BRENHAM, Tex. (AP)—Paulson, 40, a retired Navy man who was attending a technical school. The three men were killed by gunfire while they were fishing in a lagoon near Corpus Christi. Police first learned of the slayings after the arrest of John Phillip Angles, 17, of Hollywood, Calif. The youth, arrested in Kerrville because he was carrying a gun, told officers of three men being killed by gunfire. Police sent a helicopter to the area Angles described and the bodies were discovered. Krueger was arrested a week later by Mexican police on a ranch 145 miles south of El Paso. He was turned over to Texas authorities and returned to Corpus Christi. A Kleberg County grand jury indicted Krueger on one indictment for each of the slayings. Angles was declared a juvenile delinquent and placed in the Gatesville School for Boys, a reformatory.

Texans Out Front In Use Of Crop Loans

By OVID A. MARTIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Texas farmers lead those of all other states in the use of government price support crop loans, an Agriculture Department report shows. Farmers in Texas got $415 million in such loans for the year ending July 1, 1965, the report shows. The total of loans made all farmers in the country was $2,135,000,000. These loans help bolster farm prices by providing an outlet for crops other than the regular commodity markets. Mississippi farmers were second with loans of $237 million. Other leading states included: North Carolina $210 million, Arkansas $120 million, Iowa $118 million, Georgia $117 million, North Dakota $96 million, Nebraska $70 million, Kentucky $67 million, Alabama $59 million and Kansas $52 million. The loans made that year by commodities included: Corn $227 million, cotton $1,604,000,000, peanuts $48 million, tobacco $262 million, wheat $261 million, and others — including soybeans, sorghum grain, barley, rice, dry beans, flaxseed and oats—$272 million. The report showed that the department had made price support loans to farmers totaling $44,246,909,000 since the first loans in the mid-1930s. Cotton loans for this period led with a total of $13.5 billion, followed by corn at $8.2 billion, wheat $11.9 billion, tobacco $2.7 billion, soybeans $1.7 billion, sorghum grain $2.1 billion, rice $557 million, potatoes $116 million; peanuts $682 million, barley $774 million, dry beans $360 million, oats $360 million, flaxseed $334 million and seeds $63 million.

Spellers Are Sharpening Skills UP TO 800 MAY COMPETE

WILL TRY HIS LUCK AGAIN
Ronnie Pope, last year's alternate from Midway School

By SAM BLACKBURN
Apparently most of the young spellers in the schools who have hopes of winning their school championships, and perhaps the Howard County Spelling Bee title, are already cramming for the contests ahead. The demand for the official spelling book used in the spelling bees at all levels has dropped off. Apparently there are between 600 and 800 boys and girls in the several schools who have checked out books and presumably plan to try their hand as spellers. Most recent school to get into the bee officially is Midway. This school is a part of the Coahoma Independent School District last year had a school champion in the Howard County Spelling Bee. Melvin McFall, principal of the school, said that about a dozen of his youngsters have said they want to try for the county spelling title. He said that other spellers in his school are to compete in the Interscholastic League spelling competition which will prevent them from taking part in the Herald-sponsored county spelling bee April 16. One such speller, who will not be back this year for Midway, is Lynn Ashley. He was Midway's 1965 spelling champion and showed up well in the Howard County Bee. This year he is trying his lot in the Interscholastic matches. FIELD OPEN This leaves the field open to another good Midway speller—young Ronny Pope, 11, who was Midway's alternate last year. "I am going to try hard to win the school title this year," said Ronny, who is already at work on the official word list. Ronny is a fifth grader at Midway and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Pope, Sand Springs. McFall said that he is not certain just how many will try their hand, but that it looked like a dozen or more boys and girls at Midway will be after the same honor Ronny seeks. Here in Big Spring, all of the elementary schools, with the exception of Kentwood, are apparently working away on elimination contests to determine their school champions. The competition begins with classroom spelling bees as a general rule. Classroom champions will then try for the school title. The best speller in each school will be eligible to try for the county title at the Herald's fourth annual Howard County Spelling Bee in the Howard County Junior College Auditorium. FREE TRIP Winner of the county championship gets a free trip to Lubbock to match his spelling skill against the county champions of 23 West Texas counties. If he wins at Lubbock, he will get a free trip to Washington in June and a chance to try for the national championship. Donald Hickson, a Runnels Junior High School speller, won the regional match last year and made the trip to Washington. EDWARDS PHILLIPS 66 301 GREGG Phillips 66 tires, batteries, and accessories. Contact lenses from TSO are unexcelled in quality, even though they cost only $70, complete with examination and fittings. Consult your telephone directory for the TSO office nearest you. FREE TRIP Winner of the county championship gets a free trip to Lubbock. Reds Launch 109th MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union launched the 109th Cosmos satellite in its unmanned satellite series today to continue studies of outer space, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Rejects Bid To Reduce Force

DETROIT (AP)—American Motors Corp has rejected a United Auto Workers Union request to reduce its work force rather than close down all assembly plants from Feb. 21 through March 7. The Auto Workers asked American Motors Friday to cut its work force "to a realistic number" rather than execute a near complete shutdown of auto production. The union proposed the reduction at a meeting with management as a means of operating its plants on a continuing basis. "We are fulfilling the contract," said George E. Gulen Jr., American Motors vice president for industrial relations. Gulen said the union's request was turned down because the company believes keeping a work force at 14,800 "in the long run is in the interest of both employees and the company." Earlier this year, American Motors shut down its auto plants at Kenosha and Milwaukee, Wis.

WINGS OVER BIG SPRING Airport Gets Facelifting, Students Get Licenses

By JERRY MONSON
Big Spring Aircraft furnished the paint, TTA employees grabbed several paint brushes and Howard County Airport got a fresh coat of paint this week. Both Big Spring Aircraft and TTA offices went through a "face-lifting." He now has the distinction of being the second youngest pilot in Big Spring and was all smiles after receiving his private license Thursday afternoon from Howard Loyd of Big Spring Aircraft. He's 19-year-old Taylor Smith, student at Howard County Junior College, who has been flying for three years. First person to congratulate him was Don Loyd of Big Spring Aircraft, who, at 17, is the youngest pilot in Big Spring. Taylor was a student of Pat Petosky's. Guest speaker at the Monday night meeting of the Big Spring Flying Club was Connie Edwards, who explained the Confederate Air Force program and asked for suggestions for improvement at Howard County Airport as a representative of the Federal Aviation Commission. Members also discussed the possibility of having a "flying breakfast" sometime soon at the airport. Fairly clear skies and spring-like temperatures brought out a good crowd at the airport this week. Howard Loyd reported 10 out-of-towners gassing up and about 30 just passing through at the airport. Pat Petosky of Big Spring Aircraft has a new student training in the Cherokee, Judy Denton. Pat flew Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Bates to Monahans in the Cherokee 180 of Howard County Flying Club this week. Only members up in the Cessna of Big Spring Flying Club were John Stanley and Bob Brock, who both took cross-country hops, James Merrick and Mrs. M. A. Porter. Howard County Flying Club had quite a few members up this week, among them Keith Swin, Buddy Hatch, Joe Dawes and Ellis Dyer in the Cherokee 180, and Billy Massingill, Mrs. Fay Reed and Zan Dawson in the Colt.

Teenager Is Injured In Saturday Car Accident

A two-car accident shortly after noon Saturday sent a 14-year-old girl to Malone and Hogan Foundation Hospital, officers said.

The collision involved a car driven by Helen Dianne Harkins, 15, 2001 Alabama, and one driven by Mary Lou King, 14, Sterling City Route, on South Gregg at Twenty-First.

Miss King and a passenger, Kathy King, 13, were taken to Malone and Hogan by private car. The younger Miss King was not admitted, attendants said. Mary Lou King remained in the hospital late Saturday, her condition being described by attendants there as "doing real well."

Miss Harkins was taken to Cowper Clinic and Hospital by Big Spring Ambulance Service, but she was released shortly thereafter.

Officers said the car driven by Miss Harkins was traveling north on Gregg when the car driven by Miss King, going south on Gregg, attempted a left turn at Twenty-First, and collided with the Harkins car, sending it into a Texas Electric light pole.

Damage to the Harkins car was estimated at $700, to the King car at $500.

Three other accidents were reported by late Saturday, involving the car of James Edwin Bell, 2103 Warren, and the stopped car of Benjamin Shear, 2115 Warren, at 2115 Warren; the car of Claudio Rodriguez, which struck the parked car of Lester Stevens, 604 NE 10th, at 604 NE 10th (officers said the driver of the Rodriguez car left the auto after the collision, and they have been unable to get details of the incident); and the stopped car of Margaret McAdams Lloyd, 2306 Roberts Drive, and the car of Estelene Warren Rice, 1406 E. 4th, at Third and Gollad.

Six accidents Friday injured no one. Involved were the car of Billy Robert Moore, 4203 Walnut, and the parked car of John F. Cornwell, Midland, at Harding and Airport Boulevard; the car of Hewitt Jesse Sides, 2006 Scurry, and the parked car of Joe Hamby, 1610 Main, at 911 W. 4th; the truck of Billie David Hanson, 1404 Nolan, which struck a telephone pole at Second and Owens, knocking down some lines.

Mrs. Williams' Brother Dies

Robert H. Ward, 41, La Marque, brother of Mrs. Omer Williams, 427 Hillside Drive, died Saturday afternoon there, Mrs. Williams said.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams were to have left for La Marque Saturday evening.

Services will be Monday at La Marque, and burial is to be in Louisville, Ark.

Survivors include the widow and a daughter, Janet Ward, both of La Marque.

Perryton Man Gets Nod As Outstanding Farmer

ABILENE (AP) — Delbert Trew, 32, of Perryton was named Saturday night by the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce as winner of its outstanding young farmer competition.

The dryland and irrigated wheat and grain sorghum grower won over 16 other nominees. Said Henry Young Jr., chairman of the selection committee.

The selection was disclosed at a banquet at which Charles Scruggs of Dallas, vice president of the Progressive Farmer and editor of its Southern edition spoke.

Trew farms 953 acres of dryland and 1,355 acres of irrigated land two miles west of Perryton. He harvested 24,690 bushels of wheat off 1,176 acres and 3,328, 480 pounds of milo off 462 acres in 1965.

Also, he grew 810 pounds of soybeans on 30 acres, 3,550 bushels of oats on 71 acres and 1,280 bales of alfalfa hay from 10 acres.

He does not maintain a permanent livestock herd but buys 120 to 200 head of yearling cattle in the fall for grazing his small grain and to run on 313 acres of native grassland.

Hard Working Troupe

This platoon of soldiers has been working hard on parts in "The Steadfast Tin Soldier," children's play under production by the Big Spring Little Theatre. It will be staged Friday and Saturday, including a matinee Saturday, in the City Auditorium. Advance tickets are available from board members, and ducats may be purchased at the door. Atlas Missile Breaks Stillness

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The launching of an Atlas D missile broke the early morning stillness Saturday at Vandenberg Air Force Base.

An Air Force spokesman said it was part of a program supporting the U.S. Army's attempt to knock out enemy missiles with its Nike. The Atlas has a much greater range than the Nike.

Ends In Death

MONAHANS (AP) — Henry Lee Boyd, 23, was stabbed and killed Friday night in an argument which police said arose over the seating of players at a card game.

Boyd moved here recently from Dallas. Officers said a 43-year-old man surrendered at the police station 12 minutes after they broadcast an order for his arrest. He was held without immediate charge.

UF Reorganized, Ream To Guide It

Executive committee of the United Fund took action this past week to move out with a concentrated, new approach to build more public support for the organization's annual fund raising.

The group voted to employ Jeff Brown and Bill Crooker on a full-year basis (they will start March 1) to handle a complete reorganization of prospect lists. They will bring the UF rolls up to date, add names of newcomers, work cards into categories for more efficient campaign work in the fall.

Principally, the two will arrange conferences with employers, to tell the story of the United Fund, and to enlist support for participation on the part of all salaried and wage-earning people in the community. Insofar as possible, payroll deductions will be sought; or the establishment of "fair share" clubs in the various businesses.

The board also obtained the acceptance of R. J. (Dick) Ream to be this year's campaign chairman. A vice president of the First National Bank, has been active in UF solicitations during all his residence in the city and is identified with a number of civic projects.

It is probably the earliest date that a campaign chairman ever has been selected.

Ream will be working with Brown and Crooker—who, when campaign time comes, will serve as office managers for the effort the entire mechanics of the solicitation well organized through the help of Jeff Brown and Bill Crooker. They have come up with some good ideas, some good plans for processing our cards, and for help selling the right 'image' of the United Fund to more of our people. I can't help but believe we will see a new resurgence of interest, and more support than ever this year."

R. J. (DICK) REAM

Koger said a vice-chairman to work with Ream will be named right away, and very likely the major division chairmen will be selected within weeks.

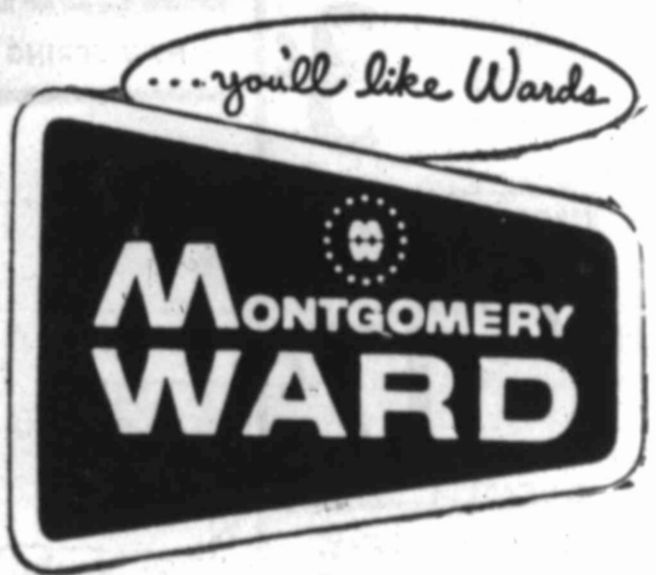

Admiral Nimitz' Condition Serious

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, 80, a hero of the Navy's war in the Pacific, was in serious condition Saturday at his Yerba Buena Island home in San Francisco Bay.

A spokesman for the 12th Naval District said the old sailor's condition had worsened since his release from nearby Oak Knoll Naval Hospital two weeks ago.

The admiral was hospitalized Jan. 3 after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. This followed treatment last November for minor back surgery.

Sen. Tower To Address Engineer's Meet Here

Sen. John Tower will address the annual meeting of the Permian Basin Society of Professional Engineers here Friday. The affair is being sponsored jointly by the Permian section of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and will be held at the Cosden Country Club at 7:30 p.m. It will be a highlight of Engineers' Week and also will serve as the podium for presenting the TSPE chapter's annual "Engineer of the Year" award.

SEN. JOHN TOWER

Don Fontenot, Midland, president of the TSPE chapter, will preside at the affair. Tickets are available for $4. Robert Boadle and Roy Webb are handling reservations in Big Spring, Leo Schneider in Midland, and Charles Perry in Odessa.

He became the first Republican senator elected from Texas since 1870. He was reared in East Texas, but lived in several places since his father, Dr. Joe Z. Tower, was a Methodist minister. A graduate of Southwestern University at Georgetown, he joined the faculty of Midwestern University at Wichita Falls and subsequently got his M.A. degree in political science from SMU and studied further at the University of London. For three years in World War II, he was on a Navy gunboat.

In the Senate he is on the Armed Services, the Banking and Currency committee as well as the Committee on Committees. He authored or sponsored nine successful bills during the 1965 session and served on several subcommittees and commissions. During December, he spent 27 days visiting in South Viet Nam, Thailand, the Philippines and in Europe. Sen. Tower also figured prominently in the efforts to block state right-to-work laws.

Brown Briefs Ambucs On Activities Of Legislature

Talks by Roger Brown and Carroll Davidson highlighted Friday's luncheon session of the American Business Club at the Settles Hotel.

Brown, state representative from this district, briefed his fellow Ambucs on the preliminary work the state legislature has done toward amending the Texas voter registration laws. Brown revealed that three bills relating to voter registration are now being debated in the legislative halls at Austin, adding that he would not hazard a guess as to which one would ultimately be approved. The legislator recalled that he was unfamiliar with the procedure of answering roll call in his initial appearance in the congressional hall and almost didn't get "punched in."

Davidson, called on what he said was "thirty minutes notice" to help fill out the program, discussed Chamber of Commerce procedures and objectives in his discourse. He also reminded his listeners of the importance to the Big Spring economy of the primary training program of Webb AFB students, now being done by a civilian concern at the Howard County Airport and added that the contract comes up for renewal in the near future.

The Chamber manager said that 34 concerns have entered bids for the contract and was careful to point out that that phase of the students' training does not have to be accomplished locally. "It is important to us that we keep the base of operations here, if at all possible," Davidson stated.

Ambuc Bob Hickson spoke briefly on the success of the local club's part in the National Endowment Program. He revealed that 14 new pledges had been made by club members since the campaign was renewed here. Those pledges, he added, means that an additional $245 annually will go into the national movement.

Club proxy Bob Johnson stated that members of the ABC's "Big Hat" group and past presidents of the organization would hold a joint meeting at Coker's Restaurant at 7 a.m. Tuesday. Membership in the "Big Hat" segment of the club is limited to those workers who have recruited three or more new members within a year's time.

The program was in charge of Bill McDonald. Dr. Max Worley, Dr. Dean Wallace, Tommy McAdams, Ray Kirkpatrick, and Johnny Suter were among guests present while Dwight Richman and John Procter received credentials as new members.

Soviets Express Concern Over Airliner's Crash

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviets have named a high-ranking official to investigate Thursday's airliner crash, indicating concern in the Kremlin over the disaster.

Deputy Premier Leonid V. Smirnov, an aviation expert, will head a government commission to investigate the causes of the crash, an official announcement said Friday night.

It was the first news released to the Soviet public on the crash of the giant TU114 airliner. The three-sentence announcement said "six passengers and the crew lost their lives." It did not say how large the crew was.

engine turbo-prop plane, the world's largest passenger aircraft, is about 11 persons. But the plane was inaugurating a new service to Africa, and Western Airline officials speculated that the crew may have been larger than usual.

There were conflicting casualty reports. An earlier announcement said eight Soviet passengers died. It did not mention the crew. Unofficial Soviet sources had said 48 persons were killed.

Western Airline sources estimated that 50 persons were aboard early Thursday when the plane crashed into a snow-bank shortly after taking off from a Moscow airport. The TU114 can carry 220 passengers,

Electronic Filing System Put In Service

Joan Daniel (left) and Jo Barbee, deputies in the office of Fern Cox, district court clerk, began placing the first of 16,000 case files in the office's new electronic filing system Thursday. The new case, which will replace a dozen or more standard filing cabinets, operates electronically. A person wanting a specific file punches a letter code and the device automatically brings the case file to him. This is the only machine of its kind in any courthouse in West Texas. Two or three similar cabinets are used at the SAC Air Force Base in Abilene. (Photo by Sam Blackburn)

Canadian Dance Ensemble Forges An Exciting Show

Different, skilled, colorful, exciting and fresh. This about sums up the Canadian National Dance Ensemble, "Les Deux Follets," which forged a successful performance here Friday evening.

This is the ensemble's first tour of the United States, and it was something of a shot in the dark for the local audience for the third in the current series of the Big Spring Concert Association. In a sense, the Canadian dancers and singers had to win favor the hard way—but win it they did.

Besides being relatively unknown, they bucked a further difficulty in the lack of program annotations except those sold in the official programs. This left the audience greatly in the dark. To the credit of the troupe, its members succeeded in spite of this. At the end they called the company back for a number of bows.

Had it not been for the largesse of government and industry which subsidizes the ensemble, Big Spring would never be able to support such a large, versatile and striking group as "Les Deux Follets." The costuming was as remarkable as it was beautiful and unstinted. The staging was perfectly done with exquisite and enchanting effects. The pace caught viewers on the wings of a rapid chase of the vast panorama of Canadian settlement and scarcely gave them time to catch their breath.

Costuming and effects in the Indian scene were spectacular. The audience knew from the start that this was no ordinary production. Poles apart from this was the gold rush sequence with some of the line dances smacking a little of the uninhibited 20's. Clever indeed was the caribou hunt with the poor prey skinned and carved. The European settlers—Scotch, Irish, French, etc.—was a gay and lovely bit.

Seldom has there been as exquisite staging as in the Hamatsa ritual when the scene opened with salmon swimming up the river. The illusion of brilliant fish waving through the current was delightfully achieved. The sequence ended in a tremendous burst of color and action as the Sun God blessed the chief's son. Another passage demonstrating the versatility and skill of the Canadians was that about the Acadians who danced "rounds" in honest-to-goodness wooden shoes and sang songs of the old country. More uncanny stage effects came in the milling out to dry and seemingly floated as a canopy for the colorful dance. The walrus hunt was clever, accentuated by striking costuming including beautiful parkas. Michel Cartier, who founded the troupe, directs it and is responsible for most of the choreography, knew what he was doing when he ended with the French-Canadian folk dances. These were great pieces of action, a test of endurance as well as ability. The entire program went off well, and the dances at times merged into the ballet. The orchestra and special artists, as well as vocalists, scored a hit. —JP

Carr Enjoys Snake Hunt

By JERRY MONSON
 Dalton Carr has been catching rattlesnakes as long as he can remember. Each year at this time, he steps up his snake-catching activities to compete in the annual Jaycee Rattlesnake Round-Up.

He's done quite well, too. The trophies he has collected through the years are at his home, testimony to the fact that Carr is an old pro at snaring the deadly reptiles. While not afraid of rattlers, Carr still has a healthy respect for them.

UNPREDICTABLE
 At a rattlesnake demonstration Wednesday at Creighton Tire, Carr told the group, who had gathered to watch, that snakes this time of year are still sluggish but unpredictable. He showed caution as he removed a four-foot snake from its box.

Carr usually keeps three or four rattlers around the station where he works and six or seven more at home. Inside the station hangs a six-foot skin of a snake he obtained a few years ago. Other rattlesnake souvenirs abound, either in the station or at his home.

To persuade rattlers to come out of their den, Carr uses an ordinary garden pesticide sprayer filled with gasoline. As the rattlers crawl out, he uses pincher-type hooks to pick them up and deposit them into a sturdy container. Carr cautions that too much gasoline vapor sprayed into the hole will kill the snakes, so care has to be taken to spray just the right amount.

"Dens vary in sizes," he said. "I've gotten up to 37 snakes from one den, but about 15 is average."

Carr has some snakes he caught last March. Rattlers are hardy and able to survive long periods without food and water, he said.

"Their meat, when fried right, is delicious, tasting somewhat like chicken," he said. "It has about the consistency of raw oysters. A thin layer of fat encompassing the meaty portion is responsible for the fact that rattlesnake meat is pure. The fat draws off impurities in the meat."

HARMLESS

Carr said a rattler's venom is harmless when swallowed. Only when it enters directly into the bloodstream is the venom effective. A snake can bite itself and feel no ill effects, Carr said.

The Jaycees' fourth annual Rattlesnake Round-Up will be held Friday through Sunday, March 4-6, at the Big Spring Fairgrounds. Cecil Fox will be featured with a live rattlesnake demonstration. Cash prizes and trophies will be awarded. A pre-Round-Up parade Thursday, March 3, at 4:30 p.m., will kick off the event. Saturday night festivities will include a dance at the Big Spring Country Club.

Coahomans Pick Stock For Show

COAHOMA (SC) — A record number of FFA feeders and parents will go from here to the Houston Fat Stock Show March 2-4. The group will leave Coahoma Feb. 27 and some will remain through the sale on March 4.

Gerald Oakes, vocational agriculture teacher, said that the Coahomans would exhibit 19 barrows, 27 lambs and two steers. Showing the steers will be Ed. Terry Denton and Troy Fraser. Terry will show lambs and barrows. Showing barrows will be Gary Roberts, Danny Herd, Tim Winn, Mike Duke, Kenneth Early, Ronnie Walker, Mike Childers, Johnny R. Baker, R. O. Coates, Larry Bennett, J. O. Ingram, Danny Walker, Kyle Newell.

Fee Of 25¢ To Pay Costs

COLLEGE STATION (AP)— Gov. John Connally told 400 persons attending the closing session of the County Judges and Commissioners' Conference Friday that a bill being considered by the special Legislature would provide money to pay election expenses.

This bill, which would assess a 25-cent fee for each registered voter, is to take care of the gap that may be created by a federal court order to abolish the poll tax.

The poll tax of $1.75 per voter had provided 25 cents to defray registration and election costs. The other $1.50 went into the state's general fund.

Those exhibiting lambs will be Marcus Swann, James Hundson, Shelton Ashley, Ricky Evans, Randy Evans, J. Max Self, Sara Oakes, Bobby Roberts, Buzz Mann, Nancy Mann, Linda Foster, Steve Foster.

Among parents going are Donald Duke, Harold Frazier, John P. Baker, Ray Evans, Dan Johnson, Bill Read, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Mann, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Rayburn Foster.

Students Discussed

The active student groups on college campuses were discussed by Mrs. Mel Porter for the West Texas Republican Women's Club last week. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Paul Kionka.

Mrs. Porter discussed the W.E.B. DuBois Clubs, the Students for a Democratic Society, and the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, and summarized the occurrences on the campus of the University of California at Berkeley last fall.

In other business, Mrs. L. H. LaLonde and Lula Virginia Mitchell were made honorary members of the club, and Mrs. Eldridge Estes reported the bazaar held last December was such a success that it would become an annual fund-raising activity.

There were 20 members and guests on hand for the meeting. The next session will be held March 17 at the First Federal and Savings Community Room.

Houston Stock Show, Rodeo Moves Under Famed Dome

HOUSTON (AP) — The 33rd annual Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, being held at the Harris County Domes Stadium for the first time this year, gets under way Wednesday for a 12-day run.

Some 3,500 cowboys and cowgirls from eight trail rides will participate in the downtown parade which kicks off the show.

The highlight of the livestock show will be the selection of the grand champion steer during the night rodeo performance March 3. The grand champion will be auctioned the next morning.

Livestock judging will take place in the recently completed $4.5 million exposition hall adjacent to the Astrodome. The new building includes 500,000 square feet and 12 acres under one roof. It will accommodate about 5,000 head of livestock and has four judging and sales arenas.

There will be 19 performances of the rodeo in the Astrodome. Five television stars who will appear with the rodeo are Milburn Stone and Ken Curtis of "Gunsmoke"; Lorne Greene and Dan Blocker of "Bonanza" and Jimmy Dean.

Competing in the rodeo will be professional cowboys and wild stock furnished by rodeo producer Harry Knight. The riders who have traveled more than 700 miles on the eight trail rides into Houston will camp in Memorial Park Tuesday night before participating in the opening parade Wednesday afternoon. The trail rides include the Old Spanish Trail, 200 miles from Logansport, La., with 300 riders; Texas Independent trail ride and Spanish Trail ride, both from Sour Lake with nearly 800 riders on the 90-mile trip; Salt Grass Trail, oldest of the rides, with 1,800 riders on a 70-mile journey from Brenham; the Simonton's Lodge ride with 100 riders; the Sam Houston Trail ride from Montgomery with 500 riders; and the Prairie View Trail ride.

The livestock show and rodeo was held previously in the Sam Houston Coliseum.

Testifies Blood Stains On Powers' Clothes

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A chemist has testified that stains of blood were found on a jacket and pants belonging to Melvin Lane Powers a few days after multimillionaire Jacques Mossler was slain.

It was fairly fresh blood, Houston, Tex. chemist Floyd MacDonald testified Friday, but the stains were not large enough to determine the blood type.

Powers, 29, and his aunt, blonde Candace Mossler, who gave her age of 40, are accused of first-degree murder in her husband's death. The state claims that Powers murdered Mossler with his aunt's connivance to further an illicit aunt-nephew love affair and gain access to Mossler's wealth.

MacDonald said he found blood stains on a dark jacket and a pair of dark pants in Powers' closet in the Mossler mansion at Houston. A Miami policeman identified them as the clothing Powers wore at the Miami airport on the morning Mossler was slain.

Circuit Judge George Schulz ruled inadmissible Friday a nine-page letter, which the state claims to be a torrid love letter from Powers to Mrs. Mossler. The letter was described by prosecutors as an explosive document going deeply into the nature of the association between the codefendants.

An officer at the county jail in Houston said he confiscated the letter — and later had a photostatic copy made — when Powers attempted to smuggle it during a meeting with Mrs. Mossler's brother.

The trial, recessed for the weekend, will resume Monday.

LITERARY FLOOD

Post Office Operation Handles A Huge Volume

By SAM BLACKBURN

On any average day, the Big Spring Post Office handles 78,000 letters, flats, magazines and newspapers, and 2,000 pieces of parcel post mail.

This literary flood includes 24,000 outgoing letters and similar mail and 1,000 parcel post packages. Incoming mail is more than double the outgoing—54,000 pieces plus a thousand parcels.

The Big Spring Post Office—the nearest thing to a true monopoly in the community—is big business in anyone's league.

63 EMPLOYEES

It has a monthly payroll of $31,556.72 and it takes 63 full time employees to carry on its local operation. Frank Hardesty, postmaster, said that there are five supervisors, 24 mail clerks, 31 carriers, and three custodians on the payroll of the post office.

In addition to this list of workers, there are four star mail routes operating out of the local office, one rural route and three mail messengers. Those who carry on these operations are not included in the $31,556.72 monthly payroll.

The post office also "rides herd" on two rural mail offices at Sand Springs and Vealmoor. There are four branch offices in the town. One is at Webb, another at Hemphill-Wells; a third at Wackers in Eleventh Place Shopping Center; a fourth at Edwards Heights Pharmacy on Gregg; and the fifth at the Kwikie Grocery on the Old San Angelo highway. Application for another substation at Birdwell and FM 700 has been filed, but the regional office has not yet acted on the request.

80,000 PIECES OF MAIL EACH DAY

Lyna Faye Horton, clerk, digs into avalanche of letters

HALF MILLION

Last year, the gross receipts of the office hit $485,282.46.

The post office has 1,102 lock boxes in the main building and never has a vacancy. There is always a waiting list for mail boxes.

The Knott Route serves 82 families and makes stops at 75 mail boxes. The Gail route brings mail service to 270 families and stops at 255 boxes on its rounds.

One - hundred - and - fifty-seven families are served by the Garden City Route, and the mailman has 183 boxes on his list.

These are all "Star" routes—meaning the carrier has a contract with the post office to carry mail to and from designated points and to serve patrons along this route.

The county has but one rural route. This is Rural Route 1. There are 664 families depending on Rural Route 1 for mail service. There are 664 boxes lining its course of travel.

9530 FAMILIES

Here in town, the 31 carriers bring mail to 9,530 families and to 1,232 business establishments and offices.

It is possible for the carriers to make as many as 10,845 stops on any given day and to deliver 11,155 batches of mail.

Eighteen routes cover the city.

As new subdivisions build up, the demand for additional mail deliveries arises. The network of carrier routes is steadily expanding and will continue to expand as long as the town grows.

The Big Spring Post Office is housed in a building provided for it in 1930. At that time, the official census for the town was 13,735—less than half of its population today.

However, the first steps to provide a bigger and finer post office and federal building have been taken. The post office department has acquired the block of land on Main Street formerly occupied by the First Baptist Church. On this tract, Big Spring's post office is to be built sometime in the relatively near future.

This Is Heart Sunday, Listen For Door Knock

Area Heart Sunday chairmen and their workers will be ringing doorbells in all residential areas of Howard County today, beginning at 1 p.m., to deliver educational material on how to reduce the risk of heart attack and to accept Heart Fund contributions.

The drive, locally headed by Dr. C. L. Ainsworth, president of the Howard County Heart Council, will be conducted in Howard County and in more than 8,500 other American communities.

"There can be no doubt that diseases of the heart and circulatory system, accounting for 34 per cent of all deaths, constitute our country's foremost health problem," Dr. Ainsworth said. He urged residents to give generously to the Heart Fund, which has as its slogan this year, "Give — So More Will Live."

Area chairmen will be Mrs. A. Hooten, Airport; Mrs. E. M. Wright, Boydston; Mrs. Franklin Gaines, Cedar Crest; Mrs. J. E. Swindell, College Heights; Mrs. W. H. Eysen, Highland South; Mrs. Lester Morton, Coronado Hills; Mrs. Curtis Kelley, Kentwood; Mrs. Melvin Montgomery, Lakeview; Mrs. Joe Martinez, Bauer; Mrs. G. E. Williams, Park Hill; Mrs. Granville Hahn, Western Hills; Mrs. Carlos Humphrey, Washington Place; Mrs. C. R. Cummings, Monticello; Darryl Flynt, For-san; and W. A. Wilson, Coahoma.

"Heart attack is still the leading cause of death," Dr. Ainsworth said. "Since 1950 the cardiovascular death rate for those aged 5-24 has declined 33 per cent and for those aged 25-44 has declined 10 per cent. Much of this is due to heart research made possible by heart fund contributions."

FINAL VOTE WEDNESDAY ON REGISTRATION PLAN

Connally Forces Predicting Victory

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. John Connally's legislative forces expect another victory in Monday's debate on the governor's annual voter registration plan, with a final vote no later than Wednesday.

There were growing demands on the governor, however, to prolong the special session by opening it to other subjects.

"We ought to be through easily by Wednesday—with the voter registration bill," said Lt. Gov. Preston Smith.

URGENT NEED

Asked if he believed Connally might win the session, Smith said, "The only reason I would have to believe he might is that several delegations have talked to the governor about urgent legislation there might be a need for."

One such subject which has been broached to the governor, Smith said, is more money for junior colleges.

"We did not appropriate enough money to junior colleges to provide for them the per capita allotment they might need in view of this year's large enrollments."

He said he doubted Connally would indicate whether he will submit other subjects for the session until "this voter registration thing is taken care of."

The governor's bill is expected to encounter skirmishing by some members.

Liberals indicate they will at least seek a vote on a rival plan, but most acknowledge they have no hope for victory.

AFTER DEBATE

The State Affairs Committee in each chamber approved similar bills last week. A decision on which one to use as the vehicle for final enactment will be made after Monday's debate, according to House Speaker Ben Barnes.

If the two houses cannot get together on a final legislative product, the issue will be thrown into a joint conference committee.

The governor's bill, sponsored by Rep. Gene Fondren of Taylor and Sen. Grady Hazlewood, Amarillo, carries out Connally's recommendation that voters be required to sign up each year between Oct. 1 and Jan. 31, the same period used under the poll tax.

Connally convened the special session after a three-judge federal court in Austin ruled that requiring the poll tax as a voter qualification violates a basic constitutional right.

TAKE EFFECT

The registration bill would take effect only if:

1. The U.S. Supreme Court

upholds the federal court decision, or,

2. Texas voters approve in November a proposed constitutional amendment abolishing the $1.75 tax as a voter requirement. The amendment stipulates that annual registration replace the tax as a suffrage qualification. Connally's bill provides 15 days of "conditional registration," valid only if the Supreme Court outlaws the poll tax.

Persons over 60 living in towns of under 10,000 population would continue to vote without any form of registration.

A feature inserted in both bills with the blessing of Smith and Barnes allows the Legislature to appropriate for use by the counties 25 cents for each voter registered.

Liberals promise an all-out fight against a provision contained in the Fondren bill but not in the Hazlewood bill.

The provision wipes out the long-standing right of any resident of a county to register by mail and also bans registration by door-to-door solicitors—a technique used by a number of civic groups, labor unions and other politically active organizations. Mail registration would be allowed only for persons temporarily living outside the county, or, or unable because of illness or disability to register in person.

FAVORS RIVAL

A Senate liberal, who backs the rival permanent registration bill, said he would probably vote for the governor's bill if his vote were needed to give the required two-thirds majority for immediate effect.

But, he added, "could not vote for it under any circumstances" if it retains the ban on mail and door-to-door registration.

Smith told The Associated Press he thinks the final bill will retain the controversial restrictions.

The permanent registration plan recommended by Sens. Don Kennard, Fort Worth, and Franklin Spears, San Antonio, and Reps. Bob Eckhardt, Houston, and Travis Peeler, Corpus Christi, would take effect only if voters reject the poll tax repeal amendment.

Voters would have to register only once, then would reinstate their eligibility each year simply by voting in one election every two years. County tax assessor-collectors would be required to purge the voting rolls each month of dead voters and those declared mentally incompetent or convicted of a felony.

Clubbers With Stock

Calf Sells For $2,500

Maxwell Barr's "Red Eye," a 16-month-old Hereford calf, was sold for $2,500 as the grand champion of the junior show at San Antonio's Livestock exposition Friday morning, according to Herb Helbig, county agent.

The 1,090-pound steer was beaten for top honors Tuesday, by an animal that went on for top honors of the show.

The Friday morning auction price for "Red Eye" was about $1,000 above earlier estimates of what he would bring.

Robbie Haney and Mark Barr, who also showed steers at the show, sold their calves for 40 cents a pound at the auction.

Dolores Lankford, whose steer won the grand championship at the recent Fort Worth show and netted the young owner more than $6,000, did not sell any of the animals she had at the San Antonio show.

The 4-H Club members' next competition will be at the Houston Fat Stock Show, which opens Feb. 23.

IRS Now Using Data Processing

This year current income tax returns filed in the Internal Revenue Service's Southwest Region will be recorded by Automatic Data Processing, according to Ellis Campbell Jr., district director of the IRS Dallas district. Under this system, the master files, individual and business, provide a separate, exclusive account for each taxpayer.

Campbell said benefits to the taxpayer include the following:

Posting of credits and debits will be done with electronic accuracy and speed; status of the consolidated account can be readily ascertained; credits and loss carryovers from prior years will be credited, even if forgotten by the taxpayer; the refund checks undeliverable each year will be automatically credited; taxpayers will usually not need to be bothered to substantiate a condition for which explanation was accepted the year before; and a taxpayer's changing address, or moving out of state, will not cause many of the problems formerly encountered.

PINK POODLES PROWL A BEDROOM BOWER

SUCH A LOT OF WORLD TO SEE

"A VERY SPECIAL PLACE"

By JO BRIGHT

Teenagers, they say, live in a world of their own — and who's to say it's not a nicer, fresher, more sensible habitat than the one adults sometimes create for themselves?

Somewhere between childhood dreaming and adult acceptance, is that preparatory pause — the aging process when a young person's rebelliousness can mellow in a minute as he acquires the social graces.

It takes more time, however, to accept adult responsibility — and a private place is needed to consider the world, communicate with friends and be alone for reflection and reasoning.

TWO'S COMPANY when you have a corner just made for a girl and her friend. Patty Haralson finds a moment for fashion talk with her friend, Fran Long, as they get acquainted with Patty's new puppy, a coal-black Cocker.

SUCH A LOT of world to learn about when a young man gets his sights on seeing it. Dave Duncan's bedroom wall is papered with the big yellow and green map that nudges his imagination and intrigues his sister, Sue. On the triangular desk are golf, camper and sharpshooter trophies won by Dave.

PINK POODLES play on the canopy bed that is the center of attraction in Karen Brown's old-fashioned room. Nostalgia needs nothing more than the ice cream parlor chair, the metal floor lamp and the milkglass vase.

SOMETHING FOR the boys is a place of their own, preferably a converted garage like the one which has been turned into a private apartment for David Proffitt, right. The paneled walls provide a buffer for the pounding rhythms preferred by Ronnie Ward, left, and Guy Talbot, or at other times, a quiet retreat as the junior college students settle down to study.

Fabric Shades Become Available

Nowadays, laminated window shades may be ordered through most department and furniture stores, fine shade shops, wallpaper and paint stores, and, of course, through decorators. Although almost any fabric can be laminated to shade cloth, tightly woven cottons, rayons and linens work best.

If there is any question as to the suitability of your fabric selection, take a sample of the material to your shade man for testing before placing a definite order for the required yardage. Appropriate fabrics, incidentally, may be laminated to either translucent or room-darkening shade cloths.

Right Shoes Save Feet

When trying on shoes, see that the widest part of your foot rests comfortably on the widest part of the shoe, suggests Dr. Murray B. Goldstein, president of the Podiatry Society of New York.

At the same time, see that foot sole and insole exactly coincide. What else you should do: allow for at least three quarters of an inch free space at the tip of the shoe. Don't assume that wearing low-heeled shoes that are too tight, especially around the house, will "break them in." The only things that will be broken will be your feet, Goldstein said.

each person along with a humorous script to read. M. I. Yell's script won a prize, a valentine cake from Mrs. Burnam.

The refreshment table was covered with a red cloth. Red roses and a valentine heart were the decorations. Mrs. Graves presided at the crystal punch service. Forty-two was played as entertainment.

Prior to the party, Mrs. Lewis Carlie, noble grand, presided at the lodge meeting with 30 visits reported. Plans were made for the annual Mexican supper to be held, March 5 at the IOOF hall. Charges will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

WHITE'S
THE HOME OF GREATER VALUES
202-204 SCURRY

A family that really enjoys skiing is expected back from their winter vacation in Ruidoso. The FRED HALLERS with Rickey and Debbie will return today after spending a week at the ski run. They set aside a week of the yearly time off to enjoy the winter sport.

Friday MRS. JOHN PORTER observed her 97th birthday, and today her children will honor her with an open house at the home of JUDGE and MRS. LEE PORTER on Wasson Road. Friends are invited to call between the hours of 3:30 and 6 p.m.

Another resident who hasn't led quite as many birthdays, only 80, is MRS. HALLIE PEARCE, mother of Mrs. Charles Sweeney. Mrs. Sweeney entertained with an 'old hat' party Wednesday and invited members of her mother's Sunday school class and others. There were some relics worn: MRS. W. R. DOUGLAS had a perky number that was reminiscent of the Empress Eugenie era. I'm sure it must have been held on with elastic . . . MRS. J. H. GREENE borrowed another of Mrs. Douglas's little bitty numbers that was worn back on the head. MRS. JIM ZIKE showed up with a velvet cloche type that was beautifully decorated with flowers fashioned of varicolored ribbons that were arranged in a spray from crown to brim . . . one that her mother had kept for years. MRS. W. J. CRAWFORD borrowed a chapeau from MRS. NORMAN READ that Mrs. Read had made from a copy of a 1905 creation.

I found out that some people keep hats as long as I . . . if they had only had the hat ten years they wouldn't wear it to the party because there burns the hope that the style will return and they didn't want to subject their hat to ridicule. MRS. GLENN FAISON had a black milam straw that had a cartwheel brim and the shallowest crown you ever saw . . . she doesn't think this style will return but it's still a pretty hat. Anyway, the party was fun and Mrs. Pearce, who has made her home here for only a few years after living in Durante, Okla., for 50, seemed to enjoy the party and the host of new friends.

STARS

MRS. and MRS. BILL HOUSE, 2604 Rebecca, and their three children, David, Sheri and Susan, are leaving to make their home in Trinidad, Port of Spain. She and the children will leave tomorrow and he is to come later. He is being transferred by W. R. GRACE CO.

As always the Officers Wives Club at Webb AFB did themselves proud in presenting the new 'first lady,' MRS. CHESTER BUTCHER, at tea Thursday . . . Each time we visit the women we marvel at the ease with which they manipulate the hundreds of women who call . . . and they-all have such a won-

A Great Leader Still Leads

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

It has been said that a man is tallest when he is on his knees. The familiar picture of George Washington kneeling in prayer at Valley Forge reminds us that the "Father of our Country" was a man who walked close to God and who taught his soldiers to pray.

Washington recognized that human frailty is not a sign of weakness — that it is the first step toward finding the needed strength. To call upon God for the resources we lack is to supply our deepest want.

The example of our first President still points men to God. Just as George Washington found God's strength available, so do men in our time when they call upon Him in faith. Discover Him in your own life. Worship God in your church next Sunday.

Local Secretaries To 'Meet The Press'

The Big Spring Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (International) has designated its Feb. 22 meeting to conform with the universal theme of "Secretaries Meet the Press," set by NSA according to Mrs. Jean Stone, president of the local unit.

The International Honorary chairman for the program on newspapers is J. M. McClelland Jr., editor and publisher, Longview Daily News, Longview, Wash., who was NSA's 1965 International Boss of the Year.

Mrs. Herbert R. Heath, local vice president and publicity chairman, said, "This program is of great significance to secretaries who have long been aware that our daily newspapers are mighty tools of modern living. Every working secretary wears at least three hats, and the variety of reading fare offered in the daily press keeps each of them in style."

"For a career secretary, the newspaper is a trusted adviser providing information on business trends, economic development, and world trade. For a secretary as a citizen and voter, the daily press is a prodding conscience giving news of local and international events, presentation of candidates for local

Primary Students Have Room Party

STANTON (SC) — Mrs. Joe Gray's second grade students were honored with a classroom party. Hostesses were Mrs. Jimmy Connors, Mrs. Eldon Hopkins and Mrs. Villa. Mrs. L. R. Shoemaker, Mrs. Jackie Romine and Mrs. Walter Graves attended as guests. Twenty-nine students attended.

Mrs. Glen Petree is a student at Howard County Junior College. She is taking part of her nurse training at the Malone and Hogan Foundation Hospital.

Mrs. Mary Bridges and Vera Patterson of Big Spring, and Henry Bridges of Seminole were recent visitors in the G. A. Bridges home.

"For a secretary as a woman, the paper is a valued companion providing homemaking suggestions, self-improvement counseling and many facets of education, etiquette, and human relations."

Nonmembers of NSA are invited to attend the "Secretaries Meet the Press" meeting at the Cosden Building Feb. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

The program will be presented by Glenn Coates, city editor, Big Spring Herald.

Plant Early For Tulips

It is time to put in the first planting of gladiolus corms. Soak them overnight in a weak solution of bichloride of mercury, then set six inches deep and six inches apart. Put a heaping tablespoonful of a well balanced fertilizer in the bottom of the hole and cover with sand. Set the bulb in this and cover with good garden soil. Water. Planted this early the tall blossom spikes will escape being blown about by the hot spring winds.

Get all bulbs planted immediately: tulips, hyacinths, narcissuses, anemones and ranunculus.

Plant more pansies. Feed and water those already growing. Pick the blooms as they open, so more will come.

Minister Gives Council Devotion

The Rev. Henry Salley used the topic, "Acts of Being a Christian," for a devotion Friday morning at the meeting for the United Council of Church Women. The group gathered at Kentwood Methodist Church where Mrs. J. D. Cole presided.

She announced that the annual World Day of Prayer observance will be held at 9:30 a.m., Feb. 25, in the First Presbyterian Church.

The next regular meeting of the council will begin at 9:30 a.m., March 18, in the North Birdwell Lane Methodist Church.

Book By Sister Of Local Man

A book written by Mrs. Margaret Raines, head of the Home Economics Department at Friends University, Wichita, Kan., has been recommended for use by the United States Information Agency in more than 100 countries abroad.

Mrs. Raines is the sister of Dr. G. F. Dillon, 706 W. 18th. The American Home Economics Association recommended the book, "Managing Living Time," for distribution to all 233

U.S. Information service posts in 104 countries. The text book deals with the "Meaning of Home Management," planned spending, how to use credit, how to buy food and clothing and other subjects dealing with home management and time planning. The book is in use in many schools throughout the Midwest and is on the Kansas approved list as well as that of 12 other states.

Save Floor Mops By Wall Hanging

To get more wear out of your brooms and mops, keep them off the floor by hanging them up. To do this, drill a hole in the top of the handle and insert it in a metal shower curtain ring. It then may be hung on a nail or wall hook.

To Buy Hymnals As Memorials

A plan to buy hymnals, in memory of deceased members, was approved at the Thursday evening meeting of the Philathea Sunday school class of First Methodist Church.

Mrs. L. B. Maulden presided at the gathering in Fellowship Hall, and Mrs. M. E. Ooley gave the invocation entitled "Be Still and Know That I Am God."

Refreshments were served from a table where the George Washington birthday theme was carried out with a tree hung with cherries. Placed nearby was a small hatchet and an arrangement of red roses and white carnations. Hostesses were Mrs. H. V. Crocker's group, and 25 attended.

Dr. Harold G. Smith Tells Value Of Vision

Dr. Harold G. Smith, optometrist, was guest speaker at the Thursday evening meeting of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Mother's Club. The session was held at the school cafeteria, and Mrs. Douglas E. Hattenbach introduced the guest speaker.

Dr. Smith's topic was "Children's Vision and School Success." He stressed that 80 percent of all learning was through the visual process and that good vision was in direct relation to the ability to achieve and perform adequately.

Mrs. Royal Mills conducted the business meeting, and the members adopted St. Gerard as co-patron of the Mother's Club.

The members agreed to send a gift to the new bishop of the San Angelo Diocese.

Mrs. James J. Finfinger, chairman of the school committee, reported a profit of $239 from the sale of cupcakes by the room mothers.

Refreshments were served to 35 members from a table covered with white linen and centered with an arrangement of purple and yellow spring flowers. Hostesses were Mrs. Richard Preffer and members of the hospitality committee.

Mrs. Lee Schattel won the attendance prize, and the Rev. Francis Beasley gave the closing prayer.

Beauceant To Entertain Head

Mrs. Vermaine H. Sidles, Supreme Worthy President of the Social Order of the Beauceants of the World, will be a guest of the local order Tuesday. Mrs. Sidles, a member of Assembly No. 163 in Esterville, Iowa, will be here for the annual visit of inspection when the Midland Assembly No. 143 will join with Big Spring Assembly No. 211 for a joint meeting.

All work of the order will be exemplified at 7:30 p.m. at the Masonic Temple, 211½ Main.

Preceding the meeting, a dinner will be held at the Temple at 6 p.m. with all members, guests and Knight Templars being honored.

Officers of the local assembly who will be in charge of arrangements for the program are Mrs. Eugene Gross, worthy president; Mrs. O. L. Nabors, orator; Mrs. Willard Sullivan, first vice president; Mrs. Harvey Hooser Jr., preceptress; Mrs. E. E. Brindley, recorder; Mrs. C. R. McClenny, treasurer; Mrs. A. J. Dozer Unearths Ancient Bell

Bulldozers turn up the darned-dest things sometimes!
Mrs. Shirley Howell, who is secretary to the General Adjustment Bureau, is now the owner of a good example of what the blade of a bulldozer may unearth in a most unlikely spot. She has been given a small bronze bell, a little larger than the accepted cowbell, and bearing on its side the date "1878." Also inscribed on the sides are the words "Chiantel Fondeur" and "Sarg(c)meleir."

FASCINATED
Mrs. Howell is fascinated with the bell and wonders what its history was and how, of all things, it happened to get itself buried on a lonely oil lease about 30 miles from the city of Pecos.

Mrs. Howell was given the ancient bell by Bill Baldwin, Snyder, who used to operate a number of bulldozers. He said that one of his operators was digging the stumps for an oil well when the machine unearthed the bell, a rusty iron teakettle, parts of a wagon and other miscellaneous material. The mementoes, Baldwin said, had not been intentionally buried but had been covered, over the years, by the erosion of the flat countryside. He said the dozer operator said the find was about 18 inches deep. The bell originally had a handle of iron, but time has eaten it away. There is a crack along one side which deadens the normal tone of the bell. The clapper is still intact although considerably corroded.

Baldwin said that the bulldozer operator who found the relics tossed them in the back of a pickup truck and ultimately gave them to him.

FINDING THINGS
"My operators," he said,

"were always unearthing things in the course of their work. Some of the finds are interesting. I don't know if all of it was saved, but I doubt it."

"I have had the bell for a number of years and I gave it to Mrs. Howell because I knew she was interested in antiques."

If the bell is a kingsized cowbell, it would fit into the picture neatly, since the dozer unearthed a kettle and wagon parts at the same site. It is easily possible that a cross country traveler in the late 70's or early 80's may have run into disaster on the prairies of what is now Reeves County. It could have been he was the victim of an Indian attack or, just as easily, he might have been undone by disease or weather. Apparently his wagon and its contents were abandoned. Time and the drifting sands covered it over, and there it stayed until Baldwin's bulldozer brought it to light.

One thing seems certain—the bell originally was cast in France. The word "fondeur" is the French form for "founder." Doubtless "Chiantel" is the name of the artisan who made the cast and the date, of course, the year that it was made.

The elements have been too harsh on the word on the opposite side, though, to make out clearly what it is. And the details of certain ornamentation which adorned it have eroded into nothingness.

OX BELLS

Some speculation could be given to the probability the bell was intended to be worn by oxen. In the late 1870's ox teams were used by freighters and overland travelers. At night, the drivers would release their lumbering animals to graze and each was provided with a clanking bell to expedite their location the next morning. Maybe what Mrs. Howell has is an old oxbell.

Even so—how did it get out on alkali flats of Reeves County and become buried deep under the soil?

MAY WIND UP BY END OF JUNE

Field Station's Work Continues

By JOE PICKLE
Present prospects are that the U.S. Field Station will close a half century of agricultural research and study here after June as a budget casualty. However, work is proceeding as though the station will continue for another century.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture research appropriations got cut by a net of a million and a half, and some 60 stations over the country are affected.

NORMAL OPERATIONS
The department's orders, however, are to proceed with normal operations. If the closing goes through, work will be shifted; if it should continue, no time will be lost.

The abrasive effects of wind erosion on plants—primarily cotton—will continue in the field, and laboratory controls will be added, according to Bill Fryrear, superintendent of the station.

Studies in this direction so far have shown cotton to be a tough cookie. No matter how much battering it takes, so long as there's life, there's hope. In tests last year, some plots took plenty of punishment, but plants always came back. Sometime it took two to three weeks to come around, but they did.

Thus, the time factor is obvious. Fryrear and associates now hope to do more study on the moisture factor. Will a plant under moisture stress bounce back as quickly as one which has ample moisture at the time it is damaged? To what extent will plants have to have moisture during the recovery period?

70 BOXES
To pinpoint some of these inquiries, the station has 70 boxes filled with soil and which will be planted to cotton. Moisture content of the boxes can be controlled. The boxes are mounted on dollies which can be wheeled to a wind tunnel, where the plants are subjected to varying velocities. The open end of the tunnel also has a sand box, so a sand storm of any density can be duplicated. A new greenhouse — an ingenious piece of construction, incidentally — will be used to maintain the test parcels.

Studies may also include the use of cover and sharply reducing wind abrasion, but more especially to conserve moisture. Fryrear is considering setting up some test plots to utilize gin trash, chemical or other cover, and then disturbing the plot only for the planting operation. Weeds would be controlled by herbicides, and no cultivation would be needed. The idea of litter or some other agency is to admit all rainfall but to retard loss by evaporation.

COMPACTION
There is another reason for this study. In previous tests, it was indicated that tractor cultivation increased soil compaction by as much as 75 per cent. On an uncompacted tract, absorption of an inch of rain was at the rate of six inches penetration per hour, but after the area was compacted by several passages of a tractor wheel, the rate was cut to 1½ inches per hour.

Another of the tests at the station showed there was little carry over of sorghum stubble beyond a year. Some wood preservatives, however, are also good herbicides, and one bird might be killed with one stone. Fryrear thinks this would not materially affect organic content of the soil.

He is inclined to think that whatever protective methods are applied, they must be general in nature, for mechanical devices (such as ridges or furrows) set for winds from one direction will not afford protection from shifting winds, such as this area has.

To get more information about the nature of winds, the station is building a portable wind tower. Instruments to test pressure would be located at ascending intervals on the tower and recorded on panels inside an instrument house. Are there stratas of varying velocity in winds, and do they vary as to the direction of the wind? This would be helpful information for the researchers.

TIES BACK IN
All of this ties back into previous studies about moisture. There's little doubt that this is the controlling factor in productivity in this area. For instance, tests in 1959 showed that four inches of applied moisture would yield 526 pounds of lint cotton per acre. Thus, how to hold moisture and make it available to plants becomes tremendously important. If some way can be found to achieve this, it would not only stabilize cotton production, but it could open the way to other crops which require somewhat more moisture.

Studies seeking to conserve moisture through reduced transpiration (loss through the plant) have not offered too much hope. Therefore, the schedule at the station is turning back to the soil itself for some of the answers.

Tower Blasts School Cuts For Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., says President Johnson's proposal to trim $216 million from a public school aid program for areas with large concentrations of federal workers would mean a loss of nearly $14 million to 240 Texas schools.

Rep. Tower expressed opposition to the cut which would affect 2,030 counties in the 50 states. The funds now are being used for construction, teachers' pay and other items.

"Some 25,000 Texas students would suffer if this cut goes into effect," Tower declared. "Scores of school superintendents have expressed to me their view that vast damage will be done to our state's educational system unless this proposal is withdrawn by the administration."

A Devotional For The Day

Thou hast said, "Seek ye my face." My heart says to thee, "Thy face, Lord, do I seek." (Psalm 27:8, RSV)
PRAYER: Come, Holy Spirit, and draw my heart closer to Thee. Fill me with deeper longing for Thy presence and power in my life. Create within me a clean heart that it may be a place worthy of the presence of the Most High. In the name of our blessed Lord. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

You May Help Yourself

Heart and blood vessel diseases now cost this nation about one million lives a year. This means that better than one of every two deaths results from this cause.

Latest figures show 14,600,000 adult Americans suffering from heart disease, and 6,900,000 others are victims of hypertension. This means simply that better than one of every 10 persons has heart or blood vessel disease. Add to this 13 million more with suspect heart disease and you narrow the odds to one in six.

So today when someone knocks on your door and asks you to have a part in fighting heart disease, you may be the subject of the call. It's quite probable that if not now, then in time, you may be in line to benefit personally from your gift.

Despite the alarming statistics, the outlook is far from hopeless. For those aged below 65, the tide seemingly has begun to turn. Within the past 15 years since the massive onslaught against heart and blood vessel diseases, there has been a 15 per cent decline in the death rate of those below age 65. For men alone the figure is less spectacular, but even for those 45-64, there has been a 7½ per cent drop while the general death rate from heart attack has been going up.

So give as generously as you can today, for you may be giving to your own health defense fund.

Key To Highway Safety

This may come as a surprise, but this is National Highway Safety Sunday, according to the National Foundation for Highway Safety. A mailing on the subject has been sent to more than 30,000 ministers in the United States and Canada.

"We do not know how many sermons will be given on Feb. 20," noted the Foundation. "We do hope that every pastor, priest and rabbi will feel impelled to challenge his congregation to drive courteously. Driving is a moral responsibility every split second. All the safety equipment built into automobiles is worthless if the driver is a selfish, discourteous, thoughtless person."

Perhaps Highway Sunday is a good time to talk about the moral responsibility in driving. When you get behind the wheel of a powerful automobile, you couldn't pack more potential for harm if you walked down the street with a loaded and cocked shotgun. People who lack a sense of moral responsibility toward themselves and their families, let alone other people, really have no business driving. Putting more stress on the moral angle couldn't hurt, for the ultimate key to highway safety is the driver.

Marquis Childs The Limited Coastal Strategy

WASHINGTON — Generals and admirals thinking in conventional terms of America's past wars have failed to grasp the meaning of limited warfare that would stop short of committing large masses of land troops in Asia. That is the conclusion drawn from the fact that the principal analyst-philosopher of the limited or littoral (coastal region) strategy has never had a serious hearing from the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

HE IS REAR ADMIRAL (Ret.) John D. Hayes, who in 1954 wrote an analysis of peripheral strategy, littoral tactics and limited war. This is an exposition of the kind of proposal made by Lt. Gen. James Gavin for limiting the war in Viet Nam to a series of coastal enclaves. Gavin testified before the Fulbright committee on how this theory could be applied.

Hayes would use ground troops to hold specific areas backed up by the full might of America's sea and air power. Updating his concept of littoral tactics, which he believes will eventually be adopted in Viet Nam, Hayes a year ago quoted from his original thesis in the conviction that its validity cannot be challenged:

"TO EFFECT a sound integrated strategy there must be a system of tactics which will fully employ all military specialties. Such a system of tactics for peripheral strategy is one that uses the littoral of the world as the new borders of the United States. The littoral becomes the line from which operations are projected in offense, the line on which defense is conducted. The striking power of air forces, the mobility of sea forces and the holding power of land forces can all be used on this line. It is the line that contains a continental enemy.

"SINCE THE ENEMY can be kept behind this line without too much difficulty, it does not have to be held at all points as does a line in land tactics. Our strength need only be concentrated at selected points chosen for their political and military significance."

Failure to understand the potential of the littoral strategy has proved very costly since World War II, Hayes believes. He cites China and Korea as tragic examples of what this failure has meant.

IN 1949 INSTEAD of retaining bastions on China's exposed coasts, he wrote, we retreated behind a water barrier to an imaginary oceanic line drawn through Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines. This was announced as the line on which Washington would conduct our defense and the policy of containment. Many observers have believed that withdrawal to this line, attributed to the unwillingness of the American people to risk another total war, triggered the Communists into the attack on South Korea.

IN DISCUSSING his littoral strategy Admiral Hayes points to what he believes was a fundamental misconception about China. While on a small-scale map it does appear to be a continental state like Russia, its history for more than a century proves that its great rivers and long coastline are the focus of its power. The coasts of China and Southeast Asia, Hayes observes, are directly exposed to the forces of sea power as continental Russia is not.

Influenced, Hayes believes, by our fixation on Europe we withdrew Marines from North China and two Army divisions from Korea. The last place the Chinese Nationalists abandoned was Hainan, the large island on the South China coast that forms the Gulf of Tonkin. "Almost immediately it was discovered that such a strategy deprived us of all freedom of action, both military and political. Within a year we were back in Asia but with only a foothold on the peninsula of Korea, and at what a bloody cost."

HAYES HOLDS that if we had remained in North China, and especially if we had held Tsingtao, a deep-water port, and Chefoo, once the summer base of the Asiatic fleet, there might have been no Korean War. Even less likely would have been Chinese intervention. He suggests that if this had been the strategy Tsingtao might today be a Northern Hong Kong or even a Far East West Berlin.

On Move

GREYMOUTH, N. Z. (AP) — For years the Franz Josef Glacier, on the west coast of New Zealand's South Island, has been retreating. Tourist interests lamented because this glacier is a most spectacular one, dropping steeply from alpine regions to only 600 feet above sea level, where it can easily be visited by tourists.

During the last winter the glacier ended its long retreat up the valley and began pushing forward again at a rate of nearly three feet a day. Latest measurements by geologists show that it has speeded up still further and is rumbling forward at the remarkable pace, for a glacier, of 5½ feet daily, engulfing everything in its path.

Boom Rolls On, Prices Are Restless

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Price increases, it was evident during the week, are raising the threat of inflation.

Consumers are having to dig deeper in their pockets to buy food and many other items. The boosts are mostly small and selective and not likely to arouse the government to such drastic action as did increases in the prices of aluminum and copper, which were rescinded under administration pressure.

However, they are the source of discussion about the possibility of price controls.

The Labor Department reported that wholesale prices rose 0.5 per cent in January to another all-time high. Prices in primary markets went up to 104.6 per cent of their average level in the 1957-59 base period. They were 3.6 per cent higher than a year ago.

FARM PRODUCTS UP
The biggest increases were by farm products and processed foods, but prices of industrial commodities also advanced.

The Labor Department's wholesale price index was reported under careful scrutiny by President Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers to determine whether new measures are needed to counter inflationary pressures.

Analysts figured that prices of livestock and meat will rise slightly during the next few months before showing any significant decline.

PIG JUMPS OVER MOON
Hog prices have risen as high as $30.25 a hundred pounds, up 61 per cent from a year ago.

Choice steers brought $28.50 a hundred pounds, up 11 per cent in a year. Woolled lambs reached $30 a hundred pounds a 14-year high and 20 per cent above a year ago.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler commented that price increases recently were "still quite mild" compared with the 1950s or those lately in nearly all other countries.

Even a mild rise is unwelcome, he said, and cautioned that "complacency toward mild increases in costs and prices is an open invitation to more persistent or larger increases."

LEAKS IN DIXIE
Fowler added that the govern-

- TREND STILL UP
- Small, selective hikes cause worry.
 - Price index 3.6 per cent over last year.

 - Car sales ease, but big expansion is planned.

ment's efforts to find the best mix of monetary credit and fiscal measures won't be adequate "if some groups who enjoy and exercise substantial market power choose to push up or maintain prices or wages at unwarranted levels."

Additional evidence that the business boom is rolling along at full speed accumulated. Gains in personal income and industrial production were reported.

Income rose in January to an annual rate of $581.5 billion, up about $750 million from December. Wages and salaries increased to an annual rate of $373 billion, about $2 billion more than the December rate.

INDUSTRY HIKES OUTPUT
The industrial production index for January climbed to 149.9 per cent of the 1957-59 average from 148.5 per cent in December.

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Cuban women are being asked to emancipate themselves from domestic drudgery and work in factories.

"The Revolution needs many women in all kinds of factory work," said Maria de los Angeles Periu.

To Your Good Health Can Fatty Tumors Recur? Not Very Often

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a fatty tumor removed from my back two years ago. Now I am getting another in almost the same place. Could the doctor have failed to get it all? Is it common for tumors to come back? Could the physical activity of my job, or my diet have anything to do with the problem? — H. D.

A lipoma (fatty tumor) usually causes no more trouble once it is removed, but there can be exceptions, as in your case. A lipoma is a simple overgrowth of tissue in the fat layer of the body. It is not cancerous. Unless it is bothersome there is no reason for removal. If it is unsightly, or large enough to be a nuisance or happens to press on a nerve and cause pain, then removal is indicated.

The cause of lipomas is not clear. One theory is that the fat cells have a different growth rate in a localized area. If this is true, then it is possible that missing a few such actively growing cells could lead to growth of another tumor. It is also possible that an independent tumor may have formed at almost the same place, since people with this tendency often have multiple tumors.

Deciding which may be the case is no doubt difficult. The important thing is that this situation does not warrant worry. If the new tumor becomes large enough to annoy you, that's time enough to have it removed. Neither your physical activity nor your diet has anything to do with it — except that obese people are more likely to have fatty tumors. Lean people occasionally have them, too, but this is uncommon.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please give me some information on sickle-cell anemia. — I. B.

It is a form of anemia in which the red cells are shaped like sickles or half moons.

The disease, transmitted by heredity when both parents carry the trait (not necessarily the disease) is found principally among Negroes and people from the Mediterranean countries.

Not nearly enough is yet reported that businesses sharply increased their inventory accumulation late last year. Inventory accumulation jumped to an annual rate of $10.1 billion in the final quarter of 1965 from a $7.6-billion rate in the third quarter.

The Prudential Insurance Co. of America said that stepped-up military activity in Viet Nam, coupled with growing inflation, had caused an upward revision in its economic forecast for 1966.

UPWARD REVISION
Its chief economist, Dr. William C. Freund, now sees the gross national product—total of all goods and services—this year at $725 billion, up from the $714 billion prediction issued last November.

President Johnson announced a rise in the interest rate on savings bonds to 4.15 per cent from 3.75 per cent. He said the boost will give a fairer return and expressed the hope that it will encourage millions more Americans to buy the bonds.

Automobile production during the week rose 3 per cent to an estimated 200,800 cars from 195,514 the previous week and was about the same as 201,579 a year ago.

PLANT EXPANSION
Car sales in the first 10 days of February totaled 215,124 compared with 225,273 Feb. 1-10, 1964, the record for the period.

General Motors Corp., the No. 1 automaker, announced it will spend about $1.4 billion in 1966 on expansion, modernization, plant replacement, safety and research. This compares with $1.3 billion spent in 1965. Steel production during the week rose 4.5 per cent to 2.53 million tons from 2,422,000 tons the previous week.

Around The Rim Settlin' Up Canada Was A Lot Of Fun

DEAR RUFÉ:

We ain't had a busier culture evenin' since I don't know when.

There couldn't have been more goin' on on the stage of the dusty old auditorium if you had dumped a railroad tank car full of wriggle worms. And there couldn't have been more color if the good Lord Himself had thrown a western sunset smack-dab against the backdrop.

WHAT THEY SAID it was, was Canadian folkies done with a lot of dancin' and some singin' and drum beatin'. What it really was, was a bunch of young kids havin' one heck of a good time. They would have to be kids to last the whole night, but they was still a-jiggin' and a-cloggin' right up to quittin' time.

There was just a little bit of tippy-toe dancin', but they got around to dancin' everything but a waltz, far as I could tell. There was square, there was jigs, there was quadrille, there was clogs, there was heel-and-toe, there was jumpin' and twirlin', and you name it.

THEY DANCED over swords and over brooms, they danced on their heels and flat-footed, they danced bare foot, and they danced in wooden shoes. And ever time they changed a dance, they changed their clothes. There was everything from Indians, to cowboys, to Eskimos, to gold-rush guys and dames, to Scottisshers and I suppose about everything but Texans. But even that don't matter.

JUST TO KEEP you thinkin', Rufe, they dressed up like animals. And about every other time they put on some new costumes and turned up the lights different, here would come another critter.

First off, it looked like to me an Indian shot down a bird. Then there was another feller played like he was out huntin' caribou, and almost got run down by the caribou himself. And a Eskimo trudged off with his sled lookin' for a walrus, and by golly, he found the critter and brought it back to the tribe. There was even some salmon swimmin' upstream at one time, right in a ribbon of water across the stage.

IF YOU THINK this sounds fast, Rufe, you would be right. They had guys beatin' on drums, on tom-toms, on tambourines for all I know, and a couple of times on hollow logs. A couple of other guys showed up with a fiddle and a concertina, and there never was hardly a minute that the music wasn't bouncy. It didn't even matter that the feller leadin' the orchestra had a beaver. He must of been young himself.

I DON'T KNOW if you get it Rufe, but these kids was tellin' the story, in dance and dress, what all kinds of people came into Canada through the years. Except that, like I said, they had a lot of fun doin' it. And if the Indians and the Eskimos and the Scottisshers, and the gold-hunters and the Acadians and the cowboys and all the rest could of looked down on that bunch, they would have said, I betcha,

"YOU MEAN settlin' up Canada was that much fun. We ought to do it again. Yip-pee!"

You would have said Yip-pee yourself. Yore friend,
ZEKE

A Plea For Soviet Justice

WASHINGTON—The trial of the two Soviet writers, Yuli Daniel and Andrei Sinyavsky, ended as famous show trials in Moscow always do. The defendants were found guilty of writing anti-Soviet propaganda and were sentenced to five and seven years, respectively.

There has been a great deal of protest in world-wide intellectual circles over the trial, and many famous writers have openly sympathized with the convicted writers. But little concern has been shown towards the leading judge, the prosecutor, and the government witnesses who sent Daniel and Sinyavsky away.

IN THE INTERESTS of justice, I am starting a defense fund for these people, who in all likelihood, will be in trouble themselves very soon.

This is why. Whenever you have a trial of this sort in the Soviet Union, the judge, the prosecutor, and the government witnesses are ruthless in their denunciation of the defendants. The Soviet press also joins in on the attack and for a while praise is heaped on all the people who were responsible for sending the "traitors" away.

THIS IS ALL well and good. But the climate keeps changing under the Soviet system, and today's patriots are to tomorrow's traitors and vice-versa.

Five years from now it's quite possible that someone high up in the government will decide that the trial of Daniel and Sinyavsky was a mistake, that the charges were rigged, and should have never taken place.

THERE WILL BE a call for the "rehabilitation" of the two writers, who will be revealed as heroes of the Soviet Union rather than as enemies of the state. They will be pardoned and each given compensation and a dacha in the country.

But under the Soviet system, in order to rehabilitate someone who has been unjustly tried, you must find the people responsible for trying them and punish them for the miscarriage of justice.

SO IT LOOKS like the judge, Lev Smirnov, and the prosecutor, Oleg Tyomushkin, and the two chief government witnesses, Soviet writers Zoya Kedrina and Arkady Vasilyev, are the people we must worry about. If everything goes according to plan, they'll all be in the dock themselves for sending Daniel and Sinyavsky to prison.

I don't know any of these learned men, but I'm sure there was no malice in their prosecution of the case. My committee is asking for clemency now for the judge, the prosecutor, and the government witnesses on the grounds that they did what they did in order to keep their jobs.

WE ARE ALSO asking that the Soviet Union not be too harsh on the Soviet newspapermen who covered the trial and wrote all those nasty things about the two writers. They were only caught up in the atmosphere of the time.

We know that all the people involved with sending Daniel and Sinyavsky to jail will have to be punished, but we hope this plea from our committee will be taken into consideration. If the judge got five years, the prosecutor seven years, and the two writers, Kedrina and Vasilyev, were kicked out of the writers' union, we believe the purposes of Soviet justice will have been served. Televising Of Committee Hearings

WASHINGTON — A controversy of more than passing interest to the American people has developed as a result of the resignation of his post by the head of the news division of the Columbia Broadcasting System. He quit because the management of the network decided not to televise the hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last week while a competitor, the National Broadcasting Company, did so simultaneously with the appearance of the witnesses.

ON ITS FACE, it was made to appear by the departing official that CBS declined to perform a "public service" and that its "news judgment" was faulty. Unfortunately, the reasons for skipping the event were not set forth by CBS itself in its own news broadcasts.

The principle involved, however, is important. Congressional hearings are frequently characterized by partisanship. The networks do not have the opportunity to present the rebuttals promptly so that the listeners can get both sides. This is one of the disadvantages of television broadcasting, not only with regard to hearings before congressional committees but also presidential speeches. It so happens that the hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee gave the public a one-sided view of the whole Viet Nam war. The witnesses were, of course, properly permitted to give their viewpoints, but the American people were entitled to hear the other side as well later that day or the next day.

TELEVISION ISN'T like a newspaper, which can print even a partisan statement by an official or a prominent person in private life and enable its readers to get the other side, either that day or the next. None of the major networks, for instance, in their news reports or commentaries has as yet presented a comprehensive and point-by-point criticism of last week's testimony on the Viet Nam war before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Even when government spokesmen subsequently are given a chance to be heard, they do not always take up in detail what their predecessors have said. So no direct answer is made when the original criticism is presented. This breeds prejudices. It can also result in the spread of a vast amount of misinformation. In the case of the Viet Nam war, it has led to a misunderstanding by the people at the very time when it is important that the American war effort should be fully supported.

IN GREAT BRITAIN, under the parliamentary system, government spokesmen are notified in advance and are given an opportunity to reply at once to questions on current policies. When committees of Congress insist upon allowing one or two witnesses several hours of time in which to voice criticism, it is natural that many listeners are either bored or angered by such a procedure. That's why the controversy over the resignation of an official of CBS because his network chose not to broadcast several hours of professional paradoxes and platitudes about foreign affairs involves more than a question of whether the testimony was fairly handled. It concerns, rather, whether the American people at any time—either the same day or later—will be told the whole story on television just as the newspapers make a point of doing it on controversial issues of nationwide significance. 'VILLAGE OF THE GIANTS'
Teenagers explode to supersize

Fantasy, Western Pictures Offered In Ritz Twin Bill

A twin bill will open at the Ritz Theatre Thursday — "Village of the Giants" and "Gunmen of the Rio Grande." Both pictures are in color.

Produced from a novel by H. G. Wells, "Village of the Giants" tells the story of a gang of teenagers who invade a small town, eat some magical "Goo," invented by the local child chemistry wizard, and turn into 30-foot-tall giants. Wild events follow as the supersize teens combat hometown youngsters and bring chaos and pandemonium to the entire community.

Such material provided an ideal challenge for the imaginative tale starring Tommy Kirk, Johnny Crawford and Ronny Howard.

In his youth, director Bert Gordon experimented constantly to duplicate with his own amateur camera the techniques he had seen on the screen. Using his imagination to create bizarre effects with the lenses, he formed a passion for filmmaking.

One day he gambled everything on making a science fiction film. He gave up his position, invested all of his money in writing, producing and directing the film called "The Cyclops." The gamble paid off. The picture proved a boxoffice smash, and established Gordon in Hollywood.

Since then he has filmed "Beginning of the End," "The Amazing Colossal Man," "The Magic Sword" and other hit films.

Pancho Bogan, who portrays the role of El Bandito Sympatico, in "Gunmen of the Rio Grande," has always been an admirer of Pancho Villa.

Ever since he was a boy, Pancho Villa has been an idol of Pancho and his admiration reached a convincing climax when he went to see Wallace Beery portray the role in the film "Pancho Villa."

And so it is with great satisfaction and pride that he swears to 'bring' Wyatt Earp (Guy Madison) with whom he becomes friendly and learns to respect as an honorable enemy.

In "Gunmen of the Rio Grande," their respect and honor for each other's friendship reaches a climax, when villainous Zack Williams, who had hired Pancho to hijack wagons loaded with silver, turns and shoots him in the back. Pancho then pleads with Earp to "get Williams for me..." and Wyatt does.

Giving Fabulous Works To Frisco

By DEL MILLER
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP) — "The day of the collector is almost over," Avery Brundage said glumly, "unless you want to spend $2 million for a painting."

He didn't add that his own Oriental art collection, which he is giving to the city of San Francisco, still is growing and will keep on increasing — Brundage hopes—until it is the most important collection of its kind in the world.

The Chicago millionaire, collector and Olympic sports enthusiast, was interviewed in the basement of the M. H. DeYoung Museum. Above the basement floor and on one side the city is finishing the $2.75 million wing which will house the Brundage collection, starting June 11.

Around the 78-year-old Brundage as he spoke were the 5,000-odd objects of his collection being groomed for exhibit. Many of them are priceless. As Brundage phrases it, they are unique, the only specimens of their kind to survive the centuries. And, despite what he says about collecting, 300 of them were added in the past year.

In fact, in recent months there has been so much change that Yukio Yashiro undoubtedly would revise some things he said about the collection last October.

"I was amazed at the grand scale of the Brundage collection," said Yashiro, a 75-year-old Oriental art expert rated by many as No. 1. "Brundage's Chinese bronzes are the finest in the world. Perhaps his Japanese and some of his Southeast Asian art are not yet up to his standard."

At the time Yashiro was speaking, Brundage was out of the country with his curator, doing something about those standards, in Japan, Korea, and through Thailand and Southeast Asia.

As a result, a hoard of fine art has flowed through the museum for final appraisal. Of these, 300 objects have been retained for the collection—including Japanese ceramics, lacquers, paintings and sculptures.

Noteworthy to the layman is the 13th Century scroll of Sutra of the Angry Dieties, preserved carefully in a Japanese Buddhist temple until recently, when the need for money caused its disposal in variance with national policy. The prayer text of the Sutra is illustrated in free, dynamic lines with color pictures of the angry dieties. It was a historic, religious and art treasure of a temple in southern Kyoto.

He also acquired three pre-Khmer bronzes representing the advanced culture from the 5th to 10th Centuries, discovered less than a year ago.

The DeYoung Museum is making plans for a symposium to be conducted for two weeks starting next Aug. 23, to which have been invited nearly 100 Oriental scholars, museum directors, collectors and art dealers, from all over the Western world.

The purpose will be to discuss—and perhaps argue over—the sources and dating of various items in the Brundage collection, prior to the preparation of a catalog.

The experts will be divided into study groups. During the first week the Brundage wing will be closed to the public, so that the participants may be free to move through the collection.

Tentatively, the study groups will be organized on the themes of Chinese bronzes, Chinese jade, Buddhist sculpture, early Chinese and Japanese painting, Chinese painting, Indian art and the art of Southeast Asia, Tibet and Nepal.

STAMP NEWS

Pakistan Series Honors Armed Forces Branches

quarterly booklet is more than an authoritative periodical for the experienced collector, it is of interest to the novice, too. Many enlightening stories appear in this initial edition. Included are: "There's a Story Behind the Stamp," "The Designs That Didn't Make It," "Stamps That Glow," "Sports and History on British Stamps," and many others. Jacques Minkus, who heads the stamp firm which published the new journal, is to be congratulated. The cost per issue is 25 cents. One year's subscription is $1. Copies may be purchased directly by writing to "Minkus Stamp Journal," 116 W. 22nd St., New York, N. Y., 10001.

Malaysia has issued three new stamps to commemorate the Third South East Asia Peninsula (SEAP) Games. The inaugural games were held at Bangkok in 1959. Participating countries were Burma, Laos, Malaya, Singapore and Viet Nam. The second in the series was held in Rangoon in 1961. The third SEAP Games were held last December in Kuala Lumpur. The 25 cents in green and black shows athletes in action. The 30 cent violet and black depicts a runner. The 50 cent blue and black illustrates an aquatic diver. Each stamp also bears the symbol of SEAP, six interlocking rings.

Grenada, one of the four islands known as the Windward Islands in the Caribbean Sea, has issued a new set of 15 stamps, reports the British Crown Agents Stamp Bureau in Washington. The islands were discovered by Christopher Columbus at the end of the 15th Century. The 12 lower values feature local scenes and products. The $1 shows the Grenada Crest, $2 a portrait of Queen Elizabeth, $3 a map of Grenada. Each of the lower values bears a vignette head of the Queen.

The Belgian Postal Administration has announced the issuance of a 3-franc stamp to honor the late Queen Elisabeth who died Nov. 23, 1965. The design is from a medallion by the sculptor Alfred Courtens and is an effigy of the Queen. The color of the stamp is gray and black.

BOOKS

Too Many Dull Areas

THE BEGINNERS. By Dan Jacobson. MacMillan. $6.95.

The principal scene of Jacobson's novel is South Africa, and it is a study in depth of one family—a Jewish family named Glickman.

There are three full generations in the narrative, but the third is given the greatest emphasis, in the period since 1945. There was the eldest son Joel, just old enough to have a slight touch of danger at the end of the war; who spent two disillusioning years in an Israeli kibbutz and finally settled down in a marriage with a Gentile who had been his father's secretary. There was the younger son David, who unlike the rest of the family actually turned to a real belief in the Jewish faith. The daughter Rachel, who could not have the man she wanted—a cousin—and finally married elsewhere. And the cousin, Jonathan Thalmon, who as Jonathan Delmond became a television actor in London.

The story is packed with characters, of all three generations. There are many series of incidents in the slice-of-life style, and the plot moves sluggishly through the massed detail and embroidered descriptions of the more than 400 pages.

It would seem that if there are any real observations of social significance to be found within the book's references to South African ideology, they scarcely have been pointed up. It appears to one reader that they have become buried in the labyrinths of the narrative. And the low-pressure narrative dribbles on through too many dull channels.

ENLIST UNDER BUDDY PROGRAM
Enter new training program at Fort Bliss

Seven Enlist In Army's Buddy Assignment Plan

Sgt. Joe Welch, local Army recruiter, Snyder, has announced the enlistment of seven Big Spring men under the Army's Buddy Assignment Plan, which enables the group to enlist, take the same basic training in the same unit and graduate together. These men are the first regular Army enlistments from Big Spring to enter the new basic training program now offered at Fort Bliss. All are Big Spring High School graduates.

which provides aerospace defense against hostile aircraft and missiles. The lieutenant, a graduate of Coahoma High School, attended Tennessee Temple College, Chattanooga, and North Texas State University at Denton. He has a B.A. degree.

Lt. Woodson was commissioned in 1963 upon completion of Officer Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Albert Thomas Rites Are Held

HOUSTON (AP)—Scores of officials and countless private citizens paid last respects Friday to Albert Thomas, the man whom two presidents urged to seek his 15th and 16th terms as U.S. representative.

If Thomas, 67, had lived to serve through next January, he would have held his post in the nation's capital 30 years. The veteran Democrat, ranking 11th in House seniority, died of cancer Tuesday in Washington.

Gov. John Connally and other state officials, Sens. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., and John Tower, R-Tex., joined about 40 congressmen in attending the funeral service.

INCOME TAX HELP

Political Gifts Not Deductible

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the Internal Revenue Service. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—What's the difference between a short-term and a long-term capital gain or loss?

A—A capital gain or loss results from the sale or exchange of a capital asset (stock, personal residence, etc.) If you held the asset six months or less, its sale or exchange results in a short-term gain or loss. If the transaction occurs after you have held the asset for more than six months, a long-term gain or loss is realized. Long-term capital gains are granted preferential tax treatment. A complete discussion of this subject may be found in IRS Document No. 5084, "Sales and Exchange of Assets," free and available by your writing to the District Director.

Q—What about political contributions. Are they deductible?

A—No. The law does not permit deductions for contributions to political parties.

Q—The pump at the station where I buy gas shows how much of the cost is for taxes. Can I use this figure when I itemize my deductions?

A—No. Part of this total tax figure is for federal excise taxes, which are not deductible. Only state and local taxes are deductible. Look on page 9 of the 1964 instructions for the amount you may deduct for gas taxes in this state.

Q—If you use a diaper service on the advice of a doctor can this cost be included with your medical expenses?

A—No. Even though diaper services may have some relationship to medical care, they are not considered deductible medical expenses.

Q—My wife's salary came to only a few hundred dollars last year. Does she have to file a return on this income?

A—Community property law in Texas requires each spouse to file on ½ of the entire community income. In this case, your wife could either file a joint return with you (including all income) or file a separate return. If she files a separate return she would include ½ of her income and ½ of your income. You would also include ½ of her income as well as ½ of your income on your separate return.

Q—I'm moving next month and I have a refund coming. Should I put my new address on the return?

A—Yes, use your new address. One of the major reasons for delay in receiving refund is that we do not have the correct address. Put your old address in the space provided on the return, just below the block for name and address.

Q—How do you avoid getting bad tax advice? This happened to a friend of mine last year and it was pretty expensive.

A—Most tax advisers are competent. Local accounting and legal societies will be able to supply you with a list of qualified tax advisers in this area. Also your Internal Revenue office stands ready to help you.

Q—Can I deduct the federal tax I pay on my phone bill?

A—No. This is an excise tax and is not deductible.

Q—Who is liable for tax on interest on savings bonds bought for a child?

A—It depends on how the bonds are registered. If the child is listed as co-owner on the bond, the purchaser is liable for tax on the interest. If the child is sole owner with the parent as beneficiary, the child assumes the tax liability.

Q—My friend filed a tax return although his income was under $600. Does that mean I will have to file even though I earned less than $600?

A—If you had income tax withheld, a return must be filed to obtain a refund. If you had $400 or more of net income from self-employment then a tax return must be filed. Use Schedules C and C-3 to report self-employment income and attach them to Form 1040 to do this.

Q—If you have no refund coming and no self-employment income to report, then no return is necessary.

JOHN CLANCY

Clancy Joins VA Staff

New social caseworker at the Veterans Administration Hospital is John J. Clancy Jr., a native of Boston, Mass. Clancy assumed his duties at the VA Thursday.

He came to the VA Hospital here from the VA Hospital at Sheridan, Wyo., where he had been employed for two years. His previous experience as a hospital caseworker was at San Antonio State Hospital.
