Negro Held In Death Of Malcolm X

NEW YORK (AP) — A 22-year-old Negro today faced a homicide charge in the assassination of Malcolm X, a black nationalist leader. Malcolm X, 39, died in a volley of shotgun and pistol fire as he started to address a rally of his Muslim splinter group Sunday day in an upper Manhattan ballroom.

A homicide charge was lodged early today against a man identified by the FBI as Talmadge Hayer, 22, alias Thomas Hayer, a Negro whose last known address was Paterson, N.J.

OTHERS INVOLVED Police said at least five persons were believed involved in the killing — as Malcolm X reportedly was preparing to identify assassins he charged had been seeking his life.

Other stories and pictures on Pages 3-A and 3-B. The FBI said the only notation on Hayer's record was an arrest on a charge of possession of stolen property in Passaic, N.J., on Nov. 7, 1963. No disposition of the charge was noted.

At the time of the homicide arrest, police had identified the prisoner as Thomas Hagan. It could not be learned whether Hayer is a Black Muslim. Leaders of the sect — which had been accused by Malcolm X of plotting his death — denied any knowledge of the killing. Malcolm X had been ousted in 1963 from the sect headed by Elijah Muhammad of Chicago and founded a rival group.

"NOT US" At the Chicago headquarters of the Black Muslims, a spokesman for the group's newspaper, Muhammad Speaks, said of the assassination: "This could not have been done by our people. If it was done by a Black Muslim, then he was doing it on his own."

Police called the assassination — in which Malcolm X suffered more than a dozen wounds — an outgrowth of the bitter breach between the Organization of Afro-American Unity headed by Malcolm X and Elijah Muhammad's Black Muslims.

The slaying created excitement in Harlem, but there was no disorder. POLICE PATROL Beefed-up police patrols moved through Harlem streets through the night and morning hours.

Police said today that "a great many people" remained to be questioned, but no further arrests were imminent. A dozen Muslims, whose spokesman said were not followers of Malcolm X, got in touch with police today in an effort to arrange a Muslim funeral for him.

The unidentified spokesman for the Muslim delegation told newsmen: "We just came here to see that he gets an orthodox Muslim funeral." He said Muslim rites require that "the sun should not rise and set twice on the body of a dead Muslim."

SLAIN IN RALLY Malcolm was shot fatally on the stage at a rally in the Washington Heights section, north of Harlem. His wife, Betty, 35, awaiting the birth of their fifth child, was in the hall. Malcolm had started to address a gathering of about 500 followers and sympathizers.

TEXAS PUBLIC SCHOOL Week Plans Outlined School administrators outlined plans for observance of Texas Public School Week at a breakfast session given Monday morning at the Wagon Wheel by the TPSW committee.

This is the 14th year the special week is being observed on a statewide basis, said Jimmy Felts, who with George Callahan, Coahoma, and Ray Thomas, comprises the committee. Everywhere visitation by parents will be sought, said school officials, and many of the schools are planning special observances, open houses, display of pupil work, etc.

Japan Coal Mine Blast Traps 103

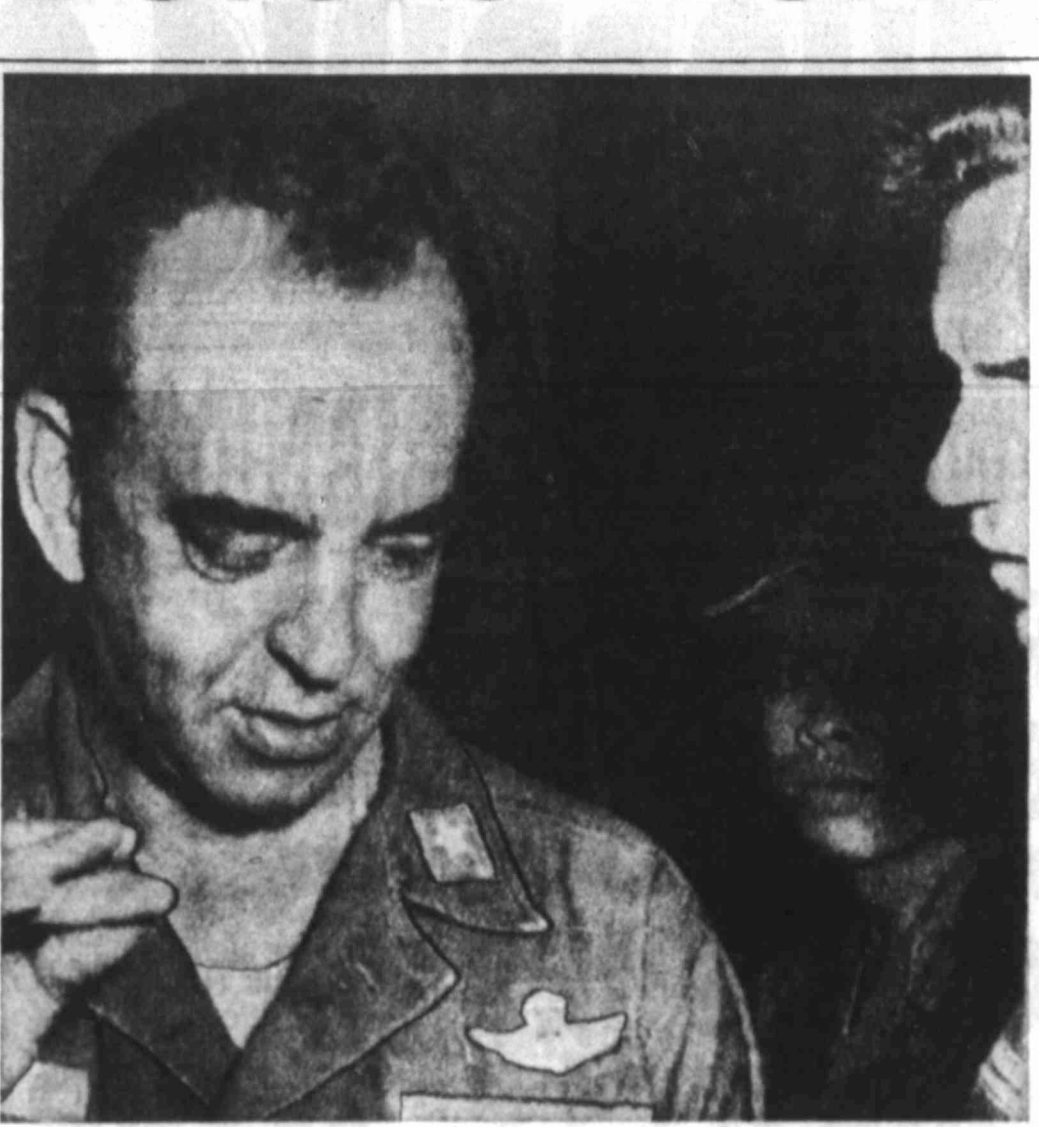

TOKYO (AP) — A gas explosion ripped a coal mine in Japan's northernmost main island of Hokkaido today, trapping 103 miners, police said. Nine of them crawled to safety.

Seeping gas prevented more than 100 rescuers from approaching the mine for hours. The National Police Agency said an appeal was made for gas masks.

They arrived four hours after the explosion and the rescue workers began digging. A police spokesman said there were no details as to the cause of the accident in Yubari, a major coal mining city about 600 miles north of Tokyo. The explosion occurred at 6:30 p.m. at the Yubari refinery of the Hokkaido Colliery Co.

The accident came 15 months after 453 miners died in Japan's worst postwar mine disaster after an explosion ripped through a mine on the southern island of Kyushu.

Oil Pooling Measure Before Texas House Bill Held Vital For Industry

Bill Held Vital For Industry

AUSTIN (AP) — House members began arguments today on the Senate-passed oil and gas lease pooling bill which supporters claim will give the little oil man a fair break with the big oil firms. "A fair share of oil and gas production in a reservoir for all interests has long been a theoretical objective in Texas," said Rep. Wayne Gibbons of Lubbock.

AUSTIN (AP) — A senate-passed oil and gas lease pooling bill, which oilmen call the state's most far-reaching legislation affecting their industry in 16 years, comes before the House today.

Companion House and Senate bills cleared the House Oil and Gas Committee Wednesday and moved to a high place on the calendar. Senators passed the legislation Feb. 10 with only three of the 31 Senate members voting against it.

FORCE POOLING The pooling bill was written by the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association. It would allow a small tract operator to force his neighbors to pool their land to form acreage large enough to meet the Railroad Commission's minimum production unit standards.

Small independent producers say the measure will give them bargaining power with large oil companies. They contend their strength at the bargaining table has been hurt by recent court decisions against commission production formulas favoring small-tract drillers.

The Senate Rules Committee approved for floor consideration a set of controversial changes in joint legislative procedures, which opponents said would harm chances for a teacher pay raise.

RULES PROPOSALS The proposed set of rules, which easily cleared the House last week, prohibit consideration of any bills that would require state funds—such as a teacher pay raise—until final passage of the general appropriations bill or 120 days after the session starts, whichever comes first.

Lawmakers also scheduled a brief tribute to George Washington, then a quick return to the old legislative problems of money and redistricting.

Cong's 'Biggest Blow' Had People's Support

WITH THE VIET CONG — A tough, slightly built peasant who calls himself Huynh Minh says he led the surprise mortar attack on Bien Hoa airfield 18 miles northeast of Saigon last Oct. 31.

The Viet Cong call it the greatest victory over U.S. airpower of the war with $25 million worth of planes destroyed on the ground.

AMERICANS KILLED U.S. officials reported 26 aircraft, including 20 B57 light jet bombers, were destroyed or damaged. Four U.S. Army men were killed and 31 other Americans wounded.

How did the Viet Cong manage to penetrate the base's outer defenses with what must have been a sizable unit carrying heavy weapons? "I can't go into details," said Huynh Minh — obviously not his real name. "But we had great help from the local people — without that the whole thing would have been impossible."

He says there were difficult obstacles to overcome to get close to the planes. SURROUND BASE These included three outer defense lines, with the first formed by 100 "strategic hamlets" that surround the base and the 70 military posts that control them.

The second line comprised 12 blockhouses and 18 fortified observation towers and the third an inner line made up of five

Viets Who Toppled Khanh Said Fussing

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam's new junta negotiated long distance with Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh today as it tried to carry through its ouster of the armed forces chief and get him out of the country.

Three members of the Armed Forces Council were reported back from Dalat where they have been dickered with the former strong man. There was speculation that they offered Khanh a post abroad to get him to agree to leave South Viet Nam.

Military leaders in Saigon had announced that Khanh had agreed to step down but said later he had asked to meet with a full session of the Armed Forces Council to discuss his future.

One report said Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, impatient with Khanh's stalling, had threatened to drop paratroops in the Dalat area 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

New military activity around Saigon Airport kept tension up. Unconfirmed reports circulated that the "Young Turk" generals who toppled Khanh had already begun squabbling. One report said the 1st Corps commander, Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, and the air force commander, Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, were contending for power.

LEADERS CONFER The military leaders conferred throughout the night behind barricades at the Saigon airport. The airport was reopened to traffic at dawn, but at noon troops loaded anti-aircraft guns around the airport headquarters building and drew up recoilless rifles at entrances to the field, indicating that the crisis was not over.

An unconfirmed report said the 5th Cavalry unit of about 40 tanks might still be loyal to Khanh. Despite all the alarms and threats, there had been no shooting since the latest upheaval began Friday.

The generals of the Armed Forces Council decided to oust Khanh after crushing an attempted coup against him Friday. Sunday they stripped him of his title of commander in chief, named Maj. Gen. Tran Van Minh "temporary acting chairman" of the council, or chief of the armed forces, and voted to send Khanh into exile.

KHANH AT DALAT Khanh, who had held power for 13½ months, flew to Dalat Saturday to try to muster support but his plane ran out of gas there. Apparently fearing an attack by Khanh's followers, the members of the council barricaded themselves inside the airport and conferred among themselves and with American advisers.

Ships Due Out Of Mothballs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is preparing to pull four rocket-firing ships out of mothballs to help plug a "gun gap" which has been worrying the Marines.

In a related action, the Navy will keep on duty the last two heavy gun cruisers, the Newport News and the St. Paul. These ships, mounting eight-inch guns, were scheduled for retirement.

For a long time, Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., the Marine Corps commandant, and Navy amphibious experts have been concerned over a steady attrition in the Navy's lack of fire power to support over-the-beach assaults.

BURIED IN REPORT Buried in Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's annual report to Congress last week was a brief mention that three medium landing ships with rockets — LSMR — and one inshore fire support ship — IFS — would be taken out of the reserve fleet during the coming fiscal year "in order to provide increased ship-to-shore fire power to 'cover' the landing forces during an amphibious assault.

"The requirement for ship-to-shore fire power is still under study and we may recommend at a later time the activation of additional ships from the reserve fleet or the construction of a more efficient landing force support ship," McNamara told the House Armed Services Committee.

BUILT IN WAR The LSMR's were built during the latter part of World War II. The IFS, one of a kind, is called the Carronad and was built in 1955.

South Texas Bishop Dies

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Bishop M. S. Garriga of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Corpus Christi, died in his sleep Sunday at his residence. He was 78.

He became coadjutor bishop of the Corpus Christi Diocese in 1936 and Bishop in 1947. Designated an assistant at the Pontifical Throne, he attended Pope Pius XII at the canonization of Saint Pius X in 1951. He was made a grand cross knight of the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulcher of Jerusalem in 1952.

MANY HONORS Bishop Garriga also received many honors from the community including the designation as "Mr. South Texas" at the George Washington Birth-day celebration in Laredo in 1959.

Miner Partly Frozen But Survives Slide

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) — Einar Myllyla is partly frozen — but alive. He lived for 79 hours under an avalanche of snow and crushed buildings at the devastated Granduc mining camp in north-west British Columbia.

A Finnish construction worker in his 30s Myllyla is one of 130 miners who survived Thursday's giant slide off Le Duc Glacier near the Canadian-Alaska border. He was pulled from the ruins of a bunkhouse by rescuers Sunday afternoon, then hospitalized at Ketchikan. He was reported partly frozen and in serious condition.

HUNTS BODIES Searchers continued to probe acres of ice and snow on the precarious mountainside for more men. So far 14 bodies have been recovered. At least 13 are missing.

Continuing heavy snowfall, darkness and threat of more slides hampered tired rescue crews. The finding of Myllyla renewed hopes that still more might be found alive.

Rescuers used hand tools afraid heavy equipment would trigger another slide as they continued sifting through the devastation around the clock.

DUG OUT Several other miners were dug out alive earlier from under the tons of ice, snow and debris — saved only by pockets of air buried with them. About 40 were rescued Thursday from a tunnel where the miners were boring under the glacier for Granduc's low-grade copper ore.

A bachelor from Winnipeg, Man., Myllyla was saved by an air pocket in the cold, wet darkness. Doctors here said they are amazed Myllyla could survive for more than three days. He was weak and emaciated. Parts of his arms and legs were frozen, but he had no broken bones.

Moon Surface's Dust, Lava May Hide Perilous Caverns

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The first man on the moon should walk softly and carry a big stick. So says the head of a scientific team studying more than 7,000 pictures beamed to earth early Saturday in the final 23 minutes before the Ranger 8 spacecraft crashed into the face of the moon.

Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, chief of the five-man analysis team, said the photographic bonanza indicates the lunar surface may be a froth of dust and fragile lava that might hide dangerous tunnels and caverns.

"This could be very tricky and treacherous stuff," said Kuiper, of the University of Arizona. "Many parts of the moon might be hard enough to support considerable weight, but an explorer could not assume that he would be safe everywhere."

"It may be that the first astronauts would be wise to carry long poles to probe the surface ahead of them to be sure it would hold their weight."

Picture On Page 4-A As with the 4,316 photos relayed last July 31 by Ranger 7, the five men disagreed about what the new, high-quality photos showed, but agreed that they were not surprised.

The insect-shaped Ranger 8's sharp television cameras returned six close-ups of lunar mountains and plains in the final minutes of its death plunge into the flat, broad, dusty Sea of Tranquility, 15 miles from its original target. Its impact point was 1,000 miles east of where Ranger 7 crashed in the Mare Cognitum.

Kuiper said he saw evidence that much of the moon's surface is covered with three to six feet of loose, lava-like material, similar to tunnel-coursed, cavern-marked lava areas on Hawaii. He surmised that the material is volcanic overflow, a thin crust of solidified foam.

But Ewen A. Whitaker, Kuiper's associate at Arizona, said he felt the surface — which he also believes is foamy lava — would hold the weight of soft-landing manned spacecraft.

Dr. Harold Urey of the University of California at La Jolla said the lunar surface may be blanketed by 50 to 60 feet of dust. Several craters of that depth, he said, showed at their bottoms a "whitish button" which may be the moon's solid core beneath the dust.

U.S. Backing New Regime

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is continuing full support of the South Viet Nam civilian government, despite new uncertainty caused by the continuing political turmoil among its generals, U.S. officials said today.

President Johnson was kept informed of the developments in Saigon throughout Sunday through the White House and State Department operations centers.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was in his office studying reports and so were key aides including Assistant Secretary of State William P. Bundy and the head of the Viet Nam task force, Leonard Unger.

Foreign Travel Not Encouraged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has told passport offices around the country to do nothing that might in any way encourage Americans to travel abroad while the nation suffers from a gold drain.

Among other things, the offices are being told to take down any posters or other displays that encourages foreign travel. However, passport will remain available to citizens who want them, and the number of applicants is expected to increase.

The State Department's directive is a follow-up to President Johnson's Feb. 18 balance-of-payments message. Johnson suggested that Americans "see the U.S.A." on vacations rather than unload their dollars on foreign junkets.

Noting that American tourist spending overseas climbed $600 million in the last four years, Johnson said "foreign travel should be encouraged when we can afford it — but not while our payments position remains urgent."

This part of the presidential message is now being brought to the attention of the State Department's passport offices in a memo from Abba P. Schwartz, administrator of security and consular affairs.

State Department offices in 10 American cities have been doing a booming business in passports. About 3,800 court clerks throughout the nation also are authorized to receive passport applications.

Johnson asked Congress to cut in half the present $100 duty-free allowance now given returning Americans on goods they buy abroad. State Department employees have called off one of their vacation charter flights to Europe this year.

Whether either the President or the State Department thinks Americans actually will cut back overseas tours is another question.

Constitutional Puzzle Due Fresh Airing

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A battery of lawyers is to assemble in a small courtroom in Anne Arundel County courthouse Tuesday to argue a question that has long puzzled Americans — does the Constitution permit public funds to be given to religious colleges?

On the bench will be Judge O.

Bowie Dockett, a gray-haired jurist who loves a good constitutional case.

Leading the attack on the Maryland practice of aiding church-related colleges will be Leo Pfeiffer, a New York attorney and an authority on the church-state issue who has argued cases in this field in many American courts.

Heading the defense will be William L. Marbury, one of Maryland's most respected lawyers.

FOCAL POINT

The focal point of the trial is four grants totaling $2.5 million in the U.S. Supreme Court. Accordingly, they carefully laid a foundation of evidence at the earlier hearings on which to build their constitutional arguments.

Attorneys for both sides say the case probably will wind up in the U.S. Supreme Court. Accordingly, they carefully laid a foundation of evidence at the earlier hearings on which to build their constitutional arguments.

The colleges never got the money, intended to help construct buildings, because the bonds approved by the legislature couldn't be sold after the suit was filed.

During two weeks of hearings in December and January evidence was presented by both sides.

It is likely that the decision will influence the future of public support of church schools at all levels in the United States, and it conceivably could affect the entire financial aspect of church-state relations.

Although the constitutional question hasn't been argued yet, it cropped up a few times.

Marbury at one point cited several Supreme Court decisions which he said established a precedent that public aid is permissible if a church-related institution performs "a legitimate secular function that does not advance or prohibit religion."

APPLY TEST

Pfeiffer has contended that Dockett must apply a different constitutional test — that tax support cannot be given to institutions "which either teach or practice religion."

The suit was brought by the Horace Mann League, which lists as its basic purpose "to strengthen our public schools," and a group of Maryland taxpayers.

Lawyers for the colleges are certain to argue that the plaintiffs cannot legally bring the action, and Dockett will have to decide this question first.

Those who believe church-affiliated schools should receive public support agree that the decision will be a critical one.

A ruling against them would temporarily kill hopes for getting state funds for parochial schools as well as cut off a valuable flow of tax funds to colleges.

A ruling in their favor could be used as a lever to get more tax support.

Dr. E. T. Driscoll will be the examining orthopedic surgeon; Dr. J. P. Hooker, the examining neurosurgeon; Dr. John W. Foster, the examining pediatrician. Physical, speech, and occupational therapists will also be in attendance. There will be no charge for this examination.

The Children's Service League, Midland, is sponsoring a diagnostic clinic for cerebral palsied children, March 1, at the Midland Cerebral Palsy Treatment Center, 2111 West Ohio, Midland, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Warning Seen In Berlin Wall By Collegians

ENCINO, Calif. (AP) — A street corner in this Southern California community became Checkpoint Charlie for a few hours Sunday.

Motorists trying to reach the San Fernando Valley thoroughfare were surprised to find themselves halted before a cement block and barbed-wire barrier under a sign which declared: Now leaving the U.S. sector.

If drivers hesitated before proceeding, a young man with a white helmet and wearing an Army sergeant's blouse leaned into the window and advised them of the dangers of leaving the "free zone."

The purpose of the wall was more serious than just a college hoax, its builders said. A group of San Fernando Valley State College students, with the blessing of the chamber of commerce and permission of city police, erected the waist-high barrier to remind motorists of a more serious one some 7,000 miles distant.

"It is our way of dramatizing that even though it's too late to tear down the real Berlin wall, we must see to it that no Berlin walls are built in Encino or any other place in the free world," Mike McCubbins, 19, a spokesman for the college chapter of the conservative Young Americans for Freedom explained.

Shot Dead

Malcolm X, 39, a Black Nationalist leader, died in a volley of shotgun and pistol fire in a ballroom in New York's Manhattan yesterday and a 22-year-old Negro today faced a homicide charge in the assassination. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Black Nationalist Voice Was Loud

NEW YORK (AP) — In the late '40's, a young Negro convict in the state prison at Charlestown, Mass., got a letter from his brother urging him: "Don't eat any more pork."

"I tried it and I did it, and for the first time in a long while I began to get a little feeling of self-respect," the young convict later recalled.

So began the transformation of Malcolm Little — who learned the city Negro's ways in Boston and Harlem, who went from peddling marijuana to collecting numbers game slips to large-scale burglary to keep a dope habit — into Malcolm X, the loudest and one of the most effective voices of the black nationalist movement.

The advice against eating pork was part of a campaign by Malcolm's brother Reginald and sister Ella to lead the youngster into their new-found religion — the Creed of Islam as taught by Elijah Muhammad. Muhammad said he had received Allah's message and divine guidance by way of a Detroit silk-seller named W. D. Fard.

MOTHER'S SCREAMS
In an autobiography appearing in September in the Saturday Evening Post, Malcolm X recalled two early but still-vivid memories — watching the family home in Lansing, Mich., burn down after white men set fire to it; and the mother's screams when they brought her the news that his father had been killed in a trolley accident.

Malcolm was born in Omaha, Neb., May 19, 1925.
"My mother, who was born in Grenada, in the British West Indies, looked like a white woman. Her father was white. Of this white devil father of hers, I know nothing except her shame about it. I hate every drop of that white rapist's blood in me."

In Milwaukee, Wis., and Lansing, Mich., his father, the Rev. Earl Little, continued to spread the "back to Africa" teachings of the then-famous Marcus Garvey — until his enemies left him half-dead on the trolley tracks.

DETENTION HOME
Later in life, he was sent to a detention home at Mason, Mich., and while in high school was elected class president. Eventually, he lived with his sister Ella in Boston and began his descent to vice and crime and a 10-year term in prison.

He had a five-year affair, he says, with a white woman — a "Beacon Hill chick" — and went from shining shoes to jerking sodas, became a hotel busboy, then a waiter on the New Haven Railroad — and learned to straighten his red hair, wear zoot suits, drink and smoke marijuana.

The railroad job was between Boston and New York, and soon young Malcolm Little was a regular customer at Harlem night spots. A little later he quit the railroad to take a waiter's job in Harlem.

Malcolm X "sold reefer like a wild man," then got a job riding a bus across the George Washington Bridge, picking up a bag of numbers slips, and riding the next bus back. When he collected his own $300 winnings on a number and the runner claimed he hadn't "com'inated" the right number, Malcolm had to head back to Boston.

Networks Had Moon Picture Cliff-Hanger

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's cliff-hanger of the week-end was the news conference carried by CBS and NBC Saturday evening, to show and explain the first moon pictures from Ranger 8.

The two networks cleared a half hour at 7 p.m. EST. The cameras were in position. The press was assembled. The home audiences were waiting. But the pictures were missing.

For minutes that dragged interminably, Dr. William Pickering, director of the Pasadena Jet Propulsion Laboratory, nervously introduced other scientists, explained several times that the films were expected momentarily and, told us a couple of times that the moon-shot had been successful.

Finally, with obvious relief, he reported some people were running in. Then we saw the pictures — and they looked to our uneducated eyes exactly like the earlier Ranger 7 pictures.

Astronomer Gerard Kuiper's explanation of the pictures did not help much because of his dedication to scientific language and Latin terminology.

The Sunday newspapers added considerably more interesting findings. Perhaps the two competing networks would have done better to wait, as did ABC, until they had something more meaningful and meaty to present.

Friday evening's ABC special, "Who Has Seen the Wind?" was a poignant drama of stateless people roving the world desperately in search of a new home. This second in a series was a great improvement on the first. It was magnificently produced, well acted and it explored a little the publicized and humane function of the United Nations.

George Washington's Image Adding Warmth

WASHINGTON CROSSING, Pa. (AP) — That widely held impression of George Washington as a cold fish is at last giving way to a more human and appealing image, a historian said today.

Ann Hawkes Hutton, author of several books and a play about Washington, and chairman of the Washington Crossing Park Commission, said that more and more Americans are finding unexpected warmth in the personality of the father of his country.

"For a long time, she said in an interview, Washington has been overshadowed in the popular imagination by the heart and humor of Abraham Lincoln, the dash of Andrew Jackson, the sophistication of Thomas Jefferson.

"The usual thing," Mrs. Hutton continued, "was to call Washington a great man and let it go at that. Great, but touching no sympathetic chord."
"Now, however, Americans finally are discarding those time-worn ideas of Washington as forbiddingly aloof, coldly remote, a legendary figure rather than one of life and blood, who suffered acutely, who knew what it meant to be hard up and in debt, who was as sensitive as most men to criticism, who was fond of children and grieved that he had none of his own, and had his share of faults.

"Every year we welcome thousands of visitors to this shrine," she said. "They come from all the states and dozens of other countries. They have been telling us the last few years how much more they appreciate the character of Washington, and that they feel he has been misunderstood."
"This is true even among grade school children. Many of these ask keen questions, far removed from that 'Father, I cannot tell a lie' tale, which probably has alienated more people than it has pleased."

Sudan Cabinet Rejects Proposal

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Premier Sir El Khatim El Khalifa's attempt to solve a government crisis by dropping one of the four Communists in his Cabinet has been rejected as insufficient by three rightist parties.

Describing themselves as a united front, the National United party, the Moslem Brothers and the Umma party held out for further reduction or complete elimination of leftist members from the Cabinet.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The U.S. ambassadors to South Viet Nam, Thailand and Laos met in Saigon today in what was described as an American effort to coordinate U.S. policy and to treat Southeast Asia as a unit.
"Borders are no longer so important," a reliable source said, indicating the United States is not looking at the situation in this area only in respect to individual countries.
Ambassadors Graham A. Martin of Thailand and William H. Sullivan of Laos conferred with Ambassador Maxwell D.

Farmers Favor Subsidy Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers want less government control and major changes in most subsidy programs, a private poll says.
The nationally circulated Farm Journal reached these conclusions after sampling 5,000 returns.
Four questions were general. To these, 94 per cent of the sampled replies favored negating the Supreme Court reapportionment decision with a constitutional amendment to let each state apportion one house of its legislature by areas.

Just under two-thirds favored long term payments to retire large areas of crop land nationally. Only 18 per cent wanted more direct payments for farm products, 13 per cent favored fewer direct payments and 43 per cent wanted none at all. The others would leave things as they are.

RESALE LEVELS
About two-thirds favored raising Commodity Credit Corporation resale levels to 115-125 per cent, 10 to 20 per cent above present levels for cotton, wheat and grain.

Seven out of 10 want a "fair practices" law to permit farmer groups to negotiate directly with processors, without fear of reprisals.

Eighty-five per cent asked tighter meat import regulations. The poll sampling showed these responses to specific problem crops by farmers producing them.

Wheat: 25 per cent favored present programs with acreage allotments and cash marketing certificates, 40 per cent favored support prices at 90 per cent of world market prices, no allotments but with rental payments for land retired. The vote for no program at all was 35 per cent.

Arctic Wave Chills Many Areas Further

By The Associated Press
Arctic weather which plunged temperatures below zero in the upper Mississippi Valley and western Great Lakes region spread chill to the Atlantic seaboard today.

The spread of cold covered everywhere east of the Rockies except the extreme Southeast. The low 30s embraced much of Texas.

International Falls, Minn., reported 24 below zero. It was -13 at Marquette, Mich., -11 at Houghton, Mich., and zero at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Madison, Wis. Minneapolis, Minn., had -4.

The mercury dropped from the high 50s Sunday to the low 30s at Washington, D.C., where winds blew 40-mile gusts.

Rain and showers gave way to snow flurries in the northern

Atlantic coastal states. Skies were clear over the Midwest and Great Plains. Swirling snow fell through the northern Rocky Mountain region, and in the Far West, increasing cloudiness and precipitation spread from the Washington and Oregon coast across the intermountain section. Light rains fell from Northern California through western Washington, and there was some snow inland.

Pretrial News Restraint Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A judge, editor and lawyer have urged voluntary efforts to control pretrial publicity as preferable to possible restrictive moves.
Judge J. Skelly Wright of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Alfred Friendly, managing editor of the Washington Post, and Oliver Gasch, president of the District of Columbia Bar Association, appeared on a Sunday television program, "Law on Trial — Trial by News Media" over Washington station WTTG.

Warning against any rigid and authoritarian way of attacking the problem, Friendly said: "I have a feeling that the press at this point is in a mood to re-examine itself and to move toward restraint."

Although officials in Bangkok and in Saigon described it as a "routine meeting," it was the first time all three have met in Saigon, Maj. Gen. Ernest F. Easterbrook, commander of the U.S. adviser group in Thailand, also was there.
The meeting apparently was called in anticipation of Communist drives in South Viet Nam, Laos and Thailand. With the dry season now on in Laos, increased Pathet Lao attacks can be expected, if past experience holds true.

Meets Slated Separately In Dock Talks

GALVESTON (AP)—A government mediator was to meet separately with union and shipper officials today in an attempt to settle a 43-day old dockworker strike in the West Gulf Coast area.

A joint session of negotiators was first scheduled by James J. Reynolds, assistant secretary of labor, but he called this off and announced he would meet separately with each side "at least one more day."

DUE TUESDAY

The next joint session was expected to be called Tuesday.

Reynolds said he felt he could make more progress with the separate meetings.

The West Gulf Coast and South Atlantic districts are the only areas still idle. Some 15,000 longshoremen are on strike in the two districts.

About 80,000 workers in other Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports went back to work several days ago.

TURNUED DOWN

The International Longshoremen's Association has turned down a proposal offered by the West Gulf Maritime Industry. It included an 80-cent pay package in hourly wage raises and fringe benefits over a four-year period.

The contract had conditions, however, under which the industry would control hiring practices and size of work gangs.

The union agreed to the money portion of the contract but rejected the other conditions, thus turning down the entire proposal.

Senate, House Hear Readings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate and House were to meet briefly today for the traditional readings of George Washington's Farewell Address.

Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., was to read the first president's address in the Senate, while Rep. Del. Clawson, R-Calif., was to handle the job in the House.

Prediction of an early adjournment of Congress, possibly by July, came from Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who based it on the pace of committee hearings and speedy Senate approval so far of such measures as the Appalachia aid bill and the presidential succession constitutional amendment.

"The committees are moving ahead nicely and it looks as if we'll have a productive session and early adjournment," the Montana Democrat said in a weekend interview.

In 1956, Congress adjourned July 22 but since then most sessions have run into the fall and winter.

The only scheduled business in the House this week is approval of routine resolutions providing money for legislative committees to hold hearings and investigations during the year.

House committees continue hearings on foreign aid and health care for the aged.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee holds hearings today and Tuesday on a House-passed bill providing the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency with an authorization of $40 million for three years.

Wildcats Favored In SC Tournament

Would Swap 'Nice' Record

By The Associated Press

Lefty Driesell's Davidson Wildcats have won 22 straight games, the longest current streak in major college basketball, but it won't mean a thing if they don't sweep through the Southern Conference championship tournament this week.

"Our record is nice," the Davidson coach said. "But I'd trade it to go through the tournament unbeaten."

Driesell's feelings are understandable because the tournament winner gets an automatic bid to the NCAA playoffs and a chance at the national collegiate championship. And the Wildcats, fifth-ranked nationally, have been upset in the tournament the last two years.

Davidson is favored in the three-day tournament opening Thursday at Charlotte. Oddly, its first-round opponent is Virginia Military, the team that shocked the Wildcats in the semifinals a year ago.

With an over-all 8-12 record to Davidson's 23-1 it hardly seems possible VMI can do it again, but Driesell knows anything happens in this tournament.

Two days before Davidson puts its hopes on the line, the Michigan Wolverines, ranked No. 1 nationally in The Associated Press poll, invade Minneapolis for an acid test against ninth-ranked Minnesota.

With the Gophers only one game behind the Wolverines in the Big Ten race a sellout is expected for the Tuesday night clash. Minnesota beat Michigan in Minneapolis last year and the Gophers, after their first Big Ten title in 27 years, vow to repeat.

The Providence Friars, 19-0, visit Villanova and risk their record as the nation's only unbeaten major team and the Oklahoma State Cowboys, needing a win to protect their shaky Big Eight lead, host the Oklahoma Sooners at Stillwater Tuesday.

The Colorado Buffaloes who upset Oklahoma State 57-54 Saturday and pulled within one game of the Cowboys, entertain Missouri tonight. Also on tap tonight are two vital games in the Southeastern Conference, Georgia at Vanderbilt and Auburn at Tennessee.

Vanderbilt regained the No. 1 spot in the SEC by defeating Florida 60-78 Saturday while Alabama knocked eighth-ranked Tennessee off the top rung 63-55.

Sharing the headlines with the Crimson Tide's upset of Tennessee was Yale's stunning 71-69 victory over Cornell at Ithaca.

Two Points For Celts

Royals Pin Hopes On Lucas' Health

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Royals, all but mathematically eliminated from the title in the Eastern Division, are pinning their hopes for the National Basketball Association playoff championship on the recovery of Jerry Lucas.

And the big man is coming along, slowly perhaps, but coming along. He worked out with the Royals in their pre-game drills before a game in Madison Square Garden Sunday and reported: "I can shoot and I can run, but I have a sharp pain when I try to jump. I'll try it again tomorrow."

He didn't play and the Royals, who had won 15 straight from the hapless New York Knicks over one stretch, lost their second within a week to the New Yorkers, 109-104.

Philadelphia edged the Bulls 107-106 in Baltimore and the home-standing St. Louis Hawks took Detroit 112-107 in other afternoon games.

The Los Angeles Lakers knocked off the touring Boston Celtics 129-114, leaving the Celtics' magic number two. Any combination of two Boston victories and Cincinnati losses will clinch Boston's record ninth straight Eastern Division crown.

Week Of Truth Here For HCJC Jayhawks

It's do-or-die week for the HCJC Jayhawks in the West Junior College Conference race.

Tied with three other schools, San Angelo, South Plains, and Amarillo, the Hawks must win their two remaining games to have a share of the crown.

Tonight the Hawks will take on the Clarendon Bulldogs in Jayhawk gym beginning at 8 p.m. Clarendon is the cellar-dwelling team in the conference, not having won a single game.

In the last several games the Bulldogs have thrown a scare into their opponents. In Amarillo last week the Bulldogs played a close game before losing, 53-48, to Amarillo. Four points separated the teams at halftime, 27-23.

Hawk coach, Buddy Travis, a former Clarendon coach, said the Bulldogs have the talent to win, but just can't seem to get a combination going.

Starting line-up for the Bulldogs will likely be Trospier, Campbell, Johnson, Alexander

LOOKING 'EM' OVER

By TOMMY HART

When HCJC's L. L. (Red) Lewis pops up in Dallas later this week for the banquet honoring Coaches of the Year, he will be introduced by Shelby Metcalf, Texas A&M cage mentor, past winner of the Senior College Coach of the Year honor.

You'd have to call Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves the complete ball player.

In the last eight seasons he has powered 300 homers and batted in a total of 949. In the past five years, he has stolen 165 bases and he is regarded as one of the better fielders among active players.

Pennsylvania will probably be the next state to legalize pari-mutuel betting at race tracks.

Racing ovals in Delaware and Maryland will suffer, too, since they have been attracting fans in great numbers from the nearby Quaker State.

When one-time Big Springs Warren Cantrell steps down as president of the Professional Golf Association, he will be replaced by Max Elbis, who is now the club pro of the Burning Tree Club in Washington, D.C.

Elbis was once a caddy in Cumberland, Md., and when in high school played on a state championship basketball team. He worked under Lew Worscham at one time.

Look for the Dallas Cowboys of the NFL to devote a lot of work toward making a first-rate defensive back out of Larry Franks, the former University of Texas athlete.

San Angelo, Abilene High and Big Spring are already getting support as the basketball teams to beat in District 2-AAAA next season.

The Steers have a wealth of talent back, true, but have yet to develop that toughness required of a champion.

I'm sure Allen Simpson can instill that ruggedness in his boys. The Steers came close to greatness on occasions the past season.

They say in their lighter moments around South Bend, Ind., that Ara Parseghian coached Notre Dame like a Catholic for 523 minutes and 29 seconds the past football season.

The Irish, you will recall, were the nation's No. One collegiate team until they were blown off the field by Southern California's great last half surge. Parseghian is a Protestant coaching at a Catholic school.

Sands and Flower Grove, which met in a playoff for the District 57-B basketball championship this year, should be as good as the best in that sport in their conference for a couple of years to come.

Both schools have some stellar material returning next season.

Finals Today For Golden Gloves Title

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas champions of the Golden Gloves will be decided tonight on a card that calls for 14 fights.

Finalists first will be determined in the flyweight, bantamweight and featherweight classes, then the boys will slam into determining the eight champions who will go to Kansas City March 15-19 for the national tournament, at which Texas is defending team champion.

Among those who appear certain to go is Jesse Valdez, the Houston schoolboy who is national AAU welterweight champion and defending state titlist.

Valdez has been regarded as one of the best ever to appear in the tournament now in its 29th year. He's so classy they think he could beat anybody in the tournament no matter what the class.

His foe in the finals tonight is Jim Miller of Corpus Christi.

Two other former champions also are in the spotlight. One is Fred Garcia of Plainview, who won the national bantamweight title in 1963. He meets Rudy Benitez of Odessa in a flyweight semifinal bout opening tonight's program.

Joe Gracie of Tyler and Ronald Hernandez of San Antonio are in the other semifinal.

Manuel Navarro of Austin, national bantamweight champion last year, is fighting in the featherweight class. He goes against Donald Jones of Fort Worth in a semifinal. Jesse Avalos Jr. of Corpus Christi clashes with Oscar Albarado of San Antonio in the other.

The bantamweight semifinals send Richard Cole of Dallas against Gary Swinney of Tyler and Eddie Gonzales of Plainview against Jimmy Arteaga of Fort Worth.

BEAT BAYLOR

Tech Can Sew Up SWC Title

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

Associated Press Sports Writer

Texas Tech's boisterous Red Raiders, traveling at an 88.3 points per game pace, can sew up the Southwest Conference basketball championship this week if they get the proper cooperation from Rice or Baylor.

First, they must beat Baylor and second Rice or Baylor must beat Southern Methodist to make all this come about. Also, Texas Tech must lick Texas Christian, which, however, doesn't seem too high a hurdle being as TCU has been beaten by almost everybody.

Texas lashed Texas 87-73 and Rice 77-67 last week to rest on top of the race with a 9-1 record and four games to play.

Southern Methodist also won two games, edging Texas Christian 82-85 and Texas Tech 73-70, to hang in second place, two games behind the fast-moving Red Raiders.

Texas Tech plays Baylor at Waco Tuesday night and will have a double incentive. Baylor is the only team able to beat Texas Tech.

Southern Methodist hosts Rice which has won only one game but has given the best of them trouble. Saturday night, for instance, the Owls had Tech in a fog most of the way before losing.

Charles Has Four Stroke Tucson Win

Charles almost took off last week from his work as a pro golfer but he'll relax this week instead, $6,800 richer for waiting a few days.

The former British Open champion entered the $40,000 Tucson Open tournament five minutes before the deadline and trailed by five strokes going into the final round.

Five strokes back at 266 was Don January, who has won the Tucson Open twice. January closed with a brilliant 63 Sunday on the 7,200-yard, par-72 Tucson National Club golf course.

Bill Casper Jr., top over-all money winner on the tour this year, was a stroke behind January at 277.

Charles had just about decided to pass up the Tucson event because he was tired after six straight weeks on the tour.

"However, my game was in good shape and I didn't have anywhere to go," he said. "So I decided I might as well come down here and take the week off."

The $6,800 paycheck boosted Charles to the top of the heap in official 1965 earnings with $13,575. Rod Funseth, winner of the Phoenix Open, had $12,000 and Casper $11,727.

Ralston Suggests Davis Cup Plans

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Dennis Ralston has some suggestions for U.S. Davis Cup officials if they're really intent on getting the trophy back from Australia.

The suggestions are these: 1. Name a Davis Cup captain immediately — preferably Bill Talbert.

2. Return Pancho Gonzales as coach.

3. Persuade the semi-retired Chuck McKinley to stay on the team as a doubles player.

"Something should be done right away — we should have a captain, get a squad and start organizing," America's No. 1 ranking player from Bakersfield, Calif., said. "The longer we sit, the worse are our chances."

Ralston was in an expansive mood in the Salisbury Civic Center after losing the National Indoor tennis championship final Sunday to Jan-Erik Lundquist, the Swedish Davis Cup star, 4-6, 13-11, 6-4, 11-9.

On the match itself, the crew-cut Californian had no excuses. "Jan simply played better," he explained. "His serve was awfully tough and he kept the pressure on me from the start."

While it isn't absolutely certain that Tech will win the championship, a lot of talk has arisen over chances of the conference in the NCAA playoffs.

And Texas Tech is given a good chance of going places in the event it is the conference representative.

There also are prospects that that team will get a bye directly to the regional tournament instead of a playoff. However, if there is a playoff Tex's Tech would have some advantage in view of the fact that a district elimination would be on the Tech home court.

Schollander Gets Additional Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Olympic swimming champion Don Schollander keeps piling up awards.

Accclaimed as The Associated Press Male Athlete of the Year for his four gold medals at Tokyo, Schollander today holds the James E. Sullivan award, given to America's top amateur athlete.

Schollander received his latest award Sunday from Clifford H. Buck, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, at a luncheon at the New York Athletic Club. The award is presented by the AAU each year.

The 18-year-old Yale University freshman from Lake Oswego, Ore., is the second youngest athlete ever to receive the Sullivan Award. Decathlon star Bob Mathias was six months younger than Schollander when he was honored in 1948.

Cindy Lou Is Trials Winner

Cindy Lou, a lemon and white female English pointer, owned and handled by Lee Freeze of Big Spring, took first place in Saturday's Permian Bird Dog and Sportsman's Club Winter "Shoot to Kill" Field trial.

The winning dog racked up a total of 305 points in the three categories, pointing, backing and retrieving, to claim top honors.

Second place went to L. M. McWhorter, Abilene, and his orange and white male Britany spaniel, Tiger. The second place dog totaled 270 points.

Another Big Spring man, Leslie Lloyd, topped third place with his dog, Jack, a lemon and white male English pointer. The third place dog totaled 245 points.

Thirty points were awarded for each productive point by the dog. An additional 25 points were awarded to the animal backing or honoring another dog's point, while 25 points were awarded for each retrieve.

Ed Edwards of Big Spring was the judge for the event. The trials were held on the Graves "Flying G" Hunting resort located near Vincent, 27 miles northeast of Big Spring. About 65 persons attended the trials and a number of dogs from San Angelo, Sweetwater and Abilene, were entered.

Bi-District Tilt Here

Howard County Junior College Jayhawk gym is the site for the bi-district clash between two Class AA schools, Crane and Winters.

The game is slated to get underway at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night. Tickets will be sold at the door only. Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

The winner of the Tuesday night game will qualify for the AA Regional tournament at Lubbock next weekend.

Winters has a 23-4 season record and 11-2 district play record. The two district losses came from Anson, 63-60, and Ballinger, 72-62. Winters defeated Ballinger Friday night, 67-62, in a 5-AA district playoff game.

Crane won the 6-AA championship without a district loss. Their closest rival in the district race had a 3-3 record. Jack Gotthard is the coach of the Crane teams and Jerry Cunningham is the mentor at Winters.

State Meet Picks Due

By The Associated Press

They pick the teams for the state schoolboy basketball tournament this week, and there are 173 district champions seeking the 22 places that come from five divisions.

There can be only one repeating state champion and even this is clouded, McCado, kimpin of Class B, won its district title and is in the playoffs. But McCado still has quite a way to go — bi-district and regional tournament.

Houston Austin of Class AAAA, Graham of Class AAA, Canyon of Class AA and Talco of Class A failed to make it back to the playoffs.

Bi-district games are scheduled tonight and Tuesday night, then will come the regional tournaments unless some of the regions choose to play it out on an individual team basis.

In Class AAAA the teams pair like this in the bi-district round: El Paso vs. Midland Lee, Pampa vs. Fort Worth, Haltom, Fort Worth Arlington Heights vs. Marshall, Houston Jones vs. Houston Memorial, Beaumont French vs. Texas City, Austin McCallum vs. Kingsville, San Antonio Lee vs. San Antonio Brackenridge.

In Class AAA it's Dumas vs. Seminole, Levelland vs. Brownwood, Mineral Wells vs. Sulphur Springs, Kilgore vs. Waxahachie, West Orange vs. Houston Furr, Wharton vs. Clear Creek, Belton vs. San Marcos, San Antonio Marshall vs. Weslaco.

Sands And Pyote Playoff Tuesday

MIDLAND — The Class B playoff game between Sands High School and Pyote will be played Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Midland Lee gym here.

Sands is the winner of 87-B by virtue of a win over Flower Grove, 61-53, Friday night in Lamesa. Pyote, the winner of 88-B, has an 18-4 season record and a 7-1 district record.

Grelle Wins Indoor Mile Race Third Time This Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Grelle may not be the best miler in the world, but there are few who would argue that the lean Californian is the best 4:07 miler around.

The veteran from Los Angeles has won three major mile races on the indoor circuit this season, and each was tailor-made for him. The fastest was 4:07.1.

"That's fine, just fine," Grelle said today. "If they want to set a slow pace, it's fine with me. I'm happy to lay back there and let them plod — then kick with them. I can kick with 'most anyone."

That was his strategy Saturday when he loafed along in the slow-moving pack for 16 of the 11 laps of the AAU indoor chamampionship mile at Madison Square Garden, then started his kick.

He whipped past the front-running Witold Baran of Poland just at the gun and took it going away by five yards. The time was 4:07.4.

It was his third victory on the indoor circuit this season. The others were 4:07.1 in the New York A.C. Games, and a plodding 4:13.2 in the Toronto Maple Leaf Games.

The AAU championships Friday and Saturday followed suit. Only four factors lifted the meet out of the ordinary. There was an excellent six flat 60-yard dash by Fordham's Sam Perry; Hal Connolly's 76-1/2 weight throw, second best on record;

Keeling Won't Go To Borger

TULLIA, Tex. (AP) — Jimmie Keeling said Sunday night he would not go to Borger as head football coach but would remain at Tullia.

Keeling, announced as taking the place of Gene Mayfield at Borger, told radio station KTUE he had thought it over and had decided to stay here where he has been coaching four years.

Mayfield resigned at Borger to go to Odessa Permian.

Keeling has a 31-10 record at Tullia High School, winning one district championship. He had won a district title at Dublin before coming here.

Pope Creates New Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI created 27 new cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church today, bringing the membership of the College of Cardinals to an all-time high of 103.

Creation of the new cardinals — including three from Communist nations, three Middle East patriarchs, and prelates from the Americas, Africa and Asia — gave the college its widest international representation. Forty-one countries are now represented.

For the formal creation of the 27 new cardinals, Pope Paul and 36 members of the college met in the Apostolic Palace's Consistorial Hall. The Pope announced nomination of the 27 on Jan. 25, but approval of the other cardinals was required.

East German Chief Sails Toward Egypt

CAIRO (AP) — East German President Walter Ulbricht sailed toward Egypt today for the visit with President Gamal Abdel Nasser that has produced a crisis in relations between West Germany and the Arabs.

Ulbricht flew Sunday to Dubrovnik, the Yugoslav coastal resort, and boarded an East German ship for the trip. The vessel is due in Alexandria Wednesday, and Ulbricht will go by train to Cairo for an official welcome from Nasser.

The Bonn government fears Ulbricht's visit may mean the United Arab Republic plans to recognize the Communist East German regime despite West German threats to cut economic aid and break relations with Cairo.

ACCUSES U.S.
Nasser told a rally Sunday the United States was at the bottom of the United Arab Republic's feud with Bonn over shipment of West German arms to Israel. Nasser charged that Washington organized "an international conspiracy" to send Israel arms via West Germany because "it did not want to do it openly."

He said Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government gave in to pressure from the United States against the wishes of the West German people. "If it is not independent, then we will have to deal with it on that basis," Nasser declared.

HALTS SHIPMENTS
West Germany halted arms shipments to Israel because of Nasser's objections.

The government-controlled Cairo press said leaders of the Arab world would draw up a statement warning that any West German reprisals against the U.A.R. would be viewed as actions against the entire Arab world.

Draft Policy Changes Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara strongly hints he will recommend a change in draft policies when he reports to President Johnson on the problem in April.

McNamara, in a report to the House Armed Services Committee on the nation's military strength, indicated that some modification will be necessary in the Selective Service System because of a growing surplus in draft-age men.

And that, he observed, compounds the difficulty of deciding fairly which young men will be called up and when.

"But it all depends on how many questions the committee members ask him," a committee source said.

The defense secretary noted that President Johnson had ordered the manpower study last April.

"All reasonable alternatives to the present system, including the possibility of meeting our requirements on an entirely voluntary basis at some time in the next decade, are being explored," McNamara said.

McNamara didn't mention it but one problem has already arisen. Just the knowledge that a possible end of the draft is being considered, the Pentagon reports, has led to a drop in Army enlistments and a corresponding increase in the draft quota.

"While all our experience since the end of World War II underscores the important role of the draft in the proper manning of our armed forces, the large increase in the number of young men reaching draft age (18 years), beginning in 1967, will create a difficult problem of managing the draft in an equitable manner," the defense secretary said.

prelates waiting at four Catholic establishments in the city.

One group, at the North American Pontifical College, included two new cardinals from North America — Archbishop Lawrence Shehan of Baltimore and Maurice Roy of Quebec.

The three cardinals from Communist lands are Archbishop Franjo Šeper of Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Josef Beran of Prague, Czechoslovakia, and Josef Šlipý, primate of Ukrainian Catholics.

Archbishop Beran came to Rome last Friday after 16 years of confinement in Czechoslovakia.

He will remain in Rome. Archbishop Šlipý has been living in Rome since he was released from confinement in Siberia two years ago.

FIRST SINCE 1953
They were the first prelates from Communist lands to be made cardinals since 1953.

The 27th new cardinal, Bishop Angel Herrera y Oria of Malaga, Spain, was not in Rome in accordance with the tradition for Catholic countries, he will receive his insignia from the Spanish chief of state, Generalissimo Franco.

Also among the new cardinals were three Middle East patriarchs and the second Negro elevated to the college, Archbishop Paul Zougrana of Upper Volta. The patriarchs are Maximos IV Salih, Melchite Patriarch of Antioch; Paul Pierre Meouchi, Maronite Patriarch of Antioch, and Stephanos I Sidarous, Coptic patriarch of Alexandria.

The traditional week-long round of ceremonies and pomp was drastically reduced and streamlined.

One of the chief ceremonies of the consistories, the conferring of the broad-brimmed red galero hat which cardinals never wear, was eliminated entirely.

Texas Chilly, Mostly Fair

By The Associated Press

Cold Arctic air rushed out over the Gulf of Mexico today, leaving Texas chilly but mostly fair.

The fast-moving front blew into the Panhandle early Sunday and had raced beyond Brownsville this morning.

Thousands of swimmers

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Monday, Feb. 22, 1965 7-A swarmed over Galveston beaches Sunday afternoon in 80-degree weather while Amarillo shivered with a high of only 39.

Gusty winds accompanying the frontal system whipped up to 45 miles an hour in parts of North Texas and damaged a car wash structure at Denison. Damage was estimated at $15,000.

Skies should be clear to partly cloudy through Tuesday with a few showers developing in coastal regions by tonight.

Warmer air is expected to spread across the northern half of the state late today, the Weather Bureau said.

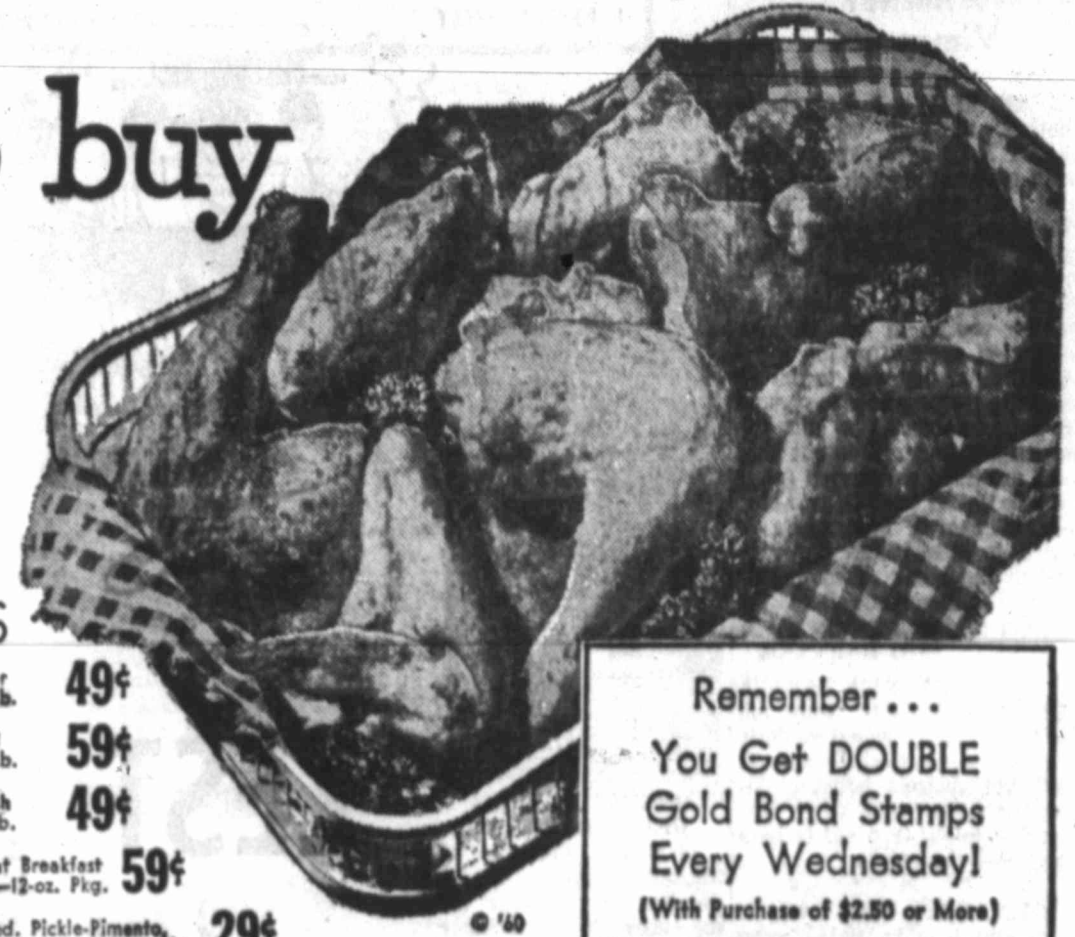

Early morning lows ranged from 26 at Childress and 27 at Amarillo and Dalhart to the 50s in extreme South Texas.

Dear Abby

Another Viewpoint

DEAR ABBY: I don't know whether to feel sorrier for ABOUT HAD IT or his wife for being married to such a milque-toast. He cries that she won't "let" him go deer hunting, although he always loved to. And you, of course, advised him to knuckle under. It is about par for the course in this female-dominated society for the woman to simpler her way to the altar while plotting how to remold her man as soon as he slips the ring on her finger. I do not hunt and I am happily married (as is my wife). And you, Dear Abby, are guilty of a bum piece of advice in this instance, which goes to the heart of something far more important than the question of deer hunting.

50-50 PARTNER

IN SAN RAFAEL
DEAR PARTNER: Bum advice? I certainly would hesitate to advise a man who wants to hunt, but doesn't because his wife won't "let" him, to go anyway. She might turn out to be a better shot than he is.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 15 I got into trouble and I gave my baby to my father and stepmother. I didn't really want to, but I had no choice. They were both in their late 30's and my stepmother wasn't able to have children of her own. I signed some papers, so I imagine my child was legally adopted by them. I married at 19. That was six years ago. I don't seem to be able to have children and I would like to have my little girl back to raise as my own, as that is the way God intended it to be. My husband knows that the little girl I call my baby sister is my illegitimate child, and he is crazy about her. My stepmother has taken to drinking lately and this child is not being given the kind of home I could give her. She seems shy and withdrawn, and I know she loves me. It tears me apart every time I see her. Should I try to regain custody of the child who is rightfully mine? Have I grounds?
DEAR WANTS MY BABY
DEAR WANTS: See a lawyer and give him the facts. But if you expect to regain custody of the child on the grounds that her parents are "unfit," you'd better have the evidence cold.

DEAR ABBY: As a member of the ABILENE (Tex.) "SLIMMIN' TOPS," I want to thank you for telling "FAT AND DISGUSTED" to join TOPS (TAKE OFF POUNDS SENSIBLY). One of my four children was confined to bed for 18 months with an illness. During that time I ate and ate and ate. Naturally, I gained and gained and gained. My doctor advised me to join TOPS. I did, and in eight months I lost 66 pounds! I have 31 more pounds to lose, but I'm determined to do it. I can't say enough for what TOPS has done for me.
B. R. IN ABILENE

DEAR ABBY: In answer to FAT AND DISGUSTED'S cry for help, you suggested she look into TOPS (TAKE OFF POUNDS SENSIBLY). I have heard that they have helped many, but I have another suggestion:
It's a club called "OVER-EATERS ANONYMOUS." Don't laugh, please. Compulsive eaters suffer from the same type of illness that compulsive drinkers suffer from, and "OA" has the solution to this problem. I know because it worked for me and for many of my friends. We help each other, just as alcoholics who belong to "AA" help each other. If anyone wishes more information about our group, the address is: P.O. BOX No. 3372, BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.

Wegner Moves Up In Rodeo Ranking

DENVER — Pint-sized Bob Wegner, 30, Auburn, Wash., 1964's world champion bull rider, Monday moved to third in 1965's title race. He had been running fifth.
Wegner shoved his season's winnings to $3,270 after collecting $714 at the annual Silver Spurs rodeo in Yuma, Ariz., Sunday, the Rodeo Cowboys Association here reported.
Current leader for 1965's bull riding crown is Ken Stanton, 23, Weiser, Idaho, with $4,057. Wegner copped 1964's championship with a total $20,397 for that season.
Jim Anderson, 28, Cave Creek, Ariz., rancher, was top money grabber at Yuma, the R.C.A. said, with $1,426. Anderson won calf roping, posting 24.7 seconds total time on two calves and was second in steer team tying.

Still Looks For Answers To Winter Tomato Crop

By JOE PICKLE
A year ago, Johnny Johansen thought he might have the answers of how to raise tomatoes here for the winter market. Now, he is still confident that it is practical, but less certain about all the answers. "I guess I had beginner's luck," he mused. "Everything went right, and I made nearly a ton of tomatoes in this little hothouse."

But this year the yield has been sharply off, although the vines have a lot of tomatoes on them. If these mature and if the vines continue to fruit, he may yet make a lot of pounds. Johansen started the experiment on a plot of land he owns on what formerly was the Baptist Encampment grounds, just south of the Cosden (National) Little League Park on US 87 south. He built a framework of 2x4s for a 25x40 house and covered it with polyethylene film. For heat, he utilized a second-hand residential central heating unit with thermostatic controls.

The soil was bolstered with some manure, and he spotted the Michigan-olive hybrid plants about three feet apart in rows three feet apart. After a heavy mid-winter yield, the plants fell off and he fertilized them—so much that he feared that they had been hopelessly burned. With nothing to lose, he turned the water on and soon the vines were growing and fruiting so that they continued to make tomatoes until the last of May.

Total output from the plot was 1,850 pounds, and of course most of it was during the months when vine-ripened tomatoes

THESE TOMATOES DON'T KNOW IT'S WINTER
Part of crop putting on hothouse venture draw premium prices. This year he changed his planting program to 18-inches in the rows, 18-inches apart, then skipped 42 inches for the next pair of rows. Some of the plants didn't grow off like the previous year, but eventually he got a good stand. About the time the plants came into production, some youngsters got into the house and turned up the thermostat so that the vines were badly burned. They still look pretty ragged but with green and ripening tomatoes are showing signs of coming out of it. So far, Johansen has harvested over 200 pounds.

The framework must be covered every year, and this costs about $50. Then there is the matter of water and gas. Johansen estimates that if production can be brought up to a ton a year off a piece of ground the size of his present operation, that it will be a profitable one. He believes it can be done, and he believes it to the point he is thinking about increasing the size of the hot house.

Meanwhile, Johansen figures he still has a lot to learn about how it should be done.

Death Penalty Foes See Hope

By LEE JONES
AUSTIN (AP) — Foes of the death penalty say the chances of tossing Texas' electric chair on the scrap heap are the best in years.

Rep. Charles Whitfield of Houston introduced last week a bill to abolish capital punishment. Nine House members signed as co-sponsors — the most in recent legislative history.

"There is quite a bit of movement in the direction of reducing the death penalty," said Rob Cogswell, secretary of the Texas Society to Abolish Capital Punishment. "Juries are handing down fewer death sentences, and the difficulty in empaneling juries indicates people are more reluctant to impose capital punishment."

Past attempts to abolish the death penalty have been opposed by law enforcement officials, including county and district attorneys. They argued the penalty discourages would-be murderers, rapists and armed robbers. Bills to end the penalty died in the house in 1961 and 1963 without coming to a vote. In 1963 — the latest full year for which statistics are available — 21 executions were carried out in the United States. Texas had — more than any other state — four.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — George Washington does not observe his birthday today, but he goes along with those who think he does.

George Washington resides in suburban Kenmore and was born Feb. 9, 1797, in Stony Creek, Ont.

"Without fail, I get a dozen or more phone calls every year at this time wishing me happy birthday," says the Kenmore Washington.

Tower Wants 'Rallying Call' On Viet Nam

WACO (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., applauded today administration action in Viet Nam and proposed "a rallying call from our President" spelling out foreign policy.

"At long last, and by bits and pieces, we begin to get the word (from the administration) that we mean business in Southeast Asia, and I for one applaud the decision," Tower said in a speech at Baylor University.

"I would welcome a rallying call from our President, spelling out for all Americans just exactly what and who we are combatting in Viet Nam and around the world."

"Perhaps it would work wonders with those members of the president's party who insist that now is the time to pull up stakes and get out of Southeast Asia," Tower said.

Tower noted that "not so many months ago, those of us who advocated a little firmer policy in Viet Nam were accused of being trigger happy. Nothing could have been further from the truth. Ours was the realization that things could not continue as they were going at that time without the eventual loss of Southeast Asia to Communism."

Drive-In Fuss Rages In Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas city councilwoman and candidate for mayor says "something must be done" to protect a drive-in owner from financial ruin at the hands of arrogant teenagers.

Mrs. Elizabeth Blessing invited H. J. Bartee, the beleaguered businessman, to tell his story to the Dallas City Council at today's meeting.

Bartee, who owns Jolly John's, a $100,000 hamburger-and-soda-pop drive-in located in what he calls "the best part of Dallas," told the Dallas News he lost $2,000 because of the unruly teenagers last month alone.

He said he would be completely broke in a few weeks unless the harassment were curtailed.

Bartee charged that teenagers in new shiny automobiles congregated at his establishment, take up all the 50 parking stalls and generally discourage any adult trade.

"What's happening around my drive-in is unbelievable until you've seen it for yourself. The teenagers have run off my adult trade, at night especially; and now even the afternoon

Johnsons At Kentucky U. Convocation

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — President Johnson comes to the heart of the bluegrass country today to address the University of Kentucky centennial Founders Day convocation.

Johnson will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from University President John Oswald, then speak to a full house at the 11,117-seat Memorial Coliseum during his two-hour afternoon stay.

SEE FARMS
Mrs. Johnson also is making the trip. They will see horse-breeding farms, agricultural experimental farms operated by the university, a residential area with a new shopping center and one of the community's newest hospitals.

Historians say that this is something of a homecoming for Johnson whose ancestry bears a Kentucky strain dating to 1764 and Margaret Ament, his great-great-grandmother. Mrs. Ament was born and is buried in nearby Bourbon County.

Although this is termed a nonpolitical visit, Johnson has said he was pleased with his plurality in Kentucky — a record 296,652 votes — in the past election.

During the convocation ceremony, the university will present distinguished alumni centennial awards to 81 living and 24 deceased graduates.

A Devotional For The Day

The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God. (Romans 8:16)
PRAYER: Our Father, help us to know beyond a shadow of doubt that Thou art near. By the witness of the Holy Spirit may we have positive proof that we are Thy children. In the Master's name. Amen.

Sidetracking State Tax Exit

A small group of state senators are challenging Gov. John Connally's effort — and the sound post-World War II trend — toward getting the state out of property taxation. Certainly the Legislature should override their stand.

After a six-year study, the Legislature's Texas Commission on State and Local Tax Policy in 1962 recommended that the state phase out its ad valorem taxation. The reasons: (1) Local government heavily dependent on that revenue source needs all it can provide. (2) State property taxation cannot be equitably administered; and so long as the state is in the field, county tax equalization is discouraged. (3) The state can make up the revenue loss from fairer levies more efficiently collected.

Gov. Connally has urged the current session to begin the state's withdrawal from that tax source. The 5-cent portion of the 42-cent state rate that finances college building would be abandoned in 1968, with building funds after that appropriated from general revenue. That 1968 cutoff date is important, because that is the year that bonds now secured by the 5-cent rate will be paid off. (College building bond issues are authorized and allocated every 10 years.)

Several senators are trying to throw a monkey wrench in that plan. They are offering a constitutional amendment to continue the college building bond state property tax rate, increase it to 10 cents, and add four more colleges to the beneficiaries. The effect would be to postpone the state's getting out of ad valorem field for at least 10 years beyond 1968, if not indefinitely.

We hope the Legislature will refuse to submit their amendment proposal to the people, a move that would upset the plan for orderly abandonment of state property taxation.

Ticklish Sunday Law

Another attempt will be made during this session of the Legislature to pass a constitutional "Sunday-closing" law. The law passed by the last Legislature was found defective in a test case from Nueces County.

Yet it will not be easy to write a law that the courts will uphold. For legislation in the field of religion and morality is a tricky task.

Even if a majority of the people believe — as they apparently do — that most businesses should be closed on Sunday, it does not follow automatically that the majority is right. A gasoline refinery or an aluminum plant, for instance, is set up for continuous operations — interruptions can be quite costly. A dairy cannot close on Sundays, both because cows must be milked and people need milk on Monday.

Sentiment for Sunday closing laws arises primarily in retail merchandising. If one retailer closes on Sunday, another who stays open is often classified as an "unfair" competitor. If all would agree to close there would be no problem.

It is only when the field of exceptions is entered that the real problems arise. If religious scruples persuade one merchant to close on Saturday, rather than Sunday, provision must somehow be made to accommodate him. Some items, such as medicines, must be made available on Sunday. But where do you draw the line? The sale of a car on Sunday might conceivably be an "emergency" sale and thus exempted.

Those who conclude that the framing of a constitutional law on Sunday closing is a simple matter just haven't explored the problem with any care.

Holmes Alexander The 'Gimmick' Never Works

WASHINGTON — Admiral Arleigh Burke, the Navy's old sea lion, probably didn't know he was a "conservative" till he retired after three unprecedented terms as Chief of Naval Operations (1955-61), having served his country in war and peace without playing any politics. But Burke was always a fundamentalist in action and thought. This quality has landed him firmly in the right wing echelon since he left military service.

may be judged by such remarks as these from top-level Britishers:

"MLF IS MILITARY nonsense . . . (the) present mixed man trial . . . the 'Ricketts' is heartily disliked . . . (The French) probably will be out of NATO by 1969 and will take Germany with them. If so . . . what will happen to keep Germany tied across the Atlantic?"

Admiral Burke, asked by his interviewer to comment on these remarks, considered them the unfortunate result of our gimmick policy, which pretends to offer what it can't deliver, but the admiral is no man to give up a ship.

"NATO WILL BE around for a long while. Peacetime alliances are usually short-lived. NATO has been the exception because we have paid more than our share, have made sacrifices to convince the Allies of our firm intentions and have sent the very finest men as Supreme Commanders."

Directness and fundamentalism make the best foreign policy, says the admiral, whose seamanship was a straight course toward the enemy.

BURKE WAS telling this interviewer what he'd do about South Viet Nam ("Send American troops to put a bayonet into the Communists' backside—and shove!") and he was equally unequivocal about how to save a deteriorating situation in Europe ("Be direct! Never use gimmicks!").

The "gimmick" that irks him is the now-fading American policy for the MLF (multilateral nuclear force). It has done so much to divide us from our European Allies that some of our spokesmen feel it has doomed NATO.

"IT WAS a military manipulation to solve a political problem. I don't want to say it was deceitful—but it was indirect."

The political purpose was to give the Allies the illusion of controlling the delivery of nuclear weapons, and thereby to dissuade them from making nuclear weapons of their own. The illusion took the form of manning a showboat—the USS "Ricketts," a guided missile destroyer—with a mixed crew of West Germans, Greeks, Italians, Netherlands, British and Americans.

THE STUNT has failed to impress the Allies—has irritated them, in fact—because the United States still keeps exclusive control of the nuclear "trigger." Bad military practice has not made good politics in this case.

Some of this irritation against the American policy of trickery was heard last month at the Ditchley Conference near Oxford, England, where American and British leaders met to exchange ideas on post-election matters in both nations. Since the four-day gathering was off-record and not covered by reporters, I do not attach names to quotations, although I obtained a typescript to show to Admiral Burke. The tone of the meeting was judged by such remarks as these from top-level Britishers:

"MLF IS MILITARY nonsense . . . (the) present mixed man trial . . . the 'Ricketts' is heartily disliked . . . (The French) probably will be out of NATO by 1969 and will take Germany with them. If so . . . what will happen to keep Germany tied across the Atlantic?"

Admiral Burke, asked by his interviewer to comment on these remarks, considered them the unfortunate result of our gimmick policy, which pretends to offer what it can't deliver, but the admiral is no man to give up a ship.

"NATO WILL BE around for a long while. Peacetime alliances are usually short-lived. NATO has been the exception because we have paid more than our share, have made sacrifices to convince the Allies of our firm intentions and have sent the very finest men as Supreme Commanders."

Directness and fundamentalism make the best foreign policy, says the admiral, whose seamanship was a straight course toward the enemy.

Billy Graham

My husband has become very irritable and discourteous to me in recent years. I love him very much but I believe I am losing his love. I don't know what to do.

Mrs. C.

Certainly husbands and wives should be courteous to one another. It often happens that men are courteous to every person in the world, except their wives. A husband seems to think that he has the privilege of taking out on his wife all the irritation and all the disappointments he has kept bottled up during the day.

There are wives who are polite to every other friend but are as irritable as shrews to their husbands. Someone has said, "Woman is either a prayer from heaven or a howl from hell." I am sure that it is the part of wisdom as well as the part of Christian courtesy never to neglect in the home the little courtesies of life. Never be less a gentleman or less a lady in the home than in public.

Billy Sunday, the great evangelist, once said, "If you want your wife to be an angel, don't treat her like the devil." However, you should look at yourself. Perhaps certain things you are saying and doing, of which you may be unconscious, have been causing your husband to neglect you, to be discourteous and irritable. If he is not a Christian, then you should by all means spend much time in prayer and live carefully and diligently before him that he will see Christ in you. If he is a Christian, then certainly he is not as yielded a Christian as should be. On the other hand, it could be a physical problem. Many times certain glands are out of order or the liver is not right or there is pressure on a nerve somewhere. Check all the spiritual and physical points in both your lives and above all pray together.

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Duffers, take heart, Bobby Nichols, the Louisville golfer pro and 1964 PGA champion who has played golf almost daily since he was 12, never has had a hole-in-one.

James Marlow Republicans Still Disconnected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The idea of political parties worried George Washington and in his farewell address he warned against the danger of them. If he were alive today he might not like Democrats or Republicans.

But it's the Republicans who would puzzle him more. They look just as disconnected now as they did in the 1964 campaign.

The Democrats, at least, are organized and know what they stand for: big government and government responsibility for the general welfare. The voters gave them overwhelming approval.

Sen. Barry Goldwater was against that. So when he lost, in one of the worst defeats in history, the Republicans, badly divided over him, had the job of trying to resurrect the party and decide what they stand for.

THEY WON'T resurrect the party unless they can unify it. It isn't clear they have achieved that. And it certainly isn't clear they've agreed on what they stand for.

Last year Goldwater and his handpicked brain trust were the constant critics of things as they are but were almost totally lacking on the constructive side in offering specific solutions for what ailed the country.

Before he got into the race Goldwater was positive on many things. Once in, he became vague, hedged on some of his unpopular previous statements, and used an extraordinary amount of time insisting he was not irresponsible.

This didn't add to the voters' enlightenment.

LAST WEEK some prominent Republicans discussed the party's future at a four-day session of the Young Republican National Leadership Training School. That wasn't very enlightening, either.

Sidney Captain, a GOP finance chairman from Baltimore, had some suggestions on how to raise campaign funds.

Successful political fund raising, he said, begins at a cocktail party with "plenty of booze and plenty of charming girls floating around so there'll be no arguments."

Captain is a fund-raiser, not an idea man. But one of Goldwater's idea men, in fact his right-hand man, Republican National Chairman Dean Burch, tried his hand at resurrecting the party.

He told the Republicans, among other things, to establish themselves in the South but he warned against racial appeals.

Instead, he suggested the party appeal to the economic conservatism of the average Southerner.

THE GOP House leader, Rep. Gerald R. Ford Jr. of Michigan, didn't criticize Burch but he blamed an "unfortunate image" of the party for lack of wider appeal to various segments of the electorate, including young people and minority groups.

Hal Boyle Fish Skin Stockings

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a communist might never know if he didn't open his mail: In Eskimoland you don't bring your best girl a box of candy, you give her a pair of stockings made of salmon skin.

Science has done much to increase the longevity of the young, but hasn't really added much to the life span of those in their elder years. Around 1900 a man of 90 could look forward to living 5.10 more years on the average; the figure for an 80-year-old man today has risen only to 5.90.

ONE OF the diseases of modern living is the "boredom headache." Doctors say thousands get it every day.

The heaviest coffee drinkers are those between 40 and 50, about 4.33 cups a day.

Most women love dinky little ashtrays; most men think they are a nuisance. Well, they are more than a nuisance — they're a danger. About one-third of the 95,000 fires in the home attributed to careless smoking are blamed on unsafe ashtrays.

A SWEDISH color specialist claims you are 10 times less likely to get in an accident if you drive a pink instead of a black car.

Quotable notables: "America is a large, friendly dog in a very small room. Every time it wags its tail, it knocks over a chair." — historian Arnold Toynbee.

Around The Rim How To Build A Playground

Cities this size can't spend money on their public parks with the reckless abandon used by the budget committees behind Disneyland and Six Flags Over Texas but they might follow the example of Leonard Katoski, superintendent of parks in Waterloo, Iowa.

Katoski has called his adventure the Robinson Crusoe Island project and he has been developing the playground since 1959.

Since that time features have been added until, with the help of other agencies within the city, the Waterloo Park Department can boast of a colorful playground area.

WHEN DREDGING created a channel setting off an island in the Cedar River, Katoski knew that this was too good a setting to pass up.

He started with native materials and a lot of ingenuity, features were designed and built to transform the island into a place where the children and the young in heart let their imaginations run wild.

A newly installed sound system with two endless tapes adds to the atmosphere with jungle sounds, drums and occasional cry reminiscent of Tarzan.

A WRECKED SHIP stands marooned on a sandy beach. A pirate's treasure chest, half-buried wooden kegs painted with strange Spanish names are very much in evidence.

A huge mud turtle sleeping in the sun is close at hand. Animals growl.

Bird calls emanate from somewhere in the underbrush. Native tom-toms sound in the distance.

Callers can climb a fort, strategically placed for self defense of the island against roving head hunters. A three-level tree house, identified as Crusoe's summer home, is included in the scheme.

IT'S POSSIBLE to crawl through a hollow log or into a small cave, dug specifically for the small fry.

You can take the Jungle Trail to the shipwreck, stopping along the way to swing Tarzan-like through the trees on simulated vines made of heavy rubberized cable.

You meet a well-made-up witch doctor in the jungle, which in reality is just a voodoo mask painted on a tree.

You can stop to drink from a waterfall dropping from a huge pile of boulders.

A PICNIC AREA is located conveniently near a native village, where Mom can begin cooking dinner in a big, black cannibal's pot.

You can eat in the open or you may prefer one of the native huts, which in reality are built around telephone poles bounded at the top by tin sheets, painted and then covered by twigs to appear as genuine, desert island huts.

Any one of a number of themes could be used to start a similar park here — and the cost wouldn't have to call for a new bond issue.

David Lawrence New Bipartisan Coalition

WASHINGTON — Although the current Congress has been in session only a few weeks, it is already apparent that the overwhelming majority in both houses won by the Democratic party last autumn can be overturned at will by a coalition of Republicans and Democrats who may wish to oppose certain measures of the Johnson administration.

While coalitions have been in existence in both houses for the last 30 years, the new combination of Republican and Democratic votes is not likely to emerge on the same issues as have arisen in the past. Thus, on "civil rights" questions, the coalition is not able to command a majority because the Northern Republicans vote with the Northern Democrats, and this constitutes a big majority.

IT IS, HOWEVER, on economic issues which appeal to non-radical members in both parties that significant votes will be taken. One example is labor legislation. President Johnson recently recommended that the Taft-Hartley Act be amended so as to permit compulsory unionization in all states which now have laws against it. This is a question loaded with trouble even for the labor unions themselves, which are espousing the change. Once Congress begins to debate any change in the Taft-Hartley Act, there are certain to be counterdemands for strict regulation of strikes and also the internal affairs of labor unions, especially as they approach monopolistic practices.

IF SUCH AN issue came to a vote today, it seems certain that a majority would be found in the House of Representatives as well as in the Senate to prevent the passage of any one-sided legislation which would give the labor unions advantages they have not heretofore possessed.

There are other issues, too, on which a coalition will make itself felt. Such instances, however, will not be frequent and the coalition's power will not be exercised except on very important legislation which could have repercussions in the next campaign.

PERHAPS THE MOST striking example of the influence of a coalition on domestic affairs was given in a little-noticed vote recorded early in the session when there was a technical motion before the House of Representatives dealing with rules changes. The administration's request was granted and increased power was placed in the hands of the Speaker so that he can force action on legislation. But the administration motion to prohibit any amendment to the package on the rules question received 224 votes, while 201 were cast against it. These 201 votes constituted a coalition of 78 Democrats and 123 Republicans. The 224 votes on the administration's side consisted of 208 Democrats and 16 Republicans.

IF ONLY 12 of the 18 defecting Republicans had stayed with the Republican majority and voted with the 78 Democrats, the administration would have been handed a serious and lasting defeat, and whatever rules changes were voted in the end would have been materially reduced in scope.

One thing is clear — the Democratic party cannot command a majority without the aid of certain "liberal" Republicans, and the customary coalition cannot prevail today unless nearly all of the Republicans vote with the "conservative" Democrats, most of whom are from Southern states.

IT IS NOT certain yet whether the Southern Democrats who may find themselves up against Republican nominees in the next election will veer more toward the administration or away from it, but sentiment in the South has changed very little on basically conservative issues. It looks, therefore, like an indefinite period of bipartisan coalition which at least can be described as non-radical, if not conservative.

Richard Starnes The Meetings In Warsaw

STOCKHOLM — An easy-going, Georgia-born preacher's son is about to entrain from Stockholm to Copenhagen, where he will board a LOT (Polish National Airline) transport that will take him to Warsaw, and another round in one of the strangest diplomatic exchanges of modern times.

THE AMERICAN is Alfred Jenkins, counselor of the U. S. Embassy here in Stockholm, and at 47 one of the State Department's foremost experts on Communist China. His journey to Warsaw is a familiar one that he has made every month or so for the past three years. His mission is to take part in the curious twilight negotiations that have gone on between the United States and Communist China for nearly 10 years.

THE MEETINGS, which take place at irregular intervals of from one to three months, are the only direct confrontation between representatives of the two nations. The tenuous thread, stretched taut by past crises, has not snapped yet. The next meeting is set for Feb. 24, will take place amid the heightened tensions created by explosive events that have taken place in Southeast Asia in the 12 weeks that have elapsed since the last meeting.

If the next meeting follows the course of previous ones, it will be elaborately courteous — as ritualistic as the mating dance of the whooping crane, and perhaps no more productive. Eight people will attend, and the meeting may end in little more than an hour or it may continue for more than three hours.

Promptly at 2 p.m. the eight men will take seats at a large conference table covered in green baize. If it is the Americans' turn, John M. Cabot, American Ambassador to Poland, will read an opening statement from a "working paper" that Jenkins has prepared. He will read it a sentence at a time so that the Chinese Communist translator can reduce it to Mandarin and recite it to his Ambassador.

WHEN THE opening statement is concluded there may be spirited discussion, or there may be none. When it is clear that neither side means to talk any more, the side that did not make the opening statement will suggest a time for the next meeting. There is seldom any disagreement on this point (just as there is seldom agreement on any other point), the meeting adjourns, Al Jenkins dictates a summary which is immediately cabled to the State Department in Washington, and a couple of days later he takes another plane for the return journey to Copenhagen and Stockholm.

HE WILL HAVE been away from his home base for nearly a week, have done a great deal of work in preparation and post-mortem — all for the sake of an hour or two of what must be judged generally unproductive conversation.

But it is clear that as meager as they have been, the talks have occasionally produced some fruits. Nearly a score of American prisoners have been released by the Communist Chinese as a result of prodding in the Warsaw talks, although they still hold four whom they insist are "criminals" who must serve out their prison sentences before release.

BUT WHAT OF the larger issues between the two countries? What do the marathon Warsaw talks say about them? Presumably they say quite a bit, but the real substance of the exchanges are as closely held a secret as exists on earth. The agenda for the meetings is always the same: First discussion of the prisoner question, and next "Other practical questions at issue between the two sides." The second term plainly covers many large questions, but in all the dozens of meetings little about them has leaked beyond the green baize table in Warsaw.

To Your Good Health Arteriosclerosis Can Be Difficult To Diagnose

Dear Dr. Molner: Six months ago my husband, at age 49, was a victim of myocardial infarction "due to arteriosclerotic heart disease." He seemed to be well and healthy hours before his death. He had been examined thoroughly several months before.

What are the symptoms of this hardening of the arteries? Can it be helped if known in time? Shouldn't the internist who examined him have diagnosed this?

Can the disease be inherited? I have three young sons and would like to protect them from it.—MRS. P. C.

Arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) can be extremely difficult, not to say impossible, to detect in some cases—and about the most important cases are those involving arteries of the heart and brain.

Tiny plaques, or patches, of fatty material form on the inner lining of the arteries. This can cause no symptoms, give no clue at all. As long as sufficient blood passes through, the patient is totally unaware of the presence of these patches.

Then the artery becomes very much more narrowed at some point where the plaques have been building up. Perhaps a thrombosis (clot) forms. Possibly heavy and unaccustomed exertion plays its part. That is why snow-shoveling, hunting, and strenuous sports are regarded as dangerous for people not used to exercise.

There may be no advance warning when these fatty patches are building up in the arteries, and no way of knowing, in certain cases, that an artery may have been reduced in size at some critical point.

There is no practical way, as yet, to see what the inside of such arteries look like. That is why we have the shocking experience of an apparently healthy man stricken without warning with a heart attack.

That is why the most skilled and careful internist at times has no chance of foreseeing the peril.

Besides this, there are some stoical individuals who experience what they think are "minor" episodes of discomfort. Lesser heart attacks are passed off as "indigestion or gas."

In other cases, however, the approaching danger can be recognized. There may be suspicious heart symptoms. A cardiogram may be slightly off normal. The blood pressure may be elevated. If the patient is overweight, that also raises suspicion—although, of course, thin people can have heart attacks, too.

In short, sometimes you can see direct indications of approaching heart trouble. Other times you can't be that certain, but you can detect patterns which put you on guard.

Tomorrow I'll answer the other questions, whether anything can be done if advance warning is detected, and whether heredity is a factor.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading the booklet, "The Way To Stop Constipation." For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 20 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Pain Cause Questioned

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Doctors treating children must take time to discuss things other than the immediate physical illness, a child health professor said at a short course for pediatricians sponsored by the University of Washington, the State Medical Association and the State Health Department. Nine out of 10 children with persistent complaints of headaches and abdominal pains without organic cause have emotional problems, declared Dr. Lewis M. Fraud, acting chairman of the Department of Pediatrics at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, New York. Pediatricians must learn how to talk with parents and children to find out how the "whole" child functions, what he fears and what his family and emotional background is, Dr. Fraud pointed out.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Washing, Ironing, Saves Working Day

Dear Heloise: I just had to write and tell you about how I manage to give myself an extra day — yes, one whole working day — in my busy week.

I do my washing and ironing all in one day! I put my first load in the machine around 7:30 a.m. before I begin breakfast. The first load is always a load to be ironed — white shirts, white blouses, etc. Then into the dryer they go and I add a second load of wash.

By 9:30 at the latest I'm starting my ironing. I keep my ironing board right by my washer and while I stand there ironing, I change loads of clothes and fold all saves many steps. I take a break at lunch time and do the breakfast and lunch dishes. Then back to the laundry again. I usually finish by 3:30 — carry up loads of finished clothes to the second floor, and then make the beds.

Best of all, this saves steps and stairs in my two-floor home. Before, it seemed I was running all over the house on Monday.

Remember... a foam pad is a must to stand on if one iron while standing on concrete. Not only saves the feet but the back, too. — Ginger McDonald

Dear Heloise: If the painter misses nail holes and cracks in the walls, just mix some patching plaster with some of your leftover paint. Patch the holes — and when dry, the color comes out the same as the walls. — Edna Bullard

Dear Heloise: I am the mother of three teenage daughters and they have many sweaters. I wonder why the manufacturers can't use pre-shrunk ribbon on the button and button-hole fronts of cardigan sweaters. They give us these wonderful products for washing woollens and really, what for? Usually, after one washing, a brand-new sweater looks terrible because of the shrunken tapes.

I wonder if you have an answer for a very disgusted mother? ... MRS. G. A. Christenson

Gals: Any of you have the answer to this problem? This mother would be so grateful. If so, please write to Heloise in care of this newspaper. Letters do not have to be signed to appear in this column. ... Love you, Heloise

Dear Heloise: Do you sometimes have trouble finding the earrings to match a necklace? If you do, try this:

Buy a box of small plastic sandwich bags. When you take off the earrings and necklace, put both into one of the bags. Fold the top over and put into a drawer or box.

You won't have to hunt for them now, because they are always together and you can see at a glance what is in each bag. Besides, the plastic bag keeps the jewelry from being scratched. ... Reader

Discrimination Attack Made By Cardinal

ROME (AP) — Lawrence Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore called on the Roman Catholic Church in the United States today to "press forward with greater vigor her mission to and her work among the colored people."

"The Church, together with the rest of the country, is confronted with racial prejudice and discrimination, brought into the open by the Negro's determination to obtain his civil rights," said Cardinal Shehan in an address written on his elevation by Pope Paul VI.

More than 800 persons gathered in the main dining hall of the North American Pontifical College to see a Vatican messenger deliver letters notifying Archbishop Shehan and six other Roman Catholic prelates that they were among 27 cardinals created at the secret consistory today.

Archbishop Shehan, 66, became the sixth living American cardinal. He was the first American named to the sacred college since 1961, when Pope John XXIII elevated Archbishop Joseph Ritter of St. Louis.

Waiting with Cardinal Shehan for the notification were two brothers, Dr. Daniel and J. Brooke Shehan, their wives, and a sister, Miss Mary Shehan, all of Baltimore. More than 30 nieces and nephews also were present.

The other six cardinals who received notification with Cardinal Shehan were Maurice Roy of Quebec, Charles Journet of Switzerland, Lorenz Jaeger of Germany, John C. Heenan of England, William Conway of Ireland and Agnello Rossi of Brazil.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(© 1965, By The Chicago Tribune)
ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠ 9 2 ♣ 10 8 3 ♦ K J 7 4 ♠ A J 6 5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's jump rebid is forcing to game and the suggested bid is three no trump inasmuch as you have the minor suits doubly stopped. A raise to four hearts is not recommended, for the partner made a jump shift it might have been on a four card heart suit.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠ 7 ♣ K Q 10 9 7 4 ♦ J 10 9 6 ♠ A 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Four hearts. With this strong six card suit and a reasonably good holding in diamonds, you should take the chance yourself. Partner might have to pass three hearts on a hand that could produce a game.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠ Q J 9 8 7 4 3 ♦ A 7 6 5 4 ♠ 10
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
1 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Five diamonds. This hand is almost worthless defensively but has fine offensive potentialities. Partner's bidding indicates that he has very little support for hearts, but this is practically an independent suit which a singleton honor will solidify.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠ J ♣ A Q 6 5 ♦ A J 10 ♠ A K J 6 3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—Five diamonds. This is a strong possibility and this looks like the best exploratory maneuver. If partner has a fitting card in diamonds or a reasonably good spade suit, he will surely react favorably to your slam suggestion.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠ A ♣ A 8 5 ♦ Q 9 6 4 3 ♠ A Q 4 2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—Four clubs. Your hand re-evaluates to 19 points in support of clubs which with the minimum of 19 your partner has promised by virtue of his two-over-one response spells a sure game. But there could be even bigger things brewing and the immediate jump is the best way to indicate your ambitions.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
♠ 7 ♣ A Q 6 4 ♦ K J 8 6 5 ♠ A 9 6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 NT Pass 3 ♣ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. The heart suit should be shown at this point, even though it is not probable that partner will show up with four of that suit. It will facilitate partner's reading of your distribution should you find it expedient to show club support on a subsequent round.

Q. 7—As South, the dealer you hold:
♠ A 4 ♣ A K 3 ♦ A K J 9 6 2 ♠ K 5
What is your opening bid?
A.—Two no trump. This hand is a shade unbalanced, no other call is satisfactory. The holding falls just short of the requirement for a demand bid in a minor suit. Besides, partner's expected two no trump response might result in a lead thru your unguarded king should he become declarer at three no trump.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠ Q J 7 5 4 ♣ A K J 6 2 ♦ J 7
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♣ Pass 1 NT 2 ♠
3 ♣ Pass 4 ♠ 5 ♣
Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Five spades. This is just to take out a little insurance. At worst you should go down just one and the enemy may make their bid. The one no trump bidder has at most one trump honor and, if it is the king, two diamond tricks should be the extent of your losses.

Malcolm X Told Of 'Hostile Forces'

NEW YORK (AP) — Malcolm X said a year ago that "hostile forces," which he wouldn't identify, were out to kill him. It sounded like far-fetched melodrama at the time, but now he is dead.

"They did make an effort to kill me," he said. "I can prove it."

The manner of his death Sunday — cut down while he was making a speech — fits Malcolm's own dramatic account of the intrigue and subterfuge violence which he said was rampant within the Black Muslims at the time he left the sect.

"PUT ME OUT"
His leaving, he said, was in no way voluntary. "They put me out," he insisted. He said he had announced publicly he had broken away of his own will merely to avoid any more discussion of his departure than necessary.

"We have our own law," Malcolm said, "our own way of taking care of ourselves."

The words came back forcefully Sunday.

Malcolm X asked that none of this be published at the time. He recounted it last March 26 during an airplane flight from Washington to New York. He had flown to Washington that morning to watch the Senate debate the civil rights bill. The trip, and Malcolm's conversation as he sat with the chair tilted back as the plane roared toward New York at dusk, provided some intimate glimpses of the Negro leader.

He called the civil rights bill debate "a con game." He said that if the bill were passed, it would never be enforced. "Enforcing it would bring a civil war to the South and a race war to the North," he said. For his part, Malcolm believed the answer to racial problems lay in neither legislation nor nonviolent direct action after the fashion of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

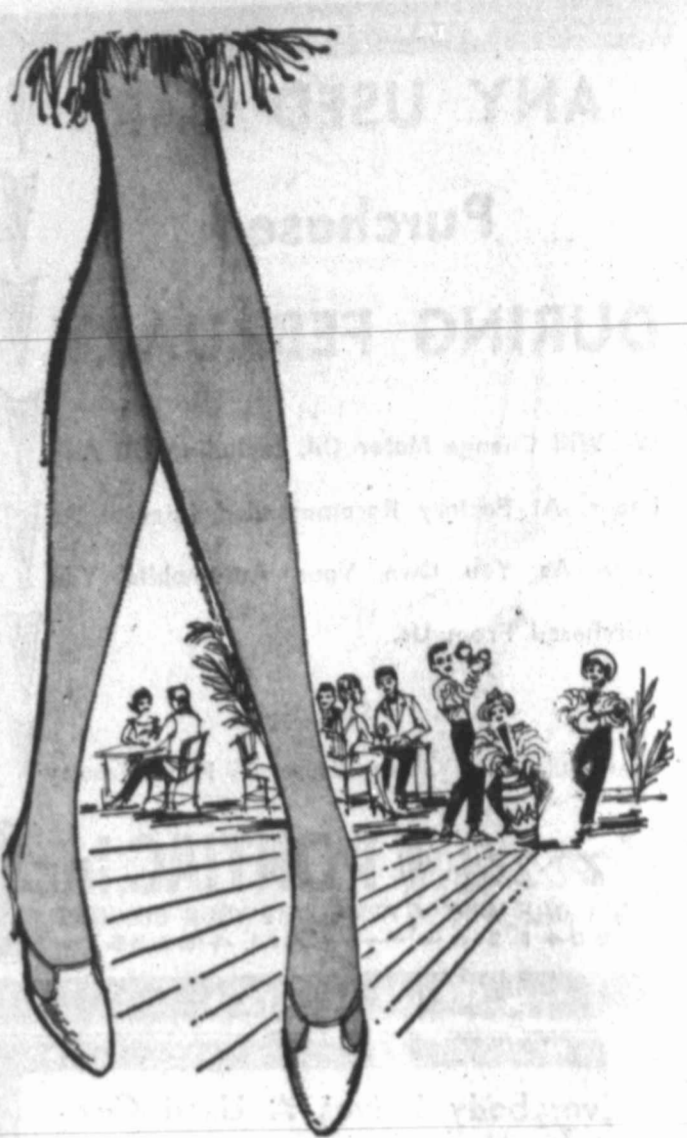

WANTED DOMINATION
He said he believed that unless Negroes lived in a separate land — and he didn't really see how this could ever come about — one race would simply dominate the other. He wanted the black man — Malcolm avoided the term Negro, "an invention of blue-eyed white devils" — to be on top.

Malcolm said his animosity toward whites had begun "even before I was born."

"In 1925 my family lived in Omaha," he said. "My father was an organizer for Marcus Garvey (a black nationalist leader). One night the Ku Klux Klan rode out to the house, shot out all the windows and told my father to move. My mother was carrying me at the time. My brother, who was six years older, told me he remembered my mother, pregnant, standing in the doorway shaking her fist."

He said his family had moved to Lansing, Mich., when he was 4. There, he said, his house was burned by white terrorists. On Sept. 31 that year his father was killed.

"An accident?" Malcolm commented. "He was run over by a streetcar. Only the back

American Killed, Two Wounded By Viet Cong

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — One American was killed Sunday and two were wounded as powerful Viet Cong forces continued smashing at government units in central Viet Nam.

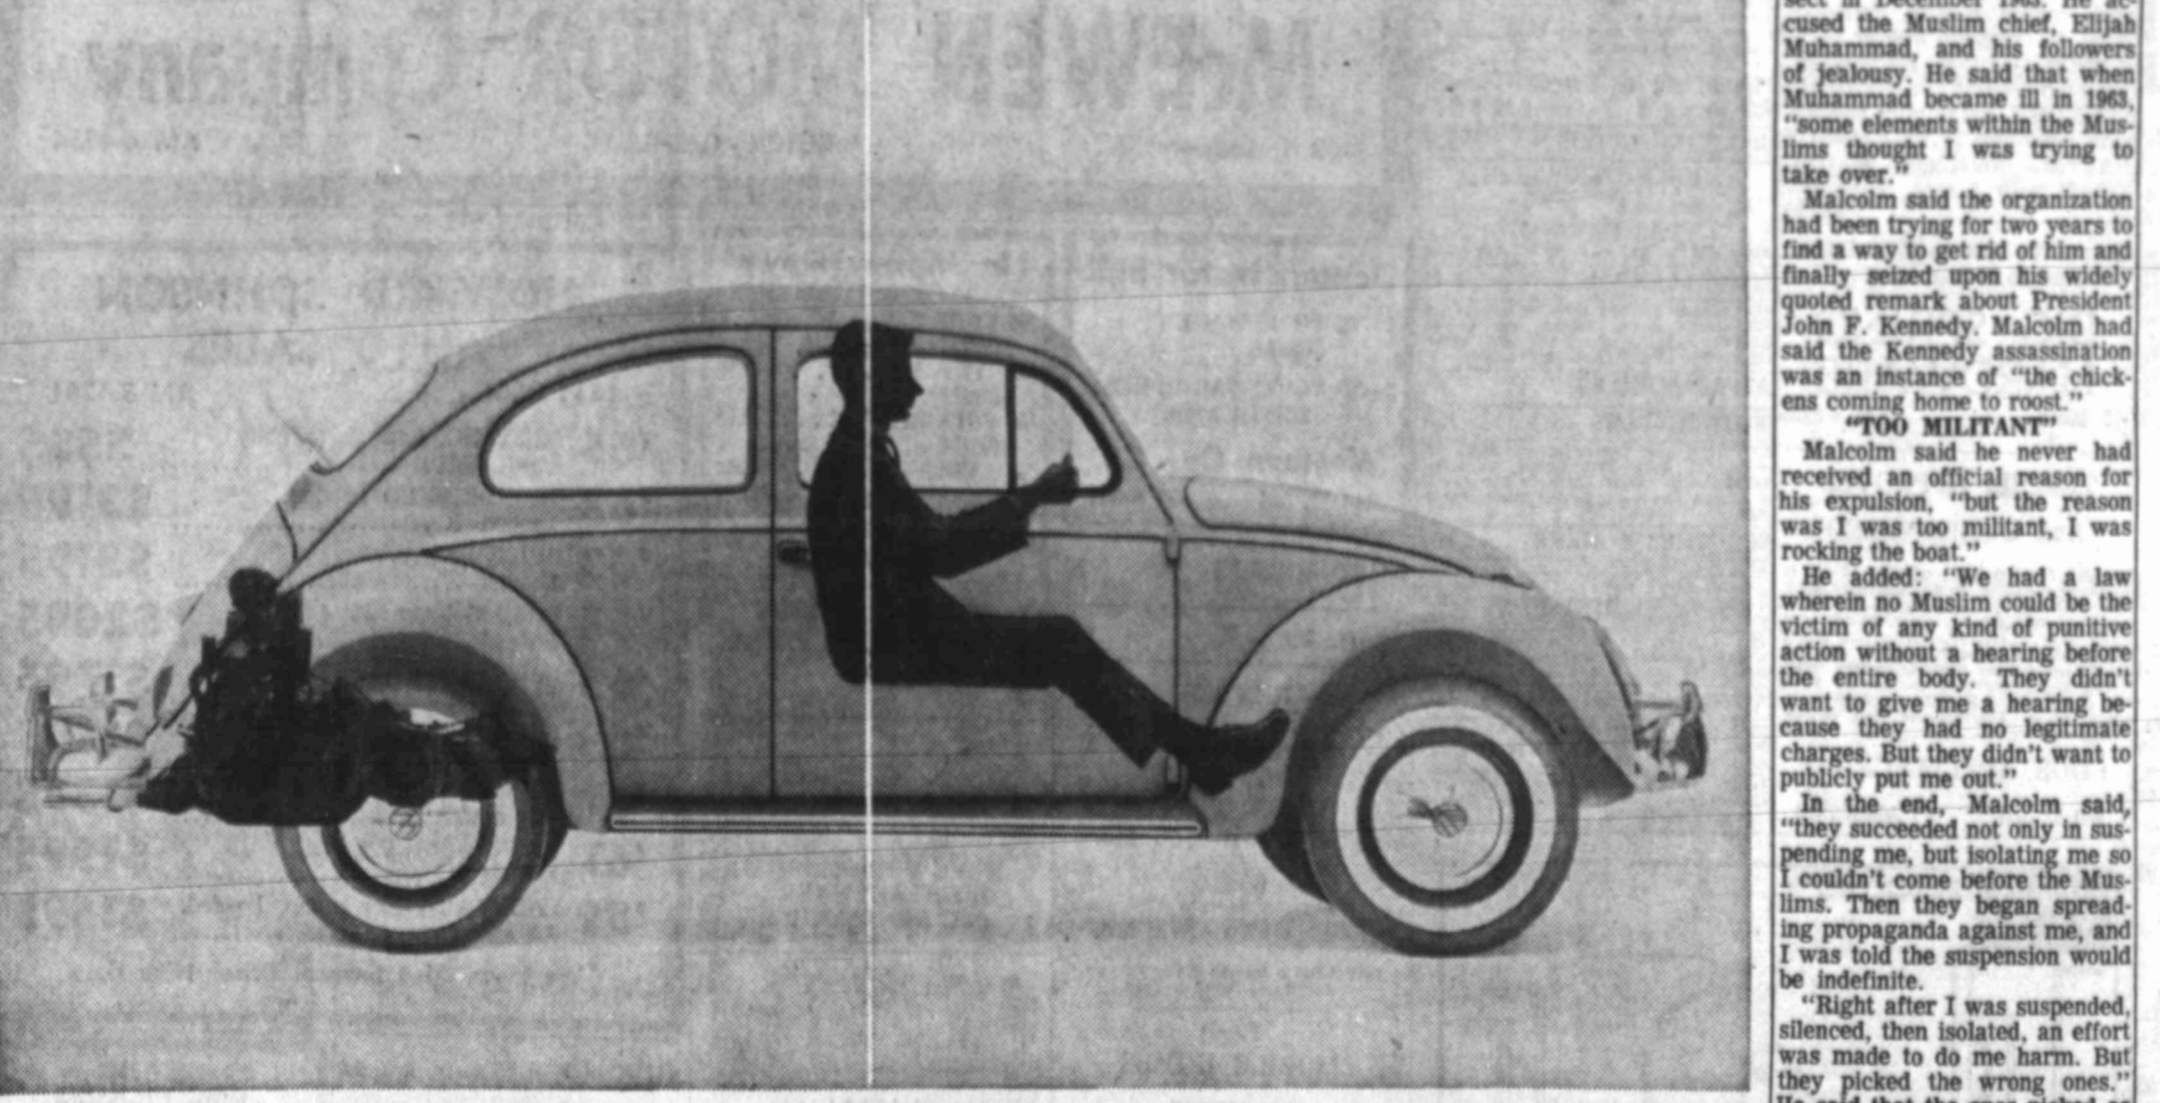

A U.S. Marine officer and seven Vietnamese soldiers were killed in a heavy clash in the northern part of mountainous Binh Dinh Province, 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

The officer was with two marine battalions which were set up two weeks ago after Viet Cong forces in the area killed or captured about 500 government troops.

Surrounded by mountains controlled by the Viet Cong, the marines were virtually pinned down in narrow valleys. More than three quarters of Binh Dinh Province has been taken over by the Viet Cong.

Two other U.S. advisers were wounded in other clashes in Binh Dinh Province.

This is why a Volkswagen has so much legroom in front.

A Volkswagen has so much legroom in front because the engine is in back, out of the way. How much is so much? Believe it or not, a little VW has as much legroom as most of the biggest cars around. As much legroom, in fact, as a limousine. A limousine, mind you!

And just as an aside, there's even more headroom in a VW than in a limousine. Frankly, the VW's engine wasn't put in back just to get more legroom in front. The original idea was to put the weight of the engine over the back wheels to get much better traction.

A Volkswagen goes where other cars won't go, even without snow tires. So you forge ahead, with your engine behind you and your legs stretched out in front. If you have very long legs and like to drive in the snow wearing a top hat, you might give the VW some thought.
