YUGOSLAV PLANT

U.S. Funds But Nikita Nixes Visit By Yanks

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev inspected a modern chemical plant being built with U. S. funds Sunday and American engineers supervising construction were barred from the premises. What the Soviet premier had to say about this example of U. S. aid to Communist Yugoslavia was unknown. Armed guards forcibly ejected Western reporters from the plant grounds but Soviet and Yugoslav correspondents were allowed to make the tour. President Tito escorted Khrushchev around the plant, which is being built with a $23-million loan from the U. S. Development Loan fund and $6.5 million from Britain's chemical industries. The plant will produce chemicals and plastics. As the two began the 40-minute tour, eight Western correspondents who have been following Khrushchev on his visit to Yugoslavia approached the plant's administration building where Khrushchev was to meet with plant officials. Company guards told the correspondents to get out. The correspondents protested. The guards then shoved them off the plant grounds. The correspondents stood outside in a muddy road with eight American engineers who also were refused permission to enter the plant while Khrushchev was there. Construction is under the supervision of the Foster Wheeler Co. of Livingston, N. J. The engineering team is headed by Alfred S. Holden, of Oakhurst, N. J. He had no comment on the ban. No reason for it was given by Yugoslav authorities. Holden said the installation was of the most modern and advanced design and probably was the only plant of its kind in the Communist world. It is about 70 per cent complete. The plant is the sort of enterprise Tito probably once hoped the Soviet Union would supply. When he insisted on his independent brand of communism he was kicked out of the Soviet bloc in 1948. When Khrushchev came to power, Soviet-Yugoslav relations warmed up for a time but they worsened in 1958 and Moscow canceled a promise of credits. The two nations are in a new era of warming relations, but the credits have not been restored.

Police Rout Demonstrators In Louisiana

PLAQUEMINE, La. (AP)—Negroes ignored the pleas of their leaders to go home Sunday night and staged another freedom demonstration in this racially troubled south Louisiana town. City police—aided by mounted state troopers—used tear gas and jets of water from high pressure hoses to break up the melee, which nearly turned into a full-scale race riot when white on-lookers began yelling at Negroes and shouting encouragement to police. "Bring 'em up now," shouted the whites as police drove the Negroes away from Court House Square. Negroes, in turn, hurled bricks and stones at police and the crowd of whites. There were at least two dozen arrests. Police hustled those arrested to a temporary compound at the fairgrounds and began processing them in small groups at the police station. Several state policemen were hit by stones and bricks. CUT BY GLASS It was not immediately determined how many Negroes were arrested. Police hustled those arrested to a temporary compound at the fairgrounds and began processing them in small groups at the police station. At daybreak, an officer said "we've processed roughly 65 and there are more out there." Several of the state policemen, who were using electric cattle prods to rout the demonstrators, were hit by flying stones and pieces of brick. Negroes poured into hospitals for treatment after being overcome by tear gas. Several were hurt jumping through the glass windows of a church when police lobbed tear gas shells into the building. Among those arrested were Dr. Bertrand Tyson, a Negro physician who has been leading the equality demands of his people, and Ronnie Moore, a young Congress of Racial Equality field secretary. Police said they were looking for James Farmer, national CORE director, who was released on bond last Thursday night following his arrest in the initial Plaquemine racial demonstrations Aug. 19. The fresh demonstrations came after U.S. Dist. Judge E. Gordon West of Baton Rouge issued a temporary restraining order—his second—banning racial protests. Judge West said it was his belief "irreparable damage and injury will more than likely occur in the absence of such a restraining order." Five hundred to 600 Negroes marched silently from the Plymouth Rock Baptist Church, where a freedom rally was under way in mid-evening. They filed past Court House Square, where Sheriff C. A. Griffin Jr. looked on but took no action. Then they marched back to the church. FEDERAL ORDER A half hour later, the Negroes started another march but were met by police who told them of the federal order. "Go home now," said Rudy Lombard, a CORE worker, who climbed on a car to talk to the Negroes. "We don't want to go home," yelled several. "We won't go home." A few ran down the street tossing rocks at nearby houses—a mixed neighborhood. Several windows were broken. Then they surged toward the square—center of this Mississippi River town of 7,500.

Holiday Toll Soars Toward 600 Mark

Estimates Upped In Long Weekend

TROOPER, CATTLE PROD MOVE IN Louisiana demonstrator retreats in march

Traffic deaths across the nation since the start of the extended Labor Day weekend appeared headed today for a record toll for the holiday. Safety experts, noting the heavy toll on the highways Sunday, said if the trend continues, the final total will far exceed pre-holiday estimates. The traffic death toll, since the count started at 6 p.m. local time Friday was 426, including more than 180 Sunday. The National Safety Council had estimated 430 to 520 persons might be killed in auto accidents during the 78-hour period which ends at midnight tonight. Council officials said "if the present pace of traffic deaths continues, the final toll could reach 625 to 630." The record high toll for a Labor Day weekend is 501, set last year. The lowest for the holiday weekend is 246, recorded in 1946. The final long weekend of the summer lured millions of motorists to the highways. Safety experts said the heaviest travel of the weekend was expected today, with the homeward-bound motorists. Council officials have estimated that motorists will travel a total of 8.4 billion miles during the three-day holiday period. In addition to the traffic deaths, 17 persons lost their lives in boating accidents and 35 others drowned. The over-all accident death toll was 478. There have been several multiple-fatal traffic accidents since the start of the holiday. Sunday five residents of Illinois were killed in a collision near Rockville, Ind. Four persons lost their lives in a head-on crash near Martinsville, Va. Council officials said that the traffic death toll for a normal holiday weekend at this time of year would total 360. An Associated Press survey of traffic deaths during a non-holiday weekend period of 78 hours, from 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 16 to midnight Monday, Aug. 19, showed 461 highway fatalities. The total compared to 386 deaths during the Labor Day weekend of 1961.

BIBLE FUND GETS A SHOT IN THE ARM

Although the weekend normally sees a slackening of giving, this one was an exception. As a result, the high school Bible Class fund neared the $2,000 mark. Friends sent in a total of $149.00 for the day, boosting the total within a few cents of $1,950. The day's offering included another generous remembrance from former residents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. EMBASSY OF U.S.

Saigon Wants Hidden Monks

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Saigon's military governor demanded custody today of three Buddhist monks granted refuge in the U.S. Embassy. The three include the chief organizer of Buddhist opposition to the South Vietnamese government. Brig. Gen. Thon That Dinh told newsmen he asked the Foreign Ministry to insist that the United States surrender the monks who appealed for asylum at the embassy Sunday night. The high ranking monk was identified as Thich Tri Quang, 44, second in command of South Viet Nam's General Buddhist Association and generally regarded as the most wanted Buddhist leader. The military governor also reaffirmed Vietnamese army support for President Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, believed to be the chief architect of the government's anti-Buddhist crackdown. He said the army supports "any man who is an anti-Communist." The three monks had eluded authorities since the government cracked down on Buddhist opposition Aug. 21, raided pagodas and imposed martial law. Clothed in ceremonial yellow robes, they arrived at the U.S. Embassy by taxi at sunset. "Let me in. Help me," Tri Quang yelled in English. One monk dashed inside the embassy door but a Vietnamese policeman collared the other two. Witnesses said U.S. Marine guards took the policeman away to let the other monks enter. A half-hour earlier, two other Buddhist monks voluntarily left the U.S. aid mission where they gained asylum 12 days ago. The pair disregarded warnings from security officers that they might be arrested. Tight security prevailed at the embassy and only top officials were permitted to enter during the night. Embassy officials said they would not permit interviews or pictures of the monks. Tri Quang and his two companions, Le Ma Chi and Tran Van Nham, were reported lodged in a conference room and provided with cots, blankets and food. "We are notifying the Vietnamese government that we have these monks and we are telling them their names," an embassy spokesman said. U.S. officials had hoped the voluntary departure from asylum of the other two monks would ease tensions. The monks who left the aid mission, Thich Hue Thoi and Thich Kim Muon, embraced U.S. Marine guards before taking a taxi to the Quang pagoda. The monks told newsmen they were unimportant in the Buddhist movement and had sought refuge in the U.S. aid mission only to escape police. JFK Ready For Viet Nam Talk HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy was prepared to tell the nation and the world tonight exactly how the American government feels about the political and religious strife in South Viet Nam. Kennedy's first public reaction to the South Viet Nam crisis was drafted for a nationally televised interview at 5:30 p.m. EST. There was no certainty, however, that the subject would be broached. All involved in the interview said it was a no-holds-barred affair in which the question—not Kennedy—could choose the subjects to be discussed.

Senators Ready To Ponder A-Ban

WASHINGTON (AP)—The treaty to ban all but underground nuclear testing goes to the Senate this week with debate expected over whether to attach a reservation spelling out U.S. rights to use nuclear weapons in case of war. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., served notice that he will offer the reservation which is favored by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, but opposed by President Kennedy on grounds that it is not necessary. "I have grave doubts about this treaty," said Long, the only member of the Foreign Relations Committee to vote against reporting the treaty to the Senate. "I'm afraid the Russians are going to cheat every chance they get." His views were expressed in a recorded radio and television interview Sunday. The committee, which approved the treaty by a 16-1 vote last Thursday, is to submit its formal report to the Senate Tuesday or Wednesday, recommending ratification without reservation. The committee's report will include an "understanding" of the proposed reservation that the United States will be the sole judge as to when and where it will use its nuclear weapons in the event of any armed aggression. Supporters believe this would answer the point raised by Eisenhower. Most nations have already signed the treaty negotiated by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union. The Kennedy Administration holds that the treaty involves only testing of nuclear weapons, not the use of weapons in war, and that it in no way restricts U.S. rights to defend itself. Long's opposition to the treaty is in line with that of Dr. Edward Teller, one of the developers of the hydrogen bomb, who repeated Sunday his view that the test ban agreement might endanger world peace by giving the Soviets the edge in perfecting an antimissile defense. Teller, on NBC's "Meet The Press," said he believes the Soviet Union is already ahead of the United States in developing a nuclear defense. Teller said the belief that the treaty is a step away from war is a "false hope."

Parade, Play Highlight Day

A parade on Fifth Avenue in New York City today highlights the nation's Labor Day ceremonies under trade union sponsorship. Many seashore, lakeside, mountain and other resorts were crowded as millions of Americans played or rested on the last day of the long weekend and last summer holiday. Baseball games, big-stakes horse race classics, yacht club regattas and other sports events held the attention of many from coast to coast. The first observance was in New York City on Sept. 5, 1902—a Tuesday. Two years later, the American Federation of Labor adopted a formal resolution designating the first Monday in September as Labor Day. The federal government and all 50 states have approved that date. On the eve of the holiday, the industrial union department of the AFL-CIO hailed the efforts of Negroes to win equality and declared this struggle "must and will succeed." A statement by the department also said the major domestic problem is the need for more jobs. Sponsors of the New York City parade predicted that more than 100,000 would march. AFL-CIO President George Meany was grand marshal of the parade, sponsored by the New York City Central Labor Council. The theme of full employment and equal opportunity was accented. Many marchers readied the same banners they carried in the march on Washington last Wednesday.

Accident Count Hits 32 In Texas

Texas' violent death toll edged higher Monday in Labor Day travel. Traffic took 22 lives. Two drownings and other causes increased fatalities to 32. Safety officials predicted auto accidents alone would take 31 lives in Texas during the holiday weekend. Among the victims: Mrs. R. G. Garlington of San Marcos was killed by a truck 12 miles north of Seguin as she crossed Texas 12 Sunday night. Melinton Rodriguez of San Marcos suffered a broken arm and when a car hit him as he directed traffic after the first accident. Miss Clay Thompson, 23, died at Waco Sunday night when a car struck her as she walked on U.S. 81. Pat Hoskins, 1, died as flames destroyed the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hoskins, on Houston's North Side Sunday night. A car killed L. T. Lucas, 11, Sunday night at a church in Lindale, 15 miles north of Tyler on U.S. 69. Norma Shoonover, 3, of Azle drowned Sunday in Eagle Mountain Lake near Fort Worth. She was with a party of about 20. Lucius McClelland, 22, was shot to death on a farm about 20 miles southwest of Tyler early Sunday. A shotgun charge hit his chest. Two Berger men died early Sunday when their car overturned at a curve near Berger. They were Jimmy Vaughn, 22, and Arthur Belt, 22. The driver, Don Burns, 21, was critically hurt. A car overturned near Hallettsville Sunday, killing Jimmy Merckha, 17, of Sheridan.

Chinese Say Soviets Tattle Secrets To U.S.

TOKYO (AP)—Red China has accused the Soviet Union of tattling Communist secrets to Washington in a long-standing effort to bar Peking from the nuclear club. Peking radio said Sunday Moscow informed the United States some time ago that the Soviet Union was reneging on an agreement to help the Chinese start manufacturing nuclear weapons. Billed as a statement by a government spokesman, it was one of the angriest Chinese trades yet in the months of name-calling between Peking and Moscow. At one point, Peking radio even compared Soviet propaganda to that of Hitler's Germany, a charge hitherto reserved for attacks on the West. The broadcast said the Soviet decision to scrap its pledge of nuclear aid to Red China and the purported leak to Washington constituted "a gift to the United States." When Peking announced Aug. 15 that the Russians had broken their 1957 nuclear aid pledge, enraged Soviet leaders said the Chinese had divulged confidential documents and defense information about Communist countries, the broadcast recalled. Speaking directly to the Russians, Peking declared: "Please do not pretend innocence. You know very well that long before we published our last statement on Aug. 15, you told the Americans the secrets between China and the Soviet Union concerning nuclear weapons." With a goal of preventing Red China from obtaining nuclear weapons, the "Soviet leaders have colluded with the U.S. imperialists," Peking said. Up until January, U.S. military men were saying they expected

GOVERNOR MOVES IN ARMED TROOPERS

Wallace Delays Tuskegee Integration

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP)—A defiant Gov. George Wallace today ordered a one-week postponement in the opening of a newly desegregated Tuskegee school and backed it up with a strong force of helmeted state troopers. There was a possibility that federal authorities might ask for a court order to force the school to begin classes despite Wallace's unexpected intervention. John Doar, deputy chief of the civil rights division of the Justice Department, conferred with members of the Macon County School Board, but declined to say what action might be taken. School board members went in session to decide what their course would be and whether they would attempt to bypass the governor's executive order delaying the enrollment of 13 Negroes into the previously white Tuskegee public elementary-high school. An armed force of more than 100 state troopers ringed the block-square school building and gymnasium in a quiet residential neighborhood two blocks from the Tuskegee business district. No one was allowed on the school grounds except Principal E. W. Wadsworth and members of his staff. Also conferring with members of the school board was Alabama Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers. Wallace's action led immediately to speculation that he might attempt the same thing at Huntsville Tuesday when four Negroes are scheduled to begin desegregation of the city schools there. Two other cities, Birmingham and Mobile, are under court orders to admit Negroes to previously white schools at the start of their fall terms Wednesday. AT HUNTSVILLE The commanding officer of the state troopers, Col. Al Lingo, declined to say what action might be taken, if any, at Huntsville. His reply: "We move on the governor's orders." Wallace, invoking his police powers, overruled the decision of the Macon County School Board to start the fall term on Labor Day as customary in the Consolidated Tuskegee Public School, only previously white school in this east central Alabama community where Negroes outnumber white students five to one. The governor issued an executive order directed to members of the county school board, saying, "It has now been made to appear to the satisfaction of the governor of the state of Alabama that there is reasonable cause to apprehend breaches of peace by force and violence throughout this state, which cannot be speedily suppressed or effectively prevented by law enforcement agencies in this state if the source of trouble is allowed to exist in several localities at the same time." The public school, with a normal enrollment of approximately 550 students, was to be the first in Alabama's history to lower the racial barriers. Thirteen Negroes had been accepted for enrollment at the school under a federal court order. FOUR STUDENTS Four Negro students are scheduled to attend school with white pupils at Huntsville Tuesday and five other Negroes are to be enrolled at Birmingham and two more at Mobile Wednesday. The phraseology of his executive order in warning against possible trouble in several localities at the same time, suggested he may be pointing toward the lat-

Tuesday Brings Big Dollar-Day Values In Big Spring

American Campers Enjoying Soft Life

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Forest Service official says he wonders why American families leave their own back yards for camping trips into the national forests.

The official said most campers have their own tent trailers, gasoline stoves, folding tables and chairs "and everything necessary to make them feel as though they had never left their own back yards."

The official — William Huber, assistant southern regional forester — said his agency's attempt to change people to use the so-called primitive camping areas being provided for them may take much education.

"In general," he said, "the American public are very social, quite gregarious, and like crowds. Campers tell us they go camping to meet people. It will be hard to educate them to use the more isolated camping areas. But something must be done to change the trend in outdoor recreation to the primitive or semi-primitive type of use. The public recreation agencies cannot keep up with the need for a family unit for every camping family."

In the 1950s, the Forest Service began to build more and more large recreation areas, usually close to water.

But today these efforts are being dropped because of the vast demand for outdoor recreation and a lack of public funds to provide individual units.

Huber said about 75 per cent of the users of forest recreation areas are careful, tidy and thoughtful people.

"They leave their camping unit neat and clean and are careful with smokes and campfires," he said.

About 20 per cent, he said, either do not know anything about camping or act as they do at home and leave a heck of a mess."

Huber said the 20 per cent who are careless, cost taxpayers millions of dollars each year through the thoughtless abuse of recreation resources. Huber wrote:

"They are the ones who cause erosion on trails by taking shortcuts. They carve their names on trees, and even on rocks. They are the ones who drive jeeps and motorcycles in scenic areas closed to such use. They are the hunters who leave cattle gates open and shoot the farmer's cow. They destroy beautiful flowering trees to get hot dog roasting sticks. They are the ones who, with superhuman strength, put two one-ton concrete tables together."

"They are the ones who take home wild plants, dig up topsoil, leave trash all over, remove road barriers to get cars closer to camp, and leave camp fires unattended to cause forest fires."

Huber said the remaining 5 per cent are "the malicious, destructive people who, having nothing of their own, not even good sense, destroy everything they can."

"These vicious people steal bathroom fixtures including mirrors, and what they can't steal, they break. They shoot at and tear down signs and carry others away to show how clever they are. They bother everyone in the campground by raising Cain until late hours. They deliberately drop heavy rocks on concrete tables to break them. They use shingles from pavilions for kindling and deliberately set the woods on fire."

Future Dim For Quads

CHICAGO (AP)—"It looks pretty dim," Delores Harris so viewed her future.

She is only 19. She is the mother of the first known set of identical quadruplets in the United States. But she has no income beyond the $30 a week a court has just ordered her estranged husband, Bernard, to pay toward the support of the quads and their brother, Shawn, 17 months.

Mrs. Harris, a Negro, hopes to get a job after she finishes her education.

"I'm going back to Dunbar High School," she said. "I'll take secretarial and business training. I'll be a junior."

When the interview began, the four girls—Sheena, Shawna, Sherry and Shannon—reposed on a davenport.

Mrs. Harris said she and her husband separated before the quads were born June 30.

News of the multiple births prompted helping hands to reach out quickly. Business concerns donated cribs, clothing, scales, a washer and dryer. A child agency sends a nurse five days a week. One sympathetic woman is paying for the telephone, another for diaper service. There were gifts of cash amounting to several hundred dollars.

Then the quads vanished from the public eye.

Nellie Smith the grandmother, and her daughter said grand-father Lawrence Smith pays $180 a month for Mrs. Harris' six room apartment on the second floor of a two-flat building. The Smiths pay $114 for their first-floor apartment.

Smith is a car hiker. His wife said he gets $90 a week in "come home" pay.

"We had a little money saved," Mrs. Smith explained. "But now that's used up."

News of the family's plight came to light again at a court hearing Friday on Mrs. Harris' separate maintenance suit.

Helping hands started to reach out anew.

"A lady called and said she had some dresses for my little girls," Mrs. Harris said.

A move began on the South Side to aid Mrs. Harris, who hasn't applied for public relief thus far.

Interest Conflict Meeting Is Called

AUSTIN (AP)—Five lawmakers seeking to close loopholes in Texas' conflict of interest laws hope to meet in September.

They are Sens. Frank Owen of El Paso and Abraham Kazen Jr. of Laredo, and Reps. Wayne Gibbons of Breckenridge, Eligio de la Garza of Mission and Gus Mutscher of Brenham.

Legislation to tighten Texas laws in this field passed the last House but failed to pass the Senate.

Reps. Jim Nugent of Kerrville, Travis Peeler of Corpus Christi and Bob Eckhardt of Houston wrote the legislation.

After the Senate failed to enact the measure, a last minute resolution was adopted calling for the legislative council to study the bill in the interim. The five legislators are on the council.

OF CHRIST

Chapter 2 of John's Gospel declares that Christ was omnipotent. He not only turned water into wine at the wedding. He promised to raise His own body from the dead in speaking of the temple of His body. He said, "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." Verses 19-22

This shows Him to be Deity.

Because He is who He is, the advice of Mary is sound advice. She said, "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it" (v. 5). We must obey Him without reservation. Even the despised command to be baptized "for the remission of sins" (Acts 2:38) cannot be eliminated. Neither can the difficult

Misery Marks Burgess' End

EDITOR'S NOTE—Stanley Johnson formerly was a member of The Associated Press staff in Moscow. Here he gives his impressions of Guy Burgess, the British diplomat turned Soviet spy whose defection with fellow diplomat Donald Maclean in 1951 shook London and Washington.

By STANLEY JOHNSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Guy Burgess, who died in a Moscow hospital Friday, spent the last few years of his life in utter degradation. He was a toothless, physical wreck.

Despised by the Communists for whom he had spied, the former British diplomat eked out the small sums they gave him with an income supplied regularly from his family's fortune in Britain.

Even Donald Maclean, another diplomat with whom he fled in 1951 in a defection that shocked Britain and the United States, would have nothing to do with him.

Burgess, who died of a heart attack at the age of 33, once had position, money, good looks, and a tree anywhere in Britain and the United States.

He threw it all away, and no one has ever found out why.

I last saw Burgess at a cocktail party in Moscow just over a year ago. He had no teeth, very little hair, and must have weighed at least 250 pounds.

He was, as usual, drunk and incoherent.

He was at the party for one reason: to drink scotch whisky and try to cadge a bottle to take home.

The British naval attaché stalked out of the room when Burgess arrived. The other guests stared.

Burgess wore his usual attire—a tweed jacket and filthy gray flannel slacks. His conversation was filled with praise for communism and sneers at Westerners.

He let it be known that he came from the upper stratum of British society—which he considered the highest society in the world. Until his dying day, Burgess was a snob.

GUY BURGESS
... degradation at end

His masters in Moscow never supplied Burgess, a homosexual, with a boy friend who ranked higher than corporal in the Red army.

The two lived in a sordid little apartment where Burgess kept himself drunk on vodka when exchange regulations kept him from getting the scotch he preferred.

For five years after his defection Burgess lived an underground life, hidden by the Soviet spy apparatus from all contact with the West.

He emerged dramatically in 1956 in a baroque dining room of Moscow's National Hotel. What he had to say on that occasion was Communist propaganda, but his emergence led to continuing contacts with the Western community in Moscow.

DEAR ABBY

Time To Keep Quiet

DEAR ABBY: Wouldn't you think if a married woman slipped off with a married man she could be sure he wasn't going to blab about it? Well, that is where I made my mistake. I accepted a date with this married man. I admit it was wrong, but the crazy fool went around telling everybody about it. It got back to my husband and he threatened to do violence to this man. We only took a drive out in the country and exchanged a few kisses, and I bought an antique cow bell. Nothing else happened. But the way this man tells it, it sounds very wicked. Should I explain to people how it really was?

ANTIQUE SEEKER

DEAR SEEKER: Don't try to explain anything. Send the cow bell to blabbermouth with a warning that it will tell for him if he keeps talking. The word for you is mum.

DEAR ABBY: I've never written to a newspaper columnist before and really don't have a problem. I just have a question I'd like you to answer for me. How come a man can't stand the noise and commotion of his own house and children, but he'll go to a bar where there is just as much noise and commotion and maybe more? There is beer in the ice box and it's cheaper. Your answer will probably be that his wife doesn't understand him.

HIW WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I don't know whether his wife understands him or not, but I think I do. He just wants a change of scenery, away from the place of his responsibilities. If the wife could leave the kids, she'd go with him. I'm not saying it's RIGHT. It's just a fact.

DEAR ABBY: In our neighborhood you have to give all the kids a lick of your popsicle if you have one. Either you give them licks or go home and eat it in your own yard. All the mothers say you should share, but my mother told me not to share my popsicle because I get the other kids' germs and they will get mine. The kids think I am selfish. Who is right?

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Your mother is right. It's okay to share goods—but not germs.

DEAR ABBY: I can't get that letter of mine. "TOOK AN OATH" out of my mind. I was "The Other Woman," not once, but THREE times. I have been in love with three different married men. They all said they never knew the meaning of love until they met me, but when the time

Higher Wages Begin Tuesday

Federal minimum wage law calls for an increase in wages for 2.6 million workers effective Tuesday. The new wage law becomes operative and applicable to employees covered by the fair labor standards act prior to 1961. Pay to these workers will be increased from $1.15 to $1.25 an hour. The 2.6 million workers are out of the covered work force of nearly 28 million. The increases will represent about $365,000,000 to their annual income.

It has been announced that a 44-hour maximum work week becomes effective at the same time for employees in certain enterprises, principally retail and service establishments. These groups were placed under provisions of the act for the first time in 1961. This group will continue to receive a minimum of $1 an hour but for the first time will have to be paid premium pay of time and a half for work beyond 44 hours in one week.

New Dance Craze Sweeps London

LONDON (AP)—The new dance craze in Britain is a hip-swinging number called the blues. It's danced deadpan and you are supposed to relax all over. Professional dancer Marie Cartmill says "you could almost call it the St. Vitus dance."

One main step is known as the Philip. In this step, the dancer clasps his hand behind his back and walks just as Prince Philip does when he is following the queen on public occasions.

FLEDGLING COUNTRY SCOURGED BY POLITICAL INTRIGUE

Viet Nam Independence Now Terror

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—In its nine years of independence, South Viet Nam has been scourged by terror and political intrigue.

Now it is a nightmare. The nightmare began 10 days ago, and its effects have jolted the world.

Buddhist soldiers—trained by Americans—invaded pagodas where once they had worshipped. They cracked the skulls of Buddhist monks. Shotgun blasts shattered the serenity of monastery cloisters.

Roman Catholics, joined by Buddhists in fighting other Catholics and Buddhists. Families were torn apart. Friends became enemies. Blood flowed in town and city.

In the countryside, furtive Communist Viet Cong guerrillas fought on. In North Viet Nam, the Communist regime gleefully broadcast the news from the south, as if anticipating an issue for rallying the population being relentlessly since the 1950s to envelop the whole country of communism.

EIGHT YEARS

Here goes eight years and $2 billion worth of American aid down the drain, remarked a U.S. official sourly.

In Washington, administration officials feared a keystone of U.S. policy in Asia might be tottering. Americans have stationed 14,000 troops on Viet Nam's soil and are spending $300 million a year to shore up this little chunk of Southeast Asia against the Communist steamroller.

What motivated the violent government crackdown on the Buddhists? From remarks dropped by persons close to President Ngo Dinh Diem and his powerful brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu—who together rule the country—it seemed the plan was to crush Buddhist and political opposition, force potentially recalcitrant army leaders to support the government, and lay down a hard line to the United States, all in one sweep.

To save a nation, radical surgery is necessary some times, said a ranking Vietnamese cabinet minister. "We believe history will show we were right. America disagrees. But America lost China, Laos and many other countries to the Communists. We think our methods are realistic."

ANGRY CROWD

The chain of events began May 8 in the City of Hue. An angry crowd gathered at Hue's main pagoda, Tu Dam. Leading monks made speeches the like of which had not been heard in public since the Diem administration began. The government had ordered religious flags taken down everywhere. Buddhists were angry. It was Buddha's birthday. Flying the five-colored Buddhist banner was among the traditions. They were embittered because Roman Catholic banners still flew in various communities. The president and his family are Roman Catholics, and this also was a source of Buddhist resentment. Perhaps three quarters of the people embraced one or another form of Buddhism.

From the gently rising hill where the Tu Dam pagoda is perched, thousands marched behind saffron-robed monks and nuns. They trudged along Hue's main boulevard to an American-built broadcasting station. There they demanded entrance to broadcast their protests, and the first of a long series of bloody demonstrations erupted.

Coming Out

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Hungarians are coming out to the West by the thousands for reunions with relatives and friends. Most come out by train.

"It's like soldiers returning home from the wars," one bystander described it at the station.

Hungarian fills the air. "Servus," two men shout and embrace each other. One was a refugee from the 1956 revolution now living in West Germany; his brother stayed behind. "We have not seen each other in seven years," they exclaim.

A blonde girl tearfully kisses an old woman, her mother. The girl is a refugee.

Thousands have left Hungary since communism took over there in 1948. About 200,000 fled after the smashing of the 1956 revolt.

When communism came to power, it also sundered family bands of Hungarians and their relatives in the west. An Iron Curtain descended to isolate Hungary from the west.

Now the regime of Janos Kadar has relaxed its hold and Hungary is considered less restrictive than any other Communist country, except possibly Poland.

Western Europe abolished visas for its citizens long ago, but Eastern Europeans still need them.

For a tourist passport, Hungarians pay 1,000 forints ($40) per person. It is usually impossible for a family of four to leave together.

Hungary reportedly wants to open other gaps in the Iron Curtain in the future, but Hungarian officials have denied Vienna reports that it plans to abolish the barbed-wire fences and mine fields along the border with Austria.

Sy, the local security officer, threw his forces at the demonstrators. Troops fired in the air. Soldiers hurled tear gas grenades. Fire hoses spewed torrents. Two blasts went off in the crowd—grenades, said the Buddhists. Armored cars crushed several persons beneath them. Screaming girls hurled their shoes at troops and vehicles.

When it was over eight were dead. Three died later.

The news spread, and insurrection rumbled among the Buddhists.

Buddhist leaders put forward "five demands." They called for an end to alleged persecution, equal rights with Christians, release of jailed demonstrators, government acknowledgement of responsibility for the bloodshed with punishment of the perpetrator, and compensation of the victims.

SAIGON, where demonstrations always were strictly forbidden, saw its first public challenge to the Diem government May 30. In front of the national assembly building, 356 Buddhist monks and nuns leaped from buses and

Alliance Unit Backing Voiced

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—At a time when many Americans have doubts about the Alliance for Progress, eight South Americans in San Antonio mirror an optimistic side.

They roundly acclaimed the program.

Here on a three-day visit, representatives of Brazil, the Dominican Republic, Colombia, Chile, El Salvador and Bolivia summed it up this way:

1. Citizens of their country understand goals of the program.

2. Social and economically progress is well under way.

3. Distrust of the program is rapidly melting among the masses.

Bolivians had a different idea about the program two years ago before the Alliance was really organized," said Fadrique Munoz, of Bolivia. "They thought the money would just go into government hands and stop there. Now the poor people can see beneficial changes to their lives."

They unanimously agree with President John F. Kennedy, that the Alliance for Progress has surmounted "insuperable problems."

"We believe we have seen good results in Brazil the first two years of the program," said Dr. Francisco Galazans Fernandez, 35, educator campaigning against illiteracy in his country.

Brazil, he explained, has already:

1. Built 1,000 new schools and hired 4,000 new teachers.

2. Enrolled 240,000 non-school students.

3. Given school lunches to 80,000 and provided medical-dental assistance in urban areas.

4. Eradicated much illiteracy in rural areas.

"If we can teach a hundred thousand to read in three years, we have broken a feudal system long in power," Fernandez reasoned.

Munoz said Bolivia has resettled 20,000 persons from the high plateau (12,000 feet) to lower and more productive lands.

Dr. Menandro Alcibiades Canelo, El Salvador physician who heads a mobile medical unit serving villages, said "Free medical attention once was a serious problem. Now with organization, communities are getting more medical care per day than ever before."

El Salvador has built 79 new schools, educated 26,000 new students, and plans to build 400 new schools in October—the last of a two-phase plan.

"Our school construction committees have done a wealth of good," Dr. Canelo said. "The people are organized now to work."

5 DEMANDS

The government that day said it agreed in principle to settling the "five demands." Though President Diem said the government was merely agreeing to policies always exercised, Buddhist leaders said they were ready to accept the government's word. Briefly, the struggle subsided, but behind scenes the political activity was intense.

Ngo Dinh Nhu, powerful brother of the president, distributed a document to the million-member Youth Corps he commands, condemning the agreement and indicating preference for a tougher line. Buddhists displayed the document as evidence of bad faith.

Many Buddhist leaders were in prison.

taxi and stood for hours on the mall, protest banners raised. In Saigon and Hue, 400 miles to the north, hunger strikes began.

MORE VIOLENCE

Violence exploded again June 4. Students demonstrating in Hue ran into a blockade and sat in the streets. Troops threw glass containers of a liquid on the pavement where the students squatted. About 70 were taken to hospitals with severe burns.

Hue's Tu Dam pagoda was blocked. Soldiers charged with fixed bayonets on an assembly of students.

In Saigon the most violent shock of all came June 11. A grey sedan led a procession.

At 9:20 a.m. the sedan stopped abruptly. Three monks stepped out, carrying a plastic can. Several hundred marchers formed a circle at an intersection.

An aged monk, Thich Quan Duc, seated himself on a cushion, legs folded. Two other monks poured gasoline over his shaved head and stepped back. Quang Duc lit a match and calmly folded his hands in the Buddhist lotus position. For five minutes he sat motionless while the skin was seared from his body. The charred form sprawled grotesquely.

A wail arose. Monks shed their outer robes to fashion a sling and carried the body to the Xa Loi pagoda, Buddhist national headquarters.

On Sunday, June 16, about 8,000 demonstrators moved down a side Saigon boulevard. Police met them with clubs and tear gas. A boy was killed, many were injured.

On July 16, about 200 monks and nuns marched to the U.S. embassy residence and stood in the street two hours, calling for American help. Ambassador Frederick Nolting Jr. was away at the time. Police did not interfere, but the government, which frequently had voiced suspicion of American plotting against it, was angered.

On Sunday, Aug. 4, in the sleepy fishing town of Phan Thiet, 100 miles east of Saigon, a 20-year-old novice monk named Nguyen Huong slipped from services at a pagoda. In a small town square he poured gasoline over himself and lit a match. Martial law was clamped on the town.

Near midnight, Aug. 12, a school girl climbed half way up the outside stairs of Xa Loi pagoda in Saigon. In the rain, she drew a hatchet from under her dress and tried to chop off her hand. The monks said she did it as a sacrifice to the cause.

Two days later, novice monk, Thanh Tue, left a pagoda near Hue in the dead of night, set fire to himself and died in a blaze of gasoline. Soldiers sailed into the crowd, using steel helmets as weapons, and laid out many monks.

At times there was hope for conciliation. Buddhist leaders said they had trusted Diem's good faith, but were worried about others, including Diem's brother Nhu.

COMMON CAUSE

But by July 13, the day of the poet's funeral, it was clear that every opposition group had made common cause with the Buddhists, even if there was no direct collaboration. The government hinted at communism.

On July 16, about 200 monks and nuns marched to the U.S. embassy residence and stood in the street two hours, calling for American help. Ambassador Frederick Nolting Jr. was away at the time. Police did not interfere, but the government, which frequently had voiced suspicion of American plotting against it, was angered.

Near midnight, Aug. 12, a ended a stormy two-year tour in Saigon and left. Buddhist leaders said they planned demonstrations after the arrival of the new ambassador, Henry Cabot Lodge. Privately they admitted worry.

On the day Nolting left, a nun became the first of her six to join the fiery suicides. The nun, Dieu Hien, 29, died in flames. In Hue that night a period of eerie, unreal quiet was broken suddenly by a loud speaker carrying the voice of Tieu Dieu, 71, a monk whose son was a university professor in Saigon. He said he would burn alive in support of the Buddhist cause and in protest against Mrs. Nhu's remarks. He died in flames a few hours later while monks and nuns chanted.

A national crisis was at hand. On Tuesday, Aug. 20, monks at Xa Loi pagoda hauled benches across staircases, evidently as barricades.

A few minutes later, several hundred U.S. trained special forces troops, police and uniformed palace bodyguards blasted their way through the pagoda's iron gate with explosives in the neighboring U.S. aid building, U.S.

Marine guards were poised and ready with riot guns.

Throughout Saigon and all South Viet Nam, key pagodas were hit, monks and nuns were arrested and carted away in vans.

UNDER SIEGE

Troops in Saigon took over all key installations, and Minister of State Nguyen Din Thuan told a U.S. official the president had declared a national state of siege. Maj. Gen. Tran Van Don was named to take charge of national security. Posters denouncing "Buddhist traitors" were put on buildings throughout the capital.

President Diem said he decreed martial law to safeguard the nation's security. Arrests had run into the thousands. Ngo Dinh Nhu said later that more than 1,000 Buddhists were in jail. He denied any had been killed.

American officials denounced the violence as a broken promise to deal with the Buddhists moderately.

MORE FUEL

Nhu's beautiful and powerful wife poured more fuel on the flames. She declared that all the Buddhists had done for their country was to "barbecue a monk." Her father, Tran Van Chuong, then ambassador in Washington, reprimanded her and resigned his post, along with his staff.

Diem had named a commission, headed by the vice president, a Buddhist, to deal with the problem. Buddhists had been granted permission to fly their flag on certain occasions. The government promised the national assembly would look into claims of inequalities. The officer in charge during the May 8 bloodshed in Hue was fired.

But the hour was late for such measures. More and bigger trouble was in store.

On Aug. 15, Ambassador Noling ended a stormy two-year tour in Saigon and left. Buddhist leaders said they planned demonstrations after the arrival of the new ambassador, Henry Cabot Lodge. Privately they admitted worry.

Some Days You Just Can't Score

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — John D. Diddleman got into a nasty traffic jam in a Palo Alto parking lot recently, as if he didn't have troubles enough already.

He was in debt, for one thing. He was driving a stolen car, for another, and — police said — he had $3,000 in his pocket which he had just taken, at the point of a toy gun, from a bank at the Stanford shopping center. Diddleman, a 39-year-old Sunnyvale, Calif., salesman, was booked on a robbery charge.

Man Arrested For Mail Theft

COLORADO CITY (SC) — William H. Cox, 63, wanted by postal authorities in connection with the theft of mail and mail sacks in California and Texas, was arrested by Colorado City police and postal inspectors here last week. At noon Friday, Cox was taken to Abilene by a Federal Marshal. Postal Inspector I. L. Niewoehner of Fort Worth went to Abilene later to file charges. Bond on the alleged theft was set at $10,000 by U. S. Commissioner Gladys Walls, who earlier had set bond of $1,500 on a California indictment. Cox is wanted for questioning concerning the theft of mail pouches in the San Francisco Inspection Division and a warrant is held by the U. S. Marshal at Los Angeles as a result of an eight count indictment alleging possession of stolen mail and forging government documents (checks). He is also wanted for questioning in connection with the theft of five pouches from the Texas and Pacific depot at Cisco. Niewoehner headed a trio of postal inspectors who arrived in Colorado City Thursday to check a tip that Cox was in the area. Other inspectors were R. M. Chapin, Midland, and David Dorsett, of the Fort Worth Inspection Division. The three inspectors and Colorado City police located an automobile that Cox was driving and Chapin, Police Chief Leon Yeager and city patrolman Bill Henderson watched the car Thursday night.

Sisters Offer Double Threat For Pageants

MICHELLE METRINKO, MISS USA Beauty crowned by '62 Miss, Amedee Cabot.

Miss USA Takes Title Saturday

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Beauty pageants have become commonplace this summer for Michelle Metrisko and her sister Marcia, both of New York City. Michelle won the Miss USA crown here Saturday night. Her sister is competing this week in the Miss America contest in Atlantic City, N.J. Michelle said she and Marcia also had taken part in the Miss Universe contest in Miami Beach last July. Michelle was "Miss Washington, D.C." in that contest because she was attending Georgetown University. Marcia was "Miss Maryland." She was living with a cousin at the time. Marcia is "Miss New York City" in the Miss America pageant. Michelle was "Miss New York City" in Miss USA competition.

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Stephen Rothman, 68, internationally known dermatologist and professor emeritus of medicine at the University of Chicago, died Saturday. Rothman headed the university's dermatology department for more than 20 years before he retired in 1960. He was born in Budapest, Hungary.

U.S. Patrol Off Siberia

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard cutter is crunching through four feet or more of Arctic sea ice off the north Siberian coast making oceanographic studies, the Coast Guard says. Disclosing this Sunday, a Coast Guard spokesman said the Northwind has been under daily but "friendly surveillance" by Soviet planes.

He explained that the ship has been in the Arctic Ocean since July. She started in the Chukchi Sea, west of Point Barrow, Alaska, and smashed through the icy east Siberian Sea into the Laptev Sea. All are off the northern coast of Siberia.

The spokesman said that while the Northwind is carrying out her oceanographic studies within sight of the Siberian coast, it is still some 15 miles outside Soviet territorial waters.

He said the cutter, with 160 officers and men plus an unreported number of scientists, has been cleaving through four feet of ice, with humps up to 10 feet deep. Her bow has been slightly damaged, but not enough to curtail the mission, which is expected to end in a month or so.

Oceanographic studies include such things as measuring depths, currents, and temperatures. The last can have a bearing on subsurface electronic detection technique. The Coast Guard declined to say if the Northwind's mission had any military value.

The spokesman said, however, that the studies were the first by a U.S. ship in the Laptev Sea in several decades if not the first ever.

Russian surveillance won't tell them much they don't know about the Northwind, the spokesman said.

Rain Spatters West Texas

Quick striking thunderstorms burned loose as much as three inches of rain in parts of West Texas and flailed several areas of the state with menacing winds Sunday.

By early Monday the turbulence had tapered off into isolated showers along and off the upper Texas coast.

A Highway Department gauge caught the three inches of rain in 45 minutes at Littlefield, 37 miles northwest of Lubbock. Water covered low areas briefly. The wind hit 60 miles per hour in gusts.

Lighter rains fell in all directions from Littlefield, covering a belt more than 100 miles wide. As the rain fell, the mercury dropped 18 degrees at Littlefield, touching a comfortable 58 degrees by evening.

Brilliant lightning, accompanied a thunderstorm bouncing through Odessa about the same time. Up to two inches of rain soaked parts of the West Texas city. A foot of water rose for a time over three blocks of a highway being built in the center of town.

Gusty winds damaged signs and a railroad signal in the southwest part of Houston during a hard rain. Showers fell in most parts of the city.

Alpine in normally dry far West Texas received 1.09 inches of rain downtown. The Weather Bureau gauged .84.

Mild weather greeted September in most sections and forecasts indicated little change. Widely scattered showers were expected across the southern half of Texas.

New long range forecasts, covering the rest of this week, indicated at least limited relief from the state's protracted heat wave. They called for temperatures several degrees below normal in northern sections and near normal to a few degrees below in the south, with light showers dotting most areas near the weekend.

Top temperatures Sunday ranged from 98 degrees at Austin and Waco down to 83 at Alpine.

De Wilde Waits On Wedding

Many people congratulate Brandon de Wilde on a forthcoming marriage. But the 21-year-old movie actor finds their good wishes premature and irritating, because he has no intention of rushing into marriage.

"Yes, I've found the girl, but we don't plan to be married until a year or more. We'll know each other three years then, maybe well enough to have a lasting marriage," he says.

That may sound old-fashioned, says Brandon, but he thinks he had confirmation that it isn't while completing his six-months Army program at Ft. Dix.

"Five kids in basic training went home to be married. Two were divorced in three months. One fellow said, 'Well, I don't like her, she says she doesn't like me, so I don't know why we even got married.' That's one reason I think people should wait."

What Paris Fashion Means To Fair Sex Across The Country

What impact are the fall Paris fashions likely to have upon the housewife in Chattanooga, the school girl in Pocatello, the librarian in Cedar Rapids?

At first glance the only logical answer seems to be: Well, practically none at all.

The fact that Dior bared the Balmian used fur like wool to whip up broadtail and ermine dresses, that just about every couturier showed boots at least to midcalf, probably won't cause as much of a ripple in the life of the average American home-maker as if the station wagon had broken down.

Of course the hemline is something else. Ever since 1947 when Christian Dior dramatically dropped skirts to 12 inches from the floor and made us like it—or at least conform—U. S. women have eyed Paris fashion showings with apprehension. To many busy women in this country, adjusting a hemline is the only concession to fashion she has time to make and she'd rather not bother with that.

This summer Jacques Heim made a valiant effort to lengthen skirts by four inches but wiser heads prevailed and other designers stayed with the prevailing length in the vicinity of the knee.

Take a second glance at Paris fashions and you'll see all the American buyers sitting in the little gold chairs in posh show-rooms, watching with narrowed eyes as the models glide by and thinking elevating thoughts such as "American women will go for that one if we raise that neckline and maybe loosen the skirt."

That means that early this fall you can walk into a store and pick off the rack a dress that's been adapted or interpreted from some top couturier's design purchased at top prices by an American buyer in Paris.

They're Numbered

Write size number of socks with indelible marking ink on toes. The child then can find his or her socks by the number. This also comes in handy for you in matching socks.

The New Looks

Pierre Cardin suit, left, in black and white hound-tooth with four-button jacket and high collar sports Don Quixote hat and leather boots for sporty look; Ricci poinsettia red wool dress, center, with five buttons shows body shaping and new long easy sleeves; Christian Dior informal evening dress in pink and gold lame has new bloused look.

Small Storage Pieces Accent Living Room

Cabinets and chests, small in scale and real gems of the cabinetmaker's art are finding useful places in living rooms these days. They replace lamp tables or become a central point of a seating group.

Italian, Spanish and French antiques from the late 17th and 18th Centuries were the prototypes for many of these small pieces. In the way of contemporary designers, heavy dust catching carvings are eliminated. Elegance is achieved with a discriminating selection of richly colored and figured hardwood veneers.

Add Stepladder As Plant Holder

A small wooden stepladder, painted to match a room's color scheme, provides an inexpensive and unusual showplace for green plants. Placed near a window for lighting, and steps and top filled with a collection of small foliage plants, the stepladder becomes an interesting oasis of greenery in a family, or any other room.

Dryer Means Less Work With Baby

If you're expecting a 1963 model of the human species at your house, he'll be less work than former models, if you have a clothes dryer. Gauze diapers dry in less than ten minutes and knitted shirts, kimonos, socks, etc., dry in 10 to 15 minutes. It is better to underdry than overdry cotton clothes. Overdrying makes them harsh and wrinkled and may cause shrinking.

Miss Clearman Is Bride In A Lamesa Ceremony

LAMESA (SC) — Connie Clearman became the bride of Bill Petteway in a ceremony performed Saturday at 8 p.m. in the First Methodist Church. The Rev. J. Lloyd Mayhew officiated in the double ring rites.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blanton Clearman, Lamesa, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Herman Petteway, also of Lamesa.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown fashioned of silk peau de soie and designed with a portrait neckline and long petal point sleeves. Pearl studded re-embroidered Alencon lace enhanced the neckline and the front of her controlled bell skirt. A fabric bow accented the back waist and bouffant back skirt.

A cluster of pearls held her tiered veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white roses. Mrs. George E. Mounts of Midland served her sister as matron of honor. Don Wilton of Lamesa was best man.

The wedding guests attended a reception in Fellowship Hall following the wedding ceremony. Guests attended from Lamesa, Seminole, Ranger, Lubbock, Hereford.

For traveling the bride wore a cranberry silk shantung two-piece suit. She wore matching gloves and shoes and carried a gold bag. The couple will make their home in Lubbock after a short wedding trip.

The bride, a graduate of Lamesa High School, received a BA degree in journalism from Texas Tech. The bridegroom, also an LHS graduate, is majoring in mathematics at Tech.

Each To His Own Means It's For All

PARIS (AP)—Paris fashion designers offer a wealth of trends, in beautiful fabrics and striking colors, for fall and winter.

The to-each-his-own approach means there is something for everyone — from the conservative follow-fashion dresser to the nonconformist rebel. Soon the styles will be adapted to the American market—for a fraction of the Paris prices.

One important trend is the muffled-up look for winter, in a general antifreeze campaign. The entire couture endorsed. Collars climb up to the eyes, bypassing chin and nose. Necklines are cowl, hooded, scarved or swathed in fur or fabric stoles and high windshield collars. Topcoats are easy, roomy, square-shouldered and spell winter comfort.

The showings were the biggest fur stories in years. Included were many fur trimmings on suits for day and evening displayed by such houses as Heim, Chanel, Saint-Laurent and Griffe.

Most styles shown for day in soft mohairs and tweed plaids, checks and herringbones, also appear in evening wear in deluxe silks, velvets and brocades — among the best French manufacturers have produced.

BANGLES, BEADS
For evening jeweled and beaded embroideries are all important. Feathers are integrated and add a touch of fantasy. Bird plumage colors were shown for sports.

The luxury look is for after dark, and in hostess gowns in fabrics, ranging from sports weaves to cut velvets and chiffons. Among them are Boldini's flowing princess line and an Edwardian line.

Tongue-in-cheek, Saint-Laurent set an audacious new pace. Robin Hood comes to life in leather or suede jerkin, ribbed velvet or paisley printed jersey, mid-thigh-top boots and a quilted hat. These run all through the collection in tweed, velvet or fur.

One of the season's important features is the return of sleeves. Batwing sleeves are at Cardin's for every hour, from tweed to chiffon. At Saint-Laurent's they are tight-fitting and jeweled for evening. Laroche does them in fur on tweed suits and so does Lanvin Ricci uses fur sleeves in wool coats.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE

Dear Heloise: For mothers with children who wear tennis shoes and often need them in a hurry:

Wash them and use a towel to dry as much as possible. Then get your hair dryer out and turn it on "high."

Put the hair dryer into the shoe itself and after about eight minutes (for each shoe) they are ready to wear!

No more waiting for them to drip dry, especially when you are in a hurry and need them quickly.

Norman Johnson

Dear Heloise: Your little tip about picking up 10 items in a room has practically reformed me (all we said was, when you left a cluttered room, pick up the most out-of-place items and try to put them where they belong — H.)

I am forever cleaning and scrubbing because I really hate dirty dirt, but nobody would believe it for I am the world's worst litter bug.

I can destroy the clean image in a room in two minutes flat. I sit down, take off my shoes and belt, light a cigarette, sip a cup of coffee and start tearing little items from the newspaper and wham! Since 10 items are about my "mess quota" your little hint just suits me . . . it solved years of problems.

READER

Dear Heloise: For young mothers:

When your children do not want to eat cookies and crackers in their high chairs . . . put them in a cardboard box! They enjoy it. When they are done just dump the crumbs out and you are ready for the next time. Maria Young

We can't figure out if Maria means "put the baby and the crackers in a big box" or just "put the crackers in a small box and leave the baby in the high chair!"

Try getting a big paper cardboard box free from your grocery store and put baby crackers and all in it. Baby will love the box. He'll think it's a boat or a train. Give him some toys and let him play while you do your housework. The box can be

"scouted" from room to room as you work. Heloise

Dear Heloise: After having a gift sweater cleaned a couple years ago, I decided to wash it myself.

As I stretched it, I sprayed it with canned starch, rubbing it in the sweater gently with my hands. The results were absolutely beautiful!

It gave just enough body to the sweater to wear well. I also tried this on colored sweaters . . . with the same satisfactory results.

Mrs. V. Austin

Dear Heloise: When my boxed sugar gets hard, I dissolve it in some water and make a syrup to use in sweetening lemonade, fruits, sauces or to a thick syrup for pancakes or waffles. For pancakes and waffles I add some maple flavoring.

This home-made syrup is wonderful.

Erma Strickland

Dear Heloise: Soak old newspapers in water (to which has been added some Epsom salts) overnight and then roll them (not too thick) in "logs," tie them and set aside to dry out thoroughly.

These make the most wonderful newspaper logs for fireplaces and picnic outings you have ever seen.

Dorothy Tincknell

Dear Heloise: I make a frozen treat for my children from instant pudding mixes. I prepare the mix according to the directions on the box and pour it into an ice cube tray. I insert a little wooden spoon (either save 'em or buy 'em) in each cube and freeze.

After they are frozen I remove them from the tray and store them in plastic bags in the freezer.

This gives added milk in the diet, while giving the children a frozen treat (in several flavors). I like them, too! Besides it saves money.

If Opportunity Knocks Be Ready To Answer

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD—We live in a competitive society today, and learning to meet this challenge is important. I asked Ina Victor, who recently signed a term contract as you inhale, you are expanding your rib cage as you should do. If they remain together, you are breathing from your chest and not using the full capacity of your lungs.

"To give your voice resonance, you should practice reading aloud. And I used to repeat bee, bay, bah, bow, boo, over and over again. As you work on this single routine, you'll find your voice will lower to a more pleasant pitch.

"Diction must not be affected, but when you think about giving every vowel its meaning, every syllable its proper emphasis, you learn to say fam-ly instead of running it all together. Don't forget that what comes out of you conversationally is every bit as important as what meets the eyes."

"Being prepared," Ina said, "I've worked hard, and I was told my speaking voice was one of the deciding factors. I don't think most people place enough importance on ear appeal."

"I made a budget and set aside money for voice lessons. There was nothing wrong with my equipment for speaking, but I was just not using it properly. Most of us never get our voices out of our throats."

"Your voice should float out on your breath, so the first step for me was learning how to breathe properly. When you place your finger tips together on your diaphragm and they are pulled apart

Fall Is Time For Planting Of Bulbs

There is nothing for your garden that is as easy to grow, or that will cost you less money and still reward you so handsomely as flower bulbs. The few minutes you spend now planting your bulbs will give you weeks of enjoyment this spring when your garden bursts into the magnificent color spectacle that only bulb flowers can produce.

Bulbs are extremely easy to grow. In fact all you are actually doing when you plant them is giving them a "home" for the winter so they can perform their natural growth and blooming cycle. The tiny little flowers, roots and leaves are already formed in the heart of the bulb when you purchase it. Shortly after you plant your bulbs their parts begin to grow, using for energy the food and nutrient material that is already stored in the bulb. They will continue to draw on this stored food until the new roots and leaves are formed, at which time they start manufacturing their own food.

The main thing to remember is to use a bulb that is well suited to the conditions in the area you plan on planting it in. The rest is simple: plant to the depth that is called for, water regularly, and watch your plant grow and bloom.

Teachers Marry In Abilene Ceremony

Aldersgate Chapel at Abilene was the scene for the marriage of Big Spring teachers, Mrs. Rebecca Affleck Cook, 518 Scott Drive, and Julian Oakley Hagood Jr., 701 Highland. The marriage was solemnized at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in a double ring service read by the bride's brother, the Rev. Bert Affleck Jr., Methodist minister to McMurry College, Abilene.

White mums and stock with emerald fern formed a background for the rites. Organ selections were played by Mrs. James Boyd, Abilene.

For her wedding, the bride chose an ice blue brocade dress which was matched by her slippers. Her headpiece was a white, feathered coronet, and she wore an orchid corsage.

Attired in navy blue, Mrs. Bert Affleck Jr. of Abilene, the bride's sister-in-law, was matron of hon-

RECEPTION

A reception for the couple's families was held at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Affleck Jr. following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Hagood will be at home at 518 Scott Drive Big Spring where he is a teacher and coach at Goliad Junior High School. She is an English teacher at Goliad.

Indonesia's Army Drains Economy

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The 35-foot statue atop Jakarta's newest monument shows a muscular man, shattered chains dangling from his upraised arms. The man is Indonesia and the broken shackles betoken the bonds of colonialism.

This is the image of itself Indonesia wants to project as it celebrates today the 18th anniversary of its declaration of independence from the Dutch. That declaration plunged this arc-shaped chain of islands into more than four years of intermittent warfare and led to a United States of Indonesia.

The blood spilled for freedom has led at least some people here to feel a touch of scorn for Asian neighbors such as the Philippines and Malaysia. In the words of one Indonesian, these countries had their independence "handed to them on a silver platter" by the United States and Britain.

Mexico Nearing Million Vehicles

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico is nearing the million mark in the number of automobiles and trucks operating in the country, says the Mexican Association of the Automotive Industry.

Statistics compiled by the association show that in 1961—latest figures available—there were 902,029 trucks and cars on Mexican highways. The 1960 figure was 802,650.

Twelve assembly plants operating in Mexico produced a total of 62,563 vehicles in 1961 compared with 49,807 the year before—an increase of almost 25 percent, the association said.

Marksman Kills His Daughter

CALEXICO, Calif. (AP) — For five years the father-and-daughter marksmanship act of Milo and Marilyn Ploof has been a great favorite at public events in the Imperial Valley.

The handle-bar-mustachioed Ploof, 40, known for 20 years as a trick shot artist, added his daughter to his act when she was 9. He shot apples from Marilyn's head, or pieces of chalk from between her teeth, or bursting balloons tied to her head.

They received top billing Sunday in a shooting exhibition heralding the annual dove hunters' fiesta at the Calexico Gun Club.

The act is dissolved now. Marilyn, 14, was killed instantly, shot through the forehead by her marksman father.

Meeting Ends In Huge Jam

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A colossal traffic jam marked the opening Sunday of an eight-day international convention of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Nearly 50,000 had entered the Rose Bowl, a spokesman reported, but more were streaming in. Routes leading to the bowl from virtually all directions were jammed with stalled traffic.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 2—As South you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Double Pass
1 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass

Q. 6—You are South and have 60 part score:
▲ 7 4 2 ♠ 2 ♠ Q 10 8 6 3 2 ♠ J 6 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid?
A.—It is my practice to go to great lengths to keep the bidding open when an advanced part score is held, but this is going too far. Too frequently have complications set in by virtue of South's "sporting" bids of one no trump in situations such as this. Partner has received no warning and carries on the fight against the expected competition to his great disaster. One cannot expect always to be right in these situations, but I am persuaded that the pass will be wiser in most cases.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
▲ K Q 10 7 6 ♠ 9 7 ♦ A Q 5 ♠ K 9 7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—While all the suits are stopped a rebid of two no trump is not recommended. Very little over a minimum is held and a rebid of two spades does justice to the holding. To qualify as a sound rebid of two no trump, the opening hand must have at least 15 high card points.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
▲ 7 2 ♠ K J 7 5 3 ♦ K 4 ♠ 7 4 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid?
A.—This hand stands a very good chance of producing five or six tricks for partner and consequently is on the verge of a slam. The best way to indicate such a holding is by a big jump in spades. One own preference is for five hearts. However, the situation may be handled adequately by first responding with three hearts, intending to make a leap beyond game on the next round.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
▲ K J 10 ♠ Q J 10 6 ♦ A 10 5 ♠ A 7 4
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid?
A.—Nothing. You might as well accept a short profit. You have no reason to feel confident that you can make three of anything with this unattractive distribution and a double by you would obligate partner to bid.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
▲ K J 9 6 4 ♠ K 3 ♠ A Q 7 4 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
What is your opening lead?
A.—A trump. This is better than first taking a look with the king of diamonds. You must start getting dummy's trump out so that the dealer will have less opportunity to ruff spades. When you get in with a diamond, as is very likely, you will be able to lead another trump in an effort to complete your sabotage.

Artist Stresses Western Realism

ARLINGTON, Va. — If there is anything Joe R. Grandee, Arlington's "Old West" artist stresses, it's authenticity.

Seeking to make his paintings right, down to the last detail, has brought about a search on the part of the painter for costumes, uniforms and relics.

In fact, Grandee, took a quick inventory here recently and estimated that he now has in excess of $27,000 tied up in more than 600 outfits — pioneer costumes, cavalry uniforms, Indian trappings and a host of vintage saddles, guns and pistols of ancient vintage.

But he believes his desire to paint authentically is paying off. "I quite often get letters from historical associations thanking me for getting the uniforms and arms of a certain period together correctly in one of my paintings," he says.

NEWSMAN JOINS TREK FROM SOUTH TEXAS

Life Is Rough For Migrant Laborers

EDITOR'S NOTE—Charles H. Green, AP correspondent in San Antonio, joined a crew of Latin-American migrant farm workers this summer. He traveled in the back of a truck to the tomato fields of Indiana and the cherry orchards of Michigan. Here is what it is like to be a migrant.

By CHARLES H. GREEN
MOUNT SUMMIT, Ind. (AP)—Alex Torres waved a skinny arm expansively.

"Tomorrow," he said, "we go to Michigan for the cherry. I tell you not to worry, to let me find the work. I'm crew leader, I work for you. We make good money in cherries, good money. You see."

He leaned back in his chair in the Doghouse, Mount Summit's only bar, and beamed at us.

Until then, there hadn't been much for Alex to beam about. We were migrant farm workers, traveling from South Texas in Torres' beatup $350 truck. The truck made Alex the leader.

There were 21 in his crew—10 men and women, 11 children. For 12 days we had been unable to find work.

An estimated 127,800 people like us leave South Texas every summer to work on farms in 26 states. Almost a million others travel from other parts of the South and Southwest.

GOOD NIGHT

Some find work, some don't. But this was a good night for us now we knew we had work waiting at Seth Tompkins' cherry orchard near Old Mission, Mich.

The grin splitting Torres' face, wrinkled at 39 and burned a dark mahogany, showed what a fine night it was for him.

On a hot day in San Antonio, he had herded us into his truck, expecting to reach Mount Summit in 48 hours and sure of a job hoeing weeds in the tomato fields.

There is a single folding bed against one plywood wall in the back of the 1949 truck. As we traveled, five of us could sit on the bed, cushioning some of the bumps. Others sat on mattresses piled atop household goods or on stacks of blankets on the floor.

The canvas cover turned the back into an oven. Every crack in the pavement reached us as a jolt. Any railroad crossing lifted us off the floor.

Mount Summit in 48 hours? In 48 hours, we were still in Texas. The truck was broken down and some of us were trying to sleep in the parking lot where we'd pushed it.

Torres got it fixed, and we bounced on.

Now the truck smelled constantly of stale food and sweat and filth.

CRAWL OUT

At an Arkansas inspection station, a skinny man made us crawl out so he could look for contraband vegetables.

The inspector took a kitchen match out of his mouth. "You sure got a lot of junk," he said. "It would take you a long time to unload it, then load it again. Why don't you just give me that there watermelon instead?"

It wasn't a question, Torres shrugged. The inspector took the melon. We rolled on to a farm labor rest camp near Hope, Ark., maintained by the state.

"This Arkansas is the funny damn place," Torres said. "They have this nice place for us—showers, tables, everything, and we don't have to pay nothing. Then they have men like that who steal from us."

This was Alex's first year as boss of a migrant crew—and all because a man in New Castle, Ind., let him have that truck on credit last year. He hadn't been able to make a payment in eight months—but now he should make $3,000 as crew leader, more than enough to pay off the truck and get his family back to Texas for the winter.

The rest of us might make

$1,000—the average annual wage for migrant farm hands.

So that truck was big business for Alex.

BROKEN AGAIN

Ninety hours after we left San Antonio, it still hadn't gotten us to Mount Summit. Instead, it had broken down again, at a roadside cafe in southern Illinois. While we waited for Alex to get it fixed, we drank coffee and listened to the juke box.

We finally got to Mount Summit. No rain. No weeds. No work. No work—but it wasn't all bad.

The Brooks Foods cannery has a camp for the migrants who come to work in the nearby farm fields. We stayed there free in one-room shacks.

There are about 200 of the 8 by 12 shacks in a crowded area, mostly with screen doors and windows. Tomato wastes from the cannery are dumped into a stagnant pond on one side of the camp.

The pond stinks. But the screen doors and windows keep out most of the flies and mosquitoes.

"This is a nice place for the peoples," said Victor Bonilla Jr., one of Torres' crew members.

Victor is 31, a pudgy, fun-loving native of Crystal City, Tex.

"We get showers, hot water, lots of things. Some other camps, they don't have nothing for the peoples. And here we don't pay no rent or lights."

FINALLY PAY

We didn't have to worry about food, either. R. L. Beavers gave us credit at his general store, knowing the migrants would finally pay. They always have.

Nights, we often crowded into the shack of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bonilla Sr. They had a special attraction—a television set tenderly brought north.

Some nights we sat outside, watching the kids play.

Because he's the boss, Torres got two shacks for himself, his wife and four children—Blanche, 12, Freddy, 7, Noel, 5, and Sorina, two months.

Mrs. Torres felt sorry for me because I didn't have enough sense to bring a woman along to do my cooking. She let me eat with her family.

Other summers, the kids have gone to classes at a school operated by the migrant ministry of the National Council of Churches of Christ. But this summer the school closed early because of a shortage of funds.

Tiger Dies After Performance

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Prince, a 5-year-old Bengal tiger of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus, died backstage at the Cow Palace Saturday night while the show went on in the arena.

Prince, valued by the circus at $5,000, had just jumped through a fiery hoop held by trainer Trevor Bale and gone offstage. The tiger lapped up a quart of milk in its backstage cage then collapsed, Bale reported.

Search Fails To Spot Bova

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—Rescuers searched an underground chamber for missing miner Louis Bova for more than one hour early today using remote controlled television, but apparently found no sign of him.

The camera transmitted a clear, bright picture showing loose coal, broken timbers and what appeared to be a wire and a cable. The chamber appeared to be small and no way out was evident. However, the camera could not see clearly into a few dark corners.

Officials met to discuss whether a man would be sent down the 300-foot shaft for further exploration.

Bova, 54, has been missing since Aug. 13 when he and two other miners, David Fellin, 58, and Henry Throne, 28, were trapped in a cave-in.

Earlier this morning a microphone was lowered down the 22-inch wide shaft but detected no signs of life.

The 22-inch hole was drilled at the spot where Fellin said he thought Bova was located. It was the last to be completed of the 15 holes drilled in the long search first for Fellin and Throne, then for Bova.

Fellin and Throne were rescued last Tuesday.

While 15 holes have been drilled it was the 22-inch one which rescue crews all along pinned their greatest hope.

When the big hole was completed shortly after midnight, the microphone was lowered, as it had been into the smaller holes. The result was the same: no sound, however faint, that might indicate life.

There was quiet under the floodlit scene several hours before dawn when Bova's weary brother, Dan, called down:

"Hello Lou. Try to scratch. Hello Lou. Try the miner's rap (two long, then three short taps). Total silence."

Dan continued: "Give us the miner's rap, if you can. Try to holler. Hello, Lou. Whistle. You know how to do that."

"Lou, you don't have to move, just give us the miner's rap. Will you? One good loud rap."

For a half hour the men above waited, but there was no answer.

Concert Series To Have Five Offerings

Five outstanding offerings, ranging from Broadway comedy, to symphonic music, are included in the season's bookings as the Big Spring Concert Association begins its annual membership enrollment.

Fans won't have to wait long for the beginning of the gala season. On Oct. 21, Jean Kerr's delightful comedy, "Mary, Mary," will come to town. This sparkling situation comedy proved a hit on Broadway, and now it's being put on tour. Other offerings include: Celeste Holm (Nov. 11), gifted star of stage and screen, who has devised a new concert entertainment through words and music of composers and poets, to present a program of pleasing range, called "With Love and Laughter." Wesley Addy, one of Broadway's leading men, and Gordon Connel-

Johnson Heads To Scandinavia

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the news from Washington:

HEADING NORTH: Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson wings out of Washington tonight on a trade and friendship mission to the countries of the north—Sweden, Finland, Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Greenland.

With the vice president will be his wife and daughter Lynda Bird. The Johnsons are due to arrive in Sweden Tuesday on their first stop.

The State Department said Johnson will make more than 40 speeches and will visit U.S. military stations before returning to Washington Sept. 19.

MOON ROCKET: Dr. Werner von Braun believes the rocket designed to carry American astronauts to the moon and back is probably the largest under development anywhere in the world.

Von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala., said U.S. experts don't know of any Russian rocket bigger than the American Saturn V.

He added, in a taped television interview, that a moon landing is more of a rallying point for the nation's space program than an end in itself.

STILL A CHANCE: Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., a member of the Senate's tax-writing Finance Committee, predicts there is still a chance that Congress will approve a tax cut this year.

Long, interviewed by Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., on a radio-television program, said the House Ways and Means Committee "did a good job" in revising the tax program that President Kennedy suggested.

Long said he hoped the measure could clear the Finance Committee and be brought to the floor before the civil rights legislation.

RAIL DISPUTE: Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz has expressed confidence that railroad and operating unions will be able to settle through negotiations their secondary differences.

Last week Congress averted a threatened railroad strike by passing legislation providing for arbitration of the two chief issues in the work rules dispute: the jobs of firemen and the size of train crews.

Although the measure bars a strike for six months, there was some apprehension that negotiations on the remaining issues might break down and raise another strike threat early next year.

Wirtz, appearing on a recorded radio-television program, said "I am sure that there is a very real awareness on both sides that there must be a settlement by collective bargaining of the other issues and I think there will be."

Search Widened For Survivors

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Air Force widened its search of the Atlantic today hunting for 11 survivors of two missing KC135 jet tanker planes that disappeared Wednesday.

Hopes of finding any of the crewmen alive faded. Surface vessels continued salvaging bits and pieces of wreckage to determine if both planes went down in the same area of the Atlantic, about 325 miles southwest of Bermuda.

The two four-engine jets, used to refuel bombers and fighters in flight, were returning to their home field at Homestead Air Force Base near Miami when they went down.

Light Rain Over Part Of Nation

By The Associated Press

Light rain and cloudy skies covered areas in the nation's mid-section and the far Northwest today but generally pleasant weather for the Labor Day holiday was reported in most other sections.

Rain fell in scattered areas in the Dakotas and into much of the northern and middle Mississippi Valley regions.

Marshal Loses Gun In Loraine

COLORADO CITY (SC)—Loraine City Marshal Jack Brewer was mauled Sunday night when he approached an automobile to advise its Negro occupants of a local ordinance concerning drinking in public.

The attack took place about 10 p.m. north of the bank building in downtown Loraine. After attacking the marshal, the Negroes, reportedly from Sweetwater, took his gun and drove away. Roadblocks were set up near Sweetwater and Snyder and three Negroes, one a woman, were picked up by Snyder "police" later in Snyder.

They were carrying a pistol identified as Brewer's.

Early reports indicated that more than three persons were in the automobile in Loraine and Mitchell County Attorney Frank Ginzel said this morning that he had not yet determined the number.

Mitchell County Sheriff Lerma Claxton, two sheriff's deputies and two highway patrolmen investigated the incident Sunday night. Ginzel said he hoped to continue the investigation this morning, but that no charges would be filed until Tuesday, since the courthouse is closed today.

Man Being Held For Investigation

One man is being held by Big Spring police for investigation following the shooting of Marcus Lerma, 40, at Marquez's Place, 401 NW 4th, Saturday night.

Lerma was taken to Howard County Hospital Foundation with a bullet wound in the right arm. He is being held for X-rays before doctors remove the bullet.

His condition is not serious.

Two 16-year-old boys were taken into custody and charged with disturbance, following the shooting. Police reported several boys were "ganged up" at the scene of the shooting and the pistol-firing was done promiscuously. One bullet struck Lerma.

Detectives planned to question the wounded man, and the two boys today, along with three other witnesses to the shooting.

Trick Shot Artist Displays Weapon

14-year-old daughter, Marilyn, during his trick shot display. The girl and her father had been working as a team during the last five years. (AP WIREPHOTO).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader Supports Better Rehabilitation Center

To The Editor:

To a few this is a touchy subject—but to many who need physical therapy a very important subject. I am referring to the Howard County Rehabilitation Center. The Big Spring Herald, about December of 1962, announced that a donation of $165,000 plus other contributions was given to build a new center and for needed equipment. To this date we know of nothing having been or being done on it.

Now some readers are going to say, "What is this person being about? There is a center." To that, all I have to say is look at the center which was to be just a temporary arrangement.

Many of you are very fortunate you do not have to be treated. To those who do, thank God we have such a wonderful therapist as Mr. Thompson. How long will we be able to have a therapist if a few keep arguing. Already some donated property is no longer available. I wonder if this isn't a kick in the pants to the many who have given time and money. Also to the police department and Air Force men who took time to put on a benefit football game, which was great.

At this point I would like the public to know as I am sure many of you aren't aware of the fact, that the 331st at Webb has done an outstanding job for the center.

Please think about it, as you may be the next one to need therapy at the center.

August Rain Below Average

August passed into history with a total rainfall of only 1.04 inches which is 87 inch under the average for the month in this community for the past 46 years.

Rainfall gauged at the station Sunday morning from the showers which swept through Saturday night was only 18 inch. This was under the totals measured in most parts of town. In some sections as much as 60 inch was reported.

The high Sunday was 94 degrees and the low Monday morning was 72 degrees.

A bright blue sky greeted early risers Monday presaging a good day for Labor Day picnics and trips.

August's 1.04 inch rainfall brought the total for 1963, as recorded at the U. S. Experiment Station, to 13.32 inches. This August rainfall was well ahead of the rain for the same month in 1962 where only .69 inch was reported. Last year, through August, the total rain for the first seven months was 6.64 inches. September turned out to be an extremely rainy month and added 9.65 inches to the total and the year wound up with 18.67 inches which was slightly more than the 50-year average for the city.

Mrs. Taplin Dies At C-City

COLORADO CITY (SC)—Mrs. Charlie Taplin, 72-year-old Negro woman, died in the Roof Memorial Hospital Saturday morning. She had fallen Aug. 14th and broken her leg and had not rallied following surgery.

She was born May 26, 1891 in Robertson County, Texas, but had lived in Colorado City since 1942. She was a member of the Mt. Olive Baptist Church and Eastern Star.

Funeral was to be held today at 2 p.m. from the Mt. Olive Baptist Church. Burial was to be in the Mitchell County Cemetery under the direction of the Kiker and Son Funeral Home.

Child Treated For Gunshot Wound

COLORADO CITY (SC)—James Edward Tryon, 10-year-old Negro boy was treated for a bullet wound in the right elbow, Saturday morning, following an accidental shooting in the family home.

Tryon's stepfather, Ezell Birmingham, was loading a .22 automatic pistol, when a shell in the chamber discharged, according to Colorado City police.

The shooting was investigated by Sheriff Lewis Claxton, city patrolmen Selma Dixon, Jim Latham, and County Attorney Frank Ginzel. The youth was not seriously injured and police said he was given emergency treatment and released.

Goldwater Set For Stumping

WASHINGTON (AP) — Next week, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona sets out on a 10-state round of campaigning to trumpet what he calls the "weaknesses of the Kennedy administration" and the need for Republican unity.

Goldwater, regarded by many as a leading contender for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination, said in an interview that in criss-crossing the nation in the next two months he intends to bear down on Republican differences with President Kennedy.

"Any Republican speaking now should, in a very reasoned way, point out the many weaknesses of the Kennedy administration and offer sound Republican alternatives," he said.

"I think we have to back our President, when he is right. But if we believe he is taking the wrong course, we should say so. In this, though, I don't want to become just the part of opposition for opposition's sake.

"I think we have to make sound alternative proposals and we have to awaken the people to what the Republican party offers."

Goldwater stands in opposition to many major Kennedy proposals. But he said he has not yet made up his mind finally on how he will vote on the limited nuclear test-ban treaty scheduled to come up in the Senate Sept. 9. On that day, the Arizona senator will be joined by a Western Republican opening his fall campaigning in an appearance in Cleveland in behalf of the Ohio Republican finance committee.

This was an apparent reference to recent attacks by New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, a potential rival for next year's nomination, on the "radical right" that the governor said was trying to capture Goldwater and the party.

Rockefeller has September speaking dates in Illinois, Virginia and West Virginia, plus his scheduled attendance at a Republican governors' conference in Denver Sept. 14.

Rockefeller and Goldwater will cross trails—and possibly swords over their differing GOP philosophies—at a Western Republican conference in Eugene, Ore., Oct. 10.

Russian Physicist Was Never In 'Clinical Death'

MOSCOW (AP) — Lev Landau, Nobel Prize-winning Soviet physicist, was reported snatched back from clinical death four times last winter, but one of his doctors denies this, saying: "His heart never stopped."

"Landau was never in a state of clinical death. He was close to it," Dr. V. A. Negovsky, the Soviet Union's leading expert on reviving dying persons, said Sunday.

He spoke reluctantly about the Landau case, widely publicized in the Western press, during questioning in an interview.

Landau, severely injured in a traffic accident, lived with the help of artificial breathing apparatus, Negovsky said.

FRASCATI, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI escaped possible injury when an escorting motorcycle policeman bumped the rear of the limousine returning the pontiff to his summer palace at Castel Gandolfo Sunday.

The Pope was not shaken by the incident. The policeman, Capt. Renzo Degli, tumbled to the pavement but suffered only a slight uniform.

After returning to the palace the Pope awarded papal medals.

Woman Treated Following Crash

Mrs. Loraine Monteleone, 800 1/2 Nolan, was taken to Webb AFB hospital Saturday night for treatment of a minor "whiplash" injury following a two-car collision at Seventeenth and Gregg. Her husband, Gino Monteleone, was driver of one vehicle. Leonard C. Sampson, 916 Baylor, was driver of the second car.

Freddie Kay Woods, 1601 Lancaster, and Billy J. Farmer, 104 W. 18th, were drivers of cars involved in a collision at Eighteenth and Main at noon Sunday.

A truck, driven by Jim Frances Loden, Dallas, was involved in a one-vehicle accident in the 4300 block of US 80 West Sunday afternoon. Estimated damage to the vehicle was $700 when the trailer came loose and damaged the tractor cab, as the truck jack-knifed. The driver was not injured.

Enrollment High In New Kentwood Elementary School

Enrollment at the new Kentwood Elementary School may well exceed capacity, contrary to a previous report in the Herald.

S. M. Anderson, superintendent, points out that current enrollment is 117 pupils and that this figure can be expected to go up Tuesday, after the Labor Day holiday.

"We have five classrooms available there and four classes, leaving one room to take care of any overflow if a class becomes too large. It looks like this could very easily happen," he said.

Grade one now has 23 pupils enrolled. There are 34 in second grade, 32 in third grade and 28 in fourth grade.

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, (AP)—Israel will set up 35 farming villages and 7 rural centers in Galilee, northern Israel, partly to aid thousands of Israeli Arabs living in the area.

Yosef Weitz, director general of the state's land administration program, said Arabs would be hired for the preparatory work. Later both Arabs and new Jewish immigrants are expected to work on the new farms.

BAU, SARAWAK (AP) — The United Nations Malaysia mission arrived here by helicopter today to the jeers of 250 Chinese youths with clenched fists shouting, "We want independence and not Malaysia." There was no violence.

The U.N. mission is surveying whether the people of Sarawak and North Borneo, two British territories, want to join Malaysia and Singapore in the proposed Federation of Malaysia.

Indonesia and the Philippines, which oppose the federation, insisted on the U.N. sampling.

MEN IN SERVICE

PVT. DENNIE JOE CYPERT

GARDEN CITY — Pvt. Dennie Joe Cypert, son of Mrs. J. T. Cypert, is visiting his family for 10 days after completing basic training at Fort Polk, La. He will report for duty at Ft. Carson, Colo., Sept. 6 for eight weeks of special training.

Ronald Gene Aaron, B.T.3. on the destroyer USS Floyd B. Parks, stationed in San Diego, Calif., arrived in Big Spring Friday to spend a 10-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Aaron Sr., 1312 Park. He has been in the Navy for three years and will leave on his second six-months cruise Nov. 17. The ship will go to Formosa, Australia, and other South Pacific areas. He has one more year in the service.

Sgt. Gerald M. McCune, New Castle, Pa., has arrived at McGuire AFB, N. J., for assignment with a unit of the Military Air Transport Service following a tour of duty in Libya. He is an aircraft engine technician.

Sgt. McCune is married to the former Martha F. Cutchall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley F. Cutchall, 1203 Grafa, Big Spring.

Pfc. Sam Hartfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hartfield, 1109 NW 8th, Big Spring, is one of more than 75,000 men who participated in Exercise SW-14 Strike III in Georgia and North and South Carolina, in a month-long mock war which ended Aug. 16. Hartfield, a 1962 graduate of Big Spring High School, is a cadet in the 1st Howitzer Battalion, 82nd Airborne Division's 320th Artillery, Fort Bragg, N. C.

GARDEN CITY — David Harris left Saturday morning for Fort Polk, La., where he will begin eight weeks of basic training in the U. S. Army. He is a 1962 graduate of Garden City High School and attended Howard County Junior College during the 1962-63 session.

U.N. Finances Up For Airing

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Diplomats are getting ready to try again to straighten out the U. N. financial mess. Prospects are grim.

The problem is what to do about the U. N. deficit, well above $100 million and soaring.

Secretary-General U. Thant has put a priority tag on the issue in the General Assembly opening Sept. 17.

Thant warned recently that unless something is done quickly the situation will jeopardize the very existence of the United Nations.

The 111-nation assembly wrestled with the financial problem for six weeks last spring. The stopgap measure adopted then brought little real relief.

Thant acknowledges the problem basically results from inability to collect assessments to finance the two big U. N. peace-keeping operations in the Middle East and the Congo.

The situation boils down to three main questions:

— What, if anything, can the United Nations do about collecting the overdue assessments from member countries?

— What can be done to make up the mounting deficit if delinquent members persist in their refusal to pay?

— What can be done to finance future U. N. peace-keeping operations so that adequate funds would be assured in advance?

U. N. diplomats see little or no chance of collecting much of the $100 million now overdue. Publicly, however, they still talk about collecting it. They have not yet tackled the alternative of making up the deficit by other means.

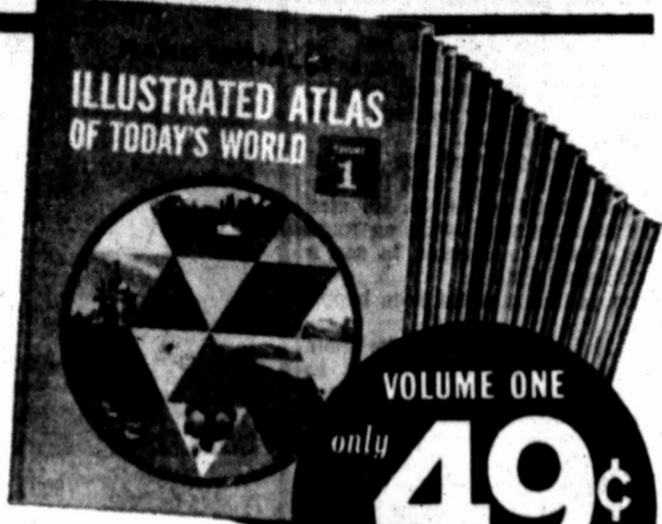

Some big countries like Russia and France, which owe most of the money, have made it clear they have no intention of paying even if there is a move to suspend them. The Soviet bloc alone is more than $42 million in arrears on Congo assessments and France is $14 million in arrears.

Some pressure was relieved by the sale of U. N. bonds amounting to $145 million to 52 countries, but these sales have come virtually to a halt.

Modest Group At First Days In Capitol

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Texas Capitol was the Alamo as the state's top tourist attraction. Visitors most often ask whether they can get to the dome ("no") and what caused the crack in the ornate terrazzo floor (no one is sure). Few ever leave the Capitol realizing that the building is the site of a political assassination, the impeachment of a governor and unsealing of a house speaker. This year is the building's 75th birthday.

AUSTIN (AP)—The state government moved into the new Capitol about this time 75 years ago, but it wasn't much of a job. It was almost an anti-climax when only 25 state officials occupied what was the seventh largest public building in the world and still the tallest domed capitol in the nation. Only skyscraper capitols, such as Louisiana's, are higher. The Texas Capitol still is the largest on a space basis.

The little band of officials was confined mostly to the first floor. The House and Senate were not in session on the second floor, and the third floor was to be used infrequently by the higher courts. No one knew what the fourth floor was for.

SUMMER SUN
Offices had no drapes against the summer sun. The Capitol commissioners were buckering over whether to accept the building until the leaky roof was fixed.

At least one newspaper, in Galveston, was reluctant to praise the state for giving up three million acres of Panhandle land for the oversized Capitol.

But most Texans felt the building was more than a statehouse. It was a monument to the state's aspirations.

And, after 75 years of watching the government overflow into other buildings, the Capitol more than ever is largely a monument instead of a mere building.

The building appears so stolid and sedate, like a fat comfortable old lady, that a visitor feels nothing very exciting could ever happen here.

But the building has been a noisy place, with the sounds of happiness and tears, gunfire, roasting, mob demonstrations and birth and burial of political careers amid the shouted votes of lawmakers.

NOT BASHFUL
From the first, Texans were never bashful about using the Capitol as a sort of statewide auditorium.

Legislatures before 1900 cleared out of the house to permit meetings of such groups as the farmers congress, volunteer firemen, Daughters of the Confederacy, dairymen and the Republican State Executive Committee.

Texans honored early governors with lavish inaugural balls and dinners in the Capitol. The Capitol balls were discontinued in 1919 when an influenza epidemic delayed Gov. W. P. Hobby's celebration.

The pink granite building was dedicated May 16, 1888 before a crowd which became so rowdy it drowned out efforts of Gilmore's band.

The first legislators to use the Capitol were awed by the size of the statehouse.

The year 1909 produced perhaps the most sensational legislature in state history.

TWO OUSTED
It expelled a state senator and unseated House Speaker A. M. Kennedy. Kennedy came close to keeping his job, but the House voted 67-50 against a resolution to save him. The resolution was authored by a representative who was to succeed him as speaker and go on to become speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives, Sam Rayburn.

The most hectic days of the Capitol were in 1917, when Gov. Jim Ferguson vetoed the University of Texas appropriations.

About 2,000 students led by a band marched to the Capitol, and waved banners.

When the House heard testimony on impeachment charges against Ferguson, the speaker complained that "Rangers and gunmen insist on entering the gallery armed."

The adjutant general said at least two Rangers were needed in the gallery because "some crank might break loose at any time."

In a two-hour speech before a hushed audience in the Senate chamber, Ferguson compared himself to "Daniel in the lion's den, fighting for his life." The senators, sitting as a court of impeachment, found him guilty.

The Capitol has seen unhappiness:

BELT BROKE
A painter's safety belt broke while he was working in the dome in 1922. He died in the four-floor fall.

State comptroller R. M. Love was chatting easily with a former comptroller's department employee one June morning in 1903 when his visitor pulled out a pistol and shot him. Love's assistant grappled with the assassin and the pistol discharged in the gunman's stomach. He died several minutes later in a first floor corridor. Love died later that day.

Thousands jammed the Capitol July 12, 1949, to file past the pier of Gov. Beauford Jester. He died of a heart ailment while en route from Austin to Houston to see a heart specialist.

The Capitol also has seen happiness:

In 1901, lawmakers broke their routine to watch the wedding in the House of Sen. McNeill Turner and Mrs. S. M. Franklin, the first woman employed by a legislature. Jesse Smith, a Breckenridge judge and former state senator, was married in the Senate in 1943. An Austin architect, Watt Harris Sr., says of the Capitol: "The Capitol is a repository of the living of the people of the state. It is the sort of building we accept as a bequest of our forefathers — their hopes, aspirations and feeling of pride for their state. It is a massively beautiful building. It would grace any state any place."

Rioting Collegians Battle Officers At Oregon Resort

SEASIDE, Ore. (AP) — Police and National Guardsmen swinging nightsticks scattered hundreds of rioting, cat-calling young men and women from this resort area, sandy beach Sunday night.

Then they spent the early hours today chasing down scores of scattered reports of mischief and damage. It was the second year of Labor Day weekend rioting at Seaside.

The rioting occurred as reports of similar disturbances were received from the Atlantic Coast — at Hampden Beach, N.H., and Ocean City, Md.

The chanting, jeering, cursing crowd on the Oregon beach at mid-evening was estimated variously from 500 to 1,500. It gathered as darkness came on, following a mid-afternoon skirmish in which police broke up massed rioters into small groups.

As night fell, and a full moon came up, the crowd stood on the sand facing the turnaround — the end of this resort town's main street. Police stood on the turnaround looking down.

The crowd grew larger and an occasional beer bottle, rock and egg was thrown and the taunts increased.

Once they broke into a chant: "We want beer." All beer and liquor sales had been cut off in the early afternoon.

The night before they had rioted when told to go home at the Saturday midnight curfew.

As the numbers grew, a thin line of state police carrying nightsticks walked out and the crowd fell back. Soon the crowd pushed forward and the police charged. The crowd broke and ran. This went on time and again. Finally the crowd scattered for good.

Then came reports of little groups breaking windows and causing other damage in widely separated points. Several windows were broken at a bank. A grocery store door was broken in and beer stolen. Rocks were thrown at a power substation insulator. A dozen miles south at Cannon Beach cars moved in by the score and police followed to watch them there.

Squad cars moved swiftly through seaside streets. Guardsmen stood at intersections halting pedestrians and motorists. Arrests climbed to 45 and then to 50 for rioting, unlawful assembly, disturbing the peace, and other charges. Those jailed came from many cities in Oregon and Washington.

A year ago in Seaside's first rioting, 137 were arrested. Most were in their early 20s. This year, there was a greater percentage in their teens and there were fewer girls than last year.

At Hampton, a resort town on the narrow strip of New Hampshire which fronts the Atlantic Ocean, police used fire hoses, tear gas and dogs to disperse a mob of several thousand vacationers.

State troopers and Air Force policemen reinforced the town's 100-man force to handle the demonstration, which has become a Labor Day ritual in Hampton.

Dozens of demonstrators, described as college-age youngsters, were arrested. There were no serious injuries, but one policeman was hit in the face by an exploding firecracker. Property damage was minor.

About 1,000 college and high school students gathered for the third straight night at Ocean City, Md. They massed at an intersection where 97 persons were arrested Friday and Saturday nights but soon dispersed. To combat the rowdy youngsters, Ocean City has adopted a midnight curfew on all persons under 21. It is enforced only on the Labor Day weekend.

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — In the midst of flood, western Nigeria has hardly any water to drink. Flood waters caused by heavy rain inundated the waterworks at Ibadan and drinking water is being hawked for a penny a bucket.

All residents were warned Saturday against drinking untreated water. At least five deaths have been blamed on the floods and the cocoa crop has been hard hit.

This figure was reached when the Ministry of Industry and Commerce boosted the export total by another 30,000 tons recently, it

A Devotional For The Day

If Christ is in you, your spirits are alive because of righteousness. (Romans 8:10, RSV.)

PRAYER: O God, who hast made us for fellowship with Thyself, make our hearts Thy dwelling places. Possess our souls that our spirits may come alive to the world's need and to our privileges and responsibilities as Thy sons. Through Jesus Christ, our Redeemer. Amen.

Hot Line

The new "hot line" which opened between the White House and the Kremlin is an admission by both sides that this age of nuclear deterrents has a hair-trigger. Events attain a momentum of their own—a phenomenon known in military parlance as "escalation." Unless leaders have a means of quick communication, the risk of war occurring by accident or miscalculation is immense.

During the Cuban crisis of October 1962, there was a serious delay in getting communications back and forth between Washington and Moscow. On one or two occasions, President Kennedy told a news conference last Dec. 14, it was necessary to rely on open broadcasts of messages, rather than on use of coding procedures that take a number of hours. The President continued, "In a nuclear age, speed is very desirable."

Premier Khrushchev must have concurred because on April 5 the Soviet Union announced at the 17-nation Geneva Disarmament Conference that it was "ready to agree" to having a special emergency link with Washington without waiting for broader disarmament agreement. The United States had first proposed the "hot line" in its draft outline of a disarmament treaty a full year earlier.

In his book, "On Thermonuclear War," (1960), Herman Kahn warned that proposals for establishing "pre-war" communication channels would have to be examined for the possibility that they might be exploited. For example, the enemy might gain crucial minutes in a sneak attack by calling up and announcing that several test rockets had been fired off course by mistake. But President Kennedy has stated, "If he (Khrushchev) fires his missiles at us, it is not going to do any good for us to have a telephone at the Kremlin... and ask him whether it is really true."

Dignity Of Effort

Our nation pauses today fittingly to pay its respects to labor and the part that it plays in our country.

Most of us tend to narrow the definition of labor, thinking of it in terms of manual effort, some technical skill, or even considering it on an organizational basis. Actually, labor is effort, and this cuts across all lines and embraces just about everyone who earns a living.

It is in this broadest definition of labor that we have one of the geniuses of our democratic system, in our economy, and our standard of living.

So in a sense today we pay respects to people in all walks of life who want only an opportunity to work who can change jobs if they choose, who can have an opportunity to share in a fair measure in the productivity they create, who can hold their heads high in knowledge of honest gain for honest effort.

This brings dignity to the individual, no matter what his status. It brings a distinguishing character to our country.

Civil Rights And The Crime Rate

WASHINGTON—If a "march on Washington" is the most effective way nowadays to attract national attention, who will organize the next "march"?

Civil rights are supposed to include the right to be safe from robbery, from assault, from rape, from murder. These rights are presumably guaranteed by those provisions in the Constitution which protect the "life, liberty, and property" of all citizens.

Orlando W. Wilson, superintendent of police in the city of Chicago, said recently:

"EVERYBODY SEEMS to be organizing today to protect civil liberties. I would like to organize the victims of the assaults who have been robbed and raped in our streets."

Mr. Wilson is a leading authority on police work, having served as police chief in other cities and as dean of the School of Criminology of the University of California before going to Chicago. He said in a speech this month to a committee of the American Bar Association:

"CRIME IS overwhelming our society... In the name of protecting individual liberties, we are permitting so many technicalities to creep into our system of criminal justice that we are no longer convicting a sufficiently high proportion of guilty criminals."

In the nation's capital, Police Chief Robert Murray tells of the frustration among his men due to restrictions on their efforts to enforce the law and due to court decisions that have liberated criminals through technicalities. Chief Murray says:

"THE CRIMINAL is being afforded more legal protection than the ordinary citizen. I often wonder who, besides the police, is concerned about the rights of citizens to be free from attack by criminals."

Crime in the United States is getting out of hand generally, but some amazing statistics have been issued lately showing the relationship between strict law enforcement and the crime rate. Official figures show, for instance, that in 1962 in Washington, D. C. aggravated assaults were the highest per capita in America. Yet, in Seattle, Wash., and in Milwaukee, Wis.—where criminals are dealt with as criminals—the percentage was about one-tenth of what these crimes were in the national capital.

CHICAGO HAS BEGUN an intensive effort to crack down particularly on crimes against persons, and is making progress. But the police chief thinks crime will never be cleaned up until restrictions that hamstring the police force are removed and court procedures that favor the criminal are changed.

Labor Day? It's Work

NEW YORK (AP)—No wonder they call it Labor Day.

Everything you do seems like work to seem to be a conspiracy about to keep you from taking it easy.

They still call it a holiday. But why? For whom?

Probably at least a tenth of the people have to stay on the job for the other nine-tenths on loaf for a day.

But most of the nine-tenths who are supposed to loaf find it makes them tired rather than if they were earning a living.

Just try to lie in a hammock and catch up on your summer reading. Your wife immediately thinks of a thousand things around the house that need fixing.

Turn on the television set to watch the baseball game. It is either rained out in the second inning, or the set breaks down with two men out and three men on base in the fourth inning—and by the time you get the set fixed the game is over.

You drive half a day to reach the beach, and when you get there the weather has turned too cold for swimming.

You go on a picnic, and when you get there the lovely, lovely site you thought of as your very own is swarming with other families.

Surgery The Only Permanent Correction Of Hernia

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Some people cure that surgery is the only sure cure for hernia.

Since this condition is, as I understand it, the failure of weakened muscles of the abdomen, to hold the intestines in place, why can't these muscles be strengthened by exercise?

—J.L.K.

Your basic assumption is not quite correct. Hernia is not the result of muscular weakness. It is a weakness, gap or enlargement of a natural aperture in the supporting or restraining tissues, but these are not muscles.

Take, for example, the common type, an inguinal hernia. The inguinal canal is an opening through which certain physical structures must pass. If the canal becomes enlarged, a portion of the bowel can gradually work its way through. In addition, this is what constitutes the lump in the groin. Muscle strength has nothing to do with it.

The umbilical hernia in children is the same. Nature has provided an opening through which the umbilical cord passes. If this does not close tightly enough, a portion of the bowel can bulge through.

In such cases, the old-fashioned remedy was to tape a half dollar over the bulge, while nature continued with the process of closing off the aperture. This still is done, and it still works many times. In severe cases, how-

Around The Rim

The Stronger Sex?

One thing and another: A Rochester, N. Y., physician, Dr. George Engel, says more men than women faint from fear.

Women are more subject to a swoon-type fainting than are the males. So insists Dr. Engel.

According to the Rochester doctor, common fainting happens only a few times in a healthy person's life and is usually due to psychological factors.

THE "FEAR" FAINT happens when a person is confronted with some injury, either actual, threatened or imagined, that scares him, according to Dr. Engel.

Men, says Dr. Engel, seem to faint from fear more than women probably because men find it harder to admit that they are afraid.

Hysterical, or swoon fainting, he added, usually has symbolic meaning for the individual and is a psychological means of attempting to resolve an inner conflict.

Two examples, Dr. Engel pointed out, are when teen-age girls swoon in the presence of their singer-ido and when beauty contest winners pass out at the announcement of their victories.

HEAR ABOUT the mendicant who asked a passerby:

"Mister, would you please give a penny to a poor guy who hasn't eaten in two days?"

"What good would a penny do you?" he was asked.

"I just want to see how much weight I've lost."

A UNIVERSITY of Pennsylvania psychiatrist, Dr. Albert Stunkard, says that lower class women are seven times more likely to be fat than upper class women.

Dr. Stunkard revealed that a study of obesity and social class showed 32 per cent of lower class women were carrying too much weight, compared to only four per cent of upper class women.

"There seems to be an extremely great social pressure on the upper class not to eat, especially among women," Dr. Stunkard explained.

DR. ROBERT A. SCOTT of Cornell University said a rise in the standard of living and increased leisure time had created a tendency toward "creeping obesity."

He said more money, more high-calorie food products, increased use of autos, TV and movie snacks and less active life, factors contributing to a fatter America.

Offering Hope, No Guarantees

The members of the United States Senate are now circling the proposed East-West test-ban agreement with the wisdom of old Towser scouting a new dog that has just moved into the neighborhood.

The great problem that each Senator must solve, to his own satisfaction, is how much political mileage or advantage can be wrung from (1) advocacy of and (2) denunciation of the test-ban agreement.

THE NON-COMMITTAL attitude of many members of the most exclusive gentlemen's club in the nation leads to the not too cynical conclusion that the Senators will be waiting for the opinion polls that will tell which way the wind is blowing across the nation. It is no more cynical to suspect that more than one Senator has already stuck a wet finger into that wind to take his own findings.

It is one woman's opinion that it would be a grave mistake to read any poll figures, no matter what they show, without taking into account their hidden emotional quotient or content. The figures in favor of a test ban are bound to be affected by (1) weariness of the cold war and (2) a pervading longing for peace.

CONVERSELY, the figures against a test-ban agreement are certain to reflect the underlying American belief that the Russian word, whether initiated by the late Stalin or by Khrushchev, isn't worth the paper it's written on.

The struggle over a test ban in or out of the United States Senate, is certain to be the classic struggle of hope vs. experience, as well as hope vs. fear.

MANKIND'S HOPE that a test ban could be the first infinitesimal step toward easing the cold war and its corollary armaments burden will be pitted against its despair that the Russian hierarchy only keeps its word as long as it is advantageous to the U.S.S.R.

IT WOULD NOT ease the tax burden. Nor does it threaten a terrible dislocation of the nation's economy by overshadowing the immediate outbreak of peace, with catastrophic unemployment while the industrial complex is put on a peacetime footing.

Senate approval of the test ban would not have much of an impact on our present life and times as far as externals go. It would not mean a larger share of public money for better schools, or roads, or for slum clearance, or for the arts, or for tackling urban ills.

THE TEST BAN, in short, wouldn't work miracles in the national structure or change our way of life overnight. It would offer hope but it would guarantee nothing, absolutely nothing.

What it boils down to is hope against hope. And man's willingness to gamble on it when he has lived with fear for so long.

The Epic Of Western Civilization

WASHINGTON—The English novel, far more than its American cognate, often takes us into social history and philosophic discourse—illuminating the Truth in our Times as mere journalism and even history can never do. The books of John Galsworthy and C. P. Snow, two Englishmen of letters, demand the attention of those readers who try to read each day's news against the dynamics of Western capitalism and industrialism.

IN A NEW biography of Galsworthy, "The Man of Principle," Dudley Barker shows how the author wrote a nine-novel work, carrying the Forsyte family from the crest of Queen Victoria's Empire to the trough of Britain's depression in the late 1920's. Soames Forsyte, the central character, begins by inheriting a middle-class fortune, which he sedulously increases through shrewd investment, and by working hardy at all. He becomes such a "man of property" that he treats his wife as one of his possessions. In a memorable scene, Soames forces his loathsome attentions upon Irene while she is in love with another man. In a later book, the "man of property" continues in the predatory role, and this time he chooses to risk the life of his second wife in hopes of assuring himself of an heir to his name and fortune.

BUT AS Galsworthy grew more thoughtful and mature—although the liberal critics called it less thoughtful and more callous—he saw wealth in a different light. "Men of property" in a different sense, the stabilizers of the social structure. They collect art, found charities, supply the reinvestment for industry, face up to every national crisis and sustain the Empire in its Indian summer days, which come with the bloodletting of World War I and the rise of Labour.

GALSWORTHY became an admirer of wealth and success, but a sympathizer toward poverty and failure. In the later novels, Soames develops a tenderness toward his flighty daughter, Fleur, and he grows a soul of iron out of which there sprouts a sense of pity, a love of beauty, a worldly wisdom about the ways of men and nations. The Leftist reviewers of his mature writings, and of his posthumous publications, never forgave Galsworthy for not following the Liberal line—much as they never forgave Churchill—but "The Forsyte Saga," in its entirety and in its major parts, has survived all the debunking to stand as an artistic monument to and record of British capitalism in its prime.

Billy Graham

I read in the newspaper that you told the people in Los Angeles that the world's troubles come from sin in the hearts of men. In my opinion our problems are economic and social rather than spiritual.

J. A.

The world is full of problems—social, economic, racial, political, etc., but behind all of these things there lies the deceitfulness of the human heart. The outward manifestations of sin have their root in the heart—impurity, hatred, envy, jealousy, avarice, intemperance, intolerance, greed. If men's hearts are changed; if instead of all these things which are sin, we have love, tolerance, gentleness, concern for the welfare of others, peace, temperance, joy—then in our social, economic, racial and other relationships we have an entirely different approach. That is why the solution of the world's problems are contingent on the change of the heart itself. Christ spoke of this as being "born again." When we accept Him as Savior and Lord, He comes into our hearts and makes us new people. That is what we call regeneration and it takes this, rather than reformation, to change individual lives and the social order of which we are a part. That is why we preach that Christ and His redeeming work in the human heart is the answer to all of our problems.

THIS STRUGGLE affects all of us very

Neither the national defenses nor the na-

Many Causes Lead To Fuss In Redistricting

AUSTIN (AP)—The controversy over redistricting has many causes, and a big one is that city folk don't like the oversized vote their country cousins have in government.

What's behind the problem other than political maneuvering? The Texas Constitution says one county can have no more than one senator.

After the big city counties take their senator, the poll taxes paid at the previous general election are added up, and the Senate seats left are divided into that number to see how many people each senator should represent.

The Texas House apportionment is different. A county gets no more than seven legislative seats until it has 700,000 population. Then it gets one seat for every 100,000 additional population.

BIG CITIES

After the big city counties take their seats—Houston 12, Dallas 9, San Antonio and Fort Worth 7 each—the population is added up and then divided by the number of seats left to see what population the average legislator should serve.

The legislature is also charged with reshaping Texas' congressional districts when a change is made by census takers.

Congressional redistricting has been more difficult than legislative redistricting.

The legislature failed after the 1950 census to enact congressional redistricting, so Texas has a congressman-at-large. The same thing happened after the 1960 census.

The last legislature talked about congressional redistricting, with federal courts watching.

The problem became so difficult one representative remarked: ALL BUSY

A person couldn't get a call put through to his congressman now if he wanted to. They are all busy on the phone telling legislators how to reshape their districts.

A suit has been filed by a number of city Democrats in Houston, asking a federal court to do the legislative redistricting for the state—a chore accomplished in 1961 by the legislature.

The city boys say the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guaranteeing equal representation is being violated.

A rural legislator, who asked not to have his name used, said the federal courts ought to work on the U.S. Constitution before starting to change Texas.

As an example, he says, Alaska has one congressman, the least a state can have—with 226,000 population. If Texas were to have one congressman for each 226,000 population, it would have 42 seats, instead of 23.

Houston Republicans and some Dallas residents have filed suit in federal court seeking congressional redistricting.

SPECIAL SESSION

Gov. John Connally has hinted a special session of the legislature may have to be called to take up redistricting. He cited a decision July 17 by a three-judge federal court in Oklahoma. The court said the Oklahoma Legislature should be apportioned on the basis of population and nothing else.

The U.S. Supreme Court on Nov. 12 will hear arguments in cases involving four other states. The high court has said previously that federal courts have jurisdiction in legislative redistricting matters.

Another sidelight: Politicians must handle this political problem. The Texas Senate received a congressional redistricting bill from the House. It put a former state senator, U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts of McKinney, in the same district as veteran U.S. Rep. Wright Patman of Texas.

Dallas County also received a new seat—and the Democratic legislature visioned Dallas sending another Republican to Congress to join Rep. Bruce Alger.

When the legislature reshaped House districts in 1961, six incumbents had to run against each other in newly combined districts—always a touchy problem.

Nobody Notices Plane Hit Tree

GATWICK, England (AP)—A Spanish charter airline carrying 75 British passengers hit a tree-top while landing today but got down without the passengers noticing.

The plane taxied to the airport control building with brushwood trailing from its undercarriage. Its engine, propeller and a wing tip were damaged as the Super Constellation swept low over a wooded ridge.

The passengers, returning from a Spanish vacation, headed for London.

"None of them seemed to have noticed anything unusual at all," said an airport official.

Friendship Trek Set In December

McALLEN (AP)—The second annual Friendship Caravan from Mexico to McAllen will be in the lower Rio Grande Valley in December, the McAllen Chamber of Commerce announced.

About 300 Mexicans from all over the northern portion of the Republic are expected to make the trip.

DAILY GUIDE — Although the early hours are a little dull, a romantic note enters later. By evening the mood is one of sympathy. Virgos and Pisceans have the strongest accent today and tomorrow, so the exchange of sentiment in their personal relationships should be warm. Enjoy a leisurely day.

This month promises to be mild, with an easing of world pressures for the time being, so we can all get on with our daily rounds in an atmosphere more conducive to loving kindness.

There has been such an appalling emphasis on violence in modern living, we could all profit by trying to get back to a little sweet sentiment for sanity's sake.

People are so afraid of being "square" they sacrifice happiness to prove they are tough, ruthless. They fail to realize that sharp angles are the discords of behavior. This is a month of gentle curves, so get with it.

Librans should move quickly to clear up paper work, correspondence, details or plans before the end of the week; after that delays and changes keep such matters partly suspended until the end of the month.

All signs can note some irritation in details.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, VIRGO!—There are little accents in your daily relationships this week, giving you some idea of trends ahead. The overall picture is of rationalization which might revolutionize your life in the next few years.

Greek Princess Alexandra In Coma From Sleeping Pills

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Alexandra of Greece, wife of ex-King Peter of Yugoslavia, lay in a coma today from what police said was an overdose of sleeping pills.

Alexandra, 42, cousin of Prince Philip of Britain, was brought to a Venice hospital Sunday after her son, Prince Alexander, 18, became worried about her absence from weekend guests.

Police said they found four notes in English beside the former queen in her room at the villa of her mother, Princess Aspasia of Greece. Doctors said she took 16 sleeping tablets.

Peter was in Paris and made reservations on the first plane leaving this morning to fly to her bedside.

The 43-year-old former monarch recently returned from a tour of the United States and Canada to raise funds for refugees from Yugoslavia now ruled by Communists.

Doctors said Alexandra's condition grew worse during the night. A Greek Orthodox priest was summoned.

Neither police nor household spokesmen would disclose circumstances surrounding the incident, nor indicate the contents of the notes or their intended recipients. Friends of Alexandra said she had seemed melancholy in recent weeks.

Alexandra was married March 20, 1944, to the Yugoslav monarch in exile. Britain's late King George VI was best man.

King Peter's rule had been brief. When his father, King Alexander, was assassinated in 1934, Peter was only 11. His uncle, Prince Paul, ruled the country until 1941, when he was overthrown.

Less than a month later, Hitler invaded and the royal family fled to Britain.

Peter waited out the war in London, then confirmed the newly formed government of Marshal Tito in 1945.

Tito ordered confiscation of royal holdings in Yugoslavia, reportedly bringing Peter and Alexandra into financial straits. Alexandra left Paris in 1953 with her son and moved to Venice to be near her mother.

Peter filed for divorce in Paris, charging desertion. She returned for the hearing. One wrist was bandaged. Her attorney said she tried to slash her wrist because Peter refused reconciliation. They were reconciled in 1955 and the divorce action was shelved.

WIFELY CACHE WINS CASH

LONDON (AP)—The Daily Mirror announced today the winner of its contest for suggestions on how to hide a stack of stolen cash.

The competition was inspired by Britain's $7-million train robbery of three weeks ago. Intrigued by how the bandits hid their loot after the shearer, the Mirror asked, "How could you hide 250,000 pounds ($700,000) in fivers?"

Suggestions poured in for hiding the cash in toilet rolls, beehives, garbage cans and burying it in the forecourt of Scotland Yard.

But the 50-pound ($140) prize went to H. McBride of Doncaster who said: "I would give it to my wife."

Soviets Lagging Behind With Creativeness In Their Children

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Does Soviet life and education help or hinder creativity in Russian children?

A University of Michigan psychologist found forces on both sides. Saturday in a beginning look at Soviet-designed education and its end product, the Soviet man.

Dr. Finley Carpenter said he also found Soviet schools beginning to follow American patterns — and Soviet educators sometimes

William McRee's Brother Dies

Mr. and Mrs. William T. McRee are in Truth or Consequences, N.M., for funeral services for his brother, Rex McRee, 52.

Rex McRee died almost instantly of a heart attack Sunday morning at Gruver, where he had gone to check on a farm he operates there. His brother, who is the district Scout executive here, was in Illinois at a national training session for Scouters when he received word of his brother's death. He flew to Amarillo where Mrs. McRee met him, and they went from there to Truth or Consequences.

openly commend some elements of U.S. progressive education. Dr. Carpenter observed schools in five Soviet cities as part of his study.

Soviet educators, he found, recognize the importance of nurturing creativity in students. But Soviet psychologists apparently have done less research in the study of originality and inventiveness than have American psychologists, he told a meeting of the American Psychological Association.

Because of their basic belief that men can be conditioned to certain attributes, the Soviets believe that "inventors are made, not born."

"Soviet children are inculcated with the idea that their most valuable rewards are yet to come," Carpenter said. "The entire social atmosphere seems to be future oriented."

Students are encouraged to pursue at least one personal interest or hobby, usually in the youth group "Young Pioneers." As for Soviet adults there is an accent on continuing education.

Adults — from taxi drivers to factory workers — are working at college-type courses from foreign language to engineering.

Dr. Carpenter said, however, "that the climate favorable to creative expression is pretty much confined to the technical areas of applied science rather than to such fields as philosophy, literature, painting, poetry and music."

Some things in the Soviet culture seem to work against creativity.

To train their children to be cooperative in school, the Soviets have made wide use of the public confession by a student, or the public criticism of the student by his classmates.

This always poses a threat to the student and with it must come conformity, rigidity and fear of free self-expression, Dr. Carpenter said.

There is also open discouragement of new art forms — and "it can hardly be denied that the freedom to seek and to develop new modes of expression is necessary to the existence of creativity," he added.

The Soviets still follow a policy that insists on a single system of beliefs, Dr. Carpenter said, and while religion is permitted by law "antireligious propaganda has been effective on the majority of Soviet youth."

40 Years Ago Mitchell Proved Air's Might

EDITOR'S NOTE—Four decades ago, Gen. Billy Mitchell proved something that no one would believe for years to come—that battleships couldn't stand up against planes. But his insight with military brains is doing it again in his military career and perhaps brought on his death. He is the hero of Mitchell's dramatic feat, and some of his other prophecies which proved all too true.

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP)—Forty years ago next Thursday, Gen. Billy Mitchell led a squadron of five biwinged bombers seaward from a sand airstrip here to do battle with the traditions of the military's high command.

The targets were the battleships New Jersey and Virginia, adrift unmanned off Cape Hatteras. The purpose of the mission was to prove the potency of air power and to show that the battleship would some day go the way of the crossbow.

Many years before power came to be measured in missiles and megatons, Mitchell told a Senate committee: "Battleships opposed by aircraft will become as obsolete as plumed knights after the invention of gunpowder."

CAN'T BE DONE
Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels countered: "It can't be done. I'd be willing to stand on the deck of any ship while they try to bomb it."

Only a roadside marker remains at the site from which Mitchell's men coaxed their early-day Martin bombers aloft from an airstrip built with the help of Hatteras islanders. Two decades earlier the Wright brothers had made their first flight 60 miles to the north.

Mitchell began his crusade for recognition of military air power soon after World War I. He pursued his goal with such headstrong zeal that it led to his court-martial and, some say, an early death.

As assistant chief of the Army Air Service, he lobbied on Capitol Hill until he obtained the obsolete battleship Alabama and some captured German warships as targets.

The tests began in 1921 off the Virginia Capes. They were highlighted by the sinking of two of the Kaiser's finest, the cruiser Frankfurt and the battleship Ostfriesland—a triple-hulled dreadnought still carrying scars from the Battle of Jutland.

MANY POINTS
Many technical points of the tests still are argued. Mitchell's men unquestionably proved an airplane could sink a battleship, but they broke the strict ground rules set by the Navy for the tests. The aviators claimed the rules were designed to hamper them.

The brass was still skeptical. Franklin D. Roosevelt, then assistant secretary of the Navy, said: "I once saw a man kill a lion with a 30-30 rifle—but that does not mean 30-30 is a lion gun."

This only fired Mitchell's fervor. He asked for more targets and got the Virginia and New Jersey, sister ships of 15,000 tons each, headed for the scrap heap.

The 1923 tests offered a new challenge. While the 1921 runs had been made within range of a ship's guns, the Hatteras flights started at 10,000 feet. No warship had ever been attacked from so high.

The sturdy New Jersey withstood the attack from 10,000 feet with 600-pound bombs and from 6,000 feet with 2,000-pounders. But she finally succumbed when three bombers flew over at 3,000 feet and dropped a 2,000-pound bomb each.

SPECTACULAR
The sinking of the Virginia was more spectacular. Using 1,100-pound bombs from 3,000 feet, the Army fliers sent her below in 28 minutes.

Retired Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell of Signal Mountain, Tenn.,

Mitchell's aide, recalls: "The Navy said the battleships couldn't be found. If they were found, they couldn't be hit; and if they were hit, they wouldn't sink. Bissell described Mitchell as a conscientious man who inspired the whole early aviation group—the Navy as well as the Army. But the Navy boys couldn't open their mouths."

When President Calvin Coolidge's administration showed no sign of changing its policies, Mitchell carried his fight for increased air strength directly to the public. He spoke widely and wrote scores of magazine articles. He urged creation of a separate air force and a single defense department. He warned of Japan's growing strength and the likelihood it would attack without warning. He emphasized Alaska's strategic importance and pointed to Pearl Harbor's pitiful air defenses. In 1925, as a result of his continued agitation, he was allowed to revert to his permanent rank of colonel and was sent to Texas.

IN EXILE
Mitchell continued his campaign from exile and when the Navy dirigible Shenandoah crashed during a storm with great loss of life, he said: "These accidents are the direct results of incompetency, criminal negligence and almost treasonable administration of the national defense by the War and Navy departments."

That was too much for Mitchell's superior officers. He was charged with "conduct of a nature to bring discredit upon the military service."

In one of the nation's most published military trials, Mitchell was found guilty Dec. 17, 1925, and sentenced to five years suspension from rank, command and pay. He resigned and continued spreading his air power gospel as a civilian. Mitchell died in New York City in 1936 at 56 years of age. It was 12 years before Congress recognized his genius by presenting a special medal to his son; 22 years before the Navy's last battleship—the Wisconsin—was decommissioned and five years before the Arizona went down at Pearl Harbor with 1,02 men entombed in her hull.

Good Diet May Improve Marks

HOUSTON (AP)—Is there a link between what a teen-ager eats and how he fares on his report card?

Officials of a nearby Pasadena, Tex., school district says yes and added that an experiment proved it.

Results of a nine week study conducted last fall by South Houston High School was released Saturday. It showed that 44 per cent of those students on a prescribed diet improved their school grades.

Twenty per cent of students in a group who adhered to their regular diet showed grade improvement.

Amon Alford, a chemistry teacher who started it all, is so sold on proper diet that he says he has adopted it for life.

An unofficial participant himself, Alford trimmed 15 pounds from his 235-pound frame and says he "feels like a million dollars."

The participating students ate breakfast and lunch at school. Their parents prepared an evening meal specified by the school and the Texas Gulf bakers council, which also took part in the project.

The council is a non-profit organization dedicated to promotion of proper diet. It paid for the meals the students ate during the experiment.

Alford, who said he hadn't eaten breakfast for 15 years until he joined his students in the study, became concerned when 28 of 29 students in his chemistry class flunked a routine test.

Alford noted that a survey conducted at the school had turned up some unusual eating habits. Some students had a breakfast of a soft drink and potato chips, a cup of coffee and a vitamin pill or a biscuit and a nerve pill.

He took his problem to Mrs. Vernalie Roberts, district nursing director, who decided to conduct a full-scale study. The council agreed to work with her.

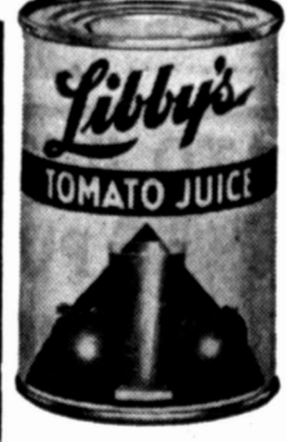

"We did everything scientifically," she reported. "The basis of the whole study was a balanced diet, the right food in proper quantities."

Each student daily added up the calories he had consumed, divided the kinds of food into four groups for a balanced diet and learned why he should eat different food.

The groups are dairy products, meats, fruits and vegetables and bread and cereal products. Officials of the school district have been invited to make a full report on the tests Nov. 1 in Atlantic City, N. J., at the national convention of the American Food Service Association.

Can Any Other Tire Stand This Test?

U.S. Rubber Co., using unusual bonding power, lifted a 4,000-pound car by its tire treads and flew it around in a 500-yard circle by helicopter at its tire-testing ground in Lancaster, Calif. An area of tire tread, about seven square inches in size, supported the full weight of the car and the steel lifting assembly. This part of the tread is called the footprint—the area that makes contact with the road during normal driving. The free ends of the cut-back portion of the tread are fastened to a "C" clamp and steel cable. In the photograph the tread rubber has stretched more than twice its normal length. U.S. Rubber claims the CVC bonding in its passenger car tires is one of the most significant contributions to high speed driving safety since the advent of the tubeless tire. See the tires using CVC at Phillips Tire Co., Fourth and Johnson.

Undercover Work Is Special Service Of Bettie-Womack

There is at least one company in Big Spring that works underground most of the time. Very little of its finished work is visible to the naked eye. The firm is Bettie-Womack Construction Co., Clayton Bettie and Red Womack, owners, have been in the construction business long enough to know pipeline-laying problems in the area, because they have built them for a long time. They have played a big part in laying gas lines for Pioneer Natural Gas Co. and for Lone Star Gas Co. in Howard, Scurry, Mitchell, and Nolan counties, as well as in handling big contracts over other parts of West Texas.

The network of pipelines, constructed in the Big Spring-Howard County area, stretches for miles in length, but may cover only a few square miles. Some of these lines provide utility service to a new headquarters building

Even Cleopatra Had Cockroaches

Even Cleopatra had cockroaches. But poor Cleo couldn't do a thing about them, and all the wealth of the Egyptian empire could not keep roaches out of the Ptolemy kitchens.

Modern housewives enjoy the blessings of great chemical research, and all agree that the best, most effective, cleanest, and surest way of controlling roaches and ants is with Johnston's No-Roach.

It is effective against all crawling insects, easy to use, safe to use around children and pets, and stays effective for months with only one application.

Equipment capable of digging or tunneling for lines, shallow or deep, through soil or rock, is available at Bettie-Womack, and many lines have to be laid deep where uneven terrain exists.

Jim Patterson Retains Lead In Invitational

By TOMMY HART
Teen-ager Jimmy Patterson hung tenaciously to the lead in the 32nd annual Big Spring Invitational Golf tournament here Sunday when he posted an even parpar 71 for a two-day total of 141.

The tall Big Spring youth led defending champion Bill Craig of Colorado City and long-hitting Stormy Edwards of Ruidoso, N.M., by three strokes going into the final day.

Craig continued to fire steady golf by matching Patterson's 71. Edwards proved to be the day's hottest player when he breezed around the 7,000-yard layout in 68 strokes. The one-time Big Spring football player, son of the Cree Meadows Golf course pro at Ruidoso, N.M., was out in 36 and came on in 32.

Today's golf will be a test of endurance as well as skill, since the linksters play 36 holes.

Patterson was very warm on the front nine, with a two-under par 33 but he slipped to a 38 on the back side, winding up with bogies on two of the past three holes. All alone in fourth place, at 145, is Bobby Blumh of Lamesa, which started with a 73 Saturday and cut one stroke off that figure Sunday.

One stroke back of him is Bernard Rains of a Big Spring school teacher and medalist of the four-day meet. Rains, who had a 67 the day the tournament opened, started play anew Saturday with a 74 and pieced together a 72 Sunday.

Biggest improvement of the day was shown by W. E. Ramsey of Big Spring, who chopped 11 strokes off his first day's score by fashioning a 71. His two-day score is 153.

Weldon Bryant of Big Spring did almost as well. He started with an 86 in the rain Saturday and shaved ten strokes off that aggregate Sunday for a two-day total of 162.

Patterson had birdies on the second, third and ninth holes and settled for a bogie on the sixth to get his front nine 33. He parred in through 15, before he ran into trouble.

Ramsy had birdies on the 19th and 27th Saturday and saw six strokes melt off that total with his even par yesterday.

Stoker had birdies on the fifth and 17th holes and strayed over par on the fourth and seventh holes.

Craig certainly cannot be counted out of the championship picture. He had a two-under par 33 on the front nine, getting birdies on successive holes—the sixth and seventh. His putter cooled off on the back nine and he yielded to bogies on 15 and 18.

Blumh fashioned a one-over par 36 on the first nine and matched that score for a 72 Sunday.

Blumh birdied the second and fourth holes but went over par on the first, eighth and ninth holes. He had a buzzard on 11 and a bogie on 13 but got back in the groove with birdies on 14, 17 and 18.

All survivors in all flights will resort to medal play to determine winners but the lowers flights will be required to go only 18 holes.

Consolation winners will also be determined.

The course had dried out very well from Saturday's heavy downpour and there were few complaints about the way it was playing.

A Sigh Of Contentment

Jimmy Patterson relaxes in a golf cart at the Country Club after retaining his lead in the Big Spring Invitational Golf tournament Sunday with an even par 71. Patterson's two-day total of 141 leads his nearest pursuers by three strokes. The final 36 holes of play will be unretted today. (Photo by Danny Valdes).

Weldon Bryant of Big Spring did almost as well. He started with an 86 in the rain Saturday and shaved ten strokes off that aggregate Sunday for a two-day total of 162.

Patterson had birdies on the second, third and ninth holes and settled for a bogie on the sixth to get his front nine 33. He parred in through 15, before he ran into trouble.

Ramsy had birdies on the 19th and 27th Saturday and saw six strokes melt off that total with his even par yesterday.

Stoker had birdies on the fifth and 17th holes and strayed over par on the fourth and seventh holes.

Craig certainly cannot be counted out of the championship picture. He had a two-under par 33 on the front nine, getting birdies on successive holes—the sixth and seventh. His putter cooled off on the back nine and he yielded to bogies on 15 and 18.

Blumh fashioned a one-over par 36 on the first nine and matched that score for a 72 Sunday.

Blumh birdied the second and fourth holes but went over par on the first, eighth and ninth holes. He had a buzzard on 11 and a bogie on 13 but got back in the groove with birdies on 14, 17 and 18.

All survivors in all flights will resort to medal play to determine winners but the lowers flights will be required to go only 18 holes.

Consolation winners will also be determined.

The course had dried out very well from Saturday's heavy downpour and there were few complaints about the way it was playing.

Dodger Series Hopes Boom After 5-3 Win

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Dodgers had a bigger lead than the six-game advantage they have in the National League race today, but the outlook for a World Series in Los Angeles was never brighter. Why?

Because their confidence is high after Sunday's 5-3 victory over San Francisco gave them a three games to one edge over their hated California rivals in their most important series of the season so far.

Because the Dodgers have only 27 games left to play, of which 15 are at home.

Because both the second-place Cards and the Giants, now 7 1/2 games behind, have only three more games apiece with the league leaders. Nothing less than a sweep by both St. Louis and San Francisco would figure to disrupt the Los Angeles march toward an October meeting with the Yankees.

St. Louis clung to its slim hopes by defeating the Philadelphia Phillies 7-3. Pittsburgh downed Cincinnati 6-4. Chicago edged Houston 4-3 and the New York Mets downed Milwaukee 6-4 in 16 innings in other NL games Sunday.

JOHNNY PODRES

southpaw Billy O'Dell, San Francisco Manager Al Dark called upon right-hander Don Larsen for the third straight day. Tommy Davis singled Gilliam to third and, after Frank Howard fanned, Wally Moon batted for Ken McMillen and doubled both runners home. Ron Fairly, another pinch hitter, followed with a single to add an insurance run.

The Giants threatened in the ninth but Johnny Podres came in to retire three batters, including Willie Mays, leaving the potential tying runs stranded. Mays had driven in the first Giant run with a first inning double, his 2,000th major league hit.

Left-hander Curt Simmons not only pitched a six-hitter against his former Philadelphia mates but drove in two runs with a triple, and stole home as he helped himself to his 12th triumph in 19 decisions. Ken Boyer, on base 10 times in the Cards' three-game sweep, hit his 20th home run in the fifth.

Bill Virdon smashed a grand slam home with two out in the ninth to lift the Pirates to a dramatic triumph over the Reds.

Co-Ops Getting More Attention

By OVID A. MARTIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration, rebuffed in its efforts for production control programs, is turning more and more to the farm cooperative movement.

But farm leaders and politicians say legislation may be required to make the cooperatives more effective. They also cite a shortage of well trained managers as another reason for the somewhat disappointing performance of the marketing and purchasing cooperatives.

Evidence of the administration's new tack was provided recently by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman in a policy statement, he said his department will do all within its power to strengthen the economic hand of farmers through the co-ops.

The utterance came after wheat growers rejected the administration's program for reducing surpluses while maintaining farm income through tight production controls. About the same time producer's of potatoes and turkeys indicated they do not favor government marketing controls aimed at shoring up their incomes.

Ideally, cooperatives serve two purposes. They increase the farmer's income by negotiating better prices for his product. And they cut his costs by providing cheaper farm and home merchandise through bulk and discount buying. But latest reports show that farm cooperatives market about $10 billion worth of farm products a year, less than one fourth of the total.

Recent figures show about 9,000 farm marketing and purchasing cooperatives claim to represent about 7.2 million members. The latter figure contains many duplications—that is, one farmer belonging to more than one cooperative.

Cooperatives are now pretty well confined to dairying and specialty crops, especially fruits, vegetables, rice and nuts. They operate to some extent in the production and marketing of cotton, poultry, livestock, wool and mohair, dry beans and peas, other grains, tobacco, and sugar products.

But their sphere of influence is not very large in the marketing of larger crops and livestock. This is due mainly to limited membership and such questions as the legal authority of cooperatives to regulate marketings of specific regional or national crops for the purpose of influencing prices. Antitrust legislation may be required to clarify their authority.

But any move to broaden the marketing powers of cooperatives undoubtedly would meet strong opposition of Congress, particularly from business groups.

TRIBUTE PAID TO FOUNDER

PENNSAUKEN, N. J. (AP) — Labor leaders pay their respects today to Peter McGuire, founder of Labor Day, at a special ceremony in Arlington cemetery here where he is buried.

McGuire, who died in 1960, founded the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. It was his suggestion that a day should be set aside annually to honor the working man that prompted greater efforts leading to legislation legalizing the holiday.

All 50 states now observe the first Monday in September as Labor Day, but this was not always the case. The first celebration, held Sept. 5, 1882, in New York, took place on a Tuesday.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Joseph McNulty, 51, brother of business manager of Irish tenor Dennis Day, died Sunday at St. Vincent's Hospital.

McNulty was born in New York City and taught English at a Providence, R. I., high school before coming to Los Angeles to manage Day's professional and business affairs.

Red China Troops Poised On Border

By ALAN KENNEDY
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — In Tibet, behind the barrier of the Himalayas, Red Chinese soldiers take their political training, build up their positions, and wait for marching orders that may or may not come.

To the west and south, a few miles away, Indians in olive green cautiously patrol Himalayan land that is largely claimed by Peking. The Indians have orders not to provoke a fight or protest in the simmering dispute over what constitutes the India-China border.

The outlook is that the Communist Chinese can overrun large parts of India's border territory at will.

Military observers in New Delhi do not agree on how many soldiers the Chinese army has in Tibet. Estimates range from 100,000 to more than 200,000. Some experts even question Prime Minister Nehru's warning to Parliament last week that Red Chinese forces on the border are larger than they were last fall.

There is agreement that Chinese troops can move fast on the dry, rolling Tibetan plateau—many times faster than Indian troops who must climb over two-mile-high foothills to reach the border.

There is a consensus that the Indian army cannot prevent the Chinese from overrunning most of India's Northeast Frontier Agency again this year if the Chinese find it desirable to do so in the interests of their foreign or domestic policy.

Nine months of Indian buildup have not been enough.

Six mountain divisions have been formed or are in the making, bringing the Indian army's strength to 600,000 compared with Red China's estimated 2.5 million regulars.

Millions of dollars worth of equipment, such as American light machine guns and mortars and British rapid-fire rifles, is in the hands of Indian troops—enough to "make a hell of a difference" compared to last October, an observer says.

The army has much deeper air transport support, thanks to planes provided by the United States and Canada. Troops are better clothed for the mountains.

There has been some improvement in the vital border access roads under a program now being aided by the United States. Indian officers are said to be mentally trained for mountain fighting. Most of them were not last fall. Morale is universally described as high.
