Supreme Court Knocks Out State Cafe Segregation

vide "equal protection of the laws" to all its citizens. The amendment says nothing about the right of an individual to discriminate and the Supreme Court in 1883 held the equal protection guarantee bars discrimination only through action by a state. The two cases from Alabama arose from sit-in demonstrations on March 31, 1960 in five department stores in Birmingham. TEN ARRESTED Ten student demonstrators were arrested on trespass charges after seeking food service at various dining areas. Each was fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail under a city ordinance making it an offense for any person to go or remain on the premises of another after being warned not to do so. The city also has an ordinance requiring restaurant operators and others to segregate races. Counsel for the demonstrators told the high court the ordinance was but a part of Alabama's "massive policy" of segregation, but an attorney for the city said he knew of no instance of its enforcement. In the other Alabama case, two Negro ministers were convicted of inciting some of the demonstrators who were convicted of trespass on the March 31, 1960 demonstrations. The Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth was sentenced to 180 days in jail and fined $100. The Rev. Charles Billups got 30 days and $25 fine. CITY ORDINANCES The convictions were under a city ordinance providing, "It shall be unlawful for any person to incite, or aid or abet, in the violation of any law or ordinance of the city, or any provision of state law." Counsel for the ministers told the Supreme Court that the only evidence on record was that Shuttlesworth called for volunteers for sit-in demonstrations and promised to get them out of jail if arrested. Billups drove some of the demonstrators to a meeting at which demonstrations were discussed. Warren's opinion in the case of the two Negro ministers said that neither man incited or aided and abetted in any crime and therefore their conviction had to be set aside. Warren declared, "It is generally recognized that there can be no conviction for aiding and abetting someone to do an innocent act."

NOT STATE ACTION Counsel for Greenville argued in reply that acts of a private individual taken pursuant to custom are not state action barred by the 14th Amendment. The attorney said the manager had the right to eject anyone and could use the state trespass law if he did not wish to take the law into his own hands with possible violence resulting. Warren's decision in this case had this to say, "The evidence establishes beyond doubt" that the Kress store management's decision to exclude petitioners—the Negroes—from the lunch counter was made because they were Negroes.

Sheriff Sent To Round Up Absent Jurors

More than 40 veniremen who failed to answer when their names were called at the start of a projected murder trial today were being sought by officers. Attachments were issued by Judge Ralph Caton in 118th District Court. He said the 63 veniremen of a 125 special venire panel would be insufficient to secure a jury. The state, through Dist. Atty. Gil Jones, had recommended that attachments be issued. Warren Burnett, defense attorney, suggested going ahead with the members available, and if the lot ran out before a jury was seated, to draw names from the wheel for talesmen. Judge Caton then issued the order to the sheriff to find the missing venire members and have them in court as soon as possible. The trial of that of Jerry Lee Parker charged with murder in connection with the death of Stanley Williams, 90-year-old retired farmer last Aug. 26. Williams died of a beating received when an intruder broke into his home here.

Parker was present in the court room Monday morning. Also present in was Roosevelt Carter, 27, under two indictments for murder with malice. His case has been docketed for trial this week—making use, it is planned, of the same special venire in the Parker case. Dee John Davis, Carter's attorney, said he understood that Carter was considering entering a plea of guilty. The case, however, would still require a jury.

CRMWD Bids Being Studied

Colorado River Municipal Water District officials took under advisement Monday bids on microwave equipment for pump station automatic controls. The General Electric bid the apparent low bid of $114,158 on a section from the Martin County field to Big Spring, also on a leg from Big Spring to the Morgan Creek Station in northeast Howard County for $13,334. If both sections are let, the combined bid would be $127,492. This was well under the $21,967 submitted for the combined bid of Motorola. Collins Radio of Dallas had a combined bid of $40,612 and Lenhardt Electric of Dallas had $40,673. Most of the equipment was located on a 280-ft. tower at Martin County Station, 140 at Big Spring and 250 at Morgan Creek. Supervisory equipment to go with the microwave has been held in abeyance until letting of the carrier equipment contract. It will approximate $14,000. In addition, about $5,000 will be required for towers, it was estimated. Present for the opening were Ward Hall, H. W. Wright and P. C. Harbour, board members.

Plans for a booster trip to publicize the annual rodeo will be made final at a meeting slated for 10 a. m. Wednesday in the conference room at the Chamber of Commerce. It will be a joint meeting of the agricultural and convention and tourist committees of the Chamber. Tentative plans are for a swing through the east Saturday, covering Coahoma, Colorado City, Roscoe, Sweetwater, Roby, Rotan and Snyder. Another cavalcade of cars leaving Big Spring Monday will travel west and northwest through Stanton, Midland, Odessa, Andrews, Lamesa and Ackerly. "We want as many cars as possible in the cavalcade," Chapman said. "After departure times have been set, persons interested in making the trip should contact us for further information." Several young ladies will accompany the boosters to distribute literature about the rodeo at the various stops. A western band is also being sought for the trips, although none has been obtained yet.

Finishing Touches On Big Money Bill

AUSTIN (AP)—Legislative budget markers put the finishing touches on a record $3.1 billion appropriations bill at 4 a. m. today, then sat back and waited for the tedious job of printing and assembling to be completed. All that remained to be printed on the bill was a short section dealing with funds for higher education. Reps. W. S. Healy of Paducah said the bill would be assembled and put on House members and senators desks "late today, or at the latest by early Tuesday." Healy said a vote on the measure "could come at any time after the bill is in members' hands." "There will be a few opposed to spending and trying to make a record, but I think the conference committee report will be accepted," he said. The spending bill takes care of state spending needs for the 1964 and 1965 fiscal years, beginning Sept. 1.

Mrs. Daley Is Typical Modern Grandmother

Capitola-by-the-Sea is a small resort city in California, situated on the north side of Monterey Bay. Most of the year the breeze from the Pacific is gentle, and the beaches are bright with bathers, oiled for the sun, and the green of the countryside is broken by the blooms of begonia.

Here are the beach cottages of retired couples, summer homes

Story Time

Twila and Robbie Daley are more interested in grandmother than the story she is reading. The youngsters are the children of Capt. and Mrs. Robert Daley who are stationed at Webb AFB.

of city dwellers and accommodation for tourists.

Capitola is the permanent home of Mrs. Will F. Daley, now a visitor in Big Spring. Mrs. Daley is the mother of Capt. Robert Daley, 29-A Albrook, and is enjoying pampering her grandchildren, Robert William, 4, and Twila Veva, 5.

In other years it was traditional to "go to grandmother's" but times and customs change. Mrs. Daley is typical of the modern grandmother, free of responsibility, who enjoys traveling and finds it easier to go to the children. This is the third time she has flown here to visit during the past year. Last week, she just bought a one way ticket, with return plans indefinite. Capt. Daley's next assignment will be overseas, so she'd like to be with the children as long as possible.

Mrs. Daley was reared and married in Rawlins, Wyo. Her husband was a tax commissioner for what was then the Sinclair Oil and Gas Co.

They purchased a title office there in 1935 and continued the work until retirement in 1957. Daley served as mayor for several years but Mrs. Daley said that when she retired she made it complete, discontinuing many things that she had felt dutybound to do in earlier years.

Since being widowed in 1958, Mrs. Daley has kept busy enjoying her life with other members of her family who have also retired and are making their home in Capitola.

'To Dye... Not To Dye' Is Important Decision

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD—"To dye or not to dye is a question women of all ages are asking me," Janis Paige confessed. "My answer is yes, if you need a lift to your personality. My answer is no, if you are doing it for kicks.

"When I was asked to dye my hair a flashy red for a part in a Broadway play, I had no idea to what extent this was going to revolutionize my life. I found that I was getting more attention from men—from a type of man that never looked at me when I was brunette. The clothes that I had liked before fought with my hair.

I had to buy new make-up. I had to play down everything—even my speaking voice.

"For awhile this was exciting. It was my trademark. Taxi drivers, waiters, people I didn't know remembered me and used to call out, 'Hello, Janis.' This had never happened before I had crazy red hair, but soon I gave it up because IT WAS WEARING ME," said Janis, who is a blonde in MGM's "Follow the Boys."

"If you are growing older and want to cover gray or if you are young and searching for a personality change, you can do it with hair coloring. But try to choose a shade that is flattering and natural-looking. And try to keep your hair in good condition.

"My hair has never broken off because I use a conditioner. I searched until I found one that would give my hair a lift between dyes. I find a heat cap helps enormously. I wet my hair with a protein conditioner, wrap it in a plastic wrap and put on my electric heating cap. I leave it for 10 minutes. Then I rinse out the conditioner and my hair is ready for setting. You may think your hair will stand bleaching and dyeing without treatments, but it won't, and you may find out your mistake too late.

"They say a workman is no better than his tools," Janis observed. "I think this applies to hair dyeing. If you are going to do it yourself, go to a professional for instructions. There are many hair coloring schools whose instructors will be happy to answer your questions."

YOUR HAIR CAN BE LOVELY

Cooper Saw Tiny Details Of The Earth

By JOHN BARBOUR Associated Press Science Writer. CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Gordon Cooper's space tale of his whirlwind world tour is a study in contrasts. He saw the bamboo-curtained heart of Red China. He nearly saw his own home, hidden by trees, in Houston, Tex. He saw things as colossal as the Himalayas, and things as puny as houses in India, trucks, a boat, a train. He awoke startled from his space sleep, forgetting for a moment where he was. Yet he had the greatest presence of mind in flying his spacecraft back to earth through the roaring and dangerous moments of re-entry. But somehow in the telling of Sunday's news conference, in Cooper's own relaxed and light style, it all seemed to come out the same. FIRST SIGNAL The first signal of trouble with his automatic pilot was the flashing green of a warning light. "I thought maybe at first I'd just ignore it, but I decided maybe I better not," he said. "I was afraid it wouldn't go away. "I found that the re-entry into the earth's denser atmosphere was easier on the first portion than what we had been practicing in procedures training with the computers. Everything went very well on it." With the calm diagnostic tones of an engineer, he reassured the pressiveness of each element of his flight. Occasionally his humor caught the situation. One chore aboard was to transfer to separate containers urine samples collected at various stages of the flight — for later analysis. It would help, he said, to have larger fittings on the transfer pump. It took half an orbit — something like 45 minutes — to complete one pumping operation. Moisture Conditions Over State Spotty During Week

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—Moisture conditions were spotty over Texas this past week. Rain is critically needed in the Panhandle; parts of the South and Rolling Plains; and in western, central, coastal and eastern counties.

Within these areas, some counties had adequate moisture with crop and pasture conditions good, but general rains would greatly improve the situation, said John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Everything needs rain in the Panhandle. Moisture is very short and most dryland wheat has been abandoned. Range conditions are below average and moisture is badly needed to stimulate range plant growth. Cotton is being planted and is coming up to a good stand. Onions and potatoes are developing nicely. These crops are mostly on irrigated land. Conditions are considerably better in long dry South Texas. All counties except those in the Coastal Bend got excellent rains. The Coastal Bend is critically dry. Crops have taken on new life and are looking good, but cotton insects are increasing. Canteloupes are being harvested in the upper Rio Grande Valley; pastures are improving and cattle are in fair to poor condition.

In South Central Texas, the need for rain on ranges and crops is critical. The condition of livestock has dropped to poor to fair. Harvesting of a light flax crop, 7 to 8 bushels an acre, is on.

Crops and pastures in the upper Gulf Coast area have reached the critical stage moisturewise. A hot sun has complicated the drought conditions. Loss estimates on all crops except rice are high. Corn, cotton and grain sorghums are suffering insect damage. Pastures are short and turning brown, cattle are showing the effects of poor grazing and stockmen have begun to cull their herds. Rice and pecan prospects are good; watermelons are making slow growth; and the peach and plum crops will be light. Rain is urgently needed.

Moisture is short in East Texas where most ranges are below average. Livestock were in about normal condition. No screwworm cases were reported.

Moisture is adequate in North-east Texas. Corn and cotton planting is about over. All crops are making good growth; tomatoes are setting fruit; sweet potatoes are being planted; pecans are being sprayed; and peach prospects are good. Pastures are average and livestock are in good condition.

Moisture is adequate in North

Central Texas where wheat and oats are ripening. Ranges and livestock are in good condition. Some cotton is up to good stands, other fields are being replanted due to washouts. Corn and sorghums are making good growth. Moisture in Central Texas was generally short. Oats are maturing fast and prospects are only fair. Some fields are being grazed out or baled for hay. Corn and sorghums made some progress but need rain. Cotton is growing. Insect poisons are being applied. Pecans have set a good crop. Pastures are green and livestock conditions are about normal.

Moisture in West Central Texas varies from short to adequate. Cotton and sorghum planting has increased in favored areas. Pastures are responding to rain. Wheat harvesting will begin in 10 days but the crop will be light. Livestock are in fair to good condition with feeding continuing in some counties. Sheep shearing is at the peak. Some lambs are moving to market.

Spotted rains have helped grass and dryland crops in far West Texas but general rains are needed. Cotton is growing and grains are ripening. Livestock were in good to fair condition.

More rain fell in the Rolling Plains but western counties need more. Wheat harvesting has started. Cotton is being replanted in washout areas.

Most dryland areas in the South Plains are short on rain. About 85 per cent of the irrigated cotton acreage and 35 per cent of the dryland cotton was planted. Hot, dry winds are retarding cotton. Sorghum planting was in full swing on irrigated land. Wheat is maturing rapidly but crop prospects are poor. Ranges and livestock are in average condition.

Woman Lands Plane After Husband Dies

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A woman's feat of landing a plane after her husband died at the controls, although she had never piloted one before, came to light Sunday.

It happened to Mrs. Charles Tomlin, 52, of Sacramento, Calif., last Friday.

Leland Warner Jr., U.S. consul at Tampico, related these details: As Tomlin, 63, was flying his private plane near the airport at Poza Rica, south of Tampico, he suffered a fatal heart attack.

Mrs. Tomlin took over and brought the plane down without damage.

In the plane with the Tomlins were Mr. and Mrs. James Thornton, also from Sacramento. The two couples had flown to Mexico on vacation.

The Thorntons and Mrs. Tomlin returned home Sunday. The body of Tomlin was being sent to Sacramento for burial.

Waitress Killed

MIDLAND (AP)—Miss Joyce Ann Gray, 23, Odessa waitress, was killed shortly after midnight as her car skidded at a curve, knocked down a gas meter and a fire plug, and hit a telephone pole. The accident was in north-west Midland on Texas 31. She was alone.

Film Of Star

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Filming of a movie about the life of Mexican singer and actor Pedro Infante will begin shortly. It will be based on a biography by his wife and will include numerous scenes from his movies.

Ability and necessity dwell near each other. —Pythagoras

DAILY GUIDE — While today is favorable for little things like shopping, visiting the beauty salon, adding little touches of beauty here and there, the general overall pattern is one of potential danger.

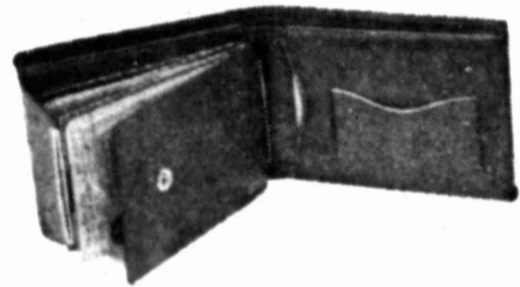

These are hectic May days so if you are in the midst of problems, do not neglect to keep a sharp lookout on all sides. This is the month when everything which has been hanging fire, is suddenly sparked to break out into flame. Let us hope that there is ability in the leaders to handle the situations expertly and decisively. Any hesitating or trying to write this off with soothing words, is sure to bring disaster. This is the time to act, if you have any decision to be made. Be sure you have things well under control, but do not fumble around or wait to see what might happen. You make it happen the way you want it to go. Now is the time to put your ability to the test.

This advice is particularly aimed at Aquarians, Leos, Taurians, Scorpios, or those with planets in their horoscopes in these signs. President Kennedy has three planets in Taurus, and one in Scorpio, and one in Aquarius. This is a month of decision and action for him.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, TAURUS! You have a few items which may need to be straightened out this week and next, but in June a new freedom of movement can give you a lift.

Opportunities to express yourself and your talents can come so quickly you may not be entirely ready. (Taurians are rather slow in their reactions.) Better get things cleared away so you can enjoy the exciting and stimulating conditions which can begin to change the picture for you for years ahead.

Do not neglect career matters; you still need to work hard to keep your place in life, but some of the strain should lighten.

A Gift For The Governor

Gov. John B. Connally, left, admires a Mexican serape given to him by Gov. Praxedes Giner Duran of the State of Chihuahua, Mexico. Gov. Duran and other top officials of Mexico visited with Gov. Connally and attended a joint session of the Texas Legislature. They were in this country to attend the 18th general assembly of the International Good Neighbor Council. A likeness of Gov. Connally was hand-woven into the material of the attractive serape.

Rockefeller Needs Study Of Situation

EDITOR'S NOTE—New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller soon will be reassessing the political situation. What can he be expected to do if his pollsters tell him that his recent marriage to a divorcee has damaged his chances for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination? How has the marriage served to spotlight GOP difficulties over the religious issue? Jack Bell, veteran AP political writer, analyzes the situation.

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—An intensive reassessment of the political situation will be the order of the day for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller when he returns from his honeymoon.

What his private pollsters tell him about the political effect of his marriage to divorcee Margaretta Fidler Murphy could have a direct bearing on whether the governor plunges into an active drive for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination or merely coasts along awaiting developments.

If the indications are that his marriage has built up resistance to his nomination, the governor can be expected to tread water for a while until a new canvass can be made this fall. If relatively clear sailing is in prospect, he may step up his campaigning.

BELIEVES IN POLLS
Rockefeller is a great believer in polls. He also is a man who plays his politics close to his vest, seldom confiding his plans in advance even to party allies. For example, he told Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., only 20 minutes before the ceremony that he was going to be married.

Although Rockefeller has made all of the familiar motions of a candidate for the nomination, his remarriage after being divorced last year by his wife of 31 years has injected a new element of doubt about his intentions.

Buddhist Priests Try Exorcizing Bothersome Spirits

HONG KONG (AP)—Buddhist priests and monks performed solemn rites of exorcism Sunday in attempts to pacify what employees claim are spirits that haunt two century-old buildings at Murray Barracks.

Government authorities enlisted the Buddhists' help after employees of the rating and valuation offices at the barracks reported strange incidents.

They said drawings, blueprints and equipment were tampered with when no one was supposed to have been in the building.

The former army barracks was used by the Japanese as a detention center during their World War II occupation of Hong Kong. It is said that some persons were tortured to death and others committed suicide there during the occupation.

Fifty six Buddhist priests and monks walked around the barracks. They clapped scarlet gourds, chanted, and shook wet willow leaves over courtyards and pavements.

Weightless Drops Of Water Roamed In Space Capsule

ABOARD USS KEARSARGE (AP)—Weightless drops of water bounced around in astronaut Gordon Cooper's capsule.
The drops leaked from Cooper's drinking flask. They were considered annoying rather than dangerous although they sometimes obscured the instrument panel.
Cooper used a handkerchief to catch the water and wipe his face. He suggested future spacemen carry spare handkerchiefs.

TOKYO (AP)—Preliminary investigations show the prize Chinese freighter which sank May 1 probably hit a rock. Red China says. Rescued crewmen had charged the ship was torpedoed.

Writer Gets A Peek At Red China

EDITOR'S NOTE — Richard P. Lister is a 48-year-old British writer who has just come out of Red China following a three-week British Travel Agency tour. Here's his inside report on his first impressions of a country long barred to U.S. reporters. First of a series.

By RICHARD P. LISTER

PEKING (AP)—It's 7,000 miles from London to Red China. In 24 hours you are here if you have $1,540 to spend for a three weeks' tour—and the Chinese accept you. It works out at about 14 cents a mile.

Breakfast in London, lunch in Moscow, where most of the four-hour stop is spent filling in innumerable green forms demanded by rampant bureaucracy. One wonders if they are really friends, the Russians and the Chinese.

Nightfall in Omsk, thence the rivers and forests of Siberia, the next day's lunch in Irkutsk, which is such a natural sports center it seems like the Sun Valley of the Siberian future.

It's spring but snow falls on the Russian Ilyushin-28 of Chinese Airlines which takes off over snow-capped mountains and heads for Peking.

NO SLIT GOWNS

Pump Chinese stewardesses in international uniforms (no slit gowns here) serve you as the mountains sink down to the brown, featureless expanse of the Gobi Desert, Inner Mongolia and the Great Wall of China zig-zagging across the crests.

It's tea time on the second day as you land in Peking. The clock is crazy. Back in London it's breakfast.

Who makes this journey? Delegations of workers and trade unionists from the Communist world, and now the first tiny trickle of tourists. We are tourists and more important, organized tourists. The agency in London saw that that individual tourists can make it with a struggle, but the Chinese prefer even their tourists to look like a delegation.

This group includes a lawyer, ex-member of the House of Commons who has written books on famous trials; a drama critic of a London Sunday newspaper; a farmer-baronet from the North of England; a retired industrialist and his wife, and several energetic old ladies in search of something of more interest than a beach. Among a dozen of us, only one person—a girl—actually had a job and had saved up for an expensive holiday.

LONG WAY OFF

On arrival we bused it to town along a road which offered everywhere all the land needed for an airport closer than the one we used. One pondered: had the Chinese heard that all major airports must be at least a long way from the city they serve?

On landing tea was served. Tea is served everywhere in China, at all hours. Every bedroom in every hotel has its enormous flask of hot water so that the traveler can have his tea on the occasional moments when no one brings it to him. The drinking water is dangerous, unless boiled, so the tea somehow gets drunk.

Now, our "delegation" gets taken over by officialdom.

With our guide and an interpreter we strike out the next morning for the Imperial Palace, the forbidden city of imperial times—and then to the Great Hall of the People which is the Red Chinese parliament.

We're under surveillance, not because we're cloak and dagger types at all but because the Chinese want to be sure we don't become "incidents." Yet the system can be beaten and three of us did it. We found an English-speaking driver of a pedicab, a mechanized coolie cart. He pedaled with remarkable strength and energy, and had two friends to help pedal us about. We got to a theater where we saw a horse opera about the Sino-Japanese war. It was easy to follow and learn that the fascist warmongers got routed and the orphaned heroine winds up waving the glorious red flag of the still-distant tomorrow.

CHOSE TO WALK

My two friends took a double pedicab home but I walked through the quiet streets of Peking at night. There were few people about. They stared in unconcealed astonishment. Westerners are rare.

Yet, there was no sense of menace.

Next day we flew to Wuhan on the Yangtze, 300 miles up river and from this time on it was travel by train, long days of watching rice paddies and mountains. The trains keep perfect time through the sensible device of setting very unambitious schedules.

We have two days each in Wuhan, Canton, Hangchow, Shanghai and Nanking. Temples, pagodas, steelworks, universities, schools, village communes, trade fairs, potteries, silk mills, workers' living quarters. We learn to use chopsticks and become adept at facing dishes like sea slugs and fishes' lips without flinching.

Through all this the Chinese show us what they choose to show and it's their best foot forward. Yet they cannot conceal many crowded, dilapidated dwellings and the primitive agricultural methods which call for back-breaking human labor for lack of a machine. They don't seem to be trying to conceal it; instead they kiss it off by valuing this is the old way but we're going to change all that in time. There's a temptation to think that they'll need a lot of that commodity, namely time.

STILL THE SAME

By the time we were swinging back toward Peking, it was impossible though to avoid concluding that the people all seemed to be the same: purposeful, contented, reasonable, calm. Nobody begged; nobody stole. No one looked hungry and if there and there a citizen was wearing little better than rags, the rags were carefully stitched and darned and patched. Everywhere children were plump, bursting with energy and gaily. In all China, swarming with children, I heard three children cry and saw none quarrel.

Certainly there is government and party discipline. Yet the discipline among the people seemed deeper than all that—older, more dignified and above all coolly sure. None of us in our "delegation" felt we possessed this Chinese quality. We knew that and showed it when we had been taken to just one pagoda too many and that was quite often.

The way out was to profess a headache and then goof off. Our guides probably knew exactly where we went and why but they never failed later to inquire if our "headache" had improved.

The three-week tour ended back in Peking, timed exactly for the May Day celebrations. This was a riot of color in Tien-An-Men Square (Gate of Heavenly Peace) which is Peking's version of Moscow's Red Square. Millions of Chinese milled about. Floats, dancing in the streets, bands, but not a gun and never a tank in sight. The only police were traffic militiamen.

BIG PORTRAITS

Presiding over the festivities were five portraits exhibited everywhere in huge dimension. Mao Tse Tung, in solitary splendor, and facing him Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin. The leadership principle was demonstrated. Stalin's portrait could be found in railway station waiting rooms, printed on silk in souvenir shops, on the walls of workers' homes.

In all the China we saw, there was not one single portrait of Nikita Khrushchev.

Next: Red China contrast.

Lost Flier Delays Liners

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — Six transatlantic airliners were held up for three hours at Shannon Airport Sunday by a lost flier from Long Island.

Esten Englund, a former Swedish air force pilot who ferries planes for an American aviation company, Beechcraft, was lost over misty western Ireland until the airport tower could talk him down.

Englund, who lives in Elmhurst, N.Y., was delivering a single-engine plane to Finland and was unable to land in Norway or Iceland because of bad weather. He headed south and radioed Shannon, telling the airport he had no idea of his position.

Takeoffs were immediately halted for fear airliners would collide with his plane. When it was finally located by radar, it was only 750 feet above the Kerry Mountains, 40 miles south of Shannon.

Ouster Decried For Panty Raid

WACO (AP)—At least 10 students will be suspended as a result of an unsuccessful panty raid on the Baylor campus early Sunday, university officials said.

Dean W. C. Perry said there might be more suspensions.

City patrolmen in seven squad cars, campus police and dormitory supervisors broke up demonstrations at four women's dormitories.

About 500 men took part or were spectators during an hour and a half of disorder. Dr. Perry said none of the raiders succeeded in entering any dormitories.

'The Legend Of Lilah Clare' Was Over-Acted Nonsense

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV - Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—It was certainly dramatic last night on NBC, the attraction being a bit of overacted nonsense called "The Legend of Lilah Clare."

A shy, young girl (Tuesday Weld) named Elsie Brinkmann from Minnesota, catches the eye of a theatrical agent because she looks exactly like a long-dead film femme fatale ("monster, demon, witch-ravishing") named Lilah Clare. He takes her to Lilah's old director who lives in one of those "Sunset Boulevard" houses and acts like some kind of a nut.

Well, sir, Elsie takes a few sips of champagne, suddenly becomes tipsy, gives a mad laugh. Bingo, before our eyes she becomes Lilah, ready to give her old director a bad time. In fact, on Elsie's last champagne binge, she revealed him as Lilah's murderer.

Miss Weld skated neatly between Elsie and Lilah. Her most notable acting involved a scene in which she took a bath—but as discreetly covered as a Quaker maiden by bubbles. Alfred Drake, as the bedeviled director, shouted his lines as if he were in a theater with bad acoustics.

If everybody had played the script tongue-in-cheek, it would have been an acceptable Hollywood satire — and funnier than "Mister Ed." Drake, for example, had such lines as "You're giving me—your life, you know," and (as he went mad at the end) "I knew you'd come back to find me, Lilah."

Tuesday Weld surely is a beautiful little girl, though. ABC introduced a nationwide audience last night to a projected new repertory theater, ultimately to be part of Manhattan's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. The most interesting portion of the hour program was films showing training for young actors of the company, in speech, movement, improvisation.

The program probably was more interesting to the subway circuit than to viewers elsewhere.

Radio, as it turned out, was the very best way to follow the Cooper journey in space from the moment the rocket shot out of sight. But a lot of us kept glued to television hoping vainly to see live television pictures of the world below the astronaut.

Picking the network which provided the "best" coverage was rather like choosing the color of a dress, a matter of personal taste. One was about as good as the

What do you bid now?

A—Two no trump. No stronger bid is justified. At this point you are not aware that partner has any values whatsoever, so that even a bid of two no trump involves a certain amount of risk and there would be no justification in a jump to three no trump. You have only 21 points which is fractionally short of what it takes to make an opening bid of two no trump.

Q 2—As South you hold:

♠ Q 8 6 4 ♠ A K J 10 8 2 ♠ 7 8 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ 2 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Four spades. This is a very fine holding opposite your partner's strong bidding and could easily be enough to make a slam. However, the evidence dictates that you make your try without getting the bidding into the upper reaches. Partner will recognize that you have a good hand with a fine fit since you combined a free bid with a subsequent jump.

Q 3—As South you hold:

♠ A Q 6 2 ♠ K J ♠ A K J 10 8 2 ♠ 9

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Two spades. A rebid at the two level in a higher ranking suit constitutes a reverse and indicates a hand of great strength. While it is not likely that partner has four spades with an honor, since he failed to bid spades on his original response, he may have four small ones, and, in any case, mentioning spades at this juncture will create a better picture, in partner's mind, of your actual distribution than would a jump bid in diamonds.

Q 4—As South you hold:

♠ K 7 3 ♠ J 8 ♠ 9 8 3 ♠ A K J 10 4

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠

Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Four clubs. Although you lack an outstanding fit in either of partner's suits his rebid indicates a holding of about 21 to 22 points and slam prospects are thus too bright to give a three no trump call serious

She Might Bring Back Cheesecake

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Whatever happened to cheesecake?

The once-hallowed Hollywood institution of leg air dates back to Theda Bara's heyday. It reached its peak in World War II, when the poses of Betty Grable, Rita Hayworth, etc., adorned foxholes and bulkheads from Saipan to Salerno.

Cheesecake impelled the careers of Marilyn Monroe, Jane Russell, Ava Gardner and a host of other lovelies, but alas, it has almost disappeared from the local scene.

The reason? Studio economics have slashed budgets for starlets and press agents. And styles change. Cuties in swim suits might seem tame in competition with the nudies of the men's magazines.

But here is a girl who could bring back cheesecake—Ursula Andress. Her eye-popping figure might make her the pin-up girl of the Space Age.

There is only one trouble: She doesn't want to be.

"I would feel like an idiot, posing like this," she declared, assuming the standard bathing beauty positions.

The only time she likes to pose is for her husband, actor John Derek, who has photographed her with handsome results, and when her film role calls for exposure of her magnificent frame. The latter happens in "Dr. No," in most of which she appears in a bikini or less.

Ursula is not even sure she wants to be an actress.

"Acting is so much work, and I am lazy," she commented. You may have the impression that Ursula Andress is not the standard type of movie hopeful. Correct. She was Swiss-born of German parents, educated in Berne and Paris, went to Rome and broke into Italian films, then was called to Hollywood by Paramount.

There was only one trouble: Her French, German and Italian were excellent; her English was nil.

Paramount finally gave up on Ursula, and Columbia signed her. But then she married Derek and preferred to follow him on his film-making travels. When he settled here for a television series, she accepted the role in "Dr. No."

Honor To Hero

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Cuban exiles in Mexico commemorated Sunday the death of Cuban national hero Jose Marti with a promise to redouble efforts for liberation of their country.

Cooper and his wife Trudy acknowledged the cheers with waves and kisses while perched on the back seat of a convertible. Two cars behind, their teen-aged daughters Camala and Janita enjoyed their passage down Cape Canaveral's glory route where all of America's space heroes get to ride after a successful space journey.

The girls were a teeny bit embarrassed over having to ride in the motorcade with wet hair, the result of a cooling dip in the ocean just before lunch while their father went through another medical check.

Known to be a shy, reticent fellow, Gordo easily captivated the crowds with his boyish grin and tireless arm waving. He was everybody's hero—but like somebody from another planet to the youngsters in cardboard space hats who ran alongside his car and beamed at him admiringly.

He was pelted with flowers and confetti all along the route, where practically every home displayed an American flag and the street lights were hung with red, white and blue paper streamers.

All in all, it was the big, big welcome that only a small town can extend to a returning hero.

Cooper gets a day to himself today before heading to Washington for a meeting Tuesday with President Kennedy and an address to a joint meeting of Congress. Wednesday he goes to New York for the traditional ticker tape parade and another official reception.
