Police Crack Down On Balky Discount Store

FORT WORTH (AP)—Scores of discount store workers were hustled to the police station, fingerprinted and mugged Sunday as one of Fort Worth's big stores continued to challenge the state's Sunday closing law. The action came as Dist. Atty. Doug Crouch intensified his crackdown against Clark's discount store for alleged Sunday closing law violations.

Clark's North Main store was forced to shut its doors shortly before 9 p.m. Sunday after all 31 employes were arrested through-

Forty arrests were made-38 of them at Clark's, where several employes were arrested twiceand all were charged with violation of the state's closing laws. Crouch took an unprecedented action when the arrested were fingerprinted and their pictures taken for police files. George Ruhmel, Clark's manager, protested immediately. 'We are being treated as criminals," he declared. "We don't feel this process should be carried

The action was the severest of the lengthy controversy, marking the first time a discount store has been forced to close as a result of it. Clark's usual Sunday store hours are from noon until 10 p.m. Sherif. Lon Evans and one of his staff served the arrest warrants along with a large group of the district attorney's staff. The officers made three trips to the discount house before lack of personnel persuaded Clark's officials to close.

Clark's employes were freed on bonds of $100 each.

In the other arrests for leged closing violations, V. M. Kissinger, owner of several Kissinger auto stores, and an em-ploye, Richard Shirley, were taken into custody by police at suburban River Oaks. The pair was released after $200 were posted Latest episode in the Sunday closing serial came just five days before Clark's hearing for a temporary injunction against the district attorney's action is scheduled in 153rd district court.

Clark's Attorney Hendricks Brown said, "I told Mr. Crouch we ought to work this out in the civil courthouse, but he told me, 'I'm not going to work anything out in the civil courthouse. I am told a news conference. "I think as strengly as it sounds. She said going to work it out in my way and my courthouse.

Crouch earlier said, "We're gons to file on them all day long until they close."

Steel Man's Wells Severed

KILGORE (AP)-Pipeline connections to two oil wells operated by E. B. Germany, chairman of the board of Lone Star Steel Co., were severed today, Don Barkman, Kilgore district engineer for the Texas Railroad Commission,

Big Telescope To Be Sent To 80,000 Feet

NORWALK, Conn. (AP)-Scientists will float a giant telescope 80,000 feet above the earth early next year, and, by means of television, view the universe as it has never been seen before.

From that position, the scope's 36-inch quartz mirror will have sharper vision than the giant 200inch telescope atop Mt. Palomar,

At a distance of 1,000 miles, it will be able to view an object about six inches wide. At the same distance, it will be able to distinguish two spots of light only 30 inches apart.

The entire apparatus, weighing more than six tons and dubbed Stratoscope II, will be launched from the new scientific balloon flight station at Palestine, Tex.

Later this month, the L-shaped 18-foot-long telescopic mount will be assembled at the Perkin-Elmer Corp. plant here and the parts trucked to Texas.

Farmers Work On Harvest As Rains Allow

COLLEGE STATION (AP) Farmers harvested crops last week where rains would allow. Where it didn't rain, ranchers needed a downpour.

Director John Hutchison of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service said moisture will benefit late crops and ranges. His report was a concensus of opinions of district agents at midweek, bebefore rains of Wednesday and

The Upper Gulf Coast area had crowded gin yards. Two thirds of the crop was picked. The rice harvest was progressing. Corn is ready for harvesting; pastures are fair to good; cattle are generally in good condition but stock tanks are low.

STILL DRY Scattered showers fell in South Central Texas but some areas are still dry. Harvesting of cotton, corn, peanuts and rice is on. Land for grain and vegetables is being prepared. Ranges are short. The north and west parts of deep South Texas are extremely dry. Cattle are being fed and many herds have been reduced. Stock water is a critical problem. Mortality among deer had been high, in Medina and Uvalde counties especially. Vegetables are being planted in the Valley and Winter Garden but acreages have been reduced due to a short age of irrigation water. Moisture is short in East Texas and pastures and ranges are below average. He reported some improvement in some areas in the condition of cattle. There were 97 and other barriers between its cases of screwworms during the

Afghans Are In The News For Fall '62

Granny may or may not have gone to college, but it looks as if her pet afghan will.

As room throws, or as fashions to wear, the afghan is back. Colorful knit and crocheted squares will be turning up this fall in campus dorms. And likely you can see them being worn on supermarket shopping forays.

Their popularity is due to that old pioneer spirit of making them yourself. A girl with a knack with needles can turn out a full length coat by crocheting squares and then sewing them together. Slim and collarless, the coat is perfect opping for cool days shopping or stadium-going.

Snyder, Lamesa and Sweetwater have already informed the local athletic department they will not book Big Spring's ninth grade teams unless they can also play eighth and seventh graders, too.

When the school trustees agreed to drop seventh and eighth grade athletics here last year, with the blessings of the then head coach, Emmett McKenzie, it was done v th the understanding that the slack would be taken up with a good, well-rounded PE program, run by competent instructors. There is talk that athletics on the seventh and eighth grade levels can't be supported here. It was financed, without undue hardship upon the budget in the past. I'm firmly of the opinion that Big Spring can't afford NOT to offer such programs.

Why should Big Spring take the lead in abolishing junior high athletics? A small town like Cameron tried it very recently, found to its sorrow it didn't work and restored sports to their proper perspective in the curriculum. Let some place like Abilene or Odessa set the precedent. Such schools are not about to cut out junior high athletics, however, even though they

Six types of clay were tested for their ability to remove radioactive strontium-90 and cesium-137 from the liquid wastes of nuclear reactors.

Those are two of the three Kim, most-feared radioactive isotopes which also occur in the fallout Of from nuclear weapons explosions. Radioactive iodine is the third. Declaring that reactor wastes are similar, in general, to water supplies which would be contam-

Matter Of The Courts

The American Bar Association planor Missouri plan, as it is called, for the first state to adopt in 1940-is slowly but steadily gaining favor as a means for improving state judicial systems. And it merits fresh consideration by the 58th Texas Legislature to convene in January.

Under the plan which the ABA presented nearly a quarter century ago and has reviewed and pushed ever since, a state's judges would be appointed by the governor, from a list submitted by a nominating commission. Each judge would be submitted to periodic popular referenda. If approved, he would continue in office; if disapproved, the appointive process would install another. The plan is designed to gain the benefits, while eliminating the evils, of both the appointive and elective systems of selecting judges. Besides Missouri, Kansas and the new state of Alaska now use the ABA plan. A bipartisan citizens' group, the Committee for Modern Courts in Illinois, is now campaigning for voter approval of the plan in that state. The plan has been approved in Iowa and will go into effect next year. Nebraskans will vote on it in

The ABA or Missouri plan, also endorsed by the American Judicature Society, has been under study in Texas for 10 years. The Texas Civil Judicial Council, a statutory judicial advisory agency, re-endorsed the plan in 1961. The Texas Bar Association's position has been confused. A TBA referendum specifically favored the plan in 1949, but subsequently another referendum on a complete rewriting of the judicial article of the Texas Constitution-that included the appointive system for judges-was voted down.

The 57th Legislature authorized an interim study of the state's judiciary system by the Texas Legislative Council. It is hoped that the council will recommend serious consideration of the ABA-Missouri plan, or a sound locally adapted variation of it.

In an eloquent brief for Texas adoption of the reform, which appeared in the Southwestern Law Journal recently, W. St. John Garwood, former associate justice of the Texas Supreme Court, made this telling point: "Even now the Texas judiciary is composed largely of those who originally came on the bench by gubernatorial appointment rather than by election.

The first faint stirrings of uneasiness over the threat to rural domination of the Texas House of Representatives has been reflected by Farm Bureau district talks of legislative redistricting. In the light of the Supreme Court's decision in a Tennessee case authorizing local federal courts to hear cases involving unequal representation, the next session of the legislature can hardly fail to pass some sort of legislative redistricting law. Rural interests are acutely conscious of the threat and have begun to lay plans to protect themselves.

When rural interests managed to have adopted a constitutional amendment (Art. III, Sec. 26-a) limiting the number of representatives to seven from any one county, they probably thought that they had permanent protection from any threat to their dominance in the House. Only token relief was granted in that amendment to urban centers by providing that an additional representative may be given counties for each 100,000 persons in excess of 700,000. But this constitutional provision will almost certainly succumb to a court attack in the light of a recent Oklahoma decision in which a federal court nullified a similar artificial limitation on representation.

It may be possible to defend the present system of senatorial representation, based on the federal precedent in which population is not taken into account. But the move toward more equal representation by Texas citizens in the Texas House of Representatives can be delayed, but it cannot be eternally stayed.

Major Issues Hinge On Elections

WASHINGTON-For the next 60 days for the aged would seem at first glance to businessmen, labor leaders and stock market experts-as well as politicians-will all be trying to guess what the outcome of the elections will mean to them. Will the stock market crash if the Democrats gain seats? Will it go up if the Democrats lose seats?

Certainly one of the most important congressional elections in a half-century is just a few weeks away. If it goes one way-increasing the Democratic membership-it will be regarded as discouraging by businessmen, and they may feel their future planning will be impaired, thus continuing a period of economic stagnation. If, on the other hand, the Democrats lose seats, especially in the House of Representatives, the result could produce a feeling of optimism and conceivably start a

THIS IS BECAUSE businessmen will interpret a loss of Democratic seats as a defeat for the little group of advisers of the President who have led him into paths that have brought dismay and frustration among businessmen concerning their future. The conservative bipartisan coalition in Congress would, of course, be strengthened if Republican members were

At present writing, it would appear that there is a substantial amount of economic discontent in the country, which is usually translated into votes against the party in power. The President's rating in public-opinion polls recently has shown a marked decline.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY is planning to take the stump to help elect Democrats, but this maneuver could prove to be a political mistake. For there are some observers who believe that his intervention in the current campaign on an active basis will result in lining up votes against the Democratic nominees for Congress. This is because many voters will tend to express their resentment in regard to certain policies of Mr. Kennedy by voting against the very congressional nominees he endorses.

ONE OF THE biggest influences today against the Democrats in the Northern states emerges from the controversies that have arisen over taxation. Thus, Mr. Kennedy's espousal of medical care be an advantage for him politically with the older citizens. But this is offset to a large extent among those same groups by the antagonism created by the proposal to require savings banks and other institutions to withhold, for tax purposes, portions of the interest and dividends due individuals. Even though the measurepassed by the House-is not likely to be enacted into law in the current tax bill, there is every reason to believe it will be revived in January, and if the Democratic majority in Congress has been augmented, the chances of passage of this particular provision will be increased.

THIS IS BUT one of many far-reaching proposals on taxation that will pay a part in the coming congressional campaign. Thus, the recommendation from a high Treasury official that citizens no longer be permitted to get a deduction for interest payments on mortgages on their homes was sidetracked by Congress. The fact, however, that it had strong support from Mr. Kennedy's advisers has aroused fear that, if a larger number of Democrats are elected in November, the proposal will be revived and perhaps adopted.

Then there is the discontent in the Middle West, both in the cities and in the country districts, due to severe losses arising out of the costly strike on the Chicago and North Western Railroad. The stoppage of the nation's third-largest railroad has meant plant closings, unemployment, and a disruption in the shipping of farm products as well as construction

WHILE THE administration has made an effort to settle the strike, the President has not acted as vigorously toward labor unions as he did toward the steel companies when they tried to raise their prices. The feeling persists that the government should have done something to avoid the extensive economic loss suffered by millions of people in several states because one union has a labor dispute and all the other workers are forbidden by their unions to cross its picket lines. The voters tend in such circumstances to blame the administration in power for the losses they suffer as innocent by-

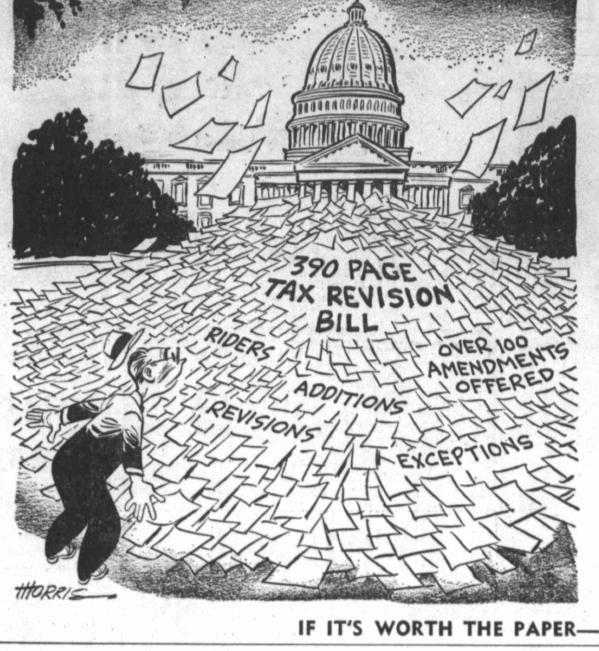

IN ADDITION, the effects of the economic recession and continued unemployment are being felt in many cities as well as in rural areas throughout the country. It would not be surprising if the Democratic candidates for Congress, even from the cities, get less votes than they did before. This is because fewer people may turn out at the polls. Many Democrats, rather than vote Republican, will not vote at all, while many independent voters will tend to vote against the party in power out of resentment over the economic situation. It is from these two sources that the Democrats may lose a considerable number of votes in districts that are normally Democratic. All in all, it looks like a very fateful

Playing Tag With The Tax Man

One thing and another: Pity the life of the poor tax man in year through tax-dodging.

Life for him is one long battle with the people of substance, who consider it great sport to withhold information as to their incomes from the government. Imagine doing that in this country.

IN ITALY, wealthy people are committed to tell the taxman what they estimate their incomes to be. The levy collector then releases this as public information, together with what HE estimates their income will be.

The two sides bargain, a compromise figure is reached and this figure is taxed. For example, Prince Alessandro Torlonia, head of one of Italy's oldest and wealthiest families, declared his income for 1960 to be about $120,000. He was ultimately assessed and taxed on more than was pleased. It has been repeatedly indicated that as of January 1, 1962 the United States had approximately 50 operational missiles. And more recently there have been a number of stories that at the moment we have 100 operational missiles. But at the mention of figures, General Gerrity merely looked discreet.

"BUT THAT isn't all," he continued. "We shall not only triple our missile operational capacity in 1962, but we shall triple it again in 1963! And remember that the $18 billion program won't be complete until 1965, as planned."

It is obvious that even the most pessimistic citizen can feel that our missile program is indeed in the pay-off period.

"WHEN WE STARTED out to build these sites around the nation, we had no experience from which to borrow. The schedule for the program was set before we had really evolved the solution to many important and uncharted tasks. We were plowing new ground every inch of the way. We were building even as the missiles themselves were being tested. Yet we are bringing the program in on schedule or even ahead.

"What this program really amounts to is a 10,000-mile assembly line scattered all over the nation. You can forget the pyramids," the general grinned. "In magnitude and complexity, the missile program is unparalleled in history. I'm proud of our accomplishment.

The Military Mind In Transition

military ascendency in national affairs, your reporter looks for trends when he visits military schools. The Armed Services Staff School in this city conducts two academic terms a year for about 200 Army-Air Force lieutenant colonels and Navy-Marine commanders, average age 39, mostly graduates of the service academies or the top universities, all of them hand-picked by their units. The mathematical chance that these high-quality officers will become generals and admirals is 12 to 1, whereas the chance for the common run of officers at this rank and age is 100 to 1.

HENCE, THESE men (no women officers are trained at this school) will inevitably become our military leaders of the near future. With some interviewing of the faculty and some study of the curriculum, I estimate there are four trends at work within the generalized staff work curricula: 1. TOWARD UNIFICATION: At the Pertagon, Defense Secretary McNamara has been consolidating everything he can, from quartermastering to high-level intelligence work. The same urgent togetherness shows at the Staff College. No two men from the same service are permitted to live together, or even live adjacently in the BOQ'a. The 15 students in each seminar are divided into fives from the Army, Navy and Air Force, and the students are further mixed and shaken into special seminars. The men are being prepared for duties in joint, unified and allied commands of triphibious capabilities.

2. GUERRILLA WARFARE: Accent is heavy on unorthodox tactics and strategy. Stress upon jungle, desert and back alley fighting is a Kennedy administration product and resultant from the lessons of Cuba and South Vietnam. It is strange indeed to find supersonic pilots, nuclear artillerymen and Space navigators learning the arts of throatslitting. But the rationale is that we must beat the enemy where we find him, and that is often in countries being subverted and terrorized by Communist irregulars. Wise or foolish. this death-in-the-dark aspect of military instruction is bound to have its effect upon physical training in our local schools and eventually upon control of crime and civil distrubance in our law-defying cities.

3. LINGUISTICS: Nowhere is the U.S.A. heart muscle (a heart attack) or heart muscle (a heart attack) or vidual letters. NORFOLK, Va.-On the assumption of allied commands and guerrilla warfare as it is of diplomacy. The Armed Forces are at work codifying language capabilities of officers as a qualification for the top assignments. There are no language courses at the Staff College level. but language facility as an aid to promotion and pay is recognized. The student officers get the message.

> INTELLECTUAL FREEDOM: It was surprising to see this somewhat lofty term on a briefing placard at the Staff School, but it belongs. Elective thinking, writing and reading are the mode here. There is no grading of the students' work, because the authorities want their charges to strive for imaginative and creative ideas rather than grades. Each student writes his thesis on a military subject of his own choosing and of optional length and depth. Objective: originality in research technique. Intellectual freedom gets another boost > when 80-odd guest speakers from the top military, government and academic drawers hold speech-question-and-answer seminars with no protective equipment. Everything is off record and no notes may be taken. Questions range far from the stereotype, and one reason may be the stimulating clash of ideas represented on the collateral reading list.

THE STUDENT can learn about American policy from its proponents. President Kernedy and Walt W. Rostow, or from its sometime critics, Gens. Wedemeyer and Taylor. Miss America Show? Phooey!

Its hard to be absolutely frank about the "Miss America Pa-geant" which turned up Saturday night right on schedule on CBS. Over the years it has built some sort of a warm spot in America's great heart, and now it's one of those things like motherhood, apple pie and Robert Frost that everybody is for.

Okay, so I'm going to come right out and say it. I think the will be selling insurance for the 'Miss America Pageant," which will get a rating bigger than Bob Hope's, is one great, endless bore him in January. Miss America Finally Gets To Eat Lunch

NEW YORK (AP)-Lovely Jac-Jeanne Mayer, a once chubby little girl who gave up eating lunches to realize her dream of some day being Miss America, began her year's reign

But before leaving Atlantic City and the scene of her triumph Sunday, the auburn-haired beauty from Sandusky, Ohio, performed the last official act required of all the Miss America contestants. She ate lunch.

When she walked down the 167foot runway moments after the Miss America crown was placed on her head Saturday night, Jackie presented to the cheering Convention Hall crowd a graceful and comely figure befitting a beauty queen. The hazel-eyed, 20-year-old Northwestern University student stood 5-feet-5, 115 pounds and measured 36-22-36 in the vital statistics department.

But four years ago, you never would have known her, she said at her first news conference.

"I was always chubby until was about 16 years old," she said Her weight?

"I guess it's all right to say it I weighed 150 pounds. The new Miss America related that at that point in her life she stopped having lunch, hardly ever ate breakfast and watched her evening meals.

Even today, she said, she must be careful of her diet. Jackie looked fresh and bright eyed as she met the press after only four hours sleep. Crowned Miss America 1963 shortly before midnight Saturday by the 1962 queen, Maria Beale Fletcher of Asheville, N.C., Jackie didn't get back to her room until several hours later After her year as Miss America, Jackie said she intends to complete her education at Northwestern. She hopes eventually to become an actress.

"The Miss America scholarship was one of the most important 000 scholarship, and personal appearances during the year are expected to bring her about $75,000. Scholarships also went to the four runners-up-Miss Wisconsin, Texas, Penny Lee Rudd, $2,500; Miss South Carolina, Evelyn Keith from Hawaii who, when asked Patricia Lei Anderson, $1,500. Ellis, $2,000, and Miss Hawaii,

...a completely new concept in make-up
As it lends your skin the flattery of color, covering power and silk-superb texture . . .

Veilesscence reveals the natural life, texture and beauty of your skin. Veilesscence is not a foundation. It is a "transluminant" . . . veiling your skin rather than masking it . . . doing away with that old-fashioned, unnatural, "made-up" look. Choose Veilesscence from six translucent shades: Phantasy (pale peach); Apricot Cream (creamy beige); Rose Pink (pale pink); Blush Pink (rosy pink); Sunbronze (for a suntan); Opal (a "no-color" shade for evening). $12.50 plus tax.
