Freezing Rain Due To Follow Snowfall

Snow, which began falling with extreme caution. State highway department had men and trucks out all night sanding down slippery spots on federal and state roads. The work was still under way. It was said, at 11 a.m. today. While the icy places were all over the county, the department said the most dangerous pieces of road were on US 87 north of town. State highway patrol officers said there were no serious accidents. One minor mishap involved a car from Eugene, Ore., and a Howard County pickup truck. This was at Midway cutoff ramp on IS 20, 1.5 miles east. The driver of the car was Wayne Lundgren, 52. The truck was driven by Cecil Herbert Drake, 27, Rt. 1. Damage to the vehicles was slight. The forecast for today and tomorrow calls for a continuation of the same general weather with rain expected to freeze later in the day promised.

Halfmann Youngsters Win Top Show Honors

GARDEN CITY—Sandra Halfmann, 12, and her brother, Rudy, 14, won honors in both sheep and hogs at the Glasscock County Livestock Show held Monday. Miss Halfmann's lamb was champion finewool lamb of the show. Her brother won the hog showmanship award. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Halfmann. Ronnie Hirt, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hirt, showed the reserve finewool lamb. He also had the reserve champion crossbred lamb. Jerry Schafer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schafer, showed the top crossbred lamb and Bill Underwood, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Underwood, had the first place medium wool lamb. Lisa Hirt, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hirt, showed the reserve mutton type lamb. Both of these were Hampshires. Wayne Halfmann, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Halfmann, was the best lamb showman of the day. Buddy Heinrich, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Heinrich, showed the top hog of the show and 12-year-old Steve Seidenberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Seidenberger, showed the reserve champion barrow. The champion finewool lamb went to Producers Livestock of Stanton for $1.20, the top crossbred to Rusco Chemical of Midland for $1.30 a pound, and the top mutton to Rusco for $1.35 a pound. However, the bidding grew hotter as the sale went along, and many of the lambs went for $1.50 a pound and above. At this point, State National Bank of Big Spring stepped in and announced it would underwrite the difference between what the champions had brought and $2 a pound. Armour Packing at San Angelo bid in lambs on the resale at 23 cents a pound and Pace Packing of Sweetwater the pigs

Snow, Drizzle Dampen And Chill Texas

A mixture of light snow and drizzle spread a damp chill across a vast section of Texas today, but it appeared the storm would prove much less severe than many had expected. There was enough snow to cover the ground in comparatively few areas. Freezing drizzle glazed highways dangerously at many points but the Department of Public Safety reported all routes open at 6 a.m. Early in the morning a band of snow and icy drizzle up to 100 miles wide stretched from El Paso eastward through Mineral Wells, Fort Worth, Dallas, Denton, Paris and Texarkana.

WINTRY MOISTURE This wintry patch of moisture gradually moved southward, advancing past Abilene, San Angelo, Waco, Tyler and Lufkin. Toward dawn the weather Bureau reported most of the continuing light snow, sleet or rain was centered in an area bounded by lines linking Mineral Wells, Dallas, Waco and Lufkin, and still edging toward the south. Skies cleared over the Panhandle, permitting temperatures before dawn to go as low as 10 degrees at Dalhart. A cloud cover over the rest of the state tended to hold reading up a bit, although freezing weather knifed deep into the state. Early reports indicated the unusually damp snow was heaviest in areas around El Paso, San Angelo and Abilene, gradually thinning as the snow belt widened Monday evening to the Red River.

EL PASO SNOW By official measurement, El Paso kept 3 inch of snow on the ground although the far West Texas city received more than one inch plus a protracted drizzle. San Angelo gauged between 2 and 3 inches of snowfall before it turned into a nightlong freezing drizzle. Two inches blanketed the countryside around Abilene. Little or no snow stuck long enough to whiten the earth at numerous places. Farther south, misting rain fell over most of South Texas.

OCASIONAL RAIN The Weather Bureau predicted occasional rain or snow in the northern sections of the state would change to rain and tonight. Rainfall was expected to continue in southern areas another day. A slow warmup was forecast for all of Texas through Wednesday. Arctic air sent temperatures below zero in large sections of the country today. A deep snow cover added to the bitter cold in some areas. The mercury dropped to 25 below zero in Bismarck, N.D. In South Dakota, Sioux Falls and Huron had -19.

IN MINNESOTA In Minnesota, it was -13 at Rochester, while an inch of snow fell in Duluth. Wisconsin was blanketed by snow and gripped by subzero temperatures. The snow depths ranged from 10 inches in Milwaukee to 17 inches at Park Falls in northwestern Wisconsin. Monday's high temperatures in Wisconsin included 3 in Green Bay and Eau Claire and 6 in Milwaukee. The highest of the day was 11 at La Crosse and Lone Rock. Earlier it was -15 at La Crosse. Temperatures were near zero or below in northern Illinois, including -7 at O'Hare International Airport.

IN MICHIGAN In Michigan, Houghton labored under 31 inches of snow as temperatures hovered at zero.

Mothers To March Today

The area Mothers' March will begin tonight at 6 o'clock, according to Mrs. R. E. Ray, chairman. Mrs. Ray said that unless the weather is extremely hazardous, the mothers would march as planned. If there is a change in plans by evening, the radio stations will be notified and will broadcast any changes, she said. Proceeds from the Mothers' March will go to the National Foundation for Birth Defects, better known as the March of Dimes. In addition to the local mothers participating, most of whom are P-TA presidents, a group of 14 Jaycee-Ettes, headed by Mrs. Jo Crump, will handle the march in the Crestview area.

Men Married But Childless Face Induction

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas draft boards will induct 1,362 single and childless married men, aged 19 to 25, during February, the State Selective Service said today. The February call is slightly below the 1,475 for January and 1,523 in December. It is Texas' share of a national call of 29,400 men which includes 26,400 for the Army and 3,000 for Marines.

Armed Force Total To Top Three Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The vast bulk of the 113,000 additional fighting men sought by the Johnson administration will be used to strengthen Army and Marine ground forces, it was learned today. American ground forces are shouldering an ever-greater combat load in the Viet Nam war.

FEW THOUSAND

The Navy and Air Force each will get only a few thousand more men in the new buildup, which will push total U.S. armed strength over the 3-million mark for the first time in a dozen years. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told newsmen at the White House Monday that the administration will ask Congress to vote another $12.346 billion to underwrite the soaring costs of the U. S. involvement in Viet Nam. The White House said $415 million will also be asked for economic purposes, bringing the supplemental total to $12.761 billion.

DETAILS SCANT McNamara provided few details, beyond disclosing the dollar figure and the new manpower increase. Officials at the Pentagon took their cue from the defense secretary and declined to elaborate. The new administration money request — heralded as long ago as last summer — will be sent to Capitol Hill Tuesday and McNamara will give the specifics in testimony before senators on Thursday. This is the second major supplementary money request and military manpower increase for this year stemming directly from the deeper U. S. commitment in Viet Nam.

$1.7 BILLION Last August, when the basic decision was made to put large American ground forces into the battle, Congress granted the administration another $1.7 billion and authorized an increase of 340,000 men, mostly for the Army. The second installment will boost the manpower ceilings to a point more than 450,000 above the level anticipated at the time the big Viet Nam buildup was ordered last summer.

SOCIAL-DRINKING TUTORSHIP

Teach Kids How To Hold Their Liquor?

NEWTON, Mass. (AP)—Harvard psychiatrist Dr. Morris E. Chafetz says many people have misconstrued his proposal that lessons in drinking alcohol be given in public schools. "I'm not trying to sell drinking, and I'm not trying to encourage my own children — or any children — to drink. I'm just trying to help them develop a healthy, responsible attitude toward alcohol," he said Monday.

"AM SHOCKED" He made the proposal in a speech last week in New York. Chafetz, 41, director of the Massachusetts General Hospital's alcoholism clinic, said he was shocked at the number of people who misunderstood the speech. "I believe in and respect the individuality of children. I don't believe in treating them as non-human beings until they're 21, then expecting them to suddenly assume adult responsibility they've never had to experience." He said he has taught his own sons — Adam, 8, Marc, 12, and Gary, 18 — to drink liquor or leave it alone. "IT'S AVAILABLE" "It's always available to our children," he said and added

Newly-Arrived Fighters Put At 7,000

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Seven thousand more U.S. fighting men poured into South Viet Nam today to strengthen Saigon's defenses against guerrilla attack and to put more muscle in the Marine beachhead on the central coast. Although the Viet Cong forces avoided major action in advance of the lunar New Year celebrations later this week, guerrilla bands harassed government positions, exploded mines, tossed grenades and ambushed militia platoons. An orphanage was hit in one attack, apparently by mistake. Political infighting among South Viet Nam's military leaders again raised fears of trouble for the seven-month-old government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. He was reported to have told a battalion of army troops at Saigon airport Monday that "5 to 30" generals were seeking to overturn his regime.

RUMORS SUBSIDE

Rumors of an impending coup swept Saigon over the weekend during the visit of Secretary of State Dean Rusk. Most of the country's top military leaders were in Saigon at the time. The rumors subsided later. The new American arrivals were 4,000 infantrymen of the U.S. 25th Division's 2nd Brigade from Hawaii and 3,000 Marines from Okinawa. They brought total American troop strength in South Viet Nam to 191,000 men.

WOUND CHILDREN

The Viet Cong before dawn fired mortars at a U.S. military compound in Quang Ngai City, 325 miles northeast of Saigon. The shells fell into a nearby orphanage and a Vietnamese regimental headquarters. Five children and three Vietnamese civilian caretakers at the orphanage were wounded. None of the 200 Americans was hurt, but an unofficial report said two Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 14 were wounded. "It was really close," said Sgt. Wayne Mabry of Philadelphia. "After the first round we were up and in the bunkers. We could see the rounds falling."

OUTPOST CASUALTIES

Other Communist mortars caused light casualties at the government outpost of An Lo, on north-south Highway 1 near the northern frontier 8 miles from the old imperial capital of Hue. The Viet Cong exacted their heaviest toll in the past 24 hours by ambushing two platoons of government militiamen on road-clearing work 16 miles south of Saigon Monday afternoon.

Trial Will Spotlight New Criminal Code

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — James C. Cross Jr. goes on trial St. Valentine's day, accused of the sensational strangulation murder of two University of Texas co-eds — the state's top news story of 1965.

Sharing the spotlight at the trial with the case itself will be Texas' controversial new Code of Criminal Procedure. The Cross case will be one of the first major trials of statewide interest conducted under the new code.

Defense and prosecuting attorneys are expected to argue vigorously over at least one crucial provision of the code if Cross is found guilty. The outcome of the anticipated dispute, dealing with sentencing procedure, could determine Cross' fate.

BODIES IN FIELD The 23-year-old former University of Texas student was charged Aug. 6 with strangling Shirley Ann Stark and Susan Rigby. The decomposed, partially nude bodies of the 21-year-old Chi Omega Sorority sisters were found in a field on the north edge of Austin July 30, 12 days after they were last seen alive. Both young women were from Dallas.

Dist. Atty. Tom Blackwell said he has not decided which slaying to bring to trial. Presumably, Cross would not be tried in both slayings if he is convicted in one of them. The district attorney's office and lawyers who investigated the slayings say they followed the new code throughout the case, although the code did not take effect until Jan. 1.

PRE-TRIAL STEP A major pre-trial step, not provided in the old code, takes place Jan. 28 when Cross is brought before Dist. Judge Mace Thurman for arraignment and hearing of preliminary motions. Arraignment will include the reading of the indictment to Cross, who then will enter a plea of guilty or not guilty. His attorneys next will be allowed to make pre-trial pleadings and motions.

Cross' attorneys are expected to take advantage of a new rule allowing them to move for "deposition and discovery" — access to prosecution evidence, including a statement signed by Cross. They also have the right to move at the pre-trial hearing for suppression of certain evidence, quashing of the indictment or change of venue — which they are not expected to seek.

Legal observers say the actual trial will be shorter than it would have been under the old code, which required that pleadings and preliminary motions be made after the jury was impaneled.

SUPREME PENALTY Blackwell conformed to an other new rule when he served notice Jan. 5, in Cross' presence, that he will seek the death penalty. During the trial, the code allows jurors to go home at the end of each day if the judge and attorneys agree. Thurman, however, reportedly leans away from this in the Cross case. Blackwell predicts that it will become customary to keep the jury together throughout a capital case.

If Cross is found guilty, a major dispute could arise over sentencing procedures, confronting Thurman with a tough legal decision. The code allows a convicted defendant in non-capital cases to decide whether the judge or the jury will set his punishment. A separate hearing is provided, and both sides may present evidence about the defendant's character and previous criminal record. Without speaking directly about the Cross case, Blackwell said he thinks this procedure does not apply to cases in which the state seeks the death penalty.

Waters Shrinking For Shrimp Fleet

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Caribbean grows ever smaller for America's shrimp fleet, caught in the web of U.S. relations with Latin America. The detention of nine Tampa-based shrimp fishermen in Santa Lucia, Cuba, Sunday after one of their vessels grounded was another in a long series of troublesome incidents based more on politics than the ample natural hazards of shrimping.

The captain of one of the detained vessels told his owners by radiotelephone Monday they had been released. American shrimpers have been conducted ashore in so many Latin-American ports in the last 15 years that the U.S. government routinely handles their claims for reimbursements of fines and confiscated catches.

Under the federal Fishermen's Protective Act, "we lay out all the circumstances, substantiate it with receipts and what not, and a check comes down from the Treasury Department," said Oscar Longnecker of Brownsville, Tex., executive secretary of the Shrimp Association of the Americas. NEWEST OBSTACLE Cuba under Fidel Castro, has become the newest obstacle to movement of the U.S. shrimp fleet in the Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico. Some shrimp can be taken near Cuba's Isle of Pines, but the political risks all but eliminate the temptation to go there, says Bobby Canaday of Tampa, a Singleton Shrimp Co. official. This is not so in the rich shrimp fields of Caratasca Key, Honduras; Nicaragua and Campeche, off the western coast of Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, Canaday says.

VARYING LIMITS Here the trouble lies in the varying limits of territorial waters — nine miles in Mexico, 12 in Honduras, three in the United States and the continental shelf — up to 35 miles — in Nicaragua. It also comes from competition among U.S.-based shrimp firms and firms in Honduras and Nicaragua owned by Americans who use political influence to keep American boats out of the shrimp grounds, a Tampa shrimp operator said.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES: 8

Three Big Ways To Save If You Are Over 65

By RAY DE CRANE, NEA Special Writer

Taxpayers who reached their 65th birthday by Dec. 31, 1965, have three opportunities for major tax savings on their income tax return. They are:

1. Dollar-for-dollar deduction for all medical expenses, including all prescribed drugs, hospital and health insurance, doctor and dentist fees, cost of dentures and hearing aids. This means that on a joint return—even if only one of the spouses is 65—medical expenses are fully deductible without reference to the three per cent and one per cent rules which apply to under-65 taxpayers.

2. No tax to be paid when they sell their home for $20,000 or less, regardless of how much profit was made on the sale. There is no requirement that they buy another home.

3. A joint retirement income credit which could exempt, in effect, an additional $2,286 in income from tax at a 15 per cent rate if husband and wife are each 65 and they file a joint return and each one can compute separate credits beginning with $1,524.

To get the benefit of the complete medical deduction the only requirement is that such expenses be paid by the taxpayer or his wife. The maximum medical deduction is $10,000 on a separate return, $20,000 on a joint return. The special privilege on the sale of a home carries these requirements:

Table with columns for 'A' and 'B' and rows for '1. Retirement income credit', '2. Medical expenses', '3. Home sale'.

Adjusted sales price 27,700. Ratio of $20,000 to $27,700 (per cent) 72.2. Portion of $12,650 gain to be excluded ($12,650 x 72.2 pct) $ 9,133.30. Remaining gain subject to tax $ 3,516.70.

Amount realized 28,050. Less Fixing-up Expense 350. Adjusted sales price 27,700. Ratio of $20,000 to $27,700 (per cent) 72.2. Portion of $12,650 gain to be excluded ($12,650 x 72.2 pct) $ 9,133.30. Remaining gain subject to tax $ 3,516.70.

from public retirement systems. Two kinds of credit computations may be used—a combined computation limited to $2,286 retirement income if both spouses are 65 or older and file a joint return, or separate computations by each spouse limited to $1,524.

In either case the maximum amount is reduced first by the amounts received under Social Security, Railroad Retirement Act and certain other exclusions from gross income. For taxpayers under 72 years of age there is a further reduction in this amount based upon the amount of earned income.

A husband and wife may file a joint return and use the combined limit of $2,286 even though only one of them meets the prior earned income test.

Follow the illustration step by step of how a married couple filing a joint return received a retirement income credit of $106.65 which they used to reduce the tax owned on their income. They each had reached their 65th birthday by last Dec. 31. Their return shows that each reported taxable income of $2,000 from interest and dividends. The husband received $1,050 in Social Security, his wife $525.

Nigeria Chief Promises To Restore Order

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Maj. Gen. Aguiyi Ironsi, Nigeria's new military ruler, says he will end disorders in this West African nation and will impose martial law if necessary.

Ironsi told a news conference at his heavily guarded headquarters that he will have a committee draw up a new constitution and will hold national elections when the constitution is completed.

"I am a soldier and it has never been my ambition to meddle in politics," said the 41-year-old military chief who took over power Sunday after announcing that an attempted coup had been smashed.

"It was my intention only to crush the revolt by military means, but then I discovered the rebel elements did not want to fight. I was informed the people of Nigeria wanted a military government and wanted the army to take over to avoid further bloodshed."

Sky Sparkles To Be Probed

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—The aurora borealis, or northern lights, nature's awesome fireworks in the skies, always has intrigued man. He hopes to find out what sets them off during this age of rockets.

Scientists at Johns Hopkins University have assembled their fourth and most inquisitive load of instruments for probing the electrical display over Canada.

The seven-foot nose cone section of gadgetry was sent today to the Goddard Space Center at Greenbelt, Md., for a final check. An Aerobee rocket is scheduled to boost it 100 miles high over Fort Churchill Feb. 15 or within the next 30 days.

"The aurora borealis is one of the most striking and most studied phenomena, yet the least we know about," said William C. Fastie of the Johns Hopkins physics department. "I think that with rocket work we are going to solve it."

He described the endeavor to measure and analyze what causes the sky sparklers "a small part in the long-range goal" of finding out all there is to know about the magnetic field surrounding the earth and the effects on it of electrons.

Students In Dope Case Dropping Out

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—A lawyer for several University of Oklahoma students charged with felony narcotics violations said Monday night four of the students wish to voluntarily withdraw from school until the case is settled.

George Miskovsky of Oklahoma City said his firm represents three of seven students in the case. He announced the decision after conferring with David Swank, OU legal counsel.

Students wishing to withdraw, Miskovsky said, are Terry Irwin Abrams, 21, of Dallas; Robert Williamson, 21, of Ardmore, Okla.; and Lawrence McFarland, 23, of Beaver, Okla.

A fourth student, Michael Bried, 19, of Oklahoma City, also desires to withdraw but postponed a decision until he could consult his father, Miskovsky said.

'Third Force' Due To Enter Dominica's June Elections

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The unstable Dominican political situation has spawned a "third force" of conservatives certain to enter the June presidential elections.

At the moment, this force is an indefinite regrouping of the conservative parties that opposed and lost to the Dominican Revolutionary party in the 1962 elections.

"third force" candidate will hurt the candidacy of ex-President Joaquin Balaguer of the Reformist party, and proportionately help the Revolutionary party standard-bearer, expected to be Juan Bosch.

The question is in what measure this new element will affect the June voting. Discussing this recently, Dr. Balaguer said: "They won't get 5 per cent of the vote. They have no following."

confined to the two foremost candidates: Balaguer for the conservatives and Bosch for the left-wing moderates and far left.

Balaguer, however, is said to have alienated conservatives recently by wooing liberals regarded as committed to Bosch. That annoyed and frightened the right wing. It already had been suspicious of Balaguer since his last days as president when he ordered sharp price reductions in consumer goods and cut interest rates on loans from 8 to 4 per cent.

Injuries to the neck are becoming more frequent and are recognized as a cause of chronic headaches. A common cause of whiplash is the violent force of this motion causes a tearing of the discs of the neck, vertebrae often slip out of place, and nerves are irritated. Although we have known of this whiplash injury for years, it is only recently that its frequency preceding chronic headaches has been demonstrated.

arms and eventually even cause shoulder bursitis. These are seldom noticed at the time of the injury, though, and the accident causing them is often forgotten. Later on, the symptoms present themselves, perhaps one at a time. A person may experience shoulder pain without apparent reason, or he may complain of stiff neck and recurrent arm pains. The weather may be blamed, but if an examination were made, the original injury could be detected.

The whiplash injury of the neck can usually be corrected. You should insist upon a Chiropractic examination whenever its presence is suspected, or following an accident. Republicans Claim State Of Union Far From Good WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican congressional leaders say the State of the Union is less than good, the nation's world prestige is drooping and its domestic economy is threatened by inflationary Democratic spending.

This was the summation of Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen and House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford as they ignited their "torch of dissent" to President Johnson's programs in a taped national broadcast Monday night.

Reviewing the world situation, Dirksen said that despite $120 billion spent on foreign aid, "our prestige on the world thermometer of good will has dropped fast and far."

He called for continuing war and peace efforts in Viet Nam. In each, he said, there can be "no substitute for victory" — no withdrawal and no negotiation from weakness which "would mean defeat before we ever reached the negotiation table."

SOUND JUDGMENT

"Let the peace efforts continue," he said. "Let the military effort continue. Let it be intensified if necessary, as sound military judgment dictates."

Ford denounced the "inflationary policies of the President" which he said had increased the cost of government $26 billion in two years. He called for sharp budget pruning of domestic programs he said would eliminate the need for $1 billion in new taxes Johnson has asked.

Democratic reaction was speedy.

House Speaker John W. McCormack said the Republicans were "a little presumptuous" in billing their effort as a GOP "State of the Union" message.

It was the President's job to make such a report, he added.

PLEASES MANSFIELD
However, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he is glad the Republican leadership "had a chance to deliver its message to the people of the United States."

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., a Senate Foreign Relations committee member, said Dirksen was "blowing both hot and cold" on Viet Nam while purporting to support the President.

"Particularly immature, in my judgment, is his reiteration of the old cliché that 'there is no substitute for victory,'" Clark said. "Throughout history most wars have ended at the conference table far short of total victory."

House Democratic Leader Carl Albert said, "If what we heard him (Ford) say tonight means that there's going to be an about-face in Republican voting on such crucial issues as education, health, and war on poverty, we can look forward to a very productive second session of the 89th Congress."

"WASTE OF TIME?"
"If, on the other hand, all that we really saw and heard was window-dressing intended to confuse the issue and conceal the Republicans' real record, then I think it was largely a waste of time."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who had joined Mansfield in saying after a world tour that the chances of Viet Nam negotiations were slim, said he was puzzled by what Dirksen had to say.

"If he means we cannot get out of South Viet Nam until satisfactory arrangements are made, I agree," Aiken said. "If he means we should intensify the war there, that is another matter. That decision is not ours to make."

The Republican leaders chose the old Supreme Court room of the Capitol for their televised addresses. They packed it with a partisan audience of about 200 — including about 60 of their House members and a dozen senators — coached in advance to give "vigorous applause" that could be recorded for the television-radio audience.

LITTLE APPLAUSE
Dirksen's review of international affairs drew little sustained applause because he dealt largely in generalities. But Ford brought the Republicans to their feet with thunderous applause by his demands for "truth in budgeting by the White House" and his attack on what he called "the bad odor of political bossism" in the anti-poverty program.

Even before the Republicans could get on the air, Johnson turned loose a series of administration announcements that competed for national attention with what the GOP leaders had to say.

The White House said Johnson is maintaining "flexibility of decision" and has set no deadlines for ending his current peace offensive.

Tulsa Schools Re-Open After 1-Day Strike

TULSA (AP)—Tulsa's 96 public schools reopened today after a one-day strike of bus drivers, custodians and maintenance employees who claim the Teamsters Union as their bargaining agent.

Judge Lee Johnson, at the request of the Board of Education, granted a restraining order Monday prohibiting Teamsters Local 523 from picketing school officials or encouraging workers to stay off their jobs.

Johnson set a hearing on a temporary injunction for Feb. 1.

He did not order individual workers back to their jobs. A possibility was that some might refuse to work. More than 80 of the 525 employees affected by the strike are licensed engineers who operate heating plants at the schools.

School Supt. Charles Mason said classes would resume for the city's 77,000 pupils.

Lighthouses In New Style

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (AP) — Lighthouses that look more like candy canes or barbers' poles are sprouting up on Nova Scotia's shores.

This departure from the traditional wood or masonry tower is a development of the Transport Department's Marine Agency here, especially draftsman Patrick Connors. He says he feels, and many mariners are beginning to agree, that the new light eventually will replace those of the old style.

Built of reinforced fiberglass and aluminum, the red-striped tower weighs only 1,300 pounds. It can support an 800-pound light and is erected by four men in a few hours.

Several Connors lights now are in operation and have shown they are almost maintenance-free and can take the pounding of heavy weather. One such tower, tested to destruction, withstood winds of 100 miles per hour, coated with half an inch of ice.

When one of the new lighthouses is damaged, repair is easy. It is much the same as patching an automobile tire.

Germany Blast Kills 3, Hurts 90

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—A major explosion ripped through the Caltex oil refinery near here today. Police reported three persons killed and 90 injured, about 30 seriously. An undetermined number were reported missing.

The blast set off a blaze that threatened to spark another explosion. Firefighters said that unless the fire was brought quickly under control it might ignite a large hydrogen tank nearby.

FIGHT BLAZE
A huge cloud mushroomed over the $50-million plant as hundreds of firemen and police tried to check the blaze.

Police said the firemen were unable to get closer than 50 yards because of the heat. The explosion lifted the 100-foot-long roof off the refinery's main building. Fragments of metal and rock were hurled for 300 yards.

CRACKS WALLS
The blast cracked walls of houses in the neighborhood and could be felt in villages three miles away.

The Caltex refinery was completed less than three years ago. In December 1963 it was the scene of a minor explosion in which four workers were injured.

MRS. C. G. FISHER

Miss Clayton Weds In Home Ceremony

Miss Tara Clayton exchanged wedding vows Sunday afternoon with C. G. Fisher at the home of Miss Ruth Dyer, 811 Johnson. The Rev. J. A. Puckett, pastor of Baptist Temple, officiated for the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Clayton, Kennelick, Wash., and the niece of Miss Wilma Richbourg, a former resident of Big Spring. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Fisher Sr., Amarillo. Before an altar centered with emerald fern palms, and against a background of traditional wedding music, the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Jack T. Richbourg. She wore a street-length sheath of off-white raw silk. Her corsage was cymbidium orchids showered in pink carnations and tied in matching picot ribbon carried atop a white Bille. Mrs. Don Morris, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Her corsage was a nosegay of pink carnations backed with pink tulle and showered with matching satin ribbon. Charles Brumley served as best man. Following a wedding trip along the Gulf Coast, the couple will reside at 703 Creighton. The bride, whose mother is the former Pearl Richbourg, graduated from Kennelick High School, Kennelick, Wash., and attended Columbia Basin College, Pasco, Wash. The bridegroom is a graduate of Westbrook High School in Amarillo, and attended Howard County Junior College. He is employed at Cosden Petroleum Company. The reception was held at the Dyer home where the honored couple, parents and attendants greeted guests. Assisting at the refreshment table was Mrs. John Davenport, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Claud Hodnett. The table was centered with pink carnations, and the three-tiered wedding cake was adorned with a miniature bride and groom. Miss Rae Nell Dyer was in charge of the register. Out-of-town guests were Lee Fisher, Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Clayton and Mr. and Mrs. Summer Clayton, all of O'Donnell; and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Richbourg, Odessa.

Lots Of Places To Buy Poll Tax

If it is inconvenient for you to come to the Howard County Courthouse to pay your poll tax don't bother. Just go to anyone of the several substations Mrs. Zirah LeFevre, county tax assessor, has set up.

For example, if you are out near the Cosden refinery, you can get your poll tax receipt at the IUOE building, where Frank Parker is prepared to serve you.

If you are in the vicinity of the Huddle, 411 NW 7th, after 5 p.m. you can get your poll tax receipts from Yolanda Gamboa or Mary Chavez. They will be on duty daily from 5 p.m. to closing time at the cafe and all day Jan. 31.

At the Lewis 5 and 10 store in College Park Shopping Center, Jim Lewis or some of his appointed clerks can provide you with a poll tax receipt during operating hours of the store.

Employees and others at the Veterans Administration Hospital can get their poll tax receipts from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. from Cliffs Slate, who will set up temporary quarters at the hospital Jan. 26.

She will be at the Cosden office building downtown from 9 p.m. to closing on Jan 18 and at the Cosden refinery from 9 a.m. to closing on Jan. 25.

On Jan. 21, Mrs. LeFevre and Mrs. Slate will be at the high school from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m.; at Goliad Junior High from 11 a.m. to noon; and at Runnels Junior High from noon to 1 p.m.

Meantime, of course, all of Mrs. LeFevre's deputies in the ad valorem tax office in the courthouse are prepared to issue poll tax receipts and exemption certificates.

Civic and political leaders are gravely disturbed by the lack of interest in qualifying to vote in the numerous important elections coming up in 1966. Less than 3,000 voters have qualified themselves so far. Deadline for paying poll tax or obtaining exemption certificates expires Jan. 31.

Girl Scout Leader Guidance Urged

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr Monday night urged South Texas Girl Scout leaders to provide proper guidance for the nation's increasing number of young people.

Speaking at the annual banquet of the Tip of Texas Girl Scout Council, the attorney general said the birth rate in the United States has risen "so rapidly that no group seems to have the time to provide adequate guidance to our children, and this is destined to be calamitous."

Rich Widow Expects Death Trial Acquittal

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Candace Mossler says she would be glad to take the witness stand to defend herself against charges that she murdered the husband who willed her millions of dollars.

"I know nothing of the murder," the blonde told newsmen Monday as the selection of a jury began for the joint trial of Mrs. Mossler and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers, accused in the killing of her husband, Jacques Mossler.

"I will gladly testify to that. I would surely think the jury would acquit me."

SLAIN IN '64

Mossler, 69, owner of banking interests in several states, was slain June 30, 1964, in a modest apartment the family maintained on Key Biscayne, a residential-resort island near Miami.

The killer fractured Mossler's skull and plunged a knife into his body 39 times.

It could be several weeks before the opportunity to call Mrs. Mossler to the stand will materialize.

After the first day's court session, no juror had been chosen and it appeared that the process of picking 12 jurors and four alternates would drag on at least through the first week.

The trial could last two months or longer.

The state charges that Mrs.

Mossler, who says she is 39 years old, and Powers, who claims to be 29, were partners in a love affair — and in murder.

Mossler's will named his wife as executrix of an estate she estimated at $28 million.

The gray-haired financier, a one-time American Legion commander and Boy Scout commissioner, left $2.5 million to each of his four daughters by an earlier marriage, Mrs. Mossler said.

$14 MILLION

After deducting benefits he set up for his employees she estimated that $14 million would be left.

"Jacques had less than a million dollars when we were married," she said. "All the rest has been made since." They were married May 24, 1949. Previous marriages for both ended in divorce.

A Devotional For The Day

The life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me. (Galatians 2:20)

PRAYER: Awaken us to our troubled world, O Lord. Help us to meet each challenge with personal strength and the group strength of Thy church. In our Redeemer's name we ask. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Flank Assault On Capital Gains

A new assault may be mounted against one of the prime escape hatches in the income tax law: Capital gains. This provision in the law permits profits from the sale of real estate and certain other property held more than six months to be taxed at only 25 per cent.

Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, new chairman of the Senate appropriations, will be one of the leaders in this assault if he can gain the backing of Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

In the manner of all good military tacticians, however, Long does not plan to make a frontal attack on the capital gains citadel. He will attack from the flanks, offering taxpayers an optional, more simplified tax reporting and paying plan. Under Long's proposal a taxpayer would pay a maximum tax rate of 50 per cent, but would have to treat a capital gain on stock, cows or real estate, as ordinary income.

Long is enough of a realist to know that his proposal will arouse a storm of protest. Many large fortunes in recent years have been accumulated under the capital gains formula. But he hopes to attract the support of doctors, lawyers and other professional people who are weary of the annual wrestling match with the Income Tax Service.

The views of Rep. Mills are not known publicly. His committee would have to initiate the Long plan, since Long probably would not resort to the somewhat unorthodox procedure of tacking his plan on an amendment to a House appropriations bill. But Mills is known to have sympathy for simplification of the tax law.

Long will depend, too, for support from the people, the wage-earners who have their income tax deducted at the source and never have an opportunity to take advantage of a tax loophole, much less enjoy the benefits of the capital gains formula. He may not succeed this year or in any near future year, but just the idea of simplifying the income tax law is enough to strike a responsive chord in the heart of most taxpayers.

Castro's Conference

Understandably, and wisely, Washington and the non-Communist governments of Latin America have watched with wary concern the nine-day tricontinental conference that Fidel Castro staged in Cuba.

Venezuelan President Raul Leoni's estimation that "the peace of the continent is at stake" was, likely over stated though a pardonable for a country plagued by Castro-aided terrorists. No truly grave threat to world peace has come from previous parleys of Communist conspirators from the less advanced lands, including the earlier flop blessed by former President Cardenas in tolerant Mexico City.

That is not to say that the Afro-Asian-Latin Assembly in Havana should not have been kept under close surveillance by U. S. and allied intelligence agencies for indeed it bares close watching. It probably has revealed useful clues to subversive strategies that may be attempted in Latin America and other undeveloped regions vulnerable to false ideological promises of quick and easy solutions to massive and urgent social and economic problems.

There are two benefits, however, that may accrue from Castro's absurdly ambitious bid for a leadership role in the diverse and divided Southern Hemisphere. For one, the visiting delegations may have been something less than inspiring impressed by economically distressed Cuba as a showplace for communism's claim to being the wave of the future in the emergent underdeveloped nations.

Another benefit may be an assist to the United States' effort to convince other members of the inter-American system that better means must be developed for collective security against covert aggression. If a really serious threat of intensified subversion in Latin America should follow Castro's conference, it should help the Organization of American States to move toward agreement on how the nonintervention principle can be modified to give more substance to the paper plans for inter-American defense.

Marquis Childs

The Two Johnsons

By WILLIAM S. WHITE (Substituting for Marquis Childs) WASHINGTON — Within the large, tough, demanding, sensitive and soft-hearted frame of Lyndon Johnson live two very different men. Both spoke in the President's extraordinary State of the Union Message to Congress.

One of these Johnsons is an old-fashioned prairie liberal reformist, almost a Populist, as the rural liberal movement was once known. He is utterly convinced of the perfectibility of man and of the inevitability of human progress. This Johnson does not believe in the doctrine of political original sin.

HE IS DEEPLY concerned humanly and personally — and politically too, for he knows that the progressive spirit is the central drive of American politics — with human needs and suffering. No President known to this columnist has been quite so poignantly alive to the cruelties of poverty.

So this Johnson is a reformer, an innovator, an eagerly audacious go-out-and-get-it type who honestly believes that nearly all things will bend enough. Here, the sky is the limit. The key to it all is an evangelistic persuasion. It is this Johnson who offers to Congress a new docket of social welfare in the face of what many had assumed would be a withdrawal in the face of demands for war in Viet Nam.

BUT THIS Johnson — and the point is a vital one — does not himself suppose that he is asking a great deal here. To him, odd as this may seem, it is genuinely modest and restrained. For big as it looks to many others, to him it looks, when measured against his own hopes and wishes, small indeed.

But the other Johnson is something else. This second Johnson is not the product of material conditions which made him what is called a liberal but rather of another tradition altogether in which a deep sense of realism and skepticism is a controlling factor.

THIS TRADITION is conservative, in international terms. Far from seeing the inevitability of progress, it accepts the presence of people generally evil, but within their leaders, not likely to be abated by good works or by any notion of the basic goodness of all men. This Johnson operates on the rock-bottom philosophy of conservatism. This is the conviction, as put by the philosopher Pascal, that right and force will rule — but force until the right is ready.

SO THIS IS the Johnson who says — and totally means — that this country will go on fighting in Viet Nam, wherever this course might lead, until an end to Communist aggression shall permit its withdrawal in honor.

In simple truth, of all men in his administration he would be the most reluctant to commit his country to major war — even more reluctant in human fact, say, than his seemingly more gentle Secretary of State, Dean Rusk. This is where the old Populism, with its strain of theoretical pacifist inclination, comes in. But once in a great war, he would be the last man to recoil.

FOR HE KNOWS that the ultimate duty of any President is not to make a country comfortable but to defend its life and the values within it that tower infinitely above all material deprivation. Deeply, even prayerfully, he wants to be most of all a President of peace. Driven to it, he would be the most implacable war President in our history.

GOP Mutes Its Cries For Heightened War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders who once advocated a naval quarantine against Cuba during the 1962 missile crisis.

AT THE same time, the Republicans called for "maximum use of American conventional air and sea power against significant military targets" in Communist North Viet Nam.

Dirksen insisted then the resolution did not seek escalation of the war. He said the proposals might ease the need for ground forces in South Viet Nam.

Even then the Johnson peace offensive was taking shape. Its outlines emerged slowly. Not until Dec. 30 did the White House announce that Johnson had orchestrated a worldwide diplomatic quest for peace.

North Viet Nam the kind of naval quarantine President John F. Kennedy instituted against Cuba during the 1962 missile crisis.

THE CAUTIOUS Republican words of recent days may stem from two concerns.

One is a shared hope that the quest for settlement can succeed. "Who can object to any honorable effort to secure peace where young blood is involved?" asked Dirksen.

The other looms next November: an election which the war in Viet Nam seems certain to be a major issue. Dirksen already has said it will be one.

"The people make the issues and the issues make the parties," he said Dec. 7. "It won't be the Republican party that will make it an issue. It will be the people."

Germans Gulping Champagne

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

West Germans now drink far more champagne than the French — 119 million bottles to 52 million. In the last 18 months they put down more bubbly than the entire German nation consumed between World War I and World War II.

Been checked for diabetes lately? Some four million Americans are estimated to have this disease—but only half of them know it.

NO WONDER wives of business executives complain of loneliness. Company presidents make an average of 41 trips a year away from home.

Dolly Madison, who sometimes acted as hostess for wil-dower President Thomas Jefferson, in 1809 first served ice cream in the White House. But stern George Washington apparently was fond of it, too. His expense ledger records that on May 17, 1784, he purchased a "cream machine for ice."

Around The Rim

Old Medicine Shows Never Die

The medicine show, once a big event in small towns from coast to coast, has disappeared forever from the American scene.

THERE WILL be many, I am sure, who will say "good riddance. But was it good riddance? The medicine shows, I think, produced more benefit than they did damage. They brought a little excitement into the dull lives of many isolated people.

It is true the nostrums distributed had no medicinal value. But, on the other hand, they did not cost very much and generally were harmless. And, just for the record, there were hundreds of loyal buyers who would fight you if you suggested the miracle tonic was a fraud. These good people took the stuff and honestly believed it made them feel better. Perhaps it did.

THE AVERAGE VARIETY show on television today follows the format of the old medicine show.

The good "doctor" (he always billed himself as "doctor") would appear, without advance notice, in his big van. He would make a sly deal with the owner of a vacant lot downtown and set up camp. The back of the van would drop down on legs and become a sort of stage. A dingy curtain separated the stage from interior of the van.

THE DOCTOR was a gay dog. He would oil the palms of the town police to insure no troubles while his show was in town. He wore fantastic clothing and generally sported either a luxuriant mustache or perhaps a vandyke. His hair was long and hung down his neck like a modern Beatie. He carried a goldheaded cane and was the friendliest character you ever saw.

The company varied. The minimum was the doctor (who very often was adept as a sleight-of-hand man) and a character who worked blackface and usually played a banjo. Sometimes the bigger shows had a somewhat faded girl (if you were loose with the use of the word) who appeared in spangled costumes with skirts extremely short for that day. She was, the doctor would assure his listeners, a diva who had warbled for the crowned heads of Europe. She would sing a few ditties, do a clumsy sort of dance, smile broadly at the yokels. She generally had a few gold teeth, and the kerosene flares which illuminated the stage caused these to glisten gaily.

THE PROGRAM varied with the talents the good doctor had in his company. The show was in a series of segments. There was a little dab of entertainment (a tap dance by the blackface performer who was usually called Bones, and a song by the lady vocalist).

The doctor then rolled out a display of his sovereign remedy. This rare and remarkable concoction, he assured his listeners, was his own secret formula. He had been given it by a dying Indian chief who had inherited it from another dying Indian chief going back to the time of Columbus. It was a cure-all. If you had backache, fallen arches, dandruff, heart trouble, tuberculosis, falling hair, boils, stubborn bowels, ingrowing toenails—anything—the tonic was the answer.

THE USUAL price was much higher than the benevolent distributor proposed to charge. As long as he was in town, the miracle drug was available at 50 cents a big bottle. Once he left town, he solemnly assured his audience, the same product at your neighborhood drugstore would cost $2 a bottle.

His fellow entertainers, then passed among the audience and permitted any interested person to buy this golden compound at the bargain price.

THIS CONTINUED until the sales dropped off to the invisible point. This was the cue for another round of sterling entertainment.

Actually, the same format as the television show — a little entertainment and then a commercial. And what the good doctor claimed for his product was no more ridiculous than some of the solemn contentions today's announcers make for the nostrums they are selling.

MAYBE A good medicine show would still be entertaining. At least you would not even suppose to think the doctor was telling the truth about his product or his performers.

Spontaneous Press Conference

WASHINGTON — Bill Moyers, the able White House Press Secretary, revealed in a candid television interview this week that he had on occasion "planted" questions with reporters in advance of a presidential press conference. He did it, he explained, because "you never can tell what's going to happen in one of these press conferences and I wanted to be certain that the questions that the President did have on his mind, and for which he was prepared to deal in a substantive way, did get asked."

FOR YEARS presidential press secretaries have been "planting" questions with reporters to make life easier for their bosses, and there is nothing really wrong with it except that as the problems President Johnson faces become more complex, more questions are going to have to be planted, and eventually there will be no time left for questions that the reporters have thought up themselves.

I can see in a few months from now Mr. Moyers saying to the President, "Your press conference is all set, sir. Jack will ask you the spontaneous question on Viet Nam, Phil will ask you the spontaneous question on balance of payments, Bob will ask you about civil rights, and Nancy will ask you how your health is."

"ISN'T ANYBODY going to ask me about Lady Bird's beautification program?" "We'll ask Joe to question you about it."

"By the way, what happened at the last press conference? Somebody posed a question, and I didn't even know he was going to ask it."

"THAT WAS a slip-up, sir. You were trying to recognize Marianne, because I had asked her to ask you about the low rate of unemployment in the United States, and the reporter sitting behind her thought you had recognized him. Before I could stop him he got the question out. What I've done this time is plant questions around the people who have been asked to ask questions, so in case someone else asks a question by mistake, you'll still be prepared for it."

"That's good thinking, Bill." "Now, what we're doing at this press conference to facilitate matters, Mr. President, is we're putting the answers to the spontaneous questions on the teleprompter. Therefore, you have to call on the people in order."

"THAT MAKES sense. I'd hate to be asked about Viet Nam and give an answer that had to do with Laci's engagement. I did have another problem last time and that was the TV lights were so bright I couldn't see the people who were supposed to ask me the questions I had the answers to."

"We've reserved the first four rows for reporters with the planted questions. What I would suggest is that you look all around the room, but only recognize someone in the first four rows."

"You seem to have covered all the bases, Bill. Have you planted any questions I can get a laugh out of?"

"I GAVE ONE to Sarah McClendon on your beggies, but I told her to ask it only if we had time."

"Where should I insert this sentence and the public's right to know what their President has on his mind?"

"Between the spontaneous question on steel prices and the spontaneous question on Arthur Goldberg's visit to the Pope."

Lip-Reading For Inner Meanings

WASHINGTON — Novelist Thomas Hardy died in 1928, before Lyndon Johnson got into politics—and it's a shame their paths never crossed.

HARDY, AMONG his manifold talents, had a matchless power of observing human features. He noted in one of his characters, the beautiful Bathsheba Everdene, that when she thought lofty thoughts her upper lip wiggled, and when she thought earthy thoughts her lower lip wiggled. My description is a paraphrase, but it will serve to make the point. If we had as keen a reporter as Hardy around town, it would be easier to divine when the President is thinking high American statecraft, and when he is thinking Democratic politics.

In the recent round on governmental price-fixing, Johnson used the most elevated form of argument—he waved the flag. Nothing (meaning steel prices) must be allowed to detract from the war effort.

"WHILE AMERICANS are fighting and dying for freedom in Viet Nam," said Gardner Ackley, LBJ's chief economic adviser, "something extra is expected of the rest of us." As the President's mouthpiece, Ackley spoke also of inflation perils and job security—subjects to the national interest.

BUT NO HARDY was around to lip-read the Administration. Which lip trembled—the "heavenward" or the "nether," in Hardy's language? Some of us remain unconvinced that the fate of the war or of national prosperity was bound up in the price-hike. Only structural steel was involved, and it amounts to seven per cent of annual production of that metal. The flag-waving wasn't quite convincing, for it is standard practice in these circumstances.

THE FEELING will not go away that Johnson, like Roosevelt and Kennedy before him, will do what's needed to control any given situation. Not steel prices, but the two-fisted Federal spending on welfare projects and the giving-in to Labor demands, have caused the inflation that threatens the war effort. It happens that such programs as the War on Poverty and Labor-coddling are integral to Democratic success, whereas honest profit-seeking by private enterprise is not. Without such a signal as Bathsheba's expressive lips, I don't know how we can be sure about Administration motives. Is the President really thinking of the high national interest when he forces an undesirable partnership upon business? Or, when he pulls up a chair in the board rooms of copper, aluminum and steel, is he price-fixing for the advancement of his party and his Great Society?

IF THE STEEL business can be governmentally controlled, so can any other. If we're not to enjoy free enterprise in an undeclared war, if the complex process of pricing for the open market cannot be permitted, then a lot of other freedoms are in danger.

Trading was heavy as stocks continued a relentless push to new records despite considerable profit taking in various sections of the list.

The market was buoyed by record industrial production and personal income reported for December, a jump in wholesale prices, rising prices for copper Enrollment for the Big Spring Public Schools for the week of Jan. 14 showed 7,755 students in the system, according to Sam Anderson, superintendent.

Enrollment for the previous week was 7,743. The total is up 276 from the count last year.

Peak enrollment was still listed as Nov. 19, 1965, with 7,837 students enrolled in the Big Spring schools.

Short Changer Takes A $20

A short-change artist took the Char-Steak House, Highland South Shopping Center, for $20 Monday, according to Mrs. Betty Robertson, an employe.

The man appeared at the cash register counter, Mrs. Robertson told police, and said he was on a long distance telephone call, and needed $3 change out of a $5 bill, which he produced. She gave him the change, then the man "found" he had some smaller bills in a pocket, and asked for $20, got it, then said, "No, you take this back and give me back the $50."

Shortly, Mrs. Robertson found she had not gotten back her $30, and looked for the man.

He left at high speed in a car. Mrs. Robertson told officers she could identify the short, stocky man. Police are investigating.

Star Credits Tough Past When Youth

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Late some nights on a lonely stretch of suburban mountain highway, a powerful green Jaguar sports coupe roars its defiance of speed laws.

Behind the wheel, a tense young man cracks into a crooked grin, and starts to relax.

"It's my therapy. You can feel the tension draining out of you," says Steve McQueen, speed addict, Hollywood mystery man, delinquent turned tycoon.

NEW TYPE
As Hollywood's newest brand of hoodlum-with-a-heart, McQueen is the logical successor to such earlier antisocial types as Edward G. Robinson and Humphrey Bogart. Where Robinson epitomized the Al Capone era and Bogart was the 1940's soldier of fortune, McQueen is the hot-rodder's antithesis.

His credentials are genuine. McQueen was spawned in the rough world of drifters, beach boys, bars and carnival barkers. But if the first 25 years of his life were tough, the last 10 have made it all worthwhile.

HILLTOP HOME
"I'm a big movie star now and I know it and I love it," said McQueen, surveying the world from his $250,000 hilltop French country cottage.

In the driveway, Steve's daughter, Terry, 6, and son Chad, 5, wheeled tricycles, pursued by two gray Great Danes.

"We had another dog, kind of a mutt," said Steve. "But he's a loner. When the other dogs got here, he took off."

McQueen said it with the sympathy a onetime drifter reserves for another. Steve parlayed his tough boyhood into a kind of rugged manhood which penetrated the television tube as bounty hunter Josh Randall on "Wanted—Dead or Alive."

MOVIES BECKONED
The movies picked up the smoothly muscled physique and the con-man charm of a kid who had learned it in an institution for wayward boys.

Unusual for Hollywood, the character survives off-screen. It's all there, the short-clipped reform school haircut, the penetrating blue eyes, the resentment of authority.

"The money and responsibilities — though he loves them — give him a kind of inner tension," says a friend.

The tension sometimes explodes on the set and gives him a reputation as not one of the more beloved actors in town. It's also made McQueen one of the few entertainers not entirely wrapped up in the world of acting.

He has clung to the world of motorcycle racing and racing cars "not to build up his tough image," says the friend, "but because in some ways he really prefers it to the unreality of movies."

U.S. Sells Old Submarine Nets

BRAINTREE, Mass. (AP)—What could serve as either a strainer for juice from a Texas grapefruit or as a fishnet bathing suit for the Statue of Liberty?

The answer is steel submarine nets. And it was a contest, not a new fad in jokes.

Popular Science monthly magazine held the contest last month after The Associated Press reported that a BRAINTREE businessman had bought 25,000 tons of surplus submarine netting from the government for $15,000.

The firm, L. Grossman Sons Inc., has sold surplus Army tanks and rocket tubes, and even a five-masted schooner in the past. But President Sidney Grossman regards the netting as "probably the greatest challenge of my career."

Popular Science called for suggestions.

SUB GUARD
The nets are each 50 by 70 feet, weigh 13,000 pounds and are made up of hoops strung together and hanging like a wall in the water. Submerged off the United States coastlines in World War II, they prevented

Packer Feeding Of Livestock Hit By Rep. Bandstra

WASHINGTON (AP)—A ban on large scale feeding of livestock by meat packing firms was urged today by Rep. Bert Bandstra, D-Iowa.

"If packer feeding expands in future years and firms engaged in buying livestock and retailing meat obtain control over a significant part of our livestock supply," he said, "the average farmer may find it difficult to get a fair price for the livestock he brings to market."

Bandstra, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, said he was introducing a bill which would:

—Ban livestock feeding by packers with more than $1 million in annual gross sales. This also would apply to officers or directors of such firms.

—Prohibit packer feeding by retail chain stores with meat packing operations.

—Prohibit meat packing firms covered by the proposal from buying livestock for slaughter through contracts with individual farmers that could give packers direct control over the flow of livestock to market.

Movement To Nominate Mrs. Kennedy Rebuffed

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—A grass-roots movement in New Jersey to nominate Mrs. John F. Kennedy for the U.S. Senate has been stopped by Gov. Richard J. Hughes, who called it "outrageous and discourteous."

Ocean County Democrats had suggested to the state Democratic chairman that Mrs. Kennedy be considered as a candidate to run against Republican Sen. Clifford P. Case.

Slightly chastened, the Ocean County Democrats said the suggestion was not meant to be circulated publicly.

Mrs. Kennedy is vacationing in Gstaad, Switzerland, where a spokesman said she would have no comment.

Mrs. Kennedy is a resident of New York City, but has acquired a summer home in Bedminster Township, Somerset County.

Hughes called Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., to apologize, and said he would write Mrs. Kennedy a letter of apology when she returns.

Voting Rights Act Defended By Official

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach rose before the Supreme Court today to defend the 1965 Voting Rights Act against Southern attacks on its constitutionality.

Seated in a section reserved for special guests of the justices as court convened were Katzenbach's wife, Lydia; his mother, Mrs. Marie Katzenbach, 84, Trenton, N.J.; his mother-in-law; and Mrs. Robert S. McNamara, wife of the secretary of defense and a friend of the Katzenbach family.

ATTACK LAW
Attorneys for Southern states had their day in court Monday, attacking the five-month-old law as an excessive use of congressional power over the states.

The measure which became a law Aug. 6 resulted in the abolition of literacy and other voter qualification tests in seven Southern states. Nearly 250,000 Negroes have registered to vote in those states since the act took effect.

Attorneys for South Carolina, Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana argued that the act was an inappropriate device to enforce the Constitution's 15th Amendment, which prohibits denial of voting rights because of race or color.

USURPATION ALLEGED
They argued also that Congress was usurping judicial powers in applying the law to just a few states whose voter turnout or registration fell below 50 per cent in November 1964.

After Georgia gets a half hour today to present its case, Katzenbach gets two hours in which to present the federal government's side of the case.

Few Are Filing For Elections

Unless enthusiasm builds up in the last few days of the filing period the ballot to face voters in Howard County on May 7 at the first primary will feature very few names.

C. V. Riordan, County Democratic committee chairman, said that no new filings have been made with him. So far only one county office incumbent has an opponent in his race for re-election.

All of the officials, whose posts are at stake in the elections this year, have filed for re-election.

Deadline for candidates to file their names with Riordan expires Feb. 7.

Slayer Meted Death Penalty

DALLAS (AP) — Hair dresser William Samples Marshall drew the death penalty today from a jury which convicted him of beating and killing 15-year-old Wanda Sue Burgess.

Marshall chewed gum with outward calm as the verdict was read.

Jurors reported their decision to Dist. Judge John Mead at 12:08 a.m. (CST) after deliberating one hour and 11 minutes.

Testimony reached a climax Monday when Judy Ann Fogle, 17, told about hearing Miss Burgess, a schoolmate, beaten and shot after the two girls were forced into Marshall's car last Oct. 6.

LEFT TIED She said Marshall returned to where she was left tied in a big South Dallas park, took her to the nude body of the slain girl and admitted the killing "just like it was an everyday thing to him."

In closing arguments, prosecutors told the district court jury that death was the only fitting punishment. Defense counsel argued that Marshall's actions demonstrated an abnormal mentality.

Court-appointed lawyers for Marshall said the verdict will be appealed.

FILLED COURTROOM Spectators filled the courtroom throughout the day as Miss Fogle testified and again when the jury returned.

Miss Fogle, who often appeared close to tears, said Marshall lured her and Miss Burgess into his car on the pretext he was a narcotics agent. They were on the way to school.

He drove to a city park, she recounted, and walked away with Miss Burgess, leaving Miss Fogle tied to a log.

Shortly she heard her friend scream, "Oh, God!" the witness said.

HEARD BLOWS "I heard him hitting her. It was a dull sound. I don't know how many times he hit her—He hit her many times," she said. Miss Fogle said she heard South's holding qualifies as a game in hand according to anyone's methods and the proper opening bid is two spades. North responded in his longest suit — clubs. South showed his second suit by bidding three diamonds and North reciprocated in hearts.

When South rebid diamonds at the four level, North countered with four hearts. The obvious misfit now revealed should perhaps have slowed down the tempo, but South was determined to reach a slam and, he proceeded without what sounded like a car backfire about 30 minutes later. Medical testimony showed the girl was killed by a gunshot wound but would have died as a result of a brutal beating. A doctor said she was raped.

Marshall then untied her, Miss Fogle related, told her he was not a detective, again tied her and forced her to lie on a car seat. She said Marshall then also raped her.

LIQUOR, PILL She said he forced her to help him carry the dead girl to the trunk of an automobile and later to help him dump the body beside a country lane.

Miss Fogle said Marshall drove to another area, took a drink of liquor and a pill. When he fell asleep, she drove hurriedly to a residential area, dashed screaming to the front door of a house and was admitted to telephone police.

At one point during the 29 hours she was held captive, Miss Fogle related, a man walked up as she lay tied and gagged in the park and inquired: "Where's your friend?" Since her mouth was taped, Miss Fogle said she could not reply.

"Then he just walked off," she testified. Police and prosecutors said they had been unable to learn the identity of this man.

DEAR ABBY

Dignified Wedding

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I raised three fine children. Two sons are now happily married, and both had beautiful weddings to remember. Our youngest, a girl 23, has fallen in love with an assistant professor who doesn't have enough money even to buy her an engagement ring. They have known each other only five months and now they want to get married, but with "no muss, no fuss" (her words). They want just his parents, us and the preacher at the wedding. Should we allow our daughter, a fourth-generation American, to get married without dignity—like a hillbilly?

UNHAPPY PARENTS DEAR UNHAPPY: Every bride is entitled to the kind of wedding she wants. Just be glad she wants YOU there. It sounds "dignified" enough to me.

DEAR ABBY: We live in one of the best neighborhoods in town. There is not one house on our block that is worth less than $75,000. Some new neighbors moved in next door to us and I understand they bought the house for the asking price and paid CASH.

They seem very nice, but they are strange. The first thing we noticed was that they didn't have a television antenna, so my little boy asked their little boy about it, and he said they didn't have a television set! They have only one automobile (and a two-car garage!) and the father drives the car to work every day and the children and mother all use the bus. They rarely go anywhere, except to church. The wife doesn't have any fancy clothes or jewelry or furs. The children do not have any toys dealing with war or violence. Could they belong to some offbeat religious cult? What do you make of them?

CURIOUS DEAR CURIOUS: Maybe they have just got cash, conservative standards, high moral principles and pacifistic ideals.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is deeply troubled by his knowledge of an affair that is going on between his brother's wife and his sister's husband. (This is not just "hearsay"—he has all the facts.) Neither his brother nor his sister is aware of it, but it is slowly breaking my husband both physically and mentally. There are young children on both sides. My husband doesn't know what, if anything, he should do about it. He has asked for my help, but I don't know what to tell him. Do you think the innocent brother and sister should be told? It is really their problem. Please suggest something.

NO NAME DEAR NO: Your husband should talk to the guilty parties privately and ask them to end the affair in the name of decency and out of respect for their respective families. Under no circumstances should the innocent brother and sister be told. If your husband's efforts fail, he will at least know that he tried.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Texans Due $160 Million Medicare Aid

HOUSTON (AP) — Some $160 million in Medicare benefits is in store next year for Texas residents 65 or older, three Social Security representatives predict.

Assistant Commissioner Wayne Register and regional representatives Eugene Riegler and John Mullane were here to speak at a two-day conference on the new health insurance program.

Managers of 13 district social security offices in South Texas attended the conference.

The three Dallas men also said that Texans under 65 who are paying Social Security probably will place about the same amount, $160 million, back into the Medicare program.

Register said one of the problems Social Security offices encounter is enrolling persons over 65 who are eligible for the Medicare program, even though they have never worked under Social Security.

He estimated about 180,000 such persons reside in Texas. Mellane said eligible Texans are expected to receive $111 million in hospital payments and $49 million in doctor bill payments during 1967. He said about 900,000 Texans are expected to be eligible. March 31 is the enrollment deadline for the medical insurance section of the program.

ROBERT C. WEAVER

First Negro Takes Oath For Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert C. Weaver became the nation's first Negro Cabinet member and its first secretary of housing and urban development today.

He took the oath of office at midmorning with President Johnson among the spectators.

Johnson nominated Weaver, 58, for the post last Thursday. The Senate waived its rules to quickly provide the necessary confirmation Monday.

It was a contrast from 1961 when there was Senate opposition to President John F. Kennedy's naming of Weaver to be administrator of the House and Home Finance Agency, nucleus for the new department.

WAS OPPOSED At that time, there were four Senate Banking Committee votes and numerous floor speeches against him. This time, there was no dissent, and three who voted against him in 1961 — Sens. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., and Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah — were among those praising Weaver.

Confirmed by the Senate at the same time was the nomination of Robert C. Wood, a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, as undersecretary of the new department.

NEW PROJECTS Wood headed a presidential task force which has recommended new tasks and organization for the department.

Johnson is expected to include some of these proposals when he asks Congress this year to give the new department an expanded role in overcoming the problems of the cities.

As it stands now, departmental status adds little of significance to the operations of the Housing and Home Finance Agency and its subsidiary divisions, the Community Facilities Administration, the Public Housing Administration and the Federal National Mortgage Association.

NEW APPOINTMENTS Johnson reached into one of those agencies Monday as he made three high-level appointments for the department.

He named Philip N. Brownstein, commissioner of FHA, as assistant secretary for financial management.

Also selected were Charles M. Haar, professor of law at Harvard University, as assistant secretary for metropolitan planning; and William Ross, a Budget Bureau management expert, as deputy undersecretary for program planning and evaluation.

Shriver Made Full-Time Anti-Poverty Program Head

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's decision to have Sargent Shriver devote full time to the anti-poverty program won bipartisan congressional praise today.

Johnson told a news conference Monday that Jack Hood Vaughn, now assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, would succeed Shriver as head of the Peace Corps.

Vaughn previously spent three years as regional director for the Peace Corps' Latin-American program.

EXPANSION DUE Shriver's dual role as director of both the Peace Corps and the Office of Economic Opportunity had caused increasing concern at the Capitol for the past year.

Many members of Congress serving on committees which oversee the anti-poverty program had been saying that it was developing administrative snarls and should have the supervision of a full-time head.

Johnson, in making his announcement, declared again that the fight against poverty would be expanded. "We are going to prosecute it with all the vigor and determination at our command," he said.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., senior Republican on the Labor Committee which handles anti-poverty legislation, said he considered Johnson's decision in the public interest.

SEES BENEFIT "As I have said many times in the past, Mr. Shriver is a most able public servant," Javits commented, "but both the Peace Corps and the anti-poverty program will benefit from the end of the two-hat regime."

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., also a member of the Labor Committee, said the poverty program "is obviously in administrative difficulties" and that he was happy Shriver "is going now to devote all his conspicuous abilities to its problems."

Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., another committee member, said he felt Johnson's action was fully justified because the poverty program, "in certain cases at least, needs a great deal more supervision."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said Shriver "has had too much in the way of responsibility."

Mansfield said he considered Vaughn an excellent choice to head the Peace Corps. He said he was confident the nomination would be approved overwhelmingly. Vaughn left the Peace Corps in 1964 to become ambassador to Panama. He was named assistant secretary of state last year. Shriver, a brother-in-law of President John F. Kennedy, was selected by Kennedy to inaugurate the Peace Corps in 1961. In 1964, the year the first anti-poverty legislation was passed, Johnson assigned him to run that program.

DALLAS (AP) — Ranking police supervisors said Monday a number of officers inquiring into a program of higher education offered for their benefit have been discouraged by administrators.

They said unnamed administrative officials have displayed a lukewarm attitude since the government department at North Texas State University made the course available six months ago.

PROGRAM STALLED

The supervisors, asking not to be named, said as a result the program is stalled in red tape with second semester classes due to start within three weeks.

They said no directive by the office of the Chief has been released discussing tuition, schedule arrangements or general approval.

Most of the concern, these sources said, seems to be whether the City of Dallas will reimburse students in the program for tuition, although city officials have announced they will bear the cost of job-related courses for policemen.

According to supervisors, the program and its administrative problems were the subject of a police staff meeting from which no official word emerged.

Even Friends Reject Hero, But Flood Of Help Comes

NEW YORK (AP) — No one knows better than Enrique Negron that life can be utterly unbearable one day and rosy the next.

For Negron, a 56-year-old Puerto Rican who says he was forced out of business because he helped a white policeman fight off a mob of Negroes, it has been up and down in the past eight months. Now it's up again.

A former grocer, Negron says his customers boycotted his business and called him "cop lover" and "nigger hater." On the verge of destitution with $300 left, he was unable to find a job to support his wife and teenage daughter.

do the right thing should not be made to suffer for it," said Cecilia Zengerle of Manhattan.

STABBED IN BACK

Negron was stabbed in the back last May 22 as he went to the rescue of the policeman, who was attacked while attempting to arrest a suspected Negro burglar. The incident took place in a predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican section of the Bronx.

For his act, Negron was hailed as a hero and awarded $1,000 by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association. Afterwards, he said his closest friends, even Puerto Ricans, turned against him and he became a social outcast.

use the money to open another business, called Negron's character "unquestionable."

JOBS OPEN

Offers of jobs came from the Staten Island ferry and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Negron's congressman, Rep. James H. Scheuer, D-N.Y., offered assistance any way he could.

But the brightest prospect for Negron, who is also a former seaman, was assured from the National Maritime Union that his status as a seaman would be re-instated.

"I may have to wait a couple of months before I get a chance to sail again, but that's what I want," he said. "My family will miss me, but I'd like to go away for a year. I need a change and I want to forget."

OFFERS OF HELP

That was before offers of help poured in Monday from a congressman, a union, two firms, the Small Business Administration and private citizens.

"Thank God and everybody," Negron said Monday night. "Now at least I have some hope."

A woman who wants to give money to Negron typified the feelings of many New Yorkers who read about his plight in a story by The Associated Press. "I feel a person who tried to

"God has a way of opening one door when he closes another," said Negron, who was overwhelmed with the offers.

Among them was a call from the Small Business Administration, which said it was willing to loan him $15,000, repayable in 15 years, without collateral. The SBA, which suggested that he

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV - Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "12 O'Clock High" usually is built around the personalities and emotional conflicts within a World War II bomber squadron stationed in England and led by Col. Joe Gallager.

By a simple expedient, Monday night's episode was converted into a classic example of another type of adventure tale — the hunted man plot.

All that was necessary was to have Col. Gallager bail out of his plane, land in neutral Switzerland and try to get back to England and the war.

The story became the familiar one of the underground and the resistance, the hiding places in musty wine cellars, secret passwords and all the rest. There was also a young deserter from the German army and a pretty French girl whose father had been killed by the Gestapo.

The colonel had some narrow escapes, and in the end there was the final shoot-out after the young German deserter turned out to be a Nazi SS man traveling the escape route to destroy it.

The same basic story could have been used, with a small amount of tailoring, for any number of other series. "Run For Your Life," for instance, could have used it to have the hero smuggle a girl out of East Berlin. "I Spy" could have used it to remove an important personage from Red China.

The fact is that any series which must turn out 30 or so scripts a year, soon is out of plots. The test of creativity is how well an aged plot is dressed up to look young and fresh and entertaining.

State Rights Bill Speeds

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Edward T. Breathitt's state civil rights bill has hurdled one house of the Kentucky Legislature and is given a good chance of passing the other in the next two weeks.

The Kentucky House approved the governor's bill 78-12 Monday night without significant change.

If the Senate passes it, Kentucky will become the first state south of the Mason-Dixon Line with a state civil rights law.

The measure exceeds coverage of the federal law. It prohibits discrimination in places of public accommodation and in employment.

The fair employment section applies to businesses with eight or more employees. The public accommodations section exempts barber and beauty shops, small boarding houses and private clubs.

Change Of Venue For Assault Trial

ANSON, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Judge Owen Thomas Monday ordered the rape trial for Gerad David Knight, 32, of Dallas, transferred from Anson to Tahoka in Lynn County.

Judge Thomas ordered the change of venue and stated that he supported a defense motion because of widespread publicity. Knight, a mechanic, is accused of raping a 12-year-old Dallas girl.

Canine Stern On Guard Duty

PERTH, Australia (AP) — An Alsatian dog prevented ambulance attendants from giving first aid to his unconscious master for nearly an hour after an automobile wreck today.

The dog Rex snapped and snarled as the attendants tried to open the doors of the car. Finally the dog's master, Robert Robertson, 32, regained consciousness and quieted him.

Robertson was taken to a hospital while Rex stayed to guard the car. Robertson had a concussion but refused to stay in the hospital, saying: "I must get back to my dog."

Rex was still on guard when he got back to the car after an hour and a half.
