Getting Tuned Up

About 70 prospective band students showed up today at the Senior High School for the first day of class. One of them was Candy Bacus, shown practicing on the piccolo. About 100 are expected to register before school begins, Doug Wiehe, band director, said. At the high school, clarinet, oboe and flute practice Monday through Thursday from 9-10 a.m., woodwinds from 10-11 a.m. and brasses from 11 a.m. till noon. Percussion students will meet Friday at 10 a.m. Junior High Schools have separate practice schedules.

Frank H. Kelley Dies Unexpectedly

COLORADO CITY (SC)—Frank H. Kelley, 66, one of the towering figures of West Texas, died unexpectedly early today at his home.

Soon after arising today, he complained of feeling ill. Within a few minutes he was dead.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Kiker & Son Chapel, and burial will be in the Colorado City Cemetery. The casket will be open until one hour before time for service.

ON 2 COMMISSIONS

There was hardly any area of activity that Frank Kelley's influence or active hand had not touched in Colorado City and in this portion of West Texas. In addition, he was on two statewide commissions.

A landman for Mobil (Magnolia) for almost a decade, Kelley's foresight and faith were major factors in the discovery and development of the fabulous Scurry County Reef field. The Kelley-Snyder pool honors his memory.

As much sought after as was his expert advice on petroleum, Frank Kelley was perhaps more widely known for his pioneering and pushing in development of water resources for the area. The consolidated Colorado City Independent School District owes its present strength to Frank Kelley as much as any man. He took the ball and ran with it during the period when several districts were being consolidated. "Let me take the brick bats," he said. He had served the board many years as member and as president.

WIDE INTERESTS

His interests extended into the fields of diversified agriculture, pure blooded horses and cattle, and especially into areas of human relations. He was one of the organizers of the Mitchell County United Fund; a former area chairman and member of the state advisory board for the American Cancer Society; an organizer last year on the Mitchell County Council on Alcoholism. He also was a member of the Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Kelley served the Chamber of Commerce in Colorado City in about every conceivable post. He has been a director numerous times, and was a past president. He was chairman of its water development committee, as he had been for years, and on its industrial development team. He was a past president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and had been a pillar in the organization for years.

Long before he became a member of the Texas Good Neighbor Commission, he had been an advocate of requiring the teaching of Spanish in all high schools. In this liaison between Anglo and Latin American citizens, he made many addresses in Mexico as well as in Texas.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Always he was interested in public affairs, and in past years he had served as a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee, and as a delegate from Mitchell County.

His interest in water conservation and development dated back almost to the time he came to Colorado City in 1924. He was named to the Governor's Water Advisory Commission by the late Gov. Beauford Jester when the first attack was made on the water problem on a statewide basis. Mr. Kelley was one of the organizers of the old Colorado River Municipal Water Association, the im-

Big Nuclear Powers Sign Test Ban Treaty

Called Initial Step To Peace

MOSCOW (AP)—The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union today signed a partial nuclear test ban treaty they called "an important initial step toward the lessening of international tension and the strengthening of peace." The three nuclear powers announced after the signing of the historic agreement that the treaty would be open for signatures by other powers in Washington, London and Moscow Aug. 8. A three-power communique hailing the treaty as a first step toward peace said the three governments "have stressed their hope that further progress will be achieved toward that end."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko put their signatures on the historic document at 4:34 p.m. Moscow time. Premier Khrushchev witnessed the signing.

"Our three governments," said Rusk, "have today taken what all mankind must hope will be a first step on the road to a secure and peaceful world."

"The treaty we have signed today is a good first step—a step for which the United States has long and devoutly hoped. But it is only a first step. It does not end the threat of nuclear war."

Khrushchev listened with rapt attention to the words of the foreign ministers immediately after the signing ceremony.

Lord Home called the treaty a "breakthrough in relations between our countries" which indicated that the great powers had come to the conclusion that nuclear war was impossible.

Rusk warned that it would be impossible "for us to guarantee now what the significance of this act will be."

"History will eventually record how we deal with the unfinished business of peace," he continued.

Rusk Welcomed To Moscow

Excerpts From The Text Of Three-Nation Pact

MOSCOW (AP)—Textual highlights of the partial nuclear test ban treaty signed today:

(The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union) proclaiming as their principal aim the speediest possible achievement of an agreement on general and complete disarmament under strict international control in accordance with the objectives of the United Nations which would put an end to the armaments race and eliminate the incentive to the production and testing of all kinds of weapons, including nuclear weapons.

Have agreed as follows:

Article I

1. Each of the parties to this treaty undertakes to prohibit, to prevent and not to carry out any nuclear weapon test explosion or any other nuclear explosion at any place under its jurisdiction or control:

A. In the atmosphere, beyond its limits, including outer space, or under water, including territorial waters or high seas; or

B. In any other environment if such explosion causes radioactive debris to be present outside the territorial limits of the state under whose jurisdiction or control such explosion is conducted.

2. Each of the parties to this treaty undertakes furthermore to refrain from causing, encouraging or in any way participating in the carrying out of any nuclear weapon test explosion, or any other nuclear explosion anywhere which would take place in any of the environments described, or have the effect referred to.

amendments to this treaty. 2. Any amendment to this treaty must be approved by a majority of the votes of all the parties to this treaty, including the votes of all the original parties.

Article III

2. This treaty will be subject to ratification by signatory states.

Article IV

1. This treaty shall be of unlimited duration.

More Court Actions In Prospect In Vice Case

LONDON (AP)—More court actions appear in prospect in the wake of the vice trial and suicide of Dr. Stephen Ward, who, he believed he was the scapegoat of Britain's sex and security scandal.

Before swallowing the barbiturates that snuffed out his life Saturday after an 80-hour coma, Ward wrote in one of many suicide notes, "The ritual sacrifice is demanded and I cannot stand it."

Leading lawyers and legislators voiced concern over several aspects of the trial in which Ward, 50, was cleared of three vice charges and found guilty of two others—living off the earnings of prostitutes Christine Keeler and Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies.

Legal experts said they expect action against at least two prosecution witnesses. Call girls Vicky Barrett and Ronna Ricardo admitted in court they lied under oath.

Public sympathy grew with reports of Ward's death—alone except for a prison warden, his brother and hospital staff and deserted by his so-called friends in high places.

Many felt the osteopath was made a scapegoat for introducing former War Minister John Profumo to Miss Keeler, who at the same time was seeing an assistant Soviet naval attaché.

Their triangular relationship touched off the scandal that threatened to topple Prime Minister Macmillan's government. Profumo resigned in disgrace.

News Stories, Photos Bounce Off New Satellite

NEW YORK (AP)—Three news stories and two photographs were bounced off the new Syncom II communications satellite Sunday night in its first test to relay such transmissions between continents.

The transmissions were between the United States and Nigeria, Africa.

Syncom project officials said results were excellent. The U.S. transmissions were sent from a government facility at Lakehurst, N.J. They were bounced off the satellite, 22,823 miles above the earth, and received by the communications ship Kingsport in the Lagos harbor.

Two U.S. wire services each provided a 300-word story for the test. The stories moved at the regular teletype speed of 60 words per minute and each transmission was completed in five minutes.

A head-and-shoulder photograph of President Kennedy also was relayed to Lagos.

From Nigeria, a 300-word press communique and a photograph of Nigerian Gov. Gen. Nnamdi Azikiwe were sent via Syncom II to Lakehurst.

The story provided by one U.S. wire service, The Associated Press, was relayed again, from the ship Kingsport to AP subscribers in Nigeria via its Lagos bureau. The story told of the Syncom II test.

United Press International also participated in the test.

Service Clubs To Express Appreciation For Highways

Members of Big Spring service clubs and others will express appreciation Tuesday noon for a modern state highway system.

Hal Woodward, member of the Texas Highway Commission and a former resident of Big Spring, will be the featured speaker. With him will be J. C. (Jake) Roberts, Abilene, district engineer, and George Smith, Abilene, his assistant engineer.

The program is open to anyone who is interested in good roads. Those who are not members of the Rotary, Kiwanis, Downtown Lions and American Business Clubs are asked to call for reservations to the Chamber of Commerce if possible.

Honor guests will be members of the Howard County Commissioners Court.

The meeting in the Settles ballroom will serve as the regular meeting of the four clubs named. Plans are to have the food ready to start serving by 11:45 a.m. in order to minimize serving lines.

This will be Woodward's first visit "home" in several years. His message will deal with current and forthcoming highway programs in this county and vicinity, and with the impact of modern highways upon today's cities.

A native of Coleman, where he was born in 1918, Woodward moved here as a child and was graduated from Big Spring High School about three decades ago. In 1940, he took his BBA and LLB degrees from the University of Texas. Returning to Coleman in 1948, where his late father, Garland Woodward, had practiced law, he assumed charge of the law firm. From 1951-58 he also served as Coleman city attorney. He was named in 1958 as member of the Texas Law Enforcement Foundation board, and two years ago he became a member of the highway commission. In his home community he has been active in civic affairs and has been past president of the trustees of Overall Memorial Hospital.

Native West Texan Takes Y Secretary's Post Here

R. Curtis Mullins Jr., general secretary of the Corsicana YMCA, has accepted the position of general secretary of the YMCA here effective Sept. 1.

R. H. Weaver, president, announced Mullins' acceptance after a weekend conference between Mullins and the executive and personnel committees. The new secretary will succeed Francis Flint, who has resigned the post he has held for the past two years.

One of Mullins' first tasks will be selection of a second professional staff member to assist in operations and the development of program. Joe Leach, who has been serving as physical education director, has accepted a position with a Houston branch.

The new secretary is a native West Texan, holds two degrees from the YMCA school, George Williams College. He has been a full time certified secretary for the past six years.

"I am eager to get on the field," he said Sunday. "I have had some contact in the past with Big Spring through YMCA work and particularly in the Hi-Y, Tri-Hi-Y and Youth-in-Government programs. There is a real challenge and opportunity in the Y program here, and I am grateful to be a part of it."

Curtis Mullins was born Sept. 20, 1921 at Childress and was reared in Wichita Falls where he was graduated from Central High School in 1940. He attended Midwestern University in Wichita Falls, then in 1952 went to George Williams in Chicago where he earned his bachelor of science degree in group education in Deember of 1953.

He was married to Chris Ligon, who also had been reared in Wichita Falls and who had attended Midwestern, in 1954. When he was in service, they spent two years in Permasens, Germany, following basic training at El Paso, where his late father, George Williams, had practiced law. Mullins re-entered George Williams and took his master of science degree in group education in 1957, and immediately thereafter joined the staff of the San Angelo YMCA as youth director. Later he majored in program before being called as general secretary at Corsicana in 1960.

The Mullinses have three children, Curtis III, 8, Ronnie, 5, and Cynthia (Cindy), 2. Mr. and Mrs. Mullins are members of the Church of Christ.

Negro Influence Felt Deeply

EDITOR'S NOTE — The struggle for integration of the races in America started quietly. But a historical perspective reveals its inescapable progress to this critical summer of sporadic violence, frustration and discord — a forward march of events predestined to occur from the moment the first slave ship dropped anchor on our shores.

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer

There was nothing very complicated about it at the beginning. A Dutch ship dropped anchor in the harbor at Jamestown, Va., one sweltering August day and its captain, named Jope, rowed ashore and told tobacco man John Rolfe and some of the others that he had a cargo of "20 Negars" which he wished to swap for food. The Negroes probably had been captured as pirate booty on the high seas from some Spanish vessel for they had names like Isabella, Pedro and Antonio, though the language they spoke surely wasn't Spanish.

Where they came from really didn't matter much to the colonists. After all, many were indentured servants themselves. In fact just a few months earlier a boatload of 90 "young maidens" had arrived from Europe to become wives of the first 90 bachelors who would go the price of 20 pounds of tobacco per maiden. The year was 1619. In some respect it is as profound a date in American history as the following year, 1620, when the Mayflower arrived.

ALL SEGMENTS
However wide the chasm of racial separation was to become during the succeeding 3 1/2 centuries, not a single segment in the fabric of American life would go untouched by the black thread introduced into the nation's social and cultural loom that day at Jamestown.

Harper's Ferry, Little Rock, bloody Kansas, Birmingham, what generation has not known racial violence? Dred Scott, Medgar Evers, Theodore Bilbo, Marcus Garvey, John Brown—how many names has "the Negro question" thrust into national prominence? Lynch law, Mr. Interior, freedom rides, underground railroad, jazz, Ku Klux Klan, sit-ins—what man, woman or child in all the land can say he has escaped the influence of the Negro in his midst?

The people of Jamestown could have suspected none of this; their part in the emerging drama was innocent enough. The 20 Negroes melted quite nicely into their established system of servitude whereby a man could be sold, or sell himself, for a certain duration. After working or buying off his bondage he was as free, white or black, as any other man. For four decades Negroes lived in Virginia on a basis of equality, accumulating land, voting in assemblies. One Negro even bought a white servant. There was no inferiority attached to skin color. That came later.

FIRST COLONIES
The significance of their arrival in 1619 was that it marked the first colonies and the Atlantic slave trade.

It was perhaps inevitable that America should be caught up in the trade. For nearly four centuries, beginning about 1500, slave ships flying Portuguese, Dutch, English and, finally, American flags competed for favor in the African coast. Most of the slaves imported in America came from the Guinea coast, the Gold Coast, Gambia and Senegal; some kidnapped by whites, most captured by corrupt African chieftains and traded for rum and guns. In 1736 Col. William Byrd of Virginia said in a letter to the Earl of Egmont, "they import so many Negroes hither that I fear this colony will some time or other be confirmed by the name of New Guinea." By the time Col. Byrd's children were grown the Virginia population was estimated at 300,000 whites and 200,000 slaves. When the trade finally petered out more than 15 million Africans, a conservative guess, had been forcibly exported and another 30 to 40 million had died before they could be sold.

COMMERCIAL FACTOR
It wasn't the custom of slavery—an institution as old as Moses—but the commercialization of it that had such melancholy results. Historically slaves were merely unfortunate folks who happened to have been captured in battle or maybe went bankrupt. It could happen to almost anybody. Race certainly wasn't a factor and there was seldom any stigma of basic inferiority attached to their lot.

Portugal, for example, had elaborate codes developed over the centuries which made slavery far from a hopeless plight. Families could not be split up; masters were forbidden to injure slaves; slaves could testify in court, even against their owners.

In America, on the other hand, there were no slave codes. Moreover, only Negroes were slaves. Thus, unlike the attitudes which developed in other countries of the Western Hemisphere where the slave ships docked, slavery in the United States gradually came to be regarded as the natural condition of the black man and his color therefore a mark of intrinsic inferiority.

As it became necessary from time to time for American law to define a slave he was described variously as "a chattel" or "real estate" or finally, in the opinion of Chief Justice Roger B. Taney in the 1856 Dred Scott decision, merely an "article of merchandise."

RESTRICTION
The law forbade a slave to learn to read or write.

to read or write, to leave the premises without a pass or to assemble with fellow slaves without a white person present to overhear any insurrection plots. He or she couldn't testify in any litigation involving a white person.

It took decades, however, for the idea of black inferiority finally to mature. Perhaps it never would have had not a Yale-trained tutor named Eli Whitney spent a few idle days in 1792 at the home of the widow Green in Savannah and noticed how frustratingly tedious was the job of extracting seeds from the tenacious fibers in a boll of short staple upland cotton.

His invention of the cotton gin moved slavery from convenient luxury to economic necessity as small farms became huge plantations. By 1850 three-fourths of the world's cotton was being supplied by the Gulf states and planters felt the economy of the entire South depended on slave labor. To a great many in Dixie it appeared obvious that slavery was a positive good, and practicing it was simply following the natural order of things.

"Our new government," explained Alexander Stephens of Georgia the day he was named vice president of the Confederacy, "is based upon this great physical, philosophical and moral truth . . . That the Negro is not equal to the white man, that slavery—subordination to the superior race—is his natural and normal condition."

Reminders Of The Slave Trade

Two residents of Badagry, Nigeria, hold chains that were used to shackle slaves captured in tribal wars and shipped to America and the West Indies as much as two centuries ago. Badagry, once a thriving center of the slave trade, today is a sleepy market town of 5,000 persons. A box of the chains is kept near an old slave market in the town.

This Was Once A Thriving Port For African Slave Trade

By DENNIS NEEDL
BADAGRY, Nigeria (AP)—Television and the Peace Corps have come to this ancient West African port that once echoed to the cries of a million slaves.

Badagry is now a sleepy market town of 5,000, but 200 years ago it was a thriving center of the slave trade. Four times as many persons lived here. The port declined and fell into disuse with the suppression of the slave trade. No ships lie at anchor now beyond the treacherous surf that crashes on Badagry beach—the last a multitude of slaves ever saw of their homeland.

Wooden jetties across the lagoon have long since rotted away. Fishermen and their families have moved into Badagry's grim barracks—airless prisons that held up to 1,000 slaves. Others have crumbled into ruins.

Most slaves were captured during savage intertribal wars. Powerful African warlords brought them to the coast for sale. For every 300 slaves who survived a year in America and the West Indies, 700 perished. About 500 died at the time of the raid or on the journey to the sea, 125 during the voyage, and 75 on landing.

A garish voodoo temple looks out on the dusty clearing that was the old market site. Huge clock faces and weird animal figures are painted on the temple walls. Local guides say pagan worshippers still assemble here for services conducted by voodoo priests.

On the waterfront, one of the old Portuguese barracks is still crowded. A dozen or more families live in the dank, dark cells. Holes have been punched in the walls for ventilation.

Only two white people now live in the town—Peace Corps volunteers Mary Reed, 24, of Memphis, Tenn., and Cynthia Berry, 25, of Philadelphia, they teach. Television aerials sprout today above the huts and houses of Badagry. Africans whose grandfathers were a slave's prey live in now to Bal Masterson and Perry Mason.

The old bad days are not forgotten. On a dark night on Badagry beach it is said you still can hear the cries of slaves above the pounding surf.

Emotions were high, tempers hot. On Capitol Hill, Rep. Brooks of South Carolina lit into Sen. Sumner of Massachusetts with his cane. There was no middle ground. When war came few were surprised.

If Appomattox solved some problems, it left many more in its bloody wake. The South was in ruins and disorganized former slaves wandered idly about the wreckage. Only one in 10 could read or write. For many, attainment of their ideal was the beginning of their disillusionment. Now able to own property, few could manage it. But with federal bayonets to protect them at the polls and carpet-baggers to show them how to vote, they became a powerful political force.

Soon the state legislatures of South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi had majorities of Negro members, most of whom learned the rudiments of reading and writing after they were elected. Many engaged in what one conservative historian refers to as "a saturnalia of corrupt expenditure" and the demor-ated South added further economic woes to its misery. There were any number of occasions for the hatred engendered by war to flame again.

OBVIOUS FAILURE
Negro rule in the South was such an obvious failure that few Northern states were willing to apply the same reconstruction plans to their own areas. Connecticut, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas, Ohio and Michigan, for example, refused the Negro the right to vote.

When President Hayes withdrew federal troops from the South in 1877, white reaction was swift. Legal barriers began to be erected against the Negro, such as the "Grandfather Clause" invented by Louisiana in 1898 which denied a ballot to anyone whose grandfather hadn't voted prior to 1867. Private organizations were formed to restore "the Southern way of life"—the KKK, the White Brotherhood, Pale Faces, Knights of the White Camelia.

Lines of segregation were drawn. They were unmistakable. When Homer Plessy, a Negro, was removed from a white railroad coach in 1896 and took the case to the Supreme Court, the idea of "separate but equal" became the law of the land.

The 14th Amendment, wrote Justice Henry Brown of Michigan, "could not have been intended to abolish distinctions based on color or to enforce . . . a co-mingling of the two races upon terms unsatisfactory to either."

DISSENTING OPINION
Negroes looked instead at Justice John Harlan's dissenting opinion. "In the eye of the law," wrote Harlan, "there is in this country no superior, dominant, ruling class of citizens. There is no caste here. Our Constitution is color blind and neither knows nor tolerates classes among citizens."

Ten years later a group of Negro leaders met at Harper's Ferry, pondered Harlan's words, and declared: "We claim for ourselves every single right that belongs to a free-born American, political, civil and social; and until we get these rights we will never cease to protest and assail the ears of America."

They had plenty of targets, because for the next 50 years, distinctions based on color were easy to find. Park benches were clearly labeled, as were theater entrances and soft drink machines. The main efforts of Negroes were aimed at the distinctions made in the help wanted ads, pay windows, classrooms, neighborhoods.

SIGNS FELL
As the protests grew louder the Jim Crow signs began to fall. More important to the Negro, so did the Jim Crow signs. In the history of the Negro in America, the year 1954 when "separate but equal" was stricken from the law was as significant as the year their first major victory in 1868 when Congress declared the slave trade illegal. The act didn't stop the trade—an estimated 250,000 more Negroes were smuggled in—but it did increase the hazard and the slaves became far more valuable. George Washington paid $500 for a slave, but in 1853 a No. 1 male fetched $1,250 in New Orleans and by 1860 the price was $1,800. When the Civil War came, fewer than 5 per cent of the South's 8 million people were slaveowners. After the Missouri Compromise struck a tenuous sectional balance in 1820 between 12 slave and 12 free states, the abolitionist movement began to develop with the fervor of politics and the zeal of religion. In 20 years' time the American anti-slavery society counted 250,000 members in 15 states and published 25 journals, and it was but one group among several. In many respects the various organizations were prototypes of the civil rights groups in today's headlines; change the dates on some of the handbills and history would seem to be repeating itself.

MORAL APPROACH
William Lloyd Garrison, one of the most militant of the abolitionists, advocated moral suasion and passive resistance. John Brown took an opposite stance, asserting that "Slavery is a state of war." In a third camp were Arthur Tappan, James Birney, Gerrit Smith and others who believed in political action and in 1840 helped organize the Liberty Party. Abolitionist literature flooded the mails. In the South, it was contraband and in 1935 a mob sacked the Charleston post office and burned all the propaganda they could find. In Alabama a grand jury indicted Ransom Williams of New York in absentia for mailing his newspaper into the state. In Kentucky Cassius Clay kept a loaded cannon at the door of his Lexington office where he published the True American. In Alton, Ill., editor Elijah Lovejoy, three of his presses already thrown in the river, tried to defend the fourth and was shot to death by a mob. In Brunswick, Maine, a mother of six, Harriet Beecher Stowe, wrote a book, more a tract than a novel, which sold 300,000 copies within a year and immortalized such names as Uncle Tom, Simon Legree and Topsy.

MORAL APPROACH
William Lloyd Garrison, one of the most militant of the abolitionists, advocated moral suasion and passive resistance. John Brown took an opposite stance, asserting that "Slavery is a state of war." In a third camp were Arthur Tappan, James Birney, Gerrit Smith and others who believed in political action and in 1840 helped organize the Liberty Party. Abolitionist literature flooded the mails. In the South, it was contraband and in 1935 a mob sacked the Charleston post office and burned all the propaganda they could find. In Alabama a grand jury indicted Ransom Williams of New York in absentia for mailing his newspaper into the state. In Kentucky Cassius Clay kept a loaded cannon at the door of his Lexington office where he published the True American. In Alton, Ill., editor Elijah Lovejoy, three of his presses already thrown in the river, tried to defend the fourth and was shot to death by a mob. In Brunswick, Maine, a mother of six, Harriet Beecher Stowe, wrote a book, more a tract than a novel, which sold 300,000 copies within a year and immortalized such names as Uncle Tom, Simon Legree and Topsy.

HOT TEMPER
Emotions were high, tempers hot. On Capitol Hill, Rep. Brooks of South Carolina lit into Sen. Sumner of Massachusetts with his cane. There was no middle ground. When war came few were surprised.

If Appomattox solved some problems, it left many more in its bloody wake. The South was in ruins and disorganized former slaves wandered idly about the wreckage. Only one in 10 could read or write. For many, attainment of their ideal was the beginning of their disillusionment. Now able to own property, few could manage it. But with federal bayonets to protect them at the polls and carpet-baggers to show them how to vote, they became a powerful political force.

Soon the state legislatures of South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi had majorities of Negro members, most of whom learned the rudiments of reading and writing after they were elected. Many engaged in what one conservative historian refers to as "a saturnalia of corrupt expenditure" and the demor-ated South added further economic woes to its misery. There were any number of occasions for the hatred engendered by war to flame again.

OBVIOUS FAILURE
Negro rule in the South was such an obvious failure that few Northern states were willing to apply the same reconstruction plans to their own areas. Connecticut, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas, Ohio and Michigan, for example, refused the Negro the right to vote.

When President Hayes withdrew federal troops from the South in 1877, white reaction was swift. Legal barriers began to be erected against the Negro, such as the "Grandfather Clause" invented by Louisiana in 1898 which denied a ballot to anyone whose grandfather hadn't voted prior to 1867. Private organizations were formed to restore "the Southern way of life"—the KKK, the White Brotherhood, Pale Faces, Knights of the White Camelia.

Lines of segregation were drawn. They were unmistakable. When Homer Plessy, a Negro, was removed from a white railroad coach in 1896 and took the case to the Supreme Court, the idea of "separate but equal" became the law of the land.

The 14th Amendment, wrote Justice Henry Brown of Michigan, "could not have been intended to abolish distinctions based on color or to enforce . . . a co-mingling of the two races upon terms unsatisfactory to either."

DISSENTING OPINION
Negroes looked instead at Justice John Harlan's dissenting opinion. "In the eye of the law," wrote Harlan, "there is in this country no superior, dominant, ruling class of citizens. There is no caste here. Our Constitution is color blind and neither knows nor tolerates classes among citizens."

Ten years later a group of Negro leaders met at Harper's Ferry, pondered Harlan's words, and declared: "We claim for ourselves every single right that belongs to a free-born American, political, civil and social; and until we get these rights we will never cease to protest and assail the ears of America."

They had plenty of targets, because for the next 50 years, distinctions based on color were easy to find. Park benches were clearly labeled, as were theater entrances and soft drink machines. The main efforts of Negroes were aimed at the distinctions made in the help wanted ads, pay windows, classrooms, neighborhoods.

SIGNS FELL
As the protests grew louder the Jim Crow signs began to fall. More important to the Negro, so did the Jim Crow signs. In the history of the Negro in America, the year 1954 when "separate but equal" was stricken from the law was as significant as the year their first major victory in 1868 when Congress declared the slave trade illegal. The act didn't stop the trade—an estimated 250,000 more Negroes were smuggled in—but it did increase the hazard and the slaves became far more valuable. George Washington paid $500 for a slave, but in 1853 a No. 1 male fetched $1,250 in New Orleans and by 1860 the price was $1,800. When the Civil War came, fewer than 5 per cent of the South's 8 million people were slaveowners. After the Missouri Compromise struck a tenuous sectional balance in 1820 between 12 slave and 12 free states, the abolitionist movement began to develop with the fervor of politics and the zeal of religion. In 20 years' time the American anti-slavery society counted 250,000 members in 15 states and published 25 journals, and it was but one group among several. In many respects the various organizations were prototypes of the civil rights groups in today's headlines; change the dates on some of the handbills and history would seem to be repeating itself.

NOT SORROW
Many people think that to repent is simply to be sorry for your sins. The right kind of sorrow has a place; but it is not repentance. It is that which produces repentance. For godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of: but the sorrow of the world worketh death" (II Cor. 7:10).
So, "Blessed are they that mourn . . ." (Matt. 5:4). Without genuine sorrow for his sins, one will never be brought to repent.
How much should one sorrow?
Answer: Enough to bring him to change his mind about his way of life; and to change his mind so definitely that a reformed life will be the result. Whether this seems like little or much sorrow, does not matter. God does not delight in our misery; but will not that we be brought to repentance (II Pet. 3:9)?

The gospel will give you incentive to repent. Come and hear the gospel.

"RELIABLE PRESCRIPTIONS"

Halleck Sees Senate Trouble For 2 Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Republican leader, Charles A. Halleck, predicts a tax reduction-revision bill and some sort of civil rights legislation will be passed by the House. But he foresees stiff opposition in the Senate.

The Indiana gave this forecast Sunday in a televised interview (NBC-Sunday Report).

His somewhat optimistic prediction for the fate of the two measures in the House—given top priority by the Democratic administration—is contrary to the GOP leader's earlier views.

This week, congressional committees may start making major decisions on tax cuts and civil rights. But it remains highly uncertain when they will reach the floor of the House or Senate for debate.

The House Ways and Means

Committee took a series of votes on the tax legislation last week and may reach the most important question—reduced rate schedules—in the next few days.

President Kennedy recommended a net cut of about $10.2 billion to be reached in stages. Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., a member of the committee, said Sunday in an interview on New York television stations, "the most we are probably talking about is a $7 billion or $8 billion cut, net."

The Senate Commerce Committee completed its public hearings last Friday on one of the most important sections in the civil rights package—a ban on discrimination in public accommodations. It may start deliberations on the measure during the week.

Tuesday or Wednesday, the House will take up a bill to increase sharply the government's outlays for vocational education. The first of Kennedy's aid to education proposals to reach either floor, it has bipartisan support but may run into trouble because of a drive by some Republicans to attach an antidiscrimination amendment.

Later in the week the House will debate a bill to extend the $309 billion debt ceiling until Nov. 30.

The Senate will consider on Tuesday a $5.5 billion appropriations measure for the Labor and Welfare Departments.

Later the Senate is scheduled to act on a $5.5 billion authorization for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, bills to establish the domestic Peace Corps and to extend the Mexican farm labor program for one year, and possibly the military pay increase bill.

Thirty-two persons died violently in Texas during the weekend, including 18 in traffic.

There were five drownings.

The latest deaths included:

Carl Lee, 21, Mineral Wells roofer, was killed shortly before Sunday midnight when his car overturned at a curve in a county road 3.3 miles southeast of Mineral Wells.

Jack Mitchell, 51, died Sunday after he fell 20 feet from an overpass to a police parking lot in Houston.

Herman Hicks, 52, of San Antonio was shot to death Sunday night during a scuffle in a San Antonio tavern. Police arrested a second man.

Delia Pompa, 27, of Houston, died Sunday after she was struck by an auto near Houston's downtown area.

Bruce Quarrington of Dallas was shot in the head and killed at his home Sunday.

Miss Betty White, 20, of Amarillo died Sunday when a pickup truck in which she was a passenger crashed into a tree near Canyon.

Jack Brooke, National Guardsman of Jacksonville, Ark., died Sunday night in a two-car accident near Weatherford. Brooke was on a two-week training mission at Ft. Wolters in Mineral Wells.

Benny Brown, 33, of Houston, died when his motorcycle careened down a railroad track at Houston.

Police Sgt. C. R. McDaniels of Houston died early Sunday in a two-car accident at Houston.

J. L. Cox, 61, of Anson died Sunday when a tractor overturned on a ranch.

William Lee Price, 39, was shot to death in a Dalhart motel Saturday night. Police charged Henry Bosell, 55, of Dalhart with murder.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee may complete action late in the week on a $4.5 billion foreign aid authorization bill.

The Senate Commerce Committee meets Thursday to begin executive sessions on emergency railroad legislation. The Senate Judiciary Committee has tentatively scheduled for Wednesday additional testimony from Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy on the civil rights package.

Henry Fords Are Parted

DETROIT (AP) — Henry Ford II, chairman of the Ford Motor Co., and his wife, Anne, are separated after 23 years of marriage.

The separation of the grandson of the original Henry Ford, founder of a great automobile empire, and the former New York society girl was announced by family counsel.

The separation has been entered into without court action, it was explained.

The Detroit law firm of Bodman, Longley, Bogle, Armstrong and Dahling announced the separation in a terse statement.

Kennedy Very Much In Mississippi Vote

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — President Kennedy is very much in the Mississippi Democratic primary even though his name isn't on the ballot for the election Tuesday.

What one candidate calls a "cuss the Kennedy" campaign has overshadowed traditional state issues in the heated campaign to pick the probable successor of 65-year-old Gov. Ross Barnett.

Barnett, who attracted worldwide prominence last fall by defying the federal government in the court-ordered admission of James H. Meredith, a Negro, to the University of Mississippi, can not succeed himself.

Traditionally, the incumbent governor takes no part in the campaign to choose his successor. Barnett has held to this line, saying he was too busy with affairs of state.

The four Democratic candidates are:

—J.P. (for James Plennon) Coleman, 49, of Ackerman, governor in 1956-60. A lawyer, he has been in the state house of representatives for the past four years. Before winning the governorship, he was a district attorney, circuit judge, state supreme court justice and attorney general. He has never lost a statewide election.

—Paul B. Johnson, 47, of Hattiesburg, the lieutenant governor. A World War II Marine captain and son of a former governor, Johnson—like Barnett—faces federal criminal contempt proceedings stemming from the Meredith case. Johnson has made four previous attempts for the governorship; he was defeated the last time in 1955 by Coleman.

—Robert Mason, 60, of Magee, a welder who earned the nickname "blowtorch" for his colorful stump speeches during the 1959 gubernatorial campaign. He finished last in a four-man field with about 20,000 votes.

—Charles Sullivan, 38, of Clarksdale, the third major candidate. Sullivan, a prematurely gray-haired ex-district attorney, finished a surprisingly strong third in the 1959 gubernatorial campaign. He is a state rights advocate who says he will bolt the Democratic party rather than vote for Kennedy. In 1960 Sullivan supported Barnett's winning slate of unpledged presidential electors and was the presidential candidate of the Constitution Party in Texas.

With 560,000 registered voters, election officials forecast a record turnout of more than 450,000. Polls open at 7 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. CST.

Although Democratic victory has virtually assured election for nearly a century, Republicans are mounting their first serious bid for the state house in decades.

Onetime Democrat Rubel Phillips, 38, is stumping the state as the GOP standard-bearer for the general election. Republicans hope to capitalize on dissatisfaction with the Kennedy administration and the national Democrat party.

It could be late Wednesday before the results are determined.

With a long list of candidates for other races and hand counting in all counties except one, the results will be slow in being tallied.

None of the three major candidates is expected to win a clear-cut majority, which means the top two would go into an Aug. 27 runoff.

Most observers predict Coleman will gain a second primary spot with either Sullivan or Johnson.

Few Reservations On Test Ban Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Kenneth B. Keating predicts overwhelming Senate approval for the limited nuclear test ban treaty if Secretary of State Dean Rusk makes it clear that no "under-the-table" deals are involved.

Keating, a New York Republican, said he asked Rusk for assurance that U.S. negotiators have not agreed to a nonaggression pact or increased trade as a price for the agreement being signed today in Moscow.

"If we get a forthright response, and a denial of any under-the-table deals, then I am confident that the Senate will ratify this treaty by an overwhelming vote," Keating said Sunday in a taped radio-television program broadcast in New York.

A two-thirds majority is needed for ratification.

In a speech to the nation July 26, President Kennedy said "the Moscow talks reached no agreement on any other subject, not is this treaty conditioned on any other matter."

A Democrat, Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, raised doubts Sunday about the treaty, which would ban tests in the atmosphere, outer space and under the sea.

Thurmond, in a letter to constituents, said Soviet Premier Khrushchev's failure to keep agreements on Cuba, Southeast Asia and other world trouble spots make it questionable whether he can be trusted on the test ban.

But Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, who negotiated the treaty, said he does not believe Khrushchev has any tricks up his sleeve in connection with the test ban. But he added in a television interview (NBC-Meet The Press) that the United States must be ready to test at any time in case the Soviets break the agreement.

Close scrutiny of the treaty was promised by Sen. John Sparkman D-Ala., who said the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will examine "every line and every word" of the agreement.

Sparkman, who is in Moscow for the signing said in a radio-television statement taped before his departure that he noted no hostility to the treaty during a recent briefing for members of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees and the Senate-House Atomic Committee.

Shell Oil Strike Appears At An End

HOUSTON (AP)—The year-old Shell Oil Co. strike appeared at end today, but the settlement still must be submitted to workers for final approval.

Settlement of the strike, one of the longest in the industry, came Sunday after 27 hours of continuous negotiation.

About 2,200 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union will vote on ratification at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Pasadena union hall.

Terms were not disclosed by William Simkin, national director of the Federal Mediation Service, who disclosed the settlement. He said the details would be divulged when union members have a chance to pass on them.

The Houston Post reported a near draw on the issue of the company contracting some construction and maintenance work to outside firms.

The Post said the formula, under which construction and maintenance work was let out before, would be essentially the same under the proposed agreement.

On manpower, the Post learned that if work is resumed as a result of this agreement, the union work force will be about 1,950, or 250 fewer men than were employed before the strike.

Shell had said earlier that it would lay off almost 400 men when work was resumed.

The Post also was told that the agreement calls for a general 5 per cent wage increase. Shell said it was paying an average of $3.02 an hour before the strike.

The marathon strike at two Shell plants in Deer Park began last Aug. 18. Supervisory personnel kept both plants operating.

Union representatives would not predict how the membership would vote. Local union president Don Wilkers said 200 men gathered at the union hall Sunday and they were happy over the prospect of going back to work.

"The feeling among the men down there is real good," Wilkers said. "I imagine they will be mighty happy when Tuesday night comes."

Principal issues were work assignments, seniority, employment security and contract work inside the grounds of the two plants.

Wages were a secondary issue, both sides said. The company had offered a 5 per cent increase during the first months of the negotiations.

mediate predecessor to the Colorado River Municipal Water District, the multicounty supplier of water in this area. One of his last addresses was an impromptu talk to the CRMWD, which held its meeting in Colorado City largely at the invitation of Mr. Kelley. He worked with Texas Electric Service Company in the creation of Lake Colorado City and Champion Creek Lake, and was cooperating with the CRMWD in the impounding of another lake on the Colorado River.

RETIRED

Last year he retired from his association with Mobil, but he retained an office in the building he had constructed for the company's activities here. He operated Frontier Farms near here and was a breeder of show horses and of fine Angus cattle. His place was something of a demonstration plot for irrigated farming, and he was a leader in pushing for diversification in agriculture.

Military Pay Hike Moves

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Armed Services Committee approved today a bill calling for pay raises ranging from $5 to $20 a month for nearly two million members of the armed forces effective Oct. 1.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., the bill's floor manager, announced the tracks had been cleared to place the bill before the Senate Tuesday.

"With a little luck," he said, he expects it would be passed by nightfall Thursday.

Cannon estimated the bill, also calling for higher pensions for retired personnel, would cost $1,227,330,000 compared to $1,222,345,000 the House had voted.

Dealing With Government Leads To Odd Position

DENISON (AP)—Voit Langford is in the peculiar position of being dunned for rent on his own building, the way he sees it.

Langford's troubles began when the government wanted Langford's building where he operates a print shop directly east of the postoffice. It is one of four pieces of land the government wanted for major expansion.

Langford said a government man offered him $16,500 for his building and property, less than he paid for it.

"I told him I'd be happy to have the government find me a new building and pay for the move and they would have my property," said Langford. He said he was told the government didn't operate that way.

He said he followed instructions and submitted what he considered a fair price for the building and property "and I didn't hear another thing until a U.S. marshal served me with condemnation papers last Monday."

He said that when he refused to sign a lease offered by two men from the General Services Administration, he was told, he said, "a U.S. marshal will be next and if you toss him out the Army will follow."

Langford said the government wanted him to sign a two-year lease and called for more insurance than he wanted to pay. The government claims it owns the property from the date condemnation papers were filed in Sherman July 23.

"This is America and I'm dealing with the American government, but somehow I'm finding it hard to believe," said Langford in an interview this weekend.

Langford said it will cost him $35,000 to move into a new location, not counting the purchase of a building which he said would be prohibitive.

Negroes Held In Rape Case

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Police held two young Negroes today for repeatedly raping a white Cleveland, Ohio, woman they found napping in a car parked along a highway.

Another Negro drowned trying to elude police. Two more Negroes, arrested with the accused, were cleared by officers who said they had nothing to do with the attack on the woman.

Prosecutor Thomas Roemer said rape charges would be filed against David Flournoy, 21, and Myron Taborn, 18.

Officers said Flournoy, Taborn, James Williams, 22, who drowned; James Trawick, 19, and Charles McCall, 17, were hitchhiking Sunday along U.S. 20 three miles west of new Carlisle, Ind. They spotted Mary Helen Taylor, 22, and a companion, Donald Ingram, 30, of Cleveland, sleeping in Ingram's car. Police said Trawick and McCall went ahead and weren't implicated.

The three Negroes bound and gagged Ingram, leaving him in a cornfield while they fled in his car with Miss Taylor.

Ingram staggered to a farmhouse and notified police.

Trooper Michael Rashtra Jr., sighted Ingram's car in Gary, 40 miles from the attack scene. He halted it and ordered five youths out at gunpoint, telling them to release Miss Taylor.

Rashtra learned later the three attackers had picked up Trawick and McCall en route to Gary. Apparently the two got into the car unaware the woman had been abducted.

The trooper said the hysterical Miss Taylor leaped from the car. "She ran behind me and started shaking," he said. "She screamed, 'I've been raped. They threatened to kill me. They've had razors at my throat.'"

Mock Battle Being Waged

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—A mock battle rumbled over the South Carolina countryside today after a giant assault by nearly 8,000 paratroopers on Sunday began land action in Swift Strike III, the nation's largest peacetime war games.

The 82nd Airborne Division landed deep in Red Force territory near Joanna, about 50 miles southeast of here. The drop followed two weeks of jockeying by opposing air forces for aerial supremacy.

Loads of heavy equipment carried by an unexpected wind fell dangerously near high ranking officers and civilian dignitaries, who had to scramble out of the way. No injuries were sustained.

The Blue Force paratroopers suffered 35 per cent simulated casualties in their attack on two crack Red divisions. Fifteen actual injuries, all minor, were reported.

Hurricane Falls Apart

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Ariene has disintegrated into a band of showers.

The season's first hurricane, which built up winds ranging to 100 miles per hour, lost power rapidly Sunday as it approached the Leeward Islands of Guadeloupe and Antigua.

Gordon Dunn, chief storm forecaster at Miami, explained that pressure at the 30,000 to 40,000-foot level killed Ariene.

The Weather Bureau said in its final advisory on the storm that scattered showers were associated with the area and highest winds were not expected to exceed 25 to 30 m.p.h.

Small craft warnings flew along the southeast Florida coast from Miami through the Florida Keys as an easterly wave moved into the coast.

The easterly wave, with expected top winds of 35 m.p.h. in brief squalls, was not associated with Ariene, which was more than 1,200 miles away.

Youth Released From Hospital

Robert Sherman, 12, who was saved from drowning late Saturday by a 16-year-old lifeguard, Rey Navarete, 506 NW 4th, was released from Howard County Hospital Foundation in good condition Monday morning. He lives at 512 N. Clifford, Odessa.

Young Sherman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sherman, Odessa, was visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Basilia Martinez, 498 NW 3rd, when he decided to go to the North Side swimming pool. A cousin, David Gomez Jr., 15, said Robert could not swim, and that he accidentally stepped off into deep water. No one saw him go in the water.

Navarete found the boy at the foot of the pool ladder, brought him to the surface and began applying mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration. This quick action was credited with saving young Sherman's life.

New Home Economist At Texas Electric

Carol Pavlis is available for home and school calls on use of electrical equipment and appliances. She is a graduate of Texas Christian University with a major in home economics. Home planning, with the use of electrical appliances, including lighting, and demonstrations in their use for home economics departments of schools, will be her major job. Housewives are invited to call or see Miss Pavlis at the Texas Electric Service Co. office for answers to questions about home use of appliances and equipment.

Home Economist On Hand To Help Local Housewives

Housewives who may have problems with electrical appliances and equipment, especially where they may not be getting the most efficient use from them because of lack of experience, may get qualified aid from the home economist at Texas Electric Service Co.

Carol Pavlis, a graduate of Texas Christian University, and who holds a major in Home Economics, has assumed her duties at TESCO.

Miss Pavlis said she was available for home calls on all electrical appliances and equipment. She will discuss problems and help to work out solutions on all makes.

Thomas Offers School Supplies

School starts in less than a month, and thoughts of high school students are turning to some of the things they may need at home for school use this fall. Thomas Office Supply, 101 Main, can make it easy to get some of the supplies and equipment needed.

Maybe the student would like a good standard or portable typewriter for turning in better looking and more legible reports and themes.

Then he or she may need a small desk and chair for a permanent study corner, including desk lights, trays, and other items. All these, including typewriter paper, carbons, forms, drawing sets, inks and pens and pencils are available.

Wards Featuring Color Television

Are you interested in color TV? Montgomery Ward is featuring the latest in color sets, and at prices considered reasonable.

The world series is coming up before too long and will be followed by the major football games.

Not everyone interested in baseball and football can find the time to attend the games, but they enjoy them over television.

Montgomery Ward invites you to go by the appliance department at Third and Gregg and look over the large stock of latest models. If you have an account with them, or are eligible for one, the time payments are practical.

There are also all sizes of regular television sets in table models, consoles, combinations including AM-FM radio and stereo record players. They also come in finishes to go with the furniture you already have.

But, if you already have a television set and want to make the rest of your furniture match it, Wards has a big selection of outstanding values and quality furniture for any home. If it is not in stock at present it may be ordered through the catalog department and be at your home in less than a week.

Montgomery Ward, with the catalog department, is Big Spring's largest department store, with thousands of items available on the counters and through the order department.

You can outfit your city residence, or your farm, from fence posts to farm equipment, and from shingles to floor covering.

"We get all information from dealers to use with their brands and have this information available for housewives. We work closely with the dealers and are informed when new equipment is sold," Miss Pavlis said.

She said most problems come, especially with ranges and heavy appliances, where the person has never used electrical equipment before. Time is taken to explain its use and demonstrate its efficiency.

"We are also available for school demonstrations in home economics departments. These will cover the use of appliances and equipment, and lighting problems," she continued. "We demonstrate the cooking on surface burners, broilers, and in ovens for schools only."

"We invite housewives to come by our office, where we have a very complete kitchen equipped with electric appliances. We can show how these are used, how they may be installed, and give the specifications of different makes where plans are being made for installation," Miss Pavlis said.

Roaches Multiply In A Few Days

The plague of housewives, the cockroach, often has over 100 offspring, and they multiply again in a matter of days. No wonder so many smart housewives are getting Johnston's No-Roach, the brush-on liquid roach control that gives safe, round-the-clock protection.

Security State Bank

A Warm Welcome

The thermometer on the sign at Security State Bank shows 80 degrees. That's the right temperature for a welcome when you enter the bank. It's not too hot and not cold. Security State Bank at the corner of Gregg and Fifteenth Streets has plenty of parking area, two drive-in windows, and is located outside the congested area. GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠ J 9 7 6 ♥ A 10 5 ♦ 5 2 ♣ 6 4 3 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass

2 ♥ Pass 4 ♣ Pass

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. You had almost a raise in the first place but properly elected to pass. Now that your partner has shown a very strong hand, it is your duty to state that you had almost a raise by bidding one more spade than is necessary. A mere return to two spades might denote nothing at all.

Q. 2—As third hand, after two passes, you hold:

♠ A K ♥ K J 6 3 ♦ J 8 6 5 3 2

What is your opening bid?

A.—One heart. While normally a six card suit should be bid before a five card suit, we would make an exception in this case because of the weakness of the diamonds. We consider a bid six card suit as the equivalent of a five card suit and would, therefore, open with the major.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠ A Q J 2 ♥ K J 5 ♦ A K Q 6 3 ♣ 7

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass

2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades, forcing to game. In support of hearts your hand is worth 22 points, and with a fit already indicated you should insist upon a game contract. A bid of only one spade could be passed by responder.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ K 4 3 ♥ 7 2 ♦ Q 9 8 5 ♠ A 10 8 5

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass

3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three no trump. You have maximum values for your raise and should therefore accept partner's game invitation. With your balanced hand containing strength in the minors it might be easier to reach for nine tricks instead of 10. If partner's holding is very unbalanced he may still return to spades.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠ A 10 9 5 4 3 ♥ K 9 8 7 4 ♣ A 2

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass

2 ♥ Pass 4 ♣ Pass

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—We recommend a strange bid here, namely, five diamonds, and we are aware that the more orthodox call would be five clubs. It seems to us that showing the club ace would not necessarily solve partner's problem, whereas the five diamond bid would put him at ease as to his losing diamonds.

Q. 6—Partner opens with two no trump and you hold:

♠ A J 9 ♥ A 7 5 ♦ K 10 9 8 ♣ Q 8 7

What is your response?

A.—A direct raise to six no trump would not do justice to your holding. If partner has a maximum two no trump bid, a grand slam contract would be a sound investment. The accepted manner to uncover such a state of facts is to make a temporary bid of three diamonds, to be followed by a bid of six no trump. Partner should bid seven if he has a maximum.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ J 9 6 4 ♥ K J 9 ♦ K J 9 8 7 ♣ 7

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass Pass 1 ♠ Double

Pass 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♣

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner has shown a very strong hand by doubling and then bidding at the level of three. As your hand, containing nine points, is just a Jack short of an average hand, you should therefore feel optimistic about a game and the recommended call is three no trump. Partner should realize your spade stopper is doubtful, since you did not try no trump on the first round.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠ A 10 9 8 5 ♥ A 10 6 5 4 ♦ 2 ♣ 4 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

4 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Five clubs. Inasmuch as you are forced to proceed to game, this is the logical step. A rebid of four hearts would be dangerous in that it might suggest to partner that you have a better suit. From partner's failure to bid three no trump over three hearts, you may deduce that he has a long and powerful two suiter.

U.S. Confident Crime Talker Will Tell Story

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is confident that an underworld figure it says has given federal agents a detailed description of the dominant crime organization in the United States will live to tell his story to Senate investigators.

In a secret hideout FBI agents are guarding Joseph Valachi, a 60-year-old New Yorker once fairly high in the mob hierarchy, who has outlined the structure of the terror-ridden "Cosa Nostra" and put the finger on some top racketeers already under investigation.

Valachi has a date with Sen. John L. McClellan's Senate Investigations subcommittee when it resumes its inquiry into illegal narcotics traffic.

The McClellan panel began its probe of narcotics three years ago, then turned to the Billie Sol Estes investigation and the TFX warplane contract award. No date has been set for the resumption of its hearings, but McClellan, an Arkansas Democrat, said Sunday he expects Valachi to be a witness.

BREAKTHROUGH
The government considers Valachi's account of crime in America—including an inside view of the celebrated November 1957 mobsters convention at Apalachin, N.Y.—an important intelligence breakthrough.

His story has been corroborated by other sources and investigations, and information he gave federal agents has been passed on to local authorities, Edwin O. Guthman, Justice Department public information director said.

The theory of a secret society at the hub of organized U.S. crime has been supported for many years by the Federal Bureau of Narcotics. Valachi provided a blueprint of the "Cosa Nostra"—literally meaning "Our Thing"—but sometimes called the syndicate—and confirmation that such an organization of criminals exists.

The story of the Valachi breakthrough appeared Sunday in a copyrighted story in the Washington Star. The Justice Department confirmed the essentials.

At the head of "Cosa Nostra" Valachi placed Vito Genovese, 66-year-old Italian-born narcotics boss serving a 15-year sentence at Atlanta Penitentiary.

PLOTTED MEETING
Genovese plotted the Apalachin

Bakers On Strike
TULSA (AP)—Three Tulsa bread companies began today producing bread and delivering it on a severely curtailed scale. Over 100 bakers went on strike against Bond, Rainbo and Wonder Bread companies Saturday. The Teamsters Union, whose members drive the delivery trucks, voted not to cross the bakers' picket line.

meeting. While Valachi was not prominent enough to attend, he was high enough in the organization to know what went on—and for a time later, he was Genovese's cellmate in Atlanta.

The Apalachin delegates were the bosses of the individual branches of Cosa Nostra and their bodyguards. According to the Star there were two main reasons for the meeting: Genovese wanted the organization's support for an attempt on the life of racketeer Frank Costello and the slaying of gangster Albert Anastasia; Genovese wanted to strike from the organization's rolls approximately 200 "button men," or soldiers in the society, as no longer useful.

Valachi had a long record of arrests for robbery, extortion, burglary, gambling and narcotics when he was arrested in November 1959 as a heroin supplier and sentenced to 15 years.

While Valachi was serving time, federal agents broke an international dope ring. Valachi, one of 24 persons indicted, was given a 20-year sentence, concurrent with his earlier term.

Available sources say Valachi heard he was suspected of having informed on the ring and was marked for death. When a prisoner approached him on June 22, 1962, he thought it was his assassin. Valachi struck the man with a piece of pipe, killing him.

Valachi sent for Federal Bureau of Narcotics agent and declared the slaying was a case of mistaken identity. What developed was a first-hand description of the rackets syndicate.

SPIRITED AWAY
Valachi, who had meanwhile pleaded guilty to the fellow convict's murder and drawn a life sentence, was spirited from Atlanta to a secret hiding place. An FBI agent became his constant companion, drawing names, places and dates of events from the American-born son of Italian immigrants.

The picture of Cosa Nostra's organization Valachi is said to have supplied:

At the top, a ruling council known as the "commission," with Genovese as the chief and members—known as "bosses"—serving as heads of crime "families" in cities across the nation.

The families control organized crime in their areas. Individual mobs within the families pay part their profits from narcotics, gambling and vice to the families.

The council determines which families get which crime concessions. It also passes on disputes over spoils.

Families are said to be operating in New York, Detroit, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Chicago, Miami, Kansas City, New Orleans, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Cleveland, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Providence, Boston and various parts of New Jersey.

PODRES MASTERFUL

Dodger Hurler Twirls Near No-Hitter At Colts

HOUSTON (AP) — "This was the greatest game I ever pitched."

That was Johnny Podres' description Sunday night after losing 12 pounds while pitching no-hit ball into the ninth inning against the Houston Colts.

He came within three outs of a no-hitter, then sat on the bench as the Dodgers shut out the Colts 4-0 on one hit.

That was by Johnny Temple on Podres' second pitch in the ninth. "My first pitch," Podres said, "was my fast ball, the strike. He was crowding the plate so I came next with a curve inside."

"I wanted him to pull it down to Maury (Wills). But he's smart and he went with it to the opposite field just like he was trying to do. I don't think Marv (Breeding) missed it by more than five inches."

But Podres was philosophical. "You know, it's a game of inches — Breeding got Staub's ground ball on the grass that could have been a hit."

"I told him before the game that Staub likes to pull so he was shading over that way. And the drive (Ron) Fairly caught off (John) Bateman — Barlick (the ump) told Fairly he would have called the ball fair if it had hit his glove and he hadn't held onto it."

Podres talked about another few inches that helped—his two RBI double to left in the seventh.

JOHNNY PODRES

"I didn't hit the ball good," he said. "And I was surprised to see it fall. I think the kid (Jim Wynn) misplayed it to let it get over his head."

Podres then scored the fourth run on Wills' single. "That gave me some breathing room," he said.

"If I'd gone into the ninth with only one run, the Colts could have bunted and no telling what would have happened."

"I took oxygen in the dugout after running the bases and the next inning, I got out of it with about four pitches, so I recovered."

Podres felt the 12 pounds he lost during the torturous, muggy evening.

He hit the next batter, Bob Aspromonte, on the arm.

"Then what happened?"

"I called for Walt (Alston)," Podres said. "Right now, with the Giants winning, the win is the thing, and we can't take any chances."

Temple's comment?

"I hated to do it, in a way, but I tell you this—I never would have bunted on him."

Hester's Takes Softball Crown From Electrics

Bob Riceman's pitching mastery proved to be too much for Texas Electric Saturday night in the American Softball League post-season tournament as Hester's took two games, 12-7 and 6-4, to capture the championship.

In the semi-final game, Riceman gave up 11 hits but was tagged for only seven runs as his teammates backed him up with a 12-run attack. Riceman got the win with six strikeouts and E. Barbee was the loser.

Danny Vales went three-for-four at the plate for the winners and Bob Riceman got two hits in two appearances. Belton Brunson and Tom Enloe both gathered three hits for the Electricians.

In the game for the championship trophy, Hester's scored twice in the top of the seventh inning to break a 4-4 deadlock and ice the game up.

Riceman again went the distance throwing a nine-hitter for the win. G. Williams, who pitched in relief in the first game, was charged with the loss.

Jernigan collected three hits in four times to the plate for Hester's while Enloe had three base knocks for the losers.

Riceman pitched 21 innings in the two day tournament.

The All-Tournament team that was announced included these players: Bob Riceman, pitcher (Texas Electric); Jake Jernigan, first base (Hester's); Danny Vales, second base (Hester's);

Freddy Blalock of Hester's was chosen the All-Tourney manager. Thelbert Carter of Hester's was a case of oil from Pat Boelter for being the best hitter of the tournament.

A tank of gasoline from Cosden number 7 went to Ted Griffin of Skateland for hitting the first homer of the end-of-the-season classic.

Bill Farmer of Hester's won some free grease from Cosden number 3 for scoring most runs of the tourney with nine.

Slammin' Sammy Sneed found his way out of Hot Springs (800 population), buried deep in Virginia's moonshining Shenandoah Mountains, to become one of golf's greatest stars — and now in his 27th year on the pro circuit he's won almost every tournament crown in sight except, strangely, the U.S. Open.

But Sneed never has forgotten his boyhood hillbilly days, shown outstandingly by one peculiarity of his that's not widely known—he likes to play golf barefooted. That's right — barefooted.

"You'll never see him do it in the tournaments but secretly his pinkies crave to cavort with the worms, the cool green grassblades, and the soft brown dirt clods.

"If the rules said that everybody had to play golf barefooted," he says smiling, "I figure I'd hardly ever lose a tournament. I learned to play golf barefooted and it's more natural for me. It feels good out there, wiggling your toes. When you step up to the ball, you're connected with the earth and you almost feel the roots go down. Besides, you don't swing so hard. If you do, your toes will get all cockeyed and you're liable to take a spill. So what happens? You swing nice and easy, just like the book says.

"The only time I ever played barefoot, except when I was a kid or had the excuse of being in the water, was during a practice round before the Masters tournament one year. There was an argument among some sportswriters about whether anybody could play golf in bare feet. So I played two holes barefoot and birdied them both."

I guess anyone that has won over 100 tournaments has the right to clown around a little.

Confidence Vote KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ed Lopat's contract as manager of the Kansas City Athletics has been extended through the 1965 season.

Coahoma Gridiron Camp To Begin The Coahoma Bulldogs begin their quest for a state football title on Aug. 19 as the first day of the annual camp officially begins at 8 a.m.

All the boys are urged to have their physical examinations before this time.

All players should bring $3.50 with them to pay for food, $3.00 for insurance, their own football shoes, bedding, and their swim suits.

Four Taken Into Hall COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—Two outfielders and two pitchers who thrilled diamond fans half a century and more ago were to be formally inducted today into baseball's Hall of Fame. Two were being honored posthumously.

Honored were Sam Rice, 71, outstanding outfielder with Washington and Cleveland; Elmer Flick, 87, winner of the American League batting title at Cleveland in 1905; John Clarkson and Eppa Rixey, pitchers.

Merchants Meet American Stars A softball doubleheader is on tap for 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Webb AFB Field as the American Softball League's all-star nine meets the Merchants of the Fast League.

The Merchants are continuing to practice in expectation of making the trip to the State ASA tournament which begins Thursday in Brownwood.

PAT WASHBURN'S Sports Round Table

Ever dreamed secretly about being an unknown facing a top-notch sports star? It's great to imagine yourself becoming a nationally hero as you upset him, but actually it would probably be a far different story. Picture this — climbing slowly through the ropes into a boxing ring bathed in yellow lights and seeing a monstrous, nut-brown SONNY LISTON giving you the evil eye from 30 feet; or standing on the pitcher's mound in the grandeur of Yankee Stadium and looking toward the plate at a glowing BABE RUTH who's waving at you like it was a toothpick; or being a National Football League quarterback dropping back to throw a TD pass as BIG DADDY LIPSCOMB came at you from two feet like a run-away locomotive. And in the stands a thousand unblinking eyes would be staring at the same time, and a thousand yelling mouths would be working all at once, and a thousand sports-thrilled minds would be grinding out the same message: "I'm glad I'm not in his shoes!"

JIMMY PATTERSON not only stood at the brink of playing with the real pros, he actually got the chance, and in the sudden limelight of the occasion he nearly got swallowed up—at least, he was pretty scared.

Jimmy is one of the nicest 19-year-old golfers you'd ever want to meet — good looking, meticulously polite, soft spoken, which goes naturally with a small, suggestive smile that's always tugging at the corners of his mouth, and a sunburnt, peeling nose that gives him away immediately as a boy who likes the outdoors. As a golfer he's definitely a strong up-and-comer. He was a member of the Odessa Junior College team for the past two years who were national champs, and twice he's represented Big Spring at the National Public Links matches in Chicago and they get upset if they don't hit a shot like they want to. But then, that's only human."

And then a classic comment spilled out: "I was the one who was nervous, they weren't. It was an everyday occurrence for them. They just got out there and made their $3,000."

Slammin' Sammy Sneed found his way out of Hot Springs (800 population), buried deep in Virginia's moonshining Shenandoah Mountains, to become one of golf's greatest stars — and now in his 27th year on the pro circuit he's won almost every tournament crown in sight except, strangely, the U.S. Open.

But Sneed never has forgotten his boyhood hillbilly days, shown outstandingly by one peculiarity of his that's not widely known—he likes to play golf barefooted. That's right — barefooted.

"You'll never see him do it in the tournaments but secretly his pinkies crave to cavort with the worms, the cool green grassblades, and the soft brown dirt clods.

"If the rules said that everybody had to play golf barefooted," he says smiling, "I figure I'd hardly ever lose a tournament. I learned to play golf barefooted and it's more natural for me. It feels good out there, wiggling your toes. When you step up to the ball, you're connected with the earth and you almost feel the roots go down. Besides, you don't swing so hard. If you do, your toes will get all cockeyed and you're liable to take a spill. So what happens? You swing nice and easy, just like the book says.

"The only time I ever played barefoot, except when I was a kid or had the excuse of being in the water, was during a practice round before the Masters tournament one year. There was an argument among some sportswriters about whether anybody could play golf in bare feet. So I played two holes barefoot and birdied them both."

I guess anyone that has won over 100 tournaments has the right to clown around a little.

Coahoma Gridiron Camp To Begin The Coahoma Bulldogs begin their quest for a state football title on Aug. 19 as the first day of the annual camp officially begins at 8 a.m.

All the boys are urged to have their physical examinations before this time.

All players should bring $3.50 with them to pay for food, $3.00 for insurance, their own football shoes, bedding, and their swim suits.

Four Taken Into Hall COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—Two outfielders and two pitchers who thrilled diamond fans half a century and more ago were to be formally inducted today into baseball's Hall of Fame. Two were being honored posthumously.

Honored were Sam Rice, 71, outstanding outfielder with Washington and Cleveland; Elmer Flick, 87, winner of the American League batting title at Cleveland in 1905; John Clarkson and Eppa Rixey, pitchers.

Merchants Meet American Stars A softball doubleheader is on tap for 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Webb AFB Field as the American Softball League's all-star nine meets the Merchants of the Fast League.

The Merchants are continuing to practice in expectation of making the trip to the State ASA tournament which begins Thursday in Brownwood.

Texas Coaches Converge For Annual School

HOUSTON (AP) — Registration opened today for the Texas Coaching School while all-star football and basketball squads already were deep in workouts.

The all-star arrived Sunday — 80 football and basketball players — and held practice sessions in late afternoon.

Today they began two-day workouts at Rice University.

Paul Smith of Galena Park, coach of the South footballers, and Gene Mayfield of Borger, who tutors the North, had their squads running plays in the opening practice but there was no contact until today.

The basketball game is scheduled Thursday night in Sam Houston Coliseum with the record turnout of 6,893 set last year at Lubbock expected to be shattered. The coliseum seats 9,000.

The football game will be Friday night at Rice Stadium. The record attendance for this feature is 20,408, set here in 1958.

Tigers Lose Pair To Midland Colts

The Big Spring Tigers journeyed to Midland Sunday for a doubleheader and lost both ends of the contest, 5-1 and 4-1, as the Midland Colts romped on the local hurlers.

In the first game, Jimmy Roger was charged with the loss as he gave up seven hits and five runs. Joe Sanchez was the winner.

Sanchez was the big hitter as he garnered three hits in three times at the plate. Billy Weatherall hit a double for the Tigers.

In the second contest, the Colts jumped off to a first inning lead and never gave it up as they battered Santiago Lopez for seven hits.

Armando Gutierrez was credited with the victory. The Colts got two doubles, the only extra-base hits in the game.

Yanks Split--Mantle Cracks Pinch Homer

By The Associated Press

The proud, haughty New York Yankees were in serious danger of looking like an ordinary ball club.

But then the Big One stepped in just long enough to swing the bat once, and they were the Yankees again.

The Yanks' oft-injured superstar, Mickey Mantle, making his first appearance in a Yankee game since he broke a bone in his left foot June 5, cracked a dramatic pinch-hit home run into the left field bleachers, pulling the Yankee from behind and aiming them toward an 11-0 victory.

The Yanks had lost the first game of a doubleheader 7-2, their two starting pitchers had been bombed out and the Baltimore Orioles, helped along by five unearned runs, had a 10-9 lead in the second game.

Mantle, to a wild ovation from the Yankee Stadium crowd of 28,555, stepped in in the seventh, batted right-handed against the left-handed George Brunet, he lined the second pitch into the left field bleachers.

The Yanks won it in the 10th on Yogi Berra's sacrifice fly.

E. C. Smith, Odessa Split Doubleheader

E. C. Smith of Big Spring and Odessa split a doubleheader here Saturday night, Smith capturing the first 4-3 by reason of a two-run last-inning rally. In the nightcap, the visitors avenged the defeat with a blistering 9-hit attack and won easily 8-1.

In the opening game, Bill Gehling hit a homer for Odessa, while Lindsey and Miller doubled for Big Spring. Don White tripled for Odessa. The win went to Speck Franklin, who allowed only two hits, while N. E. Stephens was tagged with the loss.

Stephens, however, coasted in the second round by shacking Smith with two hits, one of them a triple by Cox. Troy Wetsel was charged with the loss. Mainord, J. White, Rice and McCutchen each connected for doubles off Wetsel. A second-inning outburst saw four runs across for Odessa, and that settled the issue.

within seven games of the leading Yankees on an 8-1 romp over Los Angeles. Kansas City beat Minnesota 6-2. Washington stopped Boston 7-5 and Detroit and Cleveland split a pair, and the Tigers taking the first 2-0 and the Indians the nightcap 3-2.

Mantle, who had missed 61 games since his injury in Baltimore, said the ovation when he came from the dugout "actually chilled me. I could feel the bumps rising on my arms. I was shaking. I told myself, 'I'll settle for a single.'"

The homer was his 12th of the season.

Brooks Robinson had a homer for the Orioles, and Elston Howard connected for the Yankees.

Home runs by winning pitcher Steve Barber, John Powell and John Orsino made it easy for the Orioles to win the opener.

The White Sox closed up a half game as Camilo Carreon drove in three runs on a double and a single and scored another against the Angels.

Bill Winters grabbed first place in the first round of shooting and he was followed closely by LaRoy Schafer and J. E. Pells Sr. who got second and third respectively.

In the second round, Skeeter Davidson and Winters tied for first and Schafer took runner-up honors. Approximately 17 shooters were on hand.

Rule Wins At St. Paul

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Jack Rule Jr. had $5,300 worth of pain killer today, as well as the admiration of his fellow golfers for a gutsy performance Sunday in climbing out of a hospital bed to win the St. Paul Open.

The 24-year-old Waterloo, Iowa, golfer started his final round numb with pain-reducing drugs after a kidney stone attack that put him in a hospital Saturday night.

They were off, and he wound up with a splitting headache.

Despite all that, Rule fired a respectable one-over-par 73 for a five-shot margin over Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex. Rule's 72-hole total was 22 under par on Keller Municipal Course.

"I just played from memory, I guess," Rule said after the finish. He said at the start he had "no feel" in his hands.

A doctor tagged along for the entire round, and ordered a folding camp chair kept handy for Rule to rest on between shots. He used it often.

GIs Fight Off N. Koreans

U.S. FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION FRONT, Korea (AP)—Thirteen American soldiers fought off seven grenade-hurling North Korean raiders today in the longest clash in eight days of fresh action on the Korean front.

Three Americans suffered scratches from grenade fragments in the two-hour battle in pre-dawn darkness. There were no known Communist casualties.

The North Koreans used whistles like pheasant calls to guide their attack. They struck at an American outpost in a narrow finger of the demilitarized zone that was a bloody battle ground in the 1950-53 Korean War.

The outpost was about 1,000 yards east of where a Communist patrol ambushed three Americans in a jeep last week, killing two and wounding the third.

The spot is 13 miles from Panmunjom, where the United Nations Command warned North Korea it would invite its own destruction if it failed to halt attacks south of the border dividing North and South Korea. Three American soldiers were killed and one wounded in earlier clashes.

North Korea's spokesman, at the armistice commission Saturday, rejected the U.N. charges as "fabrications."

A U.N. command spokesman said today there were no reports of fighting elsewhere along the 151-mile front.

The commander of the besieged American group, Capt. Jerry Scott of Ada, Okla., said the Communist patrol leader apparently directed his soldiers with whistles sounding like pheasant calls.

This correspondent was in a battle position on a nearby hill when Scott's outpost was attacked. "Pheasants" whistled throughout the area but Scott and his men were the only ones hit during the night.

Scott had stationed his men in hillside trenches behind barbed wire when Pvt. James Hamby, 19, of Puxico, Mo., spotted the North Koreans attempting to climb the hill.

"I said, 'Well, damn it, throw a grenade down,'" Scott said. Hamby did, touching off the fight.

American commanders radioed Scott asking if he needed help, but the 27-year-old captain said later his men could have held off an attacking force three or four times the size of the Communist unit.

Scott said the Communists circled to attack from the rear but were met by riflemen assembled by Warrant Officer Kenneth Grambaler, 27, of Alexandria, S.D., behind barbed wire.

When the charging Reds piled into the barbed wire, Grambaler and his men opened fire.

Names of the wounded Americans were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

First Official Act For Beauty

FORT WORTH (AP)—Smashing a bottle of champagne on a troop carrier plane, Miss Jeanne Amacker, 21, of Beaumont, performed her first official act as Miss Texas Sunday.

The brown-haired co-ed, who represented Austin in the beauty contest, christened the craft "State of Texas" at Carswell Air Force Base here.

Miss Amacker said she entered the Miss Texas Contest without believing she could win.

"I thought I didn't have a chance," she said. "I just wanted the experience and the pleasure of meeting all the other girls."

She is a senior English major at the University of Texas.

Miss Amacker won a $1,250 wardrobe, $1,800 in scholarships, a set of china and a contract with Fort Worth's Casa Manana Musicals, Inc.

Next on the schedule for the shapely dark-eyed lovely is the Miss America Pageant in September at Atlantic City, N.J.

Fair Condition

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Lawrence Leroy Welk, 23, son of bandleader Lawrence Welk, was reported in fair condition today at a hospital where he is being treated for head and hand injuries suffered in an auto collision.

Smooth Bandits Stage Hold-Up

DALLAS (AP)—Masked bandits emphasizing their demands with sawed off shotguns spent nearly three hours robbing six food store chain supervisors of about $8,000 Sunday.

They took the money from offices of the Southland Corp., which operates 100 or more 7-11 and Cabell's drive-in stores here.

Four gunmen, wearing silk stocking masks and rubber gloves, were waiting as the first of the supervisors, Preston Newman, arrived at 9:30 a.m. Police later found the robbers broke a back window and spent part of the night in the building.

Newman and the other supervisors collect weekend receipts from about 15 stores each and take the money to the company's main offices in paper sacks.

"I was surprised because it was dark in the hall," Newman said. "Then I could dimly see a man standing there and he shoved a shotgun in my stomach.

"He said: 'This is a heist. Lie down on the floor. You won't be hurt if you give us no trouble.'"

Newman complied. He was dragged into an adjacent office where two men bound his hands and feet with tape and wire. Adhesive tape was placed across his eyes.

Other supervisors received the same treatment. They were Charles Wood, Robert Shimp, Fred Fannin and his son Gary, 16, James Mayfield and Rex Rogers.

"I was the last one to arrive," Shimp said. "I got in about 12:15 p.m. and was bound like the others, but the man who tied me did not run a line from my feet to my hands. I was able to work loose and free Mayfield. Then he and I called police."

Police were summoned by 12:30 p.m.

Lovely Shirley Knight, soon to be seen in "Flight From Ashiga," tells readers how to keep a youthful appearance.

Hair Is Being Abused Claims Noted Actress

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD—"The abuse that girls are giving their hair today with teasing and dyeing makes me wonder if when they are older they may have to wear wigs," Shirley Knight exclaimed. "The way the girls go to school with their hair back-combed into a balloon and all that make-up is ridiculous. I don't understand this mass urge to look alike."

Shirley, who is married, won two academy nominations for playing teen-agers.

"I was not allowed to wear make-up to school so my complexion is like a teen-ager's. I think it's silly to cover your skin when it is clear. There is time enough for that when you have something to hide."

"The cause of a bad complexion

Duplicate Winners At Cosden Club

Mrs. Jack Irons and Mrs. Roy Worley were first place winners Sunday afternoon when 5 1/2 tables were in play at the Cosden Country Club duplicate session. Mrs. Ayra McGann and Mrs. Travis Reed tied with Mrs. Riley Foster and Mrs. Elvis McCrary for third place. Fourth place was also a tie between Mrs. B. B. Badger and Mrs. Anne Hardy, and Mrs. J. Gordon Bristow and Mrs. A. Swartz.

is failing to remove all make-up before applying more. What is left behind clogs the pores and causes unsightly pimples. After I finished "Flight from Ashiga," I didn't even wear powder. I wanted to give my skin a rest."

Shirley's complexion is clear and lovely, but she doesn't believe in using lots of creams.

"Although I'm not addicted to creams, I do have one favorite. It's made from avocado and Papaya. You can also use the fresh fruits, if you want to. Mash them together and spread the mixture over your face. Leave it on for a few minutes and then rinse it off. This method is fine, but I find it more convenient to use the kind that comes in a jar."

HINTS FROM HELOISE by Heloise Cruse

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise: We make soap-bubble-mixture for our children by shaving two ounces of good, true bar soap. We personally use castile soap. Put this in a pint fruit jar and fill with water which has been boiled and allowed to cool. Shake it thoroughly and allow to stand until the top of the water becomes clear.

Dear Heloise: I have just removed acres of latex painted paper from all of the plastered walls in an old-fashioned house. Here's how: With a paint roller or an inexpensive old-fashioned calcimine brush, paint the entire wall generously with quite warm water mixed with a small amount of ammonia.

Dear Heloise: This recipe has been checked with the Poison Control Center and the Board of Health and it is quite safe.

Also, for those of you who do not have bubble blowers, use a straw or the wooden spool from a spool of thread. Works just as good!

Dear Heloise: I would like to tell you about a terrific idea for picnic tablecloths. I purchased two yards of 36-inch wide terry cloth and hemmed the ends. Presto, I had the prettiest picnic cloth in the entire neighborhood!

A person could use plain or printed terry cloth to match your favorite outdoor dishes.

Naturally, this requires no ironing and is ready in a jiffy for the next picnic. E.I.

Dear Heloise: I used to have a lot of trouble keeping salt dry. Now I keep a pretty glass turned over my salt and pepper set and it works fine. It keeps the condensation of the moisture out of the salt and it always pours freely.

Mrs. Edwin Curty

Dear Heloise: When I wash my organdy curtains I use a mixture made of gelatin solution. Mix one ounce of the gelatin to one pint of water.

I then dilute this mixture with 10 parts of hot water when I use it for starch.

My organdy curtains are the prettiest in town. Crisping

Don't fight a few stubborn spots with the putty knife or you will make permanent gouges on the wall.

Great thoughts, great feelings came to them. Like instincts, unawares.

Lord Houghton DAILY GUIDE — Surprises in the news. Some unconventional or tradition-breaking announcement can startle and cause some re-shuffling of plans. Keep alert, or you might find yourself taken completely unawares. This can be a time when your ideas come suddenly, like hunches, when you can be inventive and original. Some who are quick to take advantage of the changing trends will make progress, but others, too set or stubborn, could be set back on their heels. Keep your wits about you.

The pace is brisk today and tomorrow, with some high tension nervousness apparent. However, those ready and skillful could walk right in and take over. Communications and transportation will be accentuated, so watch your driving this week, especially today and tomorrow evening. In the late evening today, watch the angles, as some rumors or information could be manipulated to suit selfish ends.

Another accent coming up similar to today: avoid temperamental behavior, outbursts, erratic thinking.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, LEO! This week take care of financial details, especially investments, changes in wills or security.

Be careful in travel at the end of the month. Some neighborhood matters could prove inflationary and be more costly than anticipated. The uncertainty about home base can be accentuated in late September or early October. Restrictions or responsibilities through alliances or mate could be involved. Fortunately, you are favored through educational or professional contacts, and travel can be enjoyable.

At the end of the year make the most of social, romantic or parental events. Finances have unusual details coming up from time to time, changes, expenses and extras.

Mason Does Philosophizing Of His Own

LONDON (AP)—After playing a Greek philosopher in his first epic movie, "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," actor James Mason came home on one of his rare visits and did some philosophizing of his own.

He has plenty to be philosophical about.

After 22 years of marriage his wife, Pamela, is suing for divorce.

He has to find $5,000 a month to pay her in maintenance pending settlement of their divorce suits. "I don't view the situation with particular dismay," Mason said in his drawing, polished voice. "I'm hoping to make ends meet."

"The thing is not to worry about the future — or the past," he said. "I'm a day-to-day liver, and I'm a fairly happy man. I have my work — I'm a very busy man — and my friends."

Mason said he is quite adept at making ends meet. When he first arrived in America litigation with his agent prevented his making movies for 18 months.

"I made ends meet by writing stories and articles and making television and radio appearances," said Mason.

He said he liked living in America but found himself being drawn back more and more to Europe, where he says he finds a greater variety of experience at every level of life. He lives in Vevy, Switzerland, with Charlie Chaplin for a neighbor.

One of the things he would like to do is promote and direct a remake of "Jane Eyre," with himself in the role of Rochester. He developed a version of the book when he was under contract to 20th Century Fox five years ago and is negotiating with them to buy the property.

Utah School Crisis Eases

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The threatened closing of all of Utah's public schools has been averted.

The teachers voted at a special meeting of the Utah Education Association — UEA — to set aside temporarily its dispute with the state over salaries, more teachers and better equipment pending a study by a special committee appointed by Gov. George D. Clyde.

The UEA had voted last March not to contract for the term starting in September unless the dispute was resolved.

Clyde chose a committee, acceptable to the UEA leaders, whose job is to study and make recommendations within a year.

A Devotional For The Day

Jesus came and said to them, "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. Go therefore and make disciples of all nations." (Matthew 28:18-19. RSV.)

PRAYER: Merciful Father, pardon and deliver us from our sins. Help us to spread Thy Word to men in every country. Teach us to love one another as Christ loves us. Be with us always, Through Jesus Christ and for His sake. Amen.

(From The 'Upper Room')

Final Reading

Up for a final reading Tuesday will be an ordinance which will change the shade of business classification for an area south of the present business district.

This has gone through channels and through two previous readings when the public has had a chance to be heard. Yet, we counsel, on the eve of the final round, that a thorough look be given to the change which will permit businesses to build squarely to the property line instead of observing certain set-backs as is now the case. As business moves south on Main and other streets, most of the larger firms have thoughtfully observed setbacks even though they did not always have to. Now, complete erasure of this requirement may open the doors to a cluttered appearance.

Cost Of Research

An estimated $15 billion was spent for scientific and technological research in the year ending June 30, 1962, the National Science Foundation reports. Of the sum, $10 billion was provided by the federal government.

Now the question is being asked: How can we be sure that the federal contribution is being wisely spent on the most useful research projects? Some members of the business community have gone to the lengths of suggesting that Congress consult with research people from private industry in judging the potential usefulness of research proposals and establishing priorities among them.

The answer must have at least two parts.

In the field of applied technology and engineering the question of allocation and priorities can be made with some confidence. As with the application of nuclear fission theory to the development of an atomic bomb, the question comes finally to this: How much are you willing to pay? Or the related question: How much scientific and technological talent can you afford to divert in order to apply a theory?

But in the field of basic science we enter a completely different world. There are not many basic scientists who are interested in the practical application of the theories they evolve. They operate on the basis of human knowledge. They seek to reduce matter to its indivisible elements, hoping thereby to discover the nature and origin of matter. At the other extreme, they search for the nature and origin of the universe. Out of this they hope to produce a unified theory which will explain the mysteries of birth, life and death of matter in all its bewildering forms.

It is possible to use a cash register approach to applied technology, but it cannot be applied to basic research. For one reason, the temperament of the basic researcher will not permit it. He wants simply to be given a place to work and then left alone. No one can say, least of all the researcher himself, whether the years he spends in research will add to the sum of man's knowledge or produce a practical theory. Communion with associates in the same field is indispensable, but interference from "outsiders" may do nothing but drive him to distraction and destroy his usefulness.

The pure scientists remain the most uncorruptible of men in an increasingly materialistic world. The Albert Einsteins of this world are not interested in money for its own sake or in material possessions. They rejoice instead in the rarified atmosphere of reason and intellect. Neither money nor the lack of it will dissuade these pioneers from trying to push steadily beyond the frontiers of man's knowledge.

David Lawrence Involving Military In Civil Rights

WASHINGTON — It seems incredible that, with all the denunciation that Americans have heaped on the Soviets for indoctrinating their troops with the social and political ideas of communism, the people of the United States should be reading in their newspapers about speeches in the halls of Congress alleging that the Kennedy administration is trying to use the armed services to propagate its doctrines of social reform.

SEN. JOHN STENNIS of Mississippi, Democrat, is a high-ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee and chairman of its Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee. In a speech to the Senate last Wednesday, he cited the directive which has been issued by the Secretary of Defense ordering commanders at military bases to declare "off limits" any businesses or areas where any racial discrimination may occur. The senator said in his speech:

"It is now proposed that the military profession itself be utilized as a driving force in the establishment of a new social and political order which involves race relations and individual associations in off-base areas surrounding our military establishments . . .

"THIS NEW and previously unheard-of mission is designed to shape our military force as an instrument for social reform and can only result in irreparable injury to the military profession. In addition, it is a grave and serious challenge to the long-established and traditional concept of complete separation of the military from all political matters and activities . . .

"Paragraph C (of the directive) places clear and heavy responsibility upon the military commander in the field of social reform. It provides:

"EVERY MILITARY commander has the responsibility to oppose discriminatory practices affecting his men and their dependents and to foster equal opportunity for them, not only in areas under his immediate control, but also in nearby communities where they may live or gather in off-duty hours."

Not long ago, the Secretary of Defense had to revise an Air Force directive which was construed as encouraging soldiers when out of uniform to participate in racial "demonstrations." It is not yet clear how much of the Defense Department's influence still remains a factor in the activities of soldiers off duty who are in

RESEARCH ON SUSPENDED ANIMATION

James Marlow Thinking Like Von Ribbentrop

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima 18 years ago Tuesday. Shortly afterward, Hitler's foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, expressed a strange confidence in mankind.

"No one would be so stupid as to start a war now," he said. His foresight had never been very good. At the time he made the prophecy he was in jail in Germany, soon to be tried and hanged for war crimes.

The bomb which hit the Japanese city had more power than 20,000 tons of TNT. Now the United States has a stockpile equivalent to 33 billion tons of TNT. The Soviets have one equal to at least 29 billion tons.

ARTHUR T. HADLEY, author of "The Nation's Safety and Arms Control," said recently 35 billion tons of TNT explosive power "would fill a string of freight cars stretching from the earth to the moon and back 15 times."

The United States and the Soviet Union, it has been estimated, ought to be able to eliminate about 80 per cent of each other in an all-out war. Last week President Kennedy talked of "100 objects flying through the air at thousands of miles an hour."

This makes the Hiroshima bomb look a little skimpy although it destroyed about 60 per cent of the city, killed about 78,000 people outright, and had a blast effect equivalent to that of all the high explosives which could be carried in a fleet of 2,900 B29s.

Bertrand Russell, British philosopher, suggested last year that bombs might not be the only cause of mortality in a nuclear attack on this country.

He thought a "great many Americans would be killed by other Americans who did not want their shelters over-filled." But, since he's a leader in the "ban-the-bomb" protests, some people may regard him as odd.

AFTER 18 years, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union haven't come any closer to banning the bomb than a limited agreement, being signed today, to ban nuclear tests in the atmosphere and outer space and under the sea.

This leaves them free to test underground and go on making bombs. Kennedy said this country will continue testing underground. And any signer of the agreement can get out of it on three month's notice.

The agreement ran into trouble as soon as it was announced. France and Red China, determined to make their own nuclear weapons, even if it takes years, won't join the agreement which China calls a "filthy fraud."

When they get their supply built up, perhaps in 10 years, it still will be no match for those of the United States and the Soviet Union.

FRENCH President Charles de Gaulle said last week France wouldn't stop trying to build nuclear weapons unless the Soviet Union and this country agree to destroy their nuclear weapons and prohibit their use.

If the nuclear powers are ever willing to destroy their weapons—not likely in this generation—it may take another generation of arguing about the details of checking to prevent cheating.

If they did agree on this, war might come sooner than if they didn't, and for one of the most weird reasons in the whole weird history of the atomic bomb.

All the nuclear powers, present and future, know what a nuclear war could do to each of them. Therefore, so long as they have nuclear weapons, they may be reluctant to start a war, not because they're bright enough to settle disputes peacefully, but because they're afraid to take a chance.

Hal Boyle Babies Are Thoughtful

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Babies are thoughtful little critters. Fewer are born during the cocktail hour than at any other time of the day or night.

Three out of four American adults have trouble with dandruff. But 97 out of 100 suffer dental decay.

Compliment: The greatest praise an oldtime cowboy could give a fellow saddle tramp was to say to him: "He is someone you can ride the river with."

It takes an office secretary 15 minutes to get out of income-tax returns filed with the Internal Revenue Service. He declared:

"I think this goes much further than what we are talking about here today; namely, the threat of a military takeover should things change in this country and we find that the military commanders have become used to running politics and the social life of the community—I do not care where it is. It goes further than a discussion of the civil rights question."

"MILITARISM" is a term used to refer to military men who usurp power to control civilians, but there seems to be no word except possibly "politics" to define efforts by civilians to use the military to carry on social-reform programs. Sen. Stennis said:

Our quotable notables: "The man who is always worrying about whether or not his soul would be damned generally has a soul that isn't worth a damn."—Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Swat him on sight: Of 625,000 known insects—some 2 to 4 million kinds are still unclassified—the common housefly is regarded as probably the most dangerous to man.

Funny geography: There's an Odear, Me., an Ash, Kan., and a Houdy, Miss.

Health note: In the United States only one out of 10,000 who get measles die of it. In Africa, one out of two die.

Unique village: The community of Gildersleeve, Alaska, is built on 17 log rafts, which are towed from place to place when logging is to be done.

Unemployment is strictly a human problem at present. The number of jobs for performing animals has increased 600 per cent since 1950.

It was William Hazlitt who observed, "If mankind had wished for what is right, they might have had it long ago."

To Your Good Health Diabetics Should Curb Their Weight

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I notice that you frequently advise diabetics (I am one) to reduce or watch their weight. Just what is the connection? And how often should I have a blood test?—MRS. H.S.K.

From long experience we know that patients with diabetes are—or have been—overweight. We also know that women who have large babies (nine pounds or more) are very often diabetic, or may be soon.

Simple clues point to persons who are likely to get diabetes. Now for patients who have diabetes, why is weight control important?

First, additional weight means that more food is being eaten than is necessary. Excess weight is the difference between what we eat and what we need.

Not all overweight people are diabetic, but all diabetics have to avoid excess weight.

For whatever the form of calories — protein, carbohydrate (which includes sugar), or fat—the excess is stored in the body as fat.

If a person is thin, the calories are converted into blood sugar, so long as the body needs energy or "fuel." Only after that will the excess become fat.

Let's add to the diet an extra ounce or so of fat, or a couple of ounces of sugar or starch, or about that much protein. It will turn into blood sugar. After that, it will turn into fat—except that with a diabetic, too much piles up, first as blood sugar, and excess blood sugar is undesirable.

A diabetic, gaining weight, is eating more than the body needs. This means high blood sugar—and danger.

In the long run, and before we had either insulin or the diabetes pills, the diabetic soon reached a point at which normal (let alone excess!) blood sugar couldn't be converted into fat. The sugar poisoned such a victim and at the same time the body wasted away.

The patient died emaciated.

In the mild, obese diabetic, it has been shown that the sugar tolerance test may return to normal if weight is reduced.

How often should you have a blood sugar test? It should be often if you are overweight, and even oftener if you are gaining weight. If your weight is normal and stable, and you are not a "brittle" diabetic, meaning an unstable one, a safety check, perhaps once a year, should be adequate. If you aren't stable, you might need one every month!

Dear Dr. Molner: After sigmoid polyps have been discovered, how long can a person wait before surgery?—G.M.W.

If the polyps were mine, I would not wait at all. For one thing, you don't know how long they existed before discovery. It's safest to have them removed right away; if you don't, at least your doctor should keep watch at short intervals to be sure trouble isn't starting.

MRS. L. D.: There's no way to get rid of stretch marks, but they fade quite a bit eventually.

Headaches! You can beat them. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald for a copy of the booklet, "How to Tame Headaches." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of handling.

Dr. Molner is interested in all his readers' questions, and whenever possible uses their questions in his column, but because of the great number received daily, he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters.

Around The Rim The Old Story Of Taxes

One thing and another: A Midwesterner has figured out it costs the average middle-class American $1,000 for the privilege of buying a $3,000 automobile.

First, he points out, you will pay 20 cents more or less to the federal government for the right to earn a dollar. Now spend the dollar, for which you already have paid 20 cents, on the purchase of a car.

YOU PAY two cents or more for sales tax. The cost mounts to 22 cents. If you borrow money to buy the car, you'll be lucky to get 12 per cent interest. Twelve plus 22 is 34 cents on the dollar.

This adds up to one third the cost of a car, but the estimate still is minimal. Add on the cost of new license plates. And personal property tax can be figured in.

I LIKE the story they tell about Joe Frisco, the stuttering comedian who had a weakness for risking a few sous on the ponies.

Frisco got behind on his income taxes, to the extent of about $100,000, and was called on the carpet about it.

When on his way to explain a few things to the bird dogs of the Internal Revenue Service, Frisco learned an actor friend of his, Eddie Foy, was in arrears to the extent of something like $6,000 to the government.

When he went inside to discuss his case, the stuttering Frisco told the tax man:

"P-p-p-put Eddie's b-b-bill on my tab."

A MYSTERY which has puzzled people in Painswick, England, for years recently was solved.

St. Mary's church there had a churchyard full of ancient yew trees, and the legend was that only 99 trees would grow there—never 100. All efforts to cultivate the 100th failed.

A scientist named Arthur George Meeze, who lived near the churchyard, it turned out, was dedicated to the proposition of limiting the grove to 99 trees—due to his love for a practical joke. His daughter, Cluthona, said her parent used to pour acid of some sort on the roots of the 100th yew tree whenever they planted a new one.

She added he likely started the legend in the first place because he "used to do so many things like that."

STANDING BY the entrance to a large estate in the suburbs of Dublin are two large dogs carved out of stone.

A passing Englishman stopped to admire the dogs and decided to have some fun with an Irishman who was working near the entrance to the estate. Asked he:

"How often do you feed these dogs?" "When ever they bark, sir," the Mick replied.

What's Wrong With English?

The longer Mayor Robert Wagner and his cohorts rule New York the more wistfully many a citizen longs for the good old days of five or six years ago before Carmine DeSapio was given the gate.

The reign of Tammany Hall was supposed to have been broken when the reform element in the Democratic party got rid of DeSapio, a man with a George Raft air of elegance and a similar addiction to dark glasses.

BUT THE MORE things change in New York the more they remain Tammany Hall. There is this difference—at least DeSapio never had the unabashed political gall, or foresight, to campaign for the elimination of the English language literacy test for voters.

Now, however, with their eyes glued to the 1964 national elections and, beyond them, to the city mayoralty election a year later, Mayor Wagner, Paul Screevane, president of the City Council, and Paul O'Dwyer, candidate for Democratic councilman-at-large in Manhattan, want to knock out the state's constitutional requirement that a voter be able to read and write basic English.

OUT OF DEFERENCE to the great number of votes available among the hundreds of thousands of Spanish-speaking Puerto Rican immigrants to New York, the mayor, et al, are fighting to make Spanish the co-equal of English in the literacy tests.

In short, Mayor Wagner, who has his eyes on a seat in the U. S. Senate; Screevane, who has his eyes on the mayoralty seat that would be vacated by Wagner, and O'Dwyer, a willing party "runner," are slaver after the Spanish-speaking vote.

WAGNER AND his chums are mounting a political campaign in behalf of the Spanish literacy test that would make the old-time Tammany swell with pride. Screevane has outdone himself and his cohorts by screaming that the English language literacy test is "the perpetuation of discrimination" and the base "exercise of racist policies."

By golly, he has touched all bases in that outburst, and will be hard put to top himself in the future unless he can prove that the English language test is inimical to American mothers, Southern womanhood, the Red Cross and hot buttered corn.

OURS IS AN English-language country, no matter how we mangle the king's version. What kind of nonsense is this that associates the English tongue with discrimination and racism? If English is so despicable, why has it taken these gallant crusaders for more votes so long to make the horrendous discovery?

What about the thousands of German-speaking voters around the Yorkville area of New York? Will it be less discriminatory and less racist if in the future, they are required to take a literacy test in Spanish rather than English?

AND WILL democracy be better served, for instance, if the new voter in Chinatown takes his voting test in Castilian rather than English?

Millions of Americans are proud descendants of immigrants who arrived in this country, eager and delighted to learn rudimentary English in exchange for the privilege of voting. To attach "discrimination" and "racism" to the mastery of a little basic English is the basest kind of cheap demagoguery and establishes a new low in Tammany tactics.

I WOULD HOPE that every Puerto Rican in the country can and does vote. But for the "reformed" Tammanys to woo this bloc vote with such shameless tactics as an appeal to "discrimination" and "racism" through language would turn the stomach of an old, unregenerate Tammany goat. Holmes Alexander But The Ball Game Has Just Started WASHINGTON—As a matter of courtesy, and maybe of strategy, the home team in baseball always bats last. Something like this is happening as the Civil Rights Act of 1963 plays out its schedule before various committees of Senate and House.

THE VISITING team to Capitol Hill, which is to say the demonstrators, the reformers, the moralists and their administration spokesmen, got first at bat. They have scored freely in the early innings with almost unlimited publicity and a good deal of public acceptance. The bare proposition that everybody deserves a fair shake, regardless of race, scored a clean hit. By squeeze plays, sacrifice hits, stolen bases and hit-and-run errors, the specific propositions have advanced: the right to vote, to be accommodated in lodgings, to get an education and to get a job.

But it now becomes noticeable that some of these truisms are being matched by verities from the home team—which is to say, the possessors of legal knowledge and experience who are the natural defenders of the houses of legislation.

SEN. SAM ERVIN, former associate justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court and a bookworm on Constitutional law, has never defended racial injustice or racial inequality. But Ervin contends that there are plenty of laws on the books to enforce them. He's against making "end runs" around the Constitution in order to hurry up history. He lectured the attorney general for trying to rig the state election laws in "a cynical attempt to camouflage a failure" to win cases. Ervin argues with force, and not without eloquence, that it is anarchy to sacrifice "the liberty of all Americans . . . for the false equality of a few."

SEN. FRANK LAUSCHIE, formerly a municipal and common pleas judge, attacked the administration's claim that compulsory laws for accommodation and employment will necessarily attract industry and increase jobs. The Ohio senator gave Labor Secretary Wirtz a bad time on some labor statistics. It seems that Midwestern States with liberal laws, and somewhat hypocritical customs, have been losing industry, whereas Southern states, with restrictive laws and admittedly restrictive customs, are gaining. Lausche said:

"I have before me a study made by a conference of economists of the Midwest. It covers Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota . . . each one of these States has lost in gross national product since 1953 . . . Tell me, why is Ohio losing . . . and why are Florida and Georgia and Alabama gaining?"

WIRTZ AGREED that other factors than civil rights must be at play. Then Lausche cocked him on another point. There is nothing in the administration's package which allows a worker, denied union membership because of color, to call upon the Attorney General to bring suit, as the Civil Rights Act would provide in other cases of discrimination.

"Why wasn't that included?" Lausche demanded of the labor secretary. "The omission has, on its face, implications that the little individual was to be covered, but the powerful and the mighty were not."

ANOTHER HOME TEAM, or lawyer's, inning is played out in an analysis of the Civil Rights package by a past president of the American Bar and Mississippi Bar Associations, John C. Satterfield. He says that the enactment would extend control over business, industry, citizens and states in a degree to exceed "all decisions of the Supreme Court and all Acts of Congress from 1787 to June 19, 1963."

Satterfield finds that laws governing over 100 federal financing agencies would be amended by the Civil Rights Act. His list begins with the Federal Reserve System, the Federal Home Loan System, banks and other institutions served by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and virtually all the agricultural loan agencies. Says Satterfield:

"WHEN FUTURE generations look back through the eyes of history at this legislation, they will recognize 10 per cent civil rights" and 90 per cent extension of raw federal power."

Of course, the ball game isn't over yet. But the home team, slugging with statistics and interpretations not heard in the beginning, is making a contest of it.
