Abusing A Good Thing

One device to attract industry by the financing of plants through tax exempt municipal bonds may soon come under the prying eye of Congress. In the end, the whole concept of tax exemption for municipal and school bond issues may be overhauled.

The Wall Street Journal reported that nearly $1 billion in tax exempt bonds for attracting industry were sold last year. The total for this year is expected to go much higher, primarily because of higher commercial interest rates and the relatively low interest rates for municipal, tax, - exempt bonds,

The device is a simple one. A town or a county sells bonds to build a factory for a new industry. The industry signs a non-cancellable lease they mature - 25 years is a popular retirement period. The savings can be substantial. In one case a $60 million bond issue is expected to save a company $9 million by maturity over current commercial interest rates on money or the sale of stock.

But this is not in keeping with the spirit of tax exemption for municipal bonds. The intent was to keep interest rates low for capital improvements for schools and municipalities. The savings in interest rates for those tax exempt bonds were designed to relieve a part of the burden borne by local taxpayers.

School and city officials can only hope that in the process of trying to plug this hole, Congress will not throw out the baby with the bath water, just because the principleand agrees to pay off the bonds as of tax exemption was abused by some

Still At Home

Bids have been opened a second time on the T-41A contract training program as an auxiliary function to Webb AFB. Nothing was changed materially among the low bidders except to readjust for minimum wage standards fixed by the government.

The apparent low bidder is still Bell Flying Service, Inc. of Pensacola, Fla. The gross price now is $219,500 instead of the previous figure of $169,482. In all liklihood, the contract will be awarded.

Bell announced previously that its proposals were based on use of the Howard County Airport, as is the case with the present operator, Central American Airways of Louisville, Ky. This will mean retention of the operation for the next year, and it amounts to holding on to a small industry. Aside from the economic factor, we are pleased that it is kept in proximity to Webb AFB, for this means a minimum of lost time and expense in transport of students to and from the small plane site, and it keeps the training program in a compact package.

Free-For-All In California

LOS ANGELES - In the high, wide and handsome days of the Old West a favorite diversion was the free-forall when a dozen bruisers climbed into the ring and slugged it out until only one survivor was left in an up-

That is what is happening in the political arena in California today, with the governorship and a dozen other statewide offices up for grabs in November.

HERE WHERE political lines are drawn with the indifference of an abstract painter it is every man for himself and the John Birch Society take the hindmost. With seven candidates for governor and nearly as many for lieutenant governor even the practitioners of palmistry and the art of reading tea leaves, where these specialties have a devoted following, refrain from prophecy.

Los Angeles' entry in the free-forall is Mayor Sam Yorty. Yorty, who began his career as a flaming liberal, qualifies today as a flaming opportunist. His swashbuckling style is well adapted to this spectucular City of the Angels sprawling out over an incredible range of real estate.

OTHER THAN Yorty and his dedicated admirers it is hard to find anyone who believes he can defeat Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown in the Democratic primary June 7. But he can cut Brown up and perhaps so badly that the governor will be defeated for re-election to a third term.

If the form sheet in the governor's

Billy Graham Does the Bible tell us that the Lord is building a better world? I feel that the world is deteriorating instead of improving. V. R. There is a little evidence in the Scriptures that the world will get better until the kinguom of God is brought in. This is an idea held during the early part of the century but has now been largely discarded. There is no doubt that true Christians contribute to making a better moral and spiritual atmosphere wherever they are. Christ taught that we are "salt" and "light." He taught that we Christians have a leavening influence in any community. Yet He also taught that wheat and tares will grow together until the end of time (Matt. 13:24-30). Notice, He indicated that they would "grow"-therefore we have today a strange paradox. There is more "good" in the world than ever before, but there is also an intensification of evil. Both good and evil are "growing" together. Alongside the growth of the church will be growing an increasingly noticeable kind of ungodly opposition. This condition is described in II Timothy 3:1 where it says that "In the last days men are going to be lovers of themselves, of money, boastful, haughty, railers, disobedient, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection." All of these characteristics seem to be coming to the forefront at the present time.

For the Christian this should be a time of rededication, study of the Scriptures, faithfulness to the church race seems hard to follow, by comparison with that for lieutenant governor it is simplicity itself. The incumbent is Glenn M. Anderson, who has Brown's backing.

AT THIS POINT Thomas W. Braat Oceanside, whom Brown had named president of the state board of education, entered the race. A friend of the Kennedys who has shown great courage in standing up to the Birchites, Braden let it be known that he hoped to fill what he considered a political vacuum

Then out of the blue came what in television parlance is called the mystery guest. Lloyd Hand, whom President Johnson had named Chief of Protocol, jumped in as a candidate for lieutenant governor in the Democratic primary just before the final filing date. A Texan by origin, Hand had lived in Los Angeles for several years as director of a large mortuary owned by Texans. He is said to have the generous backing of fellow Texans with financial interests here.

PART OF THE mystery is whether the President encouraged him to get. into the act and, if so, why. Californians for the most speak kindly of Governor Brown. They say, well, he's been a good governor or even a very good governor. They talk about the huge engineering project transferring surplus water from the north to the parched south, about the extraordinary expansion of higher education with campuses throughout the state. But they say this almost as though it were an apology for Brown's homely lack of a presence - his television personality which has all the fervor of weak tea.

IN SHORT, in terms of sheer fun and games Brown adds little to the free-for-all. It happens, of course, that this richest and most populous of the states has problems that press with frightening urgency - whether peoples of diverse races and origins can live peacefully in crowded cities that will not yield to political fun and games. Yet nearly always they stubbornly deny some minor detail which, even if admitted, would in no way alter the gravity of their offense.

Party Talk In Washington

WASHINGTON-In his speech last week, President Johnson said that every time you go to a party these days in Washington all people talk about is inflation.

I wasn't aware this was the main topic in the capital, but after reading the President's speech, I boned up on inflation so I wouldn't look like a fool the next time I went to a party. Last week, as luck would have it, I was invited to a large dinner gathering of very distinguished people.

DURING THE cocktail hour I wandered up to a group of men talking in hushed tones "I see where the economy is dangerously perking to fever heat," I

They ignored me completely. One man said, "Well if you think the skirts are short in your department ers and go on to make finer you ought to come over to my office. It's enough to make a man climb right up the wall."

"I won't allow my secretary to sit down anymore when she's taking dictation," another man said. "Can't say I blame you."

I TRIED TO GET back into the conversation. "The President said we can't allow the last five years of unprecedented prosperity to be endangered and swallowed up by inflation." I received several hostile looks. One of the men said, "It isn't just the daytime that is driving me crazy. You go out in the evening and all you see is large holes in the dresses covered with black net. I mean, what is a man supposed to do?"

"I believe the only thing to do is become a sex maniac. After all you have to keep up with the times.'

"Why don't you save that kind of talk for your locker room friends?" "All right," I said, and I went over

How To Live With A Giant

WASHINGTON-At the final sitting while Morgenthau is for appeaseof the Fulbright Committee on China Policy, there was the device of putting two witnesses of opposing views in the arena of the Caucus Room.

The method turned out to be the more useful because it did not bring about a head-butting of two extremists, but rather became an exercise in academic discrimination concerning Red China. There is a lot to ponder on when we examine both the agreements and disagreements of Professors Robert Scalapino (Hawk, U. of California) and Hans Morgenthau (Dove, U. of Chicago).

BOTH AGREED, for instance, that the Continental Chinese regard their country as the heart and center of the universe, and themselves as a master race surrounded by alien "barbarians" who are destined to pay tribute. Scalapino calls this Chinese state of mind an "imperial complex, an ingrained sense of cultural superiority the attitude of condescension toward other peoples." Morgenthau calls it "ethnocentricism"; that is, racism.

SCALAPINO and Morgenthau are of deractive, taking thyroid can bling us is to note all the symp- many other conditions which can put him in proper metabolic balone mind that Red China is the greatance so he can make some progest Asian power and is destined to be a great world power. CONTRARIWISE, Morganthau finds that wherever we have strengthened countries near China (South Korea and South Viet Nam) there has been fighting, whereas wherever China's neighbors have remained feeble and passive (Cambodia), there has been peace. He sees the present status of formosa as an inevitable "casus belii" between the U.S.A. and Red Chi-

Both scholars feel there is "logic" to the argument that it is better to fight China now than later, but neither is for a preventive war and both doubt we could ever "conquer" China. Scalapino believes we are conducting a "holding operation" in Asia and that China in time may become more powerful and yet more responsible.

MORGENTHAU doesn't think a 'holding operation" is necessary, for he regards the "domino theory" as a myth. He sees China's strength as political and cultural rather than military, but in any event beyond American power to control.

In short, the hawkishness of Scalapino is not jingoism, but the dovishness of Morgenthau is very close to defeatism. One man bids us hold our ground, the other bids us to give way 74 million bushels of wheat have been exported from the Port of Houston since last June 1, for the largest exodus of wheat from the port since the Houston Public Grain Elevator opened 40 years ago.

Kenneth Roden, acting manager of the public grain elevator, said Monday the increased U. S. wheat shipments wheat exported so far this fiscal year is more than 18 million bushels above the 56,286,513 exported during fiscal 1904-65,

Before the fiscal year ends May 31, he said, at least 10 million more bushels of the grain are expected to move from the port.

Most of the wheat exported during this fiscal year has been shipped to India, Pakistan, the United Arab Republic and Yu-goslavia, Roden said.

Does she know something you don't ... about Frost's bread?

Could be. Like many women, she knows nutritious foods, such as milk, are good for dieters. And she heard Frost's Bread is, too. She wanted to know for sure.

She discovered, ounce for ounce, Frost's Bread has twice the protein of milk. 60% of the calcium. 13% less fat. More iron. And more B vitamins than milk.

So she saw that Frost's Bread, like milk, gives dieters many nutrients, but not too many calories (two slices average even less than a glass of milk).

She now makes sure her own and her family's meals include Frost's Bread and milk for health and vigor. Shouldn't your family enjoy Frost's and milk, too?

Now In Police Doghouse

Once Duke could hold his head up high. The 3-year-old Shepard was trained to be a sentry dog and act very mean. He did all right as a tough guy for a while, guarding an ice cream truck parking lot in Detroit. But he really got him-self in the doghouse when he crawled through a hole in the fence and joined a group of boys, 10 to 15 years old, at play. Soon they taught him a new game. Duke was one of a gang of seven that police caught stealing pop from the loading dock of a beverage company. His accomplices were the boys. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Clay's sins seem to be (1) that he really can fight, (2) that he is even more verbal than his attackers, (3) that he is consistently true to his beliefs and (4) that he won't kow-tow to the Establishment and press. What the sportswriters want from a Negro heavyweight champ, obviously, is the prototype; a shuffling, shambling moron who blows his money, winds up broke and be-comes an object of pity.
