EXPECTED TO SET A NEW RAINFALL RECORD

Deluge Brings Flood Threats

Up To 4.5 Inches Of Water Added

A deluge, which fell most of Wednesday night and on into mid-day Thursday dumping from 3.50 to as much as 4.50 inches of additional water on the already heavily saturated streets, was posing flood threats in some parts of Big Spring today.

The rain was expected to set a new all-time record fall for any 24 hour period in the 60 years rain records have been kept in Big Spring. The total early today was close to the old record of 6.77 inches hung up on April 24, 1922.

Many low-lying streets were closed. Cars were being drowned out where floods of runoff water jammed storm sewers beyond capacity. Dirt streets were washing badly and many were impassable. Streets in parts of town were closed.

PAYING

Paving was suffering severely. Motor graders and trucks were being put into service to help distressed drivers whose cars knoked out.

Highways in many parts of the county were under water and some had been closed to traffic by the state highway department. Isolated areas were marooned as the floods piled higher. The railroad yards were being transformed into a river and tracks were vanishing as the reddish waters poured into the area.

Total rain for the last 24 hours climbed steadily as the rain continued since Thursday morning. The U. S. Experiment Station reported its gauge had measured 4.92 inches up to 8 a. m. The report said the total rain since Sept. 1 stood at 6.96 inches at that hour. This compares with the total for the entire year to Sept. 1—6.64 inches. No reading at the station since 8 a. m. was announced.

NEW WORRY

In the Vincent area, farmers who only a few weeks ago were worried over the drought, were facing a new worry today. The two days rain in that area has reached 8.75 inches and there were reports of eroding terraces. Fields were changing into lakes. Rural roads were becoming impassable. The rains were still pouring as the day advanced. The same story was being told in the Vealmoor and Luther areas.

... AND THAT'S LOTS OF WATER

The 24-hour period from 8 a. m. Wednesday to 8 a. m. today was the third wettest recorded since 1900, as 4.92 inches of rain fell. Wettest day on record was April 25, 1922 when 6.77 was recorded. Second was Oct. 3, 1907 with 5.08 inches.

The two-day fall was 6.71 inches at the Big Spring Experiment Station to 8 a. m. Thursday.

And it was still raining.

over night bringing the two day total to 8.20 inches and it was still pouring when these reports were sent in.

Terrace losses were reported in this area as they were in Luther. Vealmoor had added 2.40 inches to bring its total to 6.50. Ackerly had 2.60 inches for the night and a combined total to 8 a. m. of 6.70.

Mrs. John Couch, Luther, reported at noon that her gauge had totalled 9.30 inches since the current storm began. She said 2.5 inches of this had fallen since 7 a. m. today. The rain was diminishing at noon.

TELEPHONES

Rural telephone lines were in bad shape due to the wetness and no contacts were possible with many sections.

Lakes were filling rapidly. Cosden Lake south of town was

Area Lakes Fill, Some Are Spilling

Fed by swollen streams, lakes in the Big Spring area filled rapidly and some were spilling at noon today.

Lake J. B. Thomas, the big reservoir of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, was almost certain to go over the spillway late this afternoon.

Cosden Lake, immediately south of town, plagued by a dearth of rain and with hardly more than a puddle to show, suddenly filled and went over the spillway at mid-morning Thursday. This produced a roaring waterfall just off US 87 South.

Moss Creek Lake also was catching water, and at mid-morning a foot had poured in, making the depth 27 feet and four inches. Powell Creek was catching a large volume, but it was impossible to get close enough for an accurate report.

Lake J. B. Thomas was at elevation 2257.11 feet at noon, an increase of 1.73 feet for 24 hours. However, the rate of rise suddenly accelerated Thursday morning to around two inches per hour. Already swollen, the Colorado River rose three feet during the morning at the west end of the lake, and Bull Creek also rose three feet in the channel.

Somewhere between 5 p. m. and 7 p. m. today, the lake should spill at elevation 2,258.00. So far, the lake has caught over 22,000 acre feet of water.

Lake Colorado City reported an elevation of 2,065.15, an increase of 2.5 feet. With cars having to be towed through the Morgan Creek crossing on the Big Spring-Snyder highway upstream, the lake was due to catch considerably more water.

Families Flee Floods, Wide Damage In City

Paved streets were blocked, dirt streets were washed out, and some families were forced to abandon their homes as raging flood waters roared through the city this morning.

Three families were evacuated from homes on the North Side Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

Two cars were pulled from Tenth Street at Birdwell Park during the night and Thursday morning.

The administration had estimated that withholding would bring into the Treasury about $780 million a year in taxes now evaded or not paid through ignorance.

Agencies Standing Ready To Assist

At noon today the Salvation Army had received no calls for help as a result of the rain, but the organization was making arrangements with the local Civil Defense unit to house any persons having to evacuate their homes. Salvation Army officials announced that they could accommodate 50 to 75 persons needing overnight shelter.

Mrs. Moree Sawtelle, executive secretary of the local chapter of the American Red Cross, reported that the Red Cross disaster group had surveyed the area and was standing by to assist anyone needing to evacuate their residences because of flood waters.

Frank Hardesty is chairman of the disaster force.

FRIENDS KEEP BIBLE FUND AFLOAT

The Bible Class Fund almost got drowned Thursday, but several friends kept the campaign afloat.

Contributions amounted to $55 for the day, making $2,852.50 so far raised. With a little extra support, the total could be pushed to $3,000 by Friday and put the campaign on the home stretch.

If you can help, won't you please send or mail your gift to the Herald.

Among the friends who added their support were:

- Berta Beckett Class F. Baptist $10.00
- Dr. and Mrs. M. A. Porter 25.00
- Truett Ormsworth, memory of 10.00
- C. E. Lytle 10.00
- Marjorie Creighton 10.00
- Previously reported 2,777.50

4 Roads Blocked

Four highways leading out of Big Spring were blocked by flood waters Thursday morning, and it was nip and tuck whether several others would have to halt traffic flow.

The Big Spring-Andrews highway (State 176) was closed when water went over a bridge just west of Big Spring. There was some concern about the Buzzard draw crossing some 10 miles to the west.

FM 861, the Big Spring-Gail road, was closed all the way from the State 350 intersection northward past the Colorado River. The road was under water in several places, and Mrs. John T. Couch reported at Luther that water was running over the road there. The dry lake bed in that area had filled to brimming and water was coursing out of the Ed Simpson tank into the borrow ditch.

Mrs. Couch had measured 8.1 inches in the past two days. "I've never seen anything like it," she said.

FM 820 (from Coahoma to the Snyder highway) was closed when Wildhorse Creek went on a rampage and over a low bridge.

FM 821 (from U. S. 80 through the Howard-Glasscock oilfields) was closed when water got over the road in a number of points.

The county road from US 80 to Moss Creek was closed when Beal's Creek got about 600 yards wide. This is where city firemen towed Bud Flanagan and a Latin-American farm worker to safety after their pickup truck had stalled in the rising creek which carries away Big Spring drainage.

East of Big Spring on US 80, water was lapping at the highway on Beal's Creek and it was at the top of a bridge feeding in from the north. The city sewer plant was under water, and water was less than two feet from the bridge top on the FM 700-Beal's Creek crossing.

Traffic on US 80 on West Third and Fourth streets was routed around from Marcy to Gregg.

Barricades were removed from West Third street for west bound traffic over IS 20 at 12:45 p. m. at the water receded.

Cars crawled cautiously at the north end of the Gregg Street overpass, and water was backing up at the Benton Street overpass.

At noon, water was about a foot and a half deep over the Texas & Pacific tracks and had backed into the Railway Express storage room. It was still about a foot below the T&P terminal entrance level with every prospect of rising still further.

Mutual Space Offer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration has offered to refrain from pushing for weapons which would make space a battlefield, if the Soviet Union will do likewise.

Stock Market Stages Recovery

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market staged a recovery late this afternoon, moving generally higher in more active trading.

It had experienced a sinking spell around mid-day.

The improvement cut most of the early losses and sent some of the higher priced issues ahead by as much as 3 or 4 points.

Volume for the day was estimated at 3.3 billion shares compared with 3.05 million Wednesday.

The late improvement came at about the time the Senate approved the administration's tax revision bill. One provision of the proposal would permit businessmen to reduce tax payments by as much as 7 per cent of the cost of new equipment.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve Board reported that August department store sales dipped behind July but that the drop was not as great as had been anticipated.

The list was mixed at the start with most changes extremely narrow.

New Outbreak In Algerian Fuss

ALGIERS (AP)—Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella and the commander of the rebel guerrillas holding Algiers fled to Orleanville today to stop a new outbreak of fighting between their forces.

Ben Bella and Col. Si Hassan, commander of guerrilla Wilaya No. 4, had toured the front lines including Orleanville—to end shooting at three points in which 100 men were reported killed or wounded Wednesday.

The new clash forced postponement of a meeting between military leaders of both sides to draw up a formal cease-fire agreement.

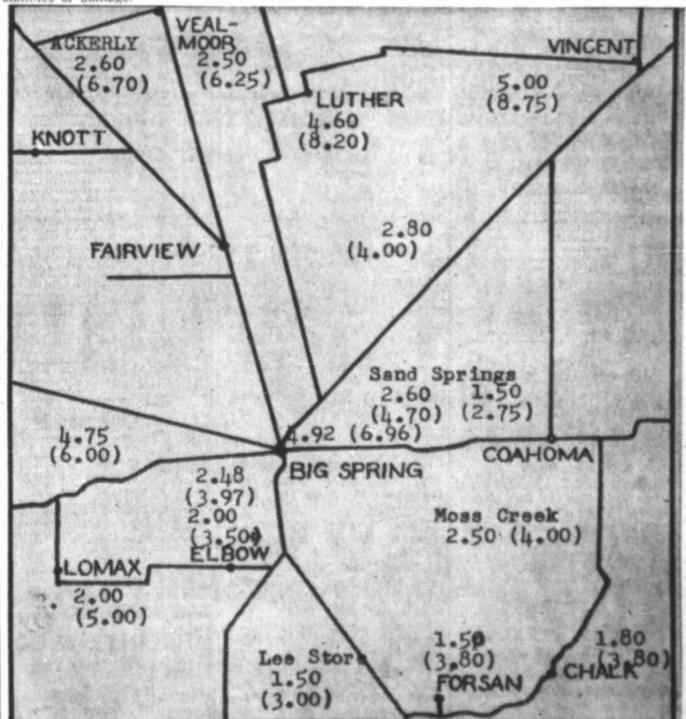

Church Picnic Is Called Off

It was a case of just too much water for Presbyterians, thus the all-church picnic scheduled for this evening has been cancelled.

Instead, the First Presbyterian family will hold the picnic next Thursday (Sept. 13) at 6:30 p. m. at the City Park pavilion. The church will furnish drinks, bread and potato chips, while each family is asked to bring a meat and side dish.

'Talking' Down A Plane

This crew of Webb AFB airmen had an important part in bringing down a civilian plane caught in the heavy overcast here Wednesday afternoon. With the assistance of radar, they guided the pilot to an emergency instrument landing at Webb. From left are Airmen E.C. Roger Bare, local controller; S. Sgt. William Hamilton, watch supervisor; S. Sgt. Jodie Hogue, ground control; and T. Sgt. William Brown.

Civilians Make Safe Landing At Webb

A Piper Tri-Pacer caught in the heavy overcast which covered most of West Texas Wednesday was "talked" to a safe landing at Webb Air Force Base shortly after noon.

Curtis A. Carpenter, pilot of the small four-seat plane, his wife and their daughter were en route from the Georgetown airport to Midland. They are from Andrews.

Carpenter's distress signal was received by Big Spring radio and he was instructed to get in touch with Webb AFB. This was done at 12:40 p.m. It took exactly one hour for Webb airmen to bring the plane safely to the runway.

Radar picked up the small plane about 20 miles north of Big Spring and the landing was planned as almost a straight shot from that location. Flying by instruments only, Carpenter was brought to within visual range of the runway.

"He kept trying to fly 180 degrees off course," said T. Sgt. Stanley Olsen, who was manning Ground Control Approach at Webb. "He would stay on course for about 20 seconds and then begin bearing to the right."

Olsen explained that in the thick fog the pilot might have suffered a touch of vertigo, having nothing to assist him get his bearing. The plane was brought to within five miles of the Base and was then taken down gradually until the pilot could see to make a visual landing.

"He made a good approach and landing," S. Sgt. William Hamilton, watch supervisor at the Webb Control Tower, said.

Although instrument landings are routine for the airmen, this emergency landing was touch-and-go because Carpenter was not an instrument pilot. He had only three hours of previous instrument training, which one Webb pilot said is almost like no experience.

Carpenter said he had refueled at Coleman in good weather. A later check with Abilene gave him the go-ahead signal since the overcast was expected to lift before he reached it. After flying into the overcast at Sweetwater, Carpenter said he went under it until his plane was forced too close to the

Parts Of State Distressed By High Waters

By The Associated Press
Flooding distressed parts of Texas Thursday as rains set off by a cold front that hovered over the state causing new downpours.

The weather was blamed for three deaths Wednesday.

Rains measuring up to 6.96 inches in 48 hours caused the Big Spring flooding. New rains fell Thursday.

Flooding also occurred in El Paso.

The heaviest reported rain was at Polar, north of Snyder, where 9.91 inches was registered.

Hard rain fell Wednesday between Sweetwater and Abilene, measuring 5.7 inches at Eskota. Big Spring received 4 inches. Midland 2.15, Odessa 2 and Sweetwater 2.10.

In the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. Thursday, rainfall totals included Trinidad 3.19, Terrell 2.21, College Station 1.69, Wink 1.26, El Paso 1.38, Kaufman 1.59, Pilot Point 1.30, Rockwall 1.27.

Seymour 1.46, Lake Kemp near Wichita Falls 1.51, Breckenridge 3.30, Jayton 3.50, Stamford 1.65, Rio Medina 1.72, Post 2.54.

The Weather Bureau said unofficial figures included Albany 1.90, Snyder up to 4.00, Gail 2.90, Roby up to 2.00, Aspermont and Haskell 3.00.

In Polar, the Cecil Randolph Ranch reported 5.5 inches of rain Wednesday night. Fluvanna re-reported 48-hour figures of 6.9 inches and Fullerville 7.2.

Fog and drizzling rain accented cooler weather Thursday across the northern three-fourths of Texas.

It was still warm ahead of a cool front which by early morning had drifted as far south as Beaumont and Del Rio, and thundershowers fell along the lower Texas coast.

Near Freeport a collision of a car and pickup truck in blinding rain killed Mrs. Naomi Crouch, 31, and her son John, 5. Two men in the pickup, owned by the Texas Highway Department, were injured.

At Mission in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, where the temperature hit 97 degrees Wednesday, Francisco Arredondo Trevino, 52, of Pharr was found dead in a citrus grove. Death was attributed to a heat stroke.

More than 2 inches of rain in 24 hours sent the normally placid Rio Grande on a sudden rise at El Paso, flooding some streets and forcing about 200 persons to leave homes in low areas. Water up to 3 feet deep eddied through one district.

Tornado funnel sightings near Palacios and Lake Charles, La. were reported to the Weather Bureau Wednesday afternoon. The twisters disappeared, apparently without touching ground.

Lightning hit a corner of the high school building at Marshall in East Texas, causing minor damage. None of the 1,800 students inside was injured.

RAIN

pouring over the spillway after being at the lowest level in many years. Lake J. B. Thomas was pushing toward spillway level and was expected to overflow the barrier by midafternoon.

Moss Creek Lake was up 2.75 feet as four inches of rain hit the watershed. The lake was 10 feet below spillway level prior to the present rains.

People who live in the area of Moss Creek Lake were isolated. Beale Creek was transformed into a rampaging river more than a city block wide and much higher than the paving. Two cars had to be pulled out of the creekbed early today. The passengers stayed with their vehicles but were well soaked before a rescue party got them out.

NORTH PART
As on Wednesday the heavier rainfall seems to have been across the northern half of the county.

The extreme upper edge of the county has had the most moisture but all parts of the county were soaked.

In Big Spring the rainfall varied widely.

The U. S. Experiment Station's report of 4.92 inches was more than matched by other reports in town. Texas Electric Service Co. switching plant reported four inches and its downtown plant had 4.25 inches.

Howard Brown in the Kentwood area had 3.20 inches. Total for the current storm stood at 5.20.

In southwest Big Spring at 405 Pennsylvania, where 2.20 inches fell Wednesday, 4.50 inches had been added early today and the gauge was rapidly refilling.

Webb AFB weather station had an additional 2.48 inches to bring the 24 hour total to 3.97 inches.

Coahoma had an additional 1.50 inches overnight. Forsan reported 1.50 inches and rain still falling. Lee's Store, in the extreme south central part of the county, had 1.50 inches. Lomax reported two inches and Wilkinson Ranch, west of town on IS 20, had 4.75 inches over night.

SAND SPRINGS
Sand Springs added 2.6 inches to its total and Elbow had two inches.

Other county reports were Vincent five inches; Luther 4.60; Vealmoor 2.50; Chalk 1.80; L. D. Spring, 2.80.

The rains were general in all parts of the Big Spring area. Colorado City had 1.20 inches over night and heavy additional rain fell during the forenoon. Lamesa had 2.50 inches to 8 a.m. and it was still raining.

On the MacDowell Ranch in Glasscock County, 1.75 inches were reported early today and half an inch Wednesday. In the western section of Glasscock County there were reports of four inch rains.

Sweetwater had 1.65 inches overnight and Eskota .93 of an inch.

OIL REPORT

Texaco Reports Deep Discovery

Texaco No. 1 DeKalb Agricultural Association, Martin County wildcat which has been testing the past two months, has been completed in the Devonian as a discovery. It pumped 33 barrels of 37.3 gravity on initial potential.

Operator has also tested the Spraberry and it too has indicated production. That zone is now shut-in. The discovery is about 3 1/4 miles east of the Bredlove (Devonian) field and may eventually complete in both pay zones of that field.

In Howard County, Texaco No. 1 Gular is recovering load. Another venture in Howard County, Pure No. 22 Chalk, recovered fair shows in cores taken from the San Andres. It is a 6,200-foot Abo test about 12 miles southeast of Big Spring.

Howard

Pure No. 22 Otis Chalk, spotting 2,310 feet from the north and 1,650 feet from the east lines of section 125-29, W&NW survey, is pulling core from between 2,122-74 feet. Operator cored the San Andres, between 2,070-132 feet, and recovered 52 feet of dolomite with very poor pinpoint porosity and a fair bleeding of oil noted throughout the core.

Tenneco No. 1 Graham is bottomed at 8,260 feet. On pump it returned 135 barrels of load oil, 77 barrels of water in 24 hours. Operator has recovered a total of 998 barrels of load oil with 342 barrels remaining. Drillsite is C NW SW, section 30-33-3n, T&P survey.

Texaco No. 1 Gular, C SW SW, section 12-A, Bauer and Cockrell survey, is swabbing. It has swabbed 273 barrels of fluid in 14 hours. Recovery was cut 10 per cent load oil with the remainder frac fluid.

Martin

Mobil No. 1 Donham pumped 25 barrels of load oil and 49 barrels of salt water in 18 hours from the Spraberry, between 7,562-8,010 feet. It spots C NW NW, section 33-35-3n, T&P survey.

Texaco No. 1 DeKalb Agricultural Association pumped 33 barrels of 37.3 gravity oil, with 14 barrels of salt water a day, through perforations between 11,858-59 feet on initial potential. This Devonian discovery had a gas-oil ratio too small to measure and operator did not report total amount of acid or fracturing. The Spraberry, which also tested new oil, is shut-in. Location is C SE SE labor 12-260, Borden CSL survey.

Mitchell

Roden Oil and Cosden No. 1-E-1 Reed is flowing load oil with no gauges reported. There remains 561 barrels of load to recover. This venture is 1,650 feet from the south and 660 feet from the west lines of section 8-30, W&NW survey.

Enrollment Still Climbs

Attendance a Big Spring public schools was good today despite the rainy weather, according to Sam M. Anderson, superintendent. At the same time, enrollment continued climbing toward the 7,400 mark.

Enrollment this morning totaled 7,377 pupils in city schools, up 25 from Wednesday. Elementary schools picked up 11 students, going to 4,327. Secondary schools reached 2,905, a gain of 12, and Special Education went up two to 145.

Only the Northside schools showed drops in attendance today because flooding made it difficult for students to get to classes. Lakeview and Kate Morrison showed the largest drop in attendance and Bauer is off a little, Anderson said.

Schools elsewhere in the city showed only normal absences for rainy weather. However, traffic was congested at most schools as parents delivered children in the morning and picked up first grade students at 11 a.m.

Buses made all regularly scheduled runs and only eight absences were noted among regular bus passengers.

A Good Start

SALEM, N.H. (AP)—Teachers were unable to quiet one little boy on his first day at the Haigh school Wednesday.

He sobbed uncontrollably until the principal, Miss Mary Valeska, took him in tow.

"Why are you crying, dear—don't you like school?" she asked. "I like it but I'm afraid," he sobbed. "I don't know how to read or write or anything."

Enrollment Listed

STANTON — Stanton superintendent of schools, Bill Johnson, has announced 830 students have enrolled in the Stanton schools. Junior high and elementary schools total 482 enrollments, while the high school reports 221. Courtney school has 96 and the Negro school enrolled 51.

Bloomer Girl Back In Style With Pettipants

Kicking breezily from the laundry lines across the country are teen-age unmentionables which look as if they belong to some gay but modest old grandmother. They're pantaloons of sorts, reaching to the knees. And they're meant to be both mentioned and seen.

Among junior and high school age girls and even younger they are a current clothing fad born of necessity.

Pettipants, one of the many names the long bloomer type lingerie has, came into being after the 1958 Paris collections in which skirts were slim and dresses were lined.

SKIRTS RIDE HIGH

Under tight skirts petticoats were inclined to be bulky and the lined dresses of course, didn't really need them. Furthermore, those skinny sheaths awkwardly climbed upward when the wearer stepped high or sat down. Well, anybody knows that a teen miss does like her freedom of movement.

Still, the real rage for petticoats, pantilegs, pantilights, knickerbockers, petticoats, bloomers, underliners, or whatever your name is for them, didn't really get going until this year.

BLOOMERS PAST

During the current century other attempts have been made to bring back knee bloomers.

In 1919 petticoats, which gartered below the knees, were worn by some for warmth and modesty.

In 1938 a well known lingerie manufacturer produced what he frankly called grandma's drawers, literally a bloomer type petticoat. He also sold ankle-length pantaloons which were described in a fashion trade publication as "just the thing to wear under the fashionable hoopskirted evening dresses."

LONG AND LEAN

Although they are long, most pettipants are cut on the same slim line as briefs. And, because they are supposed to be very snug on the leg, they are usually made of tricot, a knitted construction, which has more cling and more stretch than a woven fabric.

RUFFLES AND BOWS

There are some woven pettipants, fuller in cut than the tricot ones which are worn under flared skirts, kilts, or knee ticklers rather than sheaths or stretch pants.

Whether the fabric is of woven or knit construction, though, it is Pretty Pettipants

Among the variations of the undergarment, combining panty and petticoat, are: left, a striped style with ruffles at the knees made of knitted dacron and nylon; and a pettipant made of antron tricot fiber with a gay trellis rose print motif.

usually wholly made of a test tube fiber such as nylon and dacron, or a combination of one with cotton. In any event they wash and dry quickly. Antron is another fiber often used because it is softer and, best of all, can produce three-dimensional effects in color.

And colors, all kinds in wild patterns and bold stripes, as well as silly bows, ruffles and fur-bellows are what the designers think have made the slip-pant combinations a super success with the scholastic crowd.

That, and the other thing, the desire to be modest.

The Favored Area Rugs Can Be Shaped And Dyed

"Every white carpet goes out of my shop marked 'guaranteed to get dirty,'" says Edwards Fields, whose carpet designs have found their way into the White House, Pentagon, United Nations and famous homes over the world.

"It's enough of a problem to take care of any plain-color carpet," says Fields, "but it's downright silly to choose white carpet—unless you plan to remove your shoes every time you enter the room."

He predicts that "plain carpet will fade away."

"Wall-to-wall carpet has been a status symbol but, now that anybody can afford it, the trend is to area rugs. The big problem is the cost of maintaining carpet," he says.

You can't pick up wall-to-wall carpet every time it soils and send it out to be cleaned, he points out, one reason area rugs could be a tonic for those who have struggled with wall-to-wall carpet.

"If you have wall-to-wall carpet, it can be cut down to area rug size or cut into baroque shapes. It can be bound and fringe added if you like. You can have it dyed, and it may even be useful in several rooms," Fields advises.

Anticipate Laundry

NEW YORK—The time to anticipate time-saving in the laundry is when you buy clothes. Some dresses require 30 to 40 minutes of care with each laundering, others can be cared for in less than ten minutes. What is the secret? Look for wash 'n wear clothes that can be handled by your automatic laundry appliances.

Fashionable Teenager Will Be Neat As A Pin

AP Newswriters

The slopp' look is out and the tidy look is in.

Store counters are crowded with girls snapping up bright white gloves and feminine Sunday hats that will see them through church and dates. The most popular hat styles are bretons, cloches and pill boxes.

The neat teen-ager may not win any best-dressed awards but she'll be appealing in a dress, probably sleeveless, or suit. The shift, so stylish on young figures, is priced for budget pocketbooks whether its woolknit, nylon, linen, cotton or rayon.

No, you don't need to be a well-heeled musician to achieve this tidy look. Much can be accomplished with soap. Toss your white sneakers into the washing machine.

The effectiveness of a chic suit will be spoiled if you wear it with a soiled blouse, collar or gilet. Purchase a wash 'n wear blouse. Dunk it after you wear it. Don't be tempted to wear it just once more before you launder it.

The same holds true of those white gloves.

And keep your underclothes laundered. A girdle and bra will last longer if they are washed after each wearing, otherwise body oils will weaken the elastic.

If you've been wearing a hairdo that resembles wilted spinach, give your locks a break and get a good haircut.

Tweeze straggly hairs around the brow. Never disturb the natural arch of your brow, however.

Favorite shoe styles are patent leather mo-casins in colors from vivid scarlet to buttercup yellow and royal blue.

Westbrook Youths Ready For School

WESTBROOK (SC)—Westbrook students planning to enter Howard County Junior College are Judy Ranne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ranne; Marie Putman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Putman; Bill Bird, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bird; Doyce Lankford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Lankford; Tanya Boatright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Boatright of Colorado City.

Mrs. Herman Parsons and Mrs. O. J. Bohannon plan to attend McMurry College in Abilene.

Stainless Steel Dress Is Rustproof Elegance

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO — Marge McLennon believes in starting at the beginning when she gets together a fashion show.

Mrs. McLennon, mother of seven children and grandmother of three, has developed a fashion parade of 36 costumes that begins with stone age apparel. From this primitive start—how do you like your animal skins draped, ma'am?—she has traveled to the future.

Her most popular dress, designed for partying, is of a stainless steel fabric spun in Germany. She used ordinary scissors and nylon thread to sew the wire-like fabric.

"It is not very wearable," Marge admits, "but it shows what the future holds for fashions. Women will be wearing dresses made of paper, aluminum and materials still unknown."

Mrs. McLennon's show includes a dress that lights up with batteries hidden in its folds. Another is one "Cocktails on the Moon," and a third is named "Astronaut."

Marge says she became involved in her show of fashions through the ages when she prepared one for her church two years ago.

Now she schedules as many as three showings a week and commitments are dated a year ahead.

It's more a labor of love than a profitable venture, though, she says. And it's a hit because "women want entertainment."

Men's Wear Difference

Clothing For The Men Is Somewhat Far Out?

NEW YORK — Any number of famous, well dressed men would happily pin a medal on Bill Miller for his courage in designing such things as pocketless and buttonless suits, a man's mink jacket, or even a man's pocket book (called briefer case).

Until most men see for themselves that these radical sounding garments are both practical and virile, they are likely to have their doubts.

Former Air Force navigator Miller decries this attitude, but he's used to it. Even his cutter cautioned him in a fatherly way when Miller brought that pocketless suit design for execution. Fortunately, the suit with its four pockets hidden in the lining is so figure-flattering to men that it has become a Miller classic.

The suit is basically simple minus distractions, possibly the masculine counterpart of the "nothing" dress which Mrs. John F. Kennedy popularized.

TALLER OR THINNER?

"What do men want to do? Look taller and thinner. The shorter jacket and tapered slacks do this. Those unnecessary accessories, pockets and buttons just add bulk," the designers say.

Although called a cocktail suit men wear it for both business or dress. Still it's not too radical in appearance because too radical ideas are rejected these days, he says. Somehow he knows just how far to go.

"Men lost their style courage at the turn of the century. That's when the Industrial Revolution began to stamp out their suits like cars on an assembly line.

"Somebody protests that the one-button suit is a gangster suit because gunman supposedly wore this kind during prohibition to get at their guns easier. I ask," expostulates the prize-winning designer, waving his hands, "why can only one, or two, or three-button suits be in style at a time? Why can't they all be at once?"

Nor does Miller have much use for sleeve buttons "What are they for? To keep men from wiping their noses?"

Although his father, Joseph Miller designed ladies knitwear, Bill Miller received his masters at New York University in vocational guidance and psychology, and taught industrial arts before his father retired.

FIRST SUIT

He designed his first suit because, "after wearing shorter jackets and fitted, cuffless pants in the Air Force the pants in style then—3-pleated kind with cuffs — seemed uncomfortably baggy on me. Thus, he was ahead of the continent with continental slacks.

He began to design in earnest eight years ago when with partner Frank Lawrence, he turned an Indian jewelry shop in Greenwich Village into a haberdashery

"We couldn't find anything different to choose from, no men's clothes with personality, or identity."

Since then the Miller identity has been designed into every piece of apparel a man dons. Because costumers complained that standard boxer shorts were bulky under slim cut pants, Miller created "briefer" undershorts, cut off at the legs.

His folded cuffs on men's shirts give the long-armed man more coverage. His pajamas, called leggy loungeurs, are slimmer down. Robes are vibrant colors in luxurious fabrics.

NECKTIE NEWS

He makes narrow easy-to-clean suede and leather neckties.

The Danes knit giant, bulky turtle neck sweaters to his specification. The Greeks make burley jackets for him from fur rugs.

With the top parts of women's earrings he makes the tacks and with the rest, matching cuff links. He has even produced his own brand of cologne for men. All very masculine.

Ben Gazzara, Marion Brando, Tony Curtis, Tony Perkins and Cary Grant can vouch for that. So can the Ivy League thieves.

That's what the New York police labeled those burglars who broke into Miller's apartment recently and touched nothing but all the size 38-samples clothes from his copious closets.

Estes' Lawyer Says Villain In Case Is The Government

Questioned

John Dennison of Pecos, Billie Sol Estes' top lawyer, answers questions as he appears before the Senate Investigations Subcommittee. His role in Estes' lucrative cotton acreage allotment manipulations is being probed.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Billie Sol Estes' lawyer has named what he considers to be the villain in the Estes case—the government.

"We wouldn't be in this investigation today," if Texas and Washington officials had done their jobs, charged John Dennison, the bankrupt promoter's counsel.

The Pecos, Tex., lawyer swore to the Senate Investigations subcommittee Wednesday that Estes' acquisitions of other farmers cotton allotments were legitimate. The government has held they were not.

He said the transactions had been approved by farm aid officials in Texas until they backed off in December when the Agriculture Department began a crackdown.

Much of his testimony contradicted previous witnesses. The FBI was reported to have tried but failed to unravel at least one of the contradictions.

The Senate is exploring whether Estes received improper help from friends in government in his deals under U.S. farm programs.

The Agriculture Department levied a $554,000 fine against Estes and his associates for the allotment transactions.

But Dennison testified Henry H. Marshall, farm aid official in Texas found dead of gunshot wounds, had approved them. This was Dennison's key point in arguing that the government was to blame for the troubles from the jugged cotton acreage allotments.

An earlier witness said Marshall ruled the transfers improper.

Allotments are the number of acres a farmer may use to grow cotton eligible for price supports. The valuable allotments cannot be sold. But when a cotton farmer's land is condemned for a road, for instance, he can sometimes transfer his allotment to another farm he buys.

Estes obtained allotments for more than 3,123 acres by this method: He purported to sell land to displaced farmers who had allotments, then leased the land back along with the allotments the farmers had transferred to the land.

Estes, said Dennison, still considers the transfers legal and plans to carry his defense of them to the courts.

The FBI report concerns a memorandum found in Agriculture Department files recommending approval of the allotment deals.

Edwin A. Jaenke, associate farm aid administrator, has testified he never signed the memo. Emery E. Jacobs, an ousted farm aid official, has sworn he saw Jaenke sign it.

San Antonio Man Buys Assets Of Fallen Empire

EL PASO (AP)—Morris Jaffe, 40-year-old president of Fed-Mart stores in San Antonio, bought the assets of the Billie Sol Estes empire Wednesday night.

The purchase price was $8.8 million, an informed source told the El Paso Times. With interest due creditors, Jaffe will pay a total of $8.7 million, the Times reported.

Harry Moore, trustee of the Estes holdings, told the Times "all of the assets were sold," including a funeral home at Pecos, Tex., and other businesses of the bankrupt Pecos promoter. The principal assets are grain elevators.

Moore said under the sale agreement, unsecured creditors could expect to receive a total of $5 million. This would mean about 25 cents on the dollar.

The sale to Jaffe's American Grain Corp. has been in negotiation since the first week in August.

Moore said Commercial Solvents

Corp. in order to facilitate the sale, agreed to assign its mortgage claims on Estes to the trustee. He estimated Commercial Solvents would receive $3.7 million.

The contract was submitted to J. C. Brooke, referee in bankruptcy, who will hear a motion to approve the sale within the next two weeks.

Deported Eighth Time

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A 17-year-old Mexican headed for home today after being deported from the United States for the eighth time. He said he thought he'd make his ninth try soon.

"Maybe I'll get through next time," said Ignacio Morales Gonzalez as he walked jauntily away from the Eastern Air Lines plane that brought him from New York Wednesday.

"In Mexico things are very hard," he said. "And it takes a lot of work to earn good money. I want to be a U.S. citizen."

Hatless and coatless with two extra shirts in a paper bag, Ignacio hid in another Eastern airliner before it took off from Mexico City last Friday. He was discovered 20 minutes after it took off. U.S. officials took the youth into custody on his arrival in New York and held him until the return trip.

Ignacio said he would return to his home in Ensenada, about 60 miles south of San Diego, Calif. His parents and five brothers and sisters live in Ensenada.

The Beauty And The Bear

Connie Welde, one of the Rudy Bros. Circus lovelies and a member of the Welde Performing Bears Troupe, poses with one of the trained bears. John Welde, the trainer, says that in spite of their comical, amiable appearance, bears are the most difficult and treacherous animals in the world to train. The circus, here Sept. 20, will be sponsored by the Shrine Temple with proceeds going to the benevolence fund. Shows will be held at 3:15 and 8:15 p.m. at the Rodeo Arena.

Apportionment For Summer Jobs Sought

By TEX EASLEY
AP Special Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy on a late August afternoon urged a group of college students working as summer interns in government agencies to consider government careers.

Texas Rep. Lindley Beckworth contends that if summer government jobs are as important an introductory step toward federal service as the President indicated, they should be equitably apportioned among the states.

Officials estimate 5,000 college students were on Uncle Sam's payroll the past three months. According to Beckworth, 70 per cent came from the District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland. He bases his figure on data obtained through correspondence with 23 departments and agencies.

A bill Beckworth introduced would amend the Civil Service Act of 1938 so as to require that these temporary summer jobs in government be apportioned among the states on a population basis.

BILL APPROVED

The Beckworth bill was approved recently by a 15 to 1 vote of the House Civil Service Committee and is expected to come up on the House floor about the middle of September.

The lone vote against it was by Rep. Joel T. Broyhill, a Republican who represents northern Virginia.

"If it is good for these young people in this area near Washington to know something about their government," Beckworth said, "it is just as good for those living elsewhere throughout the nation."

And the opportunity to come here and work in government jobs would mean much more to one who has not grown up in Washington or its suburbs.

Concerned about his job issue for a long time, Beckworth had to write all the agencies separately and get the Library of Congress to tabulate the results in order to learn the distribution of jobs by states.

HARDEST FIGURES

"They are the hardest figures in the world to get," he continued. "The figures I obtained are for the year 1959—the latest available. So far as I know there is no breakdown by states for any year except this I have obtained."

Here are some highlights of that 1959 study: There were 2,321 summer government jobs for students. It showed that 490 went to District of Columbia residents, 548 to Virginians and 628 to Marylanders. Next ranking state was New York with 110. Half of the states had fewer than a dozen. Texas had 14.

AROUND THE CAPITAL

Pending before the Comptroller of the Currency are applications from groups in three Texas cities for charters to establish new national banks: Houston, San Antonio and Plainview.

On each application are three proposed names for a bank, set down in order of preference. The first choice on the applications: Republic National Bank of Houston, Security National Bank of San Antonio, First National Bank of Plainview.

Set forth on the application are the names of those who seek to organize the banks.

In the case of Plainview, for example, the application lists these residents of that city: T. E. Mitchell, James M. Miller, H. A. Hubbard, K. B. Jordan, Ted Boedeker and Jake Wilson.

After the applications are filed the comptroller orders an investigation. An examiner checks into the financial standing of the applicants and their reputation in the community. He also questions officials of existing banks and savings and loans associations that serve the area to help determine whether a new bank is needed.

Sometimes the comptroller orders a public hearing on an application. He sends out notices to existing financial institutions when applications are received, and only orders a hearing if some protest is raised. A spokesman in his office said NO public hearing is expected to be held regarding the Texas applications. Investigations have been completed in all three cases, he said, and the applications now are moving toward approval by Comptroller James J. Saxon, possibly in the middle or latter part of September.

The comptroller does NOT immediately issue a charter, but merely a "preliminary approval to organize." The charter is issued after the applicants have organized, shown paid-up capital, shown they have a place ready to do business, and have listed management personnel who have proper qualifications.

Wax Bullets End Jail Riot

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Prisoners staging a destructive riot in the Bexar County jail "just wanted to test me—to see what I would do," new Sheriff Bill Hauck said. Hauck fired wax bullets from his .45 caliber pistol and his deputies turned fire hoses on 130 unruly inmates. That ended the 2½-hour uprising Wednesday.

Three of the prisoners suffered minor wounds. A fourth was treated for shock. "Those bullets were what broke it up," said Hauck, who was appointed last month to succeed the late Sheriff Owen Kilday.

Some of the inmates complained about a noon meal of stew and biscuits. They sent Hauck a note demanding other food in five minutes and threatening to "tear the place apart."

After the riot, limited to the fourth and fifth floors, Hauck said the prisoners admitted there was nothing wrong with the food. He added that their diet will be bread and water or the next three days. The prisoners burned all their mattresses, destroyed every light fixture and smashed all their windows on the back wall of the jail. There was never a chance for any to escape, the sheriff said.

Cross Burned Outside Barracks

CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP) — A cross was burned Wednesday into a lawn outside a barracks housing Negro servicemen at Westover Air Force Base. Three "K's" that could have meant Ku Klux Klan were marked on the side of the building.

A public information officer confirmed the happening Wednesday night and added that police concluded the incident was possibly a prank.

The officer said the cross apparently was burned into the grass with flammable liquid.

Laotians, Czechs Set Up Relations

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)— Laos announced today the establishment of diplomatic relations with Czechoslovakia. It is the first Communist country with which Laos' coalition government has established formal ties since taking office.

The government headed by neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma has agreed in principle to establish relations with eight other Communist countries including China and North Viet Nam. Laos and the Soviet Union have had diplomatic relations for several years.

Cooking Accompaniment

Cooking seems to be a breeze for Mrs. Dale Young in her modern kitchen—especially when there's a background of soft stereo music to work by. She is pictured above listening to one of her favorite selections being played on their new modern set.

The Devil Never Had It So Good As Mrs. Young

Imagine cooking for 11 miners a husband and a 14-month-old son in a house lacking the conveniences taken for granted by today's housewife. Mrs. Dale Young tells of her experiences back in 1956, when her husband was employed as a copper miner near Wickenburg, Ariz., in the land of muleskinners, burros, rattlesnakes, tarantulas and Gila monsters.

Mrs. Young was asked to fill in until the new cook arrived. The job lasted only three or four weeks; however by the time the cook arrived on the scene, Mrs. Young had acquired a new appreciation for everyday conveniences. Her oven did not work; there was no air conditioning comfort in the average 105 degree climate; the plumbing situation left much to be desired; she boiled her son's diapers in a pot on the stove, and the generator lights, which occasionally worked, left her washing dishes in the dark more than once. She remarked, "We had running water—if we ran out and got it."

Did Mrs. Young make shortcuts by cooking the old reliable pot of red beans? No, the men worked so hard and the weather was so hot that they had to have plenty of meat at each meal. She cooked mostly large roasts and chickens. Although Mrs. Young felt at the time that she carried a heavy load, she realizes today that it was a valuable experience.

Fruit Bread Is Quick Bread

Make this good fruit-flavored quick bread into cream cheese sandwiches and carry in a vacuum bag for nibblers.

BANANA-ORANGE BREAD
2 cups sifted flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. baking soda
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup sugar
1 large egg
3/4 cup (2 medium) mashed banana
1 tsp. grated orange rind
3 tbsps. orange juice
1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
Sift together the flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg well. Stir in banana, orange rind and orange juice. Add sifted dry ingredients and nuts; stir only until flour mixture is moistened. Turn into greased loaf pan (8 1/2 by 4 1/2 by 3 inches); bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 1 hour or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. (Bread will have center crack.) Turn out on wire rack; turn right side up; cool. To slice thin, store overnight in tightly covered container.

Adequate Breakfasts Essential For Kids

The traditional mid-morning milk or coffee break is no substitute for a nourishing, well-balanced breakfast.

September, the back-to-school month, also is Better Breakfast Month. As we resume a heavy fall schedule, in or out of school, it's time to improve breakfast habits. Better Breakfast Month is observed because many folks start the working day without an adequate breakfast. It's a matter of national vigor and accomplishment.

Research shows that nothing can replace a good breakfast. Scientists at the University of Iowa's College of Medicine recently found that when office and factory workers eat an adequate breakfast, rather than just take a coffee break, they are generally more productive during the late changed since then. In fact, that short interval was the only time in her cooking career that she felt the work was hard or the conveniences too few. Today she cooks in her modern kitchen in her home at 1903 N. Monticello. She enjoys cooking for her husband, who presently is employed as instrument man for Sid Richardson Carbon Co., and her son, Eddie, who is in the second grade of school at Washington Place Elementary.

One of her most important duties as a cook is to see that her family starts the day with a hearty breakfast. Although her breakfast does not include pork chops and gravy, as did those her mother cooked for her when she was a girl, she sees to it that this meal and the others are nutritious.

FAVORITE FOODS

Favorites of the Youngs are fresh vegetables, along with meat and gravy, garlic bread and all desserts. Eddie thinks a meal is incomplete without potatoes.

Today's cook remarks, "I couldn't cook a lick when we married; I learned straight from the cookbook." With experience, Mrs. Young has developed a talent for cooking. She offers some of her best recipes for today's readers.

morning hours. Also, they are quicker in their reactions and don't tire as easily.

And children are more likely to do well in studies and games when they start the day off with a balanced breakfast.

A wide range of foods offers good breakfast potentials, and it's not necessary to stick to "traditional" items. Children sometimes enjoy hamburgers for breakfast, accompanied by milk and a piece of fruit.

Many quick-to-prepare convenience foods also fill the bill. Orange juice is a quickie. It's one of the September plentiful foods. Because it's a good source of vitamin C, this is an ideal day-opener. Fresh pears and grapes also are abundant. And consider cereals, pancakes, breads, eggs, and the all-important dairy foods.

Salad Days Sometimes Salad Daze

Summer months are composed of "salad days," but more often they become "salad daze" as the warm homemaker finds ideas for lunch and supper dishes running low.

A trip to the pantry yields all sorts of good ideas. Those canned pork and beans with tomato sauce, which most homemakers associate only with franks or hamburgers, can make your next salad menu party-worthy. Combine the contents of a can of pork and beans with tomato sauce, right from the can, with crisp, chopped green pepper, and onion; add some chili powder and chill for several hours. Served on crisp greens and laced on top with strips of cold ham, these salads will win compliments for you.

Nourishing in themselves, all that's needed for a companion is a basket of hot, fluffy rolls. A refreshingly cold arrangement of fresh in-season fruits, cheeses, and crackers is a marvelous desert... and one so easily arranged.

SUMMER BEAN SALAD

1 can (1 pound) pork & beans
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
2 tbsps. minced onion
1/2 tsp. chili powder
Salad greens
2 slices boiled ham, cut into 1/4 inch strips

In bowl, combine beans, celery, green pepper, onion, and chili powder. Chill and serve on greens. Top with strips of ham. Makes 4 servings.

Apples Are Increasing On Market

By The Associated Press

More apples, potatoes and onions are available at Texas produce markets this week as signs of fall become evident.

Adding to the growing supply of apples this week are red Delicious and Jonathans. First pumpkins have appeared, along with Tokay grapes, says the agricultural marketing service.

Most prices are about the same as a week ago. Exceptions include higher wholesale tags on lettuce and watermelons, and lowering prices on green beans, onions, potatoes, radishes, sweet potatoes and tomatoes. Price trends on plums and prunes vary.

Fruits arriving in heavy volume and at low cost include bananas; grapes, especially Thompson seedless; pears and peaches. Soft fruit shipments from California are heavy.

The supply of fresh oranges is tight, but frozen orange juice remains plentiful.

Vegetables on the week's best-buy list at many markets are potatoes of all kinds, cabbage, carrots, celery, sweet corn, greens and green onions, both white and yellow onions, peppers, radishes, sweet potatoes and tomatoes. Local supplies of okra range from extremely light to abundant.

Current markets for broilers and eggs are stronger but both items continue economical. Turkey meat remains plentiful and low-cost. Supply of dairy foods, including fluid milk, is more than adequate. Fresh red meats are adequate for all needs at reasonable prices. Processed meat items continue in excellent supply.

Party-Worthy

An old reliable, a can of pork and beans, comes to the rescue in the waning days of summer when ideas for salads are getting slim. Combined with the right ingredients, pork and beans can be dressy enough for a party.

Grape Slaw Is Enjoyable Salad

If your family enjoys a sweet slaw, they'll go for this salad.

GRAPE SLAW
1/4 cup mayonnaise
2 tbsps. prepared yellow mustard
2 tbsps. lemon juice
2 medium-size ripe bananas
4 cups finely shredded green cabbage (packed down)

2 tbsps. salt
White pepper to taste
2 cups seedless grapes (halved)

In a large mixing bowl stir together the mayonnaise, mustard and lemon juice. Slice in the bananas; mash fine with dressing. Add cabbage and sprinkle with salt and pepper; mix well. Fold in grapes. Salad may be served right away if you want the cabbage to taste very crisp; or it may be chilled for several hours or even overnight. Makes 6 servings.

Canned Vegetables As The First Course

By The Associated Press

Borrow an idea from European tables and serve marinated vegetables as a first course.

We do this often, using canned vegetables. So convenient and so many varieties from which to choose. Use epicurean artichoke hearts, asparagus spears, mushrooms or pimiento; or try everyday green beans or beets.

If kitchen economy is your watchword, look out for "bargains" at the markets and stock up your pantry shelf so you have a supply on hand. Read labels! Canned green beans come various ways, from cut style to whole vertical pack—and the price varies accordingly. When company comes, the whole green beans are great to marinate; but cut style beans, treated the same way, are also delicious.

If you're choosing beets, you may find it thrifty to buy the whole or chunked style beets and slice them yourself. If every second counts, you may wish to use the canned sliced or shoestring style beets.

Both white and green asparagus are deliciously marinated. The canned white spears we found on European visits, were favored in a number of countries.

Marinated whole mushroom caps make a wonderful appearance, but there isn't a thing wrong with the flavor when economical caps and stems are used.

Don't mix the vegetables when you serve them as a first course. Marinate them individually and offer them on separate dishes, or at least in separate mounds. Of course here, as with any rule, there are exceptions. Mushrooms and pimientos, for example, are delightful marinated with green beans. And sometimes we mix green and wax beans for a pretty color combination.

If any marinated vegetables are leftover, you'll find they'll make a real contribution to a tossed green salad.

MARINATED VEGETABLES
1 lb. can vegetables (suitable for marinating)
6 tbsps. olive or other salad oil
3 tbsps. cider or wine vinegar
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. sugar

1 small onion (peeled and sliced into thin rings)

Turn vegetables into a strainer to drain; use vegetable liquid in sauces or soups. In a wide shallow container, beat together with a fork the oil, vinegar, salt and sugar; add drained vegetables and onion, mix. Refrigerate covered, several hours or overnight, turning vegetables once or twice in the marinade. Before serving, drain vegetables from marinade. Onion rings may be served with vegetables or removed—as you like.

Italian Cooking Gives Eggs Lift

Scrambled eggs get a lift when you use this combination of ingredients often found in Italian cooking.

SPECIAL SCRAMBLED EGGS

Eggs
Anchovy Fillets
Capers
Butter

For each serving, use 2 eggs, 2 drained anchovy fillets (torn or cut into small pieces) and 1 teaspoon drained capers. Beat eggs enough to combine yolks and whites; add anchovy pieces and capers. Scramble egg mixture in hot butter in skillet to desired doneness. Serve at once.

School Pickets

Pickets walk along a sidewalk in front of Lincoln School in Englewood, N. J., as they protested the city's failure to end racial segregation in the schools. Lincoln is predominantly a Negro school, but the 15 white students assigned to the school attended classes. About half the school's 518 pupils entered the school on opening day. Negro leaders in Englewood called for a boycott of the city's elementary schools in the desegregation protest.

Demo Party Split Provides Interest In N.Y. Primary

NEW YORK (AP) — A Democratic party split provided most of the interest in the New York state primary election today. One contest found President Kennedy standing on one side and Mayor Robert F. Wagner walking softly on the other.

This centered on the efforts of 14-term Rep. Charles A. Buckley to win Democratic renomination to Congress and retain his party leadership post in the Bronx. Reform Democrats opposed him.

Kennedy, long a personal friend of Buckley, endorsed his re-election bid. Buckley, 72, is chairman of the House Public Works Committee.

Wagner supported the entire Bronx reform ticket, including Buckley's opponent, David H. Levy, 35. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Sen. Herbet H. Lehman also backed Levy.

After the White House endorsement, however, Wagner eased up on his opposition to Buckley, last on the Wagner list of old-time political bosses he vowed to destroy.

The Mayor did not mention

Levy by name in an election eve statement supporting some other reform candidates.

Heavy voting was predicted in the city, where polls were to be open from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. Balloting in upstate counties was scheduled for noon to 9 p.m.

The primary involved 103 local and district public offices and hundreds of party offices.

Candidates for statewide office will be picked at party conventions convening later this month—the Democrats in Syracuse and the Republicans in Buffalo.

Thus, the voting will leave unsettled the biggest political problem in the state: Finding the Democratic team to send against Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Jacob K. Javits in the general election.

Perhaps the hottest Republican fight in the primary today concerned the congressional nomination in the 26th District, in suburban Westchester County. There the party organization endorsed Ogden R. Reid over Rep. Edwin B. Dooley.

VALUABLE LESSONS

Stevenson Tells Of Guard Callup

Many valuable lessons resulted from the callup of the 49th Armored Division last year, and Capt. Dewie Stevenson expressed the hope one of them would not be lost on the Kremlin.

Addressing the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday, he observed: "I hope that the callup showed Khrushchev that we meant what we said."

Stevenson, who headed the local battery which spent a year in training at Fort Polk, La., said that he believed a strong reserve was and is still imperative. Lessons learned can help shape a trained National Guard soldier into a combat-ready fighting man in six weeks.

Plenty of mistakes were made in calling the Lone Star division to active duty, but most of them were logistical, he told the Lions.

Yet the experience revealed the weak points of supply, of bottlenecks, of deficiencies in training facilities. Valuable time was lost from training to overcome these and other difficulties. At the end of the year, however, the division was hardened, combat-ready, and became the first reserve division to get a Strike assignment.

"Strike," he explained, "is something similar to 'can get gun, will travel.' The division can go on 24-hour notice—can get to its assignment and the equipment will be there.

The unit has been trained in nuclear arms. In maneuvers, members of the Battery A of the 3rd Howitzer battalion demonstrated repeatedly an ability to hit a target at a distance of four miles, setting set within five minutes and firing at 20 second intervals.

Men of the division learned how to deal with incessant mud and how to move an armored division through the worst conditions imaginable. They learned to improvise; they mastered problems of supply and re-supply; of movement and supply by helicopter; of the importance of developing an anti-guerrilla force.

Another lesson learned, he believed, was a more judicious means of filling under-manned units. Most of the trouble came from the fill-ins, who frequently had justifiable beefs.

"If we had our units filled," he observed, "we wouldn't have that problem. That's why we're still seeking recruits and still continuing our job of training to be ready at all times."

Also guests of the club were 1st Lt. Johnny Hooper and 1st Sgt. Douglas Hedges.

Soviets Strike Out In 5 Of 6 Space Attempts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has struck out in five of six attempts to send spacecraft to Mars and Venus—and the sixth turned into a long foul, U.S. space officials report.

Twice within the past two weeks, they said, the Soviets tried to beat or match America's launching of Mariner 2 now hurtling 6,000 miles an hour toward Venus. Both Soviet attempts went haywire, added the report.

It ticked off the two space flops this way—

One effort on Aug. 25—two days before Mariner rocketed into the sky—broke up in space. Its fragments are orbiting earth. This failure was reported unofficially earlier.

But the U.S. space agency disclosed Wednesday night a second attempt on Sept. 1 not previously reported. The Soviets saw this one misfire, too.

The only shot that approached success was a Venus probe in 1961, said the report, but its radio blacked out before it got even close to the planet.

The chronicle of Soviet space troubles was contained in a letter to chairmen of the Senate and House Space committees from James E. Webb, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The Congress members had urged Webb to make public information on Soviet space misadventures since the Soviets only talk about their successes.

Along this line, Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., today laced into "Monday morning quarterbacks whose teeth start chattering after every Russian 'spectacular' in space."

Miller, chairman of the House Space Committee, told the House in a prepared speech that these critics had demanded more emphasis on military needs in space after the Soviet Union put two manned spaceships in twin orbits.

"Our defense officials are not dolts, and I suspect that their decisions are based on information and intelligence which is somewhat superior to that of their lay critics," said Miller.

With an eye toward keeping space from becoming a battleground, the Kennedy administration has announced that the United States has "no program to place any weapons of mass destruction in orbit."

This statement—reportedly written by White House staff members—was made Wednesday night by the deputy secretary of defense, Roswell L. Gilpatric.

"An arms race in space will not contribute to our security," Gilpatric said in a South Bend, Ind., speech.

"I can think of no greater stimulus for a Soviet thermonuclear arms effort in space than a United States commitment to such a program," he said. "This we will not do."

He declared there is no doubt that either the United States or the Soviet Union could send hydrogen weapons into orbit "but such an action is just not a rational military strategy for either side in the foreseeable future."

In his letter to the congressional committees, Webb said "the Soviet Union has pursued a vigorous but unsuccessful program to send instrumented space probes to the planets."

"Thus far two attempts have been made to send spacecraft to Mars and four to Venus, of these six attempts, only one probe was successfully launched on an interplanetary path, the Venus probe of February 12, 1961.

"However, it was only a qualified success because its radio transmission failed after several days, long before it reached Venus. None of the five remaining attempts achieved a successful trajectory because of rocket vehicle malfunctions."

Had the launching been successful in any of the six Soviet attempts, Webb said, the probe would have arrived at Mars or Venus with too great a velocity to have orbited either planet.

Doubted White House Desk Going Back To Donor

WASHINGTON (AP) — A delicately made desk first appraised as a $20,000 antique of the early 19th Century will be removed from the White House and returned to its donor amid doubts of its age.

The desk was one of Mrs. John F. Kennedy's treasured acquisitions in her redecoration of the White House and held a place of honor in the Green Room.

Last February, when she took the nation's television viewers on a tour of the White House, the First Lady spoke glowingly of the desk and its donor, Maurice Noun of Des Moines, Iowa.

The desk was the subject today of articles in the Washington Post and in the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

The Post said suspicions that the desk might not be a genuine circa 1800 antique arose previously, but were not confirmed until William V. Elder took over recently as the White House curator. Mrs. Noun told the Post there was "some question of the desk's age" at the time she first offered

It and she left final authentication up to the White House.

Elder, a native of Baltimore, recalled seeing many similar pieces of furniture that were manufactured by gifted copyists 40 and 50 years ago. He had the desk disassembled and this closer examination revealed "a lot of new wood."

Some of the woods in the top half seemed quite old, but appeared to have been reworked, the Post quoted Elder as saying.

The desk will be returned to Mrs. Noun after Mrs. Kennedy returns from Newport, R.I., later this month, the Post said in its copyrighted story by Maxine Cheshire, and will be replaced in the Green Room by a $13,000 secretary by 19th Century Baltimore cabinetmaker Joseph Burgess.

The Des Moines Register and Tribune quoted the White House press secretary, Pierre Salinger, as saying Mrs. Noun's desk is still regarded as a fine piece of old furniture.

TREASURE HUNT!!

Patsy The Pup Didn't Want To Be A Heroine

GALVESTON (AP) — Beneath a marble slab on the lawn of the Edward Taylor home lies a mongrel dog named Patsy who didn't want to be a heroine.

But she was, and the Taylor family still remembers her fondly. You couldn't tell what breed she was—some said she looked more like a fox than a dog.

She began life 14 years ago as a ball of red fur in a shoe-box left on the doorstep of the late Mrs. Margaret Smith.

Before Patsy was half grown Mrs. Smith gave the dog to her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taylor.

Taylor, a retired sea captain, was still going to sea at the time. The Taylors were childless and Mrs. Smith thought Patsy would make a good watchdog.

She never dreamed how right she would be.

Patsy lived in a doghouse at the Taylors less than four years when, late at night, a defective water heater caught fire in the basement.

Her frantic barks awoke the Taylors, asleep upstairs. When Capt. Taylor came downstairs, Patsy led him to the basement. The $7,000 blaze was put out.

A dog food company official read of Patsy's adventure and sent an executive from Chicago to Galveston to award her a medal for heroism.

That was 10 years ago.

This spring Patsy became ill. Capt. Taylor gave her medicine and she seemed to improve.

One Monday after two weeks she gave her customary "greeting" to the garbage collectors—Capt. Taylor has had to build an extra gate to keep her away from them.

"When I heard her barking at the garbage boys I told my wife I thought Patsy would be all right," Capt. Taylor said.

But the next day when Capt. Taylor went into his basement workshop, he found Patsy lying on the floor, dead.

"She spent a lot of time in that workshop with me," Capt. Taylor said. You wouldn't expect the husky, 60-year-old seafarer to cry over a dog, and he says he didn't.

But his eyes grew misty and his ruddy complexion seemed a bit redder as he recalled the 14 years of Patsy's life.

Capt. Taylor knew that Patsy deserved a special burial.

He found a cypress tool chest that was just the right size for her. He locked the coffin—"to keep

Cuban Red Arms May Interfere With Missiles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Cuban Revolutionary Council said on Wednesday night that arms shipments being sent into Cuba by the Soviet Union would be used to interfere with U.S. missile launches.

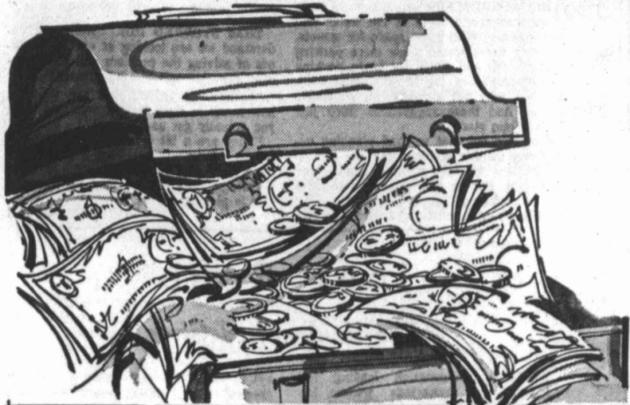

Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Cuban exile group, said in a statement: "In different sections of Cuba, principally in the north coast of the province of Pinar del Rio, missile rocket bases and electronic equipment are being installed for warlike operations."

Cardona said the equipment would be used by the Fidel Castro regime to "detect and interfere with the launchings from Cape Canaveral in Florida."

DEAR ABBY

Wrong Time To Call—

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been very friendly with a certain couple (our neighbors) for the past 15 years. The man has recently retired and does nothing but sit around the house, watch TV and get in Margaret's hair. I went over there one morning last week to borrow two eggs. Margaret wasn't home, but her husband asked me if I would stay and keep him company. I told him I was in a hurry and started to leave when he followed me and gave me a pinch. I pretended not to notice. Yesterday I went back to return the eggs and Margaret was gone again. This time her husband grabbed me by the arm and asked me for a kiss. I struggled free, gave him a piece of my mind and left. Should I tell Margaret why I refuse to set foot in her house again unless she is home?

PUZZLED
 DEAR PUZZLED: No, if Margaret is not home you have no need to be there either. Besides, she probably is onto her lecherous hubby and one more report won't give her any comfort.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to John for six years. When I wear flats we are about the same height, but when I wear heels I am taller than he is. He says it doesn't bother him to have me wear heels, but I think he just says that because he knows I feel more dressed up in heels. What would you do if you were in my shoes?

JOHN'S WIFE
 DEAR WIFE: If I were in your shoes I'd be sure they were flats. It's more important to look your husband in the eye than to feel "dressed up."

DEAR ABBY: I am fed up on being practically "married" to my husband's semi-invalid mother. She is a very difficult person to live with, but my husband is gone all day and he doesn't realize what I have to put up with. She has four children besides my husband, and none of them wants her, so we have had this burden for six years with no help (financial or otherwise) from them. I have three children and a big house to take care of. I can never go out and am sick and tired of having an old lady with aches and pains for company 24 hours a day. She has no money, and we have none to spare. What now?

A Devotional For The Day

Let every man take heed how he buildeth. (1 Corinthians 3:10.)

PRAYER: Help us, O God, to build nothing into the house of our lives but those things which partake of Thine own enduring qualities. Direct our lives and our labors; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.
(From The 'Upper Room')

Makes Us Proud Of Our People

From E. S. Walther of Port Comfort the Chamber of Commerce received the kind of letter that makes everyone feel good.

Pausing at a service station here late one night, Walther had asked about the state park. The attendant told him that he would have to contact the police (because the park is locked at night). The police dispatcher relayed information that the city police patrol would be waiting for the Walther family at the City Park gates.

"Sure enough they were there," wrote Walther, "and they also made a patrol through later to see that all was well. The patrolmen were very courteous and friendly. The service station man was also friendly, and this leads me to believe that the whole town is friendly. . . . He added that "you have a wonderful park, and it is kept very nicely. . . . We looked it over during daylight hours. It would be wonderful if all cities would extend a courtesy such as yours."

Thus, commendations are in order for the service station attendant who took just a moment to be a good neighbor, and to the police for their helpful attitude. This is a good example for all of us, particularly those who come in contact with the traveling public.

This should also be a reminder to us that we let a few vandals cause the public at large to be deprived of ready access to the state park at night. We hope that some way can be found to reopen the park, and that the state will supply funds to provide a minimum of camp facilities.

Never Too Late For A Good Rain

It's never too late for rain in West Texas, although admittedly moisture can be tardy.

The soaking rains which fell Wednesday morning would have produced a more pronounced effect on wheat and feed crops two weeks ago. Yet, these rains will be of tremendous value.

First of all, they were of sufficient volume and fell slowly enough to produce an almost immediate and sustained influence on fields and pastures. For much of our cotton crop, it will still be touch and go and with fate holding the final decision on a frost date. Still, a visit around the county will reflect a surprisingly large amount of fields abundant in blooms, thus adding a week or two of grace over a start from a semi-dormant stalk.

By the same token, thousands upon thousands of acres of late feed, although twisted from late summer drought, will rebound with remarkable vigor and make good to heavy yields. A lot of forage and insilage will mature.

The effects on crops will be almost immediate, but the long range effects on pastures will be greater. It is possible for grass to come out and get some substance before frost, although the time factor makes it marginal. Undoubtedly, there will be a crop of early winter weeds and a good germination of winter grasses in draws and bottoms. Most tanks have caught a substantial amount, and there will be water for the livestock.

And besides all this, a super soaker just makes all of us feel better.

Communist Infiltration Of Cuba

WASHINGTON—The Soviets have political control of Cuba and now have openly acknowledged that they are supplying Castro with military aid. This action flagrantly violates and denounces the Monroe Doctrine. President Kennedy, however, said, in effect, six days ago that he will not "invade" Cuba at this or any other time. Does this mean that the Soviet government can consider it has obtained a free hand to take over any Central American or South American country and can assume there will be no opposition by the military forces of the United States?

THIS IS the dilemma in which the Washington government finds itself today as news dispatches from Moscow tell of the issuance of a formal communique in which the Soviets inform the world they have agreed to comply with the request of the Cuban government to supply it with "help by delivering armaments and sending technical specialists for training Cuban servicemen."

The President Tuesday did take a sterner view when he issued a stiff warning that the United States will take "whatever means may be necessary" to prevent any aggression by the Castro government in the Western Hemisphere.

THE SOVIET government contends that "all Cuba's true friends have every right to respond to this legitimate request" and that the Cuban government has "every justification for taking necessary measures to insure its security and safeguard its sovereignty and independence."

So the Soviet formula for conquest is at last made clear. The Communists infiltrate a country, get possession of the government there, and cause it to file with Moscow a request for military aid. This is supposed to be the legal justification for sending armaments and military personnel to "train" the local troops. It so happens that the Monroe Doctrine, since the 1820's, has warned the world that no European country would be permitted to get a military foothold anywhere in this hemisphere.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY may not realize it, but what he said at his news conference last Wednesday could be responsible for his present embarrassment. Had he not responded at the time to an impromptu question and had he consulted with the Secretary of State before issuing any statement, it is doubtful whether Mr. Kennedy would have given the reply he did on the spur of the moment. A correspondent had asked the President to comment on the suggestion of Senator Capehart of Indiana that Cuba be invaded by the United States. Here is the verbatim reply as taken from the tape recording:

"The President: I am not for invading

Cuba at this time. No, I don't—the words do not have some secondary meaning. I think it would be a mistake to invade Cuba—

"Q. Mr. President, the Soviets, as you well know—

"THE PRESIDENT: — Because I think it would lead to—that it should be very—an action like that, which could be very seriously suggested, could lead to very serious consequences for many people."

Just previously in the same news conference, the President, in discussing possible action in Cuba, had referred to American "obligations all around the world, including West Berlin and other areas, which are very sensitive," and had added:

"THEREFORE, I think that in considering what appropriate action we should take, we have to consider the totality of our obligations, and also the responsibilities which we bear in so many different parts of the world."

This comment could mean that the President is fearful that, if he takes action in Cuba, it might lead to greater pressures in West Berlin—a reaction which the Soviets doubtless are trying to foster. The Soviets, on the other hand, may be waiting to see whether the United States is hesitant to use military force even as close as 90 miles away from its shore. They could misconstrue the President's reluctance as implying that the United States might not even fight to protect West Berlin or any part of Europe when a showdown came.

THE SITUATION strangely parallels the 1930's, which Winston Churchill describes in his book, "The Gathering Storm," published in 1948. He speaks of the "milestones to disaster" in the 1930's and of the series of acquiescences in Hitler's aggressions in the Rhineland, in Austria and in Czechoslovakia, until finally the climax came in Poland. Mr. Churchill writes:

"Here is a catalog of surrenders, at first when all was easy and later when things were harder, to the ever-growing German power. . . .

"STILL, IF YOU will not fight for the right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not too costly; you may come to the moment when you will have to fight with all the odds against you and only a precarious chance of survival.

"There may even be a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory, because it is better to perish than live as slaves."

WHAT COULD MR. KENNEDY do now? He could order a complete naval and aerial blockade of Cuba and demand that all Russian advisers brought in by the Cuban government to train military forces in that country be expelled at once. He could proclaim that no further shipments of any kind, either by air or by sea, military or nonmilitary, will be permitted to enter Cuba from any country until the Cuban government restores to American citizens the properties taken from them in the last few years.

To apply this policy could lead to some fighting. But whatever sacrifices are made would achieve the patriotic purpose of preventing any misunderstanding as to the resoluteness of the West in and around Berlin. It could prevent a world war.

Rooster Arrested

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — It was just like the farm in downtown Nogales.

Police were called out at dawn to arrest a rooster. The bird had perched himself on a high pole and set about to announce the arrival of day.

Disturbing The Waters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilization sometimes looks as calm as a beautiful stained glass window.

Sometimes it looks as disturbed as a stained glass window that was hit with an empty beer bottle.

All in one day Robert Frost read one of his poems in Moscow: the United States assured Moscow it had good intentions in outer space; Moscow accused the United States and its Allies of doubletalk; and a senator revealed that most of the supplies going to Fidel Castro's Cuba for a military buildup are being delivered in ships of this country's Allies.

IN A MOSCOW library Frost recited from "Mending Wall," one of his best known poems. "Something there is," he said, "without ever mentioning the Berlin wall, 'that doesn't love a wall.' The Russians didn't know whether to laugh or what. Their confusion is understandable because this poem then goes on to say "good fences make good neighbors," although the United States is extremely unhappy about the fence in Berlin.

In a talk full of the spirit of neighborliness in outer space, Wednesday night Roswell L. Gilpatric, deputy secretary of defense, made a speech in Indiana about defense contracts and then threw in this:

THE UNITED STATES has no intention of extending the arms race to outer space and has no program to place any weapons of mass destruction into orbit.

Just in case the Soviets got the notion from what he said that the United States is a patsy, Gilpatric added that this country has a continuing program to make sure it can cope with any "military challenge in outer space."

Gilpatric's statement amounted to official U.S. policy. A Pentagon spokesman said the speech had been cleared by the White House.

THE RUSSIANS seem to have a persistent disbelief in America's good intentions, and not to be outdone, even in skepticism, Americans are equally dubious about the Soviets.

This would indicate that any hope for American-Russian agreement on outer space looks tormented. It must seem that way to Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., who recently expressed some misgivings.

He said the Russians' success last month in putting their cosmonaut twins into space raised new "questions about the military dangers of Free World security."

HE SUGGESTED congressional hearings on the military significance of the Russians' double space shot, adding: "There has persisted a hope—if waning—that outer space would be dedicated to peaceful purposes. Officially this is the goal of U.S. policy. Unfortunately, however, the Communists have been unwilling to agree to realistically on arms control on earth."

And the Russians, as if to fortify Wiley's dubiety, Wednesday night made it clear they not only wouldn't agree with the Western allies on how to solve the Berlin problem but wouldn't even agree to talk about solving it.

Conduction Defects Of Heart Explained

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D., Dear Dr. Molner: What is meant by a conduction defect of the heart? Is it serious? Could this condition, varicose veins and hemorrhoids have anything to do with each other?—N.J.T.

To answer your last question first, no.

Now to conduction defects. This means some defect in the way the body conducts to the heart the impulses which tell the heart when to contract or "beat."

There are two main types. The commonest is called a "bundle branch block," which means some delay in the transmission of the impulse from the upper part of the heart down to the lower chambers, or "ventricles," of the heart.

The signal, in other words, is somewhat slowed down before reaching its final destination.

Generally, this doesn't require treatment. There are no symptoms that you can detect. You can't find it with a stethoscope. In fact, this kind of conduction defect isn't usually discovered at all until you have an electrocardiogram.

Since high blood pressure or coronary heart disease are two possible causes of the "bundle branch block," it's obviously wise to examine the patient for these possibilities, and treat them if they are present. If no such troubles exist, then as a rule the "delayed signal" isn't anything to fret about.

However, the other main variety of "conduction defect" is a more serious matter. Instead of the "heart-beat impulse" being delayed in transit, there is a slowing-up at the point where the impulse starts.

This is an actual slowing up instead of a delay-in-transit, so to speak. The impulse doesn't originate as often as it should. Thus the time at which the heart beats is not merely delayed; the heart doesn't get enough signals to beat.

A slight delay, you see, doesn't much matter. But when the heart beats only 45 times a minute, for example, instead of 60 or 70, more or less, that's a different matter.

Slow heart beat (which also is confirmed by an electrocardiogram) can produce symptoms such as giddiness, faintness, even momentary unconsciousness. This sort of defect certainly requires treatment.

Various drugs are used, such as ephedrine, atropine, benzadrine and the steroids (cortisone, etc.) to speed up the heart rate. In extremely serious cases, work is now going on with special devices which substitute an electrical impulse at a somewhat faster rate than the slow speed. These are called "pacemakers."

These devices are for the very serious cases, not for the ones which are encountered ordinarily. This is a field in which more is being learned from month to month.

Anyway, it makes a great deal of difference which kind of "conduction defect" is involved.

Causes of the second type? They vary considerably, but are usually incited by some serious infection which can range through such things as diphtheria, rheumatic fever, syphilis and others, which can affect the heart muscle. That is one good reason why preventing or controlling these diseases is so important.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the treatment for buritis?—L.G.

Depending on the case, doctors use various ones, including injection of pain-relievers; heat; injection of cortisone and similar hormones; X-ray therapy; surgical removal of calcium deposits; withdrawal of excess fluid inside a bursa or "joint sac."

NOTE TO MRS. L. P. Fatty tumors are not serious or dangerous, and require removal only if (a) they become so large or are so located as to be a nuisance; (b) they are unsightly.

Around The Rim

An Expert Is Someone Away From Home

It's easier to talk about making big steps of progress when you're visiting in another town.

Recently, a friend was visiting here and made all types of suggestions about what Big Spring should do with its traffic problems. He is a member of a planning group in another city and was filled with ideas and suggestions.

"Your Main Street is old fashioned," he said. "It's crowded and you need more downtown parking space." He went on to explain that the sidewalks were far too wide. "People don't use those wide walks like they did when such walks were being built."

HIS SUGGESTION was to trim them down, converting parts of the walks into street space. With more space for parking, a wider street would allow more parking at the curb and space for more parking in the middle of the street. Better still, he said, why not a mall with no traffic at all. And these suggestions were just getting him started.

I pointed out that we had planning under way on this problem, but the radical suggestions he was making don't come overnight. But he had answers for all of my objections.

"Businessmen must wake up to the fact that people want to park near where they are shopping. Downtown must provide parking spaces if it is to stay alive," he said.

I HAD TO AGREE there, but everyone does. The real point is, how do we go about it? Another of the suggestions was to build a parking garage in the middle of the street and let traffic use tunnels under it. The money for the garage would come from the businessmen, perhaps with the city helping maintain the tunnel.

After about an hour of these brilliant suggestions, I finally asked: "What have you people done about the traffic problem in your downtown area?"

THAT STOPPED HIM. "Well, you understand we are looking at various methods of solving the problem and have several ideas we are kicking around."

"I know," I replied, "so are we. But how many of these new innovations have you actually got under way?"

"They are a bit too new and expensive for us," he admitted. "But I think they have great possibilities."

"Perhaps they do, as long as someone else is picking up the tab."

The Unidentified Giver

WANTED: Information leading to identity of mysterious woman in hurry who Tuesday last left two shopping bags of garden fresh vegetables at 79th St. apartment. Reward.

Oh, the gift without the giver is not only bare in New York, but a traumatic experience to boot. Imagine, in a metropolis of eight million persons, trying to identify the giver who fails to put a note and his name in a gift.

And always, someplace out there, you know there is someone, probably a best friend, who is hoping mad because you have not called or written to thank him for his largesse. In the meantime, you—me, actually—are sitting home, equally furious and peace of mind destroyed, trying to identify the culprit. Damn.

THIS IS a problem I usually have to cope with only at Christmas. But when I came home the other afternoon, the elevator man, thinking himself the bearer of glad tidings, said he had just put two big bags of country fresh vegetables (vs. store-bought stuff) in my kitchen.

Now, in New York, this is a gift above the price of rubies. All over town, on Sunday nights in summer, you can tell who's spent the weekend in the country: He's the fellow struggling into his apartment house under a short ton of fresh vegetables either grown by his host or bought at some farmer's roadside stand.

I RUSHED joyfully into the kitchen to count my pearls. The first shopping bag yielded eggplants, peppers, cucumbers and acorn squash, but no note or card. The second bag, already beginning to disintegrate from a leaky egg in a carton strictly fresh from the country, produced zucchini, yellow squash, little cocktail tomatoes, string beans and beautiful big vine-ripened scarlet tomatoes. It gave up all this, but no note. I began to have that old psychosomatic feeling.

MY ONLY CLUE was the egg carton.

But it was stamped with the name of a district in Long Island where the Robbs know no one. With what can only be described as a splendid victory of honesty over greed, I repacked the two bags and took them back to the elevator operator.

"Are you certain these are for the Robbs?" I asked. Well . . . he was only fairly certain. The woman who delivered them had been in a hurry. She had a taxi waiting at the curb, and the name she mumbled had struck him as "Robb."

"MAYBE SHE meant the Rosses or the Rohes," he suggested. I urged him to try to peddle the country lagniappe to them. But he was back in 20 minutes. No soap, he said. Neither family would admit the possibility that some good fairy had brought them vegetables.

I, too, refused to accept them lest an angry woman, realizing that perhaps she had invaded the wrong apartment house, return and demand back her edibles. However, four hours later, the superintendent of the apartment house rang the Robb bell and begged us to take the vegetables off his hands.

"THE TOMATOES are beginning to leak, too," he said, gloomily. A compromise was finally reached. I could not resist two of the big, red non-leaky tomatoes. Otherwise, the loot was divided among the apartment house staff.

But I lie awake nights, conscious that if the vegetables were intended for the Robbs, some benefactor out there hates our stripes and thinks our manners abominable. And in the long night watches I grimly think that one should never look a gift horse in the mouth unless he has a dental chart with which to identify the beast.

Two Guests At The Feast

WASHINGTON — Two invisible guests named "If Only" and "Why Can't We" circulate in the Main Concourse by the East River at a big party of United Nations' celebrities in the closing scene of Allen Drury's forthcoming novel, "A Shade of Difference," which picks up where his Pulitzer Prize masterpiece, "Advise and Consent," ends.

ONE MAY SUSPECT that these guests are also present these days with Mr. Kennedy at the White House, for they are the universal companions of men who sit in the seats of the mighty and of humbler men who merely try to find their way through the maze of everyday life.

"If Only" to Mr. Kennedy could also be named "What Might Have Been," and I suspect that the President knows him well. "Why Can't We," however, is a deeper character, compounded of the profound humanity and the gift of genius which Lincoln had and Drury has, but which are not given to many men—and not to the man chosen as Thirty-Fifth President of the United States.

BACK IN 1960 John F. Kennedy attempted to explain why he wanted to become President. "That's where the power is," he told an inquiring reporter. But many of the President's "What Might Have Been's" came about because his intellect conceives power to be something on the lower level of political action. Some of us went on believing (perhaps long after it was believable) that JFK could ascend from the lower power steps to the upper ones. The oratory in his inaugural Address had a bemusing promise that he was good for action on the elevated places. His tongue-lashing of Roger Blough last April caused this credulous writer to hope that the President's motto was developing into a kind that could duel with Khrushchev and with scores of lesser devils, such as Castro and Sukarno.

BUT IT HAS NOT happened that way. The President still commands the world's greatest military forces, but he does not have the resolve to treat with Cuba any better today, when Russia is insolently building a base to attack the Western Hemisphere, than he had in the spring of 1961 when he had the excuse of inexperience. No amount of experience is a substitute for great daring and masterful execution, the qualities it takes to win, not just an election, but a battle for the world.

The guest called "If Only" or "What Might Have Been" must be a visitor in

Mr. Kennedy's memories of lost opportunities from the Bay of Pigs to the Berlin Wall and in scores of conferences where the ability to grasp low-grade political power failed him in the grasp of the higher-grade power which his office requires.

ALLEN DRURY'S new book ends on the four-letter word "love," by which the author means compassion and brotherhood of the most exalted quality. Love is the key characteristic of the omnipresent guest called "Why Can't We," but love at this highest level is no kinship to the shallow concepts of racial politics and social welfare which have thus far been evinced in the President's leadership.

Just as experience will not substitute for courage and genius, neither will showmanship, such as Mr. Kennedy gave us, for instance, in his recent Madison Square Garden pitch for Medicare, take the place of the "loveliness" that Drury is writing about in the final message of his book.

PERHAPS we shall find the elusive and indefinable elements of wisdom and leadership elsewhere in the White House, for this is still a great nation. Personally, I dare to hope that we will find these elements in our prophets like Allen Drury and in the response which his books awaken in the American people themselves.

Retrievers Work At Air Field

OCALA, Fla. (AP)—John Henderson, who operates the Airpark at nearby Silver Springs, has a live walking and barking fire department.

In four and a half years Henderson's home and business establishment have been saved from destruction by fire several times by his two Chesapeake Bay retrievers, "Pres" and "Omni."

The two retrievers, who have developed a nose for smoke and fire, extinguish small fires around the air field that might have grown into destructive ones.

If a visitor happens to throw away a cigarette, the dogs are on it immediately, making sure it's out. They also retrieve papers, discarded tires and other matter that might make the runway unsafe for aircraft.

Birthday Present

Laos Kovacs, former Hungarian freedom fighter, cries as he hugs his daughter, Klara, 6, on her arrival at New York's Idlewild Airport from Budapest. Kovacs, now a machine designer in Mansfield, Ohio, had not seen his daughter since he fled with his wife from Hungary following the abortive 1956 revolt. Kovacs was celebrating his 35th birthday when his daughter arrived and said, "This is the best birthday present I ever received."

Highest Job Total In U. S. History

WASHINGTON (AP) — People snorted when Henry Wallace predicted two decades ago that U.S. employment would hit 60 million jobs. It did, and now is on the verge of crossing 70 million.

The Labor Department reported Wednesday that instead of declining by more than 250,000 in August as expected, employment climbed by nearly 200,000 to 69,762,000.

This is the greatest number ever employed in history and Labor Department officials expressed confidence today that the 70-million mark will be reached before the year is over.

It was back in 1943 in the midst of World War II that Henry Wallace, a controversial figure in the Roosevelt New Deal era, predicted that employment, then 54.5 million, would jump to 60 million in a decade.

Many laughed at the idea because the nation was bending every effort and using all available manpower to achieve maximum production to win the war.

They felt, too, there would be a big job decline when the war ended.

But Wallace's prediction came true in 1950, three years early, as production continued high to meet postwar civilian demand. By 1958 there were 65 million employed.

The August job report put out by the Labor Department contained a set of mixed trends. Besides the unexpected employment gain, it showed a far less than anticipated improvement in unemployment and a large increase in the over-all labor force.

Seymour Wolfbein, deputy assistant secretary of labor, told a news conference that basically the job picture is continuing as it has all year—employment is showing encouraging and steady growth but unemployment is failing to improve accordingly.

To the experts, this means that a great many workers displaced from jobs by machines are going to have to be retrained in new skills if they are to come off the idle rolls. They are hopeful that the new government retraining program will help.

The August report showed that unemployment declined by 88,000, instead of the seasonally expected 450,000, to 3,932,000. The civilian labor force increased by more than 100,000 to nearly 74 million. Some of the factors that helped distort the August figures beyond what was expected included: (1) About 430,000 teen-agers quit the labor force to get ready for school or for vacations; (2) There was an unusually large influx of adults in the work force and (3) The survey caught the auto industry in the midst of changing over to 1963 models, so auto workers were technically counted as unemployed.

All this helped push the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate up to 5.8 per cent from 5.3 per cent in July. Officials indicated confidence the rate will soon again come down.

Reds Have Job Translating Frost

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet translators for Robert Frost found themselves in a delicate position Wednesday as the U.S. poet recited some of his poetry, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

The dispatch reporting the difficulties of the translators said: "They had to appear before Russians who knew English and before Americans from the embassy who knew Russian immediately after the originals were read. Nevertheless, their translations were warmly received, and the young translator, Andrei Sergeyev, was applauded not less than the veteran Ivan Kashkin."

Note May Mean New Berlin Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials view the Soviet Union's latest note to the Western powers on Berlin as an unusually bitter propaganda blast which may foreshadow new Soviet moves in the troubled city.

The note was received in Washington and in other Western capitals late Wednesday and State Department officials are studying it. They said it is a response to earlier U.S., British and French proposals for four-power talks in Berlin on measures which might be taken to reduce tension over the Communist pact dividing the city.

The note was seen here as indicating that the Soviets are unwilling to engage in considering such measures at this time and some authorities thought it may mean that Premier Khrushchev is about ready to sign a separate treaty with East Germany.

Khrushchev has long threatened such a step which he claims would give the East German right to the signing of a German treaty which would "end the occupation regime in West Berlin."

The hope among Western leaders is that if and when Khrushchev does sign a treaty with East Germany he will provide for restraints on subsequent East German actions to avoid a showdown with the Western powers over their use of the supply lines to Berlin. The position of the Western powers is that they will not recognize East German authority as a substitute for Soviet responsibilities with respect to Western rights.

The note accused the three Western powers of provocative action in Berlin, and blamed them for a whole series of incidents arising around the wall in recent months.

The Soviet Union charged the Allies with hypocrisy in seeking "to assume the role of champions of humane principles" and said that if they wished to act humanely they could bring about the release of "German anti-fascists and peace fighters who, as in Hitler's time, are in prison in West Germany." Authorities here considered such charges unusually bitter and angry in tone and as evidence of Soviet unwillingness to try to moderate conditions in Berlin.

On the surface, at least, the tone of the note stands in sharp contrast to the action of the Soviet authorities in Berlin earlier this week in agreeing to use a Western-dictated crossing point from East to West Berlin for troops guarding the Soviet war memorial in the British sector of the city.

The tone is in line, however, with the fact that Communist MIG fighters have been increasing their operations in the West.

Mariner 2 Falls Into Sun's Field

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The sun's gravitational pull has captured the Venus-bound spacecraft Mariner 2.

But there's no cause for alarm — scientists planned it that way.

At a point 1.6 million miles out in space Wednesday solar gravity became strong enough to overcome the earth's weakening pull on the 447-pound spacecraft.

For the rest of its uncalculated lifetime, Mariner 2 will be a tiny satellite of the sun.

Scientific interest in it will cease next Dec. 14 when the 12-foot-tall vehicle streaks past Venus at a distance of 9,000 miles.

Its scientific instruments, designed to help determine whether life could exist on the cloudy planet, then will be turned off and Mariner 2 will become another hunk of space junk orbiting the sun.

Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, where Mariner 2 was built, calculated both the dwindling earth gravity and the increasing solar gravity in figuring its trajectory through space.

Although traveling away from earth at about 6,000 miles an hour, the spacecraft is whizzing along an orbit around the sun at ten times that speed.

In the coming weeks the pull of the sun will grow stronger and Mariner 2's speed will increase. By the time it reaches the vicinity of Venus, the spacecraft will be going more than 90,000 miles an hour along its orbit around the sun.

In a sense, Mariner 2 now is falling toward the sun but it will not plunge into the sun. Its speed will keep it moving in a giant egg-shaped orbit around the sun for years.

The curving trajectory will take Mariner 2, launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., Aug. 25, past the sunny side of Venus about noon Eastern Standard Time next Dec. 14—a 180-million-mile journey in less than four months.

As it draws near the planet, radio signals from earth will switch on electronic devices to measure Venus' temperature and the makeup of its atmosphere. Scientists now believe the planet may be too hot—600 degrees Fahrenheit on the surface—to support life, and that there is little if any oxygen in its atmosphere.

After 30 minutes the instruments will be turned off and Mariner 2's scientific life will be officially ended.

The dinner will be at the Midland Country Club, beginning with a reception at 6:30 p.m. Wilcox will speak after dinner.

Cross Examination

Richard Robertson (sitting) goes through a fierce examination by David Guy in this scene from "Inherit the Wind." Big Spring Civic Theatre production to be produced Friday and Saturday nights. It is a high point in this dramatic play.

BSCT Production May Be Its Best

Players in "Inherit the Wind," because he taught evolution in a classroom. Underlying this stage dialogue, is a theme of the continuing battle against bigotry, no matter what form it may take. Such a play is most difficult for an amateur group, particularly one that more often turns to comedy productions. In this case, they have come off well and local patrons are certain to enjoy the evening.

The set design, by John Holdun, is his usual expert work. And, as usual, Holdun gives a good characterization on stage, in the parts of a judge and a Bible salesman. Martha Conway's makeup work is exceptional.

It's always a pleasure to see Lida Fiveash on stage again. Even with the smallest of parts, she gives it a healthy polish. Thomas Seebo, a youngster on stage for the first time, turns in a good performance. There are high spots throughout the production by most of the actors.

But basically, the lead parts dominate the stage, as they must have during the real trial of 1925. Guy and Robertson are accomplished performers and bring real

David Brinkley, who joined the organization last year, has pressed his cast into some of the better performances of their experience here. This is particularly true of the leading parts, played by David Guy and Richard Robertson. The second act, which features the two of them in the courtroom, is well worth the price of the ticket alone.

The play uses the "monkey trial" of 1925 as a vehicle. Although many of the characters bear strong resemblance to the original participants in that much publicized event, the authors of the drama have given them greater depth, which director Brinkley has produced faithfully on stage. As the authors state, the production is drama, not journalism.

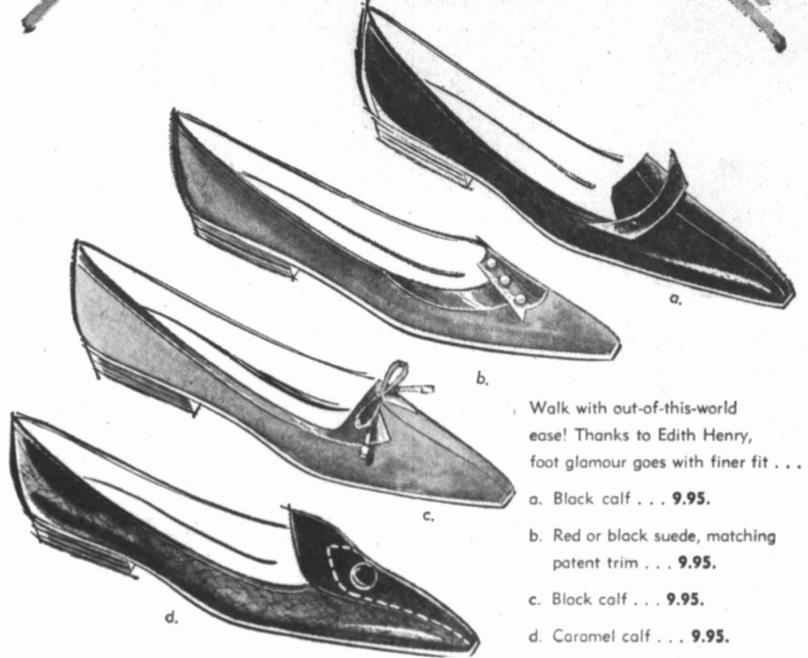

On the face of it, the dialogue tells of a young teacher on trial,

Law Takes Tin Out Of Penny
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy signed Wednesday a bill taking the tin out of the penny.
One-cent pieces are 95 per cent copper and, by previous law, the other 5 per cent was to be a mixture of zinc and tin. The new law specifies zinc only.
Tin costs about $1.16 a pound, zinc 12 cents.
