BIG SPRING DAILY HERALD

Wide Variation As County Gets Rain

Most of Howard County had rain Monday afternoon but the quantities varied widely. Knott Community and the area across the northwestern part of the county reported light sprinkles. Six or seven miles southeast of Knott, the Fairview community had nearly 2 1/2 inches.

In Big Spring, the rains varied widely. The U.S. Experiment Station, on the north edge of the city, had 1.01. A mile to the south, the Texas Electric Service Co. downtown plant gauged 1.41 and a short distance away the switching plant had only .64 inch.

The storm developed shortly after 3 p.m. At that hour, the temperature stood at 100 degrees—hottest day of the current spring and the first time this year that the century mark has been touched. Half an hour later, the first shower swept the town and the temperature dropped to 80 degrees. The initial showers lasted about 20 minutes. Some parts of town were well soaked with this rain; other parts of town had little or none.

At 6 p.m. the clouds loosened a second round. This time, the wind was stiff, there was considerable lightning and hail pattered down. Most of the rain in Big Spring fell at this time.

Generally speaking, no damage resulted from the storm. It was welcomed because many farmers are getting ready to seed their fields. Areas which had cotton up from earlier plantings found the moisture helpful. Apparently there was no heavy runoff.

Ranchers welcome rains at this season. Pastures are in good shape but additional rain will help to keep them lush. A lot of dirt and some large gravel washed into paved streets where the rain caused runoff water to be swift. No serious damage was done, according to Director of Public Works Ernest Lillard.

Excessive dirt washing resulted from the loose soil on streets being made ready for paving. Police listed no calls because of high water. They did report Benton Street, under the viaduct to Fourth Street, under water but motorists went through by driving slowly.

Howard County Junior College measured 1.46 and in Western Hills to the southwest, 1.30 inches was reported.

Gay Hill school reported 30 but there were areas in the community which reported as much as 1.40. Veal Moor, on the extreme northern edge of the county had but .61.

At Knott, one of the operators in the M&S Grocery was putting plates on a new truck when the storm rolled in. Not enough rain fell to make him leave the job. Light hail fell in many places. Some leaves were knocked off trees. A few fruit trees in town lost much of their crop.

At Coahoma only .40 inch fell. Center Point School reported 1.50 with 1.90 a short distance away. At Vincent, in the extreme southeastern portion of the county, 1.20 inches were reported. Five miles north of Vincent the rainfall was .30 inch. At the west end of Lake J. B. Thomas, .30 inch fell. Moss Creek Lake Community had .30. No hail fell here.

In the Lomax area in the southwest corner of the county, Arthur Stallings said his gauge showed .20. "Just what we needed," he said. "We have a lot of newly planted cotton just coming through. A harder rain would have done damage."

Diesel Stumps Men Who Put Up Capsules

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—America's space scientists and technicians can rocket a warhead more than 5,000 miles to a designated spot in the ocean.

But this morning, the greatest collection of scientific know-how in America couldn't get a diesel engine to start.

Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr., in his pressurized, air-conditioned space suit, was waiting inside his Mercury capsule. All systems in the powerful Atlas rocket and its payload checked out "go." Then it came time to start a diesel engine which is used to move the 450-ton gantry—service tower—from the rocket. The diesel grunted, wheezed and whined, but refused to come to life.

Progress halted at Cape Canaveral. The trouble was finally traced to fuel impurities but it was 2 hours 9 minutes before the launch countdown was resumed.

Mercury Control Center reported the trouble was caused by impurities in the fuel line and fuel pump. The announcement said the fuel pump was being replaced, the lines purged, and a new supply of fuel put in.

The service tower is 123 feet tall and weighs 450 tons. The diesel engine moves it on railroad tracks. Before launch, it is transported to a point about 500 feet from the rocket and locked in place on the tracks.

A&M Action Is Defended

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. John Connally signed into law today one of the session's most controversial, but least debated bills, the addition of Pan American College to the list of fully state supported schools.

The Pan American measure was closely associated with another bill that would create a senior college at San Angelo. The San Angelo bill has not yet been signed.

On May 2 the San Angelo bill passed the House and was sent to the governor after five hours of hot debate and a 79-62 vote. The House then considered the Pan American measure 5 minutes and passed it 81-62. There was similar long debate on the San Angelo bill in the Senate followed by quick passage of the Pan American measure.

San Angelo becomes the 21st state senior college in 1965 and Pan American the 22nd. Pan American's junior college division is 36 years old. It became a four-year school 10 years ago with the final two years locally supported. Pan American has an enrollment of about 2,000. It has physical facilities valued at about $4 million.

He noted that Texas Woman's University in Denton is all-female by law, and said the legislature should have the same authority to preserve A&M for men only.

"The effect of this has already had an effect on former student associations," Houston radio newsman Bob Roland said. "A man from Dallas will hold back a $1 million grant if the board doesn't reverse its action, and a Houston man says he will do the same about a $1 donation to build onto the union building," Roland said.

Wallace and Kennedy will meet Saturday at Muscle Shoals, Ala. The President is scheduled to attend an observance by the Tennessee Valley Authority. Wallace has not decided whether he plans to greet the President.

Sky Diving On AF Program

Sky diving, a popular sport in recent years, has brought parachuting activities to a high state of the science of parachute jumping and control.

While many people think of parachute jumping as an emergency means of leaving a stricken aircraft, Capt. Malcolm Thompson said his team of six sky divers from the 149th Fighter Group Support Parachute Team consider jumping a desirable pastime. The 149th Fighter Group is a part of the Texas Air National Guard located at Kelly AFB, Texas.

This sky diving team will jump from an altitude of approximately 12,000 feet over Webb AFB and land in front of the crowd in the grass area just off the west edge of the ramp. Capt. Thompson and his team will make two jumps Saturday afternoon—one at 2 p.m. to open the aerial portion of the Webb Armed Forces Day Air Show and one at approximately 3 p.m. to close the show.

Crisis Abating SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—A peace mission of the Organization of American States arrived Monday night for another look at the Haitian-Dominican crisis, eased further by the Dominican Republic's announcement that it is withdrawing its troops from the Haitian border.

LEFT-HANDED COMPLIMENT FOR DOCTORS

NEW YORK (AP)—Physicians at Brooklyn's Jewish Hospital were given a left-handed compliment Monday.

By waving the little finger of his left hand, Henry Granville, 19, paid a tribute to modern surgery which restored the hand after it had been cut off in an industrial accident 25 days ago.

Dr. Maxwell Felton, 30, staff surgeon at the hospital, rejoined Granville's hand in a five-hour operation. "There have been other cases of successful similar surgery in the past year."

Chicago Negroes Engage In Riot

CHICAGO (AP)—Hundreds of Negroes, reportedly angered by wounding of a Negro youth during an attempted burglary, stoned police and firemen in what police termed an anti-police demonstration Monday night.

Twenty-five squad cars of police and several police dogs quelled the rock-throwing, jeering crowd in a predominantly Negro section of the West Side after the crowd had milled around for two hours. Merlin Nygren, deputy police superintendent, said the disturbance began after a Negro youth was wounded during an attempted burglary of a warehouse. The youth, identified as Conley Dillon, 14, was in serious condition in a hospital with a bullet wound in his lung.

One policeman suffered minor injuries when struck by a rock. Windows of several police cars were shattered.

Flight Now Set For Wednesday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr.'s big try for 22 orbits around the earth, postponed after a radar failure in Bermuda, has been scheduled for Wednesday.

Soon after today's flight was called off, only 12 minutes before blastoff, space officials were setting a new time. At 6 p.m. (EST), today the radar system will be checked again. If all is going well, Cooper will repeat his routine with the takeoff scheduled for somewhere between 8 and 10:30 a.m. Wednesday. Walter C. Williams, Project Mercury operations director, made the announcement at a hastily called news conference. He pointed out that the radar system is essential in making sure that the astronaut is entering outer space successfully.

"We could not, we would not go without it," Williams said. When Cooper was informed of the scrub, his only comment was: "This was a very realistic simulation." The remark was relayed by Williams.

Williams also said the weather prediction for Wednesday is approximately the same as for today. Liquid oxygen will be removed from the giant Atlas rocket but it is not necessary to scrub out the tanks as it has been on previous flights. Space officials said that the Bermuda radar is the sole problem as of now in determining whether the flight will go Wednesday.

The effort was called off for the day at 9:57 a.m. as Cooper, 36-year-old Air Force major, waited on the launch pad. He sealed in his tiny Faith 7 spacecraft atop the fully fueled Atlas booster.

The countdown had progressed to within 12 minutes of launching. ANTICLIMAX The postponement came as an anticlimax after earlier troubles had held up the scheduled launching for two hours and nine minutes.

That trouble was caused by a diesel engine designed to move the giant service tower away from the launching pad. It was necessary to replace a fuel pump and purge foreign matter from the fuel line before the engine could operate.

Indications of the radar trouble came only about 15 minutes before the launching was called off. The tracking station at Bermuda said it was experiencing intermittent difficulty, but Mercury Control officials decided to continue the countdown in case the radar could be repaired.

But technicians at Bermuda reported minutes later that it would be impossible to replace the equipment today, and the shot was called off.

The radar is a 12-foot diameter dish designed to send radio signals to the spacecraft as it rises over Bermuda about five minutes after launching.

HOW IT WORKS The signals trigger a device called a radio transponder in the spacecraft. By measuring the time it takes a signal to travel from the Bermuda station to the spacecraft and then back to Bermuda, computers can determine precise velocity and the altitude of the astronaut's vehicle.

This information would be essential for determining whether Cooper has achieved the proper orbital course. If the desired path is not achieved, Bermuda then sends a signal to bring Cooper out of orbit immediately.

Cooper had been sitting in his cramped capsule for five hours and 50 minutes. He had entered the capsule after breakfast and a final physical examination.

ALSO FRUSTRATED Astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John H. Glenn Jr., experienced similar frustrations in having their launchings called off at one time after they were on the couches of their space capsules.

It was estimated there may have been as many as 900 in the auditorium for the services. More than 400 friends and admirers of Mr. Reeder marched past his bier. Peace officers from scores of West Texas Communities attended.

The sheriff died of a heart attack Saturday night. He had served in office since 1938. "He was a fine man," said a pioneer Borden resident. "A good officer, a good citizen, he performed his duties fairly and impartially and I never knew him to hold a grudge against anyone."

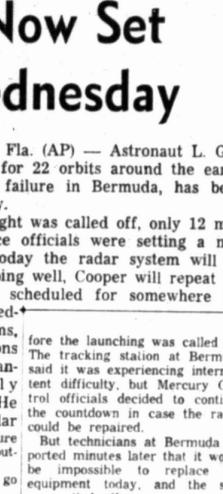

Today, the Borden County Commissioners Court was in session and reported to be working on the problem of a successor.

Sit-Ins To Spread ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP)—Thirty unregistered Negro children sat in classes at the predominantly white Cleveland Elementary School again today as leaders of the school integration fight pledged to extend the classroom sit-ins to two more schools.

The work order authorizing the contractor will probably be given toward the end of May and construction should begin early in June, Dr. Harrison said. Plans are already under way to begin familiarizing the Cooper firm with the job.

The new building will be located behind the present administration building, between it and the rehabilitation building which is currently under construction. That building, costing $346,999, should be completed about the time the medical and surgical building gets under way.

At the meeting Monday, the board approved the proposed name of Alford Building for the

Huge Crowd Attends Rites For Sheriff

GAIL — Borden County High School's auditorium was filled almost to capacity Monday afternoon as residents of Borden County and neighboring communities gathered to pay last honors to Sid Reeder, colorful sheriff to the county for the past quarter-century.

"It was the largest funeral service I have ever seen in this county," observed one resident who had spent most of her life in the county. In addition to nearly everyone in the county, there were dozens of others from adjacent counties.

It was estimated there may have been as many as 900 in the auditorium for the services. More than 400 friends and admirers of Mr. Reeder marched past his bier. Peace officers from scores of West Texas Communities attended.

3,000 TROOPS STAND READY

Uncertainty, Apprehension Continue To Grip Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Uncertainty and apprehension continued to grip the racially troubled city today as 3,000 combat-ready troops stood within striking distance in the event of new outbreaks of major violence.

Scattered violence was reported during the night. Two persons were hurt. Automobile windshields were smashed and windows were broken in about a dozen buildings.

A white youth was slashed on his right elbow with a knife. He said he was attacked by a group of Negroes. A Negro man was hospitalized after he was struck in the face by a large steel ball fired from a slingshot, apparently wounded by a white youth. Police arrested two Negroes early today in connection with attacks on officers during the Sunday riot. Carl Ivory, 53, was charged with two counts of assault with intent to murder. Police Capt. B. F. Walker said, Erskine Browning, 26, was charged with one count of assault with a deadly weapon—a rock.

Walker said Ivory was charged with stabbing Policeman Jack N. Spivey and Sgt. R. E. Lambert during a melee near the Gaston Motel, one of the targets of bombers before rioting erupted. President Kennedy ordered the troops into the state, but Gov.

George C. Wallace says the action is illegal and hinted that he may seek a federal injunction to keep federal forces out of the city. Kennedy wired Wallace that he acted under a section of the U.S. Code giving the President the power to determine whether federal troops are needed in cases of domestic violence, and whether state authorities are providing adequate protection to citizens.

Wallace and Kennedy will meet Saturday at Muscle Shoals, Ala. The President is scheduled to attend an observance by the Tennessee Valley Authority. Wallace has not decided whether he plans to greet the President.

Panel Lays Down Guidelines For Reducing Rail Firemen

WASHINGTON (AP)—A three-man presidential panel laid down broad guidelines today for gradual removal of most firemen from freight and yard trains, central issue in work rules dispute that threatens a nationwide rail strike June 12.

The salient proposal was that safety be the determining factor in elimination of jobs and that the cuts be subject to negotiation, with provision for arbitration if that is required.

In a report to President Kennedy, the panel said the issues between the railroads and the five operating brotherhoods have been narrowed, and an agreement can be reached in the next 30 days if both sides will bargain realistically.

"The next 30 days will be important not only to the parties, but also to the nation, and to the future of collective bargaining as an effective method of disputes settlement, although the general public is not a formal party to this dispute, each citizen in the United States has an acute interest in its resolution," the report said.

President Kennedy urged "serious consideration of the recommendations in this report."

"There is no time to be lost for completing their agreement in this critical dispute," he said. Kennedy offered any possible governmental aid in the negotiations.

Reading the statement, he was photographed with the panel chairman, Samuel I. Rosenman and the other two members, Prof. Nathan P. Feinsinger of the University of Wisconsin and President Clark Kerr of the University of California.

The central issue is the recommendation of an earlier presidential commission—named by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower—which proposed eliminating 40,000 firemen from freight and yard trains.

The railroads contend outmoded work rules cost them $600 million each year. They call these rules "featherbedding."

The railroads accepted the proposal of the earlier presidential commission, which called for substantial benefits for the eliminated firemen, but the unions rejected them.

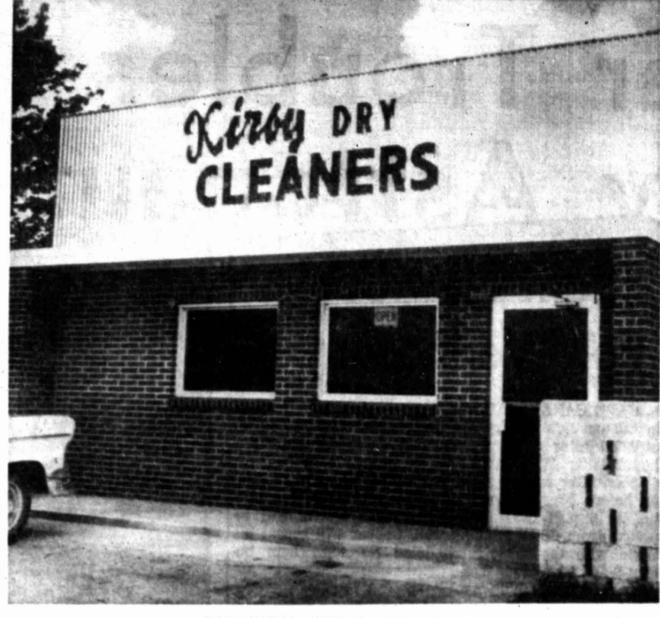

As a result of negotiations with the last month, the three-man panel said the railroads have agreed that the bulk of the work performed by firemen on freight trains is necessary, but that in most cases it can be combined with work performed by other employees.

"On the other hand," the report added, "the brotherhoods do not contend there are no jobs which cannot be abolished."

"The basic problem, therefore, becomes one of establishing a procedure for ascertaining those situations, if any, which will continue to require the presence of a fireman in order to assure adequate safety, and to prevent placing an undue burden upon the remaining crew members."

The continued use of firemen on passenger trains is not an issue in the dispute.

The railroads accepted the proposal of the earlier presidential commission, which called for substantial benefits for the eliminated firemen, but the unions rejected them.

FOR CUSTOMERS' CONVENIENCE
Kirby Cleaners now have pickup station for East Big Spring

Kirby Opens New Pickup Station At 1003 State Street

A new pickup station for Kirby Cleaners, 1213 W. 3rd., has been opened at 1003 State Street. Mrs. O. B. Kirby will be in charge of the new station.

"We have put in this location as a convenience for residents of East Big Spring," Mr. and Mrs. Kirby said. "They can now leave their cleaning at 1003 State and pick it up at the same place without having to go all the way across town."

The name of Kirby Cleaners has replaced the old name of W&K Cleaners, but the shop remains in the same location on West Third. The Kirbys have operated the cleaning and pressing establishment for 16 years.

The State Street station will be the second pick-up office in the city. The firm has held a cleaning concession contract with the BX at Webb Air Force Base for four years. Air Force personnel have been able to leave cleaning and pressing at the base and pick it up without having to drive to the plant.

"We would like to express our thanks and appreciation to the Webb AFB people for their steady increasing patronage since we have had the contract," the Kirbys said. "At the same time we want to thank friends who have long given us their trade, and hope the new name and the new station will continue to warrant increasing business for us. It has become too big to handle at one place for convenience to all."

In addition to the regular cleaning and pressing business, Kirby Cleaners will handle laundry through their plant. It is sent to a laundry and returned to the plant for customers. The five full-time employees are able to clean, mothproof, and fold clothing for storage at home.

"We can fold it to suit the customers," Kirby said, "and to fit any kind of storage space, whether it is a chest, box, or bag."

Kirby Cleaners are responsible for belts, buttons, decorations, and similar items on clothing. They also do alterations at the request of the customers.

A free pick-up and delivery service is provided for patrons in any part of the city.

The telephone number of the Kirby Cleaners plant is AM 4-2312, and at the residence and pickup station at 1003 State is AM 4-6507.

Liquid Gas Is Handy For Vacationers

There are many uses for liquid petroleum gas, and the vacation and camping season brings on additional uses for those owning trailer houses, camping equipment, and tents.

S. M. Smith Butane Co., located on the Snyder Highway, has five- and 20-gallon bottles and cylinders, and 40- and 100-pound drums for use in portable equipment of all kinds.

Smith Butane also sells butane hot plates for use in camping and out-door cooking.

Those big trailer houses, found by the thousands today, are using liquid petroleum gas, in many instances, for cooking, heating, and refrigeration. Those metal bottles, often found mounted on the front, help to keep that refrigerator going while the trailer house is being moved. Hot water is also available at any time with the use of butane.

There is no need to fuss with pressure pumps, or cutting wood, to build fires on camping trips. Just connect the hot plate to the bottle, turn on the valve and strike a match and there is the fire—clean and hot.

Many farmers are using LPG gas to operate their tractors and pumping plants. Smith Butane Co. has trucks which keep the supply tanks filled at the farm. Farmers often bring their tanks, or trailers, to the main supply center on the Snyder Highway to get them filled.

Heavy trucks, too, are being supplied with LPG gas for economical operation, as are some of the heavier buses on the highways. There is no better, cleaner fuel.

Then there is the big line of Champion motor oils and greases in stock for heavy duty uses.

LPG engine oil, the best lubrication for all liquid petroleum gas engines, is also available when needed.

Most users of liquid petroleum gas have their own mounted tanks to supply several operating units. Most of them, also, call on Smith Butane Co. to keep an eye on the tanks to insure adequate supplies when needed.

A call to AM 4-5981 will get information of LPG equipment and supplies.

Coop Considers Religion Important

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Although astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr. is not a regular church-goer he considers religion important. He does not regard it, however, as something to turn to only in an emergency.

"Religion is important in all the things we do," he says, "but I don't think a man needs to fall back on his faith any more or less in this space project than in any other undertaking."

Riots Bring Police Dogs Into The News

By MARTHA COLE
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Police dogs have sprung into the news and into controversy.

Last week, Birmingham, Ala., police used them against Negro demonstrators. A blood-chilling picture of a snarling German shepherd leaping a demonstrator was seen all over the country. There were protests in Congress and from civil rights groups.

Providence, R.I., authorities used dogs last weekend to block an invasion of the downtown area by several hundred youths, many of them college students, on a spring fever foray.

London police used dogs, too, over the weekend against ban-the-bomb demonstrators.

The thinking behind use of dogs in crowd control is humans' innate fear of them, according to a spokesman for the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Inc. The dogs are intended primarily as psychological devices rather than for attacking, he said.

Their use is relatively new in this country. Some police officials contend dogs are a bonafide technique. Others feel they are of dubious value.

Nonetheless, in 10 years K9 corps have become a part of many big city police departments.

London has been using police dogs for about 20 years and is a sort of focal point for their training and use. Baltimore and St. Louis sent men to London to study before setting up their police canine corps in 1956 and 1958, respectively. These two cities also assist police of other cities in training dogs.

"Training is a sort of cooperative affair among police," said the spokesman for the police chiefs association.

Each city adapts the dogs for its own use. They are used for patrolling, scenting out hiding criminals, guarding prisoners and dispersing crowds.

St. Louis has one dog, Duke I, trained as a narcotics sniffer to locate packets of narcotics on a person.

Police dogs usually are German shepherds, sometimes Doberman Pinschers, two breeds that can be highly trained for the work. Usually one dog becomes the partner of a specific officer and lives at his home.

The dog is drilled to react immediately to a command. Basic obedience includes sit, down, stay, bark on command, retrieve, stay on command and jump on command.

Sometimes he is taught to stop a fleeing man by barking until his handler can arrive at the scene. This sometimes requires gripping the man's sleeve.

The police chiefs association has no official policy on use of the dogs and keeps no list of cities which have them.

U. S. Weather Fairly Pleasant

By The Associated Press
 Fairly pleasant weather prevailed in most of the nation today, with only a few wet spots after severe storms in central sections of the nation.

Damaging wind, rain and hail storms hammered areas in Missouri, Texas and Oklahoma Monday. The drought-stricken Ozark hills of southwest Missouri were drenched with heavy rains, with an unofficial 7½ inches in Henderson, about 2½ miles southeast of Springfield.

Flash floods in the Missouri rain belt hit some farm areas. Heavy hail damaged spring crops and strong winds toppled trees. The rain belt in Missouri extended from Joplin and Carthage eastward to the Willow Springs area and southward into Arkansas.

Tornadoic winds were reported in the Midland, Tex., area while heavy rain, hail and strong winds swept the Fort Stockton, Tex., region. Hail, rain and gusty winds also pounded areas in Oklahoma.

Temperatures in the 70s covered the Gulf Coast and northward into western Tennessee, southern Kansas and the southern Plains region. The 50s and 60s prevailed in most other sections of the nation.

Jehovah Witnesses Plan On Assembly In Fort Stockton

Local Jehovah's Witnesses will attend a three-day circuit assembly in Fort Stockton June 14-16. Upwards of 600 delegates from 16 congregations in West Texas and New Mexico are expected to attend the sessions.

Dave Turman, presiding minister of the local congregation, said the assembly is not a revival, but is held primarily to advance Christian Bible education. Sessions will be conducted morning, afternoon, and evening, with a baptism of new ministers on Saturday afternoon.

The featured speaker on the program appearing daily will be H. A. Fetzi, from Jehovah's Witnesses world headquarters in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Flier Diverts Jet From Settled Area

EL PASO (AP)—A Biggs Air Force Base pilot stuck with his burning F100 jet fighter long enough to fly it away from a heavily populated area and then parachuted to safety Monday.

Capt. Dewitt Cage discovered the fire shortly after taking off from Biggs on the edge of El Paso.

He headed at once for an unpopulated area, parachuted and suffered only minor injuries.

The jet crashed and burned 6 miles northeast of the air base.

TOTAL PERFORMANCE:

IF YOU KNEW WHAT TINY LUND KNOWS ABOUT FORD DURABILITY... YOU'D BE OUT ENJOYING A '63 FORD

Ask Tiny Lund about Ford durability: He'll tell you how it helped him win America's toughest stock-car competition, the Daytona 500. Lund placed first in a Ford, with four other Fords right behind him for an unprecedented sweep of the first five places. Only the Fords were tough enough to stand the pace.

Greater durability is the reason Ford is able to offer a total-car warranty. Only a true total-performance car could offer as complete a warranty as this—with no strings attached:

"Ford Motor Company warrants to its dealers, and its dealers, in turn, warrant to owners as follows: That for 24 months or for 24,000 miles", whichever comes first, free replacement, including related labor, will be made by dealers of any part with a defect in workmanship or materials. Tires are not covered by the warranty; appropriate adjustments will be made by the tire companies. Owners will remain responsible for normal maintenance services, routine replacement of parts, such as filters, spark plugs, ignition points, wiper blades, brake or clutch linings, and normal deterioration of soft trim and appearance items."

'The Big Lift' For Record Haul

At Amherst, a 325,000-pound generator unit was lifted from a flat rail car onto a special-built truck-trailer mover, to be transported to Plant X in Lamb County. A derrick was built over the generator for a hydraulic lift to allow "pulling of the rail car" and inch-by-inch "drop" of the generator onto the 66-wheel truck-trailer. It was the heaviest load ever transported by truck-trailer in the Southwest.

Connally Gives Praise For Loan Shark Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. John Connally gave the legislature a pat on the back Monday for enacting Texas' first anti-loan shark bill.

Final passage sent the measure to Connally for signature. It will regulate loans under $1,500 and ends one of the hardest fought legislative struggles in years.

The Senate took nine minutes to adopt a conference committee report on a compromise between House and Senate versions. Debate in the House lasted about five minutes before its 116-28 vote.

Thirteen senators stepped forward to record "no" votes after Senate approval on a voice vote. Connally called the legislative action "statesmanlike and efficient," adding "Although this is not a perfect bill, it will go a long way toward correcting weaknesses in the existing law."

He pointed out that legislators have been trying to solve the problem for years.

Connally had hinted that failure by the legislature to pass such a measure could have induced him to call for a special session. The bill sets up a new state agency to regulate firms making loans under $1,500. Maximum interest ranges from $19 a year for $100 to $7 for $1,500. Loans under $100 carry higher interest rates, going down to $1 for each $5 advanced on loans under $20.

The bill replaced a constitutional limit of 10 per cent annual interest set in 1890. Voters in 1960 authorized the legislature to change the rates.

The House concurred Monday in Senate amendments to a bill letting gas companies produce up to four times the allowable of wells during peak use periods. The House had agreed earlier to let allowables fivefold.

The Senate refused 24-6 Monday to approve a resolution calling for the legislative session to end May 24, three days before the constitutional cutoff date. Sen. Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo said approval of the resolution would allow senators to filibuster more effectively if they knew when the session was to end.

In an afternoon session the Senate sent to the governor a bill to prohibit payment of jobless benefits to students who quit work voluntarily to attend school. A bill allowing persons wrongfully convicted to sue the state was passed to the House.

The House put on special order for today a proposal to stiffen the code of ethics for legislators and state employees.

The measure would prohibit state officials to invest in businesses over which they have direct regulatory control. Lawmakers would be forbidden to introduce legislation for persons paying them retainers, either before or during the legislative session.

The Senate rejected House changes, including elimination of a 25-cent fee, in a voter registration bill and asked for a conference committee.

In a session which lasted through the supper hour, the House failed to advise legislators writing the appropriations bill to raise state judges' salaries.

At a night meeting the House State Affairs Committee approved for floor debate a bill to remove the attorney general from 16 state boards. It sent to subcommittee a resolution urging a reversal of the Texas A&M board's recent decision to admit women students.

Clean Inside And Out After Time In Washer

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) — Ralph Morton, an 18-month-old, spent several minutes upside down in his mother's washing machine — with apparently no ill effects. Iris Morton, 29, told the story.

"I left Ralph in his high chair near the washing machine and went in to make the bed. I returned to the kitchen and was horrified to see his feet sticking out of the washer. The motor was on and he could have drowned."

She hauled Ralph out. Her husband, Denis, 30, telephoned for an ambulance. The mother went to work with artificial respiration.

"He'd stopped breathing," said Mrs. Morton, "but after a few minutes he began gurgling and blowing out soap bubbles. He was simply full of them."

Ralph spent one night in the hospital and nurses said he appeared to be all right.

Everything Comes Out In The End

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP)—Happy, the jewel-eating dog, gave up his diamonds and escaped the surgeon's knife.

Happy, a wire-haired terrier, swallowed the engagement, wedding and birthstone rings of his owner, Mrs. Gerald Kabobel, two weeks ago.

It took a veterinarian's X-rays to determine that Happy made off with the three rings.

If Happy hadn't returned the rings it would have meant an operation.

The dog swallowed the rings when his owner and her husband, a Ft. Lee, Va., soldier whose home is in Saginaw, Mich., left him behind when they went to work.

Happy got his first romp outside in two weeks after the rings were returned.

Mother Love Vs. Law Of Jungle

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Flossy, a 7-year-old cat, dined on a nestful of baby mockingbirds last summer and has suffered ever since.

Rose Vitale, owner of Flossy, reported that the mother mockingbird hasn't forgotten the death of her children.

"Every time Flossy goes in the yard," Mrs. Vitale said, "the mockingbird dives and pecks at her."

To prove her point, Mrs. Vitale called Flossy. As soon as the cat appeared, the mockingbird began to scream.

"Now watch," said Mrs. Vitale. "She never attacks until Flossy is busy."

Mrs. Vitale put out a bowl of

Might As Well Have Been Dead

CLIFFWOOD BEACH, N.J. (AP)—James T. McGuire, 40, said he went to vote in the local primary Tuesday only to be denied a ballot on grounds he was "deceased."

McGuire said officials explained that a sample ballot had been mailed to him but was returned with a deceased notation stamped on the envelope. His name then was taken off the list of voters.

McGuire said that by the end of the day the officials had concluded he was definitely among the living and they apologized.

The sample ballot returned by the post office had been sent to a James T. McGuire in a neighboring town who had died.

McGuire did not get to vote—he had to get to work before the complication was resolved.

Run It Right Off Him, Coach

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Pro tackle Ernie Ladd, a growing boy of 22 who weighs in at 300 and stands 6-foot-9, is the champion of the first Golden West Eating Classic—victor by three ounces.

Vanquished was Nick Corleone, a tuna fisherman who is 48, 268 and 5-8. He said:

"The chicken didn't suit me—I wanted chicken caeciatore."

A belch instead of a referee's whistle ended the 3½ hour bicarbonate derby in a local hotel dining room as 1,000 persons cheered.

The two men ate about 40 pounds of food, estimated to have 21,300 calories.

Judges weighed the leftovers. Ladd's one roll, pat of butter and small piece of cake was three ounces lighter than Corleone's leftover fried chicken.

The menu for the eight-course dinner included salad, lobster tails, spaghetti, meat balls, chicken, baked ham, prime ribs, sirloin steak and ice cream and cake.

Corleone washed his food down with an Italian-type wine. Ladd, who plays for the San Diego Chargers, used a soft drink.

Proceeds for the Ealfest went to the San Diego Children's Hospital.

Negro Students Clash With Police, Whites In Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Negro students, demanding desegregation of all public accommodations, clashed with police and rock-throwing whites in a noisy 2-hour demonstration in downtown Nashville Monday night.

A few hours later, police were sent to the home of a Negro leader who said a shotgun blast fired from a car smashed through the window of his home and narrowly missed his wife.

Mayor Beverly Briley continued his efforts to reach a biracial accord and "preserve the peace."

Negro leaders scheduled an open meeting for late today to press their demands:

1. Desegregation of all public accommodations such as hotels, tels, restaurants and lunch counters. Some eating places, all downtown theaters, the baseball park and the civic auditorium are integrated.
2. Better employment opportunities for qualified Negroes.
3. Dropping of all charges now pending against students arrested while demonstrating against segregation—dating back to the start of the sit-in movement in 1960.

The shotgun blast ripped through the front window at the home of H. E. Braden, executive vice president of the Nashville Christian Leadership Council. No one was injured.

"The car raced by, shot and then sped on," Braden told newsmen.

"The downtown demonstration came during the height of the dinner hour and was marked by frequent outbreaks of violence as hundreds of white persons gathered—some of them hecklers, others just spectators.

Police arrested five persons, one of them white. Two others were hospitalized.

Rocks and glass showered the demonstrators as they approached two segregated restaurants, the scene of protests last week.

Several fights broke out as the Negroes marched through the city's financial district to the city jail. At one point, the Negroes wheeled in a counter-attack that sent rock-throwing whites scattering.

British Protest U.S. Refusal

LONDON (AP)—U.S. refusal to go along with an international agreement raising transatlantic tourist-class fares cannot be tolerated, British Aviation Minister Julian Amery says.

But Amery expressed hope Monday that a solution can be negotiated without resorting to seizure of American airlines as he had threatened. The British Embassy in Washington is negotiating with the State Department.

A 5 per cent fare increase, voted by members of the International Air Transport Association, went into effect Saturday. The U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board ordered American airlines not to apply it.

Safety Keynote Impresses Civilian On T-38 Flight

By BOB WHIPKEY

If you think safety is not the everlasting keynote in the Air Force—and doubled in spades in a flying training program—all you have to do is go out and take a flight.

This doesn't necessarily come easy, because the Air Force has things to do other than haul civilians around just so they can talk about it. But there's a little relaxation of schedules during Armed Forces Week, and yours truly got a ride in that new T-38 yesterday. It's something my mouth had been watering for ever since that needle-nosed little mosquito of an airplane showed up at Webb AFB.

I'm ready to go again. But there's nothing left undone for the complete safety of any flight, and this is impressive to a layman.

AN OLD PRO

First of all, I drew one of the old pros in the T-38 business, Captain R. F. (Bob) Daley. He's chief of the standardization section at Webb, which means, literally, that he's a pilot's pilot. He knows that Northrop Talon from one tip to the other, and everything in between, and obviously is in love with it.

He outfitted me in all that paraphernalia (the worst part about the whole experience), very patiently gave me all the safety instructions, saw to it that the muddled head, strapped me down in the rear cockpit and never let me out of his sight or hearing.

ALL IS CONFIDENCE

He was so good in explaining most of the major operations, the instruments, the lights and the handles, to advise in advance when little strange noises might occur, or when the craft's attitude might change a bit, that he had me as confidently enfolded in his arms as if he had been my guardian.

Leaving me clear out of the picture, Bob Daley—as any other pilot—made a thorough check of weather, temperatures and all other factors affecting takeoff and flight before he ever got out of the operations building. At the plane, he gave it a complete check-out of all possible hazardous items. And let me say that there was a competent ground crew right there, having things in order, and ready to see that the craft was perfect for a takeoff. PULLED BY A STRING Once on the runway and canopies down, Bob began to talk to that little bird, and before you might count to ten my counting abilities were a little frozen at the moment! It was pointing its nose what seemed to be straight up, and climbing as if some higher power were pulling it up on a yo-yo string.

And there I was flat on my back, to coin a phrase. Bob said we went by Garden City while I was still looking at the wild blue yonder.

Concert Group Elects Officers, Firms Plans

Big Spring Concert Association board members Monday evening returned officers for another year and tentatively firm program plans for the next season.

Program choices are subject to confirmation by booking agencies.

Mrs. Clyde Angel, who has led the association through some troublesome periods, was unanimously chosen to head the association again. Dr. Josh Burnett was named program vice president also by acclamation, as were Mrs. James Duncan, ticket vice president; Mrs. J. C. Pickle, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Jim Zack, treasurer.

New members welcomed to the board are Mrs. H. L. Derrick, Mrs. Grant Boardman, Dr. W. A. Hunt, Mrs. Hayes Stripling Jr., Mrs. Harrol Jones, Don Anderson, Mrs. E. W. Dozier, and Bob Bradbury.

As tentatively planned, the new season's touring will include a marked change in speed. At least three major fields of the arts. In addition, it is contemplated that the association may also be used as an instrument of working with and encouraging area cultural groups where outstanding programs are available.

Monday's session was held in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Gas building and drew a large representation. Directors adopted a resolution commending the services of the officers during the past year.

There's some pull on you when the T-38 takes on the burners, or when the throttle is eased off for a marked change in speed. And you get those G forces principally on takeoff and when the pilot pulls the bird around on its wing for a turn, everything went to my stomach once.

IT'S THE GETTING READY It didn't hurt a bit, because here again I had ole Jockey Daley up there giving me the word on everything.

Zippering up in a flight suit, clamping down a helmet and an oxygen mask, and getting buckled into a parachute and strapped into the cockpit take a bit of doing, and will give a novice some uneasiness.

But once that T-38 is in the air, where it belongs, and a guy like Bob Daley is driving it with tender and loving care, all you have to do is sit back, relax, and enjoy it. There's that much aura of safety about the whole operation.

Credit Executives Make Plans For Galveston Meeting

Plans for local participation in the state meeting of various credit associations to be held in Galveston May 19-21 were made by the Retail Credit Executives of Big Spring at a meeting Monday night.

The Group met at Smith's Tea Room, with Glen Barnes, president, in charge. Fourteen members were present.

Barnes reported on the joint meeting of the Retail Merchants Association, Retail Credit Executives of Texas, Southwestern Petroleum Credit Association, Lone Star Council of Credit Women and Association of Credit Bureaus of Texas.

Attending from Big Spring will be Barnes, Mrs. Ruth Apple, Mrs. R. L. Nall, Mrs. A. G. Eitzen and Pearl Bradshaw. Also planning to make the trip, if circumstances permit, are Mrs. Jane Duncan and Mrs. R. E. Hughes.

Discussion at the meeting included reporting to credit bureaus, bank reporting, repossessions and persons who skip town without paying bills. Next meeting will be held June 10.

Legislators Give Warm Welcome To Ed Carpenter

Fellow representatives in the state's lower house gave Ed J. Carpenter, Howard County member, a standing ovation as a mark of welcome Monday.

Carpenter, hurt in a car accident several weeks ago, was back in Austin for the first time yesterday. He has been at his home in Coahoma recuperating from a back injury. He drove to Austin over the weekend, accompanied by his son, Eddie Carpenter, Peccos. Eddie plans to remain with his father for at least a week.

Carpenter's first official action on his return to his seat in the house was to vote against the establishment of a four-year college at Odessa.

Paulberry were to be Chester Cathey, Willard Sullivan, Hudson Bohannon, David Peters, C. Y. Clinkscales and Melvin McFall. Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Cliff Wiley, Big Spring; one grandson, Duval Wiley, Albuquerque, N. M., and two great-grandchildren.

Trial Testimony Begins In Rape Case

A jury of 11 men and one woman was hearing the first state witness this afternoon in the rape trial of A. C. Elliott, 31-year-old airman. The final juror was selected at 11:30 a.m. and Judge Ralph Caton, 118th District Court, recessed the trial until 1 p.m.

The jurors are Dois Orvell Ray, George Cleve Weatherford, James W. Bradley, Granville Miller, J. C. Thames, Clint Kent, Charles W. Lomax, Arturo Hernandez, Mrs. Alice M. Gale, Kenneth Plew, Travis D. Wyatt and B. W. Low.

Selection of the jury started at 10 a.m. Monday. A special venire of 55 was on hand when the jury interrogation began. B. W. Low was the 12th juror to be accepted and the 34th venire man to take the stand in the individual questioning. Eight had been selected when court recessed at 5 p.m. Monday.

The defense used nine of its 15 pre-emptory challenges and the state six. Seven other veniremen were excused by the court for cause.

The jurors were interrogated closely on their attitude in the matter of a suspended sentence for a person convicted of rape. No stress was laid on the attitude of the prospective jurors as to the issue of the death sentence. The case on trial is a capital crime and death could be assessed for it by a jury.

Elliott is accused of raping a baby-sitter. The alleged offense occurred in his home Sept. 3, 1962. He is represented by George Thomas and Roger Brown. The prosecution is in the hands of G. Jones, district attorney, and Wayne Burns, county attorney.

Elliott has applied for a suspended sentence. This was the reason the defense attorneys wanted to sound out each prospective juror on his views regarding such clemency.

Trustees Have Busy Agenda

The first step in modernizing policies of the board of trustees for the Big Spring Independent School District will be taken at a meeting of trustees slated for 7:30 p.m. today at the Administration Building, 100 E. 10th.

Among items on the agenda are first reading for proposed policies governing internal board operation and use of school facilities.

Trustees will be asked to consider whether or not they wish to re dedicate a street on the north side of the Airport Elementary School campus. Action taken by the board to dedicate the street some 13 years ago when the property was obtained from the Rodeo Association is a bit hazy, according to Sam M. Anderson, superintendent. At that time the Rodeo Association dedicated 50 feet of their property for a street. A similar proposal of school trustees was tabled and there is no indication that such action was taken by any subsequent school board.

Other business includes selection and designation of the school district's bank depository for the next biennium, proposed changes in the school immunization policy to extend the requirements through high school, discussion of problems related to use of school facilities for Little League play and discussion of future school buildings.

About half of the more than 12,000 employment survey forms to be mailed by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce were mailed Monday afternoon and the remainder should go out today, according to Kenneth Pace, assistant chamber manager.

Returned forms began arriving Monday following printing of the survey instrument in the Herald Sunday. No accurate count on the returns is available at this time.

"We need the forms returned as soon as possible so they can be tabulated," Pace stressed.

A survey of the available work force, especially of women who can do industrial sewing, is being conducted by the Chamber in response to a query from a concern which is considering Big Spring among possible locations of a new business establishment. Information obtained will also be used to answer questions about the labor force which may be posed by other industrial prospects.

Offers To Pay For Helper's Broken Light

Doug Clemens is looking for a one-eyed Samaritan. He would like to return the favor.

Two or three cars eased by with offers to push him out of the swirling stream, but Clemens declined. Twice before pushers had bashed in his tail light.

Eventually the driver of a pickup pulled alongside with an offer to push the Clemens' chariot out of the flood. He even checked to see if the bumpers made contact.

Then as he pushed, there was a crunch and tinkle. Clemens sighed as he was pushed to higher ground; it had happened again. The good Samaritan in the truck went on his way, and Clemens eventually got home and took a look at the damage. It wasn't his tail light after all, he discovered, but probably the Samaritan's headlight. He would like to buy a new light for the gentleman, whoever he is.

'Lame Duck' Classes Set

Ever hear of a "lame duck" class in a school? Center Point will have one starting Thursday.

Thursday night, the six eighth graders in the school are to be handled their diplomas at a ceremony in the Gay Hill School auditorium. To all appearances this should end their elementary school careers. But this is not the case.

Friday they go back to class and continue attending school until May 30. M. G. Kilgore, principal of the school, has indicated that all of the youngsters will pass and be eligible to enroll next year in high school. But, he added, they must go on attending school nearly two more weeks after they have officially "graduated."

The school got off to a late start, he explained, which makes it necessary to continue classes later than other schools. Vealmoor common school closes down today. Gay Hill school terminates classes May 20.

American L. Race Goes Topsy-Turvy

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

City Athletics, another pick for the lower echelon, a close third? And aren't New York's mighty Yankees struggling along in fourth with the other contenders stringing behind?

It's just a crazy, mixed-up race, that's all. The Red Sox put the slug on the Washington Senators 8-5 Monday night and the Los Angeles Angels whipped the White Sox 7-3 in the only games on the AL schedule.

The results eased Boston into the runner-up spot, one game back of Chicago and 10th percentage point ahead of the A's, and put the Angels into a sixth-place tie with Cleveland at the 500 level.

In the only National League game, the Houston Colts climbed out of sole occupancy of the cellar with their fifth straight victory, outlasting the New York Mets 4-2 in a runaway turned cliffhanger.

Houston now shares ninth place with Milwaukee. The Red Sox belted seven extra-base hits among their 11 hits, including a three-run homer by Bob Tillman in the sixth inning that stood up as the clincher.

Frank Malzone and Dick Stuart also homered for Boston, Chuck Schilling rapped a pair of doubles, and Carl Yastrzemski and Lu Clinton tripled.

Washington starter Don Rudolph was routed in the first when Schilling doubled, Yastrzemski tripled, Malzone homered and Clinton singled—and the Senators never caught up.

Tall Gene Conley was credited with the pitching victory, his second in three decisions, with strong help from Dick Radatz. The fireballing reliever came on in the seventh after Jim King's two-run homer and limited Washington to one hit the rest of the way.

The Angels also went on a long-ball binge in beating Chicago for the second time in a row, while the White Sox had a frustrating evening on the bases.

Leon Wagner smacked his seventh homer and no singles for Los Angeles. Ed Sadowski homered and singled, George Thomas hit a homer, and Jim Fregosi cracked a triple and two-run double.

The Angels went ahead 4-1 with three runs in the fourth, when Fregosi doubled after a single by Wagner and a walk, and Sadowski's single delivered Fregosi. They put it out of reach in the seventh, when Sadowski homered and Wagner singled in a run.

The White Sox blew several chances but the big one was in the second—when they managed just one run on four singles and an Angel error. One runner was nailed attempting to score on a grounder, another was run down between third and home after a missed bunt, and Wagner's perfect throw from left field got J. C. Martin trying to come in from second on a single by losing pitcher Eddie Fisher.

Houston right-hander Bob Bruce turned back the Mets on just two hits and struck out 11 through eight innings but lost his shut out and complete game bid with two away in the ninth.

Bruce walked leadoff man Duke Snider in the ninth, got the next two Mets, but then hit pinch hitter Choo Choo Coleman and walked Charlie Neal.

After yielding a pinch two-run single to Chris Cannizzaro, Bruce was relieved by Don McMahon, who struck out Cliff Cook.

Roger Craig allowed eight Colt hits and the Mets committed four errors, with misplays by Craig and Tim Lincecum leading to two unearned runs.

Met Mania Is Caused By Mass Suggestion

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—You don't have to be nuts to be a Met baseball fan, but it helps. This is a scientific fact, we got it straight from the psychiatrist's couch.

Intrigued by repeated suggestions that the new breed now whooping it up for Casey Stengel's ragamuffin Polo Grounders consists of a weird mixture of complexes and suppressed desires, we decided to find out for ourselves.

We called the American Mental Health Foundation, Inc. The Foundation referred us to Vladimir G. Eliasberg, M.D., Ph.D., psychiatrist, psychoanalyst, psychologist, in New York. Certainly, said the doctor, a reserved, bespectacled man with a graying, scholarly manner, there is some basis for calling the Mets fans complex-riders.

The doctor's credentials for matters of the mind are impressive—born in Wiesbaden, Germany; holder of degrees from Universities of Berlin, Heidelberg and Munich; author of the books, among them "Psychotherapy and Society" and more than 300 articles in medical and scientific journals, teacher at various foreign and U.S. colleges; lecturer, past president of the American Society of Psychoanalytical Physicians. "Is it abnormal, the doctor was asked, for people suddenly to go wild over an inept, chronically losing baseball team which is struggling to stay out of the cellar?"

"What makes grandmothers desert their knitting and become raving maniacs behind third base? What makes grown men spend hours printing huge signs which say: 'Mets—You're Lovable' and youngsters play hockey just to get an autograph of graying, old Duke Snider or belly-sliding Choo-Choo Coleman?"

"It is mass suggestion," said Dr. Eliasberg, leaning back in the swivel-chair of his elegantly upholstered and carpeted office. "It is a mathematical situation with passions multiplied by the en-masse factor."

"It is as contagious as a disease. When a group stands up and yells wildly—as the Met fans do—no one dares not to follow suit. Failure to do so would mean ostracism."

Why the Mets? Why don't these people unleash their imprisoned emotions on some other team? "It is characteristic that masses latch on to a cause that apparently is destined for defeat," the psychiatrist explained. "With them there is no such thing as frustration. They like to grab a lowly cause and carry it to victory."

Did the moving of the Giants and Dodgers to the Pacific Coast have anything to do with the growth of this violent new baseball spirit? "Assuredly," the doctor said. "This is the mechanism of rejection. When the Giants and Dodgers left, their fans felt like orphaned children. There also was some bitterness comparable to that generated by the advent of a younger child."

How do the Mets satisfy this need? "The Mets provide a new, shiny toy. The deserted fans can fondle it and stick out their tongues in vengeance with the spiteful rejoinder: 'We'll show you.'"

GENE FULLMER, former middleweight boxing champion: "I'd like to see headgear used in the ring. Ninety-five per cent of the cuts that a boxer suffers come from unattended butts. If a headgear were adopted to protect the fighters' eyes and ears, I think it would hold a great deal of those injuries. The helmet should be padded at the back so the base of the fighter's brain would be protected when his head snapped against the canvas after a knockdown. I also suggest that stricter medical examinations be given fighters."

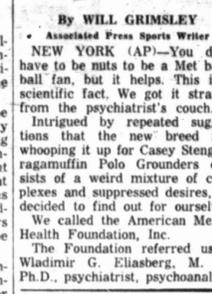

The late DICKIE KERR, discussing his pitching experiences in the 1919 Black Sox World Series: "I can't realize to this day how I stopped Cincinnati, with that Chicago bunch playing behind me. I had a lot of stuff and I exerted every bit of strategy, or whatever you call it, that I could think of. A few of us understood the situation, but even then we had no proof, I guess I must have gotten every break in the book, because there were a few difficult chances for the boys behind me and the 'crooked ones' probably didn't dare mess those up. I won another game, too, as you know. But that first one was the best and, being a pitcher, it put across how much a pitcher can mean to a team, even if it can't win, or don't want to."

Comedian PETER LIND HAYES: "There were these two blind drunks who headed for the first tee to play golf. One says, 'How'm I gonna hit all those golf balls down there?' The other replied, 'Go ahead 'n' swing, you're holding plenty of clubs.'"

TOMMY DAVIS, Los Angeles Dodger, explaining his success as the National League batting champion last year: "Every time I see that ball on its way to the plate, I make up my mind to hurt it."

Sen. ABRAHAM RIBICOFF: "Why not hold a national Olympics every year in the so-called minor sports like gymnastics, canoeing and wrestling? The Russians excel at sports that are little-known in our country. They have been turning out Olympic squads of much greater balance and depth than ours, which is why they can boast that they are the No. 1 country in world athletics. I say that in the troubled state of the world today, our international prestige is important. Anything that enhances the stature of the United States in the eyes of the other nations is worth supporting. I think it is vital for us to be the first man on the moon. I think it is also important for us to be first again in the Olympic Games."

CHARLES McCABE, San Francisco writer: "Russlin' is absolutely free of gambling, because it is absolutely free of uncertainty. It's one of the few things in life that is. That's possibly why I like it so much."

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With TOMMY HART

Sports dialogue: BILLY TALBERT, ex-tennis great: "I wish those who advocate open tennis — and I'm for it 100 per cent — would stop using the negative approach. They keep saying it will cure under-the-table payoffs to amateurs and strengthen their characters. That's NOT why I'm for open tennis. I'm for it because it will bring back competition to the game. Open tennis will create competition, and amateur tennis is dying for the lack of it. Competition is the magic formula in any sport, and I don't care whether its tiddlywinks or tennis."

FRANK BROYLES, Arkansas coach: "I know of only one college coach who has come from the pros and been successful with a pro attack. John Bridgers of Baylor. He's done a great job with it."

GENE FULLMER, former middleweight boxing champion: "I'd like to see headgear used in the ring. Ninety-five per cent of the cuts that a boxer suffers come from unattended butts. If a headgear were adopted to protect the fighters' eyes and ears, I think it would hold a great deal of those injuries. # Palmer Say He Needs Respite

LATROBE, Pa. (AP)—Weary, ailing Arnold Palmer, his position as golf's premier performer in serious jeopardy, says a little rest may be all he needs.

"Mainly, I just felt lousy," Palmer recounted of his poor showing at the Colonial Invitational at Fort Worth, Tex. "I have been in the habit of taking time off from golf during the fall—from September until late December. But I haven't done this for the last four or five years. I've been too busy."

"The result is I've picked up some bad golfing habits. I'm not hitting the ball well at all. These are some of the bugs in my game I have to get rid of."

The game's all-time leading money-winner shot a 299 in the Colonial last weekend, 20 strokes off the pace and one of his poorest competitive rounds in years.

Though he said nothing about it at the time, it was disclosed that Palmer had a painful cyst on his back during the tourney, which hampered his walking and swinging.

"It's true I have a cyst and it gave me some trouble," he admitted Monday. "I saw a doctor there but there was no operation. I thought about pulling out, but decided against it."

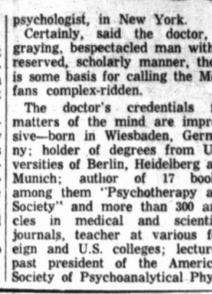

He said he would see his family doctor and abide by his decision. An operation, if necessary, would be a minor one.

"I think what I need most of all is to get away from golf for a while," he said. "For the next week I won't do anything. I won't touch a club. I'll just piddle around the house. Then next week I'll start practicing a bit."

Palmer, well down the list of money winners this season, failed in his bid for a fourth Masters crown last month at Augusta, Ga. The tourney was won by Jack Nicklaus, who also bested Palmer in the Las Vegas Tournament of Champions and looms as a major threat to Palmer's position as the game's No. 1 player.

"What I want to do is rest and then get a fresh start," Palmer said.

He said he doesn't plan to play again until just before the National Open at Brookline, Mass., June 20-22.

Walton To Hurl For Snyder Hi

SNYDER—Snyder plays host to Burk Burnett at 4 p.m. today in the first game of their Class AAA bi-district baseball series.

Snyder is the 3-AAA kingpin while Burk Burnett led the roost in 4-AAA.

Snyder after a slow start, now has a 10-16 record. In conference play, the Tigers were 7-1.

Burk Burnett has an overall record of 4-3 and was 4-1 in conference.

Dalton Walton will probably pitch for Snyder while Burk Burnett's mound colleague is apt to be Johnny Keller, who has a 3-2 record.

The second game of the series will be played in Wichita Falls Friday. If a third game is needed, it will be unrec'd in Wichita Falls Saturday.

Houston Ties For 9th Spot

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Colts no longer are alone in the National League cellar.

They beat the New York Mets 4-2 Monday night and climbed from 10th in the standings to a ninth place tie with the Milwaukee Braves.

Three - hit pitching by Bob Bruce, plus relief from Don McMahon, was largely responsible for Houston's fifth straight victory. That's the Colts' longest winning streak ever.

Bruce, who blanked the Reds on a one-hitter three weeks ago, had a two-hit shutout going for eight innings. He struck out 11. Mets—a career high for himself and a season high for New York.

What undid him was a pinch single by Chris Cannizzaro in the bottom of the ninth with two out and the bases loaded. Two runs scored and in came McMahon to retire the last batsman.

The Colts scored on an assortment of singles and four New York errors.

Johnny Temple singled in the first run in the second inning. Rusty Staub followed suit to drive home two more runs in the fifth.

The Colts nibbled away at starter Roger Craig for eight hits, only one for extra bases. Bob Aspromonte's triple to deep center in the seventh scored Pete Runnels with Houston's last run.

SEC. B BIG SPRING, TEXAS, TUESDAY, MAY 14, 1963 SEC. B.

DEAR ABBY He's Gone Underground

DEAR ABBY: After seven years of marriage, my husband and I have finally resolved this universal problem. He couldn't resist flirting, and I couldn't help getting furious about it. So we agreed that from that moment on it would cost him $10 a wink to flirt. It's been months since we made that deal, and he has been exposed to many pretty girls in my presence, and so far I haven't collected a dime. I don't kid myself that he doesn't flirt behind my back for free, but at least he doesn't hurt my feelings any more. Clever?

PROBLEM SOLVED
DEAR SOLVED: I hope you know what you're doing. Most women prefer to have their husbands flirt openly—then they know who their competition is. You've driven yours underground. Not so clever.

DEAR ABBY: My stepfather and I keep on having fights about spaghetti. He says you should eat it with a spoon and I say you should eat it with a fork. Will you please tell me who is right?

SANDRA
DEAR SANDRA: You are both right! Place a spoon (and a fork) in your left hand, and a fork (and a spoon) in your right. The spaghetti you've forked up into the hollow of the spoon until it forms a bite-sized ball. And eat it with the fork. But be sure your left hand knows what your right hand is doing.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this specifically for junior and senior high school students:

I am a senior at an accredited high school. I am considered an average student and, like many average students, I could have done much better.

Today, in the mail, I received a "turn down" from a nearby college in response to my application for admission. It was quite a shock. I just want to say to all students who want to go to college: STUDY NOW! Don't wait until your last semester of high school before you buckle down.

British Try Tourist Plan

LONDON (AP) — British tourists will be able next year to cruise to New York, stay three days and return home — all for $125 minimum.

That is the promise of a curate travel man, Max Wilson, in partnership with the Canadian Pacific and Union-Castle Shipping Lines.

Wilson, 34, is chartering the 20,000-ton liner Reia del Mar for 7 voyages out of Liverpool — 5 to New York and 2 to Montreal. Tourist class fares, including a three-day stop in New York during which the ship will be used as a floating hotel, range from $126 to $210. First class passengers will pay $294-$616 for the 18-day cruise.

Passengers must be members of Travel Savings LTD., which Wilson runs. They pay an entrance fee of $8.82 per family. The holiday is saved for through regular payments.

Business, Communities Have Growing Interest In Space

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of companies and dozens of American communities have a financial stake in the ventures into space. The stake is about $15 billion now and is growing rapidly.

Often the individual fortunes and prospects of corporations and cities can change overnight. The space industry has perhaps the fastest rate of obsolescence.

What man will discover out there can't be foretold with certainty. Nor can the new demands the nation will make upon industry to meet the challenge of still more novel space programs which seem likely to spring from some of the $7 billion which the government is pouring this year into military research.

A new government order can spell prosperity for a firm and the communities housing its plants. A sudden cancellation of government orders — and some have been big ones — can wreck the prospects of at one blow.

Department's eyes turned from aircraft to missiles. Orders for new planes dropped from 9,000 a year to around 2,000. But corporations that could make missiles got new fat orders and hundreds of companies supplying parts bloomed.

The changeover was felt in other ways. Making planes calls for much larger plants and the use of much more raw materials than missiles. The numbers and skills of workers are far different, too. Many communities felt the change sharply and the whole economy to some extent.

Now there's apparently another change. Orders for new missiles are beginning to level off. The new emphasis is on fewer but more expensive units. Changing needs are part of the reason the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's spending has gone up from $339 million in 1959 to a request for $5.7 billion in the coming year.

Today's emphasis on building rockets that can boost man toward the moon and beyond may shift to contracts for the actual spacecraft.

The stock market has watched all this with some caution at first and considerable confusion of late. A big new contract will give a company's stock a boost—and a cancellation will topple it.

Air Show Checkup

A meeting of the aviation committee of the Chamber of Commerce is scheduled for 5:15 p.m. Wednesday at the Chamber conference room. Purpose of the session is to evaluate progress being made on the Air Show planned for May 25, according to Dr. Fred W. Lutting, chairman.

DAILY GUIDE — As the moon moves into Aquarius today we can begin to feel some of the depressive effect of this period, but there is the happy thought that this is the moment of opportunity to see what we will learn or how much we have learned from recent conditions.

How we act individually in our own circumstances, and how our leaders act, and the decisions they make will indicate the new directions our affairs are taking.

Keep everything under control, attend to necessary details, but do not jump into action without plan or purpose. Under no circumstances react with blind rebellious anger. People are going to be difficult, stubborn or unreasonable. It will seem that perverseness has the upper hand to defeat hopes of reconciliation. We can't back away from this showdown, personally or otherwise. Irritating to bark one's shins against obstacles, but we must risk it by moving forward now. Set yourself to test your strength and courage.

Watch all the angles tomorrow; confusion, deceptive factors and friction can cloud the issues.

Military Rapped For Illegal Acts At Crash Sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman John Moss of the House Government Information subcommittee has accused military officials of illegally restricting photographers covering military airplane crashes in civilian areas.

The Army and Air Force are acting in "clear contradiction" of a law which prohibits military authorities from enforcing any civil law, the California Democrat wrote to Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara.

"Military authorities are acting in an outrageous manner when they take it upon themselves to violate civil rights in an area where they have absolutely no legal powers," Moss added.

"If there is a necessity to protect vital defense information, it is incumbent on the Department of Defense to ask the Congress for proper legal authority. Until and unless such a law is enacted, the military must confine itself to areas within its clear jurisdiction."

Pentagon officials said Thursday the Air Force was revising and tightening five-year-old regulations governing control of news photographers at the scenes of military plane crashes away from air bases.

W. R. Grace & Co. Earnings Increase

BOSTON, Mass.—At the annual meeting of W. R. Grace & Co., the first ever held in Boston, J. Peter Grace, president, indicated that earnings in 1963 are running substantially ahead of the corresponding period of 1962. He expressed optimism for the balance of the year. He stated that net income for 1962 was $21,883,000 and exceeded 1961 net income by 16 per cent. Sales and operating revenues for 1962 were $574,182,000—7 per cent above those reported for the previous year.

For the first quarter of this year the company's net income increased 17 per cent to $4,692,000 as compared with $4,004,000 for the first quarter of 1962.

Grace chemical divisions reported sales were up almost 25 per cent.

He pointed out that the company's Libyan oil venture has started contributing to earnings. It is expected that an average of 45,000 barrels a day will flow from the Ragaba Field by pipeline into the Mediterranean port of Marsa el Brega this year.

Storms Rake W. Texas Areas

By The Associated Press

Lusty thunderstorms pummeled parts of West Texas during the night, and another round of bumpy weather was in prospect by Wednesday evening.

Gusts of wind exceeding 80 miles per hour — greater than hurricane force — whipped heavy rain and hail through the Fort Stockton and Midland areas. Midland measured .97 inch of rain in 20 minutes.

Another vicious storm wheeled through the area west of Sweetwater, likewise bringing hail. The wind hit 60 m. p. h. There were several thunderstorms a bit farther east around Abilene.

The turbulence struck while a broad area was under a severe weather alert, in force until midnight. This special advisory covered the sector inside lines linking Childress, Big Spring, Coleman, Cisco, Graham and Petrolia.

Muggy weather hung on Wednesday. Skies were partly cloudy and it was rather warm in all sections.

Forecasts called for scattered thunderstorms to develop again over western areas of Texas late in the day. Little change was predicted otherwise throughout the state.

Temperatures reached afternoon highs Tuesday ranging from 105 degrees at Presidio down to 82 at Galveston.

NAMES THAT DIVIDE

Names intended to distinguish Christians from Christians are divisive, and therefore, wrong. Paul reproved the brethren at Corinth for a lack of unity. He said, "Now this I say, that every one of you saith, and I of Apollos; and I of Cephas; and I of Christ. Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were you baptized in the name of Paul?" (1 Cor. 1:10-13). So we see a saved person is one for whom Christ died, and who has been baptized into the name of Christ. Therefore, he should only wear the name of Christ.

"And the disciples were called Christians first at Antioch" (Acts 11:26). This name distinguished them from all who did not follow Christ. They needed no other distinction. To distinguish themselves from other Christians was to make division. This is wrong. This is carnal. (1 Cor. 3:3, 4). There is no room for denominational names.

JFK Gets Note On Ban, U. S. Cancels Test Series

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has abruptly canceled a series of nuclear tests at its Nevada nuclear testing site. The action followed word that President Kennedy is studying a new note from Soviet Premier Khrushchev on test ban negotiations.

A White House spokesman denied there was any relationship between the two developments. Without explanation, the Atomic Energy Commission announced Monday that it and the Defense Department were calling off "three small sub-kiloton detonations" which had been scheduled for this month.

Two were to involve nuclear devices, the third a chemical high explosive. Radio Moscow had complained that the U.S. tests were aimed at producing new types of nuclear weapons and added in a veiled threat:

"One thing is clear, the U.S.S.R. is not going to stand by idly watching the U.S. perfect its nuclear weapons."

U.S. sources said the Khrushchev letter made no change in the Soviet position on a nuclear test ban—"It moves neither forward or backward."

The letter, also addressed to British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, made no mention of a threat Khrushchev had made to withdraw his offer to permit two or three inspections on Soviet soil to police a ban agreement.

The letter was in response to a message last month from Kennedy and Macmillan urging Khrushchev to help get the Geneva test ban talks off dead center.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said Kennedy received the Moscow note shortly after his news conference Wednesday.

It was at this conference that the President said he was "not hopeful" that a test ban agreement could be reached with Russia.

"If we don't get it now," he added, "I would think perhaps the is out of the bottle and we'll never get it back in again."

Shortly after the President left the press conference, the AEC disclosed the plans for the three tests which were canceled Monday.

Only two were described as actual nuclear detonations. The third was to employ chemical high explosives with a short-lived radioactive tracer.

The AEC had said the chemical explosive and one nuclear device would be detonated as ground bursts, to provide comparative information on effects of nuclear and chemical explosives. The other nuclear device, the AEC said, was to have been fired in a shallow underground emplacement.

So far five nuclear shots have been reported by the AEC this year. All have been termed of "low yield"—below that of 20,000 tons of TNT.

The United States resumed testing at the Nevada site in February after suspending tests for a period to smooth the way for test ban negotiations. Kennedy ordered the underground tests resumed when the talks faltered.

The Soviet Union said then that the resumption of American testing would spur the nuclear arms race.

The United States, Britain and Russia have been trying for almost six years to negotiate a test ban treaty. Each time the big three seemed close to an agreement, the negotiations hung up on the question of inspections.

Russia has stood pat on inspection procedures the west considers inadequate to guard against sneak testing.

Crews Go After Wiggle Tails

City crews started Monday to nip the mosquito plague in the bud.

In an effort to destroy the pests while they are still "wiggle tails," crews began spraying places where water is found standing.

Ernest Lillard, public works director, said that this was in addition to the fogging program which is designed to kill the mature mosquito.

Numerous complaints of heavy mosquito infestation have been received, Lillard reported.

Odessa College Bill Approved

AUSTIN (AP)—Speaker Byron Tunnell cast the tie-breaking vote Monday as the House tentatively approved a bill giving Odessa the 23rd state-supported senior college in Texas.

Tunnell's vote broke a 68-68 standstill on elevating Odessa Junior College from a two-year school to Permian State College of Technology, a four-year school, in 1965.

Last week the House voted 82-56 against the bill, but its sponsor, Rep. George Cook of Odessa, said he would seek reconsideration after House members sent to Gov. John Connally two bills setting up new senior colleges at San Angelo and Edinburg.

"This is getting ridiculous," said Rep. John Traeger of Seguin. "We are going to be the laughing stock of the nation if we keep making four-year schools."

"It's an injustice. Just because we like George Cook and think the Senate will not pass this bill is no reason for us not to be responsible in our actions."

Traeger said the House was "giving the people of Odessa false hope in approving the bill."

Senate Approves Military Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate approved unanimously Monday a compromise bill authorizing expenditure of $15.3 billion by the military services for new weapons and for research and development.

The measure, agreed on by a Senate-House Commerce committee last Friday, reconciles differences in separate bills previously passed by each branch. It goes now to the House for final action.

Included in the measure is $32.7 million not requested by the Defense department for development of the supersonic jet reconnaissance airplane known as the RS70.

Rear Adm. Lawson P. Ramage, deputy commander of the Atlantic Fleet submarine force, had testified last month he was unaware for 60 hours of the fact that Thresher's last clear radio message was one indicating trouble.

Hecker testified he gave this information to the officer who followed him as commanding officer in charge of the search for the Thresher.

The Puzzle Of South Viet Nam

Our military commanders continue to express guarded optimism over the course of the war in South Viet Nam. An estimated 12,000 U.S. troops are now involved in a holding operation which may or may not succeed.

But few military leaders of competence have forgotten the lessons of French Indochina. There a French army, superior in numbers and in equipment, was unable to hold the country because of a lack of popular support. The French had the same disastrous experience in Algeria. Military men, too, remember the words of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, speaking to a group of congressmen last August: "Gentlemen, let me warn you of one thing. Keep our foot soldiers out of the jungles of Southeast Asia."

What is lacking in South Viet Nam is a popular cause. Who speaks for Ngo Dinh Diem? Not the peasants or the general population. On the other side the Viet Cong have adopted Mao Tse-tung's famous dictum: "The guerrilla must learn to live among the native population like a fish in water." It is not necessarily allegiance to the guerrillas which persuades the villagers to cooperate. Fear is a constant companion; fear of guerrillas that is greater even than fear of Diem's Vietnamese. As for communism, what fear do the Vietnamese have of a new ism since they cannot believe their lot will be better or worse than under a dictatorship?

We were able to hold our own in Korea because the South Korean people were ready and willing to fight North Koreans. In South Viet Nam we have no such willingness or support. There may still be time, but the will and resolution appears lacking, to bring forward a popular leader in South Viet Nam. Of course we could disregard MacArthur's warning and pour our foot soldiers ashore. Then, of course, the Red Chinese would bring up their own foot soldiers and a deadly, inconclusive struggle would begin that might last for years, draining us of our lives and our treasure.

Yet we cannot just throw up our hands and give up. We must find a practical alternative to our present course. But what is it, no one seems to know, considering our commitment to the unpopular Diem government.

Somewhat Smoother Sailing

The triangular partnership of the United States, Great Britain, and Canada should grow stronger in the next few months than it has been at any time in the past six years. That is one meaning of the Liberal victory in the Canadian election a month ago.

Broadly stated, John F. Kennedy, Harold Macmillan, and Lester B. Pearson speak the same political language. Names can be confusing, but it is evident from the beginning of the Canadian campaign that the defeat of Progressive Conservative John Diefenbaker would be welcomed by the British Conservative government across the seas.

As for Kennedy, whatever the truth of the story of the celebrated mislaid memorandum, it was clear that he had no more warmth for Diefenbaker than President Eisenhower had before him. "Mike" Pearson, moreover, is much better known in Washington than Diefenbaker ever was.

The strengthening of the triangular solidarity is under way. Christian Herter, President Kennedy's chief tariff negotiator, on April 26 arrived in Ottawa for exploratory trade meetings with Pearson. Then on May 1 Pearson landed at London airport on a mission to restore healthy relations with Britain. Last Friday Pearson and Kennedy got together at Hyannis Port and announced accord on some key matters.

Trade discussions have now reached the specific state. Herter will join the British and Canadian foreign ministers at a conference in Geneva, May 16-21. Members of the 23-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The other important topic, obviously, is Atlantic defense, which became something of a talking point in the Canadian campaign. The North Atlantic Treaty Council meets in Ottawa May 22-24.

That the talks among the Anglo-American-Canadian cousins will be on a more friendly basis than any since 1957 does not mean that voices will not be raised and language strengthened. Pearson said in London that his government would fulfill any of Canada's previous commitments. The Liberals in their campaign stood for unreserved cooperation with Western strategy both in NATO and in U.S. plans for nuclear defense of the North American continent. But Pearson in the past has not been so positive on nuclear weapons, and in London he said that in principle he was opposed to their spread.

After trade and defense comes the real forerunner, Canada's trade with Cuba and China and the possible recognition of Red China by a Liberal government, if the people of Canada, as Mike Pearson has put it, are ready for the step.

The Grave Problem In Haiti

WASHINGTON — With the threatened upheaval in Haiti, as so often in the past, the familiar warning signs are once again posted: the Communists will take over if you don't watch out.

It is like the refrain of the James Whitcomb Riley poem of long ago. "The goblins will get you if you don't watch out." The trouble is that the goblins—the form of poverty, disease and a constantly rising population pressing against pitifully limited resources—have long since taken over in Haiti.

SOME COMMENT makes it sound as though at a certain point President Francois Duvalier and his cronies would take a little off the shelf labeled "Communism," and say, "Here we go." Conceivably a second base in Haiti; not unlike that in Cuba might fit Moscow's plans. But it would be far more costly in terms of men and money than the Cuban adventure. And surely Washington has learned how to prevent another Cuba from coming into being—that is another Cuba in the Caribbean armed and manned by the Soviets.

WHAT MIGHT such Communist aims just as well be enforced American occupation of Haiti. Enforced, that is, to check a holocaust of blood. We would then have the responsibility for a country that is by any standard unworkable.

This is what is so often ignored in discussion of Latin America. In country after country the unabated pressure of rising expectations, produces a head of steam bound to cause an explosion. Often a small ruling elite sits on the safety valve in the vain hope that somehow the force can be held in check.

MORE THAN 10 years ago ago in his book, "Human Fertility, The Modern Di-

ANYBODY HAVE A TRANQUILIZER?

James Marlow

Mobs Cut Loose If Threat Eased

WASHINGTON (AP)—It seems clear that the disorderly forces a president wishes to control may feel free to cut loose unless he says flatly beforehand he will use troops to stop them, if he has to.

President Kennedy used troops in Mississippi and now has them on standby in Alabama. President Eisenhower used them at Little Rock. In each case there was presidential reluctance about employing them.

In each case rioting began before the President decided to use troops.

EISENHOWER even went so far in July 1957 as to tell reporters he could imagine no circumstances "that would ever induce me to send federal troops... to enforce the orders of a court."

This was an amazing statement to make at a time when Southern states were showing resistance to U.S. court orders to integrate public schools. Troops are a president's ace-in-the-hole to enforce court orders if he has to.

Eisenhower threw his ace away for no apparent good reason. Within three months Arkansas segregationist rioters kept Negro children from a Little Rock school which a federal court had ordered integrated. Not until then did Eisenhower use troops.

In 1962 a federal court ordered James H. Meredith, Negro, admitted to the University of Mississippi. State officials refused to comply. Mobs blocked U.S. marshals trying to take Meredith into the school.

KENNEDY simply sent Meredith back with more marshals. Again there was rioting which lasted for hours and killed two men. Not until then did Kennedy send in troops. There were no more riots. In the Little Rock and Mississippi cases the presidents used troops to carry out court orders. The Constitution says that a president "shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

But no court order was involved in the mass demonstrations in Birmingham last week. Negroes were demanding equal treatment with whites. The demonstrations were not riots although they were getting increasingly explosive. Because there was no court order and no rioting Kennedy was not under compulsion to employ troops.

BUT IF he had warned he would send in troops if rioting started—as it eventually did—there might not subsequently have been any riots or any provocation which brought them on.

While the whole situation was still unpredictable last week—before the rioting started—Kennedy told his news conference:

"I've made it clear since assuming the presidency that I would use all available means to protect human rights and uphold the law of the land."

But then, while acknowledging the Birmingham problem was still not settled, he said the demonstrations involved no federal law. The lawless elements in Birmingham might have concluded from that Kennedy lacked legal authority for using troops to keep order.

AT WEEK'S end criminals bombed Birmingham Negro dwellings. Negroes rioted against white police. Negroes and police were injured. It was too late then to use troops to prevent disorders. There were none handy.

The rioting ended, perhaps temporarily, with the danger of exploding again at any time. Then Kennedy sent troops into Alabama.

Berle Is Berle Is Berle

NEW YORK (AP)—The big fellow waved a seven-inch cigar and almost set on fire Olivia de Havilland, seated at the next dining room table.

"I predict it will bring in $100 million to $125 million, the greatest gross of all time," boomed Milton Berle. "It is the greatest comedy classic of the last 50 years. It will never wear out. The perpetuity of it is fantastic."

"Why they destroy 38 brand new cars in it."

"Why the screen writer, William Rose, got $350,000 and a percentage of the picture for a two-paragraph letter outlining the idea—the most ever paid for a comedy script."

The film is Stanley Kramer's "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad," a multimillion dollar production starring Berle and 14 others. They include Spencer Tracy, Ethel Merman, Sid Caesar, Dorcas Provine, Edie Adams, Mickey Rooney, Jonathan Winters and Jimmy Durante.

"What impressed you most about the film?" asked an innocent bystander.

"I don't know—I haven't seen it yet," said Berle.

Nearing 55, Uncle Miltie is celebrating his 50th year in show business.

"As my wife remarked, it took me 50 years to be a star overnight," he said.

His friends say time has changed the irrepressible comic, turned him into a calmer, more relaxed man. Maybe so. But when Uncle Miltie is—that's still the center of the stage. "I've cut down from 17 cigars a day to 10," he said, "and I like to spend more time at home with my family. I still like to do two films a year, a couple of TV spots and eight weeks in night clubs."

"I'll never give up the night clubs because of the feeling of rapport you get working with a live audience. I love it."

Although he says he's tired of traveling, he'll spend nine weeks this summer touring with a tent show in the leading role of "Top Banana." The big appeal to him here again is a new kind of live audience.

But he has no regrets that his days as "Mr. Television," a title he held for 10 years, are over.

"I've had my share of television," he remarked. "And I'm well taken care of financially."

"In 1951 I signed a 30-year exclusive network contract with NBC under which they'll pay me until 1981—I have to dignify money—an amount that runs to six figures a year."

That, of course, means a minimum $3 million during the life of

To Your Good Health

Some Youngsters Have After-School Headaches

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 16, can't take vitamin pills. She comes home from school with a terrific headache that extends into the neck.

I've tried different brands and she gets similar reactions from all of them. What's your opinion?

—MRS. J. B.

I don't see why you jump to the conclusion that vitamin pills are to blame, but you can test the theory yourself. Just stop giving them. If the headaches continue, as I dare say they will, you'll know you have to look elsewhere for the trouble. (Be sure the girl has a well-balanced diet, and she'll get all the vitamins she needs.)

Then explore a number of the commoner causes for youngsters having these after-school headaches:

1—Have her eyes checked? It may be that she can't see well enough, and the tension from trying brings the headache.

2—Is she under some other form of emotional tension? Disturbed over something at school? Are conditions peaceful at home, or is there frequent conflict that makes her dread being there?

3—What about her posture? If it is poor, it may be putting undue strain on muscles and nerves of the neck. This is not to be overlooked in such headaches, especially when the ache extends into the neck.

4—Does she eat an adequate lunch? (And a substantial breakfast?) If she skips on breakfast and then has one of those pop-and-candy-bar "lunches," she could be having a "hungry headache."

The "hungry headache" occurs, physiologically, when the blood sugar level falls too low. In such cases, adequate breakfasts and lunches are the answer.

Vitamins don't cause headaches. Vitamins are the natural content of proper foods in the diet, and the pills are only a mixture of these same materials.

Dear Dr. Molner: My wife has gastritis. Is there a cure for it?

—D. H.

Gastritis is inflammation of the stomach and a cure depends on the cause. Most gastritis is temporary. It is caused by spoiled food or something toxic or irritating, such as a highly-spiced diet or alcohol.

If the trouble continues, the most frequent cause is irritation from alcohol. Moderation in eating helps, along with a bland, non-irritating diet. Some medicines can cause stomach irritation. Aspirin and certain antibiotics, for instance, are better tolerated if taken with food or a glass of milk.

Dear Dr. Molner: For many years I have had an odor which comes from my nose, and have been told to use a salt solution with a syringe. I came through ordinary physical checkups with flying colors. My dentist has x-rayed my teeth and finds nothing wrong. My wife and friends tell me the odor is worse just before I eat.—J.S.

My suggestion is a thorough examination by an ear-nose-throat specialist in search of a chronic infection somewhere in that area. A condition called ozema will cause this. It is a matter of retained secretions resulting from infection in the nose or sinuses.

Count your calories the easy way! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Calorie Chart," write Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim

Not-So-Idle Gestures

I was once the innocent cause of a murder trial verdict being set aside and remanded for a new trial.

I didn't even know that I was implicated in the episode until after the appeals court had ruled on the case and sent it back to the lower court.

JUDGE ASA WALDEN, presiding, was a good friend of mine. He was a big fellow, red-faced and portly, always friendly and chatty.

He was sitting in this particular trial. The case must have had some sensational overtones beyond that of an ordinary murder trial. The courtroom was thronged with spectators. Inside the railing, all of the seats were filled by attorneys and officials.

I was late reaching the courtroom, and the trial was already under way. Usually there was a seat for me inside the railing close enough to the bench and the witness box to hear and see all that went on.

I STOOD in the doorway, looking over the crowded room.

Judge Walden happened to see me. He gestured with his hands, grimaced and shrugged. All of which was clear enough to me—he was expressing regret there was no seat available. He had no intention at all, I am positive, of casting any discredit on the witness on the stand, the defendant at the bar, or any other person or phase of the trial.

The trial ground on to its finale. The jury found the defendant guilty, fixing his punishment at life imprisonment. He appealed the case.

HIS APPEAL was based primarily on the contention that "in the course of the trial, the judge was seen to wink and smile at a bystander in the courtroom... implying he placed no credence in the defendant's version of the incident." The appeals court reversed the case and remanded it for a retrial. On retrial, before another jury and long after the crime itself had been committed the defendant was given a five year sentence.

Judge Walden was furious.

Some months later, he was trying another case somewhat under similar conditions. Again I was late in the court and again there was no seat.

THE JUDGE, his face frozen, wiggled a finger at me. I approached the bench. He leaned over and whispered:

"Sorry there's no seat, Sam. If it was not for that blankety-blank (naming the defense attorney) you could sit up here on the bench. If I let you do that the blankety-blank would reverse me sure as shooting."

I thanked the judge, tiptoed back to the railing and waited until a recess. Then I got a seat and the trial moved on. There was no reversal this time.

A New Matinee Idol—From Russia

It's a long time between matinee idols. Devotees still put flowers on Valentino's grave. But what follows is a little note of warning to fellow citizens who plan to attend performances of Britain's Royal Ballet when it quits New York and begins its cross-country tour. They will do well to carry smelling salts and restoratives with them. There is a new matinee idol among us.

RECENTLY I WENT to the Metropolitan Opera House to see Dame Margot Fonteyn, the Royal's great ballerina, and Rudolf Nureyev, the Soviet defector from the Leningrad Ballet, dance the new ballet, "Margarite and Armand." At its conclusion, I thought I would surely have to apply nothing less than artificial respiration to a half-dozed swooning woman—some young and some not so young—my notion of the opera house.

SERIOUS BALLETOMANES in the West see in Nureyev another Nijinsky. But the girls, of all ages, obviously visualize him as a cross between Valentino and Elvis Presley. I may be barred for life from ballet for dropping in the name of E. Presley. But when Nureyev's hypnotic eyes gaze through the overflow of his long bob, there's a little of Elvis there—even if my ballet card is cancelled.

"More than any other male dancer in ages, Nureyev has socked 'em," a member of the ballet entourage said the other day, in trying to assess the Russian's impact on women. "He has a message for 'em and they get it."

HIS LONG, rather untidy dark blond bob has already inflamed the hairdressing industry. Charles of the Ritz has just announced the creation of "The Lord Byron Bob" for girls' and dedicated it to Nureyev.

When someone had the audacity to ask

Nureyev why he wore his present hairdo, he snapped what is undeniable: "It's my hair!" He boasts that he is of Tartar ancestry, and those associated with him are inclined to agree and in more ways than one.

"I'm an Oriental" is one of the dancer's favorite explanations of his temperamental ("terribly") self.

"HE'S COMPLETELY his own man," said an associate. "He likes life a lot. And he's not a monk."

This young man who defected from the U.S.S.R. to join the Royal Ballet has had the same effect on England's women as on America's. "He slayed 'em," says a member of the company.

In "Margarite and Armand," a ballet interpretation of "The Lady of the Camellias" by Alexander Dumas fils, Nureyev looks Byron and six feet tall when, in fact, the dancer stands five feet seven inches in his ballet slippers. The ballet proved a sensation in London and something of a tour de force in New York, with its emphasis on the pure coin that is implicit in the story.

NEVER HAVE I seen such mugging in ballet as that of Dame Margot and Nureyev in this story of a lady of the night with heart of gold. It goes without saying that both danced magnificently when the script called for dancing. And, fortunately, mugging becomes Dumas' story.

Dame Margot suffered cruelly, clenched her hands and died with great pathos, while Nureyev's expressive face and green eyes mirrored passion, desire, tenderness, hate, compassion and finally anguish love in a way that put the torch to impressionable ladies in the audience.

Without doubt, Nureyev is the greatest Russian expert since cavir.

Freedom And Formosa

WASHINGTON — Among the nauseous nonsense preached by postwar liberals was the cliché slogan about Liberty being "indivisible" and the consequent necessity to secure our own freedom by extending its equivalent around the world.

HOW MUCH mischief and chaos has resulted from such idiocy on the part of articulate but unsophisticated publicists we may never know. Africa will probably be lost to Civilization for the remainder of this century unless its leaders recant the fact that freedom is as variable and divisible as a rainbow. It seems likely that India and Pakistan in South Asia will stumble and tumble along, like an uncongenial married couple in a three-legged race, because the peoples in that part of the globe don't expect much of life, in freedom or otherwise, and will await perfectionism in the Hereafter.

EVERYWHERE IN ASIA, with one notable exception, and all over Latin America, the dominant American policy has been, in desire if not in deed, for a totalitarianism in freedoms. Thus the State Department was never happy over Rhee's nationalist dictatorship in Korea, and has been increasingly grumpy about Diem's rulership of South Vietnam.

The exception to all this, and a happy example of planting a mustard seed instead of trying to transplant a forest oak, is the Republic of China on Formosa. Presidents Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy in turn have seemingly blundered into wisdom on Taiwan. None of these Administrations planned things quite the way they have turned out. More luck than logic has been the rule. Because of peculiar circumstances, the U. S. A. has not only tolerated but heavily financed and gone to the brink of war in the name of partial, variegated, laminated, racialized, militarized but nonetheless genuine and increasing democracy in Formosa.

IT IS A MOST remarkable exercise in segregated liberties which, by all the canons of liberalism, should not happen. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is an unconstitutional ruler by Western standards. He heads a dynasty in which his only logical successors seem to be his sons and war lords.

But the difference between Formosa and other propped-up postwar regimes is that democracy exists there by division. There is none at the top, but there is plenty at the bottom. Since 1950 there has been progressive, if limited, self-government in the provinces. What has happened in the Republic of China is essentially what the American Declaration of Independence proclaimed—not totalitarian liberty, but "consent of the governed." The Taiwanese, invaded and subjugated by the Generalissimo, have consented to be ruled in national and international affairs, but have achieved an optimum, not a maximum, of freedom by local elections.

IN THE POPULAR election of April 28th, which chose the Provincial Assembly, the Taiwan native sons completely overcame the Chinese overlords. In the new assembly 69 of the 74 seats were won by persons born in Taiwan. It was an election that pulled a 70 per cent turnout and chose representatives in 21 counties and municipalities.

In contrast to the lands where freedom is held "indivisible," though seldom accomplished, the Republic has prospered by just about every sociological and economic yardstick. Schools, junior colleges, colleges and universities abound in scholars. Public health has reduced the death rate from epidemics to a near-minimum. A recent U. N. industrial survey of 40 nations puts Taiwan third behind Japan and Israel in output of goods. A survey by the First National Bank of New York puts Taiwan second in economic development behind Japan and ahead of the Philippines, with the rest of the Far East trailing.

PERHAPS THERE is no formula here. What suits Taiwan might not suit other problem nations. But the general principle seems valid. Total freedom isn't for everybody.

OLD BELIEVERS: The United States is providing haven for 200 to 250 members of a religious sect whose descendants left Russia for Turkey 300 years ago.

The group, the Old Believers sect, settled on the shores of Lake Manyas after splitting from the Russian Orthodox Church in a 17th-century dispute over church rituals.

Since 1959, they have been under pressure from the Soviet Union to return and about 1,000 have done so. Those remaining in Turkey appealed for permission to enter the United States and the Tolstoy Foundation of New York has undertaken their sponsorship and resettlement.

Park Entrance Lanes Changed

A change in the pattern of traffic islands and lanes at the entrance to the City Park on Wasson Road, is being considered by the Big Spring Department of Public Works.

Director Ernest Lillard said the five directions of travel at the intersection posed a complicated problem.

"The sand bags put down recently on a trial basis have not worked out," he said. "We are going to try a new pattern until we get something that will prevent congestion and accidents at the park entrance. The bags will be used until we can get traffic moving to the best advantage, and then concrete islands and dividers will be installed."

The intersection sends traffic two directions on Wasson Road, into the park, to Cosden Country Club, to Coronado Hills, and to the drive-in across the street from the park entrance.

Opening lead: Eight of ♠.
If we were grading South's performance in today's hand, we would have to award him an A, for he handled himself commendably in both the bidding and play.

When North heard his partner enter the auction freely with a bid of three diamonds, he envisioned big things and in order to make a slam try without committing the partner, he made a cue bid of four clubs which announces first round control and implies a fit for partner's suit. South showed his secondary suit and, when North confirmed diamond support, South was fully warranted in proceeding to six diamonds.

West led the eight of clubs which was taken by the dummy's ace. Declarer observed that, if the spades divided four-three, he could obtain two heart discards in that suit, and the contract would then hinge on picking up the queen of diamonds. His first play was to cash the ace of spades and trump a spade in the closed hand.

He was now ready to attack the trump suit. There is no problem in diamonds unless there are three to the queen in one hand. From the bidding, it appeared that East was more apt to be short in trumps than his partner, so South played the ace from his hand and was duly rewarded when his right hand opponent showed out. The proven finesse could now be taken thru West and two more rounds of diamonds cleared up the trumps.

The king of spades was cashed and, when the queen fell, dummy's eight became established since the nine and ten had appeared in the earlier rounds. Three spade discards were now available on which South was able to dispose of all clubs which announces first round control and implies a fit for partner's suit. South showed he claimed all 13 tricks.

Spending Program Seems Paying Off For G. Britain

LONDON (AP)—Britain's cautious advance into economic expansion through more deficit spending appears to be paying off with a modest boom in popularity for Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government.

The national budget of five weeks ago has pumped spending power into the British economy. Public opinion polls record a slight upswing in the fortunes of the prime minister and his ruling Conservative party—although all are agreed that Macmillan would lose a national election called right now.

Stock markets have been cheerful, the pound has been stable in world markets and unemployment figures have slumped. There are optimistic government predictions for an improvement in exports and consumer demand at home.

Taking a buoyant view of the trends, Macmillan recently declared: "The sun is beginning to shine again. Britain is on the move."

His analysis was greeted with derision by Laborites. They assert that British economy policy is being conducted in fits and starts, that too little has been done to get industry booming and that the British welfare state is slowly being whittled away.

The British budgetary deficit this year runs to 687 million pounds—$1.92 billion—mainly because the treasury is handing the public an estimated total of 592 million pounds—$1.66 billion—in tax concessions. This calculated deficit runs a good deal higher than for several years.

The Conservatives have been in office 12 years. By law, Macmillan must call a national election by October 1964. Clearly he wants to do so on a record of economic expansion. Virtually every measure in the national budget unveiled in April by the chancellor of the exchequer, Reginald Maudling, aimed at this.

Maudling put more money in the pocket of the man in the street, increased cash incentives for industry to settle in areas of heavy unemployment, and generally boosted tax-free allowances over the whole range of new industrial building.

Many British authorities expected the chancellor to go further—but he obviously had in mind the $225 million he already had given away by slashing the sales tax on automobiles and other items from 45 to 25 per cent.

These measures are intended to help Britain strike an annual productivity increase of 4 per cent. Last year the figure was 2 per cent.

Translated in terms of the American economy—about seven times the size of Britain's—the tax concessions worked out slightly higher than the $10-billion three-year tax reduction plan sent to Congress by President Kennedy last January.

The deficit was estimated to be equivalent to a U.S. cash deficit of about $13.5 billion.

Yugoslavia's Odd System Is Undergoing Mergers

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslavia's strange free-enterprise communism is going through a period of business mergers. Many industries face either merger or bankruptcy. They can no longer look to government subsidy for survival.

This situation stems from Yugoslavia's unique form of communism—based on public ownership but with individual or corporate initiative.

The system, condemned by strictly Marxist Moscow, established "the enterprise" as the basic producing or commercial unit of the economy. The system demands, in the most capitalistic manner, that the enterprise succeed financially or else.

For example, a Belgrade hotel is an independent enterprise. It must sink or swim on its own merits. If it can't pay bills it will, theoretically, become a parking lot.

Ownership of such an enterprise is cloudy. By Yugoslav legal standards it is ownerless, simply in the public domain. Actually it is owned by the City of Belgrade. At least it would take a city council decision to tear it down and appoint a manager for the parking lot.

With foreign visitors swarming into Yugoslavia—for business in its cities and pleasure on the Dalmatian Coast—the hotel is likely to face this problem, but plenty of other businesses are facing it. President Tito said in a speech a year ago:

"There exist in our country enterprises which will have to be closed because their products, whose number is too great, cannot be sold. Too many similar enterprises cannot survive. Every community wants an enterprise, but they fail to take the possibility of profit into account or what will happen if the products of many enterprises add up to overproduction. We have to pay now for a misunderstanding of that problem.

Tito complained that more than 500 Yugoslav export enterprises were competing with each other for limited orders from abroad. Since he raised the issue the number has dropped to 254.

Similar problems are evident in other industries—textiles and shipping, as examples.

Contracts Awarded On Lamesa Schools

LAMESA (SC)—Trustees of Lamesa Independent School District have awarded contracts on two construction projects here.

L. A. Waller, Midland, was low bidder on a job to add four new classrooms at South Elementary School. His bid for the job was $27,796.

Eiland Lumber Co. of Lamesa was low on an addition to the school business offices with a bid of $6,478. Several others bid on both projects.
