All Texas Wells Except East Texas Field Exempt From Shutdown Days

AUSTIN (AP)—The prewar days of no shutdown will return for all Texas oil fields except one beginning October 1. Lone exception is the East Texas Field, where the number of producing days must be restricted in order to preserve pressure in the oil reservoir. Return of fields to every day production for the first time since 1939 was announced late Wednesday by Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, as he issued the October oil proration order. The order giving operators the go-ahead sign for fulltime production at most efficient rates of operation was calculated to bring a flow of 2,376,358 barrels of Texas crude oil per day in the coming months.

County Ellenburger discovery, was running a Dowell electric pilot survey drilled out total depth of 8,370 feet. The test is being taken to try to locate source of sulphur water which has been swabbed from perforations at 8,365-70 feet. The water drowned out the oil which was originally shown by this exploration at a rate of seven and one-half barrels per hour, flowing, natural.

LION GETS MORE SHOWS IN SOUTH CRANE PROSPECTOR

Lion Oil Company No. 1 Cowden, South Crane County prospector, about four miles southwest of the town of Crane, was drilling ahead below 7,932 feet in lime. It took a three hour drillstem test at 7,772-7,896 feet. Gas showed at the surface in 37 minutes. Recovery was 660 feet of oil and gas cut mud. The section investigated was understood to be in the Devonian.

DOLLAR HIDE DISCOVERY PROVES 50 MORE FEET

The Pure Oil Company and Humble No. 1-E-A Cowden, Ellenburger discovery on the north side of the Dollar Hide field, in extreme Southwest Andrews County, ran a drillstem test at 10,120-170 feet. Chokes on bottom and top of the drill pipe were both 5/8-inch openings. The 2,500-foot water blanket reached the surface in 41 minutes. Clean oil flowed at the top in 68 minutes. The oil was flowed to tanks for one and one-half hours and averaged 54 barrels per hour. Gravity was 44-degrees. Gas-oil ratio was 532-1. Flowing pressure leveled at 3,200 pounds. Shutin pressure, after 15 minutes, was 4,200 pounds. Operators were to drill 50 feet deeper, and then take another drillstem test. The latest test was for a total of two hours and 45 minutes.

Hurricane—

Thursday, searching for small boats which might be in distress. Feroocity of the storm was generally regarded as equal to that of 1928, 1930 and 1935, but unlike those hurricanes there was only negligible loss of life. Early reports indicated one man fatally injured in a high-way accident near Tampa, and another, electrocuted by a fallen wire at Palm Beach, and one was shot to death in Miami while attempting to loot a damaged store. In 1928 a total of 2,500 persons were killed or drowned in the west Palm Beach-Everglades area, while in 1935 a storm killed 500 in the Florida Keys. The 1930 disaster took 2,000 lives in Santo Domingo and Haiti.

Heaviest damage was suffered by citrus growers and truck farmers. Orange, grapefruit and lemon groves in the storm's path were left in sickening shambles, their golden, nearly-ripened fruit best-on to muddy pulp. Tomato fields were washed, and other crops cut to pieces. Even far to the north, citrus damage was considerable. Missionaire resort spots also suffered. At Pompano, just north of Miami, two luxurious estates and a big casino were said to have "disappeared" into the ocean, leaving only their plumbing. Elsewhere roofs were peeled off, windows shattered, trees levelled and beach cabanas carried away. Graceful royal palms at West Palm Beach became unwanted roadblocks. Dikes Held

Conditions in the Okeechobee District were reported serious, but the multi-million dollar dikes held against pounding lake waters and spared the lowlands. Palm Beach, Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Fort Myers and hundreds of smaller communities were mauled mercilessly by the storm, but although they suffered heavy damage in many cases, there were no catastrophes. At mid-morning, there was no direct wire communications with Bradenton, Clearwater, Sarasota, Fort Myers, Fort Pierce, Fort Lauderdale, West Palm Beach and Miami.

Hurricanes Take Heavy Toll In Deaths And Damage

By MAX HALL

WASHINGTON —(AP)—The hurricane which moved on Florida is the second most violent type of wind-storm known to mankind.

The most violent is the tornado. Tornadoes also strike more suddenly and more often. An average of 140 a year are reported in the United States.

Hurricanes average about six a year in the Atlantic, Caribbean, and Gulf of Mexico—and only half of those hit the United States.

Hurricanes Kill More

Yet hurricanes kill more people and do more damage, because they attack a greater area and pound it longer.

The terms—hurricane, tornado, cyclone, and typhoon are often confused. Let's see what they mean.

The Weather Bureau says cyclone is a general term for any circular movement of air—not necessarily violent—around a center in which the atmospheric pressure is low.

A tornado is one kind of cyclone—small but terrible, racing along overhead for a short distance in a whirling cloud in which the air travels at speeds that rarely exceed 250 miles an hour but so far have been impossible to measure.

Tropical Cyclone

A hurricane is another kind of cyclone. It is a tropical cyclone in which the wind blows at a speed of 75 miles an hour or more.

Hurricanes occur in all tropical oceans except the South Atlantic but they are called by different names in different parts of the world.

A hurricane in China is called a typhoon. In the Philippines it is a banyan. In Australia it is a willy-willy. In India it is merely a cyclone.

"Typhoons" and "cyclones"—hurricanes to us—are said to have killed 300,000 people at Haifong, China, in 1881; 100,000 at the Bay of Bengal in 1876; and 100,000 at Bombay in 1882.

A hurricane killed about 6,000 people at Galveston, Texas, in 1900—the greatest hurricane toll in U. S. history.

Occasionally a tornado happens to scream across a populated area and causes frightful slaughter. The "triple-ate tornado" of 1925 in Missouri, Illinois, and Indiana killed 689 people. But on the average, tornadoes kill about 25 a year.

In property damage, tornadoes caused a $262,000,000 loss over a 22-year period. But a single hurricane—the one that struck Long Island and New England in September, 1938—caused damage estimated by the Red Cross at between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000.

Seasons Differ

May is the height of the tornado season. September is the height of the hurricane season.

Hurricanes blow in a wide circle, often 300 to 500 miles in diameter with a calm spot in the center averaging 14 miles wide.

The whole circle moves slowly forward while the circular wind shrieks at 75, 100, sometimes 125 miles an hour, pounding and hammering furiously in immense gusts that often attain 200 miles an hour or more.

Water Does Most Damage

Milton Blanc, of the Weather Bureau, who furnished much of the information in this article, says: "The wind gets a lot of publicity but it's the water that does most of the damage, and most of the deaths in hurricanes are due to drowning."

The wind piles the water up ahead of it and smashes it over the land in appalling waves. Walls are beaten down. Buildings are undermined. People are drowned.

Autumn Salad Boasts Fresh Pears And Grapes

Mold fresh pears and grapes into an autumn salad.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Go to market for fresh pears and fragrant grapes. Then plan a salad or dessert with the colors of autumn.

Fresh Pear and Grape Salad
(Serves 6)

One-quarter cup cold water, 1 envelope plain unflavored gelatin, 1 1/4 cup sugar, 1 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup orange juice, 1 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1 cup gingerale, 1 cup halved, seeded red grapes, 1 cup sliced fresh pears.

Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Mix together sugar, salt, fruit juices and gingerale. Add dissolved gelatin to this mixture, stirring thoroughly. Cool. When mixture starts to thicken, add fruit. Pour into one large mold or into individual molds that have been rinsed out in cold water and chilled until firm. To serve, unmold on salad greens and serve with any desired dressing. Note: If desired, this recipe may be poured into sherbet glasses and served as a dessert.

Navy Experiments With Special Ships For Rocket Launching

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Navy officers agree that the firing of a German V-2 from the deck of the 45,000-ton carrier Midway was a demonstration of a sea-going launching site, rather than a new role for the flattops.

They believed it extremely unlikely that carriers of the future will be expected to fire big rockets and launch airplanes too. Special guided missile ships will be the thing in their opinion. In announcing the test the Navy said it "will mark the beginning of a new era in naval weapons."

A carrier is not a combatant ship in itself but rather a floating garage for a swarm of fighting planes. It can protect itself somewhat with anti-aircraft guns but is not designed for hammer-and-tongs battle.

Two New Missile Ships
Two ships under construction, the 45,000-ton battleship Kentucky and the 27,500-ton large cruiser Hawaii, are being converted into guided missile ships.

The catch is that nobody knows what a guided missile ship should be, and work is proceeding very slowly while Navy planners test out theories and ideas.

Best bet at present is that they will be fast, able to take the pounding of a battleship, have provisions against atom bomb blasts and, of course, fire big rockets and controlled missiles.

To Experiment With Neptune
Meanwhile, the stock of captured V-2s is dwindling and the Navy is looking forward to experimenting with its brand-new rocket, the Neptune, slated for testing next June.

Advance publicity on the American-made rocket predicts it will soar 235 miles into the air, twice as far as the V-2 has gone in New Mexico altitude tests.

Experts believe the 235-mile figure may be exceeded considerably when the Neptune is finally tried out. Presumably it might be capable of 500 miles in a horizontal direction.

More Streamlined Than V-2
About as long as the V-2 (46 feet), the Neptune is much slimmer. Over 7,000 of its fully loaded weight of 11,410 pounds is taken up by fuel. It is scheduled to carry one ton of instruments or explosive in its nose.

The Navy regards it as the largest practical rocket for shipboard use and from it expects to learn enough to design actual war rockets for the Kentucky and Hawaii.

Years will pass, according to the best naval opinion, before perfection of the truly long-range rocket, complete with an atomic bomb for a warhead.

Missing Man Requests Court To Rule He Lives

WOONSOCKET, R.I. — (AP)—Nicola Glowak, missing since 1927 and declared legally dead, came home recently to find a $1,000 bank account he left behind was in another's hands.

Glowak went to a lawyer about the money and investigation of the records showed this is what happened:

Seven years after Glowak left, his wife, Anastasia, petitioned the Probate Court for appointment as administrator of the missing man's estate.

The court ruled that after seven years' absence, Glowak was legally dead, and that the $1,000, deposited by Glowak under the name of a relative in Poland, was part of the estate.

Mrs. Glowak long since obtained the money and closed out the account.

Glowak said he went to New Jersey after a 1927 quarrel with his wife, remaining there ever since, working at his trade as a shoemaker.

He told a lawyer to prepare a new petition to the courts, asking for the return of his money—and to legal status as a living man.

Couple Collects Cash With Army Notice

SAN ANTONIO — (AP)—Charles Ellis, agent in charge of the U. S. Secret Service at San Antonio, said a man and woman passed a worthless Army notice as a $50 check here.

The "check," he said, was a discontinuance notice, mailed out by an Army finance office, saying further allotment payments would not be sent to the addressee.

No federal action is possible since no federal check was forged, Ellis said.

Amphibious Communist

An AFL longshoremen's strike, in which sailors of the CIO National Maritime Union joined, prevented the liner America from sailing from New York recently. It inconvenienced 938 passengers. It dealt another blow at American shipping which, at best, is having a hard time competing with the British trans-Atlantic luxury ships.

These were not the most serious results of the strike, however. The most noteworthy thing about this strike was the revelation of how easily a few men could and might contrive to tie up a vital element of our national defense.

The strike began as a wildcat revolt of about a tenth of New York's 30,000 longshoremen against a contract which International Longshoremen's Association officials had negotiated with the shipowners. Apparently they also were some union politics mixed up with the walkout.

Then the America's NMU walked out in sympathy. The sympathy was a rather new emotion, since the IILA and the NMU have been at each other's throats for years. The crew was led off by Joseph Stack, an able seaman aboard the America, a member of the NMU's powerful left-wing group and, until recently, a vice president of the union.

Some of the NMU "sympathizers" circulated among the longshoremen pickets, distributing leaflets and Communist literature. They got a rude, rough reception from the AFL dockhands. But still the sympathy strike continued, although the longshoremen's walkout was none of the NMU's affair. Why?

It seems likely that the whole performance was a test of strength, or perhaps a rehearsal. It is no secret that one important Communist goal is to get at least one member on the crew of every ocean-going American ship. Since the party until recently filled a large majority of the union's offices, and since it controls the union's system of assigning sailors to American vessels, it would not be surprising if that goal were already achieved.

There are two excellent reasons why the Communists have pursued that goal with such tireless vigor. A party member who sails to foreign ports is a handy messenger.

Also, such a crew member would be needed to handle strikes or sabotage or mutiny in the event of serious trouble between the United States and Russia. It is obvious that a few Communists aboard each of our ocean-going vessels could do a tremendous amount of damage to the country in an emergency.

Joseph Curran, the NMU president, turned on the Communists a few months ago after a long honeymoonish existence with his Red fellow members. But the Communists are not giving up without a struggle. That struggle will probably reach a climax at the NMU convention in late September.

It is up to Curran and the NMU's non-Communist members—who are certainly superior to the left-wingers in numbers if not in energy—to clean their own house at this next meeting. If they can't or won't, the job will have to be done by somebody else. But certainly it must be done. The present NMU setup is a threat to national security that cannot be ignored.

A Look At Oil

As the vacation season moves to a close, the achievement of the oil industry in meeting an unprecedented demand for gasoline and other oil products can be seen in its proper light.

There have been minor, localized shortages of gasoline, largely as a result of transportation difficulties—but no one has been seriously inconvenienced, much less left indefinitely with a dry tank. The oil industry's vast productive and distributive resources have been strained but they have not cracked. The production line which brings us our petroleum—from well to refinery to the service station—has stood up under the impact of a demand which is greater than in wartime, and which was largely un-expected.

There are various reasons for this. One is the intense competition within the industry, with a legion of companies seeking consumer favor. Another has been the industry's emphasis on research, with resulting improvements in refinery methods, and on maximum production of usable oil products from crude. Another has been the typically American spirit of meeting a challenge with every conceivable resource.

There are still tight spots in the oil picture, and they will remain for months to come. But the big job is being done with superlative efficiency.

Still Under Fire

The Veterans Administration has warned its central office employees not to run for exits at quitting time, since several persons have been injured in the "rush." It has cautioned them of the dangers of leaning too far back in swivel chairs, especially when they have pins or paper clips in their mouths.

Let those who thought the war was over note this: The Battle of Washington continues, as fraught with peril as ever.

The problem today is to get Germany back on her toes. Her heels have already been taken care of.

More Babies Born These Days While Times Are Good

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Native American white women in the 25-year-old age group are having more babies these days than at any time since 1910, the International Statistical Institute learned.

Pascal K. Whelpton of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, told the 55-nation gathering women born in 1921 had 958 births per 1,000 up to last year. This compared with 885 per thousand for women in the "class of 1915-19" and 864 for those born in 1910-14 by the time they had reached 25.

Women born before 1910, however, bettered the modern record. For example, those of the 1900-04 period had 1,068 babies per 1,000 by the time they were 25.

Whelpton said he concluded that the current wave of fertility represents "primarily the making up of births postponed during the depression."

He added that the "long-time downward trend" probably will be resumed within the next few years.

Coffee, often called "Java" in the U. S., is not a native of Java, but was imported centuries ago by the Dutch.

Tank Explosion Injures 70 In Warsaw

WARSAW — (AP) — Workmen cleaning up war-ruined streets found and started excavating a radio-controlled type of German "Goliath" tank.

Passers halted to watch. So did a bus filled with passengers. Suddenly the tank exploded. Thirty persons were seriously injured. Forty others received slight injuries.

Men of the Skilluk tribe, of Africa, spend years in training their hair to grow into curious hat-like shapes. They take great pride in their coiffures.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh.

Yes, I'm Guilty!

Folks sometimes criticize us small-town editors for the way we often play up "little things" ahead of big ... human, local news in place of world events.

I can't deny it. Read the Clarion and you'll learn about the Martins' golden wedding anniversary ... about the community sing down by the river ... the husking bee at Sober Husking, where neighbors helped each other, and later drank sparkling beer together.

"Little things?" Maybe. But from where I sit, they add up to the bigger things we call America: The friendliness of small towns ... the helping hand ... the respect for one another's rights. And above all the love of fellowship and freedom—whether it's freedom to speak one's mind or choose between a glass of beer or buttermilk.

I figure that if everybody looks after the "little things," maybe the bigger things will take care of themselves.

Child's Peculiar Taste Astounds Passengers

NEW ORLEANS — (AP) — Passengers in the club car of an New Orleans-bound streamliner were mystified by the actions of a little three-year-old girl seated next to a woman who was writing letters. Periodically the child would close her eyes tightly, and inquire: "Now, Mummy?"

"Not now, dear," the woman would reply.

Question and answer were repeated frequently until finally the woman tucked the letters into envelope, turned to the little girl and said, "Now, Gloria."

The child shut her eyes tightly and stuck out her tongue, while the woman methodically ran the envelope flaps over it.

When she had finished the child opened her eyes, regarded her mother gravely.

"Thank you, Mummy," she said. The burrow of a prairie dog goes straight down 10 to 15 feet.

Pickles in the lunch box spark other foods.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Recent tests reveal that pickles have nutritional virtues—namely, some vitamin A, B and C. So now they are added to well-balanced school lunch boxes, because they perk up sandwiches, become the "life of the party," and make young appetites more eager for other foods.

Here are some new and piquant ideas on the subject of lunch box fillers:

Pickle-Egg-n'-Bacon Spread
(Filling for 4 sandwiches)
Four hard-cooked eggs, 2 slices crisp bacon, salt, pepper, 2 tablespoons, chopped sweet pickle, or sweet pickle relish, 3 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Dice Eggs, Crumble Bacon. Combine all ingredients, mixing well.

Ham De Luxe
(Filling for 4 sandwiches)
One 3-ounce can deviled ham, 3 tablespoons sweet pickle relish, 1/4 cup chopped peanuts, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Combine all ingredients, mixing well.

Pickle-Cream Cheese Spread
(Filling for 4 sandwiches)
Two-thirds cup cream cheese (2 3-ounce packages), 2 tablespoons light cream, 1/4 cup sweet pickle relish.

Combine all ingredients, mixing well.

Pickle-Wich
(Serves 1)
One large processed dill pickle, 1/4 grated American cheese, 1 tablespoon chili sauce.

Scoop out center of dill pickle. Mix cheese and chili sauce; stuff pickle. Wrap in waxed paper.

'Tough Guy' May Have Inferiority Complex

DETROIT — If your shop foreman is a tough guy to work for, it might be that he's suffering from an inferiority complex towards his wife—and is taking it out on you. At least, Industrial Psychologist James W. Campbell ascribed that as the reason for the "toughness" of one foreman in a "typical manufacturing concern."

He said questioning of workers through written questionnaires showed that all of them questioned the foreman technically efficient, "but it could be inferred from their answers that more than half didn't like him personally."

Low-Educated "Tough" Wife
Campbell said the foreman styled himself as "being a tough guy" and that subsequent questioning disclosed that the man was much less educated than his wife "and apparently suffered an inferiority complex in that regard."

"It could very logically be inferred that that was the reason for his toughness," Campbell told reporters at the American Psychological Association's meeting.

Those Days Are Gone—Forever?

This is a sight that you'll see often, from now on. It shows what damage the new style—made to the open-day American pastime of photographing pretty girls on a ship rail—Shirley Talbot, of Washington, D. C., having on the Queen Mary shows Dan Millstein, just what the future has in store for ship news photographers. "Ain't it a gloomy outlook?"

Convert Transport Into Floating Marine School

NEW YORK (NEA)—Another veteran has a new peacetime job. "Her" name is John W. Brown, and she has become the nation's first floating high school.

The Brown is a Liberty ship used during the war as an attack transport. The U. S. Maritime Commission turned her over to the board of education here and from now on, she will be classrooms and work-shops for high school students who want a sea-going career.

When the ship's bell became a class bell for the first time, 30 boys between 16 and 18 climbed her gangway. All are seniors at a vocational high school. Most of them come from seafaring families. Many already have worked aboard vessels during summer vacations.

Plan 300 Students
Within a few weeks the complement of the Brown will rise to 300. Classes will be divided into two sections alternating weekly between practical work aboard the ship and study of theory in classrooms ashore.

The Brown has an academic principal. In actual command, however, is Capt. Alexander Donagan, who commanded a transport during the war. He will have five other ship masters as deck instructors and several merchant marine chief engineers for engine room work. Courses also will be given in ship stewarding and radio.

Maritime Course Planned
Eventually, the school will offer a four-year high school maritime course. Its graduates can go to sea as ordinary seamen and after a short period they will be eligible for promotion. Those who can pass the necessary examinations can go to merchant marine academies, equivalent to college, and will become engineering or deck officers.

The Brown is a 10,000-ton vessel, over 400 feet long with a beam of 57 feet. The Maritime Commission technically laid her up in the care of the board of education but she must be ready to go to sea again on 48 hours notice in event of a national emergency. Only alterations necessary to make a school of her was removal of some deck obstruction and the addition of extra emergency exits.

At every tournament one hears about a psychic bid that stopped someone from reaching a game or a slam, or a player will be sobbing on someone's shoulder because of a "fixing" on a board. A "fixing" is a lucky opening that beats a sound contract, or the bidding of an impossible slam and then making it because of a good break and a couple of correct guesses. When Eugene Bauer of New York came to me at the recent national championships tournament with today's hand, I thought he had good reason to bemoan his luck. It was one of the worst "fixings" at the tournament. There was nothing wrong about the hand except the bad break.

West made the peculiar opening of the ace of diamonds. He continued with the diamond queen, which East overtook with the king. East cashed the jack of diamonds,

Crane News

CRANE—Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Ervin and daughter, Kitty Linn, have gone on a two weeks vacation trip to Dallas and Greenville.

The Golden Cranes of Crane High School will meet the Jal, N. M., team here Friday night. The Cranes defeated Big Lake 12-6 in their first game of the season last Friday at Big Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hickey and sons, Joe and John, of the Gulf Sand Hills Camp, and Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Mansell and Jimmie Neal Stacy of Crane toured the Davis Mountains country Sunday, visiting Fort Davis, the McDonald Observatory and Balmorhea.

on which West discarded the ten of spades, so East, followed with the nine of spades. Bauer (South) won this in dummy with the jack, and led a small heart. With ten trumps in sight, he could not be expected to take the finesse on the first round. He went up with the king of hearts, and West showed out. Now he could not get back into dummy to come through East's queen of hearts. His spade entry had been taken out of his hand, so his only alternative was to cash the ace of clubs and lead a small club to ruff in dummy. But to his amazement East over-trumped, and the contract went down one trick.

CHICAGO—(AP)—A leading corset manufacturer cautions women to be careful that the fashionable "new look" doesn't give them a "blue look" that accompanies gasping for air.

Virginia Ham Sniffer Has 'The Nose That Knows'

RICHMOND, VA. — The nose that knows in the multi-million dollar Old Dominion ham business is owned by Ira L. Hancock, Sr.

Hancock, 67, has the job of sniffing hams for the twin Richmond plants of Kingan and Company. He has been at it for more than 45 years, during which stretch he estimates he has sniffed approximately 540,000,000 pounds of meat.

Sniffing is the only way the ham industry finds out whether a ham is good or bad after it's cured. Hancock, employed practically full-time as a sniffer, takes a long steel sniffer—much like an ice-pick—and jabs the meat in four places. Then he sniffs the steel.

"Good ham smells good," he explains. "Bad ham just smells." It takes a pure steel sniffer, Hancock says, to bring out the "real flavor."

Even then, he says, "I miss a few. Put not many."

Hancock has been with Kingan since he was in his early teens. He didn't start out as a sniffer—just

Seattle Makes Bid For 1949 Cage Meet

SEATTLE — (AP) — A University of Washington move to lure the 1949 National Athletic Association Basketball Tournament to Seattle from Madison Square Garden has been closed by athletics manager Harvey Cassill.

He said the university, with its 15,000 capacity pavilion, also will seek the western regional NCAA playoffs which precedes the national tourney annually in Kansas City, Mo. The 1948 playoffs already have been scheduled for Kansas City and Madison Square Garden, as usual.

The Post-Intelligencer said "it is understood" that Washington's bid will have Pacific Coast Conference and other western support.

Wanted: Combination Teacher-Detective

COLUMBUS, NEB. — (AP) — The school board will know enough next time to build its schoolhouse where a body can find it.

The teacher hired to teach the school stalked into the office of the county superintendent and announced she was giving up the job before it started.

She said she had searched in vain for the school building, located in somewhat hilly terrain, and finally telephoned a school board member to say she was resigning.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Although "State of the Union" ended its lengthy run at the Hudson theater, authors Russel Crouse and Howard Lindsay earlier this week wrote the Pulitzer prizewinning political comedy considerably to keep its topical impact fresh and effective.

It will tour, with Kay Francis featured. Ralph Bellamy will stick around Broadway on the prowl for another such meaty role as he had in the political opus.
