Gulf's Shrimping Industry Enjoying Banner Season

AUSTIN (AP)—Shrimping in the Gulf of Mexico may be the best this year since the record-breaking year of 1960, says a Parks and Wildlife Commission official.

Weldon Watson, commission executive secretary, said Tuesday the outlook is "extremely good although the shrimp are considerably smaller now than at this time a year ago because of prolonged cold water in the bays."

Watson made his remarks at the Parks and Wildlife Commission's quarterly meeting Tuesday, when the three-member group delayed until June 15 the closing of the gulf shrimping season.

A law passed by the last legislature allows the commission to set back 15 days from June 1 the 45-day closed season if it is recommended by coastal biologists. Biologists designed the closed season to begin as the small brown shrimp enter the Gulf from their nursery grounds in the bays.

During the 45-day period,

Watson said, the shrimp grow rapidly and almost triple in weight. So, when the Gulf season reopens more of the shrimp will have reached legal minimum size which averages about 4 1/2 inches long.

"In addition to finding that shrimp got a slower start this season," Watson said, "the biologists report greater numbers of young shrimp than in recent previous years."

"They believe there is a good possibility this may be the best Gulf shrimping season since the record-breaking year of 1960."

In other action, the commission said, effective Sept. 1, dredges may be used on natural oyster reefs and beds in East Majaorda and Lavaca Bays; agreed to study two proposals and to ask for money in its next appropriation request to finance 12 historical markers at a cost of $400 each.

One of the proposals, made by three Amarillo men, would provide for feed and brush piles for quail on the 5,821-acre Gene Howe Wildlife Management Area, six miles east of Canadian in Hemphill County.

The other proposal involves study of the recently closed Brown Cedar Cut across the Gulf. Residents of the area said when the cut was closed, the tourist business almost completely stopped.

Family Welcomed After Ship Fire

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—"Oh, God, I love you, honey. I'm glad you're safe."

At this greeting, Randi Schjeldrup fell into the embrace of her Aunt Josephine after the nightmarish burning of a ship at sea, in which one died and nine others were missing.

Mrs. Schjeldrup, 29, her three small children and her husband, Sindre, were among 45 survivors from the Norwegian freighter Sandanger, on which Schjeldrup was chief engineer.

The 45 arrived here Tuesday night aboard their rescue ship, the German freighter Bodenstein.

The Bodenstein raced to aid the stricken Sandanger in the predawn hours Monday, less than an hour after the Sandanger was ripped by an explosion that ignited her cargo of baled cotton and wood pulp. The Bodenstein's crew plucked the survivors from life rafts near the burning ship.

As the rescue ship eased into port, the Sandanger was reported listing and sinking, still ablaze, 20 miles off the coast of Baja California, Mexico, 450 miles south of Long Beach.

Unknown was the fate of the ship's captain, John Kellmer, two stewardesses and six California passengers. The body of one woman passenger, tentatively identified as Juanita M. Benoy, 57, Alamo, Calif., was pulled from the sea by a Japanese ship, the Boston Maru.

Repeated explosions and the intense heat from flames have held up attempts to board the Sandanger to search for the nine missing.

TCU Seniors Set Record

FORT WORTH — During the week of May 24, Texas Christian University will confer approximately 700 degrees, an all-time record and more awards than the university made during the first half-century of its 91-year history.

Dr. Leslie L. Kingsbury, Australian-born professor of religion who joined the faculty this spring, will preach the baccalaureate sermon at 8 p.m. Sunday, May 24.

On May 27, commencement will be held in Daniel Meyer Coliseum also at 8 o'clock. Despite the huge class, diplomas will be presented individually to the graduates in the traditional manner. There will be no commencement speaker.

Records indicate that over the first 50 years, 1873-1923, TCU awarded 682 degrees. Largest single previous class was 632 in 1962. There were 631 last spring.

By deliberately surrendering a trick, West was able to capitalize on the road block which nature had created for South, the declarer in today's hand, and the latter was obliged to pay off to the brilliancy of his opponent.

South had the requirements for an opening no trump bid, and the presence of a five card major suit did not act as a deterrent. North was not interested in seeking an 11 trick contract, when a much shorter route to game presented itself, and he proceeded directly to three no trump.

West opened his fourth best diamond which was ducked in dummy and, when East played the ten, it held the trick. The latter continued with the jack, and at trick two West was called on to make the key play of the entire deal.

The normal procedure, of course, would be to let the five hold for, if East has another diamond to lead, West's queen will drive out the ace on the next round. West reasoned that his partner probably did not have any more diamonds, however, for it seemed unlikely that South would open with no trump without a diamond stopper unless he had at least three small cards in that suit.

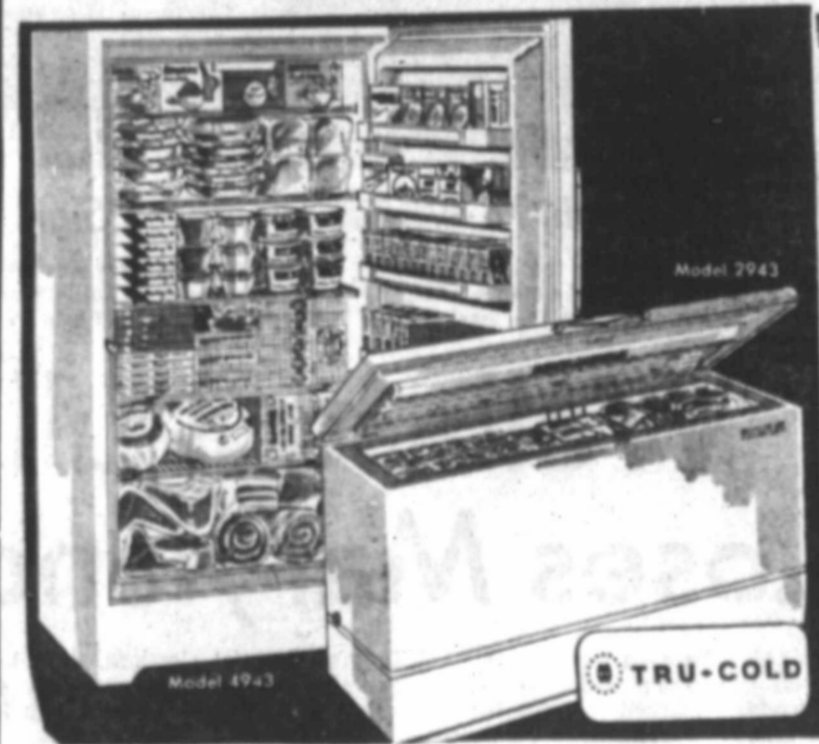

West was not especially concerned with the establishment of the diamonds, however, for the dummy's ace was not only a protective card for the declarer but, more important, a sure entry to North's club suit. If, for example, East and South each had two clubs, then there was no way for the latter to gain access to the dummy except in the diamond suit.

When the ten of diamonds was led at trick two, West overtook with the queen which was permitted to hold. West continued with the five and South was able to obtain a second trick in the suit by finessing North's nine, but he was not very happy with the present that had been given him. The club suit was now hopelessly blocked, and declarer wound up with only seven tricks.

The trick that West donated in diamonds came back with interest, since it deprived declarer of four club tricks. If South is left to his own devices, he can take six clubs and three side aces without surrendering the lead.

Naval Shipyards Deep In Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has $3 billion invested in a quandary.

Any time that much money is involved, the standard procedure in Washington is, first, to form a committee to make a preliminary study and then, second, form another committee to consider everything the first committee overlooked.

That is precisely what the Defense Department and the Navy have done. In time, they may make recommendations.

This particular quandary, or dilemma, concerns 11 Navy shipyards and 85,000 jobs.

The question is: Should these Navy shipyards, which cost $950 million annually to operate, be scuttled in whole or in part in order to give more business to the nation's very sick shipbuilding industry?

38 YARDS

The private shipyards are sick. There are now only 38 private yards in the nation. In 1948 there were 61.

It isn't a question that lends itself to a simple answer.

Among other things, the question concerns the Navy's fighting capabilities.

Further, the closing of a yard would bring a depression in some areas—and a depression, especially in an election year, could be deadly for politicians.

Of the 11 yards, six are on the East Coast, four on the West Coast and one is in Hawaii—Pearl Harbor. They do business with firms, however, clear across the nation.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told the House Appropriations committee in testimony given in February but only released April 14, that some shipyards would have to be closed, but picking which ones was difficult.

ELECTIONS

In the same hearing Secretary of the Navy Paul H. Nitze denied the November elections might influence the release of the report on shipyard closings. But Nitze declined to bet with Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., that the announcement would be forthcoming only after Nov. 15.

Members of Congress had once been notified that the shipyards in Philadelphia, Boston and San Francisco would be closed. This notice was later withdrawn.

In an interview, Adm. David L. McDonald said he thought the current study of Navy shipyard operations was a good thing, but added, "I am not about to commit myself and say we ought to keep 'em all, reduce 'em all, or reduce any number."

Adm. McDonald pointed out that 80 per cent of the Navy's new construction is being done by private yards.

REPAIR WORK

He also noted that under a 1962 law, 35 per cent of the Navy's repair and overhaul work must be assigned to private yards.

This has left the Navy with an excess capacity for peacetime construction and overhaul. As a result, the Navy already has announced that its shipyard work force will be reduced by 6,000 by June 30.

In view of what has already transpired, it seems fairly safe to predict that some of the Navy's shipyards will be closed after the election.

McNamara has made public a report by a Chicago accounting firm in which the claim is made that private yards can build ships 10 to 25 per cent cheaper than the Navy.

The Senate subcommittee on employment and manpower, headed by Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., has found that the Navy consists of 860 ships—"the most imposing peacetime array of warships that the world has ever known."

CHANGES

Then the subcommittee in a study made by a naval engineer, Glen Scheiber of New York, noted: "In this era of technological change and rapid obsolescence, the contribution of such a display of naval force to the peaceful coexistence of powerful nations is questionable."

He's Harvard's Oldest Grad

Edward Everett Cauthorne, who graduated from Harvard in 1892, posed Tuesday on the eve of his 162nd birthday in New York. Cauthorne, a bachelor, still chipper and spry, recently visited the World's Fair to gather material for a lecture today at the New York home for the aged where he lives. A native of Missouri, his activities have ranged from punching cattle in western Texas to helping revise an encyclopedia and selling real estate (AP WIREPHOTO)

Stockmen Still Against Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's depressed livestock industry appears to be as dead set against the government control measures for curing its ills as the industry was when it was flourishing.

This is the gist of the recommendations of a 38-member national advisory cattle committee which concluded a two-day closed conference Tuesday with Agriculture Department officials.

The committee was appointed by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman to discuss steps which might be taken to help pull the industry out of two years of very low prices.

MECHANISM
The committee soundly rejected a government supply control mechanism which had been advanced by the National Farmers Union, an advocate of strong government farm programs. This mechanism would have sought to reduce cattle numbers by offering government subsidies to stimulate the sale of lightweight animals.

When the Kennedy administration put forward a broad government farm supply management program in 1961, the livestock industry was a leader in a fight that resulted in the plan's defeat in Congress. From the very beginning of farm programs, beef cattle farmers have been cool to government supply adjustment programs.

This opposition irked administration officials and when hard times hit cattlemen last year some farm officials commented privately that the livestock men were getting what they deserved.

HELPFULNESS

The attitude of the Johnson administration — particularly President Johnson, himself a cattleman — has been one of concern and helpfulness. The low cattle prices pose political and economic problems for the Democrats this presidential election year.

Controversy persists over the cause of the cattle depression. Many farmers blame the rapidly increasing imports of recent years, but the Agriculture Department has put most of the blame on cattlemen for what it calls overexpansion and production.

In recommendations laid before Freeman—who is expected to place them before Johnson today or Thursday—the committee urged stronger efforts by government to reduce imports through negotiations with exporting nations.

It also recommended continued government buying of surplus beef for the needy and the school lunch program.

Wheat Crops Vary Widely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Price support rates for this year's wheat crop under the administration's new adjustment program are designed to average $1.30 a bushel at the farm. But actual rates at county levels vary as much as 59 cents.

The peak rate is $1.55 in Howard County, Maryland, and the lowest rate is 96 cents in Apache, Coconino and Navajo counties in Arizona and in Delta, Moffat, Ouray, Routt and San Miguel counties in Colorado.

The 1964 rates will run, for most counties, about 52 cents less than last year. But returns to farmers who cooperate with the program by harvesting within federal acreage allotments will be supplemented by marketing certificates averaging 47.5 cents a bushel on 90 per cent of the normal production of their allotments and by land diversion payments of around $8.25 an acre.

Actual county and terminal market support rates are designed to reflect the normal price differentials prevailing in the grain marketing system.

In Kansas, the No. 1 wheat state, the county rates for No. 1 wheat range from $1.18 to $1.38. The range in other wheat states include: Texas $1.19 to $1.55, and Oklahoma $1.24 to $1.30.

Shot To Death

AUSTIN (AP) — Lonnie Mason, 55, was found shot to death in his apartment Tuesday night. Police said a revolver was in his hand. The justice of the peace withheld a verdict.

Tired But Happy, Wallace Reflects On Strong Showing

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—The limp carnation was turning brown in his lapel, the coffee was cold in the stained cups littering his headquarters, the last echo of elation had died in a hoarse whisper of fatigue, and George C. Wallace's 10-week campaign in the North was, at last, finished.

No one, Wallace included, could know precisely what it meant or where it would all lead.

His own estimation was that the votes he got in Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland demonstrated a reversal of white sympathy in the North for the Negro civil rights movements.

OPPOSITION

"I have shown," he said late Tuesday night after all the votes were counted and he was reflecting on the race in his strangely quiet motel room, "that sectionalism is not a factor in opposition to the trend of trying to solve everything by federal force.

"It is now evident that a new trend has been established, and it transcends sectional lines.

"This Maryland vote," he said, "should let them know in Washington and in both national parties that they can't get rid of us by calling us bad names.

"They called me a bigot, a liar, a racist, an agitator, a trespasser. They pictured my supporters with Ku Klux hoods. They called in 10 senators to beat us down, and yet," he said with an air of triumph, "a majority of the white people in Maryland gave me their support. I'm elated. That's far more than I ever expected."

FAVORITE-SON

The Alabama governor won about 43 per cent of the vote in the Maryland Democratic presidential primary against Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, favorite-son stand-in for President Johnson. The state's Negro population is 17 per cent.

For one brief moment shortly after the polls closed Wallace sniffed an actual victory.

The first returns showed him leading Brewster—152 to 136 in one district, 194 to 69 in another, then some totals: Wallace 28,000 to 22,000 with 11 per cent of the vote in; Wallace 39,000 to 33,000 with 17 per cent counted.

The victory-inspired levity lasted about 30 minutes. Then it ended, almost abruptly, when an announcement came that with 41 per cent of the vote counted Brewster had pulled ahead.

Wallace was plainly disappointed, even though moments before the polls closed he had outlined once again, with paper and pencil, how it would be impossible for him to get a majority.

LOOKING FRESH

Mrs. Wallace, who accompanied her husband on his campaign swing through Maryland, sat quietly, looking fresh in a white dress with red and blue accents and an orchid corsage on her left shoulder. Later, when the last meeting with cheering supporters was over, she seemed genuinely relieved.

"I'll be glad to get back to Alabama and see the children," she said. "I can't remember the last time I was away for so long."

As for her husband, at this moment fatigued to the point of exhaustion, he clearly longed for more battles to join. But he refused to say what form they might take. One guess was that he will concentrate on expanding his unpledged elector move-

Flight Simulator Aiding Training

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A new simulator system, for training pilots to make quick visual adjustments from aircraft instruments to actually seeing terrain has been developed for Research-Technology Division at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Air crewmen sit in a simulator resembling the flight deck of their plane, while color television conveys a picture of three-dimensional, scale-model terrain moving on a belt. Instructors can control lights to simulate landings and takeoffs night or day, at dusk, or in fog or cloud cover.

Link Division of General Precision Inc. of Binghamton, N. Y., is producing 14 units in addition to the prototype for the Air Force under a $3.5 million contract.

No Signs Of Retirement For Texas' Oil Mogul Thompson

AUSTIN (AP) — Ernest O. Thompson corralled a runaway Texas oil industry 30 years ago and he has no plans to let age and illness force him to drop the reins.

ERNEST O. THOMPSON
... Powerful Oil Figure

He doesn't get to his office as much now because of recent illness, although he says he's there more often than some people realize.

In an interview, he reflected on his long, often turbulent work on the Railroad Commission, one of the most powerful state agencies in the nation.

Commission employees have the daily problems of regulating Texas' billion-dollar oil, gas and transportation industries.

AS MAYOR

Behind Thompson are 72 active years as Amarillo mayor, Army officer, and oil and gas conservation expert.

"It is most pleasant," he said, Thompson is sensitive to any suggestion that he step down.

"I haven't given it a single thought," he said of retirement. "I'm in great shape. I eat like a horse. I may be feeling just right for the next election."

His fifth six-year term on the commission—a record—expires Jan. 1, 1967.

Despite a stubborn gall bladder infection, Thompson has remained a fighter.

He won the Amarillo mayor's post in 1925 on a pledge of reducing utility rates. He was a hero in World War I—his revolutionary machine-gun mass firing tactics helped the 90th Division to victory in France and won him a battlefield promotion to lieutenant colonel at 28.

GIVES IN

Thompson warned the gas company that the city was going to supply itself if the rates weren't lowered. The company gave in.

Next, he brought the telephone company to terms by removing telephones from the two hotels he owned and urging citizens to leave their telephone lines open.

This startling method of getting his way brought statewide attention to Thompson. Gov. Ross Sterling asked Thompson in 1932 to replace former Gov. Pat Neff on the three-man Railroad Commission, which was just beginning to face the problems erupting along with the oil flood in the East Texas field.

The boom grew out of control. In late 1931, a year after the discovery, a well was being completed every hour. Almost 60 per cent of all oil wells drilled in the United States in 1932 were drilled in East Texas.

The field was filled with wildcaters determined to produce at full tilt.

COURT BATTLES

Commission orders were flaunted and court orders flew but the commission lost 212 court battles before winning one. Sterling finally called in National Guardsmen to shut in the field.

Thompson moved into the tent of Gen. Jake Wolters when the Guardsmen withdrew in 1932—legend has it he dubbed the site "Proration Hill"—and began the long struggle to save the field from pillage.

He faced hostile oilmen, some with fenced-in wells and armed guards.

In November 1932, the legislature gave the commission power to enforce its orders. Five months later, a valid order was adopted. It set production maximum at 775,000 barrels daily at a time when the potential was estimated at 100 million barrels daily.

Thompson's success in proration production in East Texas to the market demand was confirmed by court rulings, copied by other states, Canada and Venezuela, and is in use today in Texas.

ICKES TRIES

Then came another test: Interior Secy. Harold Ickes' attempts to control Texas production.

Thompson met Ickes head-on. He lined up Texas congressmen and defeated a bill to make Ickes oil administrator.

Thompson's battle was keyed to states' rights. He followed it by spearheading establishment of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission. He has been its chairman three times.

He then turned to gas proration, ended successfully only after years of court tests.

His accomplishments brought a succession of recognitions: —He became President Roosevelt's personal representative to the 1937 World Petroleum Congress in Paris in 1937; U.S. representative at Congresses in 1951 and 1953 and guest of honor at the 1959 Congress in New York.

—He won Venezuela's Simon Bolivar Medal for oil and gas conservation aid.

CITATIONS

—He was awarded the American Petroleum Institute gold medal in 1951, and a sprinkling of citations from national and state industry groups.

—He was designated by the secretary of war to survey oil and gas requirements during World War II on the European front and petroleum reserves in the Middle East in 1955.

—He became a lieutenant general.

"He has one of the fastest minds of any man I ever knew," said Sol Smith, Austin petroleum consultant and former member of Thompson's staff.

He delighted in putting staff members between a rock and a hard place—he would jump on you and see how long he could stay with you," he said of his period on the staff.

Thompson started oil executives at the March proration hearing with a display of his old fight, questioning them on oil imports.

GOVERNOR

He ran for governor in 1938 and 1940.

"I just thought I was running —O'Daniel passed me in a cloud of flour," he said. Flour salesman Lee O'Daniel beat him both times.

Thompson was born in Alvord, Tex., March 24, 1882. He moved to Amarillo in 1900. He attended school there and finally the University of Texas Law School.

Metropolitan Opera singer May Peterson, his first wife, died in 1952. He married Mrs. Myda Truscott Bivins a year later.

Six grandchildren in Amarillo provide him pleasure.

"I love to live quietly. I go home for lunch and supper. I go to bed about 8, and get up about 6," he said.

"Cataract, the clouding of the lens within the eye, is the greatest single cause of blindness in the country, and frequently afflicts older people", according to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

"Guard against eye disease, eyestrain and poor vision with an annual, professional eye examination by a Doctor of Optometry," advises Dr. S. J. Rogers of Texas State Optical.

Impoverished Miners Share Sorrow With Bobby Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — On a trip to West Virginia last month to study poverty, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy met up with Greenie Mullins in Dry Creek Hollow.

ROBERT KENNEDY revisits West Virginia

Mullins is the father of eight, a coal miner who has been unemployed so long he has trouble recalling when he last worked regularly.

The two, the rich-born and the terribly poor, had a bond.

"We loved your brother," Greenie Mullins said. "That was a dirty trick they did on him."

Simultaneously they patted each other awkwardly but comfortingly on the shoulder, eloquent testimony that sorrow shared makes brothers of us all. It has been six months since those shots rang out in Dallas. Slowly the Kennedy family has picked up the shattered pieces.

TO FORGET

But the Kennedys — and all the nation — have found it difficult to forget.

Crowds still line up patiently at President John F. Kennedy's grave in Arlington Cemetery. By actual count 2½ million persons, some of them repeaters, have filed slowly and quietly past. By Memorial Day the number is expected to reach three million.

Books about Kennedy continue to have astronomical sales. Letters of sympathy keep coming in.

Outwardly the Kennedys go about their various businesses much as they did when the president was vibrantly alive.

They wisecrack. They scurry about restlessly, Kennedyishly. But anyone who has had a great personal loss knows life can never be exactly the same again. This has to be particularly true for the Kennedys.

For at least seven years their lives, their fortunes, their energies were focused first on getting, and then keeping, Jack Kennedy in the White House.

In one awful moment, when life seemed as dazzling bright made the presidency possible — crippled by a stroke in 1961. How has Rose Kennedy held up after such repeated blows? "Mother's fine," Robert Kennedy said recently. "She's a wonderful woman."

REMARKABLE

Sen. Edward F. Kennedy D-Mass. answered the same question by saying: "She's remarkable."

After that long public ordeal of the funeral Mrs. John F. Kennedy went into seclusion but she has recently resumed many of her former activities.

She had Caroline, 6, and John, 3, at Stowe, Vt. for skiing with the rambunctious Kennedy clan. She took Caroline to the World's Fair. She has vacationed at Antigua in the West Indies.

Her trips are unannounced in advance. Always more intent on preserving privacy than the extroverted Kennedys she is happier if she is unrecognized.

The three Kennedy sisters—Eunice Shriver, Jean Smith and Patricia Lawford — have been active with the rest of the family in planning a memorial library to be built near Harvard University.

Mrs. Lawford has an additional chore: Co-chairman of the campaign to get Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's news secretary, nominated for senator in California.

APPEARANCES

In one sense the Kennedy women have it easier than the two remaining brothers since they can control their public appearances.

The senator and the attorney general not only are on constant display but as young men with a magic name they also are the subjects for constant political speculation.

Ted Kennedy points out his adjustment is far simpler than Robert's.

The president was 15 years older than Ted and their easy big-brother-teasing relationship is illustrated by two pictures in the senator's office, both put up after the assassination.

One is a gay bright photograph of President Kennedy applauding and grinning at Senator Kennedy.

"That was taken at a dinner up in Boston in October," Ted said to a recent visitor. "We had such a crowd that we had to have two banquet rooms. I was put in the smaller room of course."

"I said that as the youngest I was used to sitting at the end of the table but that this was the first time I had to sit in another room. And I said 'He's going to have to treat me better or I won't let him ride in on my coattails.'"

The president had scrawled across the bottom: "From one coattail rider to another with hopes." Had he lived he and the senator would both have been on the Massachusetts ballot in November.

HUMOR

The other picture also showed the president's pixie humor.

He drew a line to what looked like a protuberance on the side of the senator's jaw and wrote: "Honey Fitz' grandchild stores nuts for the winter."

Here was a family joke. "Honey Fitz" was grandfather John F. Fitzgerald, colorful mayor of Boston, who had what the family thought of as typically Irish jowls.

As attorney general, Robert Kennedy doesn't make political speeches, so Ted Kennedy has been in 16 states mostly for fund-raising dinners or for senators up for re-election. So great is the power of the Kennedy name that he is in great demand at Democratic meetings.

The only son-in-law in politics, Sargent Shriver, also has increased duties since the president's death. He directs the war on poverty as well as the Peace Corps.

Baptist Unit Backs Rights

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—A Southern Baptist commission recommended today that the denomination's convention go on record in support of legislation guaranteeing legal rights of Negroes.

The commission apparently considered the recommendation the closest thing to endorsement of civil rights legislation that might be adopted by the convention, whose action is not binding on member churches.

The topic goes to the convention floor Thursday and is certain to cause heated debate. Northern Baptists were urged by a Negro leader Tuesday night at their convention to take a more active role in the civil rights fight.

The Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Abernathy of Atlanta, a Baptist minister and associate of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said: "It is a tragic fact that for too long the church has not been a voice, but rather an echo."

Racial issues have claimed a big part of the discussions of both the American (Northern) and Southern Baptist Conventions, meeting separately.

The civil rights recommendation was made by the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention, largest Protestant denomination in the United States, with more than 10 million members.

"We pledge to support the laws designed to guarantee the legal rights of Negroes in our democracy and to go beyond these laws by practicing Christian love and reconciliation in human relationships," the recommendation said.

In an explanatory statement, the commission said that "in the midst of frustrating confusion and blurred issues . . . we would hereby affirm without ambiguity our conviction that the truths of God relate relevantly and redemptively in this (racial) crisis."

"Our failure to create a climate of Christian good will . . . has resulted in the racial protest movements which have been used for the redress of legitimate grievances. In deed we have contributed to the belief of many Negroes that these movements offer their only avenue of recourse."

Tots' Deaths Followed Tiff

WACO (AP)—Airman Rudy T. Davis, charged with murder and his wife told police Tuesday they argued violently before the family car dived into a river and their four children drowned.

Davis and his wife Edith, also 22, crawled through windows and escaped late Monday as the automobile sank in the North Bosque River.

Mrs. Davis, expecting her fifth child, and her husband separated two months ago. They married about five years ago.

He stayed at Connally Air Force Base and she lived in a frame duplex with the children—Buth Elaine, 4; Ester Rose, 3; Robert Everett, 2, and Evonne Rene, 10 months.

Davis drove in from the air base to take the family for a drive, he and his wife agreed in statements to officers, and in the course of an argument she cried: "Why don't you kill us—kill us all?"

Strike Talks Collapse To Cost Boss, Employees

BERNE, Ind. (AP)—An agreement that could cost union members up to six weeks' pay and management a comparable amount if they let future negotiations collapse was ready today for final signatures.

The contract, called the first of its kind in the history of collective bargaining, is to be signed in New York Thursday by Harold D. Sprunger, president of the Dunbar Furniture Corp. of Berne, and Sal B. Hoffman, president of the Upholsterers' International Union.

Local union and management officials signed the agreement in Berne Tuesday. Present wage scales were not disclosed.

Dunbar employs about 200 workers, 70 per cent of them union members. The only strike at the plant, in 1959, was settled one day short of six weeks.

This is the way the contract works: For a period up to 12 weeks, beginning with the start of negotiations, 50 per cent of employees' wages and a matching amount from company funds will be paid to the First Bank of Berne, which will donate its services.

If agreement is reached within six weeks, all the money held by the bank is returned. If a settlement is arrived at within nine weeks the payoff is 75 per cent. Up to 11 weeks it drops to 50 per cent, the 12th week is 25 per cent.

If the 12-week period expires without an agreement all the money goes to a community or charitable project, with the Berne Ministerial Association to determine the recipient if union and management cannot agree.

After 12 weeks the union may strike or the company may impose a lockout, but only after giving advance notice. Otherwise the previous agreement is renewed automatically for one year.

Senior Sermon Set For Sunday

Baccalaureate services for 1964 candidates for graduation diplomas from Big Spring High School will be held at 8:15 p.m. Sunday in the municipal auditorium. Commencement exercises will be held at 8:15 p.m. May 28 in the auditorium. High School principal John Smith said candidates now number 237 for the May 28 graduation. Mid-term and summer candidates will raise the total number of graduates for the year to around 270.

The Rev. Robert F. Polk, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon. Speakers for commencement exercises will be Seniors Linda Mason and Baxter Moore. Diplomas will be awarded by school board president Harold Talbot and secretary Mrs. R. B. G. Cowper. Awards will be made by Wayne Bonner, counselor.

Old Buildings Ordinance Gets Good Response

Several dilapidated buildings are being torn down as a result of a city campaign to eliminate buildings that, according to city ordinance, constitute a nuisance or hazard to health.

In one recent case, City Manager Larry Crow said "the owner has requested us to remove the building, and he is paying the cost of removal." This has happened in other instances.

The city ordinance went into effect at the close of 1963. It provides for the condemnation of buildings declared nuisances or hazardous. First, however, owners of the affected property are given an opportunity to provide relief.

Some 20 letters to property owners have been sent out by Tom Newton, city building inspector. Crow said response to the campaign has been good with many property owners tearing down old buildings of their own accord.

Accuracy Of Man's Spit Becomes Key Trial Issue

DALLAS (AP)—The accuracy of a man's spitting has become the chief issue in the misdemeanor trial of Robert E. Hatfield, accused of spitting into the face of Adlai Stevenson.

Hatfield was charged with aggravated assault by spitting on Dallas policeman L. R. Larsen last Oct. 24 when the United Nations ambassador was confronted by demonstrators after a speech here.

Stevenson also was struck across the head with a placard. The 22-year-old salesman could, under Texas law, get a more severe penalty if convicted of the offense against the officer. He could be assessed a maximum two-year jail sentence, or $1,000 fine, or both.

Defense witnesses said Hatfield directed his spitting at Stevenson, two-time Democratic presidential candidate, but Larsen testified he was the victim. The state contends it doesn't matter who Hatfield aimed at.

Chuckles broke out over the courtroom Tuesday as prosecuting lawyer Ben Ellis cross-examined John Weekly, a pre-law student at Southern Methodist University.

Weekly said Hatfield spat upon Stevenson, and not Larsen, who was escorting the ambassador through a crowd to his car.

Weekly said he was certain Larsen wasn't hit.

"You can't say how accurate the defendant was with his spit," Ellis sputtered. "Have you ever seen this defendant spit?"

"No," the witness said. "Then you don't know how wide a range he has," Ellis said with finality.

William Fitz, a North Texas State University sophomore, said Stevenson was the only target of Hatfield's action. "And you couldn't be wrong about where all this spit went," the prosecuting attorney said, his face reddening.

"No, I couldn't be wrong," the witness said.

The state rested its case after submitting as evidence part of a news film reel taken by KRLD-TV, which showed an open-mouthed youth who Larsen identified as Hatfield in front of Stevenson.

The jury was not allowed to see other parts of the film showing a woman swinging a placard across Stevenson's forehead, a heckler being seater during the ambassador's speech and views of signs saying:

"U.S. or U.N.," "Hungary Now Cuba," "Deceit Defeat Retreat," "U.N. Red Front," and "Adlai Who Elected You?"

The judge, lawyers and spectators saw this section of the film while the jury was out of the courtroom.

Amendments A Must For Rights

EDITOR'S NOTE — For 11 weeks the Senate has been locked in a debate on the civil rights bill. About the only action has been moves by supporters and opponents to amend the measure. Perhaps lost in the thunder and fury is what the bill, described as the most sweeping civil rights measure since Reconstruction, is designed specifically to do. Beginning today is the first of a three-part series spelling out the bill's provisions and the changes being considered.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 11 weeks of Senate debate on the civil rights bill have produced agreement so far on only one thing—that the measure must be amended.

At first, the bill's sponsors and administration officials argued that the Senate should pass the measure in the same form as it came from the House.

As the weeks have gone by, this position has been eroded. Now Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and the bill's floor managers are supporting a package of amendments.

The biggest push for changes has come from two sources—the 19 Southerners fighting the bill and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen.

JURY TRIAL
In recent weeks, however, they have centered their fight on the jury trial issue. They demand the bill specify the right of a jury trial for every defendant in criminal contempt actions that arise out of civil rights enforcement suits under the bill. Normally, contempt actions in federal courts are decided solely by the judges.

Dirksen has proposed 70 amendments to meet features of the legislation he considers muddy or objectionable.

After a series of conferences, Dirksen, Kennedy and a bipartisan group of senators reached agreement on the package of amendments. They contended the changes would not injure some of those who were lukewarm or downright cool to the measure.

TWO AREAS
Dirksen has proposed numerous technical changes but concentrated his efforts in two areas. In both, his ideas have been incorporated in the compromise amendment package, at least in part.

One of his efforts is to cut back on the government's power to file suits to enforce the bill.

The other is to write into the bill specific language reserving to the states the right to act exclusively for definite time periods where states have laws covering the same subject as some titles in the bill.

So far, despite all the talk of amendments, no change has been made in the bill which cleared the House 290 to 130 on Feb. 10.

As it stands now one of the most controversial provisions is the one dealing with public accommodations.

The House version states that all persons must be given access to specified establishments without regard to race, color, religion or national origin.

SMALL OWNERS
Named are hotels and motels—except for small owner-operated establishments with five rooms or less for rent—restaurants, amusement places, gasoline stations and establishments located within one of the preceding types or serving their patrons.

Bona fide private clubs would not be covered unless their facilities were open to the public for dining or overnight accommodation.

Any establishment would be opened to all persons even if it were required by state or local law to discriminate.

The bill now provides for enforcement through filing of an enforcement suit by the aggrieved person or the attorney general.

Under the Dirksen amendment package, this would be changed so that the attorney general could file only if a pattern of discrimination existed. Otherwise, the individual would have to sue.

Under the House bill, the attorney general, before bringing a suit, would have to refer a complaint to a state or local agency for corrective action if one existed.

TIME PERIOD
Dirksen proposes to write in a definite time period for the state to act before any federal action could be taken. He points out that 34 states now have public accommodation laws, many containing criminal penalties. There are no such penalties in the proposed federal statute.

The House bill provides that if a person violated an injunction obtained under this title and were tried for criminal contempt, he would have to be given a jury trial if the penalty were more than 45 days in jail or a $300 fine.

The Southerners argue that this is insufficient; they demand the right to a jury trial whatever the penalty.

Dirksen and Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana are sponsoring an amendment which would guarantee jury trials if the penalty exceeded 30 days or a $300 fine. This would apply to all titles of the bill.

Texan Re-Elected
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—A Cleburne, Tex., woman begins her second year today as president of the Woman's Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist Convention Auxiliary. Mrs. Robert Fling was re-elected Tuesday.

Dr. Crawford To Deliver Baccalaureate
Dr. J. Howard Crawford, a leader in the Methodist Church and a member of the Board of Trustees of McMurry College, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon to the 1964 June graduates of McMurry College. The service will be held in Radford Auditorium May 31 at 8:00 p.m.

The commencement service will take place Monday, June 1, at 10:00 a.m. in Radford Auditorium.

A Texas civic and cultural leader and a distinguished Oklahoma educator will receive honorary degrees during the morning commencement. They are Mrs. Dallas Scarborough, whose influence has been felt in most of Abilene's civic organizations, and Dr. Dolphus Whitten Jr., administrative vice president and acting president of Oklahoma City University.

Dr. Crawford, superintendent of the Lubbock District of the Methodist Church since 1963, served as pastor of First Methodist Church in Plainview for eight years.

Cart Lifters Escape Penalty
WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP)—People who walk off with shopping carts at food centers narrowly escaped a proposed city ordinance to control these cart discards.

The City Council instructed Corporation Counsel Murray Conzelman to draft an ordinance aimed at fines for both grocery store owners and customers. It would require a $10 recovery fee.

Aldermen agreed that something should be done to discontinue the practice of leaving carts in the middle of streets and on private property.

Golly Gee, For Little Me?
Mrs. Judi Kall of Tucson got a big surprise on her way home on her fourth wedding anniversary. A greeting card buff, she sends husband Frank fancy cards for every imaginable holiday, while he often forgets important ones. Determined to do it right this time, he figured she'd get a thrill when she spotted this billboard. She did, but pointed out he had goofed again in spelling anniversary. The sign company made the correction. (AP WIREPHOTO)

NEWSPAPER ADS

ARE YOUR BEST BUY

4 BRIEF FACTS TO SHOW YOU WHY:

1 Did you read your newspaper last night? Eighty out of one hundred Americans did.

2 Your advertising message is guaranteed delivery. You know that 94 of every 100 homes was exposed to your message. (Can any other media give you such an opportunity?)

3 Your newspaper ad gives the reader a chance to evaluate your idea --- he can take time to evaluate the facts by re-reading, a consideration other medias cannot offer.

4 When your reader is convinced by your ad, likely as not he'll clip it out of the paper. He knows precisely what he wants when he comes into your store, so your selling job is made easier.

(And these are just a few of the sound reasons behind newspaper advertising. Call us today and we'll be glad to show you more... AM 4-4331.)

Cop Ousted For Campaign Action

MIDLAND (AP) — Patrolman James E. Fonville, who said during the Democratic primary he saw Billie Sol Estes hand an envelope containing $50,000 to U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., in 1960, has been fired from the Midland Police Department.

Fonville made the statement when he appeared on a statewide telecast with Gordon McLendon, Yarborough's unsuccessful opponent for the Democratic Senate nomination. Chief of Police Harold Wallace said in announcing Fonville's dismissal Tuesday that the patrolman "in direct violation of departmental regulations and without consultation of any of his superior officers, injected himself into a political campaign..."

Wallace also said Fonville "has persisted in keeping the issue alive by statements made to fellow officers and by statements and interviews granted to various news media while both in and out of uniform and while both on and off duty."

The police chief said that Fonville had failed to attend a briefing session for patrolmen Monday night and it was later found that at the time he was being interviewed by an out-of-the-city newspaper reporter.

When contacted Tuesday night, Fonville said "if this is an example of our law enforcement profession, then I don't want any part of it." He said he planned to visit with Estes today in Abilene.

He said he wrote the police chief a letter after he was given the choice of resigning or being fired.

In the letter, Fonville said he wrote, "I am not now nor have I ever been engaged in politics. My only motive was to add substantial evidence to the facts that a $50,000 cash donation was given to Yarborough at a barbecue given in his honor at the home of Billie Sol Estes. . . I will remain honest all my life if I have to sacrifice many jobs in doing so."

Found In American Embassies

A State Department security man holds one of the more than 40 microphones which the department said were found in the American Embassy in Moscow when walls of the building were torn into in April. Below it, on display today at the State Department in Washington, are other listening devices which were uncovered in other American embassies behind the iron curtain. (AP WIRE-PHOTO)

U. S. Digs Out Secret Mikes In Red Embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. security agents have dug more than 40 secret microphones out of the walls of the American Embassy building in Moscow during the past month and are searching for others which may still be hidden in the building. Officials are investigating to determine if any important secret information was obtained by the Soviets through the microphone network. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler has made a formal protest to the Soviet government over the listening devices. 11 YEARS AGO The story of the hidden microphones was disclosed by the State Department Tuesday. A statement by the department's security chief, G. Marvin Gentile, said indications are the devices were "placed in the building prior to its occupancy by the United States" 11 years ago. The building was assigned to the United States by the Soviet government for use as an embassy in 1952 and was occupied in the spring of 1953. Officials said that not counting the newly found network, since 1949 more than 130 listening devices of various types were discovered and removed from U.S. Embassy buildings in Moscow and other Eastern European capitals. They said any information losses which may have occurred through the microphone network were probably limited by "the measures taken for protection against such a possibility."

WARNINGS This apparently referred to the fact that all employees of embassies in Communist countries are warned frequently that their offices and residences may be bugged and are cautioned against discussing secret information where it might be picked up. The microphones were dug out of the eighth, ninth and 10th floors of the Moscow embassy. It is on these floors that Kohler and his principal aides have their offices. Kohler's is on the ninth floor. Officials said the Moscow embassy has been checked repeatedly for hidden microphones during the last 11 years. Recently it was decided to make a more exhaustive investigation, using demolition techniques—in other words, tearing up some of the walls. Official information did not make it clear why this decision was reached at this time.

Rotarians Give Biographies Three new members gave backgrounds of their lives in classification talks at Tuesday's Rotary meeting. Bob Grimes, district manager for Pinkie's, was born and reared in Colorado City, worked in oil fields for three years, and has been with his present firm since 1957 in different capacities, and in different cities, including Post and Lubbock. Lowell Jones, associate in the Coca-Cola bottling plant here, said he was a native Texan, but that his three children were born outside of Texas while he worked at different jobs in all parts of the country. He gave a brief history of the rise of his company, which started from a discovery made by a druggist in Atlanta in 1886. Dr. R. E. Koenig, who has been a practicing physician in Big Spring for the past two years, is a native Texan. He was graduated from Texas A&M, and Baylor University medical school, and has served in the U.S. Army.

Rocky Says GOP To Reject Barry

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said today he doesn't believe a majority of his party's voters will regard Sen. Barry Goldwater's political philosophy as "responsible Republicanism."

The New York governor, with the campaign field all to himself, stepped up his attacks on his lone opponent in California's presidential primary — a test he said could make or break their battle for the nomination. "This is it, in my opinion," he said of the June 2 election in a radio program Tuesday. Earlier he said that if Goldwater wins the race for California's 86 delegate votes it might put him over the 655 needed for the nomination at the Republican National Convention in July. But, he added, if Goldwater doesn't clinch it on the first ballot "then he won't get it at all." The Arizona senator expects to go into the San Francisco convention with more than 500 delegates. Rockefeller has 28, but is counting on all of New York's 92. Goldwater headed back to Washington Monday and doesn't plan to return until next Monday. Rockefeller has scheduled four days of campaigning this week and five more next week. Opening his final swing in Southern California, Rockefeller repeatedly singled out instances where he said Goldwater differed with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and other "responsible" party leaders. He said his upset victory in Oregon, where he ran ahead of Henry Cabot Lodge and Goldwater in a six-way contest, indicated the direction the voters want the GOP to take. "At stake is whether the Republican party shall remain a party of progress, moderation and responsibility, or whether it shall leave the mainstream of American political thought and action and represent the narrow doctrinaire views of a small minority," he said in a statewide television appearance from Los Angeles Tuesday night. In a speech prepared for California Baptist College in Riverside today, Rockefeller said that Goldwater is out of step with his party and the times.

Lady Bird Refuses U.S. Aid For Alabama Farm

BILLINGSLEY, Ala. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has consistently refused to accept federal aid on her Alabama farm, her overseer says. Wallace Canterbury said he tried to persuade Mrs. Johnson to put the farm in the soil bank when he became manager five years ago. "She could have realized as much as $5,000 yearly that way," he said, "but she decided against it because she would have had to displace the tenants and also because of her attitude toward accepting that much government aid." Canterbury said the property's gross income last year was $2,463.41, with expenses of $2,179.18—or a profit of only $284. Two Republican congressmen said recently they found conditions of unparalleled poverty on the Johnson land. They described the tenants as impoverished and their homes "tumble-down shacks." A White House spokesman countered by calling the $60 a year rental of the homes and tracts of land to tenants a humanitarian gesture by Mrs. Johnson. Canterbury said he had been

ALBERT GRANTHAM'S WARREN'S CHUBBY
Big Spring horse winner at Ruidoso Downs

Local Horses Win At Track

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N. M.—Big Spring, Tex., horses were off to an auspicious start on Friday's opening day program of Ruidoso Downs' 62-day summer racing season.

Altogether, three Big Spring stables scored to account for 25 per cent of the day's 12 races. First to visit the charmed enclosure was Albert Grantham's Warren's Chubby, $50.80 winner in 21.6 seconds for the 400 yards of the fifth race for Jockey Billy Powell.

Scoring back-to-back victories in the eighth and ninth races, in order, were Second Cabin, owned by D. White and G. Cox, as a $3.60 favorite, and Country Delivery, owned by Jerry Curtright, and another well-fancied rig at $8.

Both were trained by Jim Curry and ridden by Benny Roller, Second Cabin romping six furlongs in 1:16 1/5 and Country Delivery clicking in 1:30 flat for seven furlongs.

Hank Pope Hurls Herd To Victory

Big Spring did an abrupt "about - face" in District 2-AAAA baseball play here Tuesday and knocked off Abilene High, 3-0, behind the superb hurling of young Hank Pope.

Abilene had a chance to tie for first place in the standings prior to the game. The Steers can now knock another contender out of the race by bowing over San Angelo in San Angelo Saturday. That one winds up competition for the locals.

The victory was only the second in 2-AAAA competition this season, compared to 11 reversals, but it made up for a lot of frustrations the Longhorns have experienced.

Coach Blacky Blackburn of Abilene gambled by sending Charles Farr to the mound rather than his ace, Mike Murphy. Farr did a creditable job but Pope did a better one, yielding only two hits to the Eagles—one in the first and the other in the sixth.

Abilene had two runners stranded all afternoon, an indication that Pope wasn't in the mood to fool around.

Big Spring scored its first run in the third when Van Tom Whatley, one of the powers at bat all season for Big Spring, tripled with one away and raced home when the ball got away from the Abilene right fielder.

The Steers added insurance tallies in the sixth after Eddie Thomas hit a bunt single, Gary Gressett went in to run for him. Charles West followed with a sacrifice bunt that went for a hit when no one could get to the ball.

Twins Look Out For New Star

NEW YORK (AP) — He played fewer than 30 major league games. His conversation consists of a few English monosyllables, a smile and a nod of the head.

It is doubtful if he knows a single American League pitcher by name. It wouldn't matter if he did. He calls Vic Power, his roommate, "Big Powder."

For that matter, his own name is Pedro but he goes under the name of his brother Tony.

But there is hardly anyone in baseball who hasn't heard of young Oliva, the newest batting sensation of the Minnesota Twins, who has been flirring with the .400 mark all season.

"I knew he was a good hitter," said Sam Mele, the Twins' manager, "but I had no idea he had that much power. He hits all kinds of pitches and he hits to all fields. Although he's a left-handed hitter, he's already hit two homers to left field."

Howard Bain sacrificed and all runners were safe when the throw to third base was slow. Baxter Moore was walked to force in Gressett. Greg Pate followed with a one-baser that plated West before a double play got the Eagles out of the jackpot.

Abilene advanced only one runner as far as second base. That occurred in the second when Doug Smith walked and was sacrificed to second by Ronnie Trammell.

It was in that inning that an Abilene batter took a swing at a ball that bounced to the plate and was promptly lifted for a pinch hitter by an irate Blackburn.

Thomas lashed out two hits for Big Spring while Whatley had the game's only extra base hit.

Bulldogs Rap Odessa, 5-0

ODESSA — Midland traveled to Odessa Tuesday and handed the rival Broncos a 5-0 District 2-AAAA defeat, as both clubs evened their records at 3-5.

The 22-year-old rookie is a 6-foot-2, 180-pounder.

Oliva went 1-for-5 Tuesday night and his batting average dropped to .391 as the Twins beat the Yankees 7-1 in 13 innings.

"He's very popular with the guys," said Mele. "After leaving the ballpark, everybody wants to make sure he gets on the bus before taking off. They don't want to leave him behind."

"He's so wonderfully naive, you got to love him," said Power. "We're playing in Chicago. Tony comes to me and points to Floyd Robinson, the White Sox outfielder, whose name was on the back of his uniform."

"Say, Big," he said to me in Spanish, "is he the major leaguer to play in the majors?"

"Can you imagine that? He thought that was Jackie Robinson."

Badgers Oppose Blinn In Playoff

ABILENE — Amarillo College and Blinn of Brenham clash here today, with a playoff spot in the National Junior College Baseball tournament at stake.

Amarillo recently finished Western Conference play in first place and has an overall record of 20-4.

Two games are scheduled to-day. If a third is necessary, it will be unreeled Thursday. Blinn has a 16-4-2 record.

The winning team goes to Grand Junction, Colo., for the May 19-June 2 Nationals.

dropping his average to .267.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston pushed across four runs in a weird ninth inning to nip Los Angeles 4-3, Chicago ousted Cleveland 6-2, Detroit toppled Washington 5-2 and Minnesota went 13 innings before whipping the Yankees 7-2.

Siebert connected against John Wyatt leading off the 10th to win it for Dick Hall, Baltimore's third pitcher. Oriole starter Robin Roberts carried a 2-1 lead into the ninth but Manny Jimenez doubled and Charley Lau singled to tie it before Stu Miller came on and halted the rally.

Lee Scores Permian Win

MIDLAND — Midland Lee's Rebels scored two big runs in the last of the seventh inning Tuesday, thus enabling them to trip up Odessa Permian, 5-4, in a District 2-AAAA contest, and clinching at least a tie for the loop title by the Reds.

A win Saturday by Lee over cross-town rival Midland High would give the Reds the outright championship, while a Lee loss combined with a San Angelo win over Big Spring would make a playoff game necessary.

Dick McFarland was the loser and Alan Moravcik the winner. Lee is 10-3 in the district and Permian 8-5.

and after Tony Conigliaro doubled, Manager Bill Rigney brought in Barry Latman.

Latman walked Bob Tillman and then forced in a run by hitting Roman Mejias. In came Don Lee and pinch hitter Dalton Jones rocked his 3-2 pitch for a base-clearing double to win it.

Don Mossi doubled pinch hitter Johnny Romano to end a Cleveland rally in the ninth inning and preserve the White Sox victory. The Indians came up with two runs on only one hit in the ninth, knocking out Sox starter Gary Peters and reliever Hoyt Wilhelm before Mossi ended it.

Finley Could Sue Ex-KC Hand On Hit-Run Charge

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Charles Finley, who is busy suing Kansas City these days, ought to start his legal beagies working on an indictment against an ex-employee on hit-and-run charges.

Finley may not have had time to notice but his ballclub ran into an old friend in Baltimore Tuesday night and the collision was devastating — for the A's.

Norm Siebern, who used to do his stuff in Finley Gold and Green, saw his ex-mates for the first time and he gave them plenty to tell the old boss about.

The rangy first baseman stroked three hits, the last one a game-winning homer in the 18th inning, as the Orioles nipped the Athletics 3-2. His first-inning single drove in another run and he scored the Orioles' other marker on Boog Powell's double after walking in the eighth.

The three hits ran Siebern's average to .336, Jim Gentile, the man Finley got for Siebern, went 1-for-4 for Kansas City and after Tony Conigliaro doubled, Manager Bill Rigney brought in Barry Latman.

Latman walked Bob Tillman and then forced in a run by hitting Roman Mejias. In came Don Lee and pinch hitter Dalton Jones rocked his 3-2 pitch for a base-clearing double to win it.

Don Mossi doubled pinch hitter Johnny Romano to end a Cleveland rally in the ninth inning and preserve the White Sox victory. The Indians came up with two runs on only one hit in the ninth, knocking out Sox starter Gary Peters and reliever Hoyt Wilhelm before Mossi ended it.

Detroit stretched its winning streak to four straight as Dave Wickersham became the first Tiger pitcher to win five games. Norm Cash and Bill Bruton homered against Washington loser Buster Narum. Don Zimmer homered for the Senators.

Minnesota and New York struggled through 12 innings tied at 2-2 before the Twins broke it open in the 12th.

Broglgio Has Control Woes For Birds

By The Associated Press

The San Francisco Giants are wild about Jack Sanford today, but for being wild there's nothing in National League history that tops Ernie Broglgio's performance.

Sanford, purposely held out of Monday's game against New York so he could open the key series against league-leading Philadelphia, responded with a four-hit, 3-0 victory over the Phillies Tuesday night that moved the Giants into the top spot by one game.

But if the Giants were cheering Sanford, the Chicago Cubs probably had to muffle their laughter over the plight of Broglgio, who matched a league record by uncorking three wild pitches in one inning.

Second Annual Open Is Close At Hand

Biggest local golf tournament of the year, the Big Spring Open, is little more than two weeks away from its June 6-7 deadline as approximately 250 area golfers are carefully grooming their games in anticipation of taking home the top prizes.

The calibre of competition in this summer's classic will be the same as in the first Open a year ago, and can be summed up by one word—tough. But rewards to the winners will make it a most profitable trip for anyone coming in first.

Jack Montgomery, playing as an assistant pro out of Fort Worth's Ridgela Country Club, will be back to team up with Big Spring's Frank Powell as the tandem attempts to defend its title in the open division, which it won with a combined 128 a year ago. Montgomery's 63 in the tournament was a course record.

In the True Amateur division, Bill Condra of Abilene and Harold Rosson, from local circles, were not indicated yet if they will again team up and try to wrap up another championship. Their winning score of 121 a year ago is an indication of the type of competition that will be seen this year.

Last year's low pro, Ronald Adams of Lubbock, who fired a 68-68-136, has not indicated if he will play in this year's Open.

PAT WASHBURN'S The Roundtable

One of the top tandems in the upcoming Big Spring Open June 6-7 will be Big Spring's JACK COOK and Colorado City's BILL CRAIG. All indications point to the fact that as the tourney nears, Craig is gradually reaching peak shape.

Several weeks back he reached the semi-finals of the Sweetwater Open Invitational Golf tournament before being bested by BS's JIMMY PATTERSON, 5-3, and then Sunday he played again in Sweetwater and this time came away with all the marbles, taking the Sweetwater 29er's Golf tournament with a 72.

Cook claims that when Craig is playing at his best, he's one of the finest linksters in West Texas. Modern golfers still follow the basic principles of "golf" as laid down in 1754 by the organizers of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland.

BILL CRAIG

Prizes will go to the low 10 teams, with pros receiving cash and amateurs merchandise awards. The pros will get between $400-$500, depending on their places in the top 10, with the four top pros receiving extra cash awards of $100, $50, $30, and $20, respectively. All ties will be decided by draws.

Entries with Jerry Green at the pro shop will close at 6 p.m., June 4. Starting time and pairings will be posted the day before the tourney with all participants responsible for finding their own times. The course will be open to all entries approximately 10 days before the tourney for practice rounds. Qualifying is not necessary in this tournament.

Gil Jones is the tournament chairman while the directors are Obie Bristow, Lester Morton, and M. R. Koger.

Brownfield Wins Over Tiger Nine

SNYDER — Amalio Garcia pounced and batted the Brownfield Cubs to a 3-0 victory over the Snyder Tigers here Tuesday.

The game went two extra innings and was determined when Garcia tripled home two runs.

Brownfield and Colorado City are now deadlocked for first place in District 3-AAA standings and meet Saturday at Colorado City to determine the winner. J. N. Wall was the losing pitcher.

A Devotional For The Day

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven. (Matthew 5:16.)

PRAYER: Dear God, our heavenly Father, help us so to walk each day that others may see the radiance of the inner light of the Holy Spirit shining through us. By our lives lead others to accept Christ as their Savior, friend, Redeemer. In the name of the Lord, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Use Our Ex-Presidents

On his 80th birthday, last week, Harry S. Truman spoke briefly in the Senate. Although an excess of emotion prevented him making more than a few perfunctory remarks, the occasion was of no little historical significance. For this was the first time anyone had taken advantage of the Senate's new rule permitting former presidents to address it while it is in formal session.

The nature of this occasion was sentimental. There will be other times in the future when that will not be the case—when a former occupant of the White House will speak earnestly to the Senate, and thus to the nation, on matters of great moment. It will then be seen that the senators acted wisely last year in adopting the rule that permits this.

The United States has, generally speaking, made poor use of its former presidents during the remainder of their lifetimes. Once out of office, they have been more or less shunted aside. Their counsel has not been much sought. Whatever dignity and status they have enjoyed has been largely of their own making, and in some cases economic pressure has forced them to demeaning expedients.

A start has now been made at changing this. Making the Senate available as a sounding board for those who have served as chief executive is an important part of that change. The day is coming when the great potential of our former presidents as elder statesmen and counselors to the nation will be realized far more fully than it has been in the past.

cept the exercising of will and wisdom. It is to establish a credible guarantee of academic freedom. The faculties of this state's two major university systems now enjoy a strong measure of academic freedom, but security of tenure is weaker and spottier in the other state institutions. There have been enough incidents of interference and intimidation by legislators, politically appointed regents, and outside special-interest groups to reflect detrimentally on the status of all higher education in Texas.

An atmosphere of freedom of thought and expression is as important to building distinguished faculties as higher salaries. And Texas must earn the reputation for promoting and protecting such freedom, if its state colleges and universities are to become truly first class.

Higher Education

Soon now, the report of the governor's Committee for Education Beyond the High School will recommend what Texas should do to improve state colleges and universities.

The report undoubtedly will propose, as the Texas Commission on Higher Education already has, that the state spend a great deal more money toward achieving excellence. And to that end, a substantial part of any increased expenditure must go for attracting faculty talent, which is the prime prerequisite for excellence in education.

Whether the report stresses it or not, there is another essential—rivaling salaries in importance—for building up distinguished faculties in Texas' colleges and universities. And this added attraction will cost nothing except the exercising of will and wisdom.

It is to establish a credible guarantee of academic freedom.

Give The Customer A Break

WASHINGTON — The big profits which the automobile industry recently disclosed have attracted the covetous eyes of the labor unions. Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, is quoted by the United Press International as having said in a press interview in New York a few days ago that the UAW would, in its new contracts, try to "relieve" General Motors of some of its multimillion-dollar profits.

NOW COMES another news dispatch from Washington quoting a high government source as saying that the Johnson administration doesn't expect the forthcoming negotiations between the unions and the companies "to force an increase in car prices." So it's apparent that the unions will try to get as much as they can out of the companies' profits. But there is no indication as to what the consumer may get, except possibly the assurance that the prices of cars will not be raised. This will be called wage-price "stability."

ODDLY ENOUGH, a dissenting view has been expressed by a man who not only has often been mentioned for the Republican presidential nomination but who, prior to election to his present post as governor of Michigan, headed up a big automobile company. He especially recommends that in periods of prosperity the public should get the benefit of high profits by being given a reduction in car prices.

What Governor George Romney said on May 7 was not widely printed. He talked informally at the "party-to-people forum" in Chicago sponsored by the Republican National Committee, and such talks, though delivered at open meetings, are sometimes not given much attention in the press because they are made at a political forum. What Governor Romney said is, however, a new approach to the wage-price problem of the day and certainly is significant beyond the realm of party politics. Extracts from Mr. Romney's talk follow:

"AS A MATTER of fact, I think on the basis of current economic policies that it's just a question of time in this country before we'll face a real economic crisis, and I think this is because we have been ignoring certain defects in national economic policy that are sooner or later going to catch up on us. "Now the facts are that under the current laws we have in this country, permitting the concentration of economic power, unions and employers have largely been picking up the results of progress, and the customers have not been sharing in the progress.

"THE THING that has made our economic development broad, and has stimulated it, has been bringing more and more customers into the market. The reason automation—which is not a new thing, except that we are using different techniques, but as a principle it is not new—the reason automation is not producing more jobs, and enough jobs, is because customers are not being made the principal beneficiaries of our economic progress. Now that is number one.

"And this is important because we have a conflict in our national economic policy, and this conflict in our national economic policy is as fatal to economic growth in this country as the conflict between slavery and freedom was in the social field a hundred years ago."

GOVERNOR ROMNEY added that concentrations of power among organizations of employers and unions are being promoted in this country and are producing "repeated national emergencies." He declared that the automobile industry must share its progress with the public, even as the employees themselves must share. He made reference to a profit-sharing plan that he had put into effect when he was president of American Motors. He continued:

"As far as I was concerned, I undertook to embody that in what I called a progress-sharing contract that we negotiated with the UAW in 1961; and this contract starts on the premise that if labor and management and capital are to prosper, then the customer must be the first to participate in progress."

Billy Graham

Do I have to confess to relatives and friends to make restitution because I talked against them? R. Y. Yes! And the sooner the better. We have drifted away from the Spiritual doctrine of "restitution." This I believe, is one of the reasons for the lack of spiritual power among Christians today.

The sins of the "tongue" are clearly denounced in the Scriptures, and unconfessed sin can short-circuit our spiritual power and influence.

In the Sermon on the Mount Jesus said: "If thou bring thy gift to the altar and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar . . . first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift."

But "gossip" doesn't hurt others as much as it does you. It is like a lashed whip that curls back to cut the one who wields it. The only way to release from feelings of guilt is through confession—confession to the one you have wronged, and confession to God.

New Business Peaks May Come In June

NEW YORK (AP)—First reports on the economy in May show the April advance is being maintained. June might well set new peaks before the start of the anticipated summer slowdown.

And by then people will be thinking less about the business cycle and more about politics, anyway. THE UPWARD pace isn't as fast as in the final weeks in 1963, but the news reports are peppered with advances in particular industries and with even more glowing predictions.

Steel production continues to confound its own industry expects. Output is still on that uphill course that helped pull April's all-inclusive industrial production index to a new high. The steel mills are pouring out tonnage at the highest rate since last June.

The current outlook is that this month's total production will fall short of last May's 11.5 million tons. Still, orders for June are coming in better than expected earlier and the industry now expects to end the first half of 1964 with total output well ahead of its New Year's predictions.

AUTO MAKERS are pushing production. And new car buyers are keeping sales high. Detroit, too, is planning for a summer slowdown as it changes over for new models, a more extensive revision this year than last. And it is gearing for labor contract bargaining.

Retailers in general report sales holding high. Some chains note marked advances in recent weeks, even if over-all retail figures haven't jumped as quickly as some advocates of the federal income tax cut had predicted.

The increase in consumer credit totals shows the public still in a buying and borrowing mood. And the stepped-up clearing of old debts is considered putting more families in position to start buying soon in greater volume.

THE COMMERCE Department has just revised downward its earlier estimate of the Gross National Product in the first three months of the year. But the optimists even here can point to the causes of the revision as having good points.

The reason for the revision, the department says, is that business inventories didn't climb as fast as first thought, and government spending did not reach the pace earlier indicated. But keeping stocks trim quiet fears of excesses leading to a slump. And government spending is expected to climb later.

Perplexities Of Fifth Grade

NEW YORK (AP)—There is nothing like a disaster to bring a family close together.

That is the only nice thing I can say about the fifth grade of grammar school.

There are only three of us in our family—me, my wife Frances and our daughter, Tracy Ann.

AS I SEE it, this is hardly enough. To get through the fifth grade successfully, you need a larger family. I would think a family of about 12 would be right—of whom one would be in the fifth grade. And the other 11 would spend most of their time helping him get through that ordeal.

Naturally, such a family would include a professional mathematician, a doctor, a lawyer, a judge, an engineer, a lexicologist, an anthropologist, a carpenter, a botanist, an Eagle Scout, a musician, a physical culturist and an all-around intellectual.

AS I REMEMBER education in my own youth, it crept upon one gradually. It was a gathering residue. You learned by degrees.

This is not true, any more. Now educator's bobbytrap the child. And the parents too. They cozy them through kindergarten and the first four grades. Kids skip joyously through this prelude to knowledge hand in hand. It is such fun. Then in the fifth grade they suddenly lower the boom. All at once the child is in Harvard Graduate School. And not just the child. The whole family.

LIFE BECOMES a terrible quiz game.

"Daddy, we are studying the multiplication of fractions. Can you help me?"

Well, have you ever tried to multiply a fraction after the age of 40? It simply can't be done.

"Daddy, give me an example of collective noun."

Well, if you mention the finance company or the loan department of the bank, it turns out that isn't what the teacher meant.

"Daddy, I have to write a science essay on Pleistocene glaciation. How shall I begin?"

"Begin" when a fellow gets a clear field on a fascinating topic like that, how can he ever bear to quit?

HOME IS NO longer home to me. Home is where my wife and I try to help our daughter do her homework.

So far the teacher is giving our family pretty fair grades. We no longer worry about getting our daughter into a good college. Our ambition is to get her through the fifth grade. Learning is for the young. We can't take it anymore.

isn't so. Some people have had the operation and have never had any further trouble. They were luckier—and probably had better veins to start with.

Itching is one of several consequences of varicose veins. It is a result of the impaired circulation. But an even more serious result is the formation of ulcers which—for the same reason—refuse to heal until the faulty veins have been removed.

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like your advice about my four-month-old granddaughter. Her father is so rough when playing with her. He tosses her up in the air and catches her, shakes her, holds her above his head with one hand, picks her up by an arm or a leg. Sometimes she smiles but usually it scares her.

Can this hurt her heart or make her mentally retarded? She seems very bright now—MRS. L. P. I wouldn't worry about her heart, nor about retardation unless this father—who sounds a bit mentally retarded to me—drops her and she suffers a brain injury.

I don't think that babies have to be kept nested in cotton wool, but I'm definitely against tak-

Around The Rim

Memories Of Music

Do certain tunes recall events or things to your mind?

Perhaps this is a normal condition of association, but I find that music does not have to be thematic in order for it to call up certain memories.

FOR INSTANCE, there is a tune, "One, Two, Three, Four," if my memory is correct, which we played religiously on the Edison, which was our pride and joy. This was about the time that President Woodrow Wilson, broken in health and frustrated in his great ambition to lay the groundwork for a lasting world peace, died. For years after whenever I heard this piece, I thought of Mr. Wilson, and I guess if I heard this forgotten melody now a sense of sadness that I felt as a boy would again come over me.

Another bit of music from this same wonderful reproducer of melodies was "Souvenir," played on the violin by Albert Spaulding, as I recall. This is a lovely composition which might be regarded among the semi-classics, and thus quite apart from the rustic mountaineer by the name of Floyd Collins.

BUT AT THE TIME we soaked up the thrills of culture a la Edison, Floyd Collins crawled into a Kentucky cave and got hopelessly trapped. As he lingered tragically in his dank and lonely hole, he also lingered as the dominant figure on the front pages of the land. When it was all over, a dozen ballads sprang up about "Floyd Collins, the man you knew so well," but it is not the folksy ballad but the strains of "Souvenir," which calls Floyd Collins to my mind.

SIMILARLY, I can remember when my nephew, Jimmy Harris, was a baby when someone plays that musical excerpt, "Tiptoe Thru the Tulips," although I guess I should have remembered him from the innumerable times that my sister sang "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?" It was simply a case of the portable Victrola at that time playing several hit records of the day, the tulip being one.

I never heard the oaty tune of "Horses" played without recalling the delights of the inner sanctum of the old Lyric Theatre when the scene shifted to the race track. It made no difference whether it was someone flipping the roll on the master piano player or whether it was Jimmy Willson at the organ console, "Horses" was a trademark of the Lyric.

IT WAS THERE, too, that a couple of other tunes were lodged in my mind, inseparable from screen idols of the day. One of them was "Hearts and Flowers," and this meant that William S. Hart, broken-hearted but pure, was moving on the scene with his wrist gauntlets, campaign hat and imperturbable stare. I always remember Milton Sills, the matinee idol of that day, when I hear strains of "Somebody Loves You."

YOU'D THINK the Swiss Bell Ringers or the Yodelers, or maybe the geniuses who made weird sounds by rubbing the edge of fine glasses would remind me of Redpath's Chateaufort. But no, it is George M. Cohen's "Mary, Mary." One evening when a company was putting on "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway," as I remember, a piece of scenery fell down and almost did poor Mary in. I never forgot her or her song.

Letting The Doctor Wait

WASHINGTON—I am, he said smugly, fortunate enough to be endowed with a constitution that has caused full-grown Percherons to paw the ground in envy.

There is no sound rationale in this circumstance. I use coffin nails intermittently to excess, once in a while I take recourse to strong waters, and I exercise only when there is no other way to reach high ground.

OH, I AM not kidding myself. Someday my liver will begin to bang and my sorrowing next-of-kin will have to summon the nearest mail-order physician to vet whatever rheum has seized hold of me. And you know what I am going to do?

I'm going to make him wait. I'll make him wait, oh, maybe an hour and a half, sitting uncomfortably on the horsehair sofa in the parlor, and the only reading matter at hand will be a 16-year-old copy of National Geographic and a tract on Rosticismism.

IN THE FULLNESS of time I'll admit him to my bedroom, where—upon something like the following dialogue will take place—

"See here, Mr. Barnes, I'm a frightfully busy man with dozens of errands of mercy programed this morning."

"See here, your stethoscope," I'll reply, "if I could reclaim all the time I and my flock have wasted waiting for you guys, I could probably fend off the extortionists in the black suits for another half-century. All my born days I've faithfully made appointments with doctors, dentists, vets, faith healers and phrenologists, and I've been stood up more times than a buck-tooth girl with acne. I call that starched young woman in your office and say one of my tads is a bit croupy and may I bring him in for a laying on of hands? Doctor can see him at ten-thirty tomorrow morning," she says.

"I'M THERE at the appointed hour, even though I damn well know the doctor hasn't any intention of seeing my ailing small fry until 11:45."

"But Mr. Barnes," Doctor will bluster, "Emergencies do arise."

"Emergencies your blood-pressure cuff," I'll reply bitterly. "Suppose there is a genuine emergency. Can't you tell your antiseptic young woman to stick her head out and say, 'Doctor is doing an emergency moneystomy, and you cats will have to wait an hour.' No, you just let me sit there reading the Pictorial Review and sticking to the inferior synthetic leather furniture you chaps equip your waiting rooms with."

I GOT A WHOLE file of atrocity stories on doctors who can't tell time, but my favorite has to do with a cavalier whom we'll call Dr. Meachley. My next-of-kin had been seeing this saintly man for a number of expensive months, and had one more scheduled visit when we were transferred to a city 250 miles distant. Easy, we said. You make the appointment, pop on a plane, see this doctor, hop another plane and you're home in time to peel the spuds as usual.

So it was arranged, and anybody who has ever had a hangnail treated knows what happened. After carefully explaining the circumstances to the nurse when she made the appointment by long distance—she sat in his office for an hour and 58 minutes waiting for him.

YOU KNOW, of course, what these guys will do if you stand them up, don't you? They'll send you a bill anyway, just to show there are no hard feelings.

The Livable World Propaganda

WASHINGTON — Toward the end of 1963, the directors of the Council for A Livable World, a Ban the Bomb outfit, began preparing a document entitled, "Break of Program Action," in which there occurred the interesting phrase "old myths rather than current realities."

On April 25, 1964, Senator Fulbright gave his memorable foreign policy speech in which there occurred exactly the same phrase—"old myths rather than current realities," and there is internal evidence that the Action report predates the Fulbright address. The full quotations are:

COUNCIL FOR A Livable World: "In too many cases we are handicapped by policies based on old myths rather than current realities."

WELL, FUNNY coincidences do occur. I would think nothing of this one except that the Livable World seems to go in for supplying Senators with speeches and ideas that promote disarmament. As reported here in a column series beginning May 12th, the Livable World prepared and offered a flesh-creeping speech to Senator Quentin Burdick (D., N. D.) and later to Senator Edmund Muskie (D., Maine) for delivery in Syracuse on May 8th.

The address, as I learned after considerable sleuthing, was written by an employee of the State Department's Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, Dr. Leonard S. Rodberg, in his spare time, as he assures me.

I HAVE NOT established that the Fulbright speech was ghosted or inspired. I do not know the exact date of the Livable World's Action Report, except that Col. Ashton Crosby, the Council's Executive Director, tells me the inception was "about six months ago," and this is borne out by some internal evidence. I have asked Senator Fulbright whether the funny coincidence of an exact repetition of phrase was collaboration or circumstance. "It is circumstance," the Senator replied firmly.

THERE IS no doubt, however, that disarmament propaganda and campaign contributions have formed a liaison here. The Livable World had provided, by its own accounting, $14,431.54 to the re-election chest of Burdick and $372.30 to that of Muskie. Back in 1962 the Livable World, while operating under the name of Council For Abolishing War, gave $2500 to the Fulbright campaign fund of that year.

IN A TRANSGRESSION of conservatism, I previously understated a disarmament vote in the Senate. I gave the proposed slash in Defense procurement of weapons and research as $17 million and neglected to include Senator Fulbright as a slash-supporter. Actually, the key figure was $82 million, at least five Senators, who accepted Livable World campaign money, voted for the cut. In addition to Fulbright ($2500), there were McGovern ($22,000), Burdick ($14,000), McGee ($8000), Clark (unknown).

Like A Copter

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—In the hope of providing something like "instant airports" for future jets which will need no runways, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base engineers are experimenting with such soil hardeners as plastics, varnishes and cements.

If some workable material is found, they say, it could be dropped or sprayed from the vertical-take off-and-landing (VTOL) jet. The craft then could land or take off without kicking up engine-damage dust and dirt which might also obscure pilot vision or alert an enemy.

Curtain Falling On Jagan's Reign

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—The curtain has begun to fall on the turbulent political reign of British Guiana's Cheddi Jagan amid a crescendo of racial violence.

The U.S.-trained dentist turned Marxist prime minister apparently is determined to etch in blood the closing chapter of his incumbency.

Even with weakened intra-party authority and a shrunken national following, the trimly handsome, troubled Jagan still is in a position of power to diminish the causes for the strife that has taken at least 13 lives since mid-January.

Instead, the premier's every last effort has been dedicated to surviving British Colonial Office strategy through which the mother country hopes to divest itself finally of one of its least desirable political appendages.

MACHINERY

This calls for neutralization of Jagan and the Communist-oriented machinery that has been calling the parliamentary shots here for 11 years. The British hope to create reasonably stable conditions permitting a graceful exit from this enchanting but troubled spot on South America's north coast.

There's a broad chasm of turbulent problems to bridge, however, before that comes about—if at all. What makes the situation here unique and potentially more explosive is that, unlike the usual pattern of Latin American disorders, British Guiana's ills are basically racial rather than political or ideological.

NARROWER

Because of this, the area for compromise is thought to be much narrower for negotiating quick or lasting solutions. This has given many of the colony's leading citizens a deep sense of foreboding.

Just under half of British Guiana's estimated 1961 population of 590,140 is of East Indian extraction. Negroes make up 32 per cent and the rest is a mixture of European, Asian and American Indians.

Once allies, the country's two leading political figures are on

No-Milk Diet Fears Voiced

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Dairy Association fears a recent dietary recommendation by the food and nutrition board of the National Research Council may adversely affect consumption of milk and dairy products.

The board recommended that Americans reduce their daily caloric intake about 10 per cent. For example, it said a typical 25-year-old man weighing 154 pounds should limit his intake to 2,900 calories a day. This compared with the board's previous recommendation of a 3,200-calorie intake.

Corresponding reductions were urged for all adult age and weight groups.

"How people might interpret the new calorie recommendations is indicated in the rush toward new diets in the mass media," the association reported.

"The early rash of diets shows a tendency to eliminate milk or to suggest such low levels as 4-ounce glasses of skim milk."

School Evaluation Shows Need For Bond Support

To the Editor:

Evaluation is an integral part of our everyday activities.

The merchant periodically inventories his stock to see whether he has realized a profit or a loss on his transactions in order to evaluate the merits of his present merchandising practices.

The golfer carefully tabulates the strokes needed to play 18 holes of golf, then checks the results against the listed par or perhaps his total of last Saturday, and on this basis he appraises the quality of his game.

The surgeon examines his patient for post-operative developments so that he may better assess the success of the operation he performed and, hence, the well-being of his patient. The financier regularly reviews his portfolio of stocks and bonds, checks their values and earnings, and thus draws conclusions on the soundness of his present investment program. Contract bridge teams may keep a cumulative score so that each team can ascertain the success or its style play.

For the merchant it is a successful merchandising policy; for the golfer it is an improved skill; for the surgeon it is a more healthy patient; for the financier it is a productive portfolio of stocks and bonds; for the contract bridge team it is the most efficient style of play.

In order to evaluate the effectiveness of anything, it is necessary to gather information. On the basis of this information a value judgment is made.

After weighing the information with respect to a known goal, the individuals judge the current situation to be successful, with little or no changes necessary; or unsuccessful, with recommended changes to be made in the hope of improvement in the future.

A direct parallel can be found in education. Goals are established on the basis of pupils' needs.

When you check into the Master Plan you will notice how important it is for the bond issue to be accepted.

Lincoln, LBJ Had Poor Schools

To the Editor:

I am not what one would say, ignorant, but there are a lot of things I want to ask and have cleared up regarding the necessity of trying to pass this outlandish five and a half million dollar bond.

In case there are those who don't know how the money will be raised to retire the bond with interest, it will be to raise the school taxes. The only ones benefitting will be the ones who are able to buy the bonds and get the interest.

The school buildings are adequate, the teachers and the ones in charge of the system, are the ones that are lacking.

Every taxpayer has to pay school tax. The city does not take taxes from property owners in the county.

The school taxes are higher than the city taxes and yet the city is run on taxes and odd to say the School Board can't operate the schools. There's something radically wrong somewhere that needs investigating.

Six years ago the schools were run on a reasonable budget, now that budget is $400,000 more. Six years ago $4,000 was asked for traveling expenses and after a lengthy debate it was granted. Now there is $20,000 traveling expenses, for what? Is everybody going to the World's Fair or sojourn in Europe? The kids wash cars, sell cakes and everything to get their expenses. Why any traveling expense money? Why don't they, the hired personnel, stay in town where their salaries are paid and teach?

Another thing, people who do not own real estate or a home have no business being allowed to vote on issues that concern only property owners who will have to pay, even if they have a poll tax receipt.

A diamond ring with a stone the size of a sparrow's eye or a French poodle is ridiculous to declare as personal property worth a hundred dollars, to qualify to vote with a poll tax receipt, as I heard over the radio this morning.

Urging six months residents who do not even expect to be permanent residents, transients, to vote. They can leave any time. They will not be required to pay any school taxes.

It is unjust. There are many families here that are retired and on pensions, who have homes large and small, life savings involved, who are trying to live up to requirements of good citizens, but their funds are limited and they absolutely and definitely cannot pay taxes that are all out of reason.

A little concern, respect and consideration is due for older citizens who have made Big Spring what it is today. They should have some voice in all matters concerning both the school and the city.

A bond of that amount is out of all reason and should not be passed under any consideration.

Many free lunches are being passed out, I am told, so the children are not being treated too badly, are they? I am told also that workers in the school cafeteria work twenty-two days some times and get paid for nineteen days only. I am wondering about that.

Lincoln got his education where he could, on the water front, in the streets and alleys and beside the bayous — no buildings like our school. He was President of the United States. How many of our graduates could write a speech like the Gettysburg Speech?

President Johnson never went to fabulous schools, or had the conveniences the children have now. He even went around shining shoes to help pay his way and he is the President now.

Where there's a will there's a way. A pupil who wants to learn can, in a n environment, it's not the building or pleasure excursions that count, it's the instructors and aptitude of the pupil.

More Segregation Landmarks Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten years after its historic decision against racial segregation in public schools, the Supreme Court is due to follow up with more landmark rulings in the difficult civil rights field.

Any Monday before term-closing day in June, the high tribunal may decide the fate of several thousand Negroes and whites arrested for sit-in demonstrations at Southern lunch counters and other private business places.

The troublesome issue that confronts the nine justices is validity, under the Constitution, of the use of state criminal trespass laws to enforce private discrimination.

CLOSED IN 1959

Equally difficult is a pending case from Prince Edward County in Virginia, where schools were closed in 1959 to avoid court-ordered admission of Negroes to classes.

The justices have been asked to order the county to levy taxes for desegregated schools, and to declare unconstitutional the closing of county schools while public schools elsewhere in Virginia remain open.

The Prince Edward case was one of the original school segregation cases decided by the Supreme Court on May 17, 1954, and some court observers have predicted that the case may be acted on finally next Monday—10 years and a day after the first momentous ruling.

Chief Justice Earl Warren a decade ago pronounced the fateful words that "separate educational facilities are inherently unequal." He declared for a unanimous court that Negroes cannot legally be barred from public schools because of race.

COMPLIANCE

Numerous lawsuits followed in lower federal courts as Negro parents and Negro organizations pressed for compliance with the decree. The Supreme Court mostly let the lower courts struggle with the cases until recently. Then it heard arguments in the Prince Edward case and in another appeal involving Atlanta. The latter case, also up for decision in May or June, questions the validity of Atlanta's gradual desegregation plan that started from the top down, beginning with the 11th and 12th grades.

While school cases worked their way through the lower courts, the high tribunal in the last decade took on and decided numerous disputes in the civil rights field that appeared to be sparked by the 1954 segregation ruling. Time and again final decisions in that field hinged on a basic holding that any activity having a government connection must be open to Negroes and whites without discrimination.

AT MEMPHIS

For instance, just a year ago the court called for immediate desegregation of parks, playgrounds and other city recreational facilities in Memphis. The city had pleaded in vain for use of a program of gradual desegregation. Earlier, Atlanta was

New Mexico Man Engineer Speaker

The Permian Basin chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers will be addressed at its 7:30 p.m. Thursday meeting in Midland by L. O. Storm, secretary of the New Mexico board of registration for professional engineers and land surveyors. A registered engineer in Texas and New Mexico, he has been a member of the examining board in New Mexico since 1957. In his address, he will discuss the evolution of that state's examinations.

Fly Flags

told to allow Negroes to use its public golf course and Baltimore was directed to allow both races to use public parks and pools.

In a case from Wilmington, Del., the court ordered Negroes admitted to a privately-operated restaurant in a state-owned building devoted largely to car parking. Authority of Colorado's antidiscrimination commission to order job-tests for a Negro pilot was upheld and Richmond, Va., was told it could not require Negroes to sit in a special section in its traffic court.

A major victory for campaigners against racial discrimination was a Warren opinion of last May. He declared then that state laws, city ordinances and statements by their officials are totally ineffective to bar Negroes from peaceful sit-in demonstrations in public business places.

NO SUCH LAWS

The sit-in cases now pending before the court for decision raise the question of what to do about arrests in instances where there are no such laws or statements by public officials.

Another major victory in the efforts to crack segregation barriers was Supreme Court reversal of breach of the peace convictions of 187 Negro students who demonstrated outside the South Carolina State House in Columbia. The court said the "convictions infringed the Negroes' constitutional rights of free speech, free assembly and freedom to petition for redress of grievances."

Some observers saw the Columbia decision as opening the flood gates for numerous street demonstrations in various states in recent months.

Apparently out of patience over arrests of Negroes under local laws affecting transportation, the high court had this to say:

"We have settled beyond question that no state may require racial segregation of interstate or intrastate transportation facilities. The question is no longer open; it is foreclosed as a litigable issue."

DEAR ABBY

Preferred A Live Bunny

DEAR ABBY: Could you please tell me if I did wrong? My son had a serious back operation last March. When he started to feel a little better, I brought a large stuffed rabbit (about 22 inches tall) to the hospital thinking it would cheer him up as it was during the Easter season. The rabbit did not look childish in my opinion. My son is 44 years old. He was embarrassed and insisted I take the rabbit home. Do you think this was a babyish gift or not?

Johnson Greets African King

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mwambutsa IV, King of Burundi, visited President Johnson Tuesday. The two exchanged gifts during their 30-minute meeting. What was originally planned as a private trip to Washington became semi-official when the monarch of the small country in the heart of Central Africa was received with military honors at the airport.

Electrocuted

JACKSONVILLE (AP)—Kenneth Larson was electrocuted this week when a television antenna he was erecting at his farm home near here touched a 7,200-volt power line. His wife, who was assisting him was injured.

what's a telephone supposed to look like?

How it looks depends upon the way it serves you. It might look like this new Panel phone that's built into the wall. Or perhaps your needs call for:

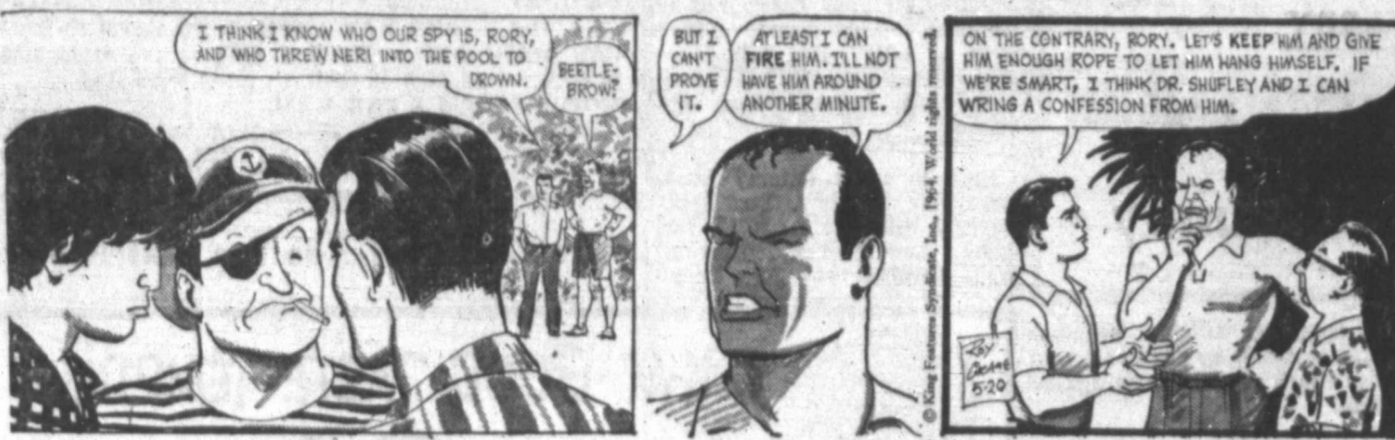

The dainty Princess® with light-up dial... or a phone that hangs on the wall... a key set phone... the excitement of decorator color... perhaps a phone with speakers and amplifiers that let a group take part in a conversation.

New telephone designs give you an ever wider choice of styles for convenience, efficiency and beauty. They're another way of improving service to increase the personal value of your phone.

ONE OF THE SAFEST SMALL PLEASURE BOATS
Montgomery Ward's 15-foot Sea King of Lapstrake molded fiberglass

Montgomery Ward Features Sea King Boats, Motors

When the West Texas winds cease, and some rains come, folks making plans to boating for pleasure and fishing are going to line the highways to lakes in the area and go skimming over the water.

Montgomery Ward's Sea Kings, in all sizes, are popular with boating enthusiasts. They have the small sizes in stock, along with trailers and the popular Sea King motors from 5/2 to 90 horsepower. All needed accessories are carried at the store. Larger sizes, such as cruisers, may be ordered and received in a short time.

Wards has one 1963 model, 16-foot turquoise and blue fiberglass boat, with windshield and accessories, at low price now.

One of the most popular models is the 15-foot, molded lapstrake fiberglass hull, and fiber glass deck boats. It has flat glassed floors, 20-inch plexiglass wrap around windshield, factory-installed steering, remote controls, wired bow and stern lights, and flotation seats for safety. It is of deluxe quality and fitted with standard accessories. This boat is in stock.

The fishing rig, which is ideal for the fisherman who takes the kids along, is also a popular model in the 14-foot, long, extra wide hull type. It has flotation seats, and comes in blue and white colors.

Sea King boat trailers are built in six sizes to haul boats weighing from 350 pounds to one ton. The small trailer has a "T" frame with non-demountable wheels, adjustable bow stop and winch stand, bow fork, double bun rollers, and coil springs.

The fishing boat trailer, for loads up to 650 pounds, has, in addition to the above features, three keel rollers, "A" frame, and carpeted rear bunk supports.

Other sizes are the 900-pound load-rated Sea King, with three-position axle, till-bed frame, and the above features; 1,200-pound capacity trailer has a 1,000-pound winch, leaf spring suspension, and Riverside tubeless tires; 1,600-pound trailer, for boats up to 18 feet, has four keel rollers, three loading rollers, carpeted front and rear bunks, a 1,200-pound winch, and is available with electric brakes; 2,000-pound trailer, for boats up to 19 feet, has double axles and wheels, two anti-sway bars, heavy duty shocks, a 1,400-pound capacity winch, and is also available with electric brakes.

Sea King motors pace the industry. The 3 1/2-horsepower motor is one-cylinder. The 50-horsepower is a four cylinder and those with horsepower in between have two cylinders. The 90-horsepower motor requires less than four square feet of cockpit space, tilts 50 degrees for trailing, and drives boats up to 42 miles per hour.

Wards also carries life jacket and all kinds of accessories. There are winches for trailers and docks, fishing equipment, and camping equipment.

Flat covers, universal covers fitting boats up to 18 feet long, and Sea King custom-fitted tops, are available through the catalog department; in about two days, from Fort Worth.

Wards service contract program.

Montgomery Ward is a department store with merchandise available from the Fort Worth warehouse on short notice to supplement that in stock.

Yamaha Cycles Are Economical

The 1964 Yamaha motorcycles, built in Japan for performance, longest mileage, and ease of riding, are on display at Bedell Bros. on Birdwell Lane, south of the Snyder Highway.

These motorcycles, which come in sizes to suit the needs of the rider, are built with some of the best types of bearings for the hardest use. This insures a smooth-running engine to power the rider over all kinds of roads and at the best speeds.

Experience Counts With Tires

Charles Creighton, operating Creighton Tire Co., 601 Gregg, has had more than 30 years of experience in serving this area with Seiberling tires. He knows what stands up on all kinds of vehicles on all kinds of roads, trails, and in fields. Seiberlings stay balanced, and the Sealed-Aire tires stand up.

No Cooking, No Dressing, No Shaving For Eating

Whether you want a Texas-sized hamburger, a Ranchburger, or just a plain sandwich and the things that go with them, three Wagon Wheel Drive-Ins are ready to serve you with Texas Style hospitality.

There are many reasons why people like to eat at the Wagon Wheels. They like the food and service, and like to enjoy eating without the necessity of preparing it and then dressing to eat, or dressing to go into a restaurant.

The Wagon Wheels shine in another field, too. They prepare lunches for those who work. A working man can call in his order and it will be ready to go when he arrives. Midnight lunches for those who work at night are becoming popular.

Take the family by No. 1 at Fourth and Birdwell; No. 2 at 2011 Gregg; or No. 3 on West Highway 80, dressed as you are. The kind of clothes you wear makes no difference. You don't even have to shave to be served at the Wagon Wheel Drive-Ins.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

With More Kids, You Just Gotta Buy More Breeches

To the Editor:
 A feller said to me, "Obie, what do you think about the school bond election?"
 Well, now, I said, "You know, an old beat up coach like me don't know too much about plans or finance, but I do know a little about kids. First you gotta decide, do you need some more room. Now, I got two boys and when the second boy was born — now anyone knows, no two boys can't get along with one pair of breeches. So, we had to buy some more breeches. You can't stand around and argue over the color or the kind to buy forever and just let the kid run naked. Well — here in Big Spring we just got more kids and we got to do something about it."
 Now the next question is — can we pay for it? The valuation here now is many times what it was, so that part looks all right.
 To me it is this simple: Do we need it? YES!
 Can we pay for it? YES!
 As I write this note I just heard a kid fly over in a jet from Webb. As you read this, listen and you may hear one. Some of these boys get killed. Some boys I coached left school and were killed in the war.
 These kids have and are making this country better, the hard way.
 You and I can help our country:
 1. By leaving a good name.
 2. By teaching our children God's way.
 3. By giving them a chance for the best education in the world.
 With these things in mind it is no sweat to let the engineers, the school board and their advisors figure out the color of the breeches, so to speak, or the best plans for the school. They might not be perfect but you or me ain't either, and they will do their best.
 As for me, I am going to do what I can and that is to vote to give the kids the room they need. It's YES on the bond issue.

OBIE BRISTOW

Finds Program Fiscally Sound

To the Editor:
 Last evening I made my final scheduled public appearance to urge votes in favor of the proposed $5.3 million issue of bonds to build schools in Big Spring.
 Next Saturday is Election Day. Residents of the Big Spring Independent School District who paid 1963 poll taxes and have either real or personal property rendered for taxation in the school district will be going to the polls. A majority in favor of the bonds is expected. Until the polls close Saturday night I shall be working to get people to cast their votes.
 Why am I so interested in getting out a favorable vote has been asked me repeatedly. My reply is that I am a patron of the schools; the taxes on my home for 1963 amounted to $621.
INDUSTRIES' TAXES
 Furthermore, for almost a quarter century I have been president and general manager of Cosden, which had a 1963 school tax bill of $173,573. This is 12.2 per cent, or very nearly one-eighth of the $1,423,263 in taxes that will be collected during the 1963-64 school year.
 Cabot and Richardson carbon black plants are located adjacent to Cosden's refinery. We produce and sell to them carbon black oil, a good product at a fair price. We do not furnish raw materials for the Grace ammonia plant, but Cosden employs operate and maintain it, for which we are paid a fee. These three plants had a 1963 tax bill of $64,130 or 4.5 per cent of estimated 1963-64 tax collections. The four of us have paid approximately one-sixth of all taxes collected in the past by Big Spring Independent School District. We are continuing in business and will probably pay as high or even a higher percentage in future years.

FINANCIALLY SOUND

It is my obligation to inquire into the creation of debts by all public corporations that assess taxes against Cosden and its customers for the payment thereof. This I do conscientiously. If proposed expenditures of borrowed funds are financially sound and progress improvement of the environment of our local citizens, including our employees and those of our customers, the required authorization which must be by election deserves and does get my support. Enlargement or expansion of our school plants is an obvious need recognizable by any school patron or observing citizen.

The crowded conditions in our schools to some extent result from expansion of industrial payrolls of Cosden and adjoining plants. When I moved to Big Spring on Labor Day 1940, Cosden had one college graduate engineer. We now have 44 graduate engineers and chemists.

WEBB PEOPLE

Of greater significance is the enrollment of children whose parents or guardians are military personnel attached to Webb Air Force Base or civilian employees working at the base. About one-fifth of the total daily average attendance in our schools is in this group. They are not free riders. The State of Texas sends us about $325,000 a year as an appropriate apportionment of general funds to provide education for children living in Texas. The federal government makes a further contribution of $200,000 a year. This $525,000 amounts to about $330 for each child and is spent locally. It is about as much as we spend on other students, excepting the cost of the school buildings. For us to have some 1,600 children in our school district who are here because one or both of their parents get a paycheck from the federal government is our good fortune. It is really a privilege to educate them, and we other residents of the district should recognize how fortunate we are.

Military personnel at Webb number approximately 3,000 and their annual paychecks add up to more than $5 million. There are 662 civilian employees; annual payroll for them is almost $4 million. Additionally, Webb procurement officers spend about $3 million a year locally for supplies and services.

ADEQUATE SCHOOLS

When Webb Air Force Base was chosen for reactivation in late 1951, the people responsible for the decision surveyed our school system which was then quite adequate. If we cannot keep it so, it could be the decision of these responsible for maintaining morale and a good environment for government employees, both military and civilian, to conclude that Webb should be closed and the people transferred to a more appreciative community. It should be remembered that there are a number of air bases in Texas that are not active but are being maintained for immediate school trustees will meet our needs for the foreseeable future. I cannot understand how anyone could vote against the proposed issuance of $5,500,000 in school bonds.

Respectfully yours,
 R. L. TOLLETT

Sales Of Trucks Reaching New Highs Also This Year

DETROIT (AP)—Often overlooked in the glowing reports on record breaking auto sales this year is the fact that truck sales also are setting new highs. Surveys show practically all the nation's 25,000 franchised truck dealers are having a banner year. Commercial vehicle sales are expected to hit a record high of 1.5 million for the 1964 model run. The number of trucks on the nation's highways climbed to 13.3 million at the end of 1963. Industry experts figure that by 1970, that figure will have passed the 16 million mark. One of the main reasons for the big increase in the truck market is the speed with which the nation's 41,000-mile interstate and defense highway system is being built. More than one third of the road system has been built already. Truck lines have become almost glamorous. It is not unusual to find such items as automatic transmissions, bucket seats, air conditioners and radios in the truck offerings. Design is more streamlined and their paint more colorful. Surveys show that over 72 per cent of trucks in the United States are owned by individuals. That means that small businessmen and farmers are the principal truck buyers and their individual tastes are reflected in the trucks they buy and the equipment and accessories they want on them. Auto dealers realized quickly that there was a great profit potential in the U.S. truck industry which now spends over $5 billion a year for new equipment.

Under the leadership of the National Automobile Dealers Association, dealers are placing emphasis on service as another key part of the trucking business. NADA constantly reminds dealers that when a truck's vehicle is in the repair shop, it generally means that he is losing money while the vehicle is tied up.
