

FIERCELY COMPETITIVE BATTLE FOR PAYROLLS AND PROSPERITY

Industrial Fever Sweeps The South

By DON MCKEE
Associated Press Writer

Industrial fever is sweeping the South in a fiercely competitive battle for payrolls and prosperity, bringing myriad changes to the land of cotton.

Retiring to the nearest magnolia shade are the old ways, as the new South choruses: "We want industry!"

Factories and mills, stores and jobs have come. So have changes and problems, touching every facet of life.

Prosperity has rolled in on those industrial wheels—raising income, living standards and educational facilities, shaking racial customs, political systems and altering social levels and tax structures.

From the ranks of white-collar workers is rising a new middle class, heightening urban-rural conflicts as cities grow and rural areas decline.

The intense drive to capture new industries has pitted state against state, South against North in a new struggle.

dale of Arlington State, Fort Worth.

Brought into play in the population shift is the growing imbalance of political power, still held by rural factions in most of the South.

This urban-rural conflict has brought legislative apportionment moves in nearly all Southern states, said Dr. Lee S. Greene, University of Tennessee political science professor. In Georgia, the State Senate was reapportioned last year in favor of urban citizens—after the usual court fight.

Primarily, the farm-to-city shift results from mechanization which has reduced farm workers but produced more crops and wealthier farmers.

Industrial development has fostered changes in racial patterns. Segregation keeps giving way under pressure from both state officials and business leaders fearful of scaring off new industries with disorder or violence.

Moderation on racial issues is rising slowly. Job segregation gradually is breaking down.

"There's a direct relationship between an area's handling of its racial problems and its business success," said Reed Sarraff of the Southern Education Reporting Service which gathers news on school segregation in the South.

Businessmen have recognized this, said W. Cameron Mitchell of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce.

"Since Georgia has handled its racial problems in most instances on a very high plane, this matter seldom comes up in discussions with prospective industries," Mitchell said.

In four years, Georgia landed nearly 1,000 new plants or expansions, 36,000 more jobs, $122 million in new payrolls and $370 million in capital investments. In 1962, the state gained 101 new industries.

George Benedict, executive aide to Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee, said a prospective industry was wooed by two other Southern states and at a dinner in one, industrialists were told, "You won't have to worry about any damn niggers here."

WRONG WORDS

"That state lost out," Benedict said, "and Tennessee got the new industry."

However, there apparently is only minimal pressure for desegregation from Northern businessmen who move South.

"When Northern industrialists come South, they adapt quickly to our way of life—much quicker than we do when going to the North," said John A. Williamson, president of a Birmingham, Ala., sales marketing firm. This view is held by most other observers.

Industrial growth has become a key campaign issue on state and local levels. Legislatures, state agencies, city and county governments, countless private organizations push the drive for more and more plants and payrolls.

Taxes have been reduced, modified or eliminated to lure new industries. Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee all have laws permitting issuance of revenue bonds by local governments or groups to build plants for leasing.

Mississippi's Legislature enacted about 40 measures aimed at attracting more plants only three years ago. Income taxes were cut and more exemptions granted to industry. In Virginia, a tax study commission was named to look into the tax structure.

Tied to industrial growth is expanding educational programs. "When we improve our educational facilities, we are improving our attractiveness to industry," said Alvin Wunderlich Jr., chairman of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce's industrial unit.

Gov. Donald Russell of South Carolina pushes for more and better schools on the premise that "the first thing an industry asks about is educational facilities."

CLAIMS LEAD

Florida is considering a multi-million-dollar program to build a dozen universities, most of them geared to space and engineering. Florida, claiming the industry-leading lead, pulled in 715 plants and expansions last year.

More scientists and technicians "will upgrade our over-all educational level," said a Texas Bank-very powerful hand. North now showed some signs of life by jumping to three spades. Inasmuch as he was being forced to enter the auction, a mere bid of two spades would not promise a thing. South routinely carried on to game.

West opened, the jack of hearts on which East signaled encouragingly with the nine, and declarer permitted the jack to hold the trick. South won the heart continuation and proceeded to draw the trumps in three rounds. The normal procedure at this point in the absence of any adverse bidding would be to lead a club toward the king in the closed hand in the hope that East held the ace of that suit.

From West's entry into the auction, declarer was convinced that both of the missing club honors were on his left, and that two losers in the suit were unavoidable. The only hope was to establish a discard for one of the bad hearts by means of an unorthodox play in clubs. After drawing trumps, South led a club from his hand toward the dummy's jack. West was forced to put up the queen and, since he had no hearts left to reach his partner, he was limited to one more trick in the form of the ace of clubs. South was able to throw a heart from dummy on the established club king and then ruff his last heart in dummy.

Had West remained silent during the bidding, South would no doubt have tried to find the ace of clubs outside. When this fails to materialize, he must lose two clubs and two hearts.

Few Manufacturers Plan Markups On Steel Items

NEW YORK (AP)—Few manufacturers of steel-using items plan early markups on their products as a result of the selective price increases by steelmaking suppliers.

Most of them still are mulling over the situation or seeking more information, a spot check by The Associated Press across the country showed today.

The construction industry appeared a possible exception.

J. J. Buckley, executive vice president of the Youngstown Steel Door Co., estimated the steel price rise will cause an increase of about two per cent in his company's prices.

In New Brunswick, N.J., Triangle Conduit & Cable Co. served notice of an indirect price rise on steel conduit used to enclose electrical wiring in buildings.

In Atlanta, Georgia's Highway Department director, Jim Gillis, said "the steel price increase will mean fewer bridges. We have just so much money."

Automakers, who use about a ton of steel per vehicle, had nothing to say but informed estimates placed the increase in manufacturing costs attributable to the steel price rise at from 25 to 50 per cent.

Sources in Detroit said they expect no change in price tags on 1963 models. What will happen when 1964 models start rolling this fall is a matter of speculation, they said.

In Chicago and elsewhere, some big appliance makers said they are studying the situation and have reached no decisions.

North American Aviation's Columbus, Ohio division was one of several companies reporting sizable steel reserves on hand, but a spokesman said he didn't foresee much effect even after reserves are used up.

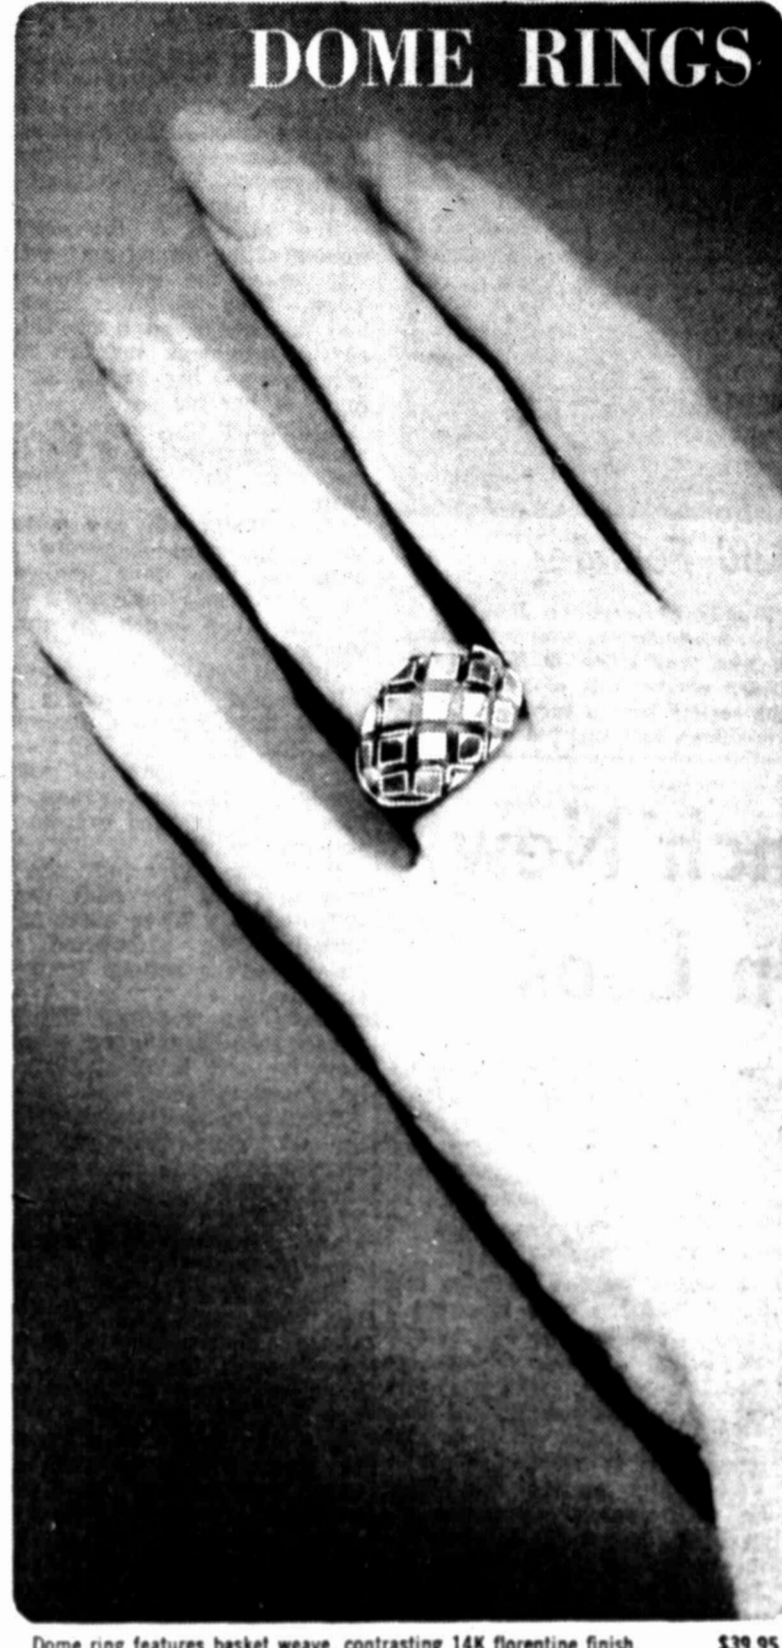

In Los Angeles, W. M. Rawlins, president of Central Industrial Engineering, a construction firm, said the steel price rise left his company "in quite a spot."

"We have some contracts running for a couple of years and had no protection on them for an occurrence like this," Rawlins said.

In U.S. Steel Corp.'s price rise announcement Tuesday, Leslie B. Worthington, president, discounted the likelihood of significant resulting increases on consumer items.

Worthington said the steel in a hammer that sells for $4.49 in the hardware store costs the manufacturer less than 15 cents.

DAV Meeting Set In Lamesa

LAMESA (SC)—About 150 visitors are expected in Lamesa this weekend for a two-day convention of Region I, Disabled American Veterans. A number of state DAV dignitaries will also attend.

Registration will be at 1 p.m. Saturday at Forrest Park Community Center and delegates from Amarillo, Abilene, San Angelo, Sweetwater, Plainview, El Paso, Borger and other area cities are expected.

A banquet at Forrest Park will cap the first day's activities. Rehabilitation session, committee meetings and committee appointments will highlight the Sunday portion of the program and new regional officers will be elected. A. A. Alexander, Dallas, state commander, and other state and regional officers will attend the event.

Attend Meetings

Police Chief and Mrs. Jay Banks will leave for Austin today to attend the 25th anniversary meeting of the 1938 class of Department of Public Safety officers. The Friday and Saturday meetings will be held at the Stephen F. Austin Hotel. Banks will go to Richardson Monday for a one-day regional meeting of the Texas Police Association, of which he is a director.

'ABSOLUTE IMMUNITY' FOR FIDEL CASTRO

Retiring Cuban Leader Looses Blast At JFK

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, stepping down as leader of Cubans in exile, charges that President Kennedy has given Fidel Castro "absolute immunity in the execution of Khrushchev's sinister designs."

Kennedy gave orders at the April 10, 1962, meeting for massive recruiting of exiles and said that six divisions would be required. "Your destiny is to suffer," Miro said the President told him at the conclusion of the meeting.

When Kennedy announced the blockade, he said, the Free World responded enthusiastically and countries which had been neutral and indifferent aligned themselves with the United States. "Many of them mobilized their forces."

But the blockade was suspended, "public spirit deflated. It was futile trying to argue." Later, Kennedy appeared in the Orange Bowl at Miami before members of Brigade 2506, who had been captured at the Bay of Pigs, then ransomed by the United States, and delivered an address that Miro said gave the exiles "a rebirth of lost confidence."

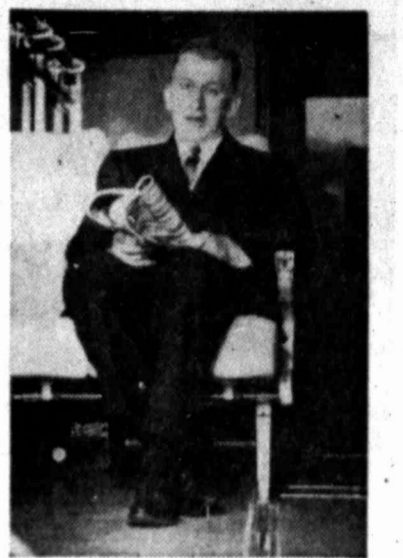

He referred to the on-site inspection which Kennedy demanded in Cuba and never got; to his demand for evacuation of Soviet soldiers "which never has been accomplished," and the U.S. move to stop anti-Castro raids on Cuban and Soviet shipping.

Today, he said, "Fidel Castro enjoys absolute immunity in the execution of Khrushchev's sinister designs, protected by the best naval police services of the two greatest and traditionally democratic powers in the whole world."

Miro said the Office of the Coordinator of Cuban Affairs is rapidly liquidating "the Cuban case" by relocating exiles in all parts of the United States and other countries.

been closed by our ally of 1988. "I leave my post to be designated to another Cuban who, with equal love of country, but with more capacity and greater ability, may accomplish better results in our obligated struggle. I shall continue fighting as I have to date, without counting the hours, until Fidel Castro and his shameful regime are destroyed."

Two Lively Ghosts Emerge From The Kennedy Closet

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two lively ghosts of the administration's biggest crises — Cuba and steel — have slipped out of the closet again. And President Kennedy may explain today what he may do about them.

ment again called the Cuban's account of things "a distortion." The editors heard about Cuba Thursday from Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

can barge into this one," said Norman Isaacs, executive editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Louisville Times.

JOHN A. COFFEE ATTORNEY-AT-LAW 308 Scurry Dial AM 4-2591

WHY STOP AT VERSE 31?

A reader thinks that people in New Testament days must have been baptized without baptism, because he does not find baptism mentioned in Acts 16:30, 31, which says, "And brought the man, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved? And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house."

His forum: A meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. The men who sometimes advise him in black and white on what he should and shouldn't do.

On steel, his audience of editors seems ready to advise him not to fight a round of increases in the price of steel.

Rusk repeated what he has said before, that "the Soviet military presence in Cuba is not to be accepted as a normal state of affairs. He could not, of course, foretell when or how the island's Communist rule will be broken."

Without exception, editors who were interviewed gave the opinion Kennedy should accept the wave of "selective" increases.

Asked about the steel increases, the editors interviewed held unambiguously that the new prices would not justify a mobilization of government pressure such as Kennedy used in 1962 to force the industry to rescind a general 56-a-ton increase.

NO JUSTIFICATION The White House announced that Kennedy would be ready to answer questions on steel in a question and answer session following his luncheon address at the society's annual meeting.

THE FRESH WAVE OF CONTROVERSY over Cuba, fanned Thursday night in Miami by exile leader Jose Miro Cardona, also is likely to prompt some pointed questions by the editors.

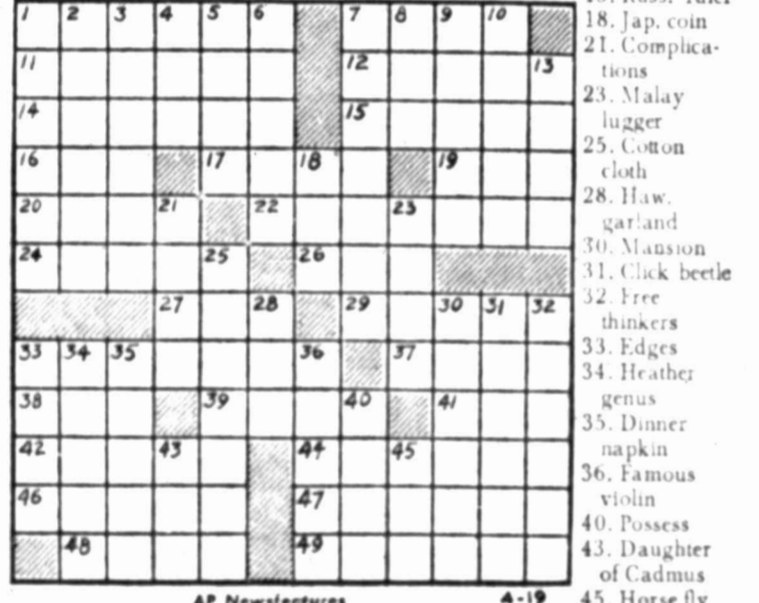

THEN RENEGED In quitting as president of the Cuban Revolutionary Council, Miro said Kennedy promised after the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion of April 1961 that there would be another invasion to topple Fidel Castro and then reneged. His statement was generally met with cool silence here. The White House announced there would be no comment. The State Depart-

No successor was chosen to head the council, which was formed with U.S. government support to launch the futile invasion at the Bay of Pigs. But Dr. Manuel Antonio de Varona, Miro's right-hand man, said he would seek to strengthen the council by wooing more of the many exile groups into its ranks. And he said every effort would be made to gain U.S. help for the Cuban exile cause.

ASSURANCE Miro, first prime minister of the Castro regime who later defected, said Kennedy told him at a meeting in the White House April 10, 1962, nearly a year after the first invasion, that the problem of Cuba was essentially a military one and that the council should contribute the major contingent of soldiers.

"I left the White House with the assurance that the liberation of Cuba would follow soon with Cubans at the vanguard in battle," he said. He indicated that this was to be in connection with the Cuban blockade that President Kennedy proclaimed Oct. 22, 1962.

Later, he said, U.S. policy on Cuba "shifted suddenly, violently and unexpectedly" and "the struggle for Cuba was in the process of being liquidated by the government."

CRUDE REALITY "The repeated assurances, the constantly renewed promises, have been suddenly liquidated." The White House said there would be no comment. Miro had delivered a copy of his document to the State Department, which called it "highly inaccurate and distorted," Miro said the State Department attack forced him to make his document public.

Experts on Latin America are not aware of the disaster overtaking the whole continent," Miro said. "They assure us that the panacea for all the social ills of our countries lies in the Alliance for Progress program."

Replying to contentions that an invasion of Cuba might lead to a nuclear holocaust, Miro argued that Khrushchev "would not provoke an armed conflict" because Cuba is outside the Soviet zone of influence.

Permanent revolution is his goal," Miro said. "Venezuela is already up in arms by Castro's order. Colombia is torn by Castro's order. Argentina is beset by constant convulsions and the Marxist ferment in all the rest of the nations is the terrifying forerunner of catastrophe yet to come."

"Dominated by the specter of uncertainty and with my confidence lost in the fulfillment of promised securities," Miro told the council, "I cannot continue in the leadership position."

As he walked out, one Cuban Rose and shouted: "Viva Miro. You are the Cuban public." Miro, 60, a former jurist, said

Part Of Estes Cotton Allotments Are Reinstated

ODESSA (AP)—A local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service committee has restored cotton acreage allotments for some land formerly owned by Billie Sol Estes which the Agriculture Department had revoked. The committee of three farmers in a 2 to 1 decision Thursday reinstated allotments for 237 acres as valid transfers from three farmers. It also cancelled $27,344 in penalties the department had levied against Estes, the bankrupt West Texas promoter who has been convicted of fraud and swindling.

The same committee upheld cancellation of allotments for 288 acres as invalid transfers from 16 farmers and penalties totaling $45,255 on this land.

Cancellation of other cotton acreage allotments and penalties involving Estes are still in dispute.

HELD UP
The government has held up payment of $528,928.50 due Estes because it said cotton acreage deals were illegal. Estes' bankruptcy trustee and a company which bought his assets appealed. The sum withheld by the government has been earmarked for his creditors.

The chairman of the three-man ASCS committee, D. L. Adcock Jr. of Lamesa, dissented from the committee decision announced here. He opposed restoration of any of the allotments.

The Agriculture Department contended that Estes illegally obtained extra cotton allotments for his West Texas farms. It withheld money owed him for storage of surplus government grain and cancelled the allotments.

Estes sent agents to one-time farmers who had lost land because various public works took over their farms. Under law, these displaced farmers can purchase other land and transfer allotment rights to it.

Some of these farmers were induced to buy land from him, transfer their allotments and then lease the land back to Estes.

The Agriculture Department claimed this was only a subterfuge and no real sale to the farmers took place.

CALLED LEGAL
The American Grain Co., headed by Morris Jaffe of San Antonio, and the bankruptcy trustee supported Estes' argument that the sales were legal. American Grain would receive none of the money withheld by the government but wanted to regain the cotton allotments.

Under Agriculture Department procedure, the appeal was heard by a farmers' committee composed of Adcock, Leon Foote of Seminole and Darrell Cox of Stanton.

After the Estes arrest and the collapse of his financial empire, the government contested several similar allotment cases in West Texas. The farmers won most of the contests.

Allotments for cotton production obtained by Estes in the sale-lease deals involved 3,181 acres in Pecos and Reeves counties.

Miami Shaken By Influx Of Refugees From Cuba

Editor's Note—The influx of Cuban exiles in Miami has created tremendous pressures and resentments among the local population that do not seem to be near solution, despite the U.S. ban on further exile raids against Castro's Cuba. Last of four special articles.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—There is a vague feeling of uneasiness around here.

At the moment, Miamians profess to see nothing to be alarmed about in their city's unique situation. But its problems are growing.

The well-traveled visitor senses something akin to West Berlin here. In a way, Miami is a sister city to West Berlin, an outpost of the cold war which has opened its arms to tens of thousands of refugees from communism.

In few U.S. cities is there such an awareness of international friction. With a Communist island so near, the possibility of the accident which can lead to war is something Miamians think about frequently.

ALIEN CULTURE
But unlike West Berlin, Miami is host to foreigners speaking a foreign tongue, clinging to foreign customs. Some of the customs, some of the habits, some of the characteristic ways of the Cubans can grate on the nerves of Americans.

You hear complaints that the Cubans drive their automobiles the way they drove them in Havana—and that was wildly. You hear complaints that Cubans are emotional and noisy and like to talk at the tops of their voices at all hours of the night. You hear that Cubans give the impression that what happened to them was the United States' fault, and Americans owe them a living.

But these are small matters, which would mean little unless complicated by much graver problems.

CITY WITHIN CITY
Inside Miami today there is a city within a city, an American community separated by a cultural chasm from the refugees it shelters. The Cuban refugee population—despite resettlement of 57,000 in the past two years—probably numbers well above 150,000. It may be 200,000. No accurate figures are available.

Miami, already with a fragile economy, sees its problems multiplying daily.

This city was elected, because of its geography, to become an instrument of U.S. policy, without having been consulted in advance. Never in U.S. history has any American city been required to undertake such a massive assimilation of foreigners in such a short time.

Mayor Robert King High says he is proud of the way the city responded.

ACTED NOBLY
"Miamians have acted nobly and with maturity," the mayor told me, "and the thanks of the nation should be extended to them."

But the new crackdown by the U.S. government on hostile Cuban exile activity against the Castro regime has increased Miami's worries. The main source of worry is the current competition for jobs.

Miami has little in the way of industry. Much of its economy depends upon tourist trade and allied businesses. The lack of enough jobs to go around causes tensions, with Cubans often getting the blame from those who have no jobs.

About 65,000 Cubans receive federal relief because they have no other means of support. Once a Cuban gets a job, the relief checks stop coming. The refugee relief bill for 2½ years has been $80 million for the federal government. This money is spent in Miami. Many merchants benefit from it. But some merchants complain that Cubans tend to spend the money in Cuban neighborhoods and shops, going out of their way to do so.

SOME MONEY
Relief money is not precisely a Cuban contribution. But there are contributions to the economy. Cubans rent 20,000 homes which otherwise would be unused or perhaps used only in the tourist months. Licenses for 2,000 businesses have been issued to Cubans. Florida now has a sugar plantation and three sugar mills representing an investment of $150 million of Cuban and private U.S. money. A Cuban-type cigar factory and other enterprises are in operation.

But the problem of jobs remains and grows steadily. The federal relief checks which go to unemployed Cubans also add to local resentment.

Miamians out of work get no federal checks. They must depend on county aid handed out on an emergency basis.

The city's unemployed want to know why the Cubans don't stick to relief and leave the jobs to others.

JOBS FOR BIDDING
There is no minimum wage law in Florida, and jobs go for bidding. The Cuban, anxious not to be a charity case, often works for less money. He brings certain skills with him, including ability, often, to speak both Spanish and English, which makes him valuable for work in stores and certain other enterprises.

A large amount of unskilled workers, among them many Negroes, are out of jobs, unable to get work, and feeling resentful about it. Undoubtedly the unemployment problem will worsen as the slack summer season approaches.

Mayor High has been pressing for congressional action to include Miami in the federal area redevelopment program. To be eligible, a locality must have 6 per cent unemployment. Miami more than meets the requirement—if the unemployed Cubans are included.

PUBLIC HELP
Up to now, the refugees have not been officially counted among Miami's unemployed, but a Department of Labor survey may recommend the change. This would make the city eligible for a program which includes public works and loans for business expansion.

Mayor High says it would be regrettable if Congress did not act quickly on Miami's plea and estimated that even at best, action could hardly be completed before August. The city therefore faces the slack summer season with its problems mounting.

"The need exists now," the mayor said.

Changes In War Claims May Follow Lobby Disclosures

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield gave top priority today to proposed revamping of the Philippines war claims bill after disclosure of a lobbyist's campaign gifts to Congress members sympathetic to the bill.

But Mansfield made it clear he is "certain in my own mind that no member of the Senate was influenced by these contributions in any way and they did not affect their votes on legislation."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee released testimony Thursday that pictured O'Donnell as interested in passage of the $73-million war claims bill because he stood to gain from $150,000 to nearly a half-million dollars in fees.

CHIEF SPONSORS
Zablocki and Miller were chief sponsors of the bill in the House. Humphrey introduced it in the Senate. It passed both bodies last summer by a voice vote—with no record roll call.

The bill provides for payment of individual damage claims growing out of Japanese occupation of the Philippines in World War II. None of the money has been dispensed yet.

Mansfield said he supports fully a proposed amendment by J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Foreign Relations Committee chairman, to provide for a lump sum payment to the Philippines government. This, said Fulbright, would cut off O'Donnell's fees.

"I'm all for it," Mansfield told a reporter. "If the Foreign Relations Committee approves it at its meeting Tuesday, it will be given top priority consideration in the Senate."

O'Donnell already has collected

$265,000 in fees under a 1956 act authorizing war damage payments to religious groups in the Philippines, Fulbright said.

LESS IMPORTANT
But the fact that O'Donnell and a Filipino associate, Francisco A. Delgado, were "unduly enriched," Fulbright said, "is of less importance than that the legislative process has been subverted."

In a statement after disclosure of O'Donnell's contributions, the lobbyist said his activities "have been no different than those of several hundred other practicing attorneys, including former members of both houses of Congress."

The Justice Department said it will examine the hearing record made public Thursday in a public Foreign Relations Committee hearing.

The testimony showed O'Donnell's contributions came from an $18,000 fund furnished by Philippine sugar interests.

Fulbright said the testimony was received from O'Donnell in a closed hearing March 1.

O'Donnell stood to collect at least $150,000 in fees under the 1962 act, said Fulbright, and possibly $300,000 more if he were compensated for some $6 million in claims filed by Philippine sugar mills.

The committee produced documents purporting to show that campaign contributions to friendly candidates for House and Senate were made with cashier's checks purchased from a Washington bank.

One document showed a payment of $1,000 to Edward McCormack, nephew of House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass. The younger McCormack then was seeking the Democratic nomination for attorney general of Massachusetts.

Among others to whom O'Donnell said he gave $500 was Rep. William E. Miller, R-N.Y., now GOP national chairman, then chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

Other $500 campaign gifts went to former Rep. Walter Judd, R-Minn.; former Sen. Allen Frear, D-Del., now a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va.

OTHER GIFTS
The record showed $100 contributions to Sens. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., Pat McNamara, D-Mich., and E. L. Bartlett, D-Alaska.

Humphrey said in a statement, "I had no personal knowledge of any campaign contribution."

Zablocki said he tried to return the contribution but O'Donnell insisted it be used for the Democratic National Committee's Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Washington.

3rd Wallenda Trouper Dies

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Yetta Grotolent, 42, of the famed circus aerialist family, the Wallendas, died in a 50-foot fall from her slender gray pole at a Shrine Circus performance Thursday night.

She had reached the climax of her solo act and was swaying back and forth in a wide arc when, as the pole was on a back swing, Yetta suddenly tumbled backward and plummeted to her death as 4,666 spectators watched in awed silence.

She was the third member of the troupe to die in a fall in the last 16 months.

Dieter Schepp, 23, and Richard Faughnan, 29, were killed in Detroit on Jan. 30, 1962, in a high wire accident involving seven members of the troupe.

Yetta was not a member of that act.

DEATH CAUSE

What caused the death of the 42-year-old Yetta?

A member of the Kristensen troupe of equestrians said in a taped interview that "I think she must have passed out up there because she didn't scream or nothing."

Several other circus people said they had heard Yetta wasn't feeling well before she began her solo act.

Some spectators said the aerialist appeared to slip.

In an interview in Detroit in 1958, Yetta had said that when she was on the indoor pole "it seems so little I feel I have to do more to impress the audience. I get a little reckless."

That comment had followed her explanation of her preference for the 122½-foot pole she used outdoors and on which, she said, "You can really sway, what with the height and the wind."

Fellow performers said Yetta had been nervous since the circus opened here Monday. They said her apparatus had been damaged last week in Florida and temporary repairs had been made.

NOTHING WRONG

"I don't think there was anything wrong with the pole," said Barbara Woodcock, member of an animal act. "But Yetta was just plain worried."

Countess Maritela, a high wire performer, added "She even looked a little ill tonight. I asked her if she felt okay. She replied, 'I'm all right.'"

Other show members who watched said it appeared Yetta bent to place her foot in a strap, then "seemed to faint."

Mrs. Frank Scott, a spectator, said Yetta seemed to lose her footing.

"She fell so gracefully, it was almost as though it were part of her act," Mrs. Scott related.

Yetta fell face upward until she hit a guide rope 15 feet above the sawdust floor.

The impact spun her around and she hit the floor spread-eagled and face downward. She never uttered a sound as she fell.

SILENT ARENA

For several moments the arena was virtually soundless.

Then there were sobs as spectators and circus people, who had watched the fall from the wings, broke into tears.

Her fall came just after she had completed a headstand on the pole.

Among the first to reach the stricken woman was her husband, Arthur, who had rigged the ropes for her act and was standing about 50 feet from where she landed. He was given sedatives after the accident.

As a Fire Department rescue squad worked over the fallen aerialist the circus band kept playing.

After about 20 minutes, Yetta was carried out.

She was dead on arrival at a hospital. Firemen said she apparently died of a broken neck.

The crowd was never told that Yetta was dead, and, in the tradition of the show, the other acts carried on as soon as the arena was put back in shape.

Shrine officials, police and newsmen who saw the death plunge said Yetta was swaying in an unusual way and did not grab for anything when she tumbled backward.

Circus performers said the dead woman was born Henrietta Kreis in Germany and that with her sister, Helen, she came to the United States and joined the Wallenda troupe. Helen married Karl Wallenda.

Arthur Grotolent is Karl's half-brother. The Grotolents lived in Sarasota, Fla.

She Fell So Gracefully...

By MRS. FRANK SCOTT

Written For The Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—She fell so gracefully, it was almost as though it were a part of her act and there was a net below her.

My husband, two children and I were sitting almost directly opposite the pole on which Yetta was performing at the Shrine Circus.

She had done part of her act and was just beginning the big part. We could see her reddish-brown hair—it looked red in the spotlight—and her silver spangled costume, kind of a bikini.

The poles had just begun to sway and was going backwards when she seemed to lose her footing.

I don't think there was a sound uttered. It looked almost like part of the act because it was done so gracefully.

She just slipped backwards with her arms out, knid of spread-eagle.

The fantastic part was she didn't struggle at all.

She hit a guy wire with her back and that flipped her completely over. Then she fell face forward on the floor.

She had given no indication of being in trouble.

I simply couldn't believe it. No one screamed. It was just complete disbelief.

Many people ran to her. But in the audience everyone just sat silently.

My 6-year-old son Tom started crying. The children didn't really know if they wanted to see the rest, through we finally did stay through the show.

I don't know if they'll ever want to see another circus.

Spring Storms

By The Associated Press

More gusty spring storms erupted across sections of the Midwest today as wintry weather lingered in northern areas of the Plains and Rockies.

Class Planned

A new course in practice bridge begins Tuesday at the YMCA, according to Francis Flint, general secretary.

The beginners program of the spring activity schedule has been completed and this course will give those students an opportunity to continue their instruction in bridge. Classes will meet from 9:30-11:30 a.m. each Tuesday for six weeks. Mrs. Hudson Landers will be the instructor. Costs are $3 for Y members and $7.50 for others.

DEAR ABBY

Don't Shoot The Pianist!

DEAR ABBY: I love organ music, but if that piano player they have playing the organ at my church doesn't take some organ lessons pretty soon I am going to quit going to church. It is punishment to listen to. She brags that she has never had an organ lesson in her life. Believe me, she didn't have to say so. Any one who knows organ music could tell it.

GRITTING MY TEETH

DEAR GRITTING: Call your clergyman and suggest that he consider getting an organist—or educating the piano player.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter and her husband are planning a trip to Europe. We offered to keep their two pre-school children during their six-week trip, and they had the nerve to ask us to keep their dog! I don't care for dogs and neither does my husband. My daughter says it will spoil her trip if they have to put the dog in a kennel. She's afraid he might be mistreated or maybe die of homesickness. Are we wrong in refusing to keep him? Or are they wrong for insisting?

NO DOGS

DEAR NO: It is cruel to force an animal on people who dislike animals. The dog deserves better. Explain this to your daughter. Don't let her talk you into anything or it shouldn't happen to a dog.

DEAR ABBY: I have a terrific crush on my family doctor. I am a happily married young woman with children and it annoys me to have this doctor on my mind all day. I told my husband about it and even offered to change doctors, but he said it wouldn't do any good because I'd only develop a crush on the next one. And besides, he says EVERY woman is in love with her doctor. Is that true? I know my doctor doesn't feel anything special toward me, but that doesn't change my feelings toward him. Any suggestions?

MRS. X: DEAR MRS. X: Every woman is NOT "in love" with her doctor. Your feelings of gratitude, admiration and respect are confused with romantic love. Analyze your emotions and recognize them for what they are or your doctor will never be able to get a history of your normal blood pressure, pulse and heartbeat.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CAL: Buy a compass with a mirror on the back, so when you look in the mirror you can see who's lost.

BY ROMAN, JEWISH LAW
Chicago Judge Points Out Jesus' Trial Was Illegal

By CHARLES-GENE MCDANIEL
CHICAGO (AP)—Jesus was tried and convicted illegally, in the opinion of a Chicago judge.

The judge, Elmer N. Holmgren, of Cook County Superior Court, has for more than 30 years studied the legal aspects of Jesus' trial and sentence to death.

Delving into ancient Jewish and Roman law, he found that various aspects of the trial before Jewish authorities and Pilate violated both legal systems.

Judge Holmgren is an active churchman who has served on the national board of the Augustana Lutheran Church.

There was, Judge Holmgren says, a mandate, or warrant, for the arrest of Jesus in accordance with the law, though this probably was verbal.

This warrant was from the Great Sanhedrin, the highest judicial body of the Jews, rather than from the Roman authorities who ruled Jerusalem, Judge Holmgren says.

The judge holds that the arrest was illegal for two reasons.

First, it happened at night and it was contrary to Jewish law for any legal proceeding to take place after sundown.

And it happened on the eve of Passover, which also was a sacrament time.

One of the Gospels, John, records that Jesus was taken after his arrest to Annas, the former high priest and father-in-law of Caiaphas, the high priest at the time. Another gospel, Luke, says he was taken first to Caiaphas.

In either case, such a procedure was contrary to Jewish law, Judge Holmgren says.

During his examination by Annas, termed by Judge Holmgren a "star chamber session," Jesus was struck by an officer because of a reply he made to Annas during questioning.

This was a violation of the civil rights of an accused man, the judge points out.

The greatest illegality in the trial was the prejudice of a majority of the members of the Great Sanhedrin, in Judge Holmgren's view. Both Jewish and Roman law, as present-day U.S. laws, required a free and impartial trial.

Jesus was charged first with blasphemy and then with being a false prophet.

Under Judaic law, at least two witnesses whose testimony agreed in all substantial aspects were required to convict an accused person. Finally, two witnesses came forward who told the Great Sanhedrin that Jesus had said, "I am able to destroy the temple of God and to build it in three days."

This, under the theocratic Jewish government, was blasphemy of the seat of Jehovah. But the account in the Gospel of Mark says the witnesses did not agree.

"Jesus should have been released then and there," Judge Holmgren holds.

The high priest, according to Mark, then asked Jesus, "are you the Christ, son of the Blessed?" and that Jesus replied, "I am."

Judge Holmgren points out that "under all enlightened systems of jurisprudence a person cannot be forced to confess or give evidence against himself" and that this was true under the Jewish and Roman legal systems.

The Great Sanhedrin declared Jesus "deserves death." But, Holmgren said, "it was ironic that the Great Sanhedrin could not execute the death penalty after condemning Jesus to death."

Rome had taken from the Jewish officials the power to carry out the death penalty so they took him to Pilate.

Before Pilate, who was procurator and representative of the emperor of Rome, the Jews could not bring charges of blasphemy because Pilate had no respect for Jewish beliefs.

To try to get him to convict Jesus, the chief priests and scribes told Pilate that Jesus was subverting the nation, forbidding the Jews to give tribute to Caesar and saying that he was king.

Pilate, however, was not convinced and wanted to release him. The proceedings before the Roman governor were not legal, Judge Holmgren says, because no written indictment or charge against Jesus was presented.

Judge Holmgren says the turning point of the trial before Pilate was, according to Luke, when the Jews cried out:

"If you release this man, you are not Caesar's friend, every one who makes himself a king sets himself against Caesar."

Pilate was beholden to the emperor for his job and was afraid he might lose his appointment as governor if such a charge reached Rome, Judge Holmgren says.

Thus Pilate ordered Jesus scourged and then crucified, "contrary to law and contrary to every justice and decency."

Psalms In Worship and Life
 THE WAY OF THE LORD IS THE WAY OF PERMANENT SATISFACTIONS
 Scripture—Psalms 1; 15; 73.

By N. SPEER JONES
 OUR STUDY of the Psalms should begin, perhaps, with a brief discussion of their function and authorship. The word "psalm" comes from the Greek psalmos, which means a poem sung to musical accompaniment. The Hebrew text contains 150 Psalms; the Greek, Latin and English Bibles contain the same material but number it differently, combining the Hebrew 9 and 10, and 114 and 115, but splitting Psalms 116 and 147 into two each.

There are five books within the book, the end of each marked with an Amen. Book I contains Psalms 1 to 41; Book II, 42 to 72; Book III, 73 to 89; Book IV, 90 to 106, and Book V, 107 to 150. Of the total, David, "the sweet psalmist of Israel" authored 73. Asaph wrote Psalms 50 and 73-83; Moses wrote the 90th; Solomon authored 72 and 127; a family of Levitical singers called the sons of Korah wrote 12 Psalms, and the remaining 49 are anonymous.

The First Psalm, assigned to our lesson today, is an anonymous one, and nothing is known of the circumstances of its writing. Significantly, it begins with the same word as Christ's great opening sermon, the Sermon on the Mount.

The second part of the first verse lists three successive steps in a career of evil — adopting the principles of wickedness, practicing notorious offenses, and open mocking at religion. The righteous man is likened to a sturdy tree which brings forth fruit. The comparison is significant. The word tree is connected with the Anglo-Saxon word treowen, which means to trust or to prove. The fact that it is planted by the water indicates a continuing source of nourishment; the river is a symbol of life itself in the East. A righteous man's well-springs are God Himself.

Particularly significant is the fact that a fruit tree lives less long than a non-bearing tree, for it sacrifices part of its own life to bring forth its precious fruit. The righteous man, in just such a way, denies himself, sacrifices himself, for others. This is the Christian's greatest distinguishing feature.

On the other hand, the unrighteous man, like the chaff, is blown by any wanton wind which blows.

In Verse 5 of the First Psalm, the word "stand" does not mean that the sinner shall not be at the Judgment, but that he will not be able to hold up his head.

The Fifteenth Psalm is one of David's; the sub-title proclaiming this is part of the original Biblical text, and not a later editing. It is thought that it was written to celebrate the consecration of the Ark of the Covenant at Zion.

Psalm 73 is the first of the verse lists three successive steps in a career of evil — adopting the principles of wickedness, practicing notorious offenses, and open mocking at religion. The righteous man is likened to a sturdy tree which brings forth fruit. The comparison is significant. The word tree is connected with the Anglo-Saxon word treowen, which means to trust or to prove. The fact that it is planted by the water indicates a continuing source of nourishment; the river is a symbol of life itself in the East. A righteous man's well-springs are God Himself.

GOLDEN TEXT
 "My flesh and my heart may fail, but God is the strength of my heart and my portion for ever."—Psalm 73:26.

NOW YOU CAN BUY A USED CAR WITH CONFIDENCE

EXCLUSIVE NEW

3-WAY GUARANTEE ON FORD DEALER A-1 USED CARS

Only the best of our used cars carry the Ford Dealer A-1 label and are backed by this exclusive guarantee

1 SERVICEABILITY GUARANTEE

Your Ford Dealer has inspected, road-tested and, if necessary, reconditioned every A-1 Used Car or Truck and guarantees that it is in serviceable condition.

2 FIRST-MONTH GUARANTEE

Under this guarantee your Ford Dealer, for the first 30 days (or 1,000 miles), will give a 5% cash discount from his regular retail price on any repairs he makes that are necessary to keep your car or truck in serviceable condition. (Except for tires and tubes, glass, or radio. And, of course, except in case of accident or abuse.)

3 TWO-YEAR GUARANTEE

Under this guarantee your Ford Dealer, for an additional period of two years, will give a 15% cash discount from his regular retail price on any repairs he makes that are necessary to keep your car or truck in serviceable condition. (Except, of course, in case of accident or abuse.)
