Just Too Cold For Sad-Face

The favorite fireplug for this Wichita Falls basset hound was covered in snow so the sad-faced hound just gave a shudder and trotted off. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Many Texas Schools Shut, Roads Perilous

By The Associated Press
Snows up to 6 inches made driving hazardous in vast stretches from the Big Bend Country of Southwest Texas to the Tyler-Paris section of East Texas today. Schools closed in several places.
Among the classes cancelled were those in Fort Worth, where layers of snow froze to roadways in suburban areas and became slush downtown.
The official measurement at Fort Worth was an inch of snow, but the measurement was taken some distance from the city.
Also closed were schoolroom doors in all Brown County, where 3 inches of snow blanketed that center of Texas area.
SNOW LINE
The snow continued to flutter down in many places during the day as the snow line moved southeastward.
The heaviest snow reported was 6 inches at Henrietta. The area of greatest fall, the Weather Bureau said, was in an area southeast of Odessa to Wichita Falls and northwest of the Del Rio-Denison line.
The Weather Bureau issued a special bulletin about dawn warning of hazardous driving from the Texas snow region into northern Arkansas.

Some of the latest reported snow depths included Abilene 2 inches, San Angelo 2, Mineral Wells 3, Junction 3, Big Spring 2.
FREEZE BELT
Light snow which fell in Dallas failed to interfere with travel.
The freezing line at dawn stretched as far south as Tyler, Austin and Eagle Pass.
Temperatures skidded to 11 above zero at Amarillo, where skies cleared and the ground was bare of snow.
An even colder night is expected in most sections of Texas, with overnight lows down to 10 degrees in the upper Panhandle, 15 in the north central area and in the 20s elsewhere.
A 6-inch snow cover accumulated at Henrietta, 16 miles east of Wichita Falls, as the storm spread down the Red River Valley. Mangum, Okla., likewise measured 6 inches.
OTHER POINTS
Measurements at other points included Nocona 5 inches, Seymour 4, Haskell, Goree, Munday, Mineral Wells and Junction 2, Brownwood 3 to 4 inches,

San Angelo area 2 to 3, and Abilene 2.
There was light snow mixed with drizzle as far south as Del Rio on the Mexican border, where the last snowfall occurred in March of 1965. Del Rio gauged .62 inch of moisture as all the snow melted.
A little snow also fell as deep as Waco in Central Texas.
With prospects of difficulty for buses navigating rural roads, two smaller schools in Mills County — Star and Center City — called off classes for the day. Both are in an area southeast of Brownwood.
BRIDGES ICED
At least some other schools were expected to follow suit.
Although cars and trucks found the going rough as slush built up and bridges and overpasses iced throughout the snow belt, state police reported all major routes still open in early morning.
Cold air which started billowing into Texas the day before drove past Corpus Christi on the coast, but it remained comparatively warm in the Lower Rio Grande Valley as light rain fell around Brownsville and McAllen.

NEW RECORD COLD MARK

Monday's cold spell helped usher in a record-breaking temperature of 18 degrees today when the thermometer dipped below 19, a previous 1911 record, shortly before daybreak. The U.S. Experiment Station recorded a high of only 20 degrees Monday.
No more snow was expected for Howard County. Melted snow and rainfall measured two-tenths of an inch, according to Grady Randel of the Experiment Station.
Northeasterly winds up to 18 miles per hour were predicted for today, with a high temperature of 35-40 degrees.
Even the sun took advantage of today as Feb. 22, George Washington's birthday, and arose at precisely 7:22 a.m.

Weather Casting Doubt On Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Predictions of marginal weather — high winds and too many clouds — remained the main concern today as the countdown progressed toward Wednesday morning's scheduled flight of the first Saturn IB rocket and Apollo moonship.
Weather permitting, the 225-foot-tall Saturn IB, with enough fuel on board to give it one-twentieth of the explosive capacity of the A-bomb that leveled Hiroshima, is due to rattle skyward at 7:45 a.m. EST on a 39-minute jaunt to a target area in the Atlantic Ocean 5,300 miles southeast of Cape Kennedy.
RIDE ON NOSE
Riding on its nose will be an unmanned version of the cone-shaped Apollo spaceship which will carry three Americans to the moon. This will be the maiden flight for both the 650-ton Saturn IB — the most powerful rocket ever built by the United States — and the Apollo moonship.
Hundreds of industrial executives, representing numerous companies which pooled their top talent to piece together the space-age marvel, plan to be on hand to witness the blast-off. The launch will be carried on the three major television networks.
HEAVIEST PAYLOAD
The Saturn IB's 1.6-million-pound-thrust first stage and souped-up 200,000-pound-thrust second stage are designed to lift 37,000 pounds into earth orbit. That is 10,000 pounds more than the Soviet Proton 1, the heaviest payload ever launched.
During this first mission, however, the Saturn IB will only lob the Apollo spacecraft 310 miles high and 5,300 miles down the Eastern Test Range.
DOWNHILL TRIP
On the downhill ride, two bursts of a jet engine will ram the spacecraft back toward the earth at nearly 10,000 miles an hour to test the Apollo's ability to withstand searing re-entry temperatures of nearly 5,000 degrees. Such heat is similar to that which astronauts must pass through on a return trip from the moon.
Project officials will attempt to recover the spacecraft after it parachutes to a landing in the South Atlantic.
The launch will be the first of three unmanned tests for the Saturn IB before three Apollo astronauts go for a spin of 8 to 14 days around the earth late this year or early 1967 to work out techniques needed on the moon flight.

Sen. Kennedy Clarifies Cong Role Statement

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., said today that his call for Viet Cong participation in a postelection South Vietnamese government does not anticipate Communist control.
"But the dissident elements must be brought into any peace talks," the senator said in a television interview.
Asked whether free elections would mean a victory by the Viet Cong, Kennedy said the situation would require "astute and brilliant statesmanship on the part of the United States to assure a fair election."
Reaction to his suggestion, he said, indicates confusion over U.S. military and political objectives in Viet Nam.
Kennedy said some administration members apparently believe there are preconditions attached to any agreement on a peace conference.

Kennedy said he is "not in favor of pulling out. It would be a dreadful mistake on the part of our government. However, if we want to destroy the Viet Cong we should be prepared for a long and bloody fight which eventually may bring in China."

Objections By Defense Upset In Cross Trial

AUSTIN (AP) — Judge Mace B. Thurman Jr. overruled today the defense's objections to the charge to the jury and denied a motion to allow the defense to open and close arguments on the issue of James C. Cross Jr.'s insanity.

The Fort Worth man is on trial for his life, accused of murder in the strangulations last July of two pretty University of Texas coeds.

The defense wanted to separate the sanity issue from guilt or innocence. This would have given the defense the right to make the last argument to the jury in a separate hearing.

If Thurman had granted the motion, final arguments on guilt or innocence would have come after the sanity issue had been determined.

PSYCHIATRISTS TESTIFY
Two psychiatrists testified Monday that Cross took a course last spring in abnormal psychology to find out about his recurring daydream of strangulation and rape.

They said he drew the wrong conclusion from what he learned and the fantasy grew until "it overpowered him" the day Susan Rigby and Shirley Ann Stark, died last July 18.

The state and the defense rested their cases Monday. They were to work on a charge to the jury first today, then have final arguments.

Cross, 23, is charged with the sex slayings last summer of the 21-year-old sorority sisters from Dallas.

He listened intently as Drs. Richard J. Alexander and E. Wayne Goff, both of Austin, testified they believe he was "legally insane" when the girls were murdered and is insane now.

A person is legally insane under what lawyers call the McNaughten rule if he doesn't know the nature and consequences of his act and he doesn't know right from wrong.

JEKYL, HYDE

Goff said Cross has a Jekyll and Hyde relationship to reality and fantasy, finally developing the ability to enjoy his fantasy "in great detail" at the same moment he is carrying on a rational conversation with someone.

Goff examined Cross "about 12 times" for a total of 21 hours. Alexander examined him five times.

A pediatrician, Dr. Blanche Terrell of Fort Worth, also testified for the defense. She treated Cross several times between the ages of four and eight years.

Once Cross had an acute appendicitis and this was complicated by chicken pox three days later and measles 13 days later.

He was in bed several weeks, she said.

Cross was emotionally disturbed and needed phenobarbital when he was eight, she said. Goff said his examination of Cross revealed this history:

EARLIEST MEMORIES

"Some of his earliest memories were of desperately trying to please his father but never being able to.

"The father apparently was pretty good in sports . . .

"The boy was severely cross-eyed and handicapped in sports. . . he remembers when his father would throw a ball to him he would have his arms outstretched and the ball would hit him in the face.

"The father tried to hide his disappointment but couldn't hide it very well."

As Goff testified, Cross' parents sat with eyes downcast on the first row in the courtroom. "The boy had deep resentment toward the father and mother and feelings of guilt because he felt this," Goff said.

When Cross came to the University of Texas "his main task was to find out if he could really deal with people emotionally. . . he did well the first semester or two, but he did poor in people."

Cross took the course in abnormal psychology in the spring of 1965. "He learned others had similar problems," Goff said. "He surmised from the course it was dangerous to suppress these fantasies . . .

DWELL ON FANTASIES

"He began to allow himself to dwell on these fantasies with the mistaken belief" it would relieve his anxieties.

Alexander said the girls "unfortunately stepped into a fantastic world and he kept them there."

Legislature Nears OK On Voter Bill

British And Soviet Leaders Talk In Kremlin

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, left, and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin converse in the Kremlin today with the aid of interpreter Victor Sukhodrev, center, before they started formal talks on world problems. Both Soviet and British authorities held out little hope of progress toward an agreed position on the Viet Nam crisis from the talks. Russia later in the day rejected Wilson's plea for action on peace talks. Story on Page 2. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Extension Of Session Seen Likely

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas legislators returned today for the formality of finally approving Gov. John Connally's plan for annual free voter registration.

Campaign conscious senators and representatives also feared they would hear Connally call for an extension of the special session to consider other legislation.

There were numerous predictions the governor would demand more lawmaking in the midst of this political year to furnish more money for Texas junior colleges, more money for the 1968 HemisFair exhibition in San Antonio, and more state participation in the federal medicare program.

Monday, the fifth working day of this special session, the House passed 123-23 and the Senate 24-6 almost identical administration-backed bills for free voter registration each year to replace, if necessary, the present poll tax voting requirement. House leaders agreed to urge adoption of the Senate bill today.

PERMANENT PLAN
The nearest opposition, from advocates of permanent voter registration, lost by votes of 106-42 in the House and 22-8 in the Senate.

"Great amounts of grease were put on the rails this afternoon to skid this annual bill through," complained Sen. Franklin Spears, backer of the Senate permanent registration plan and a candidate for attorney general.

Rep. Gene Fondren, Taylor, House sponsor of the governor's plan, said his bill would be the best guard against vote fraud and insure orderly election procedures.

Sen. George Parkhouse, Dallas, protested that a portion of the bill repaying counties 25 cents for each free voter registration "is nothing but a tax on the big city counties to help the small counties, the same old group that is coming up to the trough to feed again in the same old way."

The Austin federal court ruling that it is unconstitutional to require a poll tax receipt for voting of state and local candidates is the cause for the session. A federal Constitutional change freed voters for national offices from the poll tax requirement several years ago.

EMERGENCY PERIOD

The Connally plan calls for a 15-day emergency free voter registration period. It would begin seven days after the end of this session. Those registering during the 15 days would be eligible voters in the May 7 primaries as would those who have already paid poll taxes, provided the U.S. Supreme Court upholds the Austin court ruling.

It also would be effective if voters on Nov. 8 favor a constitutional amendment knocking out the poll tax requirement and decreasing an annual voter registration plan for Texas.

Present procedures under the present poll tax receipt plan will be retained. In fact, the forms used during the free voter registration period upcoming will be old poll tax receipt forms. Election judges will use the same materials they have used in the past.

The registration period will be the same from Oct. 1 to the usual Jan. 31 deadline. Every voter must register each year to vote for any election — local, state or federal.

Bishops Assailed Anew By Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's angriest church-state feud in a decade has blown up over a question quite remote from church taxes, religious instruction or holy day processions, the usual friction points.

This dispute flared over relations with Germany, an emotional question for a nation that lost six million dead in World War II.

Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński, Roman Catholic primate of Poland, and the Polish bishops are accused by Wladyslaw Gomułka's Communist regime of being soft on Germany and of meddling in foreign policy. For the first time in nearly a decade, the cardinal was barred from foreign travel last month, just as he was preparing to leave for Rome.

ATTACK BISHOPS

State authorities seem furious over a letter of reconciliation and forgiveness which Poland's bishops sent the bishops of Germany last November, over the German reply and over a Polish church statement welcoming the reply.

Apparently confident that the Polish church is vulnerable on the German question, Gomułka's regime has launched a sustained and vigorous campaign of press and radio attacks against the bishops.

Gomułka, first secretary of the ruling Communist party, devoted a television speech to the church and German issues. He accused the church of trying to lean Poland toward the West and declared, "This nation knows what it met at the hands of the West in history. It cannot be reoriented to the West."

PROMOTE DISCORD

The intensity of the campaign against the bishops and the issues they raised may indicate the Warsaw regime desires to keep alive hostility toward West

Germany and squelch serious talk of reconciliation.
The dispute provides the government a handy excuse to restrict the size of the May 3 celebration of Poland's 1,000 years of Christianity.

Chances had appeared good last fall that Pope Paul VI might visit the celebration. Today, however, government officials say such a visit is unthinkable.

QUESTION POSED

It has also become questionable whether bishops from West Germany will get entrance visas and whether Cardinal Wyszyński will be allowed to leave on a planned summer visit to Polish millennium observances in the United States and Canada.

"No German bishops wanted here" has been daubed on walls at Crystochowa, the southern Polish city where the celebration will center. A television series portrays the Catholic church in Germany as having been pro-Nazi and expansionist.

SANS HUSBANDS

One thing they had in common, however, was that both are without their husbands — Mrs. Mossler's met a violent end and Mrs. Mulvey's is back behind prison bars.

The state rested its case Monday after three weeks of testimony, including that of Mrs. Mulvey's husband, Billy Frank Mulvey, 35.

TWO ON TRIAL

Powers, 29, is on trial for his life with his aunt, Candace Mossler, in the June 30, 1964, slaying of her aging husband.

Resumption of the trial, now in its sixth week, followed a dramatic courtroom face-to-face confrontation Monday between Mrs. Mossler and Lois Constance Mulvey, two women of strikingly different backgrounds.

Mrs. Mossler, expensively groomed and attractive, contrasted in appearance with Mrs. Mulvey, married to a profes-

Statements that the German bishops are not welcome are heard at officially inspired mass meetings held to condemn the Polish bishops.

The public's first reaction to news of the bishops' letter appeared to be a mixture of surprise, indignation and confusion. After the full text was published and after Cardinal Wyszyński was denied a passport, there was evidence that Catholics were rallying to his support.

"NOT EASY"

Recognizing that many a Catholic was critical of suggesting forgiveness for Germans, Cardinal Wyszyński in a sermon quoted the Lord's Prayer and told worshippers: "It is not easy to be a Christian. We saw recently what a storm broke out when the bishops said they would forgive their enemies. Now we have come to understand that Poles on some matters are not good Christians despite 10 centuries of Christianity here."

Hair Strand 'Not That Of Powers'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A strand of human hair found in the dead hand of a multimillionaire Jacques Mossler was not that of his accused slayer, Melvin Lane Powers, a defense witness said today.

"The hair was of a different color characteristic than that represented coming from the head of Melvin Lane Powers," said William Hartner, Dade County crime laboratory chemist. He testified he compared the strand with a sample from Powers' head.

Dissatisfied Senators In College Board Huddle

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate Nominations Committee met early today, behind closed doors, to consider Gov. John Connally's appointment of the 17-member Texas College Coordinating Board.

Dissatisfaction of some senators with the board's recent move toward limiting doctoral degrees to only four state universities furnished a background for the meeting.

Any action of the committee must be approved by the full Senate, also in secret session. Failure of the Senate to act before the end of the session automatically cancels the appointments.
Sunday the Dallas Times Herald said several senators were unhappy with the coordinating board decision to restrict doctoral programs mostly to the University of Texas, Texas A&M, University of Houston and Texas Tech.

White Shoots Five Negroes In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A white man shot five Negro pickets in a Birmingham supermarket parking lot Monday night after they refused to move out of his way, police said.

Police said two of the Negroes were shot in the stomach and that the others were less seriously hurt. All required hospital treatment.

Police Capt. J. M. McDowell said Emory W. McGowan, 23, of Birmingham, turned himself in at the police department minutes after the shooting.

CHARGES DUE
McDowell said McGowan would be charged with assault with intent to murder.

Authorities quoted McGowan as saying the Negroes were blocking his car and refused to move when he asked them to.

The officers said McGowan told them that when the Negroes would not move, he opened his car door and opened fire with a .25-caliber pistol.

The man drove quickly out of the parking lot, accompanied by a woman, according to police. She was questioned and released, McDowell said.

Fred L. Shuttlesworth of Cincinnati, secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said he was leading a nighttime protest march about a block away from the store, Liberty supermarket. "I heard a bunch of noise that sounded like firecrackers," he said.

"Then we saw some people on the ground. One man was trying to crawl. He had been shot in the back.

VICTIMS LISTED
"Someone who saw who did the shooting got his license number."

Treated at University Hospital were Douglas Murray, 15, shot in the stomach; Willie Andrews, 32, shot in the back and stomach; William James Maxwell, 32; Albert Tate, 56, and Simon Armstrong, 79.

Shuttlesworth said members of his organization have been picketing the store in protest of alleged employment discrimination.

"Negroes make up 90 percent of this store's business and we feel that we should be represented by this percentage in the employment," Shuttlesworth said.

The firm filed a $2-million libel suit against the SCLC Monday alleging libel for making "false accusations" that the firm discriminated against Negroes.

Likeness To Lincoln And Roosevelt

Soviet Spurns British Plea For Peace Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain called on Soviet leaders today to help promote unconditional peace talks on Viet Nam before the war there spreads through Asia and possibly the world.

But Premier Alexei N. Kosygin brushed aside Wilson's appeal, demanding instead acceptance of North Viet Nam's terms for a peace parley. These have been rejected both by the Saigon and U. S. governments.

Kosygin insisted any settlement must fulfill the 1954 Geneva agreements.

Wilson and Kosygin spoke at a luncheon attended by most members of the Soviet Communist party's "collective leadership."

Where Wilson stressed points of British-Soviet accord on Viet Nam, Kosygin criticized the United States for bombing attacks on the North and its land against the Viet Cong in the South.

The luncheon was held after Wilson and Kosygin held their first talks.

A discussion of British-Soviet relations, with emphasis on Wilson's desire for greater Soviet purchases of British goods, was on the agenda for the opening session.

International matters, particularly the differing Moscow and London views on the deepening crisis in Asia, also were high on the work program.

As the exchanges began, Pravda, organ of the Soviet Communist party, published a blast against what it said are Western plans to arm West Germany with nuclear weapons.

A dispatch from the paper's Washington correspondent described a meeting of five North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense ministers in the U. S. capital last week as "another step along the road of Bonn's possession of nuclear weapons."

MAJOR TOPIC
This is to be a major topic in the Kosygin-Wilson talks.

The word from both Soviet and British authorities as the meeting got under way was that there seems little chance of progress toward an agreed position on the Viet Nam crisis.

Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference which produced the Indochinese peace settlements in 1954. Wilson is asking the Soviet Union to join Britain in a call to contestants in Viet Nam to negotiate.

Kosygin's response, if Soviet press commentaries are indicative, almost certainly will be negative.

Kosygin has contended that the Soviet Union at this time has no role to play in peacemaking and that it is up to the Americans to stop bombing North Viet Nam as the indispensable prelude to talks.

It had all the earmarks of being the fattest Fat Tuesday—the English translation of Mardi Gras — on record here.

INDIAN PLEA
Mrs. Gandhi said she told Humphrey, who visited New Delhi last week, that India's view of the Viet Nam war is based on its position as a non-aligned country and as chairman of the International Control Commission for Southeast Asia. India has pleaded in the past that its nonalignment and control commission connections prevent it from taking any part in the war or supporting U. S. policy there.

Humphrey "appreciated" India's attitude and expressed the hope this country would "do everything possible to facilitate a peaceful solution of the problem," Mrs. Gandhi said.

ASK ABOUT LINK
The prime minister was answering questions in Parliament about what transpired in Humphrey's private talks with Indian officials. Members wanted to know if Humphrey's announcement of a new $100-million loan to India was tied to any secret assurances from Mrs. Gandhi on India's foreign or domestic policy.

United States for $5,880,000 each. The government felt these and other land-based bombers could take over the role of aircraft carriers.

Luce said in his resignation he could not accept the Cabinet's decision on the carrier.

The government said it intends to withdraw British forces from the strategic Middle East Aden base by 1968, but will keep its bases in Singapore and Malaysia where Britain is involved in the confrontation with Indonesia.

The defense estimates for 1966-67 provide for expenditure of $6,061,600,000.

Other highlights in the defense plans:

—British troops in British Guiana and southern African territories will be pulled back soon.

WILL REMAIN
—The 51,000 British troops in West Germany will be kept there as long as means can be found of meeting foreign exchange costs.

—British Polaris submarines will take over full responsibility for Britain's contribution to Atlantic Alliance nuclear forces by 1970.

The government claimed it will achieve significant savings in return for a comparatively small reduction in Britain's military capacity.

Police Count Up To 13 Traffic Wrecks On Snow

Everybody got into the act in Monday's traffic accident spree, including Jay Banks, police chief, and at day's end, 13 "fender-benders" had been recorded.

Ice and snow, especially on car windshields, contributed to the total, officers said today. Police asked motorists to take time to scrape off snow and ice from all auto windows, or take about 15 minutes to let the car defroster melt the white stuff away, before driving.

Banks' car was going west on Fifth when it was in collision with a car driven by Violet M. Lindley, Route 2, traveling north on Scurry, officers said.

Neither Banks nor any of the other accident participants during the day were injured.

Other accidents involved the cars of Herbert Joe Heard, 508 Nolan, and Paul Quinton Whirley, 501 Young, at Sixth and Goliad; the cars of James R. Zamagni, 1812 Main, and Sharon Payne Wallace, 2508 W. 16th, at FM 700 and Westover; the car of Earl Elmo Phillips, 704 E. 3rd, which struck an iron pole at 300 E. 3rd; the cars of Pamela Joyce Ham, 2005 S. PSYCHIATRIC AID
Williams, a native of Santa Monica, Calif., had been undergoing psychiatric treatment, but failed to keep an appointment with his psychiatrist Monday, detectives said.

They said that Williams' wife, Gloria, 45, a former policeman, tried to dissuade him from taking his life as he loaded a Colt frontier model revolver.

Officers said Williams left a note leaving all his possessions to his wife. They had no children.

SPACE ROLE
As chief scientist at the Hughes laboratory, Williams played an important role in development of the Syncom and Early Bird satellites, officials said.

It was his idea, they said, that enabled scientists to place the spinning satellites into proper position in relation to the earth.

Mardi Gras Carnival On
NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Mardi Gras madness sweeps New Orleans today — a great upswelling of foolishness and fun before the austerity of Lent.

Thousands caper in the streets in the craziest costume and mask they can devise, a tradition going back to the days of French rule.

The maskers'— devils, angels, dancing girls, Indians, frankensteins, peacocks, armored knights, hairy gorillas, to name just a few — get cracking early on Fat Tuesday, crowding the midtown area by noon.

LYNDA BIRD
Somewhere among the maskers reportedly will be Lynda Bird Johnson, elder daughter of the President. She has been in town since Friday, escorted by actor George Hamilton.

The White House said Miss Johnson was "on vacation" and would remain through Tuesday. Her whereabouts have been kept secret.

It had all the earmarks of being the fattest Fat Tuesday—the English translation of Mardi Gras — on record here.

DEFENSE TESTIMONY

Candace Faces Convict's Wife

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Four years ago Candace Mossler with costly frocks and a $5,000-a-month household allowance, was the pampered wife of multimillionaire Jacques Mossler. Lois Constance Mulvey was then what she is today — a woman married to a professional thief and trying to raise three children.

Dear Abby

A Rose By Any Other—

DEAR ABBY: If a man wants to call his wife his "OLD LADY," what's wrong with that? My husband has always called me his "OLD LADY" and I'm not even 30 years old yet. What's more, I call him my "OLD MAN," and he doesn't mind a bit. We have four adorable children, and you will find more love and respect in our home than in many other homes where you hear the husbands and wives calling each other "DARLING, DEAREST," and "SWEETHEART." What's in a name?

MY OLD MAN'S OLD LADY
DEAR ABBY: When Seymour and I were first married, a registered package was delivered to our door. He had to sign for it. Then he said to the delivery man, "It's not for me, it's for MY OLD LADY."

When he handed me the package I refused to accept it. He asked why, and I said, "Because if it's for your OLD LADY you'd better take it to your mother's house next time you go there." That was the last time he ever called me his OLD LADY.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I got a chuckle out of that letter from the woman who was offended at hearing a man refer to his wife as his "old lady." My husband has never in all the 39 years we have been married called me anything but that. When we were married, I was 18 and he was 44. Today I am 58 and he is 82, and I am still his "old lady." I won't say we haven't had our little spats, but it was never over anything so silly as what we called each other.

DEAR ABBY: The man who referred to his wife as his "old lady" might have done so affectionately. When my husband calls me "Weasel, Dingbat and Picklepus" it's a sign that he is feeling tender toward me. But when he calls me "MARY FRANCES"—then I know I'm in trouble.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif.

WAFCs Are Counterpart In Viet War To WACs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember the days when the WACs, those women soldiers, numbered in the tens of thousands during World War II? And the WAFs and the WAVES?

If you're slow to recall the exact names, they are: Women's Army Corps (WACs), Women's Air Force (WAFs) and — hardest of all — Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service WAVES.

South Viet Nam has a relatively new counterpart, WAFCS, Women's Armed Forces Corps. Their strength is rising, and there's even a backlog of applicants.

PATRIOTIC DRIVE
"Their main incentive," says a WAC who helped launch the WAFCS training program in South Viet Nam last year, "is patriotism. They are quite articulate in stating their part in the Viet Nam struggle."

M. Sgt. Betty Adams told newsmen about the WAFCS Monday at a Pentagon news Conference. Basically the South Vietnamese corps' mission is like that of the U.S. women's services: pulling together the country's volunteer womanpower trained in noncombat occupation. The state says aunt and nephew designed the murder in furtherance of an illicit love affair.

The trial resumes today with further defense testimony. The state rested Monday after three weeks' testimony, including that of Billy Frank Mulvey, 35.

Mrs. Mulvey, 37, her husband a Texas State Penitentiary convict, was the first witness called in defense of Candace Mossler. A short witness with no makeup and wearing low-heel black shoes, she was asked whether she and her husband were together in 1962, while he was between prison stretches.

LIVING TOGETHER
"Yes, we were living together during the entire year," she replied. "He just did roofing work. He didn't work all the time, not steady work, just part time."

Her husband, Billy Frank, had testified in colorful prison jargon, that in 1962 Mrs. Mossler gave him a $7,000 down payment to kill her husband, in a deal that never went through. Expansively, Mulvey explained, that she spent the money buying clothes — "a whole bunch of clothes for my old lady and me."

Long Patent Fight Won By Inventor

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — A 67-year-old engineer and inventor living on Social Security and "a few pennies I saved" is looking forward to a possible windfall after winning a long patent fight with the federal government.

The U. S. Supreme Court ruled Monday that Bert Adams, who moved here from New York three years ago because of his health, is entitled to reasonable compensation for a battery invention.

"I was shocked," said Adams when advised of the court decision. "But I really expected it because I knew I was right."

Adams started work on the battery in his kitchen workshop in 1939. He patented it in 1941, but the government contended the patent was invalid. Millions of the batteries were manufactured and used by the government.

"I didn't get one nickel," recalled Adams. "I put in endless hours on that thing. Once I quit work for eight months to devote full time to it, and my wife had to go to work. It doesn't look like much but even the Russians tried to make one and failed."

The battery has an electric power output that is steady and constant over its entire life. Adams says it is used in some missiles.

Adams launched his court fight about 10 years ago. After exhausting his own funds he had about decided to give up. "I didn't ever think I would have my day in court," he said.

Then along came a wealthy man. Adams told him his story and the man, whom Adams refuses to identify, backed him.

"This court fight has cost around $200,000 to $250,000," says Adams.

The inventor, who lives in a comfortable frame home here with his wife, said he does not know how much he will now get. "I live modestly — I don't care if I drive a $100 car or one that costs $1,000," says Adams. "If I get more than I can use myself, I hope to do something for other people."

Autopsy Ordered In Sherman Death
SHERMAN, Tex. (AP) — An autopsy has been ordered in the death of Rutherford Clark, 74, whose charred body was found Monday near the city dump. He was last seen alive at a grocery store parking lot Saturday.

Vice President In Korea To Push Buildup

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey arrived in Seoul tonight on the last leg of a nine-nation Asian tour as the South Korean government appeared ready to send more combat troops to Viet Nam.

Humphrey's 21-hour stopover was expected to seal a U.S.-South Korean agreement to increase substantially the 20,000-man Korean force in Viet Nam.

Premier Chung Il-kwon, Foreign Minister Lee Tong and U.S. Ambassador Winthrop G. Brown greeted Humphrey on his arrival from Manila.

"SEE THE LIGHT"
Before his departure from the Philippines, Humphrey optimistically said the Allies in Viet Nam "could see the light at the end of the tunnel."

In Seoul, an official of the ruling Democratic Republic party said about the time of Humphrey's arrival that the government would send a bill to the National Assembly shortly to authorize the dispatch of more troops to Viet Nam. Unconfirmed reports said Korea was planning to send 24,000 additional men.

As in the other capitals he visited, Humphrey will report on President Johnson's Honolulu meeting with South Vietnamese government leaders earlier this month.

After his arrival in the snow-bound South Korean capital from the tropical heat of Manila, 1,500 miles away, Humphrey immediately went to a working dinner with President Chung Il-kwon, who recently returned from a similar Asian tour.

NO RESPONSE
In a prepared statement, Humphrey said there had been no response from the Communists to "our repeated and extensive efforts to stimulate discussions to settle the conflict in Viet Nam on honorable terms."

It is his second visit to Seoul in two months.

After his talks with Humphrey, Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos announced that he would like to send combat troops to Viet Nam as well as engineer forces. Marcos said such a move would be supported by the "overwhelming opinion of my people."

The Philippine president predicted that the House of Representatives would pass a controversial bill to authorize the sending of more than 2,000 engineer construction troops to Viet Nam and that the Senate would follow soon.

Shortly after Humphrey returns home Wednesday night, he will tell the American people that Red China is a growing menace throughout Asia.

County Will Sell Bonds

Plans to sell the remaining $200,000 bonds in the 1965 Road Bond issue for Howard County were being considered by the county commissioners court today.

Carter Johnston, fiscal agent for the county, is in town to confer with the commissioners on the sale.

Originally the county sold $400,000 of the $600,000 issue to provide funds for the initial purchases of land needed for highway right of way on FM 700 north and on parts of the proposed FM 700 extension from US 87 west to IS 20.

This money, according to County Judge Lee Porter, is now nearly expended and the additional $200,000 in bonds is being sold to provide revenue for the acquisition of additional right of way on the extension.

The county commissioners sold the first $400,000 nearly a year ago. By not selling the total issue of $600,000, it had been hoped to save on interest costs.

Child Dies At Webb AFB

The three-month-old daughter of Airman I.C. and Mrs. James L. Allen, Webb Village, died Sunday afternoon, according to Lt. James Laney, Webb Air Force Base information office. Funeral arrangements are pending the father's return from out of town, Laney said.

Justice of the Peace Jess Slaughter ruled death by accident of apparent suffocation.

O'Brien Funeral Is Held Today

Services for M. J. O'Brien, 42, who died Sunday, were held at 4 p.m. today in the First Presbyterian Church with burial in Trinity Memorial Park, under the direction of the Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home. Masonic graveside rites were directed by the Big Spring Lodge No. 1340.

Survivors include his widow, two sons, one daughter, his parents, and two brothers. Pallbearers were J. T. Anderson, J. T. Anderson Jr., H. D. Lowe, G. W. Williams, R. L. Baber and W. F. Schattell. All railroad men are honorary pallbearers.

School Trustees To Meet Today

School trustees meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the board room to discuss a contract with delinquent tax attorney, John Burgess, and to elect one school board member to fill the unexpired term of C. J. Haralson, who recently resigned.

Fiscal agent Carter Johnson will be present to discuss the sale of bonds. A request for approval to order school buses for the 1966-67 school year is also on the agenda, and the business office will present cost estimates for grass areas around several of the schools.

Ranchers Asked To Admit Hunters

An appeal was voiced by Jaycees today for ranchers to open their ranges to snake hunters March 4-5.

Numerous ranchers have asked the Jaycees to send in crews for extermination of rattlesnakes.

Others who are interested in this service are asked to call Alton Marwitz at the State National Bank.

More Spraying, Mowing Included In New Budget

Stepped-up programs of elm-tree beetle spraying and vacant lot mowing are being considered in the city's 1966-67 budget. Larry Crow, city manager, said today he said beautification programs will also be increased.

"About two years ago," Crow said, "we began the beetle-spraying program, interest being centered on saving the elm trees around town. It is a stop-gap program, it just saves the trees, and is not a full-scale attack on the tree beetle. Property owners have had to do supplemental spraying, because we've been using only one machine. This year, we will be using an additional machine, one that is part of the golf course equipment. We will use it around City Park mostly, leaving our other sprayer, which doubles as a mosquito sprayer, free for use around town."

Crow said the additional spraying will call for additional expenses. "We will ask for another tractor to step up the vacant-lot mowing program," Crow said. "Presently, we have only one tractor properly equipped for lot mowing. There are many vacant lots in town, and much city property, that need mowing, and we need another tractor. This program involves beautification as well as health and safety."

Other costs which must be considered on the new budget include blacktopping of City Cem-

Garoo Pleads For Mercy

Monty Mac, the steadfast tin soldier (Bobby Dyer), shows Garoo, the wicked golliwog (John Lipscombe), that he means business, while Paul Talbot, the little boy who owns all the toys, tells Garoo he should be a good golliwog from now on. The Little Theater production of "The Steadfast Tin Soldier" will be presented Friday and Saturday in the City Auditorium at 8 o'clock both nights and at a matinee Saturday at 2 p.m. Tickets are $1.50 for adults and 25 cents for children. (Photo by Frank Brandon)

Luxembourg Military Woe: How To Keep Army Going

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — With the smallest army in the Atlantic alliance, Luxembourg has one of the biggest problems: How to keep its army going at all.

For decades Luxembourg had no military force. Many of its 330,000 citizens don't think one is needed now.

Marcel Fischbach, minister of the armed forces, believes otherwise. He has told Parliament: "There must be no gap in the front of freedom, and the value and importance of our contribution lies in preventing just that."

POLICE TRAINING
He also pointed out that the army gives valuable training to future police and customs officers.

"Besides," he noted, "the whole country benefits from the band of the grand duke's guard, the only professional band we have."

Luxembourg illustrates in miniature many of the problems the whole Atlantic alliance faces. The army reached a peak strength of 5,600 in the '50s. Since then pressure for economy has brought it down to about 2,000. Similar pressures exist throughout the alliance.

A Luxembourg artillery battalion of 600 men is integrated into the U. S. 8th Infantry Division with headquarters at Bad Kreuznach, West Germany. This is Luxembourg's contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — NATO. There is no difficulty about the integration now but the situation may change soon.

MONEY TROUBLE
The foreseeable trouble will

Viet Nam Film Planned Tonight
"Why Viet Nam" is the title of the film to be shown at the Tuesday evening meeting of the First Presbyterian Men's Club.

The film, a current release of the Defense Department, explains the history of the Asian conflict and the ultimate aim of American forces. Film comments will be given by Sgt. Charles Schiell, and Dr. Gage Lloyd, pastor, will lead the discussion following the presentation.

The supper meeting begins at 6:30 p.m. at the church community hall, and the admission charge will be $1 per plate.

be mainly about money, but it may be complicated by the nuclear issue. The Luxembourg government is under pressure from the United States to buy some new artillery for its battalion, possibly the kind that can fire nuclear shells at American command.

Such a purchase would make a hole of several million dollars in the Luxembourg budget — which runs about $60 million a year. It is found to set the nationalists asking questions.

In other countries of the alliance there is similar pressure to sell American weapons, and similar voices asking if they are really worth all the trouble and expense.

RED VOICE?
The Communists, who elected five of the 56 members in the present Luxembourg Chamber of Deputies, may speak out — though Luxembourg's Communists are a mild variety. They once called the U. S. Embassy to ask if they could hold a demonstration outside. Told politely that the embassy would rather not, the Communists called the demonstration off.

The decline in the size of Luxembourg's army and its military budget worries American officials. They see it as a bad example to neighbors.

Valentine Gift Going To Grocery Patrons

WOOTTON, England (AP) — A grocer named Valentine Day won $196,000 — all tax free — in Britain's soccer pool today and promptly announced a free week's supply of groceries for all his customers.

Otherwise, he said, he'll continue business as usual.

Day, 54, explained: "I have always promised my customers that if ever I won on

Infocade '66 Announced

ABILENE—Infocade '66, a series of three orientation meetings for the leaders of West Texas, will be held March 16, 17 and 18 in Lubbock, Mineral Wells, and San Angelo, sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Infocade was begun last year by the West Texas Chamber and featured key speakers in the fields of economic development, business-government relations and agriculture. Each speaker was supported by a panel of experts who helped conduct a question-and-answer series.

This year Infocade will feature two innovations, the women's approach and a college senior and high school senior who will head a panel of young people from representative high schools and colleges of West Texas and give the viewpoint of youth toward the area's opportunities and its problems.

The Infocade meetings will be held at the Student Union Building on the Texas Tech campus in Lubbock on March 16; at the Baker Hotel in Mineral Wells on March 17; and at the Exhibits Building on the fairgrounds in San Angelo on March 18.

Ben Barnes, speaker of the House of Representatives in the Texas Legislature, will serve as moderator for all three sessions. WTCC President Beeman Fisher of Fort Worth will deliver the keynote address in each city.

Salary Cut ---By Request

Bill Norwood, who is yardman and general official in charge of keeping the court-house grounds green and attractive, had his salary cut from $275 to $200 per month Monday.

It was at his own request. He asked that the reduction be made, pointing out that his doctor had said he could not engage in overly difficult jobs in hot weather — like fighting the big power mower over the lawn. He also pointed out that the reduction would help him with his Social Security benefits and the savings between his old salary and new would allow for hiring extra help to do the heavy work in hot weather.

The County Commissioners Court granted his request, which Norwood said he had made before Christmas.

Knott Clubbers Have Workshop

Members of the Knott 4-H Club met Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McClain for a lamb workshop. Lambs were made ready for showing at the Sands Livestock Show, which will be held on Feb. 25. County agents Herb Helbig and Don Brandenberger assisted the group of clubbers and parents.

Members making plans to attend the show are Lawrence Long, Mike McClain, Dero Shaw, Johnny Peugh, Kelly and Kayla Gaskins, and Linda and Larry Shaw.

Mrs. Mashburn's Condition Poor

Mrs. Erlene Mashburn, 48, was listed as being in "poor" condition at the Cowper Clinic-Hospital today and Mrs. Bonnie Kemp Heckler, 25, was reported as "unchanged" at the Howard County Hospital Foundation.

Both women were injured in a two-car crash Sunday which took the lives of their husbands. Three other persons injured in the same accident, Mrs. Myrtle Sikes, 68; Pamela Sikes, 8; and Sandra Sikes, 15, are all listed as being in good condition at the Cowper Clinic-Hospital.

Rescue Program

A program on rescue breathing highlighted the Monday afternoon meeting of the Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y Clubs at the YMCA. The program was presented by Conard Miller.

Dawson Livestock Shows Scheduled

Some 200 boys and girls from Lamesa to Ackerly will exhibit some 300 barrows, 250 lambs and 40 steers in the Dawson County Livestock Show, scheduled March 10-12 in the fair barns at Lamesa.

Lee Roy Colgan, Dawson County Agricultural agent, said that all livestock must report in by no later than 6 p.m. March 10. The show is sponsored by the Dawson County Fair and Livestock Association and the agricultural committee of the Lamesa chamber of commerce.

Other community livestock shows are scheduled beginning Wednesday. All 4-H and FFA members are eligible to compete.

The annual Klondike Community Livestock Show will be held Wednesday at the Klondike School. Judging will begin at 1 p.m. and there will be classes for barrows, commercial steers and fat steers.

Teeners Stone L.A. Policemen

HARBOR CITY, Calif. (AP) — A milling mob of teenagers hurled flaming Molotov cocktails and rocks at 25 Los Angeles police officers for more than an hour Monday night before they could be dispersed, officers said.

Police said the crowd — estimated at 150 — had gathered at the Harbor City Youth Opportunities Center to watch two girls in a hair-pulling fight.

The first officers on the scene were harassed when they tried to arrest the girls.

They called for assistance and violence broke out as 10 other patrol units arrived.

One Molotov cocktail broke into flames in front of a squad car but caused no major damage.

Police arrested six youths. No major injuries were reported.

Maiming Case Youth Freed

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Ernie Bovio of Galveston was released from the Denton County jail Monday after serving 45 days on charges of maiming a fellow student, Michael Portman, of North Texas State University.

He was sentenced Jan. 7 for his part in the Oct. 5 attack that cost Portman his left eye.

Portman is from Dallas. Robert Glenn of McKinney and Byron McClellan of Gatesville also were charged. Glenn was sentenced to three months. McClellan is awaiting trial.

The bidding: West North East South 1 ♠ Pass Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♠ 2 ♥ 2 ♠ 4 ♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠. A well-conceived bidding campaign by South led to a four heart contract that proved impregnable—despite the impressive array of high cards held by his opponent. West opened the bidding properly with one club. North and East passed. South had a sound opening himself and, though he was well-heeled in clubs, he was reluctant to sell out so cheaply to the opposition. A take-out double with a void in spades did not appear to be attractive, for unpleasant complications might develop should partner respond enthusiastically in that suit. South reluctantly settled for a simple overcall of one heart. West competed with one spade for, despite the 18 high card points, his holding had lost much of its lustre when East was unable to keep the bidding open. North raised his partner to two hearts and East competed by bidding two spades. This was not a daring action inasmuch as his previous pass had announced that he had less than six points. South was willing to gamble out a game on the basis of North's voluntary raise and he proceeded directly to four hearts. West wisely restrained the impulsive to double, for the aggressive tone of the bidding convinced him that the opposition had highly distributional holdings—and some of his high cards might be ruffed away. West opened the king of spades and South trumped with the deuce of hearts. A diamond was led toward the jack and West put up the queen. He shifted to the jack of hearts and declarer won in his hand with the queen in order to put thru the king of diamonds. West covered with the ace and North ruffed. A spade was trumped in the closed hand, the ten of diamonds was cashed as North discarded a club, and the six of diamonds was ruffed in dummy. South trumped a spade with the ace of hearts, played the ace of clubs, and ruffed a club with dummy's eight of hearts for his ninth trick. The king of hearts was cashed to score the game and South cheerfully conceded the last two tricks to the opposition.

B52s Bomb Ahead Of Advancing Yanks In Viet

SAIGON South Viet Nam (AP)—Thousands of American fighting men hunted the Viet Cong on two fronts today after B52 superfortresses bombed only a few miles ahead of them to crumble Communist defenses.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division 35 Viet Cong dead and evidence of considerably more Red casualties after moving into a Communist triangle 10 to 12 miles south of Bong Son in the coastal plains 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

At times the eight-engine Air Force bombers from Guam dropped their 500- and 750-pound bombs only two to three miles in front of the advancing cavalymen. U.S. spokesmen said the air cavalry killed another 20 Viet Cong Monday raising the division's total of Communist dead since it began operations in the ricefields on the South China Sea coast Jan. 25 to a total of 1,130.

In the jungles 35 miles northwest of Saigon, thousands of U.S. infantrymen began Operation Mastiff in an attempt to cripple Viet Cong forces operating on the capital's doorstep. Like the air cavalymen, the 1st Infantry Division combed the thick forests after the area had been softened up by B52s.

Although the six or seven war-hardened Viet Cong regiments in the area, perhaps 8,400 men, offered only token resistance, American officers said the operation could erupt into one of the major actions of the war. Two guerrillas were reported killed as the infantrymen of the "Big Red One" poured into the area Monday by helicopter, armored car and truck.

ATTACK BARRACKS U.S. Air Force and Navy planes continued the air war against North Viet Nam, striking barracks near the old French fortress of Dien Bien Phu, storage areas, approaches to bridges and roads in the panhandle between Vinh and the 17th Parallel. U.S. officials said poor weather prevented a firm assessment of damage. On the ground, the Viet Cong struck back by ambushing two South Vietnamese convoys in the past 24 hours on Route 1, the main north-south highway.

A platoon of government militiamen took heavy casualties when the Viet Cong lured eight South Vietnamese vehicles into a trap near Thien Giao 100 miles northeast of Saigon. A government spokesman said four companies of Viet Cong allowed the convoy and three government companies to get through Red positions along several miles of road before they struck.

As the fighting raged over 11 miles of road, other guerrillas struck the Thien Giao district headquarters defended by 180 militiamen, but with the aid of air strikes the troops fought off the attack. An army spokesman said 196 Viet Cong were killed in the fighting along the road and around the headquarters.

About 300 Viet Cong ambushed another convoy of about 100 vehicles north of Quang Ngai, 30 miles northeast of Saigon but only three vehicles were

Explosion Between Sukarno, Military May Jolt Indonesia

SINGAPORE (AP)—Indonesian President Sukarno's ouster of his army strongman, Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, could throw off new violence in Indonesia, diplomatic sources said today.

It could lead to "an explosion" between the regular army and some forces loyal to Sukarno, the diplomats said.

Sukarno announced in a broadcast Monday that he had fired Nasution as defense minister but did not clarify whether he had also removed him as armed forces chief.

The two titles had been combined. Sukarno said the joint post has been abolished.

Nasution led the army in crushing the Communist-led coup against Sukarno last Oct. 1 and has been responsible for the purge of the Indonesian Communist party since then.

His removal was seen by diplomats here as a last-ditch attempt by the 64-year-old president and his lieutenants to break the tightening hold of the armed forces over the nation's affairs.

Sukarno has been trying to restore the balancing act he maintained between the Communist party and the armed forces before the coup attempt. He reluctantly went along with the armed forces' anti-

Communist drive after the coup which left an estimated 80,000 to 150,000 persons dead in its wake.

Some sources said Sukarno may have decided to move against Nasution because he feared the military tribunal now inquiring into the coup attempt would have implicated some of Sukarno's top lieutenants, particularly Foreign Minister Subandrio, and perhaps even Sukarno himself.

The tribunal Monday night sentenced to death the first Communist leader to come before it after convicting him of leading the coup. He is Njono, 38, a pro-Peking member of the party's Central Committee. He has 30 days to appeal to Sukarno against the sentence and said he would do so.

During the trial which lasted more than a week, Njono testified that the Communists attempted the revolt because they believed a group of generals was trying to seize power. The generals have denied this.

Little is known of Sukarno's replacement for Nasution in the Defense Ministry post. He is Maj. Gen. Haji Sarbini, who until his appointment served as veterans minister.

Informed sources in Singapore are unsure of what military support Sarbini could drum up for Sukarno in the event of a showdown with Nasution and the army.

AFL-CIO Battles Wage Guideline

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The AFL-CIO drafts further argument today against a White House proposal to limit wage increases, while Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz tries to patch holes in the Johnson administration's alliance with organized labor.

Wirtz is staying an extra day to talk with officials of the big labor federation, who Monday rejected his pleas to heed President Johnson's wage guidelines.

Wirtz reportedly found deeper discontent among the labor chiefs than he had bargained for. "I think he got the message," said one member of the AFL-CIO Executive Council which held several hours of talks with Wirtz behind closed doors.

The federation's Economic Council today begins drafting a report which is expected to bolster opposition to any federal plan to restrict wage demands without also controlling increases in prices and profits.

The report, informed sources said, also will argue that the nation's strong economy can afford both the guns of its war reported damaged. South Viet-Cong were killed. Half the con-name fighter planes went to Chu Lai, while the aid of the supply caravan, the other vehicles returned to and spokesmen said six Viet Quang Ngai.

School System Stands To Lose $30,000 In Aid

Among 240 Texas school districts to feel the brunt of a proposed cut in "impacted areas" education aid funds will be the Big Spring Independent School District, at an estimated loss of $30,000 for this year's program.

Superintendent Sam Anderson said he was gravely concerned over the federal government's proposal to curtail the "impacted areas" funds would amount to a loss of $13,915,181 for the school districts involved.

Under the "impacted areas" program, the federal government contributes to local districts, in lieu of taxes on federal property, funds to cover part of the costs imposed on those districts near federal installations because they are charged with educating many children from federally-connected families, children who would not otherwise be in the area. In Big Spring's case, the federal installation is Webb Air Force Base.

Tower said that some 25,000 Texas students would suffer if the proposed cut went into effect.

He feels that the stock to be entered in the Houston show is comparable in quality with the animals shown at earlier shows. The local youngsters have had a successful year so far—winning one grand championship at a major show and the grand championship of the junior division at a second.

Clubbers Going To Houston With Quality Stock

Howard County 4-H Club members will take nine select steers, one heifer and 10 lambs to the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, Don Brandenberger, assistant county farm agent, said today.

He said the local entries will leave for Houston Sunday.

Steers are to be shown by Dolores Lankford, Maxwell and Mark Barr, Robbie Haney and Gary McNew.

Terrye Soechting is to show a Hereford heifer.

The 10 lambs to be shown are entered by Terrye Soechting, Toby Soechting, Dixie Coleman, Neil Bryson, Mike McClain, James Crenshaw, Robert Crenshaw and Dale Crenshaw.

We learned something from the big boys. We're not above borrowing a good idea when we see one. The idea of a station wagon with the virtues of a bus was too good to resist. Which is why the Volkswagen Station Wagon has so much in common with other buses. The driver is way up front, so he can see where he's going. The engine is in back, out of the way. There are windows all around (21) including the skylight kind on top. The seats are chair-high. And you can even have an aisle to step to the rear. The Volkswagen Station Wagon has a bit less headroom than a real bus, but it has more doors (5 in all) and a sunroof that slides back for lots of air and lots of view. There's so much room inside the VW, you'll think you're driving the real thing. But not when you park, the VW Wagon is only 9 inches longer than the VW Sedan. Lately, we've spotted a few other bus-type station wagons on the scene. So maybe things have worked out evenly after all. The big boys learned something from us. A Devotional For The Day

Neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. (Romans 8:38-39)

Guidelines In Crisis

Presidential guidelines of 3.2 per cent for wage-price increases is under withering fire, and some hint as to the outcome may be had after this week. The AFL-CIO convention is under way in Miami, and Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz is to make an appeal for adherence to the administration's guidelines.

Odds are that his pleas will fall on unsympathetic if not deaf ears. Organized labor is chaffing under successive rebuffs to repeal Section 14-B, which permits states to have right-to-work laws, and it is bridling under lack of pressure on behalf of new and progressive minimum wage laws. These are the hard political facts which will bear a lot of weight, although a more logical and righteous tool might be the fact that labor is being asked to hold to a fixed level of return in the face of record corporate profits.

The government's position is that if business and labor will exercise restraints, increased profits will be drained off proportionately in higher tax revenues. In the process, inflation will be restrained and the small gains will be real, whereas larger ones might be more than washed out by inflation.

A construction trades agreement in New Jersey has been forged along the lines of 17.7 per cent increase in wages. This is tied up closely with massive highway projects. Columnist Arthur Krock notes that "unless the administration avails itself of this new opportunity to make the effective intervention (by withholding work or contracts) the crumbling dike against ruinous inflation will be swept away." Again, the odds are against intervention although the steel and aluminum cases set precedent.

Park Deserves Support

The Texas delegation in Congress should stick together in obtaining for this state all the federal recreation and conservation projects that it can. This state's long-range parks and recreation plan, soon to be published in preparation for federal-aid applications, will draw heavily on this state's private and public resources and should be supplemented by federal assistance wherever possible.

Representation in Congress from all other regions of the state, should support the West Texas effort to get Congress' authorization for a Guadalupe Mountains National Park, near El Paso. That majestic and pristine scenic area should be permanently preserved for the enjoyment and inspiration of future generations of Texans and all Americans.

To a degree, of course, the various regions of this vast and varied state are competitive with one another for the tourist trade, both vacationing Texans and out-of-state visitors. However, we believe that the more attractive the state as a whole can be made for tourists, the greater will be the benefit to each area in the state that is naturally endowed for tourist promotion.

The task is to make the entire nation, as well as foreign countries, conscious of Texas as a desirable vacation land. And the more varied its attractions can be made, the more likely that will be.

Keep Your Head Down Or Stick It Up?

WASHINGTON—At the "liberal" table in the House of Representatives dining room at the Capitol you can hear two diametrically opposed views of the politics of the Viet Nam war. The advice from hard-boiled House veterans such as Wayne Hayes (D., Ohio) is, "Keep your head down, don't get tangled up in the row over what to do in Viet Nam if you want to come through the '66 election."

OTHER DEMOCRATS challenge this view. They believe they have a duty in all conscience to speak out. They have called for a continued pause in the bombing, for sterner efforts to negotiate. They have done this as the Republicans, with few exceptions, have followed the tactic of cautious silence in the belief that Democratic split is bound to help them in the Congressional election this fall.

Certainly no one could have foreseen six months ago that the massive Democratic majorities in Senate and House would be so riven by an issue with such deep emotional overtones. What the consequences will be not only for '66 but for the long-term future of the party and for 1968 is at this stage the great unanswered question.

WHILE IT MAY NOT be subject to poll-taking measurement there can be little doubt of the loss the Johnson Administration has suffered. It comes from academic, church and other groups with a deep concern over Viet Nam. It comes, too, from those who voted against Barry Goldwater in 1964 but without very much enthusiasm for Lyndon Johnson.

They are relatively few in number.

Billy Graham

"Don't you find that some people seem to have only heartache in their lives? This seems so unfair to me."

There is a spiritual law which we cannot escape: there can be no crown unless first there is a cross. No victory can come to those who experience no conflict. We tip our hat to Mickey Mantle because, though physically handicapped with bones that break easily, he comes through in the pinch and slams the ball over the fence.

True, it seems that some suffer more than others. But God knows our capacity, and will "not allow us to be tempted above that we are able to bear."

No one escapes problems, pain and suffering. We all have it in one form or another. It is in the furnace of affliction that strong souls are forged—and the hotter the fire the harder the steel. But in all life's unpleasant experiences, we have the knowledge as did the Hebrew children, that another "like unto the Son of God" is in the furnace with us. And God has added for our encouragement: "If we suffer with Him we shall also reign with Him." That is comfort enough for most of us.

Is LBJ Another 'Puritan In Babylon'?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calvin Coolidge and Lyndon B. Johnson would seem to have little in common, except that both reached the White House by the vice-presidential route.

There may be another common bond, however, between the pale, laconic Yankee and the ruddy, talkative Texan. Perhaps both can be regarded as "Puritans in Babylon."

When William Allen White, the famed Kansas editor of a few decades back, wrote a Coolidge biography he titled it "A Puritan in Babylon." Indeed, a Coolidge in the White House contrasted sharply with the uninhibited goings-on of the roaring 20s.

FEW OBSERVERS think of the earthy Johnson as puritanical — but they may be misreading the man. One associate who has been close to Johnson for many years insists the chief executive can be fully understood only when some of his more striking personality traits are related to the moralistic "Bible belt" background of his youth.

Take Johnson's vacation habits, as an example. Almost all presidents have welcomed vacations, taking time off from work at hunting and fishing lodges and seaside retreats where they have made scant pretension of conducting official business. Johnson is different.

ONE CERTAIN way for a newsman to rouse Johnson's displeasure is to describe a presidential weekend in Texas as a holiday. Johnson even rebels at the often-used "work-and-play" designation for these periodic sojourns.

With Johnson, it seems, it must always be a matter of work, work, and more work. "The President believes it's sinful to have fun," said the associate who views him as a Puritan. This man speaks with conviction and, as noted, from long and first-hand observation of the President.

According to his argument,

Johnson is incapable of enjoying pure relaxation — of accepting idleness. This source says the President has genuine pangs of conscience if he decides he has been enjoying himself in an indolent way.

THUS, IT IS said, Johnson shuns the lodges and resorts that attracted other presidents. If he travels to places like Walki Beach or Palm Springs, Calif., it must be for a business purpose.

NEW YORK (AP) — Every clean, red-blooded American boy today has the chance to grow up to be either president of the United States or a newspaper columnist.

Lyndon B. Johnson took the easy way. I took the hard way.

HE HAS to shepherd the political destiny of 195 million people, but look at all the help he gets — some of which he wants. I have only one destiny to guide, but my only weapon is a typewriter ribbon.

What Lyndon writes winds up on the library shelves. What I write winds up on kitchen shelves — usually with a jar of peanut butter on it. Or it is used to wrap a moist fish.

Yes, I think in all honesty I'd have to advise any boy to aim for the presidency rather than settle for a job as a columnist. It has certain undeniable rewards which a fellow can't overlook.

FOR EXAMPLE, today is George Washington's 234th birthday, and many department stores are celebrating his contributions to America by holding bargain sales in his honor. Just because he whipped King George III, you can buy a $12 pair of pants for $3 less.

On the other hand, Monday was my 55th birthday, and if

On one fairly recent occasion — but before becoming president — Johnson went vacationing in Acapulco, Mexico. After 24 hours of idleness in the sun, according to one who was there, he could stand it no longer and had to start "doing something."

Some people around the White House vow that, sooner or later, they will persuade the President to take a real vacation — perhaps in a locale like the Virgin Islands. Many who know Johnson doubt this ever will happen.

Columnist Has His Rewards

But despite my strikeouts as a presidential adviser, newspaper work has given me some interesting chores and creepy moments. Such as —

Visiting 60-odd countries and having a front-line seat at three wars.

Climbing the Eiffel Tower in Paris and the great Pyramid of Cheops near Cairo.

Attending the hanging of three murderers.

Spending one enchanting evening on the town with film actress Shirley MacLaine.

Wrestling a lame lioness.

Around The Rim

A Bigger Man

Poor old George Washington! Over the years, he has become so idealized that his true character has been almost completely obscured.

He has been built into a demigod so tall and so awesome that it has been forgotten that he was really just a man and had all of the normal weaknesses, courage and strengths of any ordinary fellow.

ONE OF HIS earlier biographers set out to make him almost a saint before the echo of his funeral oration had ceased to sound. This is the character who created (out of the whole cloth) the story of George's inability to tell a lie as illustrated by the ridiculous story of the cherry tree and the other tall tales of how utterly superior he was.

George was about as you and I. First and foremost, George was tremendously vain. He was not a handsome fellow, and he was sensitive about it. Smallpox had left his face badly pitted. His complexion was ruddy and he had rather thin light colored sandy hair. Further, he had lost all of his teeth as a young man and had adopted the Indian system of using oaken plugs whittled in tooth-shape and plugged into the sockets. This caused his upper and lower lip to extend outward as shown clearly in the Stewart portraits.

HE WAS TALL and somewhat awkward in appearance. Although he was physically a pretty solid citizen, his legs were long, thin and knobby — a situation which caused him a lot of embarrassment. He was so sensitive of how he looked without his specially tailored garments he would permit no one, not even a slave, to be in his bedroom when he put on his clothes.

He was not a highly emotional man, rather he was stolid. He kept a diary of his daily doings, and in times when the most exciting of events were happening about him and even involving him, he made such earth shaking entries in his record as "Went hunting down by the river—coached a fox" or "caught a man fishing on my side of the river, and made him leave."

INCIDENTALLY that quotation about the fox was entered in the diary on the day that a fellow Virginian named Patrick Henry had made a rousing and probably treasonable speech in the House of Burgesses calling the king a tyrant, demanding that the colonies break away from the ties with England. Furthermore, George was seated in that house that day and heard Mr. Henry's tirade.

IF YOU GO through the records, you'll find George a very practical-minded bullheaded character. He was first of all a farmer, and he liked to regard himself a cut of two above most of his fellows. He wasn't much of an orator, and although he commanded the American forces and, he was no great shakes as a military leader.

All in all, again, George was a very solid citizen who realized that certain things had to be done if certain other things were to be eliminated. He recognized, I am sure, that if he involved himself in trying to bring about the changes he felt were needed he might wind up dangling from a British gallows.

THE FACT that he went ahead, stubbornly struggled through the whole period and clung, unchanging, to his idea of what was needed and what had to be done makes him a bigger man than the sugary pictures painted of him as a superman.

I think he was a good guy, with plenty of guts and the willingness to take a chance on something he thought was best for him and his fellow colonists. —SAM BLACKBURN

Translating Policy To The Troops

WASHINGTON—The Honolulu meeting was a turning point for the war in Viet Nam. President Johnson and Premier Ky spelled out the goals of our commitment there, and these are now being transmitted to our soldiers, sailors, Marines, and airmen. But the indoctrination is going rather slow and the sergeants are having a hard time explaining the new policy.

"ALL RIGHT, you meat heads. We are now going to discuss why we're fighting in Viet Nam. Rosenbloom, why do you think we're fighting in Viet Nam?"

"To beat the hell out of the blankety-blank Viet Cong, Sergeant."

"No, Rosenbloom, you're wrong. It's to bring social and economic reforms to the freedom-loving people of South Viet Nam. Now, Petrosanni, how will we achieve this goal?"

"By killing every blankety-blank Viet Cong we can find."

"I'm surprised at you, Petrosanni. We will achieve this goal by winning over the natives through public works, education, and good deeds. You had your hand up, Kelly?"

"WHAT DO WE do with these mortars and flamethrowers?"

"We use them to show the South Vietnamese people that we will not be pushed out by the North Vietnamese. Every time we fire our flamethrowers, we are renewing our pledge of fight oppression, poverty, and disease in Southeast Asia. We can only win this war by getting the confidence of the populace. Now, how do we do this?"

"By bombing the hell out of the towns and villages where the Viet Cong are supposed to be hanging out."

"Exactly, but we must explain to the people why we're bombing their towns and villages. How do we explain it, McPherson?"

"Beats me."

"WE EXPLAIN it by explaining the domino theory. We tell the people that, if South Viet Nam falls, then Thailand will fall and then Malaysia and pretty soon all of Southeast Asia will be under the domination of the Communists. What is it, O'Toole?"

"You mean the people won't mind their homes being bombed and their rice fields being burned if we explain it to them afterwards?"

"Right. Once you put people in on the big picture, then their troubles will seem infinitesimal in comparison. Zwacki, you had your hand up."

"SARGE, I would like to know how you tell the good Vietnamese from the bad Vietnamese."

"It's very simple. When you see a native, you yell, 'Nuts to Ho Chi Minh.' If he flinches at you, you know he's with the Viet Cong." (Copyright, 1966, Publishers Newspaper Syndicate)

Wide-Open Wyoming Politics

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Wyoming politics '66 give a pretty good line on national politics for this year.

That rugged stronghold in the Rockies, wrapped in snow and mystery when I touched there briefly on a recent trip, contains just about all the factors that will be active in the campaigns between spring and autumn.

IN WYOMING, we find something of the transplanted War of the Roses between the House of Johnson and the House of Kennedy. We find, as in the Southern States, disillusioned Democrats on the point of turning Republican. We find, as in Virginia and Massachusetts, a fight developing for the Senate seat of Milward Simpson (R), who has voluntarily retired.

We find in Wyoming, as elsewhere, the sneaky issue of peace-mongering, personal indignation over federalized intrusions, and some indestructible individualism which may be stronger than partisanship. Finally, as in 16 other states, we find an excellent Republican governor who has added measurably to his party prestige.

START WITH the name of Teno Roncallo (D), the state's lone Congressman. This upstart, hot-blooded politico state chairman (1958-60), played a brief but memorable role in the Democratic convention at Los Angeles. There he was responsible for the vote that gave the nomination to John F. Kennedy. The late president rewarded Roncallo with a $20,000 sinecure on the International Joint Commission of the U.S. and Canada.

Roncallo, a hot candidate for the Senate and a Kennedy family loyalist, seems sure to bump heads for the nomination with another personality-packed individualist, Mike Manatos of the White House staff. Mike's position marks him as a Johnsonian, although it was President Kennedy who brought him to the inner circle. Last summer Mike returned to Wyoming after nearly 30 years to test the climate. Some say he had stayed away too long. Roncallo vs. Manatos would be a personal grudge fight.

TENO RONCALLO, a Silver Star winner in World War II, was a ferocious Fascist-fighter, and he roars out frequently against the enemies we are fighting today. Somehow he has attracted the endorsement and the campaign donations of the Council for A Livable World, which is building up an accommodationist party in Congress. Teno tells me he can take its money but still vote his conscience.

CAN A DEMOCRAT be beaten for the Senate if so, the victor would be former Democratic Congressman John McIntyre, now a Wyoming supreme court judge, who has recently built up a conservative image and may turn Republican for the big race. Another Democrat — turned — Republican, and a vivid individualist, is Dr. Cecil Shaw, who won a statewide election to become superintendent of schools. Dr. Shaw dislikes federal intervention so much that, although a liberal in racial matters, he at first refused to sign the non-discrimination pledge required under the Civil Rights Act of 1964. "Wyoming's been non-discriminatory since 1890," Shaw snapped at his critics.

THE SCRAMBLE for Roncallo's House seat, will feature some attractive personalities. One may be Mrs. Thyra Thomson (R), Wyoming secretary of state, a vivacious brunette and widow of Keith Thomson who died in 1960 as senator-elect. Mrs. Thomson hasn't decided whether to shoot for the House or Senate. A probable House prospect is Al Christensen (D), who won his legislative election at 21 and is now executive director for COPE in Wyoming. William Nation (D), former mayor of Cheyenne, a colorful young liberal, has a yen to move from the legislature to Congress. All these aspirants will have to beat the veteran ex-Representative, William Henry Harrison (R), who lost his seat in the Goldwater debacle of '64.

Then there's Gov. Clifford Hansen (R), who is very likely to succeed himself, and the best bet for any office he seeks. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Dr. J. M. Woodall Given ABWA Award

Dr. J. M. Woodall was lauded for dedication to his profession and concern for his fellow men during a banquet Monday evening when the Cactus Chapter of the American Business Women's Association named him its "Boss of the Year."

Dr. Woodall's gold trophy was presented by Mrs. C. O. Trantham, and the award received enthusiastic applause from the 41 members and guests attending the dinner at the Wagon Wheel Restaurant.

Dr. Woodall finished medical school at Baylor in 1936 and interned for two years at Harper Hospital in Detroit, Mich. He served as resident physician at Louisville, Ky., for one year, and spent a year in residency at Oklahoma City. Dr. and Mrs. Woodall moved to Big Spring in July of 1940 and he has been a pediatrician at Malone and Hogan Foundation Hospital since that time. He is affiliated with the Texas Pediatrics Society, Southern Medical Association and American Medical Association. He has been an officer of the Permian Basin Medical Association and is a past president of the Howard County Tuberculosis Association. Dr. Woodall served on the local polio advisory board and was medical director of the Sabin polio vaccine program. Dr. and Mrs. Woodall attend the First Presbyterian Church where he is a deacon. Mrs. A. C. Moore, president, welcomed the guests, and the invocation was worded by Miss Eunice Hickson. Following the introduction of guests, Jeff Brown, Boss of the Year for 1965, spoke briefly in explaining what the honor had meant to him.

AAUW Sees Film, Hears Talk On Jury System

"Justice, a Matter of Fact" was the film shown at the Monday evening meeting of the American Association of University Women in the Community Room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association building.

David Carmichael, Midland, was guest speaker and narrated the film. A discussion of the duties and privileges of jury service followed.

Refreshments were served from a table centered with Uncle Sam's hat. Hostesses were Mrs. Leo Gee, Mrs. Cass Hill, Miss Gladys Burnham, Mrs. Dan Shockey, Mrs. John Smith, Mrs. W. R. Talmadge and Miss Helen Ewing.

Mrs. Gary Sims presided, and committees for the March 3 conference were announced.

New members welcomed were Mrs. Jack Dunn, Miss Arrah Phillips, Mrs. Richard Rossmiller and Mrs. Dale Nowicki.

A March 26 Coke party is being planned for high school girls who will be provided with information on educational scholarships and financial aids. Miss Helen Willard is the project chairman.

Representatives to the cultural affairs committee of the chamber of commerce were Mrs. Gee, Mrs. Sims and Mrs. O. T. Brewster.

The closing date for listings in the directory of child care facilities sponsored by the AAUW is March 1. The community service project will include church, private and non-profit centers that regularly care for four or more children.

The directory will give details of the size, personnel, fees and special features of each listing. Those interested in being included are asked to call Mrs. James Blotner, AM 3-6364.

A right freeze sight in a store window Monday was the bikini that could be seen hazily through a layer of ice that covered the glass.

Sunday smacked of spring and people went about with pretty spring suits and hats, the latter anchored down against the wind. . . . but the wind wasn't so coolish. It was a delightful day to call on MRS. JOHN PORTER who was being honored by her children with a reception at the LEK PORTER home. The 97-year-old woman had a wonderful time seeing oldtimers but none very close to her age. The table centerpiece was especially appropriate. . . . A justice scale with a baby depicting the year of Mrs. Porter's birth, 1869, on one side and, on the other, an elderly woman in the year 1966. The flowers about the home were pale pink carnations with deep lavender accents.

Central electric heating may be either an electric furnace which can utilize the same ducts used for electric central air conditioning, or an electric heat pump which both heats and cools your home automatically.

Electric baseboard units take up very little living space and blend easily into your room decor. Heating is by radiation and convection, controlled by individual room thermostats for personalized comfort.

Radiant ceiling heating is completely invisible. Specially insulated wires are concealed under plaster or wallboard and radiate heat evenly throughout the room. Each room's temperature is individually controlled.

Electric wall panel heaters, with heating elements concealed behind a decorative grille, provide radiant heat with natural or fan-forced convection. Also used as supplementary heat in baths or dressing rooms.

U.N. Action For Truce Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.N. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg says he is confident the U.N. Security Council will be helpful in promoting a settlement of the Viet Nam war.

After meeting with President Johnson for more than three hours Monday, Goldberg told newsmen the Viet Nam situation calls for patience and fortitude.

He said the United States never held the view that the United Nations was the appropriate agency to conduct actual peace negotiations.

Instead, he said the decision to take the Viet Nam case before the Security Council was to interest member nations in promoting an honorable peace.

DEBATE ADJOURNED

Some member nations are working in that direction although debate in the Security Council has been adjourned for two and a half weeks, he added.

Asked for comment on a suggestion by Canada's external affairs minister, Paul Martin, that the Geneva Conference be reconvened on Viet Nam, Goldberg replied that the United States shares that view.

While the ambassador was meeting with the President at the White House, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was meeting with newsmen on Capitol Hill. The Arkansas Democrat said his committee, which has provided the battleground for the televised Viet Nam policy argument, will meet Wednesday to discuss whether to call in some China experts.

Fulbright said committee members agreed they would welcome testimony from Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey after his return from his Asian trip. Humphrey has said he would not testify in a public session but has not ruled out a closed meeting.

Like Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Fulbright believes the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Communist Viet Cong, should be represented in any peace negotiations and should not be excluded from the postwar Saigon government. Meanwhile, Secretary of State Dean Rusk tried his hand at cooling off four of the Senate critics of Johnson's Viet Nam policy.

D-Maine, told a New York City audience that "the application of unremitting pressure in a carefully measured response to the aggression of the enemy can hold the greatest support in the Senate."

And Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., told an Ashland, Ohio, audience he disagrees with those who think the United States should "stop, pause or hole up in Viet Nam."

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., professed to find some common ground in the positions of the President and his critics.

Federal Prisoners Free During Day To Hold Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prison gates swing open today for 300 federal convicts. The prisoners are to be back at nightfall — But meanwhile they are part of the nation's labor force.

By the end of the year, the U.S. Bureau of Prisons predicts, some 1,200 federal convicts will be part-time prisoners — confined at night but working by day, preparing for the moment they leave "the custody of the attorney general" for what they hope is the last time.

Prisons Director Myrl E. Alexander says the response to the work release program — from both within and outside the prison system — has been dramatic and encouraging since President Johnson signed the Prisoner Rehabilitation Act last Sept. 10.

Through cooperation by industry, labor unions, prison officials and the inmates themselves, Alexander says, the program has been richly successful.

SOME WOMEN

Today, 300 prisoners — including a handful of women — are taking part in the program. About 40 have been "graduated;" they have completed their sentences and are steadily employed at the jobs they assumed while still prisoners.

Only three prisoners have attempted to flee. All were found within hours, and the employer of one asked prison officials to return the man to work because of his ability. (He was turned down but was sent another prisoner.)

Prisoners are working at virtually every kind of skilled and semiskilled tasks. Some are dental technicians. Others are carpenters, electricians, mechanics, butchers and short-order cooks.

"The jobs are pretty much related to the training these persons have been getting in the institutions," L. J. Gengler, who is administering the work release program from Washington, said in an interview. "Some are even taking brush-up training courses outside the institutions to better prepare them for the work they'll be doing."

Gengler credits three factors for the success of the program: — From wardens down to probation officers and guards," he said, "The enthusiasm demonstrated by prison personnel has been largely responsible for making this thing go."

GOOD SUPPORT

— "We've had overwhelming support from the communities themselves. Unions, employers, citizens, mayor and newspapers, have been on our side. Most institutions even have citizens' advisory committees cooperating with the prison on work release. They know that in no case will we compromise the welfare or well-being of the citizens of a community."

(The work release program is closed to men convicted of violent crimes or those associated with organized crime rings.)

— "The reaction of the inmates themselves has been the real key to our success," Gengler went on. "You can sense the satisfaction among these men, realizing someone cares. You can feel their relief when they go out among free people and are treated like just another worker."

"Who knows? — this may be the beginning of the end of the 'ex-con' stigma. These guys have always said, 'If I could only get out and prove myself.' Well, now they can."

Custody Of Oswald Guns Goes To Government

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge Joe Estes awarded permanent custody of presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald's weapons to the government Monday.

The weapons are a 6.5mm foreign rifle used to kill President John F. Kennedy and a pistol with which Dallas policeman J. D. Tippit was slain as he tried to arrest Oswald.

John J. King, Denver oil man, claimed ownership of the weapons. King said he paid Marina Oswald Porter, widow of the assassin, $10,000 for the rifle and pistol, and promised to pay her $35,000 more.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Tim Timmins argued successfully that Oswald ordered the guns by mail under the name of "A. Hidel" and thus never became the legal owner because this violated the Federal Firearms Act.

Officials have said they want the weapons placed in the National Archives in Washington.

College Funds At $8 Million

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — A capital fund raising campaign has reached $8 million at Abilene Christian College in the first year of a 3-year drive.

Almost a million dollars in new gifts Monday had pushed the total to more than three-quarters of the $10.4 million sought.

The campaign is called the Design for Development and is part of a 10-year plan of expansion totaling $25.7 million.

Mayor Collapses At Council Meet

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) — Mayor Merton F. Duvall suffered a fatal heart attack during a meeting of the Gaithersburg City Council Monday night.

Duvall, 61, who had been mayor 12 years, toppled over at a table while talking with city officials. About 50 persons were in the City Hall chamber for the council meeting.

Tugs Collide, Fire Set Off

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two tugs collided near the Algiers lock on the Mississippi River Monday night, setting off a spectacular flash fire aboard a gasoline barge.

The Coast Guard said no injuries were reported.

A spokesman said the Midwest City collided with the tug Cecelia R, which had a train of three barges, including one loaded with fuel.

In the confusion, the Midwest City was beached to keep it from sinking and another vessel, the Barlod 108, was caught in the flash fire but managed to get out with minor damage.

The Coast Guard said the Cecelia R moved its flaming barge to a refinery to be pumped out.

BUICK 1,000,000 SWEEPSTAKES

WIN 2332

Manufacturer's suggested retail price for Special V-6, 3-dr. coupe. Price includes Federal Excise Tax and suggested dealer delivery and handling charges.

Play the nation's newest numbers game. Check your car's registration number. It could be worth $2332 cash to you. ($2332 also happens to be the price of a new Buick Special*. Isn't that a coincidence?)

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS: Check that car registration of yours. If the first symbols of your vehicle identification number on it match up with one of those listed at the right, you might have won yourself $2,332 cash. No slogan to invent, no puzzle to solve. To find out for sure if you won, just hop down to your nearest Buick dealer's. He's got a list of complete winning numbers posted. (No, you don't have to own a Buick to have a winning number.) If your complete vehicle identification number appears on his list—you're in the money.

Residents of Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska may, if they prefer, send in a postcard to R. L. Fink and Co., P. O. Box 314, Omaha, Nebraska 68101 and receive the weekly list of winning numbers by mail. For competition with their own vehicle identification number, an official entry form will be included. Sweepstakes limited to persons over 21 living in the continental U.S. Entries must be postmarked before midnight, Thursday, March 31, 1966. Not valid in Florida or states where prohibited by law.
