, for Candidate A. M. Snipes (N. C.), a tax attorney, is author of "Opinions on Taxation," a hot and current subject. Candidate Blackwell Robinson is professor of history and politics at the University of North Carolina. Candidate Dave Oaks (Texas) is a Ph.D. and holder of nine patented inventions.

Candidates Onell Rogell (Fla.), an ex-State Senator, and Floyd Spence (S. C.), a former State legislator, are the reform Democrats. In Virginia, the Republicans are offering Dr. Louis Williams, a 40-year-old obstetrician, in Texas they are running Desmond Barry, who is well-known for his running fight with Jimmy Hoffa and the Teamsters' Union. Another Texas Republican is Ed Foreman, holder of an Outstanding Young Man award in Odessa, whose opponent is Congressman Rutherford, beneficiary of a $1,500 contribution from Billie Sol Estes.

THIS REPRESENTATIVE rundown of the GOP House candidates speaks for itself. It is a win-or-lose situation that the South is still the stronghold of undaunted individualism which thrives on challenge and uphill competition.

Justice Dept. Eyes Cuban Exile Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government pressed an investigation today to determine if the shelling of Havana violated the U.S. neutrality act.

The State Department already has panned a Miami-based Cuban students group for responsibility for Friday night's attack, but has not said whether the raiders sailed from this country.

The neutrality law prohibits launching from U.S. soil armed attacks on countries not at war with the United States. The Justice Department is trying to find out if prosecutions under this law are called for.

In a Miami news conference Sunday, Juan Manuel Salvat, leader of the students group, declined to say where the ships used in the off-shore shelling of Miramar were based. But, he declared, "I don't feel we have violated any law of any country."

In holding the Students Revolutionary Directorate responsible for the sortie the State Department warned Saturday that "any repetition of such action by any group could involve the provisions of the Neutrality Act." A spokesman said the government had no advance knowledge of the attack.

While U.S. officials personally have some sympathy for exiled Cubans, they take the view that such hit-and-run attacks only serve to feed Prime Minister Fidel Castro's claim that he needs Communist arms to build up his defenses.

These officials point out that it is virtually impossible to keep a watch on every nook and cranny of the southeastern coastline of the United States. Airports and smaller landing fields are under constant surveillance, they said. Salvat said he and 22 other men ranging in age from 19 to 23 used a PT boat and a 31-foot cruiser in the raid. More than 60 shots were fired at Miramar during the seven-minute attack and a hotel headquarters of Soviet bloc technicians was damaged.

"We did it as Cubans seeking freedom for our homeland," he said. "We did it to show Democratic republics the world over that we mean business."

"I feel that if the Communists in Cuba are entitled to the support of the Soviet Union, the Cuban democratic movement too is entitled to support of the democratic republics of the world."

He named 12 men as on the raiding party with him and withheld the names of 11 others to protect their families, still in Cuba.

The U.S. Coast Guard, under State Department orders, impounded at Marathon, Fla., two private boats apparently used in the shelling.

In a puzzling aftermath of the raid there was an unexplained interruption Sunday in normal telephone and cable communications between the United States and Cuba.

An American Telephone & Telegraph Co. spokesman said no explanation was offered for the break in communications. "They (the Cubans) just weren't answering," he said.

After inspecting damage inflicted by the raiders, Castro said in a formal statement: "We hold the United States government responsible."

In a televised address monitored Sunday in Key West, Fla., Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos declared: "Our country again was the victim of a new cowardly aggression by imperialism."

The Communist newspaper Hoy, in a front-page editorial, brushed aside the U.S. government's disclaimer of responsibility. Washington is notorious, Hoy said, for its "connivance with counterrevolutionaries. Without the cooperation of U.S. authorities the raid could not succeed."

Skies Clear Over Texas

By The Associated Press
Skies were clear over all of Texas Monday except for a patch of light cloudiness between San Antonio and the Rio Grande.

Morning temperatures were in a comfortable range between 70 at Galveston and 59 at Lubbock shortly before dawn.

The Weather Bureau expected some scattered showers over southern portions of the state during the afternoon and evening hours but said conditions were such that no general rains would occur.

A weak warming trend was expected in the western portion of the state but temperature changes elsewhere in Texas were expected to be insignificant.

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

Sam Rayburn, better known as "Mr. Sam" to presidents, potentates and just plain people, will be honored on a new U.S. 4-cent stamp Sept. 16. This stamp will first be placed on sale in Rayburn's home town, Boham, Tex., on the 22nd anniversary of his Huge celebrations took place on the island of Jamaica Aug. 6, when it became an independent nation. Princess Margaret represented Queen Elizabeth at the celebrations and opened the first Parliament of the new state.

To honor this occasion, four new stamps were issued depicting the following: Two stamps showing a bugler and an outline map of Jamaica, Gordon House and banner, symbolic design representing agriculture and industrial development. In addition, Jamaica overprinted two stamps in black with the words "Independence 1962."

Israel will issue six Annual Festival stamps on Sept. 5, reports the Israel Philatelic Agency in America. The three commemorative stamps mark the celebration of the Jewish New Year, 5723. The theme of the stamps was taken from the prophet Isaiah, who envisioned a Golden Age of mankind—a time when universal justice, happiness and prosperity would flourish. The 1962 festival stamps were designed by Mrs. Cyla Menusky and Mrs. Chava Ornan, who were the winners of Israel's International Competition.

Voter's Choice: What Do These Figures Mean

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voters may have to choose this fall between conflicting Democratic and Republican claims that the same economic figures show the country is prosperous or recession-threatened.

By the time President Kennedy and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower take off on the campaign circuits in October, the returns on September's business barometer readings should be piling up.

If they indicate a more-than-seasonal fall pickup, Democrats will breathe easier about their chances in critical House, Senate and governor elections. If the reading is not so good, Republicans are bound to feel they have something going for them.

But if the present trend is any indication, not matter what the indices say the Democratic and Republican interpretations are likely to differ widely.

Democrats have picked up the cue from Kennedy's recent national television and radio broadcast that the country is now a lot more prosperous than it was under Eisenhower. It is convenient for most of them, however, to omit mentioning Kennedy's qualification that the economy still isn't moving fast enough to please him. Drawing on the same reservoir of information, Republicans contend that under the Democrats the economy isn't keeping pace with either the population growth or what Western Europe is doing. They point to Kennedy's delay before he decided not to ask an immediate tax cut as a sign something is amiss.

The pattern of conflicting claims was well established in weekend political pronouncements. Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., hit the prosperity note hard in keynoting a California State Democratic convention. This was in line with an earlier decision of Democratic party leaders at a Midwestern party conference in French Lick, Ind., to blow their horn about prosperity.

Engle told the California Democrats that when Kennedy took office the nation was "in the throes of the third Republican recession in six years."

Since then, he said there had been economic recovery, "made possible because the new administration wasted no time in launching a series of imaginative and positive programs."

While Engle said he was proud of the administration's record of "fiscal integrity," Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., told a farmers' picnic at Berryville, Va., that if Kennedy's proposal to cut taxes next year isn't accompanied by spending reductions "it will be the most irresponsible recommendation of this kind and magnitude in my recollection."

Byrd said he finds little assurance that the administration plans to cut spending.

On the Republican side Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., told Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., on a taped television program he thinks the country "is in the midst of some form of recession right now and if the President isn't very careful, we may all be in more."

"There seems to be a growing fear on the part of industry as to what this administration is going to do," he said.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., said on another taped television program that Kennedy had shown "weakness of leadership" in not asking for an immediate tax cut to lift the economy.

Congress Settles Down To Full Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heading into what they hope will be the final month of the session, the Senate and House buckle down today to a full week of work.

Twenty-two bills, several of them highly controversial, were crowded onto today's House calendar, to be followed Tuesday by consideration of a $900-million public works bill.

The Senate's week probably will be taken up with an unexpected fight over a House-passed tax revision bill stripped of many administration proposals by the Senate Finance Committee.

Two attraction on the House docket is a proposal to eliminate payment of poll taxes as a qualification for voting in elections involving federal office. It is one of 13 bills slated to be called up today under a procedure requiring a two-thirds vote for passage.

Inasmuch as the proposal would submit the poll tax issue to the states as a constitutional amendment, it would need a two-thirds vote for passage at any time. To become effective it would have to be ratified by three-fourths of the states.

The poll tax measure easily mustered the two-thirds count it needed in the Senate and its House backers were confident they could steer it through their branch.

Only five states still impose such taxes. They are Virginia, Texas, Mississippi, Alabama and Arkansas.

Sharing top billing in the House today are a bill dealing with housing for elderly persons in rural areas, bank mergers, several measures affecting internal security and establishment of a communications satellite system.

The satellite bill passed the House once before, stirred up a hornet's nest and a filibuster in the Senate before passage there, and is back in the House for action on Senate amendments.

The big public works bill, which may take several days of the

MRS. FRED DALTON WHITE

White-Martin Vows Are Solemnized On Sunday

Marriage vows were pledged by Miss Sharon Elizabeth Martin and Fred Dalton White Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist Church in Big Spring. The Rev. Robert Polk, pastor of the church, performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar arrayed with baskets of white chrysanthemums flanked by palms.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Martin, 606 George, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Whisenant, 3309 Eleventh Place.

Providing nuptial music, Mrs. Verna N. Dorney sang "I'll Walk Beside You" and "A Wedding Prayer," accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Ray Dabney.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white tulle with a wide, flaring skirt. The bride's hair was styled in a white tulle veil. The groom wore a white tulle suit with a white necktie. The couple was surrounded by a large group of guests, including family and friends, who were seated in the pews of the church.

Members of the house party were Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Box, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Smith, Miss Elizabeth Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Bill J. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Coffey, and Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Johnson. Mrs. Anderson presided at the guest register.

AFFILIATIONS
A graduate of Big Spring High School in 1961, the bride attended Howard County Junior College and will return in the fall. She is a member of Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society.

ATTENDANTS
Mrs. Leming attended the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Sandra Martin, sister of the bride, Jo Ann Horton and Nancy Graves, all of Big Spring.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS
Guests attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Atkinson of Premont, grandparents of the bride; H. M. Atkinson Jr. and children of Premont; Mrs. Amos Johnson of Flat River, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Hasley and daughter of Waco, Mr. and Mrs. Boatman of Monahans.

RECEPTION
A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the Fellowship Hall of the church with the couple, their parents and the female attendants in the receiving line.

The three-tiered cake, made and decorated by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. H. M. Atkinson, was served from a table laid with a white ruffled cloth. The centerpiece was of white feathered chrysanthemums. Crystal, appointment cards were used.

Sunday Afternoon Tea Given Engaged Couple

Miss Wenona Moore and her fiancé, Horace E. Hamilton, were the honored guests at a Sunday afternoon pre-nuptial tea held in the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Horace Hamilton. Cohostesses for the affair were his aunts, Mrs. DeWayne Davis and Miss Lela Hamilton.

Receiving guests were the honored couple and their mothers, Mrs. J. W. Moore and Mrs. Cecil L. Hamilton.

Featuring the bride-elect's chosen colors, pink and white, the table was covered with a white imported linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink roses and snapdragons. White satin bells attached to pink and white satin streamers interspersed the bouquet. Silver candelabra holding pink tapers were placed at either side of the arrangement. Presiding at the crystal and silver service were Misses Phyllis Long and Mary Lou Davis, cousins of the prospective bridegroom. Another of his cousins, Miss Becky Long, was in charge of the guest register.

Guests, relatives of the couple, called from Stanton, Big Spring, Sand Springs, Midland and Lorraine.

Mrs. Abee Guest Of P. P. Howards

FORSAN (SC) — Mrs. George Abee of Andrews was here recently visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Howard.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cardwell were his sister, Mrs. Will S. Cannon, and her husband of Nacogdoches. Saturday visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Gay Miller of Crane and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wiehe of Big Spring.

Marriage Told

Miss Leona McEachern and Larry Gene Doyle were married in Lamesa, Friday afternoon. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Anderson of Luther and Mr. and Mrs. Garland Doyle of O'Donnell. The couple will reside in Alpine where the bridegroom, a graduate of Borden High School, Gall, will continue his college studies.

Opti-Mrs. Club Plans New Year

Members of the Opti-Mrs. Club gathered in the home of Mrs. Don Mansell, 2611 Lynn, Thursday evening to make plans for the coming club year. Mrs. Cecil Thixton was cohostess to the group.

It was decided for hostesses at coming meetings to be in charge of arranging programs. Club projects were also planned.

Mrs. W. D. Broughton was appointed chairman of the ways and means committee. She will be assisted by co-chairman, Mrs. Charles Lusk. Mrs. Louis Wolfson was named chairman of the membership committee with Mrs. J. D. Davenport, co-chairman.

Six members, including one new member, Mrs. Dale Riggs, an employee of Household Finance Co., were present at the meeting.

Miss Tarter Is Bride

LAMESA (SC) — Joan Elizabeth Tarter and William Lowe Burke Jr. were married at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Aldersgate Methodist Church in Abilene with Dr. Ray Neill Johnson, pastor, officiating the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tarter of Abilene, former Lamesa residents, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Burke of Abilene.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, wearing a formal gown of Chantilly lace and nylon organza designed with a scooped neckline and long sleeves ending in petal points over the hands. A yoke of lace accented the flared organza skirt.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a Chantilly lace crown enhanced with tear-drop pearls and she carried a white orchid on a white ribbon.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Bill Tarter of Odessa, the bride's sister-in-law. Wade Anthony of Abilene was the best man.

A reception followed in Fellowship Hall of the church. For traveling the bride wore a beige and cocoa raw silk suit with beige and cocoa accessories. A pearl necklace and white orchid corsage completed the ensemble.

The bride is a graduate of Lamesa High School and is a senior at McMurry College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Abilene High School and is also a senior at the college there.

The couple will reside in Abilene.

Reward In Mail Robbery Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster Gen. J. Edward Day raised to $50,000 today the reward offered for the solution of the $1.5 million Cape Cod mail robbery.

Day told a House Government Activities subcommittee investigating the case that he is ordering the entire amount appropriated by Congress to his department for reward offers to be posted on this one case.

A reward of $2,000 previously had been offered.

As for how the bold, record-breaking robbery was possible, Day said there was a combination of unfortunate circumstances, including what he called a misinterpreted relationship with the Massachusetts State Police.

Day said the postal employees had conducted four previous successful runs carrying currencies from banks over the same route. He said they were under the impression from instructions given to them that state police cruisers would be observing their progress.

But he said that checks made after the robbery showed that none of the employees had at any time observed a cruiser anywhere along their route.

The robbery was pulled off Aug. 14. A post office truck carrying pouches of money picked up at Hyannis and Buzzard's Bay, Mass., was stopped on a highway by cars blocking the road.

Bandits then disarmed the two post office guards and forced them into the back of the truck, drove it off and later looted it. The guards were not harmed.

Narcotics Charges Filed Against Pair

Charges of possession of narcotics paraphernalia have been filed by the district attorney's office against Julian Blanco Rodriguez and Ramona Saldana.

They were arrested over the weekend by city police and alleged to have had an eye dropper, a hypodermic needle and a charred bottle cap in their possession. Officers describe these items as common equipment for the administration of illegal narcotic injections.

Bonds were set at $2,500 in each case and the woman has been released on bail. The man is still in jail.

Stallings Return From Club Meet

Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Stallings have returned from a trip to Miami Beach, where they attended the 1962 business meeting of the Great Southern Life Insurance Company. The club is composed of career life underwriters of the Great Southern Life Insurance Company who were outstanding in volume, quality business and outstanding service to policyholders and clients during the fiscal year ending June 30. The session was attended by more than 200 Great Southerners from 12 states coast to coast across the southern part of the United States.

On Mission Against Guerrillas

South Viet Nam troops load canoes with gear prior to boarding troop carriers, background, during early stages of a five-day mission against Viet Cong Communist guerrillas deep in southern Canau Province. About 4,000 troops took part in the mission which ended Aug. 20. Vietnamese troops killed six Viet Cong guerrillas, seized huge quantities of Viet Cong ammunition and food and destroyed four Viet Cong villages.

Demo Delegates Invited To Rally At Sweetwater

All Howard County delegates to the State Democratic Convention are invited to attend a rally in Sweetwater at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Frank Hardesty, county chairman, said today.

He asked that all delegates who can attend the meeting notify him today so that reservations can be made for them at the dinner meeting in the Holiday Restaurant.

The delegations from all counties in the 24th Senatorial district are to attend the meeting which has been called by Maurice Brooks, district committeeman. Brooks' home is in Ahilene. He said there are 163 delegates in the district and he is hopeful all will be present at the dinner. No charge is made for the meal for qualified delegates.

Hardesty expressed hope that a full attendance from here would be on hand.

Brooks said that the purpose of the meeting is two-fold. Primarily, the delegates and alternates will formulate campaign tactics to try to carry Democratic candidates to victory in each county, not only for the statewide races but for local races where Republicans have entered candidates.

Secondly, delegates will discuss any plans they wish to take to the state convention at El Paso Sept. 18.

Brooks said he had received 60 acceptances from delegates and alternates by Friday afternoon and expects about 30 persons at the meeting. Delegates will come from Taylor, Jones, Nolan, Shackelford, Fisher, Howard, Scurry, Haskell, Stonevall, Mitchell, Garza, Kent and Borden counties. Bill Stinson, field organizer for the John Connally-for-governor campaign, will speak at the meeting.

LBJ, Turkish Leaders Talk

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson talked with Turkish leaders today about continuing American economic and military aid to this strategic North Atlantic Treaty Organization ally.

Sources said the vice president, told them the United States foresees the need for direct economic aid for at least the next two years but is looking forward to the day when the help will be in the form of development projects rather than direct aid.

Premier Ismet Inonu and President Cemal Gursel gave Johnson an account of Turkey's own plans for economic recovery through a five-year program expected to be announced shortly.

Johnson arrived Sunday for a four-day stay in Turkey.

May Serve Sentence

Jack Ricci, under a two-year probation sentence imposed Aug. 29, 1960, may have to serve his time in prison although he lacks just a few days of having served out the term of his probation.

John Dibrill, probation officer, has filed a report in which he states the Ricci has not made restitution of $800 involved in the complaint for which he was sentenced.

Gil Jones, district attorney, has filed an application to set aside the probation. Judge Caton has ordered a hearing on the matter Sept. 28 at 9 a.m.

The two years probation expires Aug. 29 of this week under ordinary circumstances. However, the district attorney's office explained the filing of the motion to revoke will hold the termination in abeyance until the hearing.

Democratic Club Meeting Slated

Howard County Democratic Club, organized at a meeting several weeks ago, will convene Thursday night in the Howard County Court Room to elect officers and adopt bylaws and constitution for the new organization.

Frank Hardesty chairman of the Howard County Democratic Committee, said that a committee appointed at the organization meeting has drafted a tentative proposal which will be submitted.

He said the meeting is to be at 7:30 p.m. All Democrats are invited to attend the session.

Members of the committee to draft bylaws and prepare a constitution are:

John Wallace, Frank Parker, Dr. Halver Hansen, A. E. Suggs, Bert Bedford, Alfred Goodson and Roscoe Cone.

Webb Civilians Get Extra Cash

Many Webb AFB civilians were treated to an extra "pay-day" this week when the incentive awards hour 1 announced awards totaling $1,382.

Eighteen employees received awards from $15 to $215 each.

John T. Baker topped the list with $215 for his suggestion regarding the improvement of motor vehicle maintenance. Jimmy Smith was next with $200.

Others receiving awards for suggestions and superior performance were Joyce Tidwell, $150; Ruth Heath, $100; Andrew Hager, $100; Mary McGann, $100; Gayle Johnson, $100; Richard Templeton, $150; Frances Tucker, $150; Leroy Perry, $100; Margaret Mathis, $100; Claude Vaughn, $150; Louise Miskel, $30; William Shafer, $25; Earnest Miller, $15; John Petty, $25; Leland King, $35; Raymond Lavesey, $15; and Clyde Cantrell, $15.

Y Opens Again

The YMCA building opened today after a three-week shutdown. A special schedule for the week has been set up, with doors opening at 9 a.m. and closing at 7 p.m. From 9 to 4 p.m. every day this week a free swim will be held. The swim team will work out from 4 to 6:30 p.m. A new fall and winter schedule is being put together and is to be announced.

Sherri Taking A Rest After Swedish Abortion

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — "My family is my first job; getting the children readjusted is next," said a weary Sherri Finkbine, here to seek a few days rest at her husband's family home nearby in Indiana.

There was a hint of her task in daughter Terry, 7, when Mrs. Finkbine and her husband, Robert, arrived by air Sunday night.

They were on the last leg of the return flight from Mrs. Finkbine's trip to Sweden for an abortion. She underwent the operation because she feared her baby would be deformed since she took the sedative drug thalidomide during pregnancy.

Terry ran to the steps of the plane when her mother descended and thrust a gift package in her hands.

Flashbulbs starting popping, newsmen began questions and movie lights flared, and the girl became frightened. She started to sob.

"Let her alone," said Mrs. Finkbine. "She's scared."

The girl's father stopped to comfort her and she went back to the care of her grandmother, while Mrs. Finkbine and her husband agreed to talk briefly with newsmen.

Mrs. Finkbine said she hoped for a good rest with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Finkbine of Lawrenceburg, before going home to Phoenix, Ariz.

She stated again her belief she had done right in the legal abortion gained in Sweden after being denied in Arizona. Swedish doctors indicated the tranquilizing drug had affected the unborn fetus.

Robert Finkbine said he had no idea when they would return to Phoenix where their other three youngsters are with Mrs. Finkbine's mother.

6 Children Fire Victims In California

CLOVIS, Calif. (AP) — The six children of Ben and Betty Funk died in a fire that destroyed their new home in this Fresno suburb Sunday despite valiant rescue tries by the father and neighbors.

One teen-age neighbor smashed through a window into the blazing home and, with hands slashed by broken glass, handed out four of the children. But they apparently were dead at the time.

The father and others broke more windows in desperate rescue attempts but were turned back by intense heat.

Fire Chief W. E. Riley said afterward the window smashing may have worsened the situation. "It let in wind drafts," he said.

The dead children were Dennis, 9; Howard, 8; Charlotte, 7; Shirley, 6; John, 3; and Deborah, 21 months. Deputy Coroner Walter Seehier said all had suffocated.

Authorities said cause of the fire was not immediately apparent and may not be learned for several days, pending check of the ashes.

Funk, 32, a cabinet maker, was awakened by his wife, 28, at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday with a cry of "fire."

He broke a window of their bedroom and tumbled outside, cut by glass fragments. Then Funk and his brother, Leonard, 20, who had been sleeping in the back yard, pulled Mrs. Funk through the window.

Her leg was broken when it became entangled between frame and sill.

Russell Welch, 19, who lives two houses away, heard screams of alarm, ran to help and battered in through a window.

He told newsmen later he found three of the children in bed and two others on the floor.

Dies Of Wound

By The Associated Press

Mrs. M. P. Arrant, 32, of Kermit died Saturday of a gunshot wound in the forehead.

Before The Rains Came

There were large cracks in the ground near Austin, before drought-breaking rain fell early Saturday. The photographer placed the hands of a manquin in the cracks to emphasize their size and the need for rain in the Central Texas area. Austin's longest dry spell since 1921 was broken early Saturday with 4.53 inches of rain. The rain was the first since June 30.

Bridge 2nd Level To Be Dedicated

NEW YORK (AP) — Historians say the world's first bridge was built eons ago when a primitive man felled a tree across a chasm.

Since then many bridges have been suspended, swung and arched over the inaccessible to ease the passage of man. But few have had the majesty — both in style and setting — of the mighty George Washington Bridge.

"The most beautiful bridge in the world" was what the great French architect Le Corbusier called it.

It spans the broad Hudson River between New York, with its zig-zag skyline, and the green-brown New Jersey Palisades, those long-lived descendants of the ice age.

For 31 years it has stood as a modern-day miracle of steel, concrete and human ingenuity. Now it is about to be given new life. The George Washington's broad, eight-laned back has borne 375 million vehicular crossings since its dedication on Oct. 25, 1931, by then Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Gov. Morgan F. Larson of New Jersey. It now handles 38 million vehicles a year.

That back is about to be broadened with the addition of a six-lane lower level. The new level, which took four years to build and cost twice as much as the original bridge, will be dedicated at mid-river Wednesday by the present governors of New York and New Jersey, Nelson A. Rockefeller and Richard J. Hughes.

The cost of the expansion has been $145 million, compared with $60 million for the original bridge. This over-all investment in excess of $200 million will make the George Washington the most expensive bridge in the world, and its 14 lanes will make it the largest in terms of capacity.

A lower level — for trains or automobiles — was provided in the original plans by the designer, Othmar H. Ammann. The bulk of the cost of the expansion has gone for the web of approaches to the bridge on both sides of the river. On the New Jersey side at Fort Lee, for example, work crews carved out 1.8 million yards of rock from the Palisades for twin 600-foot-long tunnels to provide access to major highways west of the Hudson.

At 178th Street, Manhattan, the expansion includes the George Washington Bridge Expressway, a new 12-lane feeder extending to the Harlem River and leading to the Bronx beyond New and broadly-curved links run from both levels to Riverside Drive and the Henry Hudson Parkway.

The expressway will run beneath a new $13-million bus terminal and several new apartment houses.

Even with its two decks, the George Washington Bridge has a fragile, graceful look, belying the weight sustained by its slender cables.

Henry Druding, resident engineer who has supervised the second-deck project says the bridge has been known to sway as much as 30 inches in a heavy gale.

But that was before the second deck was added, and the new steel and concrete are expected to add to the bridge's stability.

Druding's old boss, designer Ammann, now 83, has served as consultant on expansion of the bridge he designed in 1927. He is also the designer of the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge which is under construction across New York harbor from Brooklyn to Staten Island.

16 More Names On Slant Probe List Revealed

DALLAS (AP) — The attorney general's office disclosed Sunday night the names of 16 more persons subpoenaed to appear before a hearing of the House investigating committee.

The hearing opened in Dallas today on deviated oil wells.

The attorney general's office said earlier 87 subpoenas had been served.

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said last week the committee learned that a few individuals had anticipated they would be served with a subpoena and had abruptly left the state.

The latest subpoenaed were Robert Lockwood, Davis McAngus and Robert Flowers, all of Austin.

The presidents or other officers of the Longview Bank and Trust Co. and the First National Bank of Longview, with records.

Roy Payne, R. W. Bean, L. R. Burns, Hilton Head, Ted Lendley, W. T. James, J. G. Lewis, Pete Peters, John Riley, and Phil Gibson, all of Kilgore.

IPAA Leader Urges Gas Controls Ban

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The head of one of the nation's largest oil and gas trade groups said today producers should seek action by Congress to free wellhead prices of natural gas from federal controls.

Harold Decker of Houston said federal regulation is destroying the producing industry.

"In the end the consumer will pay for this," said Decker, president of the 7,000-member Independent Petroleum Association of America.

"There is no alternative but to work for a legislative cure," he told the Independent Natural Gas Association of America.

Members of the association include practically all firms which transport gas for distribution to more than 34 million consumers in 46 states.

Decker said the eight years since the Supreme Court ruled the Federal Power Commission could control wellhead prices of gas sold wholesale into interstate commerce have produced nothing but confusion.

He said the area pricing formula the FPC adopted in 1960 has not brought relief.

"After months of hearings, the FPC finds itself with a voluminous record and even more questions unanswered than it had almost two years ago when it turned to the new approach," Decker said.

The producer, the pipeline company and the distributor remain stranded in confusion and uncertainty with no dependable guidelines as to sale prices in the field or contractual obligations.

Decker said his organization had reservations as to the feasibility of area pricing from the outset.

"Two years' experience does not encourage us," he said. "Although designed to get away from the traditional utility concept, area pricing seems to gravitate backward to it."

In adopting area pricing, the FPC set tentative ceiling prices for the nation's 23 major gas producing areas. The formula replaced an old utility-type method under which each producer's case was handled individually.

New Soviet Test Recorded

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — A new Soviet nuclear test in the atmosphere above the Novaya Zemlya region was registered today by the Seismologic Institution at Uppsala University.

The institution reported that the explosion came at 4 a.m. EST today and had a strength in the vicinity of those registered last week at Uppsala. Swedish scientists estimated those explosions at about 110 megatons, or the equivalent of 10 million tons of TNT.

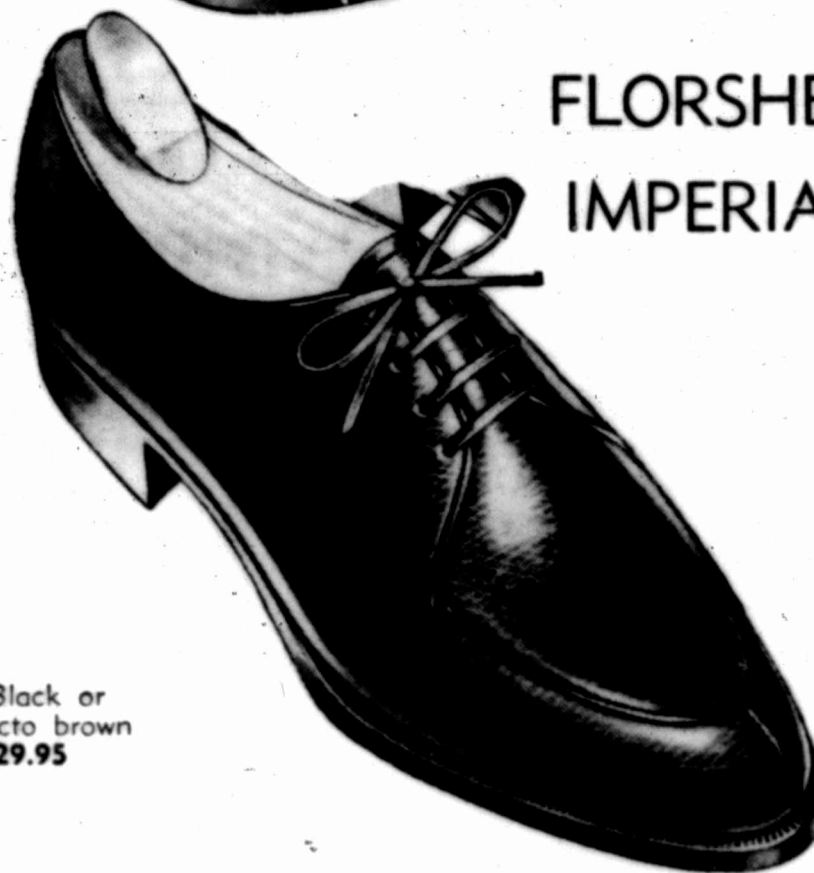

The blast today was the seventh in the Soviet Union's current test series, which opened Aug. 3 with a 40-megaton explosion.
