NO DESIRE TO BE CLEAN

This portly porker has no wish to be bathed and curled for the Howard County Pig Show

Porkers At Pig Show In For Rough Time — Baths

It was bath day Wednesday for Howard County's prize pigs and they weren't liking it. Members of the County 4-H and FFA organizations, who have barrows entered in the 17th Annual Howard County FFA and 4-H Pig show opening today, were busy at the fair grounds putting their animals in shape for the judging Thursday. Soapy water, stiff-bristled brushes and unhappy pigs marked the scene as patient youngsters trailed their recalcitrant pets about the wash ring. Herb Holbig, county agent and superintendent of the show, said that the estimate of 55 animals entered would be reached. Forty-seven barrows had been weighed and accepted at 10 a.m. Four or five more barrows were still to come in and there are five breeding gilts which will be entered. He said all plans for the show are unchanged. Judging begins at 9 a.m. Thursday with Euel Liner, Lubbock, as judge. Rosettes are awaiting the grand champion and reserve champion barrow and the grand champion gilt. An attractive trophy will be presented to the boy or girl who wins the nod as the outstanding showman. Ribbons will be awarded (along with cash prizes) for placements in the two classes of barrows and the one class of breeding gilts. Judging should be completed by noon. Closing event on the program will be the auction sale which goes into action at 7:30 p.m. Thursday with Dub Bryant, local auctioneer, swinging the gavel. The show is sponsored by the Big Spring Junior Chamber of Commerce. Members of the organization have been busy for some days lining up bidders to buy in the 30 head of barrows which will be sold. None of the gilts will be sold.

Spanish Flood Toll Reaches 380

BARCELONA, Spain (AP)—Information Minister Manuel Fraga Iribarne told newsmen today the toll of known dead in the flood disaster here a week ago was 380, and 280 other persons were still missing.

Carpenter Slates Mammoth Docket

Mrs. Doris Owen, secretary to County Attorney Wayne Burns, is sending out copies of a 13-page docket of pending appeal cases to all attorneys in the county.

There are 463 cases listed on the docket and all have been set down for disposition Oct. 9 before Judge Ed Carpenter in Howard County Criminal Court. The cases were appealed from City Court and the two justices of the peace courts.

In addition to mailing out the bulky dockets, Mrs. Owen is also sending letters to each of the defendants advising them their cases have been called for Oct. 9 and suggesting they contact their attorneys.

Burns and Judge Carpenter set the docket last week in a new effort to shrink the swollen county court criminal docket to reasonable size.

Some months ago, 100 appeal cases were set for disposition. Burns attacked these as being invalid cases, alleging the bonds were not in proper form in many instances and that the complaint forms in others were not in accordance with the law. Judge Carpenter sustained his position and threw out the cases. Later an opinion from the attorney general's office supported Burn's position.

Burns and Carpenter point out the majority of the 463 cases on the docket for Oct. 9 probably have the same inherent faults. Some of the appeals date back to 1960.

There are 259 appeals from convictions in corporation court, 113 appeals from justice of the peace court, precinct 1, place 1, and 91 from justice of the peace court, precinct 1, place 2.

In most cases, where bonds were posted by attorneys, the attorney will call the cases at 9 a.m. Oct. 9. Any cases which are

PLENTY OF CASES ON FILE
June DeVoy, deputy county clerk, and collection of overdue appeal cases shown to have been properly filed will then be set for trial on their merits before the court. Those where faulty bonds or improper complaints are found will be dismissed or remanded. The fault in the bonds, as stressed by Burns in the earlier session appeals, was that the documents were not signed by each surety as the law requires in appeal cases. In most cases, where bonds were posted by attorneys, the attorney appearing in the case signed the bond and also signed the name of

Schirra Carries U. S. Flag On Longest Space Journey

Astronaut Heads For Full 6 Orbits

BULLETIN

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., a new American space flight record safely tucked away, completed his fourth orbit of the world at 1:31 p.m. (EST) today and shot on into the fifth. At that time, his space travel totaled approximately 140,000 miles.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. whirled round and round the globe today, carrying the U. S. space banner on its longest trek yet. "Hallelujah!" was the spaceman's cry from the sky as he got the "go" signal to try for completion of his assigned mission — six complete circuits. He was then on his third orbit and soon afterward sped into his fourth.

Though far short of Soviet feats, Schirra's whirling journey buoyed hopes that America might yet catch up with, and pass, the Soviets in the race for the moon, and perhaps beyond.

When Schirra's Sigma 7 spacecraft swung onto the fourth orbit at 11:55 a.m. EST, the 39-year-old Navy commander set a flight record for American astronauts. He had bested the three-orbit flights made earlier this year by John H. Glenn Jr. and Malcolm Scott Carpenter.

Americans watched the liftoff of Schirra's big Atlas booster on television. The coverage was also available to 26 European countries, nine of them behind the Iron Curtain, through the miracle of another U. S. space triumph, the Telstar communications satellite.

Shortly before completing his second orbit, Schirra described his flight as a "real, real thrill." He was in 2nd grad 158.

His exuberant description of the flight came down from the sky a few minutes earlier in a discussion with Glenn, monitoring the flight at the Point Arguello, Calif., tracking station.

"It's hard to describe things up here," Schirra told the man who had pioneered U. S. orbital flight earlier this year. Schirra said he had a delightful report to make to Glenn: "I, too, see fireflies." He referred to the luminous particles which Glenn saw flying outside his spacecraft each time he went through a sunrise. At the end of the first orbit, Schirra also reported seeing the bright particles. He told of them in a talk with Carpenter, who was at the Guaymasi, Mexico, station.

Carpenter, on his flight last May, also saw the particles and was able to create them by pounding on the side of his capsule. This led scientists to believe that the fireflies—or snowflakes, as Carpenter called them—were pieces of frost breaking off the capsule and being illuminated by the rising sun.

As Schirra zipped above Cape Canaveral to begin orbit three, he commenced drifting flight for the first time. He shut off all controls and electrical power and allowed the craft to move freely on its roll, pitch and yaw axes.

In this phase, the vehicle rotates slowly, making about one revolution every 30 minutes if control is not re-established by the pilot. In drifting flight, the capsule does not float off course because it is flying an orbital path determined by the laws of nature, much like a bullet fired by a rifle.

Purpose of the drifting is to conserve control fuel and electrical power. Just how well Schirra did this was important to an 18 orbit, 24 hour flight—the next U. S. man-in-space shot set for 1963.

Congress OKs Five Big Bills

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has wrestled its remaining major bills into position for a quick windup of the long-drawn-out 1962 session. Leaders voiced cautious optimism that final adjournment may come Friday night or Saturday at the latest.

A burst of action came Tuesday on four of the "big five" measures still to be sent to President Kennedy.

1. Senate passage 57 to 24 of a $4,422,800,000 foreign aid bill carrying $792,400,000 more than the House allowed. Conferees hope to meet on this Thursday.

2. House and Senate passage of the compromise tax revision bill, clearing it to the White House. Retained was the key provision sought by the President—a $1 billion incentive to business to modernize plants.

3. Senate-House conference agreement after one meeting on the bill raising the pay of 1.6 million federal government workers and boosting postal rates by $605 million a year. The Senate may act on this today.

4. Conference agreement on the must bill to tighten federal controls over the drug industry. The Senate plans to pass it today. The fifth top-priority bill, Kennedy's trade expansion measure, already has been agreed to in conference. The House and Senate are scheduled to complete action on it Thursday.

Texas Enjoys Mild Weather

By The Associated Press
All of Texas enjoyed mild autumn weather Wednesday, and it was expected to stay that way the rest of the week.

New long range forecasts called for slowly rising temperatures until Saturday or Sunday, when a return of cooler air may bring a few showers.

There was no rain anywhere in the state. Skies were partly cloudy over Northwest Texas and along the lower coast. It was clear elsewhere.

Top temperatures Tuesday afternoon ranged from 70 degrees at Amarillo and Dalhart up to 88 at Presidio.

Readings early Wednesday varied from 51 at Dalhart, Junction and Lufkin to 71 at Brownsville.

Son Of Local Residents In Pickup Crew

The co-pilot of helicopter No. 13, scheduled to take part in the pickup of Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. from the Pacific at the end of his six-orbital flight, is the son of a Big Spring couple.

First Lt. G. W. Williams, who has been with the Marines stationed in Hawaii for three years, will take part in the pickup of the two-ton space capsule.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Williams, 1802 Grafa. The father is with the VA Hospital. He retired 18 months ago as a master sergeant, after 30 years of military service, and came to Big Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams said Wednesday that they knew their son had been training for the pickup but learned only Tuesday afternoon that he would take an actual part.

Walker Aides To Seek Ban On Committal

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Attorneys for former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker are prepared to go to court today to seek his release from a government order committing him to a psychiatric examination.

Walker, charged with inciting insurrection and with seditious conspiracy in the University of Mississippi rioting, was brought from Oxford, Miss., to the U. S. Medical Center for federal prisoners here Monday night.

The order for committal was issued at Oxford Tuesday by U. S. Dist. Judge Claude Clayton. Walker's family and friends attempted to arrange his freedom under a bond set for $100,000, but his attorneys were notified by U. S. Dist. Atty. P. Russell Miller that during the 60-to-90-day commitment he would not be available.

However, in Washington, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy was quoted as saying Walker would be released on bail. Rep. Bruce Alger, R-Tex., said Kennedy assured him no examination of Walker could be made without a court hearing.

The 53-year-old Walker's attorneys advised him to refuse to cooperate in any prison-conducted examination. Clyde J. Watts, his chief counsel, said Walker is willing to submit to an examination by any court-approved psychiatrist.

Hemisphere Firms Up On Castroism

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States was reported making progress today in its campaign to raise a solid front of Latin American opposition to the Castro regime in Cuba.

Foreign ministers attending a 20-nation inter-American conference at the State Department were said to be developing agreement that further steps must be taken to bottle up the Soviet-backed Communist threat in its Cuban base.

Walker Actions Disturb Bircher

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A congressman who belongs to the John Birch Society says he is deeply distressed by the actions in Mississippi of fellow member, ex-Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker.

Rep. John H. Rousselot, R-Calif., said Tuesday that if it is established that Walker incited insurrection, as charged, "his membership in the John Birch Society should be revoked."

Leaders Blamed In Alliance Fault

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A formal report to the Inter-American Economic and Social Council asserted Tuesday that Latin American leaders are to blame for failure of the Alliance for Progress to gain popular support in their countries.

IN NEW YORK

Boiler Room Blast Kills 20

NEW YORK (AP)—A boiler room explosion rocked through a cafeteria today and killed at least 20 persons — most of them women — in a New York Telephone Co. building.

Seventy injured persons were taken to hospitals. Others were believed trapped in the rubble. The basement explosion ripped a gaping hole in the cafeteria floor above during the noon hour. A number of the lunchers plunged through the hole into the basement.

All the known victims were in the cafeteria at the time of the blast, 12:15 p.m. Most of the employees in the building, an accounting center near the northeast tip of Manhattan, were women. About 500 persons were employed there.

Policemen dug into the ruins while firemen fought flames in the basement and on the first floor of the block-square building.

An hour after the blast near nighttime, some persons were reported still trapped in the basement of the one-story structure. Emergency and disaster units of all kinds raced to the scene, at Broadway and 213th St. in the Inwood section at the northern tip of Manhattan.

The building housed about 500 persons, mostly women clerks employed in accounting work. Firemen quickly assisted a great many of the employees from the building and sent for more aid in the rescue work.

A fire which broke out after the blast was quickly extinguished. First word came in a terse fire department announcement at 12:20 p.m. It said: "A boiler explosion of great magnitude has occurred in the basement. Many persons have been trapped."

A subsequent police report said "many" were injured. At 12:25 the fire department said fire which followed the explosion was not appreciable but that firemen were busy attempting to rescue injured persons and to get others out of the building. A second alarm of fire was sounded to get more rescue workers to the scene.

At 12:40 p.m. came another message over the fire department radio: "Quite a few fatalities and an unaccountable number of injured." Joining in the dash to the site were ambulances and police disaster and emergency units.

Third Group Reaches Goal

Momentum in the United Fund campaign continues to build higher at Webb AFB, as the third section has reported over its goal. Detachment 32, Air Rescue Squadron became the third unit to give 100 per cent and meet its quota.

Meanwhile, two other major divisions are ready to launch their effort Thursday. The giant employees division, under Randall Polk, and organized labor, guided by D. A. Brazel, are ready to begin work, making contacts throughout the city. In each of the divisions, workers and team captains have already been given their contact cards.

The United Fund is shooting for $103,324 this year to help maintain some 13 local youth guidance and welfare organizations.

Rusk Says K's Decision Could Change The World

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk says Soviet Premier Khrushchev holds the power to "completely change the life of humanity" with a simple decision to live at peace in the world.

Rusk also says that the strength of the United States is pledged to the defense of the Western Hemisphere in the great world struggle now going on.

Rusk expressed these views at a dinner he gave Tuesday for Latin American foreign ministers and other delegates attending the 20-nation inter-American conference here.

Effigy Hangings Disturb Peace On Ole Miss Campus

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—A pair of effigy hangings disturbed the returning calm on the University of Mississippi campus today as a dwindling federal force maintained the peace.

Between midnight and dawn, some 35 students gathered in front of the apartment of James H. Meredith, the university's first known Negro student, set fire to an effigy and exploded fireworks.

The alert military quickly moved in and quelled the demonstration. There were no arrests. Shortly after daybreak, a dummy clad in a blue, pink and white uniform dangled from the second-floor window of a building near the Meredith apartment building.

A sign hanging from the neck of the dummy said to "Go back to Africa where you belong."

Court Upholds Herring Sanity Trial Decision

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court refused today to reconsider its earlier ruling that a new sanity hearing must be held for John Mack Herring, Odessa High School youth charged with murder in the death of a classmate.

The court refused a motion for rehearing the case, thus sending it back to the trial court. The court on June 27, said that a judgment rendered by a Winkler County judge holding Herring to be insane at the time of the shooting "was void."

Herring is charged in the death of Elizabeth Jean Williams, 17, Herring told officers the girl pleaded with him to shoot her.

S. Africans Laud Mississippi Stand

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—A group of leading students at Pretoria University, in this capital of racially segregated South Africa, sent a telegram today to the mayor and students at Oxford, Miss., assuring them "of our unwavering moral support in your battle to uphold white civilization."

Zoning Commission Has Busy Session

Two requests for zone changes were tabled, one approved, one denied, and a special use permit granted, at Tuesday's meeting of the Big Spring Planning and Zoning Commission. Public hearings had been called for each of the requests.

The commission also adopted a policy of holding off second requests for the same zone changes for at least 120 days. This policy is the result of recent refile of several requests at each successive meeting of the board.

A special use permit was granted to the Howard County Rehabilitation Center (Crippled Children) 402 Edwards Blvd., so that a clinic may be operated. The permit was granted only for the time the association uses the building, and does not continue for future use.

Gene Nabors, Toby Cook, and Dr. George Peacock requested a change in zoning, from residential to neighborhood service, for a tract of land south of Marcy Drive and about 350 feet east of Goliad for the purpose of constructing a restaurant. Nabors and Cook appeared before the commission and said the men proposed an outstanding restaurant with ample parking area around the site. The zone change was granted. A change in zoning from two

Gen. Taylor Disclaims Any Crusade Ideas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor is back in the Pentagon, disclaiming any intent to crusade for policies that caused him to retire as Army chief of staff three years ago.

Taylor was sworn in Monday as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in ceremonies at the White House.

Later he said at a news conference in the Pentagon: "I am not arriving, blueprint in hand, as a crusader for change."

Instead, the general said, "I find in this building a new atmosphere and a new approach to the problems of defense which to me are most heartening."

When he quit in 1959, Taylor took the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration's defense policies to task in a book entitled "The Uncertain Trumpet."

Conventional ground forces had been allowed to wither away with the increasing reliance on massive nuclear retaliation, Taylor then charged. He also claimed a creaky decision-making apparatus in the department was hampering defense efforts.

Taylor has served as special military adviser to President Kennedy since April 1961. During that time conventional Army forces have been substantially increased and others of his ideas have been adopted.

In another swearing-in ceremony, Gen. Earle Wheeler, regarded as a protégé of Taylor's, became the new Army chief of staff succeeding the retiring Gen. George H. Decker.

New Styling For Oldsmobiles

Crisp, horizontal lines mark the new Oldsmobiles, which are to go on display Thursday at Shroyer Motor Co., 424 E. 3rd. Top is the 1963 Starfire, Olds' full-size sports car. Bucket seats, center console, Hydra-Matic transmission, power brakes and power steering are standard equipment. The Starfire comes in coupe and convertible models, has a 345 h.p. engine. Lower photo is of the Super 88 Holiday sedan, which puts great emphasis on luxury in fabrics and appointments. Customer comfort and ease of handling are among features established in the Olds series for 1963.

MANY REFINEMENTS FOR '63

Full Oldsmobile Line Offered Thursday At Shroyer Motor

A showing of the complete Oldsmobile line for 1963, including the 88's, 98's, two new 98 models and the Starfires and F-85's starts Thursday at the Shroyer Motor Co., 424 E. 3rd.

They are marked this year by fresh styling lines, stronger model identification, and improvements in engineering and customer comfort.

The newly-styled, newly-engineered F-85's carry more specifically the Oldsmobile identification, with crisp, horizontal lines. Its overall length has been increased four inches.

In addition to the totally new and appealing exterior styling of the Dynamic 88 interiors are richer and more tastefully appointed.

The Super 88 has new luxury trim and fabrics inside and distinctive accent moldings outside. As an example, the edges of wheel openings and rocker panel in the 1963 Super 88 are outlined in stainless steel.

STARFIRE
Oldsmobile's Starfire for 1963 is a full-size sports car with its own Starfire engine, Hydra-Matic, power brakes, power steering, bucket seats, power console and tachometer as standard equipment. In addition, the fresh new styling of the Starfire Coupe features a concave rear window complementing its highly individualized roofline.

The 98 models for 1963 are described as the most luxurious cars Oldsmobile has ever offered.

In all 88's, 98's and Starfires there are important advancements toward the greater comfort, convenience and safety of the driver and his passengers.

The 1963 Oldsmobiles are equipped with a new door interlock system which increases resistance to door-opening under impact. Self adjusting brakes are standard equipment on all models.

Also announced is a "positive pilot" turn signal system to warn the driver should one of the signal lights become inoperative.

The new custom deluxe steering wheel has soft padding added to the spokes which are designed for increased protection of the driver.

A new padded instrument panel houses recessed control knobs to further contribute to passenger safety.

AIR CONTROL
The heating, ventilating and air conditioning systems are operated by a single control unit to maintain a more constant temperature under all weather conditions.

Other changes for additional interior comfort, include virtual elimination of the front-floor-to-sill step-in and a near 50 per cent reduction in the size of the front floor tunnel. The rear tunnel is four inches narrower than in 1962 models.

In the new F-85's there are numerous mechanical improvements for economy of maintenance, increased passenger comfort and safety, better handling and for smoother and quieter operation, he added.

The Hydra-Matic transmission is smoother, comparable to the transmission on the full-sized Oldsmobile 88's and 98's. New techniques in automatic shift controls, both in the throttle control and in the transmission itself are incorporated in the 1963 F-85's specially designed Hydra-Matic.

The Jetfire, Oldsmobile's exclusive turbo-charged hardtop coupe, has been designed inside and out, for even greater sports car styling appeal.

The Turbo-Rocket engine, bucket seats and center console with transmission controls are standard equipment on the Jetfire, a car featuring power when it is needed and economy when it is wanted.

In addition to the Jetfire, other sports-type models in the F-85 line include the Cutlass Coupe and the Cutlass Convertible.

The interiors of all F-85 models are fashioned for smarter, richer appearance.

On all models the instrument panel has been redesigned for improved appearance and readability with recessed control knobs for greater safety. Standard on all deluxe models for 1963 and available at extra cost on all other F-85's is a full safety padded instrument panel of thicker material and covering a wider area.

Steering wheel diameters have been reduced for easier entrance and exit.

To lessen maintenance costs, self-adjusting brakes are standard on all F-85's.

POWER TO BECOME SONS

By T. R. Tarbet, preacher
Church of Christ, 2000 West Highway 20
P.O. Box 1283

"He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name" (Jno. 1:11, 12).

This passage is sometimes quoted in an effort to prove that we become sons of God by faith only. It teaches the opposite. It says that when we receive Him in the sense of believing, we are given power to become sons. This could not be said if we were sons of God the moment we believed. One does not need to become what he is already. Indeed, he cannot do so. He may remain that which he is already, but he cannot become that.

Faith does something. It gives one power to become a son of God. When he becomes "obedient to the faith" by repenting and being baptized, he is a son of God actually. See Acts 6:7; Acts 2:38; Gal. 3:26, 27.

Why not share with us the joy and benefit of a mid-week preaching service tonight, 7:30. It will recharge your spiritual battery, and make the problems of the week easier to solve. We welcome you.

Pontiac, Tempest, Grand Prix To Be Unveiled Thursday

Styling and engineering refinements are to be found in the new Pontiacs, which are to be offered for public showing Thursday at Van Hoose-King Pontiac, 504 E. 3rd. The 1963 line includes the wide track Pontiacs, the popular Tempest series and the custom built Grand Prix sports coupe.

Pontiac's high volume production series, the Catalina, is available in seven models; two and four-door sedans, two and four-door hardtops, six and nine passenger Safaris and a convertible. The Star Chief is offered in a four-door hardtop Vista and four-door sedan models. The luxurious Bonneville is available in four models; two and four-door hardtops, a six-passenger Safari and a convertible.

Retaining a strong Pontiac identity, the 1963 cars have a split grille that features sunken air scoops flanked by an exclusive "over and under" vertical headlight arrangement which vividly extends the wide track theme.

Traditionally luxurious, Pontiac's new interiors are tastefully fashioned in the latest luxury fabrics of nylon, vinyl and leather. Color combinations have been expanded to satisfy customer demand and solid nylon blend carpet floor covering adds to interior decor.

Pontiac engine choices seem almost unlimited, with horsepower ratings starting at 215. Customers may select a three-speed synchromesh, four-speed synchromesh (floor mounted) shift lever, heavy-duty three-speed synchromesh (standard on 123 inch wheel-base models optional on others), or an automatic transmission to mate with compression ratios ranging from 8.5:1 to 10.75:1 that have either two, four, or triple two-barrel carburetion.

TEMPEST

The popular Tempest series assumes an entirely new personality with the introduction of the 1963 models. The new Tempests are more appealing than ever with a longer, wider design, new exterior styling, new interiors, a new LeMans series and a new lineup of high performing engines that top a long list of significant engineering developments.

Following Pontiac's own distinctive styling trend the Tempest and LeMans front end is highlighted by a divided grille that accents the car's lower, longer, wider look. The LeMans grille has its own special treatment and is more suggestive of sports car styling. Body sides have contemporary sculpturing which visually lowers and lengthens the car. The overall length of the car has been increased five inches, providing a deck that is three inches longer for greater luggage compartment space. Tempest models are two inches wider and the wide track has also been increased.

In addition to a wide range of rugged four-cylinder engines from 115 to 166 horsepower, Tempest customers are now offered an entirely new V-8 engine of 326 cubic inch displacement that is rated at 260 horsepower. Appearing on all cars equipped with this new power plant will be an attractive V-326 emblem.

GRAND PRIX

The custom-built 1963 Grand Prix sports coupe, the most distinctive series ever produced by Pontiac, is an idyllic combination of sports car appeal and superior performance.

The Grand Prix is a distinctively-styled luxury car which offers many exclusive extras not found on other models.

An immediate success when it made its debut last year, the new Grand Prix for 1963 follows the same trend of unadorned exterior styling to provide its own special personality. The Pontiac plaque with the letters "GP" is centered between the two deep and narrow air scoops that form the grille. The Grand Prix name appears in block letters on the front fenders and the traditional GP emblem is positioned far back on the rear fenders. Wheel house openings are outlined in bright metal trim and a generous rocker panel molding gives balance to tastefully executed moldings framing all glass areas.

The Grand Prix "going away" look is just as refreshingly different as the front end view and is in strict keeping with the car's image. The rear end styling is strikingly simple and elegant, with chrome trim used sparingly.

Fifteen different solid colors are offered in acrylic lacquer exterior finishes. Pontiac's "fire leveled" paint process assures a more luxurious and durable finish.

Grand Prix interiors are offered in solid colors and bucket seats are standard. Luxuriant expanded Morrokide is used for the interiors and the color selections have been increased to seven for better coordination with the large exterior color selection. The interior colors are black, red, dark aqua, dark blue and parchment with black, saddle or red components.

Stewardess Identity Is Corrected

NEW YORK (AP)—A borrowed jacket led to misidentification of a stewardess who lost her life in the ditching of an airliner in the Atlantic Sept. 22, the Flying Tiger line has reported.

The line said Jacqueline Brotman, 24, of 2205 36th St., Moline, Ill., was wearing a jacket bearing the name of another stewardess, Betty Sims, 31, of 320 E. 54th St., New York, and was wrongly identified as Miss Sims.

Miss Sims, who also was on the flight, is listed as missing.

The body of Miss Brotman was taken to the British Isles. The line said that one of its representatives, in the first efforts to establish identification, believed from the name in the jacket that the body was that of Miss Sims.

Later, however, the line sent a stewardess, Carol Wolfe of Hedgehog Hollow, Bradford, Pa., to England to check identities and she established that the body was that of Miss Brotman. A ring that Miss Brotman was wearing helped confirm the identity.

Train Mishap

KROONSTAD, South Africa (AP)—A passenger train jumped the tracks near here Tuesday, killing 17 Africans and injuring 40 Africans and whites.

About 200 schoolchildren on the train escaped injury.

Today—Wide-Track Pontiac '63

Obvious, isn't it, that Pontiac's come up with another beauty this year. Fresh over-and-under headlights, clean profile—but you can see that. There's a wider Wide-Track, too, and a full line of Trophy V-8's. (That ought to be enough to make those other cars turn green.) And we haven't mentioned such happy touches as self-adjusting brakes. So what, pray tell, could be keeping you from a new Pontiac of your own? A small suggestion. Don't run down to see one. Gallop! Wide-Track Pontiac

NY Waits In Wings For Playoff Winner

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—The New York Yankees were waiting in the wings today to see whom they would play in the World Series opening Thursday as the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers met in the decisive playoff game for the National League pennant.

Hang on the ropes after suffering an 8-0 beating in the first game Monday, the Dodgers rallied from a 5-0 deficit Tuesday and squared the best-of-three series with a dramatic 8-7 triumph. Although they used eight pitchers in a losing effort, the Giants had one of their aces, Juan Marichal (18-11), ready for today's game. The Dodgers, burdened by an overworked pitching staff, called upon Johnny Podres (15-13) who lost Sunday's final game of the regular schedule, 1-0, to St. Louis.

Bulldogs Face Rugged Test Friday Night In Big Lake

COAHOMA — The Coahoma Bulldogs, who have won three of their first four games this season, face an uphill fight Friday night, when they invade Big Lake.

Big Lake not only boasts one of the outstanding quarterbacks in West Texas in the speedy Mike Holmes but has an outstanding fullback in Tommy Franklin, a 225-pounder who has been wading through the opposition.

Johnson In Debut As Fish Mentor

COLLEGE STATION — The Texas A&M Freshman football team will open its 1962 season against the TCU Wogs at Fort Worth tonight at 7:30.

The contest marks the debut of Dick Johnson as Fish coach.

A crowd of more than 20,000 is expected at TCU Stadium for the season's opener for both teams. The Wogs won last year's contest at Kyle Field here, 27-12.

Names synonymous with Aggie varsity football the past few seasons dot the Aggie Fish roster. Johnson can call on fullback Thomas Byer (brother of Sam), halfback Ken Caffey (brother of Lee Roy), quarterback Charles LaGrange (brother of Ross) and halfback Ted Sparling (brother of John).

Hotly contested battles for the starting quarterback and fullback posts have prompted Johnson to list three possible openers at both slots.

Bob Doshier of Hobbs, New Mexico, Glynn Lindsey of Mineral Wells or Eddie McLaughan of San Benito will be the man-under. Fullback duty goes to Byer of Marlin, Jerry Kachtkik of Rio Hondo or Bill McBryde of Shamrock.

Louisiana Youth Dies Of Hurts

FORT WORTH (AP)—The body of Daniel Estaville, high school football player who died from injuries to his spine, was flown to Lake Charles, La., today for burial.

Estaville, 15-year-old sophomore at La Grange High School in Lake Charles, was hurt in practice Sept. 25.

He had been on the critical list from the start and Monday was flown to Carswell Air Force Base Hospital here for a neuro-surgon to attend. He died Tuesday afternoon.

His father, Lawrence Estaville, is a retired Army first lieutenant. He accompanied the boy here.

Sanford Lifted Due To Cold, Reveals Dark

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Why did San Francisco manager Alvin Dark lift pitcher Jack Sanford after he pitched five scoreless innings and had given up only one walk in the sixth?

Why did pitcher Gaylord Perry throw to first base instead of third in the ninth inning, thereby putting Maury Willis in a position to score the winning run?

These were the big questions of the second playoff game for the National League championship that the Los Angeles Dodgers won 8-7, making today's game the deciding one.

The answer to the first is that Dark reported Sanford "had the cold and pitched on Saturday. He told me he was tired."

Sanford said he "didn't really know" but at any event he came and the Giants, leading at the time 5-0, soon were trailing 7-3. They managed to tie it later, but in the end Willis dashed home on a ninth inning sacrifice fly and it was all over.

The answer to the second question lies in the shrewd psychology of Leo Durocher, Dodger third base coach and former manager of the Giants.

Willis and Jim Gilliam walked to start the ninth. Bob Bolin giving up the first Dick Lemay and the second. When Daryl Spencer came up to pinch hit for Duke Snider, Gaylord Perry came in to pitch—the third Giant pitcher of the inning.

Spencer laid down a pretty bunt to the box, as Jim Davenport charged in and Jose Pagan went from his shortstop position to cover third.

It appeared to many that Perry, a rookie who played most of the season in the Pacific Coast League, could have caught Willis in plenty of time at first.

Instead Durocher yelled: "First base, first base!"

And Durocher turned and threw to first. Durocher's advice was legal but of much more help to the Dodgers than to the Giants.

Perry got the runner at first but the stage was set for Ron Fairly to send a fly to Willie Mays in shallow center. Willis, who has stolen 101 bases for a major league record, dashed home with the winning run.

That was all for the Giants.

Position Changes Are Made For Coyote Game

Local residents planning to attend the football game Friday night between the Wichita Falls Coyotes and Big Spring are reminded that the kickoff hour is 7:30 p.m., rather than 8 o'clock.

The distance between Big Spring and Wichita Falls is approximately 245 miles, which means the trip will require about five hours each way by automobile.

The prescribed route would be to take Highway 330 to Snyder, 180 and 92 to Stamford and 277 to Munday, Seymour and Wichita Falls.

In other changes, Humberto Hernandez, one of the Big Spring stars in the Snyder game, has been moved up to the first team as the wingback. Baxter Moore has been transferred from right halfback to left half on defense.

The Steers will leave about 8:30 a.m. Friday via bus on the long trip, coach Don Robbins said Tuesday.

It appears likely that both Dick Irons and John Roden will miss Friday's game. Both are strong side tackles and Irons, a junior, is the regular at the position.

Irons suffered a concussion early in last week's game with Snyder and didn't return to action. He won't be allowed to report back for work until tomorrow.

Roden has a knee injury. DeoRoby Gartman has been moved to rover and W. L. Minter placed at the middle linebacker's spot by the coaches.

When the Steers played Herford that following week, it would have been easy to focus attention on the fact that the Bulldogs are incapable of offering much resistance to any foe this season.

However, Plainview was idle the week after it met Big Spring, just as were the Steers. When the Bulldogs did return to action, they succumbed to a relatively weak Class A&M outfit, Herford, by three touchdowns.

When the Steers lined up against Snyder the other night, it came down to this: Snyder had played two relatively rough opponents and was now in the midst of its campaign, battle-wise and conscious of its strong points and weaknesses. Big Spring, on the other hand, was for all intents and purposes—opening its season.

Despite the disheartening defeat, there were bright spots for the coaches. The boys never surrendered the fight and looked better than ordinary when the going got rough in the final few seconds and they had to eat up large hunks of real estate. They opened all the stops and almost pulled the game out of the fire.

As long as the Longhorns show determination like that, no foe is going to run over them.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With TOMMY HART

No one in the Big Spring High School football camp realized how much the off-week between the first and second games would hamstrung the Steers.

When the Steers played a tough opener, it wouldn't have been so bad, but the coaches had no way of gauging how potent their team might be, not after running up 86 points against Plainview in its first game.

Had Plainview played Herford that following week, it would have been easy to focus attention on the fact that the Bulldogs are incapable of offering much resistance to any foe this season.

Not many fans may realize how woefully inexperienced the local club was when it opened its 1962 campaign. Buster Barnes, after all, is the only returning regular from last year. And Buster, let it be emphasized, knows what he's doing every minute out there on that football field.

Even Plainview had more regulars back this season than did Big Spring.

Inability of the Steers to secure tackles worried the coaches. That phase of the game is getting a lot of attention in workout this week.

When D. V. (Dike) Deede, the veteran head coach at Youngtown College, watched his team defeat McMurry of Texas last weekend, 19-0, he attained a significant milestone. It was the 100th victory for teams coached by Deede since he arrived on the scene. His teams during that time have lost 70. He's been a coach 30 years.

Two of the hands on the Abilene Cooper football team, George Partin and Richard Madison, formerly resided in San Angelo.

Joe Cambria, the veteran baseball scout who died recently, remarked once he could have signed Fidel Castro, the Cuban strong man, to a contract a few years ago.

If he had inked Castro, chances are Fidel would have been sent to Big Spring, since Cambria was supplying our town with talent at the time.

Cambria let another Castro, this one named Felix, get away from him and Felix wound up catching for Odessa.

Any way you look at it, Houston had a good season in the National (baseball) league.

The Colt 45ers were picked to finish tenth and they wound up eighth. They played the chief contenders in the final week and inflicted defeats on both. And, they outdrew the New York Mets, which wasn't supposed to happen.

The Los Angeles Dodgers and the San Francisco Giants were natural draws for the Mets and a large percentage of the Mets' attendance was present for series with those two teams. Houston had no such rivalry to fall back on.

Liston Issue Up Before NY Group

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission meets today to decide whether to recognize Sonny Liston as World heavyweight champion.

Liston, who won the title by knocking out Floyd Patterson in 2:06 of the first round eight days ago, is not licensed to box in New York State. Nor is he recognized as champion.

Indications are that the commission will recognize him as the champion. However, after Tuesday's public hearing by the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Boxing, it probably will continue to deny him a license.

New York has refused Liston a license because of his past record, which includes prison terms. At the hearing, Cortez Stewart, a 28-year-old heavyweight linked Liston with racketeer Frank (Blinky) Palermo. Stewart testified that Palermo was one of the men who tried to hire him as sparring partner for Liston while the latter was preparing for the Patterson fight.

Former Brazilian President Tries Again

By FRANK BRUTTO
SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—The familiar mustachioed figure with disheveled hair, horn-rimmed glasses and rumpled suit roams Brazil's richest state campaigning for governor. He doesn't talk like a candidate. He speaks at rallies as "your governor."

This is Janio Quadros, who turned the nation upside down 13 months ago by abruptly resigning as president. At 45, he is trying for a comeback in the place where his fabulous political career started as a Sao Paulo city alderman.

Quadros is confident of victory in Sunday's election and is assured to have an eye on the presidency again.

NOT EVERYONE

His confidence is not shared by everyone. His battle against two other major candidates is rated so close that hot sun or rain on election day could affect the outcome.

"Janio is so sure of election," goes an opposition joke, "that he has already set the date for his resignation."

His resignation from the presidency stunned the nation. Political opponents now charge he let the country down and set off the serious economic and financial crisis that has sent the value of the national currency—the cruzeiro—plunging from 200 to one U.S. dollar to 750 in a year's time. Janio, as everyone calls him, denies it.

"I did not provoke it," he says. "I revealed it. I denounced it. I diagnosed it. If a doctor identified a malignant tumor, can he be held responsible for the ailment?"

PRESS BOYCOTT

Virtually boycotted by the Brazilian press, Quadros is campaigning at the grass-roots level. He makes promises of revolutionary economic and social reforms but has not bothered to spell out a program. Nevertheless, he attracts good crowds. He is adept at the game of politicking.

His chief opponents are Jose Bonifacio Coutinho Nogueira, 39, a farmer-banker and descendant of an 1822 Brazilian independence fighter, and Adhemar Pereira de Barros, 61, wealthy former Sao Paulo mayor and ex-governor who has built up a strong following despite charges of corruption against his old administrations.

GIVEN NO CHANCE

A fourth candidate in the race is a socialist who is given no chance of winning.

Bonifacio is strongly backed by incumbent Governor Carlos Carvalho Pinto, conservative Christian Democrat who supported Quadros' rise to the presidency but has since turned on him. Bonifacio pledges to continue Carvalho Pinto's long-range "plan of action" that has helped Sao Paulo pull far ahead of its sister states in development. He calls himself a nationalist, Christian, and Democrat.

De Barros, with a quarter-century of political experience behind him, is campaigning on a nationalist, anti-Communist platform although he once allied himself closely with Brazilian leftists. He is a Social Progressive.

NO BANNER

Quadros, a loner, is running under no particular banner—only on his own name.

Sao Paulo's estimated 200,000 Communists oppose all three major candidates and are urging voters to cast blank ballots in the election, which coincides with the voting for a new federal parliament.

The governorship of Sao Paulo is one of Brazil's most respected elective offices. Because its 13 million people have the highest literacy rate in the nation, Sao Paulo polls a quarter of the national vote. Because of illiteracy, only about 16 million persons in a national population of 75 million are eligible to vote.

BACK INTO ARENA

Thus a victory for Quadros could rocket him back into the national scene, where he became a controversial figure because he steered Brazil toward a neutralist course in sympathy with Fidel Castro's Cuba.

Because he resigned as president, the constitution forbids him from running in the 1963 presidential election. There is talk of a constitutional amendment to alter that.

Meredith Set For Lonely Life On Hostile Campus

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—James H. Meredith faced his third day of classes at the University of Mississippi today, apparently prepared to endure a strange and lonely life until he completes his education here.

He is the first Negro ever knowingly to be enrolled in the institution's 114-year history.

His appearance caused rioting last Sunday and the subsequent arrival of thousands of federal troops.

He studies, eats and sleeps under the eyes of federal marshals. They walk with him in tight formation wherever he goes.

He moves in an atmosphere of veiled hostility that occasionally surfaces jeering and epithets.

Meredith gives a light-and-shadow report of the way he is being received by the 4,800 white students. He says on the one hand that he has been greeted with "good morning" or "hello" in the classrooms.

But he also said: "I notice that a number of students look like they are mad. If they're mad at me, I'd like to know what for."

Meredith, 29, is slightly built and speaks quietly. He said officials have told him that it might take 18 months to two years before he is graduated. He said he is determined to go through with it.

Panel Discusses Juvenile Problem

"Teenagers of today are human beings just like you and me, only more so," the Rev. Max McGuire, chaplain at the Big Spring State Hospital, said Tuesday at the Rotary Club meeting. They are anxious, rebellious, and frightened individuals who need all the encouragement they can get from adults.

The program included a panel of two adults and two teenage youngsters. They discussed the problem of juvenile delinquency as it exists today and emphasized the need to stimulate an understanding of the juvenile.

"He is not a criminal or a teenage monster," the Rev. McGuire said. "In spite of the fact that 64 per cent of all arrests made for automobile thefts, 52 per cent of all arrests for burglary, and high percentages of other arrests, involve juveniles, the fact remains that most of the criminally-inclined youngsters are developed after their first offense, which is done to fulfill an urge to do something just to see if they can."

Mrs. Chris Watson, faculty member at Howard County Junior College, told Rotarians that moral codes and standards must be taught in the home.

"Some specific homes have failed," she said. "We cannot pass to our children what is not ours. A background of religious attitudes and practices in the home, educational and social standards, honesty, and kindness, plus self-discipline, is necessary to give the youngsters a feeling that they belong to society."

"A disciplined child is a happy child," she continued. "We find some parents who fail to stabilize and discipline their children. They seem to be afraid of them. We should eliminate with force if necessary, undesirable friends which they sometimes find. Do we have the courage?"

Brenda Cowper, a Big Spring High School student, spoke on reasons some youths get into trouble.

"It is hard to pinpoint the trouble," she said. "Some do things, as new members of the gang, just to be able to live up to what the older members are doing. Then there is the youthful excitement, where one does something wrong just to see if he can get away with it. Some do wrong things just for spite, to 'get even' with someone else. Some just want to see what it is like to commit wrongs. It is necessary, if we keep on the right track, to have help at home and from other adults."

Robert Mahoney, another high school student, told Rotarians how adults can help to curb juvenile delinquency.

"We need a fundamental belief in God, and that must come from the home and associates. Parents have the responsibility to educate their children," he said, "and most of us hate school, although we know it is for our own good."

"We can make plans, realize ambitions, and start our dreams of the future, in school. The family relationship should tend to make us feel needed and cared about. There should be a mutual respect between parents and children. Youth and adults should work together to abolish juvenile delinquency."

"18 Years In San Angelo" 41 W. Twhig San Angelo

DEAR ABBY

He Sounds Questionable

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who has gone with this widower for three years. He wants to marry me but I can't seem to make up my mind. He never takes me anywhere. Every night he comes here and reads my paper. I fix him supper and afterwards he sits around and watches my TV. He says he has something set aside for a rainy day but I don't know whether to believe him or not. What do you think?

SLOW BUT SURE DEAR SLOW: If you want to go on fixing him supper every night and letting him burn out your V tubes, he sounds like a dandy. My guess is that for a rainy day he has set aside an old umbrella.

DEAR ABBY: Our 15-year-old daughter gets an allowance of $5.00 a week. She has no bus fare to pay or lunches to buy. It is "pocket money" to make her feel grown up and independent. We had hoped she would save something from it. Well, she hasn't saved a dime and she is always begging extra money for cosmetics and things that should come out of her allowance. All her money goes for records! She has a collection of over 300 (I counted them), and they are junky records that are popular one week and unheard of the next. She says it is her money and she can spend it any way she pleases. Is that right? How would you handle this situation?

DISAPPOINTED DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Unless you instructed her from the start to save a certain part of her allowance, or spend it only on certain items, she is within her rights. However, tell her now that you expect her to save $1.00 a week. And if that, too, goes on the turntable, YOU turn the tables and withhold the allowance for a while.

DEAR ABBY: Is there any place near here where you can get married without a waiting period? We would like to leave in the morning and be home that same evening as I have three children in school, live out in the country and I have been waiting to get married for a long time but couldn't spare the time.

"ME" DEAR "ME": Call your clergyman or the local Justice of the Peace. Either will be able to acquaint you with the requirements in your immediate area. And congratulations!

DEAR ABBY: Your correspondent, "WODROW WILSON HIGH, CLASS OF '33" made me sick. He criticized his friend for boasting of a Harvard degree. But while criticizing his friend, HE boasts of a higher income in spite of having had no college education. I have met both kinds of boors. Of the two, I prefer the Harvard man. NEITHER HARVARD NOR RICH

'Rah-Rah' Was Wally's Name At Annapolis

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—"Rah-Rah" is what the boys at Annapolis called Walter M. Schirra Jr. 17 years ago. The name still is appropriate today.

Excerpts from the 1945 Naval Academy yearbook provide an idea of Schirra's character:

"Here is a guy who could make anyone laugh. His never-ending sense of humor, descriptions and ability to execute new pranks have kept us either amused or holding the bag."

Easygoing, unperturbable Wally Schirra is much the same today. He is the most carefree of the original, seven-man astronaut team, always ready with a smile or a fast wise crack.

Nothing seems to disturb him. He went about the strenuous training for his orbital flight with the ease of preparing for a family picnic. He is happiest when things are fast-paced—when he's at the stick of a jet plane, the wheel of a fast sports car or is skimming the waves on water skis behind a powerful boat.

"We expect one of his women to snag him soon," the Annapolis yearbook continued. "But meanwhile his big brown eyes still have that new-fields-to-conquer look."

Wally succumbed to matrimony not long after graduation and has been conquering new worlds ever since, climaxed by his selection as the pilot for the longest U.S. manned orbital flight yet attempted.

The gal who snagged him was Josephine C. Fraser of Seattle, Wash. They have two children, Walter III, 12, and Suzanne, 4. Their home is in Houston, headquarters of the Manned Space Flight Center.

Schirra was born March 12, 1923, in Hackensack, N.J., and grew up in Oradell, N.J. He was somewhat of a hell-raiser in those days.

"Just a normal boy," recalls his mother, who, with Schirra's father, now lives in San Diego, Calif.

"Oh, he was a handful," she says. "Not that Wally ever got into any real trouble, but was so mischievous that I had to send him to his room often for punishment."

She remembers that Wally was "crazy about aircraft." This was natural because he came from a flying family. The elder Schirra was a World War I ace in the Army Air Corps and after the war he and his wife barnstormed through the eastern United States in a light plane, with Wally's mother walking a wing or two in her day.

Wally's mother describes her son as an excellent student, especially in mathematics, and says "he had a lot of girl friends, but no steady." The family attended the Episcopal Church.

Wally's father wanted him to go to West Point, but he chose An-

Schirra Has Phone For Raft Lounging

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A sort of extension telephone designed for mid-ocean raft lounging is part of astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr.'s equipment for his six-orbit flight.

The idea is to let people know where he is—and how he feels—at journey's end.

The telephone is essentially a tiny, highly refined version of the headsets worn by switchboard operators. It has a 30-foot cord, one end of which can be carried by the astronaut from the space capsule to the life raft.

The addition of the telephone to the spacecraft equipment was predicated upon the assumption that Schirra would much prefer a sunbath aboard the life raft to remaining inside the capsule cabin after landing.

This assumption was understandable since one capsule sank only minutes after impact in July 1961. This was the one Virgil I. Grissom rode on a 15-minute sub-orbital flight.

Cavein Kills Man In New Mexico

LAS VEGAS, N. M. (AP)—A cavein at a sewer construction project killed a New Mexico workman and injured two companions from Texas Tuesday.

The collapsing earth covered Melquiades Aragon, about 55, of Las Vegas. Rescuers reached him in about 10 minutes but were unable to revive him.

Frank Chavez, 31, of Odessa, Tex., and Pete Chavez, 26 of Valmore, Tex., were buried up to their chests but escaped serious injury. The men were working for Brown-McKee, a Lubbock, Tex., contractor.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Cites Legislative Career As An Asset For Jack Cox

To the Editor:

To suggest the election to governor of John Connally for leadership would be like appointing Arthur Goldberg to the Supreme Court and expecting to get fair and impartial decisions based on law. Connally has had no more experience in state government than Goldberg has had judicial experience. Connally will do on his own, only what Lyndon Johnson will let him do, the same as Goldberg will be a one-eyed judge and see only the socialistic side of any case coming before him. The lack of judicial experience on the part of the political appointees to the Supreme Court and the lack of both judgment and experience on the part of our politically ambitious and totally unqualified Attorney General has precipitated the crisis in Mississippi. There is a lesson to be learned therein. Do not send an inexperienced man to Austin (especially one under Washington control).

Jack Cox has had 12 years experience in Texas government, six years of actual service on committees in the Texas House of Representatives. Jack Cox has served with most of the present senators and representatives and will have less trouble working with them than Connally, because Cox knows from experience what must be done in Austin. He knows where Texas' tax money comes from and exactly where it is spent. During his three consecutive terms Jack Cox served on a dozen Legislative committees including Revenue and Taxation, and served two years as vice chairman of the Appropriations Committee. His thorough understanding of Texas' governmental processes makes him one of the most highly qualified candidates to ever seek the office of governor.

New Water System Work Begins Today

FORSAN — H. B. Hodgson, of Midland, who has the contract to install Forsan's new municipal water system, was to begin laying pipe at noon today, according to Mayor C. J. Lamb.

The job will take about six weeks to complete and when finished will see the placing of nearly three miles of new water line in the town of Forsan.

Hodgson is expected to start his pipe laying operations near one of the city's wells. He has a contract to lay 6,000 feet of two inch galvanized pipe; 5,000 feet of 4-inch asbestos-cement pipe and 440 feet of 6-inch asbestos-cement pipe. He will also tie the lines into the new 50,000 gallon storage tank which is to be erected on lots being acquired by the city.

The Forsan city council will meet Oct. 9 to open bids to bring the storage tank and its tower from its present location at Handley to Forsan.

Lamb said Hodgson's contract calls for $31,980. He said the city council is having to watch every penny as the job of restoring the city water system is running higher than was anticipated. The town voted $50,000 in bonds for the job. Part of the money went to pay the owners of the old privately operated systems for their water wells, storage facilities and lines. Bulk of it will go for pipe and for laying the pipe. Buying and rebuilding the new storage tank is expected to use up about all left of the original money available.

Lamb said that property owners will be required to lay their own pipe from the city mains to their homes. Most of the patrons will have to place new lines in operation since the city mains do not track the route of the old system.

He said the old system will be kept in operation as an aide to the new system.

Charles Laughton Has Spinal Cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Doctors say actor Charles Laughton has cancer of the spine.

The British-born actor entered Cedars of Lebanon Hospital July 30 for surgery on a collapsed vertebra. The fact that the actor has cancer wasn't disclosed until Monday.

A hospital spokesman said Laughton is in fair condition. "He has all his faculties and cheerfully converses with nurses and the few visitors he has," the spokesman said.

Last June, Laughton underwent surgery in New York's Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases, reportedly to correct a colarbone fracture suffered in a bathtub fall in January.

Bandit Pair Had A Heart

FORT WORTH (AP) — A man and a woman teamed to rob E. O. (Soapy) Gilliam, 78, a bomb shelter manufacturer, of $13,300 and a $3,500 diamond ring at his home Tuesday night.

They left the former soap maker bound and gagged, but set pills to ward off a possible heart attack close at hand. Both indicated they knew him well.

Gilliam, sponsor of women's champion volleyball teams, is a widower who lives alone.

Oil Production Reported Up

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — U.S. oil production during the first three quarters of this year was up 1.9 per cent over the same period last year, the Oil and Gas Journal reports.

The Journal said production during the first three quarters of 1962 averaged about 7,315,000 barrels daily. But output last week was down 26,000 barrels per day from the previous week, to an average of 7,346,000 daily, largely because of a decline in Oklahoma.

Oklahoma production dropped 22,000 barrels per day, to an average of 550,200 daily. There was little change in most other states.

Figures for other states, with the previous week's output in parentheses, included: Arkansas 1,129 (75,000); Louisiana 1,394,500 (1,364,500); New Mexico 298,700 (298,000); and Texas 2,542,450 (2,542,450).

Wife Calls It A Beautiful Liftoff

HOUSTON (AP) — "It was a beautiful liftoff — I'm very glad everything went okay," Mrs. Walter M. Schirra Jr. said shortly after her husband went rocketing into orbit around the earth today.

Her brief comment was relayed to waiting newsmen by space agency official Roy Wallack, who told of watching the takeoff on television with the astronaut's family.

There were no audible signs or other sign of tension, Wallack said. Except for a NASA security agent, he said only Mrs. Schirra, her son and daughter and her mother were keeping vigil at the Schirra home.

Lights flashed on inside the house at 3 a. m., more than three hours before the space flight launching.

Except for two small heads at a high window, however, newsmen gathered outside saw no other sign of activity. The heads were those of the Schirras' two children.

About 25 reporters waited in the street before the Schirra home. Sheriff's deputies closed the block to motor traffic and half a dozen officers were on hand to direct the expected crowd.

Mrs. Schirra wouldn't talk to reporters Tuesday about her husband's projected six-orbit space mission, but her young son said he was excited.

Newsmen who went to the home were asked to state their business via a speaker system. A voice from inside said:

"I am Mrs. Schirra's mother. Mrs. Schirra will not see anyone right now."

Newsmen asked if they could return.

"Just a minute. I will see if she is awake," the voice said.

There was a brief wait.

"Mrs. Schirra says she will not have any comment until after her husband is recovered."

Mrs. Schirra's mother is Mrs. James L. Holloway.

Walter Marty Schirra III, 12, was more talkative.

"I'm real excited about it," the seventh-grader exclaimed. "The principal of Clear Creek Junior High School is going to let me stay home to watch. My mother, sister and grandmother will be there too."

His sister is Suzanne, 5.

The family is keeping tab on the flight from their modern, one-story home in the Timber Cove addition, one of several housing developments springing up near the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Manned Spacecraft Center.

Mrs. Schirra was expected to have as company wives of other men stationed at the space center. The Virgil I. Grissom family lives next door.

Mrs. Schirra is the former Josephine C. Fraser of Seattle, Wash. Her mother, Mrs. Holloway, is the wife of a retired admiral.

Sadler Says Park Hurts Oil Income

AUSTIN (AP)— Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler asserted Tuesday—and promptly drew disagreement from oil men operating on the coast—that Texas already is suffering ill effects from the Padre Island seashore park act.

President Kennedy signed the measure last week.

The land commissioner blamed the legislation for below average cash bonuses paid the state by oil companies for leases on submerged land in the area to be affected by the park bill.

After $3,402,596 in cash bonuses was paid for leases on 89,331 acres Tuesday, Sadler said: "It was a satisfactory sale except for the 2,875 submerged acres affected by the seashore area."

"Oil companies requested 5,000 acres in the seashore area be put up for lease before the bill was approved, but bid on only 2,875 acres. These leases within the seashore area brought only $48,255, or an average of $17 per acre. Nearby leases averaged $29 in February and $27 in August, 1961.

"Understandably, oil companies are cautious about such an investment since the act's passage. All drilling and production will be subject to unrestricted regulation by the secretary of interior if such an area is created."

Sadler reported two Gulf of Mexico tracts totaling 1,415 acres brought bonus bids of $99,877 and $266,839, and Standard of Texas paid $105,506 each for two other submerged tracts, each of 1,440 acres.

"The state of Texas started paying for this proposed wasteland today, even before the area is created," Sadler said.

Sadler favors a state park on Padre Island instead of the federal seashore area.

Guy Warren of Corpus Christi, past president of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Assn., said the federal park "wouldn't matter a great deal" if an oilman considered property in the submerged land area worth bidding on.

Jeff Carr, president of Carr Oil in Corpus Christi, was a successful bidder on two tracts totaling 1,129 acres in the Laguna Madre adjacent to Padre Island. He said the fact that these leases are in the seashore area "didn't affect my bidding in any way."

Hagan Parmley, division land manager for Tennessee Eastern Transmission Corp. in Corpus Christi, said: "It is our position that regardless of the seashore, it would not affect any bids Texas Eastern might have made on the land offered for sale."

Texas Eastern did not bid Tuesday "because we determined there would be no financial gain to it," Parmley said.

Nueces County Judge Noah Kennedy of Corpus Christi, who with Warren and Sadler is a member of the Padre Island Study Committee, said:

"I'm quite certain Mr. Sadler hasn't stated all the facts and I feel sure in the future everything from failure to launch a satellite to racial trouble in Mississippi will be blamed on the seashore by Mr. Sadler."

Sen. Byrd Charges Federal Collusion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., has charged collusion between the White House and the federal courts in breaking the racial barrier at the University of Mississippi.

He denounced President Kennedy's action Tuesday in a Senate speech.

"Where, and under what circumstances, will the government of the United States next use military force against our own people to enforce federal court orders?" Byrd asked.

"The use of military force for such purposes," said the Virginian, "is even more offensive to our form of government when elements of the judicial branch are obviously acting—not independently of—but in collusion with the executive branch which commands the military force."

Byrd declared collusion was clear "by the nature of Department of Justice activity before federal courts and judges involved which is being reflected in the detail of an increasing number of orders and decrees they issue."

He said adherence to "checks and balances, and division of power on which our system of government rests" may have spared bloodshed.

Asked for a comment on the "Ole Miss" situation, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said "our government cannot long endure unless responsible Amer-cans abide by the decisions of our courts."

The real issue, he said, was stated by the President Sunday night "when he called upon the people to comply with the decision without violence."

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., announced he has invited Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., to take part in a Senate Judiciary Committee investigation of "all events at the University of Mississippi since U.S. marshals and Army troops moved in."

Stennis, not a committee member, said he was pleased indeed to accept.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, a committee member, told newsmen he thought it would require committee action to bring a non-member into the investigation.

Dirksen joined Republican leaders in voicing support of the President's action in sending in troops and added he was withholding decision on Republican participation in Eastland's proposed investigation.

The planned investigation drew a protest from Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington bureau of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

In a telegram to Dirksen and some other members of the Judiciary Committee, Mitchell urged that Eastland be blocked from using the committee "as a propaganda weapon to promote or defend unconstitutional conduct."

Jury System On Trial?

Can Billy Sol Estes obtain a fair trial in Tyler, Smith County, Texas, on charges of fraud, swindling and embezzlement? His attorneys say he cannot. The question has been raised innumerable times before in Texas courts, but never answered satisfactorily for all people.

Under ideal conditions both Estes and the state would be guaranteed a fair hearing. But the ideal climate for the administration of justice is not always possible, human nature being what it is.

Defense attorneys satisfied the court that Estes could not get a fair trial in his home town of Pecos in Reeves County. Too many prospective jurors of Reeves County admitted that they had fixed opinions on the subject of Estes' guilt or innocence. The trial was then moved 519 miles from the Trans-Pecos to the Piney Woods of East Texas. Again Estes' attorneys say that he cannot obtain a fair trial, even in Smith County.

The logical conclusion of the defense argument is that Estes cannot obtain a fair trial in Texas. Most Texans, it is fair to presume, have read or heard about Estes.

But the jury system must rest on the assumption that men will be honest when questioned on the subject of their qualifications for service as a juror in a specific case. It is presumed that prospective jurors will confess to prejudice for or against a defendant. Without this premise the jury system would be as much an instrument of injustice as of justice.

It may be true that Estes cannot get a fair trial in Smith County. The fact can be tested in the examination of veniremen. The same set of facts can be applied to any other county in Texas. But to confess that Estes cannot obtain a fair trial in some Texas court is to abandon all hope of justice in any court in Texas.

Lead To Confusion And Chaos

Extreme positions have been taken by both sides in the argument over a proposed constitutional amendment to provide for "de novo" (literally "from the start") appeals from administrative or executive rulings. This amendment is one of 14 appearing on the Nov. 6 general election ballot in Texas.

Proponents argue generally that the amendment would give the citizen full protection of the courts against usurpation of power by public officials who now are free to wield authoritative power because there is no adequate means to appeal from the decisions of appointed officials or their underlings.

What is this fuss all about? Well, under present law and court rulings the act of an administrative body, such as a zoning and planning commission, may be appealed to district court. But the court is confined to a review of the evidence and official action taken by the board or commission. No new evidence is taken. The court's finding must be based on whether substantial evidence supports the ruling of the board or commission and there is no clear abuse of discretion in that ruling.

Plaintiff's lawyers would like to appeal directly from an administrative ruling to district courts as if no previous hearing had been held and present the case anew in district court.

While this is essentially a lawyer's quarrel, the public interest is definitely involved. The public interest goes not alone to the question of justice but to the efficient and orderly administration of justice.

If a plaintiff is not properly represented in a board or commission hearing, he has only himself to blame, or his lawyer. If he is denied the right to submit pertinent evidence, he can rely on a district court to provide a remedy, for this would be clear evidence of abuse of discretion. But the full record of his case will be reviewed by a district court judge who must be presumed to be interested in justice, not personalities. A completely new trial would serve no useful purpose other than to clutter court dockets and open the way to frivolous appeals designed to delay and to bring general chaos to administrative units of state government.

David Lawrence

Is The 14th Amendment Valid?

WASHINGTON — There is nothing in the Constitution of the United States or in the laws passed by Congress which authorizes the use of federal troops to compel any public educational institution to admit a certain student just because he demands that he be enrolled.

There is nothing in the Constitution which denies the governor of a state an opportunity to be heard by the full membership of the Supreme Court of the United States in a dispute between state and federal authority.

THERE is nothing in the Constitution which even mentions "education" as one of the subjects coming within the powers of the federal government.

Whatever authority the Department of Justice or the federal courts claim today in this field is derived from a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in 1954 which gave no legal reason but only "sociological" considerations as an argument for reversing an 1896 decision that permitted "separate but equal" facilities in dealing with segregation.

THE 1954 decision cited the Fourteenth Amendment as the basis for its ruling, but the amendment was never legally adopted by the necessary number of states. In fact, the legislatures of some of the states were compelled at the point of the bayonet by federal troops to "ratify" it. Since this happened in 1868—three years after the war between the states was over—the Supreme Court of the United States has never been willing to rule on the validity of the process by which the Fourteenth Amendment was allegedly ratified.

YET, ONE OF the ten original amendments—known as "The Bill of Rights" and duly ratified in 1791—does say that no person shall be "deprived of life, liberty or property, without due process of law."

Governor Barnett nevertheless has been threatened with jail—without "due process of law."

BEST SEAT WE COULD GET

James Marlow

Sen. Eastland On The Wrong Track

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. James O. Eastland, Democrat and segregationist from Mississippi, plans something much less than a full investigation of the riots at the University of Mississippi.

He has announced the Senate Judiciary Committee, which he is chairman, will look into "all events" at Ole Miss "since the U.S. marshals and Army troops moved in."

But he already is convinced he knows the cause of the riots. He and Mississippi's Gov. Ross R. Barnett blame them on the Kenedy administration and U.S. marshals.

BUT A thorough investigation would cover two other questions:

1. Why and how other Southern states have avoided bloodshed by beginning to comply with the Supreme Court order of eight years ago to end segregation in public schools.

2. And what led up to the Ole Miss riots which were an act of defiance against a U.S. court order for James H. Meredith, 29-year-old Negro, to be enrolled at the school.

The original defiance came from Barnett who said, "We shall never surrender" and personally blocked the court order by refusing to let Meredith into the school.

The governor's defiance was an encouragement to the whole state of Mississippi, including the students at Ole Miss, to resist an order of a U.S. court.

THE PRODUCT of this defiance was rioting deaths, many injuries and the spectacle of American race-hate which Mississippians dangled before a shocked world.

Barnett's performance is incredible from any reasonable standpoint.

He could not help but know—unless he thought he could bluff President Kennedy into doing nothing—that there could only be one result: The President would have to back up the court with force, if necessary.

If Mississippi could defy the government on such a profound social decision as that of the Supreme Court on public school education, then any state at any time could do the same on any other court decision.

The result would not be an American jungle. Since the people of the nation as a whole organized their government to prevent just such anarchy, then no state could defy the court and get away with it.

THE ALTERNATIVE to silent submission to a Supreme Court decision is appeal to all the states through Congress where Southern Democrats, although in a minority, are a powerful force.

But Congress has done nothing to change the court decision on school desegregation since it was handed down in 1954.

How To Make A Speech

NEW YORK (AP)—It happens to everyone.

Sooner or later, the president of some organization you belong to comes up to you and says:

"George, I want you to give the main address at our dinner meeting next month."

Well, you point out that you're a man of few words, never made a speech in your life, and the prospect scares you to death.

But the president cuts in with a pretty protest with an unflattering ultimatum.

"You have to do it, George. Everybody else I can think of is out of town."

"But what'll I talk about?" you ask lamely.

"Talk about anything," he replies brutally. "Don't worry—we'll lock the doors so they can't get away. But don't make it too long. Not over an hour."

An hour? That seems like an eternity.

But you buckle down gamely to the task of writing your speech.

For a solid month your boss at the office doesn't get a dime's worth of real work out of you.

At home you growl like a bear at every disturbing sound as you scribble page after page of your speech. Genius is in labor.

Rehearsing your speech before the morning mirror, you gesture with your razor—and slash off the tip of your nose and part of one ear.

THE EVENING before the meeting you rise at the family dinner table and give your speech its final tryout. The cat falls asleep first, then your kids, then your wife. She wakes up and looks at the clock as you finish.

"It's wonderful," she says and adds tactfully, "but it ran an hour and 55 minutes. Is that as long as they wanted?"

You sigh and throw away every other page of your manuscript.

Comes the big night. Well, the minister raises the food in a 29-minute invocation. The preliminary speakers drone on, and on.

Then they introduce the distinguished persons in the audience, and it turns out everybody is distinguished—and has an equally distinguished wife.

Then they give awards for an hour. Then they announce the election of officers and the 31-member board of directors, each of whom must be presented individually.

At last it is your turn. The president gets up, gives you a 17-minute introduction, taking you from birth to the present moment.

As you arise he whispers: "We're running terribly late. Better cut your talk to five minutes. I don't think they can stand anymore."

You feel like crying, but what can you do? You give a couple of feeble wisecracks and then skip the rest of your speech and close with your peroration:

"Remember, as goes motherhood and the federal highway program, so goes America!"

Well, everybody likes the idea of his mother riding on a comfortable highway. The audience is also so grateful for being spared further boredom that all rise and give you a standing ovation. You are the hit of the evening.

Moral: The best way for a public speaker to make lifelong friends is to tell a joke, give a one-sentence constructive message—and then sit down as fast as he can.

To Your Good Health

There Are Many Kinds Of Skin Tests

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there more than one type of skin test? If so what are the purposes of each of one case in which—MRS. P. L. P."

Yes, there are many kinds. In the one you describe, the test was made to determine whether the patient is sensitive to penicillin.

Valuable as penicillin is for treating infections in most of us, some people can be severely and occasionally even dangerously sensitive to this drug. If there is any suspicion of such sensitivity, the wise thing is to test first, instead of giving the drug and finding out afterward that it makes the patient itch or swell, or even find himself unable to breathe.

There are a wide variety of sensitivity tests. The familiar hay fever and other allergy tests are frequently used, either to find out what things the patient should avoid, or to determine what desensitization treatments may be.

For diagnosis there are such tests as the Schick (for diphtheria immunity), tuberculin (to show whether the patient has been exposed actively to TB), histoplasmin (for histoplasmosis, a lung infection), mumps antigen to learn whether a person has had the mumps in the past, a test for trichinosis, and a good many others.

Horse serum, diagnostic dyes and other materials are used for certain tests.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can you shed some light on the twitching or throbbing of a vein directly under my left eye? I have consulted three oculists, none of whom helped at all—M. D."

I'd doubt that it has anything to do with vision. It sounds more like a facial tic or transient spasm of muscles.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way to stop bed-wetting in older children? We have a grandson, 5, who wets the bed almost every night. We see ads that claim to stop this exasperating habit but are reluctant to send for them as I was under the impression that there is nothing that can be done except be patient—R. S."

There's a lot that can be done besides "being patient." And I can't agree that 5 years is "an older child." Older, I agree, than the usual age for having learned to stay dry, but still young compared to some bed-wetters in the early teens—and I've known of cases that went to the age of being drafted for army service even.

Yes, extreme cases reach that age.

If it's just an "exasperating habit," some of the advertised methods work effectively. But if there is some physical problem involved, treatment is required, not just a change in habits.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had otitis media but now is better. However he has severe headaches. Could these migraine headaches be a result?—MRS. J. W."

Otitis media is an infection of the middle ear. If, after treatment, your husband no longer has pain in the ear or drainage from it, I'd doubt that the otitis has anything to do with the present headaches.

"Don't Quit Because of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover cost of handling.

Dr. Molner is always happy to hear from his readers, but he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters due to the great number received daily. Whenever possible he uses readers' questions in his column.

Around The Rim

What's In A Name?

You doubtless understand my interest in unusual names.

Once in a while I follow through on my resolve to make a collection of unusual names. Last week Clancy Topp, a member of the W. R. Grace & Co. public relations staff, mentioned that he had come in contact with a Willard Bottom. It is not unusual for this Pickle to run across a Lemon, an Apple, or even a Berry, Banana, Onion, or Turnipseed. The list sometimes drifts to foods, such as I. P. Pancake, Daybread and Mealey. All of this might be calculated to give a Lightburn or trouble the Gizzard, or even produce a Belch (excuse me).

THE ANIMAL and fowl category is fascinating. You'll find a lot of Piggs and Hogs, Deer, occasionally a Nanny, a Crofoot, a Horsey, Blackbird, and Early D. Byrd. Then there is a Beaglehole and a Sukow.

Another grouping includes such names as Head, Longnecker, Neck, Legg, Onefinger, Foote, and Pratt.

There are such horticultural delights as Shinberry, Vines, Bush, Oaks, Cornstubble, Flower, Rose, and Beanblossom.

Some are architectural such as Church, Householder, Temple, House and Shed.

MOST OF THEM are intriguing within themselves, such as Muckleroy, McDonald, Zora Blessing, John Rubbottom, Harold Goodenough, Setruck Noonian, Barbara Necessary, Laura Doing, Gladys Luck, T. Roller, E. Z. Wallower, V. Longbottom, Irving Axelrod, John Sourwine, Purtz & Gertz, James Clingenpeel, Moulton Cobb, Iris Blitch, and the late Dr. Peter J. Muckenuss.

One of the most unusual was this elongated and completely descriptive Pvt. Johnny Keeps The Mountain.

The most awesome of all, however, was Andrew God Jr.

Full Circle In Home Design

The big news in gracious living at the moment is not so much the return of the dining room, which almost disappeared with the advent of television, but the transformation of the living room into a parlor like Grandma used to have.

The revival of Grandma's parlor, complete with artificial flowers and mortuary pall, is one of the main features of modern home architecture. It is, as in Grandma's time, reserved for special events rather than for family living. Company is welcome, but it's off-limits for the kids.

AS FOR THE kids: they are the reason for the space variously named, on the architect's plans, as "family" or "play" or "activities" room. The "den" and "rumpus room," usually in the basement, got lost along with Prohibition.

The family, play or activities room, which invariably opens off the kitchen, is the spot in which parents and children congregate today. It is, in fact, the living room. And what was the living room until day before yesterday is now, in truth, the parlor.

HERE-IN THE parlor, that is—things are in apple pie order, as they were in Grandma's day. It doesn't have that "lived-in" look that was the ultimate cachet of a home until recently. No scattered newspapers and magazines, no cigarette butts, no candy wrappers or toys sully its wax-work perfection.

As in Grandma's day, it is the spot from which to be married or buried, only don't drop any petals. When it is thrown open to the family on Thanksgiving, Christmas, et al, no one is expected to play squat tag or touch football.

IN THE MODERN home the big, easy family room is, if you will pardon the expression, forgetfulness. That's where the comfortable furniture is stashed and

Both my grandmothers had "family" rooms, too. Only in their homes, a large sitting-dining room served as the family living room while the parlor, even as today, was sacred to special events. In addition to dining-room furniture, these rooms held comfortable chairs, couches and lamps. And there the family gathered except when the company came. Then the parlor, where the lace curtains were even stiffer, was opened up and a fire lighted.

NATURALLY, THE dining-sitting room opened off the kitchen, which was handy to the pantry and snacks, even as the family room today opens off the kitchen and is handy to the refrigerator. The only moral is that the more things change, the more they are the same. And what's sneaking back, too, just to make the modern parlor more authentic. Watch it, or anti-macassars are next.

Twenty years ago the dining room was ruled out of bounds on the basis that it was, to all intents, waste space. Since at that time families were living in their living rooms, the dining room had lost its great secondary role as a "family" room. The efficiency experts ruled that a room in which persons only gathered to eat two or three meals a day was folly. A dining alcove in kitchen or living room would do.

HOWEVER, ABOUT five years ago, psychiatrists, child guidance experts and family counselors decided that the family that ate together could be great together and that it might even induce kids to eat with forks and knives. So the dining room was resurrected. And we seem to be right back to where we started.

America Against Herself

in his classic study of human self-destruction, "Man Against Himself," points out that suicide is everywhere more common than murder—and the reporter of running history cannot help but wonder whether this is not equally true of nations.

TWO SENATORS on the same afternoon — Goldwater and Stennis — recently brought this grim thought to a reporter's mind. In Senate speeches on matters otherwise unrelated, these two men touched on the point of what the U.S.A. is insanely doing to herself, quite apart from what our enemies would like to do to us.

Goldwater of Arizona addressed himself to the accepted principle of civilian control of the American government. No body in his senses would question this principle, but Goldwater was wondering aloud whether our psychotic fear of non-existent Caesarism has not given us a phobia which is causing a quarantine upon military thinking—one that could be the death of us.

HE CITED an opinion by Adlai Stevenson to the effect that we should stop short of full nuclear preparedness in the hope that Russia might also practice nuclear restraint. No military mind would think that way. Only a civilian mind, in an excess of anti-militarism could conceive the now-familiar concept of disarmament-by-example. Goldwater also cited the opinion of Roswell Gilpatric, Deputy Secretary of Defense, who has enunciated the military doctrine of Second in Space, saying we will never put weapons there until the Russians do so first. No military mind would choose to give the enemy that kind of advantage. It is the talk of a civilian who is out of his field of competence.

SUICIDE, as Dr. Menninger goes on at much length to show, is often chronic and non-violent. The alcoholic and the hunger-stricken, the accident-prone person and the religious fanatic, are all self-destructive. So, most conclude, is a country which carries demilitarization so far that civilian-mindedness takes over the decisions of how to arm the country for war, to the exclusion of military advice.

Stennis of Mississippi dealt with another aspect of excessive civilian-mindedness. He was speaking on reports that the Kennedy brothers, President and Attorney General, might be sending troops to force Negro James Meredith's admission to the University of Mississippi. The use of American soldiers against American citizens is another quirk of civilian-mindedness which views political reform as a fighting matter.

NO ADMIRAL or general in his lucid moments would see Ole Miss as an enemy uncited. President Eisenhower made the mistake of his life, and so recognized it, as Stennis implied, by letting his lawyers talk him into sending paratroopers to Little Rock—a maneuver which like never tried again, but which modern fanaticism, like John Brown of a century ago, are fully capable of undertaking in the name of establishing their pet theory of sociology.

THERE is a sickness in any man or nation that will commit deeds of self-destruction. To say that such deeds can be rationalized is only to say that a derangement of thinking has set in. A government which will spike its own guns, and muzzle its military, with the enemy at the gates, is carrying the principle of civilian control to the jumping-off place. A government which sends its soldiers against its citizens to put one man into one university is performing an irrational act as the circus clown does when he cracks a peanut with a sledge hammer.

It is written that whom the gods would destroy they first make mad. Sometimes it seems that we are bent upon becoming our own executioners.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

If you're 40 years of age or older and looking for a job, it'll be rough going. Most of the companies employing new workers consider 25 to 40 as the prime ages for hiring workers. The nearer to the 25 level, the better. That is not to say that people over 45 aren't being employed in this community, but one agency reported that the majority of workers over 45 who were hired in July got jobs only in the contract-construction field or in personal services in private households.

An Associated Press news story described a tannery in Hartford, Ill., which hires only applicants who are 45 years of age or more. The company's oldest worker is 76 and at one time it had a man 85 working at a regular job. In fact, one 80-year-old man asked for another job, a job "where there is a future."

The tannery management has discovered several things since adopting this program. It is just as easy to train these older men, the capacity for work has not fallen off, and as one supervisor said, "there's no horseplay."

It has been found that these men have a pride in their work and a loyalty to the company often missing among the younger men. The older men are not out scouting around for other jobs and, in the long run, are apt to give more years of service to a particular company.

Employers in America have, in almost every community, this vast resource of untapped manpower. Sometimes they have been "bumped" from their jobs by automation. Sometimes a job just "plays out" and they are unemployed.

It is too bad that the lesson we learned during World War II hasn't stayed with us. At that time, with the young men unavailable, many older workers, men and women, were reclaimed and put in years of productive service.

Mrs. Crockett Opens Study

The Lalla Baird and Martha Foster WSCS circles of Wesley Methodist Church met in a joint session Tuesday morning to hear the introduction to a new mission study, "Today's Children for Tomorrow's World."

Following the invocation, worded by Mrs. Marshall Day, Mrs. Don Crockett introduced the study. She told that the next portions of study are "The World of Confusion" and "The Narrow World of the Family." Mrs. W. D. Lovelace gave a devotion on grace.

During a business session, committees were appointed to serve during the four-week mission study. Those to serve on the worship center and devotion committee are Mrs. Day, Mrs. Jerry Allen and Mrs. Bill Patterson; review committee, Mrs. Raymond Phillips and Mrs. J. W. Briggance. Mrs. Lovelace reminded the group of the Week of Prayer program slated for the last week in October.

Members were urged to gather at the church, Oct. 10, 9 a.m. to give the church kitchen a general cleaning. It was also decided that the circles will sponsor two Girl Scout troops this year.

Announcement was made of a candy sale by members of the Martha Foster Circle to raise funds for the nursery project. Members were urged to bring clothing to be sent for overseas relief.

In closing, Mrs. Lovelace reminded the group of a banquet to be held at the Fellowship Hall of the church, Thursday evening. Refreshments were served after the business meeting.

To Marry

Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace Adams Jr., Colorado City, announce plans for the marriage of their daughter, Vicki Jayne Adams, and Joe Edwin Weaver, son of Mrs. Howard S. Weaver, Big Spring. The wedding is scheduled for Nov. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the First Christian Church, Colorado City. A reception will be held at the Colorado City Country Club.

Rebekah Lodges Note Initiations, Business

Initiation and business were on the agenda for Rebekah lodges in Big Spring Tuesday evening in respective halls.

JOHN A. KEE LODGE

A formal initiation ceremony was conducted for Mrs. Georgia Ward and Mrs. Robert Mitchell by members of the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge No. 153 at the Lodge Hall.

Following the rites, a business session was held. Mrs. C. L. Lumpkins, chairman of the ways and means committee, presented plans for a bingo party scheduled for Oct. 18, 7:30 p.m. at the hall.

A letter of thanks was read from Pamela Klipper, the lodge's ward from the Children's Home in Corsicana.

Mrs. Grady Sudberry was elected for recommendation as lodge deputy.

Mrs. Horace Jarrett was elected to recommendation as deputy president.

Introduced as visitors were Mrs. E. Lee Thackery of Midland Rebekah Lodge No. 91 and Mrs. Lola Bowers of Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284.

Hostesses to after-lodge fellowship when refreshments were served to the 50 members and guests were Mrs. W. C. Cole, Mrs. M. R. Erhardt, Mrs. Joe B. Evans and Leon Cole.

LODGE NO. 284

Mrs. Horace Jarrett of the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge No. 153 was elected for recommendation for district deputy president at the Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 meeting at the IOOF Hall.

Mrs. T. A. Melton was elected for recommendation as lodge deputy.

Mrs. Melton, chairman of the ways and means committee, gave reports on recent activities of the lodge, including attendance of the district meeting in Stanton, Monday evening. She presented funds raised in a recent rummage sale and announced plans for another sale to be held soon, asking members to bring clothing. She announced plans for a Halloween party, open to the public, to be held at the IOOF Hall.

Mrs. John Bowers received a certificate of perfection, presented by Mrs. C. N. Gilliland, lodge deputy. Mrs. W. C. Moore, noble grand, appointed a refreshment committee to serve during October. Mrs. H. Roger, Mrs. P. N. Patterson, Mrs. C. Mangum, Mrs. W. N. Wood and Mrs. D. Chapman.

P-TA Council Has First Fall Session At Goliad

The first meeting of the City Council Parent-Teachers Association was held Tuesday morning at the Goliad cafeteria.

The devotion was given by M. R. Turner, principal of Boydston. The superintendent, principals, officers and chairmen were introduced by Mrs. Dwight McCann, council president.

A total of $319.45 in saving stamps was reported sold during September. Schools selling stamps were Airport, Boydston and College Heights. Gerald Wayne Alexander was voted recipient of a scholarship to Howard County Junior College given by the City Council.

A parliamentary course was announced for Oct. 16 during the hours of 9-11 a.m. and 1-3 p.m. for all officers and executive committees.

The group was reminded to make reservations for the state convention in Fort Worth by Oct. 31. Reservations are to be made through Mrs. Alvie Cole, Sterling City, and bus reservations with Mrs. J. H. Holman, 801 Gregg.

The fall work shop which will be in Stanton at the Caprock Electric Co. building Oct. 9 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., was announced. After recommendations were read and voted, 30 members were served by the hospitality chairman, Mrs. Royce Griffith.

Stays Young Dancing

"I've never heard of a dancer with a heart attack," says Patricia Wilde, ballerina. She can't remember a day in her life when she has not danced and she loves every minute of it. She gives pointers on dancing as an exercise and other advantages of the art in today's story.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Patricia Wilde Dances For Health, Exercise

By LYDIA LANE. HOLLYWOOD—"I've danced almost every day of my life since I was five," ballerina Patricia Wilde told me when she came to the Greek Theater with the New York City Ballet. "I love it as a form of expression, and when I was a little girl and my mother wanted to punish me, she would threaten not to allow me to go to my dancing class."

Patricia recently visited some of the girls from her class at school. "Some had double chins or bulging waistlines and many of them moved like older people, all because they had neglected making use of their muscles. And they seemed to lack a vitality that shines in your eyes and skin when you exercise and your circulation is stimulated."

"I've never heard of a dancer with a heart attack," Miss Wilde declared. "It's when you become too sedentary that deposits are made in your blood vessels that slow down your circulation and make you ill."

The greatest way to continue to stay young is to exercise every day. It's the continuity of it that means the most. I am not so sure how much good comes from doing nothing all week and too much on

'ROUND TOWN

With LUCILLE PICKLE

How many years ago has it been since Big Spring people voted the crape myrtle as the city's official shrub? It must have been at least a decade or more as I remember working at least six years on six shrubs trying to get them higher than the children's knees (and they were little children then). We wanted the beautiful fuchsia shade... what we got was a very anemic row of pale lavender and they never got higher than the boys' knees. Of course they did go through very exasperating seasons of drought and I suppose they gave in to it after we left the place.

But since the rains came, many people over the city have had better results from the care and nurture of their myrtles. I notice there are any number of beautiful shrubs, fuchsia blooms, too, about the city. Although I don't know the house number, on E. 17th there are some handsome specimens growing just as we had dreamed of ours growing and becoming a protective yet beautiful hedge of flaming color.

Weekend visitors in Odessa were MRS. LUCY BAUER, MRS. WILIE LEE BUTLER, MRS. FRANCES WEIR and MR. and MRS. ED SETTLES. They were guests of MR. and MRS. IKE HAINES.

Over the weekend I had a taste of cake that I hope the recipe for will be entered in the Tastes O' Texas Recipe Contest which the Herald is sponsoring. The cook who produced the luscious bit of dessert left just one ingredient out and made an entirely different tasting cake and the icing is a fruity one with a sort of chewy caramel base. If you have not entered your favorite recipes yet, don't keep putting it off; send them in to the Herald right away. They stand as good a chance of

Kennedy Signs U.N. Bond Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy signed the United Nations bond bill Tuesday and gave the first of the dozen pens he used to U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

Leaders of the House and Senate, along with members of the Foreign Affairs committees of both houses, attended the ceremony in the President's office.

Kennedy expressed his gratification at enactment of the bill which authorizes the United States to buy bonds issued by the United Nations to meet the costs of enforcing the peace in the Congo, Middle East and elsewhere.

Under the measure Kennedy may lend the United Nations up to $100 million on 2 per cent, 25-year bonds, but not more than the total purchases of all other U.N. members.

In The Buick Line For 1963

Newest addition to Buick's regular line for 1963 is the four-door hardtop in the Wildcat series, pictured at top. Two other models, a two-door hardtop and a convertible, are available in the Wildcat series, which has its own distinctive styling. Pictured below is the Buick Special, top selling

TO BE SHOWN HERE THURSDAY

1963 Buicks Have Features For Safety And Lower Costs

Buick will introduce its 1963 line of cars Thursday, with local showing at McEwen Motor Co., 403 Scurry.

New designing marks the line, and there are numerous engineering refinements to reduce maintenance costs and increase safety and ease of operation.

The regular size Buicks are of about the same dimensions as last year, but the Special models will be four inches longer.

The Wildcat, introduced last spring, has been expanded into a complete series for 1963 with three models offered in a two-door and four-door hardtop and a convertible. A four-speed, floor-mounted transmission is available as an option on all Wildcat models. Front bucket seats, with center console housing the transmission control, are standard on the Wildcat convertible and two-door hardtop, and optional on the four-door hardtop.

The Electra 225 can be identified by its long, straight rear fenders that extend beyond the body panel, by its unique, concave taillights and by the four ventiports on the front fender.

The Wildcat has its own grille design with brushed stainless steel moldings extending down the sides from the headlight to the middle of the front door. A similar molding across the back, between the taillights, identifies the Wildcat from the rear.

The new Special, top selling car in its class, has been increased in length from 188.4 to 192.1 inches. The additional length is in the rear fenders which extend beyond the body panel, and bumpers, both front and rear have been made deeper.

Smart new interiors, luxuriously done in a wide choice of nylon, leather and vinyl fabrics, add to the overall decor of both the Special and regular line. All-vinyl interiors are available in two-door and four-door models of the LeSabre series for the first time.

Engineering refinements include self-adjusting brakes, the new Delcotron alternator generator which charges the battery while the engine is idling, and an adjustable steering wheel that can be set in seven different positions to suit the individual driver. This is offered as optional equipment on the regular line only.

Engine options on the Special remain the same with the 198 cubic inch V4 as standard on the regular models and optional on the deluxe. A more powerful 215 cubic inch aluminum V-6 with 9-to-1 compression ratio is standard on the deluxe models with the V-6 available as an option. The 215 cubic inch Skylark aluminum V-8 engine with 11-to-1 compression ratio and four-barrel carburetor is optional on both the standard and deluxe models of the Special.

The biggest single improvement in optional equipment is in Buick's new air-conditioning system in the regular line and in the Riviera. The evaporator and heater core are enclosed in the same housing, permitting dehumidification of air without lowering the temperature. A single selector lever will control heating, air-conditioning and ventilation.

The entire line comes in 26 models, nine in the Special, seven in LeSabre, one in the Invicta, three in the Wildcat, one in the Riviera and five in the Electra 225 series.

SILENT SPRING. By Rachel Carson, Houghton Mifflin. $5.00.

AP Newsfeatures
Controversial, argumentative and frightening.

That is the nature of Miss Carson's powerful indictment of the use of deadly synthetic chemicals as insecticides and pesticides. The hazards of nuclear radiation sound no more terrifying than the dangers against which she sounds a tocsin. The substance of the author's message is that our bodies accumulate these chemicals from our soil, water and food, so that eventually they can be as deadly as radiation to our own bodies and to our offspring.

Furthermore, she asserts that in spraying against a "bad" insect, we may kill many "good" insects and soil bacteria, and along with them a lot of birds and animals, thus upsetting nature's balance and imperiling our future existence. It is a prospect more far-reaching than the effects of the drug thalidomide, recently in the news.

The "silent spring" she describes — the disappearance of birds — actually has occurred in some communities; she cites places and dates.

She names the poisons — such as DDT, chlordane, dieldrin, parathion. She piles up case histories about the soil, water pollution and food supplies. She considers the incidence of cancer and the risks of genetic change.

She argues that insects, which multiply rapidly — man does not, and cannot adapt — soon become resistant to specific poisons; from that she argues the uselessness of using these synthetic chemicals for even short-range effects. She says they should be used sparingly and under strictly controlled conditions. And she suggests other ways in which pests can be brought under control — such as introducing their predatory enemies.

Excerpts from this book appeared in a magazine in June.

Smith To Work In Rehabilitation

WASHINGTON, D. C. — A former president of the Arkansas Medical Society, Dr. Euclid M. Smith of Hot Springs, Ark., has been appointed associate regional representative for health and medical activities of the office of vocational rehabilitation in the Dallas regional office of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Dr. Smith will work with State vocational rehabilitation agencies in this area. His specific function will be to help these agencies strengthen the medical aspects of their programs for rehabilitation of disabled people to productive employment.

Stores Open Evenings To Show New Furniture

What's new in home furnishings will be paraded for homemakers in the Big Spring area this week, as 10 major furniture dealers join in their annual Fall Furniture Festival.

In following a slogan of "First Furnish Your Home," these dealers have on their floors thousands of dollars worth of pieces and suites, ranging from the most luxurious to the most modestly priced. And in a profusion of designs and styles. The variety available in Big Spring stores matches that of any West Texas city, and the dealers are inviting people to have a look so this can be proved.

A feature of the Furniture Festival will be the award of $100 free in merchandise. Adults may register Thursday and Friday nights at all of the participating stores. A drawing Saturday will determine which person may exercise a $100 certificate at any of the stores.

The stores will be open Thursday and Friday evenings until 8 p.m. People are invited to tour all the shops, bringing the family, and taking all the time they desire to pore over selections, browse among the displays, and do a little dreaming and planning on what they'd like best in their home.

Joining in the Festival are Barrow Furniture, Big Spring Hardware Furniture Dept., Carter's Furniture, Elrod Furniture, Good Housekeeping Shop, Thompson Furniture, Trantham & Gibson Furniture, Ward's, Wheat's Furniture, and White's.

Each of the firms has received new shipments of merchandise employing the latest in styles, colors and trends. Included will be new fabrics and new woods as well as the favorites in fabrics and materials dictated by experience in other years.

The range covers almost everything the home decorator could want, including the basic desires in classic, Early American, modern and other groupings.

The established favorites in woods are offered in new designs and new finishes along with exciting treatments in new woods or broader uses of long accepted furniture woods.

Fabrics embrace those which have become a part of the furnishings industry because of their beauty and endurance. They also include some which, while new, have been put through strenuous testing to prove them capable of wear and attractiveness over the years.

Besides this, some contain new materials to lend strength, comfort, and durability to upholstery. All of this has gone into the new fall lines to make furniture a still better buy.

As a matter of fact, dealers point out, furniture has been the most stable of all major home furnishings on the market today. While adding more and more to quality in materials and construction, furniture makers and dealers have been holding the line.

Dealers point out that the offerings on floors (backed by supplies in warehouses) is as wide as almost anyone could want or can be found anywhere. Consequently, they urge men and women in the Big Spring area to drop in this week and visit, and also register for the prize.

Convertible Lounge Is Popular

There are all sorts of dual-purpose pieces on the market—sofabeds, sofa-sleepers, studio beds and others—and each of them fulfills the sit-sleep function in a different way.

But it's doubtful if any of them is simpler in operation or more amenable to good styling than the convertible lounge.

Convertible lounges made with this mechanism can be quickly, silently and effortlessly switched from a high-style sofa to a spacious sleeping piece roomy enough for two occupants. The front edge of the seat is lifted and pulled forward. The one-piece back cushion is then dropped down level with the seat cushion. The result is a "two-passenger," 44-inch-wide bed of standard 74 inch length.

Dual-purpose furniture pieces featuring this unique convertible fixture can be developed in either classic or contemporary stylings with either open or upholstered arms. The low back, combined with the low seat height, permits the scaling of furniture to today's smaller, low-ceiling rooms in houses and apartments. High-leg pieces, for the airy, off-the-floor look, are easy to design around the fixture. Seats are "pitched" about 1 1/2 inches for increased sitting comfort. There are no hard spots alongside the sofa arms, when the piece is in use as a lounge, and this means a lot to those who are sitting at the edges of the sofa.

What the homemaker may like most about this brand new idea in dual-purpose furniture is the protection it offers to bed-clothing. When the lounge is in sleeping position there is no exposure of the mechanism above the wood framing of the lounge itself, hence no chance of snagging sheets and blankets. Bed-clothing also can be tucked in all around for better appearance.

The new mechanism, which was introduced to the trade earlier this year at the national furniture shows, is now in full production and figuring strongly in the plans of furniture manufacturers. They predict that convertible lounges will be well toward the top of the "best seller lists" in retail furniture stores this fall and winter.

High Fashion In Modern Designs

Light as a breeze and young at heart in this group of casual pieces in informal setting, as shown at Good Housekeeping Shop. Corners offer a welcome all their own when they are assembled in a special color. Here bright tones contrast with dark woods, just as an example of how careful assembling can mean much in beauty and comfort.

In Favored Maple

Shown is part of a large collection of the American Colony Group in maple by Garrison. It is a correlated group of Early American pieces authentically designed for easy mixing and matching in true Colonial charm and tradition. The group is all open stock and available at Thompson Furniture, 1210 Gregg.

Color Can Create Exciting Climates

No longer are vibrant, exciting colors reserved for respectable little accents or for use by bold non-conformists. They've arrived in every conceivable shade and hue this year to set the fashion pace. For quite some time color enthusiasts have talked, written, and predicted a new emancipation for color. Now it is a fashion reality. No more will you need to rely on the "safety" of nebulous neutrals, grays and beiges. Let your color imagination free and give your home new vitality and personality. Carefully used, the boldest and brightest colors are well within the bounds of "good" taste.

Psychologists have long emphasized the effects of color on human behavior. Gaiety, depression, serenity—the entire gamut of human emotions can be strongly influenced by the colors in our environment. With more color freedom than ever before, you can choose the mood or climate you want a room to have. Blue, green and purple in varying shades and intensities have reached a new height in popularity, either used singularly or in dramatic new combinations. Reds, golds and yellows in a range from raspberry to citron are among the favorites in the color parade. Interesting to note is the amount of color coordination existing now in upholstery fabrics, draperies, carpets and miscellaneous materials. This is helpful indeed to the shopper who might otherwise hesitate to deviate from easy-to-match colors.

FABRICS

Fabric designs are sharing honors with colors as new interesting treatments are shown in upholstered furniture. Highly stylized florals, as well as the traditional florals, are found in many beautiful patterns, as are printed creel designs. Abstract patterns and the near abstract are seen in fascinating uses. A smooth linen-like tweed is used quite a bit in contemporary chairs and sofas. Print cottons, brocades, velvets, both cut and smooth, are being offered in a wide variety of selections.

WOODS

Woods and finishes are also being used more and more for their color value. New woods, combinations of woods and trims are employed to achieve interesting decorative effects. Painted finishes, particularly in the gold trimmed

Your Daughter Is A Bride In Training

A common complaint among young housewives is their lack of confidence in planning and furnishing their homes. All too often a girl's training includes little if any preparation for this very important job she assumes.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee suggests you begin teaching your daughter the household arts at an early age. You could have a mother-daughter study course in interior decorating! What fun it would be for both of you, and the chief benefit will be a more relaxed bride someday. Certainly the more confident a bride is, the better her chances for happiness.

The best teaching tool is her own room. After she reaches the teenage years, allow her to "do" her room. Tell her the total amount of money that can be spent, and remind her it must cover drapery, rugs and accessories, etc. Be willing to give her a free hand with inexpensive purchases. She may make some poor choices, but she'll learn from them.

When she is ready, let her help you with decisions about decorating and purchasing for the rest of the house. By shopping with you she learns how to look for value, how to compare, and brand names to depend upon. In essence she will learn the ABC's of planning and buying for a home.

Instead of confining her household maintenance chores to the dishes and dusting, show her how you care for draperies and carpets, how you remove spots and stains. Through the years she antiqued white are very popular and lend themselves to imaginative color schemes. Distressing, brushing, and antiquing is being used in many techniques to add interest.

Painted accent pieces in just about any size or shape you desire can give a lift to a dull spot in a room or relieve the sameness of a suite. White, red, green, gold, and even black pieces are sometimes hand painted in charming scenes that add distinction to a room.

Fashion today says the bars are down, and all can enter this magic colorland of imagination and challenge.

will accumulate valuable knowledge about the care of furniture. You might suggest she start clipping and filing ideas for decorating. Furnishings could easily become a hobby for her.

Through your guidance your daughter will take pride in her home during her early years of marriage instead of apologizing for her lack of knowledge.

P.S. Don't be surprised if Mama doesn't learn as much as Sis. To teach is to learn, 'tis said.

Furniture Designs Follow Customs

Furniture design, both utilitarian and artistic, reflects the social customs of an era, wrote the associate curator of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in a fascinating study of early American furniture.

Tea, coffee and chocolate drinks became fashionable in England and France about the middle of the fifteenth Century. English world trade, in vast expansion and privateering (piracy at sea), brought many new foods to Europe.

Almost immediately high society made drinking these new beverages special social occasions. Ladies and gentlemen urged their cabinet makers to create special tables for each of them. English china makers created the first pots for brewing the new beverages.

Our early settlers quickly developed a comfortable chair with one wide arm to handily hold a stein of ale. The low cocktail table as we know it today, is purely a Twentieth Century design.

'Tender Loving Care' Holds Secret Of Furniture Beauty

Tender loving care—that's the secret of perennial beauty in your personal appearance, your clothes and your furniture.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee suggests the following "TLC" hints to help keep your furniture in top condition.

Never place your fine woods where they'll be constantly subjected to heat, direct sunlight or open windows.

Even when woods have been treated to resist almost anything, you are wise to always use hot dish pads. And storing extension leaves for the table in a cool, dry place will avoid warping.

There are several ways to repair surface scratches and dents. Touch-up sticks, similar in appearance to crayon, can be bought in a variety of colors to blend with finishes.

Some are referred to as putty sticks, or are in a tube with a paste consistency. Either of these can be purchased through a good paint store or a refinisher.

Iodine applied lightly with a fine brush can also serve the purpose. Keep in mind that the stain or dye will darken with age, so apply lighter than the finish of the furniture.

The committee says deep dents and gashes should always be repaired professionally.

To remove white spots caused by hot or cold dishes, rub lightly with a flannel cloth dampened with spirits of camphor or essence of peppermint. Wait until dry before applying good wax or polish.

Highly polished surfaces may grow foggy. Dip a clean cloth in a solution of vinegar and water (one tablespoon vinegar to one quart water) and rub with the grain until surface is dry.

Before cleaning upholstered pieces, always vacuum to remove as much dirt and dust as possible. With slipcovers, it is well to remove and vacuum twice a month.

If you are uncertain of the color fastness of the fabric, always apply your cleaning solution in an inconspicuous place first.

In general, most stains and soil spots on upholstery can be removed by nonflammable carbon tetrachloride.

Dissolve a neutral, nonalkaline soap in boiling water; add cold water to the paste and stir until you have thick, dry suds. Scrub a small section of the fabric with the suds, working in a circular motion toward the center with a stiff bristle brush. Scrape off suds and rinse with a weak salt water solution applied with a soft rag.

When removing spots, never pour the cleaning solvent directly on the fabric; pour on a clean cloth. Remove excess cleaner with a blotter and sponge lightly with alcohol. And always avoid bleaching solvents.

Do not clean leather upholstery with furniture polishes. Use a mild soap and damp cloth. Rinse with second damp cloth and rub with a dry clean cloth.

Care should always be exercised in the use of cleaning solvents, for they can irritate skin and lungs. Always work in good ventilation.

HFIC adds one last reminder—always read tags.

Most manufacturers provide excellent instructions for the best care of their products. That coupled with common sense and lots of tender loving care will keep your furniture forever lovely.

KNOWLEDGE OF CARPET TERMS AIDS IN MAKING SELECTIONS

An understanding of many special terms used in the carpet industry will aid the homemaker in inspecting and making selections for the home.

BROADLOOM is a designation of carpet width. It does not describe any special style, quality or construction. The term refers to any carpet made in seamless widths of 6 feet and over.

PILE YARNS, sometimes called "face yarns," are the tufts of yarn seen on the surface of the carpet.

BACKING YARNS, are the materials that form the carpet back or foundation, to which pile fibers are anchored.

PLY is a layer of thickness of yarns used in carpet. If the pile yarn is described as "4-ply," it means that each tuft is made of 4 yarns spun together.

WILTON, AXMINSTER, and VELVET are types of looms on which woven carpet is made. Carpet woven on these looms is also described in these terms, such as "a Wilton carpet," "a velvet weave," or "an Axminster."

TUFTING is a carpet construction process in which pile yarns are sewn through a pre-woven backing by wide multiple-needled machines.

REGISTER DURING FESTIVAL $100 IN FURNITURE GIVEN

Home furnishings in the value of $100 may be yours free—just for the registering.

This merchandise award is being presented by 10 major furniture dealers as a highlight of the Fall Furniture Festival this week.

A drawing will be held on Saturday, and the winner receives a certificate, which will obtain $100 in furniture from any one of the stores participating.

Registration is limited to adults, but these are invited to register at every store. Participants in the Festival are:

Barrow Furniture, 205 Runnels; Big Spring Hardware Furniture Dept., 110 Main; Carter's Furniture, 110 Runnels; Elrod Furniture, 808 E. 3rd; Good Housekeeping Shop, 907 Johnson; Trantham & Gibson, 4th and Gregg; Thompson Furniture, 1210 Gregg; Ward's 221 W. 3rd; Wheat Furniture, 115 E. 2nd; White's, 202-204 Scurry.

Imaginative Furnishings Solve Budget Problems

Rooms furnished on a strict budget needn't look like the results of bargain-basement shopping. With the abundance of fashion-at-a-price merchandise on the home furnishing market today, the imaginative homemaker with an eye for line and color can decorate an elegant-looking home at surprisingly modest cost.

A combination of clean lines, rich colors and textures, and a bit of do-it-yourself effort for distinctive finishing touches are all you need to achieve a million-dollar look without paying the accompanying price.

To begin with select your furniture carefully, look for simple lines, basic design that will not go out of style with the fickleness of high-fashion, and maximum quality in construction and wood finishes.

Simplicity of line does not mean starkness—as witness some of the new living room furnishings, styled with the graceful lines of French Provincial design or Italian in warm fruitwood finish.

Chairs, settees and sofas are complemented by a variety of accessory tables, and you can assemble an entire living room full of furniture for an amazingly low cost.

Most important these carefully-constructed pieces are made with the attention to detail and finish that is usually associated with far more expensive furniture.

The importance of color is undeniable in creating a total effect of richness and elegance in any interior. Where budgetary considerations are upper-most, brilliant color in generous doses can perform the functions of expensive accessories in giving the finishing touches to a room.

Hardware Adds To Over-All Beauty

Hardware on furniture is like costume jewelry. As you view the new furniture displays this fall, notice the handsome variety of design in drawer pulls, cabinet knobs and escutcheons. Each one had been selected with as much care as you would use in choosing a necklace.

You will also see metal ornamentation on small tables, as galleries or decorative framing.

Pewter and aluminum are annealed to protect against corrosion. You will see brass in softly glowing tone, or antiqued with lacquer, depending upon the style of the furniture. Some elaborate drawer pulls, especially on French Provincial furniture, may be antiqued with tinted lacquer, often to blend with the colored finish of the furniture.

Porcelain and ceramic drawer pulls accent wood tones. One group has porcelain knobs showing painted figures in 18th Century costumes. White porcelain knobs offer accent Early American pieces. At the modern extreme of this idea are long oval pulls of mottled, green-amber ceramic, set in brass.

Pick Carpet Colors You Like Best

A decorator recently offered an excellent piece of advice on choosing carpet colors:

"Select your favorite color—the color you really like best in your home—because anything else is a compromise."

Fortunately, this advice is not hard to follow, because carpets today are offered in virtually all colors, and in many variations of each hue.

If you like blue, for example, you'll see it in carpets of all types, from solid blue pastels to tweedy mixtures of blue and green, or tone-on-tone blue.

Medium colors, mixtures of color and patterns are always most practical, of course—but you'll still find your favorite color represented, regardless of the carpet style and quality you plan to buy.

The wide color range offered today simply means that you can live with your carpet and like it, too—no compromise required!

Old Colony Pieces

Authentic Old Colony pieces in fine solid maple, rubbed and polished to the warm glow of traditional Early American craftsmanship, make up this entrancing dining room group. This is among the special showings at Barrow Furniture Co.

Bedroom Of Your Dreams

Calm repose with the added virtue of decorative interest — just about everything you could wish for in the bedroom of your dreams — now in this collection known as Suburbia II. It is outstandingly coordinated in color and detail, and all of the accessories have been carefully chosen to add to the attractiveness of the whole group. This is available at Montgomery-Ward.

Sitting Pretty— And In Comfort

At least one battle of the sexes is settled — the conflict between styling and comfort in chairs. Rightfully, Dad thinks first of a real man-sized chair for relaxing. Mom looks for an accent of beauty in a room. Now, thanks to the modern designers, both can sit pretty and comfortably.

New Sleepers Hide Purpose

Probably the most popular dual-purpose type of furniture, the sleep-sofa, has trimmed down in size and bulk, while it continues to offer double duty.

Foam rubbers and some of the chemical synthetic foams are the key to modern trimness of line, plus special comfort. Four to six inches of foam cushioning provides mattress comfort and day time seating relaxation.

The new sleep sofas may be converted to sleeping units easily. The length is used as the sleeping area.

The devices by which they convert are less weighty and easier to operate because the foam slabs are lighter than former types of upholstery filling.

One new slim-liner is the jack knife design. The back of the modern design sofa drops back and down, even with the seat cushion to become a double bed.

The old trundle bed idea has been revived. Now it is used in combination with a modern thin line sofa.

Snack Tables In New Style

If you're the hostess with the biggest hospitality heart, you've conjured the problem of where to store away enough snack tables for informal entertaining.

Furniture designers' wives must have had the same problems, and presented them to the "head man."

In furniture stores this fall you will see many neat and graceful solutions. One unit appears as a small four drawer commode or chest. Its drawers pull all the way out, and are in reality four well-sized snack tables with folding legs.

Cocktail tables under which hide four smaller tables that can be drawn out for refreshments or be used as stools, are available in several different styles. A long low table to companion an over-scale sofa, has a pop-up center compartment holding smaller folding tables.

tion that supports various parts of the body (cushions for the small of the back, the neck and head) or eliminates pressure that puts limbs to sleep (back of the knees, for example).

Stylish relaxing can be had in the wide selections of chaise longue, rockers and recliners. Many of the new recliners will do everything but turn inside-out at the press of a button. An increased number of loungers are castered for greater mobility and quite a few have swivels or rockers as well. And you'll find these comfort-fits in traditional, period or contemporary styles.

ALSO IN FASHION

Compatible Mr. and Mrs. Chairs, with matching hassock for sharing, are designed to fit the anatomy of both sides of the house.

Couples who take to the trend of seating around an outside coffee table will find smart, armless chairs with box-like contours.

The low-backed tub chair is increasingly popular also. In fact, many major manufacturers are trimming away once bulky pieces.

Fabrics and frames are sharing honors for more attention. The tremendous variety of finishes and luxurious materials offer selectivity to the buyer she has never had before.

The emphasis on authenticity of

New Furniture Pieces Can Work Magic With Space

New walnut furniture items introduced at the summer markets will help work space magic in your home.

One space saver making news is the wall unit that contains bookshelves, desk and a pull-down bed. It can be set up in a postage-stamp room or a big family room. Closed, it looks like a tidy wardrobe. Open, it does bunk duty for the visiting relative or school friend. This item is a boon for apartment dwellers.

There also are walnut shelves that fit between charcoal, brass or aluminum colored poles. Small cubboards fit the poles just as well to hold extra glassware, placemats and party gear.

One room becomes two with a walnut divider that has bookshelves on one side, a printed botanical design on the other. In its most elaborate form, it offers storage space on both sides, alternating with printed panels.

A simpler divider is designed for the student's room. It holds everything including a desk. Count this useful in a room shared by two boys of different ages.

Young marrieds will like a divider that houses a small dining table. At dinner time, the small walnut drop-leaf table can be moved to the center of the room or in front of a window.

There also are blanket chests to fit the foot of twin beds, cedar lined, walnut outside.

Students Need A Study Area

School days have set in again, and with them comes the inevitable homework. The Home Furnishings Industry Committee reminds you that your children's study needs should be reviewed.

Teachers regularly report that many students lack good study habits at home, and therein lies their less-than-best grade problems. The checklist for an ideal study is short on space and furniture, but long on importance. See that your children have the following available to them.

Number one—a good quiet atmosphere to work in. This means freedom from household distractions, of which television heads the list. Most families find a child's own room best houses his study.

With more than one child, you may have to give some thought to arranging an adequate place for study. Maybe a playroom, family room or den could be made off-limits to everyone but the student during study hours.

Second in importance is a good desk. Investment in a good desk will pay off many times in better study habits, consequently better grades. And don't forget your young scholar will need a comfortable desk chair.

The next item on your list should be a convenient storage unit for keeping books, supplies and reference materials. A bookcase, hanging wall cabinets or modular units that can be arranged in a variety of ways could serve this purpose and be used elsewhere later.

Any doctor will tell you that good lighting is an absolute necessity. The purchase of a good desk lamp is an investment in the child's health as well as his education.

When decorating the student's room, keep in mind that a bright, pleasant color scheme will be conducive to producing good work, as will an orderly uncluttered room arrangement.

New Castors Are Handsome, Helpful

Castors have become a decorative and useful part of many pieces of furniture. No longer is it necessary to tug and shove a chair or sofa to change its position in a room. Even buffets and servers are equipped with wheels.

Some castors are concealed under bases of chests, dressers or buffets. Others add a decorative touch to legs of chairs, small tables and serving carts.

Designed so they swivel, and wide bearing surface on the floor, or completely ball shaped, heaviest pieces can be moved with no damage to carpets or floors.

design can be seen in all types of chairs, as it can in all home furnishings today.

But the happiest note is that all this style, comfort and authenticity can be yours with protective finishes and soil-proof fabrics that increase the life of every piece of furniture you buy.

Create Feeling Of Space With More Mirrors

"Hold the mirror up to nature," said Shakespeare. You might take this advice yourself in setting the stage for your home. No items for home furnishing cost less that are capable of so dramatically creating the illusions of spaciousness and light.

This is no new discovery. Mirrors were recognized for their creative abilities as far back as the Renaissance. It was during this time that mirrors of silvered glass were developed. Earlier mirrors were of polished metal.

Louis XIV was the first to spectacularly use mirrors in the overwhelming Hall of Mirrors in the Versailles Palace. A few years later it was reported that a Moorish ambassador visiting the Duchess of Portsmouth was amazed "at the room of glass where he saw himself in a hundred places."

During the 18th century mirrors became larger; smaller, simpler frames replaced the ornate carved or gilded frames of earlier days. As a rule, the decorative patterns of each period were reflected in the frames.

During the 18th century, mirrors were attached to chests and vanity tables. Prior to that they were hung on the wall.

Today the imaginative possibilities are far greater than three centuries ago. For now mirrors can be found in almost every price range.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee reminds you that the best mirrors are made of flawless plate glass. This is backed by two coats of silver, a coat of copper and finally several coats of special paint.

Many Furnishings Scaled To Fit
Within the range of Early American furniture adaptations, the modern homemaker will find many pieces especially scaled for smaller rooms. No bit of nostalgic flavor has been lost. The charm, warm color and relaxed way of living is just as apparent. Smaller units such as chests, buffets, with or without smaller rooms will take all the necessary furnishings.

(The following article is based on the comments and opinions expressed in an interview with a noted Pediatric Neurologist associated with a leading medical school.)

Love and acceptance are unquestionably the best "furnishings" for a child's home, be it a shanty or showcase. Yet this home — this child's center of the universe — includes its furnishings, and they are part of all the things that say home to him. It only follows that they can work with or against the more important emotional climate in the home.

Furnishings can help parents in teaching responsibility and sharing. They can be part of the child's first knowledge of color, form and artistic appreciation. More importantly, they can underline the experiences of growing up, loving and living within a family.

SHARING

Family conferences on the acquisition of any major home furnishings can increase the family communicative spirit, and give the child a sense of participating in family decisions. Even small children can be very definite in their preferences.

The child whose mother lovingly creates a home for the family's enrichment is indeed fortunate. The active boy or girl who feels he is an intruder in his parent's well ordered house, among their treasured possessions, can absorb very negative feelings.

This is not to say it is advisable to pack away all expensive objects and avoid fine home furnishings. Quite the contrary. It is also in the home that a child should be trained to care for valuable possessions.

Finding the happy medium is more a matter of common sense than anything prescribed. A child-proof table for everyday dining is more conducive to congenial family meals than a highly prized antique. On the other hand, a formal dining room setting or the "good" sofa in the living room can be instruments for teaching your children the principles of be-

Don't Scar Wood

When dusting furniture, use a cloth that is clean, free of dirt. Delicate wood finishes may be easily scarred by a solid cloth. Thus, the job does more harm than good.

Furnishings Play A Role In Keeping Family Unity coming a young lady or gentleman.

In furnishing and planning a home, space or the lack of it, often becomes a problem. A good rule of thumb is to allow the space for a child to grow as he grows. A newborn likes rather confined areas; his space requirements are negligible. As he begins to explore, he needs room, an unprohibited play area. When his interests and possessions accumulate, his space needs continue to grow. He usually becomes fiercely possessive about those things that belong to him. Consequently, he needs an area that is exclusively marked his, even if it's only a corner. It is well to keep in mind that too abrupt a change can upset a child. Children cling to the familiar. A change from crib to youth bed, then to standard bed, can bother the child if he is unprepared or simply not ready for the change.

By the time the boy or girl reaches adolescence, his space needs have drastically increased. It is during the teen-age period that he seeks and needs privacy. It may not be possible for each child to have a private room, but there are many ways to increase the feeling of privacy.

There is one pitfall you want to avoid when two or more children are sharing a room. An older child will resent having the same restrictions placed on him as may be necessary for the younger child.

With careful planning, perhaps the addition of a room divider, an extra desk or chests, parents can help growing children avoid unnecessary frustrations and resentments.

This is, then, not a matter of furnishing a picture-book home. The most professionally designed, decorated and staffed house will not make a home. But a thoughtfully furnished home, on any budget, can play an integral part in creating a healthy environment for the developing child.

Kingsize Bedding

Featured at Elrod's is a complete line of A. Brandt Co. bedding. Pictured is the kingsize set in six-inch foam, 78 by 81 1/2 inches. Matching innersprings are available. Elrod's regular size bedding line includes five-year guaranteed foam rubber or poly foam; ten-year guaranteed innerspring or foam sets; and a 15-year guaranteed set in foam rubber of 1,224-coil set which is extra firm and meets all specifications of a posturepedic mattress. There is a real deluxe set at Elrod's, guaranteed for 20 years.

Double-Duty Furniture

Here is just one of many Hide-A-Beds on display at Trantham and Gibson, W. 4th at Gregg. This sofa has a 100 per cent nylon cover with foam rubber cushions and removable back. The solid steel frame hides a $49.50 innerspring mattress that makes into a comfortable, full-size double bed. Trantham and Gibson buys these sofas by the truckload and always has a good supply on hand.

Upholstery Is Style Keynote

Upholstered furniture is a style keynote in a living room. The living room all the family takes for granted can be vitalized by the wise choice of new upholstered furniture.

If yours is a living room about which you say, "it's kind of modern" or "I guess you'd call it traditional" or "it's sort of Early American" . . . give it character, plus comfort.

Choose a sofa design in the style you'd like to have dominate the room. Select a large and a medium sized chair, not as a set, but in the same general style as the sofa. Base your choice on the design of the largest wood piece in the room. This might be a cabinet or a desk. Or you may have a favorite pair of tables or a cocktail table.

Portable Storage

Glass blocks placed between layers of shelving provide open storage for bric-a-brac, books, toys or tools and can easily be moved to any room of the house.

Swedish Design Proves Effective

The work of Scandinavian designers in the 30's has a pronounced effect on some of the most well accepted furniture designs, today. It seemed then that Swedish designers were way off on cloud nine. The forms and lines they introduced, many though, even the Swedes would not like. Actually the Swedes are buying those designs more than ever. Danish designers also startled the world with a fresh concept of furniture.

'Slim' Furniture Enlarges Rooms

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Newsfeatures

Nothing, not even a building, is so concrete that it cannot be stretched by the imagination, the right use of color, and the wisest selection of furnishings.

Indeed, a paraphrased formula for elasticity concocted by interior decorators is, "Any space that looks bigger and acts bigger IS bigger, no matter how it measures from end to end or from down to up."

By stealing the decorator's tricks you too can be a space magician. Some of them are:

1. Select furnishings scaled to the size of the room.

King-sized furnishings that dwarfed small areas were popular a few years ago, but the masses who couldn't move them inside their nine foot doors, let alone live with them, dethroned these furniture giants.

Now knave-sized furniture is available, even with such traditionally massive items as pianos, credenzas, and formal dining tables. They are scaled in proportion to average room sizes determined by nationwide studies.

FURNITURE ON DIET

Fortunately, what was once aptly called "overstuffed" furniture has been dieted down to slimmness, thanks to the inventions of foam rubber and plastics. What sofas and chairs have lost in bulkiness, small rooms have gained in spaciousness.

2. On the other hand, you must have some large furniture pieces to balance smaller ones for eye appeal, and orderliness.

Numerous little items clutter an area, making it appear busy and crowded, and therefore small.

Do not hesitate to purchase a large piece of furniture, such as an extra-long sofa, if it fits a wall space well and is counterbalanced by a number of smaller items.

Because it undoubtedly offers more seating capacity than several chairs in the same number of square feet, the sofa is a space saver.

3. Paint your white elephants white, or match them to the hue of your walls.

That's the way to treat heavy ornate furnishings that you can't get rid of. They are lighter in illusion, even though they are not in actuality. A large item, such as a piano, blends into the background when shrouded with the same color as the wall.

4. Suggest a continuation of spaciousness by the careful coordination of carpeting, and draperies, and wall colors.

Wall-to-wall carpeting (which does not break the eye view as a rug does) should be just a few shades darker than the paint on the wall.

TEXTURE INTEREST

Avoid a patterned fabric for draperies.

peries. Make up for this with textural interest—nubbiness, gold flecks or rough weave—but match the color with the wall.

Compensate for the moonstone background with bright upholstered pieces and accessories.

5. Do the most with the niches and crannies. It is definitely more space conserving and may even be cheaper to hire a carpenter to build seating or sleeping places or storage units into any recessed areas in the walls.

6. Keep travel patterns in mind when arranging furniture. If anyone must circumvent the television set, record cabinet, or sofa to get from one door to another, the room is too small, no matter how large it is.

7. Put walls and ceilings to work. Hang all the furniture that you can on the walls. Besides stationary bookcases, attach hinged bedside tables, dining tables and benches to the walls. This legless furniture not only saves space, it makes housework easier.

Drop lamps from ceiling cords, or put them on arms reaching out from the wall. Put phones on walls. Make use of pole units with sectional shelves that climb, and therefore utilize, every bit of space all the way up to the ceiling.

8. Insist that your furniture work twice as hard to deserve its floor space. Don't waste valuable space buying leggy chests. Choose pieces with drawers from surface top to floor.

VERSATILE USES

Select dual purpose furniture—game tables that unfold into dining room tables, sofas that hide beds, ottomans and chairs that also conceal sleeping space.

9. On graph paper make a plan of your furnishings before proceeding too far. Draw the room plan to the scale of one square to a foot. Carefully mark windows and doors, the fireplace, and built-in bookcases.

Conforming to the same scale, make furniture patterns shaped according to amount of floor space they utilize. Arrange the furniture shapes at different ways on your graph paper floor plan.

Without actually moving furniture you can tell whether the pieces you have will fit various wall areas. You are also able to visualize more readily traffic patterns, conversational areas, and the proper place for the TV or hi fi set.

10. Be orderly, at least on the surface. Stack shelves and drawers in closets, in waste areas over kitchen cabinets. Build them under kitchen sinks. There should be a place for everything and everything in its place.

A room you can walk around in is a roomier room.

Grace And Charm

Pictured here is the beautiful Bonvivant Rural French Provincial grouping by Mount Alry of North Carolina. This group will add grace and charm to the most beautiful home. Available in white and gold, and in fruitwood finishes, and offered exclusively at Wheat's Furniture Co.

Modern Designs Continue In Popularity With Buyers

Designers, decorators and architects have well defined preferences about style of furniture, homes and buildings. Some are on the side of traditional styles, bequeathed to this era by history. Some are on the side of the present and the future . . . a style we call modern or contemporary.

A smart young home maker may be confused as to what is "right" to choose, for the first apartment or the new home. "There is no 'right' or 'wrong' in good design of furniture," advises the Home Furnishings Industry Committee. It is a matter of taste, very personal taste.

Statistics show just a bit more than half of all furniture purchases last year, were modern in style. Several large manufacturers devote entire production to modern. Others, extending their lines or developing new ones for 1962 created modern groups or large design related collections.

Modern furniture may be one thing to one family and mean quite something else to another, commented Virginia Pegram, director of the committee.

One general home furnishing trend, out-and-out modern designers have adapted, with great public approval, is warmth and elegance. This generally shows up, not as extraneous ornamentation, but rather a sleek softness in sculptured arms of chairs, curves of backs. Texture, pattern and color of fine cabinet woods, often imported, also play a part in relieving the cold aspects of modern design of a few years ago.

Inlays, borders, and panels of unusual and exotic buris of acacia, myrtle, elm or pale prima vera, are worked to enhance walnut, mahogany, cherry and other hardwoods. These too, along with rosewood and teak are often chosen especially for their handsome grain pattern. Or the protective finish is made to enhance and develop a straight smooth grain.

Modern furniture design began as an experiment seeking for new forms now expresses our way of life.

No Limit To Dual Furniture

There is almost no limit to the number of dual purpose furniture pieces to be found in the style category of Early American and French Provincial. Just as this furniture was especially made to fill special requirements of its owners, so designers today seem to have answered many modern needs.

Individuality Is Current Trend

Greater individuality in home furnishings is a current trend most heartily welcomed by Mary L. Brandt of New York City in an interview with the Home Furnishings Industry Committee. Mrs. Brandt is a teacher of decorating and the author of several books in this field.

"For many years manufacturers have been presenting us with coordinated packages of furniture, fabrics and floor coverings—even in some cases, accessories too," Mrs. Brandt said. "These represented a systematized relationship of color, style, design and finish, in which everything matched.

The same wood finish and design details, are carried out all through the furniture group, and fabrics and floor coverings are designed to go with it.

A GOOD IDEA—BUT!

This is a fine idea and insures an attractively furnished house, she said. But for those adventure-some souls, with wide interest in art, music, travel and the artifacts of other cultures than ours, there are other groups of furniture, she pointed out. A single group of furniture may use an amazing variety of woods, design each piece distinctive though with a general family relationship."

THE BEST, BLENDED

As an example of this family relationship, Mrs. Brandt mentioned a dining group recently introduced by a manufacturer in North Carolina. It blends various traditional design details such as arches, reeded columns and a Sheraton-inspired chair rail with Oriental pendant hardware. Beautifully matched walnut veneers are teamed with pecan solid wood. Drawer fronts are accented by maple veneer in a quilted grain; floral designs are being used in simplified adaptations drawn in a contemporary manner. These, along with many authentic provincial geometric patterns, go beautifully with either traditional or contemporary furniture," she continued.

"Today's home fashion trend encourages originality and individuality. We are getting away from the old, static, strictly matched look," she said.

Reasonable Care Will Keep Enamel Shining

Be kind to the shiny plumbing fixtures in your home. They are designed to last indefinitely, but they do require a little attention.

Those bright, glossy surfaces can be permanently dulled and stained by simple carelessness and strong abrasive cleaners. However, most household cleaners used in moderation are not harmful.

Scratches dull enamel surfaces. Never use basins, bathtubs or sinks as catchalls for tools, paint, roller pans, paint cans or other damaging articles.

The lustrous shine on plumbing fixtures is put there to stay, but neglect and detrimental use of them can take it away. Once that glisten is gone, there is not much one can do to replace it. However, there are several ways to remove stains from fixtures.

The majority of stains are caused by water minerals, dirt or grease, rust. These may be cleaned by slicing up a bar of napha-based soap in a quart of hot water. Add two tablespoons of paint thinner or dry cleaning solvent. Apply solution to surface with a stiff brush.

Hardened spots of paint may be removed, but are very difficult. Remove the hardened paint spot first with a razor blade being careful not to scratch the surface of the enamel. Remove remaining stains with dry cleaning fluid or ordinary household cleaner.

To remove rust, a solution containing one part muriatic acid and 10 parts water may be used. Protect your hands by wearing rubber gloves. Cover stain with the solution. Immediately wash the surface with water after the rust disappears.

Take care not to let this solution touch chromium plated fittings, since even brief contact will pit the chrome.

Fruit stains are removable by using a paste made of peroxide and equal parts of cream of tartar and household cleaner. Let the paste set on the stain for 10 to 15 minutes before washing it off.

The best way to keep your fixtures looking new is to use them only for the purpose for which they were intended.

To Enhance Beauty Of The Home

From the layman's point, all good furniture may seem somewhat alike. Actually, there are many differences of great importance. This is why stores such as Big Spring Furniture carry many of the well known and accepted lines of furniture from manufacturers that have kept up-to-date on engineering, design, styling and quality. Also available is a complete line of fireplace equipment that will enhance the beauty of any home.

For Sofa Elegance

Custom crafted furniture by Kroehler such as this extra long sofa with its look and finish of elegance is one of the many lines featured at White's Furniture Department. Sofas of this styling come with foam cushioning and long wearing fabrics of a multitude of colors. Many of them have zippered, reversible cushions for easy cleaning.

Finishing Is The Secret Of Wood's Beauty, Protection

From forest to factory, wood undergoes many processes to become a piece of furniture. None is more important than the finishing process. It is here that protection is given to the wood, its natural beauties are enhanced and a desirable color is applied.

But for this magical finishing process, the beauties of the wood would "bloom unseen." Consequently, the real beauticians in the furniture industry are the finishing directors. Each must be one part artist, one part chemist, an adequate researcher and a little bit of a prophet, able to predict the exclusive taste of Mr. and Mrs. Consumer.

Just exactly how does furniture get its finish? The Home Furnishings Industry Committee toured a leading finishing laboratory to get the answer to this question. This, then, is the finishing story. A manufacturer brings a new design and a sample of the wood to be used to the finisher. With him he brings the dollar figure that will be spent for the total finishing process.

Step one for the finishing director, or color consultant as he may be called, is the research. If the furniture is of a certain period he must know the exact colors of that time, as well as the various treatments done to the wood. As authenticity has become increasingly important to both manufacturer and consumer, this historical knowledge is absolutely necessary.

He then appraises what the public is currently buying and makes some prediction as to what will sell. Having appraised the market and collected historical data, he then must try to combine these in a finish that will also express the element of freshness.

With all this in mind, he dons a chemist's jacket and sets to work in the laboratory. From hundreds of colors, a perfect color formula must be evolved. Small samples of the wood are tested in many colors until the desired one is reached—a color that fills the research requirements, suits the style and design of the furniture and enhances the wood grain itself. The number of operations that will go into the finish becomes an important consideration also.

The number of processes depends on the cost of the finishing. As in most things, the cost of the finishing effects the quality. In general, the higher the cost, the more operations are added. Each additional operation adds refinement, interest or increases the protection.

There are five basic steps taken with even the lowest cost finishing. The furniture is first sanded and then stained to the desired color. A sealer coat is applied which is then sanded. Finally a flattened topcoat is applied. This is a minimum finishing job.

In a high cost finish there may be as many as 18 different steps taken, most of them done by hand. The number of processes used may vary from the basic five to 18.

A really pampered finish would go through the following steps: hand sanding preparatory for finish; staining to desired base or undertone color; sealing; filling wood pores; application of coat of tinted glazing sealer, another sanding and the application of coat of glaze. The glaze is then brushed and blended to achieve mellowing of coat and to intensify highlights and shadows. Sealer coat is applied, then sanded. Color is then hand padded into finish coat.

Next comes the addition of distinguishing marks and treatment, application of second coat of finish, followed by hand rubbing of finish. A clean up rubbing precedes the final step of hand wax finishing.

As more money is invested in a finish, color assumes more importance. It serves to dramatize and enhance the natural wood grains and achieve a richer depth. Desirable features of old, mellowed museum pieces are captured and reproduced in the finish. This is done by using color at every level of the finish—in the wood, filled into the pores, on the surface of the wood and in the films of materials above the woods.

The real artistry of the finishing process is evidenced in the final touches: the brushing, shadowing, antiquing, distressing—all the detail work that mellows and enriches a piece of furniture.

Practically goes hand in hand with beauty in the results of modern finishing techniques. Some of the most elegant finishes can withstand the most rugged treatment. Thanks to modern finishings, families can enjoy the blending of the beautiful, the authentic and the practical in furniture.

Storage Units Just For Men

Special furniture to store the special clothing and accessories of men holds the attention of designers. Probably because most furniture designers are men, masculine needs are thoroughly investigated and requirements met.

Designers have taken the measured space needs for stacks of shirts, sweaters, underwear and other smaller items of apparel as a logical skeleton of design. Several include hang space for suits.

From there, style enters the picture. Wardrobe units about the size and shape of an average five or six drawer chest are available in several different styles. Each is planned as an auxiliary piece to your current bedroom furniture no matter what its style.

Such units are generally included in coordinated bedroom furniture collections. If entirely new bedroom furniture is being chosen, the man of the family will welcome these new pieces designed by men for men.

Peace With Carpet

Any room where you use carpet immediately becomes more quiet and restful. It is a floor that offers not only decorative beauty and comfort, but is able to swallow sound at the source and keep it from reverberating about the room or house.

Furnishings 'Grow' As People Do

If furniture made 50 or 100 years ago makes your American husband feel like a bull in a china shop, he probably has good reason. He may very well dwarf it.

According to a report the Home Furnishings Industry Committee recently received from the Latex Foam Rubber Council, in 1900 only one out of 25 American men hit the six foot mark. Today, one out of every five is six feet tall.

Furthermore, this growing tendency is not confined to men. Statistics show that American women have grown an average of two inches in height during the past 50 years.

Designers and manufacturers are aware of this and scale their furniture for today's needs. The style and basic design of 18th or 19th Century furniture may be brought, but you can be sure the size is 20th Century.

It is interesting to note that while some pieces, chairs for example, are increased in sitting comfort for taller people, the heavy pieces are reduced in scale to accommodate smaller rooms with lower ceilings. Quite a challenge for the modern designer, wouldn't you say?

In their report, the Council says that at the rate we are growing, the day of king and queen size beds as standard size is very near. They emphasize that a mattress should be 10 inches longer than the tallest person on it for true comfort. They concluded that each sleeper should have at least 39 inches of width for a restful night.

Just one question: Will future architects keep this in mind in scaling the size of the bedrooms?

Take A Tour Of Furniture Shops

Planning new furnishings has always been an exciting project. Now there is more to choose from than ever. More furniture that does double duty, more that "belongs" in any of several rooms. In all the style groups there is more detail of design to choose from.

Furniture shopping might begin in the spirit of a trip to a museum. Only by looking at displays of new furniture can you decide the style or styles you want to live with. Only by seeing the wealth of design and the ingenious cabinetry which gives plus value in the way of extra usage, can you even begin to plan. New materials and new finishes will astonish the home decorator who is doing-over or adding to an established home.

For the bride making first selections or the experienced home-maker, there is pleasure and satisfaction in finding every style available in many price and quality levels.
