Welcome News

News that steel management and labor have agreed on a four-week extension of the present contract, plus 11½ cents per hour to be put in escrow during the next month, comes as welcome news to the nation.

It is not a four-week reprieve that contributes so much to the feeling of greater ease, for if this is all that has been purchased in the delay, it is of little consequence. More importantly, the agreement gives rise to hopes that there is every reason to believe that the period will result in a solid settlement of the working agreement. It is probably evidence, too, that neither management nor labor wants a strike. It may be evidence that increasing technology and strong inventories have injected influential elements into the negotiations. But whatever the reasons, the settlement of steel negotiations without a strike or without undue inflationary pressures will be one of the greatest breaks that the economy could have. Thus, the time of further exchange of ideas (from a platform of a basic wage agreement) vis to be applauded sonal experience in quick freeze aft-er last week's 103-degrees and this week's 47, then consider a couple of elements which abound around us.

CARBON DIOXIDE; which for many years was employed almost solely to put the fizz in carbonated beverages, is finding multiple uses these days. Liquid Carbondic Division of General Dynamics, for instance, turns the material into tons of "dry ice," as do other operators. This has widespread use in meat processing, packing and shipping, in packing and shipping ice cream and even frozen foods. It also has increasing use in low-temperature testing and rubber deflashing because it has a chilly temperature of -109 degrees.

BUT THE CHEMICAL industry is finding uses for carbon dioxide in liquid form for such things as food processing-quick freezing-fire pro-tection, machine cooling and even welding. Released under proper con-ditions in hot houses, carbon dioxide helps produce bigger and more beautiful flowers and plants. In the plastics industry, it speeds up molding of plastic parts because it is such an excellent cooler.

BUT IF YOU think carbon dioxide

If you feel like you've had a per- is cold, consider liquid nitrogen. This gets down to a minus 320 degrees, which is colder than it ever gets at Amarillo.

Whereas most commercial blast freezers which sharp-freeze foods operate at about a minus 42 degrees and takes sometimes several hours to freeze some foods, and whereas carbon dioxide can do the job quickly, liquid nitrogen freezes instantly.

THUS, FRUITS and vegetables with a high water content-things like strawberries, watermelons, cantaloupe, tomatoes-can be frozen as successfully as meats, and vegetables with lower water content. The supercold of the liquid nitrogen seals in moisture instantly and thus prevents the staling and spoiling of foods. Even bananas are frozen so that they re-tain all their fresh flavor.

SOME OF THESE super-fast methods are being combined with high vacuum techniques. Ultimately, it may be possible to dehydrate and flash freeze in combined operations. When that comes to pass, you might reduce a 20-pound melon to vest-pocket size and a steak to the size of your wrist watch. Who knows but what we might air condition the house by thawing out our dinner.

Government Takes Over A River

the Green River was sliding along from its glacier-fed sources on the western slopes of the continental divide toward its confluence with the Colorado-not bothering anybody at all.

the local people and the visitors basked in its beauty, and the State officials planned someday to build the Kendall Reservoir across its banks for the industrial enrichment of a wellendowed economy and a growing population.

THE GREEN RIVER was molesting nobody, and its keepers anticipated no molestation. True, there was one of those programs back in Washington-the Wild Rivers system. That energetic outdoorsman, Interior Secary Stewart Udall, was fingering the map for places to preserve the untrammeled beauty of waterways. He sought places where recreation grounds would be preserved for sportsmen and vacationers, where scenic grandeurs would be safeguarded, but where dams, reservoirs and industry would be precluded. IN A HALF-DOZEN places around the country, the people welcomed the plans. In Wyoming the inhabitants preferred to be left alone-and there was reason to believe that this desire would be respected. Back in February.

position. By July of the same year a final report had been drawn on the Wild Rivers program, but Wyoming's Senator Simpson says it was never circulated for review and comment in his State. As late as January 8, 1965, Wyoming's Governor Clifford Hansen received a letter from W. W. Dresskell, Secretary Udall's Regional Director of Outdoor Recreation, saying: ". . . the Upper Green River in Wyoming is not under consideration . . ." Yet when the bill was drafted a month later, there was the Green River included for Federal treatment.

SENATOR SIMPSON, Governor Hansen and a number of others from Wyoming turned up the other day to lodge their protest before a hearing of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee. The Senator said the country was in a sorry state indeed if the Government couldn't be trusted. The Governor called the committee's action arbitrary. NO SPOKESMAN for the Administration, either on the committee or from the Cabinet seemed able to explain how the Green River of Wyoming was written into a national beautifying program without consultation or consent of the State. But sometimes, as has been elsewhere said, the masters of social uplift decide that the people must eat strawberries and cream whether they like 'em or not. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

AGAIN AND AGAIN the American government has said that it will negotiate peace not from weakness but from strength, and that it will enter into discussions without insisting on any previous conditions. But the Communist side has been led to believe that, if the harassment of South Viet Nam continues indefinitely, American public opinion will swing toward a negotiated peace or virtual surrender.

The latest exposition of policy to the contrary by the United States has just been made by Secretary of State Dean Rusk in a truly great speech delivered before the American Society of International Law. It sets forth in unmistakeable language the resolute purposes of the United States and points out in no uncertain terms the fundamental convinction here that the outcome of the Viet Nam war is directly related to the future safety of the United States. Mr. Rusk said in part:

"I CONTINUE to hear and see nonsense about the nature of the struggle there. I sometimes wonder at the gullibility of educated men and the stubborn disregard of plain facts by men who are supposed to be helping our young to learn - especially to learn how to think . . .

Billy Graham

Please tell me how I can win others to Christ. I don't know how to begin, but I can't ignore this desire to do so. R.A.K.

Your question indicates that you have already surrendered your life to Jesus. Are you patient with all whom you meet? Do others feel the warmth of Christ's love in the touch of your hand? Do they see the light of Christ shining from your face? If so, you have made a start in witnessing for Him.

You have given your heart to Jesus. It should not be too difficult to speak a few words for Him. Begin in your family, or in your Sunday school class. So often we speak only of the trivial, when others are longing to hear of those things which are eternal. You don't need to be eloquent. But you must be honest and sincere. Just tell someone, quite simply, what the love of Jesus has done for you. This is the best way to begin to win others for Christ.

safety of nations with whom we are allied-and the integrity of the American commitment to join in meeting attack. It is true that we also believe that every small state has a right to be unmolested by its neighbors even though it is within reach of a great power. It is true that we are committed to general principles of law and procedure which reject the idea that men and arms can be sent freely across frontiers to absorb a neighbor.

"BUT UNDERLYING the general principles is the harsh reality that our own security is threatened by those who would embark upon a course of aggression whose announced ultimate purpose is our own destruction.

"Once again we hear expressed the views which cost the men of my generation a terrible price in World War II. We are told that Southeast Asia is far away-but so were Manchuria and Ethiopia. We are told that if we insist that someone stop shooting that that is asking them for unconditional surrender. We are told that perhaps the aggressor will be content with just one more bite. We are told that if we prove faithless in one commitment that perhaps others would believe us about other commitments in other places. We are told that if we stop resisting that perhaps the other side will have a change of heart. We were asked to stop hitting bridges and radar sites and ammunition depots without requiring that the other side stop its slaughter of thousands of civilians and its bombing of schools and hotels and hospitals and railways and buses.

"SURELY WE HAVE learned over the past three decades that the acceptance of aggression leads only to a sure catastrophe. Surely we have learned that the aggressor must face the consequences of his action and be saved from the frightful miscalculation that brings all to ruin. It is the purpose of law to guide men away from such events, to establish rules of conduct which are deeply rooted in the reality of experience.

UNFORTUNATELY, the criticisms voiced in the United States have encouraged the Communists to believe that Washington is carrying out its foreign policy in an opportunistic way and will be governed by expediency. Actually, the administration is determined to negotiate a settlement only when there is a genuine respect for America's intention to use whatever force is necessary to protect the independence of the weaker nations. > Richard Starnes So Let The Crab Grass Grow

WASHINGTON - The typical American male (suburbus perspectus, if you want his textbook classification) is a helpless victim of the divorce racket, the laws against wife beating, and the barbecue outrage. But the thing that is going to fetch him is crab grass.

Crab grass is an essential part of the anti-male conspiracy. Left to his own devices, the spavined American wage earner would never lift a finger against the stuff.

BUT THE POOR dolt is not left to his own devices, not ever. From the time his mustached mom drags him screaming before the baptismal font until his wapper-jawed spouse sends for the village embalmer to haul away his mortal clay, he is driven, directed, bullied, baited, chivvied, terrified and tormented by an endless succession of womenfolk.

What spark of spirit is left when his loving mom gets through with him is quickly extinguished by the gantlet of spinster school teachers he must run. And by the time some spurious vision of foamrubber charms, false hair and nerve-gas perfume gets to him he is no more than a vestige of manhood, and is wholly unable to defend himself against the life sentence the lady has in mind.

HE DOESN'T know why he thinks he hates crab grass; indeed the pitiful creature is kept so engorged with subliminal juice that he is unsure of his motives for anything. Somehow the screech owl to whom he is wed, aided by the sly hucksters of garden supplies, got it into his head that suburban rectitude requires that his heavily-mortgaged lawn be free of crab grass.

As a consequence of this implanted aberration, our suburban husband and father spends the hot months following a routine that the most sadistic of foreign legion sergeants would hesitate to impose upon an insubordinate recruit.

MY OWN research into the tangled subject of crab grass was abandoned some years ago, and Crestfallen Manor now resents a prospect that would bring tears of degenerate joy to the eyes of Jeeter Lester himself. WHAT OTHERS SAY

How much longer can the Communist nations of Eastern Europe hold out against the tide of logic and fact, and put off drastic changes in the system of collectivized agriculture? How much longer will those nations (except Poland and Yugoslavia where collective farming has been largely done away with) put dogma before production, theory before crops?

Shorn of initiative and personal interest, the Eastern European peasant refuses to make the effort on collectivized acres which is essential to the success of the Communist land system.

Not only has Communist agriculture fallen far behind that in the United States and Western Europe, not only has it failed to make the patchy progress which Communist industry has made, it is coming nearer and nearer the point where it may not be able to feed the Communist peoples. When a farming land like the Soviet Union. with nearly three times the area of the United States, is forced to buy more than a quarter of a billion dollars' worth of food abroad, as it did in 1964, something must be fatally and irreparably wrong with Communist agriculture.

True, expansion of peasant plots carries a serious threat to communism. For state ownership and control of the land is even more important to Marxism than is control of industry. To free farming is to restore tens of millions of persons to at least partial private enterprise.

Yet, in the end, which will the leaders of Eastern Europe prefer: A system of agriculture which, while conforming more or less to Marxism.

PILOT TRAINING CLASS 66-G WEBB

Big Spring and all its people extend the friendly hand of a West Texas welcome to the student pilots of Webb's Class 66-G. These young men, here for a complete course of primary and basic jet-flying instruction, become citizens of our city for more than a year, and it is our earnest hope that they will find here a helpful, cheerful and hospitable atmosphere; and that when they must leave, they will do so with a kind feeling in their hearts for Big Spring, its business establishments, and all its population.

May we urge our new student pilots, as time permits them, to become acquainted with our town, to know about the churches and the schools, the facilities for leisure and enjoyment, the shops and the service establishments.

Particularly do we ask them to drop in and see us, just to let us get acquainted, and say in person what we are saying here. There's no obligation to buy at any time . . . we want to be of service, and of assistance if we can.

Yes, it's all wrapped up in one wholesome, hearty word . . . "WELCOME!"

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Re-tired Lt. Gen. Kearie L. Berry, 72, died Tuesday at Brooke Army Hospital. He was a resi-dent of Austin.

He served with the Army in World Wars I and II, surviving the Bataan death march in World War II.

Berry retired in 1947 after 30 years' service and accepted Gov. Beauford Jester's appointment as Texas adjutant general, a post he held from 1947 to 1961.
