In recent years we have conducted a series of bridge cruises to various parts of call arranged by Travel-With-Goren, Inc. Among the most pleasant of these experiences is our semi-annual trip to the Orient which concludes with a week-long excursion from Hong Kong to Tokyo via Japan Air Lines.

Today's hand is a memento from our most recent cruise, tho it was actually a product of the return flight to the mainland on the Japan Air Lines Jet Courier. Some of our troupe decided to while away the flight time by indulging in a few rubbers.

The West of our story was a bit near sighted and had arranged his hand so that the queen of diamonds was in with his hearts. When the opponents routinely arrived at a three no trump contract, it appeared rather more natural for him to lead the king of hearts as if his holding in that suit were headed by the K-Q-10.

South won the first trick with the ace of hearts and then crossed over to the dummy in spades to lead the nine of diamonds for a finesse in that suit. When the play came around to West he was now aware of his initial error in sorting the cards, and he removed the queen of diamonds from his heart holding in order to win the trick.

West was a bit disappointed in the unexpected deterioration of his heart suit but, seeing no attractive shift he continued the attack by returning the five of hearts. South had marked his opponent with the queen of hearts from the original lead of the king. He, therefore, put up North's jack with the expectation of winning the trick. His shock was considerable when East produced the heart queen and the defenders ran sufficient tricks in the suit to set the contract.

As it turns out, three no trump can always be defeated—provided that West makes an early shift to the ten of hearts instead of leading fourth best, for the unorthodox play saves East from having to sacrifice the queen of hearts and thus establishing North's jack as a second stopper in the suit for declarer. However, this is a difficult position for West to diagnose without taking "a peek," and South—in the normal course of events—may be expected to fulfill his contract routinely.

Both South and East commented on the brilliant opening lead, but West merely gave a knowing smile. He was reluctant to explain that he hated to use his glasses when he played bridge.

Compromise To End Hindi Riots Hinted

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government appeared ready today to make new concessions to southern Indians in an attempt to stop the bloody riots that have swept the area since Hindi was declared the official national language.

Fearing for the unity of the country, the government sent emissaries to Tamil-speaking Madras State where language riots have claimed at least 50 lives.

Parliamentary Affairs Minister Satyanarayan Sinha told newsmen the government would consider putting the southerners' language demands into law if looting, rioting and arson stopped.

Hindi became India's only official language Jan. 26 under a 15-year-old provision of the constitution. A separate bill says English may continue as an alternate for 10 years. The southerners fear this would subject them to linguistic, economic and cultural domination by northerners.

"NO IMPOSITION" — As anti-Hindi rioting spread, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri gave repeated verbal assurances that his government did not plan to impose Hindi on anyone. He had refused, however, to put the guarantees into law.

Three of his cabinet ministers now are telling the southerners that the Hindi-speaking prime minister is ready for a compromise.

One of them, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, said Shastri was ready to agree to the indefinite use of English spoken by the educated in both north and south India.

The Law Ministry in New Delhi was reported to have ordered a draft proposal that could be presented to chief ministers of India's 16 states Feb. 23.

TOO LATE? — There was concern in New Delhi, however, that Shastri may have waited too long. Some expressed doubts that the government could negotiate with near hysterical mobs of 10,000 or more running loose in a vast section of the country. Students, who started the protests, were no longer in command of the mobs.

Corrective Study In Reading Urged

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Too many children are considered "mentally retarded" only because they have not been taught how to read, a reading expert said today.

Gilbert B. Schiffman, supervisor of reading services in Baltimore County, Md., said early detection of reading difficulties can increase ten-fold a child's chances for a successful school career.

LEARN HOW — Schiffman spoke to the American Association of School Administrators and later expanded his views in an interview.

He said recent studies showed four out of five pupils in second grade remedial classes attained reading proficiency.

In junior and senior high schools, Schiffman said, only one out of 10 did, and there was a tendency for these youngsters to "slip back" when remedial instruction stopped.

Schiffman said that "as the non-reader goes through the primary grades, his problems multiply — he cannot solve the problems in arithmetic or social studies, even though he may have the skills to do so, because he cannot read the examination questions. The impression is one of general academic failure."

LEFT BEWILDERED — "He is likely to be considered as mentally retarded or as a lazy child. It is difficult to imagine a more chilling indictment of a confused child, bewildered by his inability to learn despite his earnest efforts to do so."

He said the non-reader develops an inner turmoil that causes him to become a major problem in the home and at school.

Schiffman said the only way to correct this is to identify the non-readers at an early age and give them corrective studies all during their school career.

U.S. Rules Out Risk In Cutback Of Uranium

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced plans today for an additional cutback in the production of fissionable enriched uranium for use in weapons and power reactors. The government said the new cutback will not adversely affect the nation's military strength.

The newly planned cutback — further reflecting the already huge U.S. stockpile of atomic and hydrogen weapons — follows previously announced planned cutbacks in both enriched uranium and plutonium.

During the past year, President Johnson announced planned cutbacks of 40 per cent in enriched uranium production, to take place over the next four years — and a 20 per cent cutback in the production of plutonium, the other key ingredient of both nuclear and thermonuclear weapons.

The additional cutback — to commence in mid-1966 and reach its maximum in 1969 — would further affect three plants engaged in producing enriched uranium from natural uranium. The latter is a mixture of fissionable U235 and mostly nonfissionable U238.

The plants are located at Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; and Portsmouth, Ohio. But the Atomic Energy Commission, in making the announcement, said only 100 employment positions would be affected by the production cutback.

There was concern in New Delhi, however, that Shastri may have waited too long. Some expressed doubts that the government could negotiate with near hysterical mobs of 10,000 or more running loose in a vast section of the country. Students, who started the protests, were no longer in command of the mobs.

School Bid Bill Passes

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators passed today a bill repealing a law enacted last session requiring schools to ask for competitive bids on purchases of real estate and supplies. The measure went to the House.

Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas, the sponsor, said the law works a hardship on large school districts which buy school supplies in large quantities. The law requires bids on purchases of more than $1,000. Parkhouse's proposal would let each school district set up its own system.

Some school authorities have claimed that another problem caused by the law is a provision requiring bids on purchase of real estate.

LBJ Preacher Hits De Gaulle

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson went to church here and heard his pastor make a critical reference to French President Charles de Gaulle.

The Rev. George E. Davis of the National City Christian Church, speaking on "For Those Whose Hairs are Too Small," said some of the United States' enemies and even some of its friends have displayed arrogance.

"I sometimes think that Mr. de Gaulle falls into that category — men who play God," the minister said.

Malcolm X Flees Bombs

NEW YORK (AP) — Malcolm X, controversial black nationalist leader, whose home was damaged by three gasoline bombs, says, "It doesn't frighten me; it doesn't quiet me down in any way or shut me up."

Malcolm X, who had advocated a doctrine of Negro "self defense against white supremacists," fled with his wife and four children early Sunday after the homemade bombs crashed through the living-room window.

Damage was termed extensive, but the blaze was quickly extinguished. Police began an investigation.

Authorities believe the devices — bottles filled with gasoline with rags for wicks — were hurled from a passing car into the two-story home in Elmhurst, Queens.

World Fair Head Visits In Madrid

MADRID (AP) — Robert Moses, president of the New York World's Fair, arrived Sunday in Madrid for a visit.

During his stay, Moses is expected to present the Fair's gold medal to Gen. Francisco Franco in recognition of Spain's contribution to the exposition, which begins its second year April 21.

Puzzle of Monday, February 15, Solved

Letters Given To UT Archives

AUSTIN — A valuable collection of correspondence and other archival material relating to the Civil War has been given to the University of Texas by Robert S. Weddle, publisher of the Menard News.

R. Henderson Shuffler, director of the University Texasana Programs, said the Montee Neims Weddle Collection presents an excellent picture of a little known phase of the war.

The bulk of the letters were written by Mr. Weddle's grandfather, Pvt. Americus Leonidas Neims, (Company E, Alexander's Regiment), to his wife while he was serving with a portion of the Confederate army that spent most of the war in Indian Territory. The accounts cover activities that heretofore have had little or no attention in the history of Texans in the Confederate service.

Mrs. Neims' letters to her husband, describing conditions at home and her efforts to run the farm and keep the family together, also are included in the collection.

Farm Bloc Power Felt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The so-called farm bloc may have become frail in recent years with a great loss of members in Congress. But it is far from being dead.

This has been proved by the fact that President Johnson's recent special farm message didn't go as far as the chief executive had indicated in earlier statements he would go to trim farm programs to save government costs.

Johnson obviously made last-minute concessions to advocates of strong federal farm aid programs. This apparently headed off what was threatening to develop into a 1965 version of a congressional struggle of the 1920s — an era which brought the terms "sons of wild jackasses."

FEDERAL AID

A group of strong-willed Midwestern congressional Republicans were rebelling against the conservative leadership of their party — then in control of the White House and Congress — because Congress refused to support legislation for federal assistance to a depressed agriculture.

These party rebels included Sens. Robert A. LaFollette of Wisconsin, George W. Norris of Nebraska, Arthur Capper of Kansas and Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa. They were charter members of a farm bloc that exercised broad power during the succeeding two decades.

In the heated debate over farm proposals Sen. George Moses of New Hampshire, a leader of Eastern conservative senators, flung at the Midwesterners the charge that they were acting like "sons of wild jackasses."

This stung the rebelling senators and caused them to fight all the harder. They were able to get farm legislation through Congress, only to run afoul of presidential vetoes. It was not until Franklin D. Roosevelt took over the presidency in 1933 that federal assistance was extended to agriculture.

BUDGET REPORT

When Johnson said in his State of the Union message and in his budget report that he would seek to reduce the cost of farm programs and criticized them on grounds the programs tended to give help to farmers not needing it, farm leaders of his party became aroused.

Behind the scenes protests were made to the White House. A number of farm organizations which had backed farm programs of the administration — mainly the National Farmers Union and the National Grange — held an emergency meeting here and drafted an appeal to the President urging stronger, not weaker, federal help for farmers.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman gave Johnson arguments for going slow in cutting farm aid.

All this brought little or no indication that the President would change his mind. It was then that some Democrats from farming areas, particularly the Midwest, began talking among themselves about becoming insurgents, along the fashion of the earlier Republicans who had been taunted by Moses. There was talk about fighting some other pet programs of the President if he insisted on trimming farm aid.

BROUGHT TO BEAR

Little of this talk got into the open, but the full import of it was brought to bear on the White House. The result was a farm bloc victory of sizable degree.

By relenting at the last moment, Johnson delayed for some time a final decision on the question of just what should be the federal government's proper role in the stabilization of agriculture.

Mother, Children Die In Home Fire

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — A 35-year-old mother died Monday with her three children whom she tried desperately to save from a fire that swept their two-story frame house in rural Canton.

The mother, Lela Blair, was trapped by flames and smoke after she dropped two other children to her husband, who was standing beneath the second-story window. He had jumped to safety with a sixth child.

We know nobody likes to shop a used-car lot with a high-pressure salesman breathing down his neck.

We don't have any.

We know a lot of people are leery of used cars because many of them look over-used and over-priced.

Ours are clean, bright and thoroughly reconditioned. We can sleep at night after we make a sale.

What about prices?

They're not rock bottom. But they're fair.

Still, we know that if you can beat our deal you'll go elsewhere. We're not about to let that happen.

Why not let us show you a great used-car lot in action. Take advantage today of our Seventh-Week-in-Business Celebration Special."

DEAR ABBY
Barbering, Doctoring

DEAR ABBY: So you say that a barber is not permitted or qualified to remove blackheads? Well, please go to the library and read THE PRACTICE AND SCIENCE OF STANDARD BARBERING, and I believe that you will change your mind after reading the chapter entitled, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, SCALP AND HAIR. I am a student at a barber college in Covington, Kentucky, and I have personally removed two warts from the face of a customer by high frequency treatments. I have also removed countless blackheads from the faces of many others.

A barber is trained and qualified to treat any skin disease of the scalp, skin or hair if the disease is not contagious.

Sincerely yours,
A FUTURE BARBER

DEAR FUTURE BARBER: A barber is neither qualified nor licensed to treat diseases of the skin, whether contagious or otherwise. It is possible that when you removed two "warts" from the face of your customer one of them may have been a cancer, and the high frequency treatment that you used could have spread malignant cells into the bloodstream. It is also possible that when you remove blackheads, you are unaware that your customer may be a diabetic or suffer from hemophilia (a bleeding disease). Highly qualified dermatologists

ZANZIBAR, Tanzania (AP) — Russian-armed, goosestepping African infantry, accompanied by 60 armed vehicles and trailed by school children and nurses, paraded here past Tanzania's first vice president, Abeld Karume, to celebrate the overthrow of the sultanate 15 months ago. More than 15,000 marchers and 50,000 onlookers heard Karume thank Red China, East Germany, Russia and Israel for military equipment and the United States for a technical school.

U.S., French Diplomat To Seek To Mend Rift

PARIS (AP) — A precise French diplomat who is quite a contrast to the easy Texas informality of President Johnson is to fly to America Wednesday for a new attempt to bridge the policy differences between Washington and Paris.

When Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville meets with Johnson in the White House, they will have much more separating them than differences of background, training and personality.

At several points of the globe, ranging from Viet Nam to the United Nations, French and U.S. policies are at odds.

An old Washington hand who signed the North Atlantic Treaty for France in 1949, Couve de Murville has been conducting his country's foreign policy for President Charles de Gaulle without interruption since De Gaulle's return to power almost seven years ago.

MASTER TECHNICIAN

The policy, irritating to Washington at various points of the world, is De Gaulle's, but Couve de Murville is the acknowledged master technician in carrying it out.

At 58, Couve de Murville has the clipped speech, reserved manner, the tweedy look, and a well-groomed manner that would enable him to pass for British almost anywhere. He is anything but the popular notion of the volatile, voluble Frenchman.

Couve de Murville's meeting with Johnson will be the first on such a level since the French minister called on the late President John F. Kennedy in the autumn of 1963, just two months before Kennedy was assassinated.

POSSIBLE MEET

As then, Couve de Murville will be sounding out the White House preparatory to a possible meeting between Johnson and De Gaulle.

Only a few weeks previous to the 1963 meeting, De Gaulle had rocked Washington with a public call for the neutralization of Viet Nam, where the U.S.-backed regime was fighting against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas. De Gaulle still feels that way.

Since then, De Gaulle has injected a new note of friction with his recognition of Red China.

Besides differences on policy toward Red China and the war in Viet Nam, France and the United States disagree on a long list of other phases of the world scene.

The United States seeks to build up the United Nations as a peacekeeping agency for the world; France has refused to pay any share of the cost of the peace mission in the Congo.

White House Day's Routine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is back to a workaday routine though President Johnson and his staff remain in close touch with developments in Viet Nam.

Johnson has seemed relaxed and untroubled in his recent appearances, though he still is bothered a bit by remnants of a heavy cold that put him in a hospital last month.

His pace seems to have slowed somewhat and he is doing less out-of-town traveling. He tries to take a nap every afternoon and, for exercise, usually finds time for a half-hour walk around the back yard.

As Johnson has said on two occasions, he still doesn't feel quite as bouncy as he felt before his illness.

Out of doors, the President normally wears a felt hat — something he only occasionally did before the cold bug bit. If there is a chill in the air he wears a topcoat.

Johnson's announced in advance schedule today is routine. Democratic leaders of the House have been called to discuss legislative questions. A progress report is being sought from members of the President's Council on Aging.

This evening Johnson is host at a long-scheduled reception for about 50 members of Congress.

The President this year has altered the pattern of his weekly meetings with congressional leaders. He used to have top Democrats from the Senate and House in for breakfast every Tuesday. Now he sees Senate leaders one week, House chiefs the next and both groups jointly every third week. The meetings are later in the morning and without breakfast.

Johnson apparently felt time was wasted by subjecting the Senate leaders to weekly discussions of House problems, and vice versa.

Bill Fights Endorsement Of Other Party's Candidate

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' recent trend of Democrats or Republicans forming splinter groups to endorse the other party's candidate would become a violation of the election code under a bill being studied by the House Elections Committee.

"We've had Democrats for Cox (unsuccessful Republican gubernatorial candidate Jack Cox) and Republicans for Pool (U.S. Rep. Joe Pool, Dallas Democrat) and it's not desirable," Harris County Clerk R. E. Turrentine of Houston told the committee Monday night.

Turrentine explained a bill by Rep. Jake Johnson of Houston making 25 changes in the state election code. It was sent to a subcommittee for study.

The bill meets the party-switching situation by preventing the use of a party name or its abbreviation or a derivative by anyone except the party organization. Violators would be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine up to $1,000.

Other proposed election law changes in the bill would: Require all persons over 60 to obtain exemption certificates.

The law now exempts over-age persons in towns of 10,000 or less, but Turrentine said the increasing number of over-age people has resulted in an excess of non-registered voters.

ABSENTEE VOTING

Let persons vote absentee because of personal convenience or business needs, in addition to the current excuse of being out of town. Turrentine said the out-of-town requirement is a farce which is constantly abused.

Getting Ready For Summer

W. P. Odom, left, engineer, checks the performance of a newly developed well in the Martin County well field as the Colorado River Municipal Water District prepares for summer peaking. The well, which rated above 900 gallons of water per minute, will be produced at about 500 gpm, then next winter will be recharged with water from Lake J. B. Thomas. This is one of a half dozen wells being developed on the J. C. Sale lease near the district's pump station. The same pattern of summer pumping for peak demands and winter recharge will be followed in all. Watching the test are O. H. Iyie, assistant general manager and E. V. Spence, manager.

Supreme Court Justice On Mountain Trail

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — "You learn to walk that canyon with great respect," Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas declared late Monday night after descending a treacherous mountain trail. Douglas and four others spent nearly nine hours negotiating icy LaLuz Canyon trail down the west face of Sandia Mountain east of Albuquerque. In the summer, it normally takes a hiker about two hours to descend from the 10,600-foot mountain.

"SLOWED US" — "The treacherous going slowed us up," the 66-year-old veteran hiker said as he peeled off his heavy outer clothing in a hotel lobby. Douglas and his party snowshoed down the mountain trail.

A bright moon and the lights of metropolitan Albuquerque helped guide the party to a campground where Forest Service officials and newsmen met them.

He said there was a snowfield which he estimated at 500 feet across at one point along the trail. "At the end of it," he said, "there was a 500-to 600-foot drop into the canyon. We used ropes to cross it."

HAD SUNSHINE — Douglas said the sun shone throughout the day. The temperature was below freezing.

"We all had spills and we all were very tired. But I don't think I am out of breath. I stay in pretty good condition. I hike 20 to 30 miles a week in Washington."

The party had coffee and beef jerky during rest stops in the descent.

OTHERS ALONG — With Douglas were Fred H. Kennedy, Albuquerque, regional forester of the southwestern region, U.S. Forest Service; Pat Murray, supervisor of Cibola National Forest; John Blackwood, a forest ranger, and Robert Nordhaus, Albuquerque attorney, and a law student under Douglas several years ago at Yale University.

Douglas said he was considering writing a book about mountains in the Southwest and was getting a first-hand look while en route to Los Angeles for a speech Wednesday night.

Lead Youth Revival

Salem Baptist Church's two preachers for a youth-led revival this week will be Donnie Anderson, (left), and Monty Clendennin. Services will be held at the church, north of Sand Springs, at 7:30 p.m. daily, Wednesday through Saturday, announced the Rev. Rufus Wilson, pastor. Eddie McHugh will lead the singing and Karen Murphy will be the pianist.

Jurors Dismissed, No Cases Ready

Settlements and pending settlements, along with a few cases which had to be passed at this time by mutual agreement, brought the scheduled jury civil docket in Howard County Court to a sudden end Monday afternoon.

Judge Lee Porter, at the close of the docket sounding, thanked the jury panel for reporting and told its members their services were not needed after all.

Twelve cases had been set for trial. The following actions were entered in the cases: John Underwood vs. Westex Oil Co. et al, transferred to the non-jury docket; State vs. Lester M. Newton et ux, passed; Allstate Insurance Co. vs. Roger Mack Frazier, settled; Doris W. Gambill vs. Thomas R. Stephens, passed; D&C Trailer Sales vs. A. D. Blount, passed; First National Bank vs. J. E. Nutt et ux, previously tried; L. D. Coppedge vs. G. A. McAllister et al, settled; H. T. Baker vs. Wayne Allen, settlement being worked out; Pablo Ramirez Jr. vs. George Uribe, et al, hospitals back to Dec. 1.

Steel Labor Flareup Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — With most longshoremen back on the job, federal officials are bracing themselves for the next potential labor explosion — in the steel industry.

While no one is predicting a steel strike, or even whether overt government intervention will be needed, the Labor Department is clearly uneasy over the possibilities.

Spokesmen insist, however, that besides the dock strike and possible steel troubles, prospects are for a generally peaceful year at the bargaining table even though about one-third of all union contracts — covering about 5 million workers — are up for renewal.

While some longshoremen are still on strike, most major ports are back in operation.

The most immediately worrisome aspect of the steel talks is the uncertainty over the election contest for president of the million-member AFL-CIO United Steelworkers of America.

"Nobody will be able to do a thing until we know who the leader is," said one government spokesman, referring to the contest between President David J. McDonald and Secretary-Treasurer I. W. Abel, for the presidency of the Steelworkers Union. Abel has claimed victory, but official ballots are still being tabulated.

Gulf Coast Longshoremen, Shippers Again Bargaining

GALVESTON (AP)—Negotiators tried again today to resolve the 36-day dispute between Gulf Coast longshoremen and shippers.

A settlement of the dock strike at Galveston was expected to lead to quick agreement in Miami.

These points plus Hampton Roads, Va., are the only major South Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports where longshoremen remain on strike.

BACK ON JOB — Dock workers streamed back to the piers over the weekend at most other ports on order of Thomas Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association.

Talks were being resumed in Galveston between representatives of the ILA and the West Gulf Maritime Association with Assistant Labor Secretary James Reynolds on hand.

Similar joint negotiations will reopen Wednesday in Miami. Joint sessions at both ports were halted last Wednesday by a summons for all parties to go to Washington and appear before a three-man presidential panel.

TURNED DOWN — That panel made recommendations to end the costly dock strike but it was turned down by union representatives.

Negotiations are deadlocked on the union's demand for a guaranteed minimum work gang size and the shippers' demand for hiring control.

Mediator W. S. Jackson met Monday with union men at Norfolk, Va. Ralph Massey, South Atlantic and Gulf Coast district president of the ILA said the panel in Washington "did not recommend anything."

Galveston shippers, led by Ross Dunn, executive officer in the West Gulf Maritime Industries office of labor relations, indicated they would accept the government recommendation.

Activity in Galveston was at a standstill. More than 60 ships were docked in the area. The 36-day-old strike has idled 46 ships at Norfolk and dozens of others at smaller South Atlantic and West Gulf ports.

Longshoremen were loading and unloading ships at New York, New Orleans, Boston, Philadelphia and other ports after Gleason acceded to requests he send them back to the piers where contract agreements had been reached. Gleason rejected the federal panel's recommendation that the dock workers return at the ports where no new contracts have been signed.

The number of dock workers still on strike totaled about 15,000. About 75,000 to 80,000 were back on the job.

Chamber Officials Due Wednesday For Class

Leaders and chamber of commerce officials from all over West Texas will be in Big Spring Wednesday for the leaders' workshop at Couden Country Club. The workshop is sponsored by the Community Services Department of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

President J. Y. (Ike) Robb Jr. has announced the program, with registration beginning at 9:30 a.m., and the opening session at 10 a.m. Following the invocation Mayor George Zachariah will welcome the visitors.

Frank Mueller, State Chamber Department, of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will bring the keynote address at 10:15 a.m.

Group meetings will begin at 10:45 a.m. in three departments. Presidents and officers will be directed by Frank Mueller; directors and committee chairmen by Charlie Young, executive vice president, Plainview Chamber of Commerce; and chamber managers by R. T. Wilson, manager of the Monahans Chamber of Commerce.

The noon luncheon will be at 11:15 a.m. and afternoon sessions will begin at 1:30, with Carroll Davidson, Big Spring chamber manager, presiding.

John Logan, executive vice president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce will talk on "Developing a Program of Work", and Adolph Yanca, general manager of the Odessa chamber, will talk on "Chamber of Commerce Financing."

A discussion session and summary will begin at 2 p.m. and the workshop will adjourn at 2:45 p.m.

Humble Oil Acquires Site In California

HOUSTON (AP)—Humble Oil & Refining Co. has acquired a 450-acre site in Monterey County, Calif., on which it may locate its first West Coast refinery.

Humble's plans, disclosed Monday, are in the formative stage. The company is studying the installation of a manufacturing facility with a capacity of 50,000 barrels daily.

J. Prince Warner, Humble vice president for manufacturing, said it would cost more than $50 million.

SEEKS PERMIT
The company is applying to the Monterey County Planning Commission for a use permit on the property, Warner said.

This permit would enable Humble to start work on detailed engineering surveys to confirm the suitability of the proposed site and to continue technical studies for planning the ultra modern refining facility, he said.

MONEY, TIME
"These surveys and studies are expected to cost in excess of a million dollars and will require more than a year to complete," Warner said.

The site is about two miles southeast of the unincorporated town of Moss Landing in an area designated for industrial use. Moss Landing is about 90 miles south of San Francisco on Monterey Bay.

Present Humble refineries are at Baton Rouge, La.; Baytown, Tex.; Linden, N.J.; and Billings, Mont.

Mrs. Price's Funeral Set

Funeral will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday in River-Welch Funeral Home Chapel for Mrs. Thelma Fox Price, 65, who was found dead at her home at 1610 Gregg about 6 p.m. Monday.

Justice of the Peace Walter Grice had not made an official ruling on the death this morning, pending a check with Mrs. Price's doctor, but said apparently the death was due to natural causes.

Judge Grice said Mrs. Price had possibly been dead 18 to 24 hours when found Monday evening. There was a possibility, he said, of a stroke having occurred. Grice said the kitchen, in which she was found, was in disarray.

Police were called to the brick home after Mrs. Everett Friem of Lomax, a long-time friend of Mrs. Price, had gone to the home to give her a Valentine and was unable to enter. The home was locked and officers broke a front door window to enter.

Grice said Mrs. Price was reported last seen Saturday, by Joe Bunch, owner of the nearby Toyland firm.

Mrs. Price was born Dec. 12, 1899, in Albany, Texas. She had been a Big Spring resident since about 1928.

Services at the chapel will be conducted by Dr. H. Clyde Smith, pastor of First Methodist Church. Burial will be in City Cemetery under direction of River-Welch.

Survivors include two nieces, Mrs. David Kenner, Paris, Texas, and Mrs. F. L. Tosch, Temple; an aunt, Mrs. Fred Frink, San Augustine, Fla.; and a cousin, Horace Pat, Odessa.

Zoo Proposed By Committee
Members of the convention and tourist committee of the chamber of commerce heard some details Monday on the possible establishment of a zoo in Big Spring and the organization of a zoological society. Twenty persons were present and voted to recommend the organization to the chamber board of directors.

A. D. Blount, owner of a pet shop on US 80 west, and Charles Campbell, spoke to the group on the details of organization of a society, establishment of a zoo, and securing animals.

The local zoological society should be affiliated with and chartered by the National Zoological Society, Blount said. Animals are secured from other societies, when a surplus makes it necessary to "board" out some of the animals. They are not purchased or donated. Many ramifications of establishing a zoo must be worked out, including location and buildings, before other estimates of cost and maintenance are made.

Congress 'Family Doctor'

Dr. George W. Calver who for 36 years has been the official "family doctor" for Congress, says if the solons would "eat less, exercise more and take life easier," they would be better off. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Relax, Advises Congress Doctor

WASHINGTON (AP) — To Dr. George W. Calver "there's no difference between a Republican bellyache and a Democratic bellyache."

He has been treating both for 36 years as Congress' "family doctor," a practice that is growing by leaps and bounds because, he says, Democrats and Republicans alike "either won't or don't relax enough."

Last year, Calver's Capitol Hill office handled about 45,000 cases of aches, pains and assorted ailments. This year he thinks the figure will be closer to 50,000.

As the attending physician to Congress, Calver is on the Hill at all times when Congress is in session. Besides senators and representatives, his patient load includes congressional officials and employees, reporters and tourists.

PICTURE OF HEALTH

Now 77 and well past retirement age, Calver has no plan to quit. He is a picture of health.

"I follow my own advice," he said in an interview. "I exercise regularly, take a good walk every day, work in my garden and fool around in my workshop."

"I have no intention of becoming a victim of nervous tension."

Then he explained: "Nervous tension is the major occupational hazard of Congress. Senators and representatives are exposed to too much eating, too much talking, too much writing and too many pressures from their constituents."

"They either won't or don't relax enough. If they'd devote 5 per cent of their time to keeping well, they wouldn't have to spend 100 per cent of it getting over being sick."

Over-Counter Stock Traders Try New Way

NEW YORK (AP) — Traders on the biggest stock market of them all — the over-the-counter market — are adjusting today to a new method of quoting prices.

For 1,300 issues bought and sold nationally but unlisted on any stock exchange, wholesale prices will be quoted instead of retail. For more than 35,000 other issues, traded only regionally or locally, the old rules still apply.

NOT SETTLED

But there's a dispute still far from settled as to who will be the gainers and who the losers from the change to wholesale quotations for the 1,300 issues.

The Securities and Exchange Commission says the new method will give investors a true picture of prices, the insiders' quotations or wholesale prices, rather than the retail prices previously quoted. These were the insiders' or dealers' prices plus an unpublished commission or markup.

The public thus can get a clearer picture of just what an over-the-counter stock is really bringing in the market for those in the know.

But a sizable segment of the 4,100 over-the-counter dealers who belong to the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. — NASD — says that what is really going to happen is this: Small dealers will be forced out of business when investors shop around for the smallest commission, and only the big stock and bond houses will survive because a big volume of business will let them charge the smallest commissions.

Some of the small dealers tried unsuccessfully last week to get a court order forbidding NASD to start the wholesale quotations Feb. 15.

The new method of quotation of over-the-counter stocks is just one of the SEC proposals made a year ago. Already it has secured law revisions requiring the bigger companies whose stocks are traded over the counter to make public disclosures of their financial status, comparable to those required of companies whose stocks are listed on exchanges.

Slide Rescue Exercise Fatal

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — An Austrian army staff sergeant, Herbert Uri, 22, preparing for an avalanche rescue exercise, crawled into a prepared hole and had another man heap snow on him. Freed after 30 minutes, by a rescue unit, he died in a hospital.

Abuse Studied In Foundations

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 15,000 tax-exempt foundations with assets in excess of $16 billion have wide effects on large segments of the U.S. economy. That is one reason they are under study by the Congress and the Treasury Department.

These foundations are primary sources of funds for education, scientific research, economic studies, religious institutions, overseas developments. They also are a force in the stock market, since the bulk of their assets is in common stocks. And some are major stockholders of a wide assortment of business concerns.

FOR ABUSES

The Treasury says the great majority is above reproach, but criticizes a minority for abuses. These include stock speculation, controlling stock holdings in some corporations, and financial dealings of the foundation with its donors, officers or trustees.

Some congressional critics go much further. They charge that some foundations have been used for tax evasion by individual donors and are actually just a tax-exempt device for running business enterprises. They want a special government agency set up to police them.

The Treasury concedes a minority are out of line with public interest, but thinks laws forbidding specific abuses will take care of that, without penalizing the majority.

TO EDUCATION

The major share of donations by foundations goes to education. Health ranks second, still far behind although gaining in recent years. Closely following are social welfare, scientific research, and international affairs. Smaller sums go to humanities, religion, and government enterprises.

The biggest foundation is the Ford Foundation set up in 1936. Of late it has been slowly divesting itself of its huge holdings of Ford Motor stock but still has 46 per cent of outstanding shares, but a nonvoting classification.

But in recent years the big growth has been in the number of small foundations. Donations to them are deductible from personal income tax returns. And the foundations are tax-exempt as long as their objects and performance are in charitable fields.
