Eight Candidates In City Election

Eight candidates, including three incumbents, are seeking three vacancies on the Big Spring City Commission in the election set for Tuesday. The polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

Mayor George J. Zachariah and Commissioners Arnold Marshall and W. L. Thompson are asking re-election to the city's governing board. Zachariah is seeking his fourth term as a commissioner, and Marshall and Thompson are seeking second terms.

Zachariah is employed by Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. Marshall is an officer for a local trucking firm, and Thompson operates a furniture store.

Contesting the incumbents are Mrs. Harold Talbot, active in civic affairs; Jerry Mancill, local insurance agent; Bruce Wright, pharmacist; Joe B. Matthews, Cosden employee; and H. Boyce Hale, Phillips Petroleum Co. worker.

John T. McGee, ex-city employee, had filed for the city race, but later withdrew due to failing health.

The terms for the three vacancies are for two years. Hold-over commissioners are John Stanley, in his second term, and Paul Kasch, serving his third term.

Anyone qualified under the general election laws of the state is eligible to vote in the city race. None of the commissioners serve a particular precinct, so voters will cast ballots for three commissioners. Candidates who draw the three highest number of votes will be elected. After the election, commissioners will select their own mayor.

Polling booths will be set up at four city fire stations. Election judges at the various polling places are S. P. Jones, Central Fire Station (Fourth at Nolan); George Melear, Fire Station (Eighteenth at Main); Loy Acuff, Fire Station (Birdwell Lane at Eleventh Place); and Rufus Davidson, Northside Fire Station (North Main at Eighth).

The large number of candidates could result in moderate to heavy voting, according to veteran city observers.

Absentee balloting began March 18 and concluded April 3 with a total of 11 votes cast.

Four Compete For 3 Seats

LAMESA (SC) — Lamesans Tuesday pick three of four candidates to serve two-year terms on city council.

Three incumbents are seeking re-election: Dr. Douglas B. Black, who is currently filling an unexpired term for Place 1; Guy Weekes, Place 2; and Charles F. King, mayor pro tem, place 3.

King has the only opponent, Gene Dean, who was an unsuccessful Republican candidate for state representative two years ago.

J. P. White is presiding election judge. The only polling place is city hall and voting will be from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. Successful candidates assume duties as councilmen at the next regular meeting, April 20. Clyde Branon and Jake Lipard are holdover members. The record turnout was set here in 1961 when 2,069 persons voted. With no controversial issues on the municipal scene, a light turnout is anticipated.

Coahoma To Pick Three Councilmen

COAHOMA — Five candidates will contest for three places on the Coahoma City Council Tuesday. Three members, whose terms expire and who are seeking re-election, are J. Wendell Shive, Bill E. Read, and Ted Fowler. New candidates are W. A. Brimberry and L. H. Abernethy. Holdover members of the council are Ralph White, mayor, Robert Miller, and Frank Smith. Polls will open at 8 a.m. in the city hall, with Mrs. Donald Lay as election judge. Polls will close at 7 p.m.

Good Turnout Seen At Colorado City

COLORADO CITY (SC)—Colorado City political observers expect a good turnout in Tuesday's City election with four contestants vying for three council seats.

Interest was generated with the candidacy of Winston W. Smith, 50, owner of the Smith Roofing Company, who is making his third try for a council seat. Smith has been a persistent critic of city hall, and recently authored a 13 point petition which would have entailed major changes in Colorado City's ordinances and city charter. The petition was turned back to Smith by City Attorney John Worrell with the request that it be presented in the form set out in the charter for initiative petitions.

Smith says progress is his program, and that many of the changes he wishes to make are necessary in order for the city to lure more industry into the Colorado City area. Smith says that he has the solid backing of the lower income groups of Colorado City.

Two incumbents, R. J. Hoback and Dr. John Chinn, seek re-election, Hoback for a second term, Chinn for a third.

Henry Lewis, operator of a business service agency and manager of the Baker Hotel, is making his initial try for a political office. He is the 1961 winner of the Jaycee Distinguished service award. The three receiving the largest number of votes will be elected.

Court Raps El Paso Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court decided today to acquire of Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corp. by El Paso Gas Co. violated antitrust law. Justice William O. Douglas wrote the opinion.

Justice John M. Harlan said he agreed with the court's decision on the merits, but dissented "from its peremptory ordering of divestiture." He wanted the case sent back to the U.S. District Court in Salt Lake City.

The ruling was given on a Justice Department appeal from findings by U.S. District Judge Willis W. Ritter in Salt Lake City that the Dec. 31, 1959 multimillion-dollar merger had no reasonable probability of substantially lessening competition or of tending to create a monopoly.

Strong Italy Reds Seek Rift Healing

ROME (AP)—The big Italian Communist party has come out against Soviet Premier Khrushchev's call for a showdown meeting on the Soviet-Chinese struggle, warning that it might cause a formal split in the international Red movement.

The Italian Communists made plain, however, that they are against Peking and might change their position depending on developments.

The statement, published in the Communist organ L'Unita, noted that the party had opposed a world showdown meeting all along and had suggested that individual Communist parties should thresh out differences in bilateral talks.

LUKEWARM The renewed opposition from the largest Communist party in the West underscored reports from Budapest that Khrushchev is receiving lukewarm support from some allies in his battle with the Red Chinese.

Khrushchev had predicted that his call last week for a showdown session would rally all Communists. So far only the Hungarian and Bulgarian parties have pledged him all-out support.

Many fence-sitting Communist parties outside the Soviet orbit are apprehensive over the prospect of an open break between the two Communist giants. They hesitate to throw in their lot with the Kremlin at this uncertain stage.

NEW ATTACK Khrushchev launched a new attack on the Red Chinese Sunday, accusing them of trying to incite the Soviet people against him.

"For this purpose," he told a crowd of about 80,000 in the Hungarian steel city of Miskolc, "they invented accusations against me."

"But I am not ashamed of these charges. I am proud of them. They bring me only pride and honor."

The Chinese accused Khrushchev last week of being "the greatest capitulationist of all time," a tool of the United States and too concerned with raising Soviet living standards. Khrushchev retorted that after the deprivations of Stalin's time, he was helping the Soviet people "to begin to live like human beings."

"If our people begin to be better dressed, to have better shoes, to be better fed, to have better houses, to increase their incomes toward satisfaction of their needs and cultural requirements, that is, to begin to live like human beings, that is the rebirth," he said.

Infant Dies, Medics Jailed

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Belgian authorities arrested two physicians today after the death of a baby as Belgium's doctors strike went into its sixth day.

Workers paraded in Liege protesting that the doctors were failing in their duty to humanity.

The 10,000 striking physicians held fast to their position and claimed they were being victimized financially by changes in Belgium's health insurance system.

Premier Theo Lefevre's coalition Cabinet scheduled a meeting today in a new effort to resolve the deadlock. Their chances of success seemed slim.

In Olen, in northern Belgium, the mayor, who is a physician, and a second doctor were arrested after the death of 18-month-old Eric Moonsseyn.

The two men were charged with failing to help a person in distress.

Police said the child died from a serious lung condition after waiting six hours for medical treatment.

The striking doctors have established emergency arrangements to treat pressing cases but their opponents claim this is not meeting the needs of the country's nine million people.

Nurses in hospitals complained of being swamped with work. The government asked that Red Cross volunteers be assigned to help hospital personnel.

Nation Mourns Hero MacArthur

HONOR GUARD FLANKS GALLANT MacARTHUR'S BODY General of the Army lies in state at New York funeral home

Body Lies In State At New York

NEW YORK (AP)—The nation—and much of the world—began paying a hero's homage today to Douglas MacArthur, gallant old soldier who has faded away.

The rugged heart of the 84-year-old general of the Army, which had kept beating through three grievous operations, was still at 2:39 p.m. EST Sunday at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D.C.

Soon thereafter the body of the man who etched his name on so much history—St. Mihiel, Bataan, Corregidor, New Guinea, Manila, Tokyo and Inchon—began a historic funeral journey into a starlit night.

The body was brought by motor hearse to this city—where he had lived in a hotel suite since coming home from the wars 13 years ago. Until Tuesday morning the body will be at the Universal Funeral Chapel.

OLD ARMORY Then, from 10 a.m. Tuesday until 10 p.m. it will lie in repose at the famous old 7th Regiment Armory on Park Avenue, a great brick building with battlements and towers, and filled with the trophies of many heroes.

On Wednesday, the body will be returned by train to Washington. From 3:30 that afternoon until noon Thursday it will lie in state in the Capitol rotunda, where so recently the body of the martyred President John F. Kennedy also reposed.

Then, by military plane it will be flown to the naval city of Norfolk, Va., for funeral services in St. Paul's Episcopal Church and burial in the MacArthur Memorial nearby. All along the funeral journey there will be the military pageantry reserved for the nation's great.

MEMORIAL The general had expressed a wish to be buried in Norfolk, because there his mother, the former Mary Pinckney Hardy, was born, reared and married. The city has fashioned, out of a 114-year-old courthouse, a memorial to MacArthur, a museum for his memorabilia, and a mausoleum for his remains.

There are the famous crumpled campaign hat, with its scrambled eggs insignia, and one of the corncob pipes that were his trademark.

AT BEDSIDE When he died, his wife, the former Jean Marie Faircloth of Murfreesboro, Tenn., and their son Arthur, 26, were grieving at the bedside. They had seen much history at MacArthur's side.

For example, that tragic night of March 11, 1942, with Japanese artillery and planes pounding Corregidor to a pulp. By presidential order, MacArthur left the Philippines, going in the misty darkness aboard a wooden PT-boat and taking with him his wife and son, then 4.

He vowed "I shall return"—named Corregidor as a "Holy Grail" to be regained—and he kept his promise.

As the family left Walter Reed Hospital to begin the motor journey to New York Sunday night, Mrs. MacArthur leaned out to console a red-eyed, grieving nurse who had attended the general in his last hours.

No Jury Trial For Barnett, Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court decided today Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr., and former Gov. Ross R. Barnett of Mississippi are not entitled to a jury trial on criminal contempt charges.

Both were charged with contempt of court for their actions in 1962 when James H. Meredith, Negro, sought to enroll at the University of Mississippi. Barnett was governor at that time and Johnson was lieutenant governor.

Johnson won the election to succeed Barnett and was inaugurated as governor on Jan. 21.

Justice Tom C. Clark delivered the 5-4 decision.

DISSENTING Justice Arthur J. Goldberg wrote a dissenting opinion, in which Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justice William O. Douglas joined. Another dissenting opinion was written by Justice Hugo L. Black, and Douglas joined in it.

The contempt charges followed an order by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans, La., that Mississippi state officials not interfere with Meredith's admission. Barnett and Johnson were accused of ignoring the order.

Federal marshals and troops were used to get Meredith into the university in September 1962. He has since been graduated.

The two were not entitled to a jury as a matter of right.

Clark said the court ruled on the jury question "without prejudice to any other contentions that have been interposed in the case and without any indication as to their merits."

NOT AGREE Black said in his dissenting opinion that he could not agree with the majority.

"In the first place, Congress has never expressly given the federal courts of appeals jurisdiction to try and punish people for criminal contempt of court, and I am unwilling to hold that such power exists in these courts in the absence of a clear and unequivocal congressional grant," Black wrote.

He said it is the business of district courts to try cases.

Black said he believes that "it is highly disruptive and downright injurious to appellate courts for them to attempt to take over and try criminal contempt cases, surcharged as these cases almost always are with highly emotional quarrels."

DEADLOCK

The governor and lieutenant governor demanded a jury trial of the charges, but the Circuit Court deadlocked 4-4 on that question. The ninth Circuit Court judge was ill and did not vote. Thus stymied, the Circuit Court asked the Supreme Court to decide the issue.

Clark's majority opinion said the court was passing only on the jury issue and decided that the two were not entitled to a jury as a matter of right.

State Candidates Due Here For Demo Rally

Governor John Connally, who is a candidate to succeed himself in office, will be represented by Crawford Martin here tonight at the mammoth Democratic Club rally. Martin, secretary of state, is flying to Big Spring to appear at the hamburger dinner event in the Howard County Junior College Cafeteria.

Also to be on hand for the rally, according to Frank Sabbato, president of the Howard County Democratic Club, sponsor of the rally, will be Don Yarborough, who is a candidate for governor, and Dan Sullivan, of Andrews, who is seeking the post of congressman at-large.

Albert Fuentes, candidate for lieutenant governor, is making an effort to attend. His office has notified the Democratic Club that Fuentes will probably be here by the time the meeting opens at 6:30 p.m.

All local, district and regional candidates are invited to be on hand for the rally. A hamburger supper, with the promise "all the hamburgers you can eat" for the price of a $1 ticket, will kick off the rally. During the meal time, Hoyle Nix and his West Texas Playboys will provide music. Sabbato will serve as toastmaster for the rally.

All candidates are to be introduced and given an opportunity to speak.

Capacity of the HCJC cafeteria is 600. Frank Hardesty, County Democratic Committee chairman, said that 400 tickets have been sold in advance. This leaves 200 tickets to be sold at the door.

Sabbato and Hardesty urged all Democrats to make a special effort to attend the rally.

MacArthur Paralleled U.S. Rise To Top

Conqueror Man Apart All His Life

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Writer

"Peace hath its victories no less renowned than war."
Toward 1:30 in the afternoon, people began to gather on the sidewalk. They clustered on both sides of the steps leading to the main entrance of the Dai Ichi Insurance Co. building in downtown Tokyo.

Presently, a tall man hurried through the high-lit entrance. He walked with long, swinging strides. He returned the salutes of the two giant American sentries — always specially chosen for stature — and went down the steps, two at a time, to a waiting limousine. You heard a murmur, "Mah-kah-sah."

The people were Japanese and they pronounced the man's name in Japanese fashion, "Mah-kah-sah."

A man lifted a little girl to his shoulder so that she could see over the crowd. Some bowed. There were instances when very old-fashioned Japanese would kneel, touching their foreheads on the sidewalk in the "ko-tow," the traditional Oriental act of obeisance.

They had come to see Gen. Douglas MacArthur. This was in September 1945.

OCCUPATION

This was during the years of the American military occupation of Japan. MacArthur, directing it, worked seven days a week and not infrequently seven nights a week. He kept more or less regular office hours. The Tokyo people became aware of his schedule. Thus, through more than five years, the odd little tableau on the sidewalk repeated itself every day.

Ordinary curiosity no doubt prompted it in part.

Here was the conqueror. Here was the man who had destroyed a mystic belief, held for nearly 2,000 years, that Japan was invincible in war. And here was the supreme authority in Japan, Zeus Olympian in the uniform of the United States Army.

At the time, MacArthur's gigantic image rested largely on his record as a soldier.

GREATEST

"MacArthur was the greatest general and best strategist that the war produced. He certainly outshone Marshall, Eisenhower and all other American and British generals including Montgomery."

The estimate comes from Field Marshal Lord Alan Brooke, wartime chief of the British Imperial General Staff, a man not given to lavishing praise on other commanders.

Even before World War II, however, MacArthur had become almost a living legend. He broke records, right and left.

There was the story that, on entering West Point, he announced two objectives—to finish at the head of his class, and to end his military career as chief of staff.

STILL TOPS

In accomplishing the first, he racked up a 98.14 per cent average for four years in all subjects. It was never surpassed.

Later, he fulfilled the second objective. But his career did not end there.

There was the story that he also broke a nonscholastic record at the academy. Allegedly, MacArthur became engaged to eight girls at the same time.

The previous mark had been seven.

There were innumerable stories of his personal courage, his reckless exposure to fire in battle. MacArthur commanded the 84th Infantry Brigade of the Rainbow Division in World War I, and an associate said, "MacArthur is certain to go far in the Army if he doesn't get himself killed."

At 39, he was the youngest officer ever appointed superintendent of the Military Academy.

At 45, when he received his second star, he was the youngest major general in the Army.

CHIEF OF STAFF

He was only 50 when, true to his alleged prediction, he became chief of staff.

Five years later, when his military career presumably ended with retirement from this high office, he was summoned to the Philippines to organize the armed forces there. President Manuel Quezon gave him the rank of field marshal.

So, years before Pearl Harbor, MacArthur's reputation was larger than life size.

But it was, essentially, the reputation of a soldier.

As director of the occupation of Japan, starting in the fall of 1945, he confronted a wholly different problem. It was more complex, more difficult, and potentially more dangerous than any of the military assignments he ever tackled.

And it may well be that, in assaying MacArthur's prodigious accomplishments, historians will count his stewardship of the occupation as the most brilliant of all his victories.

Consider the magnitude of the task.

BATTERED

The war left Japan physically battered. Thousands of homes had been destroyed. Hundreds of factories were out of action. Railroads and highways had been mangled and coastwise shipping all but paralyzed. Dislocated water and sanitation systems raised the spectre of epidemics in the cities.

These were physical problems that had to be swiftly resolved.

Even more delicate were the many-sided political and social problems.

For 50 years, Japan had been leading a kind of schizophrenic existence — half-feudal, half-modern. Parliamentary forms, borrowed from the West, had been grafted, but not successfully, on political traditions from the Middle Ages.

The Diet had been merely a debating society. Elections had been all but meaningless. Real power, owing to a curleycue in the constitution, was vested in the hands of the armed forces.

What kind of a constitution should now be written, what was to be the status of the emperor? How, in short, could Japan be transformed into at least a nominally democratic society?

HEAVY HAND

Before the war, authoritarianism had spread a heavy hand over other areas of Japanese life as well.

Giant cartels, the "zaibatsu," controlled most of the industry and commerce. Labor unions had been a joke. In agriculture, only about 10 per cent of the farmers owned their own land; the majority worked as tenants; the majority worked as tenants.

How to change these long-established patterns?

The stakes were great. Japan is the most highly industrialized nation in the Far East. Potentially, it is a military powerhouse, the counterbalance to Communist China.

When the occupation ended, would it remain aligned with the West? Or would it drift into the Communist orbit? Much depended on MacArthur's decisions during the occupation. Military genius and training, alone, would not meet this great challenge.

Fortunately, MacArthur knew the history, the traditions, the psychology and the spirit of the efficient and enigmatic Japanese. When he was 24, he had gone to Japan with his father, Gen. Arthur MacArthur. During the Russo-Japanese war, he marched as an observer with Count Maresuki Nogi's troops in the bloody battle of Mukden. He had studied the Japanese in war and peace all his life.

BACKGROUND

He brought this background and understanding to bear on the delicate tasks of the occupation.

For one thing, he did not govern by fiat. A military man might be expected to simply issue iron-clad orders and demand that they be carried out at all cost. To have done this in Japan would only have aroused hostility and invisible but bitter resistance — much to the satisfaction of the Japanese Communists.

MacArthur operated more subtly. He used a mixture of argument, persuasion, cajoling and threats to get what he wanted. He stayed behind the scenes as much as possible.

In addition, he consciously played a role. Respect for authority is one of the deepest well-springs in Japanese character. For centuries, the smallest local lords, let alone the great shoguns and clan leaders, had commanded almost blind obedience from their retainers.

OVERLORD

So MacArthur deliberately assumed the visage of an overlord, a grand seigneur, of the all-powerful proconsul. He became in Japanese eyes a kind of imperial figure.

Somewhat raffishly, American newspapermen in Tokyo called MacArthur's headquarters "The Palace" and referred to him as "The Presence."

His detractors often accused him of theatricalism, of overweening vanity and egotism, of playing to the gallery. In Japan, there was a sound reason for the public image he created. He became the needed symbol of authority.

Swiftly, MacArthur's methods produced results.

As early as 1946, the first general election was held. Women voted for the first time and elected women to the Diet. Reforms in the constitution were effected. A civil liberties decree went in the books.

Meanwhile, MacArthur was modifying the "zaibatsu" structure. He worked to establish a valid and healthy labor union movement. As his program of land reform took shape, the tenant-farmer all but disappeared in agriculture.

"Peace hath its victories no less renowned than war." The occupation was MacArthur's greatest task. It may well be regarded as the greatest of all his achievements.

Known By Very Few

Gen. Douglas MacArthur was a strong man and he stirred strong feelings, pro and con, about himself.

"Very few people really know Douglas MacArthur," wrote Gen. George C. Kenney, his Air Force commander in the Pacific war. "Those who do, or think they do, either admire him or dislike him."

MacArthur's close associates were fiercely loyal, intensely partisan. Their affection for MacArthur often bordered on idolatry. They may have disagreed with him in private, but outside the star chamber, they would tolerate no criticism of "The Old Man."

His critics were equally positive.

AMBITION

They called him a megalomaniac and a show-off. They said he was consumed with ambition and aiming at nothing less than the office of president of the United States. They seldom questioned his genius as a soldier. But they seriously questioned some of his political judgments. Toward the end of his career, the feeling about him in Washington was a mixture of worry, bewilderment and fury.

About the only neutrals were newsmen who generally tend to look at the great and near-great with a slightly sardonic eye.

Sitting in a room with MacArthur, this is what you saw: Even when he was 70, he was still a handsome man. He looked much younger. Little or no gray streaked his jet black hair. He had a chiseled profile, with a high forehead, a large aquiline nose and a square, firm chin. His eyes were large and dark. On the battlefield, or pondering a problem, he often squinted until they became slits.

ATHLETE

In his youth, he had been an athlete and all his life he walked with a smooth, swinging stride. He held himself erect and seemed taller than he was. Sometimes, in his office, he would sit with one leg dangling over the arm of a chair as he talked. But when he became unusually interested in the discussion, he often would pace the floor, emphasizing his points by jabbing the air with the stem of a corn-cob pipe.

A tray of smoked-out corn-cobs usually was near his desk. Less frequently, he smoked cigars and cigarettes.

His voice was deep and in making a public speech he would pitch it to an even lower key. Then he often sounded like the old-fashioned, voice-of-doom orator. He was more effective in a small room than on the public platform.

LANGUAGE

MacArthur had an astonishing command of language. He talked fluently, seldom stumbling or pausing to reach for a word. He would analyze a complicated political or military situation in clear, simple language, moving logically from point to point as though he were reading.

However, not all his statements were couched in simple language.

For example, when his name was advanced as a possible candidate for president, MacArthur said he would not actively seek the nomination.

Then he added: "I would be reluctant to all my concepts of good citizenship were I to shrink, because of the hazards and responsibilities involved, from accepting any public duty to which I might be called by the American people."

RELIGION

Religious references appeared frequently in his wartime communications and pronouncements.

"To the weeping mothers of its dead, I only say that the sacrifice and halo of Jesus of Nazareth has descended upon their sons and that God will take them unto Himself."

The famous broadcast to the Filipinos when MacArthur set foot on Philippine soil for the first time said: "I have returned. By the grace of Almighty God, our forces stand again on Philippine soil."

MARBLE CALM

Of all the many facets of MacArthur's extraordinary personality, one of the most impressive was his marble calm.

Apparently it never cracked. For example, during the first months of the Korean War, news from the front was consistently gloomy. American and South Korean troops kept falling back until only a tiny corner of southeastern Korea still was in non-Communist hands, the Pusan perimeter.

Months before that, however, MacArthur coolly announced that the Reds had lost their opportunity to win the war. He spoke in a quiet, matter-of-fact manner.

"Maybe the Old Man knows what he's talking about," said a correspondent. "But it looks as though he's 180 degrees off the beam this time."

Yet the perimeter held. Then, with the Inchon landings in September, the tide turned. The war in fact was won until the Chinese Reds intervened. Even that news seemed to leave MacArthur unmoved.

The thunderbolt from Washington—when President Harry S. Truman fired MacArthur—came without warning. Whitney said MacArthur was having a luncheon party. The announcement was whispered to him privately. He said MacArthur's face froze and the general quietly remarked to his wife: "Jeannie, we're going home."

Home By Christmas

"Home by Christmas" was a happy sentiment.

But it became a mocking memory for Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his admirers, and a barbed taunt hurled at him again and again by his critics.

MacArthur uttered the words on an icy morning in November 1950, at a moment when it appeared that the Korean War was all but ended—and victoriously. This writer was present.

The circumstances of the episode, which figured heavily in the end of MacArthur's career, are these:

On Thanksgiving Day, one of MacArthur's aides telephoned and said, "The general would like to see you in his office this evening at 6:30." Four other correspondents also were summoned to the headquarters in Tokyo.

MacArthur was alone when we entered his office.

RESTLESS

MacArthur's hands were always restless. Now he was rubbing the bowl of one of his pipes. He looked up with a slight smile and said he hoped he hadn't interfered with any Thanksgiving dinners. He said he was about to go home and settle down to his turkey. Then he said:

"I am going to Korea in the morning. I can take five of you. Takeoff is at 5 o'clock. You will be briefed on the plane."

This was somewhat unusual. Generally, when he went to Korea, he disclosed the purpose of the trip.

Shortly after takeoff the next morning, his aides handed around a communique. It was dated Nov. 24, 1950, and numbered No. 12. It said:

"The United Nations massive compression envelopment in North Korea against the new Red armies operating there is now approaching its decisive effort."

SUPPLY LINES

"The isolating component of the pincer, our air forces of all types, have for the past three weeks, in a sustained attack of model coordination and effectiveness, successfully interdicted enemy lines of supply from the north so that further reinforcement therefrom has been sharply curtailed.

"The eastern sector of the pincer, with noteworthy and effective naval support, has steadily advanced in a brilliant tactical movement and has now reached a commanding enveloping position, cutting in two the northern reaches of the enemy's geographical potential."

"This morning the western sector of the pincer moves forward in general assault in an effort to complete the compression and close the vise."

"If successful, this should for all practical purposes end the war, restore peace and unity to Korea, enable the prompt withdrawal of United Nations military forces, and permit the complete assumption by the Korean people and nation of full sovereignty and international equality. It is that for which we fight."

OPTIMISM

The tone of this communique reflected the high optimism of the moment.

But what of the Chinese?

These were the "new Red armies" to which the communique referred. They had started appearing at the front in October. Peiping said they were "volunteers." By the end of the month, however, they had lashed out with a strong counterattack. Organized units of the Chinese Red army — not a handful of "volunteers" — had conducted the operation.

Then a strange set of events took place. Mysteriously, the Chinese vanished. Large fighting patrols went out hunting for them but found none. Next, they released groups of American prisoners. The soldiers said a Chinese woman translator had told them:

NOT FIGHT

"The Chinese do not want to fight Americans."

Further, correspondents in the Far East were given to understand that the Central Intelligence Agency judged that large-scale intervention by the Chinese Reds was unlikely.

It was against this background that Gen. MacArthur launched the offensive in the west on Nov. 24 and issued his communique.

When his plane landed that morning, jeeps carried the party on a jolting ride across country to 9th Corps headquarters. Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the 8th Army, rode with MacArthur. The jeeps drew up in front of a wooden shack.

Waiting inside were Maj. Gen. John B. Coulter, corps commander, and his intelligence officer.

Then Walker said to Coulter: "I notice you haven't mentioned any objectives, Jack. I don't like that word, 'objectives.' I think we should just keep pushing as hard as we can go."

"That's what we're going to do," Coulter replied. "We're not thinking in terms of objectives."

GOING HOME

MacArthur rose. He put his hand on Coulter's shoulder, smiled, and said: "That's right, Jack. You tell the boys that when they get to the Yalu, they're going home. I want to make good on my statement that they are going to eat Christmas dinner at home."

This was the origin of the "home by Christmas" statement.

MacArthur could not have meant it in the literal sense. Even if the 8th Army had reached the Yalu River, if there had been no Chinese opposition whatever, the troops could not have been withdrawn immediately to bases in Japan—much less "home"—by Dec. 25.

He was simply hopeful of ending the war before the worst of the winter months settled over North Korea. He could not know the intentions of the Chinese Reds. Hence, the optimistic "home by Christmas" probably was designed for two purposes — to reassure Peiping that the advance would end at the Yalu and not go on into Red China, and to encourage the troops.

BACKFIRED

In any event, it backfired badly.

The savage, forbidding mountains on the frontier concealed a Chinese horde. After the briefings, MacArthur flew over these mountains. Looking down from an oversize window in his plane, he carefully scrutinized the tortuous terrain. If he suspected that it crawled with enemy infantry, the only way to flush them out was to order a general advance. This he did.

For two days, the offensive moved ahead smoothly. Then the Chinese came out of the mountains like an avalanche and hit the 8th Army. A general retreat began.

There was to be no "home by Christmas."

Little Fear Of Danger

In July 1945, during the Allied attack on Balikpapan, the great Borneo oil center, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and an Australian officer were standing on a hill studying a terrain map.

Suddenly, a concealed Japanese machine gun chattered.

Bullets began kicking up dust around the spot where they stood and clipping leaves from the trees nearby.

MacArthur continued to stare at the map. Moments later, he folded it carefully and handed it to the Australian officer.

As they walked down the hill, he said: "By the way, I think it would be a good idea for a patrol to take out that machine gun before someone gets hurt."

There are many such incidents in MacArthur's story.

NEVER SHOWED

If he knew the meaning of fear, or ever considered the possibility of death, he never showed it. He exposed himself to danger in battle like a reckless platoon leader, although as commander in chief, he was by no means "expedient."

After the Inchon landings in the Korean War, MacArthur took one of these "see 'em" trips. He said he wanted to look around Inchon and Wolmi-do, the island that sits in the harbor like a cork in a bottle. Fires still were burning on both, and occasionally there was gunfire as the Marines mopped up.

"We sure heaved a sigh of relief when that barge moved away from here," a young Navy lieutenant told me, later. "MacArthur must be nuts to take chances like that."

The Rev. Hubert Bratcher officiated for the double ring ceremony performed at an altar illuminated by tiered candles placed on the rail and interspersed with foliage. The altar was adorned and flanked by vertical arrangements of white gladioli, stock and calla lilies, and candelabras were entwined with garlands of greenery. A cross formed of Easter lilies was high in the background and pew decorations were of foliage and white chrysanthemums.

FORMAL GOWN
The bride, escorted and given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length sheath of organza over taffeta with scooped neckline and elbow length sleeves. Garlands of Alençon lace, re-embroidered with seed pearls and sequins, cascaded down the front of the gown. The bouffant detachable train featured inverted pleats at the waist. Her bridalpoint veil was attached to a bow trimmed satin pillbox.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white roses and stephanotis carried atop a prayer Bible.

Mrs. David Holt, sister-in-law of the bride, was the matron-of-honor. Bridesmaids were Linda Gayle and Frances Holt, sister of the bride, Margie Adams and Jan Hall. All were attired in identical gowns of peach organza over taffeta with fitted bodice, scooped necklines, and bouffant skirts featuring soft pleats. Each carried a peach glabella with green satin stem.

Capt. David Engle, College station, served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Bob Moore and Chap Smith, both of Big Spring; Howard Reed and David Brown, both of Pampa; and David Holt of Houston, brother of the bride.

The organist was Mrs. Hubert Carson who presented a program of traditional music. Hubert Carson sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer." Presiding at the guest register in the church were Miss Sandra Braly, Austin, and Mrs. Katy Baker, Pampa.

RECEPTION

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Alter Flower Colors To Blend In Decor

Dear Folks:

Yesterday, to my great joy, a friend brought me some daffodils from her garden. That first sign of spring delighted me.

As I was putting them in water, I thought how pretty they would be in different colors to match my room.

Here's what I did:

I got out my food coloring and went "blub-blub" (that means about 10 to 15 drops) into a small jar and added two table-spoons of water.

I put green food coloring in one small jar and red in another jar.

I then cut off the stems of the flowers straight across (so they could absorb the liquid in this colored water. Within a few hours these daffodils started to change color, first around the edges of the petals, then gradually all over the bloom.

The green coloring brought bright green tips and veins to the flower, and the red gives a red and yellow variegated effect.

They look so delicate and so beautiful! After these two batches of wanted, I removed them from the dye bath, took a sharp knife and cut one-half inch off the stems (this prevents them from not only getting darker but flowers were the exact shade I staining the vase you will put them in later) and then MIXED the remaining red and blue dyes together and put the rest of the yellow flowers in this. Then watch what color you get! From lavender to purple according to the amount of red and blue you use.

The flowers may either be kept in one-colored bouquets or mixed. Oh... luscious.

The food coloring does not harm the flower or shorten the life of it. The length of time you leave the flowers in the coloring, depends on how deep you want the color. (I left one batch in overnight, and even the stems turned color!)

(Write Heloise in care of the Big Spring Herald.)

Buses Aid Collegians

AUSTIN (AP)—Special bus service is the latest wrinkle in college housing.

At the University of Texas, where some privately-operated dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses are many blocks from the campus, it is the new thing to ride a special bus to the campus.

Heflin Manor, a private dormitory for coeds, has had a chartered city bus since September to take its residents to and from classes. The fare is included with room and board charges.

Mayfair House, another girls' dormitory, bought a new bus at mid-term and charges residents $5 a month to ride.

Phi Kappa Psi fraternity has had its present bus since 1959. At $5 per month, the Phi Psi vehicle serves its own members and girls from nearby Dexter House, Sigma Delta Tau and Delta Phi Epsilon.

All the buses make regular runs to and from the campus every hour.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BRIDGE—Mon April 6

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(c 1964; By The Chicago Tribune)
BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠ 6 3 2 ♠ K J 10 7 5 4 2 ♣ 7 5 4

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. The ace is very thin and you had better not move. It would be very pleasant to bid three diamonds if you were sure your partner would not take any further action, but that would be wishful thinking. He is almost sure to bid again and probably more hearts. Your best bet is to pass and hope the opening bidder will take partner out of his misery, which usually happens. It does not pay to rescue a partner who has not been doubled.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠ K 10 6 5 2 ♣ 9 8 3 ♠ A K J 4 2

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass 1 ♠ Double West
2 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Five diamonds or six spades. Despite the fact that partner previously passed, you should be very bullish about this hand because partner jumped twice unnecessarily. If he has the ace-king of hearts and the queen-jack of spades, that's all you need. He should surely have that much for his two jumps. You have a choice of bidding five diamonds or shooting the works yourself.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠ 9 7 6 2 ♣ K J 7 4 ♠ J 8 5 ♠ 6 4

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Pass Pass Double
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Four hearts. Partner's bid is not forcing and you haven't very much of a hand to be sure. But you should proceed to game inasmuch as partner has contracted for nine tricks without relying on you for any strength at all. Actually, he has the heart hand and you in reality are the dummy, which is worth six points to partner.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠ A Q J 8 2 ♣ K 6 3 ♠ A Q 2 ♠ 5

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—One no trump. This is preferable to a rebid of two hearts in that it gives a more accurate description as to the type of hand (a balanced hand of minimum high card strength). It is by no means mandatory to rebid a five card major suit.

A.—Three spades. After partner has shown a reasonably good hand you should insist upon game and a jump bid even in the same suit is forcing after a response at the two level. If the bidding develops constructively you may show the diamond support later.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠ A J 4 ♣ 9 4 ♠ 6 3 ♠ A K Q 9 7 3

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Three spades. The temptation, if any, to try three no trump should be resisted. Without protection in either red suit you may meet with a surprise attack. After you show the spade control you may rely on partner to reach for three no trump if his hand is suitable.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable and as South you hold:
♠ K 4 ♣ A J 8 2 ♠ K Q 8 3 ♠ A J 5

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 2 NT 3 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Strike while the iron is hot. Double and this is one that East will long remember. Do not aim for anything so trivial as a game when a possible 1,100 point plum awaits to be picked.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠ A Q 8 4 ♣ A K Q 2 ♠ 7 3 ♠ 6 5 2

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Strike while the iron is hot. Double and this is one that East will long remember. Do not aim for anything so trivial as a game when a possible 1,100 point plum awaits to be picked.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠ 6 2 ♣ A Q J 8 3 ♠ K 7 4 ♠ K 7 5

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What is your rebid?
A.—One no trump. This is preferable to a rebid of two hearts in that it gives a more accurate description as to the type of hand (a balanced hand of minimum high card strength). It is by no means mandatory to rebid a five card major suit.

In an extension review magazine, the department says:
"Problems of urbanization, rural zoning, school district consolidation, vocational training and retraining, taxation, sanitation, water supplies, chemicals, pesticides and employment are only a few of the local issues causing deep concern in many communities today."
"Who is to provide the educational guidance needed as a basis for understanding and sound decision making regarding these matters? Cooperative Extension is the only education institution available now to meet these needs."
The department recommends that to meet local demands for information on these and other issues, the Extension Service collects the talents of the state universities as well as local and state tax economists, political scientists, educators and zoning experts.
Pointing out that many of the issues troubling farmers and their non-farmer neighbors are controversial, the department said this means that all program materials must be carefully and objectively prepared.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department the Cooperative Extension Service, its educational arm—should help enlighten farmers and others on both agricultural and non-agricultural issues.
The Extension Service operates through state and local agencies. In the states, leadership revolves largely around agricultural colleges. It functions through country agricultural and home economics agents.

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Authorities seized $300,000 worth of raw marijuana over the weekend in Corpus Christi and jailed four persons on charges of illegal possession of narcotics.
The marijuana weighed 220 pounds and was believed in shipment from Mexico to Miami, Fla. The seizure was one of the largest ever made on the Texas Gulf coast.
Charged and held in jail in lieu of bonds ranging up to $25,000 were Jesus Mena, 34, and Josephina Bushay, 20, both of Corpus Christi; and Hector Gonzales, 34, and Jesus Blanco, 25, both of Miami.

Dear Abby

It's Their Business

DEAR ABBY: While sitting in my dentist's outer office yesterday, a smartly dressed woman came in with her daughter, who appeared to be four or five years old. The mother wore a wool suit and a full-length coat with a fur collar, as it was exceptionally cold and windy for this time of year. The child wore a short organdy dress, anklets and a short jacket. She looked like a little doll, but her lips were blue and quivering and she was sniffling. I wanted to say something to the mother for disregarding the child's health and comfort for the sake of beauty. After my opportunity had passed I berated myself for not having said something. I could hardly sleep last night for worrying about that poor child. Should I call the dentist's nurse and ask her who the woman was, and write her an anonymous note? Maybe seeing it in writing would bring her to her senses?

COULDN'T SLEEP

DEAR ABBY: No. If you start letting this kind of other people's business bother you, you will NEVER get any sleep.

DEAR ABBY: What a coincidence! My husband was stationed at Camp McCoy for a short time during World War II, and HE had "HERB" tattooed on him. But we were married at the time, and I am quite sure nobody ever saw HIS "HERB." HERB'S WIFE

DEAR ABBY: Will you please describe the proper way to hold a fork while cutting with the knife? My husband holds his like a catapult. Perpendicular, at right angles to his plate. Our grown children have mentioned it to me, but I hate to hurt his feelings. I've searched through all the etiquette books, hoping to find a picture, but to no avail. Shouldn't somebody tell him? Your answer will probably be, "Just be thankful you have a husband with two good arms, and don't be ashamed of him as long as he brings home the pay check." "MRS."

DEAR MRS.: Not this time, friend. It is surprising how many well-mannered people with most of the social graces lack this one. Yes, somebody should tell him. Allow me? The fork should be held with all the fingers gently wrapped around it, except the index finger and thumb, which should hold it down near the neck at an angle of 45 degrees or less.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D. M. ON ALLEN STREET: Yes, there is help for you. Please send me your address, complete with city and state, and I will wire my reply at once.

Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Five Fire Calls Reported Sunday

Firemen answered five calls Sunday including two grass fires and two false alarms.

The grass fires occurred at 7:30 p.m. on North Channing and at 11:45 a.m. four miles northwest of Big Spring at the Charlie Creighton farm. No damage resulted from the fire in town, which firemen said was caused by children, but about three acres of rangeland was burned in the other blaze. Firemen said the cause of the ranch fire is unknown.

The false alarms were turned in at 2 a.m. for Marcy and Webb Village Road, and at 6:40 p.m. at 807 N. Nolan. An automobile accident resulted in gasoline on the road at the intersection, but there was no fire.

Children also were blamed for a trash fire at the Spanish Inn, 308 N. Gregg, about 10 p.m.

Birdwell Widened By City Crews

City crews have completed widening Birdwell Lane from 24 feet to 60 feet at the south side of the intersection with FM 700, according to Ernest Lillard, director of public works.

Lillard said this work normally is performed by city crews since state right-of-way is involved. However, since there was not much work to be done, the city went ahead with the paving at a cost of about $200, he said.

It could have caused a delay if the state's permission had been solicited, Lillard said. Before the street was paved, city crews "cut down" a hill at the south side of the intersection.

One of three international agreements under which Cyprus won her independence from Britain in 1960, the treaty of alliance gives Turkey and Greece the right to station troops on the island. The Turkish garrison numbers 650 troops, the Greek 950.

The Turkish press said the government considered Makarios' attempt to cancel the treaty of alliance a prelude to abolishing the right of Greek, Turkish or British intervention to protect the Cypriot constitution. Under one of the agreements, Britain also retains bases on the island.

One Cabinet member was said to have warned that if there is any attack on the Turkish troops "Turkey will violently repulse this aggression."

Turkey Warns She Will Fight Cyprus Eviction

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Turkey warned Sunday night that it will oppose any Greek Cypriot attempt to evict Turkish troops from Cyprus.

A Turkish government spokesman said Turkey won't accept Cypriot President Makarios' decision to cancel the 1960 treaty of alliance. He said Turkey would continue to exercise its right under the treaty to keep troops on the island.

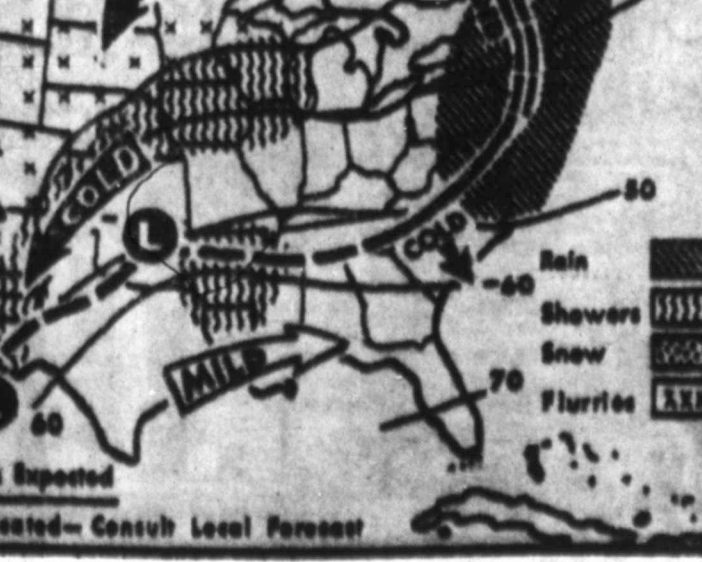

Makarios notified Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu Saturday that the Greek Cypriot government considered the treaty dead. But Inonu and his Cabinet decided Makarios' move was contrary to international law and carried "no legal significance whatsoever," the spokesman said.

THE ORDER OF THE GOLDEN RULE

Boros Fires Hot 66 To Win Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Julius Boros generated a hot 66

in a 45-degree temperature to catch Doug Sanders and then went on to beat him in a one-hole playoff in winning the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament on Sunday. It was a sharp final competitive turn-up for the Masters Championship.

Last year when Jack Nicklaus won at Augusta, Boros finished third, two shots off the pace.

The 44-year-old U.S. Open champion said "I'm putting much better than last year, although I'm not playing as well otherwise as I did at Augusta. With my improved putting and this win behind me, maybe I can go down there with greater confidence."

Nicklaus, who defends the Masters title starting Thursday, began the final round here with a three-shot edge over his nearest rivals and was five in front of Boros.

But Nicklaus shot a double bogey 5 on the third hole and struggled the rest of the way. He finished two over par with 73 for 279 and fourth place.

Another Masters favorite, Arnold Palmer, ended in a tie for 13th place with 286. He shot par 71 for his final trip over the 7,000-yard Sedgefield Country Club course.

Tournament sponsors boosted the prize money an additional $10,000 Saturday night after three days of record crowds.

Boros, with rounds of 68-70-73-66 for a 277 total, was seven under par. Sanders shot 277 in 73-70-66-68. He won $3,800 in defense of the title he won last spring.

Top money winners in the $45,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament: Julius Boros, $6,400; Doug Sanders, $3,800; Arnold Palmer, $2,500; Sam Snead, $3,000; Jack Nicklaus, $2,500; Al Gerberger, $2,200; Remon Solo, 2,000; Gordon Jones, $1,500; Bill Dunk, $1,500; Mike Souchak, $1,200; Bobby Nichols, $1,200.

Runnels Wins In Consolation

Runnels won the consolation finals in the eighth grade division of the Big Spring Junior High Volleyball tournament Saturday but it was the only glory for local squads as Lamesa and Kermit repeated as the champions of their respective classes.

Lamesa won the ninth grade title by downing Goliad, 33-21, while the Kermit invaders scored a 27-22 win over Lamesa for the eighth grade crown. The only other crown went to Monahans, who beat Colorado City in the ninth grade consolation finals, 36-6.

Runnels won the eighth grade title by downing its own seventh grade squad, 44-41.

The ninth grade all-tournament team selected was: spikes, Paylor, Monahans, Goliad, Goliad, La Donna, Stocks, Goliad, Stevens, Lamesa; sets, Dudley, Monahans, Carol Sturm, Runnels, Beverly Peters, Goliad, and Helma, Lamesa.

On the eighth grade team were: spikes, Crump, Lamesa, Miller, Lamesa, Akin, Kermit, and Roe Lynn Bunch, Runnels; 7th grade, sets, Strauss, Kermit, Leatherwood, Kermit, Freeman, Lamesa, and Connie Trevino, Runnels eighth grade.

BARNES ON SQUAD

Olympic Basketballers Picked By Hank Iba

NEW YORK (AP) — There are many basketball coaches around who'd love a chance to pick at the leftovers now that the 1964 Olympic basketball squad has been selected.

But Hank Iba, who'll coach the U.S. entry at Tokyo in October, has no complaints with the 12-man squad and seven alternates chosen after three days of trials at St. John's University.

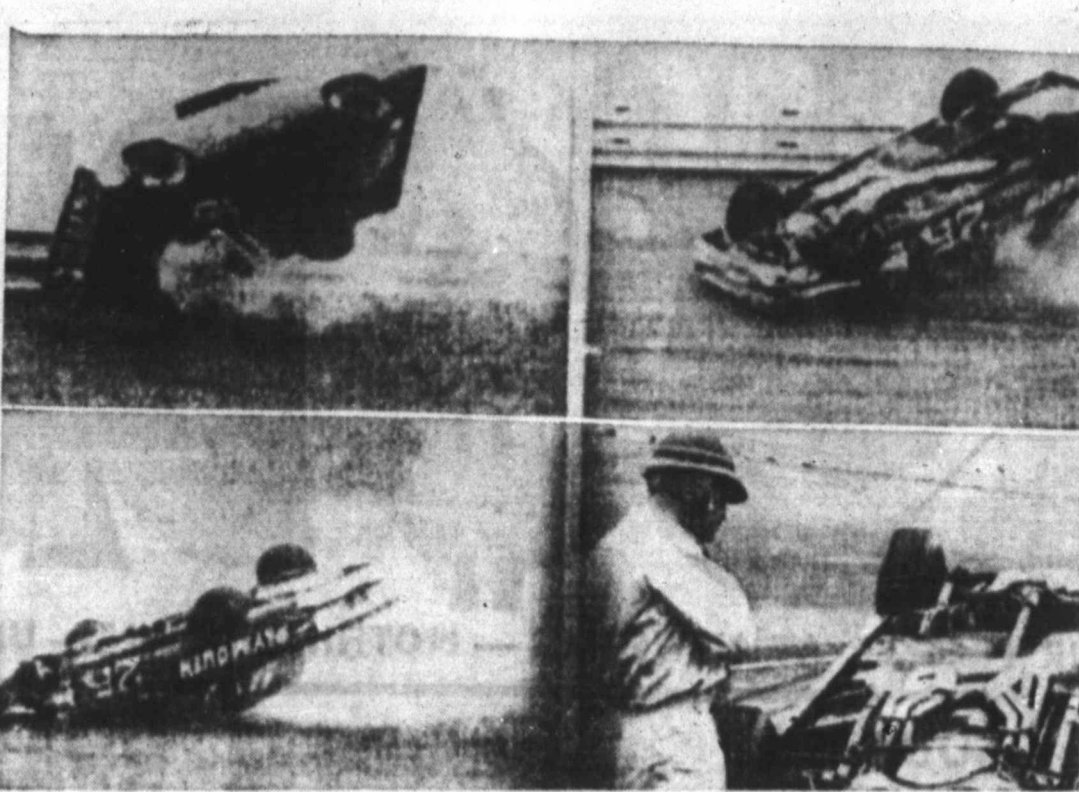

"I got what I wanted," said Iba, the Oklahoma State coach who has achieved 700 collegiate victories.

What he got was two All-Americans heading a power-packed team which includes three members of the Goodyear Wingfoots, National AAU champions.

Walt Hazzard of UCLA and Bill Bradley of Princeton were the All-Americans chosen. The selection committee picked Pete McCaffrey, Larry Brown and Dick Davies of the Wingfoots.

Rounding out the squad were Jim Barnes of Texas Western, Joe Caldwell of Arizona State, Mel Coumes of Oregon State, Lucius Jackson of Pan American College, Jeff Mullins of Duke, Jerry Shipp of the Phillips 66ers and George Wilson of the Jamaco Saints.

Picked as alternates who'll stand by to replace the top 12, were Gail Goodrich of UCLA, Bunk Adams of the U.S. Army, Fred Hetzel of Davidson, Willie Murrell of Kansas State, Cotton Nash of Kentucky, Reggie Minton of the U.S. Air Force and Dave Stallworth of Wichita.

Blowout Upsets A Leader

The car flips by Paul Goldsmith of Mexico City, Mex., flips into the rail (upper left) after blowing a tire during the Atlanta 500 stock car race yesterday. Upper right, the car skids along the track near the upper rail, and at lower left, it is skidding on the infield grass. The other photo shows a dejected, but uninjured Goldsmith surveying the damage to his car which was in the lead when the mishap occurred. The race was won by Fred Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill., who drove a Ford. (AP WIREPHOTO)

SWC Track Teams Begin Loop Meets

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Put in their place by the Big Eight in the Texas Relays, Southwest Conference track and field teams turn to battling among themselves this week.

The Big Eight swept six of the seven relays here Saturday while the Southwest Conference didn't register a victory. It also managed less than half of the individual events.

But Saturday there'll be some winning because the league has a quadrangular meet at Waco where Texas, Southern Methodist, Texas A&M and Baylor get together.

Also Texas Tech will contest in a triangular meet having Oklahoma and Missouri as the other parties. The Techs couldn't have picked a tougher one. Missouri was the big winner at the Texas Relays, taking two relays and setting records in both. Oklahoma also won two relays.

Abilene Christian College, the school that kept the Southwest from being shut out—the Wildcats won the sprint medley—will have a triangular meet of its own at Abilene Saturday. Kansas, New Mexico and ACC will have it.

Five of the records were set in the university division, the chief ones being Missouri's 9:45.2 in the distance medley and 7:22.7 in the two-mile relay. Missouri also had the outstanding individual—Robin Lingle, who anchored both relay teams.

Rice is tabbed for the Southwestern Louisiana Institute relays at Lafayette, La.

The quadrangular at Waco substitutes for the Dallas invitation, a meet not being held this year. The same four teams competed in it last year.

The Texas Relays produced 15 records and one tie. Five of the records were automatic because they concerned new events but even in some of those the times were good.

Banquet Set For Today

The Evening Lions Club will hold its seventh annual basketball banquet tonight at 7 o'clock at Wesley Methodist Church for the members of the high school and junior college teams.

Lt. Dennis Nelson, an Elgin, Ill., native who played for Drake in Des Moines, Iowa, will be the speaker. He is currently a student pilot at Webb AFB.

Trophies that will be presented sponsors are: most valuable junior college player, KBST; most improved junior college player, Dibrell's Sporting Goods; outstanding high school player, KBST; outstanding high school rebounder, E. C. Smith Construction Co., and sportsmanship trophies, Phillips Tire Company.

Taylor Is Signed

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Fullback Jim Taylor signed his seventh National Football League contract with the Green Bay Packers today. Taylor, the Packers No. 2 draft choice in 1958 after he starred for Louisiana State, led the NFL in rushing in 1962, and was runner-up to Cleveland's Jimmy Brown last season.

Cepeda Rips Sox, Has .419 Average

By The Associated Press

Orlando Cepeda wasn't a household name until he was named National League pitcher of the year.

Cepeda, San Francisco's controversial slugger, is ripping his way through the best spring he has had in his seven-year career.

He smashed his sixth home run Sunday in the Giants' 5-2 exhibition baseball victory over Boston. He has a .419 batting average, three doubles and four triples to go along with the homers.

A major factor in Cepeda's exploding spring play very easily could be the lack of a contract battle with the Giants' front office. He signed for $53,000 and started training when everyone else did.

That was entirely different from last season when he held out for 24 days before signing for a token raise to an estimated $47,000.

He proceeded to hit .316, clout 34 homers and knock in 97 runs, a performance still well below his 1961 output when he batted .311, hit 46 homers and drove in 142 tallies.

The Giants lost to Los Angeles 10-7 last Wednesday, but Cepeda smashed a home run, a double and two singles. In a 5-3 triumph over Cleveland last Friday, he slugged two homers and a single, good for four runs batted in.

Elsewhere around the exhibition circuit, Bob Bailey hit two home runs and Jim Pagnaroni got a three-run blast, but Cincinnati stopped Pittsburgh 8-5.

behind John Edwards' three doubles and a single.

Milwaukee swept past Washington 5-3 in 11 innings while Detroit nipped Philadelphia 3-2 in 10. St. Louis edged the New York Mets 2-1, the New York Yankees rallied for a 6-4 triumph against Houston and the Chicago Cubs came from behind for an 8-6 victory over Cleveland.

Minnesota defeated the Chicago White Sox 4-1, and Baltimore whipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-1.

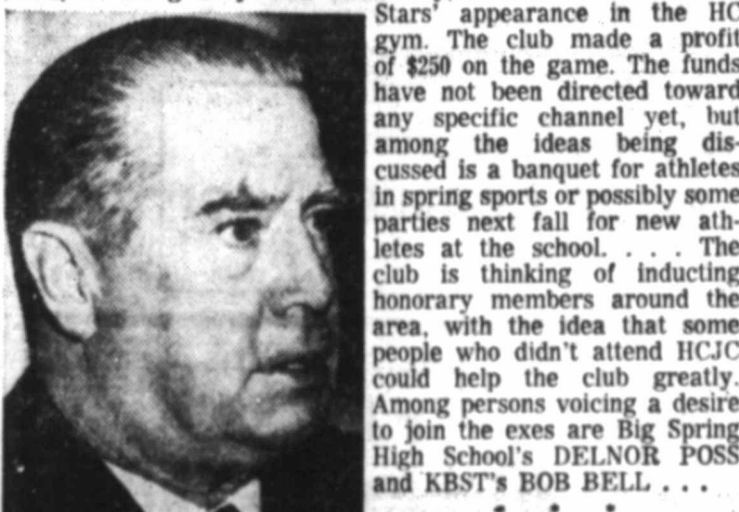

Tryouts Slated

National Little Leaguers are having tryouts this week at 18th and Langcaster. Boys who did not sign up Saturday should report at the field and see the player agent, Joe Pickle. Tryouts start at 4:30, Monday through Thursday. Team selections will be announced Friday at that hour. The league includes territory from Fourth Street south between Settles on the east and Sunset and Parkway on the west.

PAT WASHBURN'S The Roundtable

The Howard County Junior College exes club, with 300 members scattered across the nation from California to New York, is doing very well financially, thanks to the Harlem Stars' appearance in the HC gym. The club made a profit of $250 on the game. The funds have not been directed toward any specific channel yet, but among the ideas being discussed is a banquet for athletes in spring sports or possibly some parties next fall for new athletes at the school.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

HERE AND THERE: The Milwaukee Braves' EDIE MATHEWS has clubbed 422 home runs during his major league career, three more than Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees. The Los Angeles Dodgers' MAURY WILLS has a book out now, "It Pays To Steal." The item was recently voted as the No. 1 favorite among the prisoners at the Southern Michigan State Penitentiary. Goldom's ARNOLD PALMER supposedly quit smoking because of all the letters he got from parents claiming he was setting a bad example for children. Since he stopped the habit, his money earnings have dropped considerably, but he claims not smoking has nothing to do with it. MIKE McKEEVER, the University of Southern California football guard who was known nationally several years ago for his rough football tactics, has taken up hammer throwing after being denied a chance to play pro football. His grid career ended in 1960, his senior year, when a head injury required major surgery. He's conceded an outside chance of making the Olympic squad at the hammer event, although he's been at it only a year.

WESTBROOK PEGLER writing about BATTLING SIKI, who came out of Senegal after World War I to achieve boxing immortality as a light heavyweight:

"The one person who knew Battling Siki best and loved him as a man loved a friendly but mischievous pet, was a white man, Bob Levy, his fight manager. Siki called him Papa Bob and often assaulted him with moist kisses in the same conciliatory way that a chicken-killing alderale with feathers in his whiskers might slap its master on the cheek with eight inches of sopping tongue."

CATERING TO BOWLERS:

The largest and richest bowling tournament in the 47-year history of the Woman's International Bowling Congress will open April 9 in Minneapolis, Minn. More than 25,000 women will be competing for the prize money, totaling $248,924, over the 46-day stretch. Keglers will be on hand from 48 states, Bermuda, Canada, and Puerto Rico, with Minnesota supplying half of the contestants while another quarter will be from neighboring Iowa and Wisconsin. When the American Bowling Congress' National Seniors' tournament opened this last weekend in Skokie, Ill., there were 545 men over 55-years-old on hand for the event. The oldest contestant was 99-year-old FRED HOLMES of Glenview, Ill. Fifteen claims for ABC high score awards (among them several 300 games) have been rejected because of deliberate creation of improper lane conditions.

NEW ORLEANS FIGHT

1893 Bout Lasted Into 110 Rounder

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Two boxers slugged it out in a ring for seven hours and 20 minutes in New Orleans exactly 71 years ago today.

Referee John Duffy called it a draw—no contest—after neither Andy Bowen nor Jack Burke threw a punch in the 110th round.

The 110-round bout still stands as the longest glove fight on record.

"There was no way of forcing the men to fight," said Duffy, Bowen, 129, of New Orleans, and Burke, 130, of Galveston, Tex., fought that night for the lightweight championship of the South.

Some 8,500 fight fans were on hand at the start. Many were still there when Duffy ended it at 3:45 a.m., although "a number were asleep," according to the Daily Picayune's account of the battle.

Bowen was a veteran fighter, ranked as one of the top light-

Purcell Plugs For Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Texas congressman estimates that the nation's wheat farmers will lose $600 million in income this year if the House does not pass the cotton-wheat bill. U.S. Rep. Graham Purcell, a Democrat from Wichita Falls, adds that cotton farmers will suffer "incalculable losses" from increased inroads by synthetic fibers without passage of the Senate-approved measure. The Johnson administration has strongly backed the bill. A House vote is expected Wednesday.

Purcell said in a newsletter to his constituents that the bill must be passed this month to be effective on 1964 crops. Meanwhile, Texas Agriculture Commissioner John White said Sunday in Austin, Tex., that he hopes Congress will act quickly on the proposal. Purcell says he is "hesitantly optimistic" about the bill's prospects.

White pointed out that last year's Texas cotton crop was worth $824 million at the farm, while wheat brought $79 million. He said the two key crops generate from three to seven times as much business in the community as the amount of their farm value.

The cotton portion of the bill, passed originally by the House, provides subsidies to the textile industry to enable it to sell its products domestically at the lower world price.

The wheat portion, added by the Senate, provides cash payments to wheat farmers who voluntarily limit their production. Unless it is passed, wheat farmers stand to get considerably lower prices per bushel on this year's crop as a result of their vote last May against a high price support program tied to compulsory production controls.

A Devotional For The Day

There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body. (I Corinthians 15:44.)

PRAYER: We thank Thee, our Father, that because Jesus arose from the dead, death means not the end but rather the beginning of a new and greater life with Thee. Use us in the proclaiming of this good news to others. For the Savior's sake. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Denying Boys Activity

This is no item of great moment—except for boys who will be disappointed, and for their parents.

But the Texas Little League, which has provided an opportunity for play and sportsmanship for boys in the northern part of the city and county, seems in dire danger of not functioning this year. The big trouble seems to be the lack of adult leadership. The time is late, but it is not too late. Surely there are enough parents of boys who want to play badly enough to somehow pull this needed league back together. Otherwise, scores of young boys who want desperately to play ball won't have that chance.

Attacks 'Over-Kill Myth'

The public discussion of "overkill" has been joined by Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander in chief of the Strategic Air Command. He is forced to concede in the end, however, that he may not be able to explain the subject to the satisfaction of everyone.

Writing in the Air Force magazine, Power explains that it is not enough to have one nuclear weapon for every assigned target. Instead, the probability of a weapon being destroyed before it is launched, its chances of aborting on the ground or in the air, unfavorable weather conditions, enemy action, fuds and misses must all be taken into account. Thus if the "kill probability" of a missile is 50 per cent and the priority of the target is relatively low, perhaps only one weapon would be assigned to it. But the higher priority, the greater number of missiles or bombs must be assigned to it.

"I am afraid, however, that the 'myth of the overkill' will persist for as long as there are people who accept statistics at face value without troubling to examine the reasons behind them," Power wrote. "They fail to understand that any realistic war plan requires more weapons than would be needed if there were assurance that each and every one would destroy its assigned target. This is not a matter of waste and 'overkill' but of strengthening our deterrent and, if deterrence should fail, of minimizing our losses and the danger of defeat."

Technically at least, this argument is difficult to refute. But it does not answer the crucial question of when is enough, enough? The critics of continued massive stockpiling of nuclear weapons are concerned to some extent with the tremendous cost of the program, but primarily concerned with an excessive nuclear arsenal of weapons that can be used for nothing but war or vengeance.

Is there to be no end to this stockpiling? This is the question that must be answered before the public can be satisfied that in the nuclear weapons category at least we have reached a point where further manufacture of these weapons can be halted.

A Rock That Remained Unmoved

WASHINGTON—In a declining episode of human history, when integrity and moral courage had come to be regarded as faintly cornball anachronisms, the old general was a rock unmoved by convulsions that destroyed empires.

He was not above a flourish or two that seemed sometimes to belong to a vanished age, as witness his cornob pipe and his salty old cap with the lavish trimming of scrambled eggs. But under the hippodrome there was truth, fortitude, a rare vision of the future, and a thread of sparkling wit that was almost exclusively reserved for a narrow circle of family and close friends.

PHYSICALLY he was all rawhide and whalebone, and here again he sometimes seemed to belong to a forgotten time when the worth of a man was often measured in the hours he could sit tall in the saddle, in the days he could endure privation, in the disdain with which he regarded hardship. The last time he appeared in public, as sick as he was, he still had the leathery, indomitable look of an old horse soldier.

His life spanned the great, brawling, lusty panorama of American history from the Indian wars to nuclear weaponry. He learned (perhaps better than any general since Lee) to shift with the changing modes of warfare, but he remembered the lesson soldiers have had to remember since Alexander: There is no substitute for victory.

HE WAS, of course, sacked for his unyielding devotion to that ideal. History, however, seems determined to prove him right. Many close-in spectators at the grubby twilight war in Viet Nam believe it is a war that was lost at Panmunjom. Korea, it was said by generals who took their final training in Madison Avenue, was "the wrong war, in the wrong place, at the wrong time."

The old general knew better. He knew that wars are not fought on fairways under sunny skies. He knew that there had never been a right time, or a right place—only right objectives.

THE WAPPER-JAWED liberals never missed a chance to deride him, and in truth he was a figure that was a ready-made target for their sort of rant. He was aloof, patrician, occasionally arrogant, sometimes vain. But it was possible to forgive him these human frailties, particularly when one regarded his lesser colleagues who had them in greater abundance, un-

Special Qualities Set Apart MacArthur

WASHINGTON (AP)—General of the Army Douglas MacArthur had brains, character, fabulous courage, grace, and a special quality which some men have had from antiquity. Anthropologists call it mana.

It means extraordinary magnetism and power to impress. Mixed with it was egoism. And this produced his personal disaster when he let the egoism collide with his judgment in disobeying the President.

It was a humiliating end to one of the most glamorous military records in American history, 32 years of service, longer than the combined military service of George Washington, Ulysses S. Grant and Andrew Jackson.

HIS BATTLES in three wars were like a catalogue of encounters from the Iliad: The Marne, Meuse-Argonne, St. Mihiel, Sedan; Bataan, Corregidor, New Guinea, Leyte, Lingayen Gulf, Borneo, Luzon; Pusan, Inchon, Yalu River.

If he wore his decorations, which ranged down from the Medal of Honor, he would have been as resplendent as Achilles' shield. But he didn't wear them. This, one writer said, was part of his ostentation.

John Gunther, impressed by the "immense force of his character," quotes an officer as saying MacArthur was the only man in the world "who could walk into a room full of drunks and all would be sober in five minutes."

MACARTHUR was dramatic—arrogant, his critics said—and in his years of heading the occupation forces in Japan he stood as aloof as a mikado. He had a glistering sense of history, including his own, and no wonder.

He traced his ancestry back to Scotland's clan MacArthur which, he said in Life magazine, finds a place in the "heroic lore of King Arthur and his knights of the round table."

One entranced biographer even made him an eighth cousin of Sir Winston Churchill, a sixth cousin of President Franklin D.

Roosevelt, and a descendant of Charlemagne.

KING ARTHUR of the myth slew monsters with names like Twrch Trwyth. MacArthur's monsters were Russians, Red Chinese, and those in Washington he thought were conspiring to frustrate and undercut him.

The clan MacArthur and its pride came down through his father, Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, who in the Civil War at Missionary Ridge won the Medal of Honor and became colonel of his regiment by the time he was 20.

So from childhood soldiers were respectful to Douglas MacArthur, son of a general. Remembering this, one admiring officer who served under MacArthur in the Pacific in World War II said:

"IF MACARTHUR never had the common touch, it's because he was never a common man himself. He was being called 'sir' from the time he was 3."

He became a symbol, the phoenix of the American spirit rising from the ashes of calamity when the Japanese drove him out of the Philippines and he said "I shall return," and did.

He was 70 when the Korean War began June 25, 1950. Victory would have been the soaring finish to the military symphony of his life. But the music soured, victory eluded him, and in seeking it he made mistakes of judgment.

First, he had an optimistic misunderstanding of the enemy, perhaps because he wished so hard to win.

He thought all he had to do was whip the North Koreans, that the war would be over by Christmas, that the Chinese would not come in. He was wrong on all counts.

THEN HIS egoism overcame him. He pitted himself against President Harry S. Truman who had ordered him not to assert publicly his ideas on how to win the war. MacArthur didn't listen, didn't obey.

His ideas differed from Truman's. He wanted, among other things, to bomb the Chinese bases in Manchuria. Truman and his advisers feared this might mean World War III, with the Soviet Union coming in on China's side.

Truman considered MacArthur insubordinate and his statements injurious to the conduct of the war and relations with allies. Thus it became a contest between a general and his commander-in-chief, the president.

MacArthur lost, was fired. This time there was no return. Even in the legend the phoenix came out of the ashes only once.

Mutual Interests—Less Tension

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Familiarity doesn't necessarily breed contempt. According to psychologists, marriages in which husband and wife share many mutual interests have less tension than those in which each partner is more independent.

At least there's one commodity which doesn't seem to have gone up too much in price in recent years—buggy whips.

DIAMONDS were worn exclusively by men until a French woman named Agnes Sorel started the Court of Versailles in 1444 by showing up wearing a necklace of sparklers.

There's a backlog of over 196,000 patent applications at the U.S. Patent Office.

Apology: Sometime back we chronicled here that the dying request of frontiersman Kit Carson was for a plate of chili. A number of Western culinary experts have written in to say Kit had a low opinion of chili and that what he really asked for was a big chunk of buffalo steak.

Our quotable notables: "A germ thinks of a man only as the swamp in which he has to

ONE TEST of a civilization is how much water it needs. The per capita use of water in the United States has risen since 1900 from 600 gallons a day to 1,500. The figure is expected to double by 1980.

Imagine anything in Boston being wild. Well, there's a radio station there—WILD.

Some 65 per cent of people who suffer chronic headaches have one eye located higher in their head than the other.

FOLKLORE: A girl who mops the floor crossways of the boards will have a drunkard for a husband. Anybody who tips a chair over backward won't marry that year. A girl who marries a man whose last name begins with the same letter as her last name will be worse off than when she was single.

Worth remembering: "It's called the mother tongue because father seldom gets to use it."—Arnold H. Glasow.

Famous last words: Voltaire remarked, "Do let me die in peace." Daniel Webster uttered, "Life, life! death, death! how curious it is!" The Emperor Vespasian commented, "I suppose I am now becoming a god."

Burning Feet Can Result From Many Causes

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband's feet bother him in the evening just before going to bed, and after he gets to sleep. They become fire red and burn like it, too. Rubbing them hard for about half an hour brings partial relief. Other times he has to get up and run cold water over them. This sometimes happens two or three times in a night. What is the cause? —MRS. A. B.

The causes for burning feet make a long list. Common ones are toxicity from tobacco or alcohol (or, at times, other things). Next on the list is vascular disease of some sort, mainly spasm of the blood vessels, or arteriosclerosis.

Feet that have been frozen or frostbitten will burn.

Other frequent causes are: Arthritis, arch defects in the feet, faulty shoes or too-tight socks, obesity.

Mr. A. B. has found that massage helps him. This may be either by stimulating circulation or relaxing muscle spasm.

But the smart thing is to determine the actual cause, so the most effective measures can be taken to relieve him.

People with foot trouble often do not realize that some systemic disorder (such as vascular disease or toxicity) can be the cause, but it is, often enough. So a general physical examination is recommended.

Shingles can be a painful disease! To receive a copy of my booklet, "The Facts About Shingles," write Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim

The American Raccoon

One thing and another:

There's a move afoot among some naturalists to project the raccoon as an American emblem, with the idea in mind that we should have a national mammal as well as a national bird.

The raccoon, his champions say, is said to be more distinctly American than the eagle—tough, adaptable and successful, as common as dirt and as hardy as weeds.

Wasn't it Benjamin Franklin who suggested that the turkey rather than the eagle be used as the national emblem because of his willingness to fight, his adaptability and his usefulness to society?

AUTOMOBILE seat belts are here to stay, I know, but what about that fellow in Oklahoma City last year whose car climbed a utility pole guy wire, hurdled through some trees and came to rest on the ground, bottom side up.

The driver rode out the mishap in fine style but bumped his head when he released his safety belt.

MODERN LIVING? It can be dangerous. Take the case of the young woman who gulped down a glass of water, only to discover it contained her contact lenses.

And how about that Alberta woman who must be re-appraising her superstitions? While walking down a street one day, she detoured to keep from walking under a ladder, only to be struck by a repairman who fell from it.

THEY SAY that life has a way of evening up things. For every woman who makes a fool out of a man there's another who makes a man out of a fool.

HAVE YOU heard the story about the production chief from one of the Iron Curtain countries who was being taken on a tour of one of the American plants by a manufacturer?

The noon whistle blew suddenly and workers by the thousands started streaming off their jobs. That alarmed the visitor, who immediately drew attention to it by saying:

"They're escaping!" his host said, "Don't worry," his host said, "they'll be back."

THE WHISTLE blew again in an hour and all the men filed back to work. The visitor was noticeably impressed.

"Now," said the manufacturer, "about those machines you were interested in buying—"

"Forget the machines," the guest interrupted. "How much for one of those whistles?"

Nixon, Rockefeller Hurt Themselves

WASHINGTON — Political obituaries are different from others in that politicians sometimes write their own.

Richard Nixon's peevish and vulgar press conference in November, 1962, when he complained that the California press had given him the "shaft" in his gubernatorial campaign, was a self-carved tombstone. And Nelson Rockefeller's equally ill-timed and ill-tempered performance on his legislative program in Albany over the Easter weekend reads like another first-person death sentence.

THE KNIFE OF irony in both instances is that the men who did themselves in both had at least a smidgen of right on their side.

Nixon's lament about drawing a bad press strikes the chords of truth. Sometimes he didn't deserve it, but sometimes he did. He began his career as a slasher of Leftists. For this he deserved the national gratitude which finally came his way, but by then he was badly cut up not only by the Leftist press, but by the pietists who had allowed the Leftists to gull them into beholding Nixon as a handy example of foul-play politics.

ROCKEFELLER'S latest go-around with his Republican-majority legislature tells a similar tale. The friendly, I am informed by sources Governor, toward him, probably had right on his side in the two legislative bills which tripped him up at Albany. He had a liquor-sale bill aimed at preventing a recurrence of the bare-faced bribery which disgraced his administration a short while ago. He had an anti-junket bill aimed at improving the "ethics" of free-loading legislators. These are the kinds of measures that a State Governor ought to be pushing, and Rockefeller would have been remiss if he hadn't done so.

BUT THE WORD from Albany is that Rockefeller, behaving much as Nixon did, flew into a pet and drove away the very people who would otherwise have been on his side. The N. Y. Times considered it "News Fit to Print" that a State Senator said of the Governor:

"This rich, spoiled little child is now dancing a tantrum . . . because he can't get what he wants."

It seems quite certain that Nixon and Rockefeller are finished as national political figures. Even if ex-humbled and propped up as candidates by a party which has run out of live men, they would be cadavers whose only followers would be a funeral procession.

Materialism Versus Idealism

WASHINGTON — Maybe an expresident has some advantages in political debate—for, as the years go on and he surveys the passing scene, he can always say from personal experience: "I told you so."

Thus, former President Eisenhower, while attending a few days ago a forum in Los Angeles, was reminded of the late President Kennedy's charge in the 1960 campaign that United States "prestige" was low. Mr. Eisenhower was asked how he would appraise our "prestige" now. The former president answered:

"I AM NOT going to detail what has happened in the past three years, but the prestige of the United States today is far less than it was in 1960."

The dictionary give "influence" as a synonym for "prestige." Mr. Kennedy, in a campaign speech in Kansas City on Oct. 22, 1960, amplified what is meant by "influence." He said:

"I define prestige as influence, as an ability to persuade people to accept your point of view. That probably cost us more in the '50's than any other failure or any other decision or any other kind of action."

Speaking a few days later in New York City, Mr. Kennedy declared:

"One of the great problems which now affects the United States, affects our security, affects our leadership, affects our chances of peace, is that the United States in recent years, rather than giving an image of strength and purpose and vitality, has given an image of reaching middle age and beginning to fade as an inspiration and hope to the people all around the globe."

BUT SEN. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said only a few days ago virtually the same thing about the present administration's foreign policy.

Mr. Kennedy made several speeches in the campaign on the meaning of "prestige." In Philadelphia on Oct. 29, 1960, he said:

By prestige I do not mean popularity . . . prestige is important, but if these people upon whom we depend for our security, our support, and ultimately the peace, ever begin to get the idea that we are tired, uncertain, not sure where we are going, without purpose, how can we lead a free alliance?"

But as Americans look around the world today, they wonder who is leading the "free alliance," and whether the difficulty is in the United States or abroad. France has just recognized Red China, and the countries of Western Europe continue to ignore American appeals that they curtail their trade with Communist Cuba.

MAYBE SEN. Fulbright, who now calls Castro a "distasteful nuisance" but not a danger, had not read the speech by Sen. John F. Kennedy during the 1960 campaign at Portland, Ore., on Sept. 7, in which he said:

"They (the American people) wonder why America is regarded with so much contempt on the once-friendly island of Cuba, only 90 miles away, that its erratic leader feels free to denounce us with words and threaten us with missiles."

But it so happens that nearly four years have passed since that 1960 campaign, and the Castro government still regards the United States with contempt and there are well-authenticated reports that a military base in Cuba, manned by Soviet "technicians," is still potentially menacing to the American people. Mr. Kennedy added in that same speech:

"WHAT HAS HAPPENED to our prestige? It is not enough to blame it all on Communist propaganda. Nor is it enough merely to call for more American propaganda or spending. The roots of our trouble go deeper. We are losing the respect of the peoples of the world primarily because we are in danger of losing those qualities they have always respected."

Yet in the last few days, the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, a prominent Democrat, has called upon his countrymen to "come to terms, at last, with the realities." He gives up on the economic blockade of Cuba. He says it is futile. He insists that the United States cannot persuade its allies to maintain such a blockade.

BUT NOBODY has come forth with the basic reason as to why the Western European countries—our own allies—feel they can ignore our pleas and earnestly written diplomatic communications asking them to assist us in an economic boycott of Cuba, from which island a constant campaign of Communist subversion and infiltration is being carried on against the rest of Latin America. It is not American "prestige" that has fallen, but actually the prestige of nations which prefer the materialistic gains of "trade" to the ideals for which free nations have made such supreme sacrifices in the past.

LBJ Makes First Primary Move In Wisconsin Salute

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—President Johnson has made his first public move in Wisconsin's presidential primary with a message of tribute to Gov. John W. Reynolds, running as a favorite son pledged to the President.

Johnson called Reynolds "a patriot and a leader in whom we can all take pride" in a telegram read Sunday night at a testimonial dinner in Madison for the Wisconsin governor.

Another message to guests at the $25-a-plate dinner was received from Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, who said, "Permit me to join, momentarily at least, in your campaign effort on behalf of Gov. John Reynolds and his fine state of liberal Democrats."

With the entry of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace into the race, Tuesday's primary has developed into an unofficial referendum on the federal civil rights bill pending before the Senate.

Wallace has campaigned throughout Wisconsin attacking the proposal as "a civil wrong" which would deprive states of their rights.

Reynolds also has toured the state and said that Wallace lied about the civil rights measure. He told the dinner audience his campaign against Wallace was a fight for human dignity. He urged Democrats, Republicans and independents to join him.

As Reynolds was saluted from Washington Wallace encountered the roughest treatment of his campaign and was hit by a picket's sign during a demonstration Sunday in the industrial city of Kenosha. The governor was not hurt, but two of his aides said they were punched. One man was arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

close, part of the crowd pushed into the lobby. Police, the governor and his aides shouldered through the throng to his car, where a police officer said Wallace was struck by a picket's sign.

"We saw the man swing the sign, saw it hit the governor and we grabbed him (the man)," said Lt. Grant Tyler. Wallace said he thought it might be "people from outside the area" who were responsible for the demonstration.

Cars Everywhere

When the entrants in the 1964 Mobil Economy Run pulled into the Cosden Country Club Sunday for lunch before continuing on to Fort Worth, they were stacked in neat but tight rows all over the parking lot. Interested Big Springers mixed with the run officials as persons milled around constantly taking close looks at the shiny new automobiles. It all made for a cramped area. (Photo by Jimmy Townes.)

Car Test Caravan Stops Here Sunday

By PAT WASHBURN
"Here it comes," blared the loudspeaker. "The first car of the 1964 Mobil Economy Run to arrive in Big Spring. It's a Chevy II 100 driven by Jean Fitzgerald of the Chevy Teen Team." It was 11:55 a.m. Sunday at the Cosden Country Club. With its large white neatly printed letters on the side, "1964 Mobil Economy Run," we could spot it a half-mile off. The car wheeled into the spacious parking lot and was guided into final position by a red-jacketed representative of the United States Automobile Club, the sanctioning body of the annual event. In bringing the car to a halt, the parking director flapped a brilliant Air Force orange flag over his head and pointed to the parking spot.

New Car, Big Scratch

Although there have been no serious accidents in the 1964 Mobil Economy Run, two of the cars still show the marks of minor mishaps. One of the automobiles is shown above with a long scratch in the right side which was received when the driver, George Alsbury, brushed a fire plug while pulling into a curb at Parker, Ariz. Alsbury couldn't help but grin as he pointed out the mark Sunday when the 45 competing cars stopped at the Cosden Country Club for lunch. (Photo by Danny Valdez) company has entered it in competition. The club then assumes the cost of having it transported on a flat-bed trailer to the starting point.

TEST RUN
The car company is allowed eight hours before the race in which to service the automobile and is also given permission to take it on a 1,500 mile test run. A USAC official is always present. To insure that the car stays in factory condition throughout the trip, it is placed under police protection each night with the hood, trunk, and doors locked and the key in the possession of the sanctioning body. As in the past, a remarkable safety record had been established up until the time the cars rolled into Big Spring Sunday. Only two minor accidents had occurred. The first came in Parker, Ariz., when George Alsbury, driving a Chrysler, brushed a fire plug while parking and put a four-foot dent in the right side. The second came in Las Cruces, N. M., as a Ford, with Jim Fodick at the wheel, was run into by a teen-age girl. But in both cases the cars continued on the run.

Lamesa Mortuary Sale Announced

LAMESA (SC) — The purchase of Higginbotham Funeral Home by three Lamesans has been announced. The new owners are Clyde Branon, his son, Tom Branon and Hugh Phillips, all of whom have been associated with Lamesa's only mortuary for some time.

The trio, who will operate it under the name of Branon-Phillips Funeral Home, purchased the funeral home from Higginbotham-Bartlett Corp. of Dallas. Higginbotham Funeral Home has been in Lamesa 32 years and the elder Branon has operated it since that time. He has been a funeral director 42 years and is currently mayor of Lamesa. His son Tom, a former councilman here, has been a funeral director 15 years.

Phillips, a native of San Angelo, has been with the mortuary since 1954.

New Trustees To Take Office

Independent school district boards in Howard County, except Big Spring, will canvass returns of school board elections, administer oaths to new members, and organize boards at most regular meetings. The Big Spring district will canvass returns and organize at a called meeting Tuesday night.

Unofficial returns for two members of the Big Spring school board showed Jimmy Felts, incumbent, re-elected with 758 votes. Jack Haralson, with 702 votes, will fill the place vacated by O. S. Womack who did not seek re-election. The third candidate, Winston Wrinkle, received 532 votes.

Coahoma board members elected, with the unofficial tabulations, were Donald Duke, 153; Jasper Gibson, 150, and Marion Hays, 136. Hays was re-elected, while Duke and Gibson are new members of the board. Woner Robinson and T. O. Ernest, incumbents, and C. C. Harrison were defeated.

New Panama Nomination Slated Soon

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson's nomination of Jack Hood Vaughn as ambassador to Panama is expected to reach the Senate by midweek, and the onetime boxer is "rarin' to go."

Johnson told a news conference Saturday that Vaughn, now director of the Peace Corps Latin-American operation, will be on his way to Panama "just as soon as he can be confirmed by the Senate."

No difficulty is anticipated, and Vaughn, who has been holding his breath for three months, then will head for his "second home."

IN JANUARY
Vaughn, 45, who boxed both as an amateur and as a professional, was ticketed for the Panama assignment last January when it appeared the United States and Panama might be able to maintain diplomatic ties, although bloody rioting had broken out in the Canal Zone.

But the two countries broke relations, and they were not resumed until Saturday.

The post of ambassador has been vacant since President John F. Kennedy accepted the resignation of Joseph S. Farland in August. Farland reportedly disagreed with the late President's policies.

Just before his death, Kennedy had announced he intended to nominate Frank Coffin, a foreign aid official, as ambassador, but President Johnson did not follow through.

PROBLEMS
Johnson stressed at his news conference that the United States is much concerned with the "serious problems" of the hemisphere. He said Washington is doing everything it can to deal with the "ancient enemies of mankind—disease and illiteracy."

His attitude was one of obvious satisfaction. "This has been a good week for this hemisphere," he declared.

The President referred specifically to Panama and Brazil. In the first instance, he said, "we are encouraged by the developments."

In the second, the overthrown leftist President Joao Goulart of Brazil, Johnson said "we are glad that the transition in Brazil has been constitutional."

An exchange of notes Saturday between the State Department and Panama's Foreign Ministry official resumed relations. It was reported in Panama City that U.S. Embassy personnel are expected to return to their headquarters this week, having been told by Panamanian officials that they are welcome at any time.

Nazi Linked To Dead Kids

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Spectators shouted "Kill him! Hang him!" today at the Auschwitz war crimes trial after testimony linked a defendant with the death of Jewish children.

Former SS Sgt. Oswald Kaduk jumped to his feet when a witness testified that he personally drove the children at pistol point to the gas chamber of the Auschwitz concentration camp.

Ludwig Woerl, once chief trustee at Auschwitz, said the children, aged 4 to 11, had turned to him after they had been selected to be gassed.

Woerl said he went to find out if anything could be done to save the children.

"I was told there is nothing to be done, that it was an order from Berlin."

"When I returned I saw the children being led away and who drove them forward at pistol point? It was Kaduk. Where is he?"

"Here!" Kaduk shouted from the defendant's bench. "This is not true. You're not quite right in your head."

"You are not facing me with a pistol today!" the witness yelled back. And from the audience voices shouted, "Beat him dead! Kill him! Hang him!"

Goldwater Begins 'New Look' Race

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater sets out today on a new look presidential campaign designed to keep Oregon from becoming another New Hampshire.

It could, Goldwater said, and he is convinced the way to avoid another primary loss is with a campaign geared to television and big rallies.

Goldwater pointed to New Hampshire, where Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge won a write-in victory with no personal campaign, and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon never put his face in the state and ran a very strong fourth.

"This has convinced us that we're entering a new era in politics," the Arizona senator said in an interview.

"I have a feeling that this same thing can happen in Oregon," he added. "I think that Lodge will run stronger than Nixon up here. It's going to be a very tight race."

In what he called an experiment with a new style, Goldwater planned to use television in Oregon as often as possible, and supplement it with major rallies—some of them to be filmed for broadcast.

"I realize that face to face meetings at rallies, tours and the other traditional stops of politics cannot compete with the public relations barrages which, dealing in the vague areas of personality and phantom images, have so changed the political landscape," Goldwater told his California campaign leaders Saturday.

Goldwater's first big Oregon show is scheduled tonight with a half-hour appearance from Portland, to be broadcast by eight stations blanketing the state.

Sizing up the opposition, Goldwater said "as a practicing politician" he doesn't think either Lodge or New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller stands a chance of winning the nomination.

"The delegates are of a mood this year that they're not going to take either man as far liberal as Rockefeller or Lodge," Goldwater said. "A great many of the delegates are not going to buy them because they don't think that either man has a chance against President Johnson."

"The man I think is going to be my final hurdle will be Dick Nixon," Goldwater added.

Peak Figures

LAMESA (SC)—Vital statistics in Dawson County registered peak figures in March as 65 births and 21 deaths were logged here. For the year, the county has recorded 176 births and 45 deaths.

Snow Hides Portions Of Quake Horror

EDITOR'S NOTE — Murlin Spencer, chief of the Seattle bureau of The Associated Press, has known and worked with Alaskans for 18 years. He flew to Anchorage the day after the earthquake and helped cover the dramatic and tragic story. This is his impression 10 days later.

By MURLIN SPENCER
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)
—Ten days after one of history's worst recorded earthquakes smashed this beautiful city on Cook Inlet, a visitor seeing it for the first time might exclaim:

"Why this isn't so bad. The reports were exaggerated."

In the aftermath, a light snow veiled—even if it did not conceal—the rubble shoved back from the streets.

The snow fell lightly on parkland troops standing guard around the hardest-hit areas on Fourth Avenue and at Turnagain Bluff where luxury homes slid into the sea.

But it could not cover the stark realism of the J.C. Penney Co.'s new store, which stands cold and silent, a huge wall blasted away as if by a bomb.

It could not hide huge apartment and office buildings that stand empty, their occupants listed among the "quake refugees."

There is optimism here, combined with a fantastic display of the cooperation and brotherliness for which Alaskans long have been noted.

But there is also real concern for the future of Anchorage, Valdez, Seward and other quake damaged areas.

EXCITEMENT
The stimulating excitement which sustained the 88,000 residents of this area in the first days after the quake has passed.

Today they face the cold, hard fact that they sustained a major disaster.

Anchorage stood up with great courage in its hour of trial.

The city moved swiftly to restore services. Electricity for lights and heating was back amazingly fast.

Telephone service, too, was restored, but for days facilities were overtaxed by frantic relatives trying to call in and Anchorage residents trying to call out to reassure them.

ALL AREAS
Water was soon available for washing. But it took time to clear it for drinking in all areas of the city. Hundreds of Anchorage men, women and children have felt the sting of the antityphoid needle.

Just as quickly as guards were removed from the major damage areas, storekeepers moved in, swept out glass and debris and, if they could, opened up again for business.

A new cream from new clinical research, ULTRA NADINOLA now works even faster to fade away unsightly blotches, freckles and muddy discolorations which may unfairly stamp you as being "older".

ULTRA NADINOLA is an effective, safe way to fade these tell-tale signs of age. It is the new moisturizing cream that contains pigment-clearing Hydroquinone, in a new and finer formula.

ULTRA NADINOLA seeks out and fades away brown spots and other darkened areas with little or no effect on clear areas. Results begin gradually, become more dramatic with continued use. Even age spots you've endured for years finally give way to show fresher-looking, even-toned skin.

ULTRA NADINOLA has been proven safe for normal skin in extensive tests under doctors' supervision.

Fulbright Tells Audience Military Not Controlled

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Sen. J. W. Fulbright, who only 12 days ago touched off an explosive debate on foreign policy, now says "the American people are not now exercising effective control over the military, and neither is the Congress."

The charge by the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a speech Sunday night at the University of North Carolina seemed almost certain to stir another controversy—this time with the Pentagon.

The Arkansas Democrat's March 25 foreign policy speech ricocheted through both halls of Congress, the State Department and the White House. It still is drawing fire in some quarters.

His comments on the military came in a keynote speech to the 1964 Carolina Symposium, a five-day series of lectures at the university on the topic "Arms and the Man: National Security and the Aims of a Free Society."

Fulbright said the military establishment has a vested interest in the continuation of the cold war and its high military spending.
