SPACE CITY ACCUSTOMED TO CHANGE

Huntsville Takes Integration In Stride

Editor's note: The center of this nation's space industry is Huntsville, Ala., where changes are taking place. The latest change saw Huntsville become the first city in Alabama to have desegregation of its elementary schools. The effect is described here.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—This bustling center of the nation's space industry is accustomed to change. And change can mean progress.

The city also is accustomed to making history. The first U.S. space satellite was launched with a rocket built here. Plans to put a man on the moon in this decade are on drawing boards here.

Huntsville's latest niche in history was carved Monday when a first grader became the first Negro to enter a white public classroom below college level in Alabama.

Change and history are only two reasons a federal court order to integrate four public schools caused little more reaction than a raised eyebrow from the majority.

RESIGNATION
The attitude of most is one of mute resignation, rather than pure acceptance. A minority expressed deep resentment.

Most considered the change in the traditional southern way of life as another in the long list of changes in the 150-year-old city.

Huntsville sprawls across north central Alabama. In less than 15 years, it has grown from a sleepy town of 17,000 to a roaring city of more than 110,000. The population increases by 500 persons a month. Ten years ago its major industry was water cress. The huge paddy-like fields still play a big part on the area's economy. Then came the guided missile and the race for space.

Restone Arsenal, where munitions were manufactured for World War I doughboys, became the home of the army missile command, the Army Ordnance Missile School and the Missile Support Command.

SPACE CENTER
Later, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration established its headquarters, the Marshall Space Flight Center.

The federal agencies employ more than 22,000 civilian workers, the largest single payroll in Alabama.

All the industries connected with missiles and space have offices or factories in and around Huntsville.

The influx of industry naturally brought with it a mass migration of people from all parts of the nation.

Many persons have listed the fear of losing large amounts of federal school-support money and the large non-southern population as the reason for the quiet desegregation of the schools.

COURT ORDERS
City and school officials said they only wished to comply with the orders of the federal court. When every legal avenue had been traveled, officials said the schools would be opened on a desegregated basis.

There were no incidents when three Negro first grade boys and a Negro junior high girl entered white schools Monday. There were no boycotts by white pupils and parents as in Birmingham and Tuskegee. There were no demonstrations such as occurred when Mobile and Birmingham integrated schools. Few parents withdrew their children.

Almost unanimously, parents were indignant and condemned Gov. George Wallace when he sent state troopers to close the four integrated schools last Friday.

IGNORED
Mystery clouded the air Monday when Wallace sent troopers to three other Alabama cities where schools were to be desegregated. He ignored Huntsville and allowed the schools to open and the Negroes to enter.

Speculation and rumor were widespread, but the reason for Wallace's action still is unexplained.

Parents and pupils alike were relieved when the schools opened.

A father, who said he was a native of Tennessee, said: "My son's education is the most important thing to me. I don't care if there are Negroes in the school. They're entitled to their education, too. In this day and age, a boy can't get anywhere without a decent education. This is the only way I can give it to him."

WANT TO WORK
The man's son, a junior high pupil, said: "I realize what an education means to me. I want to work in the space industry like dad. I can't get there without education."

Another mother, who said she was a native of Huntsville, said: "I will accept integration. It makes no difference to me if there are Negroes in the class. It certainly makes no difference to my daughter. I have brought her up without prejudice."

Another mother said: "I have attended schools in both the North and the South, both integrated and segregated. I think an integrated school is good. It's part of the educational process. We've got to live with these people (Negroes) and integrated classes will help us understand them."

These thoughts reflect the change in attitude of parts of the Deep South. They make history in themselves.

Desegregation Tempo About Right At Present, JFK Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy says he thinks "we are going at about the right tempo" on racial integration and that he does not believe Americans will make the "fatal mistake" of dividing politically along racial lines.

He said the recent desegregation of schools in 150 Southern cities "is an impressive story" reflecting great credit on Southerners who put respect for the law above emotion.

The President gave these views Thursday in a news conference during which he also put in another strong plug for Senate ratification of the limited nuclear test ban treaty, announced he would address the United Nations next month, and defined U. S. policy in South Viet Nam.

ACCURATE
Asked about a Gallup poll in which 50 per cent of those replying thought he was "pushing integration too fast," Kennedy said he thought the figure was accurate.

But he said he considered it "rather impressive" that another 40 per cent replied that the pace was "more or less right."

He said "change always disturbs and, therefore, I was surprised that there wasn't greater opposition."

HIGH PRAISE
Bringing up the school desegregation subject in an opening statement, Kennedy had high praise for "the vast majority" of Southerners.

He noted that five federal judges who signed a school desegregation order in Alabama "were all from Alabama all grew up in Alabama, and I am sure shared the views of the majority of Alabamians who, I think are not for desegregation, but nevertheless, met their responsibilities under the law."

Kennedy did not mention the attempts of Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace to block school desegregation, but noted there had been "some difficulties" and obstacles, "even to the point of physical interference."

GRUPELLING TESTING
He said "this nation is passing through a very gruelling test, and with the exception of a few aberrations, I think we are meeting it."

He also mentioned school desegregation in South Carolina, Florida and Georgia, and said it added up to "an impressive story."

Politically, he said "I don't know what 1964 is going to bring" but "I think a division upon racial lines would be unfortunate."

"Over the long run we are going to have a mix. This will be true racially, socially, ethnically, geographically, and that is really, finally, the best way."

He said in reply to another question he is not considering a stronger executive order aimed at eliminating discrimination in housing.

U Thant Ignores De Gaulle Theory
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary-General U Thant declined Thursday to comment on French President Charles de Gaulle's plan to unify and neutralize Viet Nam, but offered his interpretation of France's foreign policy in general.

"As I understand it," he told a news conference, "French foreign policy is based on the conviction that there is no danger of the Soviet Union attacking Western Europe and the French government feels even that NATO might not be needed. Even if NATO is needed U.S. participation might not be necessary."

REPLY TO LETTER

Mr. H.: You say, "No where in God's word are we commanded to say we are a Church of Christ". By that do you mean we have no Scriptural authority for doing so? If not, what is the point in saying what you did? I note that official literature of about any denomination will call their church a church of Christ, even though the denomination has some other official name. I did not know that anyone denied the scripturalness of the name, Church of Christ. How can one, in view of Mat. 16:18, Acts 20:28 and Rom. 16:16?

Also, remember we are commanded, "Whatever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus" (Col. 3:17). To use a denominational name, which does not even contain the Lord's name, is to disobey this Scripture. If we are to do all in the Lord's name, whether in word or deed; that certainly included our church signboards, newspaper advertising and all publicity.

MUST GO AHEAD

Can't Turn Back Now On Ban, Says Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—In his news conference yesterday President Kennedy pushed strongly for ratification of the nuclear ban treaty, saying the United States cannot turn back now on the issue. (For Kennedy's remarks on the integration subject, see page 2-A, "Desegregation").

TREATY President Kennedy's voice took on an edge when he rejected the arguments of opponents. "We can't turn our back and tell 90 nations that now signed it that the lid is off. This atomic age has come in all of its splendor, and that everyone now should begin to test in the atmosphere which, of course, everybody would have to do if this treaty fails. This would be the green light for intensive atmospheric testing by a number of countries. You couldn't possibly stop it. This would be the end of an effort of 15 years. I don't think the United States would want to take on that responsibility."

VIET NAM "We want the war to be won. The Communists to be contained and the Americans to go home. That is our policy." To an earlier question, he said, "I do not think it desirable to state all of our views at this time. I think they will be made more clear as time goes on."

ROCKEFELLER With a big grin and tongue obviously in cheek, Kennedy said he was prepared to accept the blame for recent withdrawal of a 1962 campaign pledge not to increase taxes in New York. A reporter told Kennedy the Republican governor blamed him for failure to achieve a certain economic growth rate in the nation. Kennedy said he received thousands of letters blaming him when the stock market dropped last year but "I haven't gotten a single letter in the last few days, about the Kennedy market's now that it has broken through the Dow Jones average. So Governor Rockefeller is not alone in his disappointment."

GOLDWATER The President also drew laughter when he said he was not yet ready to comment extensively on attacks by Sen. Barry Goldwater, a possible Republican candidate to oppose him in next year's presidential election. But Kennedy was serious in denying there were any secret commitments made to obtain the test ban treaty, as a questioner said had been hinted by Goldwater. "There are no commitments and I think Sen. Goldwater would know that is not true."

THE TAX BILL

Fight Looms For Ban On Mixing Oil Property

WASHINGTON (AP)—The tax bill came out of the House Ways and Means Committee this week with only one new provision directly affecting the oil and gas industry. But this provision—which would prevent the grouping of producing properties for computation of the existing 27 1/2 per cent tax depletion allowance—could be more than enough to stir a bitter fight within the Senate Finance Committee, if the bills clear the House as written. Treasury officials estimated the provision would increase the tax take from the industry $40 million a year.

The next step in the industry's fight against the section is to carry its opposition to the Senate committee. The House is expected to consider the bill under a rule barring amendments except with approval of the House Ways and Means Committee. This rule practically would eliminate any chances of knocking out the provision in the House short of killing the bill. That hardly appears likely. Originally, the Kennedy administration's tax bill contained recommendations estimated to increase tax revenue from the industry $280 million a year without any nominal change in the depletion allowance rate.

President's First Major Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has sent to the White House the first major administration bill to be cleared this session—President Kennedy's medical education program.

Democratic congressional leaders expressed hope today that the strategy which won easy passage for the measure will work with other sections of Kennedy's school program.

The Senate approved the $236.4 million medical bill by an overwhelming 71-9 vote. The House passed it in April 288-122.

It establishes the first broad federal aid program in education since passage of the 1958 National Defense Education Act.

After years of frustration on school bills, the leadership strategy for 1962 has been to let the House act first with the Senate, traditionally more friendly to such legislation, following behind.

The theory is that the size of the bills originating in the Senate has scared off the House in the past.

The House this year chopped down the 10-year medical education program submitted by Kennedy to a three-year bill. The Senate accepted this without change Thursday, although sponsors made it clear they expect it to be extended by 1966.

The bill contains a $61.4 million student loan authorization and authorization for $175 million in grants to help build new schools or rehabilitate old ones to train doctors, dentists, and public health personnel.

Kennedy Limbering For '64 Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has started limbering up for the 1964 presidential campaign by cuffing a couple of potential Republican rivals and spanking some young Democrats.

Kennedy was generally in a relaxed mood at his news conference Thursday. But he had an edge in his voice when he rebuked Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., for having said in a Chicago speech that there were not 10 men in America who know the full truth about Cuba, all the facts about the limited nuclear test ban treaty or commitments made with the Communists.

Goldwater is regarded as a contender for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination.

"There are no commitments," Kennedy said, "and I think Senator Goldwater is at least one of the ten men in America who would know that is not true. I think there are a good many other men."

COME LATER Asked if he would comment "on this type of attack by Senator Goldwater," Kennedy indicated that would come later.

"No, no," he said, "Not yet, not yet," and smiled broadly. Kennedy took in stride a question about New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's statement that he was withdrawing his promise not to raise state taxes because the Kennedy administration hadn't produced the economic growth which would have made such action unnecessary. Rockefeller also is a Republican presidential candidate possibility.

The President replied that there had been a lot of talk during Rockefeller's 1962 re-election campaign about how the state had moved ahead. But he said there was no credit given to the measures taken by the Democratic administration toward improving the economy.

"I think there has been a substantial increase in economic growth and New York has shared in it," Kennedy said.

Rockefeller was not the only one who complained, the President went on. He said he got several thousand letters when the stock market dived in May and June of 1962 blaming him for what the writers called the "Kennedy market."

NO LETTERS He said that since the market recently reached record high averages he hadn't had a single letter.

Kennedy gave the back of his hand to Young Democrats who recently went on record at a 13-state western conference for resumption of diplomatic relations with Cuba, the signing of a non-aggression treaty with Warsaw Pact nations and the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Viet Nam.

Kennedy said he didn't agree with any of the stands the group had taken.

Then smiling he added, in a philosophical tone: "I don't know what is happening with the Young Democrats and Young Republicans, but time is on our side."

Kennedy denied that any politics entered into his selection of John A. Gronouski, Wisconsin tax commissioner, as his new postmaster general.

Kennedy said he didn't know why the name Gronouski "causes so much excitement."

"I think the issue is that he is of Polish extraction and therefore it must be political, but if it is not of Polish extraction it is not political and I am not sure I accept that test," he said.

He went on to say that Gronouski is "a fine public servant" and "I think we just happen to be fortunate that his grandparents came from Poland."

Brazil Opens Investigation Into Uprising

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP)—Government officials launched an investigation today to determine the responsibility of Thursday's brief revolt in this capital by non-commissioned Brazilian officers demanding the right to run for office.

The War Ministry announced Thursday night that 550 to 600 insurgents from the air force, marines and navy were in custody. No army personnel were involved, the ministry said.

The pre-dawn uprising was attributed to a ruling earlier this week by Brazil's supreme electoral tribunal. The ruling has been interpreted as barring military men from running for public office.

Normalcy returned to Brasilia although government troops in the capital and certain outlying cities remained in a state of alert.

MAN Vs. GOD "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us... by the resurrection of Jesus Christ." (1 Pet. 3:21). A widely circulated booklet has recently come to my attention. It is entitled: "A Brief Catechism on Baptist Beliefs" and is published by the Sunday School Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, Pages 4 and 5 of the tract are devoted to the subject of Baptism. The author asks this vital question: "Does baptism save us?" How weighty a question! How deserving of the accurate Bible answer which Peter gave in our text: "Baptism doth also now save us!" But how disappointing that the author of this booklet gives exactly the opposite to the Bible answer for this question. He replies: "Baptism does not save us, but shows that we have already died to sin and been saved through Jesus' blood." (Emphasis mine.) Who are we to believe? "The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ?" The former says baptism does not save us, the latter says baptism does save us! Perhaps the author will explain the contradiction as we read further into the tract. More next Friday.

Five Minutes From Start To Finish

A car goes through the line at Jiffy Car Wash. It has just passed the man with the detergent nozzle, left, and through the rotary nylon brushes for side and wheel washing. The man at the right is spraying on the polish. The car will go through blowers where all water is blown off, and then to the wiping stage for final touches.

Formal Opening Saturday For Five Minute Car Wash

The Jiffy Car Wash, where an owner can get his car washed in five minutes, will hold a formal opening tomorrow. It is located at 807 W. 4th and operated by J. M. Townes who formerly operated a similar car wash at Port Arthur four years.

And, if gasoline is purchased at the station, the cost of the wash goes down five cents per gallon of gas. Prices start at $1.75 for a regular wash; go down to $1.50 if five gallons of gas are purchased, and as low as 75 cents if 20 gallons are bought.

The new station will be open daily, Monday through Saturday, from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., with 20 minutes off for lunch starting at 12:30 p. m.

When a customer drives in, he goes first to the 10-horsepower vacuum cleaner at the gas pump where the interior of the car is cleaned out. The driver gets out of the car and may go into an air conditioned rest room where coffee is available.

The car is then "hooked" onto a 100-foot chain which starts it through the line. Neutral detergent is sprayed on the car first. A boy on each side then takes a steam gun and cleans under the car, the tires, and the wheels; the car is

Scientists See Soviets On Lunar Probes Soon

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet space ships soon will begin exploring the moon, perhaps within a few months, some space scientists predict.

Carrying automatic instruments, they could turn the moon into a Soviet scientific garden.

Long before American astronauts land on the moon, Soviet scientists could reap answers to major mysteries about the moon's surface, its craters, its interior, and perhaps its probable origin.

The Soviets already have a rocket—used to hurl their cosmonauts around the earth—powerful enough to land sensitive automatic instruments softly on the moon, one U.S. expert says. But it will be two years or more before the United States has a moon rocket capable of doing the same thing, he claims.

REMOTE CONTROL
"It is only logical to expect the Russians to begin intensive exploration of the moon by remote control—which we would do right now if we could," said this scientist, who asked not to be quoted by name.

Sir Bernard Lovell, British radio astronomer, has predicted the Soviets would be making "soft" landings of instruments on the moon, possibly within a matter of months.

After a recent visit to the Soviet Union, Sir Bernard said he thought the Soviets had dropped plans, at least for the time being, to land men on the moon.

The American space scientist says there are no clear signs yet that the Soviets are developing the kind of superbooster, like the gigantic Saturn rocket, needed to carry men to the moon.

As usual, the Soviets are mum. The Soviet scientist, Dr. Alexander Lebedinsky of the University of Moscow, speaking to newsmen at the recent International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics in Berkeley, Calif., disavowed knowing "what the plans are—I only know what has been done."

"The signs seem to point to imminent Soviet landings on the moon with highly sophisticated instruments," the American scientist said. "We presume the Russians will want to do the same type of exploration we plan to do before sending men to an unknown place."

The U.S. plans call for orbiting a television-equipped spacecraft around the moon, and for landing automatic instruments, in the program known as Surveyor.

LIQUID FUEL
The rocket for the Surveyor landings is the Centaur, using liquid hydrogen fuel. The timetable for Centaur has slipped nearly two years, the scientist said.

"We're simply stymied for lack of a rocket booster. With their head start on powerful boosters, the Russians could skim the cream in scientific exploration of the moon. I think we have to expect it."

The television eye of an orbiting spacecraft could pick level areas for landing automatic laboratories or manned spaceships. It could determine the size and distribution of craters, help answer the question whether most craters were formed by meteor impact or by volcanic action.

From the way the moon pulled at the orbiting craft, scientists could learn some facts about the composition of the moon's interior and the distribution of its mass.

MOON DUST
The moon satellite or softly landed laboratories could tell whether the surface is thick with moon dust, is pretty solid, or resembles a kind of peanut brittle. Chemical analyses could be made of the moon's soil. Automatic vehicles might be sent crawling or leaping over the moon's surface.

Seismometers could record any moonquakes or explosive shock waves could be created, to probe the moon's interior makeup. Magnetometers could seek any magnetic field on the moon. Through these and other means, scientists could gather pretty good ideas whether the moon was created in similar fashion to the earth, or had a different origin.

The Soviets already have sent a space probe smashing into the moon's face, and taken some television photographs of its backside, as well as sending probes past the moon. One American Ranger probe hit the back side of the moon.

Wheeling less than a quarter million miles from earth, the moon is an enticing scientific objective. Its exploration by instruments and probes is only a matter of time.

Real Estate Race Limits Are Banned

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago City Council has adopted an ordinance forbidding racial or religious discrimination by real estate brokers in the sale of property despite a massive protest by white property owners.

The bill was passed by the City Council Wednesday, a few hours after 4,000 white property owners marched on City Hall in protest.

The vote was 30-16 as the usually solid Democratic majority in the council was split.

Some aldermen denounced the bill as "watered down" others as a blow to property rights.

One of the chief opponents of the measure was the Chicago Real Estate Board. Its president, Percy E. Wagner, vowed the ordinance will be tested in the courts.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Integration Question Draws More Response

To the Editor:
I read in the newspapers that America is a Christian nation; one could scarce believe it by reading the articles though, for the works of Satan only is evidenced by the actions of America in all phases of living.

We say with pride that the Bible is the No. 1 Seller of books, and most every home has a Bible on the table in the living room. It is common knowledge even with children that here is a special book, and when the hour in which an older person closes his eyes forever, he will be judged solely by the word of this book.

We refute the word of the book daily, in fact, Big Spring advertises its refutations of the word. "For I am the Lord and change not." Go to our cemeteries and see the evidence of our denial of the word: go to our churches, where God's people are supposedly in attendance, look at the stained glass windows—ignoring the truth! God is a Spirit and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth.

WILLIAM L. BOLING

To the Editor:
I am not much of a letter writer but the two that have written about the race situation have certainly expressed my feelings exactly, very kindly and lovingly, which I think is the way for "Christian people" to be. I am ashamed of some of the things that returned missionary people tell us about how our great country is regarded in other lands with respect to our dealings with the problem. Why does it wait so long? Most of the colored folks will tell you that all they want is equal opportunity. How can they have it if they do not have education? Thanks to the two ladies who have used their time to publicly express the thought from their hearts.

Sincerely,
PEARL PHILLIPS

The team members were introduced and each told the position he played. The trophy won for the state title was on display. It is engraved with the names of all members of the team.

New Stadium Baptist Church

The Rev. J. W. Arnett, pastor, stands in front of the new Stadium Baptist Church, at Rutgers and Tulane. The new building with the scalloped and shingled roof, was used for the first services Sept. 1. The building will be dedicated at 2 p.m.

Dedication Rites, Open House Set By Baptists

Big Spring's newest church, Stadium Baptist, at the intersection of Rutgers and Tulane in College Park Addition, will be dedicated Sunday. An open house will be held for visitors, and the dedication service will be held at 2 p.m., the Rev. J. William Arnett, pastor, said. The public is invited to the services.

The new building was used Sept. 1 for the first service, even though it was not completed. The Rev. Arnett said finishing touches were being put on this week, and that a fully-organized and departmentalized Sunday school would be ready by Oct. 1.

The new building is a frame structure with brick veneer, and is on concrete slab. The auditorium will seat 175 persons. The elevated baptistry, behind the pulpit and choir, is to be "set off" with a mural in a few days.

There are nine classrooms available, with sliding doors permitting the utilization of four for a general assembly room. An equipped kitchen, with refrigerator, electric range, and built-in cabinets, is also in one end of the assembly room where dinners may be served. The building has three rest rooms, including one in the nursery.

The church, organized about 11 months ago, now has 57 members. There are 91 enrolled in Sunday school. The Sunday school superintendent is A. C. Faulkner. Training Union director is J. D. Buchanan and church secretary and WMU president is Mrs. H. I. Cox.

The block of land was purchased, and the $40,000 building, including furniture and equipment, financed through the sale of bonds. The contract price of the building, with extras, was $36,500.

"We are setting up plans to start all of our departments," Rev. Arnett said Tuesday. "We are still looking for workers in the Sunday school and Training Union, but believe we will have all of them by the beginning of the church year."

The congregation has plenty of room for street parking now, Rev. Arnett said, but additional space for parking on church property is available to the north and east of the terraced site on which the building is located. The lawn of the church will be sodded to grass.

Plan Discussion
Rev. Don Hungerford (center) discusses plans with four of the five communicants of St. Mary's Episcopal Church who are licensed by the Bishop to conduct services in the absence of a priest.

BETTER WAY THAN REVENGE

Mercy and love are far more satisfying than revenge as Joseph's example points out in this week's International Sunday School Lesson. It is drawn from Genesis 45:1-15 telling of Joseph's receiving his brothers and helping them, some 22 years after they had sold him into slavery.

The Golden text is Matthew 5:44 where Jesus reminds that God makes the sun shine on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the just and the unjust.

Idealist that he was, Joseph showed that the godly are often the most practical. He had stored grain in a time of plenty so it would be available in a time of need; he urged his brothers and father to come to Egypt near the food supply and where they could benefit from his high office. This, in spite of what they had done to him.

And so Joseph combines practical prudence, purity and prayer.

Contact Work

After two and a half weeks of preparation, the First Baptist stewardship program is now in the contact stage. Approximately four score laymen met Tuesday evening for the kickoff dinner, selecting names of families to be visited. THE ALL-SUFFICIENCY OF THE SCRIPTURES

If you read in the Bible its own claim of being all sufficient as a religious and moral guide, would you credit it as telling the truth and have the confidence to base your hope for eternity upon it? That is exactly the claim it makes and demonstrates within its pages its own divinity from a super-human source. It settles all moral and religious questions and confutes and silences error in every form. All that "pertain to life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue" — II Pet. 1:3. "All scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable for — doctrine—reproof—correction and instruction which is in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto every good, or unto all good works." It produces the "New Birth," "Being born again, not of corruptible seed but of incorruptible by the word of God that liveth and abideth forever." I Pet. 1:23

In matters of religion no man, no leader of religious thought, priest, preacher or rabbi has a plebiscite, a voice or a vote. The Word of God is the only matter of fact; infallibility does not rest in popes of churches, in ministers or men lettered or unlettered, the only authentic official in the whole religious world is Christ and His Eternal Word. "Heaven and earth shall pass away but my words shall not pass away." — Matt. 24:35.

Laymen To Serve Lamesa Mission

What would you do if your church suddenly lost its minister? That situation faced the members of the Lamesa Episcopal Mission when Rev. Galet Pool, vicar of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, was transferred to Dallas in August. As vicar in Big Spring, part of Rev. Pool's duties was to serve as rector of the Lamesa Mission.

The problem was solved when five laymen of the Big Spring Parish volunteered to serve as lay readers for the Mission.

The five—Dr. Milton Talbot, Fred Doelp, Lt. Col. Jay Lauer, Richard Lindsly and Ralph McLaughlin—agreed to rotate as lay readers for the Lamesa Mission.

Not every communicant of the Episcopal Church is qualified to serve in this capacity. The church requires special studies of church law and spiritual doctrine before a communicant can qualify.

All five of the Big Spring volunteers have a record of long association with their faith.

Rev. Don Hungerford, rector of St. Mary's, said there are some 40 parishioners in the Lamesa Mission.

FROM OUR OLD FAMILY ALBUM...

What nostalgic memories this picture brings. Every Sunday morning we used to drive to Church in Pop's old "flivver," picking up the Parson on the way.

Today I live in a great city. I ride commuter's trains, and dictate letters, and spend endless hours "in conference."

But I've never forgotten our Church in the field. It plowed deep furrows in my life, and planted the seeds of real happiness.

Now I worship in a big city church. You might think it would be different; but it isn't. Folks are just as friendly. The Truth is just the same. And God is just as close.

You see, in the country or in the city, Christians are conscientious people trying to be better. And for folks like you and me who worship God, the Church — big or little — is home

Stench Of Death, Damage Remind Of Guerrilla War

VIETNAMESE MOTHER, CHILD VIEW KIN'S BODIES Diem's portrait also riddled in attack by Red guerrillas

DAM DOI, Viet Nam (AP) — This jungle town went through a bloodbath Tuesday and the generals called it a victory. Perhaps it was. But it is not the kind of victory this shattered town can endure very often.

The Marines landed by helicopter and chased out the Viet Cong guerrillas who seized Dam Doi. In the jungles and paddies south of here, the Communists may have lost more than 100 killed. They also lost some machine guns and rifles.

As usual, the enemy came up the canal in sampans in the dead of night and crept to within yards of the flimsy barricades before attacking.

This time he came in strength — with recoilless cannon, machine guns, mortars, and 500 battle-hardened Viet Cong regulars.

DEATH STENCH

Dam Doi reeks of death. The bodies of women and children lie rotting in corrugated iron litter, waiting for the burial squads. The few buildings still standing have been turned into morgues.

It was even worse at Cai Nuoc, 20 miles west of here. Most of the town was burned to the ground Tuesday.

In the two biggest Viet Cong onslaughts of the night in Dam Doi, more than 100 government soldiers and civilians died. Probably another 100 were carried off by retreating Communists.

The enemy took along four mortars and more than 75 smaller weapons captured from government posts.

FOR YEARS

Dam Doi, a jungle settlement of 2,000, about 70 miles south of Saigon, has lived with death and the Viet Cong for years.

In February, 1962, this correspondent watched another of its agonies. Only jungle trails and canals connect Dam Doi with the outside world, and at that time there were no troop-carrying helicopters. It took three days to relieve the town.

That attack was bad. The district chief led 65 troops in a desperate counterattack against the enemy in the dark jungle outside the fortifications.

No one returned from that mission and the Viet Cong cut off the head of the district chief.

But the few defenders left inside the earthwork stockades held out until help came.

This time, the survivors want to leave Dam Doi, and let the jungle claim it.

The district chief was killed by one of the first shells.

PREDICTION

Two months ago, an American adviser in Cai Mau, the province capital 25 miles to the north, predicted something like this.

"We just can't hold on in Dam Doi, Cai Nuoc or a dozen other places in An Xuyen Province if the Viet Cong ever makes one big push," he said. "We just don't have the strength to occupy an enemy zone, and this whole province is an enemy zone."

A few weeks ago, another American adviser in the area blew out his brains with a pistol. No one knows why. But the jungle closed in on people down here.

The government has tried. Last year there were some huge operations in An Xuyen Province, with more river boats, and upwards of 5,000 men. There was another big operation early this year.

Both were billed as victories. But the Viet Cong came back as strong as ever when the dust settled.

In the mountains of central Viet Nam, government forces and their American advisers are systematically building strongholds to halt enemy movements and cut Viet Cong supply lines.

But it is a different war in these jungles, where the Communists are in force and move fast.

"If and when we win this war," a weary, mud-spattered American said, "the last place we're going to win is down here."

Churchill Wed For 55 Years

WESTERHAM, England (AP) — The Winston Churchills celebrated 55 years of wedded life Thursday in the secluded quiet of their manor house in Kent.

No special celebrations were planned and no visitors invited to mark this milestone in the marriage that critics once said would never last.

All the children will probably send them congratulatory telegrams, said Randolph Churchill, the couple's only son. "When they celebrate their 60th anniversary there'll be a whopping big celebration."

The Churchills also have three daughters, Sarah, Diana and Mary.

A member of Churchill's staff hastened to make clear that the lack of festivities was no indication that the 88-year-old wartime prime minister was ailing.

"Sir Winston remains in good health," he said.

The Churchill marriage dates to a gray morning in London in 1908.

Churchill, then 34, was a national hero — a flamboyant politician who had won cabinet rank. She was beautiful, Clementine Hozier, 23, daughter of a Dragoon Guards colonel and granddaughter of the Earl of Airlie.

At fashionable St. Margaret's, Westminster — the parish church of the House of Commons — more than 25,000 people jammed Parliament Square. Six hundred guests — including the cream of society — filled the church.

Pessimists predicted the marriage would wind up on the rocks.

"Clementine likes her way too much," said one. "And Winston will never give in."

Twenty-two years later in an autobiographical fragment, "My Early Life," Churchill wrote: "I married and lived happily ever afterwards."

REFORMS NEEDED

Viet Nam Can Be Lost, JFK Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy evidently is receiving strong warnings from U.S. officials in Viet Nam that the anti-Communist war there may be lost unless the Diem government institutes sweeping reforms.

Kennedy told his news conference Thursday that in publicly criticizing the policies of the Vietnamese government during the last two weeks he has actually understated the concern expressed to him by the most experienced American military, diplomatic, and other officials in the crisis-ridden Southeast Asian country.

He also said that his own comments about the situation there reflect the views of Ambassador Henry (Bob) Lodge "in a very moderate way."

Lodge has started a series of conversations with Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem on changes which the United States would like to see made. Though there has been controversy about the exact line he has taken on a personnel shakeup, there seems to be no doubt whatever that he has made clear to Diem that the United States would welcome the departure of Diem's brother and chief adviser, Ngo Dinh Nhu.

U.S. leaders consider that Nhu and his outspoken wife are responsible for much of the dissatisfaction which the Vietnamese people are reported to feel with the Diem government.

Kennedy's remarks Thursday constituted a reply in part to criticisms of his Vietnamese policies which Mrs. Nhu has stated during the past two weeks. Thursday in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, she told reporters once more that the Pres-

Youth Dies In Initiation

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Police held three members of the Charleston High School band today pending a decision on action in the case of a sophomore boy who died after band initiation hazing.

Michael Murphy, 15, was taken from the school gym Wednesday and was pronounced dead on arrival at Charleston General Hospital.

Authorities said he apparently died from shock following "the pink belly treatment" — abdominal thumping administered in informal initiation hazing.

The names of the three band members — all 16 years old — who allegedly participated in the hazing were not disclosed. Police juvenile authorities and the county prosecutor's office met today to decide if the case should go to juvenile court or to an adult court. No charges were immediately filed.

Detective Robert Gunnoe said the three boys told him it was the practice for upper class bandmen to apply "the pink belly" to new band members. The incident took place in a gym equipment room during a gym class break. No instructors were present.

"This sort of thing definitely is not approved by the school," Gunnoe said, "but apparently it is tolerated."

BIG SPRING DAILY HERALD

SEC. B BIG SPRING, TEXAS, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1963 SEC. B

NEWS RELEASE SNAFU

Wright Family Furnished Six Brothers To Navy

Note to the Navy Department: You're in a state of snafu again. You sent out a news release the other day saying that for the first time since the fighting Sullivan brothers died in action in 1942, five brothers are serving together in the Navy.

Well, it may be the first time there are five, but we can tell you about SIX brothers having served together since 1942.

That would be the Wright brothers—the Texas Wrights, that is. A full half dozen of them were in the Navy during the World War II years, subsequent to 1942.

One of them is H. W. (Hack) Wright, oil distributor, farmer, betimes golfer and professional ex-Navy man (emphasis on the EX) from Big Spring. Hack went in from here, served in the Pacific—as did his five brothers—on a landing craft.

One of the Wright brothers—J. C.—was in the Navy at the time of Pearl Harbor, was there on the USS Vestal, a repair ship that suffered some damage in the Jap bombardment.

This may have made the other Wrights mad, for four others from El Paso signed up for Navy duty. They were J. F., C. L., C. S. and T. W. A couple of them saw action on Guadalcanal, another couple in the bitter fight for Tarawa. Big Spring's contribution was H. W., the oldest of the six, who may have been the best Gunner's Mate third class that his ship ever saw.

All six of the Wrights came out of World War II unscathed (perhaps some have put on a little weight) and are living now in various places.

But there WERE six Wright brothers in the Navy at the same time, and they're thinking that the Navy Department ought to set the record straight.

Police Watch For New Travel-To-Cuba Uproar

WASHINGTON (AP) — More American students who traveled to Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuba were called before House committee today, and edgy police mapped precautions against a recurrence of Thursday's screaming near-riot.

Twice the senate hearing room of the Committee on Un-American Activities erupted into a swarming, pushing struggle between police and bearded youths, shrieking girls and college students.

Chairs tumbled over, fists flew and a shrill voice shouted: "Fascist, fascist."

No one was arrested nor anyone reported to be seriously hurt.

But the action wasn't finished even after the demonstrators had been hustled out of the House building and turned loose on the sidewalks to make plans for attending today's session and a possible rally near the Capitol.

PROBE REPLY

The third disturbance broke out when an unidentified man tried to speak out at an evening meeting set up by the Student Committee for Travel to Cuba and billed as a reply to House investigation.

"I have a few words to say," he shouted as he leaped up on a platform before a crowd of about 300 at a downtown meeting room.

As members of the audience swarmed around, police surged down the stairs with the four intruders shouting:

"The Communist party is Jewish. The American Nazi party is the only foe of communism."

"Shut up, you filthy Nazi," a woman screamed over and over as the meeting turned into turmoil.

NAZI GROUP

George Lincoln Rockwell of the American Nazi party paced outside the hall with a collection of his tan-shirted supporters.

The worst outbreak during Thursday's congressional hearing came at the end of a long afternoon of testimony by Levi Laub, 25, a New York college student and one of the leaders of the 59 students who spent two months in Cuba this summer in violation of passport rules.

Laub defended civil disobedience as being in the best American tradition. He added that many other Americans are now using that tactic to "fight the same kind of racists that are sitting up here in front of me right now."

That brought a sharp drumfire of applause from some in the audience.

CROWD WARNED

Rep. Edwin Willis, D-La., chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities, repeatedly warned the overflow crowd in the big caucus room against demonstrations. Earlier he had police remove half a dozen youths for another long outburst of applause.

Willis was in the chair three years ago when protest riots broke out at a committee hearing in San Francisco.

But Thursday Willis said he was through with Laub and adjourned the hearings until today. Then a youth stood up and started shouting "there is more freedom in Cuba than in Louisiana," and he-students do not defy their government and do not travel to Cuba in violation of the law." Neither do ordinary American students cheer Mao Tse-tung and applaud the shooting down of an American helicopter in Viet Nam when they see it in a movie, Hoffman said.

After the initial turmoil Thursday night's meeting settled down into a series of reports on the trip to Cuba by students who took part. They were almost all laudatory of the accomplishments of the Castro regime.

John Thomas, a Negro, drew especial applause with a report that Castro had abolished all overt racial discrimination.

The moderator was introduced as the Rev. Felix McGowan, a Roman Catholic priest who told newsmen later that he has been suspended from priestly duties.

He told the meeting there is religious liberty in Cuba — "all churches are open. Priests can preach. Anybody can go to church."

He was in Cuba at the same time as the students, he said, but did not go there with them.

Texas Youth Reports At 12

GILLILAND (AP) — Fred Cash, 12 years old, is one of the youngest newspaper reporters in the business.

Cash has been interested in newspaper writing for some time.

When his Sunday School teacher, Mrs. Jack W. Brown of Truscott, became correspondent at Truscott for the Wichita Falls Times and Record News, she suggested he ask for the Gilliland spot.

Fred's letter to Don James, state editor at Wichita Falls, was received with interest and he was named correspondent.

He has been influenced by John R. Mislove and works on the Gilliland Reporter under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Martin Jr. Mislove's wife owns the farm where the Cash family lives and Fred has been hearing stories of newspaper work from Mislove who spent a long time with newspaper in Los Angeles.

Four years ago the Gilliland Reporter, a mimeographed community paper, was established in the Gilliland grammar school by Martin, then principal, and his wife. Fred hopes to study journalism in college.

LAOS CHIEF WANTS TALK WITH SOVIETS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Laotian sources said this week that Laos' Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma hoped to confer in New York soon with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home about his coalition government's troubles with Communist Pathet Lao troops.

Gromyko and Home were co-chairmen of the 1962 Geneva conference that guaranteed the independence and neutrality of Laos.

The premier will arrive Sunday to attend the General Assembly session convening next Tuesday.

Police Check On Thefts, Burglary

One burglary and two thefts were investigated by Big Spring police in the past 24 hours. A tire and wheel were reported stolen from a pickup owned by Troy McClendon, 3801 Connally, while the vehicle was parked in his back yard.

The Cosden Service Station, 310 N. Gregg, was entered through a rear window early Thursday morning, and the cigarette machine broken open. Police reported $15 in small change and 13 packages of cigarettes missing. The break-in was reported by Leemon Bostick, operator.

Larry Burklow, high school student reported a four-barrel carburetor stolen from his car while he was in school. He told officers he parked his car in the alley in the 1100 block of Benton and that the theft occurred between 1 and 3:30 p.m.

Geography Class Scheduled Here

A class in geography, offering credit for either graduate work or undergraduate work, will be taught in Big Spring as an extension course of Sul Ross State College.

Enough students to justify the course signed up at an enrollment session held Wednesday night at the high school library. Enrollment is still open, however, and applications can be made Wednesday at the first class session.

Further details, such as time and meeting place are now being worked out. The teacher for the class will be Dr. Bob Miller, Sul Ross instructor.

Opening lead: King of ♠

It is quite apparent that nine tricks are available to South, the declarer, at no trump and, with a little more enterprise on the part of North, that contract might have been reached. It must be said on his behalf, however, that the suit contract was quite tempting. After South found himself in a game contract in clubs, he acquitted himself without flinch, leaving nothing to chance in the manipulation of the dummy.

West opened the king of spades which was taken by the dummy's ace. On the surface, declarer's prospects seemed to hinge on finding East with the ace of hearts. On the basis of West's overall, South was more inclined to place that card with his left hand opponent, in which case it would not prove profitable for declarer to operate on the heart suit himself.

If South were to force his opponents to lead hearts, however, he must first eliminate their exits in the other suits. He cashed the ace of diamonds at trick two and then drew two rounds of trumps ending up in his own hand. The king of diamonds was now played and a small spade was thrown from the dummy. The last diamond was trumped with the nine of clubs to complete South's preparations.

A spade was led toward the jack in the closed hand and West was in with the queen. It was apparent to him that declarer and the dummy were both out of diamonds as well as spades and that to play one of those suits would enable South to get rid of a heart as he ruffed in the North hand. West cashed the ace of hearts in the hope that East had the king, but his efforts proved to no avail and declarer claimed the balance.

Businessmen Expecting European Trade Barriers

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. businessmen are bracing for rising barriers on their trade with Western Europe. A year ago they were hoping for lower obstacles to trade.

The chicken war is only a small part of the trouble ahead. It arises because the European Common Market raised the duty on American poultry. When the United States said it would retaliate, the Common Market backed down so slightly that Washington was unimpressed.

But American financial and business circles say that the very nature of European tariff policies is spelling problems for American exporters no matter how the chicken war turns out.

The six Common Market nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg—are forging a no-tariff rule for themselves and a common tariff schedule on all outside goods.

The same is true of the Outer Seven—Britain, Switzerland, Austria, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Portugal.

This in itself will have each of the six or the seven a better chance at each other's markets than any one outside the rival trade blocs.

Until now the growing economy of Europe has absorbed a lot of American goods and materials, regardless of tariffs and other barriers. Now the market is growing really competitive.

From now on the adverse effects of the European trade blocs on our exports are likely to be much more important, economists of the Chase Manhattan Bank, New York, assert.

The degree of discrimination against exports from outside the Common Market will increase rapidly in the period ahead. The common external tariff wall now appears to be considerably more protective than the old national tariffs.

In a study of European trade policies, the bank economists predict that there will still be a sizable demand for American products. But they say that under the proposed rates in the common tariff the rise in U.S. exports to this important market may be slowed substantially.

In addition to tariffs the Common Market countries levy additional taxes on outside products. They are variously called turn-over taxes, equalization taxes and surtaxes and range from 2 per cent to 25 per cent, imposed on the duty-added value of the imported goods.

TYRANNY TOO LONG

Trujillo's Ghost Still Gripping Dominicans

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The ghost of Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo still rules the Dominican Republic.

The memory of the dictator, dead two years, was a major factor in the 1962 presidential election. His shadow today threatens the stability of this infant democracy.

Juan Bosch, a white-thatched author-professor was swept into office only eight months ago by a crushing national vote of approval. Now his growing unpopularity is one of many disturbing signs here.

"The trouble here," says a foreign businessman, "is that everyone wants to govern, but after 31 years of tyranny nobody really knows how."

A lack of distinguishable national and international policies springs from widespread administrative incompetence. This has aroused the business and professional classes and some segments of labor, and tended to alienate the Roman Catholic Church.

As a result, a once-bright economic picture is dimming and the probabilities of violence are increasing. There is a growing feeling that President Bosch's government may not survive long.

Prominent Dominicans regard the tenor and scope of the opposition as confirming a theory that Bosch didn't win the 1962 presidential elections, the National Civic Union last term.

This view holds that the once-powerful civic union lost out when it insisted on a pre-election policy of punishing all former collaborators and associates of Trujillo. It is said a great segment of the population—including the military establishment—felt itself threatened by such a policy and therefore came to regard Bosch as the lesser of two evils.

SOFT THEORY

The irony of the situation now is that Bosch, whose revolutionary party adopted a soft approach to the Trujillo issue, has asked for stiff confiscation measures against all who might have benefited—even indirectly—under the fallen tyrant.

Announcement of a new confiscation law drove anti-government feeling to its most dangerous peak. The uproar was but one of the many storms kicked up by the Bosch regime.

By word and deed the president seems to have contributed to unrest that has driven investment capital away and frightened American companies whose holdings are valued at $100 million.

He has accused the U.S.-owned South Puerto Rico Sugar Co. of conspiring against him. In a later speech he warned Dominicans never to do business with foreign oil companies. He singled out a Roman Catholic chaplain as the mastermind of an armed forces plot—a charge the church has asked that Bosch prove or retract.

The president's enemies point to this as evidence of strong sympathies for the extreme left.

COMMUNISTS

The president, in turn, has invited critics to point out the Communists said to have infiltrated his regime.

"There'll be no dictatorships and the Communists will not move forward at the end of this month. Pisceans may also find the need to rearrange some meetings and correspondence.

A little more diversity tomorrow; a spread of interests to suit the majority.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, VIRGO! Activity now picks up in your neighborhood, and your daily schedule will probably keep you busy. Watch out for some emotional involvement early next month.

Hard work continues to be necessary, with a possible last emphasis in the spring and late fall, then you can be relieved of these pressures on work and on health.

Your personal relationships may start to restrict your new personal freedom somewhat as a new cycle starts in the summer.

Some inspirational travel or creative contacts next year can give you a more optimistic outlook.

Sometimes it is very good for us to have a quiet period when we unwind and can then recharge our batteries to take us back into the struggle for survival.

President's Office Has Lobby View

The "control room" of the president's office in the new First National Bank building is located so that it furnishes a sweeping view of the lobby area. It also has easy access to other areas of the bank. The room carries the basic Indiana line carpet and walnut wall panels.

The president's walnut desk is so designed that it is available for visitors as well as the president's work area. Behind this table is a Rembrandt oil painting. The "Rider" is a hallway leads to private restrooms, or to a study area adjacent to the main workroom or to an exit.

The west walls are punctuated with some light contemporary prints which modify the depth of the walnut paneling. On the north wall is the Declaration of Independence. A brass vase and a glass vase are at either side, accentuating the console effect.

In one corner opposite the desk is a colored television set. The office opens on the north into an office separating it from the conference room. For privacy, the windows may be closed across the glassed-in front of the office.

Convenience, Security Marks Vault

Convenience as well as security marks the First National Bank vault.

The entrance to this massive structure is through the entrance of the bank and is flanked by a trust conference room and two customer companion rooms to facilitate examination of strong box contents.

The vault itself is enclosed in a grid of concrete 18 inches thick. It would be easier, its designers say, to get through the main door than through the walls of the vault. This would be going some for the massive door, which is made of steel and in is as thick as the walls. The door weighs a mere 8,200 pounds.

Immediately inside the door are the safety deposit boxes, some of them in five vaulting levels. They are accessible to the customers, and the room is carpeted and well ventilated for customer comfort.

A second part of the vault is for money storage. There is a battery of safety deposit boxes, and a teller funds. Then there are the ponderous money safes which operate on time locks. One of these served the West Texas National Bank, a forerunner of the present First National Bank.

The money vault is separated from the safety deposit area by steel bars. Thus, funds have the security of the vault walls, the massive main door, the steel bars, and finally the thick walls of the adjacent steel boxes.

Unique Wallpaper Features Money

A unique wallpaper, in India lime green, dominates the north wall of the lobby of the First National Bank building.

Part Of The Heart Of Bank Will Not Be Seen

Part of the heart of the First National Bank will never be seen by the average patron.

The room which contains the credit department, the bookkeeping department, and the auditing department, and the statement department, and the mechanical room. There are also the restrooms, and the waiting area.

The east end of the large room contains the credit department with its officers and battery of files. Next is the auditing department.

The printing department, and the equipment for supplying much of the form and other material the bank requires in such abundance.

Wood panel in the First National Bank is of unique type. It is walnut wellwood. This is a surface hand rubbed to give the surface a smooth, but iron walls as though it were a thick slab of walnut, was sanded, varnished and hand rubbed to give a rich, warm, and dignified appearance.

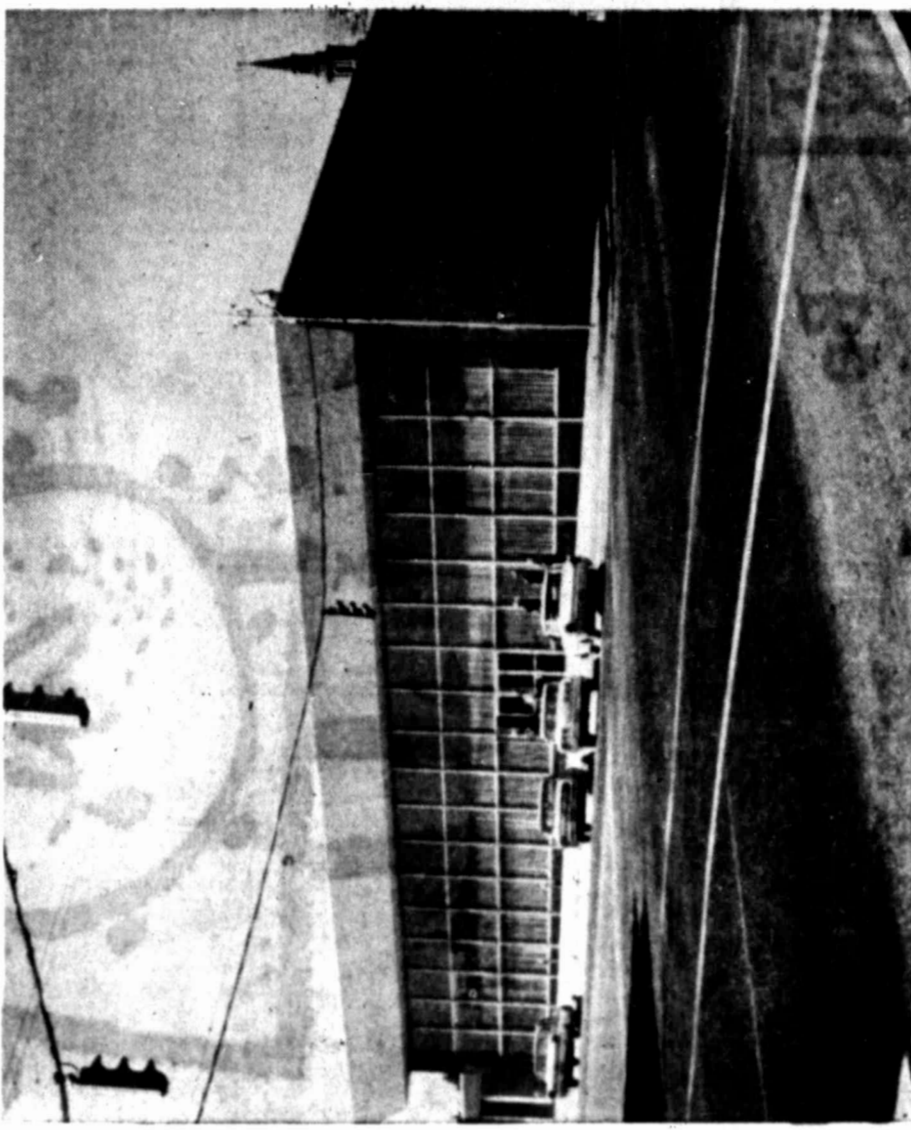

Matching schemes are used on most of the office tables.

Learned Ropes Without Salary

In the year 1917 Robert V. Middleton was waiting for Company D, 117th Supply Train to be mustered as a part of the 42nd Division. He happened by the office of P. Edwards, National Bank and Trust Co., and was introduced to the father of his boss, Maroon Edwards.

When Mr. Edwards learned of his plans, he urged him to wait. He referred to reports that men enlisting for World War I duty. Stay around the bank, run errands, do odd jobs and learn the ropes, he advised.

"Of course," said Mr. Edwards, "we won't pay you anything on an account of you won't be worth anything."

Bob Middleton did go to work for Maroon and that was his salary until he enlisted. After 16 months of service, he came home in the bank paying $75 a month.

Since school days he had been going with Louise Wheelton, and he wanted to get married. So he hit Mr. Edwards for a raise.

"Son," said the venerable capitalist, "we'll pay you more."

Middleton considered this and concluded his employers were in a position to best evaluate his worth. He never again mentioned salary to his boss.

He and Louise Wheelton have two children, Harry Middleton and Mrs. Charles Buckner, both of Big Spring, and five grandchildren.

Bob Middleton was born in Haskell County, Kan., and was reared in Pecos. He began punching cattle in 1914-15 as a rawboned young stocker and worked on several West Texas and New Mexico spreads.

When the family came to Big Spring, Mr. Edwards actually was familiar with loans before he ever thought of working for a bank. Mr. Edwards headed the West Texas

Bank's Director's Room Is One Of Most Striking

Perhaps the most striking room in the new First National Bank building is the director's room, located on the second floor near the top of the staircase.

Skill a cowpuncher at heart, he was one of the founders of the Big Spring Cattle Company and served several terms as Chamber of Commerce director and vice president, was campaign chairman and president of the United States National Bank. He was a member of the Masonic Order, including the Suez Temple of the Shrine, and is an elder and trustee of the First Presbyterian Church.

Simple elegance places 24 gold-leaf leather executive-style chairs in a semi-circle facing a walnut meeting table. Modern standing ash trays are conveniently located on the desk. A built-in desk holding two antique candle holders, a brass tankard and a ceramic eagle, all adding to the room's character.

On the wall is an original oil painting, a single chair painting, depicting a fall scene.

Learned The Trade By Running Errands

BETTY RAINS

Betty Rains studied for a career in homemaking and clothes design and became a bank official. It's not that she wasn't cut out for the job, but she was in demand for her style events. She married while in school and when her husband, Bernard Rains, got his degree and a job in Abilene, she went to work for the First State Bank at Abilene.

Actually, Betty Douglas Rains started working in Cole State Bank while still in high school. Reared near there, she began learning the trade by running errands, posting books, waiting on customers, and on rainy days, rolling coins.

She went to Denton to school, but a Rains came to Big Spring in 1951, and she was employed by the First National as assistant cashier.

She has been enrolled in the American School of Business and holds a certificate for the National Federation of the National Forum, a national chapter here, and is a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. As might be expected, one of her hobbies is sewing. She also loves to read, paint and do yard work at their home at 2205 Cindy Lane. Her complaint is that there is not enough time to do all she would like.

Banking has been interesting, sometimes exciting. Once she figured in a capture of a swindler. When a man opened an account with a check drawn on a New York office, she immediately got her about it. Immediately she got on the telephone and learned this "artist" was wanted widely. The case was turned over to the rangers, and one of the hardest things she ever did was to be calm while waiting a few days later. She signalled, the rangers moved in quietly on either side, and that was that.

Carries Out Decor Of New Facility

Many of the features of the new First National Bank building are designed expressly to carry out the decor of the handsome facility.

A case in point is the waiting area at the west end of the lobby and immediately in front of the entrance. This area is a custom made carpet bearing the bank's design of an India line eagle, surrounded by a circle of stars in the same color. An elaborate set of paper chairs, with a base of the area, and tables and lamps, together with single chairs, fill out the enclosure.

Still Working In Agriculture

"I'm still working with people in agriculture, which is the field of my first training," Jimmy Taylor remarked concerning his county agent position after many years as a county agent. Taylor joined the bank in October, 1961 as assistant vice president. He works closely with the bank's farm and ranch interests.

A native West Texan, Taylor attended public school at Roma and graduated from Texas A&M College in 1948 with a degree in animal husbandry. After one year as assistant county agent in Young County, he went to Pecos as county agent of Reeves and Loving counties.

He became Howard County agent in 1958, a post he held until joining the bank. Taylor has had an active record in community activities. He is past president and secretary of the Big Spring A&M Club, a past director of the Jaycees, a member of the Howard County South Plains Herdford Association, a director of the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, manager of the local American Institute of Bankers chapter and has completed his first year of the Southwest Graduate School of Banking at SMU, only the third man at this advanced training program. He has worked in the field of agricultural extension, Heart Association, YMCA and United Fund. At the Chamber of Commerce, he served on such committees as the agriculture, education, sports and recreation. Taylor is also active in the area of area development. As county agent, he was quite active in the Herdford Association, a director of the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, manager of the local American Institute of Bankers chapter and has completed his first year of the Southwest Graduate School of Banking at SMU, only the third man at this advanced training program.

Taylor is married to Mrs. Mary Taylor and they are members of the First Baptist Church.

Battery Of 15 Teller Spaces

There should be no lines at the First National Bank for a battery of 15 teller spaces dominates most of the south side of the spacious lobby.

Nor is this all, for the motor bank section on the exterior of the new building is all finished with Formica panels matching the terrazzo floor and are alternated with walnut panels. Counter height is designed for customer ease. Each teller has coin units for storing change, plus adding machine and other needed equipment. At one end of the work table is a slot where completed deposits may be dropped into a drawer which is opened from the inside of the teller's room immediately behind the teller.

The 24-foot wall behind the tellers is broken into alternate walnut and gold panel. Each of the walnut panels contains a door, over which are air registers set to maintain a horizontal line.

SINCE 1888

JOE P. ACKLEY

From Clerk To Asst. Cashier In Six Years

A relative newcomer to the First National Bank is Joe P. Ackley, assistant cashier and installment loan officer. He joined the bank in May, 1962, coming from a public school in Fortales, N.M., and has lived in eastern New Mexico and West Texas all his life. He attended Odessa Junior College.

His father, J. P. Ackley, began at the First State Bank in Monahans in August, 1927, as a file clerk. Through the next five years, he had worked his way up to cashier, when he left to take the post here.

Joe is active in the American Institute of Banking, chapter here, and has taken some of the local course offerings. Among community activities, he has been affiliated with the Kiwanis Club, the Jaycees and is treasurer of the Permian Basin Council of Girl Scouts. He is also a member of the Wanda Wolfe, Minutemen and the family is a member of the West Highway 80 Church of Christ.

Trust Room For Privacy

Small groups needing privacy for confidential or for discussion of legal or other matters will find the First National Bank's trust conference room handy.

It is located at the front of the bank just opposite the vault. Around the small conference table are five matching chairs, and a portable chair opposite a small telephone table.

Rising above a small walnut chest at one end is a long mural. Toward the side of this is a diagonal planter framed in marble.

The walnut panel walls are adorned with a will, executed in 1814, a quit claim deed, a letter of guardianship. The script is surrounded by red mat and black border. The front of the room is secured from the glass windows by light lime draperies.

Two Connected To Bank Founders

At least two of the directors of the First National Bank have direct connections with founders of two predecessor banks.

McGowan J. Frisco, a county rancher and prominent citizen who was one of the original directors of the First National, and then board chairman after merging with the West Texas National Bank.

Horace Garrett is the grandson of John Roberts, one of the original directors of the West Texas National, and of Mr. Robert Roberts, a prominent banker who also served as president of the board chairman following the merger.

Customer Convenience Is Built Into Bank's Design

Customer convenience is combined with clean, bright lines in the design of the new First National Bank building, which has been open house this weekend.

The bank was designed by George B. Daub, Dallas architect, and A. P. Kasch & Sons of Big Spring had the contract on a bid of $487,541.

Glass and aluminum front looks east on Main and covers the entire front of the structure. Inside, the customer may move easily to the teller windows on the left, or to the new accounts department of vaults on the extreme left, or even to the stairway leading to the second floor. To the right are the loan offices, first the installment department, the note department and the commercial loans. At the rear of the lobby are the conference room, back of the teller windows are the bookkeeping and proofing departments, and upstairs are the cotton office, directors' conference room, other offices, storage, lounge and telephone room.

Not seen, but important at some future date is a full basement for interior column covers. Parking provides for 62 customer cars, and the traffic stack for drive-in windows would take up to 60 cars.

There are flexible wall coverings, vaults on the extreme left, or even

Even Ash Trays Are Different

Even the ash trays are unique in the new First National Bank Building. Scattered throughout the commercial and installment loan department are small, modern ash trays, each with a different foreign made coins imbedded in them. The ash trays are a coin collectors delight and feature real coins from a variety of foreign countries.

In other areas, the ash trays are sterling silver with eagle handle decorations. The silver tray is set in a slab of walnut.

And near chairs and other customer areas are double inverted plastic ash trays. There are also ash trays in short, there are places of convenient places for the smoker who visits the bank. And most of them carry the theme of a banking establishment.

LESTER MORTON, BANK PRESIDENT

Found Banking To Be A Happy Development

Lester Morton had a ready-made job waiting when he came out of college, but World War II knocked it out and him into the banking profession.
"Today, from his position as president of the First National Bank, he agrees it was a happy development.
"Banking gives you a lot of satisfaction," he said, "particularly in helping some individual who is starting and seeing him grow and then take off to a successful career."
At any rate, it's a long piece from the cotton patch in Jones County to the attractive office in the handsome new building of the First National Bank in Big Spring, and as a lad of five his family settled near Hamilton where he completed school. He was determined to go to school and entered Hardin-Simmons University on a scholarship. That's about the way he stayed there, singing you wondering when to get on and off."

Nita Fielder, Abilene, and they have two children, Bill, 14, and Anne, 9. Their home is at 701 Capri in the new Coronado Hills addition.
Morton had his heart set on a career in recreation supervision and had a job in Big Spring. But the war was waiting, so he went off to Santa Ana, Calif. for basic training and frequently in Douglas, Ariz. Before he knew it, he was in the Southwest Pacific ship-bombing with a B-24.
"I put me under the tank," he said, "and finally Clark Field in the Philippines. He was given respite from his bombing and strafing by being sent back to the States to be checked out in another plane. The day he suited up in the old-fashioned C-47, he was under the tank."
Back home in Hamilton, he found his recreation job had become a war casualty. Tate May, president of the Bank, invited him to try working at the bank for six months to see if this interested him. "I came from training to cashier," in November 1949, he was called to Abilene to be cashier of the First State Bank. Six years later, he helped organize the American Bank of Commerce in Abilene, and he was named president.
When the presidency of the First National Bank here opened in 1950, directors went to Odessa and tapped him for the job. It was a surprise, but he immediately fell in love with the community and its people.
"I don't believe I ever saw as friendly a town," he said. "And in business you don't have those great peaks and valleys that leave

J. M. HATLER

Bank Career Launched With First National

J. M. Hatler launched his banking career with the First National Bank here in August, 1961. He is assistant cashier and one of three installment loan officers. A native of Grapeland, where he attended public school, he moved to Big Spring with the SIC firm where he has three years in the same position. He left that company to join the bank in August, 1958. He has become active in the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking and has taken some of the course offerings. He is a member of the Down Town Lions Club. Hatler married the former Dolores Estell of Grapeland and they have two young sons, Tammie Dawn 5, and Joy Currel, 4. Mrs. Hatler is a member of the First Baptist Church, where Hatler is an usher.

Strong Box May Have Been Bank's Beginning

A primitive strong box on display in the bank's vault may explain how the First National Bank got its start. The small, rugged box was used to haul gold and other money between Big Spring and Fort Worth. It belonged to J. C. Smith, a mercantile company and was usually well filled to meet the needs of this company in its business with ranchers and railroad families.

These pioneer people often left their funds in the Fishers' vault or had the store send them back East for cashing. Around the times when the railroad pay car came to town, the Fishers (after the trail money began paying by check) would make change when accounts were settled, or to cash the checks. At any rate, when the First National Bank was founded on April 19, 1890 "old timers" said it actually did not open for business until the following year. The first director was Joseph Fisher. (A grandson of Edward Fisher, still has one of the strong boxes used by the store and it is now on display in the new vault of the bank.)

W. H. Gilliland was listed as president of the bank which, according to records, was organized by F. W. James. He was organized by F. W. James, a hand in organizing many early financial institutions and business in West Texas. J. M. Walker was named cashier. On the board were Judge G. W. Walthall, J. C. Smith, Joseph Fisher, L. S. McDowell, Henry Pfaff, R. C. Sanderson, J. W. James, Edward Kent (or Edward Hart), J. I. McCord and others. Available records show the capital structure of the bank at that time.

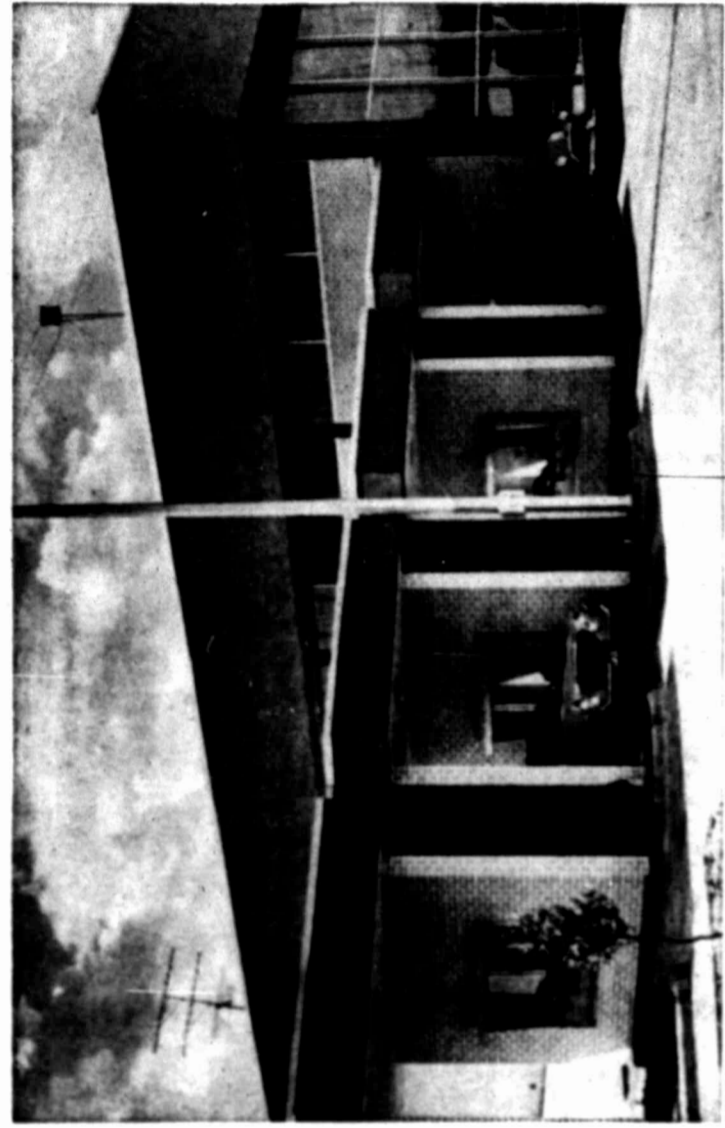

Customers To Have Handy Parking Area

Parking is handy for customers of the First National Bank. Of course, those making deposits and withdrawing funds are not the only ones who will find the new parking area handy. But for those who have business inside the bank, there is a block of paved parking area. The bank property encompasses over 100,000 square feet. The new parking area is about one-third with its 110,000 square feet. The area is required for the drive-in windows and approaches, leaving the remainder of the south side of the building for drive-in windows for customer convenience. In order to not deprive customers of any parking space, the bank has acquired another paved lot at the corner of Sixth and Second streets. Employees will have a place to park.

Mr. Reagan resigned as president and director Aug. 31, 1957. Mr. McDowell became president. T. J. Good was named temporary chairman of the board on Aug. 31, 1957. Cashier's Office Sets The Pace

The cashier's office of the new First National Bank is busy. All set for a pace for simple beauty of the bank's arrangement. It is surrounded by a small wall and rail supported on thin steel columns finished in the dominant India time. The cashier's chair in paper-rod is a walnut file desk. Over it is a H. W. Caylor original. The Starnpede. To the left of the cashier is a line of 15 teller windows. To his right is a typewriter. Behind the desk another for the electric typewriter.

Reba Baker Is Dean Of Bank's Employees

Reba Baker is about the first person to be seen on entering the First National Bank, and first to about the way she stands in the bank's family. Actually, she is the dean of employees, having 43 years of service. Her ready and genuine smile has endeared her to the staff as well as thousands of customers. Today she is vice president in charge of new accounts, and she has a chance to meet and help not only strangers, but to visit with the old timers who delight in a familiar face.

Born in Hill County, she moved with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Baker, to Big Spring in 1906. The day after high school graduation from Big Spring High School in 1919, A. E. Pool, president of the First National, offered her a job at the handsome figure of $40. Her father had died but she won him over. She was married in June 1924 to a young engineer, including recognition of bogus signatures here, and a couple of years later, she was called to Big Spring for a brief time. When they returned in 1927, the late Louis Price made her a teller. At a better figure. When the First National and West Texas National merged in 1931, she was named assistant cashier and head teller on Dec. 31, 1937. Directors elevated her to vice presidency on Jan. 13, 1953, and five years later she was named vice president. When the new accounts department was created, she was the natural choice. After two score years of bank.

Printing Dept. Is One Of Bank's Newest

One of the newest departments of the First National Bank is the printing department, located in the new building on the second floor. It also keeps the supplies for other departments.

All the printed forms used by the bank are printed here. In addition, the department, headed up by Mary Elder, does binding and scoring work where needed.

To handle its mammoth chore, the department uses two large offset presses, a perforator, stitcher, addressograph, graphotype, plate-making machine, plus test-presses for color registration. All are used in modern check-printing.

Negatives for the offset press are made by computer, and these are used by the bank shop to make the printing plates. There are two full-time employees and a part-time employee in this department.

Congratulations...

From Scratch To An Important Post

In half a dozen years, Charles Dunnam has risen from scratch to one of the most important posts in the First National Bank.

Although the youngest member of the staff of officers in the bank, he holds the high position of cashier and is one of the bank's most prominent record functions of the bank is as:

He did not start out deliberately to get into banking, but once his path turned in that direction, he followed it with complete dedication.

Dunnam, who is the son of Mr. Wm. C. W. Dunnam, of Big Spring, Texas, was graduated from Big Spring High School in 1957. He had been working part time for Toby's Food Stores and as part of his duties he frequently made deliveries to the school.

When he was a high school senior, he had received his high school diploma, a relative, who was a teller at the bank for a job. He did, however, ask why he didn't apply to the bank for a job. He did, and he is now in the bank.

not knowing much more than what a deposit slip was.

His first job was in the file room and soon he was performing small duties all over the bank. Then he was put in the proof department, then promoted to teller. He performed so well he was tapped out as assistant cashier.

When Jack Davis, who is now president and cashier, was asked to name a successor, he named Dunnam to vice president status. Dunnam was named last July to be cashier of the bank.

That was only five years after beginning, but they had been five busy years. Dunnam, who had earned the pre-standard and the standard courses, and now only lacks a couple of graduating from the series. This will be roughly the equivalent of a college degree in banking.

He is a member of the Southwestern Graduate School of Banking at SMU. Dunnam is vice president of the American Business Club, is also vice president of the National Association of Banking Auditors and Comptrollers, a past president of the AIB chapter, treasurer of the Bankers' Brotherhood. He is married to the former Joelle Reynolds and they have two children, Craig, 3, and Jill, 10 months.

Combines Work With Active Community Life

Jack Davis, vice president of the First National Bank since January, 1960, has combined a successful banking career with an active community life. Few community endeavors have not had his help since he made his home here.

Davis has chalked up an outstanding record in his chosen field of banking. A native of the Fort Worth area, he attended the University of Texas at Austin and Payne College. His first banking connection was the First National Bank in Borger. He was with the Comptroller of Currency four years at Austin, then was vice president of the First National Bank in Evans.

He came to Big Spring in January, 1957 as cashier of the First National. In January, 1960, he was named vice president.

Davis has had a singular part in the development of the American Bankers Association chapter here. He was one of the original JACK DAVIS organizers of the chapter in 1957 and was instructor for the first course the institute offered here. He has been instructor for Principles of Bank Operation and Bank Management.

In addition, Davis was the first employer of the bank to attend the Southwestern Graduate School of Banking at SMU.

His community activities have touched a wide spectrum of service. He is a director of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Ambassador's Club, a director of the Salvation Army and the Kiwanis Club. He has served in the Kiwanis Club, the Masonic

Wonders Why He Didn't Start Sooner

It took Louis C. Loe three decades to get into banking, and now he wonders why he didn't do it at the very beginning.

As an assistant cashier at the First National Bank, he wouldn't want any other kind of job.

Another interesting thing about Loe is that he was born in the town of Born near Rube in Haskell County where he finished school at Wellman. He had his roots in the soil and farmed until he was called into service in 1918, serving two years in the Army, he saw overseas duty in France.

When he was separated from service, Loe became an agent for National Life and Accident Insurance in Odessa, Texas, as a production clerk for Forest Oil Corporation, serving for 15 months before Southwestern investment Corporation made him a good offer. He was with SIC from January 1966 to October 1967, including about 15 months in Big Spring. He had been transferred back to Odessa, however, when he was elected to a position with the First National Bank here.

Loe is a member of the American Business Club and of the Church of Christ. When the American Institute of Banking courses get under way this month, he'll be enrolled, determined to learn more about his field. It's going to be his life from now on, he believes, even if he does get a hankering to get on a plow when a soaking rain comes in the spring.

Striking Mural Created For Cotton Loan Office

The most striking mural in the new First National Bank building is in the cotton loan office. It is a typical West Texas cotton field in the background. Workers are picking cotton in the foreground. The mural is a masterpiece of depth and color. Although the painting dominates the room, it also adds to the building's typical West Texas cotton theme. Carpets, green leather chairs and other furnishings are in the background.

Hung Up His Coat And Went To Work

When Clyde Angel, now vice president, applied to the First National Bank for a job, he was not on a hunger strike. He was on a hunger strike for another bank and came back to the First National by chance. After he had been in banking but a few days, he was asked to go to the Board in Rising Star where he was graduated from high school, Howard Payne and Hardin-Simmons Christian College, then to the credit department of J. M. Radford Grocery. One day a friend called from Big Spring to say there might be a job open at First National. He got on the train, found it and went to work. At R. L. Price's desk next morning.

CLYDE ANGEL
"Son, I don't know whether you want to work the kind of hours we work around here," said Mr. Price. "I don't know whether you want to teach school. Sometime later he happened to be going through Stanton and decided to look her up. He did, and in 1933 he and Annie Matt Tate were married. They have one son, Derry. This is the first year that Angel began keeping books at Methodist Hospital in Houston. Angel became a teller and then a vice president of the First National Bank. He was elected vice president in April 1961. Mr. and Mrs. Ream have two sons, Ricky, 16, Jerry, 13, and got on as a bookkeeper. He was promoted to teller and later as a cashier. Then in 1956 the Commercial State Bank in Houston called on him for a job. With the help of both the Boy Scout and Girl Scout first national council committees, is a director

Aptitude Test Led Him Into Banking

Pyote was once the terror of the Air Force. Officers threatened him with a court-martial. But R. J. (Dick) Ream can thank Pyote for a wife and a career.
Ream, vice president of the First National Bank, was born in Ephrata, Pa., where he was graduated from high school. When he graduated from Mississippi Southern at Hattiesburg with a BBA, he decided to go into banking. He was transferred to West Texas, and how he came to meet and marry Ruby Snyers. He spent two and a half years at Pyote, later was transferred to Nebraska. In 1946, he started looking for a job in the oil business. The industry was dull just at that time, and he applied to Conrad Dumanagan for an accounting job in Monahan.

R. J. (DICK) REAM
"Did you ever think of going into banking?" asked Dumanagan. All the aptitude tests he had taken pointed to banking. Ream came to Big Spring in April 1961. Mr. and Mrs. Ream have two sons, Ricky, 16, Jerry, 13, and got on as a bookkeeper. He was promoted to teller and later as a cashier. Then in 1956 the Commercial State Bank in Houston called on him for a job. With the help of both the Boy Scout and Girl Scout first national council committees, is a director

Try-Out Has Lasted For Fifteen Years

FAYE STRATTON

A telephone call in the middle of the night moved Mrs. Faye Stratton from her home at the First National Bank for a try-out. That was 15 years ago and she is still at that window. "I guess I work out," she says with a laugh.

Mrs. Stratton is one of the real oldtimers at the bank, having gone to work there in June, 1942, as a clerk setting up checks. Soon she was in charge of the check department, where she was manager of the bookkeeping department.

She moved to a teller's window next and was there about a year when the offer came for the exchange window, which processes travelers' checks and others. Meanwhile, in January, 1949, she became a bank officer when she was named assistant cashier. Through the years, she has maintained her friendly laugh and willing hand for the newcomers.

Mrs. Stratton is an active member of Banking and has taken three of the course offerings. Outside her bank work, Mrs. Stratton is a past president and charter member of the Altusia Club and the family are members of the Temple Baptist Church.

Mr. Stratton originally worked at and now has a collection agency. The couple has two daughters, Mrs. Dan Lewis, Big Spring, and Mrs. James L. Anthony, Phoenix, Ariz. There are six grandchildren.

Loan Departments Line North Wall Of Vast Lobby

Lending money and holding deposits comprise banking in the new First National Bank building. The various loan departments and the north wall of the vast first floor.

The installment loan department is located just inside the door on the right of the main entrance. The department has India line carpeting and paprika furnishings in a setting of walnut.

Three loan officers have offices separated by walnut dividers. Separating this department from the commercial loan department are the payment windows. This island complex is entirely walnut.

Officers in the colored painting department and there is ample cabinet space for the records of accounts, etc.

The commercial loan department is at the rear of the building in the rear of the building. The installment loan department is in the front of the building. The chairs are paprika red and gold. There are partitioned offices for four loan officers, and secretaries have functional matching desks.

All the desks and fixtures follow the loan department. Through-out the loan department, there is ample seating for customers, and ash trays are conveniently located.

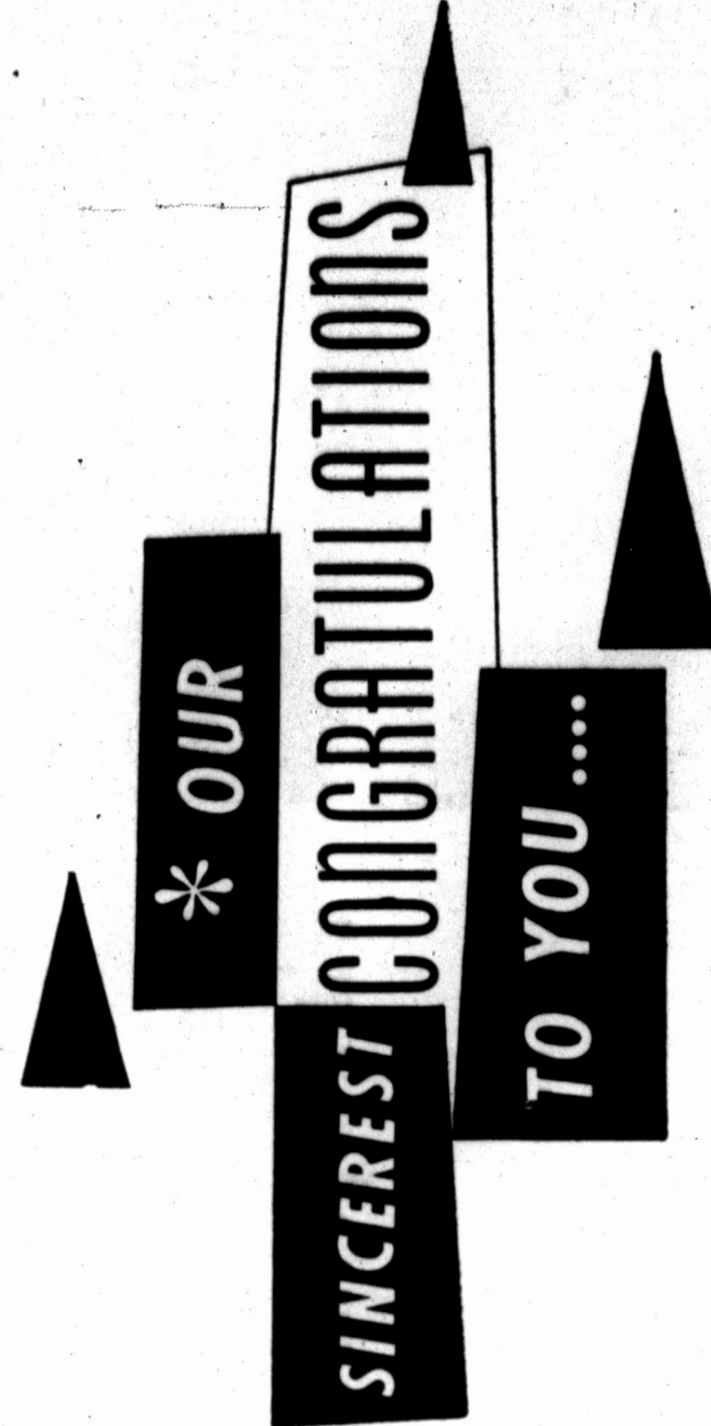

Grace And Beauty Describe Stairway

The front stairway of the First National Bank is a thing of grace and beauty. This spiral staircase is mounted on a pedestal of solid, re-enforced concrete base in flowing lines. Thus, each of the terrazzo treads is a work of art and visually distinct from the rest. The spiral staircase arches up over the lobby area. From the top of the stairway, the second floor is set with a rough terrazzo balcony rim. The treads and landings on the stairway weigh 300 to 400 pounds, giving an idea of its strength.

Colors Add To Bank Warmth

The bank that "has time for you" accentuates this warmth of feeling in its colors for the decor of the new First National Bank home. Carpets and draperies throughout are in India line, reflecting a carry-over of the solidity and stability of stone in the terrazzo floors, interior dashed terrazzo panels, and in the Formica table and counter tops which match the stone trim.

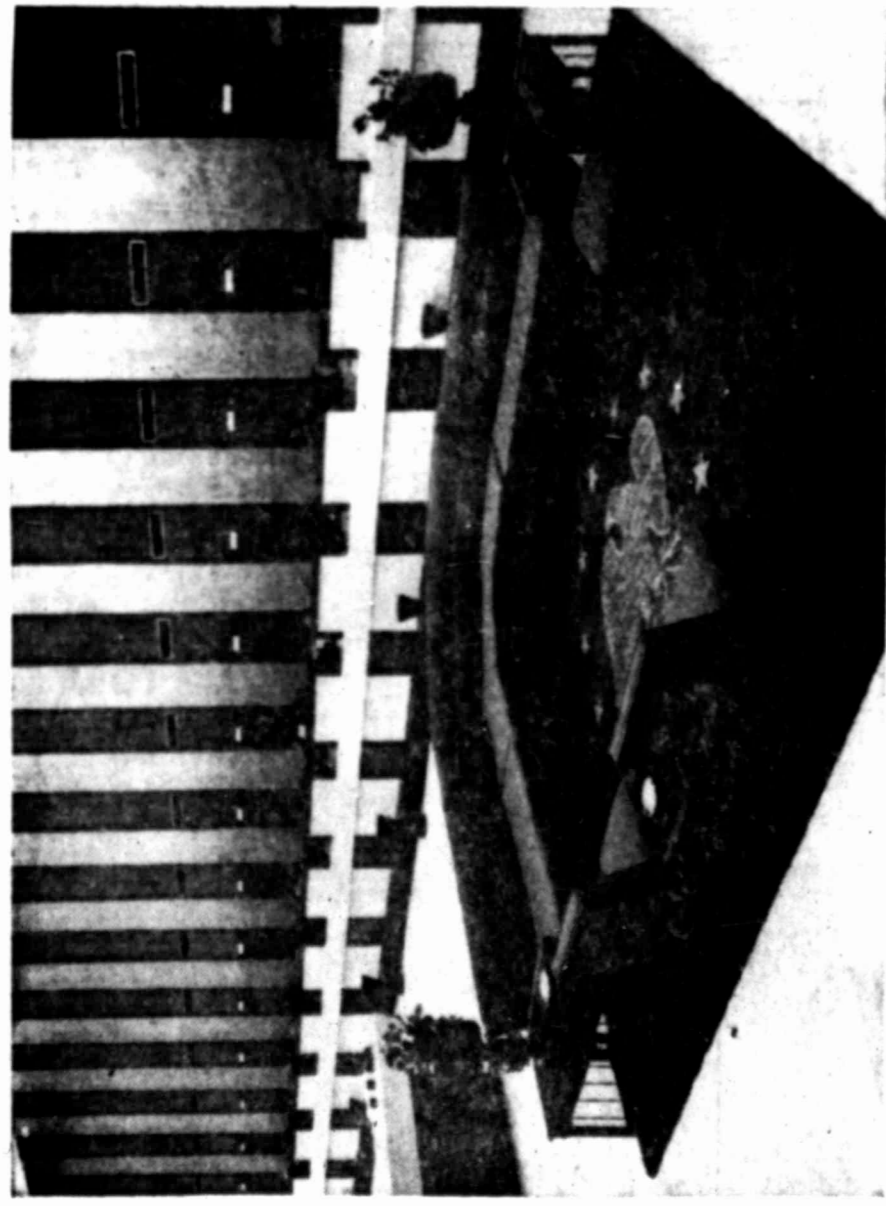

Throughout the bank, an atmosphere of friendly good taste is conveyed by paintings, etchings, panels and murals and antiques. The effect is practical elegance without ostentatiousness.

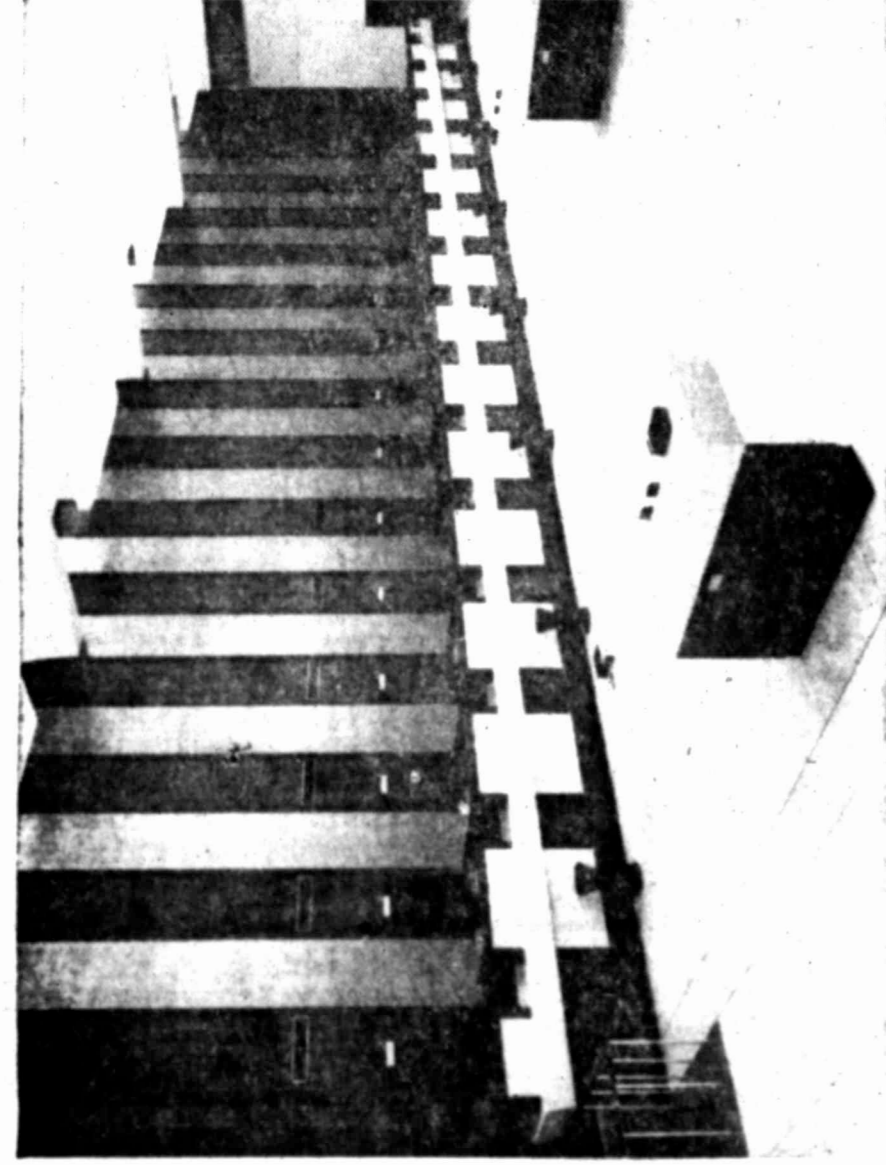

Welcome . . . to our neighborhood, and it is our privilege to be your neighbor. May we work hand in hand to better our community, county, and city's growth. Your new plant is truly an asset to our town. May you continue to grow to better serve the people in the Big Spring area.
