Johnson Staff Moves Don't Clarify Much

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson's addition of Robert E. Kintner and Walt W. Rostow to his personal staff has done little to clarify who does what at the White House.

Some observers thought they had a few of the pieces sorted out after Johnson announced Thursday the appointment as special assistant of Rostow, now an assistant secretary of state, and Kintner, former president and board chairman of the National Broadcasting Co.

BUNDY SPOT

Many suspected Rostow would take over the White House spot vacated by McGeorge Bundy, who departed a month ago for the Ford Foundation. And there was suspicion that Kintner, one-

Poll Tax Dilemma Remains

The United States Supreme Court's all. The Legislature itself can repeal, 6-3 ruling in the Virginia case means as a tax, only the statutory 75 cents of the poll tax as a requirement for voting is killed in all states, including Texas. The language of Associate Justice Douglas' majority opinion leaves little doubt that further litigation on that point is fruitless

Nevertheless, Texas is left with quite a knotty problem. Justice Douglas also emphasized that "we say nothing to impair its (the poll tax's) validity so long as it is not made a condition to the exercise of the franchise." That means that there is no objection in the U.S. Constitution (14th Amendment) to a state levying a poll tax for revenue purposes only.

Next Nov. 8, Texans will vote on HJR 13, a state constitutional amendment to repeal the poll tax as a requirement for voting. If approved, that will only reiterate the U.S. Supreme Court's decision. HJR 13 removes the poll tax as a voting requirement but does not repeal it as a rev-

If HJR 13 is approved next November, Texas will still have a revenueonly poll tax of $1.75 on every adult inhabitant (21 to 60). And that's not as a tax, only the statutory 75 cents of the poll tax. The Texas Constituion requires a $1 poll tax for the school revenue; that could be repealed only by a constitutional amendment submitted to the people by some future Legislature.

The poll tax as a revenue measure, which goes back to 14th Century England, is now generally considered uncollectible as a practical administrative matter. So, if Texans vote for HJR 13 next November they will still be stuck with an uncollectible tax on the books, plus a state constitutional requirement for annual voter registration (included in HJR 13) which is far from ideal.

This raises the question: Would it be better to vote against HJR 13, and then get the Legislature to repeal the statutory poll tax and submit a constitutional amendment repealing the constitutional revenue-only poll tax, while leaving it to the discretion of future Legislatures what kind of voter registration system this state should finally have? The present, court-ordered registration system will work until all that could be done.

Without war there would be none of this nonsense combat preparation, and it is almost self-evident to the beholder that America is going to be a better place because of the youths who go through this mill and eventually return to civilian life.

MORALITY, clean-living and selfdiscipline are not so much preached as they are recommended in round manly language. Major General K. L. Reaves, a handsome West Pointer and model of masculinity, told an incoming class that was fresh from the

God has entrusted you with life and you must go on living. It is not wrong for you to entertain fond memories of the happy hours you spent to-gether, but if your grief is such as to hamper a full life, then you become a sort of psychic suicide. By far the great majority of these 18-year-olds have never related their lives to anything-not to God, country or mother. Suddenly, they find themselves with life-and-death responsibility for themselves as well as their comrades. It would make a believer of the most callous cynic to hear the well-trained, if untried, soldiers, four months in uniform and ready for shipment to Viet Nam, rationalizing their unpleasant and potentially fatal assignment.

THEY DON'T particularly hate the enemy, but they trust their own country. They know that they wouldn't be sent to fight in an unnecessary and unjust war. They are sure that they are better men for their training, and that they will do better in civilian life if and when they return. There is deep gratitude and no resentment for the rough training they have experienced.

SENIOR OFFICERS at Polk say that they see here a rising protest against the impeachment which has befallen the generation that was born within the last 20 years. Since the turn of the year, voluntary enlistments for the combat-bound Army are close to 70 per cent. The "bug-out" rate of trainees who are assigned to Viet Nam is no more than 2 per cent. In an experiment to provide a last chance for stockade prisoners who had committed crimes to avoid combat, two out of ten went back to their units and did well. General Reaves doesn't regard it as a successful pay-off, but it shows that some of the worst trainees are not beyond redemption. Around The Rim The Novel Novel

Have just started reading "In Cold he must have by definition written Blood" by Truman Capote, which is exactly nothing. a pretty good job of reporting on some Kansas murders back in 1960.

BUT, ALAS, them there intellectuals have decided that what Mr. Capote has written is a "non-fiction novel." Mr. Capote agrees with them, saying such things as he has written a book in which the author does not inject himself.

BOOK REVIEWERS (and at least one movie critic off on a tangent) have been waxing hot in debate over the book, some saying the work is "a new concept" and others saying it could have been written by a computer, and on and on. Just what the dickens ia "non-fiction novel," anyway?

TURNING TO the moth-eaten dictionary we use here one finds that "novel" is defined as two different things: "New; not formerly known; unusual, strange, a novelty or innovation"; and: "A fictitious prose tale of considerable length, in which characters and actions professing to represent those of real life are portrayed in a plot."

The first definition is of an adjective. Therefore, when them intellectuals say a "non-fiction novel" is what Mr. Capote has wrought, they must mean the latter definition, the noun "novel."

BUT IT SAYS right there in Webster that a novel is fiction pretending to be fact. So, if Mr. Capote has in fact created a non-fictional novel

Which leads us back to the strange syndrome everybody in the intellectual field has been flapping jaws about - things, events, which are, but aren't. A novel which isn't a novel (like a hard-top convertible, which is, but isn't) is to me, anyway, simply not a novel at all.

NOW, MR. CAPOTE has gathered all the facts about everybody involved in the murders, and he uses them. He doesn't inject himself into the work, he says. But every time he expresses opinion through the medium of juxtaposition of scenes or through the mouths of friends of the persons involved, by putting in what he wants. leaving out that which he doesn't want, he is injecting himself.

Evidently, this contrast between factual reporting and the entry of personalities and opinion is what makes "In Cold Blood" a non-fiction novel. All I can say is, "What's new?" for everything that has ever been put on paper has contained all these ingredients, to one degree or another.

ANY LITERARY work you may choose contains opinion, and some fact. So what it seems to boil down to is that Mr. Capote has labored five years to produce the longest byline murder story since the Lindberg kidnapping and is laboring under the delusion that he has created a new form of literature. You once got this off page one of a Metro daily, only they were shorter.

David Lawrence Cost Of Living And The Elections

WASHINGTON-The "high cost of living" sometimes transcends everything else as a political issue. It was of Congress and gave the Democrats a majority in the House of Representatives, though two years before It might seem natural to con- ed five men, including Rostow, the Republicans had won the presidential contest by a landslide vote.

This week the Department of Labor revealed that the cost of living has taken a big jump-in fact, the largest of any February in eight years.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S economists are hopeful that conditions will improve and prices will be held down. ROSTOW WILL have the title else is taking the place of Bundy had also helped the administracost of living rises substantially, the pressure for wage increases starts growing and there is eventually a trend toward higher and higher prices all along the line.

Food prices are the ones that now are attracting attention as they move higher. Many other items, howeversuch as doctor and hospital services, mortgage interest rates, home maintenance and repairs, clothing, gasoline, heating fuel, and housekeeping services-are costing more than be-

THE DOLLAR IS, of course, continuing to diminish in buying power. With the February figures included, it costs $11.16 to buy now what $10 purchased in goods and services about eight

Not only is the non-unionized worker affected adversely but also the employes in unionized industries. Nor are the effects of the higher costs of Department took in the whole would gross $2 million from all created by Thucydides when he living confined to the lower income

Thus, a factory worker who earned $7,000 last year and got a $300 increase this year finds himself spending $288 of his raise not only for higher living costs but for increased Social Security taxes, higher state and local taxes, as well as an additional $49 in his federal income tax payment. This leaves him only $12, or less than 25 cents a week, in the increase of his income. A WHITE-COLLAR worker who earned $10,000 last year and got a raise of $400 this year winds up with only 83 cents additional a week after paying the same items of expense, including higher living costs. A junior executive whose salary was $15,000 last year, with a raise of $600 this year, winds up with about $2.25 more a week after taking care of the above expenses.

While some of these groups of citizens are not being hurt too much by the rise in the cost of living, they are facing increased costs in other waysas, for instance, in the higher cost of college education and other items that confront a family through the year.

IT IS REALLY the low-income family that is being affected most by the higher cost of food and other necessities, and this could mean a sizable protest vote in the November elections. In every election it's not a simple issue or the attitude of any one group but the collective reaction of all groups that changes the previous

It's too early, of course, to weigh the part that any issue may play in the forthcoming elections, but certainly there are signs of increasing discontent on the economic side which is not alleviated by the latest disclosure that the cost of living rose substantially for the month of February.

Look, Murrow responded. I've learned one thing around here and that is that you can't fire anybody unless you catch them commit-ting murder in broad daylight in Lafayette Square.

> THE REMARK underscores the troubles in the State Department over the firing - it amounted to that of Abba P. Schwartz as Administrator of Security and Consular Affairs. Civil Service, as Murrow discovered when he stepped into the midst of a complex bureaucracy, has many virtues but it also puts many handicaps on an executive seeking efficiency and-or harmony in the operation of a government department.

> With the reverberations of the Schwartz affair the State Department currently appears to be a collection of warring tribes. All the bitter complaints that the late President John F. Kennedy voiced from time to time about the department seem borne out by the disarray reflected in the changes and countercharges coming out of Foggy Bottom.

> MISS FRANCES G. Knight, the efficient head of the Passport Division, is a civil servant with such advanced status that she believed she could establish her own policy on Americans traveling abroad. Schwartz, who was named to his office by President Kennedy, thought that Miss Knight was exceeding her authority and he moved to have her transferred. But the lady in the passport bureau, theoretically under Schwartz's jurisdiction, proved to have such influential subterranean connections with the Senate's Internal Security subcommittee that she stayed and Schwartz departed.

WASHINGTON - Shortly after the has contributed the word creep, which partment. Webster gives the slang meaning of the noun creep as (a) a flophouse sneak thief, (b) an obnoxious or insignificant person. In Miss Knight's usage it may be taken to mean also one who conspires in a furtive and underhanded manner. As Miss Knight must know, this is a term her opponents have applied tothe head of the Passport Division and her allies in the struggle over travel

> IN SHORT, the whole business is creepy and one of the creepiest aspects involves still another character in the security tangle. Charged with unauthorized acts in furnishing confidential department documents to the Internal Security subcommittee of the Senate, Otto Otepka was removed from his post as chief security evaluator. But, if only because of his dedicated partisans in the Senate committee, he could not be fired, Assigned a make-work job and deprived of that ultimate status of authority, a secretary, Otepka has caused officials from the Secretary of State on down endless hours of dissension and

Actually, of course, this is only a very small part of state's vast operation. But if anything could demonstrate the need for a reorganization of the department this is it. That hope has beckoned like a mirage across the bureaucratic desert for at least

CURELLY overburdened as he is, no one could expect Secretary Rusk to undertake the kind of thorough reorganization that is long overdue. The Secretary barely keeps his head above the constantly rising demands on his time and effort. MOUNT VERNON, Tex. (AP)

—The Texas water plan carries the state to the year 2020, Gov. John Connally told the Northeast Texas Water Development Conference.

Gov. Connally said the cost of the reservoir construction alone

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me why so many men ignore their wives while they are out in public? Mine is the worst when it comes to this. If people didn't know we were married to each other, they would never believe it to see us out together. He acts like he doesn't even know me. He never speaks to me or looks at me, and if he has to tell me something he will sneak tell me something he will sneak

Church Group Starts Exodus To New Area

DALLAS (AP) - Exodus New Jersey, a project which will see some 300 Church of Christ members from seven states move to Somerset County, N.J., got underway Thursday when the first of the group left Dallas.

Purpose of the project, church officials said, is to aid in church expansion in an area considered weak in membership.

Since the church began recruiting members to make the exodus about six months ago, 114 families, involving 300 persons, have signed up.

82 LEAVE The group which left Dallas Thursday numbered 82. They will have two-day job interviews at Somerville, N.J., and return to Dallas Sunday.

The Golf Course Road Church of Christ in Midland, Tex., organized the project. C. Larry Roberts of Midland, who will serve as minister of the New Jersey church, said the success of the pilot project of a series of exodus movements at Bay Shore, L.I., N.Y., about three years ago was such that the group now has three other projects slated following the New Jersey venture.

COMING MOVES Other areas scheduled for future movements by the end of 1967 are Stamford, Conn., Ro-chester, N.Y.; and Burlington,
