Estes Trial Begins

TYLER (AP)—The judge formally called for trial today of Billie Sol Estes, youthful promoter whose financial manipulations rocked portions of the nation, and then called a recess for a review of the witness list.

Estes is charged with theft, swindling and embezzlement.

Distribution of trial coverage became one of the best in Texas history when Judge Otis T. Dunagan ruled that radio, television and newsreel equipment could be used inside the courtroom.

Earlier, he ruled that still cameras could be used inside the courtroom. A large number of newspaper reporters were in the courtroom and their presence was not challenged by the defense.

Much of the morning was taken up with defense motions.

CONFIDENT OF JURY

Judge Dunagan expressed confidence the court could find a jury. Failure to do so in Pecos, caused one postponement of the trial.

Then the judge recessed the trial until 1:30 p.m.

Estes did not appear for some time in the small courtroom in this East Texas city at the start, delaying his entrance until after a 10:30 a.m. recess.

John D. Cofer, noted attorney specializing in crime cases, is chief of the defense.

Cofer's first motion was to ban cameras of all types from the courtroom. But Judge Dunagan turned down this plea, although he ruled against use of cameras outside the courtroom on the same floor.

The hearing also was televised. Judge Dunagan said he believes it better for persons wishing to attend the trial to stay home and view it on their screens rather than to try to crowd into the 125-seat courtroom.

NO CIRCUS

He added, "There will be no circus."

Judge Dunagan heard testimony on the extent of radio and television coverage and what equipment was in the courtroom and adjoining areas.

Among the witnesses were M. E. Danbom of KTTB, Tyler; Bruce Neal, KXOL, Fort Worth, representing six stations; Jim Pratt, WFAA-TV, Dallas; and Bill Duke, KRLL-TV, Dallas.

The defense sought to have all radio, television and newsreel equipment removed from the courtroom, claiming it would, among other things, interfere with the thought processes of witnesses and distract the jurors.

Defense lawyers claimed the presence of the equipment would deprive Estes of a fair trial.

The trial of the 37-year-old financier was moved to this East Texas city—500 miles from Pecos where he directed his far-flung agricultural operations—after his lawyers contended he could not get a fair hearing in his hometown.

EMPIRE SOLD

His appearance in District Court here comes only two days after the remains of his empire were sold in Bankruptcy Court at El Paso for $5.8 million plus $1.2 million in interest to Morris D. Jaffee, San Antonio financier.

At one time friends estimated Estes was worth $150 million and he testified his operations were worth $40 million "as a going business."

The 101 witnesses summoned for the trial include three of Estes' former business associates, Coleman D. McSpadden of Lubbock and Harold E. Orr and Ruel W. Alexander of Amarillo. All three pleaded guilty last week in U.S. District Court to five of 29 counts of an indictment charging mail fraud and conspiracy. Orr and McSpadden received 10-year prison terms and Alexander a six-year term.

FEDERAL TRIAL

Estes, who also awaits a federal court trial, has pleaded innocent to all 29 counts.

Estes will be tried here on four indictments involving his operations in obtaining loans on anhydrous ammonia fertilizer tanks in West Texas.

Estes has been accused of bilking finance companies out of more than $20 million through loans on fertilizer tanks which the state contends never existed.

It was Estes' fertilizer tanks operations that landed him in jail March 29 and set off an investigation by federal and state agencies and legislative committees into his liquid fertilizer business, storage of government grain, cotton grown under transferred acreage allotments and a number of other ventures.

Congressional probes sought to question Estes, who has been free on bonds totaling $140,000, but acceded to a request by Texas authorities to await the outcome of his trial.

Plane Missing

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—A Navy patrol plane with 10 men aboard was missing today in the Montague Island area of Prince William Sound on the southern coast of Alaska.

49 Of 76 Aboard Saved; Giant Search On For Others

C. G. Evans talks over the telephone amid the mess of canned goods, water, broken shelves, and hole in the roof at the Newsom's Food Store, which burned early Sunday morning. The sign, in the upper right, is outside and shows through the fallen roof.

Grocery Store Burns, Biggest Fire In 10 Years

Flames were not too choosy as they raced up and down the aisles of Newsom's Food Store, 1910 Gregg, early Sunday morning. Three fire trucks answered the call, one each from the Central Fire Station, 18th and Main station, and 11th and Birdwell station.

Don Newsom, owner of the grocery chain, estimated damage to his store "in excess of $100,000."

"It is the biggest fire with the most damage we have had here in 10 years," Fire Chief H. V. Crocker, reported. Fire Marshal A. D. Meador said the Barrow Douglas Furniture Store, 205 Runnels, burned May 26, 1950 and damage was estimated at the time to be more than $100,000.

Cause of the expensive blaze has not been determined, but firemen guessed it may have started in the barbecue room, at the rear of the store. Jack Gilmer, night watchman, told Chief Crocker that when he was first aware of the fire, the building was filled with smoke and he could not tell where the blaze was coming from. He said the telephone would not work and he left the building to call for help.

Herman Wilkerson, at Herman's Steak House across the street, saw the smoke and turned in the alarm about 1:50 a.m. Sunday. Three fire trucks answered the call, one each from the Central Fire Station, 18th and Main station, and 11th and Birdwell station.

Newsom said this morning it would be difficult to estimate the exact loss, but an inventory is being made of the damage.

"Things are in such a mess, it will take some time to get complete figures," he said. "We feel it will run well in excess of $100,000," he said.

Crocker said Wilkerson was considerable help to the fire-battlers, keeping coffee available during the night.

Crocker said the fire got added impetus when the front windows fell out. The resulting draft fanned the flames still higher and the roof caved in. Firemen had cut holes in the roof and the south wall, in order to get water on the hottest part of the fire.

Only the exterior walls of the building were still up after the smoke had cleared away, standing amid the debris of the early morning inferno.

Several things were saved from the fire, including the cash registers, the safe, a rack of cigarette cartons, and other small items. A winch truck was used to pull the big safe from the clutches of the fire.

Newsom said this morning it would be difficult to estimate the exact loss, but an inventory is being made of the damage.

"Things are in such a mess, it will take some time to get complete figures," he said. "We feel it will run well in excess of $100,000," he said.

Crocker said Wilkerson was considerable help to the fire-battlers, keeping coffee available during the night.

Hobbs Boy Is Drowning Victim At Lake Thomas

Larry K. Fransworth Jr., nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Fransworth, Hobbs, N. M., fell from a boat dock into Lake J. B. Thomas Sunday afternoon and drowned.

The boy was pulled from about 20 feet of water by two water skiers after he had been in the water an estimated 10 minutes. Attempts to revive him failed. The accident occurred at Lme's Boat Stand and Dock about 3:15 p.m.

Snyder Justice of the Peace W. C. Davidson ruled death by accidental drowning.

The boy, his father and a friend had arrived at the lake Saturday night. Ivey Johnson, manager of the docks, said he noticed the boy playing near the boat landing while his father and the friend cleaned fish. A little later, the boy walked around from the launching site onto the dock. The boy had been wearing a life jacket when he was first seen by Johnson, but had apparently taken it off at the urging of his father and the other man because he was perspiring with it on. The jacket was found at the end of the dock.

Johnson said he heard a splash and looked around, but the boy was not in sight. A large rock on the dock used as an anchor was also gone, so Johnson assumed the boy had pushed it in. When he walked by the spot where the rock had been, he noticed bubbles coming to the water's surface.

Two water skiers dived into the water, but could not find the boy. They began using a grappling hook and pulled the boy's body out on the first attempt.

The body was taken to Bell Funeral Home in Snyder and was later transferred to the Griffin Funeral Home in Hobbs.

Town Meeting On Downtown Planning Set

A town meeting to discuss the downtown development phase of the Big Spring Master Plan has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today in the city auditorium.

Marvin Springer, the city's master planner, will be here today to explain his recommendations concerning the downtown area.

"Decisions made now can be important to our city in the future," Dr. J. E. Hogan, chairman of the downtown development steering committee, said this morning as he urged Big Spring residents to participate in the meeting tonight.

"This matter is so important, there is a need to develop an organization to carry out the planning for our downtown area," Dr. Hogan said.

Springer will outline some of the problems of the downtown area and suggest some possible solutions. Groundwork for the organization of a downtown development organization is expected to be undertaken at the meeting.

Sharp Selloff Jolts Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was jolted by a sharp selloff in heavy trading early this afternoon.

When trading opened, the market resumed a steep decline which hit it Friday. After holding temporarily just before noon, prices started to slip lower again.

Investors on the New York Stock Exchange unloaded big blocks of stocks. In the first two hours, 1.99 million shares changed hands, compared with 1.52 million in the like period Friday.

At noon the Associated Press 60-stock average had fallen 2.2 to 217.7 and Standard & Poor's index was off .69 at 57.00. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials sagged 6.53 to 585.25.

Skies Cloudy Over Much Of Nation

By The Associated Press

Skies were cloudy over much of the nation today and fog, drizzle and rain dampened wide areas from California to Maine.

Temperatures generally were on the mild side for an early autumn day.

Warm air pushing north from the Gulf as far as the Dakotas touched off showers in the Mississippi and Ohio valleys. Rainfall in most cases was light and scattered.

Albuquerque measured 19 of an inch Sunday in a brief shower. The New Mexico city's first measurable rain since July 30. Showers also were reported in Southern California's desert area.

The coolest spot during the night was the Northeast where temperatures dropped to a chilly 35 at Old Town and Millinocket, Maine. Readings in the 30s and 40s also were prevalent in the Great Lakes region.

Sabre, Knife Used In Duel

NEW YORK (AP)—The scene was a West Side penthouse apartment. The characters were the apartment's occupant and a drug-crazed invader. The weapons were an 18th-century Chinese dagger and an Austrian cavalry Sabre.

It wasn't a movie scenario. It happened Sunday in the fashionable apartment of Hugo Winston, 55, a sweater manufacturer.

Police said Lorenzo Hernandez, 29, an admitted drug addict, broke into the penthouse apartment while Winston and his wife were taking an afternoon nap. The intruder took the antique dagger from the living room and went on to ransack the bedroom.

Awakening, Winston jumped up and began grappling with Hernandez, while the intruder jabbed at him with the ornate, 14-inch dagger.

The running battle moved into the living room, where Mrs. Winston pulled the antique dagger from the wall and handed it to her husband.

The men fought each other until Hernandez's dagger handle broke off. He seized a hammer lying on the floor and struck Winston on the head, ending the duel.

Winston suffered cuts of the hands and head.

Hernandez was picked up by police a few minutes later hiding in a basement.

State To Resume Slant Well Probe

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Texas House General Investigating Committee will resume its hearing into slant oil well drilling in Texas at Houston Tuesday.

Committee counsel David Witts said it will be a continuation of those held in Dallas.

More than 100 wells angled to steal oil from adjacent leases have been found in East Texas, Hawkins and Quitman fields, according to the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates oil well drilling.

Rain Received

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Albuquerque, encountering one of its driest years in history, received its first measurable rainfall in 55 days Sunday.

LONDON (AP)—Batting raging seas, rescuers today plucked from the North Atlantic 49 survivors of a ditched chartered airliner carrying American servicemen and their families. A grim search continued for 24 others—including two children—still missing.

Only three bodies have been recovered.

A massive international air-sea mercy fleet converged on the crash scene 500 miles west of Ireland.

The British Air Ministry said five of the six rafts carried by the Flying Tiger airliner had been accounted for. Radio reports that more survivors were sighted clinging to another raft were being investigated.

One rescue ship radioed she had sighted a raft but as darkness fell no further word was received and hope faded.

The four-engine Super Constellation took off from McGuire Airport, N.J., Sunday bound for Germany and ditched at 10:12 p.m. after the pilot radioed three of the engines failed one after another as he struggled to reach a landing in Ireland.

SWISS SHIP

The Swiss ship Celerina radioed that she had picked up the 49 survivors.

The survivors — some injured and all of them suffering from shock—were transferred from the Celerina to the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure by helicopter.

The Bonaventure radioed that she was proceeding toward Ireland while the survivors received medical care in her sick bay. The carrier expected to land the people at Shannon by helicopter Tuesday night.

At the crash scene, men on ships' bridges and in crow's nests and in the cockpits of aircraft strained for a sight of more survivors.

The pilot of the downed plane, Capt. John D. Murray of Oyster Bay, N.Y., told in radio messages of his fight to keep the plane in the air. Then he fought to set her down as easily as he could. He was reported to be one of the survivors.

Capt. Milton McCurry of Miami, Fla., pilot of one of the returning amphibious search planes, told newsmen at Prestwick, Scotland, there was a strong possibility that the missing passengers had a chance for survival if they were on rafts and could be picked up soon.

The chartered airliner carried 76 persons — 68 American servicemen and their families, and a crew of eight.

Two dramatic races were in progress.

In one the rescue ships and planes were desperately trying to locate the missing survivors before 10-foot waves, cold and the darkness of another night could snuff out their lives.

OTHER EFFORTS

In the other efforts were being pushed to get medical attention to those already picked up, many of whom were injured and suffering from shock and exposure.

The 7,004-ton Cunard freighter Andania radioed that she had sighted a raft from the ditched airliner with people aboard.

The terse message from the Andania did not say how many people were aboard the raft or whether the Andania had succeeded yet in snatching them from the sea.

But the freighter's message spurred on the many other ships and planes in the area.

The 9,041-ton Swiss ship Celerina took 48 survivors aboard after being directed to the scene by Lt. Joseph K. Lewis, 25, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., the pilot of a U.S. Air Force C118.

Lewis arrived at the scene just as the Super Constellation was ditching. He made an accurate fix and circled the area—serving as a beacon for the planes and ships rushing to help.

Law Enforcement Officers From Wide Area Meet Here

Law enforcement officers from a large portion of Texas gathered in Big Spring this morning for the regional conference of the Texas Police Association. Sunday night's registration of officers and wives ran to over 160, and Monday morning's registration of officers totaled 125, with a few still coming in at 11 a.m.

Roy Stone, chief of police at Longview, and president of the association, called the meeting to order at 9 a.m. Monday, and the program got under way with the theme: "Operation Bootstrap—The Professionalization of Police Service in Texas."

SIX MARKS

Guilford Jones, district attorney in Big Spring, listed six essential marks leading to true professionalization of law enforcement agencies. They were special knowledge and skills, service, professional associations, license, code of ethics, and internal disciplinary systems.

Jones said that before law enforcement becomes a true profession, to meet standards set by other professions, certain standards must be set, by which agencies must operate, and be required of all members.

C. G. Conner, inspector of the Texas Department of Public Safety at Austin, then took up the six marks outlined by Jones and went into detail on how they could be met. The theme of his talk was how does police service in Texas measure up?

"Law enforcement has come a long way in Texas during the past 25 years," he said, "but it still does not measure up to the mark of a true profession. When I entered law enforcement service a quarter of a century ago, library books on the subject were practically non-existent."

MORE BOOKS

"As skills in all phases of the enforcement of our laws have increased, we find more books published on the phases, and we now have plenty of literature. We even have dictionaries of terms used in all phases of law enforcement and investigation."

Conner said law enforcement agencies needed, and in many instances are getting, men and women dedicated to the profession.

"These people are replacing the men who once filled jobs without the slightest preparation, or knowledge of what the jobs require," he continued. "Many of those serving as officers could not even read and write, and yet, because of the low pay and low esteem by which they were held in the public's mind, men were hired because they wanted to wear guns."

A code of ethics was drawn up and adopted by the National Association of Police Chiefs in 1957, Conner said.

"It is a good code but has not been adopted by local associations," he said. "When we are able to adopt such a code, just as other professional associations have, we will be able to get law enforcement up to the standards needed for full public approval and admiration. If, by the use of an internal disciplinary system, we can lift ourselves higher, then we will become a fully professional group, recognized by all except the hardest criminals."

SYMPOSIUM

Two symposiums were scheduled for the rest of the day. Jess L. Cariker, Odessa chief of police, was scheduled to moderate one on "Selection and Training of Personnel." Wallace Beasley, coordinator of police training, Texas A&M, led the discussion.

"Integrity in Police Service" was to be conducted by Major Guy Smith, regional commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, from Dallas; "Certifying Police Qualifications—The Measure of the Man," by George Biehse, Chief of Police, San Antonio.

A discussion forum and summary was set for 2:30 p.m. this afternoon, after which the conference was to adjourn.

A reception at the Cosden Country Club, where the conference is being held, began at 6 p.m. Sunday. More than 160 officers and wives exceeded expectations for the conference.

Thirty wives were scheduled to have lunch with the officers. The ladies' activities began with a 10 a.m. coffee at the Settles Hotel, followed by a tour of business houses and a bingo game at the Cosden Club in the afternoon.

U.S. Program For Braceros Called Racket

HOUSTON (AP) — The Most Rev. Robert E. Lucey, the Roman Catholic archbishop of San Antonio, labeled the U.S.-Mexican bracero program "an international racket" Sunday night and said the lot of migrant workers is worse than 20 years ago.

Archbishop Lucey was here to receive the first annual Max H. Nathan Memorial Award in Human Rights from the Houston chapter of the American Jewish Committee.

The group said Archbishop Lucey was chosen to receive the award because of his work in behalf of migrants in Texas.

The archbishop called the federal bracero program an international racket and said many farmers in Texas and California prefer braceros (Mexican nationals) to citizen migrant workers because the bracero is more easily exploited.

The program provides for the recruiting and temporary employment of Mexican farm workers in the United States.

GOP Sees Best Chance In 90 Years To Capture Governorship Of Texas

(Editor's Note: This story is based on an interview with Jack Cox, the Republican candidate for governor. The Associated Press will provide a similar profile of the Democratic candidate, John Connally.)

By ROBERT E. FORD

DALLAS (AP)—Republicans believe they have the best chance in 90 years for one of their own to hang his hat in the governor's mansion.

If they do, says polished, articulate, aggressive Jack Cox, the one-party system will crumble throughout the South.

The GOP is betting that the bronzed Cox, a one-time kid roughneck who was a child of the depression, will call the mansion home in January.

"It is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for the people of Texas to break away from one-party, one-man rule," says Cox, 41, an earnest man whose interests range across two continents.

He spent considerable time in South America two years ago studying governments and economics of the continent.

He wrote a series of newspaper articles about his findings.

Cox grew up in poverty in the Breckenridge oil fields — on the wrong side of the tracks, he says. He started work in the oil fields at 10, and his sturdy figure, still trim, gives evidence of the hard labor he did there.

Then as now, Cox loves hill-billy music and likes to relax by twanging a guitar. He has surprised several hillbilly bands at rallies by joining them for a chorus.

Cox and his family live at Breckenridge. They have two children, Jack Jr., 17, in the University of Texas, and Callan Sue, 15, a high school student.

When he talks about "one-man rule" he specifies Vice President Lyndon Johnson.

Cox's statements indicate he is running as much against Johnson as against John Connally for governor.

Connally, since college days, has had a major role in Johnson's political campaigns. He resigned as President Kennedy's secretary of the Navy to run for governor.

In LBJ IMAGE

Cox, now an oil well drilling executive, pounds hard on his charge that Connally is simply an extension of Johnson's personality — sent back to Texas to mold the state government and politics to Johnson's liking.

"I think our chances are excellent," Cox said in an interview. "I would say to anyone: Check with your friends. I think you'll find the same story. Cox is running ahead."

Part of his confidence, he says, is because Johnson really is not popular with Texas voters and that Democrats know this.

"Connally has spent a major portion of his campaign time denying any connection with Lyndon Johnson," Cox said.

"In the Democratic primary, there was not a single one of the six candidates that sought the open support of Johnson.

"I think this is terribly significant."

BEHIND SCENES

Cox says Johnson is running Connally's campaign behind the scenes and adds: "I think the people of Texas are sick and tired of Johnson-type politics and in this election will demonstrate that they refuse to be Johnsonized."

Connally denies that Johnson sent him back to Texas to run and says Johnson is not running his campaign.

Cox said the unexpected strength of liberal Don Yarborough in the Democratic runoff reflected anti-Johnson feeling. Yarborough came within 26,000 votes of winning the nomination from about 1.1 million ballots cast.

Cox said his election "would be a shot in the arm toward bringing about a two-party system throughout the South."

"This is particularly so in Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama and Georgia."

Cox grows intense when he discusses the future of conservatism and the GOP.

But he smiles easily and makes friends quickly.

NEW POLITICIAN

He is in the new form of politicians—quieter and more cautious. He feels he possesses a panoramic view of the state and nation and their political and economic needs. He says he is as much interested in the nation's welfare as the state's.

Then there is the other side of Cox when he relaxes.

"I borrow a guitar now and then and play it. I play a mandolin, too. I used to play the fiddle, but that was 20 years ago."

"The other day I went out to see this old boy, Texas Shorty Champion. Three times world champion fiddler at 19. I went out to his trailer house here in Dallas and they gave me a guitar and we played some of the old break-downs."

"We also played together at my birthday party [when he turned 41 last August] and the party became a political rally."

"Heck, I got more applause from my playing than with my speech."

Cox last year stepped from the Democratic party into the GOP after failing to win the Democratic nomination for governor in 1960.

VIRTUALLY UNKNOWN

In that race he was virtually unknown. Cox drew 619,834 votes to 908,992 for the veteran Gov. Price Daniel.

Earlier, Cox was in the legislature as a Democrat.

After his political switch, Cox hit the revival trail, telling Democrats they should join the GOP. He found converts everywhere.

This started his 15-month campaign program to be climaxed by the Nov. 6 election.

Why did Cox leave the Democrats?

"I felt for a long time that I could be instrumental in changing the course of the national Democratic party. . . I no longer believed this possible. I believed the place for me was in the Republican party."

Some politicians grant Cox only an extremely darkhorse role. Republicans point to the election of the senator from Texas, John Tower, who is a GOP conservative like Cox.

DARKHORSE ROLE

Cox grew up in a darkhorse role. Chances of his becoming a state figure appeared pretty dim when he was a child.

"I was born across the tracks socially and economically," says Cox.

"I had to put cardboard in my shoes. We couldn't afford new shoes."

"I lived in a one-room shack. My father and mother were laborers. He was trying to hold on to some Texaco stock in the depression he bought earlier on margin."

"We had no bathroom in our house until I was a senior in high school."

"My mother and father sent all the five children to school, in the depression, on less than $50 a month."

Cox began working in the oil fields, like his father, and by the time he was 15, he was a roughneck, a skilled oil field laborer.

That's how he worked his way through high school. He worked when he went to North Texas State University where he concentrated on government and economics.

CONSERVATISM

Cox says he believes most Texans vote largely for conservatism.

He has always held a conservative viewpoint including the time he was a Democrat. He said he never voted for a Democratic nominee for president.

Cox once was secretary of the conservative Freedom in Action group. Cox says he made more than 2,500 speeches, largely to college and high school groups, on Americanism.

Some of his viewpoints:

"Government must be placed in proper perspective. When your economic well being comes to depend basically on government spending, then you're tottering on the brink of disaster, because the government is simply not a producer."

"We can derive greater use out of the Texas tax dollar. Naturally as our population increases, the cost of government increases. . . But it should be the responsibility

JACK COX

North America is expected to be about 350 million.

"I see Texas as a stepping stone to all of Latin America."

"I believe I could do a tremendous service for Texas and our country in this area."

Cox also says he can help Texas industrially.

"First I would ask for a massive inventory of men and machines and material so that I would know first hand what we have to offer in every county."

"Then I would be in a position to attract new industry seeking to find a home in an atmosphere which is fair to business and labor alike."

"If I had a portfolio on the many counties, I could tell an industry immediately what the labor supply is, utility rates, what machines and material are available in the counties which might meet the requirements."

OIL ALLOWABLE

What could he do about possibly Texas biggest economic problem of the moment—the short oil production allowable?

"Texas has been called upon to carry most of the burden—or an unfair proportion of the burden of crude production cutbacks. I would feel it incumbent upon me to take our side of the story to the Southern Governors Conference, the National Governors Conference and to the Interstate Oil Compact Commission. I believe I could see that Texas increases its production of crude oil. It is a problem that I think someone who understands the problem can do something about, and I'm in the drilling business and I know something about it."

Cox also says some of the state's 254 counties do not have a truly secret ballot and he wants to do something about that.

Cox says he feels that the state should adjust its tax system to permit cities and counties to have at least a greater share of the property tax.

TOURIST BUSINESS

"And," he says, "Texas has missed the boat on tourist business." He thinks he can improve it.

One of his more intense beliefs, he says, is that Texas has "sadly neglected the development of research facilities in our institutions of higher learning."

Cox for six years was on the Texas Commission for Higher Education, "And I understand this problem."

"Many of our outstanding PhDs leave the state because adequate research facilities are not available to them. Also, industry is attracted into areas where these facilities exist. This should be a joint venture as between the state government and private enterprise."

Youths Arrested In C-City Store

COLORADO CITY (SC)—Two 15-year-old Big Spring boys will go before Judge Elmer Martin for a juvenile hearing Saturday, concerning an attempted burglary of the Sport Shop last Friday.

The boys forced open a rear door of the building to gain entry, chief of Police Leon Yeager said. Officers noticed their car parked in the alley about midnight, investigated and arrested the boys while they were still in the building. They had not had time to do more than gather up a few things to take with them.

Parents of the youths took custody of the boys last Saturday. Yeager said they had not been in trouble before.

EVERLASTING LIFE

By T. H. Yarbot, preacher Church of Christ, 2900 West Highway 80 P.O. Box 1282

True: when one is saved he has everlasting life. But what does that mean? Some assume it means he cannot ever again be lost. The verse says, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life" (Jno. 5:24).

DEAR ABBY A Message To Parents

DEAR ABBY: I am a faithful reader of your column. I also have your book DEAR TEEN-AGER and think so much of it I keep it right next to my Bible.

Abby, I have something to say but no one wants to listen to a teen-ager. If you think it is worth space in your column, please print it. I know I am speaking for many other teen-agers. It is advice to parents:

Dear Parents: Do you know how much you hurt your children when you argue and fight in front of us? Lately I have been crying myself to sleep to the noise of your fighting. I can't think straight in school because I worry about whether you will really get the divorce you threaten each other with. I am afraid to approach you with subjects I want to talk to you about because you are always in such a bad mood. Why can't you love each other now like you did when you got married? We didn't ask to be born. Now that we are here why don't you try to get along so we can have a happy home? If you have something to argue about, why don't you do it some time when your children can't hear you? You make me almost afraid to get married if this is what married life is like later on. I try hard to be a good, obedient and happy son. Won't you try to be a better parent?

BROKEN-HEARTED AT 15

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of a snoring dog? Well, neither had I until I married a retired farmer who owned one. He has this old cocker spaniel named Goldie who has the run of the house. Goldie doesn't sleep nights, she sleeps days. And she snores worse than any human. Goldie sleeps in the kitchen but you can hear her all over the house and it's a big house. Can a dog be trained to sleep nights instead of days? Or can something be done about her snoring? When I complain to my husband, he just laughs. I need some serious suggestions.

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: You can't teach an old cocker new tricks, and I doubt if you can change a dog's sleeping habits. Ask your vet if he's ever silenced a snoring animal. And if so, how.

DEAR ABBY: I'm not a child, I am 22. I am keeping company with a man who came from the "wrong side of the tracks." My family and friends are encouraging me to find someone from the "right side." How important is it?

NO CHILD

DEAR NO: Some "family and friends" have a one-track mind.

KONRAD ADENAUER

West Germany In Dilemma On Successor

By JOHN O. KOEHLER
 BONN, Germany (AP) — The question of when Konrad Adenauer should retire and who should succeed him is shaping more and more into a serious political dilemma for West Germany.

The question has been publicly debated off and on since 1959 when the chancellor said he would retire to run for the more ceremonial job of president, then changed his mind because of the ensuing feud over a successor.

When Adenauer's Christian Democratic Party lost its parliamentary majority last fall, Adenauer said he would retire in time to give his successor a chance to learn the job before 1965's general elections. After this concession the Free Democrats joined a coalition that elected Adenauer for a fourth term.

AGAIN A HOT ISSUE
 Now the question again has become a hot issue.

Erich Mende, head of the Free Democrats, has threatened to take his party out of the coalition unless the 86-year-old chancellor resigns in the fall of next year.

Mende insists that his threat be taken seriously even though it was made in Schleswig-Holstein province, where his party is fighting to keep its three seats in the legislature.

"He can't attack government policy because his party has a hand in making it, so he hacks away at the old man," said one prominent Christian Democrat. "In doing this, Mende is toying with his own destruction."

Mende is indeed taking a big chance. If he does carry out his threat it could mean the end of the Free Democrats' voice in parliament, where they hold 67 of 499 seats.

COALITION, MAYBE
 Political experts argue that the foxey old chancellor would not be beyond forming a coalition with the Socialists if he feels it will keep him in power. And the Socialists are likely to try anything to get into the government.

Such a coalition could be prevented if the Christian Democrats promise enough to a few Free Democrats to get them to change parties. Adenauer needs only eight seats for an absolute majority.

But many bets have been made in Bonn—among politicians and government officials—that Adenauer, unless illness prevents, will say again "you don't change horses in midstream" and announce for yet another four-year term.

The men most logically in line for the chancellorship refrain from pushing themselves into the limelight.

LACKS ABILITY
 The vice chancellor and economics minister, Ludwig Erhard, 65, still is the Christian Democrat Party's choice, but Adenauer many times has indicated that he felt the father of what is called Germany's economic miracle lacks the political ability to be chancellor.

Tough Defense Minister Franz-Josef Strauss, whose aspirations for the top job have long been an open secret, appears to have lost support since he was accused and exonerated of misusing his office for financial gain.

The young and energetic foreign minister, Gerhard Schroeder, whose pragmatic handling of Bonn's foreign policy has won him orchids from even the Socialists, is in the running. But, his friends point out, he is too clever to make any public pronouncements about possible change of ambitions.

AND HOPEFUL
 Another possibility is Heinrich Krone, 67, minister without portfolio and former parliamentary majority leader. Krone, affectionally known by party cronies as "Papa", long has been one of Adenauer's closest confidantes.

All will tread softly, because if anyone pushes the old man out and then something goes wrong—be it in foreign policy or an economic setback—the whole nation might say: "This would not have happened if the old man was still around."

Reunion Planned
 The annual Hood County Reunion is scheduled Sunday at the Mackenzie State Park in Lubbock. Gifts will be presented to the oldest person present, the person traveling the greatest distance and the largest family represented. Visitors should bring a basket lunch. Drinks will be furnished.

Quemoys Shelled
 TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The Chinese Communists fired 48 shells at the Quemoys Islands Sunday night, the Chinese Nationalist Defense Ministry reported today.

B. Layne Shatters Two League Records

DALLAS (AP) — Bobby Layne shattered the National Football League record for touchdown passes and pass completions Sunday as he led Pittsburgh to a 30-29 victory over Dallas, then indicated the end of his career is nowhere in sight.

BOBBY LAYNE

Layne had broken the records of a fellow Texan—Sam Baugh—and he'll take still another record away from Slinging Sam if he goes on a few more years.

The 34-year-old Layne is in his 15th season of pro football. Baugh holds the longevity record, playing with the Washington Redskins for 16 years—1937-1952.

Layne, who threw for two touchdowns against Dallas while completing 10 passes, broke the record shared by himself and Baugh of 187 touchdown passes when he compiled 189 and he also went ahead in completions for a career with 1,713. Baugh held the old record at 1,709.

He'll keep pitching them to the Steelers "as long as I can help the team," Bobby said solemnly after his big show for the home folks (he's from Dallas). "I have no idea when I'll retire."

The Redskins, who tied Dallas a week ago and Sunday beat Cleveland 17-16, to lead the Browns, New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Steelers, all 1-1, by a half game today. The Giants, losers a week ago to the Browns, evened their record with a 29-13 victory over Philadelphia, now 0-2. St. Louis fell before the Green Bay Packers 17-0, while the Steelers edged Dallas 30-29 as Bobby Layne set a pair of NFL career passing records.

The Packers, Detroit Lions, Chicago Bears and Baltimore Colts are all 2-0 in the Western Conference. The Lions continued their rampage behind new quarterback Mill Plum, whipping the San Francisco 49ers 31-10, the Bears belted the Los Angeles Rams 27-23 and the Colts defeated the Minnesota Vikings 34-7.

Y. A. Tittle hit end Del Shorner with two touchdown throws. Don Chandler kicked three field goals and the Giants' defense did the rest.

Green Bay's offense held the Cards' hard-running defense to 16 yards including 9 by John David Crow.

The Steelers' winning two points came on a disputed safety when the Cowboys were charged with offensive holding in their own end zone. Eddie LeBaron tossed TD passes to J. W. Lockett and Frank Clarke, while rookie Joe Womack scored twice for the Steelers.

Plum, last year's Cleveland quarterback, hit on 15 of 21 passes against the 49ers, giving him 36 of 51 in two games. Three of them against San Francisco went for touchdowns, while Dan Lewis scored twice in the final period to lock up the victory.

Former Maron stars Billy Wade and Joe Marconi led the Bears. Quarterback Wade tossed a touchdown pass and scored once, while Marconi tallied once and gained 81 yards pushing while filling in for the injured Rick Casares.

Ground Work Puts Oilers In Stride

The Houston Oilers are back in stride in the American Football League today, and it's mainly because of the ground work done by Charlie Tolar and Billy Cannon.

And ground work they did—the hard way against a defensive line reputed to be the league's best.

This blockbusting pair rolled for 212 yards Sunday as the champion Oilers blitzed the San Diego Chargers 42-17.

This club record-making performance came after the Oilers had been held to only 69 yards using in a 34-21 lacing a week ago by Boston, which had fans wondering if perhaps the two-time champions weren't running out of gas.

Houston's triumph put it in a three-way tie for first place in the Eastern Division with Boston, which won Friday night, and New York, which handed Buffalo its third straight loss, 17-6 Saturday night. All are 2-1.

Dallas' 26-16 victory over Oakland put the Texans atop the Western Division with a 2-0 mark. San Diego is 1-2, Denver 2-1 and Oakland 0-2.

Tolar has been the Oilers' big gun on the ground so far this season, and added 142 yards in 18 carries to the 144 he had gained in the first two games. Cannon, last year's ground-gaining champ got 70 in 12 tries for a three-game total of 214.

Len Dawson, entrenched as the Texans' new quarterback, hit end Chris Burford three times for touchdowns, and Durwood Pennington added the other points on a pair of field goals and three conversions. Oakland scored on ex-Texas' quarterback Cotton Davidson's 10-yard run and a 2-yard burst by Glen Daniel.

Coach Don Robbins isn't overconfident concerning the opening home football game here Friday against Snyder.

He hopes the Steer football team isn't, else it could be too bad.

"They worked well last week considering those 36 points against Plainview and that we had no game," said Robbins, who went to Levelland to see Snyder play. "But we had better get ready or Snyder's team speed can hurt us."

Snyder neglected only one small detail at Levelland, it got to score enough points to win. Otherwise the Tigers mopped up the ground with Levelland. A fumbled punt set up one opposition score, and on another occasion a fumble stopped a Snyder drive at the Levelland goal.

Robbins figures his boys must be able to turn in Lester Brown, fleet halfback, and Bob Pena, the 4-year fullback. In the game last week, Snyder's lanky quarterback, Jimmy Wilson, was throwing well, and the ends were breaking quickly. If the Steers showed any weakness in their romp over Plainview, it was in pass defense.

The squad was in reasonably good shape, although John Roden and Donny Phillips were not suited out due to knee injuries. Teddy Graham was out with tonsillitis, and this could hurt plenty. Gary Anderson was down with the flu.

However, the Steers are in good spirits, and they are planning on putting on an exciting show for fans Friday.

Southwest Has Poor Showing

Not too happy with the opening showing when the teams won only three games out of seven, the Southwest Conference starts the race for the championship this week.

It will come in only one game, however, with Texas meeting Texas Tech at Lubbock Saturday night. Five of the teams will be playing inter-sectional football, something the league did very well at last week, while the other—Texas A&M—meets University of Houston in a home area game.

Texas Christian beat Kansas 6-3 but had little to brag about. Kansas lost because of costly penalties.

Only Arkansas was impressive. The Razorbacks rode high, wide and handsome over Oklahoma State 34-7 with a blistering passing attack featuring sophomore Billy Gray, who threw for three touchdowns.

Texas A&M was strapped by Louisiana State 21-0 and Southern Methodist fell to Maryland 7-0 after a rugged fight.

Baylor took a disappointing 19-0 upset from Houston and Texas Tech couldn't handle the Pete Pedro menace and fell to West Texas State 30-27.

Bill Pfund, a Webb AFB sergeant who kept busy as a sports official during much of his local tenure, is being transferred to Denver shortly.

Sam Etcheverry is making it doubly hard for Big Spring's Charley Johnson to break into the St. Louis Cardinals' line-up.

The veteran Etcheverry completed 13 of 23 passes in his first league start this year, good for 184 yards and two touchdowns.

Sam probably wouldn't have thrown more had not John David Crow been running so well.

Big Spring should have few worries about the quarterback spots on its football teams in the next few seasons, if it can keep the boys it now has.

Albert Fierro will return in 1963. Rickey Earle, a standout for the B team against San Angelo the other night, is being groomed to spell Fierro next year.

Then there is Joe Jaure, currently performing for the Runnels ninth graders, a boy capable of setting a few school records before he's through.

A young man champing at the bits, waiting for a chance to play again, is Donnie Phillips, a senior halfback at the local high school. Donnie underwent a knee operation shortly before the current season got under way but he has already predicted he'll be available for more than half the games.

The coaches will be most grateful if he can play when the heat is really on in the conference campaign.

Crisis At The Crossroads

Ronnie McReynolds (with ball) looks for more running room after catching a pass in the above picture, snapped during the Stanton-Coahoma game in Coahoma Friday night. McReynolds is a Stanton end. Others in the picture are Mike Sorley (57), Donnie Polson (26) and Ronnie Hays (41), all of Stanton; and Ted Cearley (26), Jimmy Mays (at McReynolds' feet) and Bobby Williams (70), all of Coahoma. Stanton won the game, 8-0.

Commissioner Wrestles With Record Book Again

It's like this, Mr. Commissioner. We have a problem. It involves Maury Wills, a bunch of stolen bases, Ty Cobb, the record book and an asterisk or so.

Yessir, that's right, he stole two more Sunday, in his team's 156th game. That makes 97. Which, of course, is one more stolen base than Cobb got with Detroit in 156 games in 1913.

BACKING IN

Yankees Clinch Tie For League's Pennant

The proud New York Yankees, who hate to be accused of backing in—which is just what they are doing—have clinched at least a tie for the American League pennant and can wrap it all up Tuesday night by beating the last-place Washington Senators.

The Yankees all but nailed down their 27th championship in 42 years, 12th in 14 and second in two years under manager Ralph Houk, by defeating the Chicago White Sox, 5-1, in 10 innings Sunday.

Minnesota vanquished Baltimore, 9-2, but all the second-place Twins accomplished was to avoid mathematical elimination. Trailing by 4½ games, the best they can do is force a post-season playoff provided they win their remaining four games while the Yankees lose all five; they have left.

That's like asking one of our astronauts to journey to the moon in a swim suit.

Los Angeles' third-place Angels were mathematically eliminated from the race, dropping an 11-5 decision to Cleveland for their eighth loss in their last 10 games. Detroit defeated Kansas City, 3-1. Rain forced postponement of the Red Sox-Senators game in Washington.

The Yankees ruined Early Wynn's bid to become the American League's first 300-game winner since Lefty Grove two decades ago. Wynn, 42, battled the Yankees through 10 innings before suffering his 14th loss in 21 decisions.

Right-hander Bill Stafford took a 1-0 lead into the ninth when the White Sox tied the score on successive doubles by Joe Cunningham and Floyd Robinson.

The Twins scored eight runs in the last two innings to overcome a 2-1 Baltimore lead. Harmon Killebrew hit a three-run homer in the eighth to snap a 2-2 tie. It was Killebrew's 45th homer and gave him 120 runs batted in. Both figures are tops in the league.

Walter Bond drove in five runs with a home run and two doubles to pace the Indians' 10-hit attack against six Angel pitchers. Jim Perry recorded his 12th victory.

Detroit southpaw Hank Aguirre pitched a six-hitter against the Athletics and lowered his league leading earned run average to 2.24.

Dumas has fallen from grace in Class AAAA although it hasn't yet lost to a team in its own class. The defending state champions took a 13-0 licking from Borger of AAAA last week.

Brownwood and Belton are in the limelight along with Orange in AAA. Brownwood and Belton clash this week.

Denver City rolls on as the top team of Class AA but there are some rumblings from the direction of Hamlin, Stamford and Jackboro. Hamlin has beaten Retan and Childress to knock over a couple of well-rated outfits.

Stamford, four times a state champion of AA but rather docile the past two years, is moving fast. The Bulldogs have run up 116 points to none in three games. Jackboro has done even better, getting 121 in three.

Denver City plays Levelland in Class AAA this week and can make a killing in its bid to remain No. 1 in the state.

New London has scored 114 points in three games, its latest conquest being a 52-0 triumph over Joquim. The East Texas power plays Gladewater of AA this week.

Defending champion Albany just doesn't seem to have it. The Lions have lost two of three, dropping to Anson 22-20 last week.

BAD NEWS

Pistol Pete Is Playing Better

CANYON, Tex. (AP) — The word comes that Pete Pedro, last year's collegiate touchdown leader, is improved. That should cause blanching of faces among the teams that meet West Texas State this fall.

Pedro, the Puerto Rican from Lynn, Mass., pretty well illustrated the fact Saturday night. He ran for 157 yards, caught two passes for 46 yards—one 38-yard reception setting up a touchdown—threw a touchdown pass for 11 yards and scored two touchdowns in a 30-27 victory over Texas Tech.

A faster pace than in 1961. Also, Pedro is playing a tougher schedule.

"He's the finest running back I've ever seen," said Coach Joe Kerbel. "He's an excellent boy to coach because he improves with every game. He has improved tremendously over last year and will continue to improve as he learns more about the game."

One reason for his running excellence is the fact that he's a 9.7 sprinter and has one of the quietest starts ever seen in football.

Pedro came from Trinidad, Colo., junior college and he weighed only 160 pounds when he reported to West Texas State last fall. Now he's up to 169 and he hopes to get to 175 by the time he winds up his college career. He thinks he needs the extra weight so he can play pro football.

West Texas plays Texas Western here Saturday night and a sellout of 20,000 is expected. Pedro's previous big crowd was 17,000 that saw him play against Arizona State last year.

Shed No Tear For Alabama

Associated Press Sports Writer
The man in the long black coat, the undertaker, isn't quite ready to start work on the University of Alabama, defending national college football champion.

Stripped of the services of All-America Pat Trammell by graduation and bone-crushing Mike Fraochis through a leg injury, the Crimson Tide was supposed to be a bunch of ghosts.

Bear Bryant's club started operations last Saturday with a convincing 35-0 victory over Georgia, a Southeastern Conference rival.

Alabama was rated No. 3 in The Associated Press pre-season poll behind Ohio State, which is supposed to step up on the throne, and Texas.

The Crimson Tide takes on Tulane in a night game in New Orleans Saturday. This should be no problem.

Ohio State opens its season in Columbus against North Carolina. The Tar Heels, 7-6 losers to North Carolina State in their opener, don't figure to be any problem for the loaded Buckeyes.

Texas, the unanimous choice for the Southwest Conference crown, however, showed some holes in its 25-13 decision over Oregon. The Longhorns trailed 13-3 at one point. They play Texas Tech in a night game Saturday and an emphatic victory is a must.

The only other member of the top ten that didn't play last week, Michigan State, No. 4, also swings into action against Stanford at Palo Alto.

One member of the top ten was beaten and another tied in the biggest surprise of the first shake-down Saturday. Duke, ranked No. 3, fell before Southern California, 14-7, in the television game of the week, and Purdue, No. 7, could do no better than a 7-7 tie with Washington.

Louisiana State, No. 5, downed Texas A & M, 21-0, while Mississippi, No. 6, took care of Memphis State, 21-7. Penn State clobbered Navy, 41-7.

Besides the strength of Alabama and the chinks in Texas' armor, other points were underscored in Saturday's games.

For one thing, Penn State—unless it stumbles badly—along the way—should win the eastern championship.

For another, Southern Cal. by virtue of its victory over Duke, goes into the favorite's spot in the Big Six.

Oklahoma, which edged Syracuse, 7-3, appears to be taking its first unsteady steps on the road back to past glories. The Sooners play Notre Dame in the television game of the week Saturday.

Local Teams Have A Busy Week
Here's the week's grid menu for Big Spring teams:

The A team will tangle with Snyder in the opening home game of the season at 8 p.m. Friday.

The B team plays Sweetwater here Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Runnels Ninth plays Lee in San Angelo at 4 p.m. Thursday. Goliad Eighth plays Snyder Travis here at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Goliad Eighth plays Snyder Travis here at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Fuel, Water Use Will Be Schirra Items

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Spacecraft fuel and water consumption will be major items under study when astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., makes his intended six-orbit flight around the world, now set for Oct. 3.

Proper supplies of fuel to control the spacecraft's attitude and water to maintain comfortable cabin and suit temperature are necessary if the next goal in Project Mercury—an 18-orbit, one-day flight—is to be met while using essentially the same spacecraft.

Project officials made several disclosures about the flight today as engineers worked to correct a valve problem which cropped up in the capsule last Friday. The trouble necessitated removal of the 4,200-pound craft from atop its Atlas booster rocket and caused a five-day delay in the planned Sept. 28 launch date.

A leak was detected in the valve and subsequent investigation revealed it was sticking. The valve is to be replaced and the present timetable calls for the spacecraft to be rejoined with the Atlas on Wednesday. Six to eight days of checkout then are required before firing.

WATER USAGE
John F. Yardley, Cape Canaveral base manager for McDonnell Aircraft Corp., which makes the capsule, said the most important thing he'll be looking for on Schirra's flight will be water consumption.

"There is ample water aboard for a six-orbit mission," Yardley reported. "We're redesigning the capsule for an 18-orbit flight but we don't know how much water we'll need."

Yardley, who was responsible for preliminary design of the Mercury capsule, said the three-orbit journeys of astronauts John H. Glenn Jr. and Malcolm Scott Carpenter gave engineers no indication of the amount of water needed for one-day missions.

Yardley explained this was because Carpenter and Glenn tried to squeeze many things into their relatively short five hours in space. The activity generated body heat which resulted in extensive use of the water coolant system to maintain a comfortable temperature inside the space suit.

Glenn and Carpenter ran dangerously low on hydrogen peroxide fuel and both had empty tanks when they landed. This was caused primarily by the astronauts' mismanagement of their fuel supply. Carpenter at one point inadvertently had two fuel-consuming control systems operating simultaneously.

ATTITUDE FUEL
Robert L. Foster, McDonnell's engineering systems manager, reported the spacecraft carries 55 to 57 pounds of hydrogen peroxide—which is used to fire attitude-controlling jets spotted about the capsule surface. He said eight to 10 pounds is about all that is required to perform the basic six-orbit mission if everything goes right.

To conserve fuel, the control system in Schirra's craft has been modified to prevent inadvertent firing of the 6- and 24-pound thrust jets when a burst from the small one-pound-thrust jets would suffice, and steps have been taken to prevent two control modes from functioning at one time.

Traffic's Share In Deaths Falls

Violence in Texas during the weekend claimed 17 lives but traffic mishaps, which generally account for a majority of the violent deaths, killed only six.

Shootings, drownings and fires added to the total.

The Associated Press count started at 6 p.m. Friday and continued through Sunday midnight.

Argentine Unity Goal For Guido

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Backed by triumphant army rebels, President Jose Maria Guido set out today to bind the nation's wounds with a hint of amnesty for all and a promise of free elections.

Guido went on the radio Sunday night hours after the last resistance crumbled in north Argentina, ending five days of armed forces conflict that shook the country.

Guido himself was thrust into the presidency last March by the military high command that took a beating from rebel forces led by Brig. Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania.

Ongania accused the high command of making Guido a virtual prisoner with the aim of leading Argentina into military dictatorship. He and his backers said they wanted to free Guido from military dictate and restore democratic institutions.

Guido switched to the rebel side in the midst of the conflict. While he told the nation he alone would exercise the powers of chief executive, he laid down a policy advocated by the rebels.

"There will be elections of new authorities within the briefest possible time in free polls," Guido declared. "This is the firm purpose of the government."

This echoed a statement by Ongania's forces at Campo de Mayo, the nation's largest garrison, where the army rebellion began last week.

Guido had promised elections by October 1963, with new officials taking office the following May.

In an apparent reference to followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron, Guido said all sectors of the population will be free to take part in politics provided they adhere to democratic principles.

While proclaiming themselves anti-Peronists, a rebel communique said the problem of the Peronist masses can be solved only by winning them over to democratic processes.

When the Peronists won victories in provincial and congressional elections last March, the military high command overthrew President Arturo Frondizi, blaming him for permitting Peronists to resume political activity. They installed Guido and he nullified the election results.

"The country has received a terrible lesson," Guido told the nation. "A chapter of history has been written in blood."

In the five days of fighting involving tanks, artillery and jet fighters, 11 civilian bystanders were killed and 43 wounded. Military losses were put at 3 dead and 12 wounded.

Two military leaders are under arrest—Gen. Juan Carlos Lorigo, former commander in chief, and

Gen. Bernardino Labayru, former chief of staff.

Ongania, named by Guido as acting commander-in-chief, told his troops in Campo de Mayo: "I pray to God that this will be the last time the army clashes for reasons of dignity, justice and legality."

Last to surrender were the forces of Gen. Federico Tornanzo Montero in the province of Salta, 770 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

Setting out for form a new cabinet, Guido called back Alvaro Alsogaray, the strong man of his government who submitted his resignation along with all other ministers last week to give the president a free hand.

In addition to the economics ministry, Alsogaray was made acting interior minister. This gives him control over the nation's security forces.

Three White Men Sentenced For Burning Of Church

COLQUITT, Ga. (AP)—Three white men were sentenced Saturday to seven years in prison for burning a Negro church near Dawson, Ga., last Monday.

Superior Court Judge Walter Geer imposed the sentences on Marvin Allen Milner, 31; Glenn Roland, 55; and his son, Melvin, 22, all of the Dawson area. The three pleaded guilty Thursday to burning the High Hope Baptist Church.

They told FBI agents they were drinking beer and decided to set fire to the 75-year-old frame church. It burned in the predawn hours Monday and federal agents arrested the three men and a 16-year-old youth a short time later.

The teen-ager, whose name is withheld under state law, will go before Geer, who also is juvenile court judge, here next Saturday.

 A retired Air Force officer, Gene Best, about 45, was found dead in his backyard at Amarillo late Saturday. A shotgun lay nearby.

This Issue Is In Good Spirits

LONDON (AP)—A good-natured tug of war is taking place between a brewery and the city fathers of nearby Brentwood.

A new pub is located in Hanging Hill Lane. Highwaymen were once strung up in the thoroughfare.

When time came to name the pub, a brewing chain that owns it decided on:

The Hangman's Rest.

Some people called this bad taste.

The brewery replied that if Hanging Hill Lane was not in bad taste then neither was the Hangman's Rest.

Local residents said Hanging Hill Lane as an ancient name could be tolerated, but not a new pub named the Hangman's Rest. With tongue-in-cheek, the brewery advanced another name—The Last Drop.

A Devotional For The Day

He shall call upon me, and I will answer him: I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him, and honour him. (Psalms 91:15.)
PRAYER: Our Father, help us to lead prayerful lives. Strengthen us to overcome pain with faith. Teach us to glorify Thy holy name at all times, in all circumstances; through Christ our Lord, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."
(From The "Upper Room")

For Full Exposure Of The Mind

Many liberal arts colleges, some large, some small, have managed to survive the preoccupation with specialization that has overtaken so many institutions of higher learning. The trend toward conversion of colleges and universities into glorified trade schools is not easy to resist in this most materialistic age.

The problem of materialism in education is not, it seems, peculiar to the United States. Russian education is beset with the same difficulty, although a new horizon may be glimpsed in this extract from an article in the September issue of U.S.S.R., written by Victor Rozov, a Soviet playwright who wrote "The Cranes are Flying":

"Not too long ago education meant the knowledge required for a trade or profession. Now study is a compelling, psychological need . . . A person without a good cultural background feels like a social oddity these days . . . I sometimes have the feeling that a part of the human brain, inactive until now, has just begun to function in these (modern) youngsters . . ."

It is strange and unfortunate that no similar mood has been detected in American education today. Unquestionably it is there, though, although the extent of its effect may not be great. It can be found among students who honor knowledge for its own sake, those for whom the beckoning horizons of literature and history and language and art are irresistible.

The argument is not one between specialization and lack of specialization. Rather it is a plea for full exposure of all students to the rich cultural heritage of man, either before or during specialization. For the need is paramount for scientists who are also philosophers, physicians who are patrons of the arts, lawyers who are humanitarians, political leaders who can feel at home with intellectuals, and labor leaders who are not strangers to the majesty and beauty of this broad land of ours.

The need, in short, is for truly educated men.

It's Not All Baloney

Recently there has been much debate, inspired by excerpts from Rachel Carson's forthcoming book "Silent Spring," about the effects of insect-killing sprays on wildlife and the foods we eat. Now a distinguished Harvard expert on nutrition has entered the lists with a resounding declaration that this concern is "baloney."

Dr. Frederick J. Stare's bonafides are impressive. There is much weight, therefore, in his declaration that "I do not know of a single case where a single physician has ever published any reliable information that a single individual has ever been injured by the proper use of pesticides."

There is just one little trouble with that. The phrase, "proper use," is a neat escape hatch. The difficulty is that pesticides are not always properly used. This is not the whole source of concern, but it is enough to warrant the judgment that concern about pesticides is by no means "baloney."

Irresoluteness Amounts To Concession

WASHINGTON—It may seem trite in this age of sophistication to say that "actions speak louder than words," but that's about the only conclusion one can reach with respect to the resolution on Cuba just adopted by Congress.

Even if the American people can be persuaded to believe it is a strongly worded resolution, the Soviets can read English, too. For the resolution virtually accepts the Soviet occupation of Cuba and fails to recommend that the violation of the Monroe Doctrine, already committed by the Soviets by sending military forces to Cuba, be immediately challenged. It says instead that the United States will by military force prevent "the Marxist-Leninist regime in Cuba from extending by force or the threat of force its aggressive or subversive activities to any part of this hemisphere."

IT MAY SEEM LOGICAL to call all persons "extremists" who believe in irresoluteness when dealing with the Communists, but, unfortunately, history shows that appeasement and pacifists are too often the people who bring on war.

Anthony Eden witnessed—as a protesting bystander—the Munich crisis of 1938, when appeasement led to World War II. He happens to have written an article for the current issue of Foreign Affairs Quarterly, in which he makes this comment:

"The consequences for the free nations of sponsoring a solution which is not itself just can be grave; a little present ease may be gained, but probably at the expense of greater trouble thereafter. In the history of the last 30 years it has not proved wise to seek to assuage excessive appetites by unjust concession."

THE EVENTS of the past few weeks reveal that President Kennedy has yielded to the unwise counsel of his advisers and announced that to him a violation of the Monroe Doctrine means only a military offensive against any country in this hemisphere, and that he prefers to wait for such a contingency before taking any action. This means that he will not resist the Soviet encroachment that has already taken place in Cuba and is not prepared to undertake a naval blockade of Cuba.

The resolution put before Congress by administration leaders was, after some amendments, finally agreed to by both parties. Action will be up to the President anyway, as he already has the authority to use force either in support of the new resolution or of the original Monroe Doctrine.

BUT THE RESOLUTION publicizes a concession to Russia. It confirms the view that has been developing in administration circles recently—that the President construes the Monroe Doctrine today differently than it has ever been interpreted before.

The appeasement psychology has been stimulated by the argument of expediency. It has been insisted that, after America entered two world wars and when this country established bases overseas afterwards, it gave up the Monroe Doctrine. This illusory argument is not borne out by the facts of history.

President Wilson, for instance, persuaded our allies of World War I to include in the Versailles Peace Treaty and in the League of Nations covenant itself a provision which specifically recognized the Monroe Doctrine as continuing. So does the United Nations charter validate "regional arrangements."

President Truman, in a speech on Navy Day, Oct. 27, 1945—just after World War II had ended—restated American foreign policy in a series of points. Among these were the following:

"WE BELIEVE THAT all peoples who are prepared to free government should be permitted to choose their own form of government by their own freely expressed choice, without interference from any foreign source. That is true in Europe, in Asia, in Africa, as well as in the Western Hemisphere."

"We believe that the sovereign states of the Western Hemisphere, without interference from outside the Western Hemisphere, must work together as good neighbors in the solution of their common problems."

This warning against "interference from outside the Western Hemisphere" is the essence of the Monroe Doctrine. For more than 135 years, the United States has pledged that it would consider any attempt on the part of European powers "to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

Homo Sap Has Pause For Reflection

WASHINGTON (AP)—The inescapable conclusion from history is that man throughout most of it has acted like a bird-brain.

He used reason to philosophize but fulfilled his ambitions by invasion and settled his dilemmas with weapons.

The Egyptians, the Hyksos, the Babylonians, the Sumerians, the Dorians, the Achaeans, the Carthaginians, the Romans, the Goths and Visigoths and Ostrogoths, the Huns, the Vandals, the Moslems, the Christians, the Jews—they sought solutions in battle.

Now at last, with weapons so powerful they can wipe one another out at long range, men are beginning to show some restraint, although it may not last, and in the restraint have a sense of bafflement.

THE RED Chinese ache to take over Southeast Asia but hesitate because it's this country, not theirs, which has nuclear bombs, a discretion they may discard when they have bombs, too.

In the 1940s, when this country had a monopoly on the atom bomb, Russia was discouraged from pushing its luck in Greece and Turkey.

Since Russian communism is a crusading philosophy there is only one explanation for its reticence about gobbling up Europe: not reason but fear that invasion means war and in a nuclear war there may be only the dead and no winner.

Fear of that same kind of war is the only explanation for the self-control the West exhibited when the Russians threw up the Berlin wall, a risk the Russians took and one the West was unwilling to take by smashing the wall, now that the Russians have nuclear force.

NOW COMMUNISM is encamped in Cuba. Russia pumps in men and supplies, outraged Americans in Congress, forgetting American outrage in this country when India invaded tiny Goa last year, called for invading Cuba.

Try it, the Russians said, and it means war.

President Kennedy did his best to chill such martial ardor and the overwhelming majority in the Senate contented themselves with a resolution warning communism not to push beyond the shores of Cuba, or else.

The resolution cited the Monroe Doctrine with its warning to European powers to stay out of the Western Hemisphere while overlooking another promise in the doctrine laid down by President Monroe: That the United States would stay out of Europe's affairs.

IT HASN'T, either in two world wars or since. The United States has been very deeply involved in Europe's affairs, first with arms and then with men, since President Truman with his doctrine revised the Monroe Doctrine by assuming American responsibility for stopping communism in Europe.

If tomorrow the United States went back to the Monroe Doctrine by pulling out of Europe, which it won't, and in return expected Europe, meaning Russia, to stay out of this hemisphere, there's no reason to think Russia would—and it would probably be fatal to think so.

So, Shut Up, Fathead

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

When you call someone whose intelligence you doubt a "fathead," you show your own ignorance. Brain cells contain little or no real fat.

Practically every school kid knows that both John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died on the 50th anniversary of Independence Day, but can you name a U.S. president who was born on July 4? Answer: Calvin Coolidge.

Wants To Be Rid Of Tattoo Mark

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a tattoo that was put on my arm (my ex-husband's name) more than 20 years ago. How can I have it removed without a skin graft? I know I was foolish.

I have been advised to consult a dermatologist. Is that right?—L. M.

Yes, consult a dermatologist (skin specialist) to determine whether your ex-husband's name can be obliterated by a process called "skin planing" or "dermabrasion," or by re-tattooing with flesh colors.

If neither of these methods is suitable in your case, a skin graft may be the only recourse.

Incidentally, a tattoo needle which has not been thoroughly sterilized can transmit disease from one person to another. Hepatitis is one of the dangers, syphilis is another.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have lost my sense of taste, and everything I eat is the same. I have a thyroid condition and acute bronchitis and am taking a high content of potassium iodide for the cough. Could this be the reason?—M. D. B.

Yes, large doses of iodides sometimes can cause loss of taste. "Taste" however is a subtle combination of factors. A restaurant man I know successfully follows a rule of "feed the eyes first." It's literally true, he says, that things can "look so good you can almost taste them."

Aroma has a great deal to do with flavor. Your "sense of taste" is impaired if you have a hard cold. Either infection or polyps in the nose can have this effect.

Less commonly, disorders of the nerves to the tongue can affect taste. Basically there are only four "tastes," sweet, sour, salty and bitter and sometimes a "metallic taste" is added.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is your opinion on the following beliefs, so popular with older persons, with which I disagree:

1—That "a good purgative should be taken every month or two to clean out the upper bowel."

2—That the same is recommended for dizziness—which they think means "liver trouble"—and for headaches, nausea, backache, etc.

3—That even diarrhea is supposed to be treated with a purgative because "it means the upper bowel isn't cleaned out."

E. P.

Count your calories the easy way! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Calorie Chart," write Dr. Molner in care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

reason. Something has to be out of order.

Dizziness certainly is not always due to liver trouble. It can be from high blood pressure, low blood pressure, toxicity, and a variety of other causes.

Harsh purgatives usually do more harm than good, and can be decidedly harmful or downright dangerous at times. However, a mild laxative is occasionally used in cases of gall bladder disease.

Laxatives are prescribed for some kind of diarrhea, but not because the upper bowel needs cleaning."

NOTE TO MRS. R. B.: Nodular goiters may be toxic and therefore serious. Yes malignancy is possible, especially in single nodules, the frequency being about three per cent.

This Country Needs Good Waiters

One thing and another: Henry A. Montague, president of the National Restaurant Association, says the industry is plagued by Nineteenth Century attitudes toward a noble profession—that of waiting on tables.

"Americans have decided that they won't serve anyone as a valet, butler, or table waiter," he said recently.

"But it seems to me there is much more glamor in being a good waiter in a fine dining room, making people happy with good food, than putting nuts and bolts in an automobile or airplane."

HE COMPARED the prejudice against being a waiter to 19th century attitudes about a stage career.

The honorable mayor of San Francisco, George Christopher, remarked recently that America's restaurants could be used as a barometer of the country's business climate.

"When restaurants do well, you can be sure that the nation as a whole is doing well," he stated.

MOST KIDS imitate their elders at one time or another by pretending they smoke. They do it by pulling on candy cigarettes or rolling up pieces of paper and sticking them in their mouths.

My going-on-six daughter, influenced, no doubt, by the cool look the TV hucksters give when they're trying to sell fags, rolled up a sheet of paper the other night that looked more like a dunce hat than it did a roll of tobacco and chirped:

"Look, I'm smoking."
"None of us use tobacco around here," I told her. "We get along without it."
"Oh, this won't make me cough," she replied thoughtfully.

HEAR THE STORY about the small boy who was asked by the lady:

"What's new around your house?"
"I don't know," the lad replied rather sadly. "They spell everything."

THEN THERE was the young man who, dressed in cap and gown on graduation day, handed his diploma to his father with this remark:

"Well, I finished law school to please you and mom. Now I'm going to be a motorcycle cop like I've been saying since I was six years old."

Tip Sheet For The Gutter

It was Mrs. Patrick Campbell, in the horse-and-buggy era, who explained that she didn't care what people did as long as they didn't do it in the streets and frighten the horses.

This redoubtable woman and actress (who created the role of Eliza Doolittle, by the way) went to her reward about the time that horses completely disappeared from our streets and it became humanly impossible to do anything on or off the streets that would frighten an internal combustion engine.

These long, long thoughts more or less came to a head the other day when I was importuned, via mail, to subscribe to the latest newsletter to be offered the public.

NOW ANYONE who can read or whose name is on a mailing list is fully aware of the fact that the multiplication of newsletters in recent years would bring a blush to the cheek of a robust rabbit. Such letters have proliferated until every facet of modern life has a little newsletter all its own. Each is filled with the latest scuttlebutt, true or false, in its special field.

So I suppose I shouldn't have been surprised when I received a handsome embossed invitation, printed on the best bond, to subscribe to a biweekly dope sheet on sex. Come to think of it, this "Biweekly Newsletter on Love" will close the gap in the only field untouched so far in the weekly tip-sheet survey of human and inhuman relations.

THE BROCHURE gives its titillating promise to bridge the yawning gulf or vacuum created by newspapers short-sightedly pledged to purvey only the news that's fit to print.

For example, the newsletter will give "colorful extracts from court testimony in divorce and adultery cases." It promises other exotic news, too.

"Dear Friend," the brochure begins, "Are you a member of the sexual elite?" Three purple pages later you are entitled, if the answer is "yes," to subscribe to the latest newsletter "at a special introductory price of only $14.95." This is a saving of $10.05 from the regular subscription price of $25 per annum.

IS THERE, you may be mentally asking, any promise that the dope sheet on sex will be mailed in a plain wrapper? How really old-fashioned, even puritan, is such a question! A prospective subscriber who would frame such a query certainly doesn't belong to the "elite" at which this newsletter aims.

Any kindergarten graduate knows the danger lurking in inhibitions. It is the height of folly today to adjust one's mental or emotional dress before leaving the room. The plain wrappers have long since been peeled off life and literature.

UNDOUBTEDLY A man arrested in this country for selling dirty post cards on the street would go scot-free if he pleaded in court that his merchandise is art and that censorship is the only obscenity. In the end, it would be the individual who brought the charge against the post-card merchant who would find himself in the dock, accused of hamstringing art and possessing a narrow, perverted mind.

Indeed, "censorship" is the dirtiest word in the language since the mantle of art has been wrapped around anything, no matter how scatological. Four-letter words are now art. Nor do I want the above interpreted as a plea for censorship, but rather a suggestion that a few inhibitions are in order and won't do us any harm. Dobbin may be retired, but what about a little horse sense to replace him?

Court Appointments—Then And Now

WASHINGTON—No senator at this writing, I think, has called attention to the astonishing contrast between the nominations to the Supreme Court of Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg in 1962 and of Judge John Parker in 1930.

FEDERAL CIRCUIT Judge Parker of North Carolina, acknowledged to be a brilliant young jurist, was rejected in the Senate by a marginal count where the change of one vote would have enabled Vice President Curtis to decide if the other way. President Hoover had been warned by Parker's name when opposition developed within Republican ranks in that election year. But the then-President courageously persisted as a matter of principle. He knew Parker to be a top-drawer appointment, and he felt the South deserved to be represented on the Supreme Court, which was about to lose Justice McReynolds. The Parker rejection was one of the early victories of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and of the American Federation of Labor.

MUCH HAS CHANGED since then; partly for the better, partly for the worse. By 1962, there were only 15 Senate votes against Thurgood Marshall, the NAACP's fiery attorney, for the Court of Appeals. Significantly, both Marshall and Parker were highly admired in their professions and of good moral character. The measure of prejudice, and of political alignment, against a white Southerner who was outspoken on racial matters in 1930 and of a Negro who is outspoken on the same subject in 1962 should be noted in passing.

Parker lost, Marshall won. The late columnist Frank Kent rightly predicted in 1930 that Parker would lose "because Republican senators . . . where the Negro is a big factor in their party . . . fear that a vote for Parker will damage or destroy them politically."

BUT THE REAL contrast is between the Goldberg and Parker appointments. It centers on their qualifications to be on a Supreme Court Justice. Goldberg is without judicial experience, and will certainly be confirmed in spite of it. Judge Parker was of proven quality on a federal bench, and was rejected because of it. Goldberg's concept of the purpose of government sounds like Fabian socialism. He has said, "Economic freedom through wise social and economic legislation is the highest creation of civilized man." Parker believed that "the highest creation of civilized man" was economic competition and government under law. Goldberg has said, "Both bread and equality, both freedom and security . . . are inseparable." Parker was a realist who refused to think in slogans and a strict constructionist who believed that court decisions should be based on law rather than social theories. He left "legislating" up to Congress.

THE SENATE'S case against Parker was based on two past performances. As GOP candidate for governor of North Carolina in 1920, he had frankly stated his belief, as reported in a column by Mark Ehrbridge, that "the Negro was not ready to assume the burdens and responsibilities of government." The New York Times of April 21, 1930, denounced Republican senators who opposed him for this opinion, editorializing:

"If any one of them had been in Judge Parker's place . . . he would have taken exactly the same position as regards office-holding by Negroes as the judge himself did."

PARKER'S OTHER controversial position, equally or more important in his defeat, was his appellate court ruling which upheld "yellow dog" contracts. Under the pacts, a worker agreed as a condition of employment not to join a union. Today, such a position as Parker took seems illiberal and incomprehensible because of subsequent legislation. But in the circumstances of Parker's own time (as most journalists whom I am reading in order to write this column agreed), the judge could not in judicial conscience have ruled any other way. This was the situation before him:

IN 1927 the United Mine Workers struck the Red Jacket Coal company, using violence, threats and intimidation to break the contract. The company asked the Circuit Court to order the UMW to cease and desist. The court did so. The case was taken to the Court of Appeals where Judge Parker, joined by the other appellate judges, upheld the lower court. Parker had decided solely on grounds of a 1917, based on sanctity of contract. The Hartford Courant of April 15, 1930, editorialized as follows:

" . . . Judge Parker . . . had no choice but to follow the precedents and apply the law as he found it. Had he failed to do so, he would have not fulfilled his function as a judge and would have been open to severe censure."

IN SUM, Judge Parker refused to "legislate" and left that function to Congress, which subsequently rewrote the laws on labor. For that he was denied a place on the Supreme Court. Historians may write that "Parker's defeat for political reasons was a turning point at which both the Senate and the Supreme Court began to lose much prestige and integrity.

Facial Exercise

Danielle Aubry, French actress, stresses in today's Hollywood Beauty the importance of facial exercise. She believes that a daily routine of facial exercises will keep a woman from acquiring those "inevitable" wrinkles.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Actress Believes In Proper Circulation

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD — Danielle Aubry's popularity on T.V. is partially due to her cute French accent. "I never had to think about exercising myself in Paris because I did so much walking," she told me on the set of "Laramie." "But here I must go to a gym several times a week. I think circulation is the answer to your health and your appearance. There is no use dieting to be thin if you are going to be how you call it—flabby. You have to exercise if you want your muscles to stay firm. And that applies to your face as well as your body," Danielle declared. "You know how lines gather around a person's mouth when he gets older? If you exercise every day, it will keep them away. Even if you are busy, you can find time for it while you are waiting for someone or in your car." Danielle puffed out her cheeks as far as she could. "You make a balloon. Hold it and do it again for a few times. "Then you relax and twist your lips as far around to one side as you can, feeling a pull on the other cheek. Then reverse. This uses muscles that you never would reach any other way and stimulates that part of your face." The third one is more difficult to explain, so Danielle demonstrated it. Drop your jaw and stretch your lips wide making a large opening with your mouth, pulling the muscles firmly. Then make an "O" with your lips and gather all your muscles into a focus. Do this to a count of one, drop, stretch and focus, one, drop, stretch and focus. If done correctly, you should feel your whole facial mask being stimulated. "If you do this every day, I believe your face will never sag," Danielle said. She also believes that muscles which have already sagged will become firmer. Try it. FACIAL EXERCISES If you would like to retain your youthful face, the simple exercises in Leaflet M-15, "Exercises for a Youthful Face," will be of great help. Seasoning Trick

Cut sprays of parsley and sage and spread them out on a piece of paper towel placed over a wire rack. Set this in a shaded, airy place and in about ten days the sprays will be dry. At that time strip the leaves from the stems, crumple them until they are fine, and store them in small glass jars for use as seasoning during the winter months.

Impatience Hints

Remember that the plant you may call impatience, sultana or impatiens is not hardy. It must be potted and taken indoors before frost if it is to survive the winter. It makes just as good a house plant as it does a garden plant, but needs sun indoors if it is to bloom.

SAINT FRANCIS. By Nikos Kazantzakis. Translated from the Greek by P. A. Bien-Simon & Schuster. $5.95.
By The Associated Press

The late Nikos Kazantzakis, best known in this country for his "The Last Temptation of Christ," chose themes of epic proportions for all his works.

He has made an epic figure of Saint Francis of Assisi in this novel.

The saint is no sweet and gentle soul in this fictional account. He is a grossly tortured man whose mind is a battleground between good and evil. He continually punishes his body in the manner of a medieval hermit in order to salvage his soul.

If Francis preaches to the birds, it is only because he sees in nature a cleaner rapport with God than he finds in mortal beings, according to the author.

Kazantzakis has told his narrative through a monk named Brother Leo, who is perhaps too weak in the flesh to understand the spiritual battles which encompass Francis. But Leo has sworn to be his companion and struggles manfully to give comfort and aid to the fiercely determined man he follows.

There are some powerful scenes in this story, as when Francis goes to see the Pope for permission to found an order dedicated to poverty, chastity and love.

While he and Leo are on this journey they encounter Brother Dominic, who also is founding an order, but it is one based on strength and combat and the two founders have little in common.

As Kazantzakis develops his story, there proves to be a Dominican type in Francis' own following, one Brother Elias, and while Francis is away on a disastrous journey to the crusades, Brother Elias works his will.

Because this is a work of fiction, the author cannot be held strictly to account for heaving to the line of fact. The marvel is that he has been able to give his subject a tremendous depth of spiritual conflict.

This is a remarkable work of imagination, in which the author has placed himself in the spirit of his subject, creating parables, miracles and manifestations in an upsurge of vigorous creativity that is bound to stir the reader.

All Cities Urged To Conduct Oral Vaccine Programs

AUSTIN (AP) — Every Texas city was urged Sunday to conduct community wide oral polio vaccine programs.

The recommendation was made by the Texas Medical Association's Executive Board.

The board, in issuing its recommendation, said it was in complete agreement with the stand taken by the State Department of Health.

The department had stated that Types I and II Sabin oral vaccines are fully licensed and effective. It also recommended Type III for infants and children and for the entire population if there is a polio epidemic threat to a community.

The board also urged continued emphasis on an educational program urging doctors to perform tests on new-born babies to detect phenylketonuria (PKU), a disease that can cause mental retardation.

Connally Gets News Endorsement

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—The San Antonio Express and News endorsed Democratic candidate John Connally for Governor.

The papers previously gave editorial support to Connally in the May 5 primary and in his runoff with Don Yarborough.

"John B. Connally, who has a record of achievement behind him, has offered a challenging program designed to match our expanding population with an expanding job-producing economy," the News and Express said in an editorial.

"His unique combination of experience and ability makes him an entirely acceptable candidate for the governor's office."

Military Life Is Comedy Theme

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—It was a weekend on which NBC launched some new comedy shows on its network — and by curious coincidence all the chuckles were wrapped in military uniforms.

There was the nautical "Ensign O'Toole" (probably the most likely of the group to succeed), the Army-based "Don't Call Me Charlie," and one about military school cadets called "McKeever and the Colonel," about which the less said the better.

"Ensign O'Toole" stars a most ingratiating young man, Dean Jones, in the title role. In manner and sometimes speech reminiscent of a young James Stewart, he plays a trouble-prone young Navy officer with an encyclopedic mind and total recall. The program's most amusing moments, however, involve J. C. Flippen, who plays a grizzled chief petty officer who by accident loses their destroyer, the U.S.S. Appleby, in a Japanese poker game.

"Don't Call Me Charlie" centers about still another James Stewartish young man — this one an Army veterinarian. Most of the opening show was devoted to getting him established in Paris. There, in future shows, he's going to get into trouble with his colonel, the Charlie of the title.

This one seems rather pleasant and low key.

"McKeever and the Colonel" has one of the most raucous laugh tracks heard in recent seasons, as well as the fewest laughs. It is set in an early evening Sunday spot, so presumably it is aimed at the younger members of the family.

It is one of those shows about precocious kids and stupid adults, and the youngsters win every time—or at least little McKeever does. Maybe the small fry will take the show. I doubt if parents and educators will.

A new cartoon series — ABC's plunge into color programs—also came into view: "The Jetsons." This is the usual suburban setup—idiot father, cute-trick mother, teen-age daughter with ponytail and small brother. But there's a difference. They live in the year 2062 on what is apparently a space platform where everything is done by pushing buttons and launching rockets. A very, very little of this can go a long way.

There was also the return of Jack Paar to NBC on Friday night with an hour program in prime evening time. I don't know exactly what I expected from Paar in his opening show, perhaps a Roman circus with real lions or something else big and splashy.

Thus, I was dismayed at the outset when Jack walked out of the shadows on a big stage and apparently picked up exactly where he had left off—a few prickly remarks directed toward some of his old "Tonight" show targets.

But, after a song from Robert Goulet, he went on to his own film reconstruction of wartime events involving President Kennedy when he was a PT boat captain. It was an absorbing account, Paar's very personalized approach to a piece of history. It had special meaning because it was also Paar's own return to the South Pacific where he too had served.

Gromyko Seeking Support For 3-Man U.N. Executive

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was reported seeking support today for a three-man board to supplant the United Nations acting Secretary-General U Thant.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk met briefly Sunday with Thant, strongly backed by the United States for re-election as the sole executive of the United Nations. Rusk will talk with Gromyko Tuesday.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev first told the General Assembly in 1960 that the U.N. executive should consist of three men, each with a veto, representing Western, Communist and neutralist countries.

The Russians shelved that so-called troika plan to permit Thant's election last Nov. 3 to the remainder of the five-year term of the late Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld expiring next April 10.

Over the weekend, an informed diplomatic source said, Gromyko told another assembly delegate the Russians still want the troika, and the principle should be applied from top to bottom of the U.N. structure.

If Thant is re-elected in office, he must be re-elected by the assembly after first being recommended by the Security Council, where the Soviet Union could veto him.

The United States came out for Thant's re-election months ago. Gromyko, talking with a reporter Friday night, declined to express an opinion about Thant.

That was after Gromyko, speaking in the assembly's general debate, said the United Nations would deal more effectively with the tasks it is faced with "if the three existing main groups of states — the Socialist countries, members of the Western bloc and the neutralist countries—were represented in its leading bodies."

Delegates noted that this was only a vague approximation of the troika idea, that the secretary-generalship was not referred to and that Gromyko gave the subject only one short paragraph out of a 10,000-word speech.

African, Asian and American sources have said that no matter how hard the Russians push the troika idea they can never get majority support for it.

Some have remarked that the Soviet Union is bound to agree to Thant's re-election because he has strong support in the Asian-African group, which comprises 53 of the 108 U.N. members.

Bernstein, Jackie Launch Culture Era

By HENRIETTA LEITH
NEW YORK (AP)—At approximately 9:01 1/2 p.m. Jacqueline Kennedy walked into the box and bowed slightly.

At approximately 9:02 p.m. Leonard Bernstein wormed his way through the gentlemen of the Philharmonic Orchestra and poised his baton.

At approximately 9:02 1/2 — one and a half minutes behind schedule — the orchestra played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and a brave but unfinished new world of culture was launched.

The new Philharmonic Hall—perhaps the most impressive marble temple of our generation—was beautiful. Beside it — concealed from the richly garbed crowd in the lobby by a hastily constructed plywood fence—were the rubble and construction tools of what will someday be the complex of buildings to be known as the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

The First Lady was also beautiful—in peach-pink satin with an ankle-length bell-shaped skirt, a black velvet sleeveless bolero covered with black sequins, long black gloves and her new Gibson girl hairdo.

Bernstein was Bernstein —superb and irrepresible.

After the grueling performance in the new hall, which was carefully built and furnished to provide the perfect home for a symphony, Bernstein was asked what he thought of the acoustics.

"From where I stand," he said, "they're marvelous."

Earlier, when he and composer Aaron Copland went into an anteroom to receive Mrs. Kennedy's congratulations, the exuberant conductor kissed Mrs. Bernstein's cheek before he kissed Mrs. Kennedy's.

The First Lady, who had to leave in the middle of the opening concert to fly back to Newport, R. I., before the fog closed in, whispered to John D. Rockefeller III that she had never seen anything like the new building.

Neither had any of the other opening night patrons, who included almost everybody who is anybody in state and local government, the music and art worlds and society.

Philharmonic Hall—except for the marble pillars—is almost all glass on the outside. On the inside it is marble and gold, acres of cafe au lait carpeting, tiers of gold-and-brown upholstered seats, all set off by what will someday be an abstract sculpture of Orpheus and Apollo by Richard Lipold, but on opening night consisting of Orpheus and only a bit of Apollo—all suspended and mobile pieces of rectangular gold metal.

Musically, the feature of the evening was the world premiere of "Connotations for Orchestra," which the Philharmonic had commissioned from Copland, the noted American composer.

It was written in the 12-tone system, which does away with traditional harmonies and melodies, and is the first time Copland has used this technique for full orchestra.

Far West Texas Receives Showers

By The Associated Press
Light showers dotted far West Texas and the Panhandle as mild autumn weather prevailed over the state Monday.

Skies were cloudy in the northern part of the state and mostly clear elsewhere. Houston had a light ground fog at dawn.

Early morning temperature readings ranged from a 62 at Dalhart to 74 at Corpus Christi. Maximum readings Sunday afternoon ranged from 78 at Dalhart to 96 at Presidio.

The forecast called for continued cloudiness and scattered showers in the northwest portion of the state and partly cloudy to clear skies elsewhere. No important temperature changes were indicated.

Large Number In Vaccine Drive

By The Associated Press
More than 120,000 persons took Sabin oral polio vaccine in Galveston County on the Gulf Coast and in Smith County in East Texas Sunday in Texas' continuing fight against the dread disease.

About 63,000 persons took Type II vaccine in Galveston County at 26 clinics.

Doctors said this was the first time Type II vaccine had been used on the Texas Gulf Coast. They added they were well pleased with the reception. Make-up clinics will be held next Sunday.

Between 80 or 90 per cent of the population of Smith County appeared at clinics to make a total of about 60,000 persons.

Type I vaccine was used there. Doctors there also indicated they were pleased with the turnout.
