Growing Trade

Concern over the deficit in the United States balance in international payments, still draining this nation's gold reserves, has overshadowed a more important favorable trend. That is the rapid expansion of non-Communist nations' world trade and the United State's great - and once again increasing-share in it.

"Free world" trade reached $151.5 billion in aggregate exports last year, according to a report by the Inter-national Monetary Fund. That is an increase of 11 per cent over 1963, and an increase of 59 per cent over 1958.

The United States, the world's largest exporter by far since World War II, accounted for 17.5 per cent of the total. That is slightly below its 1958 share of 18.8 per cent, but the U.S. share increased last year for the first time since 1960, so that marked a favorable trend from a strong base. If it can be continued, U.S. world trade earnings soon may-coupled with economies in spending abroad-close the balance of payment gap at least to manageable proportion.

There is another gap in the free world trade picture that must be narrowed-that between the advanced industrial nations and the underdeveloped ones. Western Europe since 1958 increased its collective share of non-Communist world exports from 30.7 to 35.5 per cent, and Japan from 3 per cent to a relatively impressive 4.4 per cent. At the same time, the less developed countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America lost ground in their share of total trade.

If economic development is to bring social progress and political stability to the underdeveloped countries, they must gain a larger share of international trade-on which most of them are heavily and precariously dependent-and on more favorable terms. Not only for political reasons but also because that would lessen the foreign military and economic aid strain on our own balance of payments, this is a desirable goal.

WASHINGTON-The Treasury raiders found the inventory on the truck they had seized included 100 submachine guns, new M-14 automatic rifles, five tripod-mounted machine guns, flame throwers, several 25-pound aerial bombs, mortars and live ammunitition for all weapons.

THIS CACHE in Missouri is only one of many that have come to light in various parts of the country. An arms underground linked to apostles of hate and more or less open advocates of violence is a fact. How extensive it is no one seems to know. So widespread has been the purchase of weapons in the South by both whites and Negroes that sober observers regard certain areas as armed camps where an uneasy truce prevails in the racial war.

THE HIDDEN arsenal with all it can mean in turmoil and bloodshed underscores the struggle to enact a comparatively mild Federal arms-control bill. Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D., Conn.) has been trying for more than two years to persuade Congress to adopt a measure putting restraints on the mail-order gun business.

Hundreds of pages of testimony have shown how these guns find their way into the hands of criminals, juvenile delinquents and psychopaths. Dodd himself testified a year ago on how the more flagrant of the mail-order houses circumvent state and local laws. He showed that three such firms ship into states having stringent firearms control laws so as to get around those laws.

PENNSYLVANIA requires the purchaser of a concealable firearm to wait 48 hours before taking possession of the weapon. But one mail-order dealer had sent 100 firearms into Pittsburgh and over 150 into Philadelphia in a three-year period.

Over 1,500 guns were shipped into Chicago by one firm. The majority were foreign imports, the German "Roscoe" at $12.95 and the British Enfield at $14.95. These are weapons,

He put into the record a photograph of a Chicago judge with weapons confiscated from teenagers piled high on his bench. The judge had said that he collected a bushel basket of

> THE DODD BILLS would not abolish the mail-order gun business but it would make such anonymous shipments impossible. The dealer would be required to ship weapons ordered by an individual to a reputable dealer in the area who would then be required to observe state and local weapons every 10 days.

But even this relatively mild proposal is opposed by the National Rifle Association. The association with its 1,125,000 members, some of them in affiliated clubs, is the principal force holding back legislation on weapons.

THE ROOT OF the matter then is to sort out the legitimate users from the underworld of weaponry. In the view of most observers this can only be done through Federal legislation. The Federal Fire Arms Act has not been amended for 30 years and is woefully inadequate to cope with the flood of weapons, many imported from abroad and sold at bargain basement prices. Billy Graham Exodus 20:4, one of the Ten Commandments is: "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image." Do you think that some Christians worship the Cross? Isn't this a sin against the commandment? L.A.D.

Possibly some do, but I have never met them. If a man were to worship anything made of brass, or wood, or stone, certainly it would be a sin. But we do not worship the Cross, we worship the Christ who died for us, and only use the Cross to remind us of His love and sacrifice. It would be almost as ridiculous to say we worship our flag when we salute it. Of course we don't intend to make a fetish of the stars and stripes, but to show love and respect for America. For 1900 years the Cross has been the symbol of the suffering of Jesus. It should remind us that Christ gave His life for you and for me. Thereford it is fitting that it be used as one of the symbols of our faith. Candles remind us that Christ is the Light of the world, but certainly you would not suggest that when they are put in a church the Christian is worshipping the wax instead of the spirit of the Living Christ. We don't worship the Cross, we worship the Son of God, who died to save us from sin and death. The Cross is a symbol, not a "graven image.'

And problems of police with young persons are apparently increasing. In 1963, for instance, delinquency and traffic cases involved in juvenile courts increased at a rate twice that of the increase in population from 10 to 17 years of age. While Big Spring is undoubtedly fortunate in lacking many of the problems involving juveniles which exist, especially in larger urban centers, still the city is not clear of juvenile problems. For each juvenile who does not stay within the law, many, many more are never involved in any unlawful activity. And of course the important question is why those who do stray from observance of the laws within a community do so-whether from lack of respect for those laws, or lack of parental authority or other causes, such as broken homes, dropping out of school or whatever.

The CIA Needs Experience

WASHINGTON-The American people just happened to read in their newspapers that a new man has been named to head the Central Intelligence Agency. The news item had the look of a routine occurrence-that the head of an agency was merely desirous of leaving and that someone else was taking his place.

But the truth is that the kind of change made can impair the morale and could mean the difference between success and failure in the "cold war" itself.

MANY YEARS AGO a European intelligence officer of a Western country who had spent a long career in the service was asked to evaluate American efforts in the field of intelligence. He replied that it would take the United States from 20 to 30 years it never had an intelligence service

Something of the enormity of the problems faced by the CIA can be inferred from the fact that it spends a half-billion dollars a year and must have personnel familiar with milioperations, personnel familiar with diplomatic activities and systems, personnel familiar with business, economics and finance, and personnel familiar with the whole system of espionage-both on defense and on offense-in the "cold war." Above all, they must be trained inside the Intelligence Agency itself. The longevity of service is a key factor in its PRESIDENT JOHNSON now has named Admiral William F. Rabor Jr., (ret.) who has a good reputation in the field of science and in naval operations. But a mistake was made in failing to promote someone in the Central Intelligence Agency itself. For it is not a political institution, and its chief officer should not be appointed to satisfy the personal predilections of a President.

THE CIA is one of the most useful agencies in the entire government, and in some respects transcends in importance almost all the other agencies of the government. For if erroneous information or no information at all is received on points of major concern during a crisis, a decision can be made by the President that could plunge this country into war or reduce its effectiveness in a serious negotiation designed to prevent a

The CIA is a relatively young institution compared with some of the intelligence services of different countries of the world. It takes years and years of training in the techniques of ntelligence work to produce an effective instrumentality. The United States has been making substantial progress in this field, but the changes just instituted at the top of the agency could retard that progress.

SOONER OR LATER, Congress, which has special committees to study the CIA, might well take a closer look at the morale problems of the agency. Unfortunately, there are jealousies between governmental agencies, and the CIA has suffered from the criticism of some of the civilian agencies which feel they should be able to tell the intelligence people how to do their jobs. There are also conflicts inside the government between the various agencies which have investigative duties.

ALL THIS IS the subject for possible study by a thorough going investigation by a congressional committee. The true story, for example, of whether the CIA was efficient or inefficient in connection with the "Bay of Pigs" affair in Cuba in 1961 is one that has never been objectively explained to the public. It would serve no good purpose to reveal all the details of the operations of an intelligence agency. But a congressional committee might well have made a non-political study to determine who was responsible for tragic mistakes made in the executive branch of our own government and then could have announced its conclusions without disclosing any important secrets.

WASHINGTON - In mid-March my neighbor Boomer Earwig, who lives less than a spite fence away from Crestfallen Manor, began acting strangely.

Prior to that time he had been a normal chap-dull as could be, but ever so normal. BUT ALONG about the Ides of March old Earwig began certain mysterious to-ings and fro-ings that at once engaged the attention of the ladies of Replevin Neck, they being otherwise occupied only with lounging around in soiled peignoirs, reading questionable novels and shrewing at their slack-jawed mates.

Mrs. Fester Flounce, whose pigeonchested spouse is third assistant cashier at the Grindstone Bank and Trust Company, tipped the pitch, as it were, when she reported with grim relish that Boomer had begun to make regular and substantial withdrawals from the savings account he had accumulated by a lifetime devoted to thrift and income tax evasion.

THEN THE Earwig menage was blessed with a new addition, a spanking new Meachley Mushroom Cloud sedan, which was two furlongs in length and the color of an intractable nosebleed. There was nothing intrinsically unusual in this, to be sure, except that it was the second new car Earwig had bought in the last 60 days, and it made the Earwigs, who had neither chick nor child, a four-car family. Then packages began arriving at Boomer's house. Large packages, they were, two- and three-man packfreezers, refrigerators, air - conditioning units, and automatic laundries. This, indeed, is what they were. THE NEXT DAY Chad Chalmoura, who feared heights only slightly less than he feared Mrs. Chalmougra, was persuaded to climb a ladder ostensibly to prune the catalpa tree but, ed when he had regained the ground and Mrs. Chalmougra had cuffed the hysteria out of him. "Auto tires, cases of Scotch whiskey, several barrels that appear to contain sugar, and 42 smoked hams suspended from hooks in the ceiling."

THE WORD GOT around in a manner that would have done credit to Telstar, and that was too much for Fester Flounce. Fester, who was civil defense block warden, put on his iron hat and arm band and called on Boomer Earwig.

"Idiot!" Boomer cried, not without some justification. "Of course I have a basement full of appliances and an attic full of tires and Scotch. I've also got 2,000 white shirts in the spare bedroom, enough stainless-steel razor biades to last a lifetime, and a freezer locker containing approximately half a ton of prime beef, besides some other odds and ends. I suffered terrible privation during the last war, Flounce, and I don't mean to go through that again."

HE SMILED a crafty smile. "Here, Flounce, old friend, sign this. It's nothing but a little old petition for a zoning variation that will permit me to bury a 5,000-gallon gasoline storage tank in my back yard. Sign it like a good chap, and when you're down to eating knuckle of Shetland pony perhaps I'll slip you half a pound of hamburger."

"He is Risen," was the message given the women by the angel guarding the tomb. They were instructed to go and tell the disciples that His word had been fulfilled, and that Jesus would meet them at an appointed place.

Even though the disciples had been told, time after time, that Christ would arise on the third day, their faith was lacking, and even though they saw Him appear, there came the first of the world's "Doubting Thomases."

The disciples later astounded the world with the declaration that a man who had died on the cross had risen from the dead. But from that fact came the movement known as the .

The agitation in the physical world, symbolized in the earthquake was to be expected when the Son of God was crucified. He had premised that the veil of the temple would be "rent in twain," and that many other things, called miracles by men, would happen.

Steel Strike Fear Revived

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Strike fears rose today after the United Steelworkers Union rejected a steel industry proposal to swap some contract improvements for an extention of the May 1 strike deadline.

"I'm never discouraged, but am disappointed now," said steelworkers President David J. McDonald Thursday after rejec tion of the latest industry pro

Both the union and the basic steel industry declined to reveal the cash value of the proposal.

But a union source said it was about five cents an hour per man for the duration of a limited agreement that could run from 60 days to 6 months. Some 450,000 USW members are employed in basic steel.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief in dustry negotiator, criticized the union as "a house divided against itself." He blamed it for crisis bargaining which he said has upset the domestic steel market and allowed imports to pour into the country.

Soviet Racial Bias Said Up

NEW YORK (AP) - Richard M. Nixon, reporting on his recent trip to the Soviet Union, says Negroes there "have a worse lot" than anywhere in the Southern United States.

Racial prejudice in the Soviet Union "is greater than anywhere in the world, and a great many African students are leaving because of it," he says.

The former vice president discussed his impressions of the Soviet Union Thursday night in a departure from his prepared speech before 400 business leaders at the National Industrial Conference Board's first public affairs conference.

Nixon, who contrasted his recent visit to the one he made six years ago as vice president, said there has been "a great growth in racism and race prejudice."
