Castleman & O'Neill and as-sociates, No. 1-A Griffin, Southeast Borden County wildcat, one and one-quarter miles west of the Reinecke-Canyon field, has developed some interesting shows of possible production.

This prospector drillstem tested in a lime at 6,850-76 feet. The tool was open three hours. There was a strong blow of air at the surface immediately, and gas came to the top in 41 minutes. The gas continued throughout the remainder of the test.

There was no gauge or estimate on the gas volume. No fluid came to the top while the tester was open.

Recovery was 200 feet of heavily oil and gas cut drilling mud and 70 feet of 43.5-gravity oil. There was no formation water.

Open flowing bottom hole pressure was 160 pounds. Shutin bottom hole pressure after a few minutes was 2,180 pounds. Hydrostatic pressure was 3,700 pounds.

Taking Another Test

Operators drilled from 6,876 feet to 6,889 feet. The section was soft. A drillstem test is now being taken at 6,847-89 feet.

Some observers picked the top of the Canyon reef to be at 6,865 feet, which would be on a datum of minus 4,499 feet. That call has not been confirmed by official sources. The shows of oil or gas are coming from some lime in the Pennsylvanian, according to operator representatives. However age of the lime has not been officially determined. The No. 1 Griffin is about 18 miles southeast of Gail and 660 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of the northeast guarter of section 51, block 25, H&TC survev.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration has its eyes on Midland Air Terminal, West Texas' busiest airport, and is ready to provide improved facilities as rapidly as the municipal airport and the City of Midland can absorb them, Jack S. Robson of Big Spring, CAA airport engineer, said here Wednesday.

Significant Legislation

Passage of the Kerr Gas Bill is one of the most significant pieces of legislation to come out of Congress in some time, and members of the Texas delegation are to be commended upon the important roles they assumed in leading the fight for its adoption in both the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The bill's passage definitely was a slap against federal regulation and control of the oil and gas industry, which is of utmost importance to Texas and particularly to the Permian Basin Empire. Federal control certain'y is not needed in the capable and efficient managment of the oil industry. In fact tight federal regulations doubtless would hamper the orderly development of our oil and gas resources. And yet, there are those who continually advocate such control.

Residents of the Permian Basin Empire, which has about 22.4 per cent of the oil and natural gas reserves of the nation, ever must be alert to the dangers of regulations and controls, which would hinder future development of oil and gas production, fighting such threats at every opportunity. This is why the passage of the Kerr bill is so significant to West Texas and to Texas as a whole. Texas, by the way, has 55 per cent of the nation's oil and gas reserves.

Proponents of the bill pointed out that less than five cents out of each dollar paid by the consumer goes to the producer, the remainder going to the pipe line transportation system. The transportation company and the local distributor have been regulated for many years. The independent producer never has been regulated.

The Kerr bill assures the producer he may continue to exercise freedom in contracting the sale of his gas for nationwide use. He doubtless now will be inclined to make more gas available to an ever-increasing market. Thus consumers stand to be benefitted rather than hurt.

HUNTSVILLE -(AP)- James Willis Blackmon and William Smith, Jr., died in the state's electric chair here early Wednesday for the fatal shooting of a Houston bus driver. The two Houston negroes were convicted and sentenced to death in the Dec. 22, 1948, slaying of Leslie D. Gibbins.

Blackmon was placed in the chair at 12:03 a.m. and pronounced dead at 12:08 a.m. Four minutes later Smith was strapped in the chair and pronounced dead at 12:17 a.m.

Neither of the two showed any emotion. Both declined to make last minute statements.

The two confessed slaying the 26year-old bus driver after Blackmon appeared in the office of District Attorney A. C. Winborn at Houston in February, 1949, and said he "thought" officers were looking for him. Smith was arrested a few hours later.

Blackmon named Smith as "trigger man."

Gibbins' body was found on the floor of his deserted bus. About $20 was taken from him. He had been enroute to the bus garage after completing his last run.

A new tempering process will heat a metal surface from room temperature to a bright-red, 1600-degree Fahrenheit heat, and cool it again to room temperature, all within less than five seconds.

And there has been no relapse since coming home. This recovery is so real; it is not neurotic, for my nerves are becoming steady, and my heart is beginning to act like a normal heart should. It is wonderful When the doctor saw me yesterday he said: 'Something has happened to you since you were here before. There is a transfor-
