DEAR ABBY

Sergeants Ain't Rich!

DEAR ABBY: Where did CURIOUS get her information about what a sergeant makes and what he spends? His meals at the NCO Club are not free! If he tears his uniform, he can't have it repaired; he has to buy a new one. And they aren't cheap! Tell Curious that if she's looking for a man with money, she had better find herself a civilian.

SERGEANT'S WIFE

DEAR ABBY: My father was an Army man and I am married to an Army man. I wouldn't trade this life for anything in the world. A sergeant doesn't "take home" any $375 a month. Not after he gets through paying his Army Emergency Relief donation, income tax, social security and insurance. We in the service don't have many material things, but we have interesting lives, the satisfaction of contributing something to our country, and hospitalization when we need it. I have had seven children for seven dollars. Who can top that?

PROUD ARMY WIFE

DEAR ABBY: May I add my little statement to the wedding ring topic: Twenty-six years ago I married a man who did not give me a wedding ring. The only things of value he gave me were three wonderful sons. After 14 years of miserable marriage, he left me for another woman. For a number of years his mistress has been wearing the wedding ring he gave her, although they are not married. So what does a wedding ring mean?

Common Market Offers New Compromise To Uncle Sam

GENEVA (AP)—The European Common Market offered a new compromise to the United States today in their battle over a broad pattern for tariff-cutting talks next year.

The European counter-proposal followed a transatlantic telephone intervention by President Kennedy in an attempt to break the stalemate at the 73-nation ministerial conference sponsored by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The stalemate posed a grave threat to Kennedy's Trade Expansion Act of 1962, which previously had promised to be one of the major achievements of his administration.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.

Stock Exchange May Be Curbed In Denying Service To Outsiders

By ROGER LANE
 Associated Press News Writer
 AP Business News Writer
 NEW YORK (AP)—A ruling by the Supreme Court seems likely to restrict the New York Stock Exchange in denial of services to nonmembers. The extent of its possible effect on exercise of exchange disciplinary powers was not clear. The exchange withheld comment pending study of Monday's ruling. However, one Wall Street source familiar with the problem said it appears nonmembers refused exchange wire connections will have to be served with formal reasons and a chance to reply.

The exchange has asserted such immunity in ordering member firms to sever wire connections with a nonmember Dallas, Tex., securities concern. It refused the Dallas concern's demand for a statement of reasons, at the same time saying an exchange investigation had turned up some.

The exchange treats members and nonmembers differently in disciplinary matters.

A member found by "Big Board" investigators to be violating the exchange constitution or rules is served with charges and specifications, and given what amounts to a trial before the board of governors which may impose penalties.

At the hearing, the accused member is given a right of defense and cross-examination, although professional counsel is not allowed and courtroom rules of evidence do not apply.

A nonmember lacks these privileges.

The Supreme Court said the exchange was wrong in not extending them to Harold J. Silver and his Municipal Securities Co. of Dallas. One Wall Street source commented:

"The Supreme Court ruling removes from the hands of the exchange a club it has used to keep nonmembers in line."

Reaction Divided To Gas Area Price Method Ruling

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court's approval of the area method of regulating natural gas prices brought reaction as divided as the court itself.

"Perhaps this decision will clear the way to real strides toward removing the chaotic conditions surrounding wellhead gas pricing today," said Johnny Mitchell, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

"The long range effects could be very, very bad for consumers," said William Bennett of the California Public Utilities Commission. Many officials in the industry and in state regulatory bodies declined comment until they have a chance to study the Supreme Court decision, handed down Monday.

The court upheld, 5-4, an appeals court ruling of November 1961 that, indirectly, involved area pricing.

The ruling means this: The Federal Power Commission may continue to set gas prices at the same level for all producers in a given field. In the past the commission attempted to regulate prices individually on a cost-of-service basis.

The commission spent six years gathering and wading through data and testimony in a case involving the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla. In 1960 it decided the individual-cost-of-service theory wasn't sound, awarded Phillips some $5.7 million of the $49 million it had asked in annual rate increases, dropped further hearings and instituted the area pricing method.

At the time, the commission had a tremendous backlog of rate increase requests that would have required the same exhaustive study of prices in relation to individual cost.

John P. Egan, an attorney for Pacific Lighting Gas Supply Co., which controls Southern California major suppliers, commented: "... We believe the area price concept of regulating the cost of gas in the field offers the best opportunity of the various approaches available to stabilize and, hopefully, reduce the price of gas at the wellhead. At the same time we believe that the area price concept gives the producer sufficient incentive to continue to explore and produce gas supplies."

Bennett took an opposite view. Prices are controlled by available heavy supplies, he said, adding that the court decision opens the way for big producers to charge what the traffic would bear.

The decision holds "promise of considerable improvement from the small, independent producer viewpoint," said Mitchell. "We remain convinced, of course, that the most logical solution would be decontrol legislation through Congress."

The American Gas Association, in New York, said "Our viewpoint is that it (area pricing) may be the way out of the logjam of rate cases that has slowed the industry."

YOUR LOW BACK

By HALVARD T. HANSEN, D.C.

The general public is hearing more and more about the slipped or herniated intervertebral disc. A recent research study of 1,000 herniated and slipped disc cases revealed that 49.6 per cent of the cases became well, 39.1 per cent were much improved, 7.9 per cent were slightly improved, 3 per cent showed no change and .4 per cent became worse.

Consolidation of the first three groups shows 96.6 per cent of all cases became well or showed some improvement under Chiropractic care.

While in extreme cases, surgical intervention may be necessary, this type of case is rare. There is much evidence that diagnosis of "herniated disc" is a catch-all for many low back disabilities. In fact, there is much to indicate that most so-called "herniated disc syndromes" are nothing more than vertebral subluxations.

Nevertheless, 483 out of 1,000 cases had been reported medically diagnosed upon surgical intervention, and the remaining cases manifested the same outward symptoms. Since such a diagnosis can be confirmed only by surgery, and since few symptomatically diagnosed cases are later confirmed upon surgical intervention, it would seem all the more important that person suspected of having a herniated disc condition consult a Chiropractor FIRST.

The Hansen Chiropractic Clinic, located across from Piggly Wiggly, is open until 6 each evening. (Lady attendant.) Call AM 3-3324 for an appointment.

TV Takes Peek At Kremlin Tonight

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
 AP TV - Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviet cocktail party, even as the American brand, has its business uses. In fact, had it not been for a high-level embassy party in Moscow in honor of Nikita Khrushchev, NBC might never have been able to penetrate its high walls to make "The Kremlin."

The program, showing portions of the city-within-a-city never seen before on television, will be shown tonight.

Lucy Jarvis, an attractive brunette with long experience in public affairs and news shows, mothered and nursed the entire project, with the official title of co-producer. She got permission largely through fine contacts, good offices—and simple persistence. First break was knowing Alexei Adzhubei, editor of Investia and Khrushchev's son-in-law, with whom she became acquainted while working on his freedom-of-the-press television debate with Pierre Salinger a couple of seasons ago.

Once she reached Moscow to wrap up plans and get started on the tour of the Kremlin, she encountered frustrating bureaucratic delay after delay, however.

Then at the cocktail party, she met Khrushchev himself. Speaking Russian didn't hurt, for she poured out her plans. He turned on the green light—and last September the shooting started.

Until then, Mrs. Jarvis had been negotiating, waiting, stewing, arguing, cajoling, writing for five months.

The program was made by a handful of NBC staff members with major assists from Soviet film makers and television experts.

Mrs. Jarvis is quite happy about the whole thing.

"Everybody—or almost everybody—thinks the Kremlin is a dark, somber place surrounded by walls like a prison," she said. "It isn't at all—parts of it are absolutely beautiful. And if this one goes off well, I hope to go back and do another program on their Hermitage Museum which houses one of the greatest collections of art in the world."

Mrs. Jarvis is philosophical about the delays and problems she encountered.

"Think of it this way," she said. "How long would it take a Russian to arrange to have a television program made by their own crew in our White House?"

Kennedy Knows Gov. Wallace Wants To Take South Away

By JACK BELL
An AP News Analysis
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy was described today as knowing that in Gov. George Wallace of Alabama he is dealing with a man who hopes to take the South away from him in 1964.

that he would not use federal troops dispatched to military reservations in Alabama unless there were fresh and uncontrolled racial disturbances.
But the President made it plain he would use federal force if necessary to maintain the rights of Negroes to peaceable assembly and petition.
Nothing was said about the prospective forthcoming university showdown.
But national Democratic officials are convinced this action will be the forerunner of an effort by the governor to keep Kennedy's name off the 1964 party ballot in Alabama—and as many other Dixie states—as will go along with the idea.
In Alabama the Democratic state committee, which the governor controls, could designate a slate of electors pledged to Wallace, as officially uncommitted, to carry the party emblem on the November ballot. Kennedy electors presumably could be put on the ballot too, without the Democratic party designation.

In conferences he has held with some Southern senators, Wallace has outlined plans to run for president. He has expressed the belief that he could sweep the South and throw a close election into the House of Representatives.

Businessman's Rights Left For Next Year

By PAUL M. YOST
An AP News Analysis
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has left until next term the question of whether a businessman—a restaurant owner, for instance—can on his own constitutionally discriminate in the serving of customers. Also: Can he ask authorities to help enforce his discrimination?

The tribunal did not take up these problems Monday as it overturned the convictions of 44 sit-in demonstrators protesting segregation in four states.
In this series of cases, the court declared it unconstitutional for a state to require segregation and use its powers to enforce it.
However, in a separate opinion, Justice John M. Harlan said the right of the private businessman to operate on a segregated basis was "ostensibly left untouched" by the court majority's approach to the issue.

Harlan declared:
"An individual's right to restrict the use of his property, however unregenerate a particular exercise of that right may be thought, lies beyond the reach of the (Constitution's) 14th Amendment."
"The dilution or virtual elimination of that right cannot well be justified either on the premise that it will hasten formal repeal of outworn segregation laws or on the grounds that it will facilitate proof of state action in cases of this kind."

44 APPEALED
The Supreme Court's declaration, specifically affected 44 individual demonstrators who appealed to the high tribunal. It also indicates that convictions of about 3,000 Negroes and whites arrested for sit-ins in various Southern states are unconstitutional.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, who wrote the majority opinion in the five cases which had been argued together, said of the key case from Greenville, S.C.:
"When a state agency passes a law compelling persons to discriminate against other persons because of race, and the state's criminal processes are employed in a way which enforces the discrimination mandated by that law such a palpable violation of the 14th Amendment cannot be saved by attempting to separate the mental urges of the discriminators."
In the Greenville case, Warren

Venue Change In Rape Case

PALO PINTO, Tex. (AP)—Dist. Judge W. J. Oxford will order a change of venue for ex-convict Virgil Nelson M. Halford, charged with raping a Mineral Wells child. Oxford fined two Dallas lawyers, C. A. Droy and Jim Martin, $100 each and ordered them to jail for 72 hours Monday for contempt of court when they sought to withdraw from the case. He gave them 72 hours to appeal.

"I don't believe Halford could get a fair trial in Palo Pinto County after what happened," Oxford said, referring to the often-heated discussion over the two lawyers' request to withdraw. Oxford said that when new lawyers could be named for the 26-year-old former mental patient, a change of venue would be ordered, probably to Wichita Falls. The girl, 9, was raped during an alleged 18-hour sex spree by Halford in mid-March. He is also charged with molesting a Garland girl, 13, and with molesting a Grand Prairie girl, 15.
"I feel that I cannot properly defend this man," Droy told Oxford, "because I feel he has defrauded us."
He was referring to Halford's refusal to talk to anyone.

said, the city by ordinance provided that any decision as to whether a restaurant is to be operated on a desegregated basis is to be reserved to the city.
Thus, said Warren, a person owning an eating place is left with no choice of his own, but must segregate white and Negro. This, he said, is state action that cannot stand.

TEMPERS EFFECTS
Prior to this declaration, Warren tempered the effect of the decisions by restating the words of a 1961 Supreme Court opinion in another racial case. This was that private conduct violating individual rights does not violate the Constitution unless a state or city is involved to some significant extent.

In the next case he read, the chief justice went far to fix a new point of law. In a sit-in case from New Orleans, Warren pointed out there was no state statute or city ordinance requiring segregation of the races in restaurants. However, he cited a city official's statements to the effect that the city would not permit Negroes to seek desegregated service in restaurants.

"Consequently," he said, "the city must be treated exactly as if it had an ordinance prohibiting such conduct. . . . A state, or city, may act as authoritatively through its executive as through its legislative body."
The tribunal did not go into the question, often discussed, of what a private storekeeper can do if on his own desire—without any state or city law—he prefers not to serve Negroes.

A case touching on this question was ordered reargued after the court made known it could not reach a decision.

TRESPASS CHARGE
This involves an appeal by five Negroes fined on trespass charges after refusing to leave a privately owned amusement park in Glen Echo, Md., just outside Washington.

A counsel for the state of Maryland said the park policy of excluding Negroes was not induced or required by local or state law and that the state was merely enforcing its trespass statute.
Thus in the next term, the court may decide the issue of whether an owner may, if he desires, constitutionally bar Negroes from his place of business.

Justice William O. Douglas went further than all of his colleagues in upholding the right of Negroes to desegregated service. In a separate opinion he asserted:

"There is no constitutional way, as I see it, in which a state can license and supervise a business serving the public and endow it with the authority to manage that business on the basis of Apartheid which is foreign to our Constitution."

Apartheid is the name for the racial segregation policies of South Africa.
As for rights which private business owners now have to pick their customers, it is interesting to look back to last November when U.S. Solicitor General Archibald Cox spoke before the Supreme Court.

STATE POLICY
He asked that discrimination by proprietors when induced by state law, state policy, or any state action be declared a violation of the 14th Amendment.

But he stated, significantly, that "anything I said (to the court) is not to compel a store owner to open up to all persons unless the owner refuses to do so under a segregation ordinance or statute."
All the justices save Harlan went along with Warren's opinion. Harlan in his long separate opinion agreed with his colleagues in the major case from Greenville. But in other cases he dissented entirely or in part from the majority.
One of the cases decided was

Appearance In Abilene Meet Hurt AAU Status

DALLAS (AP) — Kellum Johnson, former president of the Amateur Athletic Union, said today more than 100 high school athletes in West Texas had lost their eligibility for international track competition.

Under the MacArthur agreement, Johnson explained, no AAU sanction was necessary provided the track and field federation limited its meets to those who are members of the federation.

Winter Leagues Wind Up Bowling On Local Lanes

The last two winter leagues concluded the winter leagues for the 1962-1963 season.

Ins. 212, and Frank Hagen, Neel's, 210 Harold Fischer had a 602 series and Bill Owens turned in a 603.

Reeder Insurance had the high team game of 914. Team 7 had the high team series with 2508.

Tom Seeb and McCoy Gilliland with 1315 dropped to second in the doubles N. L. Patterson and J. C. Self with 1297 and Leon Kerby and Henry Neil with 1291 are still on the board in the doubles event.

Consider the fact that now all winter leagues have concluded play, and all summer leagues are not yet completed, some good scores were bowled last week.

Sports dialogue: JOE BAILEY CHEANEY, starter for the 1963 National Juco Track and Field Meet here last week.

"There were these two plums individuals who had died and were trying to gain admission through the Gates of Heaven. St. Peter was asking them a lot of questions and, they thought, holding them up for no sound reason. A New York cab driver happened by and strolled right on in without so much as a 'hello' from St. Peter.

OLIVER JACKSON, ACC track mentor: "Most Texas cinder tracks are slow because of dryness. When you see one being dragged and dust rising, it's really in need of water. From September to June, we drag, water and scrape our track six days a week."

DON McDONALD, track coach at Spring Arbor JC, Mich., and referee of the 1963 National JC meet held here last week: "This will be our last year to compete in a junior college meet. We're going 'four-year' next year. We thought we were going to field a football team but the fellow who was going to put up the money died and his wife is undecided about it. There's only one junior college in Michigan (Grand Rapids) which fields a football team, you know."

JOHNNY MORRIS, the University of Houston track coach scouting for material in the meet here: "True coaching ability in track will never be shown until all schools are limited to a certain amount of money for scholarships, scouting and etc. Right now, the fellow who can go out with unlimited scholarship offers and bring in the most boys wins."

ON THE SHELF

THE TWO OCEAN WAR.

By Samuel Eliot Morison, Atlantic-Little, Brown, $15.
By The Associated Press

The full story of the U. S. Navy's major campaigns in World War II is related in this massive volume by the Harvard professor who went to war to get his material.

Samuel Eliot Morison, Trumbull professor of history at Harvard, describes in detail the Navy's prosecution of a two-front war from Pearl Harbor, through the U-boat scourge in the Atlantic-Mediterranean area and the battles of the Pacific to the Japanese surrender in Tokyo Bay.

As a lieutenant commander, Morison served in the campaigns he describes after selling President Roosevelt on the idea of recording facts for a naval history of the war from the inside.

After service on almost half a dozen cruisers and two battlewagons, Morison finished the war as a captain and now is retired as a rear admiral.

He is the recognized authority on U. S. naval history, a reputation firmly based on his 15-volume "History of U. S. Naval Operations." So it is no surprise to find in the new, single volume a factual and valuable account of how the Navy went about its tasks in two oceans during World War II.

Perhaps this is one of the book's failings, as far as the lay reader is concerned. For it is difficult to imagine anyone settling down for leisurely reading with "The Two Ocean War" unless he happens to be a Navy buff or someone who harbors an abiding interest in World War II sea campaigns.

The book is chock full of such details as how many 16-inch shells scored in certain battles; the precise hours when the Chicago was struck and went dead in the water at the battle of Rennell Island, when the submarine Sand lance fired two torpedoes at Japanese targets off the Bonins and when British and Canadian minesweepers wound up their chores off Omaha Beach, June 6, 1944.

The story of the Navy's recovery from the disaster at Pearl Harbor has been told in the past with more dramatic impact than Morison brings to bear in the new volume. But the recital of facts, figures, times and statistics conveys the sense of inexorable progress toward the climax in Tokyo Bay through a cumulative effect.

Morison is particularly interesting in his personal assessment of Navy strategy and the personalities who dominated the war years.

Halsey, "the public's favorite in the Navy, will always remain a controversial figure, but none can deny he was a great leader, one with the true 'Nelson touch'."

Morison singles out the late Fleet Adm. Ernest J. King as the principal architect of victory—"the best naval strategist and organizer in our history."

Fleet Adm. Chester Nimitz is praised by Morison as the greatest naval strategist and leader after King.

Summing up, Morison's "Two Ocean War" is a valuable historical record, which, despite its passion for detail, often portrays the human feelings of a skilled reporter who was on the scene of climactic events.

You get a feeling of what it was like, for example, to come topside in the gray light of morning after the U. S. victory at Surigao Strait.

"It was good," Morison recalls, "to be alive and with a deck under your feet in Surigao Strait."

GARVEN HUDGINS
PENELOPE. By William C. Anderson. Crown, $1.95.

Here we have a farce about an Air Force researcher who discovers that our heroine, a 250-pound dolphin, can talk. With a Southern drawl, yet.

Our hero is Capt. Gregory Williams, a military medic who seems unaware that he is being pursued madly by a wealthy female named Jaguar. But the good captain manages finally to develop an awareness of Lt. Lucy Watson, a charmer in uniform.

There is quite a potter in early parts of the book about unmilitary capers and wild parties, particularly when Williams' friend Callaghan is present. The latter is a wealthy playboy type who has found a home in the Air Force. The author is pressing a little too hard to be funny in the early chapters, but the real fun develops later.

This has to do with the dolphin Penelope's secret and vitally important part in the sea recovery of an astronaut, followed by her key role in the humiliating capture of a lurking Soviet submarine. There is just enough tincture of credibility in these exploits to make their fantasy amusing.

But the real humor of the book lies in the droll observations of this Southern belle. Light as the ocean spray, this farce is good for some chuckles.

New Acting Method: Menu

It may just be possible that for once a movie director has taken a cue from one of his actors.

In "Critic's Choice," Bob Hope and Lucille Ball star as a New York drama critic and his determined playwright-wife.

Inevitably, the script calls for some key scenes to be played in that famed theatrical restaurant, Sardi's.

Also starring in the film, as a woman-chasing young director, is Rip Torn, a talented and well-known member of the Actor's Studio, leading exponent of "Method" acting.

So possibly out of respect to Torn and his alma mater — and perhaps with a token of appreciation to his stars—director Don Weis arranged for the principals to receive a menu a day before each of the restaurant scenes so that they might order what they would like to eat on camera the following day.

With a chef on the set and a full kitchen in operation, the Weis "menu method" made an instant hit.

(For the record: Hope favored steak, Lucy and Dorothy Green were partial to sea bass and co-star John Dehner picked prime ribs.)

Reverse Panty Raid Is Staged

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Sunday night was a balmy spring night of the sort that traditionally prompts such campus madness as panty raids.

Sure enough, there was a panty raid. Only it was staged in reverse by some 30 to 40 girls from Radcliffe College.

The girls marched to Winthrop House at neighboring Harvard College, stood outside its ivied walls and shouted, "BVD's for me."

After an initial barrage of water and a few BVD's the boys poured out of the dormitory and joined their tormentors.

One good raid deserved another and before long some 1,500 students were marching through Harvard Square crying, "On to Radcliffe."

Police efforts to disperse the students failed and the singing, cheering mob descended on the Radcliffe dormitories. After collecting a few undergarments thrown from windows, the crowd left.

Police said five men were arrested, four of them students. They said there was no property damage or violence.

Wheat Balloting Underway Today

About 30 wheat growers are eligible to ballot today in the wheat referendum, but it is unlikely that this number will participate.

Gabe Hammack, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office manager, pointed out that two years ago in a similar referendum, no votes were cast in Howard County. This referendum, however, is more hotly contested.

The chief difference in the proposed program is that if approved by a two-thirds margin, the old rule permitting a grower to plant up to 15 acres without penalty and without an allotment is to be removed.

Polls will be open at the ASC office at 4th & Lancaster until 7 p.m. for owners and operators of about 2,000 wheat acres in Howard County.

Judge Drops Libel Suit In Odessa

ODESSA (AP)—Judge C. V. Milburn of 70th District Court of Odessa dropped his $250,000 libel suit Monday against the Odessa American.

The suit was filed in Milburn's own court Aug. 26, 1961, as a result of an editorial in the newspaper which criticized Milburn and 161st District Judge George Kelton for taking vacations simultaneously.

The editorial also criticized what it termed "lax working conditions" in the county offices in the Ector County Courthouse.

Judge Kelton signed the order of dismissal Monday.

In dropping the suit against the Odessa American, Judge Milburn said, "I have always enjoyed the utmost of respect from all those of the legal profession and I want it known that I have earned the reputation of being a hard-working and honest public official. I now believe the Odessa American recognizes these facts and for that reason I am withdrawing the libel suit."

Speaking for the Odessa American, publisher V. L. DeBolt replied, "We have never questioned Judge Milburn's integrity and we are aware that he does work hard at his job of district judge. However, we felt in 1961 and we feel now that it was wrong for both district judges to take vacations at the same time because the people of Ector County are entitled to the services of at least one of the two judges at all times."

DeBolt continued, "This newspaper plans to continue to report to the public on all the activities
