Flash Floods In Lubbock, Deep Hail Hits Panhandle

By The Associated Press
A cloudburst caused flash flooding in Lubbock, Tex., and hailstones laid an 18-inch deep cover on part of the Texas Panhandle Tuesday night.

At least 5 inches of rain in 2 1/2 hours drenched Lubbock filling one main thoroughfare with muddy water up to automobile headlights.

Streets in the Lubbock business district ran knee deep, water seeped into an undetermined number of business places and firemen helped occupants flee at least a few homes. Damage was heavy.

Motorists scrambled to safety as cars stalled and soon were submerged in underpasses, but police had no other reports of serious danger to Lubbock residents.

Hail accumulated 1 1/2 feet deep from Bovina to Farwell, 80 miles northwest of Lubbock, during another in a series of heavy thunderstorms ranging across the Panhandle and South Plains in West Texas.

The hailstones and torrential rain blocked roads into Bovina for a time.

GOLF BALL SIZE
Hail as big as golf balls flattened crops, smashed windows and battered automobiles at a number of places in the same general area where 2 to 4-inch downpours were general. Planted cotton washed out. Wheat and maize crops suffered heavily.

In Lubbock, 5 inches of rain filled a private garage and it overflowed, preventing accurate measurement. Barrels and garbage cans floated in knee-deep water through downtown streets, where the downpour was measured at 3 inches.

Deputy Sheriff Bill Shew crawled through a window as his car stalled in a Lubbock underpass and began filling. Water rose to his shoulders as he waded clear. Shew looked back as it covered the automobile.

Because much of Lubbock occupied a flat, level terrain, the accumulated rainfall ebbed very slowly even after the downpour slackened.

Water topping curbs in the business district flowed 2 inches deep into the lobby of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal building and damaged newspaper stored in the basement. It also lapped into the Redeemer Lutheran Church and a Sears, Roebuck & Co. store.

SMOKE, STEAM
Smoke and steam filled the basement of the Pioneer Hotel in Lubbock after water seeped into the electrical system. Firemen also were called to pump water from the basement of the Caprock Hotel.

One of the hardest hit residential districts was Lubbock's Green Acres Addition. Reports to peace officers indicated the muddy torrent rose no more than an inch or two, however, in any homes. Several sections of the city were affected.

Traffic was temporarily paralyzed as all underpasses were blocked and motorists were stranded throughout the city. At one time only high-wheeled trucks were able to operate.

An estimated 3 inches of rain accompanied the hail at Muleshoe, where the icy pellets broke rain gauges and beat out windows of homes in town and rural areas. Four inches of rain soaked the Littlefield area.

EVERY WINDOW
Hail broke every window on the north side of the J. R. Harris home 15 miles north of Muleshoe and rain covered the floors two inches deep. Cotton, wheat and maize were flattened on the neighboring farm of Leon Smith.

The storm caught Bailey County Farm agent J. K. Adams in his car 17 miles north of Muleshoe, shattering the windshield and denting the body of the automobile. He reported the deluge poured water into other houses in the vicinity and riddled wheat, cotton and maize fields.

At Kress, in Swisher County, north of Plainview, 1.35 inches of rain fell in 30 minutes. Rural areas in the same county were flooded by rains estimated up to 4 inches.

Lesser amounts fell at numerous points in the Panhandle-Plains sector. There were lighter showers from West Central Texas to the Lower Rio Grande Valley in the wake of a cool front which drove deep into the state Monday.

Shower activity continued through the night and into early morning over much of the state's northern half, and a drizzle fell at Dalhart in the Panhandle.

There was ground fog at Alice before dawn.

Skies were clear to partly cloudy in southern areas of Texas.

Most sections had unusually cool weather for a second straight day.

NATO Defies Red Noise, Pushes Nuclear Force

OTTAWA (AP)—The 15 Atlantic allies defied Soviet warnings today and prepared to form an inter-allied nuclear strike force.

The nuclear force was the main business before the foreign and defense ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at their annual three-day spring meeting opening today in Canada's House of Commons.

The ministers were resolved to make the nuclear move without fuss or fanfare, as if it were a normal military regrouping operation. The object was to get around the opposition of French President Charles de Gaulle to a specifically designated NATO nuclear force, which he views as a way of consolidating U.S. power in Europe. De Gaulle has made plain he wants France to lead the West European allies.

A delicately negotiated arrangement provides that the force will come into being by endorsement of certain decisions by NATO member countries.

- These decisions include:
1. Assignment of three U.S. nuclear submarines armed with Polaris missiles to Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, the Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.
 2. Allocation of Britain's 180-plane V-bomber force with hydrogen bombs to Lemnitzer.
 3. Arrangements for the buildup of a nuclear planning and targeting staff under Lemnitzer.
 4. Greater liaison between non-nuclear members of NATO and the U.S. Strategic Air Command at Omaha, Neb.

Other units that probably will be assigned include two French bomber squadrons assigned to NATO in West Germany. The United States is equipping them with nuclear weapons.

The Soviets blasted the nuclear force plan in a note to the United States Tuesday. They charged that by stationing the three U.S. Polaris submarines in the Mediterranean, "the NATO headquarters are working to convert the Mediterranean... into a lair of carriers of nuclear death, another region of dangerous rivalry and conflicts."

The mixed-manned force, an American project, would consist of a fleet of surface ships, carrying about 200 Polaris rockets, collectively owned by the nations subscribing to it and manned by mixed crews of the various nationalities.

Most NATO allies still are cool to the mixed-manned force.

Control Or Education, Doctor Says

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sex education in high school and instruction in contraceptive techniques are mandatory because of the breakdown of parental control over teen-agers, says the president of the Planned Parenthood Federation.

Dr. Alan Guttmacher, a New York physician, told a news conference Tuesday. "It is unrealistic to allow the youngster to be burdened with an unwanted child over teen-agers," he added. "If we give youngsters the keys to the car and allow them to go out on their own, we must expect that some of them will go the limit."

Dr. Guttmacher said society is remiss in smitting sex education after allowing chaperoning and other outdated methods to die out.

"We teach them how to make cakes and cars," he said, "but little about the most important things in life: marriage and procreation."

Chemical Shows Promise Of Curbing Cotton Patch Weeds

By M. A. WEBB
A pre-emergence herbicide for reducing weeding costs in cotton has been introduced in West Texas following a three-year research program.

The chemical must be applied to the soil immediately after planting, and its effectiveness will depend upon the amount of moisture received soon after, according to

KARMEX DL
"The herbicide is Karmex DL, which contains an active chemical Wiese said in his report. "It must be applied to the soil immediately after planting and prior to a rain. Less than one pint of Karmex DL per acre, applied to a 10-inch band over the cotton drill, may practically eliminate hoeing costs in cotton. The cost of the herbicide is $1.50 per acre."

The pre-emergence tests were conducted on two farms in 1960. Dr. Wiese said control of volunteer sorghum and careless weed was good on one farm. On the second farm the goatsheads were not controlled. Considerable time, however, elapsed between herbicide application and rainfall.

APPLY, PRAY FOR RAIN
"Trials were conducted on eight farms in 1961 to determine how Karmex DL would control weeds and affect hoeing time under different management and weed conditions. The herbicide was applied in 10-inch bands on one-acre plots. In these trials weed control and hoe time reduction was excellent in three locations. These three farms had heavy weed populations, and rainfall occurred shortly after herbicide application.

On the fourth farm rains were delayed and control was about equal to rotary hoeing and cultivation. Three other farms, with few weeds, had good weed control but the hoeing cost on the untreated plots was less than herbicide cost. The cotton in the last field was planted in deep furrows, and cultivation and rain moved the soil over the treated area, destroying the herbicidal effects," the report said.

"In addition to large plot farm trials, various other herbicides were tested at Plainview, Bushland and Big Spring.

IRRIGATION AIDS RESULTS
At Lubbock, where three inches of water was applied in one test with a sprinkler system to determine value under irrigation, weed control was excellent all season.

"Based on this research, in fields where annual weeds are a problem, and hoeing costs have exceeded $3 per acre, Karmex DL applied pre-emergence offers one possibility of reducing hoeing costs," Dr. Wiese said.

Cotton should be planted flat with a plateau profile planter, or in very shallow lister furrows. If rain crusts soil, rotary hoe lightly to aid cotton emergence, without moving the soil over the treated band."

CHURCH AND STATE

It was encouraging to see a proposal brought before the United Presbyterian General Assembly this week, calling for separation of church and state, in a way unusual for a Protestant denomination. It was a good sign, even though the proposal did not go far enough to be either consistent or Scriptural. I say "Amen" to the proposal that states the church should not seek restrictive laws in order to "facilitate Christian observance of the Lord's day." I add that the church should not either promote or oppose, officially, any legislation of the land. Her mission is to make people better by conversion; not by legislation.

Glories Of Tomorrow Confuse Chinese Today

By RICHARD P. LISTER
PEKING (AP)—They call the Communist revolution in China the Liberation. The date is Oct. 1, 1949, when Mao Tze-Tung declared the founding of the Peoples' Republic. As of that date there was not a single factory capable of making needles and pins. So, at least, the Chinese declare.

Now, they say, a very high proportion of all consumer goods and industrial equipment used in China is home-made.

Whatever view may be taken of the means used by the Chinese to hoist themselves up—the ruthlessness toward many individual lives—the achievement seems to be real and impressive. To judge the measure of its success, it is only necessary to compare the present state of China, 14 years after revolution with that of Russia in 1931.

MORE PECULIAR
It is all the more peculiar, then, that the Chinese do not always seem content to let real achievement speak for itself. They are so full of the glories of tomorrow that sometimes they confuse them with the facts of today.

There's a steelworks at Wuhan, the university town on the Yangtze. Begun in 1957, it now employs 40,000. It reminded me of the old-fashioned plant where I worked, as a trainee graduate metallurgist in England, in 1937-39.

There is nothing discreditable to the Chinese in this. The Wuhan Iron and Steel Company may be 25 years behind the times but not so long ago industrial China was 2,000 years behind. It did not exist at all.

All the same, the Chinese are not content. The planned output, they told us, is three million tons of steel a year. Very good; when would this target be achieved? This was one question they could not or would not answer. When pressed, they estimated the present output of this particular plant at one and a half million tons. But that didn't matter; what counted was the three million of tomorrow.

TWO WORKING
There were six open hearth steel furnaces but only Nos. 1 and 5 were working. This was a rather low proportion of the steelmaking capacity. One answer for this soon became apparent. The heavy rolling mill, we were told, will produce rails, girders, plate, sheet and tubes.

They are proud of their rolling mill but—it is not yet built. Today the main output is pig iron from the three blast furnaces and cast iron, largely in the form of parts for agricultural machinery.

Still, they do produce steel, bar, rod and strip. And since they started from scratch six years ago, this is a miracle in itself.

Our traveling group encountered this confusion between achievement and future reality all over China. At a children's palace in Shanghai—where middle school children come after hours for the usual cultural and recreational activities with a strong ideological tinge, we asked if they were especially selected.

ALL WORE RED
Of course not, we were told; all children can come. Yet among the hundreds here was not one who did not wear the red neck scarf of the Pioneers, the young Communist society.

There was no conscious deception here. The Chinese really wished to believe that the children's palace was open to all, just as they wished to believe that every Chinese citizen is free to choose his own work and to come and go as he pleases. As with some other peoples, what they tell themselves three times is true.

I treasure the memory of our visit to the Wuhan steel works not only because it gave me a glimpse into fascinating aspect or the Chinese mind but also because it greatly increased my personal prestige.

STATUS ROSE
At Wuhan, hobnobbing with the open hearth men I disclosed that I once had been a steelworker myself. Steelworkers in China, like poets, have considerable prestige. At once, my status as the steelworker-poet became unassailable.

The description of myself as a former steelworker was perhaps not absolutely accurate but it was near enough. And I felt no twinge of conscience about it; one good gap between the ideal and the reality deserves another.

Propaganda Drive Aimed At Polaris

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia has started a campaign of fear propaganda in an effort to arouse opposition in North Africa, the Middle East and southern Europe against the operation of U.S. Polaris submarines in the Mediterranean.

The campaign was timed to begin with the meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council in Ottawa but the real purpose as seen by U.S. officials is to stir up fear of nuclear war around the shores of the Mediterranean.

The kickoff was a Moscow note delivered to the State Department Monday night. It was also sent to a number of other countries including those in the Mediterranean area.

The note proposed that the great sea between Europe and Africa be declared a "zone free of nuclear missiles."

The Russians said they are prepared to join with the West in "reliable guarantees that the area of the Mediterranean Sea would be regarded, in case of any military complications, as being outside the sphere of nuclear weapons."
The note said that if the Western powers did not go along with its proposal, then Russia would have no choice but to keep its rockets aimed at the Polaris patrol routes.

Afghan Population Is Highly Mixed

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW
AP Special Report

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP)—Pick your way through the crowded back-alley bazaars of Kabul, being careful of the mud holes. You'll see a crossroads collection of humanity:

Bearded and turbaned cloth merchants wearing secondhand U.S. Army officers' coats, and youths in U.S. Air Force sergeants' jackets selling pomegranates from the backs of donkeys.

Moslem women in chadaris that cover them from head to toe, with only a lace opening for the eyes—and other women in knee-length coats, and kerchiefs, wearing the officially decreed costume for those who have come out of purdah.

Leather-jacketed Russian technicians and, by local standards, almost indecently undressed American women tourists.

Blunt-nosed Mongolian faces and sharp-featured Arabian faces, dark Indian faces and light Uzbek faces, horizontal eyes and slanted eyes and occasionally a pair of blue eyes left by one of Alexander the Great's men.

MEETING GROUND
In the narrow alleys between mud-walled houses and little hole-in-wall shops, and along the Kabul River where shoemakers and rug merchants squat, even along the broad streets between the modern new office buildings on the left bank, you can see that the Central Asian kingdom of Afghanistan has been a historic meeting ground.

It still is a meeting ground. Russian taxis and American buses, powered by Russian gasoline, run on streets that were paved with Soviet aid downtown and American aid in one suburban area of new government offices. The ruins of an 11th Century fort on a protective mountain are silhouetted against the southern sky; the snowy peaks of the Hindu

Kush march across the northern horizon.

North of the Hindu Kush, plains slope down to the Oxus River, the point at which Czarist Russia halted its 19th Century expansion after seizing the fabled sultanates of Bukhara and Samarkand that had been part of the same general culture as Afghanistan. Across the plains caravans once passed on the silk trade from imperial Rome to mysterious Cathay. Now karakul sheep—the tightly curled wool is known as Persian lamb but the benefit of its pocketbook—graze near ruins of cities like Balkh that were beacons of knowledge in Europe's Dark Ages.

To the south, Americans and Afghans are working together to restore to desert areas the fertility they had before Genghis Khan's barbaric horsemen destroyed the irrigation system in the Helmand Valley.

KHYBER PASS
The route to India lies over the Khyber Pass, a rugged slash in barren hills that British India incorporated and passed on to Pakistan.

Buddhism came this way 2,000 years ago, flourished in a few valleys, and disappeared before the sword of Islam. The mosque is the center of village life and Afghanistan remains one of the most traditionalist of Moslem countries. Purdah began to end only four years ago. Beneath the chadari, though, many women had for years been wearing Western styles of clothing.

There has never been a census but the interior ministry makes a precise guess: 13,799,037. Of these, 2,431,296 are listed as nomads.

Whatever the number, it is a population of rugged people who kept their independence when surrounding areas were falling under foreign rule. The mixture of faces in the Kabul bazaar still shows a proud, free spirit.

How Could State Vote Sweepstakes?

By GORDON A. GLOVER
AP Special Report

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—If it's been asked once, it's been asked a thousand times in recent days: How could New Hampshire, of all places, go for a sweepstakes?

How could the staid old Granite State become the only one in modern times to sanction a legal lottery?

"It's like coming upon one's maiden aunt playing the slot machines in Reno," Methodist Bishop James K. Mathews said recently. "A cherished image has been shattered."

The image the bishop referred to has always seemed clear enough: New Hampshire—land of Daniel Webster, of the Great Stone Face, of sparkling lakes and mountain scenery, of a flinty, frugal people steeped in Protestant morality and the no-nonsense conservatism of their forefathers.

FELL TO PIECES

All this, in the view of Bishop Mathews and many others, fell into a million pieces when Democratic Gov. John W. King signed into law a sweepstakes bill passed by the Republican legislature.

About a year from now New Hampshire hopes to begin running two sweepstakes races annually at Rockingham Park, the big horse track near the Massachusetts line. The proceeds—hopefully estimated at $4 million a year from the sale of lottery tickets at $3 each—will go entirely to schools.

There is some debate over whether the people of New Hampshire want this sweeps action.

The governor contends that indeed they do, and that no politician will dare run on an anti-sweepstakes platform in the future. He's certain to be challenged on that point, but the sweepstakes had extensive backing—even in the rural hamlets with their colonial homes, village greens and gleaming white churches.

PREACH MORALS

"We can preach morals all we want," says State Sen. Margaret Delude, a Republican from Unity (pop. 708), "but my people have had it. They want help, and they want it from the sweepstakes."

Many members of the New Hampshire Legislature—with 424 lawmakers—said that even though they were personally opposed to the sweeps, a majority of their people seemed for it.

"I'm not even sure we can call it a taxpayers revolt," says David L. Mann, executive secretary of the New Hampshire Municipal Association. "It's just that we have a 30-year history of voluntary taxation, and the sweepstakes seems to be a continuation of it."

To many opponents, the sweeps just postpones the day when New Hampshire will have to turn to "involuntary taxation" in some form.

"Sooner or later," says Franklin Hollis, chairman of the State Board of Education, "our people will realize that we must have a sales or income tax to raise the $20 million or so that we need for our schools. We are running out of stop-gap measures."

FREE RIDE

But for now, you can come pretty close to getting a free ride in New Hampshire if you don't own property and if you don't drink, smoke, nor play the ponies. Fully 70 per cent of the $26 million in general fund revenues New Hampshire collects each year is derived from taxes on liquor, tobacco and the race track. Property taxes are imposed on local levels.

Of that $26 million, an estimated one-third is paid by out-of-staters who flock here on vacation, visit the race tracks and take advantage of New Hampshire's low prices on liquor and cigarettes.

An estimated 90 per cent of the $6.5 million New Hampshire takes in each year from three race tracks is attributable to tourists. The state expects the biggest part of the sweepstakes tab to be picked up by the same tourists—particularly those from neighboring Massachusetts.

The Reading Chronicle, a weekly newspaper published in suburban Boston, put it this way recently: New Hampshire finds it "less painful to collect Bay State money" than to try to pry it loose from its natives.

Solons Hear Prayer Of Astronaut

WASHINGTON (AP) — From a spacecraft fittingly named Faith 7 came fresh evidence that American astronauts believe that something more than computers guides them through the skies.

It was a prayer offered by Maj. Gordon Cooper at the close of his eight-minute address to Congress Tuesday—a prayer he spoke into his tape recorder last week as he whizzed around the earth on his 16th orbit. His mother, sitting in the House gallery, bowed her head and covered her eyes, then wiped away the tears and smiled.

The astronauts do not like to talk about their religious beliefs. When asked the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will reply that religion is not listed on the records of the spacemen.

IMPORTANT
Cooper himself is not a regular church-goer but he said recently he considers religion important "in all the things we do." As a youth he attended the Methodist church and his family, a space agency official said, belongs to a Methodist church in Seabrook, Tex.

At the first news conference of an American spaceman, Alan Shepard Jr. would only say of the astronauts' religious beliefs that: "I think that all seven of us have that religious faith which we express in our own individual ways. I think that is about all I care to comment."

But, since then, some of the astronauts have struggled over their hesitancy and revealed evidence of belief, sometimes strong belief, in God.

HIS PRAYER
Perhaps Cooper's prayer was the most potent evidence, for it came in so public and significant a place. Here's the prayer he offered in his spacecraft, and repeated Tuesday: "Father, thank you, especially for letting me fly this flight."

"Thank you for the privilege of being able to be in this position; to be up in this wondrous place, seeing all these many startling, wonderful things that you have created."

"Help guide and direct all of us that we may shape our lives to be much better Christians, trying to help one another, and to work with one another rather than fighting and bickering."

"Help us to complete this mission successfully."
"Help us in our future space endeavors that we may show the world that a democracy really can compete, and still are able to do things in a big way, and are able to do research, development and can conduct many scientific and very technical programs.

"Be with all our families. Give them guidance and encouragement, and let them know that everything will be okay."
"We ask in Thy name."
"Amen."

ABIDING FAITH
Astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter, an Episcopalian, talked of his faith last year before he was orbited into space.

"I have what I consider an abiding faith which sustains me at all times," Carpenter told a newsmen. "I think it presumptuous to pray for yourself in time of peril."

The first American to orbit the earth, John H. Glenn Jr., expressed similar sentiments in February 1962 when he testified before a committee of Congress.

Glenn, a Presbyterian, was asked if he had prayed during his flight.

Fun Park Expert Pegs Young Kennedy's Weight

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I got little Jack right on the button," boasted Kelly Green, weigher of people. "Thirty-three pounds exactly."

"Little Jack" is John Fitzgerald Kennedy Jr., 2½-year-old son of the President. The scarlet-clad youngster playfully romped Tuesday through the amusement park in suburban Glen Echo, Md., with his sister, Caroline, 5, and his cousin, Steve Smith, 5.

Young John's mother, Jacqueline, 34, also was there. Expecting a baby in August, she did not romp. But she did walk through the mirror-maze. And she did manage to get cotton candy on her white coat. So did the President's sister, Mrs. Stephen Smith, young Steve's mother.

The first family—minus one—chose a cloudy, uncrowded weekday afternoon and were rewarded with near-privacy for an entire hour.

Little John fired a water pistol into a hole, aided by his mother.

He fired a real rifle at a metal duck, aided by a Secret Service man. He hit it.

Green, who has been guessing weights at Glen Echo for a dozen years, overshot Caroline by two pounds when he guessed 56. And he guessed 54-pound Steve Smith weighed 55. Then he turned to the First Lady.

"You're next," Kelly Green said.

"Oh, no," Jacqueline Kennedy said.

Park officials had had no warning of the Kennedys' visit. One official said Caroline had made the trip once before, but not with her mother. He said Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and his children are frequent visitors to Glen Echo.

It was Mrs. Kennedy's second public appearance of the day. Earlier, with John Jr. in her arms, she had emerged from the White House to have a last word with Astronaut Gordon Cooper before the space hero embarked on his triumphal motorcade to the capitol.

The First Lady has canceled her social schedule and has made only rare public appearances since the public announcement of her pregnancy.

But Tuesday she was along for a good time. She had it—the way she likes it, without fanfare. And she promised to return—"real soon," as Caroline put it.

HCJC Due For Substantial Increase In State Funds

Howard County Junior College will receive a record amount in state funds for 1964 and 1965 if a bill recommended by a Senate- House conference committee Tuesday is approved by the Senate and House this week.

The committee recommended $163,740 for each of the two years, based on enrollment in October, 1962. The figure was derived by allocating $350 per student for the first 850 enrolled and $285 for each additional student. This is an increase of $10 per student for each above 850.

"If the bill passes as proposed, we will be in excellent shape," Dr. W. A. Hunt, president of HCJC, said.

Martin Drinks Bountiful Rain

STANTON — Soaking rains last night dumped from 1.50 to 1.80 inches of moisture on Martin County and brought the total since last Friday to an average of at least 3 inches.

Observers, elated at the rains, said that "this will make the crop" and that the moisture will be enough to hold the cotton through June and on into July.

Neil Estes, Stanton newsman, said that county farmers had much of their cotton planted and much of it up. The rains, without hail or wind of consequence, left the fields the wettest they have been in a long time.

Estes said that Lenora, eight miles north, had 2 inches for a 3-inch total since Saturday. Tazewell, in the north part of the county, gauged 1.75 Tuesday night. Five miles west of Stanton, a gauge showed 1.50 and the total for the week now stands at 2.75 at that point.

In Glasscock County, on the Stone ranch, about 10 miles southeast of Stanton, the gauges showed 1.50 inches.

End Of Semester Stimulates Drop In Enrollment

The second largest drop of the year was noted in enrollment Friday by the Big Spring Independent School District. Nine weeks of decline have brought the enrollment down by more than 150 pupils. The latest drop of 26 students put the figure at 7,254.

Most of the losses were in elementary schools, where the enrollment of 4,321 was 19 below the previous week. The total for secondary schools was 2,774, down six, and special education showed a drop of one to 159.

By school the enrollments were: Airport 463, down three; Bauer 504, down two; Boydston 512, down two; Cedar Crest 287, down three; College Heights 285, down one; Kate Morrison 246, down two; Lakeview 206, no change; Marcy 525, down four; Park Hill 273, down two; Washington 779, no change; Goliah 887, down three; Lakeview Junior High 66, no change; Runnels 717, down one; and Senior High 1,104, down two.

It gave credence to administration critics that farmers want less federal interference rather than more. Freeman had staked his prestige on the contention that farmers were willing to accept more effective controls to halt over-production and stabilize prices.

DEAR ABBY
You'd Better Break Up

DEAR ABBY: You probably won't believe this is written by a 21-year-old girl, but it is. I am dating a man (let's call him Arthur) but not steady. I date others, too, but he's the only man I know who is in a position to get married. I know he is crazy about me. The problem: Every time he goes to kiss me he gets a sort of pained expression on his face and his nostrils widen, making him look like a horse. I just "break up" and go into a laughing fit which I can't control. Abby, I really care for this man, but I'm ruining it for myself. What is the matter with me?

ARTHUR'S IDIOT

DEAR IDIOT: If you "break up" at what should be a very tender and sober moment—break up with Arthur. He is definitely not for you.

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor and I are good friends. Her eight-year-old daughter, whom I shall call Janie, plays with my seven-year-old daughter. If my suggestions do not meet with "Janie's" approval, she opens up a mouth with a sassiness such as I've never heard from a child. I've tried to be patient, but my own daughter has started to pick it up and it has now reached the breaking point. I've heard "Janie" speak to her mother this way without punishment or correction, but wonder if she knows the child talks to other adults in this manner. Should I forbid my daughter to play with Janie? Should I correct Janie myself? Or should I risk my friendship with my neighbor by telling her that I will not be "told off" by a child?

THE BREAKING POINT
DEAR BREAKING: Tell your neighbor in a friendly way that you will not permit her daughter to sass you. And inform her that unless Janie stops it your daughter will not be allowed to play with her.

DEAR ABBY: I work at a fountain in a drug store. Also working in this drug store is an older woman who is stealing the store blind. One day I caught her in the act and called her on it and she said, "Doesn't everyone?" Should I tell the manager?

DEAR "V": Advise the manager to watch the woman and get his own evidence.

Get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby and send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to ABBY, BOX 3365, BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF., for Abby's new booklet "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

Club Readies For Air Show

A seaman's menu is planned for the Air Show to be held at Howard County Airport Sunday afternoon.

Members of the Y's Men's Club will be dishing out freshly fried shrimp, french fried potatoes, cole slaw and iced tea to early arrivals. Serving hours will be from noon to showtime at 2 p.m.

"The shrimp will be fresh, direct from the Gulf Coast," Wade Choate, publicity chairman for the club, said. Deep fries will be set up at the airport to serve the meal piping hot. About 400 pounds of shrimp will be obtained.

The special dinner will be served to early arrivals at the National Air Show being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Champion acrobatic pilot Harold Krier and his team of precision pilots and parachutists will be the feature Money from the dinner will go to sponsor youth projects of the YMCA. All 26 members of the club will turn out to help serve customers. Wives of the members have also been drafted, Choate said.

Non-Religious Man Analyzed

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The man who shuns religion was analyzed by some church experts Wednesday—and classified as a puzzling character of varied motives and traits.

He may be openly hostile to faith, or indifferent; he may be a "troubled idealist," a self-styled "rugged individual," or even a regular member of the church who doesn't really believe its message, the report said.

Prepared by an evangelism commission and presented to the United Presbyterian General Assembly, it urged the church to break out of its "smug isolation" and pay more attention to the world of "the outsider."

Yet "it is not easy to understand the identity of the outsider," the report conceded. The commission, headed by the Rev. Dr. Robert Beach Cunningham, of New York, recommended steps for expanding the church's ministry beyond the parish to focus it increasingly on "the outsider."

Oil Production Shows Increase

TULSA (AP)—U.S. oil production rose last week, the Oil and Gas Journal reports.

Average daily production was 7,519,925 barrels, up 23,000 a day from the previous week, the magazine said.

Oklahoma output rose 13,700 barrels a day to 575,200. Colorado dipped 1,700 to 110,400. Arkansas produced 75,000, Louisiana 1,418,425, New Mexico 304,300 and Texas 2,602,350.

VA Staffers To Attend Meeting

Two staffers of the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital left this morning to attend area conferences for administrators to be held in St. Louis, Mo., Wednesday through Friday.

Dr. H. C. Ernsting, chief of staff, will attend a session for clinical directors. James Kilgore will be at a conference for administrative assistants to the chief of staff. This is the first such meeting for the latter group.

'On Stream'

An 85,000-barrel-a-day crude oil distillation unit officially went "on stream" at the Atreco Refinery of The Atlantic Refining Company at Port Arthur. A. W. Kusch, right, refinery manager, points out details of a 100-foot-high distillation tower to V. W. Evans, left, pipe still operator, and J. T. Adams, general foreman. The new facility replaces a 63,000-barrel-a-day unit constructed in 1937, and permits shutdown of a 22,000-barrel-a-day unit at Atlantic's Philadelphia refinery. The new distillation unit, together with a 22,500-barrel-a-day catalytic hydrodesulfurization unit, which also went on stream, completes a "major modernization" program at the refinery, according to Kusch.

Adm. Quinn To Be Memorial Speaker

Rear Adm. John Quinn, a native of Big Spring now serving as director of Pan American Affairs, will be guest speaker May 30 during Memorial Day ceremonies at the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital.

The annual ceremony, usually held at the memorial on the courthouse lawn, has been moved to the VA Hospital and will be sponsored jointly by that organization and Post No. 355 of the American Legion. It begins at 10 a.m.

Rear Adm. Quinn is an honor graduate of Big Spring High School. He was selected for training at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis and completed his work there in 1928. His son, Ensign Tommy Quinn, last year completed training at Annapolis also.

Rear Adm. Quinn was at sea during World War II and subsequently commanded the ship which conducted the initial tests at sea with guided missiles. Although he has seen extensive service at sea, because of his special talents in ordnance, the greater part of his service has been in Washington. During the war he used his knowledge of firearms to design a new safety slip for a service automatic pistol.

Gold Star Mothers will be honored guests for the occasion, as in the past. They will have a special seating section reserved and transportation can be arranged through the hospital.

The Senior High School band will provide music for the ceremonies and a Color Guard from Webb Air Force Base will present colors. The Rev. C. O. Hitt, chaplain, will give the invocation and V. J. Belda, hospital director, will welcome visitors. Dr. Halvard T. Hansen of the American Legion will introduce the guest speaker.

Police Investigate Several Burglaries

Two burglaries and two thefts were investigated by Big Spring police during the past 24 hours.

Sam's Place lost $5 in coins and an unknown quantity of cigarettes from a machine. Entry was made by smashing the back door.

Mrs. Leon Kirby, 826 W. 7th, reported her car was ransacked at the bowling alley parking lot. A first baseman's mitt, valued at $23, was missed.

Four hubcaps, valued at $52.60, and two tires and wheels valued at $35 were reported stolen from the Jack Lewis Auto Sales lot at 1509 W. 4th.

Police investigated a call to 1800 Hearn where a distributor was taken from James Redden's Rental.

Church Surpasses Previous Record

A new high attendance for Bible school was set at the Fourteenth and Main Church of Christ Sunday when 663 attended. This surpassed by 96 the former high of 567. The record was 35 below the goal set for May 19.

Special adult classes will continue through next Sunday. The subjects will be "Science and the Bible," taught by Bruce Frazier; "Can I Understand the Bible," by Doyle Maxwell, and "Inspiration of the Bible," by Curtis Camp. Other adult classes will continue with regular themes of study.

Mad World! Mad Kings! Mad composition! —Shakespeare

DAILY GUIDE — We may feel that this age has more to meet than any other, but other civilizations had their wild moments too. Things now can be very complicated in many parts of the world. If your little world is fairly sane, be thankful. Don't do anything to jar it.

This New Moon brings an emphasis on the "cusp" degrees between Taurus and Gemini. This was also accentuated around May 6. However, some things started at that time may have had to be postponed and the final outcome may not be realized until the middle of June. So check very carefully if you are in the middle of negotiations of plans.

This is one of those days when there is so much planetary bombardment that one needs to be very careful; this is an accident-prone day. But don't let fear make you susceptible to making mistakes; just keep your wits about you.

Certainly, it is no time to take chances or decide to push your weight around. Just play your cards close to your vest. Too many people may be out to take advantage.

Tomorrow lively and active, but the possibilities of errors or accidents still too threatening; keep on guard.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, GEMINI! Everything can begin to jump for you now, so be prepared for some unpredictable changes and the breaking of some domestic ties, or changes in your home.

This month and next can bring distraction through correspondence or travel, but you should be able to carry on after next week. Be careful in travel this week.

An illusive issue can be very confusing regarding your work or health from time to time. Generous friends can be counted on to help you this year.

You have started a new cycle of experiences in domestic affairs; some old pattern will be broken, but progress is the ultimate result.

Mission laboratory for screwworm control has confirmed the discovery of a case of screwworms on the Mrs. George White ranch north and west of Big Spring, Herb Helbig, county agent, said today.

A consignment of sterile male screwworm flies will be air dropped on the area today or Wednesday.

So far this year, five cases of screwworms have been located in Howard County. Two others, one in Sterling County and the other in Glasscock County, just across the Howard County line, have also been confirmed.

Three of the Howard County cases and one in Glasscock County have been in the southwest quadrant of the county. The experts are inclined to believe that one source may have been directly responsible for all of these cases.

All of the infested areas, with the exception of the one on the White ranch, have already been covered with sterile male screwworm flies, Helbig said.

[FINA INTERVIEWED ON ULTIMATE ADDITIVE]

PINK AIR: A TIRE-SIDE CHAT

A number of the nation's newspapers and newsmagazines have recently devoted a good deal of editorial space to Pink Air, Fina's Additive Of The Future. So now seems a good time to bring the record up to date on our progress, such as it is. To do this we will switch from our usual format to a more informal interview technique—a sort of tire-side chat, you might say:

Q. Let's see, you started to develop Pink Air because...
FINA. That's right. This business is highly competitive and we have thousands of stations, you know...

Q. That right?
FINA. Yes, in the Midwest and Southwest...

Q. That's nice.
FINA. Thank you. So to give us an edge in attracting customers we looked around for some, uh...

Q. Gimmick?
FINA. ... for some, uh, additive that we could stake out for our very own. Well, lo and ...

Q. You mean Fina Gasoline doesn't have any additives?
FINA. Oh our gas has lots of additives; all the additives your car can use. Fina is exactly as good as the best. Anyway, lo and ...

Q. What was the trouble then?
FINA. We couldn't think of any good names for them. So we looked around for something else to add things to. But, lo and behold, the only thing connected with your car that wasn't already chock-full of secret ingredients was your tire air!

Q. Think of that!
FINA. We did, but there wasn't much we could figure to do with tire air except make it some pretty color. Like pink, for instance...

Q. What good would that do?
FINA. We thought it might make people feel nice knowing they were riding on four doughnut-shaped pink clouds.

Q. Yes, but they couldn't see them, so I don't...
FINA. (Indignantly) They could see them as well as any other additive!

Q. I suppose you're right.
FINA. Sure. So we immediately launched a crash program to produce the secret ingredient that will turn air pink.

Q. Why pink?
FINA. If we hadn't grabbed it someone else would have. You have to keep on your toes...

Q. What colors are your competitors going to color their tire air?
FINA. We don't know for sure. But we expect to be first in the pumps; that is if we can work out the kinks...

Q. Such as?
FINA. Such as how to color air pink. The boys at the lab—the Fina Pink Air Research Development Center—have been at it for two years now.

Q. Let's see, that only gives you three years to go. Are you going to have to change your target date?
FINA. Not yet; no, we still have high hopes. It may be a little tight, but Fina customers ought to find Pink Air at the stations...

Q. May 12, 1966, isn't it?
FINA. About 4:30 in the afternoon. The trucks don't get around to some of the stations until late.

Q. Meanwhile...
FINA. Meanwhile, if you're driving down the road and you see a Fina station and it's on your side so you don't have to make a U-turn through traffic and there aren't six cars...

Q. No, I meant, meanwhile you are pushing the Pink Air program in other ways. But I see your space is up so we'll have to talk about that next time. Is there anything you'd like to say in closing?
FINA. Well, it would be nice to finish our slogan if you don't mind...

Q. Oh, I'm sorry...
FINA. We realize it's not very catchy, but it's not very pushy either, as slogans go...

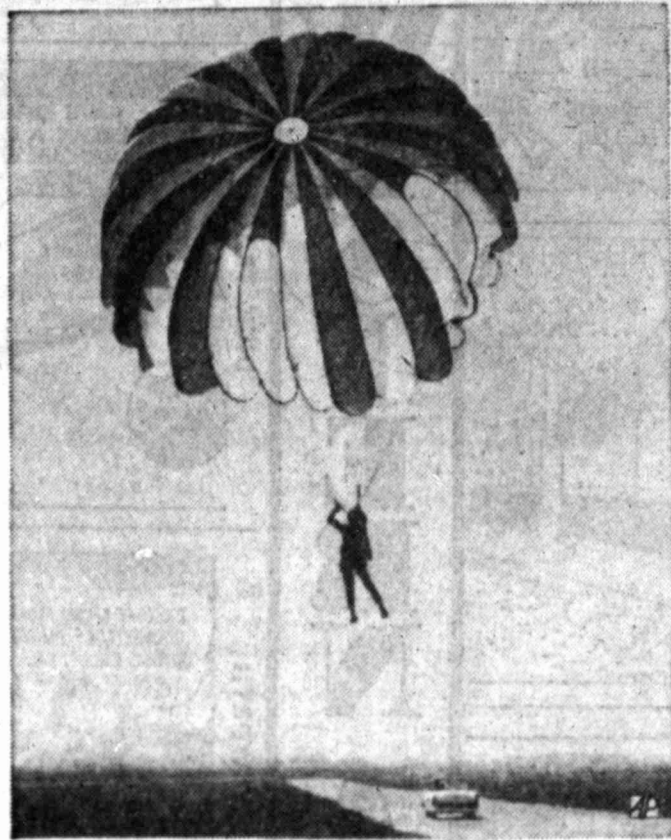

Q. Please finish it.
FINA. ... waiting and you need gas or something, please stop in.

Q. Thank you. Until next time then.

Short Change Artist Fizzles

A short-change artist, working Big Spring Monday night, did not come out so well in his efforts, but he had police looking for him all over the city.

He spent a little money at each place visited but did not get back more than was coming to him.

The man, described as over six feet tall and weighing 190 to 200 pounds, tried his trick first at Theima's Grocery, 910 E. 3rd. Curtis Rogers, manager, called police a description, plus the car make and license number.

Reports later came in from several service stations. The man was reported driving a car with out-of-county license plates.

Film Safaris No Picnic, Frankie Says

Ever have a notion that screen safaris are a far cry from the real thing?

"Don't be fooled into thinking a safari is a snap just because it's in a motion picture," declares Frankie Avalon, who recently completed a jungle trek for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Drums of Africa."

"Talk about hiking 50 miles. I think we must have walked twice that getting the scenes that show us moving through the jungle on foot. We'd rehearse the scenes a couple of times, then film them from various angles. And since almost the entire story takes place during the safari, we had our work — or should I say walking — cut out for us."

Beautiful red-haired star Marlette Hartley concurs.

"I'm a great outdoor enthusiast," she says, "so 'Drums of Africa' was definitely my cup of tea. I'd say 90 per cent of the film was done in the open air and, as Frankie remarked, involved a lot of hiking and violent action. In the climax I get caught by slave traders and have to struggle for dear life. I can honestly say there was never a dull moment."

And could she go home at night and rest peacefully after such demanding days?

"That was one of the most interesting things about it," she says. "At night I stepped into a completely different atmosphere, acting in the classical play 'Antigone' at UCLA's extension theatre."

Happily, Avalon and Miss Hartley are in tiptop condition and thrived on the whole thing. Avalon at one time trained to be a boxer. The film's other two stars, Lloyd Bochner and Torin Thatcher, had the right kind of preparation for their roles, too. Bochner is an ex-Navy man who subscribes to a daily program of physical fitness. Thatcher, who plays the white hunter in "Drums of Africa," served in similar capacity for "The Snows of Kilimanjaro."

"We all kidded Torin about his previous jungle experience," Avalon said, "and would bombard him with questions about the brush country."

Frankie, who introduces a new romantic ballad in the film, titled "The River Love," sings part of another refrain in Swahili, a difficult native tongue. He was taught by East African exchange student Anthony Chuma, from the University of Southern California.

"And," he says with a grin, "I never in my life spent more time memorizing lyrics."

The bidding:

Pass Pass 4♥ Double

Opening lead: King of ♠ South attempted to guess his way in today's hand and, unfortunately for him, he made the wrong choice. His partner made the defeat doubly bitter by pointing out at the conclusion of the deal that declarer could have eliminated all guesswork in favor of a sure thing.

When the bidding reached West in third position he abandoned hopes of a slam and bid the full limit of his hand by opening with four hearts. North doubled but, since South's hand was primarily distributional in nature, he chose to take the double out by bidding four spades. West's loss at four hearts would have been a mere 50 points inasmuch as his honors all but cancel out the one trick penalty that could have been inflicted.

West opened the king of hearts against four spades and continued with the ace which declarer ruffed. South led a trump to the queen in order to ruff out the last heart. The ace of spades cleared up that suit and the three high diamonds were taken on the last of which a club was thrown from the closed hand. A diamond was trumped which stripped out the red suits.

Now a small club was led. West put up the ten and declarer permitted him to hold the trick as East followed with the eight. West continued with the three of clubs and, after considerable study, South chose to play low from dummy in the hope that East had the ace and would be forced to play it. East put up the queen of clubs, however, and on the return West's ace took the setting trick.

Whether or not South should have played West for the ace of clubs is certainly debatable. What is more significant is that he failed to realize the full potential of his stripping operations. When West shows out on the second round of diamonds, the hand becomes an open and shut affair. Instead of ruffing the fourth diamond, all South has to do is to discard a second club, permitting East to hold the trick. If East returns a club it will establish North's king. If he comes back with anything else, declarer can sluff his third club loser while he ruffs in the dummy.

NEW YORK (AP)—A tantalizing concert of NBC's "Sing Along With Mitch" has been the weekly, unannounced appearance of an unidentified celebrity standing with the male chorus and singing along with the group.

Some 40 guest choristers have pulled on sweaters and stood in line during the 39 shows of the seasons, starting with "Car 54's" Joe E. Ross and Fred Gwynne on the season's opening show and winding up May 10 with Jan Murray.

All through the season everybody connected with the show kept mum about it, although the mail was coming in like mad. "Please help me. I've had a terrible fight with my husband. I swear I saw Douglas Fairbanks Jr. singing with the chorus last night. My husband says I'm nuts..."

Finally, at season's end, Mitch and the network released a full list of the visiting singers and would talk about the device.

Practically nobody who was invited turned down the chance—except Harry S. Truman. Jack Benny wanted to go on but his schedule was too tight. For his unannounced, unidentified appearances, each celebrity was paid $500 plus free transportation to and from the Brooklyn studios—usually from Manhattan.

Judging from mail response, comedian Red Buttons was the most easily identified of the 40 (he did that ear-holding little dance) and dancer Ray Bolger, the hardest. Frank Lovejoy was the mystery guest on one show, but died suddenly a couple of weeks later before the program was broadcast. They re-shot the finale with another celebrity.

Anyway, the guessing game has worked out so well that they'll do it again next season.

It's hard to understand why the Soviet committee for radio and television asked NBC to cancel Tuesday night's special, "The Kremlin," unless it objected generally to the dramatic and unusual way the ancient Moscow fortress was presented for the first time to television audiences.

Anyway, NBC went ahead with the broadcast, stating that none of the objections were based on charges of historical inaccuracy. It was a wonderful hour.

Rather than just moving cameras through the rooms and shooting exteriors of old and new palaces and cathedrals, the program used the interiors and exteriors for a short and fascinating course in Russian history.

The star of the program was neither Ivan the Terrible nor Peter the Great, fabulous as they sounded, but the beauties to be found in the 65 acres within the old brick battlements.

Some of the cathedrals—now museums — were breathtaking, and so indeed were many of the rooms and apartments shown. The joys of the program were at least quadrupled for those with access to color sets. For us, the silver gleamed, the jewels in the czars' crowns sparkled and icons came to glowing life.

Much of the time the camera moved like an eye as, with sound effects, music and occasionally portraits and sketches historical events were reenacted. One most effective portion showed the burning of Moscow—smoke and flame rising against a night sky filmed from within the walls.

A warm yet precise narration by producer George A. Vicas added much to the imaginative
