Gemini Launch Scrubbed As Target Fails

Try Again In Three Weeks

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The launching of the Gemini 9 astronauts on a rendezvous and space-walk mission was postponed today for at least three weeks when their Agena target satellite failed to achieve orbit.

An Atlas rocket blazed away from Cape Kennedy at 11:15 a.m. (EDT) to propel the Agena into space. But eight minutes later, mission director William C. Schneider reported:

LOST BIRD
"We have lost the Agena bird. We don't know exactly what happened to it. The Gemini will not fly today."

He then scrubbed the launch of Gemini 9 pilots Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan, who were to have spent three days in space practicing maneuvers essential to Apollo man-to-the-moon trips.

For Stafford, it was the second similar disappointment. He and Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. were in the Gemini 6 spacecraft last Oct. 25 and their mission postponed when their Agena target satellite exploded six minutes after liftoff.

REACTION
"Oh, shucks," was Stafford's reaction on hearing of the failure.

"Oh, no! Oh, no!" moaned Cernan.

Stafford said: "You can't get your hopes up until that Agena gets across the States." He referred to the fact that the Titan 2 would have been launched after the Agena had gone around the globe once and was again over Cape Kennedy. During their three days in space, they were to have practiced several rendezvous and docking techniques with the Agena, attempted space rescue missions, fired the Agena engines to change orbits, and Cernan was to have made a record 2-hour, 25-minute space walk.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Monday that if the Agena failed to achieve orbit, Stafford and Cernan would have to wait at least three weeks until an alternate satellite could be placed on the launch pad.

ALTERNATE
This satellite, called an alternate target docking adaptor (ATDA) is not as sophisticated as the Agena. It has no propulsion system. It was built after the Gemini 6 failure for just such an emergency.

Today the Atlas rocket had lifted off 15 minutes late because of a fueling problem with the Agena. Pressure apparently dropped in a nitric acid line and the crew was unable to load as quickly as planned.

The Atlas launch appeared to be normal as the silvery projectile darted out over the Atlantic Ocean.

About two minutes into the flight, mission control at Houston reported it had temporary loss of radio contact with Agena and then had regained it.

CONTACT GONE
A minute later, the control center reported all contact lost.

A later announcement said the trouble appeared to occur "at staging." This would have been at the time when the Agena was to have separated from the Atlas.

During this period, there also was a report from the range safety officer at Cape Kennedy that the rocket may have been flying lower than normal.

A mission control spokesman said: "It appears it (the Agena) has come in, or is on its way in, somewhere. We have lost the bird."

He obviously meant that the Agena was plunging back toward earth, to a crash into the Atlantic southeast of Cape Kennedy.

REMOVED
The astronauts were removed from the cramped cabin of their spacecraft. They had been sealed into the capsule 15 minutes before the Atlas blasted away from another launch pad 6,000 feet away.

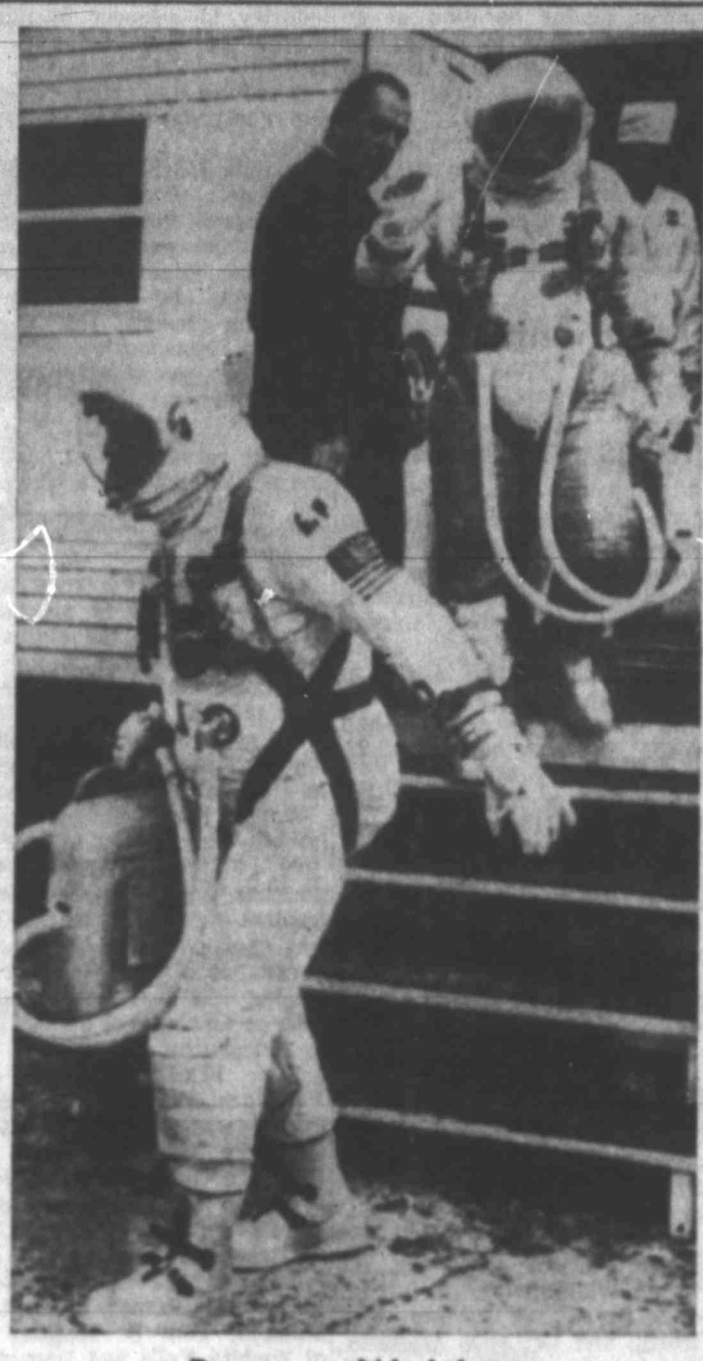

They were taken back to their ready-room quarters six miles from the launch pad.

The control center said it had no idea what went wrong and that a thorough review of the radio data will be made.

It was the second straight time something had gone wrong with a Gemini shot.

On the Gemini 8 flight last March 16, astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott successfully caught and linked up with an Agena in the first docking of two orbiting objects in space.

Several minutes later, however, a jet thruster stuck open and sent their spacecraft whirling wildly out of control. They came down to an emergency landing in the western Pacific.

AF, Army Complain Of Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force says it will be unable to meet any emergencies outside Viet Nam under its proposed budget for fiscal 1967.

And the Army says it may not have enough funds to carry out its operations the rest of this fiscal year.

Both services aired their money complaints to House subcommittees two months ago. Their testimony was released separately today.

NOTHING LEFT
Maj. Gen. Durward L. Crow, comptroller of the Air Force, told the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee March 16 that budget cuts imposed by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and the Bureau of the Budget will permit 100 per cent performance in Viet Nam, but not much elsewhere.

The general also said the cuts would mean the reduction of the airborne alert, which keeps a number of B52s aloft carrying nuclear weapons at all times.

Crow said the Air Force originally asked for $3.44 billion last October when budget estimates were submitted. The Defense Department and Budget Bureau lopped off $566 million, but restored $67.4 million after the Air Force complained. This left the total requested by President Johnson at $4.92 billion, he said.

Among the items cut over the Air Force's protest, Crow said, was the airborne alert.

On the Army side of the ledger, Maj. Gen. B. F. Taylor, director of the Army's budget, told a House Appropriations subcommittee he did not think both the regular and supplemental 1966 appropriations of more than $4.5 billion would be enough to carry Army operations and maintenance until June 30, the end of the 1966 fiscal year.

MORE FUNDS
Taylor said he may have to ask McNamara for additional funds the defense secretary is authorized to transfer.

Taylor's comments came as he testified March 7 on the 1967 Army maintenance and operations budget request of more than $5 billion, some $580 million above last year's spending.

He said the 1966 budget was $3.5 billion, with a supplemental appropriation of more than a billion dollars.

Monks Planning Hunger Strike

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government alerted troops of its elite 7th Infantry Division today to stand by in case of Buddhist rioting in Saigon. Two battalions — about 1,000 men — were reported moving in from the south.

The Buddhist hierarchy hurled charges of treason and murder against the regime. Monks in Saigon's main pagoda said they planned to start a 48-hour hunger strike Thursday. In the northern provinces, others said they would give their lives if necessary to force the government to end its crackdown on that part of the country.

POLITICAL PERIL
As the junta faced the political peril of a new round of fiery suicides by monks, dissident troops of the army's 1st Corps also kept up their resistance to the government.

A soldier in Hue fired two pistol shots at a U.S. helicopter carrying the new Vietnamese commander of the 1st Corps, Maj. Gen. Huynh Van Cao, and the U.S. Marine chief of staff in Viet Nam, Brig. Gen. Jonas M. Platt, on a mission to win over dissident officers of the Vietnamese 1st Army Division.

No one aboard the helicopter was hurt, but a gunner returned the fire and killed the soldier. Earlier erroneous reports said Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, the U.S. Marine commander in Viet Nam, was aboard the helicopter.

FEW SHOTS
While the Hue radio continued its antigovernment broadcasts, only an occasional shot was heard in Da Nang, 50 miles to the south, where 2,500 Vietnamese marines and paratroopers sent north by Ky Sunday tried to extend their hold on the main northern troublespot.

Government marines moved toward east Da Nang but withdrew when they ran into strong rebel forces. The marines controlled most of the city, but antigovernment forces moved into a third Buddhist pagoda and blocked traffic in the area. The two pagodas they already held were being used as rallying points.

Ky's forces had squads within a block of each pagoda but made no efforts to drive the insurgents out.

Venerable Thien Minh, regarded as a spokesman for the most militant monk, Thich Tri Quang, told a Buddhist rally in Saigon that "There is a plot to assassinate all Buddhists."

He demanded quick withdrawal of government troops from Da Nang and "an immediate solution" to the problem of restoring civilian rule.

As the rain poured down on the open air rally, Minh added: "All monks will sacrifice themselves to strike against the government."

At a major pagoda in Da Nang, wood was piled up to make immolation platforms. The monks said they were ready to set fire to themselves, as seven of them did during the agitation that caused the downfall of President Ngo Dinh Diem in November, 1955.

THREATS
Ky threatened to "liberate" Da Nang last month from his opponents but withdrew 4,000 troops airlifted there in U.S. planes when the government's election pledge to the Buddhists temporarily eased the crisis.

'Saucer' Was Weather Probe

MEMPHIS, Tex. (AP) — For awhile it looked like the little men from Mars or somewhere had dropped a chunk of hardware on the United States — a flying object of some sort. Then a Navy officer said it was just Americans that did it.

Cmdr. Robert Geiger reported today that the flying object seen Monday near this Panhandle town was special cigar-shaped weather probing gear that fell because of a parachute malfunction.

The military placed guards around the site today and were loading what was left of the equipment into vans for later study.

Pictures taken by civilians were confiscated by the military, but the commander said he was unable to say why, although he speculated that the military wanted them preserved for study. "I am sure the pictures will be returned to the owners."

Valles Testifies In Murder Trial

STANTON — Augustin Valles, 22, told a jury in 118th District Court here today, that he drew his knife and slashed at Santos Romero, 21, only because "I saw him reach toward his pocket and I thought he was going to hurt me."

Valles is on trial for the knife death last June 13 of Romero, who died of two stab wounds a short time after an altercation in front of the Valles' residence in Stanton.

He was the only witness the defense had presented Tuesday morning in its portion of the trial. The state had rested its case at 5:30 p.m. Monday. The state, represented by Wayne Burns, district attorney, will ask that the jury assess a penalty of 25 years at least, if they find the young Latin-American guilty, he said.

Roger Brown, defense attorney, is stressing the contention that his client acted only because he believed himself in danger.

Judge Ralph Caton, who is presiding, estimated that the case could go to the jury late today. He said he understood the defense was more than half through with its case at 11:30 a.m.

The defendant was the first witness called by Brown when court resumed today.

Monday, Sheriff Dan Saunders, Martin County, and Arthur Posey, Stanton police officer, told the jury of nine men and three women, of the stabbing. They described the wounds inflicted on Romero and told of the investigation they made and Valles' arrest.

Felix MaDonado, a young Latin who was with Valles and Romero on the night of the stabbing, told the jury how he saw Valles stab Romero. He said that Valles and another Latin, American, Eleano Brito, were quarrelling, and that Romero stepped forward in the role of peacemaker. Almost instantly, the witness testified, Valles turned from Brito and stabbed Romero two times.

Brito told a similar story, but denied that he ever saw the knife which Valles allegedly used. The wounds inflicted on Romero were in the abdomen and under the right arm.

He said that he and Valles had gotten into an argument. Romero stepped forward and sought to separate the two men, he said. He saw Valles swing at Romero with his fist and hit him in the stomach. He denied he saw a knife in the defendant's hand.

The knife used in the slaying has never been recovered. Burns told the jury.

Dr. Jack Woodrow, who treated the wounded youth, said he died about 45 minutes after being admitted to the hospital. Stab wounds, he said, caused his death.

City Is Ready To Open Rodeo

Rodeo headquarters were opened today in the lobby of the Settles Hotel, and cowboys and cowgirls began registering for the big show which opens here Wednesday evening.

Meanwhile, a prelude to the 33rd annual production of the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo will be a big square dance festival on Main Street between Third and Fourth at 8 p.m. today.

Wednesday at 4 p.m. the traditional rodeo parade, with its hundreds of horses and riders, will move down Main from Fourteenth, turn west at Second, and swing back south on Scurry. Thousands of spectators are expected to line the streets.

Deadline for rodeo contestants entering is set for 8 p.m. today.

Rodeo officials said only a few of the rodeo hands had shown up at 10 a.m. However, they added, this is typical. The bulk of the competitors drift in around 4 p.m.

For more information on the rodeo, please turn to Section B.

es are also offered for three best floats.

At 5 p.m. Wednesday, the Kiwanis Club begins serving its annual rodeo barbecue at the City Park for the general public. At the rodeo grounds, the guests of the rodeo association will be served.

Initial performance of the rodeo starts at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the rodeo bowl.

The rodeo is an RCA approved event and all points earned by riders here are credited in the determination of national championships. Some of the top riders and ropers in the business are expected to compete here.

SUMMER SEEMS HERE TO STAY

It looks as if summer is here to stay.

Monday's high of 100 degrees, a record for that date, was reached shortly after 1:30 p.m., according to the U.S. Experiment Station. The previous record was 99 degrees in 1910.

Last year the mercury climbed to 100 degrees as early as April 21.

The outlook for the rest of the week is for fair skies and sultry temperatures, with little or no precipitation. For the 33rd annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, this is good news.

Bradley Named Band Director

Bill Tid Bradley, band director at Muleshoe High School and a former Big Spring resident, has been employed by the Big Spring Independent School District as band director, it was announced today by school officials.

Bradley, a 1955 graduate of Big Spring High School, replaced Doug Wiehe, band director here for the past nine years, whose resignation is effective June 1. Wiehe resigned to accept a position as a band director at North Texas State University.

"We solicited him for the position," Supt. Sam Anderson said, "and we are most happy that he accepted." Formal action approving Bradley's employment came at last week's meeting of school trustees, but announcement was not made until the final concert of the year at Muleshoe, to enable the director to announce his resignation to the public at that time. His contract here is for one year, at $7,900.

Bradley attended Howard County Junior College and later transferred to Texas Technological College, where he received both the bachelor and master of music education degrees. During his college years he was vice president of the band, outstanding Texas Tech band student in 1959, and served as both secretary and president of the Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity.

He has taught at Farwell, Memphis and Muleshoe, and his major instrument is woodwinds with saxophone emphasis.

Professional memberships include the National Bandmasters Association, National Educators Association, Texas Music Educators Association, Texas State Teachers Association, Texas and Local Classroom Teachers Association and Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity. Bradley, 2907 Cactus.

Boosters Pick Ken Stephens

Kenneth Stephens will be the president of the Big Spring Band Boosters Club for the 1966-67 school year.

He was elected to head the organization at its last meeting of the current year Monday evening at the high school auditorium. Stephens succeeds Wesley Deats.

Other officers named were Bob Travis, first vice president; Mrs. Harry McKinney, second vice president; Mrs. B. E. Reagan, third vice president; Mrs. Warden Mayes, secretary; Mrs. Craig E. Campbell, treasurer; and Jesse Reid, Mrs. Merle Stewart and Harry McKinney, trustees.

The Boosters paid their respects to Doug Wiehe, director, who will go in the autumn to North Texas State University to direct band. Wiehe gave a brief report on the recent band tour which took the group to TCU, Sam Houston State College, and on to New Orleans. At TCU, he said the young students were privileged to hear a lecture by a composer. He expressed appreciation to the Boosters for their support.

Cavalry Roots Out Cong Unit Which Beats Retreat

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. air cavalrymen hurled heavy reinforcements against a force of 350 or more North Vietnamese regulars in the central highlands today and reported the Communists were on the run.

Helicopters airlifted three battalions of cavalry reinforcements to the battle scene 15 miles west of An Khe and 250 miles northeast of Saigon.

After brisk fighting throughout the day — the second day of the engagement — reports from headquarters of the 1st Air Cavalry Division said the enemy force was retreating at nightfall.

The engagement started Monday when an outnumbered company of cavalrymen clashed with strongly entrenched North Vietnamese. Some of this fighting was hand-to-hand.

The U.S. command in Saigon said 28 Communist troops were killed in the opening six-hour fight Monday, but a division officer at the scene estimated total enemy dead at 85.

American casualties were listed as moderate.

It was the only reported ground action of any size in the Viet Nam war, and continuing monsoon rains once again cut sharply into the American air offensive over North Viet Nam.

U.S. Air Force B52 bombers, flying above the weather at 40,000 feet, struck for a third successive day at the same target near the Cambodian border.

The eight-engine planes, coming from Guam, bombed a Viet Cong troops base and storage area 70 miles north of Saigon in Binh Long Province.

Also along the Cambodian border, the U.S. 1st Infantry Division ended Operation Birmingham and reported taking a huge haul of enemy supplies during the 24-day search and destroy campaign. A military spokesman said it was the largest seizure of Viet Cong base camps and supplies of the last six months and possibly of the war.

A U.S. spokesman said the Communists were well camouflaged and dug-in, and probably equipped with Soviet 120mm mortars, the largest type used by the Communists which the Soviets have supplied only in recent months.

The spokesman said the U.S. company of helicopter-lifted troops took moderate casualties against what later was estimated to be a North Vietnamese battalion — about 350 men. Another company of cavalrymen was sent in. The fighting broke off Monday night after six hours but resumed today with more American reinforcements taking part.

The spokesman said the North Vietnamese unit was located Sunday by a local group of Vietnamese militiamen. He said the militia found documents disclosing plans for the North Vietnamese to launch an attack today. The air cavalrymen called in air strikes on the area and then sent in a company.

Moyers Falls

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Bill D. Moyers, President Johnson's press secretary, was admitted Monday night to Bethesda Naval Hospital for observation after falling down a set of stairs at the White House.

"That's the way it is in every town where we play," said the official at the registration desk. Meantime, he said, the last of the rodeo stock will be in town today.

More than a score of riding clubs, sheriff's posse and other riders will be in the parade. Three prizes are posted for the outstanding riding groups. Free-

Center Of Controversy

Mrs. Maria Hood, 21, has become a center of controversy because she mowed her lawn wearing a two-piece bathing suit. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Neighbors Defend Swim Suit Wearing

EDMOND, Okla. (AP)—Mrs. Maria Hood, 21, a pretty housewife, didn't know what she was getting into when she took advantage of sunny spring weather to mow her front lawn wearing a bikini bathing suit.

Before she finished, police arrived with a complaint accusing her of indecent exposure. The complaint, circulated by Jack L. Smith, 30, who said he is pastor of a nondenominational country church, had been signed by five neighbors.

"I thought her appearance in a bikini was morally degrading," Smith said.

Mrs. Hood is to appear in court Thursday.

Some Edmond residents hired a lawyer for Mrs. Hood. The lawyer, Don Manners, said his clients want to contest a law which forbids them to wear bathing suits in their own yard.

T-41A Contract Is Confirmed

Bell Flying Service, Inc., Pensacola, Fla., has been confirmed as successful bidder in the T-41A contract for the coming year, beginning June 1, it was announced today by Capt. George H. Podrasky, base procurement officer. Bell will replace Central American Airways as contractor for the light plane phase of Webb's undergraduate pilot training.

The contract, signed by Col. James R. Root, director of procurement, headquarters, Air Training Command, was approved on May 6. It has been held since that time by base procurement for a final check on technicalities with the FFA Regional Office in Lubbock.

Bell's estimated bid was for $219,506, which is up almost $65,000 from last year's contract under which Central American Airways operated. Major portion of the increase is attributed to the addition of minimum wage scales for civilian pilot instructors and maintenance crews.

Memorial Rites To Bring Chief Of Information

Lloyd Hackler, director of information services for the Veterans Administration hospitals, will be here for the Memorial Day ceremonies at the VA hospital.

Hackler, who had heard of the traditional observances here, decided to attend the May 29 ceremonies in front of the hospital. Dr. Halvard T. Hansen, chairman of the American Legion committee for the observance, and Donald Van Meter, hospital superintendent, are looking for this year's rites to attract a record crowd.

Crude Price Hike Labeled 'Answer'

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—The chief spokesman for Texas independent oil operators said today the basic answer to the nation's lagging search for new oil reserves is restoration of crude prices to their 1957 level.

"Our reserve productive capacity, which sees us through emergencies, is dangerously low and will remain so until we get a restoration of drilling," said Malcolm D. Able of Midland.

REPORT

Able made his presidential report at the 20th anniversary meeting of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

His remarks were preceded by the unanimous adoption Monday of a floor motion that purchasers of crude oil be asked to restore prices to the level of the 1957 Suez Canal crisis.

Policy committees had hammered at such a need but had not included such a plea in their recommendations. The surprise motion from the floor was made by A. E. Herrmann, a former president from Amarillo. It drew immediate support from Able.

The outgoing president said he was encouraged after recent discussions with the President's council of economic advisers about the need for a crude price hike.

AIR CLEAR

"I think we have the air cleared," he said after telling the independents that major crude purchasers had said they did not believe a price increase would fall within the President's anti-inflation guidelines.

No specific increase was suggested in Herrmann's motion but Able said today a return to the 1957 level would mean about 20 cents a barrel over the nation.

"That can't be done by the little adjustments that have been taking place of late," he said. "There has to be something considerably more substantial. All of the increases of late have amounted to less than one cent a barrel in terms of national average."

TARIFF

Able said he also still believes a tariff or duty would be the most effective way to neutralize the economic advantage of foreign oil over domestic production.

"Sooner or later I hope and trust we will get back to that system," he said.

An imports policy committee report approved Monday called for a volumetric stabilization of oil imports. It also authorized appointment of a special committee to study a proposal that import quotas be used as an added incentive to bolster the drilling rate, which has dropped steadily the past eight years.

ESSENTIAL

Elmer Hoehn, administrator of the Interior Department's mandatory program to control oil imports, had told the independents that increased oil ex-

Mrs. Thruston's Mother Expires, Rites Held Today

Services were held at 10 a.m. today in the Lloyd Funeral Home chapel in Gilmer for Mrs. Clara Williams, 87, mother of Mrs. Reba-Thruston, Garden City.

Mrs. Williams died May 14 in Gilmer where she had lived for the past eight and one-half years. She was born Sept. 27, 1881, in Valley Mills.

She was a member of the Presbyterian Church of Corsicana. Dr. J. I. Cartledge and the Rev. M. V. Condit officiated at the services. Graveside rites were conducted at 4 p.m. today in Greenwood Cemetery in Fort Worth. Mrs. Williams had moved to Gilmer from Fort Worth.

In addition to Mrs. Thruston, who formerly taught school here, and is the wife of Roy Thruston, superintendent of the Garden City schools, Mrs. Williams is survived by three other daughters, Mrs. Clarabel Parker, Fort Smith, Va., Miss Marie Williams, St. Louis; Dr. Grace Williams, Gilmer; three sons, Dr. W. W. Williams, Fort Worth, and Dr. J. T. Williams, San Antonio, and Dr. Lewis Williams, Ennis. There are four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Bond Posted In Driving Charge

Charges of DWI were filed Monday afternoon against Raymond Edward French.

The complaint, presented to Dee Jon Davis, county attorney by city police, was filed in Howard County court. He had already posted $500 bond and been released from custody.

Police said that he was driver of a car which was in a collision with that of Sharon Lee Steyer, 17, at FM 700 and US 87 on Friday night.

ploration is essential because there is need for the domestic industry to discover 83 billion barrels of new reserves by 1980.

A natural gas policy committee report was to be submitted today.

Commissioner Carl Bagge of the Federal Power Commission told today's final session that tensions between gas producers and distributors and between producers and the FPC are hindering federal efforts to develop reasonable wellhead prices for gas sold into interstate commerce.

ACUTE

"Such resistance and hostility are particularly acute when we are dealing with the highly individualistic producing segment," he said.

Bagge called for a truce based on a willingness to negotiate, a recognition of the status of the parties involved in the negotiations, and a declaration of good faith.

"A civil war exists between the producers and the distributors of natural gas," he said.

Walter Koch, 60, an Austin lawyer, was elected to succeed Able as president of the 4,000-member trade group. An independent operator 30 years, Koch was chairman of a subcommittee that drafted a controversial pooling bill that was adopted without amendment by the Texas Legislature last year.

SECRETARY

William E. Carl of Corpus Christi was elected secretary. District vice presidents are E. W. Thorp of Beaumont, John F. Sutton Jr. of Austin, Chester Wheelless of Corpus Christi, L. W. DEAR ABBY

When To Use 'Sir'

DEAR ABBY: You let me down. You quoted Amy Vanderbilt as saying that when a secretary addresses a male visitor of her boss, if he is one of the "same distinguished men" as her boss, she should address him as "sir." If she doesn't know his name.

But she should never address a delivery boy as "sir." How could you let her get away with such snobbishness? I know some delivery boys who are deserving of far more respect than some of the "distinguished" characters who visit my boss.

NO SNOB IN L. A.

DEAR ABBY: I am a secretary, and I call all males who come into this office "sir." If I do not know their names, I don't care if he's a delivery boy or a corporation president. I treat every man as though he were a gentleman unless I find out he isn't. You can't tell anything about a man by the way he's dressed, either.

I have known well-dressed men to be foul-mouthed and vulgar. And some of the shabbiest-attired are kind, courteous and considerate, which makes them gentlemen in my book. Perhaps I am not up on my etiquette, but I don't consider myself any less a lady for it.

MR. ERLICH'S SECRETARY

DEAR ABBY: I hope you do not go along with Amy Vanderbilt's dictum that a lady NEVER uses "sir," alone to attract a man's attention? If so, how do you suggest one gains the attention of a clerk who is standing several yards away with his back towards her? Is she supposed to shout, "HEY, YOU!" Or perhaps, "MISTER!"

I think one should address all males whose names they do not know as "sir." And we should allow them to live in blissful ignorance unaware of the social errors they have committed.

Thunderstorms, with rain, hail and strong winds, swept areas along a squall line from southeastern Nebraska across eastern Kansas and northeastern Oklahoma today.

The Weather Bureau issued tornado or severe thunderstorm watches for a six-state area from Arkansas to Iowa. The tornado watch included southwestern Missouri and adjacent sections of Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. The severe thunderstorm watch included northwestern and north-central Missouri and nearby areas of Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa.

The Weather Bureau reported tornadoes touched down at Tonkawa in north-central Oklahoma and near Wellington in south-central Kansas Monday night but there were no reports of injuries or property damage. Several funnel clouds were sighted in eastern Kansas and northeastern Oklahoma. Stormy weather diminished in the Southeast after tornadoic winds and heavy rain pounded Columbus in west-central Georgia, injuring 10 persons and causing heavy property damage. Scores of buildings, including the Muscogee County courthouse, were damaged. One woman was injured at Phenix City, Ala. None of the injured was reported in serious condition.

Heavy rain fell Monday along the central Gulf Coast and exended into Georgia. A tornado struck near Milton, about 20 miles northeast of Pensacola, Fla., damaging several homes.

HCJC Building Progress Good

Good progress is being made on the new science and library buildings at Howard County Junior College, trustees were told by Dr. W. A. Hunt, president, at the regular monthly meeting Monday noon. Foundations have been poured.

A change order, which will provide glass tile in the science laboratories and at the same time save $625 was approved. Trustees also assured W. T. Boadle, representing Carpenters Local 1634, and Robert Pearson, representing Bricklayers Local 35, that prevailing wage scales were written into the contracts. Boadle and Pearson both suggested that local mechanics should be used on the job, but both said that at the present time most craftsmen were employed on other jobs.

Permission was granted to Masonic Lodge No. 1340 to lay, at its own cost, a cornerstone for the new science building.

The board approved $229 to Don Shoemaker for extra service in the business office during May. He is to become business manager effective June 1.

Dr. Hunt reported informally to the board on an audience with the Texas Coordinating Board for Higher Education. He was hopeful that junior colleges will get more equitable treatment in new appropriations. Monday's meeting was the first for board president, Horace Garrett, in several months.

The financial statement showed receipts of $7,299 in April, making $624,292 for the year, only $3,150 short of budget estimates for the year. The college anticipates $12,000 from summer school tuition, $3,300 more from state nursing training fees, $2,400 from veterans tuition fees, so revenues are bound to exceed estimates.

By funds, expenditures in April (and for the year in parenthesis), were: general administrative $4,127 ($29,383); general operating $2,024 ($24,096); instructional $27,253 ($234,485); organized activities none

($1,157); library $1,353 ($18,069); plant maintenance and operation $9,441 ($63,376); auxiliary activity $804 ($3,451); athletics $3,366 ($23,949); capital outlay $135 ($11,521); contingency none ($403). Total disbursements for the first eight months of the fiscal year stand at $429,559, or $194,433 less than receipts.

The interest and sinking fund showed no disbursements for the month and $28,268 for the year, leaving a $68,633 balance. The student housing fund, which operates solely on revenues, had $8,133 expenses for the month, $86,936 for the year. Receipts amounted to $4,845 for April, $127,687 for the school year.

open a heart in the event that South became the declarer.

Altho a heart opening would have netted the defense a quick decision inasmuch as West can trump the third round, the latter was not inclined to seek a ruff holding three diamonds headed by the queen. He, therefore, made the attacking lead of the jack of clubs, against five diamonds.

A small club was played from dummy and South ruffed in his hand. The ace and king of diamonds were cashed and, when East showed out, declarer's prospects nose-dived, since the loss of the ace, king of hearts as well as a trump trick appeared unavoidable.

South resolved to single in as many tricks as he could before surrendering the initiative. The ace of clubs was cashed on which the five of hearts was discarded and a club was ruffed in the closed hand. Dummy was reentered with the queen of spades to trump another club.

The ace and king of spades were cashed and a spade ruffed with the nine of diamonds for South's 10th trick, as West continued to follow suit helplessly. Now, when the last club was led from dummy, declarer scored with his remaining trump—the ten of diamonds as West played the king of clubs.

South cheerfully conceded the last two tricks to the opposition. In all, he took three spades and a spade ruff, two top diamonds, the ace of clubs, and four club ruffs in his hand.

Bleak Outlook For International Law

One of the favorite themes of lawyers, the so-called "rule of law" to which they have devoted some of their most eloquent rhetoric, lies pretty much in ruins these days. The rule is almost as discernible in the domestic as in the foreign field.

In the domestic field a most disturbing phenomenon has appeared. It arises from the theory that citizens need not obey those laws in which they do not believe. This has been one of the tactics taken by the civil rights movement. To a great degree the civil rights demonstrations have been expressions of nonviolent civil disobedience in the manner suggested by Henry David Thoreau. Much of the violence arising from those demonstrations has been precipitated by law-enforcement officers seeking to enforce local ordinances or state laws governing assembly and parades.

But the domestic defiance on a small scale of the rule of law must surely be nothing more than a passing phase. Unjust laws can be repealed within the democratic process. Public opinion can be depended on to do the rest.

The prospect of a rule of law in the international field is bleak indeed.

though. An eloquent and perceptive American, Dean Acheson, recently brought the subject into sharp perspective in a lecture delivered at the University of Virginia.

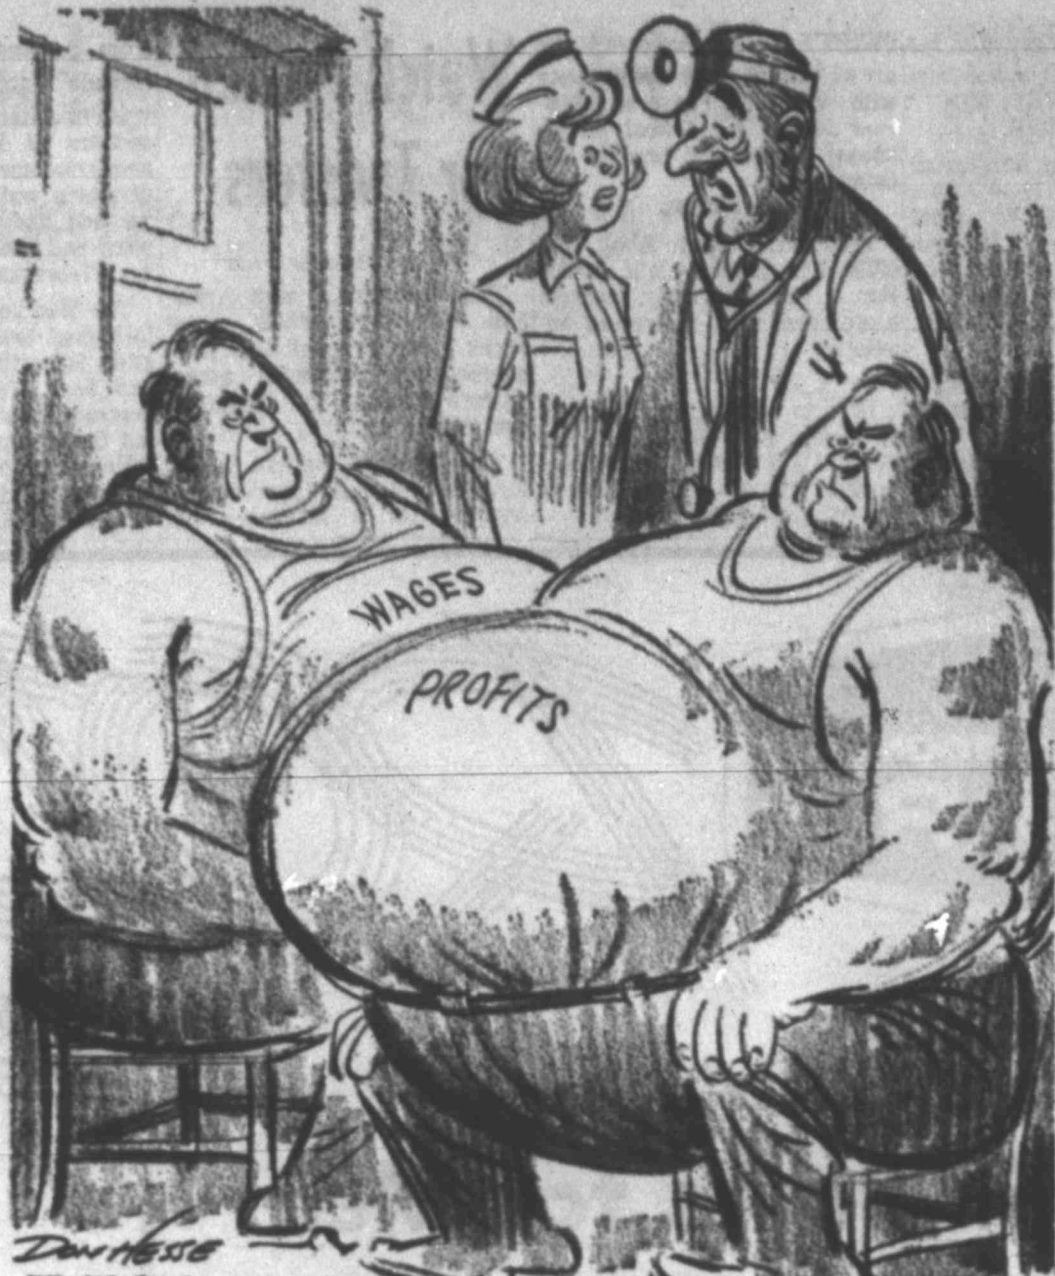

During the 19th Century the world lived under more of an international legal order than at anytime before or since, Acheson said. But the 19th Century society has "gone forever and taken its orders and values with it."

"Because nations make different value judgments and pursue different paths in seeking their realization, international law is inadequate to bring about world peace in this era of revolution," he said.

"If disagreement on values is wide, no agreement seems likely on how opposing values can be pursued in an orderly way," he said.

Hence we "must look beyond the resources of law and use all the arts and methods which the wit of man has devised and can devise" in the search for world peace.

If a law is thus found wanting, what is the answer? The answer must be the most skillful diplomacy this nation has ever produced, lest the law of the jungle triumph.

Uncertainty Is The Certainty

WASHINGTON (AP) — A country with a fever. The one certainty about South Viet Nam is its uncertainty, no matter how optimistic the Johnson administration sounds about it.

There had to be a showdown between the military government and the Buddhists who want to topple it while the United States is busy trying to defend it against the Communists.

PREMIER NGUYEN Cao Ky, who met with President Johnson in Honolulu last February, forced the showdown over the weekend when troops loyal to him seized Viet Nam's second largest city, Da Nang, a Buddhist stronghold.

This could mean civil war, and a bloody one.

The Johnson administration appeared deeply disturbed and said it had no foreknowledge of Ky's action. Johnson met repeatedly with his top aides. Then late Monday a high U.S. official said he doubted there would be civil war.

He would not let his name be used but met with newsmen after a late Monday conference between Johnson and his aides, including Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to Viet Nam.

BUT THIS official's optimism turned out to be limited.

While he didn't expect war now, he said he foresaw a long period of instability — while the United States was still trying to keep out the Communists — but hopefully thought this might evolve into stability.

And this gets back to a basic question:

If no civil war now, what about later? The country has been more or less chaotic for years. While Ky may get away with his showdown now, no one can predict there won't be a blood bath eventually.

The South Vietnamese have never had democracy. Their concern as they have demonstrated, it has never been so much for the national interest as for the interest of special groups.

THE MORE chaotic Viet Nam becomes, the less reason the United States can have before the world for keeping its forces there to defend against communism, a people who meanwhile make war on themselves.

If under such circumstances the United States had to pull out, it would be an international embarrassment for the United States without parallel in its history.

No wonder the Johnson administration keeps hoping things will turn out all right. Perhaps Ky will be able to perform such a miracle. He will be the only one in contemporary Vietnamese history who did.

And at this moment anyone trying to look at the whole situation objectively has to keep his fingers crossed.

THE SAME U.S. official mentioned above said one of the Buddhist leaders, Thich Tri Quang, is totally committed to the downfall of Ky's government and that his ambition would not be diminished by any temporary Ky victory.

Some Of The Bad Points

NEW YORK (AP) — This place is called "Fun City," but the truth is—taint funny, McGee.

To many it is a city of growing disenchantment.

O. Henry's old Baghdad on the subway still is a metropolis of glitter and possible romance, where anything can happen.

The trouble is just that—everything does happen.

New York still has the world's tallest skyscrapers, some of the world's greatest restaurants, and loveliest women. If you have enough scratch, you can buy anything here that's for sale—including love and justice.

Yep, it's still the city that has the mostest of just about everything. Among its claims to fame it doesn't like to claim:

It has some of the world's dirtiest air.

It has the world's noisiest subways.

It has some of the world's meanest muggers, so mean that women hate to go out on its streets after dark.

It probably leads the world in juvenile vandalism.

It has more people on relief than most foreign nations.

It has some of the world's worst traffic jams. You can grow old before your time just trying to get across town.

It has one of the world's largest sanitation departments—and certainly some of the filthiest streets this side of the casbah in Algiers.

It has probably the world's most frightened civic population. People are so afraid of getting involved in trouble they look away from a murder so they won't have to report it to the police.

And when it comes to strikes and work stoppages, New York tops them all.

If it isn't the longshoremen, it's the bus and subway employees.

Right now the nurses in city hospitals are ready to quit en masse; and three newspapers, most of the cabs, and the limousines that ferry passengers to airports are tied up.

I'm knocking the big town, I'd head for the hinterland.

Well, I would, except that I still love New York. I think I'll hang around and see how it looks when the deer, the chipmunks, and the wild foxes move back in and take over the cold deserted concrete canyons.

That shouldn't be too long.

To Your Good Health

She Worries Without Good Reason

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor wanted me to take a cortisone drug but I refused. I am concerned about its side effects because I want to have another baby in the near future, and for other obvious reasons. Could you recommend some other drug?—L. C.

I think you are confusing what MAY happen when cortisone is used for long periods with what will or won't happen from moderate use.

You can be sure that your doctor is perfectly aware of what side effects to guard against. I cannot see that moderate use of it has anything to do with another baby, and I don't know any other obvious reasons.

Cortisone, with proper medical supervision, is a beneficial medication. It can do things which other drugs cannot do. I hope that you follow your doctor's advice, and leave it to him to see that you suffer no harmful side effects.

You are worrying without a good reason.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, who is 43, had a plantar wart on her foot. The doctor cut it out. Later she went to a skin specialist. He burned it out. On her last visit he said she has to go through the same thing again.

What do you suggest, or where does she go from here? Is it cancer?—MRS. R. K.

No, a plantar wart is not cancer, but it can be one of the stubborn enemies of comfort. It is called a plantar wart because of its location, on the plantar portion of the foot, or the sole.

Sometimes these warts can be subdued readily, but the opposite is more often true, and it takes repeated treatments before you get rid of the trouble entirely.

Reason: The wart, due to a virus, tends to regrow, or a new one appears, until the virus has been thrown off.

Removal by surgery, or electrocautery (burning the wart out electrically) is the most effective form of treatment, so your daughter might best do as the specialist suggested.

My one word of caution is to take some simple measures to prevent spreading the virus. Careful foot washing, clean hose, and being careful not to walk around barefoot are the best rules.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a woman of 57. About nine months ago one of my breasts began to grow. X-rays showed nothing. What is your opinion?—MRS. M. W.

It is not easy to give an opinion because this is an unusual occurrence and I do not have a specific description of the enlargement.

Evidently your physician did not discover a lump and the X-ray was normal. You can take comfort in the knowledge that mammography (X-ray of the breast) is 95 per cent accurate in detecting any malignant disease.

The enlargement could be from some unusual hormonal changes at your age. Obviously you should have a periodic checkup by your doctor.

Never take a chance on diabetes! For better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes—The Sneaky Disease." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Around The Rim

Losing That Halo

When I was a youngster, the history books and the novels were unanimous in their description of the American Indian. He was a rat in spades, a vicious, brutal animal who had none of the saving graces and the poor, pitiful, kindly settlers were always innocent victims of the unspeakable savagery of the red men.

I FOUND this description a little hard to swallow even as a kid. I had a faint feeling that the settlers were not all lily white and that a lot of them were probably about as low down and mean as the Indians.

I also wondered what an Indian might feel like when a horde of invaders hit his country, killed off his game, muddied up his watering places, and then, to cap it off, spent holidays killing Indians much as a British lord might ride to the hounds.

TIMES HAVE changed, though, and the Indian now is being given a little better shake in the histories, movies and books.

A hint is left that maybe he was entitled to be a little peeved about the way things were and possibly the brutalities the white settlers inflicted on him were about as barbarous and cruel as anything he had ever dreamed up.

Now we are being subjected to a heavy coat of whitewash to sell us on the idea that "secret agents" which is sissy talk for spies are wonderful people, ingenious beyond all compare and engaged in the most exciting, noble and thrilling career possible in this mundane world.

I FAIL to get all steamed up. A spy may be a necessary evil but the work is not pleasant. In general, I do not like snoopers and a spy, regardless, is a sort of king-sized rat.

It may be dangerous, but not any more so than a lot of other jobs. Much work is anything but romantic. If there is anything romantic in talking some underpaid governmental worker into selling you copies of defense plans and tables of military information, I do not see it. Stealing a car would be more exciting.

PHOTOS I have seen of real spies, who wound up on the sticky side of the tape, are not like the ones in the television series and the novels. They have been sneaky looking, grubby characters.

A lot of tripe has been cooked up about Matt Hari — how beautiful she was and all of that. Actually, the photos I have seen of her are anything but exciting. She looks in these pictures, like an overweight tramp.

There may be suave, tuxedo-clad "agents" as depicted in the films but bulk of the espionage workers look like the man who changes the tire on your car.

MAYBE WE'LL reach the place sometime when the pattern changes and the spy is painted in his true colors. Maybe he will be stripped of his halo, like the early settlers have been stripped of theirs in the white man-red man saga.

Charlie And The Analyst

WASHINGTON — "This is an extra long couch, Monsieur le President," said Dr. Clarence W. Couchmaster to his tall, distinguished patient. "Please make yourself comfortable and tell me what your troubles are."

"Mon Dieu! Where to begin?" exclaimed the patient. "People say that I imagine myself Emperor of France. They say that asylums are filled with persons thinking themselves to be Napoleon. Who does that prove to be crazy—them or me?"

"THAT DEPENDS," said Dr. Couchmaster, who had had a great many disturbed statesmen on his couch. "If you really are a military genius and the restorer of the glory of France, then there is nothing wrong with believing yourself to be in the image of Bonaparte. In the United States, we have a president who calls Franklin Roosevelt his 'daddy,' and is trying to fight a foreign war and conduct a social revolution at the same time. Perhaps there is no great difference between imagining oneself the reincarnation of Napoleon and the spiritual dauphin of Hype Park."

"BUT YES," the patient asserted. "Dean Acheson said, in effect, that the reason for sending the GIs to back up the Marshall Plan was not so much military as financial. Many Europeans would not invest in European re-industrialization unless the Yankee troops stood guard, but that was many years ago, and I think we will never have full confidence until we reduce our reliance on outsiders."

"BESIDES, there is more than a small doubt that any American president would push that atomic button and invite nuclear bombs upon his own cities in order to keep the Russians out of Hamburg or Brussels. I, De Gaulle, am willing to have alliance with Les Americans, but not military integration. There is such a thing as carrying a good idea too far, is it not so?"

Dr. Couchmaster had to agree that Americans are pretty far gone on all kinds of togetherness and they find it very hard to understand rugged individualism in a Frenchman.

"CHRISTIANITY IS older and stronger than communism and the ancient races of Europe are more indestructible than tyranny," declared the man whom people accused of having a screw loose. "Does that sound like the ravings of a maniac? If En Europe can get rid of Les Anglo-Saxons, I think West Europe can keep and extend its freedom. Why not? We have a greater population in number, a greater and more stable prosperity, and I, De Gaulle, am developing a nuclear deterrent. Is that the talk of —how does one say—le kook?"

"NOT THE WAY you put it," admitted Dr. Couchmaster, who was beginning to think that much of the outside talk about Gaullist France was more kookish than what was actually taking place inside France. "Did you happen to read the recent testimony of a former Secretary of State before the Jackson Committee? Mr. Acheson gave a reason that has been little noted for the decision to station six divisions of the American Army in West Europe."

"But yes," the patient asserted. "Dean Acheson said, in effect, that the reason for sending the GIs to back up the Marshall Plan was not so much military as financial. A LOVELIER YOU

Good Grooming Is Basic To Beauty

By MARY SUE MILLER

Scene: Beach, Pool or Riverbank

Costumes: Bathing Suits

Action: Relaxed and Casual

Casual, yes. Falling apart, no!

Basic good grooming is basic to attractiveness under the sun.

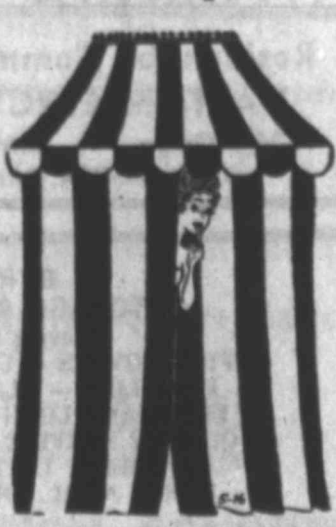

Old Sol's piercing light is anything but kind to faults. So why not be rid of those pesky little problems that detract from appearance and poise? Solutions to the most common ones follow:

Callouses on soles and heels, rough elbows and scuffy knees: All respond to daily massage with soaped toilet pumice, cleansing grains or special lotions made for the purpose.

Fuzz: Noticeable growths must be depilated. The razor method is best for underarms; or cream depilatory for arms and legs.

Flawed Toes: Weekly pedicures, given with manicure care, keep toenails in spruce condition. Between times, applications of cuticle oil and clear enamel is not used, buff nails to a gloss and underline with nail white. Ailments such as corns should be treated by a chiropodist.

Spider Vains: Camouflage with opaque make-up, formulated to cover discolorations. For best effect, applications require practice. But then the same can be said of any cosmetic, grooming rite, or program that furthers loveliness.

YOUR GROOMING

Put aside your grooming doubts and worries! Send today for "Your Grooming—A to Z," a booklet that covers every step in achieving smooth looks. It tells how to manicure and pedicure, use deodorants and depilatories, bathe for beauty, tend feet, hands, teeth and eyes, polish skin and hair, care for clothes, apply perfume, overcome personal posers. To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin.

'ROUND TOWN

By LUCILLE PICKLE

These next few weeks will be busy ones for almost everyone in the city. Most called upon for their energies will be the school youngsters. They not only are in the midst of trying to make their grades and prove it in the tests, but the end of school activities are numerous and exciting. Then there are the brides-to-be, many of whom are completing their college work a week or so, and in some cases a day or so, before the wedding.

A big deal tomorrow is the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo and there are any number of young devotees of the sport who will be riding in the parade tomorrow and some will take part in the area activities.

Anyway you take it, the young people are busy people.

The general public is hearing more and more about the slipped or herniated intervertebral disc.

A recent research study of 1,000 herniated and slipped disc cases revealed that 49.6 per cent of the cases became well, 39.1 per cent were much improved, 7.9 per cent were slightly improved, 3 per cent showed no change and 4 per cent became worse.

Consolidation of the first three groups shows 96.6 per cent of all cases became well or showed some improvement under Chiropractic care.

While in extreme cases, surgical intervention may be necessary, this type of case is rare. There is much evidence that diagnosis of "herniated disc" is a catch-all for many low back disabilities. In fact, there is much to indicate that most so-called "herniated disc syndromes" are nothing more than vertebral subluxations.

Nevertheless, 483 out of 1,000 cases had been reported medically

Wagon Wheel Drive Ins Are Favorites Locally

There comes a time when the housewife begins to look for a way to feed the family without having a lot of dishwashing and bathing and dressing up to do before meal time. When it happens, one solution is to look to the three popular places in Big Spring where you can drive in, order what you want, and eat in the comfort of your car — take a rest while you are eating a wholesome meal. The places are the Wagon Wheel Drive Ins. Mrs. H. M. Rainbolt, owner, says Westerners believe in eating beef, and all kinds of uses are made of it at the Wagon Wheels.

Wagon Wheel No. 3, out on US 80 west, has the "best barbecue in town." The real pit-cooked pork sandwich, spare ribs, sausage, chicken and beef are mouth-watering. Wagon Wheel No. 4 has service inside as well as curb service.

All you have to do at the Wagon Wheels is to drive up and check the menus which include the largest, juiciest hamburgers you ever ate, along with the side lines, which includes pickles, French fried potatoes and the drink of your choice.

Other foods at the Wagon Wheels include all kinds of kinds of sandwiches, as well as the Wagon Wheels' famous fried chicken, drinks, including coffee, and others made at the well-equipped fountain.

Then there is the service of providing lunches for working people. A telephone call to your favorite Wagon Wheel Drive In will have the working man's or woman's lunch ready and waiting, piping hot, when asked for — a lot of Big Spring people are using this service.

After all, the Wagon Wheel Drive Ins are in Big Spring to serve the public, and a telephone call will have that service under way to please that public.

People with just a few minutes to eat, who drive up without the time to do a lot of waiting, will find the Wagon Wheel Drive Ins have real, old-fashioned courtesy and service.

Cosden Country Club Manager Is No Stranger

Cosden Country Club's new manager is a man of many faces, talents, experiences — and is a transplanted Yankee who became unhappy when the Air Force sent him to his home state.

George K. MacConnell, 47, a retired USAF SM. Sgt., born in Orange, N. J., but reared on Staten Island, New York, was stationed in his home state but once during his 21-year career, and by that time had become so Texasized he pleaded for transfer from Yankee-land.

He is no stranger to Big Spring or club managing, either. In 1944-45, MacConnell was stationed at Big Spring Bombardier School as a warrant officer, and served in several capacities while here — squadron adjutant, commander, chemical warfare officer and assistant officers' club officer.

Since his retirement a year ago, MacConnell has been in San Antonio where he was personnel technician at Randolph AFB.

Before that, he was in Panama for six years, four of them as a member of the Air Force. He was in charge, at various times of the Officers Club, the enlisted men's club, at Albrook AFB, and for two years as a civilian Breakers Club at Coco Solo. All in all, MacConnell has had 18 years experience in club management.

Over the years, he has become a transplanted Texan. "I was the first Yankee ever transferred to San Angelo," he laughed. "That was when they first opened Goodfellow in 1941."

His talents and experiences are extensive. He is past master of Toastmasters in Panama; was editor (1965) of the 22,000 circulation Air Force Sergeants Association "Countdown," a monthly, non-service sponsored newspaper; has attended San Angelo College, Southwest Texas State College, Cornell University, the Canal Zone Junior College and San Antonio College.

While at Cornell, he took that university's famous hotel management course, the last year at San Antonio College. MacConnell took a course in computers (and finished with an A). Even though he made a high mark, he said, "I'd better leave that kind of thing to the younger ones."

He and his wife, Kathryn, (a San Angelo native), have two daughters who married Air Force men; and a son in the Air Force who has just finished a tour in Goose Bay, Labrador, and is now going to Spain.

The MacConnells are presently living in their house trailer, with their two parrots, a Pekinese and an extensive sea-shell collection and MacConnell's chess sets, but plan to move into the manager's house when everything gets unpacked.

MacConnell succeeds W. E. (Rat) Ramsey, who has managed the Cosden Country Club since it was opened in 1955. Ramsey had worked for Cosden and played on its baseball club prior to World War II, and after the war he resigned a post at Ozona Country Club to take the place here.

J. M. Gaddis Rites Today In C-City

COLORADO CITY (SC) — James M. Gaddis, 76, Colorado City, died in an Abilene hospital Sunday night after a short illness. He was born in Arkansas Dec. 12, 1889, and married Victoria McBroom in Arkansas in August of 1917. He had lived in Colorado City since 1945.

The funeral was to be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Kiker and Son Chapel with the Rev. Larry Lackey, pastor of the First Assembly of God, officiating. Burial will be in the Colorado City Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, three sons, Leroy Gaddis, Lloyd Gaddis, and James Gaddis, all of Colorado City; one daughter, Mrs. James Kelley, Westbrook; 15 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Hard Road Ahead For CIA Check

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is expected to approve today a resolution to add three of its members to the seven-member Central Intelligence Agency watchdog committee.

But that will be only the beginning of a long, hard road for the resolution which has been denounced by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services subcommittee responsible for overseeing the activities of the intelligence organization.

Under the usual procedure, the resolution next must go to the Senate Rules Committee. There a majority may bottle it up.

If it ever reaches the Senate, it will collide immediately with Russell, who captains the Senate's inner circle.

Russell, also head of the Armed Services Committee, has put his prestige on the line against the resolution which is supported by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Russell told the Senate Monday "There is no justification whatever for any committee to muscle in on the jurisdiction of the Armed Services Committee so far as the CIA is concerned."

At stake in the current controversy is the issue of whether the CIA has overstepped the bounds of its intelligence-gathering mission to influence foreign policy.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., sponsor of the resolution, says it has. Russell called that contention "sheer poppycock."

"There is simply not a scintilla of truth in such a charge," Russell said, "and not a single concrete case can be provided where it has done so."

The CIA, which Russell says has to stand mute when it is assailed because of the peculiar nature of its assignment, does not want any additional senators soaking up its secrets.

Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, touched on that point when he told the Senate Monday the watchdog group was distinguished by its infrequency of leaks while the Foreign Relations Committee has become a sieve of information.

Russell said public criticism of the CIA's operations and news leaks might cause the agency's informants around the world to "close up like clams. Or worse than that, to lose their lives."

Men See 'Saucer' Fall, Burn

MEMPHIS, Tex. (AP) — Rural residents told of seeing a cigar-shaped object drop from the sky Monday, and two men said it caught fire and burned without apparent cause.

Still another farmer in the same vicinity reported he heard an explosion, watched another unidentified flying object fall and picked up a four-foot strip of what appeared to be tin and aluminum.

David Duncan, 28, with Radio Station KGBH in Memphis, related these details:

Mrs. Ernest Lee, whose home is 3 miles southeast of here, spotted something which looked like two parachutes" hovering in the air about 2 1/2 miles distant at 4:10 p.m.

Duncan and several friends tried to pursue the object, "cone shaped and silver looking," in a car and it appeared to halt near the Salisbury community 5 miles south of Memphis. As they drew near, however, it drew away at high speed.

J. W. Hatley, a farmer in the Brice community 21 miles west of here, and three other men told of watching minutes later as something "about 20 feet long, 4 to 5 feet wide and shaped like a cigar" plunged to earth.

Doctors Still Checking Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors say they have not yet fully defined the arthritic condition that has kept former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in a hospital for nearly two weeks.

"Gen. Eisenhower is undergoing treatment for arthritis and is receiving physical therapy and medication," said a medical bulletin issued Monday by Eisenhower's doctors at the Army's Walter Reed General Hospital.

"Investigation is still being conducted to further define the arthritic condition," the bulletin added.

Doctors declined to amplify on Monday's bulletin.

Teenager Drowns In Long Swim

BONHAM, Tex. (AP)—David Graham, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Graham, drowned Monday while trying to swim across City Lake.

A companion said Graham sank beneath the water before he got across the 100-yard-wide lake.

It bore no markings, they said, and "appeared to have radios and about 20 small batteries on the outside."

"It was big enough to carry a man, and I got the feeling that it did," Hatfield recounted.

Hatley and one of his companions went to notify authorities, leaving two other men on guard. The strange object started smoking, burst into flame and burned, Hatley reported.

Glen Callahan, a farmer in the Salisbury community, told of hearing an explosion about 4 p.m. and seeing something fall from the sky. He gave Duncan what the two described as a semicircular piece of light metal about 4 feet long.

Lady, you'll just love flameless electric cooking ...it costs so little a meal

When you cook the modern electric way you cook for pennies. It costs an average of only about 3c a meal. Surface units on an electric range use heat thriftily, cooking by direct contact with utensil bottoms. The electric oven, insulated all around including the bottom, keeps heat inside where it belongs. And once the oven reaches the baking temperature you select, it uses electricity only about one-fourth of the cooking time. The low cost of cooking delicious, wholesome meals for your family is another of the many reasons why you'll just love flameless electric cooking.

Parks Board To Study Lease Proposal For Playing Field

Students Call Off Protest

CHICAGO (AP) — A 6-day demonstration protesting cooperation between the University of Chicago and the Selective Service was called off today by a group of some 500 students.

The students voted to remove a token protest group of 25 students from the university's administration building because they did not want the university to feel coerced by their action.

Some 300 students at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, continued their protest against the school-government cooperation.

Earlier, University of Chicago officials had turned down an offer by the students to allow school employees back in the administration building, which the protesters had held since last Wednesday.

The demonstrators' chief demand was that class ranking of students be dropped "until full debate can take place."

In Madison, the students, carrying mattresses and blankets, moved into the administration building of the University of Wisconsin Monday night.

Chancellor R. W. Fleming said no attempt would be made to eject the students unless they interfered with normal business.

Classroom rank and nationwide deferment testing results are to be used, under new Selective Service policies, to determine whether a student is to be immune from the draft.

put up a lighted softball field, according to Larry Crow, city manager. The city did not want to commit itself to the heavy outlay a softball field would entail.

The board also will consider two items presented to the board 10 months ago.

A group of citizens living on the west side of the golf course, represented by Joe Mathis, presented on July 21, 1965, a petition with 48 signatures asking that an area east of Parkway Road, adjacent to blocks 2600 and 2700, be developed into a parks and recreation area.

On the same date, Red Williams, representing the Model Airplane Flying Club, had asked the city to grade a runway at Moss Creek Lake for model airplane flying. The runway would need to be about 100 feet wide and 250 feet long, and in addition a circle about 150 feet in diameter removed slightly from the runway.

The board will also consider a method for naming the city's parks, many of which have no name. The ones with names do not follow any method. In some cities, the parks are named after former governors, city mayors, war heroes or the street names near which they lie.

Board members also intend to set some definite plans for priority for future improvements, so that recommendations may be made to the city commission by autumn.

Ernest Lillard, director of public works, will present a revised list of the city golf course greens fees and payment schedule.

His recommendations are: Greens fees—daily, week, $1; daily, weekend, $1.50; monthly, $16; quarterly, $25; yearly, $75.

All greens fees to be due and payable on the first of the month in which they are due. The schedule.

Explosion Stops Takeoff

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An explosion wracked an outboard engine of a Continental Airlines jet and hurled debris into the wing and fuselage early today, forcing the pilot to abort a takeoff for Denver.

The 22 passengers and seven crew members of Flight 11 fled the aircraft moments later. There were no injuries.

The four-engine Boeing 720B had started its takeoff run when the explosion occurred. Deputy Fire Chief John H. Wass said fire started in the outboard engine after the explosion and spread to the in-board engine. He said debris punctured the wing and outer skin of the fuselage, but none entered the passenger compartment.

The pilot, Capt. Ray R. Jehlik, referred to the explosion as a "loud report." He cut the power to the engines, braked and turned the aircraft onto a taxiway. The passengers and crew were evacuated by emergency chutes.

Hospitals Set For Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The city's 21 municipal hospitals still were turning away all non-emergency patients today in a rush effort to reduce caseloads by Monday when 1,430 nurses have threatened to resign.

Six upstate hospitals stood ready to accept between 140 and 160 tuberculosis patients from the Bronx Municipal Hospital Center.

The city has said it will accept his proposals, but a spokesman for the New York State Nurses Association said the group would wait to see them.

The municipal hospitals contain 17,500 beds. About 15,000 patients now are hospitalized. Nonmunicipal hospitals would not be affected.

The nurses are seeking an increase from the present annual minimum of $5,150 a year to $6,400. The city's last public offer was $5,750. They also are asking for an end to assignment of nonnursing jobs, and higher meal and uniform allowances.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Den Mother Critical Of Scout Exposition Stories

To the Editor: When the Boy Scout program in Big Spring meets its demise, it is reassuring to know that the Herald will provide a flowing obituary. Meanwhile, those of us who try to give life to this program remain anonymous.

On Saturday, May 14, many citizens of our town saw our youth in action, showing off their Scouting skills. Many others should have seen it. The Scout Exposition was a well organized and impressive show, worthy of the attention of the whole community. To put it on, hundreds of Scouts and Scouters spent hours of their own time without pay or recognition. It was hard work, but nothing really worthwhile is obtained free.

By putting on this show it was hoped that many who are not Scouts or Scouters would see the merit in this program. Because of what they saw, many others would wish to join.

However, boys selling tickets were hampered by lack of advance publicity. No one but Scouters know what the Exposition was. The Herald had carefully concealed the announcements between the race results and the London human interest stories. The headings were almost purposely misleading.

It is only fitting then, that those who didn't attend don't know what they missed. Sunday's article was the least conspicuous of them all. There was not one picture of the boys in action; no remarks about what the winners did to merit their awards. It was instead the usual "list of awards" so common to the Herald.

Since the Herald staff seems so well versed in writing obituaries, especially on the front page for really prominent citizens, then we shouldn't have to wait long. The Scouting program in Big Spring would surely die if it depended on the Herald for publicity. If this happened the community of Big Spring would lose one of its most worthwhile public services.

Burleson Back To His Desk

ABILENE—Congressman and Mrs. Omar Burleson left Abilene Monday to return to Washington, D. C., for the remainder of this session of the Congress. Congressman Burleson had scheduled a hedge-hopping tour of the district during the week following the Democratic primary, but weather grounded him four days of the past week and he was unable to carry out the scheduled tour. He and Mrs. Burleson did manage to visit in a few places by automobile to express their thanks to those who assisted in his campaign.

Burleson said, "I feel fortunate that many items of major legislation are yet to come in this session of Congress and during the time I have necessarily spent in the district campaigning for re-election, a minimum of major legislation has come up." He added, "I am expecting much more to come up, and, in fact, the measure calling for extension of coverage and increasing the minimum wage is set to come up in the House this week. I would have felt compelled to return to Washington during the campaign if this, or any other highly important measure, had come up earlier."

The Burlesons spent Saturday and Sunday in Meadow, Texas, with the congressman's mother, who will be 91 years of age on her next birthday.

Few Accidents

Three minor accidents were reported Monday. Involved were the cars of Terry Adelaide Bull, 2505 Lynn Drive, at East Fifteenth and Virginia; the car of Willie Joe Barnett, 2102 Runnels, and the parked car of Dean Long, 11624 Runnels, in the 1800 block of Gregg; and the cars of Charley Lee Upton, 810 San Jacinto, and John G. Australian Bishop Speaks Thursday

St. Mary's Episcopal Church will host the bishop of the overseas partner diocese of the Diocese of Northwest Texas on Thursday.

The Rt. Rev. Thomas E. Jones, Bishop of Willochra in Australia, will speak at 7:30 p.m. at the church. This is his third visit to the Diocese of Northwest Texas.

Bishop Jones, a native of England, has been in Australia for more than 40 years. He went as a student trainee for the Bush Church Aid Society, was ordained a priest in 1929, and continued his work with the Bush Church Society. He took charge of that organization's activities in 1934.

He was consecrated as Bishop of Willochra in 1958, and his first tour of the United States took place the following year. He was awarded the Order of the British Empire in 1956 for his services to the people of the "Outback," principally in connection with the establishment of the church's flying medical service and the radio school. Because of vast distances in the diocese there, most of the children attend school by listening to the receives his lessons on the radio. Bishop and Mrs. Jones have three children, and one of them, Thomas Vincent, is a priest who spent part of last summer in the Diocese of Northwest Texas at the conference center north of Amarillo.

During his duty as Bishop of Willochra, Bishop Jones has seen built a home for the aged and a diocesan youth and conference center. The center was made possible by gifts from many Americans whom Bishop Jones met on previous visits to this country.

Jailed For Bogus Money

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—A tip from a former New Orleans city detective caused federal authorities to jail three Oklahoma men Monday on charges of passing counterfeit $20 bills.

Lloyd Kruckburg, an Amarillo department store clerk who once worked with the forgery detail in New Orleans, told officers he spotted a bogus federal reserve bank note as a customer started to spend it.

Acting on Kruckburg's tip, police arrested Richard E. Hix, 23, of Kiefer, Okla., a block from the store. They said he had two counterfeit bills crumpled in a pocket.

Questioners said Hix told them Philip J. Sharp, 31, a confederate from Mounds, Okla., was on a bus en route to Oklahoma City. Detectives took Sharp off the bus two minutes before it departed.

Sheriff's deputies later arrested Donald Lee Stone, 23, of Tulsa, Okla., using a description furnished by Hix and Sharp. Dist. Judge Gene Jordan granted a writ of habeas corpus asked by Stone's lawyer, and a treasury agent then arrested Stone before he could leave the courtroom.

U.S. Commissioner J. W. Bagwell fixed bond at $20,000 for Stone and $10,000 each for Hix and Sharp.

Authorities accused the three of passing 11 phony bank notes in Amarillo and Groom, Tex.

Jack Lewis has just added Buick's new Opel Kadett to his line.

Can you blame him?

Opel Kadett is General Motor's lowest-priced car. Yet it comes with features you normally don't expect to find in a car of this price. Take the sport coupe, pictured above. Bucket seats. Carpeting in front and back. Console-mounted sport-gearshift. But wait. Come get the rest of the surprises—in person.

Service facilities? Plenty. Liberally sprinkled with good manners. Come in and leisurely inspect Opel Kadett. No arm-twisting or hard sell. Opel Kadett stands on its own four wheels. So why don't you enjoy a demonstration drive in Buick's new Opel Kadett. There's one thing for sure. You'll look good doing it.

Over 600 At Church Meet

HOUSTON (AP) — A Committee statement charging it is "untrue to Biblical witness" for the church to remain silent during the current "sexual revolution" will be studied this week by Presbyterian ministers and laymen at the 111th synod of Texas assembly.

The three-day meeting of the statewide organization for the predominantly Southern denomination began today.

More than 600 persons were expected to attend, with 425 churches in Texas and New Mexico represented.

Delegates also will study a proposal to limit the church's legal control over Austin College at Sherman, review last year's church agency work and set directives for the coming year.

The statement on sexual morality urges the church to be "relevant to man's need for a positive and constructive attitude toward sex" and to guide youth and adults in Christian understanding of their sexuality.

Dr. E. T. Thompson, visiting professor at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, spoke at a special conference Monday on Christian relations.

Dr. William Logan, pastor of the University Presbyterian Church in Austin, opened the meeting today as retiring moderator. He is expected to be succeeded by Dr. Gage Lloyd, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Big Spring, who was nominated for the position last year.

Church Speaker

WESTBROOK (SC)—The Rev. Don Smith, Lubbock, representing Texas Alcohol Narcotic Education, was guest speaker at the First Baptist Church Sunday morning. Charles Ranne, president of the Brotherhood of the church, will be speaker at the Thursday evening meeting. Supper will be served in the church Fellowship Hall at 7:00 p.m.

Street Dance Kicks Off Rodeo Week Festivities

Rodeo week in Big Spring gets in action Tuesday night with a big street dance in front of the Howard County Court House.

Tuesday morning, Beutler Bros., rodeo producers employed to stage the 33rd Annual Howard County Rodeo, Wednesday through Saturday, will open headquarters in the Settles Hotel.

All competitors will sign in between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. on that date.

CHAMP ROPER

Included in the top notch riders who are to be here to take part in this annual RCA sponsored event will be Lynn Franklin, House, N. M., who was 1965 world champion calf roper.

A large number of other celebrated riders, well known in all of the rodeo arenas of the nation, are to be on hand.

Opening event on Wednesday will be the parade through the downtown streets at 4 p.m. Malcolm Patterson, parade chairman, expects 14 sheriff's posses from all parts of West Texas taking part in the march. Trophies valued at $100 are offered for the three best riding groups. Three prizes, aggregating $100, await the best three floats in the parade. The winning posse and the winning floats will be announced at the grand entry on the opening night performance of the rodeo. All of the riding groups will take part in the opening night grand entry at the rodeo arena starting at 8 p.m.

BARBECUE

Prior to the opening show, the posse members, special guests of the Howard County Rodeo Association and Rodeo officials will be served a barbecue dinner at the Howard County fair barns. The Big Spring Kiwanis Club is to prepare and serve this meal as it has for the past six years.

At the same time, the rodeo guests are dining at the fair barn, the public can buy tickets and eat the same repast at the Big Spring City Park. Big Spring Kiwanians are selling tickets ($1) to the barbecue now.

The rodeo here has $3,500 in added money to go to the winners of the events, according to E. P. Driver, rodeo association secretary. This will be broken up into pots of $550 each for all of the events with exception of the barrel races. The added money for this is $275. In addition, all entry fees in all events go to the prize pot. The rodeo pot will be one of the best, for the winners here in a number of years.

Top Cowboy In Cold Spell

DENVER — Lady Luck is capricious as spring weather. Just ask Idaho's champion cowboy, Dean Oliver.

After logging a record $15,000 in rodeo winnings earlier this year, Oliver, 36, from Boise, came up last week empty-handed for the sixth week in succession.

The rangy Idahoan's latest stalemate occurred during the six-day Tulsa, Okla., Stampede where Sunday night an over-all $15,316 was divided among winners.

Unheralded and unranked, David Crater, Muskogee, Okla., was the Stampede's biggest individual collector, with $1,192 in steer wrestling.

In latest review of national championship standings, the Rodeo Cowboys Association reported Oliver still heads all-around cowboy charts — by $3,889 over Bob Ragdale, Chowchilla, Calif. — despite his prolonged cold streak.

ALL-AROUND — Dean Oliver, Boise, Idaho, $15,316; Bob Ragdale, Chowchilla, Calif., $1,192; Paul Mayo, Grinnell, Iowa, $10,283; Ken Stanton, Webster, Mo., $4,141; John McBeth, Atlanta, Kan., $3,928.

SADDLE BRONCS — Bill Smith, Cody, Wyo., $7,221; Winston Bruce, Cochran, Ala., $6,099; Marty Wood, Brownsville, Wyo., $5,512; Clyde Vornvoris-Lake Charles, La., $5,287; Jim Houston, Omaha, Neb., $4,942.

BARBACK BRONC — Paul Mayo, Grinnell, Iowa, $5,512; John Edwards, Cheyenne, Wyo., $5,512; Clyde Vornvoris-Lake Charles, La., $5,287; Jim Houston, Omaha, Neb., $4,942.

BULL RIDING — Bob Wagner, Auburn, Wash., $7,221; Jim Milne, Brownsville, Mo., $6,099; Ken Stanton, Webster, Mo., $4,141; John McBeth, Atlanta, Kan., $3,928.

CALF ROPING — Dan Swait, Chicago, Ill., $10,187; Dean Oliver, Boise, $8,570; Bob Ragdale, Chowchilla, $8,481; Juror Garrison, Marlow, Okla., $8,232; Jim Busch, Alizer, Del Rio, Tex., $6,615.

STEER WRESTLING — Dean Oliver, Boise, $6,579; Jack Sooty, San Jose, Calif., $6,341; Bob Perkins, Fort Worth, $4,481; Duke Smith, Burkhart, Tex., $4,481; Junior Meek, Anson, $5,228.

National Finals Held For Top-Ranked Hands

Since 1959, the sport of rodeo has had its own world series, the National Finals rodeo, held late in the year.

The top 15 money winners in each event are eligible to compete and they tangle with stock — carefully selected for their proven ability to hurl cowboys aloft — from bucking strings throughout North America.

Going to its seventh year, the finals is a well established classic. The term "he made the finals" already denotes respect.

From its recent site, the Los Angeles Sports Arena, to the shadows back of the chutes where the finals were first thought of, this ambitious project has achieved its many goals.

These goals were to focus national attention on a date and place where the championships would be decided, give bucking stock their rightful acclaim while they were still in action — not having their reputation built entirely on legend — and to create a well-lit classroom in which the public could learn more about rodeo.

This last goal, perhaps the most important, was set because those behind the sport are convinced the gate will increase with the public's knowledge.

Specifically, rodeo's increasing space and time — in newspapers, television and radio — has brought these goals much nearer. And, if the surge in current attendance figures can be traced to the finals door, then rodeo's world series is approaching its ultimate purpose of helping all rodeos.

The finals spent the first three years in Dallas, moved to Los Angeles in '62 and according to policy, are moving again.

The theory behind these moves is the finals should stimulate interest in rodeo locally as well as nationally. The ideal situation would be to hold the finals in a city which had never had a rodeo. Then when the world series left that city its departure would create a demand for a high caliber rodeo to take its place.

The successful Cotton Bowl Rodeo at Dallas, created in the wake of the finals, proved this policy sound.

Rodeo Producer Provides High Quality Stock Show

There's a lot more to a rodeo than meets the spectator's eye. One big item is the stock which is used. This includes the herd of bucking bronchos, the rough and tough steers, mean-tempered bulls and the wily calves—all of which pit their animal cunning and muscle against the cowboys who compete.

Where do these animals come from? They are carefully assembled, selected for their particular qualities which make them best for rodeo duties. The stock which will be presented this coming week in the 33rd annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo are owned by Jiggs Beutler, Elk City, Okla., the producer of the show.

BIG STRING

Beutler, a veteran of nearly 40 years of rodeo activity and production, assembles his stock from all over the country. He will have about 200 head here for the local show. This will include 75 head of horses, 40 bulls, 40 to 50 calves and 35 to 40 steers.

The stock is moved in just ahead of the rodeo. A crew of 20 men is needed to handle the animals and see that each is in the proper place for the complex performances which are enacted in the arena.

Feeding a herd of stock of this size is no small item. Beutler estimates the feed costs run nearly $100 a day.

The stock Beutler uses in his shows will travel 60,000 to 75,000 miles this season. It will be used in scores of rodeos all over the nation.

TIGHT SCHEDULE

Contracts for the Beutler animals and staff have been signed long ago and the company has a schedule which has to be followed with stopwatch precision.

The Beutlers operate a 4,000 acre ranch near Elk City, Okla., where they winter 150 to 175 head of stock in the off season and where they add to the roster as demands arise.

Beutler says that the horses he uses for his rodeo herd are mostly bought in the northern states. He acquires most of his bulls in the south. The calves for the most part come from Florida. The tough steers are mostly from Old Mexico.

The stock is carefully acquired. The rodeo producer knows that the quality of the animals he has to pit against the riders determines to a great degree the quality of his show and the entertainment value of the production.

SCOUTING PROSPECTS

When word is heard of a particularly exciting bronc, a bull with an evil temper and tenacity, or a steer which has the bucking ability needed to dump the ace riders of the arena circuit, Beutler goes to inspect the animal. He checks it out much as the scout for a baseball team would study the qualifications of a prospective outfielder.

If the animal has the essential qualities, he is bought. The price, naturally, is high. Quality performers for any endeavor — rodeo or what you may please — command good prices.

The animals which will compete in the rodeo here will be the stars of their world—the best and toughest to be found anywhere.

Parade Set Wednesday

Everybody loves a parade, especially when it's combined with a rodeo.

This year's parade, which will begin forming Wednesday shortly before 4 p.m., is expected to draw the biggest and best group ever of riding posses, rodeo queens, horse clubs and pleasure riders, according to Malcolm Patterson, parade chairman.

Only five floats have been entered in the parade, according to Edith Gay, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who is lining up the floats for entry. The Big Spring Kennel Club, the TOPS Pounds Rebels, Pet-A-Zoo, Den 3 Pack 14 of the Cub Scouts and the Knott 4-H Club have entered the float competition, vying for $100 in prize money ($50, first; $35, second; $15, third).

Bands from the Big Spring High School, Runnels and Goliad Junior High Schools, and Coahoma High School will provide music for the parade.

So far 14 sheriff posses and riding clubs have indicated they will take part in parade festivities. Sheriff posses and riding groups from Scurry, Martin, Lynn, Dawson, Terry, Andrews, Ward and Ector counties will participate, as well as the Big Spring Mounted Patrol, the Howard County Youth Horsemen Club, San Angelo Saddle Club, Stanton Rangers, West Texas Appaloosa Horse Club, Scurry County Junior Riding Club and Auliff's Rough Riders (Lubbock).

City, county and Webb AFB officials will ride in the parade — but may stick to cars, not horses. Miss Big Spring, (Sue Frazier) and Junior Miss Big Spring (Debbie Duncan) will be honored guests of the Jaycees, riding in a special car.

Many individual riders from the surrounding communities have said they will participate. Upwards of 300 riders are expected.

The parade will form on Scurry between Twelfth and Fourteenth, kicking off at 4 p.m., and moving to Main at Fourteenth. It will then swing north on Main to Second, west to Scurry and back south to the starting point.

Ticket Charges Are Reasonable

Rodeo tickets are really reasonable.

General admission tickets for the 33rd annual Big Spring Rodeo may be purchased at $2 for adults, $1 for children. Tickets for a Southwestern Conference Grid game, for example, start at about $4.50.

Box seats for the rodeo may also be had, at $15 a season or $6 a performance. There are six seats to a box — making the season charge per seat only 50 cents. General admission tickets are extra.

Alton Marwitz at State National Bank is handling the ticket sales, assisted by the Chamber of Commerce. Tickets may be purchased throughout the week for the rodeo and are good at any performance.

Classic Event Has Lowest Entry List

To qualify, rider must have spurs over the break of the shoulders and leading the horse when front feet hit the ground first jump out of the chute. Rider disqualified for being bucked off. Changing horses or reins during spurs or touching the ground while on rein with his free hand.—Synopsis R.C.A. rules.

Oddly enough, saddle bronc riding, the classic event, has less competitors than any other in professional rodeo. Cowboys with little ranching experience yet with a strong hand, have gone to the top in bull riding and bareback bronc riding, but rodeo's oldest event and with roping, the most closely linked to actual ranch work, demands a contestant with years of actual experience on rough horses.

Few outsiders have ever crashed the upper ranks. The instinctive reactions required to keep the stirrups, sense what a horse will do next, and the rhythm required—because there is nothing solid to hang onto—make this event one in which there is no substitute for the school of hard knocks.

To give the horse every advantage, the rider is required to have his dull spurs over the point of the animal's shoulders when the bronc's front feet hit the ground first jump out of the chute.

Quoting former six-time world champion saddle bronc rider, Casey Tibbs, "the first thing we think about when we know what horse we've drawn, is how much rein we'll give him. If we don't know the horse, we'll find someone who has been on him and they'll tell us."

The dependency a cowboy has on his rein often makes the difference between the good and the champion rider. A man who is not dependent on the rein alone—relying greatly on balance—can use his feet with more freedom. The judges, marking the rider from 1 to 25, will give him a higher mark for this full arcing stroke which cowboys call "lick."

Equally important is the fact that some horses, which the judges also score from 1 to 25 on how hard they buck, will "turn on" better if his passenger isn't hanging on to the rein with brute strength.

The rider is marked down by the judges if he loses control—cowboys call it "getting into a storm"—and in this event the saddle itself makes recovery more difficult. The cantle of the saddle, behind, and the swells in front, get under a man and literally knock him out of there. The fear of hanging up in a stirrup, always in the back of the rider's mind, is another angle adding to the event's danger.

In the fraternity of saddle broncs, the tried and true campaigner becomes legendary. More people remember Hell's Angels, Midnight, Miss Klamath and their modern counterparts, Trail's End, Big John, Jesse James, Jake and Warpaint, than they would recognize the names of the men who tried to ride them.

In spite of the fact one of these horses may be the victor over a cowboy more often than not, that same cowboy has a quiet affection for this consistent, hard-trying opponent. For this cowboy knew, had he been able to stay aboard, the judges would have given the horse a high marking and the cowboy could have won money.

Clowns Have Multiple Jobs

Rodeo clowns are men who wear two hats—one, the sloppy, silly raggedy hat of the perennial jester, the entertainer—the other, invisible one, is his important job of keeping fallen riders from being gored by angered Brahman bulls.

This year, the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion's clowns will be Gene and Bobby Clark.

Aside from the joking patter and funny stunts they will constantly put before the audience, they will be undertaking a very dangerous job.

The job requires nerves of steel and lightning reflexes. Taking a maddened bull's attention from his tormentor—the man he has thrown and who it now wants to crush and gore—is a ticklish problem.

Gene and Bobby Clark of Lamont, Calif., have developed a team-like system for handling these animals and are deadly serious when doing their job.

But during the breaks, they will readjust their paggy pants, bulbous red noses and silly hats, put on their funny acts and even do stunts like Roman-riding a pair of donkeys.

And they will be hoping that the audience finds no reason not to continue to laugh at them during all the performances.

Specialty Act Features OGM

On hand during the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion Rodeo will be the specialty act of Ken Boren, Little Rock, Ark., who will put his trained horse, "The Old Gray Mare," through her paces.

Boren's "OGM" does just about anything a horse is capable of doing, and maybe some things she isn't supposed to be able to do.

She will sit up, waving her big hoofs like a puppy begging for a bone; lie on her back, all four legs waving in the air like an overturned beetle, while Boren perches on her middle; roll over, play dead, stand on her hind legs and generally behave in a most extraordinary manner, considering she's just a horse—if any horse can be called "just a."

Boren and the mare should entertain all the audience, children and oldsters alike, during every performance, said rodeo officials.

ABC Handles Concessions

Big Spring's ABC Club will be handling all concessions at the annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion again this year—for at least the 22nd year, according to the club's Justin Holmes.

ABC will get the profits from the sales to help in the club's youth work. The club's main interest is in helping boys, and the concession money will help, as always.

The concession stands will hold all kinds of soft drinks, hot dogs, popcorn, peanuts—the whole gamut of rodeo eats, at reasonable prices.

The ABC Club also sells all programs describing the scheduled performances, and Holmes said rodeo fans will be able to get the programs at 25 cents at the gate. Pillows will be made available by the club for fans who need or want them, too.

A Long 8-Seconds Faces Bareback Bronc Riders

One hand, rigging to be used. To steady rider must have spurs over the break of the shoulders when horse's front feet touch the ground. First jump out of the chute. Horses will be ridden for eight seconds. Rider cannot touch horse with free hand.—Synopsis R.C.A. rules.

a hard time keeping that outside foot where it is required to be.

The 8-second bareback ride is confusing because some cowboys' wild spurring appears to be simply showing off while in actual fact the rhythm of a man's legs on some horses is all that keep the rigging—a handhold on a surcingle like the handle on a suitcase—from being torn out of his hand.

The bareback rider throws his feet forward in time with the horse's jumps, and at the same time this motion keeps his seat close to his riding hand. He's well aware that once he slips away from the handhold he's on the launching pad. The further back he gets on a high-kicking horse the further out he is on the catapult.

Also the cowboy who has his riding arm straightened invariably winds up having his clenched riding hand jerked open.

Rules require the rider's dulled spurs be over the break of the horse's shoulders when the animal lands the first jump out of the chute. Some bareback broncs wheel out almost as quickly as the gate can be jerked open and the cowboy has come rodeo hands and a rope

The judges are looking for the horse that gives the rider the most trouble for the full eight seconds. Onlookers when hearing the score often are mystified because the bronc who threw the spectacular whinging, once or twice, wasn't marked higher. They failed to take into consideration that for half the eight seconds the horse, in the judges' opinion, wasn't difficult to stay on.

The event originally started as a time-filler when it was necessary to shuffle animals behind the chutes. The riders often were youngsters with nothing but a burning ambition to be

Most Dangerous Event In Rodeo

Riding to be done with one hand and loose rope, with or without hand held. Rope must have knot. Rider will be disqualified for being bucked off or touching animal with free hand.—Sponsored R.C.A. rules.

The most popular riding event, and the most dangerous in rodeo, is bull riding. Watching these cross-bred Brahmas do everything but turn inside out the question immediately arises why would anybody in his right mind get on these heaving, spinning juggernauts?

Not only have there been many who have gone a whole season without being ridden the required eight seconds, but there are some who will go after the rider whether he left their back intentionally or not.

Because bulls will charge a man on horseback—and pickup men can't be used as in the other two riding events—only the clown can help the scrambling, stunned, or upended cowboys.

At this moment the man in the baggy raiment is the most important person in the world to the bull rider. Often his courage, recognition of what a bull has on his mind and his reactive speed, is the reason that bull rider can eat supper that night.

If a man is motivated by testing his own nerve, bull riding will do it. In addition, the event has added appeal because any one who can ride half his stock during the season will wind up with a lot of prize money.

In other riding events an unlucky cowboy conceivably could draw horse after horse on which he couldn't win a dime.

A bull rider uses a rope which is looped like a noose around the animal's middle. It is a flat plait with a handhold like the mug handle of a duffelbag. The rider puts his gloved hand in this loop, knuckles down, and a helping friend, standing on the chute, pulls the slack out of the rope as if he were tugging a heavy bucket from a well.

When the rope's tightness feels right to the rider, he takes the free end of the rope and lays it across his palm. Then he wraps it once behind his hand and lays it across his palm again. He clenches his fist with everything he can muster; he hunches his body close to his hand and, as soon as he feels the bull standing squarely, he nods and the gate swings open.

As long as the cowboy doesn't touch the bull with his free hand and still has his riding hand on some part of the rope at the end of the eight seconds, the judges will score his ride from 1 to 25 on how hard the bull bucked, and from 1 to 25 on how well the cowboy rode.

A bull rider dreads being bucked off away from his riding hand. When this happens his weight—even though his fist has opened—can bind the wrap behind his hand and there he's hung. Looking like a rag doll tied to a mad dog, the cowboy is helpless until his hand wrenches free or the clown comes to his rescue.

BULL RIDING

BULLS ARE RIDDEN WITH PLATED "LOOSE ROPE" PULLED TIGHT AROUND BULL'S GRIP AND A "DALLY" TAKEN AROUND RIDER'S HAND HELD ONLY BY HIS GRIP!... RIDER WILL BE DISQUALIFIED FOR TOUCHING BULL WITH FREE HAND OR BUCKING OFF BEFORE 2 SECOND SIGNAL.

Big Spring Has Long History As Location For Rodeos

Among the rodeos in the land that spawned rodeos, Big Spring is one of the most venerable.

Only the Texas Cowboy Reunion at Stamford, and possibly the Pecos rodeo, outrank it in continuity. The Stamford production is older by only a few years, and there is some question but what the continuity of the Pecos show was broken. However, Pecos is regarded as the point of origin for the rodeo.

Big Spring had rodeos off and on since before 1920, but these were sporadic and usually shared the spotlight with a baseball game on July 4. There were no facilities. Livestock was contained in a makeshift rope fence, and bronchos were eared down while the intrepid riders got set in the saddle. When it was over with, they cleared off several third bases and let the ballgame go ahead.

The present rodeo may have grown out of informal goat and calf ropings during the depression. In the fall of 1933, a group of ranchers, including the late Tom Good, the Marion Edwards and the current president, Charlie Creighton, along with Harry Lees, Jess Slaughter and others, set up some make-shift facilities in a pasture north of the Washington Place addition. They did it mainly for their own entertainment, and they were pleased with the response that it got. Thus encouraged, they bought a tract of land in that spot, formed a non-profit corporation, and set about erecting corrals, chutes, a judges stand, bleachers and a grandstand.

Soon the annual event ran afternoon and night performances on a four-day stretch. The association produced its own show, assembling the livestock, and later booking specialty acts. World War II came along, and one year no rodeo was held, but the community got together the next year and put one on so servicemen could see it.

After the war, the association contracted with professional producers. In the early 1950's, the site was sold for residential building, and a new one acquired west of town. A concrete bowl was constructed in what had been a ravine, and the association had one of the best plants in the Southwest.

Schrenia Clark, National Riding Queen, Due Here

A highlight of the Big Spring Rodeo Parade Wednesday will be the appearance of Schrenia Clark, National Queen of the American Association of Sheriff Poses and Riding Clubs.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. (Don) Clark of Brownfield, Miss Clark is five feet, four inches tall and has blonde hair and brown eyes. She is a student at Brownfield High School and her activities are modeling, the high school band and riding.

A member of the American Junior Riding Association and Aull's Rough Riders of Lubbock, she has won many ribbons and trophies for her riding. Miss Clark rode as queen of Aull's Rough Riders in 1965 to the Little Rock, Ark., competition for the National Queen of the A.A.S.P.—R.C. She defeated 12 other girls to become the queen. Miss Clark participates in as many rodeos and parades as she can and will reign until Jan. 1, 1967.

Announcer Can Make, Break Rodeo

Rodeo fans know that one of the most important members of the production is the announcer. The announcer can either make or break a rodeo. If he's good, he keeps up a constant patter of information, quickly identifies riders and gets their names before the audience promptly. He jokes with contestants, tells the audience when a fallen cowboy is unhurt from his descent, and generally keeps things moving.

Housing Curb Draws Fire

DALLAS (AP)—The president of the Texas Real Estate Association said Monday every man and woman in the United States will be "seriously" affected and probably harmed if Congress outlaws racial discrimination in housing.

H. W. Bahnman of Harlingen, speaking to the Grand Prairie Board of Realtors, said each realtor is obligated to know about and help others know about the controversial Title IV of the proposed Civil Rights Bill of 1966.

"Under the guise of guaranteeing some civil rights, the housing section of this bill proposes to take away from you and your neighbors the right to sell, rent or otherwise use or dispose of your real estate as you see fit," Bahnman said. Title IV would prohibit racial discrimination in real estate transactions. It has been interpreted as forbidding a man who has a piece of property for sale from refusing a bona fide offer from a Negro.

"The bill would deny you the right to exercise your freedom of choice in contracting for the sale or rents of your property," Bahnman said. "This means the federal government could force you to sell or rent your property to a person not of your choice."

Big Spring's Cowboy Reunion this year will have one of the top announcers—and many regard him as the best.

Big Spring rodeo fans will hear for the seventh time the familiar voice of Clem McSpadden, Oklahoma legislator from Claremore, as he cues the show, announces the events, results, and jokes with contestants at the Big Spring rodeo.

He will also carry on the customary fun-feud with the rodeo clowns and the professional showmen. McSpadden is in demand for many of the top rodeos of the country, and has been at the microphone in Madison Square Garden.

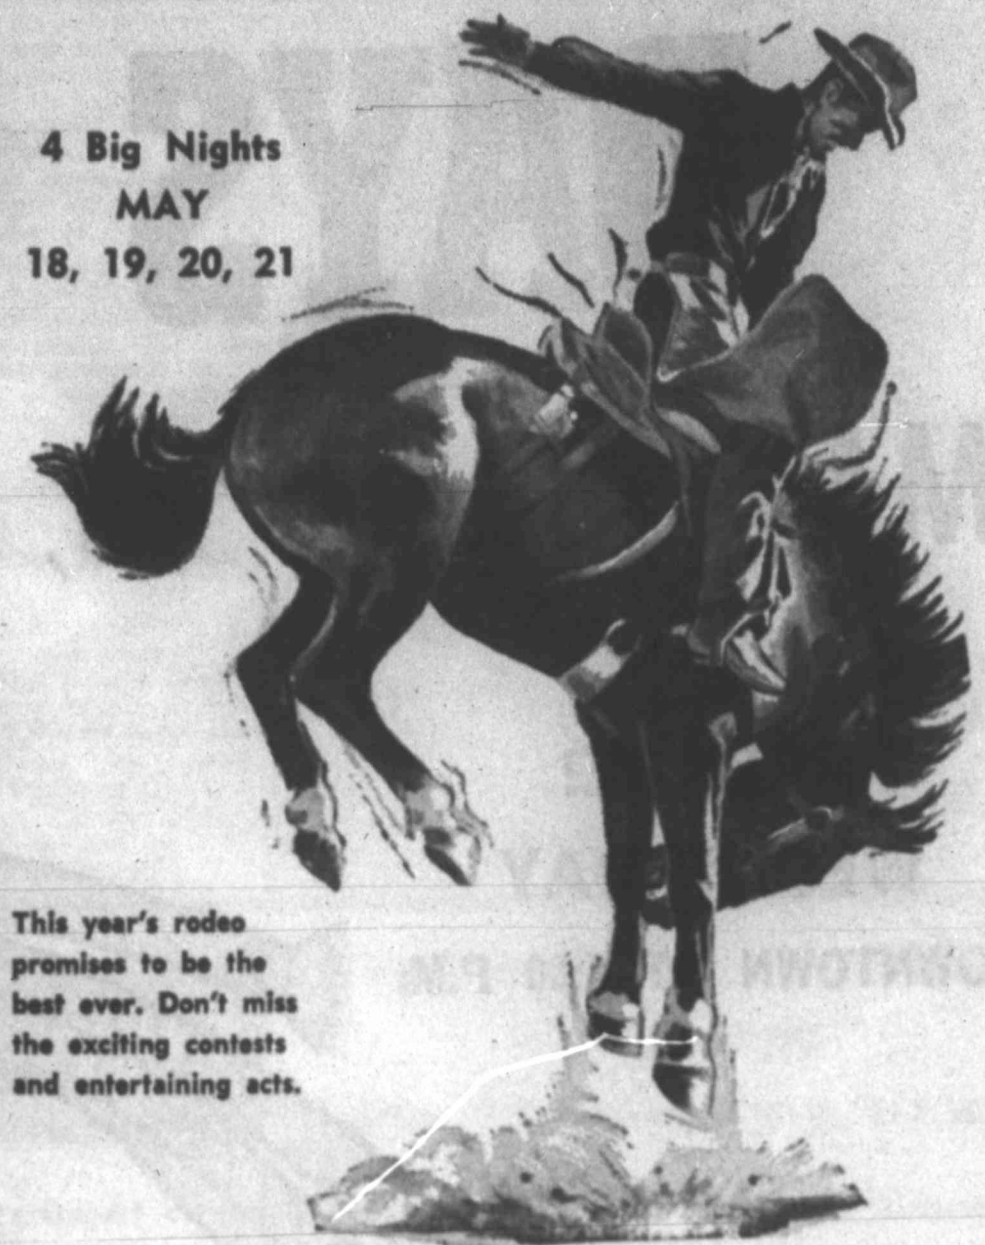

His many fans who missed him last year when state duties kept him from coming to the Big Spring Rodeo, will be glad to hear McSpadden will be doing the announcing this year.

Top Winners Are Champs

Rodeo is a contest of cowboys competing for prize money. So the simplest, fairest way to name the world champions of professional rodeo is by counting the money they win each season.

From official results of every rodeo approved by the Rodeo Cowboys Association each season, a careful, cumulative record of dollars won through the year by every cowboy member, is kept at the association's Denver, Colorado, headquarters.

At the end of the regular season, a certified public accountant audits the financial chart and ascertains the top 15 winners in each event. These men become eligible to compete in the title playoffs, the National Finals Rodeo.

The NFR does not change the system of naming champions but is simply fitted into it. Money won at the Finals, along with seasonal earnings, all are dollars toward the titles. So the titlists still are the men who won the most money for the year.

Teamwork Of Rider, Horse Decides Winner

If cowboy intends to use two loops, two ropes must be crossed. Cowboy must throw calf by hand, cross and tie any three legs. If calf is down when the roper reaches it, he must allow calf to get up and then throw calf. Tie must hold for six seconds after roper calls time.

Calf roping is a race against time with seconds counted in decimal points and the money going to the swift—there is not time to be lost in waste motion, even less to be spent signaling the horse.

To win, horse and rider must work together at peak efficiency with automatic teamwork polished to precision. And that requires constant practice.

Out of the box, a good horse will rate the calf, closing on him quickly and holding a steady interval, regardless of how the calf bobs or weaves. Most ropers like their horses to stay a length behind and a fraction to one side to allow a clean throw.

The contest begins behind the barrier, a rope stretched across the box-like space where the roper and his mount wait for the quarry to be released. The barrier is automatic, triggered by a measured length of twine around the calf's neck.

If the thrown loop misses, the cowboy gets another try, provided he carries another rope ready tied to the saddle. Calf roping is catch as catch can as long as the loop holds until the roper gets his hands on the calf.

When the calf, released from the chute, reaches a predetermined head start he hits the end of the twine which falls away as it trips the barrier.

On the ground, the roper must throw the calf by hand, a task made easier if the horse keeps backed against a tight rope. The calf may be downed either by "legging"—using a foreleg as a pry to tip him over—or by "flanking"—picking the animal up bodily and laying him on his side.

Because a tenth of a second often will win a roping, the roper and his horse try to hit the barrier at the exact moment it is released. If the cowboy rides through the barrier before it trips, a penalty of 10 seconds is added to his time, usually enough to keep him from finishing in the money.

Once the calf is downed, the cowboy gathers three legs, wraps and ties them with a short length of light rope called a pigging string, carried either in his mouth, or tucked in his belt. He signals completion of his run by raising both hands high. Smoothness in calf roping is all-important. The cowboy who never gets "in a storm" with a calf has not always drawn the easiest stock. Often his instinctive knowledge of when to move in, just when to flank or leg his catch, makes the whole run seconds faster than if he had rushed in to try and overpower the calf.

So teamwork starts at the roping box. The horse should break instantly on signal from the roper. A slow start will cost precious seconds after the fast breaking calf; a fraction too soon will cost the 10-second penalty.

The horse's quick stop is used by the cowboy to propel him down the rope to the calf. He comes off the horse running. If stop and dismount are not timed perfectly the roper is left flat-footed beside his horse.

Calls For Raise For Teachers

AUSTIN (AP)—A Texas State Teachers Association spokesman

told the Governor's Committee on Public School Education today that teachers need a $60 a month pay raise. This, he asserted, would bring Texas teachers pay up to the national average.

Many Count It As Most Exciting

Steer must be caught from horse. If steer gets loose, roper may take no more than one step to catch him. Steer will be considered down only when it is lying flat on its side, all four feet and head straight.

Steer wrestling has a surprising number of spectator votes for the most exciting event in the rodeo arena. When a man drops from a galloping horse onto the horns of a steer who is going full tilt, stops the steer and throws it to the ground, they have seen skill overcome heavily weighted odds.

ahead, and at a 45 degree angle, to the path the steer is taking.

The first time people see this they are sure the strongest man, who is lucky enough to draw the slowest and most cooperative steer, should be the winner. The truth is, the man who quickly and consistently can get a steer off balance while he himself stays in control is on the way to the winner's circle.

Digging in his heels, the cowboy is tipping the steer's head as much as he can and pulling it toward the center of a left-hand turn. As the steer stops—his hindquarters having swung around—the cowboy's left hand reaches for the animal's up-turned nose and with this hold he is able to throw the steer on its side.

Briefly, the secret is this: As the cowboy catches up to the steer he reaches with his right hand, scooping up the right horn, and as his horse speeds by the steer the cowboy gets his horn snugly in the crook of his right elbow. At the same time, his left hand pushes down on the other horn while his horse veers off to the left. The cowboy's heels are dropped

The winging-run takes perfect coordination. Besides the steer wrestler and his horse there is a second man who starts from the opposite side of the steer and his job is to keep the animal running straight.

The steer actually trips the barrier, in front of the contestant's horse, when he reaches the end of a premeasured light rope. This rope is looped around his horns—in it there is a breakable string link which allows it to fall free. Another such link in the barrier breaks should the steer wrestler hit it before the steer crosses the scoreline.

During the year thousands of dollars are divided by split seconds, so the art of brushing the barrier becomes important.

Federal Banking Bill Criticized

AUSTIN (AP)—Jack Conn, an Oklahoma City lawyer and vice president of the American Bankers Association, criticized before the Texas Bankers Association convention today a bill in Congress giving more power over banking to federal agencies.

The bill would give the agencies power to issue cease and desist orders and also to remove banking officers, Conn said.

The powers given to such agencies as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. were too vast for one agency and should be in the hands of a board, he said.

Frank Beard Comes Back As Conqueror

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — This gracious old city prides itself on its hospitality and has been trying ever since 1964 to make up for the trouble which befell Frank Beard here. That year the bespectacled golfer came to New Orleans to play golf. He made no money and went away with osteomyelitis—a killer disease sometimes called sleeping sickness. Beard almost died. He was administered the final rites by a Roman Catholic priest. But he recovered to return to New Orleans again.

Bearded Bon Vivant Is Set For Duty At Indy

NEW YORK (AP) — Skitch Henderson, bearded bon vivant and band leader for a major television show, will be worrying about a different kind of tune-up May 30.

The mechanically-minded maestro will be watching the Indianapolis 500-mile race as a member of Ridger Ward's pit crew. "I couldn't stand to sit in the grandstand," Henderson said. "I want to know what's going on."

Henderson admits, however, that he is primarily a water boy in the pit. "Mostly I try to stay out of the way," he said.

The musician's interest is genuine, however. He was an assistant driver on the Mercedes team on the Grand Prix circuit for several years and toured the major sports car tracks in the United States until

Morton's Is 3-2 Winner Over Pepsi

Morton's Foods edged Pepsi-Cola, 3-2, and the Optimists rallied to defeat Webb AFB, 15-12, in American Softball League games here Monday night.

Morton's was playing short-handed and managed only two hits off Don Gibson, the Pepsi pitcher, but scored twice in the first inning and won the game in the fifth when Don Cannon, who had walked, came in on D. A. Miller's fielder's choice.

Cotton Mize, on the hill for Morton's, surrendered five hits, three of which were doubles. He fanned 12 and walked only one.

The game was called after 5 1/2 innings when the time limit was invoked.

Webb seemed on its way to its first victory when it scored seven times in the fifth but the Optimists came back to get five in its half of the inning and followed up with a six-run sixth to finish in front.

Jim Balios had three of the Optimists' 13 hits and drove in four runs.

Webb collected nine blows, including two each by Bob Carlin, Roberts and Jim Hoss.

Cats Assume Top Position

The Optimists' Cats took over first place in Texas Little League standings by defeating the Hull and Phillips Indians, 4-1, here Monday night.

Mike Gamboa fashioned the mound win, surrendering five hits to the Warriors. The Cats got off four blows off M. Smith of the Indians but used them to better advantage.

Gamboa lost his shutout in the sixth when Smith hit a one-out with the help of three more hits.

The Indians' bats were out of sync, hitting only one out in the first three innings.

Steve Baker and James Newman teamed up to shut out the Stars behind the Jets in American Little League play here Monday night. Final score was 6-0.

The Jets were outhit, 5-3, but Baker and Newman kept the blows well scattered.

Brad Cedarburg of the Stars was the only player in the game to get two hits.

The Jets put the decision on ice with a three-run outburst in the third.

There's a good reason why the Cleveland Indians are leading the American League. Of the 24 games they've played, the Indians have been involved in 13 one-run games and won 10 of them.

Boog Powell, Baltimore's big first baseman, has gone hitless in his last 17 times at bat and his average has dwindled 52 points to .202. His last hit was a home run in the second game of a doubleheader against Cleveland May 8.

The weekend series against Boston which drew 81,609 in new Anaheim Stadium lifted the California Angels into the major league lead in home attendance with 386,810. The Los Angeles Dodgers are next with 358,947, followed by the New York Mets with 342,936 and the Houston Astros, 299,035.

Nine Colts Are Set To Race Derby King

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kaul King has some convincing left to do on Saturday's $150,000-added Preakness at Pimlico.

The tentative line-up lists nine 3-year-olds who will oppose Mike Ford's Kentucky Derby winner and talk in the opposition camps is that they're not here for second, third or fourth money.

For instance, trainer Jim Padgett of Blue Skyer: "He should run a big race and I think we have a good chance to win this one," said the son of the principal owner of the colt.

Like many of the others, Padgett also found an excuse and also encouragement in the Blue Skyer's Derby performance.

The gray colt suffered a head virus shortly before the Derby and Padgett said, "He was behind two weeks in his training."

Padgett hesitated about entering the 1 1/4 mile Derby, but when he did Blue Skyer put on a rallying finish for third place, beaten only half a length and a nose. "He was a tired horse at the end of the Derby," Padgett said.

Another example of the prove-it-to-me-again school is trainer Joe Considine of Exceedingly. About a month ago, Exceedingly was 24 lengths behind Kaul King in the Prince Georges Stake at Bowie.

Prefacing his remarks by saying he didn't want to alibi, Considine said it was the first time Exceedingly raced in mud and he showed he didn't cotton to it and secondly it was the first race in two months for the colt.

"He should be at his best for the Preakness," declared Considine, unless it rains and then he'll scratch Exceedingly.

Trainer Lucien Lauren is another who has hinted he feels Amberoid did not have a chance to show his best in the Derby. The colt, owned by Reginald N. Webster, stumbled at the start and never did catch up, finishing seventh.

Others from the Derby field poised to tackle Kaul King again are Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Advocate (second); Wheatley Stable's Stupendous (fourth); Robert Lehman's Rehabilitate (sixth), and Paul Terres and James Bartlett's Williamson Kid (11th).

Expected to join them in the 1 1/4 mile race are Mrs. Edward Lasker's Indulto, last Saturday's winner of the Withers Mile, and either Exhibitionist or Understanding from the stable of trainer Hirsch Jacobs.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Unless friends of football react here in a hurry, Big Spring is going to lose two of its finest athletic prospects in history.

The Steers have surrendered some splendid material in the past, boys who have gone on to signal success in other high schools—Jack Eisenhart and Rick Price to name two.

None had a more promising future than the two now in school here. What's more, the youngsters likely will wind up playing for a team that delights in beating the cars off the Longhorns year in and year out, unless their parents can be persuaded that Big Spring is the better place to live.

When the family moved here not too long ago, a coach in a school of their former home town expressed the opinion, in substance, that one of the boys in particular had greater possibilities as a football player than any boy in the history of his school.

When one considers the army of athletes that school has turned out, it makes you wonder how far the youngster can and will go in football.

The family, from all indications, like our community but reasons it would not be economically feasible to re-maintain. The coaches are acutely aware of the problem and would like some help and counsel in the matter.

They say that Clarence Johnson, the San Antonio St. Peter High School boy who recently jumped 7-0 1/4 for a new national high school record, signed a pre-enrollment blank to attend Clarendon College on a basketball scholarship before his fantastic leap.

Chances are now he'll go to one of the biggest colleges in the country and concentrate on track.

Incidentally, Clarendon intends to start competing in a big way in the Western Conference again—by recruiting on a par with other league schools.

New Mexico Junior College opens in Hobbs in September and school officials there want to join the Western Conference as soon as possible.

Chances are the school won't be admitted to membership before the 1967-68 school year, although all schools within the circuit will probably book the team for practice games next season.

Several men within the WC are convinced the circuit (with eight schools) is big enough now but the new Hobbs school, quite probably, will rally more than enough support to gain admission.

Cisco and Ranger would also like to gain admission to the league, it is said. If all three prospective applicants were taken in, the league could be split into two divisions and the basketball champions in each could meet at the end of the regular season to determine the title.

Such an alignment could have HCJC in with Odessa, Lubbock and the two New Mexico representatives in the South half—which would make for a very strong division.

Jim Campbell, baseball coach at Paris Junior College, flew in here last weekend to watch the baseball playoff series between Cisco and Odessa.

Campbell was saddled with the baseball job for this season only—his principal chore is coaching the basketball team. Jim was pressed into duty when Bob Ashford resigned to take a job in the lab at the Campbell Soup Co., plant in Paris.

Little wonder the state junior colleges shoot for places in the National Juco Baseball tournament, which is held each year in Grand Junction, Colo.

The teams which go there are treated royally and each school gets $5 a day per boy in expense money, plus mileage both ways. The Coca-Cola people help underwrite expenses of the meet to the extent of $6,000 per annum.

Too, professional baseball scouts from all over the land flock in there to eye the talent. Ralph Weaver, then with Paris JC, signed a $85,000 bonus contract with Cleveland a few years ago after a good showing in the Grand Junction meet. He's now with Portland.

There's a good reason why the Cleveland Indians are leading the American League. Of the 24 games they've played, the Indians have been involved in 13 one-run games and won 10 of them.

Boog Powell, Baltimore's big first baseman, has gone hitless in his last 17 times at bat and his average has dwindled 52 points to .202. His last hit was a home run in the second game of a doubleheader against Cleveland May 8.

Grammy Winners Give Tuneful Hour

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Best on Record," seen Monday night on NBC, is the one awards show of the year that skips the envelope-opening, statue presenting and speeches of gratitude. The performers were winners of "Grammy Awards" of the recording industry weeks ago. This program was mainly a convenient excuse for a program of popular music performed by assorted stars of the record business. It did lack some of the suspense that builds up in the usual awards show — and because most of the recording stars were musicians — mostly singers — it also lacked the balance found in the usual variety hour.

The hour program was taped in bits and pieces in New York and Hollywood to meet the convenience of the performers, and when put together proved to be a pleasantly tuneful hour.

The producer attempted to break up the static quality of too many solo numbers by bringing on assorted performing stars to do the introduction. But none, including Bob Hope and Steve Allen was really given enough time to be very entertaining.

Mothball Fleet May Be Used

WASHINGTON (AP) — One or more of the four battleships now in the Navy's mothball fleet — including the famed Missouri — may be reactivated for Viet Nam duty, testimony made public by a House subcommittee indicated today.

"We have been considering it," Vice Adm. Lot Ensey testified. "It would have advantages. No question."

Ensey, deputy chief of naval operations, testified at a closed session of a House Appropriations subcommittee March 10. Ten days earlier at a Senate committee hearing, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara was questioned along similar lines.

McNamara said then that the cost of returning the vessels to service had been considered more than a year ago against costs for alternate forms of firepower — "and frankly the battleship didn't look attractive then."

NBC, which has been struggling valiantly to overtake CBS' commanding lead in the popularity of daytime programs, will drop two morning soap operas — "Morning Star" and "Paradise Bay" — at the end of June. They will be replaced by two more game shows in the network's heavy lineup of morning games on July 4.

One, "Chain Letter," at 11 a.m., will star comedian Jan Murray who once had an NBC game show called "Treasure Hunt." It will be followed by a show called "Show Down," involving questions and answers, with Joe Pyne as master of ceremonies. Pyne is a Los Angeles radio interviewer who specializes in tough hard-question sessions. He will not, however be rough on the audience contestants in the television show, NBC assures.

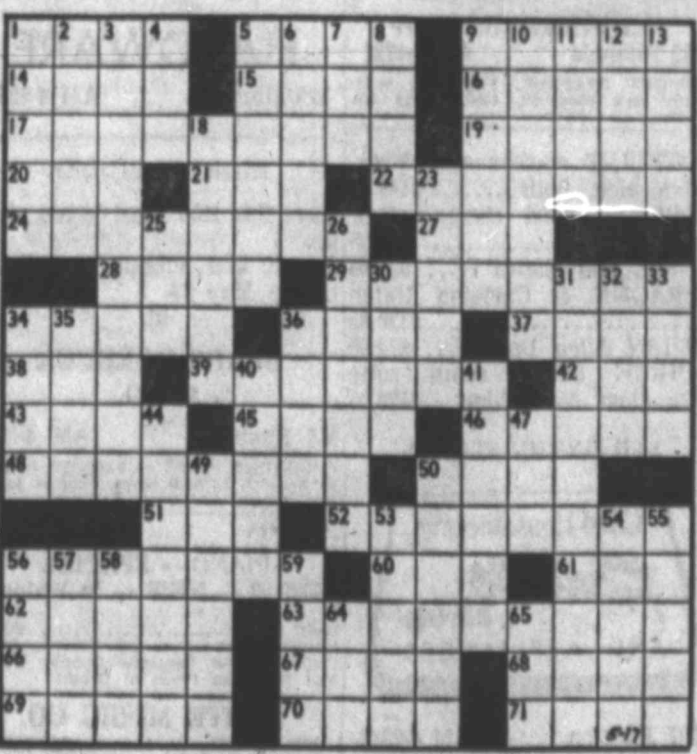

Producers of "Bewitched," ABC's popular comedy, have signed Sandra Gould to play the role created by the late Alice Pearce in the series. Miss Pearce died some three months ago. George Tobias and Miss Gould will play the neighbors named Kravitz who have been in and out of the series since its inception.

Recommended tonight: "CBS Reports," 10-11 EDT, "LSD: The Spring Grove Experiment," a report on the effects of the drug in an experiment on two patients at the Spring Grove State Hospital in Maryland.
