'64 Summit Meet Likely

WASHINGTON (AP)—A West-ern summit meeting in the early part of next year remains a possibility. High U.S. sources noted that North Atlantic Treaty Organization meetings include gatherings by government heads from time to time, and that four of the five big NATO powers—the United States, Britain, West Germany and Italy—recently have had changes at the top. President Johnson has tentative agreements for talks with French President Charles de Gaulle, British Prime Minister Alec Douglas-Home and West German Chancellor Ludwig Er-hard early in 1964. Precise arrangements for these meetings have yet to be worked out. One alternative is to have the leaders meet as a group. This possibility could be discussed at the NATO foreign ministers meeting starting in Paris Dec. 16. Proposals for such a top-level

Investigators Recreate JFK Death Scene

DALLAS (AP)—A gray convertible, similar to the black one in which President John F. Kennedy made his last ride, rolled past the Texas School Book Depository building. A man and woman sat in the back seat, just as President and Mrs. Kennedy did last Friday. Two men were in the front. Looking down on this scene Wednesday were investigators and a cameraman. They perched in the same window from which the fatal shots were fired. They were re-enacting Kenne-dy's assassination. EVIDENCE This was another phase of the step-by-step investigation into the tragedy that shocked the world. Officers continued to sift through the evidence today. An officer said the re-enactment was done "merely to get the sequence of events straight." Police accused Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, a Communist sym-pathizer, of firing rifle bullets into the head and throat of Kennedy. Oswald, who was killed before authorities finished question-ing him, had maintained throughout the interrogation that he did not kill the Presi-dent, or anyone else. IN SOVIET Oswald, who once lived in the Soviet Union, was felled by a bullet fired by Jack Ruby, a Dal-as night club operator. Ruby has been indicted on a murder charge and is in Dallas County Jail. Authorities have not said whether they had found any ties between Ruby and Oswald. FBI agents were in Laredo, on the Texas-Mexico border, Wednesday tracing Oswald's ac-tivities there and in Nuevo La-redo, Mexico. RECEIPT A Laredo clerk said the in-vestigators told of finding a re-ceipt from the store among Os-wald's personal belongings. The receipt was dated Sept. 26, co-inciding with the one on which Mexican immigration records in-dicate Oswald crossed into Mex-ico at Nuevo Laredo. He re-turned Oct. 3. The Houston Chronicle quoted an informed source as saying an agent of the Dallas office of the FBI tried to talk to Oswald two weeks before Kennedy was slain. Investigators have learned that Oswald and Ruby appar-ently were former neigh-bors, the Dallas News reported today. It said unnamed peace officers disclosed that a man matching the description of Os-wald once rented a room close to Ruby's home.

First Family Leads Memorial Holiday

Johnson Readies Talk To Nation

WASHINGTON (AP)—With worship, a family dinner at home and a Thanksgiving mes-sage to the nation, President Johnson observes today the hol-iday he has asked Americans to mark with memorial tribute to John F. Kennedy. Johnson, his wife and their two daughters planned to attend Thanksgiving Day services at Mt. Vernon Methodist Church in northwest Washington. At their home, the new Presi-dent and his family have Thanksgiving dinner. Navy En-sign Bernard Rosenbach, fiancé of daughter Lynda Bird, 19, is expected to join the First Family. TV MESSAGE Tonight, Johnson delivers a Thanksgiving message to the nation. It will be televised and broadcast from the White House at 6:15 p.m. EST. Johnson also scheduled a morning intelligence briefing at his home, and an afternoon fore-ign affairs conference at the White House. After returning Wednesday from Capitol Hill where he held

First Presbyterian Church sanctuary filled for union service

'Joy In Thanksgiving' Stressed At Union Service

"Joy in Thanksgiving" was the subject of the Rev. James A. Puckett, pastor of Baptist Temple, for the Union Thanksgiv-ing service at 10 a.m. today in the First Presbyterian Church. The service, sponsored by the Big Spring Pastor's As-sociation, was attended by around 500 persons who filled the new sanctuary. Rev. Puckett used three ver-ses of scripture in dealing with his subject, and in answering the question of "How can we have gratitude in our hearts in a time of sorrow like this na-tion experienced a week ago?" He cited I Thessalonians 5:18: "In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." Other verses were Matthew 11:25, and I Corinthians 11:24. Christ was upbraiding un-thankfulness and impotence. In Matthew, Rev. Puckett re-minded, when he said: "O Fa-ther, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and pruden-t, and hath revealed them unto babes." Paul was speaking on the Lord's Supper in his first letter to the Corinthians when he stressed thanks in referring to Christ's words, "And when he had given thanks, he brake it (the bread), and said, 'Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you; this do in re-membrance of me.'" "Thanksgiving, or gratitude, was reflected in the words for grace for Thanksgiving 129 times in the Bible. The word Eucharist was used 55 times." Rev. Puckett said that sor-row, as well as happiness, is often the basis for gratitude even if not immediately recog-nized. Dr. H. Clyde Smith, pastor of the First Methodist Church, presided over the services; the Rev. V. Ward Jackson, First Church of God, gave the in-vo-cation; Chaplain C. O. Hitt, Veterans Administration Hospi-tal, read the scripture. Thanksgiv-ing prayer by Rev. James H. Sharp, Wesley Methodist Mem-orial Church, and benediction (See SERVICE, P. 8-A, Col. 4)

Police Hunt For Abducted Colonel

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Police combed Caracas today for a U.S. Army officer kidnaped by persons identifying themselves as pro-Castro terror-ists. All exits from the Venezue-lan capital were blocked. Persons who said they were members of the outlawed Armed Forces for National Liberation—FALN—telephoned newspapers that Lt. Col. James K. Chenault, 47, Sherman, Tex., would be re-leased Saturday afternoon, on the eve of Venezuela's presiden-tial election. Chenault, deputy chief of the U.S. Army mission in Vene-zuela, was abducted by four armed teen-agers Wednesday as he was about to enter his car outside his home in the capital. Two hours later, the U.S. Em-bassy received a call from a man who said he was an FALN member. "We just want him for propa-ganda purposes," he said. "We are not going to harm him." The FALN has been waging a campaign of propaganda and terror to bring down the govern-ment of anti-Castro President Romulo Betancourt and disrupt Sunday's presidential election in which Betancourt's candidate is expected to win. It was Chenault's second per-sonal encounter with the FALN. He and his son, James K. Jr., 16, were at the U.S. Military

South's Flavor On LBJ's Table

WASHINGTON (AP)—What Mrs. Zephyr Wright, the Lyndon Johnsons' cook of 21 years, was planning to go with today's tur-KEY had a flavor of the South and Southwest prepare for Thanksgiv-ing. The dressing was to be made with corn bread. The dessert planned was ambrosia, a South-ern dish of orange sections, pineapple and coconut. The rest — "I imagine some-thing like dressing with glibet gravy, whipped sweet potatoes, French green beans amandine," said the cook. "And I usually have cranber-ry salad. Hot rolls, of course." When reporters asked her what time dinner would be served, she answered, "that's the $64 question."

A Beautiful U.S. Flag History

The history of the U. S. Flag is this week's feature in The Herald's AMERI-CANA DOCUMENT collection. It is on antiqued parch-ment, and will make a lovely item for framing. It is a part of our heritage that should be in every home. It sells at The Herald office (or you can order by mail) for only 26¢. Four other documents may still be had, at 26¢ each, or these four are put together in a special packet that sells for only $1.02. These are: The Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, the Star-Spangled Banner and the Prayers of Peter Marshall. Start your collection right now — you'll be proud of every document.

GOV. JOHN CONNALLY, WIFE NELLIE SEE NEWSMAN
First interview since shooting as executive recuperates in Dallas

'Horrible Tragedy' In Dallas Related By Rapidly Recovering Gov. Connally

DALLAS (AP)—"My God, what a horrible, horrible traged-y," Kennedy replied: "you should know, you sure can't." "And then we had just turned the corner. We heard a shot, I turned to my left. I was sitting in the jump seat. I turned to my left to look in the back seat. The President had slumped. He had said nothing. HIT BADLY "Almost simultaneously as I turned, I was hit and I knew I had been hit badly. I knew the President had been hit and I said, 'My God. They are going to kill us all.' "And then there was a third shot and the President was hit again, and we thought then very seriously. I had still retained consciousness but the President had slumped in Mrs. Kennedy's lap and when he was hit the second time—or the first time, it all happened in such a brief span—she said, 'Oh, My God! They killed my husband! Jack, Jack!' "And then after the third shot, and appreciate you, c a n the next thing that occurred, the Secret Service man said, 'Get out of here.'" "I think the man did what he intended to do—shoot both of us." Connally, recovering from chest, wrist and thigh wounds inflicted by a single bullet, granted the interview—his first since the shooting—to Martin Agronsky of the National Broad-casting Co. on a pool basis. The governor, a Democrat, was pale and obviously in pain at times during the 30-minute interview, viewed by other re-porters on closed circuit televi-sion. THOUGHTS He reflected on thoughts that have lingered in his mind while in the hospital. "There have been many, many subjects, and I just wonder. You wonder why all types of things, you wonder why his life was taken, why my life was spared," he said. "Maybe, Connally said, "that the President of the United States as a result of this great tragedy has been asked to do something in death he couldn't do in life. "And that is so shock and so stun the nation and the peo-ple and the world of what's hap-pening to us. "Of the cancerous growth that is being permitted to expand and enlarge itself upon the com-munity and the society in which we live, that breeds a hatred, a bigotry, an intolerance, an in-difference, a lawlessness. "That is I think really an out-ward manifestation of what oc-curred here in Dallas. It could have occurred in any other city in America. "It is nothing more than a manifestation of an extremism, on both sides that basically is the genesis of our self destruc-tion, if we are ever going to be destroyed." MEMORIAL Asked about a memorial for President Kennedy, he said there should be one. Connally said he hoped that if the American people build a monument "they do not do it in a sense of absolving themselves of the sins of which I think we all must suffer—for a lack of tolerance, a lack of understand-ing for the prejudice, the pas-sion, the hate and the bigotry that permeate this whole society in which we live. "That I think manifested itself here on Friday. I think this was only one facet of it. We see it in the bombings of five little chil-dren, five little girls in Bir-mingham. It happens elsewhere in the United States. TO PRINCIPLES Any monument, he said, should be one to patience, knowledge, tolerance, human understanding and dignity, free-dom of individual society that lives under law and under God, and where people can respect each other "notwithstanding that they disagree." Connally, a close personal and political friend of President Johnson, described the new President as "a person of many complexities."

Tippits Get $25,000 Gift

DALLAS (AP)—A man who received $25,000 for his color movie films of President John F. Kennedy's assassination gave that entire sum today to the family of police patrolman J. D. Tippit, slain by the man accused as the assassin of the President.

Abraham Zapruder, Dallas garment manufacturer, was filming the presidential motorcade and recorded the exact instant the President was shot.

Then, sobbing, his fingers slipped from the camera.

"I had intended for these films to be home movies for the future enjoyment of my family and friends. Now, from the revenue that has been offered for such a significant film, I wish to contribute to the well being

CHANGES BY LBJ

President Office Takes New Look

WASHINGTON (AP)—The presidential office doesn't look at all like it did last Thursday when John F. Kennedy left it for a tragic trip to Texas.

With one exception, that is. At one end there still is what you might call a reception center for distinguished visitors, with the sofas, coffee table and a rocking chair facing the fireplace.

But it isn't the rocker that Kennedy and his ailing back helped make famous. This is a new one that White House officials said Johnson brought from home.

The cocktail table in this intimate little grouping has a white marble top. The old one was walnut. The telephone now is on an end table at the end of a sofa rather than on the edge of the coffee table.

Otherwise there is little that remains to remind anyone of Kennedy. That is true partly because of some Kennedy decisions, rather than Johnson changes.

A redecorating had been planned to start and finish while Kennedy was in Texas. That has been carried out. In the Kennedy days there was a light green sculptured rug on the floor, with the presidential seal. A brilliant red one has taken its place. The White House said Kennedy picked it out.

The walls have been repainted to a bone-white, lighter than before. White draperies, edged in red, and white mesh curtains hang at the windows.

Former Navy man Kennedy had models of ships and prints of naval battles around the place in profusion. His desk was an ornately carved black piece made from the timbers of a British ship.

All these are gone, along with other Kennedy knickknacks and mementos, such as the plastic-encased coconut shell on which he carved a message for help after the PT-boat he commanded in World War II was sunk by a Japanese destroyer in the Pacific.

Johnson has a few mementos around on tables and bookshelves—a scroll and quill awarded him by national business publications and a plaque from the American Heart Association—for a man who suffered a heart attack in 1955.

There are pictures of his mother, wife and daughters on desks and tables and one of himself and Kennedy in color on a bookshelf.

The shelves are only partly filled with books, mostly sets of volumes of writings and papers of presidents.

There are copies of Kennedy's "Profiles in Courage" and "The Strategy of Peace," of former President Harry S. Truman's two volumes on his White House years and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe."

The biggest thing in the room was the new desk to replace the Kennedy desk that is expected to wind up at the Kennedy Memorial Library at Harvard University.

The Johnson desk is twice as big, a light mahogany, with an open kneehole and minus the "secret panel" that was the delight of Kennedy's son John Jr.

Learned Style Sense From Her Stepmother

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD — "I lost 15 pounds before I started working in 'Sunday in New York,'" Jane Fonda stated. "I wasn't fat, but the wide screen exaggerates the figure. I have no trouble reducing because I learned the rules when I was in my teens.

"I wasn't a fatso but my extra pounds all gathered in my hips. Dresses had to have full skirts or I couldn't wear them. I was more interested in horses than I was in my figure or fashion and any suggestions that I reduce fell on unreciprocated ears.

"Then I had a new stepmother with a wonderful style sense. Her clothes were so beautiful that I found myself getting interested in fashion. She had great influence on me and I'm grateful to Susan for exposing me to good taste; it rubbed off. She used to take me shopping and was very clever about it. She would admire a sheath dress that she knew I couldn't wear. Soon I wanted to trim my hips, and it was then my first rule for dieting was formed. You need a specific goal. A vague wish isn't enough."

We were lunching at MGM, and Jane studied the menu thoughtfully before she ordered a plate of cold sliced chicken and Swiss cheese.

"I'm on a health kick," Jane admitted. "I'm fascinated by Adele Davis' book, 'Let's Cook It Right.' Food tastes better when you don't overcook it or use too much water. And it is so much better for you because the vitamins and minerals are not lost."

"I shop in health stores and I have gone in for wheat germ, buckwheat and lots of raw vegetables. We acquire our early eating habits from our environment, and if we stop to examine them we usually discard them and discover new ones.

"My second rule for dieting is purely personal. I don't eat anything before I go to bed. It's food you don't burn up that makes you gain. I try to have my main meal early in the day. It takes the struggle out of losing weight and the pounds go faster. You can train your stomach and you will find you are hungry before breakfast, which is one meal you know you are going to burn up. It makes sense to eat like an emperor for breakfast, a king for lunch and a pauper for dinner. "The third and last rule is to reduce your appetite. When you habitually eat less, your stomach shrinks and you are satisfied with less. Most people eat more than they need, and this surplus food is what keeps them from losing weight. I don't like to think about dieting, so it's much more pleasant to use discipline before I need it. "I walk a lot in New York. (Jane makes her home there.) And there is no question in my mind that exercise keeps your muscles toned. It also helps burn up excess calories, which you wouldn't use if you were sitting still."

Here's a can-cat that's guaranteed to provide fun for the gift-giver and the receiver as well. Cover sides of an empty soft drink can with colored paper or fabric securing it with tape. Blow up a pussy-cat balloon, knot it and attach to the top of the can. Draw a vest on the can and color it, and make a bow tie from paper in a contrasting color. For extra touches, add real buttons. table. Ornamented with fruit, it was based in chrysanthemums and ivy. Ivy streamers, sweet gum balls and pine cones extending from the candle centering the length of the U-shaped tables.
In keeping with the Thanksgiving event, held at Coker's Restaurant, Mrs. Loyd Wooten presented a program which included holiday poems. They were "Small Thanksgivings," "Little Blessings," "Sounds of Thanksgiving," "Thanksgiving," "I'm So Thankful," "My Thanks Come Easily at Times," "Thanksgiving Thoughts," and "And As We Pray," a prayer by Robert Louis Stevenson.

PLANS FOR DAY
Afterward each member told briefly what she would do for Thanksgiving. Some told of plans to attend Thanksgiving services and be at home, while others planned to have visitors or be away for the day.

Mrs. G. T. Orenbaum said that she and her husband would have their nephew, Capt. Ronald R. Knaus of Carswell Air Force Base, as their guest for Thanksgiving. Mrs. E. E. Brindley would be with her husband and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee and daughter in El Paso for the holidays; the C. R. Rhoads and family, in Abilene, Decatur and Greenville through Sunday; the G. C. Broughtons Jr., having guests, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wise, Big Spring, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wise Jr. of Hobbs, N.M.

Also, Mrs. Homer Petty planned to be in Midland with her sister, Mrs. L. J. Sheen, and family; Mrs. M. J. Stratton, having her daughter, Mrs. Dan J. Lewis, and family as guests; Mrs. W. U. O'Neal, having guests, her daughter, Mrs. Dayton Elam, her husband and son, Paul, from Seminole, and a niece, Mrs. R. T. Winn, her husband and sons, Robert and Tim, for the day.

The club was reminded of the Christmas party and dinner slated for Dec. 9 at the home of Mrs. A. C. Bass, 106 Washington Blvd.

Former Residents Will Visit Here
Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Carr of Washington, D.C., formerly of Big Spring, are expected to arrive Friday to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Belda. Also at the Belda home for the holidays are their daughters, Diane and Bonnie, students at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth.

Spring Season Set For The Bauble Fancier

AP Newsfeature
Spring will be a big season for the bauble fancier, according to the more than 300 manufacturers who displayed their costume lines at the United Jewelry Show here.

Beads will take on carved looks in plastics and imported glass, and in many baroque shapes. There will be satin raffles and luminous colors. Pastel plastic beads will be combined with dark wooden beads. Insects will be everywhere as enamelled and painted pins, pendants, even as earrings. Floral motifs, also painted enamel, will have competition from equally colorful enamel garden vegetables.

Still in the style picture is the jingle jangle bracelet, with warty charms reminding the wearer to hang onto her charm by counting her calories.

Nominations To Be Reported

A new nominating committee was appointed for the Faculty Ma'am's, Howard County Junior College, Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Rex Hopkins. Those named to the committee were Mrs. Ben Johnson, Mrs. L. L. Lewis and Mrs. John Clements. They will report in January on new officers who will take over in February. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Bruce Frazier.

Refreshments were served to 12 members.

Lilly Dache's Message Told

Mrs. J. E. Hogan was guest speaker when the Business and Professional Women's Club met Tuesday night at the Wagon Wheel Restaurant for a dinner meeting. Mrs. Hogan reviewed a book by Lilly Dache to convey her message on the subject, "Personal Development."

In a short business session, the club laid plans for a Christmas party Dec. 10.

Carters Visit In Harlingen Home

Mr. and Mrs. Al Carter left this morning to spend the Thanksgiving holiday with her sister and family in Harlingen.

Make Holiday Trip Handkerchiefs Disappearing

Leaving yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Larson Lloyd and son went to Dallas for the Thanksgiving holiday and weekend. They will visit in the homes of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. McAdams, and his daughter, Mrs. Ray Adams, and family.

Ladies have given up their handkerchiefs for cleansing tissues. Now men are turning to plastic pocket handkerchiefs. One company offers two styles. The valet peak has four little corners neatly arranged.

The Ivy League is a crisp rectangle of white above the pocket.

Since it is plastic, the hanky never needs laundering and can be wiped clean with a damp cloth. It also contains a hiding place for a handy comb and nail file.

For the man so successful he is above fashion criticism is the executive handkerchief, otherwise known as the hanky-panky. It is a 17-inch square red bandanna billed as "100 per cent Wash and Blow."

Ingenious Women Do Carry Out Whimsies

By KATHLEEN DOZIER
Women are whimsical, ingenious creatures, and occasionally their whimsies and frivolousness strike a happy medium. When necessary they can conjure up magic that old Merlin never thought of even in his wildest moments of conjuring.

There is a bit of magic in which many of you are interested, particularly at this time of the year when an aura of festivity prevails. Spoken of frequently these days, it is shoe art which transforms the all-but-cast-off shoe into a thing of beauty. Not only is the rejuvenated footwear lovely to look at but it is practical.

This season's local formality introduces long-skirted attire for evening wear. So beneath their hems what could be prettier than shoe tips of matched fabric or blended color. This effect can be achieved with marketed colors—some with a sudeing process—or the covering technique, using a chosen fabric.

HOLIDAY SLIPPERS
If you are an accomplished seamstress and have made your special ball gown, likely there is enough extra material for covering the slippers. These, by the way, should be comfortable opera pumps, worn somewhat but basically functional. If yours is a regal creation, purchased for partying, then the material possibly can be matched or complemented.

Mrs. Neil Norred used a light blue, metallic brocade fabric and a pair of opera pumps to demonstrate step by step instructions for covering shoes. Articles essential for work include the fabric, scissors, hat glue, finger nail file, a case knife or similar instrument, straight pins and of course, a pair of shoes.

Mrs. Norred's talents are many including that of millinery. Unquestionably millinery is a favored hobby. There are numerous smart chapeaux to prove it. She works well with her hands, and her flare for originality is exceptional. Putting aside a chic cloche, then in the finishing stages, she proceeded to give step-by-step instructions for covering shoes.

TOOLS FOR WORK
First she gathered the necessary tools for work. With the case knife she loosened and separated the sole and heel from the upper shoe. In the same manner she carefully separated the lining from the inner heel.

Finding the bias of the material she cut an oval large enough to completely cover the upper shoe including the top opening. Using the first oval as a pattern, she cut the second oval before continuing.

Placing the oval over the shoe she molded it to fit and then trimmed the edge to within a fraction of an inch of the sole, leaving enough to be inserted between the sole and upper shoe. Working deftly, Mrs. Norred reached for the pin cushion and began to anchor the fabric in the cavity between the sole and upper shoe.

Next she began at the toe, working back toward the heel, sparingly spreading the hat glue and inserting the fabric (about one or two inches at a time) between the sole and upper shoe. The blunt end of a fingernail file works nicely to press the rough edges into place. When both sides of the shoe were covered, Mrs. Norred cut the back, leaving it loose until the top was trimmed. A circular piece was cut from the middle of the oval, leaving about one-half or one-quarter of an inch around the edges. She then clipped the edges, applied glue and folded them to the inside of the shoe. As she did this, Mrs. Norred smoothed and pressed the fabric to the shoe.

BACK FINISH
Next she trimmed the back edges, gluing one side flat to

Shoe Magic

There's no wand waving, but covering shoes is almost that simple once you learn the knack of it. Mrs. Neil Norred, shown in the upper and lower pictures, has a way with the cloth, scissors and glue when she begins to set the fabric in place. She applies the glue, whisks the fabric end into the sole area and then presses it fast with the aid of a knife or nail file. Mrs. Norred worked and talked, offering instructions for giving old shoes new life with only a swatch of material and a little time.

the shoe. The other edge was folded under and glued at the center back to form a neat seam.

Mrs. Norred cut a triangular piece of bias material, shaping it to the sides and back of the heel as she was cutting. After inserting glue and fabric edges into the grooves just as she did at the sole, she turned the rough edge under and glued it flat just above the heel tap.

Finally, a flattened piece of bias tape of the same fabric shade was glued over the rough edges on the inside of the shoe. A tap or two with the hammer secured the loosened heel, and the shoe was finished. In one evening a pair of "new" shoes was on the closet shelf.

Practical And More Costly Features Noted
The age-old conflict between comfort and practicality seems to be solving itself in the instance of ladies' lingerie even before it has gotten a good start.

Perfect techniques with stretch cottons promised non-cutting shoulder straps, as well as bras and slips that give with body expansion and still retains its shape.

However, these dandy features seemed to rule out any aesthetic treatments, such as lace. Recently the lace industry corrected this impression by announcing that it has also found a way to put a little give and take in its fancy fabric.

Still, the stretch lace on stretch lingerie will require a stretched budget for the woman who wants it. The lace itself costs twice as much as the already old fashioned non-stretch kind.

Thanksgiving Theme Emphasized By Club

A Thanksgiving program, planned by Mrs. Al Grill, was presented to the Toastmistress Club Tuesday evening at the First Federal Savings & Loan Bldg. The president, Mrs. Larson Lloyd, made the welcoming address.

Mrs. Charles Head served as timer, and Mrs. Richard Zenger conducted table topics on Thanksgiving traditions. A new member, Mrs. A. K. Halverson, was inducted, after which the group accepted changes in the by-laws as presented by Mrs. E. F. Sieja. A slate of officers for the ensuing term was submitted by the nominating committee.

Mrs. Lewis Vale, toastmistress, introduced Mrs. John Bold who spoke on "Thanksgiving." Her talk was followed by the lexicology drill conducted by Mrs. Lee Rogers. Mrs. Joseph Johnson served as evaluator with Mrs. Hank McDaniel, general evaluator. The closing thought was given by Mrs. Dick Wilson.

Members were reminded of the Christmas dinner and party with the Toastmasters Dec. 10 at 7 p.m. in the ballroom of Cosden Country Club.

Presents Musical Program

"Concerto Americana" was presented Tuesday evening in the parlor of First Methodist Church for members of Reba Thomas Circle. The hymns of Thanksgiving were piano selections presented by Miss Susan McNary and Miss Dana Rose.

Miss Rose accompanied her mother, Mrs. Roy Rose, as a meditation was read to the "Hymn of Grateful Praise." Mrs. Cieta Faye Fryar read "A Dream in Asia" and showed a film taken in southern Asia.

A report on the general meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service was given by Mrs. Bert Shive. The Christmas coffee will begin at 9:30 a.m., Dec. 10, in the church parlor. Members were urged to invite guests.

The next regular meeting will be Jan. 14 at the church.

Culture Stated For Pot Plants

Much information is condensed in such forms as lists of plants suited to a cool or a warm greenhouse, with through-the-year growing instructions, to capsule paragraphs on the main cultural needs of scores of different plants.

For example, gardeners are advised to keep mature geraniums, being held over for the winter, in as small pots as possible, but to renew the worn-out soil.

Essential cultural requirements are: full sun; pruning to promote bushy growth; tight potting; rather low humidity (geraniums are not tropicals); a firm but not cemented potting soil; and watering as needed—maybe twice a week, or only once a week in dull weather.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Bud Vase Problem Has Simple, Easy Solution

Dear Folks:

We have received many inquiries on how to remove moisture from the inside of bud vases, etc. Naturally the inside cannot be hand dried.

The best solution we have is to cut narrow strips of paper toweling or newspaper, and insert one end into the vase, leaving the top end of the paper sticking out of the neck.

The paper will absorb the moisture and prevent condensation. Be sure to let the paper dry thoroughly before removing it. This prevents its tearing off inside of the bottle, bud vase, or decanter. By trial and error and 10 days of experimenting, this is the best answer we have come up with.

HELOISE

If you feel like having potatoes salad some afternoon and do not have time to boil potatoes... did you know that a can of those tiny cooked potatoes can be used? Drain the liquid from the can and proceed with your favorite recipe.

The salad does taste a bit better if you let it chill before serving.

Before scraping new potatoes I suggest that you soak them one hour in salted cold water. Not only does the skin peel off easily but the hands are not stained... Mrs. Edna Lehmen

Dear Heloise: After having to call a repairman to remove a little baby sock from my washing machine, I hit on a fabulous idea to save more repair bills:

I take all of my baby's stockings and tuck them inside an old nylon stocking of my own and tie a knot in the end. (One could use a safety pin.)

I throw this "bundle" in with my whiteclothes each time I do a batch of laundry. After the nylon stocking containing the baby socks has spun dried (and wringer type won't make a bit of difference, go on and run it through the wringer) I remove it from the machine and, leaving the little stockings in it, shake it a few times and throw it across my clothes line or put it in my dryer until dry.

By drying these little socks in a dryer, or on the clothesline, while they are in the nylon stocking, they refuse to become lost, do not get tangled with other items of clothing or get separated. This is the answer... Mother

Dear Heloise: I would like to add my thanks to the woman who suggested cleaning ovens with ammonia, but I have found a way to hurry up the process if you don't want to leave it over night.

Bring a pan of water to a full rolling boil, place it in your oven and then add the ammonia. Wait only a few hours. Then wipe it out... Mrs. George Hanner

Dear Heloise: My six-month-old daughter spits up excessively and for this reason I have had to think up some time-savers which I thought I might pass on to other mothers.

Instead of staining my clothes and other peoples, I always carry around what I call "burp" towels to catch those spit-ups. These can be made, or one can use fingertip towels in pastel colors. These fingertip towels make excellent shower gifts for expectant mothers when you embroider "Burp me" on each one.

To get those milk stains out of baby clothes I always run my baby's clothes through a cold rinse before washing them... Judy McD.

DEAR ABBY
For Comfort
-Or Else?

DEAR ABBY: About six years ago my husband hurt his back in an accident. He wore a back brace for a while, but he quit wearing it because he said it was heavy and uncomfortable. When he tried on an old corset of mine I thought he was clowning, but he wasn't. He wore it to work one day and said his back never felt better. When I saw he was serious, I bought him a new one. It's been two years and he continues to wear a lady's corset. The worst part of it is that he has started to wear nylon stockings, saying it helps to keep the corset down. His doctor has examined him and has seen these undergarments. When I asked him about it, he told me it wasn't any of his business what his patients wore. Should I stop worrying about this?

GRAND ISLAND
DEAR GRAND: There are corsets (without garters) on the market for orthopedic purposes. If it's back comfort your husband wants, he can buy one. As for the nylon stockings, that is where your husband put his foot in it!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is very jealous and this is one of our typical arguments. When we go out for an evening to a place where there is dancing, and friendly strangers ask me to dance, shouldn't I dance with them? I have always been taught that it isn't polite to refuse. My husband says this can lead to trouble and it isn't proper for a woman to dance with strangers. What is your opinion?

NOT SURE
DEAR NOT: Your husband is right. When left alone, would you like him to dig up another partner?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for two years. We decided when we got married that we would not have any children until we had been married for five years. Lately we have not been getting along at all. He has become very moody and irritable, and I admit I have not been easy to live with either. We seem to be drifting apart. A very wise friend of mine advised me to get pregnant on purpose as soon as possible - that a baby would save our marriage. What do you think?

LOSING HIM
DEAR LOSING: And what if the baby DOESN'T save the marriage? You'd be ahead to get some counseling from your clergyman or a marriage counselor, and ignore your ill-advicing friend.

DEAR ABBY: What do people have against plumbers? I am tired of hearing educated people say: "A PLUMBER earns more!"
Don't people know that in order to become a plumber a man must start out as an apprentice at a very low wage, and attend night school for five years? And when he graduates he receives a diploma just like a college graduate, which entitles him to go out and work for $4.61 an hour. Sincerely,
A PROUD PLUMBER

No Turkeys Mentioned For First Thanksgiving

By SAM BLACKBURN
The traditional symbolic picture of the first Thanksgiving Day is of a portly Pilgrim father, in full Pilgrim regalia, bearing a blunderbuss under his arm and carrying a fat turkey over his back.

That First Observance

Our harvest being gotten in, our Governor sente four men out fowling that so we might, after a more special manner, joyce together after we had gathered the fruit of our labours. These four, in one day, killed as much fowl as, with a little help besides, served the company almost a week, at which time, amongst other recreations, we exercised our armes, many of the Indians coming amongst us.

And amongst the rest, their greatest King, Massasoit, with some ninety men, whom, for three days, we entertained and feasted. And they went out and killed five deer, which they brought to the Plantation, and bestowed on our Governor and upon the Captaine and others. And although it be not always so plentiful as it was at this time with us, yet, by the goodness of God, we are so far from wante that we often wish you partakers of our plenty.

-Letter from Winslow to Friend in England, 1621.

which were in short supply. NO DEFINITE DATE. Regardless, sometime either early in November or late in October (none of the written records pin the date down exactly) the Pilgrims ignored their thinly stocked cupboards and the "government," as the letter from Winslow puts it, sent out four men to kill waterfowl to provide part of the food for a "rejoycing" at having gathered the fruits of their labors. The hunters came back laden with duck and geese enough to feed the colony for a week. As a gesture of good public relations, the governor invited King Massasoit to the feast. The king showed up, all right—bringing with him 90 hungry Indian braves. The Indians, being smarter than the early history books credited them with being, looked over the larder and hid themselves into the woods. They killed five deer which they returned to the colony and vastly increased the food supply. The menu sounds tasty enough—it had to be since the celebration went on for three whole days—venison, roast duck, roast goose, clams, other shell fish, succulent eels, white and corn bread, leeks, water cress, other "sallet herbes" and with wild plums and dried berries as and that the swiftness of these birds on foot was a source of amazement to the colonists. The upshot of that first celebration in 1621 was that it was so enjoyable it was made an annual fall affair with the colony and continued for many years.

ADOPTED IDEA
The New Englanders adopted the idea with modifications (including the happy invention of pumpkin pie and the equally pleasant discovery of cranberry sauce) and it became a New England custom of each fall through the early days of the American nation.

As the New Englanders moved west, they carried the custom with them. However, insofar as the holiday is concerned as a national event, this is its 100th anniversary. It was in 1863 that President Abraham Lincoln, in a time when the nation was in the throes of a bloody civil war, proclaimed that there should be a day of "thanksgiving." Since then, the holiday has been generally observed over the many "turkies" in the forestation.

WINE

For drink, the records relate, the stern Pilgrims and their savage guests washed down their food with copious gulps of wine, both white and red, "home" made from wild grapes. A Pilgrim chronicler writes that the wine was "very sweet and strong."

As to turkey, some historians believe that perhaps the big American bird was a part of the meats for that first Thanksgiving. The writers who were at the feast mention all other wild game served but make no reference to turkey. In other records of the time it is commented there were many "turkies" in the forestation.

Johnson Handed China Challenge

TOKYO (AP) — Red China has thrown down the gauntlet to President Johnson. He faces the prospect of stepped-up warfare in South Viet Nam and Laos and possibly new crises in Korea and Cambodia.

The Peking regime has made it clear it is determined to probe for any sign of U.S. uncertainty or weakness in Asian policy following the death of President Kennedy.

The Chinese swiftly denounced Johnson as a supporter of Kennedy's "various reactionary policies." This has been followed by hostile appraisals of Johnson from North Viet Nam and the pro-Communist Pathet Lao of Laos.

VIRULENCE

North Korea has not reacted officially to the American change of leadership. But it has stepped up the virulence and volume of its anti-U.S. campaign.

The war in South Viet Nam is a prime proving ground for China's tough revolutionary theories.

North Viet Nam, which directs and assists Communist subversion in the south, quickly announced the fighting would continue as it had when Kennedy was directing U.S. assistance to South Viet Nam's anti-Communist forces.

To underline this threat, the Viet Cong guerrillas mounted powerful attacks on strategic hamlets in the south, dealing the young military regime some of the heaviest blows of the war.

ALL DOUBTS

In Laos, the Pathet Lao Tuesday removed all doubts about where its allegiance lies. Once supported by the Russians, it now echoes Peking's line.

The Pathet Lao radio said: "The U.S. imperialists will continue their policy of intervention in Laos and become more inflexible. Under such circumstances the Laotian people should never harbor any illusions about Johnson. No matter who becomes president, the nature of U.S. imperialism remains unchanged and its policy will continue to be aggressive and bellicose."

Child Learns Of Giving— Donates To JFK Helpers

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Patricia Pefley, 7, learned about giving when the subject was discussed in church Sunday.

Friday, after she was told in school that President Kennedy had been shot, she came home and told her mother she wanted to do something to help the people who had helped the President.

Parkland Hospital in Dallas, Tex., received the following letter Tuesday, printed in pencil on school tablet paper:

"Dear President of the Hospital: Here is a dollar. Thank you for taking care of our President Kennedy when he was hurt. I am very sorry that he had to die. I hope this will help take care of other people."

Patty's mother, Mrs. John W. Pefley of suburban Carmichael, said it would take her daughter about six weeks to save that much money from her weekly 25-cent allowance.

"She works very hard for it. She makes her bed, clears the table, rakes leaves, sweeps the porch and helps put away groceries," Mrs. Pefley said.

"She decided what she wanted to say. I just helped her with the spelling. She is given to gestures like this. You give her some money and she thinks she wants to do something nice for you."

Cattle Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department predicts that close to 107 million head of cattle and calves will be on farms Jan. 1, about 3 per cent above a year earlier.

Rockefellers Still In Social Register

NEW YORK (AP)—The latest edition of the New York Social Register Tuesday listed Gov. and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller together in its 1964 edition.

The listing ended speculation that their names might be dropped because of their divorces and remarriages.

Southerner Johnson Plugs Hard For Civil Rights Bill

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The towering domestic problem in the United States today, and a tricky political issue in the battle for the presidency next year, is the question of full equality for the Negro.

President Johnson is a Southerner.

But speaking last Memorial Day on the site of the Battle of Gettysburg Johnson said:

"Until justice is blind to color, until education is unaware of race, until opportunity is unconcerned with the color of men's skins, emancipation will be a proclamation but not a fact."

LEGISLATION

Johnson helped guide some civil rights legislation through the Senate in 1957 and 1960.

As a political realist, he knows his position on civil rights can cost him votes in the likely event that he is the Democratic nominee in 1964. In Texas, only a few hours before President Kennedy was assassinated, Johnson said, "the civil rights issue is going to hurt us."

It may be a factor in parts of the North too. Some Northern politicians call civil rights an "iceberg issue" — meaning there is more hidden than visible opposition to Kennedy administration proposals in this field.

Where does Johnson stand on other issues?

Here are some of his statements:

SOVIET FORCES

Cuba—"We shall not be content until the last of the Soviet forces are withdrawn from foreign soil."

Foreign aid—"No nation can long enjoy affluence when all the other nations are impoverished."

Defense—"We cannot be done with our dangers or even our duties by next weekend or next year. We are in for a long pull and it is our duty to begin pulling."

Communist China—"America stands firm with her Chinese (Nationalist) allies and we shall continue to do so until freedom is secured."

Disarmament—"We now face the prospect of destroying ourselves. I am calling for an open curtain for full discussion of the immediate, urgent problems facing our people. We should insist on the right to state our case on disarmament in detail to the Soviet people." (He said this in 1957, before the agreement to ban nuclear testing.)

LANGUAGE

Latin America—"We must revitalize our diplomatic corps."

Two Texans Win Safety Awards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Texans have won in the Federal Aviation Agency's Aviation Mechanic Safety Awards. They are Donald Perkins, Trans-Texas Airways, at San Angelo, and Edward Swearington Jr., of San Antonio.

The FAA cited them for developing an "outstanding contribution" to aviation safety through maintenance practices during 1962.

LADY BIRD JOHNSON
... now the First Lady with ambassadors who know and understand our neighbors and their language and have qualifications other than contributing to campaign chests.

"We must offer to the people of Latin America the very best technical know-how which will help them to develop their skills and to make and sell their products."

Johnson's voting record shows:

Labor—In 1947, he voted to override President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act. In 1952, he voted to request the President to invoke the injunction provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act in the steel strike. In other votes, he opposed requiring unions to elect their officers by secret ballot every four years and requiring a majority vote by secret ballot before a union could call a strike.

FEDERAL AID

Education—In 1949, he voted for a $300 million federal aid to education bill and against an amendment to restrict aid to public schools. In 1960, he voted to provide $917 million a year for two years for school construction and teachers' salaries.

Agriculture—He voted for the Democratic program of high, rigid farm price supports. During President Eisenhower's administration, Johnson voted against the sliding scale urged by the then secretary of agriculture, Ezra Benson.

Taxes—In 1948, Johnson voted against the tax reduction bill passed in the Republican-controlled Congress over President Truman's veto. He had supported a move to send the bill back to committee with instructions to raise personal exemptions to $700 and increase corporate taxes. In 1951, he voted against a tax bill amendment to provide for a withholding tax on dividends.

Welfare—He voted for area redevelopment legislation, disability benefits under Social Security, extending Social Security coverage, increased grants for public assistance, establishing a youth conservation corps, larger appropriations for federal sponsored medical research, slum clearance and low rent housing legislation.

Plan To Save Dollar Passes First Real Test

NEW YORK (AP) — The 10-nation health insurance plan for the U.S. dollar, and other principal world currencies, stood its first real test with marked success.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York and Europe's central banks acted together and quickly to prevent any run on the dollar after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Without the agreed plan to move simultaneously into the foreign exchange markets to prevent such a run, the dollar might have been under pressure.

This is because foreigners hold so many surplus dollars, built up in recent years as a result of big deficits in our balance of payments in international trade and monetary dealings.

The London gold price, $35.07 Friday, went up on the day after the assassination to $35.11, but dropped Monday to $35.09 and held at that rate Tuesday morning.

The dollar itself held steady on foreign exchanges both Saturday and Monday.

The 10-nation pact worked this way: The Federal Reserve quickly moved into the market to buy dollars, offering large blocks of German marks, British pounds, Dutch guilders, Swiss francs and Canadian dollars.

SHAKE VALUE

These dollars, if dumped on the market for gold or other currencies, could have shaken the value of the dollar — the world's chief monetary reserve as a supplement to gold — and a mainstay of America's healthy economy.

An assassination is the kind of unsettling news on which speculators sometimes feed.

The 10-nation pact to guard against speculative runs followed the October 1960 gold rush which shook the dollar.

The price of gold was run up temporarily to $40 an ounce on London's free market, compared to the official U.S. Treasury price of $35.

Rumors of devaluation of the dollar sent speculators rushing to turn in their dollars for gold. The rumors were scotched, first by President Dwight D. Eisenhower and then by President Kennedy.

The monetary insurance pact that subsequently was devised has worked this year to hold the drain of U.S. gold to a minimum, although the balance of payments deficit is still running too high for comfort.

The Federal Reserve quickly moved into the market to buy dollars, offering large blocks of German marks, British pounds, Dutch guilders, Swiss francs and Canadian dollars.

The Federal Reserve holds such blocks under the 10-nation agreement by which such currencies are swapped to create reserves for any such emergency. Europe's central banks also stepped in immediately after news of Kennedy's death with offers of support for the dollar. Any flight from the dollar would be met by credits of European national currencies for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to use if needed.

Opening lead: King of ♦
A seemingly harmless lead from strength by East provided the declarer with the slight opening he needed to bring home his game contract in today's hand.

West opened the king of diamonds against South's four heart contract and East signaled with the queen. The play of the queen in these circumstances unconditionally demands that partner underlead his ace on the next round — it follows logically then that the queen should not be employed as a signal unless the player has either a singleton or else the jack of the suit as well.

West dutifully continued with a small diamond and East's jack held the second trick. The latter shifted to the king of spades and, when this held, he led another spade ruffed by declarer with the ace of hearts.

With three tricks already lost, South had to find some way to dispose of his club loser. The only source for discards was North's spade holding and East's bid of that suit indicated that it would require two more ruffs in order to establish the dummy's long cards. The only two obvious entries to North's hand were the jack of hearts and the king of clubs, and unless South could find a third entry he would be unable to run the spade suit.

Presently, he devised a plan that risked going down an extra trick if it failed, but that seemed like a modest price to pay with so much at stake. A small heart was led from the closed hand and when West played small dummy's eight was finessed, successfully. A spade was ruffed with the king of hearts and the North hand was reentered with the jack of trumps to ruff out East's last spade. South was now able to get back to the dummy with the king of clubs to discard his losing club on the ten of spades.

East's play of a second round of spades when he had the lead gave South his chance, for it enabled declarer to obtain one spade ruff that he could not have negotiated on his own, for lack of entries. When East's king of spades holds the third trick, it is obvious that the only missing card in the suit — the ace — is with his partner, so that nothing is to be gained by leading another spade. If East exits, instead, with a heart, South will be unable to avoid losing a club trick subsequently.

Kiwanians Plan For Chili Supper

How many bowls of chili will 250 pounds of choice chili meat produce? The Big Spring Kiwanians will find out Saturday. They will start cooking that much chili—the piece de resistance of their chili supper Saturday evening—at 10 a.m. The place will be the kitchen of the Howard County Junior College Student Union Building. Harvey Clay, who has a reputation of long standing for his skill as a chili maker is to be head chef.

Delaine Crawford, mess sergeant for the Kiwanis cooking crew, said he had purchased 250 pounds of choice chili meat, 50 pounds of pinto beans, 10 cases of crackers wrapped for individual serving, a small mountain of ice cream, and pounds and pounds of coffee, plus the essential cream, sugar, seasoning and so forth.

Zoning Board To Meet Thursday

The zoning board of adjustment will consider two requests at a meeting set for 4 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 5.

Mrs. K. L. Click has requested a rear yard setback of seven feet, six inches for an addition to a business building at 302-306 E. 9th. A city ordinance requires a minimum setback of 10 feet.

College Baptist Church has requested a front setback of 20 feet for a sanctuary facing on Eleventh Place. Tom Newton, building inspector, said a setback of 35 feet has been established by residences in the area. The minimum setback required by city ordinance is 30 feet.

Owners of property within 200 feet of the affected property have been notified of the requests and may approve or disapprove of the requests at the public hearing.

Scouts Send Aid To Two Widows

BROWNWOOD (AP) — Boy Scouts in Brownwood's Troop 2, ages 11 to 15, have decided to send equal amounts of cash to the widows of Dallas policeman J. D. Tippit and Lee Harvey Oswald.

Oswald was the man accused of assassinating President Kennedy and later slaying Tippit. In turn, Oswald was shot fatally by Jack Ruby, Dallas night club operator.

The boys voted to send Dallas mayor Earl Cabell a letter expressing confidence and pride in his city.

Sweetheart, 68, Takes It Hard

TOKYO (AP)—Police reported Senmatsu Moro stabbed and injured his sweetheart, fearing he was losing her to another man, and then took poison. He was reported in critical condition today. Moro is 68, his sweetheart 64.

Menu for the night will be chili—a la Clay—beans, crackers, coffee, coca cola, water and ice cream. Individual bottles of catsup and hot sauce will be on each table to be used at the wish and discretion of the diner.

The first annual chili supper of the Kiwanis Club, which the club hopes to make as popular as its pancake supper, will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. Saturday in the HCJC Student Union dining hall. Tickets, which are on sale by all Kiwanians, are 75 cents. Tickets can be bought at the SUB Saturday afternoon and evening.

All Kiwanians are to be drafted into service as cooks, dishwashers, waiters, bus boys or ushers.

The Kiwanians did not meet Thursday noon for their usual session for two reasons—first because of the Thanksgiving holiday, and secondly, because the chili supper will be classified as a regular club meeting.

An invitation to all chili lovers to dine with the Kiwanians Saturday was sounded. All profits will be used for the club's work with underprivileged children.

Planning Board Schedules Meet

The planning and zoning board will hear three requests for zone changes at a public hearing set for 5:15 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 3, at the City Hall.

Two of the requests are for a zone change from 2F (two-family residence) to R (retail). One of these requests was made by Johnnie D. Winham, 608 Runnels, for property located on Nolan, between Ninth and Tenth. The other request for this type of zone change was made by Rendal Hamby for property located at the southeast corner of Nolan and Seventh.

The third request is by Marshall Fields for a zone change from R (residential) to R (retail) for a 1.49 acre tract in the 2600 block of Birdwell Lane.

Owners of property within 200 feet of the affected property have been notified of the hearing.

CABELL, DE GAULLE OBJECT OF ANONYMOUS THREATS

DALLAS (AP)—The FBI in Washington warned Mayor Earle Cabell of Dallas there Monday for President Kennedy's funeral that Cabell was one of two targets whose lives were threatened in anonymous tips.

Cabell said: "Two people were to be assassinated in Washington—a foreign dignitary and myself."

The other threatened target, it was disclosed later, was French President Charles de Gaulle. The FBI did not disclose the nature of the threat against the Dallas mayor and the French leader.

Police guards stayed with Cabell after his arrival from Washington after the Monday funeral. In the Capital, he was met by the deputy chief of police, and given a squad car and officer driver.

Three Airmen Win Cash Awards

Three Webb AFB enlisted men were awarded cash prizes for suggestions on improvement in methods of procedures this week. Airman I.C. Franklin A. Ponceroff of the Hospital Group received $15 for suggestion in improving the procedures in application of Ruck's Traction.

S. Sgt. Willis C. Morrison and T. Sgt. William J. Cleary of the Support Squadron were awarded $10 and $25 respectively; Morrison for his suggestion to eliminate a safety hazard, and Cleary for improving procedures in processing of documents.

Man Appeals Closing Law

AUSTIN (AP) — A Houston auto salesman asked the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday to declare unconstitutional the state's new Sunday closing law.

Salesman Charles R. Wilson was fined $70 on two charges of violating this law. He contends (1) the statute is so vague it doesn't prescribe a penalty, and (2) the legislative act's title fails to refer to penal provisions.

The law, passed in 1961, prohibits sales of numerous articles on consecutive Saturdays and Sundays. It provides fines of less than $50 on first conviction and less than $500 for second convictions.

The state argued that the words "to prohibit" in the bill's caption are adequate notice to give effect to the penal provisions.

In another case the Texas

Supreme Court held June 12 that a Fort Worth judge could not stop Dist. Atty. Doug Crouch from enforcing the law.

Idle Production Capacity Slowly Being Cut Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Jobs, prices, profits and business growth plans — all are tied in some degree to the slow but steady whittling down of the nation's idle production capacity.

The gap in recent years between how much of its resources an industry was using and how much it would like to use — almost never 100 per cent, as you might think — has been credited with:

- Holding down prices because of the competition, to the joy of the consumer, but to the frustration of a company plagued by rising operating costs.
- Crimping profits in ratio to sales.
- Keeping business spending more modest than the planners would like if economic growth is to hit a pace that will make enough more jobs to trim the unemployment rolls.

Most industries are closing the gap between activity and the optimum use of the facilities they built in the middle and late 1950s. But some are slipping a little. On the average, industry still has room for improvement.

How much of their capacity various industries are using, compared with the operating rate they prefer is plotted in a survey by McGraw-Hill publishing company's department of economics.

The highest preferred rate is 97 per cent, in the paper and pulp industry.

Three Planes Fall; 11 Die

By The Associated Press

A plane crash in Southwest Texas took four lives Wednesday. Five Texas residents died in another crashup near New Orleans, and a pilot from Texas perished in a Newfoundland crash.

Rain was falling hard as a plane carrying Dr. Aubrey Kelson, 38, of Perryton went down 15 miles north of San Saba in rough hill country. Witnesses saw the Piper, circle low just before the crash about 4:45 p.m., possibly because of engine trouble.

Killed with Kelson were a woman, a boy and a girl. A San Saba source said the three presumably were members of the physician's family.

State police established the identity of Kelson. Perryton is in the Panhandle.

Ben Templeton, 34, head of a Dallas investors, building and engineering firm bearing his name, and four companions were killed Tuesday evening as a Cessna 310 plunged into Lake Pontchartrain outside New Orleans.

With Templeton were his wife Patsy, Larry Williams, Bob Klein and Joe Garner, all of Dallas. The other three men worked for Frymire Engineering Co., a business associate of the Templeton Co. The Templetons had three children.

The Templeton party flew to New Orleans on business Tuesday and took off at 5:48 p.m. on the flight back to Dallas. A search began Wednesday after it was learned the five-place ship was missing.

An oil slick on Lake Pontchartrain about a mile from the New Orleans airport led to discovery of broken bits of the plane.

Kenneth Anderson, a pilot from Kerrville, Tex., and his employer, Samuel Henry of Coleraine, North Ireland, died as a twin-engine Piper Comanche crashed and burned at Gander, Newfoundland. They were flying from Lockhaven, Pa., to Shannon Ireland.

Taking off after landing for fuel at Gander, the plane rose about 50 feet before diving back to earth at the end of a runway.

Stanton Has 7 Applicants

STANTON—Seven applicants for the Stanton police chief's job were interviewed by the city council Tuesday night in a six-hour special session. One written application was received Wednesday by city secretary Harvey White.

"We are going ahead with investigations of the most promising applicants," mayor Ed Robinet said. "We believe there are some good men among them, but it will take some time to complete the investigations.

"Final action in selecting the new chief will be after a new mayor and councilman are elected. The chief does not have to take office until Jan. 1, 1964," Robinet said.

The regular council meetings are held the first Tuesday in each month, but the acting mayor said from two to three special meetings per month are often necessary.

Newsman To Meet

HOUSTON (AP)—The annual meeting of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association will be held in El Paso Feb. 16-18.

Second Dancing Lesson Slated

The second lesson for the Square Dance Beginners Class will be held Nov. 29, from 8 to 10 p.m., at the YMCA building. The lesson will not be given tonight because of the Thanksgiving holiday when the YMCA will be closed.

The class is open to adult beginners for two more weeks. Mrs. Harold Graves said this week. All adults are invited. Fees for YMCA members are 50 cents per couple per night, and $1.50 for non-members.

Revival Set By Nazarenes

Special speaker for the Thanksgiving revival at the Church of the Nazarene, Fourteenth and Lancaster, will be the Rev. Joe Norton of Hamlin. The meetings will begin Nov. 29 and continue through Dec. 8, at 7:30 p.m. each day.

This will be the fourth revival in which Rev. Norton has been asked to serve as evangelist at the Big Spring church, the Rev. W. M. Dorough, pastor, said. All services are open, and the public is welcome.

Before entering the evangelistic field in 1948, Rev. Norton, a graduate of Bethany (Okla.) Nazarene College, was a pastor in Oklahoma and Texas for 16 years.

"He is a sound preacher, placing emphasis on prayer, fasting and personal evangelism," the pastor said. "Music and singing for the revival will be under the direction of Bob Spears, with Gerry Spears at the organ, and Mary Francis Bohanan at the piano. Special singing by local talent will be featured."

Tired Of Left-Over Turkey Casseroles?

You'll want to try hot "Saucy Turkey-Cranberry Sandwich" or luscious "Turkey Neapolitan" over spaghetti or rice. Both luncheon-dinner dishes add a perfect "P.S." to the holiday turkey.

Turkey Makes Encore Appearance In Style

Turkey left-overs seem synonymous with Thanksgiving. Frequently, though, the festive bird wears out his traditional welcome by being allowed too many encores after his major appearance. With this in mind, many homemakers immediately slice down the left-over turkey and store it in the freezer for use at a later date.

However, there are families that quickly put an end to the turkey with midnight raids on the refrigerator when cold, roast turkey sandwiches are then at their best. Or, the turkey may find a speedy and delicious finish in a favorite casserole.

The matter of timing the left-over turkey's appearance is left in the capable hands of the homemaker because she knows her family best.

SAUCY TURKEY-CRANBERRY SANDWICHES
 1 (1½ oz.) envelope cream style chicken soup mix
 1 cup water
 ¼ tsp. pepper
 Pinch of marjoram
 1½ cups milk
 1½ cups diced cooked turkey
 2 tbsps. snipped parsley
 1 7-oz. can jellied cranberry sauce

8 slices white bread
 2 eggs, slightly beaten
 2 tbsps. butter or margarine
 Empty soup mix in a medium sauce pan and stir in water until smooth. Add pepper and marjoram. Heat and continue stirring until soup comes to a boil. Simmer 2 minutes. Gradually blend in one cup milk. Add turkey and parsley. Heat thoroughly. Remove from heat, cover and keep warm.

Cut cranberry sauce crosswise into four slices. Place a cranberry slice between two slices of bread. In a shallow dish, combine egg and remaining ¾ cup milk. Quickly dip sandwiches in egg mixture, completely coating both sides.

In a large skillet, over a low heat, melt butter or margarine and saute sandwiches about two minutes on each side. Remove, cut sandwiches diagonally and arrange on serving platter. Spoon warm turkey sauce over sandwiches. Makes four servings.

A Devotional For The Day

Therefore, my beloved brethren, be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that in the Lord your labor is not in vain. (I Corinthians 15:58. RSV.)

PRAYER: Gracious God, search our hearts and point out our weaknesses. For Thy sake help us to become Thy true witnesses in the world by professing our faith in Christ and living obedience to Thee, with grateful hearts. We pray in the name of Christ, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

(From The 'Upper Room')

Day Of Thanks

Man is at his best when he is in an act of love; he is at his next to best when he is giving thanks.

Thus, it is commendable that we pause in a busy life to give thanks to Almighty God for all His benefits toward us. It is not that He has blessed us above other peoples, but that He has blessed us.

Indeed we do have great material blessings, but these are not really important. What really matters is that most of our beloved nation still has the capacity to care and to be concerned about others.

And we have the blessing of being able to praise God openly, or of electing to be silent and ungrateful if we choose. We have none other than God to whom we must account.

Thus, this free spirit which does reflect us in the image of God, is one of the things most of all for which we can raise our voices in praise. And when we do, we raise it in prayer for all of God's children.

Shrinking Work Span

Not long ago there was a news picture of a man in his late 80s, long retired, who has taken to delivering papers. He offered this interesting comment when asked his reasons for thus interrupting his leisure: "I'm useful again."

It is axiomatic that as the proportionate number of aged men and women in our population increases, more and more effort will have to be made to provide the aged with useful, productive things to do. For as the case cited above illustrates, few of the aged relish constant idleness. Most of them would like to continue making some contribution to society; they are miserable when they feel rejected and useless.

This is particularly brought to mind by a Labor Department study of a trend toward a shorter span of active working life. It has been found that, for the first time in this century, the upward trend in the length of the working life has been reversed. A child born now can expect to spend somewhat less time in the work force than a child born as recently as 1950.

The work span is closing in at both ends. Earlier retirement cuts it off sooner than in the past, and longer schooling delays its start. It is retirement that makes the problem for those who, dropped from their jobs, face years or even decades of idleness. Many such persons not only want work to "keep their hand in," but need it badly for economic reasons.

The problem, bound to be heightened by increasing automation, has not yet been faced in any general way. A lot of thought will have to be given to training retired men and women for new tasks, and the present reluctance to employ the aged will have to be overcome. The alternative is economic, political and psychological trouble that could be for the most part avoided by sensible action.

David Lawrence Communication For Peace

WASHINGTON—A change has come over us in America and perhaps over the world. It's an involuntary change, to be sure, precipitated by the sudden passing of a world leader, the late President of the United States John F. Kennedy. But it could be a change that forces a new unity in the world. It could be a change that brings stability to our home front of friction and emotional controversy.

THE MOOD of this country and of the peoples abroad today is one of serious contemplation. Hundreds of millions of persons on this continent and on other continents saw by television or heard by radio the funeral services for the American President. The impact of this solemnity cannot be measured as yet, but it may have put into perspective the fearful forces that tear nations apart or threaten to destroy human lives in a military conflict between powerful countries.

Representatives of more than 50 nations came to attend the final rites for the dead President, including President Charles de Gaulle of France, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany, Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home of Great Britain, Premier Hayato Ikeda of Japan, Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan of the Soviet Union. Heads of state walked in silence for a half-mile behind the caisson which carried the casket bearing the man who strove so earnestly to further the cause of world peace. Nearly 100 dignitaries from all over the world were present at the church and burial services.

WHAT MUST have been the thoughts of these leaders as they meditated on the meaning of mortal life and its lost opportunities!

Thanks to the inventions of man, instantaneous communication throughout the world has been made possible. No such wide coverage on the same day, simultaneously with the occurrence of a news event, has been achieved in the past. The total watching and listening audience was probably the greatest ever assembled.

BUT SINCE communication has been so effective once on this occasion, it challenges man to employ it in the future in the cause of self-preservation and human survival. For the death of millions by nuclear war has been envisioned as feasible with today's weapons. While treaties and agreements to ban certain nuclear tests have been signed, there is no assurance that small wars will not provoke bigger ones and lead to tremendous destruction of human life.

As one man passed so quickly from our midst to the world beyond, this single death could encourage the peoples of this world to reach out for unity and a better way of communicating with each other in order to restrain the ambitions and evil purposes that arise in the minds of thoughtless rulers.

WITHIN THE United States, too, tragedy can have a strange sequel—a turning toward the ideals expressed by the departed leader. Opinions will differ as to the efficacy of particular proposals. Debate will continue on the merits of various legislative programs. But there will be a new awareness of the depth of feeling throughout the country about the importance of national unity.

The new President, Lyndon B. Johnson, fortunately is a man of long experience in Congress and particularly in the post of Senate majority leader. He has an intimate friendship with many members on Capitol Hill and acquaintance with their state problems—even closer perhaps than his predecessor happened to enjoy.

MR. JOHNSON is a skillful negotiator and mediator. He knows how to win support for the measures he champions. He has a keen understanding of public-opinion trends. Like every vice president who has been given the task of filling out a presidential term, he will seek to maintain the administration's basic policies.

As for world policy, President Johnson will be under a strain in getting familiar quickly with all the nuances of our delicate relations with other governments, but he can apply the same perceptive qualities to foreign affairs as he does to domestic policies.

ABOVE ALL, the influence of John F. Kennedy will remain to spur the new President to achieve the unfinished task—an understanding between rival powers which could give assurance of an era of peace.

It will be recalled that the words of the 96th Psalm proclaim that "all nations whom Thou has made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord, and shall glorify thy name." The poet Elizabeth Barrett Browning wrote, "and life is perfected by death." Longfellow's famous verse comes to mind. He wrote:

"There is no death! What seems so is transition;
"This life of mortal breath
"Is but a suburb of the life Elysian,
"Whose portal we call death."

AS CARDINAL CUSHING said on Monday at the final mass for the late President Kennedy, "Life is not taken away, but is transformed."

The whole world listened on Monday. Maybe it will continue to listen to words that challenge man to fulfill his mission and bring peace to a distraught world.

Fire Threat

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—The 1964 Kentucky General Assembly will be asked for stronger laws to help combat what has become a year-round forest fire threat in the state.

The state's fire control chief, H. W. Berckman, says his 30 years in the forestry division have convinced him that changing weather patterns have spread the forest fire threat throughout the year.

FOR OUR MANY BLESSINGS

A Farewell To JFK Last Interview With The President

WASHINGTON — The White House guard at the northwest gate scanned the list, and shook his head. I had shown my press pass and said I had an engagement to see Pierre Salinger, the Press Secretary, which was an understated truth. My engagement at 6:30 on the evening of Friday, last October 11th, was a private one with the President of the United States — a journalist's dream.

The guard dug deeper among the papers on his clipboard where he found my name, placed there by the Appointments Secretary, and waved me and my bicycle into the curving driveway that leads to the West Wing. There is always a little spoofing about the bike, but I have a standard riposte which I use on policemen and fellow reporters.

"YOU'VE HEARD about the President's physical fitness program, haven't you? Well, this is it for me."

Parking my red two-wheeler, I entered the West Wing press room, which was a mob scene of correspondents, TV reporters and cameramen. Salinger was at the center of it, giving a briefing on the Autobahn crisis of that day. The President, he said, was still in conference with Secretary McNamara, Secretary Rusk and Llewellyn Thompson, and there was nothing else to announce at the time. Catching my eye, Pierre Salinger nodded vigorously as a signal that my engagement still stood. The day before a girl from his office had phoned me to say without preface:

"THE PRESIDENT will see you at 6:30 on Friday. Mr. Salinger will take you in."

Half an hour later, it turned out to be Pierre's very able and popular assistant, Andrew Hatcher, who ushered me back through the press staff offices and into the sacred precincts of the President's working quarters. At her desk in a corridor between the Cabinet Room and the President's office sat an old friend, Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, whom I had known when she was Sen. Jack Kennedy's personal secretary on Capitol Hill. Andy left me here, and I paused to talk for a moment about old times. Suddenly I heard my name, spoken by a voice known round the world, spoken with a warmth and welcome that thrilled me to the bone, for the speaker, it seemed, had recognized my voice, and I heard him before I saw him: "Holmes . . ."

THERE HE STOOD, in the doorway of the famous oval office, his hand outstretched and his face aglow with the cordiality of a host and a friend. He said he'd heard I was going to Latin America, and that he wanted to talk to me about my trip. Soon we were sitting alone together, almost knee to knee, he in the rocking chair and I on the sofa. At first we talked of the New England papers where he'd first read my column. Our friendship had begun to mean something back in 1952, when I opened a column on his Senate race against Republican Henry Cabot Lodge with the first line from "Romeo and Juliet": "Two households, both alike in dignity . . ."

I went on to write that Massachusetts, with two good candidates for the Senate, couldn't lose no matter who won.

"THAT'S THE first kind word I ever got from the Boston Herald," the young President-to-be told me, and he never forgot—nor did I.

At the White House that evening we also talked of a press conference question I'd asked about industrial employment.

"I just wasn't ready for that one," he smiled, "but I want you to go have a talk with Bill Wirtz, the Labor Secretary."

MOST OF THE time, though, this world-weighted statesman was giving me his personal evaluation of the problems and personalities that I soon would be writing about in Brazil, Argentina, Venezuela and Panama. I noticed the gray that had come to his hair and lips, the nervous fatigue which showed as he kept snapping off and on a large pair of horn-rimmed reading spectacles, and the informal dishevel of a tired man's shirt that was not perfectly tucked in at the belt line. I felt my heart swell for him—this mighty man, armed with enormous power and knowledge, beset with crushing responsibilities, yet sweet with a kindness that only the great gentlemen of life ever develop.

WHEN HE saw me to the office door for departure, he clapped my shoulder and said, "Happy landings," and I shook his hand and said, "Good luck, Mr. President."

I never saw him again. —HOLMES ALEXANDER

Little Reasons For Thanksgiving

NEW YORK (AP)—What's to be thankful for on this day of national thanksgiving?

There is an old saying that "Some people would cry with a loaf of bread under each arm." You can find a lot of things, both large and small, to be grateful for.

Here's one man's offhand list:

TURKEYS are getting smaller, so that the hash now doesn't last more than a week.

Christmas comes but once a year.

You don't have to make any new resolutions to lead a better life until Jan. 1.

Stretch socks.

Rock 'n' roll music seems to be slowly dying.

More teen-agers are becoming 20 years old.

The U.S. Bill of Rights is still in existence.

Women carry eyeball-gouging umbrellas only on rainy days—and there are more sunny days than rainy ones.

It is getting too cold to hold backyard cookouts, so that a guest now has a better chance of eating his meals in a dining room like a civilized human being.

IF YOU PLAY your cards right, some days you can find a place to park your car within two miles of where you want to go.

You don't have to mow the lawn anymore this year.

No one has dropped a hydrogen bomb in anger—and no one seems about to.

When you get right down to it, only a born churl feels anything but gratitude on this Thanksgiving holiday. We have more blessings than we can count.

To Your Good Health Transplantation Of Organs Still Remote

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: Would it be possible for female organs to be removed from one person and transplanted in another who has had a hysterectomy, so the latter could have a child? The person I have in mind is under 40 and already has three children, but she recently underwent a hysterectomy.—MRS. V. C.

It may be possible but as yet I am not aware of this having been done. From letters I receive I am aware that there is a great deal of interest and misunderstanding about the transplantation of organs.

We read about a kidney being transplanted, but fail to realize that this happens most usually from one twin to another, or from one close relative to another.

We read about "eye banks," but do notice that an entire eye has never been successfully transplanted, but only the cornea, a very small part of the covering of the eyeball.

We read or hear about skin being "grafted," without noticing that if skin is grafted, say, from a person's leg to an arm, the skin will remain permanently. But if skin is taken from one person and grafted to another, it remains for only a matter of days or a few weeks, and then sloughs off.

Organs cannot be transplanted from one person to another and remain there, because the body has the protective ability of rejecting anything which is strange to it. With identical twins, they are so much alike that the body accepts such transplants. This is true to a lesser degree with fraternal twins, or very close relatives.

We may someday be able to transplant organs freely and successfully, but we can't do it now, except in the most unusual cases.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is running a temperature ever a symptom of cancer?—A. J.

Yes. A fever that cannot be explained by the presence of an infection may be an indication of cancer, but some cases (such as cancer of liver or pancreas) may require extensive tests before the basic trouble can be identified.

NOTE TO MRS. A.E.C.: The cause of diabetes is not known, but heredity and overweight are common factors in its occurrence. I doubt that mental stress and frustration can be called a "cause" of the disease, but physiological stress (such as pregnancy) can precipitate it, and anxiety and tension can aggravate an existing case.

Around The Rim The Hard Corps Softens

After weeks and weeks of being ordered about, trained in handling firearms, racing up and down obstacle courses, doing penalty exercises amid a chorus of curses from the Drill Instructors, Thanksgiving dawned as a day of rest for Boot Camp and its staff. This meant a day of rest for the trainees as well.

THEY ACTUALLY let us sleep late that morning, until 7 a.m. We didn't have to scrub the floor before breakfast, and the march over to the mess hall was at an almost leisurely pace. It was interrupted by shouts or stoppages for grueling exercises. At mess, we had our choice of breakfast food, rather than being forced to eat whatever was thrown on the tray.

We didn't even have to march back to the barracks. And newspapers were handed out, the first one I had seen in six weeks. The entire day was given over to lying about in the sun or the California shade, talking about what we would do if we could ever manage to get out of Boot Camp without being shot or worked to death. It was the first break in the rigid routine we had experienced since signing with the sons of Montezuma.

THE THANKSGIVING dinner was certainly the finest I have ever had, before or since. We not only had our choice of turkey—dark or white meat—but a slap of ham as well. The dressing, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, sweet potato, and all the other side dishes were actually heaped on the tray. The gravy ran off the sides of the chow tray all around Having never been a particularly big eater, it was almost more than I could handle. But some of the other fellows went back for seconds. That pile of food was at least eight or ten inches high and covered the standard size platter.

IT WAS A GOOD thing they allowed us the evening to snooze or whatever we wanted to do. Few could have mustered a five mile hike, with full pack, after that meal. Most of us slept.

For the evening meal, it was almost a repeat. More of the same and in bushel basket quantities. The best part of it was that we didn't have to clean our platter unless we wanted to, a far cry from the normal rules and regulations. To cap the whole day off, we were taken to a free movie in the evening.

I SUPPOSE EVERY man in that camp wanted to be home that day, away from the strict discipline of the Marine Corps and all its regulations and hard training. The next best thing was a relaxing day with plenty to eat and nothing much to do. The Corps couldn't provide the former, but the latter was given in the style of a grandee.

It was a memorable Thanksgiving Day for us, a bright day sandwiched in among the dimmer realities of a Korean War which we were being trained to fight. For many, it was the last Thanksgiving Day they would ever enjoy; for most, it was a day of quiet dedication; for all, it was a day of rest.

Not Just Half-Way With L.B.J.

At the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles in the summer of 1960, the adherents of Lyndon Baines Johnson-for-President had a catchy slogan going for them. What candidate does not? And the Johnson catch phrase was the snappiest, the press thought, since "I Like Ike."

"All the Way With L.B.J.," chanted the Texas delegation and others pledged to Senator Johnson—pledged till the chips were down and the stamped to John Fitzgerald Kennedy was on. "All the Way With L.B.J." into the White House—with no detours.

THAT CATCHY phrase was etched on all the Johnson literature and on the placards and banners that his partisans carried into the convention hall. For the affluent faithful, there were tiny gold lapel pins in the shape of a 10-gallon hat with the initials "L.B.J." branded on the crown of the hat.

During the night following Mr. Kennedy's nomination, the only real order of business facing the convention on the morrow was the selection of a Vice-Presidential candidate—always the essential but anticlimactic business of such a gathering.

IF AND WHEN Lyndon Johnson was mentioned in connection with the Vice-Presidency, there was speculation, first, whether he would be acceptable to Mr. Kennedy, and, second, that a man of his (Johnson's) pride and, next, his power in the Senate would want the job.

It turned out that Sen. Lyndon Johnson was the man Mr. Kennedy wanted and the man he got.

An hour after the announcement was made that Lyndon Johnson had been asked to take the nomination and had accepted, I got into an empty elevator on the top floor on the Los Angeles Biltmore Hotel, convention headquarters. The elevator stopped on the next floor and Lyndon Johnson and two aides got on.

NOW I HAD never met Mr. Johnson but twice before, and several years before, at dinner parties in Washington. So I was staggered when he thrust out his hand and said, "How are you, Mrs. Robb?" I thought at once that here was another practicing politician gifted with the extraordinary memory of James A. Farley.

Mr. Johnson recalled the parties where we had met and who else had been present. Then he put a hand in a pocket and drew out one of the little gold hats branded with his initials "L.B.J."

IN HIS PLEASANT Texas drawl, and with great amusement in both his voice and his eyes, he handed me the golden 10-gallon symbol of his campaign for the Presidency.

"Just 24 hours ago," he said, and he laughed with the relish of a man who can laugh at himself and at political gambles.

"BUT THE MOTTO has been changed now to 'Half Way with L.B.J.'" the then Senator from Texas added.

The new President could not dream then how wrong he was. Or that all along fate intended that L.B.J. should go all the way.

Holmes Alexander Scandal—And More To Come

WASHINGTON — Congressman Michael Feighan (D. Ohio) is a modest, gray-thatched, solid citizen who has got his hand around a slippery scandal—one that involves the same elements as the Otepeka case: subversion and corruption.

IT WOULD BE repressive to write this story without mention of a dead man—the late Congressman Francis Walter (D. Penna.)—and to write it without some risk of injury to his memory. Walter was Chairman of the U-American Activities Committee and co-author of the pro-American McCarran-Walter immigration act. In both these capacities, he drew volleys of vituperation from loyal and disloyal Leftist groups.

But among his House colleagues, Walter was better known as the powerful ranking Democrat on the Judiciary Committee, and as a czarist chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Nationality. As long as he ruled in this latter post, the whole field of details on immigration, passports, visas and deportation orders was a domain of semi-darkness.

MIKE FEIGHAN has succeeded Walter as Chairman of the House Subcommittee on Immigration—and the cork of secrecy is about to pop. Since Feighan is certain to be baptized with the fire always leveled at investigators of subversion, corruption and Administration-connected scandal, I opened this piece with a certification of his solid citizenship. Among his trophies are the "Vigilant Patriot Honor Plaque" from the All-American Conference to Combat Communism.

Before coming to Congress in 1942, he had been Democratic floor leader of the Ohio House. A graduate of Princeton University and the Harvard Law School, he holds an honorary degree in political science from the University of Munich. Unless he is thwarted by House Judiciary Chairman Emanuel Celler, and sidetracked by the State and Justice Departments, I look for Feighan—this year and next—to tell us much that we do not know about:

THE UNRESOLVED case of Professor Barghoorn in Moscow.

Excessive fees, involving pay-offs, received by lawyers who handle cases in the State and Justice Departments concerning immigration visas, passports, paroles and deportations.

Strange doings by Government officials in the Exchange Programs for visitors and students.

THE INABILITY or unwillingness of Administrator Abba Schwartz, Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs, to provide the Immigration Subcommittee with information about the Cuban Ransom - Refugee program which, among other things, permitted Castro to designate 30 per cent of the refugees, including 220 born in Spain and others born in Iron Curtain countries.

Some bank accounts in Switzerland which are mysterious and need explaining.

We are in a season of Washington scandal, the depths of which have not been fathomed.

Billy Graham

I always pray in times of need, but my prayers are not always answered. Does this mean that I have done something wrong and that God does not hear me? R.D.

True prayer is not a spasmodic, stop-gap measure. It is a day by day communication with God. I heard of a lady in Jamaica whose house was damaged by a hurricane. She told a minister that she prayed that her house would not be harmed, but that the Lord didn't answer her prayer. "Are you a Christian?" asked the minister. "No," said the lady. Then the minister said, "I guess the Lord was just too busy taking care of his regular customers."

Constant, true prayer, brings to us the assurance of God's guidance, and those who pray aright never feel forsaken in times of crisis. My suggestion to you would be that you live a life of regular communion with God — then He won't seem so far away when you meet a frightening emergency.

LOW-CALORIE DESSERT

Weight Watchers Can Enjoy This Dessert

Festive fare on traditional Thanksgiving Day dinner tables will spell ruin to many a dieting plan. With a little calorie curbing in the kitchen, however, calorie-wise cooks can turn out calorie-streamlined versions of favorite holiday foods, every bit as delicious as their high-calorie counterparts.

The delightful Spiced Cranberry Salad, shown here, is an example of some of the good and low-calorie treats that weight watchers will be enjoying at this year's Thanksgiving Day feast. Sweetened with a calorie-free sweetener rather than with sugar, this pineapple-studded cranberry salad costs the dieter a mere 35 calories per serving, a saving of nearly 100 calories over the original. Best of all, everyone at the table, weight watching or not, will be delighted with this delectably sweet and spicy holiday treat.

SPICED CRANBERRY SALAD (Low-Calorie)

- 2 envelopes (or tbsps.) unflavored gelatin
 - 1 8 1/2-oz. can Sucaryl - sweetened pineapple tidbits
 - 2 cups raw cranberries
 - 2 1/2 cups water
 - 2 tbsps. calorie-free sweetener
 - 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
 - 1/2 tsp. nutmeg
 - 1/2 tsp. cloves
 - 1 8 1/2-oz. can artificially sweetened pineapple tidbits
- Soften gelatin in liquid drained

Complement Fish

Salmon and whitefish can be smoked on a hooded or regular barbecue. Add dampened hickory or apple chips to a glowing bed of wood charcoal briquets for best results. Smoked salmon served cold with mayonnaise is an epicurean dish.

Hot Bread Goes With Turkey

This hot bread can go into the oven after the turkey comes out. Remember that a roasted bird should "rest" for 15 to 30 minutes before it's carved.

THANKSGIVING HOT BREAD

- 1 cup sifted flour
- 6 tps. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 tbsps. sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 1/4 cups milk
- 1 cup yellow cornmeal
- 1 cup cooled cooked rice

Butter
Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Beat egg with rotary beater (hand or electric) until thick and lemon colored. Add milk, cornmeal, rice and sifted dry ingredients; mix thoroughly. Turn into two thoroughly buttered 8-inch layer cake pans.

Bake in moderate (375 degrees) oven about 15 minutes or until bread pulls away from sides of pans. Turn one layer out on a plate and spread generously with soft butter; top with second layer; spread top with soft butter.

Serve at once. Makes 8 large or 12 medium-sized servings.

Easy Beef Kabobs

Note to brides: Cut tender beef sirloin into about 1 1/2 inch cubes and use kebabs. Alternate the beef cubes on skewers with quartered small onions, wide strips of green pepper and small mushrooms (if they are available). Brush with salad oil and broil.

WHAT'S FOR DINNER MRS. SKINNER?

Simple yet sumptuous. Economical, because it transforms leftovers into a mouthwatering main dish masterpiece... and you'll be the miracle-maker.

SECOND-TIME TURKEY

- 1 10-oz. pkg. SKINNER Pure Egg Noodles
- 2 cups leftover turkey soup
- 1 can condensed mushroom soup
- 2 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 cup diced green pepper
- 1/2 cup sliced stuffed olives
- 1/2 cup grated cheese
- Crushed potato chips

Cook noodles as directed on package; drain. Blend condensed soup with milk. Add green pepper, olives and grated cheese. Combine noodles, turkey and soup mixture. Pour into greased casserole. Top with crushed potato chips. Bake at 325° to 350° F. for 30-35 minutes. Serves six. Average cost per serving: 26c.

Hawks Launch Play In Kansas Tonight

GARDEN CITY, Kansas — HCJC of Big Spring opens a brand-new basketball season at 7 o'clock here this evening, at which time the Jayhawks play Dodge City in a first round game of the annual Chamber of Commerce tournament. Eight teams are entered in the tournament and the kingpin in the national ratings could emerge from the meet, which extends through Saturday night.

HCJC, with practically a new team, is not one of the favorites in the show. Coach Buddy Travis welcomed the chance to send his troops into the tournament, however, reasoning they would benefit greatly from the experience.

Dumas Demons After Third Title In Row

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

The big push for state championships of Texas schoolboy football starts this week with prospects of one record being tied.

Only three times in the 44-year history of the Interscholastic League race has there been a school win three championships in a row.

Waco did it in 1925-26-27. Amarillo repeated the trick in 1934-35-36. Along came Abilene to equal the feat with titles in 1954-55-56.

Dumas, the power of Class AAA, can tie the record. The Demons have won two straight championships and are favored to make it three.

When Wichita Falls failed in its bid for a district championship, it wiped out any other chance of a record tie. The Coyotes have taken five state championships but Abilene holds the record at six.

The second biggest winner has been Waco, with five championships and a tie. Breckenridge has figured in six championships, but twice the Buckaroos tied for it.

Stamford is next with four championships except that one of them was forfeited to Brady because of a recruiting technicality. Had it not been for that, Stamford would have held a record of winning four championships in five years.

The Interscholastic League race started in 1920 and it was 29 years before there was more than one division. In the twenties it was not uncommon to see a town like Itasca playing a city like Waco.

In 1948 three classes were created. The present Class AAAA was then Class AA and a Class A race was added. Also, what was known as the City Conference — a union of the schools in the four largest cities — Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio — was organized. It lasted only three years with Fort Worth Arlington Heights, San Antonio Thomas Jefferson and Dallas Sunset winning the championships.

Monahans won the first Class A championship in 1948. In 1951 the football race was expanded to four divisions — Class AAAA, Class AAA, Class AA and Class A.

Breckenridge, which had tied for the championship in 1929 when there was a single division, won the first two Class AAA titles, then took the fourth for three championships in four years. Breckenridge repeated in 1958 and then tied Cleburne for it in 1959.

The first team from the Rio Grande Valley to win a championship was Donna in 1961. It took the Class AA title Donna is back trying again this season.

The advisory council of the Texas Interscholastic League recently turned down a request that there be a Class B championship. But there actually was a Class B champion once it was unauthorized but there was a champion just the same.

Outlook Is Good At South Plains

LEVELLAND — Basketball prospects are looking up at South Plains College this season, where six lettermen will form the nucleus of the squad.

Coach Bill Powell has also recruited a promising group of freshmen, including a 6-5 youth from Roswell, N. M., named Charles Turnbow.

The Texans play EMMU's frosh at home a week from Tuesday night.

Powell says height will be a problem for the team this year as there are no "big boys" on the squad. "Outside shooting and ball handling should be improved," he said.

Lettermen returning are: Tommy Patton, 6 ft. 5 in., Seminole; Max Swinburn, 5 ft. 10 in., and Jerry Sanchez, 6 ft. 2 in., both of Tulsa; Gary Neugauer, 6 ft. 5 in., Edison; San Antonio; John Crippen, 6 ft. 10 in.; Don Ford, 5 ft. 10 in., Plainview.

On the team this year for the first time are: Leon Pope, 6 ft. 3 in., Amarillo High School; Mike Patterson, 5 ft. 10 in., Seminole; Jimmy Johnston, 6 ft., O'Brian High School; Turnbow; and Wendell Hilton, 5 ft. 11 in., Amarillo High School.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hort

San Angelo has been dropped as low as fifth place in some of the statewide football polls but I'm inclined to think that the Bobcats will recover their momentum and pick up all the marbles in the playoffs.

The Cats were definitely "flat" in last week's losing effort with Big Spring. The Steers never played better.

One problem San Angelo's coach, Emory Bellard, now has to face: Future opponents won't fear the Cats as they did before the Steer game. The Felines will have to earn their victories on the field and not with their press clippings. They're capable of doing just that, however.

Two Amarillo Tascosa scouts were in the press box Friday night and took notes furiously while coach Don Roblin tried his "shotgun" offense on the Cats.

They were asked following the game if Tascosa might not use the same sort of offense against the Cats, should the two teams meet later on in the playoffs.

"We might," one of the mentors said, "but we haven't got anyone who can throw the ball like your boy (Albert Fierro) does."

It's true there are few pressure pitchers in the entire state like Fierro but Tascosa does have a brilliant quarterback in Pat Harkins—an imaginative boy who will change his tactics if he finds one system isn't working.

The Tascosa game could well be the toughest the Bobcats have on the way to the throne room.

Two Sul Ross scouts dropped in on Memorial Stadium to watch Big Spring and San Angelo go through their paces.

They were more impressed with the manner in which Thurman Randle was whipping San Angelo's A. Z. Drones than with anything else which took place on the field.

They said that Albert Fierro "might be a little slow" for college football. About that time, Albert broke loose on his 67-yard run for a touchdown. Fierro has long legs—he's not a speed demon, but he's not as slow as he might appear to be.

There's no doubt about Fierro being one of the great quarterbacks in Big Spring history. He could be the best at the position ever to wear the Black and Gold.

Big Spring has had some good ones down through the years—George Neel, Horrace Bostick, Pepper Martin, Frank Long and Jerry Tucker, to name a few.

Webb Women Get Awards

The monthly golf luncheon of the Webb Air Force Base Ladies Golf Association was held Tuesday, Nov. 26 at the clubhouse following the regular Tuesday play Trophies were awarded for the recent fall tournament as follows: Mrs. James G. Roby Radley, a Negro youth who made the trip to Garden City, Kansas, with the HCJC basketball team this week, was almost dropped from the squad at the beginning of the training session.

He was unimpressive in early workouts but has come along fast since that time. Roby is a Houston product who came here unannounced and without benefit of a scholarship.

He didn't play basketball his senior year in high school, instead concentrated on trying to make the swimming team.

A 6-foot-1 youth, Radley has an amazing pair of hands—quick and agile.

Rockets Open With Carver

Head coach Acie Clark and Lakeview Rockets open the basketball wars Monday night in Big Spring with Midland Carver as the eighth, and ninth grades take the court to see action at 6 and 7:30.

The ninth grade squad will be built around 6'3 1/2" Robert Jackson, an experienced player since he played on the ninth grade team last year although he was only an eighth grader.

Other starters are expected to be Richard Green, Seninal Johnson, Leonard Evans, and Bernard Hastings. Frederick Johnson, Harold Jones and Charles Byrd will also see a lot of action according to Clark.

The eighth grade squad will be totally inexperienced since Lakeview didn't have a seventh grade team a year ago. Head coach E. S. Dawson is expecting top service out of Wayne Johnson, Ronald Wrightsil, Hubbard Williams and James Randolph.

The eighth and ninth grade teams, which will consist of 24 boys, will play a 17 game schedule. The seventh graders will have a team with personnel numbering 14.

The schedule: Dec. 2, Midland Carver here; Dec. 4, Odessa Blackshear there; Dec. 9, Runnels; Dec. 16, Midland Carver there; Dec. 19, Goliad; Jan. 6, Big Spring High School sophomores; Jan. 8, Big Lake Davenport there; Jan. 9, Runnels; Jan. 15, Odessa Blackshear here.

Jan. 16, San Angelo Blackshear here; Jan. 20, Goliad; Jan. 22, Big Lake Davenport there; Jan. 23, San Angelo Blackshear there; Jan. 27, Colorado City Wallace here; Feb. 3, Big Spring High School sophomores here; Feb. 10, Snyder Lincoln here; and Feb. 18, Snyder Lincoln there.

Coaches who selected the team for The Associated Press were unanimous only in their choice of the big Longhorn tackle and the Baylor pass wizard.

Tommy Ford, bread and butter rushing star for the No. 1 ranked Texas team, and Dave Parks, Texas Tech's fine end, lacked only one vote each of being unanimous choices.

Jerry Lamb of the Arkansas Razorbacks paired with Parks at end.

Lawrence Elkins, flanker at Baylor, lacked a vote of making an end post but received enough votes for a backfield spot to land on the team.

The big man of the fine Baylor line, Bobby Crenshaw, was Appleton's mate at tackle.

Rice's Johnny Nichols and Southern Methodist's Martin Cude made the team at guard.

Defensive standout Ronnie Caviness of Arkansas was named out at center by stellar Malcolm Walker of Rice.

Making up the all-conference backfield were Trull, Ford, Elkins and fullback Tommy Crutcher of Texas Christian University.

CBS has announced a revised television schedule for Saturday due to the postponement of the Army-Navy game to Dec. 7. The service classic will be nationally televised. Kickoff time will be 1:15 p.m., EST.

To fill the Army-Navy spot this Saturday, CBS will telecast three regional games—Harvard-Yale in the East at 1:30 p.m., Baylor-Rice in the South and Southwest at 3 p.m., and probably Ohio State-Michigan in the Midwest and Far West.

The decision to telecast the Army-Navy game pushed the Alabama-Miami, Fla., game off the national schedule. CBS requested the teams to shift to a Dec. 14 date, but has run into difficulty. That problem still must be resolved.

Bowl Hopefuls Are Poised For Action

By MIKE RATHET Associated Press Sports Writer

Thanksgiving Day, 1963, will have its drumsticks but not its drum majors.

For the 26 teams battling on a 13-game major college program, it was a day strictly for football. The usual halftime shows and accompanying hoopla were replaced by memorial programs in honor of the late President Kennedy.

Band music, according to one school, was to be "appropriate to the occasion," with "God Bless America" and "America the Beautiful" listed as the chief components of most halftime shows.

Also scheduled were periods of silence, brief eulogies and other tributes to the late President.

In this subdued setting, and admittedly under some psychological pressure, a bevy of bowl hopefuls took the field—some for games originally postponed from last Saturday.

At East Lansing, Mich., the Big Ten Conference championship and a Rose Bowl berth were to be settled.

The game matched fourth-ranked Michigan State and eighth-ranked Illinois. The Spartans went into the game 4-0-1 in the Big Ten, the Illini 4-1-1, so the winner winds up with both trappings. In the event of a tie, Michigan State was to be awarded the Rose Bowl assignment.

The remainder of the schedule showed Cornell at Penn, Columbia at Rutgers, Wisconsin at Minnesota, Miami, Ohio at Cincinnati, VMI at Virginia Tech, Clemson at South Carolina, Virginia at Maryland, William and Mary at Richmond and Furman at West Virginia.

Saturday's program spotlights the postponed 88th meeting of Harvard and Yale, along with two West Coast battles, out of which will emerge the other two Rose Bowl entries. The two key games are Washington State at Washington and UCLA at Southern California.

Mercer Purchases Dallas, Fort Worth Club Rights

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Tommy G. Mercer, 31, has purchased the Dallas-Fort Worth baseball franchises and pledged 1964 operation in two leagues.

Mercer, 31-year-old Fort Worth businessman, said Dallas probably would play in the Pacific Coast League with Fort Worth in the Texas League, as announced Sunday.

Mercer and Ray Johnston, who has maintained a joint Dallas-Fort Worth operation in the American Association and Pacific Coast League for the last three years, came to terms in a Fort Worth Wednesday meeting yesterday afternoon.

Mercer said he did not expect to take an active part in the operation of either club "because in baseball, I'm a greenhorn." He said he hoped to remain in an advisory spot.

Dick Butler, president of the Texas League, said he was "tempting to line up a general manager" for Fort Worth, which has a working agreement with the Chicago Cubs of the National League.

Johnson said he had not lost any money in operation of the franchises. "But," he said, "money never was the prime consideration." He said he had intended to provide major league baseball, "but it simply became a matter of doing what I considered best for the area."

"Mr. Mercer has resources far in excess of mine, and I felt that he would be better able to continue our struggle for recognition and a major league club."

In Fort Worth, Mercer is identified with the T. E. Mercer Trucking Co., Tarrant Distributing Co. (Falstaff Beer) and Mercer-Hill Insurance and Advertising Agencies.

His business enterprises, including 42 coporations, include operations in Jacksonville, Fort Lauderdale, Palm Beach, Key West and Miami, Fla., as well as in Texas.

Mercer was a star athlete at White Oak, Tex., who obtained a Texas Christian University scholarship and has resided in Fort Worth since he entered college. He was graduated from TCU in 1953.

Texas Seeks 10th Grid Win Today

By The Associated Press

Texas went gunning for the first undefeated, untied season in 24 years of Southwest Conference football and at the same time the national championship in today's renewal of an ancient series with Texas A&M.

If this game goes according to expectations, it should wind up the conference campaign for all practical purposes. All Texas needs is a tie to clinch the conference title. It's certain to share the championship even if it loses.

The only major college with a perfect record, Texas should claim its first national championship in 71 years of football by beating the Aggies. The Longhorns are expected to do it by at least two touchdowns.

Baylor plays Rice at Houston and Southern Methodist battles Texas Christian at Fort Worth Saturday. Only the Baylor-Rice game means anything.

A Texas loss would afford Baylor opportunity to pull within one game of a tie for the championship by beating Rice. TCU would need to tumble SMU Dec. 7 to take it.

Baylor and Rice both are aiming at a 7-3 season. This undoubtedly would bring an invitation to the Bluebonnet Bowl, where Louisiana State already is one of the competing teams.

The TCU-SMU tussle means little except to settle a long-standing rivalry for another year. The winner might manage to finish fourth in the standings.

Texas and Texas A&M, playing at College Station, were due to draw their usual sellout crowd.

Texas was worried about both its fullbacks being on the ailing list, but the Longhorns still were solid favorites to beat A&M for a seventh straight year.

Here's how they look: Texas - Texas A&M—Texas is too close to that national title to falter now; the Longhorns by 10 points.

Rice-Baylor - Baylor's pass-catching Lawrence Elkins is in fighting trim once more, so it's Baylor, scenting a bowl bid, to come through narrowly.

TCU-SMU - Southern Methodist beat Texas A&M and Arkansas, which tied and defeated TCU, respectively, so it's SMU to win.

Young Lad Finds Santa And Becomes A Believer

By JOE WING
For being just average, Johnny Girinsky was an amazing boy.

In height, he stood an average four feet one inch. His hair was average brown and his eyes average blue. His teacher had noted before the holidays that he was doing average work. On the playground, he played an average game of touch ball, and at home his mother regarded him as well behaved, on the average.

The amazing thing about Johnny was that, unlike other average boys, he wanted to believe in Santa Claus—and could not. Even his mother and father weren't able to help him.

LAUGHED

Some of his friends believed in Santa. Others laughed whenever anyone mentioned him. But no one he knew or ever heard of wanted to believe, but could not manage to do so—no matter how hard he tried.

Now, since you know all about Santa Claus, that may strike you as funny. But it was no laughing matter to Johnny. On the contrary, it made him extremely unhappy.

Fortunately, Johnny wasn't the kind of an average boy who just starts crying when he has a problem. He took direct action. He got on his bicycle and rode down the street to see for himself if a real Santa Claus existed. He figured that if he could find Santa once, there would be no trouble about believing in him.

For the first half mile, he saw no one at all. That was just as well because it was 6 o'clock, right before dinner, and any friend of the family who might have met him would have told him to go right back home.

NO REAL ONE

He soon reached Main Street. Even that early in the season, Main Street was decorated with Christmas trees, stars and bells. Imitation icicles streamed down store windows. There were pictures of Santa Claus, statues of Santa Claus, and Santa Claus toys, but no real Santa. Well, he hadn't expected to find a real Santa in a department store.

Then, of a sudden, Johnny saw him. Santa was standing on a street corner, ringing a bell, and looking a little forlornly at an empty iron pot suspended from a tripod.

"Hey," said Johnny, braking to a stop, "how did you get here?"

"Why, I walked," said Santa. "I don't have a bicycle."

"But where are the deer and sleigh?"

"That's a good question. I haven't seen 'em for nearly 12 months, and if somebody doesn't get a harness on them soon, we are going to have a terrible situation."

WORRIED

Now Santa seemed to look more worried than sad. Also, he looked considerably thinner and a little dirtier than Johnny had imagined him. But there he really was. Johnny thought that after this he surely would be a believer.

"When are you going to start bringing the presents down from the North Pole," he inquired politely. "It must be more than just one night's work."

"Well, I'll tell you," said Santa. "Like I said, nobody's caught the reindeer yet, and the workshop was in an awful mess when I left. Mrs. Claus is visiting her folks and hasn't cooked me a dinner in a month. That's why I'm skinny. The way things are going, young fellow, maybe you'd better depend on your mother and dad for presents this year. Old Santa just may not make it."

Johnny wasn't worried about the presents. He'd been depending on mother and dad for them now for a year or two. But he began to worry about Santa.

STARVE

"If nobody is going to get your meals," he said, "you're going to starve. Everybody has to have a mother to get their meals."

"Oh, I guess I'll get along somehow. This job here ain't as bad as some."

But the thought of Santa standing out there in the cold without anything warm to eat was more than Johnny could stand.

"Santa, you must have a good dinner before you do any more work," he said. "You come right home with me."

ly but said, "Well, I'll take a chance. You lead the way."

Johnny pedaled off stopping now and then so Santa could catch up. In no time at all they had reached Johnny's house—the one with green shutters at the corner of Tenth and Lang.

FOUND SANTA

"Mom, Dad," yelled Johnny, bursting open the door. "I've found Santa and brought him home. He's right here, and he's hungry."

Mrs. Girinsky had just started to worry about Johnny. It was unlike him to be late for supper. Now she poked her head out the door, stopping to think a moment before greeting the visitor. Then she said:

"Santa, you come in and have something to eat with us. We'll be happy to have you."

That's how Santa Claus came to preside over the most exciting dinner that Johnny could remember. After a wash and a shave, he looked like a different person, even though his hair was still white and his costume red, trimmed with fur.

"I never wear my beard after business hours," he explained to Johnny. "That's part of the uniform, just like policemen wear policemen's hats. Most boys do not realize this, but I don't mind telling you."

"You know, there is more than one Santa Claus, but none of us really exists unless somebody believes in us. It's getting tougher and tougher every year because fewer boys and girls believe. But we have to carry on, since there's always at least one boy and girl in every town. "And grownups too," said Mr.

Girinsky. "You must find there are grownups too." "Yes, said Santa. "If it were not for the grownups who believe we would all have a very tough time indeed."

his youth, and the freight trains he had ridden and the ships he had sailed. When at last he left there was a $5 bill tucked in his side pocket.

Going to bed a short time later, Johnny said to his mother, "It must be grownups like you and Dad who keep Santa going. He said he couldn't exist unless somebody believed. And I think maybe I'm going to be a believer too, though it's pretty hard to do sometimes."

Christmas Man Visits Youngsters In Germany

By GEOFFREY ATKINS
FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Candles will burn in the windows of many west German homes on Christmas Eve. Their flickering flames are a symbol of divided Germany and are lighted as a reminder of fellow countrymen living behind the Iron Curtain. So, even Christmas has its political significance in present-day Germany. But this still does not keep it from being the most exciting time of the year for children.

Getting Set

Preparing an open house party is this mother, clad for Yuletide festivities in a gold-tone silk alpaca dress with a high slit neck, wrapped cummerbund and three-quarter length sleeves.

For them it is a time of secrets, surprises, lots of good things to eat and, of course—"Der Weihnachtsmann"—(The Christmas man).

Like America's Santa Claus, the bearded old man in long, red robes who carries a sack of toys is still very much a reality to young West German children. But in parts of southern Germany children believe they get their presents from the "Christ-kindl" (Christchild). It is from this word that America's Kris Kringle is derived.

Although customs vary throughout the country and the Christmas tree plays an important part everywhere, the tradition of the tree in Germany is at least 400 years old.

It is hard to find a German home without a Christmas tree. And with her vast pine forests Germany has no trouble in meeting the demand. Candles are the main decorations. Only comparatively recently have the Germans copied other countries in decorating their trees with tinsel, electric light bulbs and colored glass ornaments. Presents are either hung on the tree or placed around it.

Presents are exchanged on Christmas Eve after the family has attended evening church services. By tradition children do not see the tree until the very moment on Christmas Eve when they are allowed to receive their presents.

The Christmas stocking is virtually unknown to German children because for them the tree is the source of all their gifts.

On Dec. 6 St. Nikolaus Day, children put out their slippers to be filled with candies and other small gifts.

Swedes Honor St. Lucia

A blonde, blue-eyed Swedish-American girl, wearing a long white dress and red sash, slowly walks down an aisle, carrying a tray of coffee and cakes and balancing on her head a crown of lighted candles.

That same morning, the oldest daughter in each family had awakened the family before dawn, to serve coffee.

It is Dec. 13 and Swedish-Americans all over the country are beginning their celebration of Christmas with observances remembering the generosity and courage of St. Lucia.

Various stories are told about Lucia and how she became a saint.

In one, she lived, in Syracuse, Sicily, during the Roman Empire. She gave her dowry to some Christians who had been persecuted for their faith, after which her angry fiance told authorities that Lucia was a Christian. She was condemned to be burned but the fire did not burn her. She died when thrust through by a sword. In another version, Lucia refused to give up her Christian faith to marry a pagan soldier. Blinded by Roman authorities, Lucia became a symbol of light to early Christians. Lucia became popular in Sweden when the Roman Empire later extended to Scandinavia. In Italian, her name is pronounced Luchia. In Swedish, the c is sounded as an s.

Christmas Was A Picnic Down Under

By GORDON TAIT
 SYDNEY (AP).— Years ago, when we were young, our parents would take us to spend the six weeks Christmas school vacation at a cottage near the cool Pacific Ocean, lapping the shores of eastern Australia. Christmas time is mid-summer in Australia. We would spend the days on the beach, running in and out of the water. Then would come Christmas Eve and we would hang our stockings near the bed—Santa Claus had to come through the window because there were NO chimneys. Christmas Day—one of the longest days in the year in Australia—we would dive into the stockings around 6:00 a.m., and play with the toys until breakfast. Then we would head for the ocean beach, have a couple of hours sunning and surfing, and return home in time to dress for church at 11:00 a.m. After church we would swim in the river, then sit down for the big Christmas Day midday dinner. There would be hot chicken (some years turkey) and cold ham, hot plum pudding and cold ice cream, and plenty of iced drinks. In the afternoon we would sleep for an hour or two, then once more walk out to the beach. We would be home in time for a light evening meal and the Christmas cake. And in the evening, perhaps, we would look again through the Christmas cards, and note that most of them — especially those sent from within Australia—showed snow scenes in England. And we would think how odd it was to have snow at Christmas. That was how we knew Christmas as children, and that is about how it is today for many people here. The majority of Australians cling to tradition and have a big hot Christmas Day dinner at midday, as they or their forefathers did in Britain and Europe. But as Christmas is also the big summer vacation time down here in Australia, many people are away from home. They have their Christmas day dinners in cottages at the seaside and in the mountains, in caravans or canvas tents, in boarding houses or hotels. Then there are those—and they run into hundreds of thousands—who break with tradition and have their Christmas midday meal out in the open. You see them eating cold chicken and tomatoes on the beach, in the shade of a gum tree in the country, or beside a stream in the mountains. If you're interested in Christmas Day weather statistics in Sydney: the sun rises at 4:41 a.m. and sets at 7:07 p.m.; the temperature range is likely to be 64-77 degrees F.; chances are there will be NO rain. Didn't Like It Until about 1900 the practice of sending Christmas cards was frowned on by Baptists, Methodists, Mennonites, Amish and Lutherans. First Yule Cards The first American Christmas card was created in Boston, Mass. by Louis Prang, a Bavarian-born lithographer.

Danes Are Kind To The Nisser

By RONALD THOMSON
COPENHAGEN (AP)—If you want to have a good Christmas in Denmark, you'd better be kind to a strange little fellow with a nasty side to his nature.

Whenever anything goes wrong over Christmas you can be sure it's the fault of the Nisser. They are mad at you for some reason.

Angry Nisser are angrier than any angry young men anywhere. So you have to keep them well fed or they might get at you in dozens of irritating ways.

Many Danish children believe in the Nisser—and so do quite a few adults, particularly in rural areas. Some farmers' wives still put out a big plate of rice pudding for them to eat at Christmas. Better not take the risk of having the barn burned down in the middle of the night.

Assuming the Nisser are being friendly, Christmas in Denmark is a joyful time.

Children are given the go-ahead as early as Dec. 1. That's the day when they can open up the Advent Calendar, a sort of paper house which is present in nearly every home with youngsters. Every day they open a new window or door until finally, on the great morning, they open the biggest window of all—and there is the Christmas Tree.

One of the most important days of December comes when the children go to town with mother and father to look at the brightly lit shops, shake hands with Santa Claus in the department stores and get a present from him.

No self-respecting parents would ever miss out this trip, and the stores make it easier for them by staying open on Sundays throughout the month. The day's program usually includes a visit to the Christmas show in a theater or movie house.

One of the favorite entertainments is a century-old play called "Noeddebo Praestegaard," which you can always see at Christmas at Copenhagen's Folk Theater.

The title means "The Vicarage of Noeddebo," and it's about a priest and his family preparing for a happy Christmas. Some crusty grown-ups find the play so sentimental that it sticks in the throat, but they go all the same because the children enjoy it.

Some Danish families spend the Christmas holiday skiing in Norway, where there is always plenty of snow. Here in Denmark a white Christmas is something of an occasion. Mostly it rains—but that doesn't matter so much if you're celebrating at home.

On Christmas Eve, lots of families who don't usually attend church make a point of going there. The churches, decorated with flickering candles and Christmas trees, are always packed to the doors.

The traditional Christmas Eve dinner is pork and rice pudding—and the pudding usually contains a few hidden almonds. The boy or girl who finds one gets a small present.

Then it's time for the family Christmas tree to be lit. Dad usually goes alone into the living room to light the candles—and then at a signal the children rush in and the fun starts with everyone dancing round the tree, singing songs and carols.

Christmas Day here is a time for rest. Everyone sleeps late—except mother, who has a big dinner to cook.

PARIS AGLOW

Traditional Noel Fading In France

By CLAUDE CASPAR-JORDAN

PARIS (AP) — Two World Wars, the meandering of tourists and sharpened advertising techniques, have remodelled the face of Christmas in France.

Time was when the holiday season meant an elaborate dinner on Christmas Eve or Christmas Day, midnight Mass on Christmas Eve, formal greeting calls on New Year's Day, and presents for children on St. Nicholas Day.

But no more. The presents are trundled out for Christmas. Gaily decorated department stores remind parents of their duty weeks in advance. Postal clerks are almost drowned by the tide of greeting cards. And a week's stay in a mountain ski resort is becoming routine for tens of thousands of children.

The transformation has not come quickly or without pain. British and American soldiers brought along their customs in World War I, and from that time on the Christmas tree started making inroads in France. Foreign visitors who struck up friendships launched the Christmas card vogue. The quickened tempo of communications and transportation helped it to spread.

German occupation in World War II and the invasion of British and American troops gave a new impulse to the popularity of Christmas trees.

At one time, Roman Catholic priests frowned on the Christmas tree as a pagan symbol that was detracting from the religious spirit of Christmas.

Even after World War II some priests were railing against Pere Noel—Father Christmas, as Santa Claus is known here. But the criticism has almost died away in the face of Pere Noel's popularity with children.

The traditional Roman Catholic symbol of Christmas is the model manger with Christ child and others of the Biblical tale set up in most churches for the Christmas season. In southern France, these "creches" also were often set up in village squares, or in homes.

There are a number of essentials for a typical French Christmas feast—oysters, turkey or goose, lobster, foie gras, the rich and creamy "buche de Noel" cake made in the form of a tree trunk, and champagne.

Outdoor home decorations are almost unknown in France, except in Alsace, where the German influence is heavy. In Paris, most families live in apartments. A holly wreath on the door, or special lights in an apartment window usually means that an American family is living there.

Doll Furniture Easy To Make

You can give a little girl doll furniture for Christmas and spend almost no money.

Use a cigar box to make her a "cedar chest." Cover it carefully inside and out with wallpaper or gift wrap paper.

Make a wardrobe to match by covering a shoe box. Stand the "wardrobe" upright and make a hole on each side in the center of the box about an inch from the top. Insert a piece of yarn through the holes, knot at each end. Then cut hangers for doll dresses from pasteboard and hang on the pole.

You can glue together several large match boxes and cover with the same decorative paper, making a chest of drawers.

Once you start making furniture, you'll probably be able to think of uses for lots of boxes you've been saving "to use some day."

Filipino Children Wear New Clothes For Mass

MANILA (AP) — Christmas for Santa Claus and Christmas Eve, for children here, is a time for midnight Mass rather than the custom is for the children to wear only brand new clothes to this Mass.

Nine days before Christmas, children are aroused in early morning darkness to attend the Misa de Gallo, mass of the cock's crow. Emerging from church, they find vendors waiting with still warm cakes to eat on the way home.

Coming home from Christmas

Eve Mass is again an occasion for eating—usually pastries, delicacies made of rice, and hot chocolate.

But although Santa Claus is generally not known, it doesn't mean children go without gifts. All through the Christmas season—which extends to Jan. 6—children visit relatives and godparents to collect presents. This is particularly true on Christmas Day, when everyone is either at home receiving guests or out visiting themselves. Each household prepares plenty of food to provide for neighbors and relatives dropping in.

In many towns a program of entertainment is held in the plaza. In some areas pageants are held Christmas Eve, with a woman representing the Virgin Mary going from house to house in search of a place to stay.

Christmas decorations are concentrated in the churches and the homes. The favorite home decoration is a star-shaped lantern made of paper and lighted from within with bulbs.

Some towns make huge, elaborate lanterns each year which are carried through the streets in colorful processions. Christmas is also a time to go home. It is a time for family reunions, a time when all relatives, rich or poor, gather together under one roof.

Merchants Set For Shoppers

By SAM BLACKBURN
What kind of Christmas business will we have? Who can say for sure? Right now, it looks good.

Crops have been better than anticipated. The community's economy in general has been stable. Most of our folk are working and getting paychecks. We are planning for a big Christmas trade but, as we say, who can tell just what will happen?

Merchants point to the huge stocks of Christmas goods on hand and to the elaborate plans to stir Christmas spirit in the minds of buyers.

"We're ready for 'em," said one merchant. "There has never been a Christmas when so much attractive Christmas merchandise has been on hand."

EARLY SHOPPERS

Christmas buying has begun in a small way in some stores already. Early shoppers have been buying gifts for some weeks now. The grand rush will build up in the next two weeks. It will peak, naturally, the last hectic week before the holiday itself.

Merchants said that Christmas, 1962 was not as good as Christmas 1961 but that it was satisfactory. They point out that the cotton crop was not as good last year as it promises to be this year. This, perhaps, will have an impact on the kind of buying which will mark the month ahead.

No city-wide plan on shopping hours has been worked out by the merchants, according to the Chamber of Commerce. The chamber reports the store managers and owners are not agreed on whether to have city-wide later shopping hours this season and that it now appears each store will work out its own plan. Last season a few stores had longer than usual shopping hours while many others stayed on their regular schedule—9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

The only reasonably accurate barometer on what kind of a Christmas shopping interval December may be is offered by the Big Spring Post Office.

The post office said that there is already a pickup in parcel post mail—an indication, the post office officials believe, that the Christmas buy urge is already stirring.

The aisles of many stores are beginning to have their share of "lookers"—men and women not yet ready to actually do any buying but already impelled to see what may be offered.

Couple Provides For 300 Kids

Merchants are taking the usual preparatory steps. They are planning to employ extra salespersons. They are setting up space for the corps of gift wrappers the season always requires. Mountains of tinsel, reams of gaily colored wrapping paper, miles of ribbon are on hand. The larger stores have already received the shipments of specially designed ornaments which will identify gifts from their stocks.

Decorations are already in place in many stores. Santa Claus has replaced the other seasonal symbols. Red and white colors are abundant. Gay lighting devices are in readiness for the first day of the new Christmas season.

Merchants are ready for any kind of season. They are hoping for the biggest Christmas business on record and most establishments are stocked with an eye to meeting just such a demand.

However, this far ahead of the holiday, few of the store managers or owners want to make a definite prediction. "We think it will be a good Christmas," the said. "Everything now points to such a Christmas season. And we are going to do everything in our power to make such a season come about."

Santa Letters Defy Solution

LONDON (AP)—The British Post Office expects about 100,000 small problems to land in the nation's mail boxes this Christmas.

Most will defy solution. Every year, thousands of British toddlers get off heart-breaking letters to Santa Claus. They are apt to be long, ink stained and largely unreadable. Many don't carry stamps. Some have neither Santa's address nor the names of the senders.

The post office reacts with official rectitude—but not apparently with much heart.

"If the letters are properly stamped," said an official, "we try to send them back to the sender marked insufficient address. If they are not prepaid, we destroy them."

"After all what can you do with the vast majority addressed to such places as Chimney Corner and Fairyland?"

British kids keep trying and a few small fry have found a loophole in Santa's official defenses. These are the ones who address their shopping lists to Denmark, Norway, Iceland, Greenland and any other place on the map where it's likely the old boy hangs out.

The post office solemnly sends these on—always provided they carry the proper stamps. "We have no alternative under the regulations," the official explained. "It is up to the postal authorities in the various countries to handle them."

You'd think the marked lack of response would have discouraged some faith in Santa, known to British youngsters up to the age of 90 as Father Christmas. But, not so.

A 3-year-old named Nicholas weightily divulged his view of Yuletide.

"Christmas," he said, "is when everybody gets presents and Father Christmas brings them round and puts them in the stockings."

"These are not stockings like Mummy's but real stockings. They are black."

Young Nicky was asked if Christmas had anything to do with church.

"Oh, yes," he said. "We go twice that day."

Santa appears in most London department stores in mid-November and is still there long after new year resolutions have vanished with all other lost causes.

Selfridge's, the largest store in the capital, employs a willing character called "Uncle Holly" from early October. His job is to take any messages left by the small fry until Santa arrives in the grotto.

Christmas in Britain—like most other places—is for the kids. The adult fringe gets hot under the collar about advertising which starts with only 100 more shopping days to go; or decorations that spring up on the stores before the November fogs have settled down.

There is also the sobering thought of the wide open spaces in the billfold after the joyous cries of the family party have died down.

"But there is one aspect of the British Christmas holiday which makes it among the most civilized in the world," said an American with long term journalistic service in London.

"Britain does have Boxing Day."

Boxing Day falls on Dec. 26. It's the day the mail carrier and the paper boy call for a seasonal tip—known here as the Christmas "box." It's also a full holiday.

Residents Urged To Enter Annual Lighting Contest

Big Spring residents, wishing to compete in the Christmas Home Decoration Contest sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, are requested to enter as soon as possible. Deadline is Dec. 18. Judging of entries will be done Dec. 19 and 20.

"You may decorate all or any part of your premises, but it must be visible from the street, whether inside or out, and includes windows, doors and outside," chamber manager Carroll Davidson said.

Eligibility includes all homes, apartments, and residences in the city limits of Big Spring, including the Capehart area. We suggest that decorations stay lighted at least between the hours of 6:30 and 11 p. m.

First prize will be a "Ready-lite" installed ($59.50 value); second prize a dual control electric blanket ($32 value), and third prize an electric carving knife ($28 value). In the event the winner already has an item like the prize listed, one of a comparable value will be substituted.

"Points for judging decorations," the manager said, "will be: 20 per cent for artistry, 25 per cent for originality, 25 per cent for ingenuity, and 30 per cent for lighting techniques. All prizes will be made by Texas Electric Service Co."

Several downtown merchants will have their buildings outlined with lights for the Christmas season, Davidson said. Talley Electric Co. is doing the work, and there is still time for others to make arrangements.

Two Holidays Are Confusing

ATHENS (AP)—In ancient Greece's happy, confused holiday season there are two Christmases, one on Dec. 25 and the second on New Year's Eve. And Jan. 6, Epiphany, is another holiday.

Before World War II, the traditional Yuletide exchange of gifts, for children only, was made on New Year's Eve. Only recently have adults started exchanging small token presents. The gift exchange is being extended moreover beyond close members of the family. All this occurs now on Dec. 25.

With the influx of foreigners living in Greece since the war, new Christmas attitudes have been adopted by the Greeks. Previously the Christmas tree and the decorations familiar to Americans were practically unknown. Now Christmas trees are so common that Greek forests can't keep up with the seasonal demand, the trees have to be imported from Germany and Yugoslavia.

New Practice

The practice of signing and mailing Christmas cards was not general until 1900. Until then, they were delivered with a calling card.

Design His Own

Chance for the junior engineer to custom design several vehicles is offered in this cub set of heavy steel. Without tops and doors, it's a smart sports car; with a cab top and doors, a pick-up truck is created, and by adding a full-length travel top, a station wagon emerges.

For Pre-Schooler

Joyland for children has often been an amusement park. This replica of a carnival scene includes a merry-go-round, a take-apart choo-choo train and miniature versions of other popular rides. It's geared to the pre-schooler set.

Plays Too

Among novelty toys, this puppy is an intriguing addition. He catches a ball when it's rolled into his mouth. Then when his ear is tweaked, he gives it up and walks away.

Toy Trend Stays Reality Bound

Toyland, 1963, will continue the trend toward the reality of the adult world.

From space orbiting down to automatic can openers, this year's toys will provide children with the widest scope ever for imitative play.

Santa's pack may include a "cub set" of heavy gauge steel that permits a boy to custom design a station wagon, sports car or a utility pickup truck, by using interchangeable roofs and doors.

A playroom housekeeper may be thrilled with what she can do with a miniature washing machine. It has a door that opens to receive a load of laundry, and an automatic timer she can set to whirl and tumble the clothes in a simulated buildup of suds as she watches through a window in the door.

That classic, musical chairs, has been reduced to table-top proportions suitable for modern apartments and houses that lack room for the usual hub-hub. A merry-go-round of plastic has a music box in the center to play gay tunes as the wheel is whirled. When the music stops, teddy bear pieces in an outside ring are moved to an inner ring where one space is removed on each turn. Play proceeds until all but one piece is eliminated.

Talking dolls still abound. And a new twist is one in a stroller that a little girl can make talk without ever touching the doll. She activates the doll's speech by pulling a cord attached to the stroller handle.

A child's yearning to participate in the space age can be catered to with a new construction set with which a space wheel, two feet, four inches tall, can be built. When assembled, the space wheel with its eight satellites can be turned through a battery-operated control.

And if Junior says he wants

panic. He's just asking for one of the new chemistry sets. Another chemistry set tells how to fill and operate a miniature plastic fire extinguisher. Another realm of science is opened with a new microprojector set. Slides of specimens can be enlarged many times and projected on a viewing screen or on a piece of paper for tracing, and the face of the instrument can be used for accurately tracing the viewed objects too.

The mystery of flying still lures children. And a new plane comes complete with a mechanism that ejects a pilot from the cockpit and parachutes him to earth.

Novelties among toys this year include a dog that catches a ball when it is rolled into its mouth, gives it back when his ear is tweaked and then walks away. Latest voice command toy is a cannon which shoots only when the child says "fire!" The toy is keyed to buccaneer style warfare and includes pirate figures for targets.

Fun for all ages is a new version of the marble maze principle. The object is to shake marbles enclosed in a plastic lollipop into the stick handle of the toy.

Be sure the directions can be read and understood by the child and that the experiments are interesting and fun.

Remember to buy for stages, not ages. Key your choice to the interest and ability of the particular child, and this will vary. Your best bet is to choose a science set that will supplement what he's studying in school.

First, give a set that is versatile. Good science toys allow a youngster to do more than one thing with them. The set should enable the child to perform many experiments to fit his growing knowledge and expanding interests.

Good Lines To Use When Buying Scientific Toys

Some adults may come away from an array of today's science toys with eyes glazed over, feeling they'd have to be nuclear physicists or engineers, at least, to make a wise selection.

Postmaster Gives Tips On Mailing

Christmas is a lot nearer than you may think.

It's already too late to send Christmas parcels to overseas addresses by regular transportation and be assured they will reach their destination in time to be delivered by Dec. 25.

Deadline for mailing such parcels expired Nov. 20, according to E. C. Boatler, postmaster.

It's almost deadline for sending Christmas boxes overseas by airmail, too he points out. Deadline for such packages is just two days off—Dec. 1.

Meantime, even with Christmas a full month in the future, the first indication of the season is making itself evident at the Big Spring Post Office.

There has been a buildup in parcel mailings. Demand for Christmas stamps—Uncle Sam has gotten out a particularly attractive Christmas special this year—is picking up. Interest in Christmas mailing is evident.

Boatler said that the office had 200,000 of the Christmas stamps on hand and that already more than 20,000 of the stock has been sold. He said no plans are being made to hire additional helpers for the Christmas rush.

"In the last year or two," he said, "the plan has been to use our regular crew and pay them overtime for the extra work."

"It has been found that this works better than employing untrained extra help. The regular men know their duties and do not need supervision. They are glad to pick up the overtime pay. In general, we find it works a lot better than the old plan where we used to hire temporary workers during the last week or 10 days of the season."

Meantime, Boatler has sounded his annual plea for early mailing of all kinds of Christmas mail.

"We look for this Christmas to set an all time high in this office," said the postmaster. "There will probably be more Christmas cards and parcels handled this year than ever before in our history."

He listed five important steps which he urged on mailers as additional insurance their Christmas mail will reach its destination in time.

Fancy Dollhouse

Dollhouse with a magnetized floor allows a child to move the family and pets throughout the rooms of this contemporary ranch, by running magnet tipped pointers under the floor.

Dollhouses Take On Higher Style

The American dream of a swank home in the suburbs seems to have come to life in the land of little girls' dollhouses. No more are the houses simply partitioned boxes with roofs and a scanty supply of wooden furniture. The dollhouse of today looks just like the homes the girls' mothers drool over in decorating magazines.

There are several styles all made of steel, although some cardboard versions can be had in the lower price ranges. The traditional Colonial architecture still is included. But added models are modern split-level and ranch-type homes—all replicas of those stretching from Scarsdale to Holmby Hills, and just about as fancy. The houses come with breezeways, patios, barbecue pits, garages or carports, swimming pools, and even outdoor televi-

Little boys like to get all dressed up for holiday outings too. This one is wearing a suit of Italian wool, popular these days with big boys too. The three-button jacket of blue and grey plaid tops a pair of grey trousers cut stylishly narrow at the cuffs.

Keep Menu Simple For Teen Party

High school students and students home from college look forward to parties as part of the Christmas festivities.

A good rule for fun and fellowship at these parties is: keep it simple. All the ingredients necessary are congenial people and good food.

Buffet service is often ideal for this kind of informal entertaining because everything can be prepared in advance, freeing the host or hostess for mingling with the guests.

Easy to prepare, yet substantial party fare, can be a tray of assorted cold cuts and cheeses. This, together with plenty of bread and relishes, such as pickles, celery sticks and radishes, can satisfy hearty appetites without creating a major pro-

Salvation Army Makes Yule Plans

By JOE BEYER

Preparations for Christmas are under way at the Big Spring Salvation Army Citadel. Toys are being collected for distribution among the city's children and food and fund collection will begin early in December, Capt. William Thomas, commander, said.

Christmas Kettles to help defray the expected $3,500 cost of this year's programs will go up on city streets Dec. 2 and will be manned each day through Christmas Eve. Three kettles will be at regular stations downtown—two in the business section and one at the post office—and on weekends two others will be stationed at the Gibson and College Park Shopping areas if personnel can be obtained to man them.

LETTERS

Some 750 Christmas appeal letters will be mailed out to selected individuals and businesses to further the funds drive.

"We have a lot of work ahead of us to raise the money. Last year only about $2,500 was collected," Capt. Thomas said. "Should proceeds exceed expenses, any balance would go into the general fund for welfare work throughout the year."

We don't anticipate any overage, however."

An estimated 250-300 food baskets will be required to handle this year's need, Capt. Thomas said. Last year some 285 were distributed. Applications will be taken from Dec. 2-13. Already about 70 persons and families have been referred to the Salvation Army by county and state welfare departments.

The Corps will act as a clearing house for any church or other groups wishing names of needy persons. This procedure, as in the past, is to prevent duplication of giving and to assure that all needing assistance will get it.

TOY DRIVE

The toy drive is already under way. School children will again conduct a canned food drive. The goods will be picked up Dec. 13.

distributed from the same point this year, Capt. Thomas said.

Sent Cards First

Roman Catholics and Protestant Episcopalians were the first to adopt the custom of sending Christmas cards.

They will be distributed from the warehouse at Second and Johnson, the same place toys were dispensed from a year ago. Date will be Dec. 23.

A special Christmas Day meal will be prepared for transients. Salvation Army staff members and workers will visit the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital and local convalescent homes with Christmas remembrances. Also, the group will decorate dining rooms at the VA Hospital for the Christmas Day dinner.

SPECIAL DRIVE

As a special addition to the program, the Corps will make a house-to-house drive to sell the "War Cry," publication of the Salvation Army. Profits will go into the Christmas Fund.

Special activities for groups at the Citadel include a party for Sunbeams at 4 p.m., Dec. 10. Girl Guards, ages 11-18, will have a party at 7 p.m. that day. The Home League is planning a meal out at a local restaurant for Dec. 11 and a Christmas party for all Young People ages 12-25 will be held at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 12. A special Christmas program and party for the entire Sunday School will be at 7 p.m., Dec. 22.

Enamel Saves Silver Service

Holiday entertaining calls for bringing out your best in serving pieces.

But some hostesses have learned from sad experience the folly of putting mayonnaise, ripe olives, eggs or salted nuts in silver bowls, because of the tarnishing or permanent staining and pitting of silver that often follows. To remedy this there are now on the market silver hollowware pieces with colorful enamel linings.

Yule Recipes Delightful

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

neighborhood tells us about the Pannetone his wife bakes. This is an Italian sweet yeast bread, with long lasting qualities, holding raisins and citron or candied fruit peel.

Although we've often read of the delightful Swedish custom of serving Christmas Porridge, we regret to say we've never met a single American family that had carried on or adopted the tradition. According to a Scandinavian cook book on our shelves, Christmas Porridge is made of cooked rice enriched with butter, sugar and whipped cream. A lone almond is added; if the almond should fall to a boy or girl around the holiday table, it's prophesied that he or she will be the first youngster in the family to marry.

COOKIES

A Danish-American acquaintance once sent us some of the best cookies in the world. In typical Danish fashion a little flour held together a lot of sweet butter, sugar and vanilla. The cookies were shaped like Christmas wreaths. In her delightful cook book, "Danish Home Baking," Karen Berg says that "An old Christmas custom demands that no visitor to your house during Christmas may be allowed to leave without having tasted your Christmas cookies — otherwise you run the risk of the visitor's carrying away the Christmas spirit."

In his folk-cultural study, "Christmas in Pennsylvania," Alfred L. Shoemaker of Kutztown Fair fame, says that "Among cookies, the apee used to be the Christmas cookie in large parts of Pennsylvania." It may still be because we find Pennsylvania Dutch cook books abound in recipes for it.

Some Southerners feel Christmas isn't Christmas without Kentucky Bourbon Cake. Several holidays ago we baked our first bourbon cake and now we, too, feel it's a "must" at holiday time.

Of all the holiday beverages, our own favorite is Swedish is a big turkey dinner coming upon soon.

A seasoned parent, however, will ignore this disinterest in starting the day in appropriate fashion and see to it that breakfast is served as usual.

Best way to lessen the competition with the gift-opening is to bring breakfast to the living room, if possible, in serve-yourself fashion.

Sausages and scrambled eggs, kept hot on a chafing dish, can be the mainstay of a hostess's cart meal. Put the toaster alongside, with piles of English muffins or corn toasters ready to be browned, stack plates (or even paper plates), plug in the coffee maker for the adults, and breakfast can be a gala occasion.

Other protein-high possibilities for a Christmas breakfast might be creamed chipped beef, which can be prepared the night before, and served on toast next morning; corned or roast beef hash, which doesn't mind waiting in a casserole; or creamed, sliced hard-boiled eggs, served with or without slivers of ham.

Few Tips To Insure That Breakfast Is Eaten

Who wants to look at corn flakes when there are all those boxes of Christmas goodies under the tree? Who, indeed, can think of food when there's the tricycle to try out or the fishing rod to assemble? Besides, there's

Put Your Yule Story Permanently On Film

AP Newsfeatures
The saga of Christmas is a moving story that is retold year after year without losing its enchantment.

Christmas, too, can be a home movie story that preserves the colorful climax of the family year which can be shown year after year.

For some, Christmas is a one day film story which starts only after the gifts are opened. That is, if one of the gifts is a movie camera and the recipient puts it to work immediately.

WISE GIFTS

The wise gift giver these days will plan for such practical and immediate application by adding such vital accessories as film and light equipment along with the camera. But even then, filming shouldn't start until the newly created camera fan has read the book of instructions and understands the camera operations.

For those who already have a movie camera, the story of Christmas should start much earlier. The film could begin with the focus on an outstanding holiday store window display. You'll probably find appropriate ready-made titles on billboards or in window displays. Perhaps, as a switch from the usual shopping by mother, you could follow a youngster's search for suitable gifts. If some of the items are ludicrous or ridiculous, wouldn't that be film fare fun?

TRICK EFFECTS

When the film story moves indoors to show supposedly secret wrapping and hiding of presents and the tree trimming, some trick effects might be tried as a change of pace. By shooting at eight frames a second, the final result will be speeded up in normal projection. In this way, the visual effect, as well as the subject matter, will indicate last minute, hectic preparations.

With much of the holiday picture taking going on indoors, it is advisable to use indoor type color film for all filming. Such type A film can be used outdoors also by adding a daylight filter over the lens. Some cameras have the filter as a built-in feature and it takes just a flick of a lever to switch from one type of lighting to the other. Such an arrangement takes advantage of the full normal film speed of ASA 40 for Type A film and ASA 25 for daylight with the filter over the lens.

There are many elements that make a home movie more interesting for viewers. For one thing it should tell a story. A Christmas home movie starts with this plus factor because everything is related to the Yuletide theme.

CLOSE-UPS

Another element, one that becomes even more important in later years, is to shoot close-ups—lots of them. Close-ups are dramatic and eye-catching and there are never enough of them in the usual home movie.

Close-ups do require more accuracy in focusing and framing than all other type of shots but they are easier to accomplish with modern reflex cameras. With these you view the scene and focus through the lens itself, so you get what you see. For extreme close-ups such as a greeting card, a tree ornament, a hand clutching a toy, etc., it is necessary to add an extra close-up attachment to cameras.

Movies are more interesting when a variety of camera angles of viewpoints and different shooting distances are used. In addition, the home movie maker can vary the duration of each scene to give the film a change of pace.

AVERAGE SCENES

Average scenes usually run about 10 seconds. To avoid the monotony of all 10-second scenes, some can be short and staccato—about 5 seconds—and others can run 15 or more seconds if continuous, interesting action is going on.

Some don't's should be added to the do's. Don't jiggle the camera and don't pan. These two rules are at the top of the list because unsteady movies and bad panning are the commonest faults with most amateur movies. You must make a conscious effort to hold the camera firmly and it takes will power to refrain from panning.

Panning does serve a useful purpose at times and it can be done properly. The camera must swing s-l-o-w-l-y and e-v-e-n-l-y from side to side on an even keel either on a tripod or with the body acting as a human tripod. It should follow the action from the least to the most important part of the scene and hold still for a few seconds at start and finish.

FINAL PHASE

The final phase of a Christmas movie is the editing. It has to be drastic, if necessary, to make a really good movie because home filers have a tendency to hang on to everything they shoot. They just can't bear to part with the faintest glimmer of Junior or Aunt Sophie. Make up your mind to snip away all faulty frames and you'll be spared the necessity of apologizing every time you show the film thereafter.

When it's all done, your Yuletide home movie will bring the joy and spirit of Christmas throughout the rest of the year.

Nino Jesus Visits Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — When Peruvian children wake up on Christmas morning they jump out of bed and start looking for toys that the Christ Child (Nino Jesus) left during the night.

The boy might find a bicycle under his bed and the girl a doll by her shoes.

It is a happy time for the youngsters, especially. School is out until next April. Summer is almost here south of the equator. And traditionally the family is together during the holidays.

In Catholic Peru, the holidays are ushered in at a midnight mass on Christmas Eve.

Afterwards, the family goes home for its Christmas dinner—turkey and all the trimmings.

In most families, the birth scene (Nacimiento) is built—showing a tiny manger, the Christ child, Joseph and Mary and the Three Kings. Candles are lit and the family kneels and prays before dinner, a custom the Spanish conquistadors brought to Peru in the 16th Century.

Caribou Is Holiday Dish

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Children all over the world, in some small corner of their hearts, must secretly envy the children of Barrow.

For how much closer can one get to Santa and his workshop? Barrow children are quite familiar with reindeer, except the flying kind, and the bright red-nosed variety.

Only a few of the oldest people in the village remember the coming of the missionaries. Around 1900 these missionaries brought with them the story of Christ and Christmas. They also told of the three wise men and the Christmas Star.

But the Eskimos knew of this star long before the coming of the missionaries. The old people say that long ago it was noticed at this time of year that an exceptionally large, bright star appeared above the horizon. It was accompanied by a smaller star. During the time of the longest darkness, in the latter part of December, those stars would line up together.

Then celebrations would begin in small villages across the Arctic. Families and friends got together to hold contests, play games and share their food. It was an occasion everyone looked forward to.

Christmas Campaign

Toy Repair Work Grows Each Year

By BUCK SITTON
"It gets bigger and bigger every year," said H. V. Crocker, fire chief. The fire chief thus described the toy repair program the fire department has conducted 33 years. Since 1931, firemen have been repairing old toys for needy children at Christmas. Crocker, remembering the first year the toy repair campaign started, said the idea developed out of a fire which burned several toys. "Shine Philips brought a truck load of burned toys to the station, and we repaired them," he said. "There were just a few toys the first year," Crocker continued, "but the program has increased every year."

1,200 CHILDREN
Last year, an estimated 1,200 children received toys for Christmas as a result of the firemen's repair campaign. Crocker said the value of the toys had been estimated at about $38,000. "We take the toys, repair them so they are almost like new, paint them, and then turn them over to the Salvation Army," the chief said.

Crocker said a few toys have been turned in. Area residents who would like to make Christmas brighter for some child are asked to turn in old toys at any of the city fire stations. "Delivery can be made to the central station at Fourth and Nolan, or the sub-stations at 18th and Main, Eleventh and Birdwell, 100 NW 8th," Crocker said. The fire chief said the department will pick up toys from persons who can not make delivery themselves. "Just call AM 4-6083 and we'll send a pickup to get them," he said. Repair of the toys is made at each of the fire stations. "If one station gets overloaded, we divide the work," Crocker said.

PROBLEM
A problem in the past has been the delay in receiving old toys. "Usually, the campaign gets off to a slow start and picks up as Christmas draws near," Crocker observed. "We usually have to work a lot at night during the week before Christmas as the tempo picks up," he said. Crocker said several of the firemen are specialists in repairing toys. "Some are good painters and strippers and others are better at repairing bicycles," he said. The chief pointed out the city does not spend any money on the repair. "Firemen do all the labor," he continued, "and the paint and tools are paid for from the Cheer Fund." The firemen will repair any metal toy. "We have a few parts on hand, but we need bicycle tires, tubes, pedals, seats, chains and gears," Crocker said. Doll repairs are a special job. "We usually have several volunteer groups for doll dressing," Crocker said. Last year, several local social clubs and a home economics class of the high school helped with doll dressing.

STORED
The toys, when repaired, are stored in a building donated for that use by Clyde Denton. All 41 men on the fire department work on repairs. Workers at each station are: Central Station—H. V. Crocker, A. D. Meador, H. W. Clawson, John Waddill, Bill White, Jerry Foresyth, James Petty, Riley Knightstep, Bob Barnes, R. T. Hale, Howard Dodd, Gale Miller, Herb Doering, Bill Rains, J. L. Ryals, Johnny Shortes, Edell Ratliff, Ralph Murphree and Charles Chambers. Eleventh Place and Birdwell—A. L. Harrison, Lloyd Claxton, John Mennick, Max Pitts, Marvin Butts, Edison Taylor, O. L. Stewart, Johnny Crocker, Ken Davison and Tom Lockhart. North Side—J. D. Jenkins, Pete Anderson, Preston Daniels, J. W. Trantham, J. R. Gould and Ed King.

Only One Santa Serves This Town

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP)—This pre-Revolutionary town, which has succeeded through the years in preserving the spirit of '76, has also managed to withstand the commercialism of the holiday season and preserve the spirit of Christmas. There is only one Santa Claus in town at Yuletide, probably the only town in the country that does not produce Santa in triplicate. He reigns supreme in his comfortable cottage in Santa Land, which is the holiday name given to the two-acre green at the town's center.

Outside his curtained, living room windows, a line of children is in constant formation. For his off-duty hours, there is a mailbox, and the quantities of letters that pile up are faithfully answered by staff members of the local Chamber of Commerce who neatly straddle the question of gift requests by saying, "When I get to your house on Christmas Eve, I will undoubtedly have SOME of the things you asked for."

"Sometimes, you know, little boys and girls ask me for presents that they are not old enough to have, or maybe should not have, for some reason. I always have to keep this in mind when I am filling my pack and loading my sleigh."

The town Christmas celebration originated back in 1940, with Santa and a few cutout figures ornamenting the green. After a hiatus during World War II, the green decorations became an artistic project headed by the Chamber of Commerce, with the help of the town of Morristown, the churches, business firms, and fraternal, patriotic and civic organizations. The green itself is governed by a self-perpetuating committee.

This year there'll be 30 15-foot trees, strung with thousands of lights, as well as a large community tree and a permanent gold star tree. Ten toy soldiers will stand at stiff attention. Two rocking horses and a rocking reindeer will stand ready to give thousands of children an exhilarating ride. And in one corner of the green, stately camels will approach the Nativity scene.

In the late fall there will be a Jingle Bell breakfast where merchants volunteer to donate funds for refurbishing Santa Land. Says Ken Kostenbader, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, "It costs about $5,500 a year to keep the decorations up to date." By the first week of December, Santa Land will be ready. When Santa's arrival date is announced, there'll be about 45,000 people at the green to see him.

Arriving (supposedly by helicopter) on the top of a department store, Santa comes down the fire department ladder, rides triumphantly around the green on a fire truck, and then steps down to push the switch that sets Santa Land aglow.

A murmur goes up from the crowd. Children ride high on their fathers' shoulders for a better view. And the magic of Christmas has come again.

Symbology

The 12 days of Christmas as described in the old carol, "A Partridge in a Pear Tree," are symbolized by decorative figures cut out of felt and attached to a "tree" of round boxes covered with felt. Each tier represents a gift "my true love gave to me" on each of the 12 days of Christmas, as told in the song. This tree was made by Mrs. Aden Higgins in her home in Hopkinsville, Ky.

Carol's Pear Tree Made From Boxes

There's a new pear tree that tells an old Christmas story in the home of the Aden Higginses at Hopkinsville, Ky. The tree, made of posterboard and covered with felt, spells out the old English carol, "A Partridge in a Pear Tree." It was designed and made by Mrs. Higgins.

There are 12 hands, like lidless round boxes, which make up the "tree." They are of graduated sizes, the largest is 39 inches in diameter and the smallest is 6 inches across. Attached to the felt are figures celebrating the 12 days of Christmas. They are decorated in bright gold and silver braids, sequins, beads, costume pearls, and jewels.

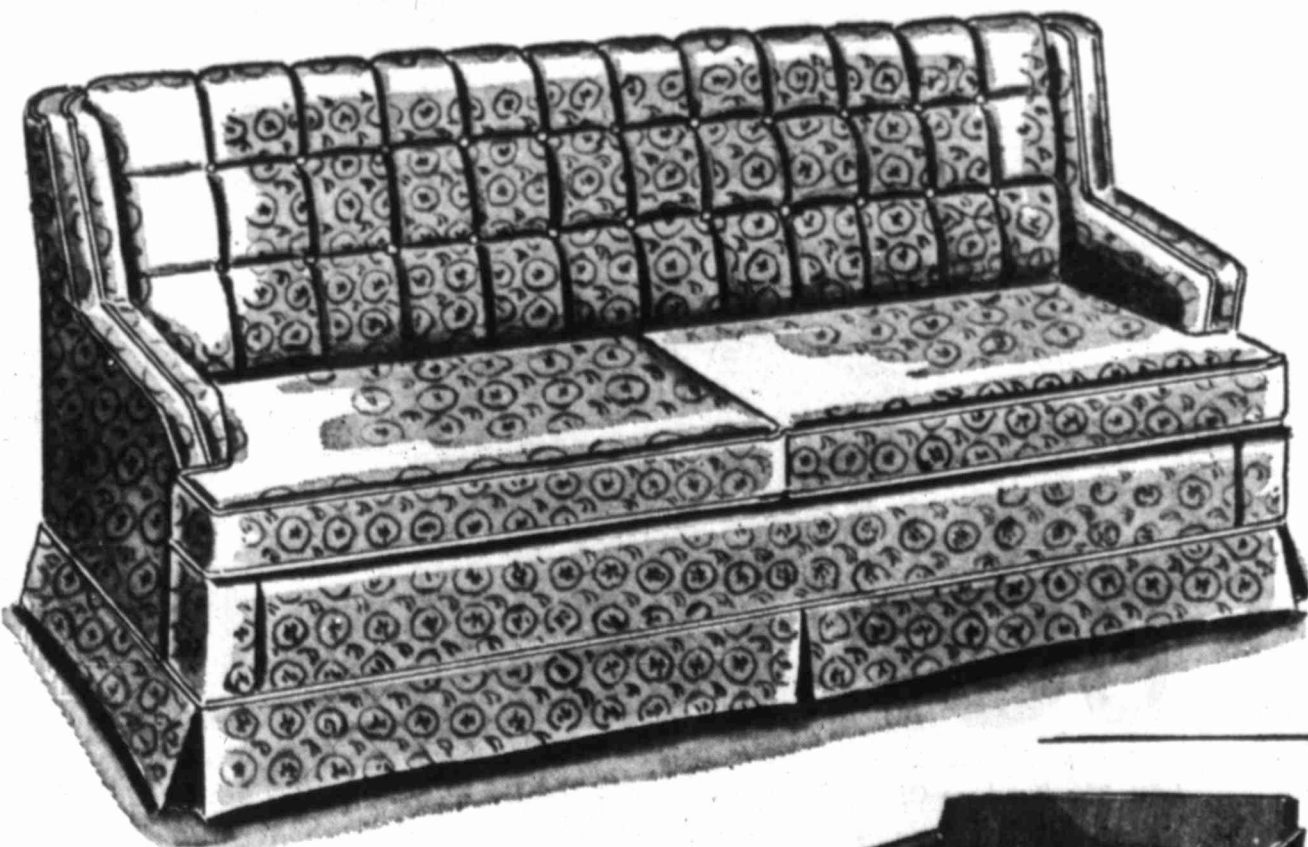

Santa's Neighbor

Russian children believe in Grandfather Frost. They think he is a neighbor to Santa Claus at the North Pole who comes in a horse-drawn troika sleigh with presents for children.

Since the boxes are hollow, they nest one inside another for easy storage between Christmas seasons. "A Partridge in a Pear Tree" is a carol of great antiquity. According to the Ben Shahn edition of the song, published by the Museum of Modern Art, "the partridge in church symbolism indicates abandonment of faith . . . The pear tree possibly refers to a one-time Christmas custom wherein a young girl, upon backing into a pear tree, then circling it three times, was to be rewarded by seeing the image of her true love."

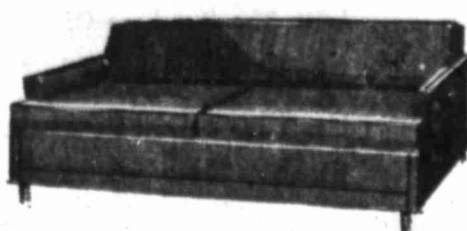

The song lists a series of gifts "my true love gave to me" until "On the 12th day of Christmas my true love gave to me 12 ladies dancing, 11 lords a-leaping; 10 drummers drumming, nine pipers piping, eight maids a-milking, seven swans a-swimming, six geese a-laying, five golden rings, four colts, three French hens, two turtle-doves and a partridge in a pear tree." Mrs. Higgins cut the figures freehand for each band of the story-telling tree.

Toy Auto Racing Surpasses Trains

Toy auto racing sets are big again this year. Their popularity, which began less than five years ago, has increased to the point where they now surpass electric trains, according to one manufacturer of both toys.

A.C. Gilbert Jr., president of Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A. Inc., attributes the change to the fact that children today can more easily identify with cars that they see daily than with trains.

An outgrowth of the auto racing layout this year is a new harness racing set that pits two horse-drawn sulkeys against each other in an electronic race on a track that's complete down to a plastic fence.

Auto layouts are increasingly elaborate, with new accessories added often.

A feature of one auto racing set is based on a trick performed at regular stock car events. In it, the miniature racing car jumps a gap from a ramp to the opposite lane of the roadway. Previously the cars

Tree Marks Peace Hope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty years ago, in 1923, President Calvin Coolidge began what has become one of America's favorite observances — the dedication of a national Christmas tree near the White House.

This year, once again, the tree-lighting dedication will be part of an elaborate Pageant of Peace from Dec. 23 through Dec. 30.

The pageant has been presented since 1954, drawing large numbers of visitors to Washington at a time of year when the capital is not otherwise much of a tourist attraction.

It is a time for "oohs!" and "ahs!" when the great tree bursts into brilliant colors at the touch of a presidential finger on a master control switch.

It is a time of solemnity, too. Perhaps contributing to Coolidge's decision to have the tree was the presence in the White House of the two young sons of President and Mrs. Coolidge. (One, Calvin Jr., died the following year.)

The first national tree was placed on the Ellipse, south of the White House grounds. The Ellipse is still the scene, although in some intervening years the tree has been set up in Lafayette Park, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

On occasion, too, large living evergreens on the White House south lawn have been used. In recent years the choice has usually been a towering spruce or fir, brought by rail from points as far away as Maine and Washington state. A height of 60-70 feet is usual.

In recent years the thousands of colored lights on the big tree have been controlled from an electronic console that transforms the musical notes into impulses that change, impressively the colors and degree of brightness of the lights.

Luther Did It

It is believed that Martin Luther introduced decorating Christmas trees with lighted candles.

Elaborate Show

Lights on the National Christmas Tree and on smaller trees that line the main walk of the Pageant of Peace run into the thousands. Scene of this annual display is the Ellipse, a park between The White House and Washington Monument.

Japan's Merchants Play Up Santa Claus Theme

TOKYO (AP) — Japan may be a nation of Buddhists and Shintoists, but at Christmas time the Yuletide spirit is everywhere.

Department stores and shop windows are gaily decorated. Santa Clauses roam the streets. Gifts are wrapped with elaborate care.

In fact, Christmas in Japan now is practically a national institution—despite the fact that only 700,000 of the nation's 94 million people follow the Christian faith.

Until 1945, Christmas went by relatively unnoticed. But in the postwar drive toward economic recovery and prosperity, commercial possibilities of Christmas seemed to businessmen too good a thing to pass up.

Department stores formerly looked forward mainly to June, when Japanese observe the traditional Buddhist holiday of "Obon" by exchanging gifts, and late December, when gifts

Grandparents Get Away From Strains

The obvious joys of having numerous grandchildren around during the holidays are shared by all grandparents everywhere. But there are stresses and strains, too, when children and grandchildren pour in.

Two Atlanta grandmothers who count 41 grandchildren between them, have found a delightful solution to the deluge of kiddies—at Christmastime they take off on a winter cruise.

They preferred anonymity. "I wouldn't hurt my children's feelings for anything," said one.

Whose idea was the Christmas cruise? It was one of the grandfathers.

"We're proud to death of all our grandchildren. We'd give them anything they wanted," one said. "But we just can't take all the excitement of the holidays. They wear us down."

"So, when the cruise was suggested, we snapped it up. The four of us have been taking them for several years now. No our children don't mind. They understand. And we see our grandchildren often during the year."

Another grandmother, who has 21 grandchildren, says, "You just have to lay down certain rules."

"For example, now that we've moved out of the big house into an apartment, my husband has a rule that we can't have the grandchildren in the apartment at Christmas. Sheer numbers rule this out."

Long Skirts Setting Pace

Heavy, lush fabrics; rich, brilliant colors; and "kooky" trimmings describe the extravagant lounging clothes for this holiday season.

This trend was set off by designers who thought new income tax restrictions on expense account spending for entertainment would set off a boom in parties at home.

Although the restrictions have been modified, the luxuriousness of the clothes haven't.

But the extent to which a taste for this kind of dressing - up at home can be indulged depends on the social set one travels in as well as one's income bracket.

For the Jet set, all the rockets are released. There are magnificent gowns in brilliant floral patterns, with sweeping trains that require ballroom-size living rooms to maneuver them in.

There are pajama-type pants with wide legs and row upon row of ruffles, and others dripping with crystals. Usually these are covered with sweeping skirts.

Sparkle

Holiday hostesses will sparkle this season in ankle length skirts like these, with their sweeping, easy lines. The wrap skirt comes in rich, deep colors in cotton sude. The glen plaid, with its long front pleat, can be had in black or brown with white. Long skirts for home entertaining will also abound in wool blanket plaids, authentic India madras and brisk herringbone tweeds.

holiday helper!

There are so many, many things to do getting ready for Christmas. But one thing helps make them easier — your dependable electric service. Thanks to modern work-saving electric appliances, there's less time spent on routine household chores, leaving more time for Christmas shopping and other holiday preparations. It's during the holiday season, when electricity does so much to save your time and conserve your energy, that electric service once more proves to be the biggest value in your home.

Try Blue, Gold For Holidays

If you're tired of trimming your home in the traditional Christmas red and green, try gold and blue.

One interior decorator suggests that if your home is decorated mainly in cool colors (blues, greens, mauves), gold will add a sparkle of sophistication.

And for a warm room (done in reds, yellows, oranges, browns) decorations in a vibrant, clear blue will enhance it.

For either the tiny apartment, or the home with large, spacious rooms, use decorations on the bold side. But not too many.

And you'll draw the most attention if you save the focal point of the room, like a fireplace mantel or wall behind a sofa, for your most dramatic efforts. Put smaller bits of tinsel and greenery in less important spots.

Don't forget that no matter how small your entry hall or foyer, this area is the first to greet the guest's eye. If space is limited, hang your decorations from the ceiling.

Ordinary houseplants will add a festive touch. If you drape tinsel or icicles from the stems of larger varieties or wrap foil around the pots of smaller plants.

But if you're tradition bound, you'll probably incorporate a poinsettia plant somewhere in your trimming.

Today's poinsettia is far different from the plant which Dr. Joel R. Poinsett brought back to his home in South Carolina in 1834 from Mexico where he was serving as U.S. Ambassador.

Natural varieties were then small, with dumpy blossoms and ragged stalks. The plants' present velvet-like beauty has been brought about by breeding the best hybrids.

Poinsettias didn't begin to gain acceptance here as a holiday plant until the early 1900s. But by the 1930s, demand had grown so much that leftover plants were hoarded because stock plants weren't obtainable.

To care for your poinsettia so it will last the longest (three to four weeks in the average home), keep it away from temperature extremes, like cold window panes and hot radiators. The plants do best with warmth and humidity. Use warm water when watering it from the surface.

Ever wonder how the poinsettia became identified with Christmas?

There is an old Mexican legend which tells of a poor child who went to church on Christmas Eve feeling sad because he could not afford a gift for the Holy Child.

The tale goes that he knelt outside the church and assured God of his great desire to offer the Child a gift. When he arose he saw at his feet a green plant with blinding red blooms, and he joyfully broke off some of the branches of this poinsettia, entered the church and placed his offering at the feet of the Christ Child.

WONDERFUL CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR EVERYONE

Satisfied Even Though She's Not Artistic

By LYDIA BICKFORD
Christmas is the time of the year when my abysmal lack of artistic talent can be neither concealed nor denied.

While my neighbors are shipping away at rolls of shiny foil, creating snowmen out of plastic foam, and weaving their own wreaths from pine boughs, I am in the cellar, looking for remnants of last year's decor which can be brought up to date.

My problem is two-fold: I have no artistry and no dexterity. It would not occur to me to tastefully arrange a fir branch over the fireplace, attach tiny red balls to it, and spray on some silver glisten.

If it did occur to me, I would undoubtedly rip my fingers where I wired on the balls, and, seconds after taping the display in position, would hear it drop with a crash to the mantel.

Through the years I have labored to be more creative. I have tried to imitate the least lavish ideas gleaned from magazines, like floating candles in a bowl of water. As soon as I get them launched and lighted, they tip over.

I would like to think I could do more with a Christmas package than tie paper ribbon around it. I love the sequined, spangled, smartly sophisticated boxes I receive on Christmas Day. But I can't duplicate them.

So my field of decoration is limited to the tree. Anyone can hang ornaments on a tree. Or so I used to think, until my family decided otherwise.

If not artistic, I am sentimental about tree-trimming. It must be a family affair. So early Christmas Eve I try to find the family, which is quite difficult since they're all college age, and are more ambulatory than stationary at holiday time.

It's nine o'clock before they're rounded up, and have started hooking up the lights. And then the battle lines are drawn.

There is the contingent that believes you embellish only the part of the tree that can be seen and leave the back unadorned.

There is the faction that prefers the pointer to the star.

There is the sensitive soul who recoils if two blue balls are in juxtaposition, or if yellow has landed unexpectedly by orange, or if one side of the tree holds more large balls than the other.

There is the perfectionist who puts each single piece of silver tinsel at a time on the boughs and will not be hurried.

So it's close to midnight by the time the tree is adorned. We cut off all the lights except those on the tree. Though aching with fatigue, I murmur, "The best one we ever had."

"Last year's was better balanced," says my eldest.

"I've always wanted a taller tree," says my younger son.

"Why didn't we get a blue spruce? Always trying to save money," interjects another.

My husband, who doesn't see why we have any tree at all, has fled the scene.

Perhaps it's just as well I'm not artistic. I'm satisfied.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Cleve Bardine took a job as a Santa Claus in a Tucson department store.

One 9-year-old boy climbed on Bardine's knee and in a loud voice began rattling off a long list of toys he wanted for Christmas.

"Why so many things? Don't you think that's a little selfish?" Bardine asked.

The lad shook his head and whispered, "That's my Mom and Dad over there. They don't believe in Santa Claus. If you'd bring me all those things, I bet they'd have to believe in you."

SANTA CLAUS
A Right Jolly Old Elf

Generation Clings To Santa Image

If some well intentioned critics had their way, the popular figure of Santa Claus would be as dead as the Fourth of July firecracker.

By and large the firecracker, once responsible for more blinded and maimed youngsters than the safety council would like to remember, has gone unremembered—even though its disappearance has changed completely the character of the old time Fourth in much of the country.

But think what an emptiness there would be if Santa faded away!

Commercialized, caricatured, diverted to a thousand activities that the original Saint Nicholas never could have envisioned, Santa still holds the imagination of children everywhere.

What matter if there is a Santa on every street corner and in every department store—doesn't Santa need helpers? Who cares about the logistics of gift distribution from the North Pole to chimneyless homes and apartments in ten thousand towns—there are a lot of mysterious goings on in the grown-up world. What child do you know who has suffered a lasting trauma from the pile of Santa-given toys that proved too lavish in one stance, or too scanty in another?

You don't have to be any great shakes at logic to downgrade Santa. He's an anachronism in the electronic age, an aberration from the fundamental Christian theme, and the product to a considerable extent of the fancies of a versifier, cartoonist, assorted story writers and ad men.

But a generation that laughs at legends and debunks heroes still clings to his children to the image, no matter how tawdry, of a happy, all-knowing, always generous, always loving sprite whose presence once a year colors the fabric of the great religious holiday. And the color he gives it is a happy one.

Santa Claus Due Dec. 5

Santa Claus is scheduled to arrive at the Texas and Pacific Railway station Dec. 5th, and will join in a parade down Main Street to the courthouse square at 2 p.m. The Big Spring High School band will meet him at First Street and lead the parade south to the courthouse. Santa will be riding in a red wagon, pulled by Shetland ponies.

It Was Silly Question Anyway

LOUISVILLE (AP)—A youngster picked out a $1 set of earrings for her mother's Christmas gift and handed the clerk two 50 cent pieces.

"What about the tax?" he inquired.

"My mother doesn't use tacks," the girl replied. "She screws them in her ears."

ABC Club members will meet him on the east side of the courthouse to help distribute candies to youngsters.

The wagon and horses will be provided by Malcolm and Morris Patterson. Mead's Bakery will provide the candy.

The Christmas shopping season in Big Spring will officially open Friday. Street lights, being installed in the downtown area, are to be up and lighted.

A Nativity scene, to be erected by the First Christian Church on the east side of the courthouse, will also be up and lighted for the official Christmas season opening.

Several business houses will be outlined with lights this year.

Individual business men wanting these lights put up on their buildings, to be powered from each store, may contact Talley Electric to have them installed. Several have already arranged for their buildings to be lighted, and others are expected. Some time will be required for installation, but Talley has arranged for the strings of lights with bulbs spaced two feet apart.

Street decorations and lighting will be the same as used last year.

Let Children Take Part In Activities

Christmas is the time when we knock ourselves out trying to make the holiday pleasant for children.

And we find all these activities are fun. So why not let the children in on the joys of the season by letting them take part?

For instance, children love to help ice Christmas cookies. Even if their designs are messier than yours, they'll have fun and get the experience to do better next year.

Or, let them create their own Christmas cards. You can put them to work cutting out designs from colored paper or clipping pictures from magazines to paste onto their cards.

If they aren't old enough to do anything else, very little children get a kick out of just printing their names on cards. Glistening greetings can be made by turning the children loose with glue bottles and glitter paint, and colored paper.

Another idea is to trace patterns of snowmen or Santas on brown paper and let the kids use them as outlines for cutting out colored paper or foam rubber sheeting.

Then the children can add finishing touches to their decorations, such as coloring the snowman's hat, and filling in his eyes, nose, mouth and the buttons down his front. They can add a bit of bright ribbon and perhaps a printed greeting cut from an old Christmas card.

On the rubber sheeting, felt nib pens can be purchased with red or green ink to add the finishing touches.

Make a giant Santa to hang on your front door from the rubber sheeting. Then let the children glue on pieces of felt or plastic for facial features. After Christmas this Santa can be rolled up and stored in the attic for next year.

The children will also enjoy being allowed to help wrap presents for Grandma or Grandpa or other relatives.

And you can provide them with leftover greens, sprigs of holly and ribbon so they can create holiday decorations for their own rooms or a family room.

The kids also might like to help arrange Christmas cards you receive in a display. The cards could be tacked to a bulletin board covered with festive paper, or pinned to a large piece of green or red felt or a commercial cardholder.

If you stop and think of all the holiday preparations you do make around the home you'll surely find some portions in which the kids can participate.

Berlin's Tune Is Top Record For Holidays

By MARY CAMPBELL

The country's biggest selling Christmas record, Bing Crosby's "White Christmas," is 21 years old this year. It has sold between 10 and 12 million copies and is still selling—on 45, extended play 45 and two long-playing records.

Irving Berlin wrote "White Christmas," in 1942. Bing Crosby sang it in the movie "Holiday Inn" and later that year recorded it for Decca's cast album "Holiday Inn," 12 songs from the movie in a six-record, 78 r.p.m. package. On the other side of "White Christmas" he sang "Let's Start the New Year Right."

The company reissued "White Christmas" as a single several times and in 1947 Crosby recorded it again. Recording techniques were better but the arrangement was the same and the Ken Darby Singers were again in the background. It's that 1947 version you'll buy this year if you buy Bing Crosby's "White Christmas." On 45 he backs it with "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen." On 45 extended play he also sings "Silent Night," "Adeste Fideles" and "Jingle Bells." Bing sings carols and popular Christmas songs, including "White Christmas" of course, on the LP "Merry Christmas," which has been a big seller for the past half dozen Yuletide seasons. And his "White Christmas" is also available on "Holiday Inn," one of the 15 LPs Decca released during 1962 as a collection of all the songs Crosby ever sang in movies. Though Decca doesn't count them in their totals of how many Bing Crosby "White Christmas" have sold, Bing did record two other versions. One was as part of a quartet from the 1954 movie "White Christmas" and the other was taped at a Christmas show he did on radio in 1955.

Billion Stamps

One billion Christmas stamps were printed by the Post Office in 1962. This was the nation's first special Christmas stamp.

Toys That Intrigue Are Inexpensive

You don't HAVE to give young children expensive toys.

Many intriguing toys are available at $1 or less.

For instance, there is an Indian headdress kit with which a kid can make himself a feathery hat. And he really can do it himself. The kit comes complete with a plastic headpiece in which the youngster inserts dyed feathers in pre-cut slots. It also comes with fluff feathers and brads for side buttons. Glue can be used to make the headdress permanent.

Then there is a set of building sticks with which those aged four and up can construct towers, forts, houses and free designs. The 53 self-locking sticks are 7 1/2 inches long. Each end is notched on three sides. Again the projects can be made permanent by gluing the sticks together.

A plastic windmill that doubles as a bank and bubble gum dispenser is colorful and amusing.

Even paper dolls have their modern versions. Instead of folding paper clothes around the doll, today's Susies and Janies press on the doll's fashionable wardrobe.

Hatboxes with cardboard handles contain sets showing little girls how to sew, knit or weave.

Other toys useful in keeping a youngster busy on rainy days or long, dull winter afternoons are sets from which they can make Indian belts or headbands; plaques and trays out of beads and shells; charm jewelry and mosaic tiles.

Then for the junior soldier, come camouflage helmets, flashlights, canteens or mess kits. The young general can take his pick from a variety of water guns, named for real guns, the most expensive of which runs about half a dollar. Most come in assorted colors, and one revolver boasts a "glittering silver plated snub nose."

"Let's pretend" can let their imaginations roam as they play at being farmers or gas station attendants. A farm set contains 14 pieces of plastic equipment including a pick up truck, tractor and harvester. In the service station kit are 18 plastic pieces such as gas pumps, oil can racks, mechanic's pit, some cars and trucks.

So you see, besides the old standbys of crayons, coloring books, paint sets, dolls and shovels, balls and marbles, there really are toys around for less than a dollar.

Use Eggs For Ornaments

Eggs are usually thought of as an Easter tradition.

But about 200 dozen eggs have been turned into glittering Christmas tree decorations by Mrs. Isabel Baynes of Bowleys Quarters, Md.

Tools for her hobby, besides the emptied eggshells, are semiclear glue, multicolored glitter, sequins and ribbon. Mrs. Baynes first saw Christmas eggs which had been imported from Germany and were selling at $4 a dozen.

"I decided I could make my own," she says. "It's a simple process."

Mrs. Baynes cracks the top of an egg, emptying it into a saucer. Then she breaks down the eggshell to fit the design she wants. Some eggs have only the top segment removed, but others are reduced to a half-shell.

Her method of adding glitter to the shells is to draw lines and circles with the tip of a glue container. Then she sprinkles a spoonful of glitter over the entire shell. When surplus glitter is shaken off, the pattern appears.

She completes some designs with figures of clowns, angels, snowmen and Santa Claus which peep over the shell's edge.

When Mrs. Baynes began decorating eggs, she says each egg took about half an hour to complete. But now she can decorate one shell in 10 minutes.

Mrs. Baynes even made the star for the top of the family tree from six eggs glued together and decorated in red and gold. This, she says, was her most difficult project.

Christina, Mrs. Baynes' 10-year-old daughter, also has learned to decorate eggs, as have many pupils in the six area schools where Mrs. Baynes serves as a substitute teacher.

Safe Driving Urged During Yule Season

Strict law enforcement and public cooperation have kept holiday traffic accidents in Big Spring to a minimum, according to Police Chief Jay Banks. The number of accidents during the Christmas holidays in 1961 and 1962 showed no increase over accidents on other days. Chief Banks said his department would do everything possible to keep the holiday mishaps at a minimum, and he urged all motorists to cooperate.

"Be especially careful during the holiday season for there are more cars on the road at this time of year than at any other time," Banks said. However, he expressed concern over the rise in motor vehicle accidents during this fiscal year. Since April, there have been 548 accidents. During the same period last year there were 484. There have been two fatalities this year, compared with three last year, but no holiday fatalities were recorded in the past two years. There were 30 holiday accidents last year. Five of the mishaps resulted in injuries. There were 26 accidents with three in-

True Christmas Spirit Shown By Those Who Work

While most of the nation spends Christmas in a happy welter of crushed gift paper, over-excited children, new toys and a turkey dinner, it's business as usual for a corps of workers dedicated to making the holiday happier for the stay-at-homes. They're members of a not-too-small army in the service occupations for whom Christmas is just another day. And many of them like it that way. They're not sorry for themselves. They have Christmas celebrations before or after work. And even at work, they're part and parcel of the holiday excitement.

Take Mary Gallagher, a long distance operator, and mother of four. She's likely to work Christmas Eve, as separated families begin their calls to extend greetings. "She's home at midnight, then up a bit after six with the children to see what Santa has brought. A small breakfast, then the family dinner at 2 p.m. She is back at the switchboard again at 6 o'clock Christmas night, leaving her husband to supervise further dissection of the turkey.

"I'm lucky to be in an organization where I can work split shifts," the vivacious young woman says. "This way I can have my Christmas and work too. But I depend heavily on my husband." Between her own and her husband's job, Skippy Gramlich cannot help but be caught up in Christmas excitement. The day before Christmas, she's helping reservation clerks at Eastern Airlines in New York find space for frantic, last-minute travelers. At 5 p.m., she hurries over to her husband's floral shop, and works for hours filling a staggering number of Christmas orders. "I never get to bed till 2 Christmas morning, but the work is exciting," she says. "We get a lot of cables from ships at sea from seamen who want to send flowers to their families." The problems of television transmission grow more complicated for crews that must be extra busy at holiday time. Christmas is likely to find Morton Romanoff, ABC studio field engineer, setting up a light bridge high in the awesome dome of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. "It takes 15 or 16 hours to set up before a service," explains Romanoff. "And of course in a church we want to be as inconspicuous as possible, so we wear clerical garb." Then, when we do a New Year's Eve party, like one at the Hotel Astor, we switch into tuxedos so we'll look like guests. I love the work, and I've had an upside down schedule ever since I can remember," Romanoff adds. Since Christmas is for children, hospital nurses dream up all kinds of cheer for little patients who must be confined over the holidays. But the pediatrics supervisor

Brain Games Lure Parents

Maybe adults are just kids at heart. At any rate, they are buying more and more toys. Competitive games of military maneuvers, for example, are enjoying the greatest boom in a century, according to Mel Freud, president of the Toy Guidance Council. Typical of this current enthusiasm is one game that replays World War I air conflicts, and is accompanied by a historical outline of the war's events. There are other popular ones that have the Civil War as a background. And a game based on Napoleon's maneuvers is enjoying a boom abroad, as well as in the United States. Matching brainpower seems to be another significant trend at many adult parties. Most of these games center around verbal charades, some based on television shows. One such game tries to "revive the art of conversation" in which players base sentences on three words from printed cards, and are challenged on their statements by opponents. A bell is provided for the moderator's use. The makers of a business competition game, recognizing that many adults will be its purchasers, even include rules that apply only to men or women. The popularity of model car racing can also be put down, in large part, to interested adults.

One toy manufacturer estimates that 40 per cent of its model motoring market consists of adult consumers, based on the fact that the product is too expensive for children's allowances. The same manufacturer says they sell "umpteen million model kits", principally World War I and II airplanes and a series of movie monsters, to grownups, and they believe it's because the oldersters sentimentally recall these reminders of their youth. Sporting games are enjoying continuing favor. A new version of an electronic football game has three-dimensional figures and a magnetic football that enables a player to pick up a loose ball while moving. In electronic hockey games, the latest wrinkle is a game board with folding aluminum legs for convenient storage. Also, one model comes with paints and brush so players can paint their players in big league uniforms of their choice. Despite all the new trends in adult toys, there's one old favorite that goes on and on. The makers of "Monopoly" say that since 1935, when the game was invented by an unemployed heating engineer, it has sold more than 35 million copies. Although it is sold in a dozen foreign languages, the game is banned behind the Iron Curtain as "too capitalistic."
