Seek Settlement

Three members of the special presidential committee seeking a solution to the railroad work rules dispute confer at the Labor Department in Washington, D.C. before meeting with management and union representatives. Seated, from left, are: George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO; Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, chairman of the committee; and Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges, vice chairman. Talking to Wirtz is James R. Reynolds, assistant labor secretary.

Rails Panel Buckles Down To Fact-Finding

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's new study committee buckled down to its assigned chore of fact-finding in the railroad labor dispute today with no sign that a chance for mediation had opened up.

The session got under way in the office of Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, the committee chairman, Stuart Saunders, a committee member and president of the Norfolk and Western Railway, told a newsman he had no plans at this time to serve in a mediation capacity.

Another member, George Meany, AFL-CIO president, who brought the matter up at Thursday's opening committee meeting, said today he had nothing further to say on the possibility.

VIOLENCE ERUPTS

Guard Called In Cambridge

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP)—Four hundred National Guardsmen, under orders to carry fixed bayonets, sped toward this city today after a night of racial terror described as akin to "warfare."

Six white persons, including three off-duty National Guardsmen, were wounded by roving bands of gunmen Thursday night and early today.

Gunfire pierced the darkness so frequently that State Police Maj. George E. Davidson exclaimed at one point: "There is shooting all over the city—almost on the scale of warfare."

The troops, who had been pulled out of the eastern shore community only Monday after a 25-day stay to cope with previous violence, were under orders to clamp down stricter controls than before.

Water Usage Is Climbing With Hot Temperatures

The thermometer climbed over 100 degrees for the third straight day in Big Spring Thursday, and the city's water usage climbed to its first 10 million gallons.

Threat Of New Demonstrations For Danville

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — The threat of renewed racial demonstrations hung over this textile and tobacco center today as the aftermath of a call by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. to "fill up the Danville jail" until local Negroes secure equal rights.

More than 60 demonstrators were in jail as King left for New York to make plans for a massive civil rights march to Washington next month "to arouse the nation's conscience to the plight of the Negroes and to demand strong civil rights legislation at this session of Congress."

TEAR GAS BREAKS UP MOB

Police, Troopers Patrol Savannah Following Riots

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—Heavily armed police and state troopers patrolled this port city today after firing tear gas for the second night to disperse crowds of rock-throwing Negroes and block a mass march on the downtown area.

Dixie Governors Presenting Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett today accused President Kennedy and his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, of "sowing the seeds of hate and violence."

He said that if the civil rights measures they have proposed are enacted, "the nation could reap a bloody harvest."

He told the Senate Commerce Committee: "If you pass this civil rights legislation, you are passing it under the threat of mob action and violence on the part of Negro groups and under various types of intimidation from the executive branch of this government."

Barnett testified before a crowd that overflowed the Senate Caucus Room. He was the first of a group of Southern governors who asked to be heard on the President's proposed ban on discrimination in public accommodations.

West Virginia Feud Ends In Bloodshed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—A long, bitter feud between two mountain families in West Virginia exploded into a gun battle Thursday when police attempted to serve a warrant at the home of Ernest Moore, near here.

When the gunsmoke cleared, Moore, 67, and his son, Andrew, 23, were dead. The elder Moore's wife, Garnet, 57, suffered a head cut and was charged with resisting an officer.

Three state troopers, who approached the house with two Manawha County sheriff's deputies Thursday afternoon, recounted this story:

The Moores had been feuding for years with the O.F. Miles family, owners of adjacent mountain property. Miles had sworn out a warrant against the Moores last week, but the Moores chased away officers four times as they attempted to serve the document. Thursday Charles Walker, Kanawha County prosecutor, issued a warrant for the arrest of the Moores. Deputies Willie Gibbs and Lawrence Carpenter joined State Troopers D. A. Nickerson, C. N. Cooke and J. O. Blevins in another attempt to get the warrant served.

Gibbs knocked on the door of the Moore cabin and was told by Mrs. Moore, "You'll be shot if you don't get out of here."

Seconds later, a shotgun blast ripped through the screen door. Gibbs' face felt the breeze.

The gunshot was the signal for Cooke and Blevins to storm through the back door. They opened fire on Moore and his son as they burst in.

Moore was hit three times and his son was shot twice. None of the officers was hit. Funeral attendants said the officers' shots were fired at such close range that five slugs passed through the bodies of Moore and his son.

Miles complained to police that the Moores had been using his private road. He also said he suspected the feud had been responsible for the burning of his barn and the snipping of his fences in recent days.

No charges had been filed today against anybody, except Mrs. Moore, who was free on bond.

This was the last chapter in a free-wheeling dispute reminiscent of the Hatfield-McCoy feud, which also took place partly in West Virginia.

Rights Leaders Still Pressing

CHICAGO (AP)—Civil rights demonstrators continue to press officials in three major industrial cities in Illinois—Chicago, Peoria and East St. Louis—in moves against what they consider discriminatory job and education policies.

No violence was reported in the demonstrations and meetings sponsored Thursday by several groups, including the Congress of Racial Equality and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

John Gwynn, NAACP leader in Peoria, conducted a mass meeting Thursday night to discuss the recent arrests of Negro sit-ins at the Central Illinois Light Co. The utility's office had been picketed earlier.

About 150 sign-carrying Negroes picketed City Hall in East St. Louis protesting what they said was racial discrimination in city government. The City Council on Wednesday had unanimously adopted an ordinance banning racial discrimination in hiring and promoting city employees.

More than 20 CORE demonstrators, including two grade school pupils, continued a sit-in in the office of Clair Roddewig, president of the Chicago School Board. It had begun Wednesday.

A spokesman for the group, Edward Blankenheim, 30, said that failure of the board to redistrict schools to end geographic segregation would result in large-scale CORE demonstrations in all-white high schools when school opens.

Seek Negro Members, Synod Asked

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—The fourth general synod of the United Church of Christ adjourned Thursday with a plea by its president to solicit Negro memberships.

"It is no longer enough to accept passively a Negro member to your congregation," Dr. Ben Mohr Herbster said. "You must welcome him. You must solicit his membership."

His remarks came after he successfully pleaded for the delegates, representing two million members, to reverse an earlier stand on the race issue.

Under his urging, the synod approved 308 to 129 a policy denying financial help to church-related institutions if they fail to have an open racial policy by July 1, 1964.

The policy statement was first rejected 232 to 204.

Dr. Herbster pleaded for approval of the policy "even though you do it with heavy hearts."

He said, "If we really mean what we have said and what we have done in setting up the committee for racial justice now (established by the synod last Friday), we must act."

Upon reconsideration, 104 delegates changed their votes.

White Southern delegates had led the opposition, claiming that they called financial sanctions would jeopardize their progress toward integration.

Missing Sought In Ship Disaster

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—A score of small boats combed the Plate River Estuary through thick fog today for 20 persons missing after the fiery sinking of a river steamer carrying more than 400 persons. Forty bodies had been recovered.

Rescue vessels plucked 355 panic-stricken survivors from overcrowded lifeboats and the wintry waters of the wide river mouth 50 miles in from the Atlantic.

The 2,330-ton Ciudad De Asuncion — City of Asuncion — commanded by a substitute captain and normally used only in inland service, sank in darkness and fog Thursday. It was on the 150-mile overnight run from Montevideo, Uruguay, to Buenos Aires.

An unconfirmed report said three Americans were aboard. Neither their identity nor their fate was known.

While the Argentine government pressed an investigation, some survivors said the 33-year-old steamer apparently went "off course in a 36-foot-deep channel and struck a sunken ship."

An electrical short circuit apparently touched off an explosion and the lights went out.

"Panic started when we saw thick black smoke coming up from inside, and then red flames," Enrique Plesenkopf, 26, a Uruguayan businessman said.

"People screamed in fear. They started climbing up the rails and jumping into the water. I jumped, too."

Capt. Avito Fernandez, whose own ship is in drydock, ordered lifeboats lowered when the lights went out. One went down bow first and sank.

Some survivors said several men pushed women from lifeboats to save their personal belongings.

Among those rescued were members of the Trio De Trieste, world-famous Italian chamber music group on their first tour of South America. The three musicians spent four hours in the water but lost their music and instruments, including a $60,000 Stradivarius cello.

The Ciudad De Asuncion normally plies the River Plate between Buenos Aires and Asuncion, Paraguay, but was pressed into service for the Montevideo-Buenos Aires run for the winter.

Some passengers said the steamer's lifeboats could accommodate only 147 persons. Most of those plucked from the water wore life jackets.

"Despite the darkness and the fog, I saw a pregnant woman clinging to a raft," said Israel Creimer, 27, of Montevideo. "She tried to help a 2-year-old girl. The girl went under first, then the woman."

Another mother kept biting her 4-year-old daughter to keep her awake and afloat. The child was treated for bites at a hospital.

The fog lifted temporarily in late afternoon and patrol boats approached to pick up persons clinging to the mast and superstructure of the otherwise submerged ship.

Survivors were taken to a naval base at La Plata, near Buenos Aires.

Some were in shock. Others clutched a few personal belongings. One woman held tight to a hair brush, a child to a toy. A 12-year-old girl told of seeing two men lose their grip on a raft and slip into the sea.

"There were a lot of children who died out there," said Abbe Pierre, a French Roman Catholic priest.

Oklahoma Negro May Not Act On Integration Order

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Robert Dowell, 15-year-old Negro who was the principal figure in a federal court school integration ruling here Thursday, says he may not take advantage of the order.

A suit filed two years ago by Robert's father, Dr. Alfonso L. Dowell, was the basis for a decision by U.S. Dist Judge Luther Bohannon ordering complete student and teacher integration in Oklahoma City schools.

The suit was filed after the Board of Education refused Dowell's request for his son to transfer from all-Negro Douglass High School to predominantly white Northeast High School.

Robert has been attending Bishop McGuinness High School, a Roman Catholic institution.

"I haven't made up my mind yet whether to transfer to Northeast or stay at Bishop McGuinness," Robert said. "I have made a lot of friends at McGuinness and I may decide to stay there."

He will be a senior next fall.

Robert's sister, Vivian, 14, pre-enrolled last February for the fall term at Northeast. She will be a freshman.

W. A. Lybrand, attorney for the Board of Education, said the decision would be appealed. He said it was not in the best interest of the students involved.

The school board has followed a policy of allowing white students to transfer from predominantly Negro schools to predominantly white schools upon making a simple application. Negro students were allowed transfers only when enrolled in courses not offered in Negro schools.

Bohannon said this resulted in token integration and permanently restrained the school board from following the policy.

He also ordered school officials to integrate supervisory and teaching staffs "in good faith and with deliberate speed."

Gov. Henry Bellmon failed Thursday in an attempt to persuade the City Council of Nowata, in northeastern Oklahoma, to sell a cemetery lot to a Negro Air Force officer.

'Died' 5 Times, Gets New Heart

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Norman Howard "died" five times before he got a mechanical lease on life.

That lease is a battery-powered device in the abdomen of the 53-year-old Maryville businessman. The little lifesaver is connected by wires to two tiny electrodes sewed to the muscles of Howard's heart. It steps up his heartbeat and compensates for a fault in the heart impulses.

The beginning of what might have been the end for Howard was last April 9.

He came home from a day of fishing, took a hot bath and, as he prepared for bed, noticed his heart pounding. Short of breath, he checked his pulse.

"The way I counted it, my pulse beat was 40 to the minute," he said. "Sounded slow to me." The normal beat is 68 to 70.

Next day Howard saw a doctor. There was no evidence of heart attack or heart damage.

"But there's something wrong," the doctor said. "We're going to have to put you in the hospital."

"I started to protest," Howard recalled. "Now? I never felt better in my—right there I collapsed."

His heart was stilled. After long moments, the doctor stirred it to activity again by a powerful chemical, isoproterenol hydrochloride.

Howard, the doctor says, "died" briefly three more times during the next 20 days in a hospital.

When it seemed the attacks were easing, Howard returned home. Two days later he had his fifth brush with oblivion.

"I thought he was gone," said his wife, a former X-ray technician.

"We rushed him to University Hospital in Knoxville, the doctor giving him isuprel (isoproterenol hydrochloride) through the veins all the way—and that's quite a trick in an ambulance."

At this point, doctors decided to use the Pacemaker, the electrical heartbeat regulator.

Howard's heart was attached to its mechanical companion May 15. He plans to return to work next week.

The doctor says when Howard dies, it won't be because of the faulty heart condition.

"I intend to stay away from fast cars and trains, wear a life preserver on the water, and pray that lightning never gets close enough to stop my batteries," said Howard.

Hot Line May Be Ready By Sept. 1

MOSCOW (AP)—The "hot line" between Washington and Moscow may be ready for operation by Sept. 1.

Soviet Communications Minister Nikolai Pсуртsev issued orders Wednesday for completion by that date of the cable link which Soviet technicians have started installing.

In Washington, White House press secretary Pierre Salinger wouldn't estimate a completion date for the emergency line between the White House and the Kremlin.

A QUESTION

What seems to be a sincere man has written asking a question. He has been discouraged by what seems to be loyalty to denominational doctrine at the expense of truth. He says, "No one will answer this question in an honest, sensible manner." He says all the Big Spring churches have "many flagrant errors which they cannot afford to admit or correct."

Well, I cannot speak for other churches; but I have found the churches of Christ willing to answer all Bible questions honestly and sensibly. I have found them willing to afford the luxury of admitting and correcting their errors when they are pointed out to them.

Of course this would not be true of every member; for some misrepresent the church.
In articles to follow, I shall gladly answer the man's question.

No Compulsion In Race Issue, Senators Warned

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mayor Frank H. Morris of Salisbury, Md., a community where desegregation is going forward peacefully under the guidance of a bi-racial commission, counseled senators today against federal compulsion.

"Progress in racial problems must come from the hearts and head of people," he told the Senate Commerce Committee at a hearing on the administration's bill to prohibit racial discrimination in restaurants, hotels and other private establishments serving the public.

Morris testified he did not question need for such legislation in some communities, but he said that "under this proposed law, there is no inducement to a community to solve its own problems, or to compel its leadership to take up its load."

"There is no inducement for the black and whites of a community to start the talks that are the real hope of future solutions," he added.

Morris was one of two mayors who had been scheduled to testify. However, because of lack of time, the appearance of Mayor Ivan Allen Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., was postponed to a later date, not yet set.

A Devotional For The Day

If you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law. (Galatians 5:18, N.E.B.)
PRAYER: Our Father, giver of all good gifts, may the Holy Spirit take our prayers before Thee and return them with Thy blessings and Thy strength. Help us put every thought, word, and deed under the Holy Spirit's guidance. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Another Try For Rail Settlement

A national sigh of relief comes as a respite of a few days is gained in the railroad-labor controversy.
President Kennedy has achieved at least a stay and another study, and this is to be commended. It is difficult, until one comes into being, to gauge the disastrous effects on the country's economy and distribution needs that a strike could cause.
Whether issues will be resolved by July 29 remain to be seen. It would seem that the bitter dispute over work rules has been threshed out to the last degree, with prior boards of arbitration, court action, and months of arbitration. The rail unions are determined to hold on to their own principles of job security, rail management seem just as determined to bring about changes they consider vital to their continued operation at some degree of profit.

The labor people have turned down previous board recommendations for settlement of the work rules.
However, this country still stands firmly in the principle of collective bargaining and arbitration, and if the President's special review committee can find an acceptable answer, a triumph will have been achieved in labor-management relations.
The news dispatches indicate that the President will be prepared, before the next deadline of June 29, to have the whole problem before Congress. If worst comes to worst, special legislation or government intervention may be the result.
In the nation's interest, it is to be hoped that the newest board can bring recommendations that both labor and management will accept. There needs to be, of course, a final determination.

Domestic Peace Must Come First

In hearings before the Senate Commerce Committee, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy has said the administration is willing to help work out a "cut-off point" for application of the proposed bill against racial discrimination in places of public accommodation.
This seems necessary if the bill is to receive a serious hearing in the Senate, considering the possibilities of a filibuster against it. Even the problem of finding an acceptable cut-off formula may not prove amenable in the remainder of the congressional session.
The administration bill proposes to require service to all comers in establishments doing a "substantial" amount of interstate business. But this term is extremely vague and would leave an inordinate amount of interpretation to the courts.
As a means of making clear that small family-run boarding houses are not lumped with big hotel and restaurant chains, Mr. Kennedy has suggested a dividing line based on the gross annual amount of business done, possibly $500,000 a year as in the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

He also observed that some types of businesses licensed by states might be omitted from the law, such as barber shops, bowling alleys, and doctors' offices—though it might make some difference if a barber shop were near an airport.
At the same time, Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky questions the advisability of basing this law on the federal authority over interstate commerce. He would prefer to have Congress operate under the 14th Amendment as in other civil-rights legislation.
These are extremely complex questions. They call for close legal study to forecast with any reasonable certainty how they would work in practice. Much less difficult subjects have profited from a few years rather than a few months of analysis and debate. Meanwhile, if federal action is deliberate, much can be accomplished and is being accomplished by local negotiation.

Marquis Childs Attack On The Clan Kennedy

WASHINGTON — While obviously the base is much broader, the Goldwater movement is at least a collateral descendant of an earlier right-wing protest. The Liberty League blossomed briefly in 1936 to denounce the New Deal, the Roosevelts and all their works.
The Liberty League lacked a national hero of the stature of the senator from Arizona. Support was limited to a few very rich men and women. But the words coming out of the Goldwater movement, as evidenced by the big mass meeting here last week, have a family resemblance to the thunderbolts hurled by the Liberty League.

THE LOUDEST BOOS of the Goldwaters were in response to denunciations of the "royal family." It was evidence, if any had been needed, that the Kennedys in the 'Sixties have taken the place of the Roosevelts in the 'Thirties.
The Kennedys offer numerically an even broader target for the scorn of the right than did the family of FDR. Whether this goes very deep in popular political feeling is uncertain. In Massachusetts it was running for the Senate, "too many Kennedys" seems to have had little weight as a campaign issue. But Massachusetts as a special Kennedy preserve may be atypical.

AS A POLITICAL phenomenon the working relationship between the various members of the Kennedy clan—and clan is the right word—is a fascinating study. It is more closely knit than was the relationship between FDR, his sons and other Roosevelt and Delano kin. And far more in terms of actual performance turns on it.

Example No. 1 is Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy. He continues to be, as was inevitable from the first, the President's closest adviser. In every crisis, whether national or international, the President's brother is at his side. When the Cabinet meeting breaks up, when the last advisers leave in the small hours of the morning, Bobby is still there. It is a relationship of unquestioning loyalty, going down to a family conditioning as fierce as could well be imagined.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL carries the principal burden of the racial crisis. During the President's strenuous European tour his brother sought to spare him anxiety on this score. But with one exception the President telephoned each day to ask for news of the racial crisis. And neither on the political nor on the fever chart of racial unrest around the country was the news encouraging.

The attorney general's responsibility in this most sensitive of all political areas puts added stress on the closeness of their relationship. He has been accused of being overzealous in several situations, notably in the steel price crisis of last year. With an administration commitment to racial equality by government action on a broad front, the attorney general must walk a narrow line between the militant demands of the Negro organizations and the fears of the white community, North as well as South. Overstepping that line could be costly.

A KENNEDY brother-in-law, R. Sargent Shriver, has done one of the most outstanding jobs in the administration as director of the Peace Corps. The President proposes to enlarge the corps with the likelihood that Congress will approve.
Shriver's wife, Eunice, the President's oldest sister, was with him on his recent tour, expending her share of the family's furious energy on various endeavors. So far part of the time was Jean, wife of Stephen Smith, who has been given an important political assignment for 1964.

AS NEXT YEAR'S election draws nearer, the clan Kennedy will come in for more and more direct personal attack. At least a score of organizations across the country, each one of which is so far to the right that it makes the Liberty League seem almost quaintly libertarian in its outlook, will denounce the Kennedys in language bound to grow more interperate. If that earlier era is any criterion, when Eleanor Roosevelt was being so violently assailed, the political mileage in this line of attack is slight.

One thing is certain. It will not alter the Kennedy habit of family reliance. That pattern is deeply ingrained in their origins and their upbringing.

Billy Graham

How can I overcome prejudice? I want to rid myself of this undesirable trait, yet I don't seem to be able to do so. —J.T.E.

You have already taken the first step to overcome your prejudice — you have recognized that you have it, and that is something that few prejudice-ridden people do.

Prejudice means "pre-judging"; forming judgments based upon emotion, tradition, or hearsay—and not by the facts. Most of us are inclined to be prejudiced in some areas of our lives. Don't think for one moment that racial prejudice is the only kind. Religious prejudice, political prejudice, and people-prejudice are just as common.

How to get rid of it? First, as I said, you must recognize that it exists. Second, you must want to get rid of it. Third, you must pray this prayer: "Let this mind be in me which was also in Christ Jesus." Our Lord had no prejudice. He associated with people of every race, culture and creed. Because He had perfect insight, He judged people by facts and not by emotion. When His love and understanding are imparted to us, we then can be released from prejudice.

Fourth, try to know those against whom you have formed prejudices. When we really know people we will like them.

James Marlow Lodge Walking Into A Mess

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge is walking into a mess, one of the most dismal since the United States tried to help Chiang Kai-shek save China from the Communists.

President Kennedy recently appointed him ambassador to South Viet Nam.
From 1946 until 1951 the colonialist French tried to smash the Reds in Indochina. By 1951 they were doing so badly, militarily and financially, the United States had to bail them out, or try to.
It cost $2.5 billion into the fight. No good. The French quit in 1954. The Communists got half of Indochina. Then the United States moved in and supported President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam.

FROM 1954 until now this country has pumped in another $2.5 billion, plus 12,000 troops to help Diem and train his troops. So far 84 Americans have been killed in action or in non-combatant activities. What's the result?
No end to the war is in sight. Communist guerrillas are not only still fighting but now Diem is up to his neck with South Vietnamese Buddhists, who make up 80 per cent of the population and are growing increasingly angry.

Thursday Malcolm W. Browne, Associated Press correspondent in Saigon, reported that U.S. officials there believe South Viet Nam could be plunged into civil war and chaos if tensions between the Buddhists and Diem increase.

The Buddhists complain they are discriminated against by Diem and most of his top advisers who, like Diem, are Roman Catholics. Diem is a dictator, and a hard-headed one.
His country, about the size of New England, has 14.5 million people. Most of them live under primitive conditions.
IT WAS recognized in Washington years ago that Diem needed to put in many reforms to give the people social, economic and political justice if they were to be persuaded to prefer his regime to the Communists.

The United States faced the same problem after World War II with Chiang, who operated as a war lord while fighting Communists who promised reforms. Despite all the American help poured into him, the Communists drove him out.

Hal Boyle Walking Wounded

NEW YORK (AP)—In summer the average business office becomes a kind of refuge for the walking wounded.

People go gladly to work then because it is the only place they know where they can enjoy air-conditioned safety—and escape the dangers of home and leisure. Weekends are the worst of all. The results show up on Monday, when most swivel chairs are unmanned because their usual occupants through the company doctor's office.

Here are a few typical summer casualties and their tales of woe: "Doc," says the personnel manager, handing him a small package. "I dozed while cutting the grass and fell off my power mower, and the darned thing ran over me, from head to foot."
"I think my hair will grow back alright, but what about my right big toe? Do you think it's too late to sew it back on?"
The office boy walks in like a bowlegged cowboy. "Spent the weekend racing my motor bike," he tells the medic. "What's good for saddle sores?"

Sally Primrose, the secretary, went on a picnic—and now she has red-rimmed, weeping eyes and can't stop sneezing.

"All I did—kerchoo!!--was to bend down and smell a wildflower," she explains, "and now I've got—kerchoo!!--this terrible attack of hay fever. What can you do for me?"
"Gesundheit!" says the doctor helpfully.

The line of sufferers snaps to attention as the boss, shamefaced, enters with a heavily bandaged right hand. Their ears go up as they hear him bark behind the doctor's closed door: "I hit the ball off the third tee, and it landed in the rough. Just between us, Doc, I reached down to toss it to a better lie—we were playing for two bucks a hole—and guess that's when I picked up this poison ivy. But don't let those jerks outside know what happened or I'll never hear the last of it."

To Your Good Health Corns Are Caused By Shoe Pressure

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: How do I get rid of corns on each small toe? A chiropodist gives me temporary relief, but sometimes only for a week. This condition has gone on for more than 25 years.

Now it seems I should go to the hospital, and after surgery on my toes must not walk for three weeks. Having to work, I couldn't possibly do it. Any suggestions? —Y. H.

First, you have my sympathy. But the most helpful advice I can give is to insist that you face facts and stop looking for some substitute for proper treatment of corns.

Corns are caused by pressure. Pressure comes from wearing the wrong shoes. You can remove the corns, but unless you remove that pressure, more will grow.

Now then, what to do? Tell your employer that your doctor says you must go to the hospital.
Once you have had your feet repaired, find out what kind of shoes to wear, and get them.

Shoes that are too short or too narrow are both the cause of corns. High heels force the feet downward into the shoes, and it is quite unusual to find a woman without, at least some corn formation.

Faulty foot mechanics—a weak arch, flat feet, hammer toe, etc., add to the trouble.

Sometimes metatarsal pads, by changing the position of the feet, help a great deal, but it is wishful thinking to expect relief without wearing larger and different shaped shoes—with emphasis on lower heels.

I am sorry that you have had 25 years of trouble and aggravated misery, but it is time now for you to take several weeks off to remedy a condition that has not been solved by temporary measures.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother underwent gall bladder surgery. Stones were removed and adhesions corrected. She is now under a strict diet to prevent indigestion and heartburn. I thought surgery relieved these symptoms and a person could eat normally. Is this correct? —E. B.

The gall bladder is a reservoir for an extra supply of bile (which the liver keeps producing). With the gall bladder removed, this extra supply is not available. Therefore (depending on original eating habits) a patient may have to be careful not to eat too much and especially not too much fat, but that's about all.

Habitually heavy eaters have to change their habits after such surgery. Light or moderate eaters usually continue to eat the same way. Your mother may have trouble in the stomach proper which was not corrected by the gall bladder surgery. I refer to ulcer, spasm, hyperacidity or possibly hiatal hernia.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been arguing with my mother about the best way for her to quit smoking. I say she should stop completely, once and for all. She says she should reduce gradually until she is down to one, and then stop. Which way is best? —L. H.

I quit "cold turkey." It worked for me. I know people who have reduced their smoking, although I don't recall any who have succeeded in cutting down to one and then stopping. The latter usually decide, somewhere along the line, that they have cut down enough.

Around The Rim Use Of The Big Stick

Item: The Soviet Union feels justified in use of Russian military might to suppress a satellite nation which has cast off its chains, and to impose by force those puppet rulers of the satellites which have remained loyal to the Kremlin. The Soviets do not shrink in threatening nuclear war to keep out Western aid to the beleaguered Freedom Fighters. Example: Hungary.

COROLLARY: The United States does not feel justified in use of American military might to suppress a revolutionary government which (like Hungary is to Russia) is too close to home to allow intrusion of a foreign power. We shrink from imposing by force those in other nations whose ideas jibe with our own. Only once did we threaten nuclear war to keep Russian elements out of our perimeter, and we immediately softened our stand. Example: Cuba.

ITEM: The Kremlin feels that it owns or at least controls those areas of international waters which are close to home or in which the Russians have some temporary interest. The Communists do not shrink from attacking intruding ships and aircraft in such areas. Examples: The Baltic Sea and certain areas of the Pacific roped off for missile experiments.

COROLLARY: The United States scrupulously keeps outside the three-mile limit near Communist territory, and only occasionally ventures into or near zones roped off in violation of international law. We never attack Russian ships nosing around our own temporary experimental areas. We do not shut out Russian shipping in areas we might well consider as being close to home. Examples: The Caribbean, particularly around Cuba, and some of our missile impact areas.

ITEM: The Kremlin does not feel embarrassed in helping governments of its satellite nations suppress whatever opposition it considers anathema to its interests. Nor does the Kremlin pause in removing those governments (where it has the power to do so) which prove cantankerous, or which are riddled with opposing elements. Example: Czechoslovakia.

COROLLARY: The United States feels embarrassed by the penny-ante dictators who rule certain nations within our orbit, but we do nothing more than protest when basically democratic elements within those nations are suppressed. We would not think of interfering in the internal affairs of any of our satellites, certainly not the extremity of removing those governments which are so riddled with tyranny and corruption as to lose the faith of the people. Example: South Viet Nam.

MANY YEARS AGO, Thomas Jefferson expressed ideas which, if applied to a modern and mighty America, could result in the biggest cleanup of petty tyrants the world has yet seen. We had an example of the Big Stick policy in recent years, when the United States government used the threat of armed intervention to topple the dictatorship of the Dominican Republic.

Khrushchev has a big stick which he is not afraid to wave. I would like to suggest that we have a much bigger stick, and that we begin to use it. —BOB SMITH

Inez Robb American Male Rates Low In Europe

Have you been under the impression that the American man is regarded by European womanhood as the beau ideal of inner and outer space? That he is, by its acclamation, Mr. Universe?

Well, brace yourself!
European women believe that the American man is "overrated, oversexed and overconfident, as well as demanding, domineering, lazy, thoughtless, vain, extravagant, a show-off, tasteless and the sloppiest man alive."

FURTHERMORE, European women hold American women responsible for the American male's deplorable condition. He is spoiled and pampered, in European opinion, "from the cradle to the grave by his mother, grandmothers, sisters and aunts, and then by his wife or wives."
"No wonder he marries so often!" snapped an Austrian girl. "No one woman could stand all the attention and waiting-on he demands."

"You American women wait on him hand and foot," sniffed an Italian woman. "If he says he prefers a European wife, it is only because he has heard that European women are half-servant, half-slave to a husband. Well, he's about a thousand years behind the times."

"WHEN YOU HAVE a date with an American boy, he never asks you what you would like to do," said a Spanish belle. "He assumes that whatever he wants to do is the only thing to do. He is too spoiled to consider the preferences of anyone else."

"He likes to be a big shot and throw his money around," said an English girl, "but he is too impressed with his own irresistibility. An American man seems convinced that he only has to look at a woman and she will swoon at his feet in gratitude."

YOU, READER, may feel that this is indeed a cross cross-section of European female reaction to the American male. And so it is. But it is nothing to the loud and universal complaint that the American man is the most-sloppy, individual and the worst-dressed tourist on the continent.

"Why does he feel that he can come to Europe, and then shed his tie, his coat and his dignity?" is the gist of the indictment. "Why does he think that he can pose as Beau Brummel in a knit sport shirt or even a sweat shirt, pulled over rumpled slacks or old shorts?"

"AND WHY, when he is thus dressed, does he feel outraged when he is refused admission to a good restaurant or hotel dining room? And make a scene? He wouldn't dress that way at home! What makes him think that Europe is a slum? It doesn't make sense, especially when the American woman is almost invariably immaculate."

And in what survey or poll did all the above opinion originate? Why, in the Robb Running Poll of European Opinion. Ever since the United States Information Service took a poll of European opinion to reaffirm the fact that the American woman is regarded abroad as Typhoid Mary, I have been eager to know how the American male was viewed.

SINCE THE U.S.S.R. seemed reluctant to pry into the status of the American man in European eyes, I decided to do it myself when I was in Europe.

Imagine my shock to discover that Europeans seemed to have no higher opinion of the American man than of the American woman! I thought he was adored abroad even as he is worshipped at home. But, no—European girls regard him as all right for a few dates, but not for the serious business of marriage.

Yanks, come home! We benighted American women still think you're the greatest!

David Lawrence Public Interest In Rail Dispute

WASHINGTON — The nation was this week given a painful example of what could happen to "innocent bystanders." Even the mere threat of a country-wide railroad strike caused many a business to begin expensive preparations to enable commerce to continue to flow. Five labor unions, each nationally organized, may today use their monopoly power over a whole industry to shut off rail traffic and thereby demoralize passenger and freight service from coast to coast.

THE RAILROAD companies themselves, however, cannot function as a private monopoly. Two companies are not allowed to merge, even when one is on the verge of bankruptcy, unless permission is granted by a federal government agency.

Yet one railroad union doesn't require the slightest authority from the government to close down the industry and impair the investments of millions of individual or institutional stockholders. Property thus can be destroyed at will by a private monopoly of union members.

Plainly, the sentiment so often expressed in dilemmas of this kind that "There ought to be a law" is ignored in Congress and by the President.

THE ISSUES in the current controversy between the railroad unions and the companies have been thoroughly debated and have been argued in collective-bargaining conferences for four years. In fact, President Eisenhower appointed a commission which reported to President Kennedy on Feb. 28, 1962, after an exhaustive review of so-called "featherbedding"—an insistence on being paid for work not done. The commission declared in its recommendations that the railroads could make sweeping changes in the work rules and in the number of workers employed. It proposed, at the same time, some curbs on railroad action, including certain things the companies would have to do in the way of benefits for workers who were first—such as severance pay.

THE BATTLE THAT has been going on involves a jockeying by the union leaders. They don't like proposals for compulsory arbitration and in emergencies prefer seizure and operation of the railroads by the government while some settlement is worked out.

The President today has no power to seize the railroads. Congress would have to provide it. The same situation arose in 1946 when President Truman, believing that he already had authority under a wartime statute that had not yet been repealed, seized the rail properties and ordered them operated under government auspices. But the unions refused to work. The President then asked Congress for further legislation to require compulsory service through the military draft. The strike was called off after it had lasted 48 hours.

THERE IS NO question about the right of Congress to legislate under the clause which gives it authority "to regulate interstate commerce." There have been times—during war periods, for instance—when Congress has enacted legislation not only to control strikes but also to fix wages and prices. But no such law exists today.

The labor unions, of course, operate under broad grants of authority to organize for collective bargaining. The Taft-Hartley Act covers all unions except those of the transportation industries, whose labor relations are specifically regulated by the Railway Labor Act—a statute which antedates the Taft-Hartley law by many years.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY's proposal to both sides to let Justice Arthur Goldberg of the Supreme Court act as an arbitrator in the current dispute, while the unions and companies go on operating, was in principle at variance with the unions' previous position against compulsory arbitration. They have felt all along that arbitration by government might not be fair to them. But the administration reasoned that they could hardly say this about Mr. Goldberg, who was formerly special counsel for the AFL-CIO, as well as counsel for the steelworkers' union, and until recently Secretary of Labor in Mr. Kennedy's Cabinet. That's why official Washington hopes for an acceptance of the proposal by both sides, but union leaders preferred some other way.

BUT EVEN A temporary avoidance of a strike leaves untouched the main issue—the right of a national labor union at any time to tie up the railway traffic of the country indefinitely and seriously damage the pocketbooks of the "innocent bystanders."

Guest Talks To Garden Club

Mrs. Dale Smith, using the topic, "Mechanics of Flower Arranging," was guest speaker at the Wednesday afternoon meeting of the Four O'Clock Garden Club.

The group gathered in the home of Mrs. J. D. Cole, 3229 Cornell, to hear Mrs. Smith say that the most important part of the arrangement is seeing that it is secure in the container. To insure this, she suggested having a dry container; using clay to keep the pin holder from moving. Slag, rocks or greenery can be used to cover the holder. Another practice she recommended, was to fill tall containers with sand so that stems could be shorter.

Mrs. Glen Lepard presided during the business session when Mrs. O. J. Horton was named as the new ways and means chairman.

Work has started on the patio garden in the rehabilitation center at the state hospital, according to Mrs. J. D. Cole, city council representative. She also said that the Four O'Clock Club would be in charge of classification and education for the fall flower show. Prior to the show, a workshop is scheduled at the First Federal Savings and Loan Bldg.

Refreshments were served by the hostess from a living room buffet. The coffee table held an arrangement of pink and white miniature carnations. Mrs. B. E. Reagan, 1500 E. 16th, will be hostess for the next meeting.

Review Is Heard By Wesley Group

Eighteen members and guests of the Wesley Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service met at the church Tuesday to hear "Preacher's Kids" reviewed by Mrs. Dean Forrest. She received a gift of appreciation from the group.

Perfume Important In Hidden Charm

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD—Perfume is hidden charm. It is packed with power to attract. But Ruta Lee feels that on the whole American women don't feel the importance of being well perfumed.

"The senses of smell and taste are more essential than money," Ruta contended. "Without these we lose the enjoyment of food—the flavor is flat—and the excitement that stems from certain aromas."

"I took time to search for a scent that I could enjoy as well as others. My choice turned out to be a bath oil that was originally made for a royal family. Its fragrance is lasting. So many people on the 'Perry Mason' set have remarked how sweet I smell—and women. The oil is not expensive, and it leaves a fragrance in my clothes so that there is a continuity with everything I wear.

"The greatest mistake, worse than not using any scent, is using too much. Some perfumes are so heavy that they can make you ill. But an appealing scent has a mysterious attraction that lingers in the memory of those you are near. When you know you are wearing a fragrance that others like, that is used in good taste, it gives you a lift—a feeling of being desirable. It affects the way you look and act. When you have this type of self-confidence, you are naturally more at ease, more feminine and more appealing to those with whom you come in contact.

"Perfume is essentially one of the most important beauty aids that a girl can take advantage of," Ruta concluded.

A Challenge For The Preacher

Dear Pastor P.:
This week it was my privilege to hear you speak from your nicely red carpeted pulpit. I was deeply impressed with your respect for the authority of the Scriptures. You forcefully challenged men to take all of the Bible, not just popular portions upon which false doctrines might be constructed. Like you, I have no time for "mellow-mouthed, pussy-footin' soft-soapin'" preachers who bow to the opinions of men. Paul instructs gospel preachers to "preach the word . . . reprove, rebuke, exhort."

II. Tim. 4:2. He further charges us to "speak the same thing" I Cor. 1:10, and that the "things which are written." I Cor. 4:6. "There is one faith," he says in Eph. 4:5, and to Gal. 1:8-9. It is refreshing indeed to see a man who would reject to be criticised for "preaching the whole Bible."

If the courage you exhibited is sincere, I am sure you would very readily show the people of our city where they may read of the following things: a Baptist Church, A Thousand Year Reign of Christ Upon the Earth, Baptism for Saved People, Instrumental Music in Christian Worship and Inherited Sin. I hope sincerely that your respect for the Word of God is genuine and true as you said. I await your reply.

That's Al Dart, manager of the San Francisco Giants, speaking of Willie McCovey.

He singled in the sixth inning, stretching his hitting streak to 15 games, then rapped his 24th homer in the eighth for the run that stood up as the clincher in a 4-3 victory.

The Los Angeles Dodgers stayed four games ahead of the pack capitalizing on a pair of errors and dealing the New York Mets their 12th straight loss, 4-3.

Whitey Ford Using Head To Outwit AL Sluggers

By The Associated Press Those American leaguers who insist Whitey Ford "doesn't have a thing," better keep an eye on the umpire.

Ford, 34, left-handed ace of the New York Yankees pitching staff, threw nothing at the Los Angeles Angels Thursday and came away with a 3-2 victory in 10 innings, his 10th in a row and No. 14 this season.

To many AL observers Ford has lost some of his stuff, and is using his head instead of his arm to outwit the batters.

Third-place Boston edged Minnesota 2-0 behind Bill Monbouquette's three-hit pitching.

Marvin Andrews was the winning pitcher as he gave up only four hits. Bryan Brewer was the starter for the Rockets and was charged with the loss.

Andrews, Tony Sanchez, and Roland Nottlage hit doubles for the winners while Kenny Barfield hit two doubles for the losers.

 3♣ Pass 4♣ Pass
 Pass Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♣

When declarer was unable to gain access to his partner's hand, he found a way to make his opponents do his work for him.

South opened the bidding with one diamond and North raised to two diamonds. The customary procedure in responding is to show a major suit, but North's spade holding does not meet the requirements for a biddable suit. If the queen of spades were substituted for one of North's spot cards, then the proper response would be three spades. When East over-called with three clubs, South carried on the fight by showing his second suit and North elected to raise him to game in spades. This is perhaps a doubtful choice for, with the club bid behind him, North's king of clubs tends to become devalued.

West opened the five of clubs, the three was played from the dummy and East cashed out the first two tricks in the suit. He made the natural switch to a heart and declarer was in with the king.

At this point, South would like to be in the dummy to take a spade finesse, but unfortunately the North hand lacks an immediate entry. If declarer attempts to gain access via the diamond suit, one of the opponents will surely be able to ruff in on the second round. The alternative play is to put down the ace of spades in the hope that someone has the lone king.

South did not put much stock in this prospect, and decided instead to bank his hopes on finding either East or West with the lone ace of diamonds. After cashing his other high heart, declarer led a diamond to the king. East was in and found the lead to be anything but a pleasant prospect. If he returned a spade it would present South with an immediate finesse in the suit. If East shifted to either a heart of a club, however, declarer could discard from his hand and gain entry to the dummy by ruffing the trick. When the spade finesse succeeds, South can claim his contract.

It will no doubt be pointed out that East could have balked his opponent's efforts by cashing the ace of diamonds at trick three, before exiting with a heart. While this play has considerable merit, to charge his account with an error for failing to do so seems a little harsh.

Europe Unity May Be On Move Again

By CARL HARTMAN
An AP News Analysis

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—The Common Market's offer to renew contacts with Britain should get the European unity movement moving again.

It does not mean that Britain will be invited to join in the foreseeable future. President Charles de Gaulle made that plain when he blackballed Britain last January. But it is designed to make sure that policies will be easier to bring together if and when the time comes.

That might be in 1965, if De Gaulle takes advantage of the French election in that year to retire. Or it might be in 1966, when the Common Market rules provide that France can be outvoted by the other five members—West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. The offer, approved Thursday by the foreign ministers of the six Common Market countries at one of their periodic meetings here, provides for meetings every three months within the framework of the Western European Union. The floor would be open to all kinds of economic discussion.

The British would have preferred more frequent meetings, and within the Common Market framework.

But the agreement to make the offer may be more important than the offer itself for what it means to the unity of the countries in the Common Market. The "friendly five" members who wanted Britain to join—have been frustrating France at every turn, bringing the movement toward internal unity almost to a halt.

Now there are three main fields in which the six members may start strengthening their ties again.

1. By advancing their common farm policy toward a reform of the markets for meat, dairy products and rice. The French have been particularly eager for this.

2. By unifying their position for the big "Kennedy round" of tariff-cutting negotiations due to start next year. This involves getting the Common Market in better shape to talk with the United States about imports of grain—a commodity the United States says must be included in the tariff talks.

3. By strengthening their joint institutions.—There are three organizations which have the same membership—the Common Market, the European Coal and Steel Community, and the European Atomic Agency. An attempt is under way to appoint a single executive commission to rule all three.

American Men's Fashions Are Capturing British

By ANTHONY WHITE
An AP Special Report

LONDON (AP)—A westerly wind of change in fashion is making British men look more like Americans.

The Ivy League look, the crew haircut, the button-down shirt, the tall-crowned hat are a major fashion trend. Younger men are abandoning traditional British styles for the American line.

"To younger men the United States symbolizes success," said John Taylor, editor of the magazine Tailor and Cutter, the voice of Savile Row. "They're attracted by success—so they affect American style of dress."

The trend is gathering pace—boosted along by expensive advertising campaigns.

An advertisement by a chain of men's wear stores declares: "One of the smartest transatlantic fashions is the clean-cut, slim-line look sported by American college men."

And there's an illustration of a clean-cut young man who looks as though he's just stepped out of Brooks Bros.

The swing is apparent mostly in shirts, hats and jackets.

A London salesman said: "Almost half the shirts we sell today are either button-down or tabular types. The pinch-in collar look really has caught on."

There's also a rush on the tall-crowned, narrow-brimmed hats, which one men's wear store chain has labeled "The Atlantic Look."

"Television has a lot to do with it," said a salesman. "There's an American TV series (Naked City) where the policemen all wear hats like that. I must say I like them—but I prefer the bowler."

Bowler is British for derby. Editor Taylor doesn't see it as an American invasion.

"What's really happening," he said, "is that old British styles are returning here after being used and developed in the United States."

The button-down collar, for instance, isn't American, said Taylor. "I remember it when I was at school."

"The truth is that the Americans seldom originate anything in men's fashion. They adapt, they adopt, they over-accentuate—and then, some time later, it comes back here."

"That's what's happening now," Taylor says. Americans are getting more sober in their dress.

"They are taking themselves much more seriously since they achieved responsibilities of world leadership."

"It's rather like the British in Victorian times—almost everybody dressed in black then."

Top Russian Spy Defects

LONDON (AP)—Defection of a top Russian spy to the West raised speculation today that his flight might force the Soviet Union to revamp its intelligence apparatus.

The British government said the defector, a senior Soviet intelligence officer, was turned over to Britain after weeks of interrogation by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in Washington.

The British said he was as important as any defector on either side since World War II.

His identity was kept secret. Officials said he is being held at a secret headquarters in Britain for fear the Russians might try to kidnap or kill him.

"His life is in positive danger," one official said.

An informed source said the Russian contacted an American embassy in an Allied capital after revelations at the Moscow trial of Col. Oleg Penkovsky, a Soviet of which shot last May for passing information to the British.

Penkovsky compromised a number of Soviet agents, a move that apparently prompted the Russian now held by the British to defect. British officials ranked the defector with George Blake, a British double agent who gave the Russians names and locations of British agents and their methods.

The discoverer of Blake's treachery forced the British to reorganize their entire intelligence network in the Middle East and Eastern Europe. He was jailed in 1961 for 42 years, the longest sentence for espionage in British history.

Informants said the Russian has given invaluable information on the Soviet espionage methods and its spy network in the West.

Firebomb Trial Begins Next Week

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP)—Theodore A. Carr, 24, and Aubrey Cauthern 26, will go on trial next week for the firebombing of the home of Negro integration leader Aaron Henry.

The Clarksdale men, who pleaded innocent Thursday, were quoted previously as saying they "were just having fun" and did not know who lived in the house.

A gasoline-filled pop bottle was tossed through a window of the house April 12. Fire burned draperies and damaged furnishings.

Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., a Negro, was an overnight guest of Henry, state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. No one was injured.

Carr and Cauthern were held in lieu of $10,000 bond each.

Junta Expels President Of Ecuador

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—A military junta ruled Ecuador today after expelling President Carlos Arosemena. The junta said he "was frequently drunk, spotted the national honor and sympathized with communism."

A Quito radio report heard in Colombia said five persons were killed and three wounded when army tanks fired on a crowd of stinging members of the junta as they entered the government palace to take office.

A military spokesman said Arosemena, a known tippler, disgraced himself by getting drunk at a banquet Wednesday night in honor of the president of the Grace Lines, retired U.S. Adm. Wilfred McNeil.

Guests at the reception said the president shouted abuse at U.S. Ambassador Maurice Bernbaum, vomited in front of the gathering and committed "even more indecorous acts."

Thursday morning the chiefs of the three armed branches met with the commander of the Quito garrison and decided to depose Arosemena. Eight tanks and truckloads of soldiers surrounded the presidential palace about 2 p.m.

Arosemena refused to resign and named his brother Gustavo as defense minister in an effort to rally the armed forces against the uprising. Friends of the 44-year-old president who were in the besieged palace said he was still drunk.

The situation remained in doubt for several hours until provincial commanders began to send messages of support for the rebel chiefs.

In the Pacific Ocean port of Guayaquil, 170 miles southwest of Quito, there were a few attempts to organize street demonstrations in favor of Arosemena, but all were broken up after being used and developed in the United States.

The button-down collar, for instance, isn't American, said Taylor. "I remember it when I was at school."

"The truth is that the Americans seldom originate anything in men's fashion. They adapt, they adopt, they over-accentuate—and then, some time later, it comes back here."

"That's what's happening now," Taylor says. Americans are getting more sober in their dress.

"They are taking themselves much more seriously since they achieved responsibilities of world leadership."

"It's rather like the British in Victorian times—almost everybody dressed in black then."

There were various reports on the makeup of the junta. One broadcast said Col. Andres Arrata Macias was at the head with three other colonels as members.

Another broadcast identified the service chiefs—Army Col. Luis Cabrera Sevilla, Navy Capt. Ramon Castro Jijon and Air Force Col. Guillermo Freile Posso—as leaders of the revolt.

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Railroad Commission continued today a hearing to consider issuance of an order to eliminate open salt water disposal pits in four west Texas counties.

The counties involved in the order would be Stephens, Eastland, Callahan and Shackelford near the Hubbard Creek Reservoir. The reservoir is located in Stephens County near Breckenridge District General Manager Austin P. Hancock told the commission examiner that he has inspected about 200 of the pits and that it is his opinion that the only ones which are not potential contaminants are those without any water in them.

Murphy Trial In Final Stages

GILMER, Tex. (AP)—The L. D. Murphy conspiracy to bribe trial was in its final stages today.

Murphy took the stand as the last defense witness Thursday night and denied that he had considered, confederated or combined with E. W. Scates, named in an indictment on companion charges with Murphy, to bribe Robert Mathews.

Mathews, an employee in the Texas Railroad Commission office at Kilgore when Murphy was chief engineer, testified Wednesday that he made two false slant oil well tests on the 2-A well of the R. A. Adkins lease at the request of Murphy and that Scates gave him an envelope containing $1,000.

Mathews had been charged with bribery, but Dist. Judge Loney Lindsey dismissed the charges against him. This cleared the way for Mathews to appear as a state witness.

J. C. Staton of Houston, manager for Eastman Well Survey Co., testified Thursday that a survey he ran on the 2-A well on June 1, 1962, showed the well to be deviated 57 degrees and the bottom of the well to be 2,952 feet southwest from the top of the hole. The well, according to Railroad Commission reports, was drilled 233 feet from the south edge of the lease line. Pan American Petroleum Corp. owns a two-well lease to the south.

Officers Installed

STANTON (SC)—Martin Gibson was installed as president when the Rotary Club met Wednesday noon. Other officers installed by Mayor S. W. Wheeler were Roy Phemister, vice president; Arthur Wilson, secretary and treasurer. The Rev. Johnny Richter, Irving, was guest speaker. His topic was "Religious Beliefs." Several visitors from Big Spring attended.

IMITATION ADULTS

High comedy! They may not be actresses, but they're accomplished mimics. Yet as I eavesdrop on their little game of pretending — well, as a mother, I'm just a bit frightened. How readily they pick up our characteristic poses and attitudes . . . always exaggerating to an extent . . . trying to be more like us than we are ourselves!

Then I remember the day John and I made that thoughtful decision to join the Church and raise our Children in a Christian home. What a difference that decision has made in our lives. And what a difference it is making in our children's lives.

There's no harm in youngsters imitating adults . . . so long as the adults they imitate are worth imitating!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Cadets Visit Webb's 331st

The 331st FIS at Webb AFB has for the past two weeks been host to three Air Force Academy cadets in support of "Operation Third Lieutenant." They are Cadet 2.C. Wayne G. Brown, Cadet 2.C. Barry A. Blackman and Cadet 2. Sgt. William L. Cole.

Each cadet has been assigned to a different section of the squadron, so they may see first-hand how an Air Force unit accomplishes its mission. Each of the cadets has been given an orientation ride in the squadron's aircraft.

The mission of "Operation Third Lieutenant" is to provide the cadets with a first-hand view of an operational unit. This is also an opportunity for them to experience some of the problems of a new junior officer and to obtain an idea of what type of job the cadet may expect as a new officer.

Though the mission doesn't actually state the fact, it is a motivation factor since flying training is not included at the academy.

DEAR ABBY
All Prayers Considered

DEAR ABBY: I am nine years old and have not missed one Sunday school class since I started. I don't believe in God any more. We set the date for our class picnic to be June 8th. On May 20th I started to pray for a nice day on June 8th and do you know what? On June 8th it rained. Why did God have to make it rain on that day? Doesn't He listen to prayer?

NO MORE PRAYERS
DEAR NO MORE: Be assured that God DOES listen to prayers. Honey. Maybe He was answering a prayer for rain from some farmers in Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Illinois. Those farmers start praying in April: Now, isn't a farmer's crop more important than a picnic? P. S. I'm from Iowa, and if our farmers didn't get rain when they prayed for it, believe me, it was "no picnic" all year for the merchants in the surrounding area.)

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a woman who knocks nine years off her age when she knows a man is interested in marrying her? I told her my real age, but she lied to me about hers. I found out accidentally yesterday. I am now married to this woman and am satisfied with her in every way, but I don't like to be fooled. She looks younger than she is, but if I had known her real age when I went with her I maybe wouldn't have married her. What should I do about this, if anything?

SATISFIED BUT MAD
DEAR SATISFIED: Any woman who can "knock nine years off her age" and get away with it is a pretty good hitter. She was wrong to have lied to you in the first place, but if you are "satisfied with her in every way," you'll get over your "mad."

DEAR ABBY: This is my problem and also the problem of many of my friends, so I hope you'll use it in your column. Why do mothers make unpaid baby sitters out of their teen-age daughters? I can't make any plans because at the last minute my mother

White NAACP Member Quits
CHICAGO (AP)—A white member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has resigned because, he said, the group did not apologize for what he called hoodlum treatment of Mayor Richard J. Daley.
Stephen Love, a lawyer, wrote the Chicago NAACP office that he will make no more contributions to the organization and that he is resigning because the NAACP failed "to extend sincere and prompt apologies" to Daley.
The mayor appeared at a rally in Grant Park last week, during the NAACP national convention. While he talked, many white and Negro persons shouted from the audience and displayed placards against segregation. Other persons began to boo the mayor and he walked off the speaker's stand.
The NAACP contended it had no reason to apologize to Daley because the unruly persons in the audience were not NAACP members. Some top leaders of the group, however, expressed their personal feelings about the incident to Daley.

Winning Habits Run In The Family

We pointed out in this column previously that the new Miss Big Spring comes from a winning family. The same is true of Junior Miss Big Spring of 1963, Joanna Patterson.

Joanna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Patterson, her mother Terry being well-known in Texas art circles and winner of many awards for painting. Joanna's brother, Jimmy, shot a first round 74 in the National Public Links Golf tournament in Sacramento, Calif., and has copied several other golf awards.

Now, as holder of the junior beauty title, Joanna is thinking of following family tradition in finding her own competitive field and making what she can of it. In this case, she intends to go as high as possible toward the Miss America title. Joanna is playing it cool, however. Noting that most of the state and national level winners are generally of college age or slightly over, she is going to hold off until she is old enough and trim meanwhile.

"On how she felt about winning: "It was a shock and I still can't believe it. I still can't wake up."

"On how things have changed since the pageant: "I have heard that everyone likes a winner. People who had never even looked at me before started acting like my good buddies. I am amazed how some people have changed toward me and their reaction to my winning. You learn who your friends are at a time like this. Some whom I had considered my friends before, now won't speak. But most have been nice and normal."

Terry had a few comments, too:

"I encouraged her to enter last year but this year it was Joanna's own idea. It was a climax for her, because ever since the 7th grade she has been nominated for offices in school, and always lost by just a few votes."

"We are not an ordinary family. Each has his own competitive choice. Joanna always said she wanted to do this. Now she would like to go all the way (as far as she can in the Miss America competition)."

"She even said once that she'd like to be the President's wife (some future president, that is)."

"It was said that Joanna cried the prettiest of any previous winner when her name was called, and she came forward to accept her crown. This was the third time in her life that she ever broke down and cried. (And when she does, it's a wing-ding, according to her mother.) Several years ago, when Joanna was at the awkward age, her mother took her to a dress shop and a clerk told the girl that she was too skinny for the gown she wanted. Joanna's tearful tirade went on for three days.

Her father hasn't encouraged Joanna in this year's or previous beauty pageants. But now that she's Junior Miss Big Spring, he's so proud he could pop. As far as the elder Patterson is concerned, "Joanna is still Daddy's little girl," Mama Patterson chor-tled.

More Sterile Flies Dropped In County
Sterile screwworm flies have been dropped on the Kent Morgan ranch, 15 miles northeast of Big Spring, by airplanes out of Sweetwater.
Herb Helbig, county farm agent, said that a case of screwworm infection has been found on the ranch and confirmed by the screwworm eradication laboratory. The Morgan case is the 10th this season.
Another infection has been reported but has not been confirmed.
