Artificial Heart Placed In Man

HOUSTON (AP) — An artificial heart placed in a patient identified as Marcel L. DeRudder, 65, of Westville, Ill., began functioning today. DeRudder, unemployed because of his heart condition, entered Methodist Hospital in Houston April 14.

HOUSTON (AP) — A team of surgeons began placing a plastic artificial heart in the chest of a patient at the Texas Medical Center today.

The new device, backed by a $4.5 million research project, was designed to do part or all of the work of a human heart until the patient's heart is repaired and recovers sufficiently to function on its own.

It is an improved version of an assistant heart that kept a dying man alive in 1963.

The Methodist Hospital team was headed by Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, Baylor University Medical School heart surgeon.

He had said earlier that such an operation could be performed in two to three hours.

The patient was a man. The last of the equipment needed was moved into the operating room April 19. Reporters were advised the operation was imminent and DeBakey and officials from Baylor, Methodist and Rice University conducted a two-hour, off the record briefing.

"We are waiting on the best-conditioned patient who needs the artificial heart," DeBakey said. "The team is ready."

HELD UP It was explained that publication of the fact that the operation was imminent might upset some patients awaiting heart surgery at Methodist. It was also explained that the name of the first patient to receive the new artificial heart could not be released without approval of the patient or the patient's next of kin.

DeBakey said April 19 that the first patient could be selected prior to the start of surgery but he indicated his decision to use the artificial heart probably would not be made until after an operation was under way.

"It will be used if a situation develops that we cannot correct without the use of the artificial heart," he said. "We don't have a patient lined up at this point."

RELEASE PICTURES Detailed plans were made to release still and motion pictures of the operation as soon as possible. Special messengers stood by to rush film to processing laboratories.

Closed-circuit television was available to transmit pictures of the surgery to a news conference room but was ruled out because of space limitations in the operating room. A heart surgeon in a theater area overlooking the operating room was assigned, however, to relay progress of the surgery to newsmen through use of a special microphone hookup.

For today's operation, the total heart was not replaced. A pump was installed to substitute for the left ventricle which normally does most of the heart pumping work.

SUSTAINED RELIEF With such an implantation, surgeons now feel they have a device which offers temporary but sustained relief in order to give a damaged heart time to heal.

DeBakey has said future objectives include permanent assistance for or replacement of ventricle chambers and total replacement of the heart.

The artificial heart implanted today draws blood out of the left atrium — a chamber above the ventricle — and pumps it into the aorta, the main artery which feeds all trunk line arteries.

friendly countries, possibly including South Viet Nam.

The Pentagon's moves to reclaim this ordinance and equipment were disclosed in a letter from John T. McNaughton, assistant secretary of defense, to Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo.

A copy of McNaughton's letter, dated March 31, became available after Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday, denying once again reports of bomb shortages.

In his letter, McNaughton said "the guiding principle on reacquisition is, of course, that we will pay no more for the material than was paid to us when it was sold."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department is considering new transactions to buy back and otherwise reacquire about 500,000 bombs and artillery shells previously sold or given to West Germany, it was learned today.

The shells and bombs would go into U.S. stocks and presumably would be available for the war in Viet Nam.

At the same time, the Pentagon is thinking of getting back about 5 million rounds of small arms ammunition, 35,000 small weapons and about 1,500 radios from the Germans.

This material would be redistributed under the military aid program to other allied and

Viet Expels U.S. Pacifists After March

HONG KONG (AP) — Six American pacifists expelled today from South Viet Nam said on arrival in Hong Kong that they would try to go to Red China and North Viet Nam "in the search for peace."

The leader of the group, the Rev. A. J. Muste, 81, of New York, said their previous attempts to get to Peking or Hanoi had not been successful "but now that we're in Hong Kong we will see if we can make any personal contacts here that might lead to visiting those two capitals."

RETURN HOME If that fails, the minister said, he and four others in the group will return to the United States. A sixth member, Karl Meyer of Chicago, said he would try to get a visa for Cambodia "to see what the situation is there."

Saigon police pulled the six pacifists kicking and protesting onto the plane for Hong Kong after blocking their attempt to demonstrate in front of the U.S. Embassy in the South Vietnamese capital. The Americans threw out antiwar pamphlets as they were hauled up the ramp to the plane.

ROUGHED UP Police roughed up several newsmen, seized the cameras of two television photographers and briefly detained a third cameraman during the wild exit scene at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport.

Five of the pacifists were brought to the airport in a police van five hours before they took off after police prevented their staging a one-hour antiwar vigil at the U.S. Embassy.

Carrying placards and pamphlets, the Presbyterian minister and four other members of the U.S. Committee for Non-Violent Action walked nearly six blocks through the streets of Saigon at 7 a.m. Around the corner from the embassy they ran into the line of policemen.

TO SIDEWALK The pacifists slumped to the sidewalk when police told them to get into the van. Bradford Lyttle, 38, of Voluntary, Conn., protested: "Five Americans want to go to the American Embassy in Saigon. That is perfectly reasonable."

The police carried the Rev. Mr. Muste, Lyttle, William Davidson, 39, a physics professor at Haverford (Pa.) College, and Barbara Deming, 48, of Wellfleet, Mass., to the van.

The fifth demonstrator, Charlotte Thurber, 22, of Greenwich, Conn., walked of her own accord.

Weather Violent As State Shivers

Winds near hurricane strength swept Padre Island, flooding rains hit Raymondville and hail damaged crops elsewhere in Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley today.

The violent weather accompanied a fast-moving spring cold front which sent temperatures plunging below freezing in the Panhandle and caused record lows elsewhere. Floodwaters lapped into patients' rooms at the 28-bed Raymondville Memorial Hospital. Orderlies barricaded the entrance with sandbags and police blocked off the flooded street.

HAIL DAMAGE Nursing Director Mrs. Jo Simpson said the sandbags were filled before dawn, and that at midmorning they still barred the entrance because rain still was falling. Hail reportedly wiped out cotton and grain crops in a four-mile-wide strip east of Lyford near Stillman tract, in Willacy County.

A power failure, lasting two hours at some points hit Raymondville at the height of the downpour, which measured more than six inches at rain gauges near the city.

Willacy County agent Jim Sellman said Clark's Orchard, four miles east of Raymondville, was hardest hit in his jurisdiction because of rain pounding cotton.

74 MPH WINDS A Weather Bureau wind gauge on the Intracoastal Canal read 74 miles per hour in gusts after dawn today, personnel at a bait stand on Padre Island reported.

At Padre Island National Sea Shore Park the wind speed reading was 71 miles per hour, but park workers said there was no known wind damage.

Texas' low temperature was 29 at Dalhart, and the 39 at Dallas and 34 at Wichita Falls were record lows for the date.

COOLER TEMPERATURES Cooler temperatures were promised today for East and South Central Texas, but rises were expected in Northwest Texas in the afternoon and over North Central Texas by evening.

C. W. Perkins said the 6-inch rain gauge was overflowing at his farm two miles west of Raymondville. Gilbert Jansen, of near Los Coyotes, reported more than 5 inches and Jess Robertson, north of Raymondville, reported 5.5 inches.

Reapportion Amendment Defeated For 2nd Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen refuses to concede the fight is over despite a second defeat of his proposed constitutional amendment on legislative reapportionment.

"Wait and see," the Senate Republican leader advised newsmen who wanted to know whether he would try to revive his proposed amendment at this session of Congress.

On a showdown roll call Wednesday, 55 senators voted for the amendment and 38 against it. This was seven short of the two-thirds majority required for approval of a constitutional amendment.

FOES JUBILANT Foes of Dirksen's proposal jubilantly hailed the outcome as marking the end of the road for the attempt to undo the Supreme Court's one man, one vote ruling on apportionment of state legislatures.

And Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who supported the amendment, said it looked to him as though its rejection for a second time was the end.

In August of last year a similar amendment offered by Dirksen also fell seven votes short of a two-thirds majority. The vote then was 57 for and 39 against.

COURT RULING In a 6-3 decision in June, 1964, the Supreme Court ruled that the seats in both houses of state legislatures must be apportioned on a basis of substantial equality of population.

Dirksen's amendment would have permitted geography and political subdivisions, in addition to population, to be taken into account in the apportionment of one house if a majority of the voters agreed in a statewide referendum.

ROLL CALL The roll call showed 26 Democrats and 29 Republicans voting for the proposed amendment. Voting against it were 35 Democrats and three Republicans.

Some more big tests lie ahead when such measures as a minimum wage increase, the demonstration cities program, civil rights and the department of transportation come before the House.

And the administration is faced with the prospect of losing its working advantage unless it is able in November to re-elect most of the 47 Democrats swept in by the Johnson landslide in 1964 from GOP districts — plus the other 24 freshman Democrats.

Blast On India Train Kills 43

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Forty-three persons were killed and 127 others injured Wednesday night in the second explosion within three months aboard a train in a rebellious area of eastern India, the Indian government radio announced.

The broadcast said the blast shattered several compartments of the Tinsukia-New Jalpaiguri train as it stood in Lumding railway station. Medical teams and investigators were rushed to the isolated town deep in the wild Naga hills about 350 miles northeast of Calcutta.

The cause of the disaster was not yet known, the radio said. But rebel Naga tribesmen in Assam State have been waging a guerrilla campaign for years against the central government's control.

The Nagas were blamed for two explosions aboard the Assam Mail Express on Feb. 16 in which 38 persons were killed.

Naga leaders recently conferred with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and pressed their case for establishment of a Naga state. She pronounced the talks satisfactory, but one Naga faction wants to fight rather than to negotiate and the rebellion has continued. The Indian government also has been plagued by rebellion of the Mizo tribesmen in the hills of southeast India, south of the Nagas between East Pakistan and Burma. They overran the towns of Aijal and Langleh last month and it took at least a brigade of Indian army troops and planes to push them out. Langleh is about 200 miles south of Lumding.

Vital Pass Target Of Air Attacks

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. Air Force jets renewed their assaults on the approach to North Viet Nam's strategic Mu Gia Pass after thousands of coolies laboring day and night reopened the landslide-clogged funnel to the Ho Chi Minh Trail, a U.S. spokesman reported today.

Only eight days ago eight-engine U.S. B52s dropped 700 tons of explosives on the winding mountain route on the Laotian frontier 230 miles south of Hanoi in the Strategic Air Command's first strike against North Viet Nam.

RED TRAFFIC The U.S. spokesman reported that smaller fighter-bombers were sent back to the pass Wednesday after reconnaissance showed that Communist labor battalions had gotten traffic moving again through the pass. He said some traffic was still moving on Route 15, which follows the pass into neighboring Laos and links up with south-bound infiltration routes.

The spokesman said Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs and F4C Phantoms tore into the highway at three locations leaving huge craters.

For the first time in days, Vietnamese troops were reported in a hard fight with the Communists. Elements of government airborne and Ranger battalions killed 20 Viet Cong and captured a large store of weapons when they jumped a red battalion eight miles northwest of Quang Ngai City, on the northern coast, U.S. officers reported.

OPERATIONS SLOWED With South Viet Nam's generals preoccupied with political problems, operations against the Viet Cong by government troops have fallen off considerably.

However, U.S. combat casualties continued at the usual level and South Vietnamese casualties rose again after dropping below those of the Americans for the first time in the war.

The U.S. military command announced that 89 Americans were killed, 635 wounded and five missing in action last week. Ninety-five Americans were killed, 501 wounded and four missing the week before.

CASUALTY TOTALS The new figures raised American dead to 2,594 and wounded to 15,883 in the Viet Nam war since January, 1961.

The Vietnamese command reported 141 of its troops were killed and 32 missing last week compared with 67 killed and 294 missing in the week of April 3-9. Wounded figures were not announced.

A Vietnamese spokesman said the higher government casualties came from "a very large number of small, scattered actions" rather than any major actions.

Government troops and police broke up a demonstration by about 1,000 students in the mountain city of Dalat, 140 miles northeast of Saigon, as agitation against Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime continued despite a promise by the Buddhist leadership to call off the protests.

Boys Found Alive In Sealed Boxcar

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Two Fayetteville, N.C., boys who had been missing from their homes since April 8 were found today, alive but hungry, in a sealed boxcar standing on a Milwaukee siding.

The boxcar was loaded with cases of empty beer bottles and authorities said the boys apparently had kept alive for nearly two weeks by drinking whatever few drops remained in each bottle.

TO HOSPITAL The two were identified as David Harvey, and William Waddell, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Waddell.

They were taken to County Emergency Hospital where a spokesman said they apparently would require no major medical treatment.

SINCE APRIL 9 Fayetteville Chief of Detectives J. Earl Melvin told newsmen that the boys had been reported missing April 9, a day after they went out bike riding together.

A Milwaukee Road yardmaster said the boxcar, insulated but not cooled, reached the yards April 18.

The car doors, sealed in the Fayetteville yards, were broken open this morning by workmen who were to remove the empty cases.

Weather Violent As State Shivers

By The Associated Press

Winds near hurricane strength swept Padre Island, flooding rains hit Raymondville and hail damaged crops elsewhere in Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley today.

The violent weather accompanied a fast-moving spring cold front which sent temperatures plunging below freezing in the Panhandle and caused record

lows elsewhere. Floodwaters lapped into patients' rooms at the 26-bed Raymondville Memorial Hospital. Orderlies barricaded the entrance with sandbags and police blocked off the flooded street.

HAIL DAMAGE Nursing Director Mrs. Jo Simpson said the sandbags were filled before dawn, and that at midmorning they still barred the entrance because rain still was falling.

Hail reportedly wiped out cotton and grain crops in a four-mile-wide strip east of Lyford near Stillman tract, in Willy County.

A power failure, lasting two hours at some points hit Raymondville at the height of the downpour, which measured more than six inches at rain gauges near the city.

Willy County agent Jim Sellman said Clark's Orchard, four miles east of Raymondville, was hardest hit in his jurisdiction because of rain pounding cotton.

74 MPH WINDS A Weather Bureau wind gauge on the Intracoastal Canal read 74 miles per hour in gusts after dawn today, personnel at a bait stand on Padre Island reported.

At Padre Island National Sea Shore Park the wind speed reading was 71 miles per hour, but park workers said there was no known wind damage.

Texas' low temperature was 29 at Dalhart, and the 39 at Dallas and 34 at Wichita Falls were record lows for the date.

COOLER TEMPERATURES Cooler temperatures were promised today for East and South Central Texas, but rises were expected in Northwest Texas in the afternoon and evening.

C. W. Perkins said the 6-inch rain gauge was overflowing at his farm two miles west of Raymondville. Gilbert Jansen, of near Los Coyotes, reported more than 5 inches and Jess Robertson, north of Raymondville, reported 5.5 inches.

Reapportionment Amended Defeated For 2nd Time

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Everett M. Dirksen refuses to concede the fight is over despite a second defeat of his proposed constitutional amendment on legislative reapportionment.

"Wait and see," the Senate Republican leader advised newsmen who wanted to know whether he would try to revive his proposed amendment at this session of Congress.

On a showdown roll call Wednesday, 55 senators voted for the amendment and 38 against it. This was seven short of the two-thirds majority required for approval of a constitutional amendment.

FOES JUBILANT Foes of Dirksen's proposal jubilantly hailed the outcome as marking the end of the road for the attempt to undo the Supreme Court's one man, one vote ruling on apportionment of state legislatures.

And Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who supported the amendment, said it looked to him as though its rejection for a second time was the end.

In August of last year a similar amendment offered by Dirksen also fell seven votes short of a two-thirds majority. The vote then was 57 for and 39 against.

COURT RULING In a 6-3 decision in June, 1964, the Supreme Court ruled that the seats in both houses of state legislatures must be apportioned on a basis of substantial equality of population.

Dirksen's amendment would have permitted geography and political subdivisions, in addition to population, to be taken into account in the apportionment of one house if a majority of the voters agreed in a state-wide referendum.

The roll call showed 26 Democrats and 29 Republicans voting for the proposed amendment. Voting against it were 35 Democrats and three Republicans.

Some more big tests lie ahead when such measures as a minimum wage increase, the demonstration cities program, civil rights and the department of transportation come before the House.

And the administration is faced with the prospect of losing its working advantage unless it is able in November to re-elect most of the 47 Democrats swept in by the Johnson landslide in 1964 from GOP districts - plus the other 24 freshman Democrats.

Blast On India Train Kills 43

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Forty-three persons were killed and 127 others injured Wednesday night in the second explosion within three months aboard a train in a rebellious area of eastern India, the Indian government radio announced.

The broadcast said the blast shattered several compartments of the Tinsukia-New Jalpaiguri train as it stood in Lumding railway station. Medical teams and investigators were rushed to the isolated town deep in the wild Naga hills about 350 miles northeast of Calcutta.

The cause of the disaster was not yet known, the radio said. But rebel Nagas tribesmen in Assam State have been waging a guerrilla campaign for years against the central government's control.

Boys Found Alive In Sealed Boxcar

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) - Two Fayetteville, N.C., boys who had been missing from their homes since April 8 were found today, alive but hungry, in a sealed boxcar standing on a Milwaukee siding.

The boxcar was loaded with cases of empty beer bottles and authorities said the boys apparently had kept alive for nearly two weeks by drinking whatever few drops remained in each bottle.

TO HOSPITAL The two were identified as David Harvey, and William Waddell, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Waddell.

They were taken to County Emergency Hospital where a spokesman said they apparently would require no major medical treatment.

SINCE APRIL 9 Fayetteville Chief of Detectives J. Earl Melvin told newsmen that the boys had been reported missing April 9, a day after they went out bike riding together.

A Milwaukee Road yardmaster said the boxcar, insulated but not cooled, reached the yards April 18.

The car doors, sealed in the Fayetteville yards, were broken open this morning by workmen who were to remove the empty cases.

Gromyko Due At Rome Talks

ROME (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was due in Rome today for talks with leaders of the Italian government that are expected to cover NATO, European security and Viet Nam. He may also meet Pope Paul VI.

Gromyko and Foreign Minister Amintore Fanfani scheduled their first meeting for tonight. They will confer again Friday and Gromyko is also scheduled to meet Premier Aldo Moro.

MEET POPE?

There were widespread reports that Gromyko would ask to meet Pope Paul VI, and the Vatican neither confirmed that a meeting might take place nor ruled it out.

It would be the first meeting of a Pope and a top Soviet government official. Pope John XXIII received then Premier Nikita Khrushchev's son-in-law, and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alexei Adzhubei, in 1963 when Adzhubei was editor of the government newspaper Izvestia.

The Italian Communist party newspaper, L'Unita reported from Moscow today that Gromyko would investigate the Italian government's attitude toward the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the war in Viet Nam.

GERMANY ISSUE
L'Unita said Gromyko would also discuss Germany's eastern border, proposals to denuclearize some areas in Europe and Soviet worries over an increasing role in NATO for West Germany.

Gromyko is expected to ask Fanfani to support the recent Soviet Communist party congress proposal for an all-European conference on European security problems.

Actor Doubts Oswald Role Hurt Image

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "A lot of my friends and advisers told me the role would be bad for my image," said young Tony Bill. "But since I didn't know what my image was, I couldn't have cared less."

The San Diego-born, Notre Dame-educated actor has just returned from England, where he played the title role in a BBC drama, "Lee Oswald — Assassin."

SHOW CRITICIZED

The play drew generally unfavorable reviews from the London critics. A few found some excitement in the re-creation of the events of that 1963 November. But the general consensus declared the show unsatisfying and muddled.

"I must say this is one occasion when I never agreed with the critics more," said Bill. "We rehearsed the show in a drill hall, the BBC having neglected to provide rehearsal stages in their new headquarters."

TAPE SHOW

"Then we went into the studio and taped the whole show as if it were a stage play, from beginning to end without a break. It's difficult to achieve much quality that way."

Yet Tony Bill came off well in the reviews: "Lent the character a considerable depth" (Times); "An icy triumph" (Express); "Excellent cast" (Manchester Guardian); "powerful performance" (Mirror); "Something to remember" (Evening News).

Such plaudits made the job worth it, said the actor. "Whenever an actor does a good job, it is bound to help his career."

"ANY CENTURY"

Even when he is portraying an arch-villain of the century? "Of any century," Bill corrected. "I don't believe any one man in history caused so much immediate and personal sorrow to as many people throughout the world as did Lee Harvey Oswald."

"Perhaps playing him wasn't good for my image, whatever that may be. But I think a lot of actors spend too much time worrying about their image and too little time trying to get roles."

Tonsillitis Still Leading

Tonsillitis again headed the list of ailments in Howard County last week, with 105 cases reported. Second was influenza, with 95 cases reported. The list is compiled weekly from area doctors and hospitals by the Howard County Health Unit.

Other ailments were, virus, 25; fifth disease, 20; diarrhoea, 15; measles, 12; bronchial pneumonia, five; gastroenteritis, four; chicken pox, four; upper respiratory, two; and pink eye, two.

Being Snake Bitten Isn't Too Bad

Brenda Cowley, 10, smiles happily from her hospital bed where she is recovering from a rattlesnake bite. Brenda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cowley, Forsan, was bitten on the left foot Saturday night. Prompt first aid action by Oscar Becker is credited with reducing her suffering materially. Brenda is the first snake bite victim of the 1966 spring season in Howard County. She is expected to be able to go home soon.

War Brings Ups, Downs To Stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — The Viet Nam war with its talk of tax increases and perhaps even wage-price controls has laid a hand on the stock market from time to time. So did the Korean conflict before it, but with a difference.

This time rumors of still larger military spending have sent prices surging ahead. Other rumors, especially of the peace variety, have caused temporary tailspins. Tax increases, and talk of more, have been a frequent bearish factor in the market. So have controls at present called guidelines — over wages and prices.

"BIGGER WAR"
Brokers recall that the effects were greater in the Korean conflict. For one thing, the war was much larger in relation to the nation's total output of goods and services.

Another was that taxes really went up. Above all, the excess profits tax clipped the net earnings potential of many corporations — and hence the appeal of their shares to stock traders.

And also, formal wage and price controls were in effect from December, 1950, to April, 1953, to hold down the inflation that might have inspired a rush to buy stocks.

STOCKS CLIMBED
Stock prices, despite many ups and downs, climbed for the most part during the Korean war. The Dow-Jones index of 30 industrial stocks was around 196 before the North Koreans invaded South Korea. By early 1953 the index had climbed to 293. When the truce was patched up, the Dow dropped off to 255.

Brokers say the big industrial production boom during the war — while factories strove to fill military orders and keep civilians supplied, too — gave the market most of its glow.

And brokers say that it was the higher taxes, especially the 25 per cent levy on profits in excess of former levels, that kept stock prices from soaring.

HAD EFFECT
Wage and price controls had an effect. But as far as corporate profits were concerned, the clamp down on wages pretty much offset the one on prices, by keeping factory costs in line.

Profits rose moderately despite controls and higher taxes, because of the increased volume of business of many companies. And the stock market responded to this. Prices spurred temporarily when wage-price controls were finally dropped. The big rise came from September, 1953, — when tax cuts were promised — to July, 1956, in a postwar consumer catchup boom and plant expansion.

Brokers note that there was a quite different attitude toward controls during the Korean War than toward the Korean War today. There was some grumbling about the affront to free enterprise. But the need for controls was generally accepted. There was little or no antiwar talk un-

Labor Pushes Steel Industry Nationalization

LONDON (AP)—Britain's Labor government put before Parliament today a massive program of legislation concentrating on industrial reform and topped by the nationalization of the steel industry.

The government program was outlined in a speech read by Queen Elizabeth II on her 40th birthday at the glittering televised ceremony formally opening the new Parliament.

Much of the program was made up of legislation introduced in the last Parliament — when Labor had a majority of only three votes — and then side-tracked for the election that gave Wilson a majority of 97 votes in the House of Commons.

Foreign policy was basically unchanged. No concessions were offered to the rebellious white minority regime in Rhodesia. Negotiation to end the war in Viet Nam was given as a basic British aim. Full support for the North Atlantic alliance was stressed.

There was a slight shift in emphasis on the Common Market, reflecting Wilson's position outlined during the election campaign. In addition to working for links between the Common Market and the European Free Trade Association, the government said it also "would be ready to enter the European Economic Community provided essential British and Commonwealth interests were safeguarded."

Mrs. Foresyth Returns To Courthouse Position

Mrs. Jerry W. (Jan) Foresyth, who for three years was with the Howard County tax office, is returning to the Howard County Courthouse.

Edgar Phillips, Howard County auditor, said she has accepted appointment as assistant county auditor. She will replace Mrs. Dorothy Stevens, who is resigning to make her home in Abilene.

Mrs. Foresyth has been working for the past three months with A. P. Kasch Co. She left the tax office to take the job with Kasch. Mrs. Foresyth's husband is a city fireman. They live at 3223 Cornell.

In her three years with the office of Mrs. Zarah LeFevre, county assessor-collector, Mrs. Foresyth was a operator for part of the time of the county computer. The work she will do in the county auditor's office will involve use of this machine to a considerable extent. She will report for duty May 2.

Mrs. Stevens is eager to leave the office as soon as possible. Her husband, who has been in Viet Nam for the past year, is to come home in June. He is to be stationed at Abilene and they will set up home there. While he has been overseas, Mrs. Stevens has made her home in Big Spring.

Phillips said that he was pleased to get the services of Mrs. Foresyth. He pointed out that her three years experience in the courthouse and her familiarity with the department and personnel will make her particularly valuable.

More Money Asked For City Recreation Program

Parks and Recreation Board members recommended to the city commission that that body find $1,200 to appropriate toward the budget of the citywide Summer Recreation Program Wednesday afternoon.

The recommendation came at the request of Joe Pickle and Curt Mullins, of the administrative agency of the program. Mullins is the executive secretary of the YMCA, and Pickle is chairman of the program.

Pickle said the city's present appropriation of $800 is short of the $1,800 appropriated last year.

"The United Fund has whittled down the appropriation for the program for several years, and the school board has made no appropriation increase this year," Pickle said.

"We are asking help for a program for boys and girls." He indicated that if additional help was not received, the program would be "bob-tailed" and probably eventually abandoned.

The board also agreed to the group's request that use of city swimming pools be incorporated into the program of the YMCA, which pays 10 cents per person at the end of the season. Mullins explained the nine-week program, this one entirely the "Y's".

Last year, the city increased its appropriation to the summer program to $1,800 because of the emergency financial situation. The additional $800 was taken out of the parks and recreation account. No request had been made until Wednesday, so none had been appropriated other than the $800.

In another move, the request of Jess Looney that permission be granted to the Optimists to build a Boy Scout hut on a piece of property allegedly owned by the city on Park Avenue, was discussed, but no decision was made.

The city has been unable to find out who owns the property. Roy Anderson, assistant city manager, said apparently the property was originally laid out as the Washington Place Tennis Club by developers 30 years ago, but nothing was done about it.

The board finally moved to write a letter to Looney declaring that since the city does not know who owns the land, no recommendation can be made; however, the board said they have no objection to the Optimists' use of the land.

Board members recommended that the police-sponsored Boy Scout troop be allowed to use and repair for their own use the house in City Park formerly occupied by Shorty Gideon, the now-retired golf course manager. The recommendation was made with the proviso that the city commission let the house be used for a certain period of time, which can be renewed.

John Berry, coordinator of the city's softball leagues, asked that the city extend the length of the new softball park from 200 feet to 225 feet by moving back the light poles.

Don Newsom, board member, said, "the field definitely needs to be longer," citing the present 200-foot limit as too small.

Cost of moving the light poles back 25 feet will be about $400. No fences need be moved, as there are none. Indications were that the softball leagues will put up fences.

Johnny Johansen, parks superintendent, gave board members reports on progress at the Lakeview School Park-Campus, Webb Air Force Base Entrance beautification, the Rehabilitation Center beautification program, the city cemetery program, and refabrication of the city swimming pool in City Park.

All the programs are nearing completion, Johansen said.

He said that at the swimming pool, "the old filtering system has been torn out and the building for housing the equipment has been enlarged in order to contain the new filtering system."

"The concrete floor will be poured as soon as the plumbing fixtures are installed. The arrival of the new equipment is expected immediately, and sandblasting of the pool to remove the paint has been started; the pool will then be repainted."

The board endorsed a proposal of the State that the city furnish water service for a beauty spot at IS 20 and US 350 which the State says it will build, complete with turf and irrigation system. The endorsement means that if the city agrees to the proposal, it will furnish the water free to the State, which will do all maintenance.

John gave financial reports on the city parks and the cemetery.

The park improvement balance was at $12,426.39 March 31, Johansen said, and there is a total of $11,000 committed and on hand on invoice for $1,626.16, which will at least absorb the balance. Also, $4,735.79 has been reallocated from projects completed below cost or which will not be done.

In the cemetery fund, he said, there is $11,941.22 on hand after expenditures of $16,406.05 on the total beginning capital (including interest on deposit) of $29,177.50. He said $7,312.20 is estimated expenditure to complete the project, which would leave a balance of $4,629.02.

As of April 10, he indicated, $16,218.63 was in the cemetery's permanent care fund—$16,000 deposited in the State National Bank at 5 1/2 per cent interest.

Valley Water Decision Due

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — A decision is due Friday in the complex case involving claims on Lower Rio Grande Valley water—a precious commodity in this semi-tropical vegetable and fruit growing area.

Dist. Judge J. H. Starley said Wednesday he will hand down his ruling Friday morning. The Pecos judge has been assigned to the case since 1962 and has spent part of each month gathering testimony in the area.

At stake is water valued by attorneys at $5-$15 million. It is needed for about 500,000 persons and 800,000 acres of land, from Falcon Dam to the Gulf of Mexico.

The suit was filed in 1956

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Thurs., April 21, 1966 3-A

when it became evident the claims for water were hopelessly snarled. The state says the once-mighty Rio Grande can meet only three-fourths of the irrigation needs after the people are taken care of.

One claim, which extends northeast from the river almost to Corpus Christi, would leave no water for others if it were met.

More than 3,000 exhibits have been entered in the case. Many are maps detailing the conflicting and often vague claims made on the Rio Grande water during the last 60 years.

Area Cub Scouts are reminded of the Cub Pow Wow in scouting to be held Saturday from 12:30-5 p.m. at the First Methodist Church. Registration fee is $1.50, which includes two sectional booklets.

The general session at 1 p.m. will include an opening ceremony, a prayer by R. L. Tollett, introductions by Bill McRee, and instructions by Noel Reed.

There will be two sectional pow-wows, one led by Jerry Williams and Dorothy Harder; the other, by Warden Mayes and Rhoda Board. A midway and refreshments, under the direction of Mrs. Joe Horton and Lloyd Niles, will be one of the main attractions. Noel Reed will present the general session awards to close the program.

Cook Wins High Mark

James N. Cook, Houston, a former Big Spring resident, was honored Wednesday by the Houston Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants for achieving the second highest mark on the nationwide November, 1965, Uniform CPA Examination. He will be presented the Elijah Watt Sells Silver Medal of the American Institute of CPAs in Boston Oct. 25 at the annual AICPA meeting.

Cook earned the second best grade of 17,194 candidates throughout the United States, reported Kenneth J. Mutzel, CPA Chapter president. The top mark went to Robert Edmond Wallis Jr., Birmingham, Ala.

Cook, a junior accountant in the Houston office of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Cook, accounting firm, graduated with honors from Texas Technological College in Lubbock in 1965. At Texas Tech, he was a member of Phi Kappa Phi honorary and Beta Alpha Psi accounting societies. He was employed part-time as a junior accountant in the Lubbock accounting firm of Vernon L. Behner, CPA.

He and his wife, Barbara, live at 1701 Jacquelyn No. 12 in Houston and have two sons.

TONY CURTIS

Tony Curtis 'Not Out To Sell Shampoo'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Among the many stars missing from the Academy Awards bash Monday was Tony Curtis. He frankly explains why.

Attendance by stars at the Oscar event has dwindled in late years to nominees, past winners and few other names who can be inveigled into acting as presenters. Most other stars stay away.

USED FOR SELLING

Why don't the stars turn out? "I'll tell you why I won't," volunteered Tony Curtis. "It's because the Oscars are used to sell cookies and shampoo. I won't appear for the same reason I stay off all television: I don't want to be in the position of being used to sell cookies or shampoo."

"I know of 10 other stars who feel the same way. Oh, they may offer some phony excuse — they're going to be out of town or some damned thing. But the real reason is that the Oscar show is sponsored, so why should they lend their names to it?"

Curtis was unimpressed by the news earlier that the Oscar-cast is not selling cookies or shampoo this year but is sponsored by Eastman Kodak.

"I don't care who the sponsor is," he insisted. "Why should the motion picture industry have to go to strangers for charity? That's what it looks like when we allow our most important event to be used to sell other products."

"I have a better idea. Let the studios contribute $100,000 apiece and put the show on without any commercials. Just make the award presentations and show the world: This is our best work and we're proud of it."

Curtis poooh-pooed the suggestion that the film companies might be too poor to put on the Oscar show.

"SHOVELING MONEY"

"Are you kidding? The studios are shoveling money. This is the only business in which the companies take the money out and don't put anything back in."

Economics aside, Curtis yearned for the good old days before his time, when the Academy was a cozy industry affair.

"Cary Grant told me how it used to be," he said. "The people in the business would rent the Coconut Grove for the night, and everybody would be there. It was like saying, 'Here, Spencer Tracy, here's an Oscar for doing the best acting this year.' Everyone would toast each other and go home happy. Why can't it be that way now?"

Slowdown Seen On Living Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Announcement of a slowdown in the rise of living costs is expected today.

The Labor Department issues the March Consumer Price Index at mid-afternoon — about a week earlier than usual.

This suggested — as did several real indicators — that the report would carry much better news than the last one, which showed the biggest February price jump since the Korean War.

A leveling-off would further diminish the possibility that President Johnson might propose an anti-inflationary tax increase to Congress.

FEBRUARY HIKE

The living cost increase in February was one-half of 1 per cent. On the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of prices paid by typical city families, it was a climb of six percentage points. That lifted the index to a record 111.6 per cent of the 1957-9 average.

Slowdown Seen On Living Costs

Arnold E. Chase, assistant Bureau of Labor Statistics commissioner, said then the index probably would rise again in March, but "the increase will be substantially less than in February."

"WORST PAST"

As for soaring food prices — which represent between one-fourth and one-fifth of the average family's living costs — Chase said in February "the worst seems to be over."

Since then wholesale prices have held steady and, if early April trends continue, may be on the way down. The February living cost increase was accompanied by a spectacular rise of seven-tenths of 1 per cent in the wholesale index.

Leaves After Heckling AT&T Chairman

Mrs. Wilma Soss, accompanied by her own burly bodyguard, takes leave of the American Telephone and Telegraph stockholders meeting in Detroit Wednesday after she spent two hours haranguing Frederick R. Kappel, chairman of the board. The gaudily attired Mrs. Soss, head of the Federation of Women Shareholders, said the stripes were supposed to reflect "the police-state methods" employed by the AT&T at its annual meeting. # Cape Strike Talks Resume

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Negotiators met again today with federal mediators in efforts to settle a three-day-old electrical workers' strike in California and at Cape Kennedy, Fla. Men of the Electrical Workers Union and the United Technology Center met with two mediators for the first time Wednesday. Earlier, union negotiators wouldn't say what blocked contract acceptance. The old contract expired last week. About 275 members of the union were on strike in California, along with 52 members at the Cape Kennedy space center. The strikers were employed on the Air Force Titan 3 space rocket. The main issue is wages. California electricians say they get lower wages than the $3.93 paid elsewhere in the industry. The union asks 16 cents an hour more and a 30-cent differential for Cape Kennedy work. The company reportedly offered 19 cents and no differential.

Sukarno Shouts He's 'Not Toppled'

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno complained today that political forces in Indonesia are trying to push him out of power and some groups are trying to make him a figurehead president. Speaking at a Cabinet meeting, the 64-year-old president said he had received a number of leaflets saying "President Sukarno has become old" and accusing him of bragging of the many titles he holds, including president for life. "Here and now I say, yes, that I have done the bragging," he shouted. "Why? Because people abroad have said I was toppled by the army. I think it is my obligation to refute lies disseminated by the foreign press. I have not been toppled. I am the president. I am your leader. . . I appoint you to be my ministers under my leadership. Keep that in mind." In the 2 1/2-hour speech Sukarno also admitted the nation of 165 million faces an acute food shortage.

All-News Type Station Tried In Radio Field

NEW YORK (AP) — In the bustling world of AM radio with its almost 4,100 stations and all types of programming, four operations concerned only with news broadcasts are doing very well. There exists no official listing of the formats of most stations, but it is probable that about 60 to 65 per cent are what is called "middle of the road," playing nonfrenetic music, providing news at stated intervals and presenting some talk shows. Another 15 per cent or so are currently dedicated to playing rock 'n' roll music plus news, and these are usually referred to in the trade as "Top 40" or "Top 100" stations because they specialize in playing the best-selling music records.

Formats of the rest are a mixed bag—stations specializing in playing standard, Western or folk music; foreign language broadcasts, or aiming at special ethnic audiences, like Negroes or Spanish-speaking peoples. There is also a comparatively new specialty: all-news stations. There are XETRA whose signal originates in Tijuana, Mexico, but has its big audience north through Los Angeles, and WNUS of Chicago, both operated as part of the McClelland Group of stations. Then there are WINS of New York and KYW of Philadelphia of the Westinghouse Group W stations. Altogether they hardly make a statistic in the big, booming radio field. But they are being watched with interest by all broadcasters. Actually, XETRA, started in 1961 under McClelland management was not the first station to decide to try an all-news-and-commercials format. A year before, it had been attempted briefly at KFAX in San Francisco, but didn't work out. Richard Pack, senior vice president of Group W, who was instrumental in shifting WINS to its current all-news schedule last April, said that surveys have indicated that in recent months the size of the station's audiences has doubled or even tripled.

UNIQUE SERVICE "I think that moving into a specialized area is in line with radio developments in a television era," he said. "We no longer have the big radio programs like the Jack Benny Hour or 'Amos 'n' Andy.' Radio's problem today is finding some unique service that people want in times like these. And we think that news at this time is a compelling interest."

FINANCIAL ASPECT No radio station will release much information about its profits or losses, but it is generally believed that both the Mexican station and the Chicago station are "doing quite well."

Anti-Poverty Official Wants Full Solution

AUSTIN (AP) — "There are none of these 30-minute coffee breaks. You drink your coffee at your desk while you try to catch up." "Bill Crook is a tough man to work for. You go until you get the job done." "If there's such a thing as a genius, I'd say he's one."

These appraisals of Dr. William Crook, regional director of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), were made by his assistants. The remarks were not made in complaint, but rather with pride. Crook, 40, a native of South Texas, had this to say about himself in an interview with the Corpus Christi Caller-Times: "I've had three lives, one as a pastor which I enjoyed immensely; one as an educator of which I knew nothing but got people who did, and I was normally successful; and this is my third career."

IT'S "INVESTMENT" "I'm very happy. This is a different group."

Joey Bishop's Sardonic Humor Crackles Again

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie - TV Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "If ever I was grateful for having a sense of humor," said Joey Bishop, "it was when I was flat on my back in the hospital." The comedian can joke about it now, but he was laughing through tears last summer when he was stricken with a painful back ailment. He has recovered sufficiently to be playing an Indian in "Texas Across the River" with Dean Martin and Alain Delon. PUT TO TEST The sardonic Bishop humor crackles as brightly as ever, but he admits that it was put to the test when he fell ill. I made the error of asking, "When did you get the back?" "I got it on Feb. 3, 1918," he replied stone-faced. "It came with the rest of me, right between my shoulders and my — "Oh, you mean when did it go out? It was last June. I tell people I fell off a TV series. That isn't true. I actually got up off

Crook, who directs the War on Poverty in the five-state Southwest Region, has offices in Austin. He looks on the program as a long-term investment. He said tangible results have been most noticeable in the Head Start program, which prepares pre-schoolers for a proper educational start. But the Job Corps also is showing promise. "When a boy leaves Job Corps after having been introduced to a wider world and he gets a job and holds it, this is a tangible result," Crook said. FINDING VOICE He summed up the War on Poverty this way: "The poor are finding a voice. They have found someone who is listening. Nothing dehumanizes a man like having no one listening. Welfare has forced its own views on the poor for years."

One of his assistants said: "You will notice that everything that Bill Crook has done has one thing in common. In religion, education and now the War on Poverty, he has been concerned with programs for helping poor people. "He knew poverty as a child and has not forgotten."

A Little Voice Goes a Long Way

There was a time, long ago, when it took real lung-power to make yourself heard on the telephone. And you had to listen closely to make out what the other party said. The problem was transmission—getting your voice from here to there. Today, it's easy to hear and be heard. In fact, tots and telephones get along fine, whether it's a Long Distance call from grandmother across the country or just a chat with a youngster down the street. That's because a little voice goes a long way—clearly and distinctly. Continual improvement in the transmission of your voice is one way Southwestern Bell makes your telephone service—already the world's best—even better.

Highest Military Decoration Honors Hero Posthumously

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson presents the Medal of Honor posthumously today to a young Negro paratrooper who threw himself on a Communist hand grenade in South Viet Nam and absorbed the blast with his body to protect four fellow soldiers.

A White House ceremony was scheduled at noon to honor 19-year-old Pfc. Milton L. Olive III of Chicago with the nation's highest military decoration.

The youth's father, Milton L. Olive of Chicago, and about 20 other relatives of the hero were flown to Washington Wednesday night for the ceremony. The dead soldier is the third person and first Negro to be awarded the Medal of Honor for service in Viet Nam.

Young Olive was killed in action against Communist forces in Viet Nam Oct. 22, 1965, after falling on the grenade. The citation credits that act with saving the four lives.

The citation states: "Through his bravery, unhesitating action and complete disregard of his own safety, he prevented additional loss of life or injury to the members of his platoon. Pvt. Olive's conspicuous extraordinary heroism and intrepidity at the risk of his own life above and beyond the call of duty are in the highest tradition of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the armed forces of his country."

For Olive's father, a slim, soft-spoken warehouseman, his son's death had an added purpose, he proudly told the Chicago City Council during a ceremony Wednesday.

"During World War II," Olive said, "unfortunate statements were made about the service and bravery of the Negro to our country."

ENRICHES HERITAGE
"I am convinced now that the service the Negro soldier has given in Viet Nam has erased for all time the disparaging statements made about Negro servicemen," he said. "This honor gives us richer heritage."

Pfc. Olive's medal will join other mementoes in a glass-door cabinet in his father's room.

They include photographs which show young Olive as a grave, curious child looking with wonder at Santa Claus' beard; staring intently at a flock of chickens of his grandfather's Mississippi farm, and posing in uniform beside a Christmas tree shortly before he was sent to Viet Nam.

The cabinet also holds his Army uniform, two Purple Hearts (one awarded posthumously) and a cartridge fired at his military funeral.

"He was proud of his uniform," the elder Olive told the City Council, "and we felt it was a definite possibility he might decide to stay in (the Army)."

"He wrote quite regularly and usually told how he was getting along, the types of things he was doing, though he never mentioned combat," Olive said. "But we never got the impression he was disturbed about it."

His son was always religious and considerate, the father said, and always did more than his share.

Knights Group Installs Slate

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Elmer E. Watkins of Wichita Falls has been installed as the grand commander of the Knights Templar of Texas.

The Grand Commandery voted in Galveston to meet in Wichita Falls April 16-18 next year.

Others installed were O. C. Harper, Vernon, prelate; George Adams, Fort Worth, treasurer; A. G. Coots, Dalhart, deputy grand commander; Harry B. Tuer, Fort Worth, recorder; Richard E. Porter, Fort Worth, generalissimo; Lawrence DeHay, Dallas, captain general; E. Bloomquist, Austin, senior warden; Dale Miller, Dallas, junior warden; Winford H. Owen, Seguin, standard bearer; James M. Willson, Floydada, sword bearer; Aubrey C. Martindale, Houston, warden; and Sam E. Hilburn, captain of the guard.

Police Guard Heavy At Sensational Trial

CHESTER, England (AP)—Police guarded defense lawyers in the Moors murder trial today and midwives were on hand to keep watch over a pregnant witness as she testified.

Fearing that passions aroused by the sensational trial might lead to violence, guards were posted at the homes of lawyers Emlyn Hooson and Godfrey Heilpern and at the home of Heilpern's mother.

IN-LAW SLAIN
The precautions were taken following the murder of Heilpern's sister-in-law, Rachel Heilpern, 53. Her body was found Tuesday night at the dress shop she managed 30 miles from Chester. She had been stabbed through the heart.

Detective Supt. Wilfred Cunliffe said so far there was nothing to indicate the murder was connected with the Moors trial. "but in a murder investigation one cannot rule out anything." Three police midwives were on duty for the resumption of the trial today. The court was to hear more testimony from Maureen Smith, 19, who expects a baby at any time.

"THRILL" MURDERS
Mrs. Smith is the sister of Myra Hindley, 23, who with her lover, Ian Brady, 27, is charged with the murder of three children for thrills.

Mrs. Smith, wearing a gray tweed coat and a maternity smock, faced her sister and Brady Wednesday as she testified for about 30 minutes. Atty. Gen. Sir Elwyn Jones had interrupted his outline of the prosecution case to bring her to the witness stand because of the advanced state of her pregnancy.

Earlier Jones told the all-male jury that Miss Hindley, a stenographer, and Brady, a clerk, enticed 10-year-old Lesley Ann Downey into a house, and subjected her to "utmost indignities" before she was killed. Jones said that among Brady's possessions were photographs of Lesley Ann naked. Her nude body and the body of John Kilbride, 12, were found last fall buried on the wild penine moors. Jones said the boy was subjected to sexual indignities shortly before he was killed.

The bidding:

Pass   Pass   Pass   Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♣
South was a distinct favorite to bring his four heart contract safely home; however, he wound up a loser when he failed to take advantage of the odds.

South's four heart response to his partner's opening one no trump bid was a reasonable gamble. He has 10 points in high cards and distribution and a good six card suit which are the essential ingredients for a jump to game in a major suit.

West opened the five of spades and East put up, the queen, forcing out declarer's king. A trump was led to dummy's queen and East was in. He returned the ten of spades to dislodge the ace. South drew the trumps ending up in his hand and then he finessed the queen of clubs. East won the trick with the king and he returned a spade to West's jack. The latter returned a diamond and East cashed the ace for the setting trick.

Declarer had not given himself the best chance. He can make his contract provided that he finds either the jack or the king of clubs in the West hand. The odds are three to one in his favor; however, it is necessary for him to time his attack carefully. The clubs must be started before his second spade stopper is dislodged.

It is suggested that South lead a club at trick two and finesse the queen. East wins with the king and returns a spade to declarer's ace. Another club is led and this time declarer puts in the dummy's ten. When the finesse succeeds, he has a parking place for his losing spade.

U.S. Midsection Braces As Storms Threaten To Persist

By The Associated Press
Storms continued across broad areas of the nation's midsection today after Wednesday's outbreak of violent weather which included small tornadoes, high winds, hail and heavy rain.

Mother Of Four Now Has Degree

GALVESTON (AP)—"I feel absolutely lost—I have nothing to study."
That is Mrs. Rusty Courtney's reaction since she got her bachelors degree in sociology in January, 16 years and four children after she graduated from Brownwood High School.

During that 16 years, she had been studying almost constantly in one way or another. Joan Courtney went to day school, night school, part-time school and correspondence-course school in getting her BA from the University of Houston.

PLANTED GRAIN
"My father gave me 12 acres when I graduated from high school," she said. "I planted it in speltz—that's a grain—and started to Howard Payne College."

But drought came to Brownwood and the crop failed. The expected tuition money withered with the stalks. Although without a college degree, she qualified for a teacher's certificate and got a job teaching the first five grades in a Lufkin school.

She met and married Rusty Courtney in East Texas, and the couple moved to Galveston 14 years ago. She taught at Island Rural School until she took maternity leave to have twins, Mike and Jane. Their first-born, Beverly, came in Lufkin.

The twisters and severe thunderstorms struck areas from Arkansas and Mississippi to Illinois and Indiana. No serious injuries were reported and property damage was not extensive.

Thunderstorms continued during the early morning along a belt from eastern Michigan to southeastern Texas. In Upper Michigan rain changed to snow as cold air spread across the northern Midwest. One inch of snow fell at Houghton.

Tornadoes caused minor property damage at Eureka Springs, in northwestern Arkansas; near Plymouth in Northern Indiana; 25 miles northeast of Memphis, Tenn.; and near Fort Smith, Ark. Three small twisters touched ground in Indiana causing minor damage.

FIERCE WINDS
Winds tipped over two house trailers near Kankakee, Ill., and three persons were slightly injured. Windstorms also struck

Nearly three inches of rain doused Monroe, La., in a six-hour period and more than 1½ inches fell at Tupelo, Miss. Rain swept wide areas in Illinois, with hail and strong winds in many cities, including Chicago and its suburbs. Heavy hail peppered areas near St. Louis and parts of Arkansas, Mississippi and Indiana.

XB70A Nears Its Last Phase

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The giant XB70A heads into the last phase of its useful existence soon with one of the world's most versatile test pilots assigned to salvage what he can from the by-passed billion-dollar bomber.

Joseph A. Walker, 45, holder of world speed and altitude records in the X15 rocket plane, has begun training to fly the 500,000-pound XB70A late this spring or summer.

SST DUE
As chief engineering test pilot for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's research center here, Walker will do research aimed solely at aiding design of the upcoming super-sonic transport — SST — even though the transport is likely to bear little resemblance to the XB70A.

In exclusive interviews, Paul Bikle, director of the NASA center, and Walker said they believe the SST research program, scheduled to last 18 months with the Air Force and NASA sharing the $35-million cost, will end the usefulness of the XB70A.

NOT FEASIBLE
"We once were very hot on the idea of using the XB70A as a launching platform for the X15, which now uses the slower B52," Bikle said. "But we've found it just wouldn't be feasible. I don't see anything ahead for the XB70A after the SST research program."

When conceived more than a decade ago, the 185-foot XB70A was the prototype of a multibillion-dollar fleet designed to carry nuclear city-busters across oceans at 2,000 miles an hour at altitudes of 70,000 feet — beyond the reach of pursuit craft then flying.

Before it could be built, however, intercontinental missiles proved they could do the job faster and cheaper — and extremely fast fighters like the YF12A were developed which could shoot it down.

TWO BUILT
The XB70A was scrapped as an operational bomber and only two were built, at a cost of $1.2 billion.

Last year NASA put in a bid to share the two XB70A planes with the Air Force. As soon as the Air Force accepts them from North American Aviation, Inc., this spring, NASA will start using them for research.

"They are the only planes of that size flying at extreme speeds and altitudes," Bikle said. "The 4,000 m.p.h. X15 and the 2,000 m.p.h. YF12A are much smaller."

So Walker is taking time out from test-flying a still-legged lunar landing research vehicle to learn to fly 1,600 m.p.h. B58 bombers in order to qualify to pilot the XB70A.

REGRETFUL, BUT...
Of the fact that he will never again fly the X15, in which he set records of 4,104 m.p.h. and 84,000 feet, Walker says: "Naturally, I regret it, but I can't have a foot in all the cockpits around here. Besides, who wants to get in a rut?"

NASA has installed $2 million worth of instruments on the XB70A. With these it will study:
HEAT GENERATOR
1. Air friction on the plane's skin, which gets hotter than a kitchen stove (more than 600 degrees Fahrenheit). Unless controlled by insulation or refrigeration, such heat means discomfort for passengers and dangerous structural weakening.

2. Noise generated by the swift flow of air along the fuselage and wings. Louder than an automobile horn a few inches away, the noise must be quieted for passenger comfort and structural safety.

GUSTS STUDY
3. High altitude turbulence. This little known phenomenon can buffet a plane the way gusts toss a ship at sea.
4. Sensitivity of hydraulic controls. Wing and tail surfaces are too large to be controlled by human muscle alone; hydraulic pressures, many times greater than those which help a driver brake his car, move tail and wing flaps half a block away from the pilot's cabin.

Texans Note Historic Day

SAN JACINTO MONUMENT, Tex. (AP)—Texans return to San Jacinto Battlefield today to celebrate independence won 130 years ago by Gen. Sam Houston and his ragged band of outnumbered soldiers.

On the afternoon of April 21, 1836, Houston's army of about 700 attacked the camp of almost 2,000 Mexicans under the command of Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna and caught the Mexicans at siesta time.

In a battle that lasted some 18 minutes, Texas won its independence from Mexico. Only nine Texans were killed or mortally wounded.

The Mexicans losses included 630 killed, 280 wounded and 730 captured. Gen. Santa Anna was captured the next day.

The date has become a state holiday with most schools, banks and other businesses closing. Thousands visit the battlefield and the San Jacinto Monument, about 20 miles from downtown Houston.

John Hill, newly-appointed secretary of state, was to speak at memorial services at the monument this afternoon sponsored by the Sons and Daughters of the Republic of Texas. Hill also will review the Texas Navy.

Mrs. Ena D. Wrenn of New Orleans, national commander of Navy Mothers' Clubs of America, was to talk from the battlefield Texas.

Former Texas A&M University students around the country will meet for the annual A&M muster, a San Jacinto Day tradition.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Clean Floor Grills Fast In Bathtub

Dear Folks: When it comes time to wash floor register grills, I first lay a bath towel in the bathtub to prevent scratching, and pile the grills on the towel, one on top of the other, pour in some heavy-duty detergent, turn on the hot water, and away I go!

HELOISE

As soon as the grills are completely covered with this hot, sudsy water, I let them soak until the water is cold. Then, with the broom, I can gently sweep each one, and all of the soil comes right off. A vegetable brush is good, too, if the grills are badly soiled. Drain the water out, refill the tub with warm water, and rinse them the same way. Repeat rinsing process.

By draining the water out the third time, and leaving the damp towel in the bathtub, the grills may be gently restacked, one on top of the other, left until they have dripped dry, then put back where they belong.

(And, while the grills were soaking, I vacuumed the air outlets.)

Before replacing the clean, hot air register grills during the summer season, why not wrap each one in one of those thin, Pliofilm bags which come from the cleaners? This will keep the dust from getting back down into the register again. (ALWAYS remove the bags BEFORE using your register.)

During the winter season, it is especially good (particularly if you have little kiddies) to place a piece of wire screening (which can be bought at your hardware store) underneath the hot air grill. This will keep the children from dropping toys down into the register itself, and the screen will catch the dust particles. Then, all one needs to do, from time to time, is to remove the screen and wash it. . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise: Don't waste space inside stored suitcases.

They take no more room when full than empty, and are fine for storing anything that will fit into them. . . . especially out-of-season clothing, blankets, etc. . . . Mrs. Charles W. Greer

LETTER OF LAUGHTER:

Dear Heloise: I fold my sheets and pillow cases as soon as I take them in, then I put them on a chair, which makes the chair the right height to sit at the ironing board.

By the time my ironing is finished, my linens are nicely "pressed!"

Saves time and energy. . . . Lazier Than Thou

I use the juice from cans of fruit cocktail, peaches or pears to sweeten granulated soft drink mixes.

This saves sugar, and makes a delicious fruit punch. . . . T. Allison

Dear Heloise: Did you know that a little denatured alcohol, when applied on a soft cloth, will remove tobacco stains from your ashtrays? . . . Mary

Dear Mary: Did you know that either rubbing alcohol or ammonia would do the same thing? After all, it's only carbon in the ashtrays.

Try one of them. Be sure to READ CAUTIONS on bottle.

They are less expensive, and items that most wives keep in their households. . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise: Before sewing a shirt pocket back on at the top sides, iron a piece of mending tape onto the wrong side of the shirt.

It gives something to sew to, and the pocket won't tear loose again. . . . Betty Payne

Dear Heloise: As my husband travels (six- to eight-week trips), I keep a daily letter going and as I mail each one, I number it accordingly.

When he reaches his "home base" he starts with number "1" and keeps up with my daily activities from start to finish. . . . Veda

(Write to Heloise in care of the Big Spring Herald.)

Leave For Weekend

WESTBROOK (SC) — Mrs. Dora Fowler of Westbrook and Mr. and Mrs. Hollie Jackson of Colorado City spent the weekend in Elgin. They were guests of Mrs. Fowler's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Verdie Murphey.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Moody visited the Fred Carstensen Sunday in Stanton.

Allen Moody returned here Sunday after staying in Hico with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Moody, while his brother, Bobby, was a consultant patient at the Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital.

Members of the junior and intermediate Girls Auxiliary of First Baptist Church attended the house party in Colorado City Friday and Saturday. Eight members and two sponsors attended.

Rebekahs Initiate Mrs. John Acuff

Mrs. John Acuff was initiated by candlelight service during the Tuesday evening meeting of the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge No. 153. The members met at the lodge hall with Mrs. Odell Buchanan, noble grand, presiding.

Reading resolutions of sympathy were Mrs. LaVerne Rogers for George Ashmore Sr., father of Mrs. K. C. Webb; Mrs. Homer Petty for Mrs. Essie Hubble, mother of Mrs. Kyle Cauble; and Mrs. U. F. Beachley for Mrs. T. H. Week, sister of Mrs. Winnie Ralph.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with white lace over a pink underlay and centered with an arrangement of pink flowers.

The refreshment committee consisted of Mrs. M. Y. Butler, Mrs. Ethel Simmons, Mrs. W. C. Ward, Mrs. Ted Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Garland Land.

Study Concluded By Methodists

The conclusion of the program, "Acts—Then and Now," was given by Mrs. Don Crockett at the Tuesday meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service at Wesley Methodist Church. She was assisted by Mrs. E. A. Guinn who reviewed the life of John Wesley.

Plans were announced for a Wednesday evening banquet honoring the churches senior students.

Members were reminded of the district meeting being held in Lamesa today, and those planning to attend were Mrs. Howard Berry, Mrs. Janie Cofer, Mrs. Victor Sharp and Mrs. George Sutton.

Mrs. W. D. Lovelace presided, Mrs. W. B. Morris gave the devotion, and prayer was led by Mrs. M. O. Hamby.

Mrs. Phillips In Waco For Seminar

LAMESA (SC) — Mrs. Loy Phillips, secretary of the Dawson County Farm Bureau, will attend the statewide training school being held in Waco April 19-22 at the Alaco Center Inn. The seminar for Farm Bureau secretaries is being conducted through auspices of State Farm Bureau.

Arrangement of pastel irises and pink carnations. Crystal and silver appointments were used.

Twenty members and an out-of-town guest, Mrs. Laroy Carothers of Bremen, Ind., attended. The next meeting will be May 13 with Mrs. Choc Jones.

Mrs. D. S. Riley Has Coffee Wednesday

Mrs. D. S. Riley, 505 Hillside, was hostess Wednesday morning for a coffee where guests were members of the Downtown Lions Auxiliary. Mrs. John Quigley was cohostess.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a pink cloth and centered with an

Five TOPS To Attend Convention

Shelby Parnell of the Big Spring State Hospital staff cautioned against obesity when he was guest speaker at the Tuesday evening meeting of the TOPS Pound Rebels. The group met in the Community Room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association building with Mrs. Edward Lee Rogers presiding. Parnell was introduced by Mrs. Wayne Beene.

Five members announced plans to attend the state convention in Galveston Friday and Saturday. They are Mrs. Al Scott, Mrs. Walter Goodwin, Mrs. Alma George, Mrs. Harold Bell and Mrs. M. C. Lawrence.

Miss Evelyn Paul joined the club, and visitors were Miss Merle Cotten, Miss Pearl Cotten and Mrs. Grady Hodnett. Miss Paul received two TOPS badges for having lost 21 pounds in one week.

The pledge was led by Mrs. Grady McCrary.

The club will meet April 26 in the Student Union Building at Howard County Junior College.

Mrs. B. Powers Gets Diamond Pin For Membership

Fifty years of membership in the auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen was marked Wednesday by Mrs. Billy Powers. Mrs. Powers received a diamond membership pin from Mrs. C. L. Kirkland, president, on behalf of the group.

The meeting was held at Hotel Settles with 17 attending and receiving a new password. Visits to the sick were reported, and it was announced that three members will be initiated at the next meeting. Mrs. Roy Williams was pianist for drill practice and Mrs. M. E. Anderson worded the prayer. Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. C. Craven and Mrs. C. B. Sullivan.

The meeting place has been changed to the Odd Fellows hall at W. 9th and San Antonio. The group will meet there May 18.

Win High Wednesday

Five tables were in play for the Variety Luncheon duplicate games held Wednesday at Big Spring Country Club. Mrs. Ray McMahan and Mrs. Dan Greenwood took first place.

Other winners were Mrs. J. H. Fish and Mrs. Elvis McCrary, second; Mrs. R. E. Dobbins and Mrs. Ward Hall, third; and Mrs. E. O. Ellington and Mrs. Hayes Stripping Sr. tied for fourth and fifth places with Mrs. Elmo Wasson and Mrs. A. Swartz.

Duplicate Play Marked By Tie

Mrs. A. Swartz and Mrs. J. Gordon Bristow placed first during duplicate games held Tuesday at Big Spring Country Club.

Other winners were Mrs. Travis Reed and Mrs. Hayden Griffith tied for second and third places with Mrs. W. K. Edwards and Mrs. B. B. Badger.

Players were reminded that next Tuesday will be Master Point Day, and the Winners Game will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Big Spring Country Club.

Teachers Feted With P-TA Tea

A tea honoring the teachers at Kentwood Elementary School was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ray Vess, 2703 Ann. The affair was sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association, and approximately 30 guests attended.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with white linen and centered with an arrangement of multicolored flowers flanked by candles.

Candidates Take Up Auto Insurance, Oil Allowables

By The Associated Press
Comments on automobile insurance rates and oil allowables highlighted Texas political campaigns Wednesday.

Last year's hike in auto insurance rates benefited the insurance companies, said Stanley Woods, Houston oil man, who is Gov. John Connally's principal Democratic opponent in the May 7 Primary.

The insurance board appointed by Connally, Woods said, "sets the rates for the benefit of the insurance companies, not for the people."

"HIGHER PROFITS"
Woods said profits for insurance companies doing business in Texas are "substantially higher" than most states and higher than the national average.

"If I'm elected governor, I will appoint men to the insurance board whose first consideration is for the driver of Texas," he said. Woods said that his appointees should be able to reduce rates within two years.

A Railroad Commission decision Wednesday to boost allowable oil output was politically motivated, said Rep. Paul Haring of Goliad, who opposes incumbent commissioner Byron Tunnell.

Tunnell took part in the decision to raise the allowable to 35 per cent of potential.

"PURE POLITICS"
Haring said increases in production allowables in recent months "is pure politics."

A ceremony for the 1966-67 Texas Bluebonnet queen, Miss Patricia Ann Morrison of Austin, highlighted Gov. Connally's office activities.

Sen. Galloway Calhoun, a candidate in the hot three-way race for attorney general, said a poll to be released soon shows he is closing the gap between himself and his opponents, Sen. Franklin Spears, and Crawford Martin, former secretary of state.

Calhoun said his candidacy "is picking up every day as the voters learn I am the conservative in the race, independent of any bloc votes."

SNIPES AT FOES
Martin's record when he was in the state senate, Calhoun said, was "half liberal and half conservative," and he said Spears is a "liberal who has a record of voting anti-business every chance he gets."

Speaking in Bryan, Martin said he is "now waiting for Senator Spears of San Antonio to urge an investigation by the Senate Law Enforcement Committee—of which he is a member—of the shocking voter registration fraud that has been

Foreign Car Safety Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff says foreign automobile manufacturers "with significant distribution" in the United States will be asked to supply a complete list of product defect warnings issued since 1960.

The Connecticut Democrat said the Senate Executive Reorganization subcommittee he heads is preparing the request. American car makers have said they will comply with a similar request made by Ribicoff two weeks ago.

Strike Threat Plagues Merging N.Y. Papers

NEW YORK (AP) — The merger of three New York City newspapers set for Monday has been approved by the U.S. Justice Department but a contract dispute threatens to result in this city's third major newspaper strike in less than four years.

Representatives of both labor and management were equally gloomy over whether World Journal Tribune Inc. would publish as scheduled.

Talks between the two sides broke down Wednesday several hours before the Justice Department in Washington gave a qualified go-ahead to the merger but reserved the right to challenge it if such action is warranted in the future.

"I doubt seriously if we can publish Monday," said Matt Meyer, president of the new corporation.

The executive vice president of the New York Newspaper Guild, Thomas J. Murphy, said a strike will probably begin Sunday if 10 newspaper unions are still without contracts. However, no deadline for a strike has been set.

These sentiments were echoed by Theodore W. Kheel, veteran newspaper mediator, who said: "It seems to me that a strike is now unavoidable and the only question is how it can be brought to an end as quickly as possible."

The merger plans were announced one month ago by the morning Herald Tribune and the afternoon Journal-American and the World-Telegram and Sun. It would leave Manhattan with five dailies of general circulation and three Sunday newspapers, eliminating one afternoon newspaper and one Sunday paper.

Of some 5,700 persons employed by the three newspapers, an estimated 2,000 appear likely to be thrown out of work.

What touched off the dispute is a demand by the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union for extra severance pay for some 400 printers scheduled to lose their jobs.

Meyer said the three newspapers would go out of existence as separate entities over the weekend regardless of the outcome of negotiations. He said that a long, costly strike could put one of the newspapers out of business.

Subversion Probe Panel Challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court takes a new look today at Congress' power to investigate subversion and the spotlight is on the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Backed by the American Civil Liberties Union, a former union officer convicted of contempt of Congress for balking at committee questions back in 1955 is challenging the committee's very existence.

The Justice Department is springing to the committee's defense with the argument that Congress cannot do its job properly if it is denied the power to compel testimony.

SUBMIT BRIEFS
Both sides, in briefs submitted to the court before today's hearing, cited past decisions by the justices to support their arguments.

The decision, later in the term, may turn on how the justices decide to tip the delicate balance between individual rights to freedom of association and the government's interest in staking out subversion.

This is the second time John

T. Gojack, a former vice president of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, has come before the court on a contempt conviction.

FIRST CONVICTION
His first conviction for refusing to answer committee questions during a hearing in Washington was thrown out by the high court in 1962 because the indictment did not state "the subject under inquiry."

He was indicted again the same year, convicted and sentenced to three months in prison, and fined $200. Last May the U.S. Circuit Court for the District of Columbia rejected his appeal and upheld the conviction.

500 QUESTIONS
Gojack was asked about 500 questions by the committee and, his lawyers said, answered most of them. Among other things, he testified that since 1949 he had filed non-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley law.

The indictment was based on his refusal to answer six questions, the first of which was: "Are you now a member of the Communist party?"

Rules Taught In Classroom Help Daily Cooking Habits

By ANN PHINIZY
The main axiom for home economics class is to be organized and follow directions.

"Works fine for class room study," said Mrs. David Hodnett, 2718 Lynn. "But there's a long leap from Home Ec. Lab to family cooking and counting children. Now I substitute ingredients in the middle of a recipe, and use a hope-this-works measuring spoon."

In 1956, Mrs. Hodnett (she was then Mr. and Mrs. Ross Boykin's daughter, Annette) won her Future Homemakers of America State Degree while she was attending Big Spring Senior High School.

The degree requires meticulous attention to detail, and Mrs. Hodnett was declared the best of the lot when she was chosen as delegate to attend the FHA National Convention in Chicago.

GREAT FUN
It was all great fun, she recalls, and she felt sure she knew the master points of housekeeping. Instead, she soon discovered that what she really knew was only the background.

When it came to the practical side of cooking, she picked up added pointers from her mother and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Lloyd Hodnett, Vincent.

"They are both excellent cooks and know tricks the books haven't heard of yet," she said. "By now, of course, I've adopted my own method of doing things. It's sort of a conglomeration of everything. The main basis is what my family likes to eat and how they like it cooked. For instance, we have a standing policy that cheese can improve just about anything; if I can't add it in the cooking, we have it as a side dish."

Beneficiaries of the "complete" Mrs. Hodnett are David Hodnett, salesman at Shasta Ford Company; Angela, 8, Craig, 7, Russell, 2½; and Stacey, 14 months.

"Another thing," she explained, "back in home ec, we would plan each meal for hours. The class would discuss the merits of this or that recipe and the value of each ingredient."

FLAN MEALS
"Now, I try to plan meals carefully and in advance. But sometimes it becomes a rendition of catch-as-catch-can, and memory is the best recipe."

Mrs. Hodnett spends her spare time being a leader of Kentwood Brownie Troop 340. Not long ago, she and other leaders took the troop on an outdoor cook-out.

As she described the incident: "It was the first time some of them had ever done their own cooking and they had a fine time. It was messy, but they ate every bite."

That's the best thing about home economics or Brownie Troops or what have you. Everyone learns not to be a stranger to cooking; eventually, they learn to be creative with taste and to experiment with different methods and flavors."

The recipes Mrs. Hodnett selected are those she finds fun to cook and good to eat.

MEXICAN TAMALES
3 cups corn flour
1 cup corn meal
2 cups water
½ cup pork broth or bacon drippings
Salt to taste
1 tsp. baking powder
Corn shucks
Pork shoulder or pork roast
Chili powder
Mix the first six ingredients together. Add the water slowly until mixture has paste consistency. Soak the corn shucks in warm water and wash thoroughly. Split them if they are too wide, or overlap if too narrow.

Stew the meat in water without salt. When meat is tender, tear into pieces and add salt and chili powder to taste. Stir well.

Take spoonful of dough and spread it on the smooth side of each corn shuck and top it with leftover ham.

FRENCH TOASTED HAMWICHES
1 cup finely chopped cooked ham
¼ cup mayonnaise
Prepared mustard to taste
8 slices bread
3 eggs, slightly beaten
¼ cup milk
Dash of salt
¼ cup butter or margarine

Mix together the ham, mayonnaise and mustard; make 4 sandwiches with the mixture and the bread; cut each into 2 triangles. Beat eggs with milk and salt enough to blend; dip sandwiches into mixture. Melt 2 tablespoons of the butter in a large skillet; add sandwiches and brown slowly; turn, adding remaining butter and brown other side. Makes four servings.

shortening. Add remaining ingredients, mixing just enough for shortening to be broken in tiny bits and drop by small amounts on hot griddle. To water test the griddle to see if it is hot enough to cook them properly, drop tiny amount of water on griddle. It is ready if the water rolls instead of spattering.

CHICKEN CHILIES
1 3- or 4-lb. hen, boiled and cubed
Hen broth
1 small can condensed milk
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 stem of celery (diced small)
1 small jar pimiento
1 ½ cups green chilies
1 lb. soft process cheese
1 large bag tostitos

Add milk to chicken broth (cooking slowly). Add cream of chicken soup, celery, pimiento, green chilies. Dice cheese, add and stir until cheese is melted. Arrange in baking dish with chicken and lots of tostitos. Bake until bubbly and hot.

BEEF SALAD
Pickles
Celery
Mayonnaise
Grind all ingredients and combine with mayonnaise to good spreading consistency. This is very good for school lunch boxes.

HOMEMADE HOTCAKES
1 cup flour, sifted
2 tbsps. sugar
1 tsp. shortening
1 egg
Dash of salt
1 cup milk
1 heaping tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. butter flavoring
Mix butter flavoring with cream together butter and a dash of sugar. Add eggs one at a time. When this mixture is of an even consistency, add the rest of the ingredients.

Bake in a well-greased and floured German bundt cake pan for 1 hour, 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Important: Do not open oven door while baking. This cake is also good with a powdered sugar glaze poured over the top, allowing some to drip down the sides.

MEAT SAUCE FOR SPAGHETTI OR RICE
1 lb. ground pork
½ lb. liver, sliced
2 tbsps. lard or drippings
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 can (1 lb. 13 ozs.) tomatoes
1 can (6 ozs.) tomato paste
1-3 cup water
1½ tps. salt
1½ tps. oregano
¼ tsp. basil
1½ tps. chili powder
1 tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. pepper

Spaghetti or rice, cooked Brown liver on both sides in lard or drippings. Put liver through coarse grinder. Cook pork, onion, garlic and green pepper until lightly browned. Pour off drippings. Add ground liver to pork mixture. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, water, salt, oregano, basil, chili powder, sugar and pepper to meat mixture. Cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes. Remove cover and continue cooking 30 minutes or until sauce is thickened. Serve over cooked spaghetti or rice. Six servings.

TARRAGON DRESSING
½ cup salad oil
3 tbsps. tarragon
Vinegar
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. white pepper
¼ tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. paprika

Into a half - pint jar, turn all the ingredients; screw cover tight and shake thoroughly. Refrigerate. Shake well before serving. Makes about ¾ cup.

Greek Cookie Served With Early Coffee

Do you ever get tired of rich cookies, and want to bake a simple one that is not too sweet? This Greek cookie has a crackler-like quality and is good served with morning coffee or tea.

GREEK COOKIES
2 egg yolks
2-3 cup sugar
½ cup corn oil
2 tbsps. orange juice
1 tsp. vanilla
¾ cups sifted flour
1½ tps. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt

Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add sugar gradually and beat until light. Add corn oil alternately with orange juice, beating constantly. Add vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add ½ cups of the dry ingredients alternately with milk to first mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into flour-egg mixture.

Fold in remaining dry ingredients. Turn dough out on a floured board; knead lightly about 2 minutes. Roll dough ¼-inch thick. Cut with cookie cutter into desired shape and place on greased cookie sheets. Beat together egg and water and brush on cookies. Sprinkle with sesame seed. Bake in 350 degree (moderate) oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Busy Bee Causes Oversupply
It's enough to discourage any bee.

For during its entire life span — which is about six weeks, this tiny insect produces only .0288 of an ounce of honey.

In fact, it takes an average of 336 worker bees, flying about 35,584 miles, to gather a full pound of honey. During the bee's brief life span, three weeks are spent working within the hive and the remaining time as a field bee gathering nectar and pollen.

Apparently these little fellows abide by the philosophy that "from tiny acorns come great oaks." If so, they've proved their point. We have an abundance of honey on hand now. In fact, honey is one of the foods listed in plentiful supply during April by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service.

The type of honey the bees produce depends on the source of nectar. Some of the distinct honey flavors that have achieved popularity are from the Tupelo trees of the south, the orange blossoms of Florida and California, the wild sage of the foothills of California, the star-thistles of the Pacific coast, the buckwheat, mesquite and fireweed. However, the clover and clover blends of honey are the most popular.

Producers keep their honey brands unique by blending the honey to keep it as uniform as possible in color and flavor. You will find most of the commercially packed honeys are blends.

While big supplies of honey are available, dress up diced fresh pineapple, sliced strawberries or peaches with honey and lime juice. You'll find honey mighty tasty when served "as is" over small helpings of fruit sherbet.

Simmer Slowly A Tantalizing Meat, Rice Dish

Plentiful pork and nutritious liver get together in a spicy meat sauce that's wonderfully tantalizing when served with spaghetti or rice.

Lazy simmering of the meats, tomato sauce, spices and herbs is what produces the perfectly blended flavor. So don't rush the cooking.

MEAT SAUCE FOR SPAGHETTI OR RICE
1 lb. ground pork
½ lb. liver, sliced
2 tbsps. lard or drippings
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 can (1 lb. 13 ozs.) tomatoes
1 can (6 ozs.) tomato paste
1-3 cup water
1½ tps. salt
1½ tps. oregano
¼ tsp. basil
1½ tps. chili powder
1 tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. pepper

Spaghetti or rice, cooked Brown liver on both sides in lard or drippings. Put liver through coarse grinder. Cook pork, onion, garlic and green pepper until lightly browned. Pour off drippings. Add ground liver to pork mixture. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, water, salt, oregano, basil, chili powder, sugar and pepper to meat mixture. Cover tightly and simmer 15 minutes. Remove cover and continue cooking 30 minutes or until sauce is thickened. Serve over cooked spaghetti or rice. Six servings.

Tarragon Takes To Orange Salad

The flavor of this salad dressing is especially compatible with an orange salad or any fruit salad containing oranges.

TARRAGON DRESSING
½ cup salad oil
3 tbsps. tarragon
Vinegar
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. white pepper
¼ tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. paprika

Into a half - pint jar, turn all the ingredients; screw cover tight and shake thoroughly. Refrigerate. Shake well before serving. Makes about ¾ cup.

Refreshing Change For Calorie Counter Meals

Diets and parties can go together perfectly if the hostess keeps an eye on the calorie counter. Here is one suggestion for a glamorous party dessert that everyone (but especially the weight-watchers) will enjoy.

Fancy cantaloupe "shells" filled with fresh fruit are given the clean, natural taste and cooling, citrus flavor of Like, the new diet soft drink from Seven-Up. Just before the fruit-filled cantaloupe "shells" are carried to the table, pour chilled sparkling Like over the top. The effervescence adds a festive touch — and almost no calories. It is elegant eating on a low-calorie budget.

SPARKLING MELON BOATS
1 large ripe cantaloupe
1 cup green grapes, cut in half
½ cup blueberries
1½ cups strawberries, sliced in half
¼ tsp. almond extract
2 cups Like, chilled

Cut melon in half lengthwise, using paring knife to create fluted edge; remove seeds. Using scoop, prepare melon balls from both halves. Carefully remove any remaining melon and dice. Combine diced melon, melon balls, grapes, blueberries and strawberries in bowl. Place in refrigerator (along with melon "shells") to chill.

CELEBRITY RECIPES

Jane Russell, Bob Waterfield Relate All-Round Family Dish

Jane Russell, founder of WAIF (the adoption division of the American branch of the International Social Service), has a house which is always filled with teenagers and everybody knows teenagers eat more than earth-people.

Miss Russell, one of the most noted of Hollywood's gracious stars, is married to Bob Waterfield, one of the all-time greats of football, who also likes to cook.

Jane likes to cook. Bob likes to cook. All the kids like to cook. Says Jane: "... as a result I find that everyone in the family sticks something different into this wonderful conglomeration. This recipe serves eight people well, though frequently we double and even triple it. It's wonderful left over and another great feature is that it is good with either the best or the cheapest cut of meat."

"We frequently plan this meal for a crowd because it can be prepared in advance and the longer it cooks, the better it is."

Served over rice, this "conglomeration" is a complete meal and needs nothing save perhaps a green salad and plenty of good bread to soak up the meat gravy. It's an All-American meal and ought to be followed with apple pie and cheese. JANE RUSSELL'S GREEN PEPPER STEAK A LA WATERFIELD

Cut two pounds of well-trimmed top round into half-inch strips. Brown it well in a heavy skillet, using two table-spoons of olive oil and one clove of garlic.

In a second skillet, saute two large green peppers cut into thin strips and two large onions, chopped coarsely.

is the easiest way to handle this pungent herb.)

Now mix the sauteed vegetables with the well-browned beef and add three-quarters of a cup of red wine. Cook slowly for half an hour, then add five or six pinches of curry powder and simmer for another hour.

At this point, you may eat with gusto, but you may also continue cooking gently for many hours or even take it off the stove and store it overnight, in which case the flavor will be even better.

If it needs more liquid, and probably will, add chicken or beef broth (not bouillon which is too sweet).

Be sure to put the curry powder in at least an hour before serving because curry powder must cook thoroughly or it will have a raw and disagreeable taste. Don't use too much, either. This isn't a curry; it is a delightful Green Pepper Steak and you'll like it and wish you'd made more.

(One of a series of recipes from the forthcoming Gourmet Gala Cookbook being prepared for the benefit of Adoption Division, International Social Service. For further information, write WAIF, 614 NW Hoyt, Portland, Ore.)

MASSIVE PROSPERITY

Texas Boom Shown By Bank Deposits

By The Associated Press

A survey of bank deposits by Texas bankers Wednesday showed the state's economy booming to the point of frightening some because of the massiveness of the prosperity.

A report of conditions of business as of April 5, ordered by state and national banking authorities, was the reason for the close look by bankers.

All-time records for deposits were set by at least three Texas cities—San Angelo, Waco and Austin. The record was unexpected as the normal peak of money in the bank comes at year's end.

GAUGES ECONOMY

The report of deposits is generally considered a major barometer of the health of the economy.

Leading all counties in amount of money deposited April 5 was Dallas County, an insurance, banking and industrial center.

Dallas County bank deposits were $3,751,596,424, a record for the first three months of any year but less than last December's figure.

Close behind Dallas was Harris County (Houston), with 86 banks reporting deposits of $3,597,724,354.

It was pointed out by one banker that the call for reports this year cannot give an absolute comparison with a year ago because the call was for April 5, a period when many Texans had not yet paid income taxes. The call last year came on April 26, when funds had been withdrawn for payment of taxes.

WACO SCENE

Bankers attributed Waco's passing the $200 million mark for the first time to general prosperity and lesser loans because of increased interest.

A. G. McNeese Jr., president of the Bank of the Southwest at Houston, cautioned, "We see all the evidences of a boom economy for this area as well as the nation at large. My primary concern now is that this economy can be overheated to the point of inflationary explosion."

The Houston banker expressed hope the federal government can reduce its non-defense spending to prevent inflation and a tax increase.

Houston's Medical Center National Bank jumped from 30th to 22nd in Harris County. Officials attributed the jump to a certificate savings plan paying 5 per cent. Of its $23 million in deposits, $13 million were in certificates.

ANGELO PLEASSED

There was happiness over the record deposits at San Angelo. "Brother, we just got economic gains, economic growth, building activity and people at work," said one San Angelo observer.

Business activity continued at high levels in Fort Worth, a banker said, partly because of defense production.

A spot check of cities across the state, with the April 5 figure this year given first and the April 26, 1965, figure given second showed these deposits:

Dallas County $3,751,596,424 and $3,475,999,972.	Harris County (Houston) 3,597,724,354 and 3,305,400,457.	Cooke County (Gainesville) 23,974,610 and 22,660,283.	Lubbock 289,491,145 and 269,073,216. McNamara Cites Orders From Hanoi

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara tells the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that Communist forces in South Viet Nam are taking their orders from Hanoi "not only from day to day but hour to hour." In reply to what he saw as an implication by panel chairman Sen. William Fulbright that the Vietnamese struggle is a civil war, McNamara declared, "I strongly dissent." (AP WIREPHOTO)

Agency Shifts To Justice Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roger Wilkins has his wish. After midnight tonight, he and his racial troubleshooting agency will be "where the action is" — in the Department of Justice.

The last obstacle to the transfer of the Community Relations Service out of the Commerce Department was removed Wednesday. The House defeated, 220 to 163, a resolution opposing the move. The Senate had done so earlier.

Thus the Justice Department and Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach shoulder even a greater share of the federal civil rights burden, which has focused more and more in recent years on the President's chief law enforcement agency.

WILKINS PLEASSED

"This is where we belong," Wilkins, 34, said after the vote. "This is where the action is, in civil rights. And I want this agency to be squarely in the middle of significant civil rights activities—not on the periphery."

The transfer—President Johnson's first, even if small, civil rights victory in Congress this year—was approved over largely Republican objections that the government's mediation arm should not be in the same agency as its prosecutor.

In a literal sense, it won't be under the same roof. The agency moved on Feb. 14 into a Justice Department-leased office building.

BECAME "ORPHAN"

Wilkins, Katzenbach and other supporters of the transfer contend the Community Relations Service soon became an orphan in the Commerce Department after the service was created under the 1964 civil rights act.

Placed in Commerce because of anticipated resistance to the public accommodations provision of the law, the service soon found that businessmen were voluntarily complying at an unforeseen pace.

The service — usually known by its initials, CRS — says it has worked in 294 communities in 36 states since it was created to give the government an opportunity to try to head off racial tension through conciliation and mediation.

It has an authorized strength of 67 men, but President Johnson has asked Congress to increase the manpower allotment to 100 and the budget from $1.3 to $2 million.

Cracks Found In Boeing Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — Some hairline cracks in the tail assembly of Boeing 707 jets have been found as airlines around the world checked their 707s on orders from the Boeing Co. and the Federal Aviation Agency.

The checks were ordered after the second fatal crash involving 707s in six months—the March 5 crash of a British Overseas Airways Corp. 707 in Japan in which 124 persons were killed.

The Boeing Co. said in Seattle that hairline cracks were found in the plane that crashed in Japan. The cracks had nothing to do with the crash, the company said, and the cause of the tragedy has not been determined definitely.

The Boeing statement said minute cracks were caused by metal fatigue in some of its older planes, but none was dangerous.

A spokesman for Boeing said the inspection order sent to the airlines was "routine," and repair of the cracks is a minor operation.

Detroit Bar Killings Hike

DETROIT (AP) — Apprehension — tinged with humor — gripped patrons and employees today in an eight-block string of Detroit bars where five persons have been slain in the past few weeks.

"Some people are scared," said one bartender. "I heard a couple of guys saying, 'We'd better get the hell outa here by one o'clock.' But you can't tell if they're kidding."

BODIES FOUND

The bodies of Ann Slazenger, 45, night manager, and Edmund Thompson, 48, a porter, were found Wednesday morning at the Verdi Bar on the edge of a deteriorating section near downtown Detroit.

Last Feb. 23, the bodies of bar owner Philip Laudicina, 45; Ruth Dukas, 34, and porter Philip Hood, 67, were found in the Miami Bar, eight blocks north of Verdi's.

Police said Mrs. Slazenger,

Thompson, Laudicina and Mrs. Dukas all had been bound and then shot through the head. Hood was shot in the head but not tied up.

MONEY MISSING

About $200 was missing from the Miami Bar, and $1,000 from Verdi's.

Homicide Inspector Robert Grindle called Wednesday's slaying an execution and said he was "pretty much convinced that the same men were responsible" for all five murders.

Police still have not solved the Miami Bar holdup-slaying. The saloon has been shuttered ever since the holdup and reportedly is up for sale. Verdi's was closed Wednesday night.

But it was business as usual at other bars in the neighborhood, an older section of the city filled with low rent apartments, flats, and small businesses.

Boycotting Pupils Plan Own 'School'

DETROIT (AP) — Students boycotting Detroit's predominantly Negro Northern High School planned today to set up a "freedom school" despite a veiled threat of disciplinary action if they don't return to classes.

Discontent at the school boiled over after school administrators refused to permit the student newspaper to publish an editorial critical of the academic standards of the school.

Establishment of a "freedom school", student leaders said, would show that they prefer education to picketing.

Some 1,500 chanting demonstrators, including parents and teachers, paraded around the school for more than two hours Wednesday. Only a handful of the school's 2,300 students attended classes.

'Blue Baby' Doctor, Patient Reunited

Dr. Willis J. Potts, veteran children's surgeon, is shown embraced by 21-year-old Diane Schnell, in New York, as she helps launch promotion of his new book, "Your Wonderful Baby." Miss Schnell, now an art student living in Woodbury, N.Y., was two months old in 1946 when Dr. Potts performed his first "blue baby" operation on her to allow more blood to flow from her heart to her lungs. # Texas' Tip An Unsold Paradise?

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — Where can you catch 10-foot sailfish, pick oranges off the trees, enjoy 74-degree average weather and drive to Mexico in only minutes?

Joe Chapa, a merchant and farmer, knows the answer.

"You couldn't get me to leave this place," the deep-voiced, scholarly looking Chapa says with a smile. "I just hope the word doesn't get around and we start getting crowded."

The place Chapa speaks so fondly of is the southern tip of Texas, the colorful Lower Rio Grande Valley, where the pulse is unmistakably American but the bloodstream is more than half Latin.

STILL UNSOLD

It's a tourists' paradise that still has not sold itself completely to the rest of the country.

"We get letters from people saying they've heard of wild animals, bandits and all that sort of thing down here," says Jack Drake, executive vice president of the Valley Chamber of Commerce. "They ask if it's safe to come down and look across the river into Mexico."

The Valley is a river delta similar to the Nile River Valley in Egypt. It is separated from Mexico on the south side by the Rio Grande. Cactus, scrub brush and rattlesnake dens mark its western fringe; the mammoth King Ranch defines the northern border and the Gulf of Mexico is the eastern boundary.

The economy is diverse. Dollars flow into Valley banks from farmers, oil men, manufacturers, tourists, commercial fishermen, store keepers, citrus growers and countless other sources.

BI-LINGUAL TALKS
In the four counties that make up the Valley—Starr, Hidalgo, Willacy and Cameron—money talk is bi-lingual. Every bank handles Mexican money as well as U.S. currency. Almost all stores accept pesos as readily as dollars.

As you drive down US 281, parallel to the Rio Grande, it's easy to see why agriculture is the top industry. Farm cash income last year amounted to $173.8 million.

In the spring and summer, endless rows of cotton stretch away from the highway on both sides. In the fall and winter, tomato vines and millions of lettuce and cabbage fill the same fields. Groves of citrus are found throughout the Valley, some surrounding pumping oil wells.

MAKE COMEBACK

"Two big freezes 18 years apart hurt our citrus crops, but we're making a good comeback," says Brad Crockett of Harlingen. "Last year oranges and grapefruit earned their growers five-and-a-quarter million dollars and the new year's crop should be even better."

The four Valley counties float on a sea of natural gas and oil which puts more than $125 million a year into local purses. Proven oil reserves are estimated at 122 million barrels, and there may be as much as 12 trillion cubic feet of natural gas under the sea.

The climate and recreational facilities draw tourists from all over the United States, Mexico and Canada every year, expanding the normal Valley population of 406,000. Those northerners who come down to escape the snow and ice are called "snow birds."

BACK AGAIN

A typical snow bird is H. E. Palmer, White-haired retired highway engineer from Atwater, Minn., who spent last winter in the Valley and is back again.

"We like especially the tourist facilities and the other people down here from the Middle West," said Palmer. The Palmers rent an apartment in Harlingen and play shuffleboard, compete in bridge tournaments, and go fishing.

Newcomers to the Valley often admit a feeling of isolation.

"You have to drive 100 to 150 miles before you get anywhere else," says a young bachelor in Harlingen. "Corpus Christi is 60 miles away and San Antonio is almost 250. There's nothing to do here at night except go across the border to Mexico and that gets old after a while. It seems like there's an oversupply of older people and not enough young adults. Lots of high school graduates want to leave the Valley for a more exciting life. You just don't see many new faces except for the winter tourists."

Other outsiders like the area so much they never go home.

"I was born in Minneapolis and raised in St. Paul," says Mrs. Dorothy Fulcher, who has lived in the Valley 18 years. "As far as going back and having to grab a streetcar and ride for 30 to 40 minutes to get to work, I wouldn't do it. I like the climate here, the nearness of Mexico, the friendliness of the people and the easy way of life — the manana attitude."

Brownsville is the southernmost city in Texas. Key West, Fla. is the only U. S. city farther south. With a population of 50,100, Brownsville probably is the most picturesque city in the Valley, thanks to the numerous resacas, or small man-made lakes that are found in the residential districts. Thousands of homes are located on the resacas, and on sunny afternoons the water comes alive with activity.

"PALM CITY"

McAllen, population 27,500, has taken the name of "Palm City." You can drive down the four-block-long strip of main street which makes up the heart of downtown McAllen and frequently see more Mexican license plates than U.S.

Harlingen, population 43,700, just a few miles from the population center of the Valley, calls itself the "Capital City." The deactivation of a big U.S. Air Force training base there hurt the city's economy, but a comeback is under way. Drive to the old Harlingen AFB and you'll see something unusual: The only private military academy in the country that is run along Marine Corps lines.

LOW INCOMES

The Valley has probably more than its share of low income families who live in ramshackle homes they rent for less than $5 a week, and eke out a living helping harvest fruits and vegetables. But it also has several success stories.

Lloyd M. Bentsen Sr. came to the tip of Texas as a young man with $3 in his pocket. Today, he and his brother are big businessmen in banking, insurance, real estate and ranching. Bentsen lives on a 1,500-acre ranch which adjoins McAllen.

"I've just been fortunate," he says. "From the standpoint of natural assets, I think this section of the country is more highly blessed than any other comparable area. I feel there are great opportunities here and we're on the verge of a big gain in the Valley."

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $15,776 grant for the improvement of Davis Mountain State Park has been announced by the Interior Department.

The state will match the federal grant with equal money for the 1,800-acre park some 200 miles southeast of El Paso. The money will be used for the construction of camp sites, access roads and other supporting facilities.

A Devotional For The Day

We believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God. (John 6:69)
PRAYER: We thank Thee, dear Father, for believers who served Thee on earth and are now inheriting Thy promises. Grant to us also the joy and peace they experienced in believing. In His name we pray. Amen.
(From the 'Upper Room')

Forsan School Decision

Voters in the Forsan Independent School District have a decision to make Saturday.
It is important for it involves $350,000. More important even than that, it involves the future of the children residing within the district.
The district has reached the point that something must be done, or else patrons must settle for a program of instruction hobbled by crowded, inadequate facilities. They will also have to run the risk of having accreditation questioned unless library facilities are brought up to standards imposed by the rising enrollment in the higher grades.
Even with a relatively short term issue such as the district is talking about, only about a maximum of 10 cents on the tax rate is under consideration. Increased valuations may take care of a part of this.

Counting in the additional bonds, if approved, the district still would have a bonded debt of less than 4 1/2 percent of its assessed valuations, which is only half of the maximum recommended for districts.

Thus, it seems that issuance of the $350,000 in bonds is not only the sensible thing to do, but it also is the safe and sound thing to do. We hope Forsan district voters concur.

Careful Check Of Claims

Commissioner James L. Goddard of the Food and Drug Administration talked tough to drug manufacturers at their annual meeting in Florida.
Dr. Goddard charged that there has been dishonesty and distortion of medical facts in some firms' efforts to get FDA approval for new drugs, and even attempts to "slip something by us." He told of "constant, direct, personal pressure" on FDA officials by some industry representatives. He censured the "deliberate choice of clinical investigators" — that is, doctors assessing drugs—"known to be more concerned about industry friendships than in developing good data."
He cited other abuses, also. The burden of his talk was more or less summed up in this remark: "I have seen evidence that too many drug manufacturers may well have obscured the prime mission of their industry: To help people get well."

It must be said in fairness that Commissioner Goddard's charges do not apply equally to all drug manufacturers. To some firms they do not apply at all. But all drug manufacturing companies, whatever their degree of integrity and responsibility, would be involved if federal regulation were tightened.
The industry would be most foolish to shrug off the FDA chief's warning of tougher federal controls unless the industry effects reforms. Since he took over the post in January, there has plainly been a more vigorous thrust for enforcement of the FDA's authority in the public interest. It is significant that Goddard's tough talk at the Florida meeting drew applause. The next step is action by the industry to regulate itself more carefully.

David Lawrence Our Position With China

WASHINGTON — Strangely enough, publicity is sometimes difficult for the government to get even though it is important that the American people be informed on the fundamentals of a complex problem such as the relations between the United States and the Communist government on the mainland of China.

Many experts on both sides of this controversial issue were called to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations committee a couple of weeks ago, and made headlines. The most comprehensive and carefully prepared statement, however, on the whole problem by an government official has just now been made public but, because it is belatedly distributed and is 3,500 words long, the full text has been printed in only a few newspapers.

THE DECLARATION of policy was originally made on March 16 by the Secretary of State, Dean Rusk, before a closed session of the Far East Subcommittee of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives. It has only now been released after having been carefully edited and clarified so that it could be regarded throughout the world as an official pronouncement of American policy.

Secretary Rusk says that in their struggle with Moscow for leadership of the World Communist movement, the Chinese Communists "appear to have lost ground" and that even their relations with Castro's Cuba have deteriorated. But most important of all, Mr. Rusk emphasizes, is the fact that the Peiping government sees at last in Viet Nam what the power of the United States can do to repeal an aggression "supported — and actively promoted — by Peiping."

THE SPIRIT of the Secretary's statement is friendly, and it expresses the hope that sooner or later the Chinese people will influence their government to take a more sensible view of world affairs. Mr. Rusk declares:

"We have searched year after year for some sign that Communist China was ready to renounce the use of force to resolve disputes. We have also searched for some indication that it was ready to abandon its premise that the United States is its prime enemy. The Chinese Communist attitudes and actions have been hostile and rigid. But a democracy, such as ours, does not accept rigidity. It seeks solutions to problems, however intractable they may seem."

MR. RUSK frankly concedes that the United States and Peiping today are as far apart on matters of fundamental policy as they were 17 years ago — when the Communists came to power in China — and declares that the United States has no intention of abandoning the Nationalist government on Formosa, as demanded by the Red Chinese.

The Secretary discusses the effort of the Peiping government to develop nuclear weapons and says that, while China may be doing this to demonstrate symbolically that "China must be reckoned with," these weapons could be used as a means of blackmailing Asian countries into breaking defense alliances with the United States or in an attempt to create a nuclear "balance" in Asia in which the almost unlimited conventional forces of Red China could be used with increased effect.

IN OUTLINING American policy, Mr. Rusk calls for firmness and the maintenance of American principles and ideals. There must be reassurance to Red China, he says, that the United States does not intend to attack the mainland and that, while it will not abandon Formosa, it believes there are many ways by which the peoples of Red China and the United States can work together in the future if restraint is applied by the Peiping regime and theories of world conquest are abandoned.

Goes Up

SOCORRO, N. M. (AP) — Does lightning go up or down?
Both, says a scientist at New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology. But what you are likely to see is the lightning going up.

Dr. Walter H. Evans also said that lightning gives off the same type of light as X-rays emitted by nuclear blasts, a phenomenon which can trigger the so-called black boxes for nuclear detection.

The college's laboratory is atop a 10,640-foot mountain. Dr. Evans said that lightning such as lightning which cannot be isolated in a laboratory requires that the laboratory be moved to it.

'NOT ME — YOU'RE GOING TO OBEDIENCE SCHOOL'

James Marlow Moment Unpleasant For Both LBJ, Rival Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is in one of the most unhappy moments of its history and knows it and so do its friends, critics, Democrats, Republicans, Chinese, Vietnamese, and even Eskimos if they get a daily newspaper or listen to a radio.

But for the matter, this is not pleasant spring weather for the Republicans, either.

REP. GERALD R. Ford, House Republican leader, never dreaming he might be tackled by one of his own teammates, decided it was a good time to charge through the center of the Johnson administration by accusing it of "shocking mismanagement of the war" in Viet Nam and a shipping tie-up there.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara called this "baloney." He said there was no bomb shortage and supply unloading was normal. His deputy secretary, Cyrus R. Vance, conceded there had been a shipping bottleneck last November. This made Ford look five months behind time.

THEN FORD'S teammate, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, got into the act, complaining that fellow-Republican Ford went pretty far with his charge of "shocking mismanagement." He asked: "Who are the shocked?" and a lot more.

All of which goes to show that the Republicans, like the Democrats, are at sixes and sevens over the war.

McNamara forecast new political discord in South Viet Nam, as might have been guessed from some of the statements coming out of the Johnson administration in the past few days, which seems to be looking every which way.

AND IF YOU couldn't figure exactly what they meant, or where they might be looking, maybe the administration couldn't, either.

For instance, McNamara raised one of the strangest questions of the war Wednesday when he said Americans would not try to prevent the Communist Viet Cong from participating in the elections of South Viet Nam if they tried to do so peacefully.

Would they be permitted to cross the military lines to head south, provided they carried no weapons? Would that be the only test? But what if they had weapons cached in the south? How could they be identified as South Vietnamese with a right to vote at all? There are many questions that could be asked.

McNAMARA said it would make no difference to this country if South Viet Nam went neutral. Wouldn't it? If it chose neutrality it might do so under Communist influence and soon choose to become Communist. Then what was all the fighting for?

Hal Boyle Things Crying To Be Done

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't what you do, it's what you may do that lends zest to life. It is the things undone that attract your interest.

All victories, to some extent, are boring. All possibilities, on the other hand, hold a potential thrill.

IT PAYS, now and then, to write down the things you've managed to get done; then put down the things you have wanted to do, at one time or another, but never managed to get done. You'll invariably find there are still plenty of goals left to keep you happy — and frustrated.

Here, for example, is a one-man's haphazard list of unachieved ambitions. I'd like to—Milk a giraffe.
Ride an elephant in a circus parade.
Pitch a good game of horseshoes.

SPEND A quiet week in a Trappist monastery with Casius Clay and Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Think of a way to wind up the war in Viet Nam so that everybody in it would gain face.
Discover a way to infect with my gnat all those who laugh at it.

Inherit a plantation on Tahiti with a million coconut trees tended by 10,000 long-haired maidens.
Give a harmonica recital at Carnegie Hall.

Come up with a magic ingredient that would make all martinis absolutely dry and replace the pungency in them with loving-kindness.

FREE ALL the stubborn bums in alimony jail on Mother's Day.
Walk a tightrope across the Grand Canyon, using nothing but an umbrella for balance.

Land by parachute in an all-girl nudist camp.
Have tea with Queen Elizabeth in Buckingham Palace and tell her, "Three lumps, please, Your Highness — unless there isn't enough for the other guests."

Break the neck of a mugger with a judo bow taught me by my young daughter, who watches spy programs on television.
Buy something wholesale sometime that looks like it was worth buying retail.

SEE CUBA'S Castro overthrown—and given a job as chief barber in waiting for the Beatles.
Come up with a new-type telephone with teeth that would snarl and snap at the ears of any teen-ager that talked over it longer than three minutes.
When you get right down to it, there's no reason for either boredom or complacency in life. The world is full of worthwhile things crying to be done.

Around The Rim Elusive Church Treasure Of Peru

A guidebook to a lost treasure, worth an estimated $100 million, will be published next month. The treasure includes a solid gold statue of the Virgin, gold and silver ornaments, and Spanish money.

THIS BULLION was the "church treasure of Peru," and included the valuables gathered from 60 churches in Peru during the 1820's, during the war in which Peru won independence from Spain. The treasure was reportedly put aboard an American ship, the Black Witch, for safekeeping. The ship was under orders to stand off the coast until peace was restored, but she simply sailed away.
Shortly after, a mutiny aboard ship left half the sailors dead and the treasure was buried on Cocos Island. The Black Witch was later wrecked off the South American coast, and its captain made his way back to New Bedford, Mass.

HE TOLD THE story of the treasure to his son, who in turn confided in a Capt. James Brown, who had saved his life in a waterfront brawl. They outfitted a ship and went to Cocos Island, some 480 miles southwest of Panama, and moved the treasure to a group of islands in the South Seas, east of Tahiti and south of Honolulu.
None of the men who made this trip, except Capt. Brown, survived—dying of poisoning and fighting. In fact, Capt. Brown admitted shooting the organizer of the voyage while the pair were in a longboat, trying to reach Australia.

IN 1902, George W. Sutton, a founder of the Adventurers Club of New York, organized a treasure hunt, with Capt. Brown as a guide, who indicated the treasure was on an island about 40 miles from Makatea. A typhoon blew the schooner away from the island, and Capt. Brown began talking irrationally, twice pulling a gun on his companions. Crew members began plotting, and Sutton decided it would be best to end the hunt.

THUS, THE TREASURE may still be waiting a discoverer. Theon Wright has pieced together this new book from the ship's log, diaries, letters, records, and newspaper clippings put together by Sutton. All this material is in a bank vault, preserved by Sutton's son. His widow also collaborated on the volume. "The Voyage of the Herman," will be the title.
Undoubtedly, more ships will be launched in a search for the treasure, after this handy little guidebook is published.

Holmes Alexander Must We Be Permissive?

WASHINGTON — We had better start hoping that President Johnson holds a rain check on his policies in the Dominican Republic and South Viet Nam, where we are soon to allow "free elections."

His policies in both places are those of the "permissive" philosophy which has gone a long way toward wrecking the American home, with its undisciplined offspring, as well as our school communities, where none but the brave dare tread. To apply the absolute rule of permissiveness, to let Dominicans and Vietnamese freely choose their governments in the near future, may smack of the democratic ethic — but it also has the ominous ring of damned foolishness.

IN THE Dominican Republic it now appears that Juan Bosch, who was overthrown three years ago for letting Communists into his government, has worked up his nerve to run for re-election. Bosch probably isn't a Red, but he is a weakening and the form sheets indicate that he is the anti-American, pro-Communist candidate.

If he wins and takes office, we will have to ask whether because of LBJ's vow not to permit "another Cuba" in the Western Hemisphere. Permissiveness toward the Dominicans is all very well, but nothing in the President's oath of office calls upon him to let our enemies capture another offshore base. If the Reds look like winning, Mr. President had better find some authority to call off the ball game and replay it in more favorable weather.

IN SOUTH VIET Nam the permissive spirit in which we have consented to the formation of a "civilian government" has the look of a policeman who keeps a model precinct by refusing to notice what's amiss. The war in the south has gone so well since the first of the year that officials here have been cautiously talking about a victory in that theater. It's getting so that Viet Cong units simply cannot survive American firepower, and the conditions for something better than a garrison state have been forming in South Viet Nam.

BUT NOTHING seems more likely to scuttle those conditions than an attempt to hold premature elections under the threat of a cooked-up civil war. All of our casualties, all of our investment, stand to be nullified by persons who couldn't care less.

The President took no oath to bring "democracy" to the Vietnamese. We are in Viet Nam for reasons that are vital to American security, and it is to this purpose that every President swears his fealty to the Constitution in the name of God.

LINCOLN, in his ordeal of saving the country, understood that there is a higher morality than the one that attaches to the civil liberties. A President has no primary duty to be democratic, lawabiding or humane when the nation's life is at stake. There are no limits on his assignment to see that this country and this people — never mind other countries, other peoples — come through alive.

"THE REBELS," said Lincoln, "are violating the Constitution to destroy the Union; I will violate the Constitution, if necessary, to save the Union . . . as commander in chief of the Army and Navy, in time of war, I suppose I have a right to take any measure which may best subdue the enemy . . ."

Now, there's a rain check for Mr. Johnson. Let him enslave and imperilize the Vietnamese, if need be, to subdue America's enemies.

Art Buchwald Hail To Thee, Dear CIA

WASHINGTON — It was revealed last week that a study project on Viet Nam at Michigan State University was in reality a cover for a CIA financed operation. It was charged that the project, which lasted from 1955 to 1959, was used to set up the Diem government in Viet Nam and keep it in power.

The university has admitted that it did go along with the CIA and knew the agents were on campus. But it denied an article in Ramparts magazine that it did anything wrong.

THE REVELATION has caused a certain amount of apprehension in the academic world and nobody can be sure anymore who is a legitimate student and who is a member of the CIA.

Just the other day at Rambling Tech University a professor of government called in one of his students and said, "Mr. Green, I don't understand this essay. You handed in nothing but a blank sheet of paper." "What's the matter, professor, haven't you heard of invisible ink?" "Invisible ink?"

"I RAN OUT of ink, so I had to write with my other pen. Put it in a pan of water. The essay's all there." The professor took the essay over to his sink and poured water on it. "This is very strange. Oh, yes, now I see it. The title of the essay is 'Zink the Zonk Government Zeek and Zak Higher Zip Education.'"

"That's right," Green said, "you have to read every second word." "I don't understand." "I can't help it. That's the way they taught me to write in high school."

"GREEN, I notice you never take any notes in my class. Can you explain this to me?" "It's because of my tie clasp. You see, my tie clasp is really a radio transmitter. I have a tape machine back in my room and all I do is tape your lectures. It saves me writing with invisible ink."

"Very ingenious, Green. Now I noticed during the last test you kept photographing the other students' papers with a Minox camera." "Yeah, well, it was just a training exercise."

"A training exercise?"

"YEAH, I was thinking of working for Xerox when I finished school."

"Green, I don't want to seem unreasonable, but the last book report you handed in was on microfilm."

"What's wrong with that?" "Nothing except you left it in a pumpkin behind your fraternity house. I don't have time to look for hidden book reports."

"I GUESS it's force of habit. Look, I've got a meeting this afternoon with a courier, I mean a fraternity brother. Is there anything else?" "Yes, there is, Green. I'm going to have to flunk you."

"Flunk me in government?" "Flunk you in the CIA." The professor whipped out a CIA card. "I'm your superior, Green, in charge of the operation at this school and you have made a hash of things."

"But how?" "Take a close look at her sorority pin which you're wearing."

"My, gosh, you can't trust anybody anymore." (Copyright, 1966, Publishers Newspaper Syndicate)

No Change

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Msgr. John Dudine, pastor of the Church of St. Elizabeth, spent his early years establishing missions in a Kentucky county which took its politics very seriously.

One year, he recalls, both Democratic and Republican partisans paid the same man $2 to vote their ticket. Later, both parties discovered what had happened and sought out the man for an explanation.

"How did you vote?" they asked. "The way I always do," the man replied. "I voted according to my conscience."

Billy Graham

Will you please explain the scripture I Peter 3:37. T.A.
The verse you refer to is: "Whose adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price."

This actually includes the fourth verse which makes clear verse three. Apparently the women of those days, like some of our women today, thought that "outward adorning" was what made them attractive and beautiful. The apostle Peter here is urging them to not be content with mere outward adorning, but to seek the adornment of a "meek and quiet spirit," which "is in the sight of God of great price."

Some people interpret this to mean that women are not to wear any "outward adorning" at all. But this is pushing the point too far. If we were to take the verse literally, as some do, we would have to assume that the "putting on of outward apparel" was wrong also, which of course we do not and cannot do.

The point here is this: spiritual adornment, the inner graces, are more adorning than those outward adornments which many rely too much upon. Don't stop here, the apostle says, but seek "the adornment of a meek and quiet spirit."

Texas College Students End Class Boycott

TYLER, Tex. (AP)—Students at Texas College have returned to their classrooms, ending a 10-day boycott sparked by the resignation of Dr. H. I. Fontellio-Nanton as dean of the college and his wife as public relations assistant.

Bishop Bertram W. Doyle, board chairman, said the college had suspended 51 students as a result of the walkout.

He said a "small group of students" had tried to intimidate other students from attending classes.

But a spokesman for the demonstrating students said demonstrations would not end until Horace C. Savage was dismissed as college president.

Dr. and Mrs. Nanton resigned March 29.

Dear Abby

Office Vs. The Home

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I want to work outside my home but my husband doesn't want me to. When we were first married I worked and loved every minute of it. Now we have two children, nine and four, and I want to work again, but my husband says no. The little one has no one to play with. She has plenty of toys but that doesn't stop her from hanging on to me all day. She cries if she can't be with me. She wants all my time and this makes me nervous. My husband says I have plenty of work to do at home, but I could get someone to do my housework and watch the baby. It's not a matter of money. I just need to get out. What do you think? BORED

DEAR ABBY: As I see it, the only good reason for a mother with pre-school children to work outside her home is because she needs the income. Small children must be TAUGHT to play alone, and not to hang on mother and demand all her time. Don't let your failure to teach her this vital lesson drive you to an outside job.

DEAR ABBY: Nine years ago I married a full-blooded Indian. (I am also an Indian.) We had three children. I divorced this man to marry a Caucasian. My Caucasian husband adopted my three children. The adoption was handled through the Tribal Court. I even had their birth certificates changed to show that my second husband was their legal father. Now my second husband is divorcing me and his lawyer claims that the adoption is not legal off the reservation and therefore he does not have to support my children. Is that true? IN DOUBT

DEAR ABBY: You need a lawyer to acquaint you with the law of your state. If you cannot afford to retain one, seek help from your local Legal Aid society. "Tribal" law and civil law may differ.

DEAR ABBY: How can a woman tell for certain whether a man's proposal of marriage is sincere? PROPOSED TO

DEAR ABBY: If a woman doesn't know a man well enough to know whether he's sincere or bluffing, she doesn't know him well enough to marry him.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Increase Due In Oil Use

DALLAS (AP)—Free world consumption of oil will increase 60 per cent by 1975 to 45 million barrels a day, Howard Ramblin Jr., chairman of Texaco, predicted here.

The current daily consumption of oil by the free world is about 28.5 million.

Ramblin told stockholders at the Texaco stockholders meeting that net earnings for the first quarter were a record high of $175,944,535 or $1.30 a share.

First quarter earnings a year ago were $162,941,781 or $1.20 a share, he said.

Ramblin said the petroleum industry is today "more vigorous and more resourceful than ever before." He said opportunities for its future growth "have never been more abundant."

For Sale: Old Trujillo Yacht

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican government has an ocean-going white elephant inherited from the Trujillo dictatorship.

It's the yacht Patria, and it's for sale. But don't start bidding unless you have $800,000. Dominican navy officials say that's the minimum the government could ask for the 316-foot, 2,300-ton auxiliary yacht.

Tall, sleek and proud, the powerful Patria sits amid the oily rubble of a Dominican navy yard, like a fading, bejeweled dowager gone slumming.

35 YEARS
A lot of high-priced life has been crammed into her 35 years. Down to the gold-plated bathroom fixtures, the yacht is a testimonial to the wealth this little Caribbean country can manage when it isn't at war with itself.

The Patria owes part of her value to Ramfis Trujillo's failure to make the grade at a U. S. military officers' school in June, 1958.

Ramfis was Rafael Trujillo Jr., playboy son of the yacht's owner, the Dominican dictator.

Angry at the humiliation of his school report, young Trujillo dashed off to Hollywood to set the yacht off on her last big fling. She was then known as Angelita, after one of the dictator's daughters.

FLOATING PLAYPEN
On urgent call from Ramfis, the yacht steamed from Santo Domingo to San Pedro, Calif., where she became sort of floating playpen for the Dominican heir and friends from the film colony.

"There were great parties nearly every night," recalls a navy officer, then on board.

"One noon, we were aroused by the noise of many small boats, some with photographers on board, circling the yacht. We wondered about their curiosity until someone pointed out a freshly painted sign on the ship's side. It read 'Zsa Zsa slept here last night.'"

The yacht was equipped to handle any size party. She has nine refrigeration units and seven large bedrooms, all air-conditioned.

Inevitably, the San Pedro partying attracted critics. Aroused by suggestions he was spending U. S. aid funds sent to his country, Ramfis replied that assistance to his father's government amounted to a piddling $250,000 while his Hollywood entertaining was up over a million.

PARTY OVER
Soon after that, the party broke up and the yacht began steaming home down the Mexican west coast.

Anxious to get home, Ramfis was irritated by the yacht's old engines that yielded only 7.5 knots cruising speed. A four-master with 34,000 feet of sail, the yacht could also manage, in a good wind, a top speed of 11.3 knots.

Ramfis ordered the ship refitted with new engines, the latest and the best. Between March and July, 1959, the machinery was overhauled at a Mobile, Ala., dry dock at a cost of $1,380,000. Patria now can do 15.7 knots.

Katy Head Hits Federal Regulations

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission has held back the potential of the railroads tremendously in the last 60 years, said John Barriger, president of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad (KATY) Wednesday.

This country, he said, will continue to have super regulations instead of super railroads until railroads are permitted to merge and are allowed to set their own rates on a competitive basis.

He said the "super regulations" deny the people some 25,000 miles of railroads which could be used for freight and passenger service.

"It is not too late to get super railroads. It is entirely possible to achieve them in seven to 10 years if they (the ICC) will let us go ahead with mergers and give us the right to compete," he said.

Presbyterian Meet To Elect Moderator

MONTREAT, N.C. (AP) — Election of a moderator to succeed Dr. S. J. Patterson Jr. of San Antonio tops Thursday night's agenda for the opening of the Southern Presbyterian Church's General Assembly.

Dr. Patterson, 66, a layman, will deliver his report opening the six-day meeting. The election will follow.

Three ministers who are expected to be nominated for moderator are Dr. Frank Caldwell of Charlotte, Dr. James Fowie, Chattanooga, and Dr. Rupert McGregor of Columbia, S.C.

Among 73 resolutions up for action is a proposal that the assembly censure the church's division of Christian Action for inviting Martin Luther King, Negro Baptist preacher, to speak at the last assembly.

The resolution, filed by a South Carolina church, also asks censure of the division for its invitation to Dr. Gayraud Wilmore Jr. of the United Presbyterian Church who spoke on race relations at the 1965 assembly.

Another resolution asks for withdrawal of the church from the National Council of Churches.

Politics Class

The third session of the non-partisan action course in practical politics will be held tonight at 7:30 in the community room of Texas Electric Service Co. R. H. Weaver is the discussion leader.

Blasts Of Artillery Mingle With Voice Of President

CU CHI, South Viet Nam (AP) — Propaganda loudspeakers blared in Vietnamese toward the jungled plantation where the Viet Cong was fortified in decades-old tunnels and trenches: "Give up, you are doomed. Turn yourself in, you won't be harmed."

On the perimeter of an American camp, atop his bunker just a rifle shot from the enemy plantation, a young soldier sat this Wednesday night huddled over a small transistor radio.

He was near Cu Chi, a town 20 miles northwest of Saigon in the heart of a Communist stronghold. The soldier and the others of the 2nd Brigade, 25th Division had battled for every yard in establishing this base camp.

In the dark, the chatter of the propaganda broadcasts made a strange background for the voice coming over the little radio. It was the President of the United States.

ARTILLERY BLASTS
His words faded from time to time and blasts from American artillery drowned them out every few minutes.

Clark Richie, 22, of Jay, Okla., put his ear next to the radio. He caught the President saying the United States stands for the self-determination of all people — that is why Americans are in Viet Nam.

Johnson quoted other presidents — Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy — and said America had made promises. He praised the American fighting man sacrificing his youth, and time, and maybe his life in Viet Nam.

Breweries Make Texas Seventh In Production

By The Associated Press
New breweries at Longview and Houston will boost Texas to No. 7 in the nation in the annual production of beer.

That's quite a standing for a state far more well known for its petroleum and its cattle.

The two new breweries — Schlitz in Longview and Anheuser-Busch (Budweiser) in Houston — will be the eighth and ninth in the state.

Both companies contemplate annual production of a million barrels each, swelling the state's yearly output to some 5.6 million barrels.

GIVEN FIGURES
The U. S. Brewers Association gave these figures for states with more capacity than Texas: Wisconsin 13.4 million barrels; New York 11.2; Missouri 8.7;

New Jersey 7.8; Pennsylvania 6.6; and California 6.6; The seven breweries already in Texas are Falstaff at Galveston and El Paso; Hamm's at Houston; Carling at Fort Worth; Lone Star and Pearl at San Antonio; and Spetzl at Shiner.

Strike-Hit Plant Seeks New Workers

CUERO, Tex. (AP) — Lone Star Textile, Inc., officials said they have no intention of closing the strike-hit plant and began advertising for new workers.

Officials said members of the railroad union refused Wednesday to cross a picket line to hitch up a boxcar loaded with "materials destined for Viet Nam."

Union spokesmen said 390 of the 420 workers either were on strike or observing picket lines.

Representatives of Local 1658, Textile Workers of America, called the strike Monday after one day's extension of an expiring contract.

The union says it is asking paid holidays, extra pay for Sunday work, hourly salary instead of a piece rate optional under the expired contract, and a guaranteed paid vacation.

Should French Quarter Yield To Expressway?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The gods of mischief must have grinned the day Sieur de Bienville hoodwinked an English sea captain and won the place on the Mississippi River where the French Quarter now stands.

France found it couldn't hold it. Neither could Spain. The site was below high-water levels and fevers killed colonists. Those who did survive were such a perverse breed their antics beguiled the rest of the nation to this day.

Tourists wander down Bourbon, Royal and other narrow streets in the quarter with their cameras and Yankee dollars to taste the essence of the old Creole settlement — now but a tiny part of sprawling New Orleans.

TO OUTSIDERS

To the wide-eyed outsiders, the French Quarter means fancy women almost naked on a stage, hairy artists with their water colors around Jackson Square, brash Dixieland jazz, happy taverns where bartenders punch buzzers and ring bells to denote the size of their tips.

It means architecture plucked right out of the Old World. Soft colored houses, flush with the sidewalks, are graced with exquisite wrought-iron balconies. They hide plant-filled patios and a way of life that clings to the customs of a more elegant age.

The government wants to recognize the quarter as a national historic landmark, but the city administration and the Chamber of Commerce are not sure they want such status for it just now. They feud with residents and property owners in the quarter over plans to construct

Pollution Unit Plans Hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Water Pollution Control Board said today it would call a hearing in June to cancel the Clear Lake Utilities Co. permit to discharge treated sewage into Mud Lake if Clear Lake can't reach an agreement with another Harris County subdivision, El Carey.

John Kibler Jr., representing El Carey, told the board attempts to merge a proposed sewage plant for El Carey with Clear Lake's proposed plant have failed. Each plant would discharge into Mud Lake, which empties into Galveston Bay.

an expressway along the Mississippi riverfront. Officials say the expressway would skirt the quarter and would not damage any view.

"LIVING MONUMENT"
"This is a living monument filled with tradition," Harnett Kane, author-historian and head of the Louisiana Landmarks Society, says of the quarter. His society is fighting the super-highway.

As New Orleans grew outside its original boundary, parts of the French Quarter became slums, including the once elegant Pontalba Apartments on Jackson Square. The apartment buildings, first in the United States, are desirable dwellings once again. Waiting lists to get in them are long, and the tenants are carefully selected.

Greatest renovation in the quarter, however, has occurred during the past 15 years. Imaginative buyers have turned even onetime slave quarters behind the streetside houses into charming homes.

The people who live and work in the quarter today strive to keep its traditions alive.

"About a year ago, when the Bourbon House, a popular cabaret, changed hands, we held a funeral for it, carrying a casket," said Robert Pinson, a black-bearded artist. Pinson spends much time in a neighborhood lounge with his crories, drinking an occasional beer and waiting for buyers for his paintings, displayed on the outside wall of the building.

"NOT BAD PLACE"
"I've been here 12 years, painting and living off tourists," he said. "The French Quarter's not a bad place to raise a child. There are courtyards to play in and the park. My stepson was 12 when we moved in here. He was able to meet writers, painters, soldiers of fortune and become friends with them. How many boys get an experience like that?"

Another contended the rest of the city doesn't recognize the worth of the quarter. "The up-

Dallas Musicals Signs Actress

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Sizzling blonde Carroll Baker will make her musical stage debut this summer at the Dallas Musicals in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

The signing for the July 25-Aug. 7 musical came as a surprise in show business circles, where Miss Baker had been considered firmly anchored to a dramatic screen career.

Miss Baker both sang and danced for the GIs in Viet Nam on a tour with Bob Hope around Christmas.

town people have the attitude, 'the hell with the French Quarter.' Those are the people who come down here at night and throw beer bottles in the street, not the quarter natives."

Like any community, the French Quarter has neighborhoods of varying degrees of respectability.

BOURBON STREET
Bourbon Street appeals to the young, the old, the eager innocents and the doorway peepers. That's where TNT Red, Linda Brigette Alouette and other strippers of lesser fame titillate nighttime crowds.

Royal is the street of gift shops, Brennan's restaurant, antique stores and art galleries. It attracts daytime throngs of honeymooners and middle-aged bargain hunters.

The upper half of the French Quarter — from St. Peter to Esplanade and from Rampart to Decatur — is generally residential, ranging from chic to shabby.

No one street has all of one commodity, though each has a distinct flavor. Fine restaurants, fun cabarets, art dealers and coffee houses are found on any street.

There's famous Antoine's Restaurant on St. Louis Street, and Pat O'Brien's Bar on St. Peter which draws college students and tourists like a magnet with bawdy songs and drinks named Hurricane and Zombie. Next door is Preservation Hall, dedicated to saving Dixieland jazz with rousing nightly concerts.

ITS ALLURE
The allure of the French Quarter is that which the alien holds for the ordinary. When

A Cub Pow Wow is scheduled for Saturday at the First Methodist Church activity building from 12:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. for all Cub Scouts.

The registration fee of $1.50 includes two sectional booklets. The general session will open at 1 p.m. with the opening ceremony, a prayer by R. L. Tollett, introductions by William McRee, and instructions by Noel Reed.

Sectional Pow Wows are slated for 1:30 and 3:45 p.m., with Jerry Williams and Dorothy Harder leading the games and crafts section at the early session, and Warden Mayes and Rhoda Board heading the pack administration and skits, puppets and ceremonies of the later session.

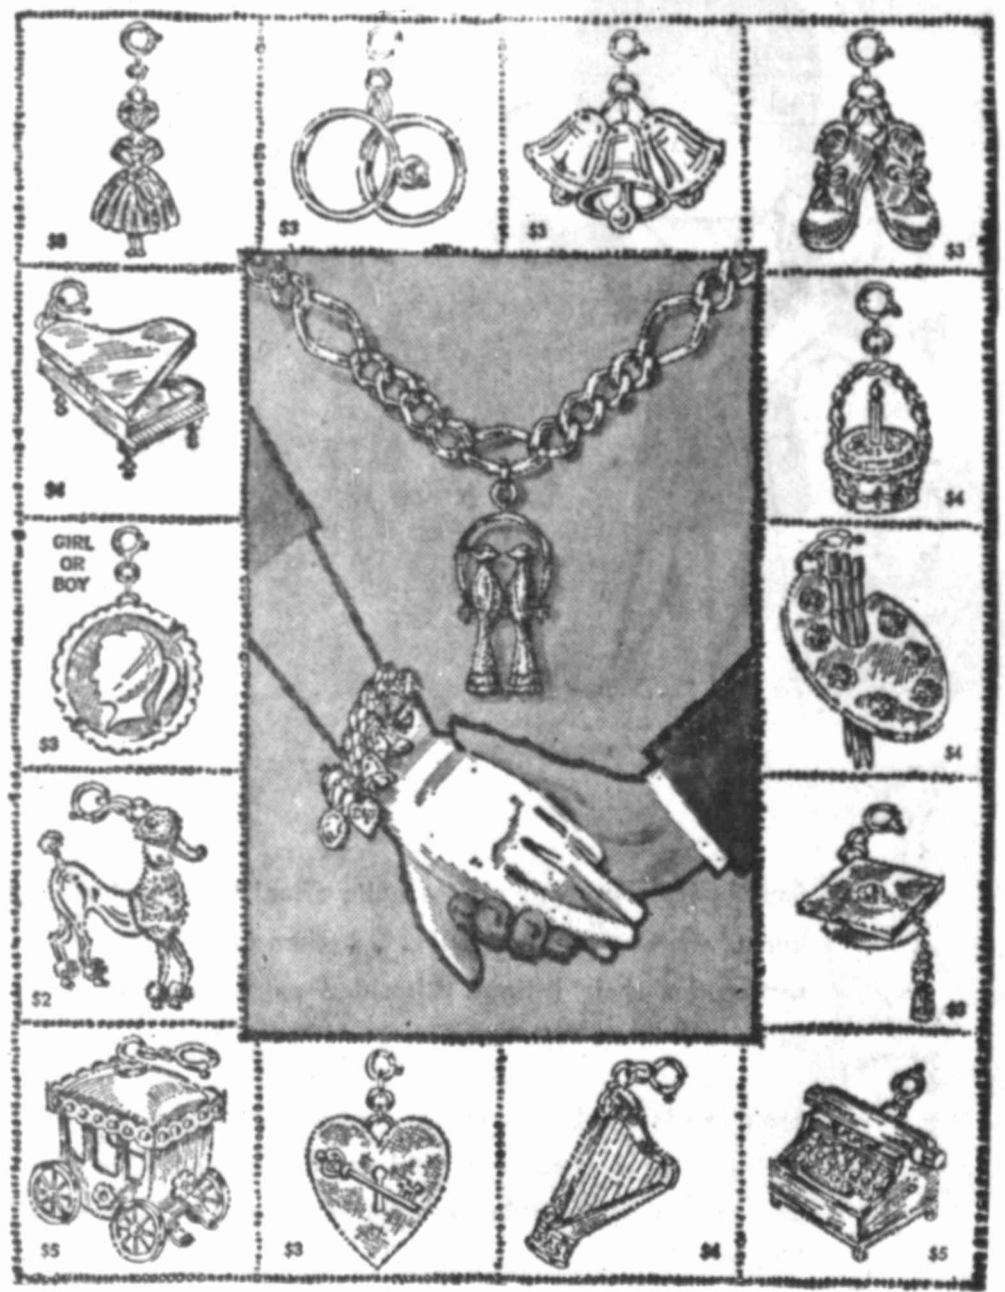

There will be a midway and refreshments handled by Mrs. Joe Horton and Lloyd Hiles at 3:15, and the general session awards will be presented at 4:30 p.m. by Noel Reed.

Bourbon Street tires, the jaded go to Decatur, the riverfront street that caters to seamen from around the world. To tourists, it's best known for the cafe au lait and beignets — coffee and doughnuts — served at the French Market. But nowadays Decatur's darker places fascinate the younger set. Debutante parties are capped off with Greek dancing at the Acropolis, Latin dancing and bongo drum beating at La Casa, hillbilly music at Jewel's, or an egg roll at Fong's. There's a sin for every sinner, and the preservationists want them made sacrosanct.
