Demonstration Halted Near Jail

A large crowd of Negro demonstrators is halted in a park area near the city jail in Birmingham, Ala. The jail, background, is where hundreds of other demonstrators are being held following similar marches.

Birmingham's Jails Filled Almost To The Bursting Point

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Birmingham's jails are jammed with Negroes almost to the bursting point today, and leaders of a massive desegregation drive pledged more demonstrations.

"We will definitely have more demonstrations starting about noon," said the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

King's comment followed the arrest Monday of a police-estimated 1,000 marchers, including Negro comedian Dick Gregory. The vast majority of those arrested for parading without a permit were school children or other teenagers. Many skipped classes to join in the campaign.

2,400 ARRESTED
More than 2,400 have been arrested since the massive demonstrations started Thursday.

An additional 200-plus, including King, were arrested in earlier phases of the integration drive which began April 3. Police officials said at least 2,000 declined to post bond and remained in the crowded jails and detention quarters.

"When the sun goes down today, there'll be 50 many Negroes in jail that the people of Birmingham will hate to see a Negro," said another Negro leader, the Rev. James Bevel of Cleveland, Miss.

"We could have had 2,500 arrested yesterday, but we got tired," Gregory arrived by plane to join the demonstrators and within three hours was arrested at the head of the first group of marchers.

The entertainer led the crowd of teen-agers almost a block from a Negro church before they were halted by police officers.

An official asked Gregory if he had a parade permit.

"No, we'll stay here," Gregory said.

CALL THE WAGON
The officer said such action violated city law and was a state court injunction. He turned and

Slain Officer Is Identified

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lt. Parker D. Cramer, 26, Wantagh, N.Y., was the American soldier executed by Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam Monday.

The Army disclosed this identity today, and said Cramer died "as a result of a gunshot wound of the head incurred when he was shot by the Viet Cong."

He is the 73rd American killed in the war in Viet Nam since 1961.

said: "Dick Gregory says they will not disperse. Call the wagon."

The Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, one of King's top lieutenants, was asked if there were any plans to post bond for Gregory.

"No, not at this time," Walker answered. "When I talked with him, he said he planned to remain in jail for the duration."

Gregory had sought unsuccessfully to be arrested recently in voter registration demonstrations at Greenwood, Miss.

As the group led by Gregory was taken off, wave after wave of other groups left the church on the edge of the business district. Each marcher carried placards decrying segregation. They sang freedom songs as they walked two by two.

HAULED TO JAIL
The groups were stopped by police officers, arrested, placed in school buses and hauled to jail. The operation lasted about two hours.

Watching was an orderly crowd of about 2,000 Negroes. They cheered the marchers. Negro leaders walked through the crowd and urged that they remain quiet.

Police wrestled one Negro woman on to the ground as she fought officers after refusing to move on. She was taken away in a paddy wagon.

Police dogs which had broken up Friday demonstrations were brought to the area but were not used.

Four fire trucks carrying high pressure monitor fire nozzles were stationed at each corner of a park across the street from the church.

King said a march on the city jail was planned Monday night. It was canceled shortly before the scheduled start.

HADN'T EATEN
"We contemplated it, but it turned out that we were able through the Justice Department to get information on our young people who had not eaten all day," King said.

"We understood some of them were still out in the weather, and we wanted to make sure they would be given food and shelter."

Officers said approximately 1,300 prisoners, most of them demonstrators, are in city jail which has a capacity of 900. County jail officials estimated about 1,150 prisoners were confined there.

Hundreds of Negro teen-agers are housed at the State Fair Grounds.

While the marching demonstrations were under way, an additional 150 Negroes carrying anti-segregation signs were arrested while picketing stores in the downtown business district.

Harvey Adams Fills Vacant Trustee Post

Harvey Adams, 1709 Harvard, is the new member of the Howard County School Board, filling the Commissioner's Precinct 4 vacancy created by the resignation some months ago of Paul B. H. Adams, whose name had been proposed at an earlier meeting in April, was unanimously elected by the board Monday afternoon.

ADAMS

H. H. Rutherford, newly elected to the board, was inducted into office. He was named to fill the chair formerly held by Fred Roman as member from Commissioner's Precinct 1. Rutherford defeated Roman for the post in the April election.

J. D. Gilmore, Commissioner's Precinct 2, was re-elected president of the board. He served in that capacity last year. His election was moved by Chub Jones, member at large, and was unanimously approved.

Jones also nominated Adams for Bishop's seat on the board. Jim Lewis, Commissioner's Precinct 3 member, seconded the nomination and Adams was unanimously elected.

A petition, signed by 650 residents of Commissioner's Precinct 4 asking that Adams be named to the board, was laid before the group by Jones and Lewis.

At an April meeting, Adams had been proposed as a member, as was Jack Buchanan. Buchanan was the candidate favored by Gilmore and Roman while Jones and Lewis backed Adams. The effort to elect either failed, ending in a 2-2 tie vote.

The board classified all schools in the county for the 1963-64 term as to grades to be taught. Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan were classified as teaching 12 grades; Gay Hill and Center Point, eight grades; and Vealmoor, six grades.

The board gave tentative approval to school bus routes proposed for the 1963-64 term, the same as the 1962-63 term.

Next meeting of the board, unless some special business arises, will be in June.

Reds Try 3 For 'Spying'

MOSCOW (AP)—Greville Wynne, a British businessman, and Oleg Penkovsky, a Soviet agent, were charged with high treason. They were charged with high treason. They were charged with high treason.

Wynne acknowledged active espionage as a contract man and courier, but said he entered his plea with "certain reservations which I will make in my statement" later in the trial. A representative of British engineering firms, he is 42.

Penkovsky, a former official of the Soviet Committee for Coordination of Scientific Research, was charged with high treason. His activities in that job involved supervising the exchange of delegations between the Soviet Union and Britain and the United States. He pleaded guilty with no reservations.

Grayling at 43, Penkovsky said he had been in regular contact with members of U.S. intelligence.

At one point he testified he had little success in filing a Western order for information on Soviet-Chinese relations.

"I did not get anything on that order," he said, "but I tried."

The courtroom was barely open the size of the Hall of Columns where Francis Gary Powers was tried for espionage after his ill-fated attempt to make a U2 flight across the Soviet Union in 1960.

But the trial was played up by Soviet news organs and Radio Moscow read the indictment in a special broadcast.

The indictment named a group of officials of the U.S. and British embassies in Moscow, most no longer in service here, as recipients of information.

Barge Fighting Trinity Currents

ON THE TRINITY (AP)—The Trinity Belle huffed and puffed at the Trinity River today but the swift current was proving a stronger foe than expected.

The 24-foot aluminum barge began its 540-mile journey up the river Monday at Anahuac in an effort to prove the winding Trinity can be navigable for commercial traffic.

U. S. Families To Leave Haiti

CRISIS MARKS TIME

No Decisive Move Against Dictator

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Haitian dispute marked time today on two diplomatic fronts amid rising expectations that no decisive political or military move will come soon to unseat President Francois Duvalier.

Roger Seydoux of France, president of the U.N. Security Council, awaited word from council members before deciding how to respond to Haiti's call Monday for a session "without delay" on the Dominican Republic's "threats of aggression."

Gonzalo Facio of Costa Rica, Organization of American States chairman, predicted the U.N. group would refer the Haitian complaint back to the OAS, which debated the issue for two hours Monday. The only OAS action was an appeal to both sides "not to resort to force."

Facio did not say when the OAS would meet again. The Dominican ambassador was reported returning to Washington today with new complaints for the OAS, the old ones having been disposed of. The chairman of the OAS fact-finding group on the dispute was expected to report later in the week.

While Dominican armed forces were reported poised on the Haitian border and President Juan Bosch scheduled a special radio-television speech for tonight, U.S. authorities voiced doubt that Bosch had the military might to conquer Haiti.

In the U.S. opinion, a Dominican attack would rally the Haitians behind Duvalier and damage the Dominican case in the OAS. Ambassador John Bartlow Martin was said to have given this advice to Bosch. Still, the possibility that the independent-minded Dominican chief might stage at least a token assault was not ruled out. Washington took a dim view of Haiti's recourse to the United Nations. Even if the Security Council agrees to let the OAS, as a regional organization, continue to handle the case, debate on whether to do so could give the Soviets another good chance to accuse the United States of interference in the Caribbean—a favorite Communist theme since the rise of the Castro regime.

U.S. sources also voiced some disappointment at OAS reluctance to take some collective action against Duvalier. Washington hoped for an OAS "presence" in Port au Prince to curb Duvalier's excesses and for combined Latin-American diplomatic pressure against him.

It was reported, however, that the other OAS members were overwhelmingly against such action on grounds it would violate the tradition of noninterference.

The airlift will also provide transportation for those of the approximately 1,300 U.S. civilians—mostly businessmen—who wish to leave. State Department officials said they do not know how many will choose to depart.

Staying on in Haiti will be the approximately 180 American officials who are members of the U.S. diplomatic corps and military missions at Port au Prince.

The evacuation was decided on because of deterioration of the situation in Haiti and the difficulty of insuring the lives and safety of U.S. citizens, the department said.

At the same time, State Department authorities said the evacuation is not due to any increased anticipation that hostilities would flare between Haiti and the neighboring Dominican Republic. Nor has there been a recent increase in Haitian harassment against Americans, they said.

Haiti is across a narrow strait from the big U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, and strong U.S. naval forces are in the vicinity. Should trouble break out which endangered American lives in Haiti, U.S. Marines could move into Port au Prince in a very short time if President Kennedy determined such action was necessary.

Another Telstar Goes Into Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Telstar 2 rocketed into orbit today in another step toward shrinking the world through space communication.

Project officials planned to use the new satellite tonight as a transfer point for a closed-circuit transatlantic television exchange between the United States and Europe.

The 10-minute program, which won't be seen on home screens, will determine whether, initially at least, the satellite is as successful as its predecessor, Telstar 1.

The U.S. State's newest communications satellite shot into orbit aboard a reliable Delta rocket, which blazed away from Cape Canaveral at 6:38 a.m. en route to its 17th straight space launching success.

PERFECT FUNCTION
All three rocket stages performed precisely as planned and shoved the ball of instruments into a wide looping orbit.

The exact orbital figures were not immediately available but preliminary indications were that the satellite was very close to its intended course ranging from 575 to 6,559 miles above the earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that the 175-pound package was in orbit and that good radio signals were being received from the sphere.

Telstar 2, like its predecessor was designed as an experimental communications vehicle to seek the best means of using satellites to deliver radio, television, news, picture and telephone service to every part of the world.

The slender, 90-foot rocket soared right on time and slanted southeast as planned.

But the planned orbit was a long one, requiring a wait of more than four hours for completion of the first run to show how close on target the shot had been.

Telstar 2, like its enormously successful predecessor, Telstar 1, was built as an experimental vehicle to seek the best means of using satellites to transmit radio, television, news, picture and telephone service to every corner of the globe.

DESIGN CHANGES
The new space "switchboard" included design changes aimed at avoiding the severe radiation damage which eventually killed the first Telstar. Its planned deepest penetration into space was nearly twice that of the first Telstar's 3,543-mile apogee. This would make possible longer transmission times between the United States and western Europe and next year would open the way for exchange of television signals between the United States and Japan.

Initial transatlantic tests with Telstar 2 were scheduled tonight about 13 hours after launching when the bejeweled sphere was to start its fourth orbit.

A ground station at Andover, Maine, planned to beam a four-minute video tape to the satellite for immediate relay to ground stations in Britain and France. The European stations, in turn, prepared a four-minute tape for transmission to U.S. stations.

There was no immediate plan to feed the exchange to commercial television networks.

Project officials hope Telstar 2 will be working well and in position next week to relay to Europe the scheduled launching of astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. on his intended 34-hour orbital flight from Cape Canaveral.

Telstar 1 soared into orbit last July 10 and became an overnight sensation. Within hours after launching it relayed the first transatlantic television program from America to Europe.

In the months that followed, it successfully proved the feasibility of communicating via space, more than 400 demonstrations covered every aspect of transmission.

All Private Citizens Urged To Exit, Too

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department announced today it has ordered families of U.S. officials in Haiti to leave the troubled country and is urging private American citizens to depart, too.

Chartered Pan American World Airways planes will fly Wednesday to Port au Prince, the Haitian capital, to evacuate the approximately 220 dependents of U.S. government personnel, officials said.

The airlift will also provide transportation for those of the approximately 1,300 U.S. civilians—mostly businessmen—who wish to leave. State Department officials said they do not know how many will choose to depart.

Like To Be A Stockholder? Then This Clinic Is For You

People who would like to own a few shares of stock—and that includes about everyone—are being invited to the opening round of a three-part Investor's Clinic today.

The first session will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Howard County Junior College auditorium, and there is no charge. It will be helpful if those attending will obtain free tickets at any of the banks, or the sponsoring Herald and HJC offices. However, the tickets are not necessary to attending the classes.

Leading the discussions, which will last about an hour and a half, will be Thomas G. Laros, assistant vice president, Joe P. Liberty and Wade B. Simpson, all of the Midland office of Rauscher, Pierce & Co.

Aside from showing how investments provide private capital which feeds the establishment and expansion of business enterprises, the sessions will explain the simple mechanics of making investments. In short, they are designed to answer the question: "How can I buy or sell some stocks?"

Back of this will be information on how to read the financial pages, interpret market data and how to understand corporation reports.

Although the stock market has acquired some fancy-sounding terms, there is no great mystery attached to it. The Investor's Clinic is aimed at dispelling this air of mystery and to make it simple for the average person to become an investor. Already some 12-million Americans have, and indications are that more want to but are awed by what they do not understand.

Wreckage Of Brazilian Airliner

A Brazilian fireman walks toward the wreckage of an airliner which caught fire, exploded in midair, and plunged into a heavily built-up area shortly after takeoff at Sao Paulo, Brazil. The tail section remains intact in front of a small two-story residence across from the unoccupied apartment building into which the aircraft plunged. Officials counted 31 dead in the crash of the plane which took off with 44 passengers and five crewmen.

Too Much 'Tired Blood' In Advertising, Oil Man Says

HOUSTON — The "tired blood" of true advertising is giving the public that dull, listless feeling, members of the Houston Advertising Club were told today by a petroleum marketing authority.

"The consumer seems to be bored with all the look-alike, sound-alike advertising," according to J. M. Shea Jr., senior vice president of American Petroleum, Dallas.

"Tired clients, not their agencies, are responsible for much of the follow-the-leader advertising, he said because 'they just don't want to take a chance' on fresh, original ideas, or their own judgment.

"Certainly, those advertisers who break loose with something different are seldom the front runners in their field. Indeed, they are usually the manufacturers of brands you have rarely heard of. It's not so much that they can't because of their obscurity, afford to take a chance with something different, but that they can't afford not to take a chance. Their budgets are usually not large enough to permit them, the luxury of conventionally boring, saturation campaigns," Shea told the Houstonians.

Citing his own industry, Shea said there are two basic interchangeable campaigns in petroleum advertising: One features far-fetched miracle additives, and the other promises free service in the form of love and affection for your car which is not always delivered.

"Most automobile tire advertising, for instance, is as interchangeable as the tires themselves. Only the logos have been changed to protect the inner-tube," Shea told the group. "The same is true of most cake mix, soap, cigarette, tooth paste, earth moving machinery, and dog food advertisements."

Shea marveled that any original thought sees the light of day, considering the committee rule that many companies have adopted for their advertising campaigns. "You need only ask a treasurer or a manufacturing vice president his opinion to find out that everyone is an advertising expert," Shea said. "But shepherding a campaign through a committee can be child's play compared to gathering the surveys and statistics and ratings and so forth which clients are now demanding before they will take a chance on their own good judgment."

S. Texas May Get More Rain

Low clouds held promise of more moisture Tuesday for parts of South Texas still rejecting at the first general rains since last September in many places.

Forecasts promised at least partly cloudy skies and isolated thundershowers in all other sections except Northwest Texas.

Streams continued to run full and occasionally out of banks in southern areas of the state, where rainfall measuring up to 5 inches Monday was expected to revive crops and range grass from San Antonio southward.

Shower activity tapered off in most sections but a hard thundershower drenched the Waco vicinity with 2.88 inches of rain Monday evening.

By early Tuesday there were only a few light showers around Brownsville at the state's southern tip. Fog hovered at Lufkin, Longview, Tyler, Mineral Wells and Wichita Falls.

Sheriff's officers kept a wary eye on a tornado funnel spotted in the air near Ferris, 15 miles south of Dallas, until it broke up and disappeared Monday afternoon.

Temperatures were generally lower Monday. Afternoon highs ranged from 91 degrees at Presidio down to 71 at San Angelo.

Legislature In Brief

AUSTIN (AP)—The Legislature Monday.

Senate Sent to governor a Bexar County school district bill. Passed to the House bills to permit women to work more than 54 hours a week at seasonal jobs, to establish a school for the mentally retarded in the upper Gulf Coast area, to provide that costs of relocating utility facilities will be included in costs of acquiring right of way by the State Highway Department. Passed to the House a proposed constitutional amendment limiting a governor to two terms.

House Debated for more than three hours a measure making many changes in the code of criminal procedure.

Few Wet Spots In Northern Areas

By The Associated Press

There were a few wet spots and it was cool again in northern border areas but pleasant weather prevailed in most of the nation today.

Thundershowers hit areas in northern Georgia and the western Carolinas as well as in northeastern North Dakota, southern Texas and southwest Oregon. Rainfall was light, less than one inch, in a six-hour period during the night.

The mercury dropped into the 30s and lower again this morning from New England through the Great Lakes region to northern sections of the upper Mississippi Valley.

The mercury soared to 107 Monday in Thermal, Calif., and Yuma, Ariz.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 90 in Needles, Calif., to 30 in Marquette, Mich.

MYSTERIOUS WAYS

Question: Where in the Bible is the quotation, "God moves in a mysterious way, his wonders to perform." Answer: While many people think this is in the Bible, and quote it as Scripture, yet it is not. William Cowper is the author of this. There are mysteries; but everything pertaining to the Lord is not mysterious. In common practice, religion is shrouded in mystery. This is calculated to make people fear the clergy and to follow them blindly. It discourages investigation. Paul speaks of "the simplicity that is in Christ" and commands us to study (II Cor. 11:3; II Tim. 2:15).

West Texans Honored As Top Automobile Dealers

AUSTIN — Two outstanding Texas automobile dealers were named as "Quality Dealer of the Year" by the Texas Automobile Dealers Association.

Awards were presented at an awards luncheon in Austin by Gov. John Connally who was the featured speaker for the association's 48th annual convention.

Selected for the awards, from among a large number of nominees were L. M. McAdoo of Seagraves, and James E. Casner of Alpine. Nominations were submitted by businessmen and civic clubs throughout the state.

Casner, 75, has been an automobile dealer for 50 years. He is known, particularly in the West Texas area, as the moving force behind establishment of Big Bend National Park, and he also was active in the founding of Sul Ross College in Alpine.

McAdoo recently was elected to his third term as mayor of Seagraves. He has served as president, or in an executive capacity, with nearly every civic organization in his home town, has been a director in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, is a former national councilman in the Small Business Administration, and is state councilman for that group, and he has served as president of the school board, the Community Chest, and the Chamber of Commerce, in addition to numerous other civic activities.

Ranger Fuss Goes To Court

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Mayor Juan Cornejo of Crystal City took his dispute with Texas Ranger Capt. Alfred Allee into court Monday.

Cornejo, one of five Latin Americans who took over city council seats in their home town's municipal election last month, repeated charges that Allee had manhandled him and abused him verbally. Allee has told newsmen he did not touch Cornejo.

The mayor of the South Texas vegetable center asked a federal court order forbidding the Ranger captain "from assaulting, intimidating, threatening or interfering" with Cornejo's constitutional rights.

In addition, Cornejo sued Allee for $15,000 damages.

U. S. Atty. Ernest Morgan said the suit, filed in federal district court here, will be set for hearing at Del Rio.

The new Crystal City commissioners said earlier they have been targets for telephoned threats in the wake of the election, and FBI agents have acknowledged checking whether there have been any civil rights violations.

Cornejo, who also is business agent for the Teamsters Union local at Crystal City, asserted that Allee escorted him into an empty office April 26, berated him with "numerous vile words" and told him there would be bloodshed if the mayor persisted in pushing people too far.

The mayor's petition stated that he dispatched telegrams April 28 to U. S. Atty. Gen. Robert "Bobby" Kennedy, Gov. John Connally and Texas Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr.

These messages, Cornejo continued, stated that Allee likewise harassed the other city councilmen and "we are in a state of fear and intimidation."

Bandleader Ted Weems Is Dead

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Ted Weems, who started his musical career before he was tall enough to see music on a stand and became one of the nation's top bandleaders, died Monday night of a lung ailment.

"He was a great man, so loving and vital," said Marilyn Maxwell, one of the stars who got her start with Weems. "It is a big loss and he will be missed by many."

Perry Como, another former Weems singer, termed him "a true gentleman." Other stars who got their start with Weems included bandleader Jan Garber and Snooky Lanson.

They had kept in close touch since Weems entered a hospital March 14.

His wife, Eleanor, stayed in Tulsa during his last illness. Their 38th wedding anniversary was Sunday, a funeral home spokesman said.

Other survivors include his mother, Victoria Weems of Hamilton, Ohio; a son, Ted Jr., Dallas, Tex., and a brother, Robert, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Weems' son said funeral services would be in Bethesda, Md. Weems, 62, had operated a theatrical agency in recent years with his son in Dallas, which also was the band's headquarters. He had earlier bouts with emphysema, a lung ailment which restricts the amount of oxygen available to the blood, and was hospitalized in Dallas last December.

He felt strong enough to try another engagement, but became ill the day his band opened at a club here and never left the hospital. A relapse 10 days ago was followed by a pulmonary infection which resisted treatment.

Weems began his musical career when he was a small child and led his own band while still in grade school. When he entered college he planned to be an engineer—but along came a tour with a band—and he was in the music business to stay.

Weems' band appeared on such radio shows as "Fibber McGee and Molly," "Beat the Band," and "Cavalcade of Bands."

His most popular tune, "Heartaches," was a hit twice—in 1932 when he first recorded it with whistler Elmo Tanner and again in 1947.

Steel May Be Softening For Wage Parleys

By ROGER LANE
AP Business News Writer

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — The steel industry, facing an expected opening of wage talks with the United Steel Workers, may be softening slightly its position on settlement terms.

A hint of this developed in an observation by Roger M. Blough, board chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., that a hypothetical 12 cents an hour package would be "quite extraordinary on the high side."

Answering a stockholder's question, Blough said "any kind of situation like that would be very unhappy compared with any price increases we have had to date."

When the question of reopened wage contract bargaining with the union has come up before, Blough and other industry leaders have said simply that renewed discussions were unjustified in the light of depressed steel earnings.

This position intimated there was no room for wage or fringe benefit concessions.

Observers have speculated lately that selected price increases last month amounting to about one per cent on over-all sales may have weakened the industry's stand.

The price increases also have led to the assumption that the union is virtually certain to demand reopening of the 1962 wage agreement, a matter regarded as uncertain before the markups went into effect.

The present agreement bars a strike for 90 days after formal notice of reopening is served. The union has not revealed its intentions. The industry said the 1962 pact, providing for improved fringe benefits but no wage increase, cost it 10.9 cents per man hour.

At U.S. Steel's annual stockholders' meeting Monday, Blough and Leslie B. Worthington, president, revealed that they and other officers took five per cent pay cuts, effective Jan. 1.

During a dismal 1962, five major producers, including U.S. Steel, the industry giant, cut dividends. U.S. Steel earnings fell to a 15-year low. Profits apparently are on the rebound, with orders and production up to a three-year high.

The salary reductions, applauded by shareowners, reduced Blough's pay to $285,000 a year, Worthington's to $281,500 and that of Robert C. Tyson, finance committee chairman, to $237,500.

Election To Cost $25 Per Voter

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—Campbell County officials figure the May 28 election could cost the county $25 a voter in precinct 2-A.

Urban renewal has left only one house in the precinct—and its occupant is expected to move before the election. That leaves two voters—Michael Maloney, the courthouse custodian, and his brother, who live upstairs at the courthouse.

Election officials say it will cost $50 to install a voting machine and keep four judges on duty at the polling place.

Two talented people, the GLEN FAISONS, showed another side of their musical bent in their comedy routine. We're always delighted to see the funny side of people who always perform well in the more serious music.

MARY FRANCES MALONE was in the audience wearing one of the most attractive ensembles we've seen in some time. It is a beautiful deep blue satin with metallic decor which she had fashioned for her while in Hong Kong recently. The styling is along oriental lines, a slender sheath dress and straight coat with mandarin collar. She said the selection, fitting and finished product took only a few days.

'ROUND TOWN With LUCILLE PICKLE

"The Festival of Light Music" played to an almost full house at HJCC last night and everyone was delighted with the show.

The College Vocal Ensemble proved there doesn't have to be a great number of voices to make pretty music as long as the ones singing, sing well. Such was the case at the Monday night offering. MRS. WAYNE KELLER did her "Hello, Young Lovers" beautifully and the staging was most effective. As was the ensemble's rendition of "Hey Look Me Over" which is a right good number for showing enthusiasm.

The group received an invitation to attend a program on Social Security May 21 at 2 p.m. in the Cap Rock Building at Stanton. Also, an invitation was extended to attend a home decorating program to be held May 17 at 2 p.m. in the Garden City High School.

The Protestant Women of the Chapel will meet with Mrs. Russell Sandstrom, 1504 Fairchild, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Mrs. Eugene N. Schuster will speak on a tour of schools and hospitals behind the Iron Curtain.

Prayer said in unison opened the St. Mary's Guild meeting Monday in the Parish Hall of St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

A devotional article on meekness and temperance was read by Mrs. Donald Hungerford.

The program consisted of reports from delegates to the fifth annual council meeting of the Episcopal church in the Northwest Texas Diocese. The meeting was held at the St. Nicholas Episcopal Church in Midland, May 4-6.

Following the benediction pronounced by the Rev. Gayland Pool, Mrs. Shine Phillips served refreshments to 10 members, a guest, Mrs. Terry A. Boll, and Rev. Pool.

Liberty, who will be one of the instructors for a forthcoming stock clinic in Big Spring, gave a brief resume of petroleum stock, pointing out reasons for continuing growth of oil as a major source of power and energy, and in the search for oil.

The speaker said that the industry's profits depend in a large part on the supply and demand. He commented on the change in the supply of available oil and the American people's demand since 1957. He continued by explaining diversification and its creation of new interest for those who are investing in the stock market. Also, Liberty compared different kinds of oil companies.

An invocation was given by Mrs. Frances Bratcher, and a field trip was planned for May 25 to the General Tire and Rubber Plant at Odessa. Concluding the meeting, a report was made of the regional seminar at Midland. Mrs. Paul Sheedy received the attendance prize.

Junior Gardeners Hear Mrs. Wiley

"Parts of a Flower" was the topic when Mrs. Cliff Wiley spoke to members of the Junior Garden Club Monday afternoon.

Meals Planned On Program For Lees Club

Lees Home Demonstration Club had a program on meal preparation and serving Monday afternoon. Meeting at the clubhouse, the members answered roll call with things they needed to know about Social Security. Mrs. E. L. Newsom presided.

The group received an invitation to attend a program on Social Security May 21 at 2 p.m. in the Cap Rock Building at Stanton. Also, an invitation was extended to attend a home decorating program to be held May 17 at 2 p.m. in the Garden City High School.

Mrs. Joe Hamby and Mrs. William Schaefer gave reports on the district THDA meeting, after which Mrs. Mildred Eiland, HD agent, Glasscock County, told of proper ways for setting the table, formally and informally.

A new member, Mrs. V. E. Phillips, will be hostess for the next meeting June 10.

St. Mary's Guild Meets Tuesday

Prayer said in unison opened the St. Mary's Guild meeting Monday in the Parish Hall of St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

A devotional article on meekness and temperance was read by Mrs. Donald Hungerford.

The program consisted of reports from delegates to the fifth annual council meeting of the Episcopal church in the Northwest Texas Diocese. The meeting was held at the St. Nicholas Episcopal Church in Midland, May 4-6.

Following the benediction pronounced by the Rev. Gayland Pool, Mrs. Shine Phillips served refreshments to 10 members, a guest, Mrs. Terry A. Boll, and Rev. Pool.

Review For Hyperions Is Reported

"The Thorn of Armathea" by Frank G. Slaughter was reviewed by Mrs. Clyde Angel at the 1930 Hyperion Club luncheon held Saturday at the Big Spring Country Club.

The book tells the story of a miracle; the result of the pure, unshakable faith of the girl, Veronica, who was transformed from a pathetic cripple to a strong-limbed young woman. The miracle centers around the veil that had touched the face of Jesus.

Mrs. Bill Currie, retiring president, conducted the business session, the last of the season. Mrs. Arch Carson, the new president, appointed committee chairmen and named the committee members. Thirty-eight attended.

INITIATION SET FOR REBEKAHS

Stock Topic Of Program

Joe Liberty, Rauscher Pierce and Co., representative of Midland, spoke to members of the Desk and Derrick Club Monday evening and showed the film, "The Lady and the Stock Exchange."

Liberty, who will be one of the instructors for a forthcoming stock clinic in Big Spring, gave a brief resume of petroleum stock, pointing out reasons for continuing growth of oil as a major source of power and energy, and in the search for oil.

The speaker said that the industry's profits depend in a large part on the supply and demand. He commented on the change in the supply of available oil and the American people's demand since 1957. He continued by explaining diversification and its creation of new interest for those who are investing in the stock market. Also, Liberty compared different kinds of oil companies.

An invocation was given by Mrs. Frances Bratcher, and a field trip was planned for May 25 to the General Tire and Rubber Plant at Odessa. Concluding the meeting, a report was made of the regional seminar at Midland. Mrs. Paul Sheedy received the attendance prize.

Darker Side Of Texas' Current Boom

By ROBERT E. FORD
DALLAS (AP) — Business and government leaders say Texas' economy is booming. They point to new industries, massive construction projects, low employment rates and numerous statistics to support their view.

But Rosalio Leos of San Antonio finds things are not booming at all for him.

Leos is not a special case. He is simply typical of thousands in Texas, an example of trends within the state.

Leos is 42—approaching an age when almost anyone would have difficulty finding a job.

He left a rural area to seek work in the city, a major trend starting more than 30 years ago.

Leos has no skills and only a ninth grade education—a matter of growing concern among those seeking to help others find jobs.

RELATIVES HELP

Leos hunts for work each day but can find only enough to earn $4 to $5 a week. Relatives help him, his wife and their nine children.

He is typical of some in the middle generation, but his eldest son, Amparo, may join another growing group—the young unemployed. Amparo, 18, can't find work.

While city jobless are a problem, concern is growing about rural areas.

Rural population dropped 17 per cent in 10 years while cities gained 48.5 per cent. This loss of population has caused a consequent reduction in business in small towns. So has rural unemployment—4 million unemployed nationally in rural areas.

R. L. Coffman, administrator of the Texas Employment Commission, says of city and rural work situations:

"None of the four major cities is in bad shape employmentwise. I think Dallas and Fort Worth will continue to grow. The petrochemical industry will continue to grow in the coastal area. The Manned Spacecraft Center will be a big help to Houston. West Texas is in pretty good shape, perhaps better than most of the state. Galveston is a tough one. Texarkana never has recovered from the closing of the Red River Arsenal."

STAGNANT TOWNS

Coffman added that many small towns are stagnant, particularly in East, South and West Central Texas.

The government says 51 of Texas' 254 counties are depressed areas, although some vigorously deny this and refuse federal help. Most are in East Texas, where farming has fallen on hard times for all sorts of reasons. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., protests the designation, calling it a "stigma."

A great many qualified observers repeatedly say Texas must raise its educational level if it is to keep its citizens employed in an increasingly technical age.

Coffman says, "Training of unemployed is the only answer. The fact that things are relatively good now doesn't necessarily hold for the future. . . . The level of necessary skill is rising."

TOO HEAVILY

Earl Rudder, president of Texas A&M, said recently that "I am afraid we have too long relied too heavily on such things as oil, gas and productive soil . . . neglecting the human resources that are so necessary to carry out a proper development of the area."

Along with other problems, the one-time backbone of the state's economy—oil—has fallen on slow days. The state's oil wells are producing only 27 per cent of their potential—held down to keep from flooding the market.

With the decline in production has come a decline in drilling for new wells, with a consequent slowdown in industries supplying the oil fields.

Oilmen mainly blame imports and a decline in the state's share of the nation's production.

The federal government is expected to continue to allow imports because of the probable outcry if we closed the big U.S. market to our allies. Too, many U.S. oil firms find importing oil profitable.

It likely will take some radical action for the state to gain more proportion of the national production as long as other states permit increases in their allowable flow.

Rickover Tests Nuclear Craft

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP)—Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover personally put the Navy's newest nuclear submarine, the Andrew Jackson, through two days of sea tests and pronounced the ship seaworthy Monday.

Then he left the submarine and it put out to sea for further tests, expected to last for about two days.

The Andrew Jackson, the Navy's 13th Polaris missile-firing nuclear-powered sub, "steamed at full power both surfaced and submerged," the Navy announced following Adm. Rickover's radio message signalling a successful trial.

Uncle Sam Drawing Line Between Business, Pleasure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam is marching in where even wives fear to tread. He is trying to draw a clearer line between business and pleasure.

It has to do with environments. For instance, can a salesman close a deal at a night club table—and deduct the cost of the tab as a business expense? Is a yacht conducive to business?

The Internal Revenue Service has unveiled these proposed rules on what environments are and aren't conducive to business talk, and is getting some loud talk from business in return.

"I know some people who would talk business going over Niagara Falls in a barrel," Andrew Ziomek, president of the National Licensed Beverage Association said Monday at hearings on the proposed rules.

People can and do talk business in places which the proposed regulations would consider too distracting, he said.

Generally, the witnesses said the proposed new rules were vague, complex and only compounded confusion.

Arthur J. Packard, Mount Vernon, Ohio, speaking for the American Hotel & Motel Association, said "the expense account fiasco" has laid the base for a very real tax revolution.

It won't be an armed one like Shay's Whiskey Rebellion, he said, "but an even more dangerous revolt, creating a climate of frustration and disrespect for law comparable to the Prohibition era."

Officials of the service did hear a few kind words.

Mathia Lally Frick, a tax consultant from St. Louis, told them her sympathy was with them, that "you were given an impossible task; you're the breadwinner in a family of prodigal spendthrifts."

But Mrs. Frick objected to complex regulations. "You're putting a great premium on record keeping," she said, adding "a record is never any better than the man who keeps it. Merely putting something down on a piece of paper doesn't make it so."

Nelson Forrest, executive director of the Greater North Michigan Avenue Association in Chicago, commended the IRS.

The new regulations, he said, will go far in re-establishing the normal business entertainment climate.

But Forrest appealed for the service or someone, "maybe the President," to tell the American business public that normal, appropriate business and entertainment and travel expenses continue allowable in the internal revenue regulations.

With more publicity and communication, he said, fear and uncertainty will then disappear.

Why does this water heater need no flue?

IT'S FLAMELESS... IT'S ELECTRIC! And because it's flameless, it needs no flue or ventilation, so it can be installed almost anywhere—under a kitchen counter, beneath a stairway or even way back in a tightly enclosed closet. In addition to this flexibility of location, a flameless electric water heater gives you these other important advantages: SAFE — no flame, no pilot light to worry about. CLEAN — no by-products of combustion to soil walls or ceiling. SILENT — no start-up or shutdown noises, no sound while water is being heated. FAST — high-speed electric heating elements are immersed in the water for maximum efficiency and quick recovery operation. You'll have all the hot water your family needs — worry-free — with a flameless quick recovery electric water heater. See the new models now on display at your dealer's.

Great Man Regardless

Confederate Memorial Day invariably brings forth moving eulogies for Robert E. Lee, whose dilemma when forced to choose between duty to his nation and duty to his state epitomized the tragedy of the Civil War.

Lee's acceptance as a national, rather than a sectional hero is almost complete. Former President Eisenhower and President Kennedy both have gone out of their way to express their esteem for Lee's memory. Gen. Eisenhower back in 1957 expressly disassociated himself from a remark of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery that Lee should have been "sacked" for his conduct of the battle of Gettysburg.

Without seeming to be sanctimonious because we already are fortunate to have a strong junior college, we can see merit in this step Junior colleges are a joint enterprise of the locality and of the state, and if they cannot muster sufficient financial and enrollment support from the home base, they will either fail the increasing charge of the state or they will not be strong enough to offer the quality program that students deserve.

One of the board members expressed an opinion that 34 junior colleges had resulted in a watering down of the state's junior college program. We cannot agree that the numbers are responsible for this. For the State of Texas has phered, historian Douglas S. Freeman, to the effect that no action was necessary to restore Lee's citizenship because that was done automatically when he signed the parole in which he agreed not to bear arms against the United States.

Theoretically, Lee would not have been able to exercise certain of the rights of citizenship without taking an oath, because his application for a pardon apparently never came to the official attention of President Andrew Johnson and was not acted on. But Freeman concluded that Lee was so highly regarded in his home community that no one there would have interposed objection if he had sought to exercise any normal citizenship right.

Sen. Robertson's belief was that any attempt to restore Lee's full civil rights "would be at best an empty gesture" and also "might be interpreted by many people as an effort to restore citizenship itself." Lee, however, needs no legislative largess to add to his stature. He was one of America's great men anyway you take it.

A Student Is A Student

The State Board of Education Monday considered tightening requirements for new junior colleges.

Without seeming to be sanctimonious because we already are fortunate to have a strong junior college, we can see merit in this step Junior colleges are a joint enterprise of the locality and of the state, and if they cannot muster sufficient financial and enrollment support from the home base, they will either fail the increasing charge of the state or they will not be strong enough to offer the quality program that students deserve.

One of the board members expressed an opinion that 34 junior colleges had resulted in a watering down of the state's junior college program. We cannot agree that the numbers are responsible for this. For the State of Texas has gradgingly increased its help to the junior colleges, and there is no evidence whatsoever that if there were half that number that the state would provide them one penny more. On the contrary, any break down in quality may be attributed to inadequate support locally, to failure of administration to exercise leadership and demand high standards, and perhaps to an odd philosophy that state college students should receive about twice as much per capita as junior college students.

There is no objection to tightening the requirements for junior colleges, something that might be applied with equal consistency to senior colleges. Somewhere down the line we do hope that the legislature is impressed with the fact that a college student is a student—a student—to paraphrase Gertrude Stein.

Marquis Childs Flood of Far-Out Letters

WASHINGTON — The dictionary defines paranoia as a chronic mental disorder characterized by systematized delusions of persecution and of one's own greatness, sometimes with hallucinations.

The word paranoid, meaning one suffering from paranoia, occurred several times in the speech that Sen. Thomas Kuchel (R., Calif.) made on the Senate floor this past week. He brought into the open a phenomenon that has caused a great deal of backstage talk on Capitol Hill.

THIS IS the increasing volume of mail from citizens whose accusations are so far out that they seem to have taken leave of their senses. Of the 60,000 letters a month that come to him Kuchel said 10 per cent are in this far-out category. They accuse him of being a Communist and a traitor and when he replies, presenting the facts of a given situation, they write again saying he is either a dupe or a deliberate agent practicing deceit.

CALIFORNIA has always had more than its share of the lunatic fringe. In the great depression of the 'thirties they pursued a variety of pied pipers promising $30 every Thursday and other weird panaceas. Therefore, the Senator's alarm might be discounted.

But what he has documented is the work of professional peddlers of hate and the wide range of crackpot who through the printed word and on radio and television spread fantastic charges that have little or no relation to truth. These hate peddlers are contributing to an atmosphere of growing hysteria reflected far beyond the lunatic fringe in one degree or another. And their operations are by no means confined to California.

THE EXAMPLES Kuchel gives, both in samples from his correspondence and in pamphlets and printed material widely distributed, are in the realm of fantasy or perhaps more accurately paranoia. A great many letter writers allege that a United States Army exercise in guerrilla warfare in the training area in Georgia, known as Operation Water Moccasin III, is part of a plot to have the United Nations take over all of America's armed forces.

SOME WRITERS reported that 15,000 U. N. personnel from 15 countries were taking part in the exercise. Others said

James Marlow Unreality Of Test Ban Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the troubles with looking at a clock is that it seems convincing. The hands point to the very latest minute in the history of man.

But even as you look the second hand is already moving into the next minute. The minutes melt into hours and the hours into days and years. Time begins to look unreal.

This has been the history of all the years of talking between the United States and Russia about disarmament and banning nuclear tests. There has been an unreality about them minute by minute from the beginning.

LAST WEEK the Russians said they were a waste of time and, as if to prove it, the French two days later announced preparations to make the Tahiti islands in the Pacific a nuclear testing center.

The fact that the United States and Russia since the war have been in a desperate contest to get ahead of each other in arms has been only a minor factor in the failure of their talks. The real one was and is distrust.

There could be no disarmament that either side would accept without a foolproof inspection system. They couldn't agree on that.

And even if the negotiators agreed, the U. S. Senate could never approve stripping this country of its arms while another Communist giant, not a party to the treaty, kept on arming.

An American-Russian agreement to ban nuclear tests could hardly work, or be approved by either side, if Red China and France were free to build and test their own nuclear weapons, which is what they're aiming at.

BUT IF THERE was an American-Russian agreement to ban nuclear tests, the two sides would still keep all their nuclear weapons unless there was an agreement to disarm. So far disarmament has been a fantasy.

Both sides have tried to make some propaganda mileage, for whatever that's worth, by presenting an appearance of willingness to disarm and stop testing.

But after all these years the rest of the world could hardly be blamed for being skeptical, particularly since the United States and Russia are skeptical of each other.

The clock grinds on and one thing melts into another. The United States would have to be doubly skeptical about any agreement with Russia—so long as Moscow's ally, Red China, not a party to the agreement—was free to arm and test.

THE SAME goes for Russian skepticism about the United States so long as the American ally, France, not a party to the agreement, is free to arm and test.

To make the whole business more bizarre, the Russians have reason to be equally worried about Red China, even though they're supposed to be allies.

The Chinese Communists, by their split with Moscow, have shown they are not willing to be subservient to the Russians. If they're not willing to be subservient, then they must try to be equal.

Inez Robb Beauty Touches Come A Bit High

My Friend with the Whim of Iron dropped by for a cup of coffee yesterday and said, apropos of nothing, that life was getting a great deal too rich for her blood.

"Look at my hands," she demanded, thrusting toward me a pair of beautifully manicured mitts. "I was shopping on Fifth Avenue in the 'Fifties two days ago when I decided I needed a manicure. I realized I was practically on the doorstep of that fantastic beauty salon that was opened with such fanfare a year or two ago.

"I HAD NEVER been in it, mainly because the newspaper pictures and stories of its interior reminded me of the decline and fall of Rome. Or, maybe, the decline and fall of Cecil B. de Mille. However, since I was in front of the place, I decided to go in for a manicure.

"Take my word for it: the newspapers didn't exaggerate. The decor is a sort of amalgam of early M-G-M, the Sultan's harem and the Paris Opera. Dazed as I was, I had just enough sense left to ask the price of a manicure. The duchess in charge said it would be six dollars.

"SIX DOLLARS?" I cried. "Look, my hands don't need major surgery. They don't even need extensive repairs. Just a manicure."

"When the duchess insisted that the minimum manicure was six dollars, I went over to Saks and got an excellent manicure for $2.50."

My friend poured another cup of coffee and then asked, "Are American women crazy? Without tip, you know how do you suppose for a shampoo and set?"

"DON'T ASK ME!" I said as I reached for the morning paper and opened it to the women's pages. I pointed to three pictures and a two-column story on a

Around The Rim

No New Pun Under The Sun

There are no new puns. There are no new jokes. The only hope for variety is to devise some different way of using the same old puns or a new twist to the same jokes. And even then, although your invention may have some local acceptance for originality, be assured that some other fellow has 'already made use of the idea.

Years ago—1923 to be exact—I wrote an editorial to appear on the front page of the newspaper on which I worked. The editorial opposed the calling of a grand jury. (In the state where I lived grand juries were only called when a petition was presented to the court asking one be organized.)

THE COMPETITIVE newspaper replied to my editorial. It said the reason I was opposed to the grand jury was that I feared the grand jury would dig up dirty deeds in my lurid past. The editorial was captioned "The Wicked Flea"—from the Scripture "The wicked flea when no man pursueth."

Being brash and youthful, I wrote an answer. I charged the opposition with illiteracy—that they wanted to call me a dirty name and had intended to write "Wicked Flea," branding me as a pesky insect but didn't know how to spell.

SOMEHOW THE LITTLE effort caught on and I started writing a daily column and signing it "The Wicked Flea." I thought I had an original non de plume. But as the years rolled on (I wrote the column six days a week for 33 years) I began to run into instance after instance where the pun had been used by others long before my time. One who used it was Mark Twain. Another was in balloon on an early day comic strip. I am not sure but I think Shakespeare also used the phrase in one of his plays. Bill was a great hand to use puns when opportunity offered.

THERE'S THE ONE he has the dying Mercutio pull: Asked if he was badly hurt, he said that the wound was not as deep as a well nor as wide as a barn door but that it would do. "Ask for me tomorrow," he says, "and you will find me a 'grave' man." How terrible can you get.

Now when I dream up what I think is a reasonably new joke or something—I immediately discover that it has been used not only once but many times before.

I once read there are only 13 possible original jokes. And there are even fewer potential story plots for the author to eternalize. Basically, there is but one—the eternal triangle. The only hope for a new twist is to put different objects at each of three corners.

So WHEN YOU PICK up a book and, after you have read it, disgustedly remark you don't read another story just like it, don't be surprised. The chances are that you have.

And there is a very good possibility that writers as far back as writing goes and even in the days of the minstrels and oral story tellers, have used the same plot, which was old hat even then.

The preacher put it quite clearly: "The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be done; and there is no new thing under the sun."

—SAM BLACKBURN

Hal Boyle On Buying A Hat

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals for a conservative man today is trying to buy a new hat that won't startle passing dogs or scare children into fits.

To women, shopping for a new bonnet is one of the greatest pleasures. The man who chooses it is one of the greatest of nuisances.

The average man has a secret fear that any kind of headgear makes him look ridiculous except a sun-faded old fishing cap. He realizes he is no Anthony Eden or Clark Gable, two of the few well-known men of modern times that could wear a hat with masculine aplomb.

It is said that the reason President Kennedy usually prefers to go hatless is that he suffered a nervous shock in his childhood by seeing a picture of Calvin Coolidge in an Indian headdress.

And certainly one of the greatest triumphs of communism is that Premier Khrushchev of the Soviet Union can wear the hats he does and still get respected. His hat is always battered down as if he were fighting against a hurricane.

But no matter how hard a man argues that the hat he bought in 1950 is still in perfectly fine condition, the more insistently his wife is that he must buy a new one.

So, if you're that unlucky fellow, you go into a store — and here's what happens. If it's winter, the salesman plucks a two-story fur Astrakhan on your noggin and remarks, "Very dashing." It makes you feel like a Siberian peasant dashing across the steppes to escape the wolves. Next he puts on an iron black derby. Is that you in the mirror—or a ward heeler on the way to a 1912 meeting in Tammany Hall?

The salesman then clamps on a Homburg. It makes you look like a diplomat to the United Nations from Outer Siberia.

Before you can stop him, the salesman slips a beret on you and remarks with false heartiness, "With a small goatee, sir, you could carry that off very well."

Next he claps over your brow a green felt slanted-back hat with a multicolored cloth brush in the band. You can't make up your mind whether you must resemble Robin Hood or a refugee Tyrolean ski instructor.

In desperation the salesman hands you a high-crowned hat with a brim so tiny that you feel you'd have to lift it on and off with tweezers.

"All the young men are wearing this style," says the salesman. "You and the salesman stare at each other hopelessly. Then you see just the hat you want—a conventional hat with a proper-sized crown and a brim of decent width. "I'll try that one," you remark.

"But sir," replies the salesman, "that's the only one you work in. We haven't made hats like that since 1950."

"Well, have it cleaned and blocked—and I'll pick it up tomorrow," you tell him. "There's always a chance your wife won't know the difference.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a farmer's wife and my eyes give me a lot of trouble. They feel sore and full of matter but are not red. A specialist said it was an infection, but it seems that when I go into our chicken house they get worse. Could chickens be the cause of the infection?"—H.M.

Yes. Rather than an infection, it could be a case of allergy to dust or dander in the chicken house. I urge you to mention this connection to your doctor.

Dear Dr. Molner: In an article on alcoholic beverages you said: "Moderation is the best rule; total abstinence is the only answer for some people."

Would you agree with this statement by Sir William Osler: "As moderation is very hard to reach, and as it has been abundantly shown that the best mental and physical work may be done without alcohol in any form, the safest

LAST WEEK the Russians said they were a waste of time and, as if to prove it, the French two days later announced preparations to make the Tahiti islands in the Pacific a nuclear testing center.

The fact that the United States and Russia since the war have been in a desperate contest to get ahead of each other in arms has been only a minor factor in the failure of their talks. The real one was and is distrust.

There could be no disarmament that either side would accept without a foolproof inspection system. They couldn't agree on that.

And even if the negotiators agreed, the U. S. Senate could never approve stripping this country of its arms while another Communist giant, not a party to the treaty, kept on arming.

An American-Russian agreement to ban nuclear tests could hardly work, or be approved by either side, if Red China and France were free to build and test their own nuclear weapons, which is what they're aiming at.

BUT IF THERE was an American-Russian agreement to ban nuclear tests, the two sides would still keep all their nuclear weapons unless there was an agreement to disarm. So far disarmament has been a fantasy.

Both sides have tried to make some propaganda mileage, for whatever that's worth, by presenting an appearance of willingness to disarm and stop testing.

But after all these years the rest of the world could hardly be blamed for being skeptical, particularly since the United States and Russia are skeptical of each other.

The clock grinds on and one thing melts into another. The United States would have to be doubly skeptical about any agreement with Russia—so long as Moscow's ally, Red China, not a party to the agreement—was free to arm and test.

THE SAME goes for Russian skepticism about the United States so long as the American ally, France, not a party to the agreement, is free to arm and test.

To make the whole business more bizarre, the Russians have reason to be equally worried about Red China, even though they're supposed to be allies.

The Chinese Communists, by their split with Moscow, have shown they are not willing to be subservient to the Russians. If they're not willing to be subservient, then they must try to be equal.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a farmer's wife and my eyes give me a lot of trouble. They feel sore and full of matter but are not red. A specialist said it was an infection, but it seems that when I go into our chicken house they get worse. Could chickens be the cause of the infection?"—H.M.

Yes. Rather than an infection, it could be a case of allergy to dust or dander in the chicken house. I urge you to mention this connection to your doctor.

Dear Dr. Molner: In an article on alcoholic beverages you said: "Moderation is the best rule; total abstinence is the only answer for some people."

Would you agree with this statement by Sir William Osler: "As moderation is very hard to reach, and as it has been abundantly shown that the best mental and physical work may be done without alcohol in any form, the safest

Holmes Alexander Those Who Really Want To Learn

WASHINGTON—It is hard to tell how many of the 700,000 young Americans whom Mr. Kennedy describes as "out of school and out of work" are sincerely looking for further education or for jobs.

The National Education Improvement Act of 1963 contains a section calling up a government commission to find out. But the bill itself has so many provisions for student loans, graduate fellowships, teachers' upgrading and for frilly things like "guidance, counselling and training" that the assumption must be that the administration has already made up its mind.

THE ADMINISTRATION is saying by this bill that American youth is dropping out of high school, not going to college and failing to find work mainly because the federal government hasn't hired on enough to provide dollars and leadership.

But it's reassuring to find that one section of the omnibus education package—Title V for vocational and technical training—gives the lie to this assumption of federal paternalism. The many but undetermined thousands of boys, girls and older persons who are storming the nation's vocational schools can be said to be "voting with their feet" for instruction and jobs.

THEY WORK at night, in many cases, at training shops which run just about around the clock. They are aware from their own knowledge that automation demands that they learn how to operate complicated and expensive equipment. The vocational schools are mostly free in that they are either part of the state public school system or conducted by labor unions and companies which have a vested interest in this sort of education. The schools are located in the home communities, so that there is no "going away to college."

SOME OF THE BEST testimonials to the American ideal of self-sufficiency are now being presented to Congress by witnesses in support of vocational training. It is true that the various spokesmen for state institutions of occupational training are asking for federal dollars. But they are asking for only an increase of $23 million, which isn't much considering the cost of the training equipment.

MONEY THAT LEAVES Washington today for vocational training must go to these categories when matched by the states. But the states and communities have meanwhile founded new schools which teach electrical engineering, aviation maintenance, mechanical record-keeping for office work, and scores of other modern subjects.

If there is any justification at all for federal aid to education, it seems to be in the vocational field. For this is where the nation's biggest problem, our growing unemployment, can be directly attacked. And here is where the money will be spent FOR students—but not ON students—who have clearly proved a desire to learn and earn.

Billy Graham QUESTION: Please explain to me if you think the story of Lazarus or the rich man recorded in Luke is a parable or a true incident. I have discussed this with others, and I stand alone in believing it is true and not a parable. I think their reason is that they do not want to believe in a "hell," but isn't this clear Bible teaching? What do you say? N.C.

ANSWER: The story of the rich man and Lazarus is one of the many stories Jesus used about the future life. He made bold to appeal to the hope of heaven and the fear of hell.

We are not sure if it is a "parable," or a true incident. But if it is a parable, a parable is used to teach specific truths, and certain truths emerge from this story.

For one thing, it teaches clearly that there are two places of abode in the life beyond, heaven and hell. It teaches that lost souls are in some sort of anguish. It reveals that there is an impassable gulf between Paradise and hell, implying that death determines our opportunity to be saved.

One of the most powerful and effective stimulants to good, and deterrents to evil, is a profound belief in the future life. And nothing was more clearly taught by our Lord and that life extends beyond this one.

Haiti's Capital Has Turned Into A City Gripped By Fear

EDITOR'S NOTE - AP correspondent Morris W. Rosenberg has been in Port au Prince, the Haitian capital, for two weeks. He has filed a series of reports on the situation in the Dominican Republic with this report which Haitian censorship prevented him sending from Port au Prince.

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG
PORT AU PRINCE (AP)—This is a city of fear.

Fear is in the shout of a crouching soldier aiming his rifle and calling "arretez"—halt—in the night.
Fear is in the whisper of a man who passes a foreign friend on a public square, seemingly not recognizing him, but muttering, "There are too many eyes around here."

Fear is in the bravado of dictator Francois Duvalier, proclaiming to a mob of his supporters: "Bullets and machine guns capable of frightening Duvalier do not exist."

But in the night Duvalier sends his dreaded Tonton Macoute on a ruthless manhunt for Clement Barbot—his former bodyguard, the man who organized his brutal secret police force, broke with Duvalier and now has sworn to kill him.

Fear haunts the Negro, mulatto and white foreigner. There is fear of torture, of death, of invasion, of betrayal.

There is fear of the unknown, of uncontrollable violence, of a cataclysm of savagery of a "Himalaya of corpses" and the country a blazing inferno. This is Duvalier's threat to those who dare oppose him.

These fears are real in Port au Prince because in many ways Haiti seems unreal and incredible in today's Caribbean world.

A priest observes: "Haiti is 90 per cent Catholic, 10 per cent Protestant and 100 per cent voodoo."

Illiteracy is appalling. About one person in 10 can read and write, and some observers believe the rate is even lower. Reliable statistics do not exist.

Infant mortality is known to be tragically high but there are no records. One Haitian doctor estimated the mortality rate as high as 50 per cent.

Intestinal parasites are widespread. Malaria and tuberculosis are the major killers.

The overwhelming majority of most of the estimated four million to five million Haitians are isolated by poverty and ignorance, living in shocking squalor.

Political struggles are waged in the capital. But not far from Port au Prince are peasants who do not even know who is president. They are unaware that the world is round. They have never heard of the United States or Europe.

Up A Tree

A Haitian soldier, whose rifle is propped up by a branch, sits in a tree guarding the Dominican embassy in Port au Prince, Haitian capital. Haiti's President Francois Duvalier announced martial law in the Caribbean island republic. It is believed Duvalier is tightening his hold on Haiti to head off a threatened revolt May 15.

Four Public Hearings Set

Four public hearings are scheduled at 5:15 p.m. today, by the Planning and Zoning Commission on requests for zone changes. Two sub-division plats and one development plan will also be considered.

Rezoning changes asked for include: Three acres, at the southeast intersection of Marcy and Virginia from residential to neighborhood service, requested by Omar Jones; change from residential to neighborhood service of a 150x200 foot tract south of Marcy and west of Birdwell Lane, requested by Clyde Brown; change from residential to a planned district for neighborhood service on 14 lots north of Marcy and east of Goidad, requested by Marshall Fields; change from residential to multi-family residential for an apartment center on three lots in Coronado Hills, requested by the developer.

A development plan will be presented on the neighborhood service development located at the southwest corner of the Wasson Road-Parkway Road intersection, where zoning has been approved, by E. C. Smith; a final subdivision plat for Highland South Addition No. 1, by Ike Robb, and a final subdivision plat for Coronado Hills, second filing, will be considered for Developments Unlimited.

Bonds Are Set

Bonds have been set at $2,000 each for three youths held on burglary charges in connection with a break-in at the Cizon Jewelry store. The defendants are Fox Henry Miller, William Paul Darrow and Roy Rodger Graham. They are in the county jail and had not posted bonds Tuesday morning.

Texan Wins Pulitzer Prize For Estes Case

HOUSTON (AP)—For the fourth time since 1955 a Texas newspaper has captured a Pulitzer prize, a top honor in American journalism.

The latest is Oscar Griffin, cited for reporting that led to exposure of promoter Billie Sol Estes, since convicted of swindling and fraud.

Griffin, 30, a University of Texas journalism graduate now working for the Houston Chronicle, won recognition for stories gathered and written while he was editor of the Pecos Independent and Enterprise.

His prize is in the category of local reporting not under pressure of edition time.

Griffin's articles prompted investigations which led to state and federal charges being filed against Estes, now free under appeals bonds after convictions at Tyler and El Paso.

The articles told about a remarkable number of fertilizer bank mortgages on file in West Texas, and indicated something was wrong, although it was impossible at that point to link Estes directly. Eventually it was established that $24 million had been loaned on largely non-existent tanks.

"I'm grateful to the Pulitzer committee," Griffin said Monday when told he had won the award. "This makes all the trials of getting the Billie Sol Estes story worth it."

The Amarillo Globe-Times received a Pulitzer prize in 1961 for meritorious public service in revealing links between public officials and organized crime and in effecting reform.

In 1955, the Alice Echo and Mrs. Caro Brown won for stories dealing with George B. Parr, the South Texas political boss. Ken Towery of Cuero also won a Pulitzer prize that year for unreported irregularities in the state veterans' land program.

Griffin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar O'Neal Griffin of Liberty, where his father is a county commissioner and owner of a grocery store.

A native of Daisetta, Griffin attended public schools at Winnie and Liberty. He was graduated from the university in 1958.

Prior to becoming editor of the Pecos paper, Griffin was editor of

Negroes Win N. J. Victory

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP)—Some 20 Negro children and their parents were allowed unregistered into the predominantly white Cleveland Elementary School today with the regular student body.

Principal Thorleif Henriksen stood at the back door of the school, the only door that was unlocked, and waved the children and parents into the building.

"We're not going to do any harm to these good children," Henriksen said as the youngsters filed by him. "They're as good as any in Englewood."

The Negro children ranged from third- to sixth-grade youngsters, all of them enrolled at the Lincoln Elementary School. Their parents are boycotting Lincoln, which has a 98 per cent Negro enrollment.

Monday, eight of the children, led by their parents, bypassed the principal's office and filed unregistered into three sixth-grade classes, two or three to a class.

The Negro youngsters remained for three hours Monday, leaving with the other children when the school day ended early for a teachers' conference. They had entered the building after classes had begun.

MUCH DAMAGE INFLICTED

Students At Princeton U. Stage Long, Harrowing Riot

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Students at Princeton University staged a riot into the early hours this morning during which they stormed the grounds around the governor's mansion and the house of the university president.

The rioters ranged over campus and town for three hours. They damaged homes and property, including the depot and train of a commuter railroad shuttle.

At its height there were between 1,000 and 1,500 rioters, police estimated.

Police said 14 students were arrested and charged with being disorderly persons. They were released in $25 bail pending court appearance May 20.

A majority of those arrested were taken into custody in a scuffle around an air compressor, weighing more than a ton, that students rolled down a road into the path of oncoming cars.

University proctors — security guards—called it the worst riot in 10 years on the campus.

About 12:30 a.m. the mob headed back to the Princeton campus, overturning garbage cans and tearing screens from homes along the way.

The air compressor was pushed over the crest of a hill. The heavy machine rolled down a road, scattering cars coming up, then veered off the road and smashed a lamppost.

Police moved in on the group and in an ensuing scuffle made the greater part of their arrests.

Unable to upset the train, the rioters started a fire on the tracks a few feet away, using material from the train and station for fuel.

Others knocked out most of the train and station windows.

From there, they surged back to the campus to the home of University President Robert F. Goheen, where they ripped down about 30 feet of a seven-foot-high wrought iron fence.

Cherry bombs were tossed on the lawn of Morven, the governor's mansion, but the rioters paid more attention to a fashionable day school next door, where they trampled a fence and hedges and bent the flagpole.

The next target was Westminster Choir College, about half a mile from the Princeton campus.

Three Killed In Sub Blast

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—Three men were killed and two injured, one critically, today in a flash fire in the aft trim tank of the nuclear attack submarine Flasher, which is under construction here.

The cause of the fire was not determined. Names of the dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The Flasher, of the same type as the Thresher, which was lost at sea with 129 aboard April 10, is under construction at the yards of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp.

The nuclear power plant was not involved. Because of the restricted space in the section where the blaze occurred, workers had to cut a hole in the trim tank to reach the victims.

Geology Students Back From Trip

Fifteen geology students from Howard County Junior College, accompanied by E. Lee Thackery, professor of geology, and Dr. Melvin Crawford, returned Monday afternoon from Chalk Creek Canyon, near Salida, Colo. They left Thursday at noon on the spring semester trip.

Sgt. Raymond Church, Webb AFB, and a geology student, assisted in arrangements for the trip.

The group, traveling in the college bus, spent the first night at Palo Duro Canyon State Park, near Canyon, Texas, and the second night in Canon City, Colo., near Pueblo, and went on to the Royal Gorge. They went to Salida Saturday and spent the night at "Thack-Retreat," a cabin owned by the Thackerays.

The return trip was made back through Santa Fe, N. M.

FEMALE TROUBLE CAUSES NERVOUSNESS

By HALVARD T. HANSEN, D.C.
The female reproductive system is still the marvel of God's universe. Man has tried for years to find cures for the many female disorders, only to find that as one organ is patched up or cut out, another trouble starts.

These intricate female organs are so connected, co-ordinated and destined to function intelligently and systematically according to Divine Plan. If any one of these delicate organs or glands fails in any degree to function properly, the entire system is thrown out of order and so-called "female trouble" results.

These painful reactions usually upset the entire nervous system and often produce moody spells and the erratic behavior that women know so well. Frequently, these emotional disturbances become so involved that the patient becomes mentally unbalanced.

To explain why any of these organs or glands suddenly quit functioning or one alters its perfect performance, we must consider what made it work perfectly in the first place. Naturally, we look to the nervous system itself which is the source of all physical energy and the control system for all organic function.

We find most all female disorders result from nerve disturbances in the spine, usually incidental to some spinal injury or vertebral displacement interfering with nerve performance.

Chiropractors specialize in removing nerve irritation by properly adjusting the spine back into alignment. Clearing nerve pathways of irritations restores normal function and health naturally results. Here is such a case.

Miserable years of painful, irregular periods and drawing cramps with intense aches and pains between her shoulders and in her neck. Constant headaches, sinking spells, depression and tragic dreams were enough to cause despondency, emotional strain and worry that had this young mother thinking that she was reaching the end of her rope.

On her first visit she broke into hysterical sobbing, feeling as lost as only a woman suffering can feel. Some time ago she made the statement, "I feel as if you had completely made me over. This statement was made after examination. X-ray had located the cause of the disturbance and treatment had corrected the spine. Today she is a happy woman telling others of the benefits of chiropractic. No. 1413.

Have your present or past treatments made you well? If not, investigate the Hansen Chiropractic Clinic, across from Piggy Wigly, today! What can you lose except your ill health? AM 3-3324. —Adv.

Wreck Victim's Funeral Set

Funeral for George W. Bragg, 59, Midland resident who was killed near Big Spring Sunday afternoon when his car rammed a utility pole, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Newbie Ellis Funeral Home chapel in Midland. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery at Midland.

Mr. Bragg, formerly an employee of the Electric Motor Service Co., Midland, and prior to that with the Texas Highway Department as a maintenance man, had lived in Midland 10 years.

He recently became a minister and had been on a preaching mission to Hamlin over the weekend. He was en route back to Midland when the accident occurred 2.5 miles northeast of Big Spring on SH 350.

He was born in Irving, Dec. 12, 1904.

Seven members of his family were in the car with Bragg at the time of the accident. Six were injured sufficiently to require hospitalization. None is believed to have been seriously hurt.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Ruth Elaine Bragg, 38, six sons, two daughters, five sisters, one brother, three stepchildren and 23 grandchildren.

Here's The Key For Reading The Quotations On Stocks

Investment in stocks is complicated, requiring special knowledge about markets, economic conditions, soundness of business enterprises and other factors which directly or indirectly affect business. For many persons, investment is best left to the professional.

It is important, however, that everyone have at least a nodding acquaintance with the stock market, whether or not he plans to invest. That person will be better qualified to enter the market later if he has kept in touch with its pulse through stock market quotations. Today millions of Americans are plunging into the game for the first time.

There are others, however, for whom the quotations from the country's principal stock markets are only long rows of meaningless numbers. Although there is much more to investing than knowing how to read quotations, learning about them should be one of the first steps for anyone wishing to enter the investment world.

Interpretation of the quotations is simple, and can be both interesting and important. Price fluctuations reflect the feelings of investors all over America about the value of a particular stock.

The value of stocks is expressed in terms of an eighth of a dollar, giving quotations of eighths, quarters, halves and whole numbers. Each column of numbers has a simple explanation. Consider, for example, the following quotation picked at random from the New York Stock Exchange Transactions.

Band Members Report Finding Drowned Man

Two Big Spring boys, Ricky Ream, 16, and Johnny T. Larson, 17, found excitement awaiting them last weekend when they and other members of the senior high school band journeyed to Corpus Christi to take part in a music festival held at Delmar College.

Their discovery of a man floating face downward in Laguna Madre Thursday kept police busy two days before the man was identified.

"We were walking along the shore returning from a movie," Ream said. "We saw an object which had been washed to the bank by the waves and then noticed it was a man."

He said they pulled the body out of the water, felt for a pulse and then flagged down a car to notify the police. The man was later identified as Archie W. Underwood, San Antonio. He had apparently been in the water 6-8 hours.

Charles Campbell Is Convalescing

Charles Campbell, 2900 Parkway, is convalescing at the Methodist Hospital in Houston following complications which developed during an examination. Reports reaching here were to the effect that he had experienced a heart failure while undergoing an examination for a blocked artery above his knee, and that he was restored only after heart massage. For three days he was kept in the intensive care ward, but this week he appears to be making good progress. After one other examination, he may be able to return here to complete his convalescence. He is in room 665 in Methodist Hospital.

Y Management Class Enrolls 20

Twenty persons have enrolled in a management course sponsored by the Big Spring YMCA. The course began Monday evening at the Texas Electric Service Co. conference room.

A five-day course, it is the second portion of a supervisory development program being offered by the Texas A&M Engineering Extension Service in cooperation with the Texas Education Agency. Twenty-two persons attended the first phase on "Principles of Supervision." The current class is taking up "Working With People."

DEAR ABBY

Stop The Gossiper

DEAR ABBY: A new family recently moved to town. The wife is very attractive. I heard a woman tell a large group of ladies at a tea that she had heard a rumor about the newcomer. She went into some detail, casting an ugly shadow on the woman's character. Then she smiled and said, "But I don't believe a word of it, do you?" Why then did she repeat the story? Before long it had circulated all over town. Now everyone is speculating about the newcomer. How can a person protect herself against something like that?

WAS THERE

DEAR WAS: She can sue for slander, but seldom does. My hat is off to the courageous one who will silence a gossip monger's vicious attack on one who is absent and unable to defend herself. And it is good to remember that those who would repeat vicious gossip are not above inventing it.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "EXPECTANT FATHER" who insisted on being in the delivery room when his first child was born: My husband insisted on being present at this event, and was granted permission. Well, I had twins. My husband fainted and fell against the light switch, turning out the lights. I delivered in the dark. Tell husbands to stay out of the delivery room. One patient in there is enough.

P.M. (Morrow Bay, Calif.)

DEAR ABBY: When I was married I had a fairly nice figure. My measurements were 34-25-36. About a month ago I gave birth to my first child. My measurements are now 36-34-42. My doctor agrees that I should be put on a diet, but my husband says he likes me this way. He doesn't want me to lose a single pound. Abby, I love my husband and want to please him, but I'd prefer to be thinner again. Should I please myself or my husband?

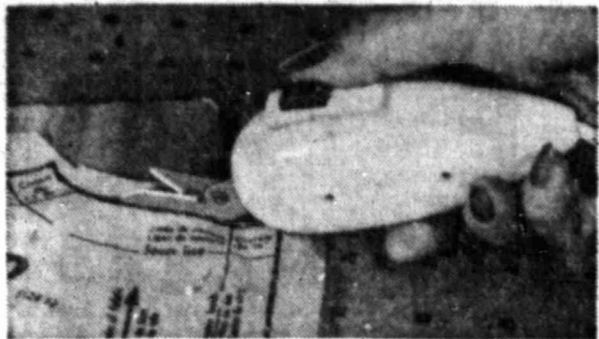

PLEASEINGLY PLUMP

DEAR PLEASEINGLY: Please your doctor! That way you'll be pleasing yourself as well, without deliberately defying your husband.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DOUBLE SHOT": Dignity is one thing that cannot be preserved in alcohol.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Dogs And Demonstrators

A Negro man shakes his coat at a lunging police dog during a racial demonstration in Birmingham Ala. Integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. warned that activities protesting racial barriers would be doubled as Negroes planned more massive demonstrations. Police officials vowed to stop the Negroes.

Obscene Pictures Result In $25 Fine

An airman pleaded guilty to possession of obscene pictures Monday and was fined $25 and costs by Judge Lee Porter. Wayne Burns, Howard County attorney, said the complaint is the first of that kind he has handled. There have been other obscene picture cases but the charges then were displaying or exhibiting the pictures. This is the first case for possession.

Charlie J. Clements, the airman, said in a statement he got the pictures in Germany. Three other guilty pleas were heard by Judge Porter Monday morning. Robert L. Wourland, charged with DWI, drew a fine of $50 and three days in county jail. Leo Sawyer, charged with aggravated assault, was sentenced to 30 days in jail as was Milton Cautley, 40, San Angelo, charged with writing a worthless check.

TV May Copy Life, Sending Characters To Other Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV - Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—In the very high network and film studio echelons executives are quietly considering the feasibility of having Dr. Gillespie of NBC's "Dr. Kildare" series refer an occasional patient to psychiatrist Stark of NBC's "11th Hour" series next season.

Result of this procedure—novel in television if not in real life—would be to provide a two-part medical drama played out on different series.

If it works, we may well be treated to a whole new cycle of intra-television, inter-locking entertainment—"Ben Casey" sending his neurosurgery patients to the psychiatrists of the new "Breaking Point" series or vice-versa; lawyers Lawrence and Kenneth Preston of "The Defenders" getting their clients acquitted and then sending them on to "The Nurses" for after care.

ABC, which has a pair of matching programs called "Arrest" and "Trial" scheduled for next season, is planning something along these lines. These related shows on Sunday nights will tell the story of a man-hunt in the first 45-minute segment, followed by a second 45-minute show about the same man's courtroom experiences.

One can only imagine the possibilities of such a vogue. A fellow who had narrowly escaped hanging on "Bonanza" could ride off into the sunset—to join "Wagon Train" three days later. Or Marshal Dillon could bring his desperado, caught during Saturday's "Gunsmoke," before "The Virginian's" Judge Garth the following Wednesday.

Cross-references are not exactly new to television. They were favorite devices of the Warner Brothers when they were turning out television detective stories in wholesale lots for ABC.

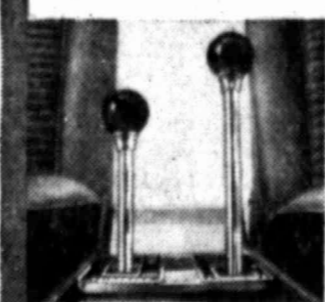

Often the "Hawaiian Eyes" received jobs from the "77 Sunset Strip" gumshoes. When "Bourbon Street Beat" sank in its channel, a surviving member of the detective partnership moved from New Orleans to join the Hollywood firm—for just one season.

There are advantages in tying together shows in their way but there are big problems in pulling it off. For one thing, there might be a sponsor conflict and networks hate to plug shows on a rival network. Film studios avoid references to the product of another.
