Before the start of the holiday at 6 p.m. (local time) Friday, the council had estimated the toll would range from 420 to 480. Monday, after analyzing the number of deaths during the first three days of the holiday, the council revised its estimate to 350 to 380.

SEN. ROBERT S. KERR

Senator Kerr Of Oklahoma Dies At Age 66

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., 66, a former Oklahoma governor considered by associates as one of the most influential members of the Senate, died today. He had been under treatment for a heart ailment.

His doctors reported later that observations showed some injury to the heart muscle due to a narrowing of a coronary artery. Kerr, reputedly the wealthiest member of the Senate where he has served since January, 1948, entered Doctors Hospital here Dec. 16 for treatment of a respiratory infection and a physical checkup.

Already A Trifle Bored

Suzanne Kay, new daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barragan, 1206 W. 2nd, yawned for her pose as Herald photographer Keith McMillin did the honors. Weighing six pounds, 11 ounces, she was the first baby born in Howard County in 1963. Suzanne arrived at 4:40 a.m. today in Malone and Hogan Hospital.

First Baby Only Four Hours Late

The first baby born to Howard County residents in 1963 arrived only four hours, 40 minutes after the new year made its entrance. Suzanne Kay Barragan, six-pound, 11-ounce daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barragan, 1206 W. 2nd, arrived at Malone and Hogan Hospital at 4:40 a.m. today. She was about an hour ahead of two other youngsters born at Cowper Clinic and Hospital.

Tshombe Gathers Battered Armies

U.S. Holds Out Hope For Fast Congo Solution

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. authorities held out growing hope today that the long-stalled U.N. plan for Congo reunification will now move swiftly forward. They think that within a fortnight—the rough time limit given by U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant—Moise Tshombe, president of the secessionist Katanga Province, will come to terms with the U.N. reconciliation plan or be on his way out of the picture.

Guerrilla War Seen For Katanga

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo—AP—Katanga President Moise Tshombe gathered remnants of his battered forces around him in the stronghold of Kolwezi today and prepared for possible guerrilla warfare against the United Nations Congo Legion. Kolwezi, 150 miles northwest of the Katangan capital of Elisabethville, is the main base for Tshombe's small air force—a force which the U.N. Command has given until noon today to surrender or face destruction.

British Urge Leader To Make Peace

LONDON (AP)—The British government today urged President Moise Tshombe of breakaway Katanga province to return to Elisabethville at once to help in prompt unification of the Congo. A Foreign Office statement said that Tshombe's presence in his bullet-riddled capital would make it possible for him "to lend his authority to the making of the necessary arrangements for a peaceful solution of the Katangan problem."

Youth Riot Is Put Down

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Two policemen were attacked a fire bomb exploded in the street and a man was hit on the head by a bottle today in a disturbance started by teen-agers along the route of the Tournament of Roses Parade.

RAINFALL WAS OVER AVERAGE

Rainfall in 1962 was above the average annual precipitation for the past 60 years but was below the average for the preceding wet month. Grady Randal, at the U.S. Experiment Station, said the total rainfall in Howard County for 1962 was 18.62 inches. The average for the 60-year records here has been kept at the station is 18.48 inches.

SECOND DOSE SET SUNDAY

"You're not through, until you've had Type II." Residents who received Type I vaccine in the mass inoculation here in November are protected from Type I polio. But they must take Type II vaccine for protection from Type II polio, doctors say. Even those who had Salk vaccine are urged to be sure by taking Sabin vaccine.

K Rings In Year With Warning And Salutation

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev rang in the New Year today with a warning to the West that it could be destroyed in a few hours but that the Soviet Union prefers peaceful coexistence. The Soviet leader waved his arms and gestured as he spoke to a specially invited audience at a midnight banquet in the new Kremlin Auditorium. He had been drinking champagne toasts and appeared to be in a genial mood.

from politics and international affairs. In a broadcast greeting the party Central Committee and the government told the Soviet people they are confidently advancing along the Leninist road to their bright future—communism. "Khrushchev said he didn't want to make 'a New Year's threat' but that he was giving the West 'a realistic warning' that it would be destroyed in any nuclear war 'unleashed by capitalism.' Then he insisted that the Soviet Union prefers peaceful coexistence. A nuclear war with the West, he said, would simply mean that millions of members of the working class would be killed.

Boston Strangler Kills Secretary; Eighth Victim

BOSTON (AP)—A pretty young secretary told a friend recently she dreamed she awoke and found the "mad strangler" beside her. The nightmare apparently came true for Patricia Bissette, 22, formerly of Middlebury, Vt., whose nearly nude body was found strangled Monday. An autopsy showed she was slain about 24 hours before. She was the eighth strangle victim in Greater Boston in six months. None of the slayings has been solved.

Polar Bears Call Off Dip

NEW PORT, R.I. (AP)—The "Polar Bears" of Newport, for the first time in 30 years, have cancelled their annual New Year's Day dip at chilly Easton's Beach or the Atlantic Ocean. Frederick Bucher, 78 in February, and two other members of the group had a warm-up plunge in the ocean on Sunday.

County Officials Are Sworn In Today

Howard County has a new county judge, new county auditor, new district clerk and one new county commissioner today. These officials were formally sworn into office during brief ceremonies at 9 a.m. today in the Howard County Court Room. Elective officials, returned to their offices for another term, were given their formal oaths. The exercises were witnessed by a courtroom nearly filled with relatives, friends and co-workers of the officials.

assessor to take a job in the worthless check department. Harris is employing Mrs. Hise instead of adding a new deputy to the staff. Standard, for the past year, has operated the check department. Resignation of Mrs. Hise, in the automobile tax office has resulted in the employment of Mrs. J. K. Watts by Mrs. Zarah LeFevre, county tax collector. Another change in the tax office personnel will be Mrs. R. H. Archard who is to replace Mrs. Della Hicks in the main tax office. Mrs. Hicks is moving to Fort Worth. Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, who has been with Parter in the auditor's office, will go with him to his new post as county judge and become secretary in that office. Mrs. Roberta Oldfield, who has been secretary to Ed Carpenter, county judge, is to shift to Mrs. Johnson's post with Choate in the auditor's office. Cox, in his new post as district court clerk, announced the employment of Mrs. Jamie Crittenden as a second deputy in his office. Jo Ann Watkins, who has been with Choate for several years, will continue as first deputy in that office. No other personnel changes were indicated in the several offices.

Another Governmental Year Begins

Officials elected for the first time and others beginning new terms in office, gathered in the county court room today to take their formal oaths of office. Judge Ralph Caton, center, administered the oaths to the officials. Shown left to right: Walker Bailey, county superintendent; L. J. Davidson, county commissioner; Ray Nichols, county commissioner; Joe Hayden, county commissioner; Ralph Caton, Lee Porter, county judge, and Mrs. Pauline Petty, county clerk.

Termites Have Solved Problem

DECATUR, Ill. (AP)—Macon County officials, sorting through records to see which might be disposed of, have found that termites are working on the same project. The tiny bugs have chewed up about 20 volumes in a basement vault of the steel and concrete county building.

What's The State Of The World?

News Correspondents Make Their Assessments

Editor's note — What is ahead around the world in the new year? The Associated Press sent this question to its correspondents in 10 key areas. Here are their reports.

Britain And The Commonwealth

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan faces 1963 with enough problems to test the patience of Job. He could easily fall from power if these overwhelm him.

Britain, shorn of empire, is trying to find a new role in world affairs. For that reason the coming year promises to be full of strain and confusion in the political, diplomatic, defense and economic fields as any faced by this island kingdom since World War II.

Britain's special relationship with the United States may undergo revisions now that Washington is calling into question the value of Macmillan's separate nuclear deterrent.

The British government still intends to seek membership in the European Common Market. Failure to reach agreement thus far with this Continental grouping has caused mounting concern in London's business and financial community.

The Common Market negotiations are expected to extend deep into 1963.

At home, voters continue to drift away from Macmillan's Conservative party. A new parliamentary election is not required by law until the autumn of 1964, but events could force one in 1963.

The British economy remains sluggish with unemployment rising, particularly in the north. The Christmas holiday season produced signs, however, that better times are returning.

Overseas, the Commonwealth ties remain fragile, but the differing interests of the member countries become more clearly defined each year.

The process of granting independence to former colonial territories will go on as before. New constitutional talks are scheduled for Malta and eventually British Guiana.

Western Europe

By RICHARD OREGAN

BERLIN (AP)—Western Europe's hopes of peace, prosperity and security look brighter in 1963 than at any time in the last five previous years.

Since the Soviet Union's disaster, the Kremlin has taken a new soft line in its approach to Europe's main problem — Berlin. The Russians appear more willing to negotiate a Berlin settlement which might protect Western rights in the city.

The Russians may be counting on help through a change of political leadership in West Germany. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, Khrushchev's unwavering opponent, has said he will retire in 1963.

They may be encouraged too by an increase of Communists in the French Parliament, although President Charles de Gaulle, 72, is more firmly in power than ever and like Adenauer is firmly opposed to dealing with the Soviet Union.

Politically, 1963 looks like a secure year for Europeans with no major crises in Italy, however, there are general elections in May and the issue is whether the country will swing more to the left.

In Spain, Gen. Francisco Franco at 70, has to find a king to succeed him. Portugal's Premier Antonio Salazar may face growing dissension.

Economically, West Europe's Common Market is expected to bring greater prosperity to Frenchmen and Italians. Germany already has reached its peak.

Denmark, Ireland, Norway, Austria, Sweden and Switzerland all hope for full or associate membership in the Common Market so they can share some of Europe's growing wealth. But their membership depends on whether Great Britain is admitted.

If the Common Market grows to take in most of Europe in 1963, it may become the United States' greatest trading competitor.

Communist Europe

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union and all the Eastern European Socialist states are facing their toughest year since the war.

All are beset by serious economic disorders. There is a frequent of discontent and uneasiness over the very basis of their existence—communism.

Party control of every phase of life in each of these countries simply isn't working well and all have started large-scale reorganizations, including purges.

Moreover, the Soviet Union is engaged in a mad-slinging leadership battle with China that has already put Albania out of the Soviet flock and promises to get worse, not better, in the year ahead.

In Bulgaria, Premier Anton Yugov was thrown out of office because he was an old Stalinist. Yet in Czechoslovakia, Stalinists remain in the saddle. East Germany has gone on rations and Poland is appealing for more American wheat.

Hungary has pulled a lot of non-party technicians into the government's helm to appease those still troubled by 1956, and simply to get brighter administrators.

Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union are patching up an old quarrel, highlighted by Tito's visit to Moscow.

The Soviet Union, hard-hit in prestige by the Cuban affair, and economically strained, will cut down its foreign aid program still more, both to Socialist and other states. A massive reorganization both of the party and the Soviet government is under way in an effort to make the economy run better.

More and more it appears that the revolutionary enthusiasm of the early years is fading away. Premier Khrushchev's loosening of the grip on writers is offset by his tougher blows at liberal artists.

The new year will find party watchmen at almost every worker's elbow to goad them to harder work, and prevent cheating Moscow shops are offering the shabbiest kind of New Year festival goods.

Fifty Muscovite can see that things are better than say three years ago, but not much better, and not enough better to make people happy about the increased work demand, and higher prices charged.

North Africa

By ANDREW BOROWICZ

TUNIS (AP)—Algeria's painful emergence amidst political and economic chaos and the continuing struggle against underdevelopment will dominate the North African scene in 1963.

The possibility of Communist success has diminished considerably. By now, most North African leaders believe the Soviet bloc is not equipped and not willing to provide massive aid to this part of the world.

Hence the trend in trade and political orientation is expected to be favorable to the West, although officially North Africa will remain a vocal backer of nonalignment.

There will be much talk about North African unity—the union of Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco. Few concrete steps toward this aim are expected.

For Algeria, the year will be crucial. It will determine whether the country has a chance of recovery with the aid of France or whether it will career toward complete anarchy.

France has indicated readiness to help but with certain conditions. The nature of these conditions and the extent of the aid are to be determined.

Tunisia will begin a period of austerity amid rising popular dissatisfaction. Lack of stable natural resources and the country's generally weak economy have prompted the government of President Habib Bourguiba to cut imports and adopt austerity.

Morocco's 33-year-old King Hassan II has won a major victory over his left-wing opponents. The Moroccans massively approved a constitutional monarchy, granting more power to the king. France continues to exercise strong economic influence on the country.

Both Morocco and Tunisia follow step by step the evolution of Algeria. The future of North African development and unity largely depends on the course Algeria will take.

Africa Elsewhere

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Stormy political weather, racial strife, seem in store for southern Africa, from the Cape to the Congo, in 1963.

And for the new and emerging states of Middle Africa the new year is likely to bring more groping toward stability, with an increasing tendency toward one-party rule.

The Congo—after 29 crisis-torn months of independence, it would be comforting to think things in the Congo were bound to get better.

On the credit side the Congo is safer, some of the administrative chaos has been unsnarled and there may soon be a final decision on Katanga secession.

On the debit side are problems created by independence and still unsolved. Katanga is still a break-away province. Its rich mines still pay no taxes to the Leopoldville treasury.

Central Premier Cyrille Adoula orders the new year with serious threats in Parliament. There is always the threat of a coup d'etat.

Taxes the central government manages to collect go for upkeep of the army and police, though personal safety still cannot be guaranteed. The government must pay other expenses by printing money or relying on the United Nations and U.S. aid.

Central African Federation—formed by Britain in 1963, this union of Nyasaland and Northern and Southern Rhodesia is headed for almost certain breakup. Britain already has agreed in prin-ple to the secession of Nyasaland, smallest and poorest of the three, under African leaders headed by Dr. Hastings Banda. Mineral-rich Northern Rhodesia got a black majority legislative council in a fall election and its African leaders plan a secession drive early in the new year. In face of these developments, Southern Rhodesia's white voters rejected proposals for multiracial rule and elected a right-wing white government to try to hold on to their privileges. White Southern Rhodesians look toward friends on their flanks—where Portugal still holds Angola on the west and Mozambique on the east coast. But most of all Southern Rhodesians look southward to rich, white-ruled South Africa. South Africa—the ruling whites, outnumbered almost 5 to 1, have been arming to the teeth to defend what its government increasingly considers the last redoubt of "Christianity and white civilization" in Africa. South Africa has an expanded police on constant alert to combat African underground terrorists and "white inciters" blamed for a series of racial clashes and persistent sabotage. For these purposes the government has not only strengthened its internal and external defense forces but armed itself with stern antisabotage and political control laws.

THE STATE OF THE WORLD:

Trouble In Some Areas, Progress In Others

South Viet Nam is fighting a bitter, indecisive war, against Communist guerrillas. The government, backed by massive American support, has made progress but Communist strength grew. Years of elusive fighting lie ahead. President Ngo Dinh Diem maintains a tight but uneasy control.

Laos, a pawn in the cold war, is stumbling toward a stable government with uncertain prospects of success. Neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma has threatened to resign if left and right wing factions do not cooperate.

Indonesia confronts a major economic crisis that could undermine the government. It takes over West New Guinea next May. The country continues its military buildup, leading to speculation whether Portuguese Timor may be Indonesia's next target.

Gen. Ne Win's military regime in Burma is giving the Buddhist nation a taste of tough government to revive the flagging economy through a socialist approach. There are a few early signs of success but a strained year is in prospect.

The proposed Federation of Malaya is expected to go ahead, with a deadline Aug. 31. It will include Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak, North Borneo and possibly Brunei. Inclusion of Brunei has been thrown into doubt by this month's rebellion, subdued by British forces.

Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal has emerged as a strong leader. His efforts to clean up graft and corruption in government and to develop economic programs have won popular support. The Philippine claim to North Borneo has cast a shadow on the future of the Association of Southeast Asia.

Thailand is returning to normal after a year of excitement which included a U.S. troop buildup when the civil war in Laos threatened to spread.

Cambodia, embroiled in a border cold war with South Viet Nam and Thailand, enjoys political stability. A military buildup is on as Cambodia's relations with its neighbors deteriorate. Foreign aid bolsters the wavering economy.

Each Southeast Asian nation eyes Communist China to the north, and wonders whether 1963 will bring Communist aggression to the area.

The Far East

By JOHN RODERICK TOKYO (AP)—To all appearances, Red China will move into 1963 with a chip on its shoulder. Its tough stance, and that of North Korea, may spell trouble. Criticized by enemies and some fellow Communists as well, Peking and Pyongyang seem determined to prove their "hard line" against the West is more effective than Nikita Khrushchev's profession of peaceful coexistence.

Chinese troops in the Himalayas are under a cease-fire in the China-Indian border war, but China may renew the fighting, perhaps in the spring, if India refuses to accept its terms.

North Korea is strengthening its army. This could forestall pressures and possible increased subversion against South Korea.

A virtually unafraid Japan, loser of one war, will look the other way if trouble breaks out in Asia. Concentrating on its temporarily slowed economy, it aims for more steady progress and more trade.

Hong Kong, prospering in a building and tourist boom, may be asking anxious questions. One of them: How will China react to Khrushchev's taunts that Peking tolerates a full-fledged colony next door?

For Red China's old enemy, Chiang Kai-Shek, 1963 will be another year of watchful waiting for signs of an attack on the offshore islands combined with efforts to keep the Formosa economy stable despite a rising population and defense drains. Chiang may dream wistfully, too, of a mainland invasion, one not likely to be launched in 1963.

Middle East

By WEBB MCKINLEY BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—This next year could be the year of the showdown between Arab republicans and kings.

In 1962 the long struggle between old and new in the Middle East came suddenly into focus in remote Yemen, whose feudal monarchy was overthrown by republican revolutionaries.

Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic rushed to the rebels' aid and found himself in a power fight with Saudi Arabia's uneasy royalty and Jordan's King Hussein.

For Yemen, itself, 1963 should be more peaceful now that the United States has bolstered its new government with recognition. But the rivalry of Nasser and the kings will grow.

Nasser has promised support for all "popular" revolutions—and his followers would consider one in Jordan, Syria or Arabia or republicans Syria—once Nasser's northern province—very "popular."

Saudi Arabia in particular was shaken by the Yemeni revolt and, stirred by Cairo radio, faces grave threats in the coming 12 months. Inside Egypt a relatively quiet year is in prospect with slow and possibly unsteady economic progress.

Nasser will pay more attention to his western neighbor, Libya, which is becoming an economic force as it enters the world oil market.

Observers regularly have been predicting the downfall of the Kassem government in Iraq and few will be surprised if they are proved correct in 1963. Abdel Karim Kassem, who has survived by a clever balancing act, still vows he will "return" oil-rich Kuwait to Iraq.

The Mideast's two major non-Arab states, Turkey and Iran, face common problems, among them long borders with the Soviet Union and restless students.

In Turkey, a shaky coalition under Ismet Inönü is trying against a diehard opposition to make economic headway and open the way for $1.5 billion in loans from an international consortium. Another paralyzed Parliament could result in another army takeover.

In Iran, where rigging ballot boxes is a traditional art, the shah has called for honest elections after 19 months of rule by government decree. One potential storm is the controversial land reform program opposed by land barons.

Indian Area

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Communist China's invasion of India and then its unexpected partial withdrawal have left a tense military stalemate for the new year along the Himalayas.

Tedious diplomatic exchanges between New Delhi and Peking will continue for several months. A new eruption of fighting then is a strong possibility as the Indian army recovers from its defeats with the help of U.S. and British aid.

The Chinese challenge will lead to new questioning of Prime Minister Nehru's leadership and of his policy of nonalignment. It also will cause a pruning of India's economic development program, delaying the day when India breaks out of its grinding poverty.

India and Pakistan will have difficult negotiations over Kashmir State. The breakdown of talks will constantly loom as a possibility. A final result that leaves both nations satisfied over the status of Kashmir seems impossible to find. Rising Indian anger over Kashmir, some of it diverted toward Washington and London, urging a solution of the dispute, will threaten to obscure the resolution to face the Chinese challenge.

Pakistan's constitution, written by President Ayub Khan to give him strong personal control, will be somewhat liberalized. Agitation for a return to a fully representative government will grow stronger, despite constitutional concessions.

In Ceylon, democracy will be strained further by the degeneration of parliamentary processes and by economic problems that seem to the leaders to demand strong measures.

King Mahendra will retain his personal hold on Nepal at a cost of-continued stagnation. His new constitution will fail to inspire popular enthusiasm or lay the groundwork for reforms.

Afghanistan's self-defeating feud with Pakistan will continue while the Afghan economy slides downhill as a result of closing the trade routes through Pakistan. However, the Soviet Union, which has been trying to strengthen its position in Afghanistan, is ex-

SET YOUR HEART

By T. H. Tarbet, Preacher Church of Christ, 2800 West Highway 80

"For Ezra had set his heart to seek the law of Jehovah, and to do it, and to teach in Israel statutes and ordinances" (Ezra 7:10).

In keeping with the example of the great Ezra, each of us needs to learn the law of God, to do it, and to teach it to perishing humanity.

These things must come in this order. It would do little good for us to teach that which we did not practice, and impossible to practice or to teach that which we did not understand ourselves. So, first, let us seek the truth of God's word. "Buy the truth, and sell it not; also wisdom, and instruction, and understanding" (Prov. 23:23).

Then, let us follow the example of Christ who first practiced the will of God and then taught it. "The former treatise have I made O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began to do and teach" (Acts 1:1). The doing comes before the teaching.

But we will not accomplish these things unless we set our hearts to do them. Out of the heart "are the issues of life" (Prov. 4:23). So, set your heart "to seek the law of Jehovah, and do it and to teach" it. Do so now! This is the first day of the new year. It is time to set your heart! —Adv.

Latin America

By FRANK BRUTTO
RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Latin America faces the new year with Fidel Castro vastly diminished in prestige but with national problems still towering in size and threatening to grow bigger.

Financial difficulties, political uncertainty and the need for stepped-up social reform continue as the general lot of Central and South American countries.

Communism, even with the Cuban bridgehead stripped of its Soviet stag of missiles and bombers, continues to be a problem, especially in poverty-stricken belts.

Several nations, including giant Brazil and volatile Argentina, face the uncertainties of elections. So do Peru, Venezuela, Guatemala and Chile.

The Communists, openly and from underground positions, can be counted upon to continue their assault against President Kennedy's $20-billion Alliance for Progress program, which has not yet met with enthusiastic response and cooperation. Two former presidents, Juscelino Kubitschek of Brazil and Alberto Llermas Camargo of Colombia, form a special two-man committee to try to find out what is impeding the program.

Brazil, with a deficit of nearly $2 billion and its cruziro at a record low, faces the need of new financing that the United States alone — one authoritative source says — can not provide. A Jan. 6 referendum is likely to restore presidential powers and give President Joao Goulart a chance to institute social and other reforms.

Argentina, which survived a shooting crisis in 1962, also faces mounting financial and political difficulties. It will hold important elections June 16. Peronists, Communists and others considered to be totalitarian will be barred from running.

Peru faces an electoral test June 9, with general elections set up by a military junta following last year's overthrow of Manuel Prado's government.

Colombia, which broke relations with Peru after the Prado downfall, is expected to renew those relations in 1963.

Venezuela will have a stormy political year with presidential elections next December. President Romulo Betancourt may be the first civilian president ever to succeed in finishing his term of office.

Castro May Want Flights Resumed As Dollar Earner

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some American officials suggested today that Fidel Castro is pressing for a resumption of U.S. airline flights to Cuba because he sees them as dollar-earners—and as a safety valve for Cuban restiveness.

A communication from the prime minister's office Sunday said the Cuban government would allow "all those wanting to leave" to depart only after Pan American Airways resumes its flights to Cuba.

Private and commercial flights to Cuba were banned during the Cuban crisis. The ban remains although it was lifted briefly so that the ransomed Cuban prisoners could be flown out.

State Department press officer Lincoln White stressed Monday that the U.S. position is that it is risky for American planes to fly to Cuba without assurances of safety from Castro. Informants said the Havana re-

Recession Fears Fade; Business Advance Seen

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fears of an early-1963 recession have yielded to the expectation, in Washington at least, of a sluggish business advance that should pick up steam after midyear.

Many government economists believe that the national output will total $375 to $380 billion in the year ahead—a record, about $25 billion above 1962—and move on up to a rate around $400 billion by next New Year's.

But seldom have the prospects for Main Street and Wall Street been so vulnerable to decisions to be made elsewhere—at the opposite ends of Pennsylvania Avenue, at the White House and the Capitol.

The outlook for a moderately good, non-inflationary year, without boom or full employment, could be brightened swiftly, the economists say, if Congress gives early approval to the substantial tax cuts which President Kennedy will formally request in a few days.

CUT SHOULD COME

After a year-long barrage of administration arguments for a business-stimulating tax reduction, many consumers and business managers now confidently expect it. If Congress says no, some experts believe the public letdown could have a depressing impact on spending and investment.

And Congress quite possibly may say no, because the economy looks healthy enough to many lawmakers to get along without President Kennedy's costly booster shot. Congress members know that a significant tax reduction could help throw the rising 1963 federal budget out of balance by $15 billion or thereabouts.

Yet the prospect of higher federal spending, deficit-financed, is the main reason why the economists are fairly sure there won't be any recession in 1963.

Outlays by all governments—federal, state and local—are expected to go up $9 billion next year. This is comparable to the rise of $10 billion which helped carry the country over the economic rough spots of 1962.

PRIVATE SIDE

On the private side of the economy, most sectors are expected to do better than hold their own. They showed remarkable resiliency last year in overcoming a winter slump, a government-versus-industry battle over steel prices, a stock market collapse, a mid-summer slow-down, and the Cuban crisis.

The economists predict that 1963 will see these trends in key areas of the economy:

1. High and gradually increasing consumer demand. Total personal income increased every month in the past year. For all of 1962, it reached a record at a level $20 billion above the previous year. "Real" income also went up, because incomes rose faster than prices. Savings were high.
2. A moderate rise in business investment. The planned outlays of industry for new machinery, plants and equipment indicate a rise of 3 to 5 per cent for this investment. Government experts think these plans may be revised upward later in the year.
3. Cautious buying for business inventories. The outlook for consumer sales is not bright enough to induce business men to change the conservative rate at which they purchased supplies and materials in 1962.

4. Strength in the building industry. The biggest industry of them all, construction, will have its second record year in a row. Outlays on building will total about $63.3 billion, it is estimated officially. This would be $2.1 billion above 1962 and $6 billion over 1961.

5. Uncertainty in foreign trade and payments. The growth of the European economies, far more rapid than that of the United States in recent years, is slowing down. This could choke off the continued improvement in American export sales.

NO DOWNTURN

Summing up, the economists see no downturn in any of the major segments of the economy or any very dramatic upswing. For business men and consumers, this implies:

Little if any improvement in unemployment. The foreseeable business expansion should just about offset the growth of the labor force, leaving the jobless somewhere near the 5.5 per cent level of 1962.

Some rise in profits, but not enough to bring cheers from corporate management or stock holders.

Stable living costs. The consumer price increase in 1962 was less than 1 per cent. With industry continuing to operate well below capacity, most economists expect the living cost rise in 1963 to be even smaller.

Found Dead

Three members of a Costa Mesa, Calif., family, en route back home after a holiday visit with Arlington, Tex., relatives, were found dead in El Paso Monday. Dead were Mr. and Mrs. William John Barrett, 56 and 58, and a daughter, Debbie, 9, victims of carbon monoxide from an unvented cook stove in the back of a camping unit.

Nervous Tension-Exhaustion Not Natural

By HALVARD T. HANSEN, D.C.

Nervous tension is rapidly becoming America's number one problem. We are simply living too fast and our bodies cannot stand the pace. As a result, people are killing themselves—many will die in agony, and most of them before their time, simply because they are violating Nature's laws.

Perhaps the greatest rule of life preservation found in the Good Book divides your day into three equal parts — a portion for work, rest and pleasure. The greatest violation of this rule is improper rest.

Rest is necessary for Nature to REPAIR. People innocently deprive themselves of adequate rest. They push their bodies to the breaking point — racing from excess to excess. They are burning the candle at both ends in unrestrained pursuit of wealth and pleasure.

Nervous tension, resulting from this hustle and bustle of modern living, ranges all the way from simple jitters to a serious disability of the nervous system.

We find that nervous breakdown, invariably, is the result of some interference with proper functioning of the nervous system—usually traceable to the spine such as in this typical case from our files. A sad woman came to our clinic some while ago complaining of pain in the legs and low back. Headaches and nervousness had become a natural state of existence for her so she barely mentioned them. Fatigue and that "old tired feeling" was a way of life for her. She had prematurely aged. After finding the cause of her trouble with our nerve analysis and X-rays, we were able to remove the offending spinal nerve disturbances and her health rapidly returned to normal. We enjoyed watching her come in as she seemed to grow younger all the time and her smile became a delight to behold. In fact we looked forward to seeing her as she gave us a lift too. She had a special game which she played in that she wouldn't tell us when she had a headache (after they were just an occasional symptom) and then after her treatment tell us that she had come in with a headache and it was gone as she was leaving the office. No. 1195.

We invite you to visit our clinic for consultation about your problem of health. Just phone AM 3-324 or come to the office (just across from Piggy Wiggly). Investigate, what can you lose except ill health? —Adv.

Stocks Fell, But No Peril

By Ed Morse, AP Business News Writer. NEW YORK (AP)—What Wall Street thought couldn't happen—"another 1929" or something close to it—actually did in 1962. The spring panic, climaxed by the Black Monday, May 22, was the worst stock plunge in 33 years, since the darkest days of the Great Crash.

European Economic Boom Shows Slowdown

Wisconsin Favored In Oldest Of Bowl Classics

By JIM BECKER
-By The Associated Press

As if two jinxes weren't enough, the Southern California Trojans also must cope today with a group bent on restoring the family honor.

The Trojans go into the 49th Rose Bowl game at Pasadena carrying the national No. 1 ranking, as good a way as any to get knocked off, as most of the other teams which occupied that spot during the regular season discovered.

Aid the fact that it is Rose Bowl appearance No. 13 for the men of Troy. No other team has ever played in so many, so there is no precedent on this beyond the standard superstition.

Throw in Wisconsin, the No. 2 team in the country, and the only Big Ten school that has appeared in the Rose Bowl without winning.

In fact, the Big Ten has lost only three times since they signed up for the premier bowl battle, and Wisconsin has dropped two of those games, one to Southern Cal.

The Badgers are determined that this sort of thing can not go on. The odds-makers have made them favorites.

The game heads the usual Big Four bowl line-up, with kickoff at 5 p.m., EST. NBC will carry the game.

The other games line-up like this: Sugar Bowl, at New Orleans—Mississippi, 9-0, and third-ranked some on television, and the standard 100,000 will be in the Pasadena stands.

The other games line-up like this: Sugar Bowl, at New Orleans—Mississippi, 9-0, and third-ranked meets Arkansas, 9-1, sixth-ranked. Attendance, 83,000, and NBC at 2 p.m., EST.

Cotton Bowl, at Texas-Texas, 9-0-1, fourth-ranked, against Louisiana State, 8-1-1, ranked seventh. Attendance 75,000 and CBS at 3 p.m., EST.

Orange Bowl at Miami-Alabama, 9-1, and fifth opposes Oklahoma, 8-2, eighth. Attendance is 73,000 and ABC at 1 p.m., EST.

The line-up produced the top eight teams of the country, although ninth-ranked Penn State demonstrated in the Gator Bowl last Saturday that it takes more than credentials. Florida, four-times beaten and unranked, trounced the Nittany Lions 17-7 in that one.

Tigers Hope To Break Bowl Jinx

DALLAS (AP)—Texas puts the Cotton Bowl's winningest record on the line today, lashing at Louisiana State, which would only like to win one.

The Longhorns, coming into the big game unbeaten but once tied for the season, have been in the Cotton Bowl seven times—more than any other school by a wide margin. The Longhorns have won 4, lost 2 and tied 1.

Louisiana State, on the other hand, has played in the Cotton Bowl only once. That was an unsatisfactory tie with Arkansas in the snow, rain, ice and sleet in 1947.

LSU hasn't done very well in any of the bowls for that matter, winning only three out of nine. Texas has played in all the major bowls except the Rose Bowl and has a career record of 6-3-2.

So it will be the pride of the Southeastern Conference at stake as Louisiana State, led by All-America halfback Jerry Stovall, seeks to close out in glowing fashion a fine year during which the Tigers compiled an 8-1-1 record.

IDEAL WEATHER

At least Louisiana State won't be handicapped by bad weather, if all predictions hold up. The Weather Bureau has promised partly cloudy weather, with temperatures ranging from 50 to 60 degrees and no rain.

Louisiana State won the 1947 game in everything but the score, rolling up 255 yards rushing and 16 passing. Arkansas made only one first down and gained only 34 yards in total offense.

Sugar Results In Doubt But Not Prospects

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—No matter who winds up winner of today's Sugar Bowl classic, the odds are pretty good both Mississippi and Arkansas will be just as mean next fall.

The bad news for their 1963 opponents is this:

Third-ranked Mississippi, which turned back nine rivals for its first perfect season, will lose only 10 seniors. And the sixth-ranked Razorbacks, who lost only to Texas in 10 games, will see only nine go.

Some 83,000 fans were expected to jam Sugar Bowl stadium to see if Ole Miss Coach John Vaught can continue to weave his spell over Arkansas mentor Frank Broyles.

In four meetings since 1958, Vaught's teams have downed Broyles' Arkansas units every time.

Mississippi saw the last performance of ace quarterback Glynn Griffing and a 270-pound tackle Jim Dunaway. Six other starters will also graduate.

But the depth-laden Rebels will have junior fullback Perry Lee Dunn and sophomore signal caller Jim Weatherly returning for a solid backfield nucleus.

Mississippi will shape its 1963 line around returning starters sophomore guard Bobby Robinson and junior tackle Whaley Hall.

High Pressure, Low Score Is Bowl Outlook

MIAMI (AP)—Alabama vs. Oklahoma was the Orange Bowl football fare today, figured as a high-pressure, low-scoring battle between ranked elevens.

The show was scheduled to include the appearance of President Kennedy shortly before the kickoff as one of the 72,000 spectators.

Television cameras from ABC also were trained on the proceedings, matching Alabama's fifth-ranked Crimson Tide, 9-1 and the No. 8 rated Sooners, 8-2, who had won their last seven starts while trumpeting a return to national prestige after a three-year lapse.

It should be an extremely close game, Alabama Coach Paul Bryant said Monday as his team ran through a brisk 20-minute tuneup on the Orange Bowl turf. "I find it hard to believe we are rated a slight favorite."

Bud Wilkinson sent his Sooners through a similar drill. He had no such trouble pegging Alabama, loser of only one game in its last 28, as the pre-game choice.

Although the game is the first meeting ever between the schools, neither is an Orange Bowl stranger. Bama has won both its appearances while Oklahoma is unbeaten here under Wilkinson (4-0).

In fact, the Sooners have a 6-1 post-season mark since Wilkinson took over, the only loss being a galling 13-7 upset by Bryant-coached Kentucky in the 1951 Sugar Bowl.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With TOMMY HART

SPORTS dialogue: PAUL HORNUNG, Green Bay football star: "I have no immediate plans for marriage, but when I do take the step it will be in the morning. A friend of mine once told me that it was the best way... then if the marriage didn't work out, you still wouldn't have wasted the whole day... I'm not sure yet what I'll do after I stop playing football. The movies? No, that's not the business for me. I don't want to fool myself or anybody else. I might like to be a coach if the job is right. It would have to be a head coaching spot in a college."

OSCAR FRELEY, UPI sports writer: "The decision of the Cleveland Browns not to use Ernie Davis late in the season must be hailed as a good one because it proved they thought more of him than they did their own condition. The Browns report there is no evidence of any activity of the leukemia which sidelined the former Syracuse star this year. They say he is in 'great condition,' is at normal weight of 215, 'looks and feels fine' and is 'completely ready for regular team workouts.'"

KERMIT ALEXANDER, UCLA halfback and No. 1 draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers:

"I signed a football contract now because I wanted to finish college normally. I didn't want to run track this spring. If I went out for track, I'd have to give it everything I've got. That would mean daily workouts, travel and so forth. I'd have to take a lighter study load. You see, to be a trackman of Olympic or near-Olympic calibre, a fellow should give of himself all the way. With a lighter study load, I would then delay my graduation. The football season would come on me and I couldn't go to college in the fall. By the spring of 1964, who knows what I would be thinking. They tell me once a guy falls out of school it's very hard to climb back. Later on, I want to acquire a teaching degree in physical education."

Y. A. TITTLE, New York Giants' quarterback: "I don't count birthdays but rather the length of time it takes to get off a pass. From the moment you get the snap from center you have about three seconds to release the ball before your protection caves in. As long as you can do that, you can play."

FRANK LANE, general manager of the Chicago Zephyrs, on why he's not the wheeler and dealer that he was in baseball: "Basketball is a five-man game. As so, you carry maybe seven other players—some of whom are regarded as regulars. That gives you 12 men to deal. But because of its very nature, basketball is a game where you must protect your great men. The Terry Discingers and Walt Bellams. Trading off a basketball star would hurt your team's operation far more than trading off a baseball star. And you know, of course, that under today's economic conditions it is almost impossible to buy a star. Suppose we were sitting on top of one million dollars hard cash. Suppose we offered it for, say, Walt Chamberlain. If we had that kind of dough, the bank, we could afford to offer it, because the million would be selling the still. So most of the million would wind up with Uncle Sam."

JOHN BRODIE, quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers, on why he didn't pass more in the club's final game against Cleveland: "Several times I'd wait and take another look. But then it was too late. Everything hurts the passing game on a muddy day. It's hard to throw the ball. It's hard for receivers to run patterns and hard for them to catch the slippery thing. Then, it was hard to tell the receivers for the defenders."

WHO CARES FOR FORM? Kidd Cuts Half A Minute Off Bowl's 3-Mile Event

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Bruce Kidd, Canada's bizarre track stylist who clipped more than one-half minute off the Sugar Bowl 3-mile record, disputes the contention his running form is unorthodox.

In fact, the 19-year-old Toronto University sophomore suggests the picture runner of today—who pumps his arms across his torso as methodically as a piston—may be considered unorthodox in future generations.

Kidd, who stepped off a crisp 13 minutes, 36.4 second triple mile Monday and looms as the distance-man-to-beat for the 1963 indoor season, runs with a herky-jerky motion.

The 1961-62 Canadian Athlete of the Year flails his arms across his chest.

Sometimes, he lets them hang limp at his sides. Occasionally, he tugs at his shirt or shakes his head like a dog coming out of water.

"Who's to say what's unorthodox and what isn't," said Kidd, whose 13:17.4 effort last year stands as the U.S. 3-mile record.

West Texas State Rallies To Grab Sun Bowl Victory

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—The West Texas State Buffaloes, who seldom got off the ground the past season, took to the air for 14 points Monday and an upset victory over the Ohio State Bobcats 15-14 in the Sun Bowl football game.

With their ground attack stalled by jarring tackles, the Buffs had to take to the air for their two touchdowns and the winning two-point conversion.

Ohio's kicking specialist, Jim McKee, booted field goals of 32 and 24 yards and missed on attempts at 51, 56 and 59 yards.

Ohio's lone touchdown came on a

91-yard run on a fumble picked off of the air by the game's outstanding lineman, guard Don Hoover.

LONG FIELD GOAL McKee got thurs rolling in the second quarter as he booted a 52-yard line drive that just cleared the crossbar for a 3-0 Ohio lead.

Then West Texas made the first of its two come-from-behind efforts.

The Buffs marched 71 yards for a touchdown with the clincher coming on a 13-yard pass from Jim Dawson to Jerry Logan in the end zone. Sixty of those 71 yards came through the air with Dawson doing the throwing.

Hoover, who has started 62 consecutive games since he was a freshman in high school, made his big bid for fame in the third quarter.

FABULOUS FUMBLE Logan skirted left end and smacked into Hoover and a Bobcat playmate. The ball squirted into the air and Hoover grabbed it, outrunning the Buffs for his first collegiate touchdown.

McKee added his 24-yard three-pointer early in the fourth quarter and it appeared that Ohio had the game won.

But West Texas took the ensuing kickoff and marched 92 yards for a touchdown that came on one of the zaniest plays in Sun Bowl history.

Second unit Buff quarterback Hoot Gibson went back to pass. His receivers were covered and he danced back even farther.

Cincinnati Holds Firm Grip On First Place In Cage Poll

Undefeated Cincinnati held a firm grip on first place in the weekly Associated Press basketball poll today, but Southern California, Stanford, and Mississippi State tumbled out of the top ten.

The Bearcats, with a 27-game winning streak going, were awarded 42 of the 43 first-place votes cast by a panel of sports writers and sportscasters around the nation.

They finished with 429 points. Loyola of Chicago, the highest scoring team in the country, edged Illinois for second place, 331 points to 313. Illinois received the one first-place vote not awarded to Cincinnati. Both Loyola and Illinois were undefeated through Sunday.

Then came, in order, Arizona State, Ohio State, Kentucky, Duke, Wichita, UCLA and Auburn.

The votes were tabulated by the usual method of 10 points for first place, nine for second and so on.

Wichita, UCLA and Auburn all are newcomers to the top ten. Wichita pushed in after handing Ohio State its first defeat. UCLA was the surprise winner of the Los Angeles Classic.

The top ten, based on total points and 10 points for a first place team, 9 for second, etc., with first place votes in parentheses:

W.L. Pts.
1. Cincinnati (42)	429
2. Loyola Chicago	331
3. Illinois (1)	313
4. Arizona State	185
5. Ohio State	173
6. Kentucky	159
7. Duke	157
8. Wichita	116
9. UCLA	87

STRIKES-SPARES

Busy Bowling Times Are Ahead

The singles classic at the Bowl-A-Rama ends today at midnight. Several more have entered a and some good scores were bowled, and as a result, there are new leaders in both divisions. In the Men's Division, Leon Kirby is now leading with a 937, followed by Sheldon Holmes with 900 and Wade Bledsoe with 899. In the Women's Division, Nelly Kirby is leading with 792, followed closely by Jewell Williams with a 788 and Anne McDonald with a 782.

Looking at the scores, it appears that the men are rolling good scores and the women are lagging far behind. Such is not necessarily true, because the scores are on a handicap basis. The men use a handicap of 75 per cent of their average subtracted from 180.

HOW IT WORKS To illustrate this difference, suppose a man had an average of 180. He would then have a 13 pin handicap (180-180 equals 0x75 per cent equals 13) and for the four games, would have a total handicap of 60 pins, while the lady with a 180 average would have no handicap at all.

Only two leagues bowled last week. The Men's Major and the TelStars, and as usual, several good games were rolled. In the Men's Major, Bill Rork had the high handicap game and series with a nice 270 and 657. City Radio & TV had the high series with 2,977 and Pioneer Natural Gas had the high game with a 1,051. The high scratch scores of the week were: C. A. Tonn, Cornelison & Tonn Cleaners, 200 and 212; Claude Ramsey, Rips Cafe, 204; Clete Piper, City Radio & TV, 226; Ladd Smith, Cosden, 204; Harold Fischer, E. C. Smith, 202; Charles Carter, E. C. Smith, 211; Bill Rork, Pioneer Natural Gas, 211; and Roy Osborne, City Radio & T. V., 208.

LEAGUES RESUME The Bowl-A-Rama team of the Longhorn Traveling team won 10

Remember, Jan. 5 is the deadline for entries in the men's tournament to be held in Midland, Jan. 23 is the deadline for entry in the Midland Reporter Classic for the ladies.

The men's annual state tournament will be held in Fort Worth, Texas on weekends beginning March 16 and through April 28. Deadline for entries is Feb. 2. Incidentally there is a new rule on averages for the State Tournament this year. The average to be used is the highest average for the 1962 fall-winter league, provided that any high average is off Jan. 1, 1963 for 21 games or more does not exceed 1961-62 fall-winter average by more than eight pins. If such Jan. 1, 1963 average is eight pins or more over the 1961-62 average, then the high average must be used.

Do not forget the TABY league bowls here, Saturday, Jan. 5 at 8:00 p.m. Happy New Year and good bowling to all. —HARVEY HOOSER

McKinley Shows Why He's Tops

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Chuck McKinley has given tennis fans here convincing proof why he is rated the No. 1 U.S. amateur tennis player.

Displaying a brilliant all-court game, featured by his sparkling net play and an ability to come from behind, McKinley captured both singles and doubles titles Monday in the Sugar Bowl Tournament to emulate Hamilton Richardson's "double" of two years ago.

In singles, McKinley defeated Frank Froehling, the nation's second-ranked amateur, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. Then he teamed with Cliff Buchholz, his regular partner and a fellow student at Trinity College in Texas, to defeat Australians John Sharpe and Don Russell, 6-1, 6-4.

Weatherman Explains How Storm Grew

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY
An AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The weather man, with a touch of admiration for nature's ways, said today the winter storm hammering the Northeast was born of ideal circumstances.

Ideal, that is, to produce savage gales, snowdrifts as much as 20 feet deep and such bone-chilling temperatures as 35 below.

A combination of conditions in such distant places as Texas, the North Pole and Iceland was what did it, said Jerome Namias, chief of extended forecasts for the Weather Bureau.

"Such storms do not occur at random," he said. And he added that things may be tough in the Northeast for three or four more days, with temperatures below normal but slowly moderating."

To understand the big wintery blow, you have to start with Texas. Off that state on Dec. 27, an "incipient disturbance" was noted—that is, a bit of a tropical storm. Pretty feeble, this sprinkled rain over Texas on the 28th and over Louisiana and Arkansas on the 29th.

The air in this storm was relatively warm. Trouble is, just about that time, the upper air currents were bringing an unusual amount of cold air from the arctic.

The front of this frigid air mass hit the Southern disturbance in the butt end.

The strong clash in temperatures really began to churn things up. Temperature contrasts are what storms feed on, explained Namias.

Then the air masses moved out over the Atlantic and the warm air of the Gulf Stream acted like a gas burner under a kettle. Then things began to "boil" as it were, though of course the turbulent air never really got hot.

Now ordinarily, the storm might have moved off over Iceland and Greenland. But a high pressure area there sort of blocked it, and it turned more northerly instead.

That's what played hob with the folks up in Maine and elsewhere in the Northeast.

Don't Puncture The Tariff, Says Safety Pin Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sticking to the point, the U.S. tariff commission says the domestic safety pin industry has been rocking along at a fairly even clip for the past 15 years.

The commission said in a report to President Kennedy today it sees no reason why tariffs on foreign safety pins should be reduced.

In 17 pages of facts and figures the commission told the President that:

Despite year to year fluctuations there has been only a slight decline in pin consumption since 1948.

Per capita buying of safety pins has declined, but no reason for this was offered.

Imported safety pins accounted for 28 to 36 per cent of the market in the three years for which figures are available.

Imported safety pins paid a duty of 35 per cent of value from 1930 until the 1947 general agreement on trade and tariffs negotiated at Geneva. Then the duty was reduced to 22.5 per cent but in 1957 it was ordered to 35 per cent by presidential order under an "escape clause."

Business News Tops During Year

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Business news splashed over the front pages last year — stock market antics, tax cut talk, government-business skirmishes. Here, just one man's opinion, are the 10 top business stories of 1962.

1. Stock Market What was happening on the market—and why—fascinated millions this year, and pinched a lot of them. After a long slide, prices broke sharply at the end of May, making a bigger clatter than at any time since 1929. Then in the fall, after Russia backed down in Cuba, the market started back up just as spectacularly and causing just as much second guessing.

In between, official and inside probes of the exchanges kept the market in the headlines. And a survey of the workings of mutual funds is still hotly debated—by the funds, by officials, by fund shareholders.

2. STEEL BATTLE Steel Price Donnybrook. When President Kennedy quashed a price hike by the biggest companies in April (with an assist by some a bit smaller) the big story quickly became: Is government anti-business? And then, is business anti-Kennedy? Through the rest of the year there were attempts to patch up any lingering ill feeling. The government offered guidelines aimed at keeping prices from taking another inflationary spurt and wages from exceeding the increase in productivity. At year's end it's still moot whether the guidelines would hold if competitive factors didn't police the price-wage spiral.

3. Taxes Whether to cut them, how much, for whom, and when, kept the administration, Congress and the taxpayers in a flurry—with the answers still up to the new Congress taking over next month. Expense account reporting is being tightened, to the dismay of many. New rules for figuring depreciation credits are being tried out.

4. RECESSION When business activity increased less than first predicted, fears of a recession sprang up and were fed by the stock market break. But business continued to turn in good, if not spectacular, reports. Then the Cuban crisis revived spirits all around. The recession timetable was laid aside for debate some time next year.

5. Common Market Sudden public realization of the growth of a powerful competitor in Europe greased the ways for the Trade Expansion Act. This gives the President unprecedented power to bargain for lower tariffs, in some cases for no tariffs at all. This one is still a cliff hanger.

6. DOLLARS IN NEWS The Dollar's good name. A continuing deficit in the balance of payments (more dollars going abroad than returning) and the consequent loss of gold and fears the dollar might be "devalued" astounded many Americans, for years used to the dollar's being accepted as good as gold. Monetary pacts with other nations were worked out to discourage speculative runs on the dollar.

7. Economic Growth This became a household term this year. The question was how to keep the American economy growing as fast as the population so more people could have higher standards of living.

8. Treasury Deficits A debate stirred the nation: Was Treasury red ink good because it stimulated the economy, had because it caused future inflation, a problem that could be disposed of by different forms of bookkeeping? The only thing decided for sure was that the deficit grew in 1962 and will continue to grow in 1963.

9. UNEMPLOYMENT Even though employment totals increased, a hard core of those without work remained. Some blamed automation for taking jobs from people and giving them to machines. Union leaders wanted a shorter work week. Management wanted more profit incentives for expanding. Government sought means of boosting the economic growth rate to create jobs.

10. Profit Squeeze The total of corporate net earnings increased. But profits as a percentage of national income declined, and the margin of profits to sales were squeezed. Management charged production costs were rising too fast, taxes were too high, and government policies prevented price rises. Business leaders talked of a grim future.

Mexican Congress Okays Major Bills
MEXICO CITY (AP)—Congress adjourned until next September Monday after passing several history-making bills.

Two major constitutional amendments proposed by President Adolfo Lopez Mateos were passed by the present Congress in a last-minute flurry of activity.

One was a labor law which granted worker rights to share in company profits. The other was the politically revolutionary electoral law giving minor parties a greater say in government.

A permanent commission composed of senators and deputies will act until the next Congress opens. Named as president was Sen. Manuel Moreno Sanchez.

Skybolt Argument May Linger Awhile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Skybolt missile program has gotten the axe officially, but the argument seems destined to linger.

The Defense Department said Monday that the Air Force was taking steps to cut off all production linked to development of the controversial air-to-ground missile.

And, the Pentagon added, the Air Force will come up with a plan by next Monday for wrapping up the project. But a number of congressmen seem in a mood to try to unwrap it.

Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., has said the Senate Armed Services Committee, which he heads, will investigate the Skybolt program and subsequent cancellation.

And Monday—before the announcement—Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., predicted Congress would vote funds for continued work on Skybolt, despite opposition from the Kennedy administration.

The British had planned to buy 100 of the missiles for their Vulcan jet bomber, building their nuclear weapons strategy around the system.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, supported by Kennedy, took the position that delays, mounting development costs, unreliability of the weapons system and advances in other nuclear deterent weapons made Skybolt unfeasible.

The project has already cost $350 million and $307 million more had been appropriated for it. It was estimated by Pentagon officials that at least $2 billion additional would be needed to produce 1,100 operational Skybolts for U.S. and British bombers.

Murder Charges Filed Against 4

LEESVILLE, La. (AP)—Murder charges have been filed against two men and two women from De Ridder, La., in the beating death of a 32-year-old Waco, Tex., book salesman.

The salesman, Bobby Jack Commander, was found dead beside a country road early Sunday near this West Central Louisiana town.

Charged with murder were Bobby Wayne Keel, 27; Wayne Talbert, 37; Addis Mae Hickman, 42; and Theresa Williams, 18.

And He'll Keep On Waiting

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP)—Pharmacist John Swire heard an authoritative voice when he answered the telephone at his drug store:

A few minutes. We have the place under surveillance and we will arrest the men as soon as he comes out. Co-operate with him in every way so we can get evidence."

He took $50 and some narcotics and calmly walked out. Swire is still waiting for the FBI.

DEAR ABBY The Biology Of It All!

DEAR ABBY: I have had my eye on the boy who sits directly across from me in Biology class. I thought he liked me, too, because I've caught him looking at me a few times. Yesterday he slipped me a note. When I read it my heart sank. It said, "I could love you." I wrote on the back of it, "Same here. Wait and walk me to my next class." Then I handed it back to him. I almost died when I saw him pass it to ANOTHER boy without even looking at it! Abby, the note was from a creep in the back of the room and the boy across from me was just passing it to me from him. The creep waited and walked me to my next class, while I babbled like an idiot about nothing. Now the creep thinks I like him. How can I clear up this mess?

DEAR DIVORCED: There is nothing improper about a lady entertaining a gentleman in her home in the evening.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married almost three years and this is my biggest problem. He is a very quiet person and likes to read, but do you think a person should bring a book to the dinner table? I have asked him not to, but he says when he was a child his mother always let him do it. It hurts my feelings to have to sit across the table from a man who has his nose in a book after I have tried so hard to prepare a good meal. Am I making too much of this?

DEAR HURT: You are not his mother and he is no longer a child. Books have no place at the table. Make some interesting dinner conversation and he won't find it necessary to entertain himself.

Berlin: First Shots Of Year

BERLIN (AP) — East and West Berlin police exchanged their first shots of the new year today in the search for an escaped refugee. There was no report of anyone being hurt by the shooting and there was no immediate word of the refugee's fate.

West Berlin police reported that at 6:25 a.m. they saw the crew of an East German patrol boat shoot five rounds of tommygun fire into the Spree River, apparently aiming at a refugee in the icy water.

Fifteen minutes later police in another eastern patrol boat fired two shots at two West Berlin policemen in a vacant lot along the bank.

West Berlin policemen replied with six shots.

Ghost Of A Ghost Town

CONCORDIA (AP) — This little community is the ghost of a ghost town, the remnant of a city that never was.

And when the congregation of St. Paul's Lutheran Church begins to hold its meetings in nearby Bishop, the only things left will be an abandoned church and a lonely cemetery.

That day won't be long coming, for a new site has been purchased where a new church and school will be built.

St. Paul's Lutheran was built more than a half century ago, by a community of farmers who had immigrated to Texas and settled between Bishop and Corpus Christi. Their first concern was for the education of their children, and the first building those sturdy German farmers built was a school.

It served both educational and ecclesiastical purposes until the little mission-type church could be erected.

Meanwhile, the new town of Bishop, on the railroad, attracted many of the settlers away from the soil, and so Concordia was doomed even before it had started.

"Implementations have done to farming what automation has done to industry," said the Rev. E. H. Sanders. "There are no jobs for our young people and they move away."

So, before long, St. Paul's Lutheran Church will move the seven miles to Bishop, and when that time comes, the little Spanish-type building probably will be torn down.

The congregation, however, will keep the old eight-acre site in the midst of the coastal prairies. "We couldn't abandon it," the pastor said. "Our people are buried there."

For them, there always will be a Concordia.

Von Karman Gets Award

INDIO, Calif. (AP) — "My, that's nice," said the elderly scientist when told President Kennedy had just named him the first recipient of the National Medal of Science.

Dr. Theodore Von Karman, father of supersonic flight, was in an innertube floating in the swimming pool of a friend when informed by a newsmen of the honor.

Dr. Von Karman, 81, already has enough medals and ribbons to fill a basket and also has 23 honorary doctor degrees from various universities.

The latest medal, said the Presidential announcement in Palm Beach, Fla., is "for leadership in science and engineering basic to aeronautics, for distinguished counsel to the armed services, and for promoting international cooperation in science and engineering."

His work in jet propulsion dates back to 1912, when he formed a company to build JATO units for jet-assisted takeoffs. His work with wind eddies over airplane wings led to design of the first planes to break the sound barrier.

Bright And Clear In West Texas

By The Associated Press

The New Year dawned bright and clear in West Texas, overcast in East Texas and showery along the upper Gulf.

But everywhere in the Lone Star state this first day of 1963, temperatures were mild.

Early morning readings dipped below the freeze mark in the Panhandle, but elsewhere temperatures were in the 40s and 50s. The mercury was expected to climb to the 60s and 70s during the day.

Skies were clear in West Texas but there was considerable cloudiness throughout East Texas. Some shower activity was reported in the northern Gulf and in the Beaumont area.

Forecasts call for considerable cloudiness in East Texas and generally fair in West Texas with no important temperature changes expected through Wednesday.

Blue Whale Faces Doom

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The blue whale, largest living creature, may be faced with extinction if its hunters don't let up, says a U.S. official.

William C. Harrington, special assistant to the secretary of state for fisheries and wildlife, said Monday that the United States will ask the 18-nation International Whaling Commission to take drastic action to limit catches of the blue whale in antarctic regions.

Whaling nations turned to the antarctic after the Northern Hemisphere grounds were depleted in the 19th century. Under present commission regulations, international fleets make radio reports to Norway on their catch of blue whales. This continues from the opening of the season on Dec. 12 until 15,000, of the ponderous, oil-rich whales are caught. Then catches are prohibited.

Fortune-Teller Sees Peaceful Year

HONG KONG (AP) — A Chinese fortune-teller who had predicted the Cuban crisis would not lead to a world war said today that 1963 will be a year of peace.

Hu Tien-Chi based his predictions on the Chinese character for the rabbit, 1963 is the year of the rabbit.

Romney Takes Governor's Chair

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Auto-maker George Romney became Michigan's first Republican governor in 14 years today.

In his inaugural address, the 35-year-old former American Motors president pleaded for an end to the "cold war" that has been hindering our state progress.

"Our troubles have focused the national spotlight on Michigan. And solving these troubles will focus the national spotlight on these solutions," he said.

Romney is the first Republican to move into the executive office in Lansing since Democrat G. Mennen Williams was elected governor in 1948 for the first of six two-year terms. Williams is now an assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

Romney captured the governor's chair from John B. Swainson, 37, a legless veteran of World War II, by some 80,000 votes. He promised to bring "effective, bipartisan citizenship participation" into the state government.

Romney was the only Republican elected to statewide office.

In an apparent reference to speculation that he is a darkhorse contender for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination, Romney said that as governor he will follow the basic tenets of conscientious public officials.

Icy Gales Blamed In Northeast Deaths

By The Associated Press

Icy gales accompanied by sub-zero temperatures continued to lash the Northeast today and were blamed for fire, traffic accident and boating disaster deaths.

Blasts of arctic winds sent temperatures throughout the area to record lows in some areas. Little relief is promised during the day.

Temperatures in New York State plunged as low as 27 below zero.

New Year's Eve celebrations were curtailed in many areas by ravages of gales that gusted as much as 80 miles an hour. At least 20 persons lost their lives in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Rhode Island.

The Weather Bureau in New York said it was neither the coldest nor windiest New Year's Day on record. But the bitter cold kept the Times Square crowd at midnight down to 300,000 — lowest number in many years — and drove celebrators from the area within nine minutes after the New Year. The official temperature in the square at midnight was 11 degrees.

Small vessels and tugs were hapless victims before the gales. One was reported sunk in Long Island Sound, apparently carrying nine crewmen to a frigid death. Fires that inevitably accompany cold weather spread destruction and death throughout the area.

The Coast Guard was still looking for the 100-foot vessel, Gwendyn Steers, apparently down in Long Island Sound with nine men aboard. One member of the crew was found frozen in a lifeboat, his body encased in ice from waves and spray.

Near Highland Falls, N.Y., the 110-foot Coast Guard harbor tug Salk went aground in the icy Hudson River and half sank by the stern, but all 17 men aboard were rescued.

In New York harbor, passengers of ferries boats, lest strong winds sweep them overboard. A passenger on a Staten Island ferry reported seeing a youth blown overboard Sunday but a search of the harbor failed to turn up the body.

Transportation was jammed, windows of stores and homes smashed, electric wires downed, water mains burst and destructive winds clogged thoroughfares with debris.

The state of Maine suffered through its worst blizzard in a decade with up to 20 inches of snow. Drifts piled as high as 20 feet in Bangor, where the Daily News failed to publish a morning paper Monday for the first time since 1899.

At least 2,000 persons were stranded in buses and cars throughout Maine, and Gov. John H. Reed appealed to more fortunate citizens to offer a haven to those seeking refuge.

Rockefeller Embarks On Second Term Today

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller embarked today on his second four-year term as chief executive of New York in a ceremony prominently throughout the nation as a possible Republican candidate for president in 1964.

The governor was sworn in Monday night at a quiet ceremony in the drawing room of the newly renovated executive mansion in the presence of approximately 20 persons, most of them state officials.

He will take the oath of office later this afternoon, following the inaugural ceremony.

Monday night's inaugural assured the continuity of the office of governor, after the midnight end of his first term.

More than 1,000 persons, including former governors, members of the legislature, state officials and Republican leaders — have been invited to the public ceremony and a buffet luncheon.

Scranton and three sons were skiing nearby and were not aware of her experience until she was back on the ground. Attorney Lawrence Coughlin, member of the Scranton party, waits on the chair to descend the ladder.

A Devotional For The Day

Fear not; I am the first and the last; I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold, I am alive for evermore. (Revelation 1:17-18.)

PRAYER: O Lord, we thank Thee that we can rely on Thy promise to be with Thy disciples always. Keep us steadfast in our journey through life 'til we come to Thee. In Thy great name we pray. Amen.

Non-Conformity And Propriety

Associate Justice William O. Douglas, no stranger to controversy, has stirred a minor furor by authoring a booklet, "Freedom of the Mind," that lambasts all the present-day pressures for conformity and against free thinking.

The liberal-minded jurist pretty well covered the waterfront. He blamed government for withholding non-security information necessary to intelligent democratic decisions, the educational system for allowing erosion of academic freedom, the press for avoiding controversy and not digging deeply enough into complex situations, the controllers of science and technology for bonding society to its mechanistic ends, commercial and political propagandists for brainwashing the public, and people generally for not being sufficiently inquiring and critical.

There is much truth of course, in what Justice Douglas wrote in the pamphlet, which is one of a changing series being sent out by the American Library Association and the Public Affairs Committee Inc. of New York. His points will be hotly disputed however, by all who were hit.

Careful With Your Collecting

Collectors of silver dollars are distraught, all because the U.S. Mint has shipped hundreds of thousands of silver dollars to member banks for the holiday season. Many are used as gifts or given out as change by retail establishments.

Just two months ago, for instance, New Orleans mint silver dollars from the 1898-1904 period have plummeted in price. The 1903 "O" dollar was worth at least $1.50. Today it is worth $25 and may go lower. The 1904 "O" has dropped in value from $350 to a little above face value, as have the 1898 "O" from $300 and the 1902 "O" from $35.

The situation isn't very easy to explain. The value of a coin usually rests on the number of copies that a mint produces, thereby determining relative rarity. The number of silver dollars minted from 1898-1904 was known, but the fact that many of them were not distributed by the U.S. Mint but kept in vaults, created artificial scarcity. Collectors seeking to complete a series bid up prices to fantastic and unreasonable levels. Now the bubble has burst.

Apparently collectors either forgot or ignored a previous experience about six years ago when Carson City dollars flooded the market and prices tumbled. Even later the 1924 dollar, also at a premium, fell practically to face value when tens of thousands of them suddenly appeared in circulation.

The only safe course for collectors, it appears, is to base their judgment of price on true scarcity in terms of numbers minted rather than relative scarcity caused by the failure of the mint to distribute them.

Examining U.S. Policy On Africa

BRAZZAVILLE—Things were rough all over in the Congo, so the State Department at last decided to send the noted psychiatrist, Dr. Clarence W. Couchmaster, to make an examination of American policy on Africa. Where statesmanship had come to its wits' ends, maybe psychoanalysis could make sense.

"WITCHCRAFT has been at work on the American mind," said Couchmaster, who sat on the waterfront terrace of the Beachhouse Restaurant, and looked out across the Congo River toward the pseudo-civilized skyline of Leopoldville. "There isn't any other explanation when a white man's nation like the U.S.A. comes down here and insists upon a Black Supremacy policy."

Did Dr. Couchmaster mean that American policy-makers had fallen under some sort of African spell, perhaps induced by mambo jumbo?

"AFRICA DOES strange things to minds like those of Chester Bowles," G. Menon Williams, Adlai Stevenson and others who are tormented by the phobia of Liberalism, declared Couchmaster. A few years ago the Liberalists were so whipped on the subject of internationalism that they put every country ahead of their own. Later they went through the phase of anti-Communism wherein Hiss was a better man than Nixon, and spies were more guilty than those who exposed them. The latest manifestation of this over-intellectualism is in the color fixation. American diplomacy is obsessed with Blackness. If a policy isn't all Black, it's all wrong."

YES, THAT MIGHT explain the lack-luster eagerness of American policy-makers to rub out what is essentially a West European civilization in South Africa, and to adopt the motto of "One man, one vote" in the British Federation of the Rhodesias where the white minority is making a genuine effort to share power with the black majority. But Washington isn't satisfied with white rule, nor even black-and-white rule. It's got to be All Black. Didn't Dr. Couchmaster think that inflexibility and extremism were poor qualities for a world policy?

"They certainly are," said Couchmaster.

Gentle Revolution In Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—Africa is still a man's world. All the shouting about freedom leaves most women grubbing for food, carrying water and firewood on their heads and being sold to their husbands like cattle.

But a gentle revolution is under way in Uganda, the latest colony to become independent. A small group of women is leading a campaign to bring women into the new world of freedom.

British colonial officers, the churches and a few progressive Ugandians have made some progress in emancipating women in the cities. In the rural areas, where 90 per cent of the population live, tribal customs condemn women to a life of toil and bearing children.

UGANDA fathers still extract a bride price for their daughters from prospective husbands. In some places this may amount only to a goat and a few small are welcome too because they enlarge the clan. If the marriage breaks up for any reason, the husband can send the woman back to her parents and claim the bride price he paid. Some men marry one woman in Christian rites and take others in tribal rites.

THE ONLY women smashing these ancient tribal practices are those who get an education or marry more advanced African political leaders or businessmen.

From this group of women comes the move to improve the lot of rural women. One of the leaders is Mrs. Phyllis Kisonko, a South African from the Transkei African Reserve who graduated from Fort Hare University and married a visiting Ugandan chief.

She is a former president of the Uganda Council of Women and a vice president of the International Council of Women.

"ONE OF our problems," she said, "is simply recognition of women by men."

Since women have so little in common with African men, Mrs. Kisonko said, the council is sponsoring courses in citizenship, civic duties, home improvement and English.

The ability to speak English, official language of the new nation, has become a status symbol. The Uganda Council of Women has asked United Nations aid in teaching English.

The council is pushing to get more women in government positions. With few women college graduates in Uganda, the number of qualified women is limited. Only two women work in government ministries.

FOR THE rural women, the uplifting will be slow and painful. Most of them are illiterate as are their husbands. The husbands do not take kindly to wives working outside the vegetable patch and the hut.

How To Avoid Frostbite And Freezing

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D. I know a man who lost some fingers from frostbite as a result of changing his automobile license plates on a frigid day.

Many of us, living in warm houses and riding in warm cars, have lost the respect our grandfathers had for cold. The upsurge of interest in winter sports, like skiing and tobogganing, not to mention winter hunting and camping, makes it important to be careful and smart. Even in comparatively mild weather, some hunters have died of exposure.

And then there are simple things like changing license plates. Our forefathers knew that touching metal in cold weather is dangerous because so doing quickly conducts heat away from the flesh.

Bradford Washburn, director of the Museum of Science in Boston, has written an interesting article about frostbite in mountain climbing, but the peril can still exist in our own driveways.

He points out that wind and cold together can be more deadly than either one alone. A 45-mile gale at a "moderate" 20 above what is as chilling as 40 below in a two-mile breeze.

Why? Because with little or no wind, a layer of faintly warm air lingers around us. In a wind, no such fragile layer of air remains. Every particle of cold air that touches us carries away its tiny speck of heat.

That's why, when we step out doors in shirt sleeves on a cold day we don't feel the full effect of the cold at once. That's also why an Eskimo parka's hood is designed to project forward around the face, cutting off some of the direct effect of the wind.

In many instances snow can be colder than the air. You can freeze your feet in loose snow on a cold, sunny day when you suffer frostbite nowhere else. On a zero day, snow a foot below the surface can be much colder.

The Arctic igloo made of snow protects because it cuts off wind and permits the creation of a pocket of warm air. But lying or falling in a snowbank isn't like being in an igloo.

For winter walking, dress appropriately. Wear socks and boots that aren't too tight. Impeding your circulation is risky. If you stop to rest, eat or admire the scenery, and sit down, it's wise, if possible, to get your feet hoisted and aimed toward the sun if there is any.

Mittens are warmer than gloves. For surveyors, photog-

Happy Same-As-Any-Year

I don't know how you feel about December but as far as I am concerned, you can have it. I wept no bitter tears when the month came to an end. In my books, it has been a jinx month in spades and I'd just as soon forget all about it.

People always stay up late on New Year's Eve and whoop and holler when the clock hits midnight. "Happy New Year," they all bellow. There's usually an exclamation point at the end of the statement. Actually what should be there is a big black question mark.

I SUPPOSE, in reality, one year is about as bad and about as good as another.

I long since found out there is no "normal" year. And a year which may be lucky for one may be just as unlucky for his brother.

Each year, in final analysis, rolls along just as its predecessor rolls along. The sun rises and sets. The moon is new waxes full and wanes. The weather is hot or the weather is cold. It rains or it is dry. And if it rains, the moisture causes happiness for some; unhappiness for others.

NEW BABIES ARE born and the world becomes more and more populated. The same old crises which kept us all a-twitter last year are still with us and there are new ones coming up over the horizon.

Some of us will prosper far beyond our merits, and others of us will struggle and strive and lose ground every dog-goned day.

Some folk make a long list of resolutions on New Years—they write out all of the things that they have been doing which they think they shouldn't have been doing. A million or more chain smokers will solemnly swear off cigarettes. Boozers will push the bottle aside and avow they'll never touch the stuff again.

EXTRAVAGANT ones will affirm their solemn intention to spend less and save more. Gluttons will declare that they will stop stuffing themselves.

I think these resolutions all mean exactly what they say.

The only trouble is the resolutions are so dog-nabbed hard to live up to. The smokers who quit will surreptitiously begin sneaking a few drags when they think no one is watching. And, in no time at all, they'll be puffing away just as they always have.

The imbibers will think that a couple of quick ones won't really matter. These two quick ones begin to quarrel and a third has to be sent down to arbitrate. From then on—there you are.

THE FATTIES will look at the groaning table, heaped high with goodies, and decide that after all, one more square meal won't hurt.

And the glens of a shiny new car will so blind those who intended to be saving this year that their resistance topples, and back they go deep in debt.

And so it is on this date—New Year's Day 1963. Make the most of it.

—SAM BLACKBURN

First Things Not Altogether First

By WILLIAM S. WHITE (For Marquis Childs, who is on vacation)

WASHINGTON—Washington ends the old year with still lively memories of a recent escape from imminent and infinite peril. In the Cuban crisis, and with rising confidence that the new year may bring some easing in cold war tensions all around the world.

It would be quite wrong to present the atmosphere as one of glad "full optimism." But it would be equally wrong to take note that 1963 approaches in the company of fewer birds of ill omen than could be readily espied as 1962 approached 12 months ago.

IN THIS HEMISPHERE, our security is still far from total. The Soviet back-bow in Cuba has neither deposed Fidel Castro nor ended his capacity for troublemaking in Latin America. But Castroism, though not yet unrooted has been to a large extent genuinely isolated. An unexpected result has flowed from President Kennedy's decision to risk nuclear war as the alternative to an entrenched Soviet missile base in the Caribbean.

Most of the Latin American countries, which so long had urged a soft line upon us in our efforts to deal with Castro, are now more nearly in the hardline camp. They could at least understand the harsh logic of those Soviet missiles capable of being pointed toward Central and South as well as North America.

IN SOUTHEAST ASIA 1962 has brought no victory, as such, but has arrested communism's march. Moreover, the Chinese Communist invasion of neutralist India—plus good, tough diplomacy by the United States and Britain to compel India to deal reasonably in her old border dispute with pro-Western Pakistan—may well have signaled the end of neutralism as an effective force in this world. For through its own principal apostle, India, neutralism has now been proved the dangerous illusion that it always really was.

Looking back upon the old year, the transcendent fact of all is that this was the year in which President Kennedy freed himself of those counsels of timidity within his own Administration which had threatened to compromise his leadership of the free world.

CUBA WAS THE great watershed. When at last he stood up all the way there, he not only forced a Communist withdrawal. He also came fully into possession of a truly decisive President—decisive not alone in this country but also within the Western alliance.

It is therefore a reasonably safe prediction that in this role he will be a strong and forceful executive in 1963. Certainly he will be no less if he now risks his Administration's foreign policy of the undisturbed interference of the United Nations—which, though an excellent instrument in some ways, is not and never can be capable of guarding the ultimate interests of this or any other great world power.

AS TO DOMESTIC policies, there are few signs, if any, that in the year to come the President will cease paying so much heed to the enervated "demands" of the Democratic left-wing for various debatable domestic reforms of variously debatable kinds. The domestic policies of the Administration are pretty largely run on the theory that the urban pressure groups, are its indispensable allies and so must be placated at practically every turn.

In short, 1963 should be a pretty good year on the great overmastering issue of our time, the cold war. But it is not likely to be so good a year to those who wish we could put first things altogether first and so forget about innovations in this nation until its place in the world is made absolutely secure.

New Year Won't Go Phoo-ph!

No new year would get off to a proper start without a prophecy from William K. (Bill) Davis, vice president of the father-son Penn Fibre & Specialty Co., Inc., Philadelphia, which makes vulcanized fibre and laminated phenolic products.

Bill not only sticks his neck out, but measures how far he gets it out of alignment. He writes:

"Here at the small business level, we try to keep ahead of economies. If we didn't, we'd end up as a Dun & Bradstreet business failure statistic.

"I HAVE MIXED emotions about my 1962 predictions, especially about steel. I forecast a six-week strike, settled by the government, with a $3-to-$7 per-ton price increase.

"I hit the target on the price advance—for three days. That's how long Roger Blough's $6-a-ton price rise lasted. I was right in figuring that the government would participate in the negotiations, but underestimated the degree of participation. The government was 'it' at the bargaining table.

"Nineteen sixty-two was not a bad year. Over-optimism of Mr. Kennedy's economists raised hopes too high. The gain of about 7 per cent in the Gross National Product was evidence of oomph and we here at Penn Fibre, look ahead to a 1963 which won't go 'phoo-ph.' Incidentally, I predicted a 5 per cent gain in '62 over 1961, which was pretty close for conservative me.

"FOR 1963, I predict a 2 per cent to 3 per cent increase over the 1962 GNP of $54 billion. This will mean a 1963 GNP of $56 to $57 billion. Unfortunately, 1/2 of 1 per cent of this gain will represent price advances.

"What makes the economy strong? First, the all-powerful consumer. Automotive sales will be about 5 per cent less than in '62, but it will be a bang-up auto year. Two good years back to back!

"ADVANCE PLANS for business spending are not encouraging, but I think that as '63 moves along, upward revisions will take place. The investment-tax credit and faster depreciation write-offs make it good business to improve plant. I spent more in 1962 than I planned and my planning for this year is even greater. This is the only way to remain competitive.

"I look for a 10 per cent improvement in foreign trade and a better balance-of-payments picture. Wages in Europe are going up at a faster clip than ours. But European manufacturers are tough competition—not to be underestimated.

"BIG SPENDING by local, state and national governments will be a strong business stimulant. A negative tendency will be housing. We are reaching a saturation in apartments and homes market-wise, but this is only temporary. The climb will resume when the war babies start marrying.

"A lot has been said about inventories. Actually, inventory-building is not in the cards because excess capacity and inventory control by computers makes possible a lower level of stocks on hand. (Let's say it this way: Bill. Inventory building is not in the punch cards!)

"Starting in February, however, I see some inventory building in steel as a hedge against possible labor trouble. Wages can be reopened on May 1.

"ONE AREA that frightens me is unemployment. Gray-and-white-collar workers are now losing jobs. The gray-collar are the supervisors and the foremen. Hourly workers have reduced the number of hourly workers for them to supervise.

"Recently, a Swedish business friend asked me to explain U.S. unemployment. Is it economic or social? I told him it was mostly social, and called his attention to the help-wanted columns in newspapers. Hundreds of jobs for skilled mechanics and technicians, scarcely an ad for untrained workers.

"Look for a two-part tax cut—one in 1963, another in 1964, with this year's slice amounting to about five billion dollars—not enough to cause a great change in the economy. The stock market will reflect business-bullish the first third of the year, bearish the second third, and then wind up with a flourish on the upside.

"Our own business did all right in 1962 with a better than 5 per cent increase. Sincerely, Bill."

Thanks, Bill, you did all right. Sincerely, Joe.

MRS. JOHN HOWARD COLE JR.

Miss McCarty Bride In Fort Worth Wedding

Marriage vows were exchanged by Miss Jenna Kathryn McCarty and John Howard Cole Jr. Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the University Baptist Chapel, Fort Worth. The Rev. James G. Harris, pastor, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. McCarty, 433 Dallas. Cole is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cole, Fort Worth. The nuptial scene was illumined by many candles in gold aisle standards, and spiraled candelabra on the altar. White stock mums and gladioli with palm branches enhanced the nuptial setting.

A program of organ music was presented, and vocal selections were "Requiem" and "The Lord's Prayer," sung as the couple knelt upon a white satin prayer bench.

A gown of pearl white slipper lace and re-embroidered French lace was worn by the bride, who was given in marriage by her father. Designed with scooped neckline detailed with seed pearls, the gown had a voluminous skirt with flat bow accenting the back, from which the lace-paneled skirt swept into a circular chapel train. She carried a white orchid in garlands of stephanotis and valley lilies on a white satin Bible.

ATTENDANTS Mrs. K. D. Kiesling, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Nellie Anderson, Fort Worth; Miss Renee Merrim, of Weimer; and Misses Lisa Carter, Fort Worth, and Iacene Stages, Dallas, junior attendants.

Cathy Carter, Fort Worth, was flower girl. Gray Mills, Fort Worth, was best man, with Tommy Brasher of Weimer and Kenny Simmons of Houston, serving as groomsmen. Ushers were Donald McCarty of Los Angeles, and Robert McCarty, Big Spring, the bride's brothers, Kenneth Kiesling of Laurel, Md., and Robert Wagner of Houston.

Mark Gunter, Fort Worth, was ring bearer, and the taper lighters were Kent McCarty, Big Spring, brother of the bride, and Mike Gunter, Fort Worth.

RECEPTION A reception was held in Fellowship Hall at the church. Guests were served from a table spread with white satin and tulle, skirted in tiered ruffles. Orchids, roses, wedding bells and rings adorned the five-tiered wedding cake, and centering the table were candelabra holding lighted candles and based in the bouquets of the bride's attendants.

MISS ANN HASTON and Mrs. J. L. Daniel, both of Fort Worth, were those who served. Guests were registered by Miss Luan Phillips, Big Spring.

WEDDING TRIP The couple left afterward on a wedding trip to Houston. For travel the bride chose a white wool suit collared in white mink, white lizard shoes and bag and the orchid corsage from her wedding bouquet.

The Coles will make their home in Houston, where he completes his education at Rice University. A senior in economics, he was a member of the Rice University varsity football team, and was chosen to play in the North-South football game Dec. 22.

The bride who attended Howard County Junior College and Texas Tech, Lubbock, has been working as secretary of Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Company in the engineering department, Fort Worth.

MRS. LESTER A. DUFFER

Duffer-Read Vows Are Pledged At Forsan

The marriage of Miss Jeannette Irene Read of Westbrook and Lester Arnold Duffer of Forsan was performed at Forsan Friday evening at 7 o'clock by Paul Kell, Church of Christ minister of Big Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Read, Westbrook, are parents of the bride, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Duffer, Forsan.

For her wedding the bride chose a white taffeta street length dress, and carried a Bible topped with a white carnation. In keeping with tradition she had articles that were old, new, borrowed and blue. Out of town guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Read and daughter, Christine, Westbrook; the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Soles, and Mrs. Estella Craig, Richard Bloom, Kathy King, all of Colorado City; Mrs. Iona Read and Perry Smith of Westbrook; Jimmy Grant and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Duffer and daughter, Diana, of Big Spring.

The bride is a graduate of Colorado City High School, and Duffer, employed by Forsan Oil Well Service, attended school in Forsan. They will make their home in Forsan.

Weaving Comeback Noted Among Papagos Indians

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—There is a revival in the ancient art of basket making among the Papago Indians of Arizona.

Papagos have made their highly-prized baskets in this part of the southwest for centuries, yet three years ago the art was reported in danger of dying out.

Now there is a revival of interest among the females of the tribe because of a transplanted Californian by the name of Mrs. James Estrada who recently became the first non-Indian to be elected to honorary membership in the Papago tribe.

As chairwoman of Tribal Arts and Crafts, she supervised the sale of 3,000 Papago baskets in the past year.

These are not ordinary woven baskets. The heart of all strands is bear grass. The green color in the baskets is secured by binding the grass with unbleached yucca. For white, bleached yucca is used. Blacks come from devil's claw cactus. Now and then some of the baskets contain red. This comes from binding the bear grass with roots of the yucca.

Some women will make as many as 100 baskets in a year. A good basket will bring up to $25 retail.

But there are still only a very few women on the reservation who know how to make the tight baskets that hold water without leaking and are used in the Papago wine ceremonies.

Mrs. Estrada receives a few of the liquid-proof baskets each year, with all of them going to museums or collectors.

World Welcomes In The New Year

By The Associated Press
The New Year was welcomed jubilantly by a shivering wind-whipped crowd of 300,000 in New York's Times Square at midnight and greeted in a traditional manner in other parts of the world.

The New York celebration was described as the "smallest crowd in many years, and probably the coldest."

It took the heavily clothed New York revelers just nine minutes to leave the scene of their chilly celebration. Winds lashed the square with gusts up to 30 miles an hour and the bitter cold—11 degrees at midnight—seemed to penetrate the stocking caps and two or three scarves wrapped around the heads of women.

The birth of 1963 was hailed joyously in other cities of the world.

Perhaps one of the most colorful observances was in Tokyo where thousands of colorfully dressed Japanese thronged shrines and temples to welcome the Year of the Hare.

The New Year's holiday in Japan is a combination of Christmas, the Fourth of July and Easter. With the nation more prosperous than ever, the Year of the Hare—designated such by the Oriental calendar of the zodiac—looked good.

hours, but that the Soviet Union prefers peaceful coexistence.

The Soviet leader sent a New Year's greeting to President Kennedy and his family and the American people expressing hope that Soviet-American relations will be strengthened in 1963.

In Palm Beach, Fla., President and Mrs. Kennedy celebrated the arrival of the New Year at a midnight champagne party with friends. Their hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman, Palm Beach neighbors and close friends.

In Rome Italians by tens of thousands welcomed the New Year by breaking the law.

Exactly at midnight, they hurled old pots, pans, dishes and other rubbish from their windows, a symbolic way of throwing out the old year.

The midnight crockery shower was against the law. But that didn't stop the celebrating. By two minutes after midnight, almost every street in Rome was a motorist's nightmare.

Spumanti—Italy's own bubbling wine which costs only a fraction of what champagne does—was the drink of the evening.

Tel Aviv was the gayest town in Israel when 1963 was ushered in. Merrymakers filled hotel bars and night clubs until the early hours.

Jerusalem celebrated the beginning of the new secular year quietly, mostly at private parties.

In the southern United States, New Orleans virtually jumped with joy. Bourbon Street was lively, as the French Quarter resounded from cheers from Arkansas and Mississippi supporters for today's Sugar Bowl football game.

HONG KONG (AP) — A Chinese Communist soldier and a civilian were seriously wounded Sunday in an explosion at the Sun-chun rail station across from the Hong Kong border, Chinese press reports said today.

TABERG, N.Y. (AP) — Two teen-age boys perished Monday when they were buried beneath an avalanche of snow on a 100-foot sledding incline in this Oneida County village.

Wage Bill Due Automatic Boost By Around $1 Billion

By NORMAN WALKER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Even before 1963 labor negotiations get under way employers can count on an increased wage bill of around $1 billion. That's the rough value of deferred wage boosts due to year.

More than 3 million employees will share in these already-agreed pay increases. Negotiations for higher pay rates, on contracts that will either expire or be subject to reopening, are scheduled for at least another 3 million workers—mostly in the steel, rubber, telephone, electrical and railroad industries.

That's a capsule picture of the big labor contracts. It doesn't count the thousands of smaller labor-management agreements covering millions more workers.

All In The Red, Now AFL's Dead

CHICAGO (AP)—With all clubs operating in the red, the American Basketball League has suspended operations and thrown some 100 players on the market as free agents.

"Not a single club was operating in the black," said Commissioner Abe Saperstein, who announced the decision to suspend Monday after telephone conferences with club directors.

"About 100 players are involved and they now can be considered free agents. We hope to help them get employment. A great many should be picked up by the National Basketball Association."

Several NBA clubs reportedly were contacting ABL players to whom they have NBA rights through draft and trade procedure.

The St. Louis Hawks were said to be interested in Bill Bridges of Kansas City, the ABL's top scorer, and his 6-foot-9 teammate, Gene Tomohlen.

The prize catch could be former Ohio State All-America Jerry Lucas. The rights are held by the Cleveland Pipers, who later withdrew from the ABL and sought an NBA franchise without avail. Lucas has not played a pro game so far. He was a draft choice of the NBA's Cincinnati Royals.

Some reports placed losses of the ABL at $1 million last year and said they were $250,000 in arrears so far this season.

Demands of the railroads for a free hand to curb "featherbedding" their term for work they claim is no longer needed—are still an unresolved issue.

Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa continued to make news. He was put on trial for an alleged $1 million payoff but the jury couldn't reach a verdict and a mistrial resulted.

While 1963 looks like a potentially explosive labor year, the following year of 1964 may top them all. Practically every major union, including Hoffa's teamsters and Walter Reuther's auto workers, as well as steel again, will be up to bat for gains in a presidential election year atmosphere.

Cavalcade Honors Colorful Cawthon

MEXIA (AP) — A Cavalcade of honor was to be formed today for the late coach Pete Cawthon by athletes who played under his direction.

Cawthon, one of the Southwest coaching fraternity's most colorful members, died Monday at the age of 64 in Sherman, Tex. of a heart ailment. Burial was scheduled at 11 a.m. after the body had lain in state at the Corley Funeral Home here.

The cavalcade of honor tribute was organized by W. C. (Brigham) Young of Fort Worth, Gwin (Mule) Dowell of Lubbock and Frank Duzick of Dallas.

Fred Vannoy Dies Sunday

Fred L. Vannoy, a former Big Spring resident, died Sunday night in a Titusville, Fla. hospital. Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Chapel of McNeal Funeral Home with Masonic graveside rites in Klondike Cemetery at Pensacola.

Mr. Vannoy was born Feb. 26, 1914 in Oklahoma. He lived in Big Spring a number of years, working as a bodyman at the Chevrolet agency and McEwen Motor Co. He moved to Florida in 1942.

Two Oil Well Depth Records

DENVER (AP)—Two oil well depth records were set last week in the Rocky Mountain region, Petroleum Information reported today.

The industry publication said Kerr-McGee Oil Industries drilled past the 17,087-foot mark at its wildcat in West Colorado's Montrose County. It is headed for Mississippi and exceeds the previous Colorado depth record of 17,033 feet at a well in the Powell area of Rio Blanco County.

The Kerr-McGee well also becomes the second deepest Rocky Mountain penetration. The deepest was the Superior Oil Co.'s wildcat in Wyoming's Sublette County which was drilled to 20,521 feet in 1949.

Businessman Held In Double Shooting

AMARILLO (AP)—An early morning double shooting left a man and his son dead in this Panhandle city New Year's Day. Police identified the dead as J. R. Dameron, about 70, and his son, J. W. Dameron, 44.

Officers had in custody a well-known Amarillo businessman. No charges were filed immediately.

Police said the shooting culminated a long-standing argument between the suspect and the dead men.

The suspect was armed with a .44-caliber semi-automatic rifle and a 12-gauge sawed-off shotgun when he went to the victims' home, police said. Both men were shot in the stomach.

The younger Dameron was dead at the scene and his father died in an Amarillo hospital a few hours later. The fracas occurred at 3 a.m.

'Lawrence' Last Film Spectacle?

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie - TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—At the premiere of "Lawrence of Arabia," veteran film maker Mervyn LeRoy commented during the intermission: "Take a good look at that spectacle stuff. You won't see anything like it again."

He was remarking on the changing tide of film economics, which portend the finish of movies on such a colossal scale as "Lawrence of Arabia." It is possible that it and the unreleased "Cleopatra" will be the last of the truly epic films.

"Lawrence" is reported to have cost $15 million, and it shows. It is hard to recall any film that has put the wide screen to such impressive use.

There is scene after stunning scene—a lone, ominous figure galloping on camelback through a shimmering mirage; sunrises and sunsets amid the tremendously photogenic wasteland; caravans and camel charges galore.

There is also a story, the factual tale of a 20th-century hero whose legend seemed to belong to another, more romantic era.

The movie makes no attempt to pose a solution to the Lawrence enigma, and that has bothered some critics. It seemed less important to me than the need to point up the reason for the violent heroics that are so superbly reproduced on the screen.

The other defect of "Lawrence of Arabia" is its length. There is nothing wrong with a four-hour movie as long as it holds. "Lawrence of Arabia" has its dragging moments.

In most other aspects the film is superb. The acting is uniformly excellent, starting with Peter O'Toole's sensitive shading of a self-proclaimed outcast who became a fearless leader during a brief moment in history.

and stage credits in Dallas, including the recent "Bottoms Up" revue at the Hotel Adolphus.

At the Tree Club she was featured in "Crab Grass and Chicken Fat" last summer and before that in "Greenwich Village, USA."

She has worked with Theater Three, including its production of "The Moon Is Blue."

A drama graduate of Baylor, Rider has been continuously active in theater since he first studied acting in a children's school in Houston. He later became director of the Studio School of Theatre, Inc., in Houston.

As Jim Bowie in San Antonio's Alamo pageant for the past three summers, Rider has had one of Texas' longest and most famous roles.

Rider is probably best known in drama circles for his work at the Dallas Theater Center, where he most recently directed the premiere production of "Sister."

Baylor Graduates Star In Children's Theatre

"Beauty and the Beast," a familiar children's fairy tale, is coming to life in an entirely new musical version at Fort Worth's Casa Manana Merry-Go-Round Theatre.

The premiere performance will be at 10:30 a.m. and the full-scale musical will be repeated each Saturday morning thereafter during January.

"Beauty and the Beast" has been created by the combined talents of three of its Merry-Go-Round personalities.

Ivan Rider, director of the children's theater, teamed with Mary Lou Hoyle of the children's school faculty to do the book.

Rider also did the song lyrics, and Raymond Allen of Dallas, who composed the music for the M-G-R Theatre's first production, "Aladdin" last fall, has again done the score for this new show.

Rider is a "triple-threat" for this production in addition to being both its director and co-author, he will be starred as the Beast.

Starring as the Beauty will be Sharon Bunn of Dallas, well known for her theater and night club work there, who will be making her debut at Casa.

The Young Prince will be Carl Tressler, doing double duty as choreographer.

Miss Bunn is a drama product of both Baylor and the University of Texas. She has extensive club

Two Persons Die In Crash

SHERMAN (AP)—Two North Texans died today—the New Year

just one hour old—when their automobile went out of control and crashed.

Investigators said the late model convertible slid broadside 423 feet, hit a guard rail, sailed through the air 57 feet, and came to rest more than 100 yards away.

The Department of Public Safety identified the dead as Judith Armstrong, 19, of Irving and Ben Pior, 21, of McKinney.

Two persons who were injured were in critical condition in a Sherman hospital. They are Jack Winburn, 19, of McKinney, and an airman, Landon D. Duncan, also of McKinney.

Officers reported the survivors said the four had been to a party in Sherman. The accident occurred two miles south of this North Texas town on State Highway 75.

It could not be determined who was driving.

Witnesses said the engine and transmission were torn from the car which was described as completely demolished.

Hit-Run Victim

By The Associated Press

A hit-and-run accident in Amarillo early Thursday killed Airman Tredwell Jonas, 21, and injured a fellow airman, Russell Schwagen, 18, of the Amarillo AFB. The accident occurred on U.S. 66 just north of the base.

INSURE CAREFREE WINTER COMFORT WITH FLAMELESS ELECTRIC HEAT!

You'll enjoy new comfort, convenience and cleanliness when you heat your home the modern way—with flameless electric heat. Electric home heating is clean—as clean as electric light—which means less housecleaning and redecorating. Electric heat is thermostatically controlled, automatic and accurate. It provides gentle even warmth. Temperatures in each room can be controlled separately for economy and convenience. And you'll enjoy complete freedom of furniture arrangement because electric heating equipment takes up little or no living space.

Electric baseboard heaters are one of several popular types of electric heating equipment. Installed in place of normal baseboards under windows on outside walls, they direct warm air upward to block cold drafts. For information about this and other methods of electric home heating, telephone us or visit our office.
