PRESIDENT LEADS NATION IN EXPRESSING GRIEF

Tireless Humanitarian Worker, Mrs. Roosevelt, Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Services for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who died in her apartment here Wednesday night, will be held Saturday at Hyde Park, N. Y., with President Kennedy attending.

Her health failed rapidly during the last six weeks, accelerated by non-contagious tuberculosis which was not proved until Oct. 25.

"I have lost an inspiration," said U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, the only person outside of the family to visit Mrs. Roosevelt during the final weeks of her illness.

She will be buried in the rose garden of the family estate at Hyde Park, beside her husband, "in accordance with the joint wishes," the family said.

A memorial service at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City is being planned for sometime within the next two weeks.

Her travels were often the subject of good natured humor. They also brought barbed criticism from many who disliked her or her husband—or both of them.

His defiant statement in effect rejected a new Chinese offer to withdraw from the territory it has occupied on the Northeast Border if India would give up the Ladakh area adjoining Kashmir and Tibet in the Northwest. India rejected a similar swap in 1959.

RED MOTIVE
Peiping's offer confirmed what many observers have felt was the Chinese aim in the last five years of border encroachment—to make Ladakh a secure connecting route between Tibet and western Chinese province of Sinkiang.

Not Even A Candidate

President Kennedy is the center of eager cries including "Hello Jack!" as he leaves the voting place in his home precinct on Boston's Beacon Hill. The President's youngest brother, Edward M. "Ted" Kennedy, 30, was the Democratic winner in the U.S. Senate seat the elder brother once held.

Angry Nixon Blames Press

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Richard M. Nixon, as angry and distraught as he has ever been in public, met reporters in what he called his final news conference—and accused segments of the press of utterly failing to give him a fair shake.

RICHARD NIXON

Newsmen thought the Republican gubernatorial candidate had called the conference Wednesday to concede victory to Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown. Nixon did that, but he kept talking.

"As I leave you," Nixon told reporters coldly, "I want you to know just how much you're going to be missing."

Nixon was endorsed by some 75 per cent of the California daily newspapers that took sides in the turbulent gubernatorial campaign. But he said many of his statements had been ignored by the press.

"I have no complaints about the press coverage," Nixon said early in his statement. But it turned out he had plenty.

"I am proud of the fact I defended my opponent's patriotism. You gentlemen didn't report it, but I am proud that I did that."

"As I leave the press, all I can say is this: For 16 years, ever since the Alger Hiss case, you've had a lot of fun, that you've had an opportunity to attack me and I think I have given as good as I can take."

"It was carried right up to the last day (of the campaign). I made a talk on television, a talk in which I made a flub."

"I said I was running for governor of the United States. The Los Angeles Times dutifully reported that. Mr. Brown the last day made a flub. He said I hope everybody wins, that you vote the straight Democratic ticket, including Sen. Kuchel (a Republican). The Los Angeles Times did not record it."

"The Times, which endorsed Nixon, said that it reported no campaign charges and counter-charges the last day before the election, other than Nixon's 11th hour teletalk and Brown's reply to it."

"And I can only say thank God for television and radio for keeping the newspapers a little more honest."

"Among the great newspaper in this country that people say I should be concerned about are the New York Post, the Milwaukee Journal and the Fresno and the Sacramento Bee."

"I would hope that in the future, as a result of this campaign, that perhaps they (the newspapers) would try, at least simply, to see that both candidates say as reported, that if they have questions, to ask the same questions of the other candidate."

"I hope that what I have said today will at least make television, radio and the press first recognize the great responsibility they have to report all the news and, second, to recognize that they have a right and a responsibility, if they are against a candidate—to give him the shaft."

"But also recognize, if they campaign they helped me to put on."

Publisher Otis Chandler of the Los Angeles Times said his paper has supported Nixon in all his campaigns and "we continue today to believe that he was the best qualified candidate for governor, as we said in our endorsement editorial of Oct. 21."

The Sacramento and Fresno Bees, two other papers mentioned by Nixon, are members of the McClatchy group. Myron V. DePew assistant to the McClatchy editor, said: "We can't make any comment. We'd like to know what in the world he was getting at."

Norman E. Isaacs, executive editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, said: "Mr. Nixon seems to make the necessary distinction between editorial endorsement and news coverage. On this we agree. We agree that newspapers ought to take editorial positions. We agree that they should report what a candidate has to say. This is what we have done—reported what the candidates have had to say, including truths they have had to say about our newspapers."

Nixon headquarters in Los Angeles provided The Associated Press with a list of about 45 daily California newspapers that endorsed Nixon. A Nixon aide said several papers probably had been omitted from the list, which was prepared from memory. Brown headquarters provided a list of dozen pro-Brown papers and said it also had probably overlooked several.

Major dailies endorsing Nixon included the Los Angeles Times, San Francisco Chronicle, Oakland Tribune, San Diego Union, San Jose Mercury-News and Riverside Press-Enterprise.

Major dailies endorsing Brown included the San Francisco Examiner, San Francisco News-Call Bulletin, Long Beach Independent and Press-Telegram, Sacramento Bee, Fresno Bee, San Bernardino Sun and Santa Barbara News-Press.

Nixon acquired a reputation of aloofness among some newsmen during his unsuccessful campaign for the presidency in 1960. A Nixon aide said privately during the California primary election campaign this year that the former vice president was aware of this situation and intended to conduct himself so that it would not be a problem again.

Nixon made what many felt was a conscientious effort to avoid the problem when he invited interviews during the general election campaign.

A reporter who traveled with Nixon during the campaign said Nixon often made a special effort to talk with newsmen on campaign buses and planes.

Text Prober Asks Stronger Obscenity Laws

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas should strengthen anti-obscenity laws, the chairman of a controversial legislative committee studying state textbooks said Wednesday.

Rep. W. T. (Bill) Dungan of McKinney included the recommendation in a 164-page report to Speaker James Turman and the next legislature.

The committee often held stormy hearings in Austin, Amarillo, Dallas and San Antonio. Dungan asked for stronger pornography laws "to cover some of the trash and filth called literature by some people."

Dungan also made other recommendations: 1. "I feel that some of our history texts are inferior and should be replaced. I feel that the books of authors whose loyalty to this country is highly questionable should be given a long and serious study before being adopted."

2. Publishers should be required to submit more copies of textbooks up for adoption because not enough copies have been available to interested persons.

3. High school courses in economics should be required to give students "an understanding of our capitalist system and a comparison with others, particularly the full socialist or communistic system."

Dungan added that "most of the economics textbooks being used do a poor job of presenting our free enterprise system and what this country has accomplished under it."

The committee heard testimony on books in four classes—pornographic or obscene, history, economics and home economics.

He said some authors of history books tend to believe certain men of American history and leave out "reference to God or the part religion played in founding the nation."

Dungan's recommendations covered only three pages. The remainder of the report contained testimony given at a public hearing in Dallas, when Dungan was the only committee member present.

Other committee members are scheduled to prepare their reports at a Monday meeting. Other members are Reps. Nelson Cowles, Hallsville; R. W. Bass, DeKalb; John Alaniz, San Antonio; and Ronald Roberts, Hillsboro.

DEAR ABBY

Gambling Is A Sickness

DEAR ABBY: My husband started to gamble a few years ago. He used to win big so it was no problem. Lately he is betting heavy and now his losses are more than we can afford. Should I set a limit on how much he can gamble? I hate to make him quit entirely because it is his only relaxation. I've heard that gambling is a sickness. If it is, what is the cure?

GAMBLER'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: You can't have it both ways. If you accept a man's winnings, you can't complain when he gambles away the grocery money. Gambling can indeed become a sickness. Write to Gamblers Anonymous, P.O. Box 17173, Los Angeles 17, Calif., for helpful information. (It's free.)

DEAR ABBY: I have always known that my nose was not my best feature but I don't think about it until someone gets me off in a corner and asks, "How come you don't get your nose fixed?"

I have seen worse noses than mine and don't give it a second thought if the person's personality is pleasing. But what do you say to people who ask questions like that? NOSE BETTER
DEAR NOSE: Tell them you do not need to have it fixed because it still runs all right. P.S. The only reason one should consider cosmetic surgery is to please himself.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell your readers that there is a simple way to have one's keys returned in case of loss without foolishly tagging keys with one's own name and address, thus risking burglary or car theft. Tag the keys with the telephone number of a close friend or relative. The person whose number is on the keys can then arrange to return the keys to their owner.

With tomorrow's article I will have quoted all of an interesting letter received from a reader (except his name and three sentences of personal matters). I now continue quoting:

Washington Has Middling Record In Arts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington, they said, used to be first in war, first in peace, and last in the American League. It hasn't done too well by the arts, either.

Some of America's art world's cultured have been uncultured enough to deride the lack of a cultural center in the nation's capital.

Americans, under the joint leadership of two first ladies, have until next September to put up (money) or...

Jackie Kennedy and Mamie Eisenhower are joint co-chairwomen of a campaign to raise money for a $30-million National Cultural Center that would hold an opera house, symphony hall and theater all under one elegant roof.

FAMED ARCHITECT
The white marble center has been designed by the famous architect Edward Durrell Stone. It would cost $30 million—just about 16 cents for every citizen.

The first big step toward a positive answer came in 1958, when Congress passed a law "to provide for a National Cultural Center which will be constructed with funds raised by voluntary contributions on a site made available by the District of Columbia."

Thus Congress did its part. The District set aside what has been described as a "poetic site"—13 acres on the Potomac River looking out over Roosevelt Island—a bird sanctuary memorial to President Theodore Roosevelt.

Now all that is needed are the "funds raised by voluntary contributions."

HARDEST PART
Everybody knows that the hardest part and so does Congress. It said the whole deal would be off and "this act will cease to be effective" if the money to build the center isn't raised by September 1963.

On Nov. 29 the first big fundraising effort—a two-hour, closed-circuit telecast—will be shown in about 100 cities across the nation. Called "An American Pageant of the Arts," it will be seen at $100-a-plate dinners and dollar-a-seat local movie theaters in big cities, small towns and on college campuses.

The money raised will be divided equally between the National Cultural Center and local sponsoring cultural groups.

BIG SHOW
President and Mrs. Kennedy will go to a $100-a-plate dinner in Washington's National Guard Armory to see and take part in the telecast. A galaxy of stars, including Pablo Casals, comedian Danny Kaye, actor Fredric March, band leader Benny Goodman, singer Dorothy Kirsten and scores of others will join the show that will emanate from Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles and New York.

As Stone designed it, the center would be a long, low structure sheathed with white marble, encircled by a colonnade of delicate steel columns with a gold finish and set in a riverside park of flowering trees.

Its flat roof and landscaped terraces, commanding an impressive view of Washington, would be set with cafe tables.

OPERA HOUSE
In the center of the building would be a 2,500-seat opera house flanked at either end by a symphony hall holding 2,750 persons and a 1,200-seat theater.

The roof area, with a retractable ceiling, would provide facilities for 4,000 persons to attend band concerts, art exhibits, festivals, balls and theater-in-the-round under the stars.

Arizona Man Attacked, Robbed

Thomas C. Lee, Rt. 1, Eloy, Arizona, told Big Spring police he was attacked, assaulted, and robbed of about $20, under the east viaduct about 9 p.m. Wednesday. He could not give a description of his attackers. Lee was taken to the VA Hospital for treatment. His wounds were not serious.

A theft over $50 was reported Wednesday at 310 E. 3rd. I. G. Deel told police he left an impact wrench, valued at $100, on top of a tool box when he went home Tuesday night. When he looked for it Wednesday it was gone. Nothing else was missing from the building.

Patrols Named

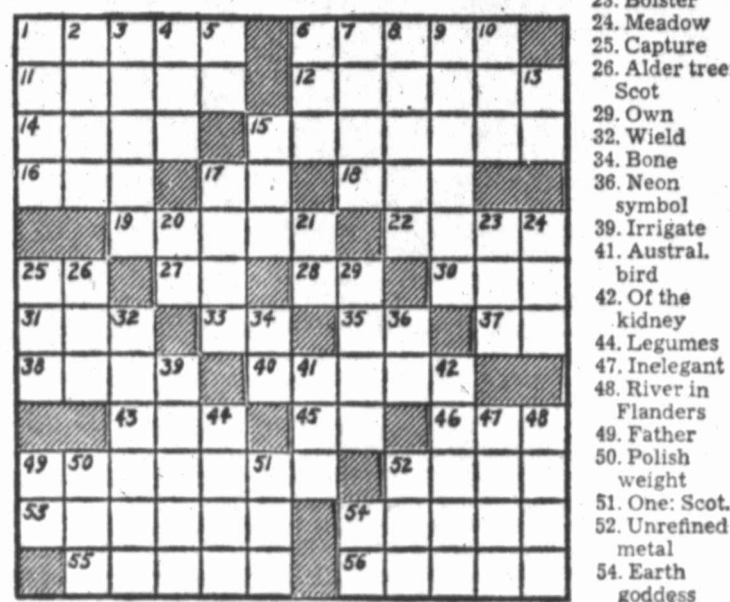

Girl Scout Troop No. 336 named its two patrols, the Stingrays and the Green Angels, Wednesday afternoon. Held at Wesley Methodist Fellowship Hall, the meeting included a social period when refreshments were served to 17 girls and the leader. Hostess was Donna Graham.

Storied Isle Now Under Development

ROCKPORT (AP)—Children on the newly-named island of Key Allegro will be more likely to play settlers and Indians than cops and robbers. And they may find their materials under their feet.

The name Key Allegro was picked to replace Frandolig Island, where many an Indian camp site has been found. A developer is building a community on the island in front of Freeport.

No one knows how long ago the first Carancahua Indians roamed there, but the first Frandolig appeared nearly a century ago. In the diaries kept for many years by the Mercer family, who lived first at Port Aransas and then at Aransas Pass, Napoleon Bonaparte Frandoleze came on land "with an ox team and riding a mare."

Whether he was the man who eventually gave his name to the long shell ridge, no one knows, but the first Frandolig to settle there held the land in spite of Indians.

Three of the red men interfered with him and were buried, victims of his rifle. And in later years, he told an amateur archaeologist—George C. Martin—that the island had yielded many relics of Indian occupation.

An Indian campsite once existed on its eastern shore, littered with whole and broken arrow points, flint tools and broken pieces of pottery.

The Indians that left these traces were nomads, seasonal dwellers on the coast, depending on clams, oysters, conches and fish, leaving the shell remains from their feasts in big piles.

After the Civil War was over, the island was the site of at least one of the hide and tallow packing plants that made this area famous. The beef was picked for shipment to New Orleans, New York and even Europe.

During the period, as many as half a dozen ships at a time were docking at plants on Frandolig Island, in Fulton and at Rockport. They unloaded silver dollars in kegs to pay for the packing house products.

There was so much silver that it wasn't counted, merely measured. Mrs. George Ware Fulton Jr. is quoted in an early account as saying that bags of silver sat around on the floor of her father's office until he measured the coin to pay off cattleman from which the Coleman Fulton Cattle Co. had bought beavers.

Arabian Horse Is Going 'Western'

By BOB GRAY, Editor
The Texas Horseman Magazine
Writes For The Associated Press

The classic Arabian Horse—famed for speed and endurance throughout recorded history—is going western, cowboy style.

At most major Arabian Horse shows now there are classes for cutting horses, the western reining pattern and usually western equitation. Instead of the aristocratic bowlers, frock coats and Johhpurs usually associated with Arabian shows, contestants in those classes wear western hats, chaps, cowboy boots and spurs.

This doesn't mean the Arabian is any less a "show horse" in the classic meaning of the word. It does mean that a new dimension is being added to what is widely regarded as the world's oldest, continuous breed of horse.

"People used to think that (Arabians) were so beautiful they had to be stabled up and looked at," comments Mrs. Stanley Kubela of Palacios. "But they'll rein and work. They'll work cattle for you all day."

LEGEND PROVES ITSELF
Mrs. Kubela and her husband do just that with their Arabians. They have cattle ranches at Palacios and Seguin. They use their registered Arabians to herd and work their cattle—and Mrs. Kubela says the storied endurance of the breed proves itself on a dawn-to-dark workday that may require moving a herd more than 20 miles.

"We're in the ranching business," she says. "We need good-riding horses with stamina—active horses that can do any kind of work. Because of that short back and quickness, the Arabian is a fine reining horse."

"He's handy as a cat."

Proving her point is a Kubela mare named Kartessa, ranked in 1961 as one of the Arabian Horse Club's Top 10 cutting horses. Ridden by Jim Reno of Simonton, Kartessa placed and won at nearly all the Arabian shows where cutting competition was included. Out of 13 western reining contests, Kartessa won 10 and placed in the others.

COWDEN INTEREST
Similarly, the R. B. Cowden ranching interests of Midland are interested in the Arabian for his "working" potential. Their 7-year-old mare, Jameel Bebehani, ranks high in Arab cutting circles.

Most of the Arabian exhibitors, in fact, have become interested in this new facet of the breed.

reports E. A. Parker of Corpus Christi, secretary of the Texas Arabian Horse Club.

"The ranch owners, certainly, want to prove their horses," says Parker. "They want to demonstrate that a show horse can also be a working horse. Not all of the breeders are going in for it yet, but the interest is certainly growing."

There is a powerful incentive for the cutting Arabians—$3,500. That is the prize money put up by the International Arabian Horse Association for the first horse of this breed to finish in the Top Ten of the National Cutting Horse Association yearly standings.

NOT EASY
That, however, is not easy. The NCHA's Top 10 includes the finest western horses alive. At this writing, all are Quarter Horses.

(One of the few "outsiders" ever to crack the NCHA's elite upper brackets was a little Paint mare named Calamity Jane.)

To get in that Top 10 means that an Arabian breeder will have to first find an exceptional cowhorse—several now in competition are thought to be of this caliber—and then the horse will have to be "campaigning" extensively. That is, the horse must be entered in practically every major cutting in the U.S. It's a long, tough grind.

"Nobody's close to the NCHA's Top 10," says Parker. But he and other Arabian breeders have no doubt they have the material to work with. Meanwhile, with so much national attention being focused on western riding techniques, the Arabian Horse is expected to show up under a growing number of cowboy trainers—men who can tell in a few hours whether a horse may have potential for the cutting, roping or reining contests.

TOUGH CUSTOMER
One thing they are apt to find for sure is that the Arab is a tough, hardy customer. Says Mrs. Kubela of Palacios:

"When we go out to work cattle in the morning, we don't have to worry about changing horses. One Arabian will carry you all day."

Arabian enthusiasts tell a story about the fierce pride that the horse breeders of that ancient middle-eastern country take in the speed of their mounts.

Seems that a thief once stole the swiftest Arabian stallion of a prominent Arab merchant. Leaping astride another horse, the merchant pursued the thief out into the desert.

Riding hard, the enraged Arab then realized that if he caught the thief it would mean that his prize stallion was the slower of the two horses. So suddenly he began shouting and flailing out at the thief, whose stolen horse burst away with fresh energy.

Returning to his camp, the merchant reported the loss of his horse with pride as well as sorrow. There was no way, he explained, that any other horse alive could have caught that stallion. The horse's reputation for speed was his primary concern, not his ownership of it.

Stock Survey Cards Mailed

Rural mail carriers working out of Big Spring and Knott post offices, in accordance with annual custom, are distributing livestock survey cards among their patrons.

These cards, filled out by the farmers and stockmen, give the state and the national government a report on the number of head of livestock and poultry. The number of such animals shown in the survey is the basis for the evaluation of the livestock and poultry industry in the state.

Not every box gets a card. The mail carriers leave them at random along the route. However, the survey based on this method, assuming all who get cards fill them out and return them, is considered remarkably accurate.

E. C. Boatler, postmaster in Big Spring, and Mrs. Susie Mae Harrell, postmistress at Knott, urged all patrons of their offices who receive cards make certain they are returned.

L. N. Thornton, Rt. 1, Knott; Ervin Daniel, Rt. 1; D. C. Duncan, Sterling City Route; J. E. Kennedy, Garden City Route; and Roland Evans, Gail Route, all of the Big Spring office, are the route men cooperating in this annual survey effort.

Party Labels Meant Little

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American electorate's demonstrated disdain for party labels in Tuesday's election indicates Republicans may need a personality-plus candidate in 1964.

It just happened in the balloting that the Republicans who won the big ones are just that type. They have the kind of fresh, voter appeal that is credited with helping make John F. Kennedy a hairline winner in 1960. And no one is doubting that the President will seek re-election in another two years.

The GOP stars in an otherwise confusing and somewhat frustrating election that ended in almost a numerical dead heat in congressional and gubernatorial contests were:

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, an omnivorous blitz-consuming, hand-shaking, back-clapping campaigner who is mentally quick on his feet and knows the ways of television. By getting himself re-elected by nearly half a million votes Rockefeller leaped to the top of the heap of Kennedy's potential GOP rivals.

Gov.-elect George Romney of Michigan, an indefatigable campaigner who charmed some union votes away from the Democrats to win his race in a key state. Possibly somewhat less liberal than Rockefeller, he may attract support from party conservatives who look on the New York governor as too inclined to the welfare state to suit them.

Gov.-elect William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, a very wealthy man just getting his feet wet in bigtime politics. He is a handsome, all-smiles candidate who can be a tough campaigner if the occasion demands it.

SECOND LINE

In the second line, as prospective material for a vice presidential nomination, two young GOP crusaders came to the front.

They are Robert Taft Jr., son of the late "Mr. Republican," who won election to Congress in an at-large race in Ohio, and Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, who won re-election while the voters of his state were giving another term to Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse.

The central performer in the GOP's greatest disappointment, the failure to attain the governorship of California, was Richard M. Nixon, familiar again in bitter defeat.

Nixon bowed out of politics with a denunciation of the press and the acerbic comment: "You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer."

Nixon had sought through the force of his personality, his ability as a polished debater and his experience in television to overcome Gov. Edmund G. Brown in a state with a wide bulge in Democratic registrations. He lost.

Despite his penchant for provincialism and his difficulties with syntax, Brown proved himself an artist at pressing palms, slapping backs and chucking chins. He won.

Just how little attention Californians paid to party labels was demonstrated when they re-elected Brown and at the same time gave a new six-year term to the Senate deputy Republican leader, Thomas H. Kuchel.

This seemed to be the mood of voters all over the country as they installed the first Republican governor of Oklahoma and put Democrats in the governors' offices in Vermont for the first time in 108 years and in New Hampshire for the first time in 40 years.

In Pennsylvania the same pattern put Scranton in as governor and gave Democratic Sen. Joseph S. Clark another term.

In Michigan, Romney's victory was accompanied by the election of a Democratic lieutenant governor and a Democratic congressman-at-large.

Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy was the shining star of the Democratic line. He won by a landslide the seat that his eldest brother gave up in 1960 to become President.

TALKS OF RECOUNT

Ted Kennedy's run appeared to have pulled Endicott (Chub) Peabody to victory over Republican Gov. John A. Volpe. In the complete count of about 2.1 million ballots, Peabody had a 9,000 lead. Volpe talked of a recount.

The contest in Rhode Island was considerably closer. With about 6,000 absentee ballots yet to be counted, Democratic Gov. John A. Nolte had a 46-vote edge over his Republican opponent, John H. Chaffee.

In Minnesota, with a handful of precincts remaining to be tallied, Democratic Lt. Gov. Karl F. Rolvaag held a slim lead over GOP Gov. Elmer L. Andersen. The results were so close that the election may not be determined until the state canvassing board meets Nov. 20.

For all practical purposes, the Democrats threw back the Republican attempt to make traditional minority party congressional gains in a nonpresidential election year.

In the Senate the Democrats gained a net of four seats to make their ratio over the Republicans 68 to 32. This was the highest mark reached by the party since the 69 seats it held after the 1938 election.

In Tuesday's voting the party won additional strength where it needed it least, in the Senate. In the 87th Congress, the Senate went along with most of President Kennedy's major proposals, his program for Social Security-financed health care for the elderly being a notable exception.

Happy Couple

John Connally, former Secretary of the Navy, and his wife, Nellie, are a happy couple as they get late election results at the Connally headquarters in Austin proclaiming Connally the new governor of Texas.

Connally Will Outline Program

By The Associated Press

Gov.-elect John Connally called a news conference Thursday to outline his program.

Connally, the Democrat who defeated Republican Jack Cox Tuesday attended the South Texas Hereford Breeders cattle sale Wednesday at Beeville.

The former secretary of the Navy headed a Democratic slate that beat back the most determined Republican bid for state-wide offices since Reconstruction Days.

The Democrats swept all of the statewide offices and most other races. Texas Republicans found some comfort in increasing their number of Congressmen from one to two and the number of GOP state representatives from two to seven. They had scattered victories in local races in 16 counties.

Albert Fay, Republican national committee member who ran for land commissioner, said he felt the Republican party had made "significant gains." Cox polled 4 percent of the vote.

IMPRESSIVE TOTALS

He said that the Republican candidates built up "impressive vote totals, which at future dates can be transferred into Republican victories."

Citing the GOP victories, Fay said "This election proves conclusively that winning a Democratic primary election in Texas no longer is tantamount to election."

The Republican's most surprising victory was the election of Ed Foreman of Odessa, who defeated Rep. J. T. Rutherford in far West Texas.

Republican Bruce Alger of Dallas won re-election easily. Dallas County also accounted for six of the seven GOP victories in the legislature.

Figures compiled by the Texas election bureau late Wednesday gave Cox 661,126 votes to Connally's 781,563.

Mrs. Roosevelt Had A Driving Need To Serve

EDITOR'S NOTE: A lifetime of service ended Wednesday night with the death of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. An Associated Press writer who knew her well through much of her career traces the life and emergence of a shy, awkward girl into a woman honored around the world in this, the first of three articles.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—When Anna Eleanor Roosevelt left the White House in 1945, it was with the feeling that for the first time in more than four decades, she was on her own.

Her husband, one of the nation's most dynamic presidents, was dead. Her children were grown. Would she, like so many presidents' widows, retire to obscurity? Not Eleanor Roosevelt. In many ways, her own life was just beginning.

Until her fatal illness, ending with her death Wednesday night, she knew few quiet moments. She traveled endlessly, constantly backed causes, many of them controversial, and spoke her mind with eloquence and forthrightness.

Her love of controversy led her, in her late seventies, to spark a swap of tractors for prisoners of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, and a New York City political reform movement, and to entertain Soviet Premier Khrushchev at Hyde Park on his shoe-pounding visit to the United Nations.

LIVE OR DIE

"We have to face the fact that either all of us are going to die together or we are going to learn to live together—and if we live together we have to talk," she said.

And talk she did, and listen, in all parts of the world. She once reflected on her life before the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt:

"In my early married years, the pattern of my life had been largely my mother-in-law's pattern. Later it was the children and Franklin who made the pattern. When I went to Washington I felt sure I would be able to use opportunities which came to me to help Franklin gain the objectives he cared about—but the work would be his work and the pattern his pattern."

NEW PATTERN

In the post-White House days, the new pattern emerged as Mrs. Roosevelt could, at long last, use "my own mind and abilities for my own aims," about which she had been thinking since the last of her five children had gone off to boarding school. Curiously enough, however, the new pattern was much like the old pattern, except that in this later phase her life was dedicated to the world. The sphere of influence of Mrs. Roosevelt broadened progressively from her family to her state, to her nation. In her work for the United Nations, she hews a unique niche for herself as a world citizen which derived only partially from the position her husband held for so long.

Once when she was First Lady Mrs. Roosevelt was asked what she looked forward to most when she left the White House.

"Freedom from public notice," she replied.

MORE ACCLAIM

Actually, she received almost as much public notice—and certainly more international acclaim—as a private citizen, but by that time she had learned to live with it and accept it gracefully.

Well into her seventies, Mrs. Roosevelt carried a schedule of lectures, speeches writing, correspondence, trips, junkets, appearances, conferences and interviews which would have sent the ordinary citizen running for tranquilizers. She thrived on it.

The bedrock on which her active life was constructed was, of course, a rugged constitution, excellent health and fantastic vitality.

But inherited energy and ability to get along nicely on four hours sleep do not explain the force which drove her. Her adult life was dominated by a need to serve.

"The feeling that I was useful," she once wrote, "was perhaps the greatest joy I experienced."

ACT OF WILL

The blossoming of a painfully shy, awkward and downright plain child into the poised, apparently serene and handsome older woman was summed up by Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. as a "triumph of character, a sheer and terrifying act of will." Her childhood was neither happy nor secure. Or-

Combat Unit Near Guantanamo

EKY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The existence of a combat-ready military installation at a point about 100 miles northwest of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo was disclosed by Havana Radio Wednesday.

A broadcast said the well-known Cuban ballerina, Alicia Alonso, visited the "combat trenches" in the Holguin area. She gave books to the troops and discussed the ballet with them, said the radio.

phoned at 10, she was brought up by a strict grandmother, packed off to an exclusive English girls' school and then pushed reluctantly through the proper "coming out" rites mandatory for young women in the financial and social strata of the Roosevelts.

In 1904, when she was 20, this niece of President Theodore Roosevelt married her fifth cousin once removed. While her marriage brought her a sense of security she sorely missed, it also brought the problem of living with and handling her dominating mother-in-law, Sarah Delano Roosevelt.

It took self-control to avoid conflict with this strong-willed woman who not only enjoyed holding the purse strings but who wanted to run the lives of her only son and his growing family.

NO INTERFERENCE

The result of this disciplining experience with the senior Mrs. Roosevelt was that President Roosevelt had an almost exaggerated determination not to interfere in his children's lives, and Mrs. Roosevelt kept so clear of interference that she sometimes worried that her daughters-in-law might think she was not interested in them at all.

Mrs. Roosevelt went to Washington as First Lady with specialized training as an official's and a politician's wife. Franklin Roosevelt had been crippled by polio before he was elected governor of New York, and it was as the governor's lady that Mrs. Roosevelt elected herself as his eyes and ears.

When Mrs. Roosevelt was the wife of the President, her determination to be useful to her husband made her a highly controversial figure, for she never was content merely to fill the traditional role of White House official hostess. When she left the White House the political enemies of her husband stopped referring to "Eleanor" in special, bitter and clipped syllables.

STORM CENTER

But Mrs. Roosevelt, always an individual, continued to be a storm center.

She was taken in, according to a large segment of opinion, by Reds working within the American Youth Congress. Eleanor Roosevelt, however, never thought so. She was lied to and some sought to use her.

But: "I am extremely grateful for my experience with them," Mrs. Roosevelt said later. "I learned what Communist tactics are. In fact, I think my work with the American Youth Congress was of infinite value to me in understanding some of the tactics I have had to meet in the United Nations!"

Forsan's New Water Lines Are Completed

FORSAN — Forsan residents may not be getting much better pressure through their taps than in the past but Mayor C. J. Lamb points out:

"The water we are now getting is cleaner."

The reason is that the town's new pipeline system, replacing the old lines, has been completed and water is now being dispatched through the system.

R. H. Hodgson, Midland contractor, has completed laying the line and has moved out his machinery and tools.

He has one more minor job to complete—installation of the community's second fireplug. One of the fire plugs is at the school and the second is to be placed in the downtown area.

Meanwhile, the pressure is still a problem because the new storage tank is not yet in place and operating. Jack Cathey, Big Spring contractor, has not as yet moved the 20,000 gallon storage reservoir and its tower from Handley to Forsan.

The new tank will be erected on land which the town has obtained condemnation and will be on an 84-foot tower. This, Lamb said, should solve the pressure problem. The old storage tank will be kept in operation on a standby basis.

Four Public Hearings Set

Public hearings on four requests for variances on building permits were to be held at 4 p. m. today in the city commission room when the Zoning Board of Adjustment meets. Two involve work done without permits.

Newson's Grocery, 1910 Gregg, which was destroyed by fire in September, involves extension of the front when the building permit called only for rebuilding.

A second hearing has been called also on an office building constructed on property owned by Jerry Worthy, 1610 Main, without a building permit.

Myrl Click seeks variances on sidewalk clearances on four corner lots in a block between Goliad and Nolan and between East Nineteenth and Twentieth. Houses Click plans are at 1901 and 1907 Nolan and 1900 and 1906 Goliad.

He requests a 10-foot sidewalk clearance on corner lots instead of the 15 feet required under the new subdivision ordinance. Existing houses in the area were built with five-foot set-backs, but under the new subdivision ordinance all land not subdivided before April 1, 1961, must have a 15-foot street-side sidewalk clearance on corner lots.

K. L. Court, 1400 E. 6th, is asking for a variance to build a carport, garage, and storage room to the property line on a 75x150-foot lot. The only access to property to the south in the block is a 25-foot private driveway which must be maintained. Court's entrance to his home is from Sixth street.

Stock Dividends

AMARILLO—The board of directors of Pioneer Natural Gas Company has declared a quarterly dividend of 26 cents per share on the outstanding common stock, payable Dec. 6, 1962 to stockholders of record on Nov. 23, 1962. C. I. Wall, president, said that the net income for the first nine months of 1962 amounted to $4,742,162, or $1.33 per share on 3,564,854 shares outstanding on Sept. 30, 1962. These earnings compare with $3,692,653 for the first nine months of 1961, or $1.06 per share on 3,474,499 shares.

Youth Appreciation Week Proclaimed Here By Mayor

Youth Appreciation Week in Big Spring has been proclaimed for Nov. 12-18 by Mayor George Zachariah as part of a nationwide observance.

Community institutions are being asked to place special emphasis during the week upon recognition of positive achievements by young people.

Former Resident Dies In Lufkin

Friends here have learned of the death of C. D. Ambrose, former resident of Big Spring.

Mr. Ambrose, who worked for a time on the Herald and also was a real estate and insurance agent, died Oct. 26 in Lufkin at the home of his niece, Mrs. Hastelaine Stout, 1004 Dunlap. He was 89 years old.

Rites were said in Fayetteville, Ark., where he was interred beside the grave of his wife.

A native of Freeport, Ill., Mr. Ambrose moved to Fayetteville when 16 and attended the University of Arkansas. Besides his residence in Big Spring, he worked in San Angelo and for a time was in the Dallas Morning News staff, retiring there in 1940. He was active in the Methodist Church, and in Big Spring he served as a city alderman.

Rites Today For Mrs. Jarrett

Funeral services for Mrs. Fannie Jarrett, 75, who died at her home at 203 Channing Wednesday after a long illness, were set for 2 p. m. today at the Church of Christ, 1900 W. 3rd.

Burial will be in the Big Spring Municipal Cemetery, under direction of River Funeral Home. She had been a resident of the Big Spring area for about 20 years.

Survivors are a niece, Bessie Wilburn, Big Spring, and a nephew, John Wilburn, Clarksville, Texas.

Peppy Blount's Write-In Campaign Is Successful

Ralph E. (Peppy) Blount, who in his schoolboy days could always be counted upon to do the unexpected, has done it again.

He has been elected Gregg County judge on the strength of a write-in campaign which blossomed when incumbent Judge Earl Sharp was charged in connection with the slant-hole scandals in East Texas. Unofficial final results showed Blount with 3,802 votes and Sharp with 2,777. Gillett Sheppard, another write-in candidate, got 1,381 and Alvin Khoury 474.

The race had seemed closer than it actually was because the figures from the Kilgore community house box had been credited with 638 votes, but a re-check showed the total was actually 368. Meanwhile, the court house box in Longview came in and gave 975 votes to Blount.

Blount has been a practicing attorney at Longview since his graduation from the University of Texas Law School. A native of Big Spring, he was graduated from Big Spring High School where he was a student leader and a star on the football and basketball teams. After overseas duty as a B-25 bomber pilot he was given a West Point appointment, but instead he decided on law. While a student at the University of Texas, where he also was a colorful figure and football star, he was elected to serve as the legisla-

LETTER TO EDITOR

Program Critique Draws Sharp Reader Criticism

To the Editor:

I am compelled to take issue with the commentary of Mr. Bob Smith regarding the recent performance of Basil Rathbone. During his two-day stay in Big Spring, many people had occasion to meet Mr. Rathbone and were impressed with his charm and warmth of personality which so often is found lacking in artists and performers. Mr. Rathbone repeatedly expressed his delight in his visit and particularly the friendliness of the people of Big Spring. A great deal of work and preparation by many Big Spring residents was required to create this favorable impression and these people would be embarrassed if Mr. Rathbone were to infer that Mr. Smith's critique was commonly accepted.

The use of terms, such as, "credible performance, pseudo-English accent, pomposity, meaningless dramatic flourishes, poor enunciation, and lousy acting," would be in poor taste from a Heywood Brown or a Moss Hart but when from a lesser critic they are offensive.

The further statement "stage readings are not popular as a Broadway Musical" is as meaningless as an analogy as to state that attending church on Sunday is not as popular as professional football, wrestling matches or drag races.

It is a deplorable situation when we Americans cannot alter our lives and thinking just one night a year and allow our imagination to be captured by the imagery of a talented artist no matter what his means of communication may be.

Now that the election is over I want to express my gratitude for the impartial and generous coverage given by your paper to our various news items and announcements. Although your paper was pro-Democrat it showed you recognized us as vigorous and enthusiastic and ready to make it a contest. The conservative movement is growing, as I feel it must, and I know you will continue to publish articles in our behalf. Next election we will try again! Thank you from a Republican.

Funeral Pends For R. C. Clow

Funeral arrangements are pending at Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home for Raymond Clinton Clow, 52, who was found dead about 6:30 a. m. today at 1214 W. 4th. He lived at 209 1/2 Gregg and was visiting with a friend at the time of his death.

Justice of the Peace Walter Grice conducted an inquest, but he has not yet ruled on the cause of death.

Mr. Clow, who listed his permanent address as Phoenix, Ariz., was working as a dental laboratory technician at the Crane Dental Laboratory, Permian Building.

He was born June 3, 1910 at LaMar, Colo., and spent two years with the U.S. Army medical branch during World War II as a laboratory technician.

Lending Practice Trends Discussed

Trends in agriculture and recent changes in Farmers Home Administration lending practices were discussed at a meeting of supervisors and committeemen here Tuesday.

Milton A. Stinson, the agency's area supervisor, conducted the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce conference room. Attending were Lee Tunnell, Howard County; James Johnson, Glasscock County; D. M. Costlow and his committee, Martin County; Billy J. Tilger and his committee, Dawson County.

Stinson reported that the FHA has 225 million dollars allocated for use nationally for operating loans during the fiscal year 1963. Of this $60 million has been allocated to Howard Glasscock counties. Besides the operating loans, some eight million dollars has been set aside for rural housing loans in Texas.

McCann's Hearing Scheduled Friday

Rodney R. McCann, Big Spring contractor, who is under a 5-year probation sentence for making false affidavits concerning the financial status of property he is handling, is to face court Friday at 10 a. m. and learn if his probation is to be set aside.

Dist. Atty. Gil Jones has filed an application in the 118th District Court asking that the 5-year probation sentence given McCann Sept. 12 be revoked. Jones alleges in his petition that McCann has violated the terms of his probation by writing worthless checks.

After Mr. Rathbone's performance, I counted over 50 sparkling-eyed youngsters backstage seeking his autograph. As Mr. Rathbone's notoriety occurred long before these youngsters were born, I must then assume and hope that a few members of the audience could engage in fantasy and feel the drama of this "old style acting." At the risk of being redundant, I must add that I too enjoyed the performance.

Sincerely,
JACK H. BURNETT, Jr., M.D.

Trial Jury Rules For Landowners

A Howard County Court jury ruled Wednesday afternoon that W. W. Posey and his wife were entitled to be paid $4,479 more than they had received for .067 of an acre of their land taken by the state for right-of-way purposes.

They had originally been paid $15,947. The jury fixed the value of their land damages at $20,426.

The case had come to court on appeal brought by the state. The highway department felt that the sum set by a special commission for the land was excessive and had filed an appeal in the county court. Trial of the case opened on Tuesday and continued until almost 7 p. m. Wednesday. The jury deliberated 1 1/2 hours before reaching a decision.

This is one of a series of appeals brought by the state against findings of special commissions on right of way involved in the widening of US 87 north. The state has lost all of the appeals to date.

Judge Ed Carpenter said that he has set down another right-of-way matter for disposition in his court Dec. 4. This is a series of four cases brought by H. S. Moss and others over small tracts of land involved in IS 20 development and the total amount involved is around $35,000. Moss and his associates brought this appeal.

Contractor Puts Down Paving Base

The bases for paving Birdwell Lane, Brown, and Austin streets, have been poured, and San Jacinto Street base will be poured as soon as a wet spot dries out.

W. D. Caldwell, contractor, will begin putting on the topping as soon as possible. The hot asphalt mix will be applied to all the bases at one time because of the problem of heating up the mix.

Birdwell is being paved from East Fifteenth to Marcy; Brown and San Jacinto from West Third to West Fourth, and Austin from 100 feet south of East Third to Fourth.

appropriate United Nations observation and supervision."

There has been talk, since of the Red Cross filling this role. Salinger also was asked if the plan for a Navy check would have any effect on U.S. insistence upon on-the-spot verification inside Cuba. He said he was not prepared to go beyond the Pentagon statement.

SHIPS LEAVING
The announcement said: "The Soviet Union has reported that ships are leaving Cuba with missiles aboard."

"Arrangements are being made with Soviet representatives for contact with these ships by United States naval vessels and for shipping the missiles being scuttled out."

The statement was issued after President Kennedy met with the executive committee of the National Security Council.

Later, at the United Nations, authoritative sources said the Soviet Union first proposed last Sunday that the U.S. Navy inspect outbound Soviet ships. Agreement on details was reached late Wednesday, the sources said.

They added that the Soviet Union had made the proposal because of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's opposition to international inspectors in Cuba. The sources said the United States was "quite happy" with the agreement as far as it goes, but "it's not a complete substitute for on-the-ground inspection."

NOT ONLY FLY
In Washington, there is widespread belief that Castro is not the only fly in the inspection ointment. Despite the tight secrecy with which the Kennedy administration has now surrounded negotiations on Cuba there is reason to believe that Soviet representatives have been trying to chisel away Khrushchev's commitment to international inspection.

For one thing, his chief Cuban crisis negotiator at the United Nations, Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov, has been stalling on final agreement for removal of IL28 jet bombers from Cuba. U.S. officials seem confident that they will be withdrawn eventually.

Poppy Day Sale Set Saturday

The American Legion Auxiliary continues a custom started following WWI Saturday when their annual sale of Buddy Poppies is scheduled.

The project remains tri-fold in purpose according to Mrs. C. Roscoe Cone, chairman. Wearing of the Buddy Poppy started as an honor to the American servicemen who did not return from the flower covered battlefields of France. The modern version of this tribute has been extended to include the memory of the American Veterans of all wars and is traditionally held on Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

Wearing Buddy Poppies also assists disabled veterans in VA Hospitals. They make the paper replicas of the Flanders Field Flowers and sell them to various American Legion Auxiliaries throughout the world. As a third benefit the Auxiliaries dedicate all funds above the poppy cost, to an Auxiliary rehabilitation program.

In Big Spring the annual budget of the local unit's VA Hospital Christmas Gift program, which provides patients with presents, gift wrapping and mailing at no cost to the veteran, is principally borne with the revenue from the annual poppy day program. Donations above expenses usually provide some $500 of the cost of the program.

While the term, Poppy Day Sale, has been tagged on the annual program, Mrs. Cone stressed the fact that no sale is involved. While donations from dimes to dollars are accepted, the Auxiliary wishes everyone to wear and recognize the day in tribute to the war dead. Poppies are furnished whether or not a donation is made.

Cosponsor and special advisor to the auxiliary this year is past commander of the Legion Post, George Zachariah, who will make the first donation. As mayor of the city of Big Spring, Zachariah has commended the Auxiliary program and is calling on the citizens to remember the occasion in solemn tribute by wearing a poppy. Zachariah also urges attendance at the community memorial service to be held at the VA Hospital.

Mrs. Johnnie Morrison, Auxiliary president, has issued a call for all members to be on hand Saturday to insure success for the program. Headquarters will be set up in the Settles Hotel Saturday morning. In addition to members, several youth groups will assist.

Team Preview Given Lions

Downtown Lions were given a preview Wednesday of Howard County Junior College basketball prospects.

D. E. (Buddy) Travis, coach, introduced members of the squad, which has more experience and height. However, the calibre of opposition booked for the year make it unlikely last year's won-lost record will be equalled, he said.

With him were Verdel Turner, assistant coach; Walter Carter, Ernest Turner, Lou Baleson, Jim Wilburn, Bill Thompson and Conroy Lacy, lettermen; Dick Ebling, Charles Cumber, Bruce Lockwood, Willie Sinches, Jim Oldham, Jackie Swammer, freshmen; and David McNalley, manager. This year, said Travis, five pre-season games have been booked in Kansas against some of the toughest teams in the nation.

Dr. P. W. Malone urged all members of the club, together with their families, to participate Sunday in the Sabin polio vaccine project.

The club gave its backing to the board of directors in announcing Louis Carothers as the clubs candidate for district 2A-1 governor of Lions International. Carothers has served as a zone chairman and district deputy as well as in numerous posts of the local club, including the presidency.

James Tidwell, president, announced that the chicken-chill dinner, an aftermath of the light bulb sale, would be held Monday evening at the Dora Roberts Student Union Building. This will be a ladies night affair.

Martin Seeks To Hush Bowl Talk On Campus

By The Associated Press. It hints at overconfidence when a team with a 4-2 record and such powers as Louisiana State and Texas to play starts talking about bowl games. Apparently that's what Coach Abe Martin of Texas Christian was trying to combat when he spoke sharply about all the bowl talk on the TCU campus. "You can't stop them from talking," Martin said, "but they'd better keep their powder dry. They're not going to win any day-dreaming. We have four games. We have to win all before we go anywhere—before we get invited anywhere." The Horned Frogs were reminded of the perils of thinking about a game too far ahead as they wound up practice for the day in preparation for the clash with Louisiana State Saturday night at Baton Rouge. "There was no bowl talk elsewhere in the Southwest Conference while the teams prepped for crucial games. Texas, which faces Baylor at Waco, was working hard trying to build a pass defense the Bears couldn't puncture. Baylor was trying to see that the Longhorns couldn't accomplish it. Practice was devoted largely to passing, with Don Trull, the conference's leading flogger, hitting his receivers with alarming force—regularly. Southern Methodist had two new starters with Lewis Albright advanced to left half and John Richey to right half. Injured backs Billy Gannon and Jon Ed Clarke are not expected to play when the Methodists play Texas A&M at Dallas Saturday. Texas A&M, on the other hand, had injuries pile up on it. End James Drennan and fullback Lee Roy Cayfee were not expected to be able to play against SMU.

Star Needs 25 Yards In Game Friday Night

SAN BENITO, Tex. (AP) — A husky young fellow who has had a dozen runs of more than 50 yards in his 30-game career will be trying for the 3,000-yard mark Friday night. He is Jim Helms, son of the San Benito High School coach, J. W. Helms, and more than 40 colleges have expressed interest in having him as a student. He has carried the ball 2,975 yards and no one doubts that he will make the 25 yards necessary when San Benito plays Mercedes. Helms broke his ankle in training as a freshman and played only a few games although he was ticketed as a starter. In his sophomore year he ran for 810 yards and scored 56 points. In his junior year he romped for 1,321 yards and 130 points. And this season—his last in high school—he has gained 844 yards in seven games and scored 83 points. Helms has been the sensation of the Rio Grande Valley of Texas ever since he stepped on a football field. He has two runs of 94 yards among his collection but an even better football player. Helms is making a great finish to his career. In the last two games he has done some of his finest running. Against Falluritas this season he ran 20 yards for a touchdown, took a kick back 70 yards for another and intercepted a pass and sped 60 yards to a score. San Benito is a Class AAA school in the Texas Interscholastic League setup but the big schools have all looked alike to Helms. For instance, against Harlingen of Class AAAA he scored touchdowns on runs of 94, 60, 5 and 1 yard. He was selected on the all-state team last season and should make it in a breeze this year since he's an even better football player. Helms is making a great finish to his career. In the last two games he has done some of his finest running.

Graham Lauds '59 Q'Back

By OTTO GRAHAM. Coach, Coast Guard Academy. My sweetest college football game was not one I played in, but one I coached. It was won by forward passes pegged by Larry Dallaire, our cool, little Coast Guard quarterback from Salem, Mass., against Wesleyan University Oct. 10, 1959. We had lost our first two games in that, my freshman year of coaching, and it looked like a long, rough season until Dallaire began spiraling the football along a 90-yard fourth quarter drive. Wesleyan ate us up at the start, leading 20-0. But our kids rallied, coming back for a touchdown, an extra point and a field goal on the final play of the first half for a 10-9 lead at half-time. We held the lead through a scoreless third quarter and were still hanging on midway of the fourth period when he tried a flat pass. Disaster struck. Jim Thomas, Wesleyan back, picked it out of the damp salt air and raced 40 yards down the sidelines for a touchdown that put the Cardinals in front 15-10 with only four minutes to play. Adding to our troubles, after the kickoff and a penalty, we were pinned down back on our 10 and had to start from there. Then Dallaire began throwing those down-and-out forward passes and the Cadets started moving. We made the 5-yard line in less than two minutes and Dallaire punched it over from there in two plays. We kicked the goal to win 17-15.

Longhorns Are 1-2 In 2-4A Receptions

Odessa Periman's Mike Love is almost certain to go over the 1,000 yard mark in rushing gains this season, barring injury. Through seven games, the big fullback has gained exactly 900 yards in 124 carries for a 7.3-yard average. A distant second in the race is Abilene's Rusty Harris, who has picked up 688 yards in 108 lunges for a 6.4-yard average. David Jefferies of Abilene High remains the top passer, with 46 completions in 97 tries for 627 yards. He's had 12 losses intercepted by the opposition. Big Spring's Albert Fierro is second, with 30 completions which have gone for 565 paces. Humberto Hernandez, Big Spring, is the leading receiver in yards gained, with 304 yards in a dozen receptions. He's followed by a teammate, Eddy Nelson, who has gathered in 14 aeriels for 271 yards. The lad who has caught the most passes is David Bearden of Abilene, who has accepted 17 passes and has gone for 267 yards in gains. Hernandez also leads in touchdowns scored as the result of passes, with four. Individual statistics:

Don Cherry In Auspicious Debut As A Pro Linkster

Boundary Dispute

This map of the area along the Rio Grande at El Paso and Ciudad Juarez, shows a small piece of territory known as El Chamizal which is the cause of a big international headache. The piece of land, originally Mexican, was left on the United States side of the river when the stream wandered out of its original bed in 1864. It was then only a few hundred acres of almost worthless brushland, but now it is the site of homes, businesses and a stockyard. Cordova Island, which is not an island, is part of Mexico although north of the Rio Grande. It is hoped that some deal can be worked out whereby Mexico would cede part of Cordova to the U.S. in return for part of El Chamizal.

Midland Mother, Of GOP, Is Elected County Judge

MIDLAND (AP)—An attractive 36-year-old Midland mother of two boys who was "interested in getting a two-party system started" Tuesday won election as Midland County judge.

Barbara G. Culver thus becomes the first woman ever to be elected to the post in Midland and probably the first woman Republican ever to be elected a county judge in Texas.

Mrs. Culver, in complete but unofficial returns, defeated the incumbent, Noel D. Cason, 6,949 to 6,789. Cason, rounding out his sixth year in office, was appointed to the post to fill a vacancy in 1956 and subsequently was elected to a four year term.

Mrs. Culver and her husband, John R. Culver, both are engaged in law practice in Midland. Culver is a former city attorney here and his wife served as an assistant city attorney during that time.

A native of Dallas where she attended public school and graduated from Highland Park High School, Mrs. Culver received a bachelor of arts degree in journalism from Texas Tech at Lubbock. After she and her husband were married, they attended the SMU School of Law, graduating in June 1951.

Aggies Don't Part Easily With Their Class Rings

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—Most men finally drop their rings in a dresser drawer and forget them. For Texas A&M College graduates it takes longer. A lot longer.

So with the Aggies' well-known affection for their rings, some of them pop up in the oddest places after being lost or stolen. And persons who know the Aggies go to great lengths to get them returned.

Some of the rings have been recovered in foreign nations, various states and at scattered points in Texas.

STOLEN RING
Take the case of the stolen ring found beside the body of a Chinese soldier in Korea in 1953.

The owner of the ring lived in Corpus Christi and had not seen his Class of 1945 ring since it was stolen in 1952. The Aggie said he put the ring in his wife's purse prior to going on a fishing trip and the purse was stolen from their car.

A moving tribute to the A&M College ring and the way Aggies feel about it was paid by W. L. White in his book, "Queens Die Proudly." The book was published in 1943 and tells the story of a group of B17 Flying Fortress bombers and their crews during the earliest days of World War II.

An Aggie lost it en route to the West Coast. He told the Association of Former Students office that the ring slipped from his fingers while he and his wife played in the snow.

"We searched the area for about four hours trying to find it," the Aggie wrote to B. Dick Hervey, executive secretary of the Association.

HE KNEW
"So I went down to the line for the last time alone," Kurtz said later, "and took from each the thing I thought he valued most."

And when I came to Tex (Gary) at the end of the line—it had to be his A&M ring, the thing he was proudest of, and I knew he'd want to send it to his mother."

Another Aggie serving during World War II left his ring with his wife. Shortly after, her purse was stolen. In July of 1951 a former student spotted the ring, learned the man had no right to wear it, recovered it and sent the ring to the rightful owner.

Another ring was recovered after an even longer period—nine years—and in a completely different section of the state from where it was lost. "The Texas Aggie," the newspaper of the Former Students Association told how the ring was lost at Brownsville by a member of the Class of 1945 when it slipped from his finger as he washed his hands and went down a lavatory drain.

LOST IN SNOW
Another member of the Class of 1945 noted the ring on a 10-year-old boy's key chain while teaching school at Lubbock. The boy told his teacher an older brother found the ring a few months earlier while working with the street cleaning department of Lubbock.

Both the man who lost the ring and the one who recovered it were classmates at Marfa High School. It was not an Aggie but a man living not far from the campus who found a ring near the Continental Divide in the Colorado Rockies. The Bryan resident found the ring while he and his family vacationed in Colorado.

In at least one case an A&M ring, plus the proper answers to questions about Aggie land, identified an officer in a top secret zone before D-Day in Normandy.

Texas Aggies are zealous in protecting their ring from being worn improperly, as the files of the Association of Former Students show. Being friendly by tradition, an Aggie soon learns if the man wearing the ring has a right to do so. More than one counterfeit ring has turned up. Quick legal action is taken in such cases.

A truck driver from South Carolina wrote recently to the office of Dean of Students James P. Hammigan to report finding a ring at a truck stop in New Jersey. "The man said he had known Aggies and knew what their rings meant to them and wanted us to find the owner," Mrs. Laura B. Brady, the dean's secretary, explained. And they did just that, returning the ring to its rightful owner.

A LONG WAIT
Lt. John E. Harris of the Class of 1942 was piloting a B17 on a bomber mission to Stuttgart, Germany, in the spring of 1944 when his plane was attacked by German fighters. Shortly after the plane exploded.

It was after V-E Day that Army personnel visited the swamp where the bomber crashed. The remains of Lt. Harris and two other crewmen were returned in a common casket and buried in the National Cemetery at Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Harris still mourned the loss of her son and pondered the question of where was the ring which he always wore.

The years passed and in the spring of 1952 a missionary returning from Africa wrote to her. He told of meeting aboard a ship a Methodist minister from Latvia whose son-in-law lived in Germany and while salvaging the wreck of a bomber found a Texas A&M College ring. The minister explained that due to customs regulations, they had not sent the ring to the United States.

A quick message to the Army and within a few weeks the mother had possession of her son's valued ring.

Downing Of U2 Plane

This is the front page of the Havana, Cuba, newspaper Revolucion of Nov. 5, which headlines two photos which it claims are the wreckage of the United States U2 reconnaissance plane in which Maj. Rudolf Anderson was shot down and killed. Caption under the pictures reads: "Wreckage of the North American U2 plane shot down over Cuba while engaged on an espionage mission."

Plant's Move To New City Called A Success

EDITOR'S NOTE — What is one community's gain often means heartbreak for another — when a factory relocates in a new territory. That is the story of the move of the Norge division of the Borg-Warner Corp. last year from Muskegon, Mich., to Fort Smith, Ark.

By JOHN R. STARR

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—The wedding of Borg-Warner Corp.'s huge Norge division and this one-time frontier city promises, after a year, to become a long, happy marriage.

Fort Smith is ready, willing and eager for other industrial giants to cast interested eyes in this direction.

Fort Smith, which won fame as a jumping off place to Oklahoma Territory, is playing a new role as a landing place for industry.

The 2,100 jobs created at Norge's $20-million plant are among 6,500 collected by Fort Smith in the past two years.

Norge was the big one, and city officials say Borg-Warner's decision to move here from Muskegon, Mich., may have a long-range effect far more beneficial than its physical contribution of jobs and an estimated $10-million annual payroll.

me that if they knew circumstances would be such, they would have taken transfers."

AGE BARRIER

Pickard, 52, represents workers who are up against the age barrier in seeking new employment.

Michigan Employment Security Commission branch spokesmen agree that placing older Norge workers has been a major problem. Recently the commission posted a call for foundry help. The age limit for prospective employes was 40.

"On the other hand," Pickard continues, "there's this federal retraining program. You've got a 55-year age limit there and no doubt even that is too old because industry wouldn't hire you once you did graduate."

Greater Muskegon was lifted this summer from the ranks of distressed employment areas. Security commission figures Aug. 9 showed unemployment down to about 4.3 per cent of the total work force.

Hiring by several other Muskegon industrial firms has taken up a sizable number of younger ex-Norge employes.

LONG WAY

But it still is a long way from replacing Norge's annual payroll of $9 to $13 million and tax revenue of about $214,000. Muskegon

Heights cut its 1962 operating budget $100,000 to cope with the loss of Norge tax payments.

For the "tragic 300," however, little hope shines.

"A few of them were fortunate to find industrial jobs in other cities nearby," says Pickard. "Some have found jobs as sweepers or elevator operators."

Greater Muskegon is turning to other means of attracting revenue to help offset the Norge plant loss. Muskegon Heights industrialist C. J. Buehrle has completed negotiations for purchasing the plant which will be razed in part to permit construction of a shopping center.

PRESTIGE

"Norge's coming here was a tremendous thing for the prestige of our city," says Mayor Bob Brooksher. "It has caused other industries to come here."

Collier Wenderoth Jr., a poultry processing and feed executive who heads Fort Smith's aggressive Chamber of Commerce, says location of Borg-Warner here has created a new pride and enthusiasm among citizens.

Since Norge came, Fort Smith voters have approved a $2.1-million bond issue for new schools and $1.5 million for a civic auditorium by votes of 10 to 1.

The plant, dedicated Feb. 1, sprawls over 25 acres under one roof.

The massive task of retraining more than 2,000 factory workers is over. Of the 1,800 persons employed by Norge at Muskegon, 100 supervisory personnel and about 50 production workers made the move to Fort Smith. About 20 of these have returned to Michigan.

NO DIFFICULTY

Plant manager Ken Anderson says the training program presented no great difficulty.

"Our new employes learned readily," he says. "One of the key factors in our decision to locate here was the pool of available manpower."

Anderson would not discuss the wage scales, since the company is negotiating with the same union which organized its workers at Muskegon. "But we pay as well as corresponding industries in this area," he said.

But It's Hard For The Losers

By EDWARD J. MARKAITT

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP)—"There must be some reason they won't hire us. I wish I knew what it is."

This is the frustration still echoed by a hard core of some 300 veteran workers seeking other employment here since their jobs were among 1,800 lost by the move of Borg-Warner Corp. Norge division to Fort Smith, Ark.

Spokesman DeWayne Pickard, former vice president of Allied Industrial Workers Local 404 at the Norge plant is among those who haven't found work.

Norge offered a limited number of transfers to skilled personnel but had only about 50 takers. Most declined to move because of strong ties to this area and a willingness to take their chances on finding new jobs.

"I run into many others like myself," says Pickard. "Some tell

Topper For Toddler? A Red One Preferred

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 6-year-old toddled into a toy shop in swank Beverly Hills the other day and ordered:

"A wig, please. I want a red one."

Minutes later, she tucked her blonde ringlets under the hairpiece and walked out a redhead.

It was the latest episode of a female phenomenon that might well tag 1962 as the Year of the Wig.

HAIR SHORTAGE NOW

Wigs have baffled police, caused rifts in otherwise stable marriages and deflated otherwise paunchy wallets. They have even caused a hair shortage.

Fred Fredericks, head of the wig department at one of the nation's largest hairpieces manufacturers, swears this one's true:

A woman whose husband hates wigs bought one anyway. At the same time, she purchased a hair net and sewed curlers into it.

At night, the story goes, she waits until her husband is asleep, climbs out of bed and hides her wig in a drawer. Then she puts on the hair net and goes to sleep in curlers.

The next morning, she eats breakfast with her husband, wearing the hair net. When he leaves for work, she removes the net and puts the wig back on.

"She told me," says Fredericks, "that her husband was gloating the other day over how much better

Wig Problem

Gloria Price, wearing a red number, can't make up her mind how many more to buy.

she looks since she's been fixing her own hair."

NOW IN SYNTHETICS
Wigs, once worn only by actresses or gentlemen with thinning pates, began to catch on three years ago with the high fashion set. They were ideal, reasoned the ladies, between trips to the hairdresser—or after a dip in the pool.

So popular did they become—and so fervently did manufacturers follow the rage—that today you can buy a wig of synthetic hair, little girl size, for $6, or one made in Paris of real hair for $500. There are do-it-yourself wig kits. And one firm offers "his" and "hers" combos, the guy's dyed to match the gal's.

Bargain basements sell wigs for $35, cut rate drug stores for $12. But those aren't of real hair. They're saran or other substitutes, like a doll's wig.

A real hair wig costs about $250—blondes slightly higher. And that's about $100 more than wigs were before the craze began.

THEY'RE BIG BUSINESS
"There's a hair shortage," explains Fredericks. "As a result, inflation's hit the hair market. We buy it from France and Italy, and some blonde from Scandinavia. But the demand's been so great, the price has shot up from $45 a pound to $145."

Wigs have become big business. The Wall Street Journal front-paged a report recently that hair imports totaled $280,000 in 1961 and have already surpassed that figure this year.

Research laboratories are getting in on the act. They're looking for a cheap substitute that looks, feels and wears better than real hair.

NAMES HER WIGS
Despite the price, some women buy several. Los Angeles hairdresser Don Beck has a customer with four—all named.

"She's named the brown one Mimi," says Beck, "an almost black one Cleo; Lucia's the blonde one and Sophie's the red wig."

POLICE GRATEFUL
Beverly Wylie, 22, may have had only one wig—but it was enough for Hollywood police.

They arrested Miss Wylie, a brunette, as the suspected blonde bandit in a liquor store holdup. Her car's license plate matched the number taken down by a witness to the crime.

But the clincher, police said, was the platinum wig they found on the back seat.

Creative Art Display Presented For Club

Creative art was displayed for members of the Big Spring Garden Club Wednesday morning in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Gas Co.

Introduced by the club president, Mrs. J. E. Hogan, the speaker was Mrs. Harry Krist of Midland. She presented an array of ornaments and decorative pieces which she had created, explaining methods for producing each.

Noted in the exhibit was a wall hanging, sprayed in gold and made from a casement screen. A styrofoam violin, which could be substituted by a toy violin, and musical notes were attached with the word "Peace" lettered below.

Two holiday cloths were shown, one of which was white net over white outing. The net was applied with silvered felt knife, fork and spoon, while felt plate outlined with silver sequins and the words "It's Christmas—Eat, Drink and Be Merry" lettered in silver.

A topiary tree, based in a cylinder, was topped with a paper honeycomb ball, sprayed brown and adorned with small Christmas baubles in each section. A milk carton, cut in two, formed points at the four corners and V-shaped sides. This was covered with red flocked wallpaper. Inside was suspended a Christmas bauble; with ribbon bow at the top, it was an overhead ornament.

Cylinders from foil, paper towels, etc. were sprayed and made to appear as wood wind chimes. Bells, inside the cylinders, were strung on ribbons.

Mrs. Krist had many bottles to show, including a tall, slender one which was topped with a small bottle, formerly containing flavoring. Some were sprayed, others were crystal, and there were those which she had decorated with fruit made of children's play dough.

Also in the collection were waste baskets covered with water repellent velveteen, appliqued wall hangings of velveteen; and magnolia leaves treated in anti-freeze.

Another special attraction was a bottle for the bathroom filled with homemade bath salts. Mrs. Krist gave her recipe for making the colored crystals, as follows:

2 cups epsom salts
1/2 cup Calgon
Few drops of favorite cologne
Few drops of desired cake coloring

Mix well in a bowl and fill bottle with the sparkling, fragrant crystals.

Hostesses for the morning were Mrs. J. P. Dodge and Mrs. H. M. Compton. Twenty-four members were served from the refreshment table which was spread with a Madeira cutwork cloth. A pyramid of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, arranged by Mrs. John Coffee, formed the centerpiece which was flanked by ceramic turkeys.

Mexican Missions Program Topic

Mrs. V. Phillips presented the program, "A Vigorous Minority in Mexico," at the monthly Royal Service meeting of the Baptist Temple Women's Missionary Union Tuesday night.

It was in the form of a make-believe tour of Mexico to inspect the Baptist work being done there in hospitals, schools and missions.

After the closing prayer by Mrs. A. W. Page, 27 members were served a Mexican supper. The buffet table was centered with a Mexican hat filled with fruit and vegetables. Decorations carried out the Mexican theme.

Beauty Suggestions From Famous Stars

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — (Editor's Note: Lydia Lane invites your letter but regrets that a personal answer cannot be given. From time to time, she will answer beauty problems in her column. If you would like your question and answer to appear in this space, write Lydia Lane, Questions and Answers, P. O. Box 1111, Los Angeles 53, California. (Or: Lydia Lane, Questions and Answers, Big Spring Herald.)

Q—I am 22 and I still have to put padding in my brassiere. I don't want to gain weight but I would like to gain inches in my chest measurements. What do the stars do to be so well developed?

A—Terry Moore recommends this exercise: "Do the breast stroke in the water if you can find a place to swim. But if you can't, try the same movement while lying across the bed. Be sure to have your arms and shoulders free from the mattress and pretend to swim, breathing as you stroke. If you work every day, you should eventually find your blouses too tight."

Q—I enjoy what you write about

A—Joan Weldon, who was touring for one year in a musical, reduced by following this plan: "You have to have your heart in it and never for one moment feel sorry that you can't eat the foods you've given up. I black-listed all desserts except fruit and custard. I had no bread, pastries, pasta, fried foods, no snacks except skim or buttermilk. I had all the fruit, salads, meat and vegetables. I wanted, and I had lost weight every time I weighed, which was every Sunday morning."

Q—I am 16 and not considered pretty, and I do not have a lot of money to spend on my clothes. I am going to college next year and I would appreciate any help you can give to help me be more attractive.

A—Olivia de Havilland says, "Don't put too much emphasis on being pretty. Be encouraged that many famous women in history were not in the least beautiful but they created a personal magnetism. In choosing clothes, be sure they look well together and are clean and pressed. Unity is the key. Don't pick up a skirt here and a sweater there, but plan a costume that is pleasing together in every detail."

For King Or Kids

Fit for a king or kids is this English Tea Ring that Mrs. James C. Jones offers friends who call. Delicious served alone for a youngster's snack or with coffee or tea, the yeast roll has a spicy filling of nuts.

Cooking For Crowd Or Camp Comes Easy

"I love to cook—period!" exclaimed Mrs. James C. Jones, as she cut generous pieces of her popular English Tea Ring for son, Sammy, and a waiting Herald photographer.

Surprisingly, the Jones family is a pretty trim bunch. This surely requires a great deal of restraint. Watching calories must be a constant vigil, considering the culinary activities always going on in the kitchen at 1407 E. 19th St.

Mrs. James is known among her club and church friends for the luscious-looking desserts she serves at social meetings. Often rich, they are usually different and always good. Of them all, husband James prefers pecan pie but places her lemon chiffon next on the favored list. Their oldest son, Jimmy, is a "cake" man, and has been known to devour a good part of a devil's-food-with-white-icing.

Sammy, 10, spoke up to say that what he likes better than anything is the dessert that his mother makes "with the gooey cocoanut on top." Mrs. Jones explained that he was referring to her version of German Chocolate cake.

"My mother encouraged me to enjoy cooking and still sends me recipes in letters," said Mrs. Jones. "The egg noodles I use are made from one of her recipes and I think it's the best I've found." Since Mr. Jones and the boys enjoy hunting, she has learned to cook dove and quail in several appetizing ways. The freezer often contains venison steak that she treats by soaking in milk prior to cooking. This reduces the gamey taste. "The boys are wanting to bring home a sand hill crane now so I'll welcome advice on how to cook one of those," she said.

Camp cooking is another matter—and one that Mrs. Jones gets

Cider With Ice Cream Is Zesty

"Cider Whiz," so simple as to be in the "why didn't someone think of it before" category, blends cider and vanilla ice cream in a drink that tastes something like apple pie à la mode.

CIDER WHIZ
1 quart cider, chilled
1 tsp. sugar
Dash salt
1 qt. vanilla ice cream
Pour cider into the large bowl of an electric mixer. Add sugar, salt and half the quart (one pint) ice cream. Beat at medium speed until well combined. Pour into six to eight tall glasses and float a portion of the remaining ice cream on top of each drink. Serves six to eight.

Age Decides On Tastes In Foods

Students of all ages have favorite foods. They like certain kinds of sandwiches, sweets and, of course, there is favoritism in soup varieties. Surveys disclose that the preferred soups of grade and high school pupils are noodle soups like chicken, turkey or beef; chicken soups with rice, vegetables or cream-style; vegetable soups of all kinds including tomato, bean with bacon, and green pea.

Weekend Cooking

Easy weekend cooking: make extra meat loaf and serve it sliced and cold, along with coleslaw, as a filling for sandwiches.

Pumpkin Pudding Is Lunch Box Favorite

Out of the mouths of babes, with the help of their lunchroom staff and other school personnel, comes a recipe for pumpkin chiffon pudding.

When the children of California's Orangevale School District (Sacramento County) chose some of their favorite school lunch recipes, this delectable dish was a high spot among the desserts.

What other foods do these youngsters especially like? Salad dressings, yes—four recipes are favorites. Interesting here is that three of the rules contain catchup!

Beef rates high in main dishes. The children like sauteed ground beef in a barbecue sauce, served on split hamburger buns. They like ground beef mixed with cooked vegetables and topped with mashed potatoes for a "pie." Baked lasagne is another choice. So is an interesting version of tamale pie.

Other main-dish favorites are frankfurters baked with rice and cheese custard, and macaroni and cheese.

For dessert, besides the pumpkin chiffon pudding, the boys and girls favor a fruit cup made with bananas, oranges, apple and canned pineapple; apple cake and an apple crisp pudding with an oatmeal topping; and two sorts of peanut butter cookies—one plain, the other chocolate flavored.

Here is the recipe for the pumpkin chiffon pudding, just as the youngsters enjoy it in the school lunchroom. When it was tried at our house, we found it a spicy concoction that takes to a topping of whipped cream. The California school lunch program recipe uses plain graham crackers for the pudding's base. If you wish to enrich this, mix 1/2 cup graham crackers with 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine and press this combination against the bottom and sides of the pudding dish, then turn in the chilled pumpkin-gelatin mixture.

PUMPKIN CHIFFON PUDDING
3 tbsps. cold water
1 tsp. plain gelatin
1 cup brown sugar

Quick And Easy Chocolate Sauce

This is the thick "sticky" sort of chocolate sauce that is always popular with young and old.

MINUTE CHOCOLATE SAUCE
1 pkg. (6 oz. or 1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1/2 cup dark corn syrup
2 tbsps. butter
1/4 cup water
1 tsp. vanilla

In a heavy saucepan heat the chocolate, 1/2 cup of the corn syrup, the butter and water over low heat, stirring, until chocolate is completely melted and mixture is blended. Remove from heat; stir in the remaining 1/2 cup corn syrup and the vanilla. Serve hot, warm or cold, depending on the texture you like—sauce is "thickest" when cold. Makes about 1 1/2 cups. Store any leftover sauce in covered jar in refrigerator and re-heat over hot water.

Lemon Crunchies For After School

If your youngsters like the crunchy texture that cornmeal gives when it is used "as is" in a baked product, you may wish to try this cookie recipe.

CORNMEAL LEMON COOKIES

1 1/2 cups sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup enriched white cornmeal
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening
1 egg
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts
Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, cornmeal and sugar into a mixing bowl. Add shortening, egg, lemon rind, vanilla and milk. Beat until smooth—2 minutes or longer. Shape dough into small balls; dip tops in walnuts. Place, about 2 inches apart, on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven about 15 minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool. Makes about 3 1/2 dozen.

U.S. Envoy Walks Out

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — U.S. Minister Eugenie Anderson walked out of a Soviet reception Wednesday night after Bulgarian President Dimitir Ganev accused the United States of piratical action against Cuba.

Ganev made the accusation in an address during the Soviet Embassy's reception in honor of the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution. It was attended by Sofia's diplomatic corps and chief delegates to the Bulgarian Communist party congress now being held here.

The guests also included Soviet chief ideologist Mikhail Suslov, and Blas Roca, former secretary general of the Cuban Communist party.

Ganev spoke after Soviet Ambassador Georgi A. Denisov addressed the guests. Denisov made a passing reference to American imperialism before launching into the familiar Soviet line that Premier Khrushchev saved the world from war by withdrawing Soviet missiles from Cuba.

Ganev said the United States had violated all international laws in trying "to put up the blockade around small but heroic Cuba, in beginning piratical action and in openly preparing an armed attack on revolutionary Cuba."

"I think we had better leave," said Mrs. Anderson to her American interpreter. They started out. Bulgarian government officials rushed over in an attempt to smooth things over, diplomatic informants said, but Mrs. Anderson would have none of it.

The Bulgarian press did not mention the incident today.

President Kennedy Names Nov. 22 As Thanksgiving Day

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has proclaimed Thursday, Nov. 22, as Thanksgiving Day and has urged all Americans to observe it "with reverence and with humility."

In a proclamation Wednesday, the President said "Let us renew the spirit of the Pilgrims at the first Thanksgiving, lonely in an inscrutable wilderness, facing the dark unknown with a faith borne of their dedication to God and a fortitude drawn from their sense that all men were brothers."

The text: "Over three centuries ago in Plymouth, on Massachusetts Bay, the Pilgrims established the custom of gathering together each year to express their gratitude to God for the preservation of their community and for the harvests their labors brought forth in the new land. Joining with their neighbors, they shared together and worshipped together in a common giving of thanks. Thanksgiving Day has ever since been part of the fabric which has united Americans with their past, with each other and with the future of all mankind.

"It is fitting that we observe this year our own day of Thanksgiving. It is fitting that we give our thanks for the safety of our land, for the fertility of our harvests, for the strength of our liberties, for the health of our people. We do so in no spirit of self-righteousness. We recognize that we are the beneficiaries of the toil and devotion of our fathers and that we can pass their legacy on to our children only by equal toil and equal devotion. We recognize too that we live in a world of peril and change—and in so uncertain a time we are all the more grateful for the indestructible gifts of hope and love, which sustain us in adversity and inspire us to labor unceasingly for a more perfect community within this nation and around the earth.

"Now, therefore, I, John F. Kennedy, President of the United States of America, in accord with the joint resolution of Congress, approved Dec. 26, 1941, which designates the fourth Thursday in November of each year as Thanksgiving Day, do hereby proclaim Thursday, the twenty-second day of November this year, as a day of national thanksgiving.

"I urge that all observe this day with reverence and with humility. "Let us renew the spirit of the Pilgrims at the first Thanksgiving, lonely in an inscrutable wilderness, facing the dark unknown with a faith borne of their dedication to God and a fortitude drawn from their sense that all men were brothers. "Let us renew that spirit by offering our thanks for uncounted mercies, beyond our desert or merit, and by resolving to meet the responsibilities placed upon us.

"Let us renew that spirit by sharing the abundance of this day with those less fortunate, in our own land and abroad. Let us renew that spirit by seeking always to establish larger communities of brotherhood.

"Let us renew that spirit by preparing our souls for the incertitudes ahead — by being always ready to confront crisis with steadfastness and achievement with grace and modesty.

"Let us renew that spirit by concerting our energy and our hope with men and women everywhere that the world may move more rapidly toward the time when Thanksgiving may be a day of universal celebration.

"Let us renew that spirit by expressing our acceptance of the limitations of human striving and by affirming our duty to strive nonetheless, as Providence may direct us, toward a better world for all mankind.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed."

Both Parties Find Cheer In Makeup Of New Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats and Republicans alike found something to cheer about today in the make-up of the new 88th Congress that will convene on Jan. 9.

For the Democrats, the big talking point was that they had not suffered the big losses that usually befall the party in power in an off-year election.

President Kennedy said in a statement issued by the White House that he was heartened by the outcome of Tuesday's elections and was certain Congress would meet its responsibilities "in a progressive and vigorous manner."

Republicans failed to make the gains they had hoped for in congressional races, but the GOP national chairman, William E. Miller, said he did not see in this "in any way an endorsement of the New Frontier and its programs."

The new line-up in the Senate will be 68 Democrats and 32 Republicans. This lifts the Democratic majority to the highest peak since they won 69 seats in the 1938 election. They had a 64-36 margin in the outgoing Congress.

In the House, where 435 seats were at stake this year, the Democrats captured 258 and the Republicans 176 and the Democrats were leading in one undecided race in Alaska. If the Democrats win this, they will have a hefty majority of 83.

Even so, the Democratic majority will be less than it was in the 87th Congress when there were 437 house seats and the Democrats held 263 and the Republicans 174.

Two seats were wiped out by reapportionment. The Democrats, in effect, absorbed the loss of these seats and in addition had suffered a net loss of four seats to the Republicans.

A White House spokesman contrasted these GOP inroads in the House with what he said was an average loss of 49 House seats by Democratic administrations in midterm elections in the past.

He also said that the average loss in the Senate for the party in power has been seven or eight seats since World War I, with the exception of 1934 when Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal was riding high.

While the administration gained strength in the Senate, it was there that it needed help the least. In the House, where Kennedy's proposals most frequently fell afoul of opposition from Republicans and Southern Democrats, the GOP whittled down the Democratic majority.

Over-all, the complexion of Congress does not appear to have been changed much although there will be 10 new senators and 58 new members of the House. In neither party were the top leaders unseated.

The last two Senate races to be decided were the re-election of Democrats Lister Hill of Ala-abama and Ernest Gruening of Alaska.

U.S. Continues Military Buildup

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Soldiers continued today to beef up military installations strung along the Florida Keys facing the coast of Cuba. Jet fighter planes blasted over the Florida Straits around the clock.

Installations supporting the buildup at Key West, site of a big Navy and air station only 90 miles from Havana, continued to spring up. Troops guarded them behind barbed wire barricades.

Winner

Joe Pool, Dallas Democrat candidate for Texas' new congressman-at-large seat, is shown as he made a television appearance after winning the election over Republican Desmond Barry of Houston.

K Seeks New Line To Cover Cuban Retreat

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
An AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev evidently is revising his diplomatic strategy to bring it into line with his nuclear weapons retreat from Cuba.

This may mean that he is dropping plans for an early showdown with the United States, Britain and France over the future of West Berlin.

It may also mean that the main Soviet emphasis in the next few months will be on a peace offensive, as developed in a variety of East-West negotiations, rather than on threats and pressures designed to achieve Kremlin purposes by brandishing Soviet power.

These are speculative conclusions suggested by remarks which the Soviet leader made Wednesday to reporters whom he met at a reception at Moscow. Authorities here noted that his tone was on the whole conciliatory and in accord with his published letters to President Kennedy when the Cuban missile crisis was at its height 10 days ago.

Perhaps the one remark he made which is of most interest to officials in Washington was "I was never in favor of a summit meeting" with President Kennedy. Reports of this remark were read here in the context of what most officials now believe to have been one of Khrushchev's principal purposes and possibly his main design in putting nuclear missiles into Cuba in the first place.

The belief that such a plan did in fact exist arises out of the timing of various Khrushchev maneuvers which pointed to an early effort on his part to force a Berlin showdown and, in that connection, to have a summit meeting with Kennedy. The assumption here is that he planned to use the Soviet buildup as a surprise move aimed at gaining U.S. concessions on Berlin.

Ever since Khrushchev's hand was called on his Cuba gambit and he chose to back down rather than face the grave dangers of a military conflict that could spread into a great nuclear war, U.S. officials have been watching for signs which would indicate Khrushchev's future strategy.

California Votes Nearly All In

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Twenty-four hours after the last polls closed, virtually all of the nearly 6 million votes cast in California's election Tuesday were counted and reported.

The polls in San Francisco closed at 8 p.m. Tuesday night. By 8 p.m. Wednesday night, all but 672 of the state's far-flung 31,820 precincts had been tallied.

By contrast, in the 1960 election, it was Thursday after the week following the voting before Richard M. Nixon won California from John F. Kennedy.

One county, Kern, used an electronic vote tabulator as an experiment in Tuesday's election. It counted more than 92,000 ballots in six hours and 50 minutes.

Atlas Logs Successful Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Atlas, a mainstay of America's military and space programs has logged its 150th flight with a successful 5,000-mile strike down the Atlantic Tracking Range.

The Air Force announced the rocket, an advanced F model, achieved all test goals on the flight Wednesday. A total of 108 of the shots were successful, 27 partially successful and 15 failures.

Pope Appeals For Charity

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII appealed Wednesday for justice and charity for all the needy peoples of the world.

The Roman Catholic ruler told his weekly general audience: "Listening to the news that comes to us from afar, we hear that millions of persons are dying of hunger. There are far off points in the world where, despite all we say and do, people do not succeed in obtaining what they have a full right to."

A Devotional For The Day

Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it. (Ephesians 5:25.)
PRAYER: O Father, we thank Thee for Thy church and for the privilege of sharing in its ministry to mankind. Keep us faithful in our efforts to strengthen Thy church. We pray in Jesus' name. Amen.
(From The 'Upper Room')

Ignore It At Our Own Peril

Partly because of enlightened considerations and partly because of a post-war population boom, we have been concerned in this country with greater support of education.
Education is no longer the fulfillment of a desire for mental luxury, or the catalyst for human creativity. It is a necessity.
A major portion of our local and state budgets is being applied to education, and there are pressures for more federal support, albeit if means can be devised to avoid control from that source. Much of the emphasis has been put upon the secondary system, and again properly so because here is where the population pressure has been immediate. Huge amounts have been spent in providing physical facilities and in seeking to upgrade the professional pay level. There will be continued demands in this direction, but more and more there will be an underlying condition of quality.
While excellence in secondary schools is obtainable (and should be sought constantly), it is most readily provided at the level of higher education where it is indeed a must. If we cast an anxious eye on what Russia is doing in missiles, we will also do well to keep our eyes on higher education trends. For if the fate of mankind is to be decided between the powerful ideas of freedom and communism, then we had better make sure that our young minds are given the best possible training.

William Benton, former U.S. senator, government official and encyclopedia editor, has listed some of his impressions after touring extensively in Russia. Of 50 million students at all levels in Russia, 2.3 million are in college. By 1980, Russia is aiming at 8 million in higher education. The higher education budget is rising at 8 to 10 per cent a year. In 1955 there were 35 universities in that country; now there are 42.
While this does not look into the content nor quality, it does reflect an emphasis on our adversary that we can ignore only at our own peril. The times demand trained minds and hands as well as dedicated hearts.

Open Season For Pundits

You may as well brace yourself for it. The next few weeks will be open season for political pontification as the experts (anyone with a typewriter) seek to bare the mysteries of the general election.
The conservatives can find in it unmistakable evidences of an uprising; the liberals will have unalterable examples of a trend to that side. The Republicans will point to key victories as being the really significant news; the Democrats will do the same.
So what have you got? Probably about as big a riddle as before the election. While Democratic strength has increased in the Senate, the shifting of faces in the House is not expected to alter the complex materially there.

One conclusion to be drawn from Tuesday's voting is that the voters do pretty much as they please, and sometimes they please to do the unexpected. Moreover, local issues and personalities frequently override national issues or what pundits have decided should qualify as national issues.
This is a time of ferment, a moment for the amalgamation of many streams with unpredictable eddies, whirls, and currents. It will be easy to become entranced by the isolated happenings and fail to perceive the overall tide when and if it begins to move.

Holmes Alexander Kennedy And Dulles

WASHINGTON — One of the best cartoons during the Cuban confrontation showed President Kennedy glancing over his shoulder to a bookshelf at a volume by John Foster Dulles: "Brinkmanship." There might have been another volume there by the same author: "Communism Is Immoral — So Is Neutralism."

BOTH THESE DULLES viewpoints are, of course, "extreme," and Mr. Kennedy, in the past, has denounced extremism. The President, however, is far from having an inflexible mind. He acknowledged in his October 22nd broadcast that the Russian spokesman had lied to him about the nature of their weapons in Cuba. This is going quite a way toward embracing the Dulles doctrine that no promises, pledges or protestations by the Reds are even worth considering.

While the President spoke that night, the folly and sin-of-omission of trusting in neutralism was being dramatized by the plight of a weak, trustful India under invasion by Red China. When we wonder how Mr. Kennedy has profited by his recent experiences, and wonder how he will handle the continuing world crisis, it is well to ask — will he take a leaf or so from the Dulles book of wisdom?

DULLES CAME slowly to his ultimate contempt for coexistence and non-alignment. He had preconceived religious positions, just as Mr. Kennedy has political ones. Dulles clung for a long while to the belief that Christian forbearance and charity are useful attitudes in forming opinions about the blatantly atheistic Communist system.

In the pre-Eisenhower Era, Dulles often tried to hard to be a non-extremist that he was sometimes non-committal, both on domestic and foreign affairs. His "non-partisan" stance caused his defeat for the Senate by Democratic Herbert Lehman. I remember interviewing Dulles at the 1952 Republican convention. He had just drafted a GOP foreign policy statement which was almost indistinguishable from the Democratic one. The talk at the Convention was that Dulles was so flexible he might be Secretary of State for either of the Republican contestants, Taft and Eisenhower, or even for a Democratic President.

THESE POINTS seem worth touching because they show how far a good man, Dulles or Mr. Kennedy — may have to move from experimental positions to solid ground. Dulles, in the early days, was preaching the same line we often hear by members of the Kennedy Administration. To wit: Capitalism isn't so good: Communism isn't all bad; perhaps we can accommodate our differences. On one occasion Dulles spoke at a large religious convocation, saying:

"We cannot expect the proponents of either State Socialism or Free Enterprise to abandon their beliefs. But they need not, on account of their beliefs, hate and despise each other. Only blind fanaticism looks upon either system as perfect."

BUT DULLES learned that this sweet reasonableness will not do for leading the U.S.A. in the Cold War. By the time of the Bandung Conference of neutral nations in 1955, Dulles had reached his doctrine of the "immorality" of neutrals. He persuaded President Eisenhower not to send greetings to that meeting of 29 Asian-African states. At the Belgrade Conference of 25 neutrals in 1961, Mr. Kennedy did send greetings of the warmest sort. He has rescinded the "immorality" concept.

Where does the President stand now? We had better hope that he is shedding sweet reasonableness. A leader must be willing to go to the brink, but that is not enough. He must go to the "extremes" of hating the enemy and of believing with blind fanaticism in his own country. That is how wars are won.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

The decision by the major steel producers to engage in price competition on the West Coast is a most welcome development in an industry which is in need of an infusion of new vigor.

In recent years the American steel industry has been plagued by substantial excess capacity and a decline of some 50 per cent in its share of the world export market. Moreover, the historical role of the United States as a net exporter of steel was reversed in 1959. Last year net imports amounted to 1.2 million tons.

Part of the difficulty is doubtless attributable to technological change. The development of new and lighter structural shapes, the widespread use of reinforced concrete and the introduction of nonferrous materials have all contributed to a relative decline in the demand for basic steel products. But critics charge that the substitution of new products for steel is accelerated by rigid pricing policies and the reluctance of the industry to engage in vigorous price competition. And they maintain that those same policies are also responsible for the industry's declining share of the world market since cheaper coking coal and access to better grades of ore more than offset the advantage conferred upon foreign producers by virtue of lower wage rates.

The price cuts were precipitated by the Kaiser Steel Corp. which announced average price reductions of $12 per ton in an effort to "make the West more competitive domestically" and "materially assist in combating foreign steel imports."
This action was promptly countered by statements from United States Steel, Bethlehem and other major producers that they would meet Kaiser's prices and remain competitive on the West Coast.

While confined to a single market, it is reasonable to assume that the price reductions will soon be extended and that they will do much to expand domestic steel production, which has been running at less than 60 per cent of capacity since May. And the United States Steel Corporation's decision to participate in the construction of a new Italian steel plant is a hopeful sign that the industry will make an effort to regain its lost share of the world export market and thereby strengthen our international balance of payments.

NO GREATER TRIBUTE

James Marlow She Did What She Thought Was Right

WASHINGTON (AP)—Life for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the great and gracious lady who died Wednesday night, would have been deeply different if she had been born a generation earlier.
Then she might have been considered just a good-hearted but ineffectual busybody. But she made the most of her times and her opportunities until, when she died, she had become the best-loved woman in the world.
SHE HAD THAT priceless quality in a human being: Concern for other people. She had an even rarer quality: A willingness to do something about her feeling.

The underlying philosophy in much she did for people was the belief the government must take an increasing responsibility for the general welfare.
This was a responsibility that government ducked through most of its history and only assumed in the 1930s to avoid national chaos in the desolation of depression. It was forced into it.

UNTIL PRESIDENT Roosevelt's New Deal of the 1930s, the national philosophy was so-called rugged individualism which too often became a philosophy of the devil-take-the-hindmost.
Until New Deal days there would have been far fewer to listen to her and, more fatal to her ideas of a better world, far fewer in positions of power to cooperate with her.

She insisted, in explaining her activities in behalf of groups and people in general, that she simply had to do what she thought was right. What she considered right was not always what others considered right.
THOSE OTHERS included the battalions with prejudices against a public and active life for women, racial prejudices, economic prejudices, social prejudices and even national prejudices.

She was criticized, lampooned, mimicked and belittled. But she was never deterred.
She was orphaned at 9, a girl with only inner beauty. Her very plainness no doubt helped identify her more easily with the commonality of mankind.
She acquired an overpoweringly dominant mother-in-law. She had six children and a husband crippled by polio. And, what made her particularly human was the fact that her social and political consciousness developed slowly.

WITH HER DRIVE she might have become a prominent figure even if her husband had not been President of the United States.
But the White House and the times in which she lived gave her the opportunity to become a full and leading participant in the life of the nation and the world.
She was one of those few people who, at the moment of death, could look back on her life and not feel that, if given another chance, she might have made better use of it.

To Your Good Health Al-Anon Family Group Helps Members

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: In regard to your letter from "M. S." about an alcoholic daughter, those of us in the Al-Anon Family Group know that "trying everything" as "M. S." says, only aggravates the situation. But we realize that when we admit we are powerless over the alcoholic, we CAN do much to help OURSELVES.
"M. S." as a relative of an alcoholic, is eligible to attend Al-Anon meetings. Either call the local Alcoholics Anonymous chapter for information, or write to P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York 10, N. Y. —Mrs. J. R.

I have mentioned Al-Anon before in this column, and certainly will again. It merits the highest respect.
If you want to think of it this way, the alcoholic may perhaps have the right to ruin his own life if he so desires—although as a member of the human race, I wonder whether any person really has the right to destroy the good that resides in anyone, including himself or herself.
In any event, when an alcoholic harms not only himself but makes life miserable for those near to him, and these others are terribly and continually hurt through no fault of their own, this is where Al-Anon comes in.
Al-Anon is made up of people who are not alcoholics themselves but are relatives. The group is closely affiliated with Alcoholics Anonymous.

Al-Anon pool their knowledge and experience. They counsel each other concerning things they can do to help and things that prove to be a total waste of time, such as "trying everything" when the alcoholic still refuses to do anything for himself.
They learn also to insulate themselves, to such degree as is reasonably possible, against unproductive heartbreak—in a word, to know what is possible to do, and what is not, and to stop wasting time and energy on things which will not help.
This is an over-simplification, I confess, but it may give a rough idea of Al-Anon.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it worthwhile to sell home and belongings, and leave friends, to move to Arizona to relieve arthritis, rheumatism, etc.? Is it possible that no one living there suffers from such an illness? If so, surely hundreds of people would move there. —K. F.

No, don't make such a drastic change without knowing what it will do for you—if anything. For some, the hot, dry climate is helpful. But others discover that they were just as comfortable at home. Therefore don't move without a trial visit of adequate duration, to find out whether substantial benefit exists for YOU.
Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 20-year-old girl and my hair is thinning on top. It is dry but I wash it twice a week and wet it under the shower every night to set it in rollers. Could that cause thinning? —Louise P.
Frequent washing and nightly wetting of dry hair remove even more of the oils that combat "dryness."
"Dry" hair is brittle. It breaks off close to the roots. This does not damage the roots; the hair will grow in again. But if it is destined to break off again, the hair will still appear "thin." Better take some precautions not to let the hair become so dry.
How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper for a copy of the leaflet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.
Dr. Molner welcomes all mail from his readers, but because of the great volume received daily he is unable to answer individual letters. Dr. Molner uses readers' letters in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim Oh Where Has My Little Booth Gone?

I always enjoy election day. Armed with a good sharp pencil with extra black lead, I race through my ballot with all the fervor of a South Pacific Moro greeting a landing party. This year was particularly gratifying as the long list of proposed amendments gave me every opportunity to wear the pencil all the way down to the wood.

THERE WAS ONE disconcerting thing at our box this year, however. We didn't have any of those fancy booths. After all the fanfare and hoopla over them last spring, suddenly they disappeared. I asked around and found out that other voting boxes had booths. But not at our No. 2.

After all, we voters at No. 2 are a fairly respectable lot. Few of us spit on the floors, and we turn out in goodly numbers for every issue put before us. In fact, I doubt that in all the Republic, there is a more respectable bunch of voters, taking one with another.

WE HAVE A FINE election judge who has the excellent taste of providing assistants of pleasant demeanor and careful manners.

It's notable that even though the county commissioners forgot us in the matter of booths, the Republicans kept us in mind by providing a "watcher." In regard to this, let me say I expected a bearded individual with shifty eyes, watching me mark my ballot, with perhaps a suggestion or two if I should go astray. Not at all. Out at Box 2, we had a lovely young lady who graced the school room with smiles and a nod of encouragement to the arm-wearer among us as we left the hall.

AS I SAID, we have many things going for us out there. For instance, someone (I suspect our efficient election officials) placed carefully marked signs in the corridors so even the slowest of our voting menage could locate the proper room and not wind up in first grade, geography class.

But hang it all, we didn't have any booths. Just long tables, barely large enough for the bed-sheet ballots, and we were all but jammed together in our efforts to find that rascal's name who made us so mad on television.

TO SUM IT UP, we are a mild-mannered bunch of voters out at Box 2. I've never seen a fist-tight out there during an election; of course, there has been some mumblings under the breath, but these have been few and in good taste. In short, Box 2 voters are a goodly lot, who pay their taxes, vote when the time comes, and never hesitate to mark 'em like they see 'em.
So why can't we have voting booths?

Inez Robb The China-Indian Conflict

With fingers crossed and a piece of wood handy for knocking, it seems possible that our holiday season is going to be spiced or enlivened by cautious optimism on the international front.

There have been a number of decisive watersheds of disillusionment with global communism wherein Marxism has dealt itself a staggering blow. It is altogether possible that the Red Chinese attack on India is another watershed of disenchantment for Marxists and fellow travelers at home and abroad.

WHAT PROFIT is it to be a great and good friend of the Reds, as have been Pandit Nehru and his oleaginous mentor, V. K. Krishna Menon, when — without rhyme or reason — the Chinese bury the knife in the back up to the hilt? For five years, while the Chinese Reds have been using the old salami-slicing tactics on the India-Chinese border, India has turned the other cheek.

And to what purpose? To have China mount a full-scale war against the very men and nation that even, in the midst of the first heavy attacks a fortnight ago, cried aloud in the United Nations for the admission of Red China to membership.

A FAT LOT of good it has done Nehru and Menon to trot between New Delhi and Moscow and New Delhi and Peking! If the rest of the "neutrals" and the uncommitted nations are capable of adding two and two and getting an approximate answer, they must be pondering what price friendship with the Marxist world. Nehru, whose stock in trade is his posture of moral and intellectual superiority to the West, has had to come, cap in hand, to the United Kingdom and the United States for arms since his Russian friends said "nyet" to his request for aid.

IT IS HARD to believe the moral of all this has been lost in nations that have been playing footsie with communism as steadily as had India through its leaders. Or the fact that not the collective paradise but the capitalist world has rushed to help India fight for its independence and very life.

Beyond the Iron Curtain fellow travelers' disillusionment with communism began in the 'thirties during the horrible spectacle of the purge trials, when Marxism fed on itself. Then came the Stalin-Hitler pact, which innumerable apologists for communism could not swallow.

THE BRUTAL Russian suppression of the Hungarian rebellion further decimated the faithful. Now, to rank with the above, is the Red China all-out war against its peaceful neighbor, India. Such is India's reward for her role of best friend to the Red Chinese. It is inconceivable that chancelleries in Asia and Africa can ignore this development.

In addition to this clear glimpse of communism's gratitude, the world has just seen the U.S.S.R. hastily back-track when the United States took a firm stand and unveiled a bit of its muscle. The bully, who has been rattling rockets and screaming nuclear threats, was stopped in his tracks.

ONCE A BULLY, usually a bully forever, Khrushchev will surely try again in some other sector. But both the United States and the rest of the world have had a salutary lesson in Russian Communist behavior when his bluff is called. Nehru, whose determined blindness helped prepare the way for the Chinese attack, has already said of the war, "This terrible shock has occasioned an almost new birth of Indian spirit and the soul of India has awakened again."

THERE IS NEED for a rebirth of spirit and a reawakening of soul through much of Asia and Africa. If the Chinese attack on India and the Russian refusal to intervene accomplish both, this senseless war will not be wholly in vain.

David Lawrence We Just Missed A 'Pearl Harbor'

WASHINGTON—Now that the election campaign is over, the American people are entitled to know the truth about the missile build-up in Cuba—how closely they came to being the victims of a nuclear attack and another "Pearl Harbor." It is possible that the United States didn't have reliable intelligence and had to wait for aerial photography, which can often be frustrated by weather conditions?

ALL THE FACTS have not as yet been disclosed, but the facts that are available put the administration in a position of having taken grave chances with the security of the United States. A case of sheer negligence, if not incompetence, can be made out, and that's why, in fairness to the administration, any facts available that can convincingly rebut such inferences should be revealed.

The American people are partly responsible for the dilemma. They countenance changes in key personnel at the top in national defense and security when there is a political change of administration. Continuity in certain posts is imperative in an era of crisis, especially in a nuclear age.

A FACTUAL ANALYSIS of what happened could show that the United States government really had the facts, but that President Kennedy and his group of advisers did not evaluate them correctly.
The New York "Times" last Saturday published two full pages of detail about the missile build-up in Cuba as gathered by nine reporters and researchers. Even this narrative, which is unofficial, is surprising in what it discloses. It says in part:

"THE SOVIET military buildup in Cuba started in the second half of July. At that time American Intelligence reports, the build-up continued. More than 30 ships unloaded 2,000 Soviet technicians and instructors and such war materiel as surface-to-air missiles, patrol boats with missiles and MIG-21 fighters."
It was on Sept. 4 when President Kennedy said publicly that, as far as was known, the Soviet arms in Cuba were "defensive." The "Times" story continues:

"WITHIN THE administration the possibility that some of the build-up was offensive was not being overlooked. The intelligence community—the Central Intelligence Agency, military intelligence and others—specifically raised the question whether there might be surface-to-surface missiles in Cuba with nuclear warheads...

"As a result of the persistent reports and intelligence concern, President Kennedy approved an order—apparently at the beginning of September—that the entire island of Cuba be photographed."

DID THE GOVERNMENT of the United States really have to wait for aerial photographs before ordering a blockade and taking defensive measures against possible nuclear attack from a base only 90 miles away?

The only conclusion that can be drawn is that the administration took a chance and preferred to wait for the aerial photographs. Bad weather did interfere, and not until the night of October 15 was the photograph confirmation in hand. It was given to the President the first thing the following morning. Senator Kenneth Keating of New York, Republican, said in the Senate on October 10 that he had confirmed reports about the intermediate-range missile bases under construction in Cuba. These are plainly offensive in character.

BUT DURING the seven days from Tuesday, October 16, through Monday, October 22, the United States government did not take any action against Cuban bases, as any military man would have advised. The President refrained also from making any protest to the Soviet government. In those seven days, the Soviets could have attacked many American cities from Cuba.

Thanks to Khrushchev, the episode has thus far turned out all right, but do not the hazards encountered teach a lesson?
The Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigated the flight of a U-2 plane over Russia in May 1960, and blamed President Eisenhower for telling the truth about it and particularly for using the planes at that time. Maybe, as a consequence, the theory has been accepted that the truth must not be revealed to the American people.

WHAT REALLY happened between mid-July and October 22, and who was to blame for the risk taken? Why were U-2 flights over Cuba suspended for a long time? Why was the naval blockade held up for a month while the Russians were unloading their missiles and planes? Congress alone can bring out the truth.

Biscuit Beauties

Homemade biscuit mix produces regular biscuits cut in squares to save time, or cut into large rounds and put together in a loaf. With the mix you can also bake these orange cresents and other coffee cakes.

Batches Of Biscuits With Homemade Mix

Do you ever cast a half-envious glance backward at the robust satisfactions of our pioneer ladies in early autumn concocted pies from bayberries, and at the season's later "killing time" stuffed homemade sausage into casings? Then take heart. You, too, can have handmade and homemade satisfaction. You can make your own biscuit mix!

We're so entranced with the following formula for such a mix that we've baked our way through half a dozen batches of it. In some of these batches we used the enriched soft-wheat all-purpose flour (regular and self-rising) available in the south. Once you try this flour, you can understand why southern cooks are famous for biscuits.

After you make up a batch of the mix and a batch of biscuits, we beg you to try the Orange Cresents because that's one of the best-flavored coffee cakes we have ever encountered.

A BATCH OF BISCUIT MIX
 8 cups sifted enriched flour (2 pound bag)
 4 tbsps. baking powder
 4 tps. salt
 1 1/2 cups nonfat dry milk solids
 1 1/2 cups vegetable shortening

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt into a large mixing bowl. Stir in dry milk; cut in shortening with pastry blender or electric mixer at low speed until particles are fine. Store in tightly covered container at room temperature.

When using, stir the mix lightly, then spoon lightly into measuring cup and level off with spatula. Makes nine cups.

NOTE: If self-rising flour is used, omit baking powder and salt.

A BATCH OF BISCUITS
 Turn 2 cups of the homemade biscuit mix into a bowl; add 1/4 to 1/2 cup water, just enough to make a dough that leaves sides of bowl to form a soft ball.

Turn out on prepared pastry cloth; knead gently 30 seconds. Roll out to about 1/4-inch thickness. Cut into 12 two inch squares with a knife.

Bake on ungreased baking sheet in a hot (425 degrees) oven 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown. Serve at once.

ORANGE CRESENTS
 Prepare a batch of biscuits through the kneading stage. Divide dough in half. Roll out each half to a 10-inch circle. Brush with melted butter or margarine.

Mix 1/4 cup chopped walnuts, 1/4 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons grated orange rind; sprinkle half of mixture over each circle. Cut each circle into 4 equal pie-shaped wedges. Roll up each wedge, starting with wide end and sealing point to underside. Curve into cresents.

Place in ungreased 8-inch round pan, pinwheel fashion, with all rolls touching at center. Bake in a very hot (450 degrees) oven 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned.

Remove from pan and decorate at once with frosting made by blending 1/2 cup confectioners sugar and 1 to 2 teaspoons milk; sprinkle frosting with 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts and 1 teaspoon grated orange rind. Serve warm, breaking off individual crescent rolls from whole cake.

Teen-Ager Wins Hotcake Prize

Pancakes that taste so deliciously sweet they don't even call for maple syrup won grand prize for Sally Ann Sommer, an 18-year-old from Long Beach, Calif. Here is her recipe:

GRANDMA'S HOTCAKES
 2 cups buttermilk
 2 tps. baking soda
 1/2 tsp. salt
 1/2 cup sour cream
 2 EGGS
 1/2 cup oatmeal, uncooked
 1 cup plus 2 tbsps. unsifted flour
 2/3 cup sugar
 1/2 tsp. baking powder
 1/4 cup corn meal

Pour buttermilk into a mixing bowl. Add soda and salt. Stir in sour cream until mixture foams. Add eggs and beat with a spoon. Add oatmeal.

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and corn meal into mixture and beat until smooth. Heat griddle and grease. Pour batter onto griddle.

When bubbles on pancakes begin to break, turn and brown on the other side. Serves four to six people with syrup, honey or preserves.

Packaged Meats

Cured meats such as franks, sausage, sliced luncheon meats, ham, and bacon are best kept refrigerated in the package in which they were purchased, both before and after opening. Packages that do not have a reclosable feature should be over-wrapped before returning to refrigerator.

Pear Turnovers Win Holiday Applause

Are we dreaming? Or does your tasting experience confirm ours: canned Bartlett pear halves are firmer than they used to be. And this is all to the good.

So many ways to use these pears, but none of them more delicious than giving them pastry as a partner. Bake individual pear turnovers, bake a pear pie, or try this new recipe for a delectable pear tart.

This tart is baked on a cookie sheet, its filling a luscious combination of sour cream, lemon and spices.

A Sandwich For Shower

Girls know that the first impression is made by the way you look—and that goes for food, too. Fifteen-year-old Kris Thoreson, of La Cross, Wis., created "Satin Ribbon Sandwiches" for a bridal shower. Based on a recipe of her mother's, the individual sandwiches duplicated tiny tiered wedding cakes and were topped with candy lifesaver "wedding rings."

From sandwich bread, cut 10 circles three and one-half inches in diameter, 10 three-inch circles, 10 two and one-half inch circles and 10 two-inch circles. Spread butter on one side of a three and one-half-inch slice and spread with ham filling, leaving one-half inch free of filling around outside of circle.

Spread the next size round with butter on both sides and place it on top of the first. Spread top with cucumber filling, leaving a one-half-inch edge. Continue, using third size circle and egg filling. Spread butter on one side of fourth round and place on top, buttered side down.

Frost the top and sides with cream cheese frosting, so it looks like a small wedding cake. Stand on end a lifesaver covered with gold or silver foil to look like a wedding ring. Garnish each "cake" with parsley and radish roses and refrigerate lightly covered. Repeat until 10 cakes are made.

HAM FILLING: Grind one-half pound cooked ham; combine with two tablespoons chopped pimiento and one-third cup salad dressing.
CUCUMBER FILLING: Finely chop and drain two medium cucumbers. Combine with five tablespoons cream and one tablespoon salad dressing.
EGG FILLING: Chop three hard-cooked eggs. Combine with three tablespoons chopped chives, one-fourth teaspoon salt and three tablespoons salad dressing.

CHEESE-FROSTING: Combine four packages (3 oz. each) of condensed cream cheese with six tablespoons cream and use to spread on loaf.

Lunch Box Bracer Good For Winter

Something hot for lunch—nutritionists tell us this is a good idea for school children. Lunch box meals could pose a problem in this area if condensed soups were not so easy to heat and pour into a wide-mouth vacuum bottle where they stay piping hot until noon. Soups have refreshing pick-up qualities that help replenish energy and lagging spirits. There are so many soups now—from minestrone to clam chowder—that there need be no repeats.

Variety Adds To Week's Soup Menu

Chicken with rice soup and cream cheese topped nut sandwich on Monday. Vegetable soup and tuna-eggery-chopped egg sandwich on Tuesday. Beef soup and cabbage-apple-carrot slaw on Wednesday. Consomme and baked bean-pickle relish sandwich on Thursday. Tomato soup and potato-frankfurter-egg salad on Friday.

Lemon Pie Filling For Layer Cake

Ever use lemon-pie filling mix as a filling for a white layer cake? This combination is particularly delicious when the top of the filled cake is frosted with whipped cream and garnished with fresh raspberries or strawberries.

When we tried this recipe in our kitchen, we used the pale yellow lard-type shortening that comes in cans because it makes the sort of "short" pastry that rightfully belongs to this dessert.

PEAR TART

2 cans (1 lb. each) Bartlett pear halves
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
1 tsp. lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup flour
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1 cup commercial sour cream
Pear Tart Pastry

Drain pear halves thoroughly; cut each pear half in quarters. Sprinkle grated lemon rind and lemon juice over pears. Stir together thoroughly the sugar, flour, cinnamon and nutmeg; mix with quartered pear halves. Fold in sour cream. Place a Pear Tart Pastry round on a cookie sheet; turn up edge; spread pear and sour cream mixture over pastry round. Cover with the second round of pastry. Flute and seal edges. Prick top of tart to make vents for steam to escape. Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven 30 to 35 minutes. Top pastry will be pale; for more color brush with egg wash before baking. Cool; serve when filling has set but tart is still warm. Or refrigerate tart and reheat in oven just until warm through.

PEAR TART PASTRY

2 1/4 cups flour
1 tsp. salt
3/4 cup yellow lard-type shortening (chill before using)
5 to 6 tbsps. ice water

Mix flour and salt; with a pastry blender, cut in half the shortening until particles are fine; cut in remaining half of shortening until the size of peas. With a fork, gradually stir in just enough water to hold pastry together. On a prepared pastry cloth roll out one half of the dough at a time; out of each half cut a 9-inch round; refrigerate rolled-out rounds while preparing filling for Pear Tart.

Soup Mix Toastwich

Do you like to try new products in new ways? Some years back when the onion-soup mix and sour-cream combination—served as a dip—was in its heyday, were you one of its backers?

If so, you may wish to experiment with the new canned dry cream of mushroom soup mix. This dry product is not to be confused with longtime here condensed liquid cream of mushroom soup.

Here's one way of using this newcomer. The soup mix is put into a sandwich spread. Because we know some cooks are wayward—often leaving out ingredients that do not seem strictly necessary—we added a caution: Use all the green pepper called for in the recipe, and don't omit the tomato slices. The mushroom soup mix used "as is" in this spread is quite salty and it needs the green pepper and tomatoes.

TUNA TOASTWICHES

1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup sour cream
1 can (1 1/2 oz.) dry cream of mushroom soup mix
1 large green pepper, finely chopped
1 tsp. minced onion
2 tps. lemon juice
1 can (7 oz.) tuna
6 large hamburger buns
Medium or large tomatoes
Soft butter or margarine

In a mixing bowl stir together the mayonnaise, sour cream, dry mushroom soup mix (just as it comes from the can), green pepper, onion and lemon juice. Drain tuna and mix in, breaking it up into small pieces but not flaking. Split and toast cut sides of buns; spoon tuna mixture over toasted bottoms; top each with a tomato slice and upper bun half.

Spread top surface of buns with soft butter. Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven about 10 minutes. Serve with extra unsalted tomato slices. Makes 6 servings.

Cool Quickly

Meats cooked for future use or meats left over after a meal should be quickly cooled, uncovered, in the refrigerator or in a cool room with good air circulation.

Television Has Jargon Of Its Own

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, like any other industry, has developed its own jargon. To the uninitiated, some of its slang — while colorful — is largely incomprehensible.

You may not have known it, but you've seen many a teaser and hundreds of crawls, promos, billboards, spots, idents, segues, hitchhikes and piggybacks. And heard plenty of lip-syncs.

A teaser is, logically, a stimulating bit from the story to follow and opens a show. It is designed to capture the attention of the audience.

A billboard is the portion of the show fore and aft, that proclaims its name and, usually, its sponsors. The crawl, related to the billboard, is a mechanical device that rolls the printed announcements up, down or across the television screen.

Promos—short for promotions—are announcements of forthcoming shows on the same network.

There are two kinds of idents (short, of course, for "identifications"). There is the network ident and the station ident—announcements made each half hour.

A segue (pronounced seg-way) means moving smoothly from one thing to another.

And a lip-sync (for synchronization, of course) means that the performer's mouth is matching the words of a number previously recorded.

ABC plans to cooperate with the National District Attorney's Association to produce a new courtroom series which will make a hero of the prosecutor: "Ready for the People." It is planned for next season.

Another Cake

Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor and her fourth husband, industrialist Herbert Hutner, cut a wedding cake at a reception following their wedding in New York. The marriage is the second for Hutner, a Harrison, N.Y., clubman and sportsman.

Miners Have Another Champ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coal miners have come up with another bushy-browed labor union chief to worry the mine owners.

W. A. (Tony) Boyle is touring the coal fields and rousing the miners for something. The operators suspect it may be them. Four years have gone by since John L. Lewis, now officially retired, got the miners their last pay raise.

Boyle is 58. He has a fine set of red eyebrows and a folksy sort of speech. He can't compare, of course, in either department with his mentor, labor's oldtime blood and thunder expert, Lewis, now 82. Lewis is still around, still active as president emeritus of the United Mine Workers Union, privately prodding Boyle along. Actually Boyle is the UMW's No. 2 man as vice president. But he's operating like No. 1 since President Tom Kennedy, at 75, has been ailing for some time.

Coal labor relations, at least with the major industry producers, have been serenely peaceful since the last industrywide strike in 1950.

There have been constant troubles with small mine operators, particularly in eastern Kentucky and eastern Tennessee, who have balked at paying the 40-cent a ton welfare royalty in the face of slack demand and declining prices. The UMW welfare fund, in turn, has had to reduce pensions and take steps to dispose of a chain of mine area hospitals.

Among other UMW troubles are the fact that non-union coal production has risen from 20 to 27 per cent of the total and that union membership has continued to dwindle until it now is only 160,000.

Although nominally in retirement, Lewis is reported still the man in charge of the UMW while putting Boyle forward as the man he wants the industry to deal with.

Thus, when coal operators received a hot missive from Boyle, carrying an underline saying the contents were attested to by Lewis, the industry sat up and took notice.

Boyle said in about as many words that if the coal operators went ahead with plans to put diesel-powered equipment in coal mines they would have a strike on their hands.

The background is this: The operators say diesel equipment would save them a lot of money. Present electric-powered equipment requires expensive wiring, connections, transformers, etc. The UMW, maintaining diesel fumes and combustion would only add to underground mining hazards, refused even to talk with the industry and Bureau of Mines about running safety tests.

It is clear the UMW is adamant because diesels run on that hated competitive fuel, oil, whereas electricity is primarily produced from coal.

Boyle, who hails from Billings, Mont., is telling the coal miners they had better be alert to defend their union because of danger of depression, "union haters," and restrictive labor laws. He pooh-poohs atomic power and says coal is "the fuel of the future."

Like Lewis, Boyle is not exactly enamored by politicians as he made clear in a Labor Day speech at Jenkins, Ky., when he criticized the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations with equal fervor.

Daniel Urges Acceleration Of Civil Defense In Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Price Daniel made seven recommendations Wednesday in urging public officials and private citizens to cooperate in accelerated civil defense program in Texas.

The recommendations stemmed from a meeting in Denton of representatives of governors, state and regional civil defense officials and federal agency representatives from Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

The recommendations were:

1. That building owners and managers permit the U. S. Corps of Engineers immediately to mark buildings identified in the national shelter survey without waiting for written agreement on stocking them with provisions.
2. That movement and storage of shelter supplies be expedited as they become available to each Texas community.
3. That Texas A&M College make extension services available to help provide guidance to rural citizens on civil defense matters.
4. That existing shelter space be improved and enlarged where financially feasible when final plans are submitted by survey engineers.
5. That local and civil defense officials continue intensified training in such civil defense auxiliary work as fire, police, and rescue teams.
6. That radio and television stations continue to make available additional public service time for the adult education courses and other civil defense instruction, and that newspapers continue to publish information on fallout protection, family shelter designs, and other essential material available in this field.
7. That private business and industry assist in the shelter survey program and develop plans where possible in office buildings, plants and warehouses.

Daniel also called on private citizens to provide individual family shelters "since fallout protection will not be available in public shelters for all Texans."
