Student Council Provides Trophies For Top Spellers

Goliad Student Council has made certain its school spelling champion and the runner-up have trophies to show for their achievement, regardless how they may fare in The Herald's Third Annual Howard County Spelling Bee, April 10.

As a result, Curlee Rogers, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noble Rogers, 2415 Scurry, the Goliad Spelling Champ, and Raymond James Woolverton, the alternate champion, each have gold loving cups to show for their efforts.

"Take the cups home to show your folks," Soc Walker, principal of the school told Curlee and Raymond. "Then bring them back and we'll have your names engraved on them.

James, 13-year-old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Woolverton, 2100 Morrison. His father is Army recruiter for this area. He is a seventh grader.

He and Curlee battled down to the line in the final spelling elimination contest at 12:45 p.m. Wednesday at the school. A few extra words at the end had to be handled to finally settle the able to compete, then it will be Raymond who will step forward to take her place in the bee.

Ten youngsters were left to try for the Goliad title when the final contest got under way bednesday. Seven were from the seventh grade and three from the eighth grade.

Curlee was the final school champion to be selected and, effective Wednesday, the lists have been closed.

Winner of The Herald's Third have a chance to burn the mid-pions from 22 other West Texas counties.

A victory at Lubbock will mean a free trip to the national bee in Washington plus other valuable prizes.

Homemaking, Cooking Arts Enjoyed By Food Economist

"Mothers should teach their daughters that homemaking and cooking are both arts rather than drudgery and are wonder-ful and fulfilling," is the opinion of Mrs. Jack Orr, who lives in the Meadow Brook Addition in Sand Springs.

Mrs. Orr is home economist with the Texas Electric Service Company, and holds a degree in home economics from Texas Christian University. She feels that her mother is responsible for her career in homemaking, because she always encouraged her in sewing and cooking, placing special emphasis on nutrition.

"I thoroughly enjoy it, and cooking is therapeutic for me," said Mrs. Orr. "When other women need to read or garden to relax, I cook something special or different.'

Mrs. Orr plans definite menus for the entire week, and shops only once, making special use of foods that are on sale. She never has to return to the grocery store during the week, even for bread or milk. By this planning, she has well - balanced

When we asked a friend of ours - a specialist in preserving foods - how to get the Major-Grey-type-flavor in chutney, she suggested the Worcestershire. Each summer we use her recipe with fresh peaches: this year we have adapted it to winter's fresh apples.

Chutney is, of course, the perfect accompaniment to curry But it is also delightful served with simpler dishes of meat, poultry and fish.

APPLE CHUTNEY

- 21/2 cups sugar 11/2 cups cider vinegar
- 1 cup coarsely grated onion 1 large clove garlic, minced
- 1 tsp. ground ginger 1 stick cinnamon and 1 tsp. whole allspice tied in a bag 1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce

God shows his love for us in that while we were yet sinners

Christ died for us. (Romans 5:8, RSV)

PRAYER: Lord Jesus, we thank Thee for Thy suffering on the cross, for Thy patience and love despite our weakness and sin. We thank Thee for the victory that is ours because Thou dost enable us to love one another. Help us to keep loving all Thy children. In Thy name we ask. Amen.

Extend The Remarks

Groves, Mo., has returned to the lists once more, demanding that the Congressional Record reflect accurately what is spoken on the floor of the

Under a custom of some antiquity, members of the House are permitted to introduce into the Congressional Record things they wanted to say, or wished they could say. This "unsaid" material is printed in the Record in the same type as words uttered in actual debate. The custom is known as "permission to revise and extend" remarks in the Record.

"The House meeting of Jan. 5, 1965, took but 11 minutes," Curtis reminded his colleagues, "yet it covers some 22 pages in the Congressional Record.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Truly this is a prodigious feat of roves, Mo., has returned to the lists speaking when even skimming that number of Congressional record pages in that time requires some effort . . . Let us make some distinction between words actually spoken on the floor of the House, subject to contradiction and the tempering of debate, and those inserted without ever having been open to rebuttal."

Curtis must have appreciated the irony of the fact that the words quoted above were not spoken on the floor of the House. Preceding his remarks was this parenthetical introduction: 'Mr. Curtis, at the request of Mr. Hutchinson (Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan) was granted permission to extend his remarks at this point in the Record and to include extraneous

Protect The Customer

Sen. George Parkhouse had some cryptic observations concerning a health insurance bill proposed by Sen. Doc Blanchard. The measure would prevent policy holders from collecting from two policies for the same treatment if benefits would exceed the total charge. Sen. Parkhouse observed that he felt that there was a tendency to protect the insurance companies rather than the policy holders.

A lot of other bills, including HB 945, will stand close scrutiny to see if they pass the Parkhouse test. Is this proposal by Rep. Quilliam more concerned with reducing a branch of operation vexatious through competitiveness, or is it solely for the protection of the policy holder? The State Insurance Commission, and the legislature for that matter, should concern itself with seeing that those who pay premiums get the sort of protection they pay for. The insurance companies can pretty well take care of themselves, and they don't need sanctuary from

The Right To Run A Business

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court of the United States, in two decisions on Monday, not only, in effect, enacted legislation but took away from employers their constitutional right to operate a business without coercion from any quarter.

The high court ruled that an ployer has "the absolute right to terminate his entire business for any reason he pleases," but that this does not include the right to close a part of it, no matter how justified he may believe it to be for economic or any other reasons - if at the same time he can be accused of trying to discourage unionization of his employes.

THE COURT felt that the moment an employer does anything to discourage union activity, he is committing "an unfair labor practice." While the existing statutes do not specifically define it that way, the high court now has added this interpretation to the Taft-Hartley Act.

The issue revolved around the right of an employer to close one part of his plant and not another. Yet labor unions can call a strike in a division of a company in one city and not in another, even though both plants are owned by the same company. To give the unions the right to close down one of several plants owned by a single employer, while denying the employer the right to close any of his plants in a struggle with a union, emphasizes an inconsistency which is nowhere explained in the high court's decision.

THE ALLEGED SIN committed in 1956 by the parent company - Deering Milliken and Company - was in closing a subdivision of its operation, known as Darlington Manufacturing Company. The court said this might be construed to be hostile to the union. Although the employer may have actually intended to discourage unionism, there is nothing in the existing law or the Constitution which says that a man cannot operate his property at minimum ex-

IN ANOTHER case handed down on the same day, involving the American Shipbuilding Company, the Supreme Court ruled that whether an employer shuts down all of his plant or even a part of it, he can do so provided it is only a "lockout." In other words, if he temporarily lays off his employes during a labor dispute "to bring economic pressure in support of his bargaining position," this is legitimate. The court's reasoning in this instance is that the layoff is "temporary" and is a part of a collective-bargaining process. But, realistically, a temporary "lockout" could

Shelton, 45, of Tuscaloosa, recognized for collective - bargaining purposes, while in the other a "lockout" was held to be part of the collective-bargaining process.

What the Supreme Court has overlooked is that labor unions have the right to close down any division of an employer's business at any time they wish. They can refuse to go back to work for an indefinite period of time - indeed, in some instances strikes have lasted for several years and the employer can be put out of business altogether. But if he himself takes the initiative at any time to close down a plant during a labor dispute, he can be charged with "an unfair labor practice," although in this connection Congress never specified an offense under such circum-

WHAT THE Supreme Court has done is to define "an unfair labor practice" as something which the employer does, but there is no corresponding "unfair labor practice" on the part of labor unions, especially when persons who have no connection with a company engage in picketing and boycotting which could result in the financial downfall of a

Billy Graham

Years ago I was guilty of a serious sin. I am sorry for it but it is not possible to make any correction for my past sin. Is there no hope for me?

Yes, my friend, there is hope. While God is not indifferent to any sin that has ever been committed. He is also a God of limitless mercy. You may be sure He knows to what extent, if any, you can make a correction for the past. Sometimes there are past wrongs that can be made right. This is a common occurrence in our meetings across the nation. One thing is needful for you, however. Would you be willing to make right the wrong if you could? This is the nature of repentance; sufficient sorrow for sin that you wish to forsake it, and if it is possible to correct it. Often this cannot be done. But if there is a desire, then God knows your heart. My answer to you then would be this, that you turn now, with a sincere repentance toward God, and confess your sin to Him. Trust His promise for salvation that has been made possible through the death of Christ. Remember. God desires your salvation enough to give His own Son. Is not that assurance enough? Then trust Christ for your salvation, and when the opportunity presents itself, make right the wrong of the past as a testimony to what Christ has done for COLUMBUS. Ohio (AP) - On the theory that bridge surfaces freeze before roads because heat can escape from underneath as well, an Ohio State University research team has insulated undersides of two Interstate highway bridges with foam.

So far, they say, results show uninsulated bridge surfaces remain frozen 30 per cent longer than the adjacent highway, while insulated bridges stay icy 15 per cent longer. Uninsulated bridges freeze earlier than in-

Some Kind Of Tax Reform In Order

There is much to be said for some manner of tax reform - provided, of course, it doesn't add to the burden and give grasping agencies another shot at our pocketbooks.

PROBABLY THE best known reform is a suggestion for a national sales tax, and doing away with all other forms of tax income. This plan has a lot of conservative backing — indeed it is traditionally considered by some as the only fair tax, since it collects from everyone at the same rate. And in some measure, the taxpayer has a certain amount of control over it, as he does not pay it unless he buys something. The poor man, of course, has to spend about all he makes.

The rich man would pay more taxes than the poor, only so long as the rich purchases more. On the same item, they would each pay the same

ON THE OTHER hand, the personal income tax is considered the best income producer a government can have — particularly since "pay-as-you-go" was introduced and collec-tion is not a problem. As now prac-ticed, it has the progressive feature appealing to liberals, because it is based on the "ability to pay." If you have more income, you are taxed more. As your income increases, your tax rate increases, varying from a low of 14 per cent to a high of 70 per cent.

As a result, the present system

yields high revenues and equalizes

THERE'S LITTLE doubt that the personal income tax will be with us from now on. But the many other taxes are continually under fire from one source and another. There are those who propose eliminating all other taxes, and the excise tax even now may be sharply cut.

AT THE SAME time, corporate cities in Texas are looking to a sales tax to help bolster their increasing demands for services. Traditionally, of course, cities have relied on ad valorem and fees.

All things considered, reform aimed at reducing the various methods of attack from taxes would appear to be the most beneficial to the average taxpayer. For instance, it seems farcical to be taxed under a progressive plan by the federal government, a property-owner-only plan by the city, and a sales tax plan by the state. All have different bases and are supported by different philosophies. Tax reform should give these matters consideration.

CERTAINLY, IF the progressive plan is unfair in one area, it follows that it must be in another. But any plan that reduces the total number of individual taxes is better than the scattergun technique that currently makes a tap on everything from jewelry to gasoline, car ownership to cigarettes, store ownership to movie man Barry Goldwater has been remarkably restrained since the debacle of last November. He might have been writing "I told you so" on every vacant space since the policy followed by the administration in Viet Nam resembles in kind, in not yet degree, what Goldwater advocated in the

Yet to this point he has made only one public speech-to the Young Republicans six weeks ago-in which he demanded to know what was wrong with his campaign recommendations for bringing all possible force to bear against communism in Southeast Asia. Within the administration there is acute sensitivity on this score.

A RECENT Gallup poll showed a marked drop in the percentage of voters who thought that the Democratic party would be more likely to keep the country out of World War III. The increase in those saying "no difference" between the parties was 16 per cent. This is reflected in mail to senators critical of Viet Nam policy saying that they had not voted for Lyndon Johnson so that he could carry out the policy of Barry Goldwater.

WHILE EARLY in the campaign Goldwater used such choice adjectives as "liar" and "faker" in attacking the President, a more prominent target as the contest heated up was Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. The Republican candidate called him Yo-yo McNamara in speech after speech. He accused him of putting out falsely optimistic statements about Viet Nam following each trip to the

Answering the political blast with statements from the Pentagon, Mc-Namara nevertheless had to endure a punishment that to him was cruel and WASHINGTON - For an impulsive unusual. Today as the President's principal adviser on Viet Nam no one can accuse him of vacillation. Those questioning where the policy can end short of American commitment to all-out war in Southeast Asia are asking whether he may not be overreacting to the unaccustomed abuse he was forced to endure.

IN SEPTEMBER of 1963 McNamara and Gen. Maxwell Taylor, then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, paid a five-day visit to Viet Nam. On their return they reported to a National Security Council meeting and the White House issued a statement

"Secretary McNamara and General Taylor reported their judgment that the major part of the military task can be completed by the end of 1965, although there may be a continuing requirement for a limited number of . . . training personnel. They reported that by the end of this year (1963) the United States program for training Vietnamese should have progressed to the point where 1,000 United States military personnel . . . can be withdrawn."

THE STATEMENT went on to stress that the political situation was "deeply serious." But the difficulty from the beginning has been that the appraisals by McNamara and other nigh-ranking visitors fail to relate the political to the military. Almost entirely lacking in experience in either international or domestic politics, Mc-Namara relied on the estimates of the top-ranking military. They, in turn, were anxious to put the best possible face on the war. Since the statement was issued more than 20,000 additional American "advisers" have been sent to Viet Nam.

Smellovision

Sends Scents . April Fool

LONDON (AP) - Western Europe celebrated April Fool's Day today with traditional hoaxes. The British Broadcast-Corporation persuaded scores of television fans that it could transmit smells.

The BBC brought in a genuine professor from London University to demonstrate the new 'smellovision."

He fed coffee beans and then onions into a complicated array of fake equipment, explaining that their scents would break down into molecules and be ransmitted through the screen. "STAND, SNIFF"

"For best results," he said, stand six feet away from your Yesterday's set and sniff." He asked successful sniffers to report results by noon, the traditional deadline for April Such is the power of television

Injunction Denial Verdicts Held By Higher Court

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court rejected Wed-nesday an appeal by the Texas Roofing Co. for a temporary injunction to stop trustees of the Lubbock Independent School District from spending public

The 72nd District Court at Lubbock and 7th Court of Civil Appeals at Amarillo already had denied the injunction. There was no written opinion by the Supreme Court, which said it could find no errors in the lower court decisions. The appellants (company and two men) contended that the trustees had let the roofing contract on three buildings without prior advertisement or competitive bids as they had arranged for a general contractor-Huntter Brothers Construction Co.-

to sublet the roofing work. Hunter Bros., selected another roofing firm for the job although Texas Roofing Co. supplied the lowest bid.

The appeals court said it knew of no rule requiring the lowest bid to be accepted.

Ruling Against Water District

Waco Water Supply District is not entitled to collect $24,985 in rental fees it paid the City of Waco, but instead owes the city money, the Texas Supreme Court ruled today.

Without written opinion, the igh court upheld lower court rulings saying the water district owes Waco $11,333 in unpaid charges for 1961-63.

The water district, created by the 1953 Legislature, said a city ordinance granting the district a franchise to operate a water works system in the city for 25 years was unconstitutional and void.

The district also contended the city could not levy or assess taxes on the district.

The city said it had dominion and control over its streets and that the district had accepted the benefits from its franchise. The Waco District Court and the 10th Court of Civil Appeals in Waco held for the city.
