HERSHEY REPLIES

Draft Criticism Laid To Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey said Saturday he sees some congressional electioneering behind Capitol Hill demands for an investigation of the Selective Service System.

"I think that's very normal," he said.

But Hershey added that if Congress could produce improvements in the draft system, that would be fine.

And the lieutenant general now 72, said he would welcome any congressional investigation.

Amid mounting demands for a draft inquiry — and campus protests against the draft system — Hershey mused in an interview about Congress, demonstrations, and the operation he has headed for 25 years.

Hershey said much of the criticism aimed at the draft system is a backfire that stems from uncertain and divided public opinion about the war in Viet Nam. The conflict has produced stepped-up draft calls and a return to Korean War rules on student deferments.

As for congressional criticism — which has come from both Democrats and Republicans — Hershey said:

"Everybody on the Hill is up for re-election in the House, and some in the Senate. They don't know just how people feel about this war that's going on.

"When I get attacked by a lot of these fellows — hell, they've got to attack somebody. They have to live their lives, and I have to live mine."

The Pentagon said Saturday that manpower officials are reworking a study of the draft system ordered by President Johnson two years ago, adding:

"In the draft study presently being conducted by the Department of Defense, various lottery systems are being considered along with many other alternatives."

Officials said it would be premature to say the study would conclude that a lottery would be preferable to the present system.

Testifying before Congress in February, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said staff work on the study had been completed substantially last summer. The Viet Nam build-up required revision of estimates and projections, he said, but has not affected the major findings.

In summarizing the findings,

COLLEGE STATION, TEX. (AP) — State Highway Engineer DeWitt C. Greer received Texas A&M's distinguished alumnus award Saturday.

Greer graduated from A&M in 1923 with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering. He joined the Highway Department in 1927 and became the department's top administrative officer in 1940.

In his 26 years as state highway engineer, he has supervised more than $4.5 billion in construction.

Ballot Supplies Ready For Judges

Ballot boxes for the 29 voting precincts to operate June 4 in the run-off primary election will be readied on Wednesday by Mrs. Pauline Petty, Howard County clerk.

The boxes cannot be prepared until the absentee voting has closed. Absentee voting ends on Tuesday.

Approximately 5,500 ballots have been prepared for the election but not even the most optimistic observer expects any such vote.

C. V. Riordan, Howard County Democratic chairman, who looks for a light vote, has asked that the precinct judges operate their boxes with a minimum number of workers.

He said that the light vote will greatly simplify the election operation and that no need exists for large crew of workers in the voting places.

There are only three races to be settled in the run-off. State-wide, the race for attorney general is the only contest with Crawford C. Martin and Franklin Spears fighting it out for the Democratic nomination.

In the county, two county commissioners are to be elected. Voters who live in Commissioner Precinct 2—voting boxes 2, 9, 16, 15, 18 and 29—will decide between R. C. Nichols, incumbent and Ralph White. In Commissioner Precinct 4—voting boxes 4, 5, 6, 7 and 11—the voters will select either L. J. Davidson, incumbent, or Billy B. Tume. In voting boxes 1, 3, 8, 13, 14, 16, 17 and 19, the only decision the voters will make is in the state attorney general race.

New Managers Transfer To Local Grant's Store

W. T. Grant's store has a new manager and a new assistant manager.

J. A. Newman, the new manager, took over duties last Thursday. He comes to Big Spring from the Grant's store in Odessa, where he was assistant manager. He has been with the firm eight years.

The Comanche native started with Grant's in Fort Worth in 1958. He and his wife, Estell, have two children, Andrea, 2, and Ronda, 18 months. They reside at 1806 Marcy Drive.

Richard L. Moody, the assistant manager, arrived here two weeks ago from the Grant's store in Abilene, where he had been for a year.

Originally from Coleman, Moody and his wife, Pat, live at 104 Washington Boulevard.

Both the new Grant's managers have similar interests — Newman is a collector of antique guns, while Moody collects both guns and coins.

Receives Bracelet

Miss Grace Mann, who has been a teacher in Big Spring since 1925, was honored at a Friday afternoon retirement party at the College Heights Elementary School. Mrs. Jimmy Morehead is shown presenting her with a charm bracelet from the fifth grade class.

DEAR ABBY

Double Tip Buttons Lip

DEAR ABBY: How can I get my husband, but Abby, everyacross to my hairdresser that I wish she would keep quiet when she is working on me? I have even put off going to look for a place to live because I can't stand the thought of leaving this town. I've grown up here, my whole family lives here, and my children's friends are here, and we have just built a lovely home. I know I sound selfish but I can't help it, Abby. If I need a good lecture, let me have it. "ROOTS"
DEAR ROOTS: You rattled the right cage! An ambitious husband has no greater asset than a wife who is truly in his corner. Your children will make new friends, and so will you, if you try. Your "family" are your husband and children. Be a good wife and help your man get where he wants to go, and you shall have another "lovely" home that his "jack"-built.
DEAR ABBY: I am absolutely stuck for a solution. I have a 16-year-old son and, while I don't usually brag about my children, HE is something to brag about—and not because he's good-looking. He's mannerly, respectful, a good student, and has loads of friends. A very good friend of mine—as a daughter who goes and would be a promotion for to my son's school.

Reunion Of Wounded Buddies

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Gemini 9 astronauts and a spindly Surveyor moon-lander spacecraft—America's one-two punch in the battle toward the moon—were flashed "go" signs Saturday to blast off this week for a two-pronged assault on space.

Astronauts Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan, ready and eager to zip into orbit, cleared their last major physical examination and got an all-clear from the Gemini 9 Mission Review Board to rocket into space Wednesday, whether their rendezvous target satellite makes it or not.

"GREAT SHAPE"
Dr. Duane Catterson, a flight surgeon, Saturday pronounced the Gemini 9 crew "in great shape — fit and ready for the flight."

Spider-like Surveyor poised atop its 11-story-tall Atlas-Centaur booster rocket, was given a go-ahead to begin its countdown Sunday and thunder moonward at 10:40 a.m. EDT Monday.

After a 63-hour mechanical dance across 231,483 miles of space, the craft will set its three pad-like feet gently on the sur-

Washington. Both were unaware that they were patients in the same hospital until a hospital staff member took note of the similar circumstances of their injuries. Mrs. Nyfeiler was present for the awarding of the Oak Leaf Cluster to her husband. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Pastures Better But Rains Slow Many Of Farm Jobs

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Cotton and grain sorghum planting in western areas made real progress over the past two weeks but other sections continued their "catch-as-catch-can" operations, John E. Hutchison, director, Texas Agricultural Extension Service has reported.

Scattered showers and heavy thunderstorms, sprinkled with hail and high winds, continued to keep farm operations far below the level that farmers would like to see, mid-week reports from district agriculture agents reveal.

Ranges and pastures continued to improve and outside of the dry Panhandle area and other smaller spots, livestock are in good condition and grazing prospects for the weeks ahead are good.

W. W. Grisham, Jr. from Amarillo reported that soil moisture over the Panhandle ranges from short to very short; that ranges are below average and range cattle are still being fed and are in fair condition. Some grain sorghum has been planted but most dryland farmers are waiting for rain. Vegetables are making good progress.

NEAR COMPLETION
The planting of irrigated cotton on the South Plains is near completion and over 75 per cent of the dryland acreage is planted, said Billy Gunter from Lubbock. However, dry, hot winds this past week have caused some drying out. Some cotton is now up to good stands. Onions and potatoes look good and irrigated wheat continues to make good progress. Gunter said grain sorghum and castor bean planting was due to be completed by the weekend and that most of the soybean acreage would be planted the first two weeks in June. Sugar beets are making good growth and livestock and ranges are in good condition and improving.

Half of the Rolling Plains counties have adequate moisture, advised James Simmons from Vernon. The first load of 1966 wheat has been harvested in Wichita County and combining is expected to become general within a week to 10 days. High winds and hail caused some damage to small grain in Foard and Knox counties. Up to 70 per cent of the cotton is planted and 85 per cent of the grain sorghum but it varies widely among the counties. Hay harvest is continuing.

CENTRAL TEXAS
Spotted showers in North Central Texas this week failed to slacken greatly the busy schedule of replanting and cultivating, said Ted Martin from Denton. Crops are looking a lot better. Small grains are beginning to ripen and pastures, ranges and livestock are in good condition.

Excess moisture continues to keep farming operations at a slow pace and is preventing grazing in some pastures in Northeast Texas, reported R. S. Loftis from Mount Pleasant. Early vegetables have been lost and strawberry sales have been cut 50 per cent. Pastures are lush.

Cotton in far West Texas is up to a good stand and small grains are ripening, advises Ray Siegmund from Fort Stockton. Ranges are improving; livestock are in good condition; soil moisture varies from short to adequate and farm and ranch labor is short. Grain sorghum planting is past the 50 per cent mark.

MOISTURE AMPLE
Soil moisture in West Central Texas is still adequate in most areas but surface moisture will soon need replenishing, reported Roy Buckabee from San Angelo. Small grains are maturing fast and some is being baled for hay. Rust damage is being reported from the Bandera-Blanco area. Grain and forage sorghums have been planted and are making good growth and cotton planting is starting. Ranges continue to improve and the condition of livestock was listed as excellent. Sheep shearing is continuing and abearers are needed as are tractor drivers.

Moisture is on the surplus side in Bell, Falls, McLennan and Milam counties, short in Lampasas and adequate in all other Central Texas counties, reported John Burleson from Stephenville. Small grain prospects were listed as good but Burleson said the grain needed dry weather.

Ingenuity To Win Out, A&M Graduates Told

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—"Ingenuity will outpace problems of world development," W. B. Murphy, president of Campbell Soup Co., told Texas A&M University seniors Saturday.

Murphy addressed graduates receiving 49 doctorates, 144 master's degrees and 664 bachelor degrees.

Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Dunn, 4th U.S. Army commander, spoke to 133 new officers at commissioning ceremonies for cadets. America's strength, he said, "comes from guns, ships and missiles and above all, from well educated men of faith and determination."

Gold bars went to 93 Army, 37 Air Force and two Marine Corps second lieutenants and one Navy ensign. Seven midshipmen from the Texas Maritime Academy received ensign commissions in Galveston ceremonies.

During commencement, President Earl Rudder announced four recipients of A&M's highest honor for graduates, the Distinguished Alumni Award.

Named by Rudder were W. T. Doherty, Houston oilman; Texas Highway Department Engineer D. C. Greer of Austin; Rep. Olin E. Teague of College Station and R. C. Goodson, St. Louis, Mo., president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

A check for $575,242, representing contributions from 14,872 alumni to A&M's development fund, was presented Rudder by Royce C. Wisenbaker of Tyler, president of the Association of Former Students.

Glue-Sniffing Girls Arrested

Two young girls, one 11 and the other 12, were apprehended by police Saturday engaged in sniffing glue.

They were turned over to Bob Wainfield, juvenile officer, for disposition. Later, one of the same girls was reported to be in a house again with her glue container. The officers who answered the call could not locate the child.

FOR WEDNESDAY Gemini 9 Space Shot Given 'Go'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Gemini 9 astronauts and a spindly Surveyor moon-lander spacecraft—America's one-two punch in the battle toward the moon—were flashed "go" signs Saturday to blast off this week for a two-pronged assault on space.

Dud Grenade Is Found In House

Fortunately, it was a dud. Police received a call Saturday morning from a woman who said there was a hand grenade in one of her rent houses at 1623 E. Third St.

Officers cautiously investigated. Sure enough, they found a grenade.

Only it happened it was a dud.

Station Robbed

Burglars who used a rock to batter the coin box of a cold drink machine made off with 60 bottles of soda water and about $12.50 in cash, from the Harwell North Side Station at 15 20 and US 87 north, police have been advised.

Tower Assails Spending Policy Tobacco Company Official Succumbs

PEARSALL, Tex. (AP)—U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., Saturday blamed inflation on "the unwise, deficit spending policies of the federal government," and said he opposes a tax increase to curb the price rise.

In remarks prepared for delivery to the annual banquet of the Pearsall Chamber of Commerce, Tower said the "federal government must get its financial house in order."

"It must quit talking about a tax increase—that would only further increase the cost of living—and instead cut federal waste, move toward a balanced budget and restore fiscal sanity to federal expenditures."

Stepped-Up Draft Halves Size Of Texas I-A Pool

AUSTIN (AP) — The stepped-up draft has produced some interesting statistics in Texas but only a few ripples of protest. Since President Johnson announced last August that the draft would double, the pool of Texas men classified I-A has been cut by more than half.

Big increases have been recorded in the 2-S (college student) and 3-A (fathers) classifications.

A handful of college students—notably members of the Student Society for a Democratic Society—has a so-called "new left" group—have staged a few public protests and distributed literature opposing new guidelines for student deferments.

Lt. Col. Boyd Sinclair, administrator of state selective service headquarters, said that as of April 30, only 43,873 of the 1,739,475 Texans classified for the draft were I-A. Mainly because not all have been tested, a fraction of these men are actually ready for immediate induction.

15,196 NOW

"If we had to, if they just suddenly yielded for all we have at the present time who are examined and qualified, it would be 15,196," Sinclair said.

Not all those classified I-A will meet present standards for military service. The National Education Association, using data furnished by the Army, reported recently that 32.7 per cent of Texans examined fail the pre-induction mental test. Sinclair pointed out that the total of Texans with a draft classification included 708,894 classified I-A, over the present age of draft liability.

The I-A pool had 87,044 men April 30, 1965, and 99,715 Aug. 31, Sinclair said. The rapid decrease to last April 30's 43,873, he said, was due chiefly to inductions, failure to pass pre-induction physical and mental tests and reclassifications.

Many of the reclassifications have been into the students and fathers group, particularly since married men began to be drafted.

DEFERMENT JUMP

Student deferments jumped from 87,293 April 30, 1965, to about 106,000 at the end of January, then fell slightly to 99,923 at the end of April, 1966.

Since marriage was ruled out as a way to stay out of uniform, draft-eligible Texas married men have found parenthood to their advantage.

Sinclair said 225,204 men are draft exempt because of parenthood, up 11 per cent from the 201,476 at the end of August. For the same period a year ago, the increase was 5 per cent.

Attention has focused on student deferments since Lt. Gen. Lewis Hershey, national selective service director, recently advised local draft boards to consider class standing and results of a nationwide test in deciding on such deferments.

Sinclair said no student deferments in Texas have been cancelled because of low class standing.

"It will be interesting to see what happens (this summer) after the boards get the test results and class standing reports," Sinclair said.

He stressed that there is no law requiring a board to cancel a student deferment because of low class standing or a poor score on a voluntary nationwide scholastic aptitude test.

"The idea is that higher education is in the national interest, and if we have to take somebody, we take the less promising," he said.

South Sells Laundry, Planning Some Trips

C. B. South, a veteran in the laundry business here since 1930, recently sold his interest in the Idea Laundry and Dry Cleaners, 401 Runnels, to his son, Tom, and has announced his retirement.

South, who first came to Big Spring in 1929—the year of the stock market crash—started in the business at the old Big Spring Laundry at First and Scurry under L. C. Holdscaw, and has seen many changes in the laundry and cleaning business in his 35 years of association with it.

AIR PRESSURE

One of the biggest changes in the business came when the pressing machines, operated by foot-pedals for many years, were changed to air pressure operation.

Hill To Get H-SU Degree

Henry M. Hill will receive his bachelor of science degree from Hardin-Simmons University Monday, with a major in religious education and a minor in history. The son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hill, 3005 Cactus Drive, he is a 1957 graduate of Big Spring High School.

While at H-SU, Hill was a member of the Chapel Choir, Life Service Band, and the Religious Activities group. He also served on the freshman council. In the summer, he worked with the Texas Baptist Student Department, holding youth revivals in the First Baptist Church of Eastland and Lamar Street in Wichita Falls. During the school term, Hill has also served as music director of the Capps Baptist Church near Abilene.

While serving his time in the service at Ft. Lewis, Wash., Hill was music director of the First Baptist Church at Lacey, Wash. He is married to the former Sue Stewart of Tacoma, Wash. Hills plans to enter the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Mill Valley, Calif., this fall studying toward a master of science degree in religious education and further pursuing his work in the field of church music.

Training Up At Webb AFB

With the increased attention to On-the-Job Training a result of a steady increase in the number of personnel in OJT at Webb and throughout Air Training Command, has been reported.

The roll jumped from 7,523 in July, 1965, to 10,350 by the end of April, 1966, and is expected to be near 12,000 by October of this year, according to ATO officials.

There were 368 Webb trainees Feb. 28. This number has jumped to 409 March 31 and to 438 April 30. To meet this increased training load, the OJT Section has moved to more spacious facilities in Bldg. 245 and now has two test rooms instead of the previous one.

"The section is now testing from 60 to 80 personnel each day," pointed out T. Sgt. S. R. Griffith, training NCO. "We are striving to maintain an effective program and keep pace with the increased load."

Steer Cage Coach Quits

Allen Simpson, head basketball coach and an assistant mentor in football, has submitted his resignation, effective at the end of the school term, to take a similar position at Spearman in the Texas Panhandle.

Spearman is a Class I-AA school which has Phillips, Dahart, Sanford - Fritch and Stinnett as other members.

Coach Don Robbins expressed keen regret at losing Simpson and said no replacement had yet been sighted for him.

Simpson will assist George Wright in football at Spearman but will have a lighter teaching load. Here, he taught four classes in math. He will instruct in Driver's Education and PE at Spearman.

Simpson plans to move his family to Borger for the summer. There he will be engaged in the gasoline contracting business with his father.

The Simpson family has made its home here at 2706 Cindy Lane. He is married to the former Jearlyn Partridge and they have two children, Kelly Sue, age 5; and Lance Allen, 2.

The departing mentor has been coaching for seven years. He started as a junior high coach at Borger, where his team posted an 11-3 record. He moved on to Canyon where he was head coach in basketball for four years.

During that time, he developed a state champion in Class AA in 1963-64 after having taken his team to the state finals the previous season.

The Canyon club lost to Buna, 47-40, in 1963 but defeated Lancaster in the championship game the following year, 52-51, in overtime.

In his two seasons here, the Steers won 25 and lost 33. Last season, the locals wound up 8-4 in conference, good for a third place finish. Among other feats, the Steers won the Snyder tournament and were third in meets at Plainview and Pampa.

In his four years at Canyon, his teams won 83 and lost 46. His best season there was in 1963-64, when the club wound up with a 30-9 record.

Simpson is well known in athletic circles here, having been one of the city's outstanding softball players for two summers.

ALLEN SIMPSON

Sox Decision Sens, 6 To 5

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home runs by Dalton Jones, Jim Gosger and Tony Conigliaro offset a grand slam by Jim King Saturday as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Washington Senators 6-5.

Jim Lonborg was working on a five-hit shutout through seven innings but got into trouble when he made a throwing error on a ground ball by Don Blasingame that opened the eighth. With one out, Bob Saverine doubled to center, and Lonborg walked Frank Howard, loading the bases.

Dick Radatz relieved Lonborg, and King blasted a home run over the right field fence.

King's homer cut Boston's lead to 4-4, and the Senators made it even closer on doubles by Don Lock and Blasingame in the ninth inning.

Jones, who also had a triple opened the Red Sox' power attack with his third homer off loser Jim Hannan in the third, and Gosger hit his second in the next inning. Jones' homer followed a double by George Scott. Conigliaro clouted his seventh in the seventh inning off Casey Cox.

Carol Mann Is Links Leader

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Showers chilled Carol Mann's sizzling record-breaking pace Saturday, but she fired a one-under-par 71 to take a two-stroke lead in the $10,000 Baton Rouge LPGA Invitational.

Miss Mann, who set a Ladies Professional Golf Association record on the Sherwood Forest Country Club course Friday, had a 36-hole total of 138.

Track Buildup Is Urged

In a talk made before members of the American Business Club at their luncheon Friday at the Settles hotel, coach Don Robbins said that Big Spring High School needed to strengthen its track and field program before it could be expected to compete on a par in all athletics with other District 2-AAAA schools.

Robbins also predicted that District 2-AAAA football would be tougher than ever this fall and predicted that Abilene Cooper would fight it out with Odessa Permian and San Angelo for championship honors.

He said incoming sophomores who had been in varsity training here had shown a lot of promise but warned his listeners not to expect miracles this fall, especially since the Steers had been hit so hard by graduation.

Robbins complimented the Quarterback Club on the work it is doing to boost athletics at the local school. He commented that the work and the attitude of the football boys in spring training had left nothing to be desired and urged all Ambassadors to do what they can to encourage the athletes in their training and their approach toward the game.

After his talk, Robbins engaged in a questions-and-answers session with his listeners. He was introduced by Everett Whately, co-captain of the QBC. Charles Dunnam announced that the club had realized its best income in four years from sales at the recent Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo. The ABC has concessions rights at the rodeo.

It was announced that the board of directors would stage a meeting in the First National Bank building at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Dr. Robert L. Johnson presided. Guests included Glenn Dittmore, Jerry Hunter and Dan Greenwood. A total of 47 attended.

"I think Georgia can do the same and better," she said. Mrs. Wheelchel, who describes herself as a conservative Democrat, says she is "extremely excited. I think I'll have a lot of fun."

Tavern Ordinance Contested In Federal District Court

Lawyers presented legal briefs in Abilene federal court Friday afternoon in an attack on the constitutionality of the city of Big Spring's tavern control ordinance.

U.S. District Judge Leo Brewster of Fort Worth, presiding over the spring term of court here, set no date for issuing a decision.

"I'm not sure I have jurisdiction. I'll have to determine that first," said Judge Brewster.

SUES CITY Ray Null, a Cosden refinery employee, is suing the city administration, claiming the ordinance violates the Texas Liquor Control Act. Null desires to open a tavern in north Big Spring.

Only Null's attorney, George Thomas, and Big Spring City Attorney John Burgess were present for the brief hearing.

The ordinance requires that applicants for on-premise beer and wine permits obtain city commission approval and that three public hearings be held. All owners of property within

East Widens Output Margin Over West

By MAX B. SKELTON HOUSTON (AP) — The Eastern Hemisphere continues to increase its crude production advantage over the Western Hemisphere.

Paced by the Middle East and North Africa, production in the Eastern Hemisphere exceeded that of the West for the first time in history in 1964. The new advantage began to assume runaway proportions in 1965.

The Western Hemisphere accounted for 58.7 per cent of total world production in 1959, leaving 41.3 per cent to the East. New figures for 1965, however, give the Eastern zone 53.9 per cent, the West only 46.1 per cent.

Between 1959 and 1965 the Eastern Hemisphere boosted its output from 5,419,000 barrels a day to 17,090,000, an increase of 163 per cent. Western areas meanwhile boosted their output only 21 per cent, climbing from 12,629,000 (m) to 14,610,000 barrels a day.

The 1965 percentages were published this week by the British Petroleum Co. in its annual statistical review of the world oil industry.

During the 1959-1965 period, United States production moved from 7,054,000 to 7,805,000 barrels a day and Venezuela boosted its daily average from 2,771,000 to 3,480,000.

But the Middle East alone easily exceeded these gains by adding 4,580,000 to 8,340,000 barrels. Libya also gave the Middle East a strong assist. Libyan production amounted to only 17,000 barrels a day in 1961 but an annual growth rate that has averaged more than 300 per cent boosted 1965 output to 1,220,000 barrels a day. Libya was credited with 3.9 per cent of total world crude production in 1965.

The United States continues to produce more crude than any other country but her share of the world's flow has dropped from 34.4 to 24.6 per cent since 1959. Russia meanwhile has climbed from 12.7 to 15.4 per cent and Venezuela has declined from 13.5 to 11 per cent.

Following Venezuela are Kuwait with 6.9 per cent, Saudi Arabia at 6.4, Iran at 6.0, and Iraq at 4.1 per cent.

The Middle East long has permitted the Eastern Hemisphere to hold a dominant position in proved oil reserves. Middle East reserves climbed to 214.3 billion barrels in 1965. The Middle East added 33.6 billion to its reserves between 1959 and 1965. Total crude reserves in the United States were estimated at only 39.9 billion barrels at the end of 1965.

The Eastern Hemisphere also took the lead in 1965 in consumption of petroleum products. The advantage has been strengthened the past two years.

Demand for products in Eastern areas increased from 8.2 million to 16.6 million barrels a day between 1959 and 1965 and accounted for 54 per cent of world demand at the end of last year. Western Hemisphere consumption meanwhile climbed from 11.7 million to 14.4 million but its share of world demand dropped from 59 to 46 per cent.

The United States continues to consume more petroleum products than any other nation but her demand last year of 11.3 million barrels was equivalent to only 36 per cent of total world demand compared to 47 per cent in 1959. Russia ranks second at 15 per cent, compared to 13 per cent in 1959.

Western Europe has made the most impressive gains in petroleum consumption the past six years. Her demand amounted to 7.7 million barrels a day last year, compared to only 3.4 million in 1959.

Western Buys Odessa Firm

FORT WORTH — The creation of a new wire line district at Big Lake and the purchase of an Odessa perfracting and rental supply firm have been announced as The Western Company's latest expansion moves in West Texas.

Construction of the Wire Line Division's district facilities at Big Lake will be completed and operations under way by April 1, said Charles Simmons, vice president and Wire Line Division manager at Western's Fort Worth headquarters. Jack White, formerly district manager at Odessa, will transfer to Big Lake as manager of the new district. George Hale, a former Western Company employee, will assume White's duties at Odessa.

"By opening this new district we can offer faster, better and more economical wire line service to the rapidly increasing oil activity in the Dean - Wolfcamp - Spraberry and Ozona areas and also extend our range of operations to the San Angelo and El Dorado areas," Simmons said.

High Midwest Sector Chilly

A late spring chill in upper regions of the Midwest and showers and thunderstorms over much of the nation marked the early stages of the long Memorial Day weekend Saturday.

Temperatures dipped into the upper 20s in northern portions of the Midwest and snow flurries developed over upper Michigan.

Scattered overnight frost was forecast in portions of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. The chilly air advanced southward along a low front that extended from northern New England through central Indiana to Kansas.

Warm weather was the rule in the southern half of the nation. Scattered showers and thunderstorms broke out over the Atlantic and Gulf states and across the northern Rockies. Locally heavy rains soaked southern New England.

Ninety-Three Votes Cast

Ninety-three Howard County citizens had cast absentee votes for Saturday's primary election runoff at 5 p.m. Friday.

With only one day left in which such votes can be accepted, the voting trend developed a slightly unusual feature.

Mrs. Margaret Ray, chief deputy clerk, in the office of Pauline Petty, Howard County clerk, said that of the 93 votes cast so far 63 were voters who resided in Commissioner Precinct 2.

This is the precinct in which Ray Nichols, incumbent, is matched against Ralph White, whom Nichols defeated four years ago. Nichols and White were the high men in the recent first primary.

In the precincts which comprise Commissioner Precinct 4, 17 votes had been cast absentee, Mrs. Ray said. L. J. Davidson, incumbent, and Billy Tune are candidates.

The remaining 13 votes were by electors who live in the voting precincts not concerned in the county commissioner races.

Monday is a holiday for the county clerk's office, and deadline for casting absentee voting ballots is 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Controls 'Density'

Approval by the commission is not the granting of a permit, but only states that the proposed tavern location is "wet." Burgess indicated the administration feels the law helps control the density of taverns in Big Spring.

Thomas said city authority legally extends only to hours of operation and zoning laws, and not to beer and wine permits. Both Burgess and Thomas quote the Texas Liquor Control Act as part of the basis for their arguments.

Thomas said Null wants to open a tavern at 307 NW 4th St., a place previously known as "Sam's" and which has been closed since 1963. Thomas owns the property, he said.

Thomas also said he would appeal an adverse decision or a ruling of lack of jurisdiction by Judge Brewster to the 5th Circuit of Appeals at New Or-

ACC Receives Andrews' Gift

A Big Spring automobile dealer, R. W. Andrews, has made a $3,000 gift to Abilene Christian College, according to the National Development Council of the college.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, 1715 Yale Street, have two sons who are ex-students of Abilene Christian College, Gary and William. Andrews is president of the Eagle Transport Co. and Shasta Ford Sales, Inc., in Big Spring. He is a member of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association, the American Trucking Association, the Texas Truck Carriers Association and the Texas Motor Transportation Association.

A director of the Security State Bank in Big Spring, Andrews is a past member of the board of directors of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

Andrews serves as a member of the advisory board of ACC, a group acting as advisors to the Board of Trustees and representatives of the college in their home communities.

The Andrews gift was among commitments announced which raised Abilene Christian College's capital gift campaign, the Design for Development, to $8.2 million after only 15 months of operation. The ten-year program has a $2.7 million goal with a Phase I three-year goal of $10.4 million.

H. F. Jarrett's Sister Expires Services were held at the First Methodist Church in Ranger Friday for Mrs. Lella M. Finto, 60, sister of Horace F. Jarrett of Big Spring.

Mrs. Finto, long time resident of Big Spring, was ill for the past two months. She was buried beside the grave of her husband, Johnny R. Finto, who died Sept. 8, 1961 on their 37th anniversary.

Survivors include her brother, H. F. Jarrett; two sisters, Mrs. Lillian Black, Fort Worth, and Mrs. Robert Swenson, Baird. Mrs. Harold Coleman, Big Spring, is a niece by marriage, and Mrs. Tom Cudd, formerly of Big Spring, is a cousin. Several nephews and nieces also survive. Mr. and Mrs. Jarrett were to return today from Ranger.

U Thant's Ulcer Declared Healed

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — A serious disorder which plagued U.N. Secretary-General U Thant two years ago is completely cured.

Ramzes Nassif, press secretary to the secretary-general, said Friday night Thant had a severe ulcer condition which required a strict milk diet and constant medical attention.

"Happily, his bleeding ulcer is completely cured," Nassif told reporters.

The New Orleans court already has ruled on a similar case, Thomas said, adding that its decision set a favorable precedent for his client.

Thomas escaped injury when his car overturned near Colorado City while he was en route to Abilene. The hearing was postponed until the afternoon.

Lawyers presented legal briefs in Abilene federal court Friday afternoon in an attack on the constitutionality of the city of Big Spring's tavern control ordinance.

U.S. District Judge Leo Brewster of Fort Worth, presiding over the spring term of court here, set no date for issuing a decision.

Comedian Balks At Taking Part In Rights Parley

CHICAGO (AP) — A White House invitation to take part in a civil rights parley June 1-3 has been declined by comedian Dick Gregory.

Gregory, who says he will seek to be a candidate for mayor of Chicago in 1967 as an independent Democrat, told The Associated Press Friday he turned down the invitation because of what he termed President Johnson's attitude toward those who protest against his Viet Nam policy.

"The people who do are using their constitutional rights which have to be respected," Gregory said. "The Buddhists have demonstrated (in Viet Nam), but the President hasn't said anything."

IT'S THE SECOND time around for Mrs. R. C. Thomas, left, who enjoyed the summer course so much last year that she has enrolled for it again. Already an accomplished seamstress, she wants to polish the finer points of tailoring that give a garment the finishing touch. Mrs. C. W. Willbanks, an instructor, shows how proper measurements are taken.

SEWING SKILLS can provide personal pride, a sense of accomplishment or a delightful creative hobby. This summer, Miss Annie Lou Williams, center, will assist Mrs. Edward Martinez Jr., left, and Mrs.

Travis Carlton as they master machine tailoring enough to construct a coat or suit. Simple patterns will be used, and the women may choose either a summer or woolen fabric to work with.

A SUIT FOR SUMMER in a lovely shade of aqua rayon and cotton blend fabric is modeled by Mrs. W. L. Eggleston who constructed the costume during a summer homemaking program. She has signed up to take another course this year.

PRESSING IS PART of the art of finishing a garment properly. Below, Miss Helen Willard, instructor, smoothes a suit shoulder as she explains the best method to Mrs. Dan Conley, left, and Mrs. Jack Haralson. There is no charge for the tailoring course, but individuals must furnish the materials they need.

HOSTESSES HAVE much to do to make a party or quiet family meal a pleasure for everyone. There's planning, buying and preparing to be done efficiently before the guests arrive and serving to be accomplished with graciousness. Menus should be tested ahead of time. Below right, Mrs. W. H. Baldwin Jr., left, and Mrs. Ken Keller, right, try a new recipe prepared by their instructors, Mrs. Jack Alexander and Mrs. W. F. Martin.

"SUMMER HOMEMAKERS"

Homemakers who have time on their hands may use it profitably this summer by enrolling in the summer program for adult homemakers being conducted by the Home-making Departments of the local schools.

"The Techniques of Machine Tailoring" will be taught June 20-24 at Runnels Junior High School from 8 a.m. until 12 o'clock noon under the supervision of Mrs. C. W.

Willbanks, Miss Annie Lou Williams and Miss Helen Willard.

From June 13-17, "Meal Planning, Budgeting and Exotic Foods" will be taught from 9 to 11 a.m. daily at Goliad Junior High School. Instructors will be Mrs. Jack Alexander and Mrs. W. F. Martin.

The workshops, which are free, are designed to provide a challenge as well as the fun of learning a new skill or improving a familiar one.

MRS. J. B. McKINNEY

Office Orchid

Drive-in windows not only make banking easier, they make it a pleasant experience when you know the smiling teller is in the booth she likes best.

After seeing banking from the 'inside' for 38 years, Mrs. J. B. McKinney requested the new position when the State National Bank opened its new outside windows in 1965.

Mrs. McKinney, who resides with her husband at 629 State, was born in Collin County, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thad A. Parris. She graduated from high school at Melissa, and had a course in typing, shorthand and banking at McKinney. Her first job, at 17, was with the First National Bank in Anna. She was assistant cashier when she resigned in 1937.

The McKinneys were married in 1930 at Durant, Okla., moving here in 1937. He owns and operates McKinney Plumbing Company, 1403 Scurry.

When Mrs. McKinney started work with the State National Bank in 1938, she was a file clerk, shortly moving to the proof department and then becoming a teller. She served as head teller for about 25 years.

A pretty brunette with flawless complexion, Mrs. McKinney loves her home, and for that reason, has not become a 'joiner.' During the evening hours at home she uses her time to care for an attractive yard, mend and embroider, or read her favorite magazines and books.

She and her husband enjoy fishing and usually do so at Lake Thomas or Lake Colorado City. They are both members of the First Christian Church.

'ROUND TOWN

By LUCILLE PICKLE

Every year I am more baffled with the terminology of football. I love the game so much I am determined to acquaint myself with what's new in the sportswriter's department so as to be sure of what he's saying about the players of one of my favorite games.

Although there may have been skat backs for years before I found out about them, I worried a little when they added the split end until I found out it didn't mean what it sounded like to me. The quick end seemed to make sense right off . . . now I have run across Monster Man which sounds very formidable especially when teamed with Rover. By the time the season rolls around I have hopes of having this all worked out.

The nicest affair for some of Big Spring's nicest people was held Friday evening for HORACE GARRETT and his Dorothy. It's seldom one sees so many good friends together to show their appreciation for all the good things a person has done for his town and state.

Talk was fast at the Saturday morning party at the W. W. LANSING home when MRS. C. B. GLENN (Charlene Lansing) of Houston and MRS. RAY DABNEY (Darlene Agee) hosted a get-together for friends who are visiting here and those who make their homes here. Among the out-of-towners were MRS. DELBERT SHIREY (Julie Rainwater) of Keokuk, Iowa, and MRS. JANET BRIGMAN (Janet Hogan) of Lubbock.

Guests in the home of MR. and MRS. GEORGE O'BRIEN are his niece, MRS. JAKE STINSON, and MRS. R. L. FLEMING, a friend of Mrs. O'Brien since they were 14 years of age. The Fort Worth women plan to be here until Monday. Incidentally, this is Mrs. Stinson's first visit to Big Spring.

MRS. ROBERT CLARK plans to leave Thursday for Monterey, Calif., where she will visit her son-in-law and daughter, MR. and MRS. ROBBIE ALLEN. She plans to fly from Terminal Airport at Midland.

MR. and MRS. AL MONSON left Friday evening on the first leg of their trip to the area around Cincinnati, Ohio, where their parents live.

FROG KOGER SHOWS HOW IT'S DONE

Water Witches Still Getting Results

By SAM BLACKBURN
Maybe there's nothing to it. Perhaps it is true that the idea of "witching" for water is a relic of the dark ages—an old wives tale which still hangs on. If so, why is it that many hardheaded ranchers, farmers and landowners, planning to dig water wells in this part of Texas, invariably seek the services of some individual reportedly possessed of "water witching" power to locate the site for the well?

SEVERAL HERE
There are a number of well known "water witches" in Howard County.

One of the most widely known is Maurice "Frog" Koger, insurance agency operator.

He says, however, the best water witch he ever met was the late Marion Edwards, prominent oil man and rancher. Mr. Edwards' reputation as an expert with a forked green switch in locating places to dig for precious water was wide.

Koger has a good average record for locating wells. He doesn't pretend to explain how it works. He just points to the results and lets it go at that. Water witching or "divining" or "dowling" (it has a dozen names) goes far back into the history of man. In general, the same methods are employed by those following the art today that were used centuries ago.

"Where I can," he explains. "I like to get a forked branch from some tree on the site where the owner needs a well."

MESQUITE
He prefers mesquite limbs for his water witching in particular. He selects one which has two forks of about the same dimension leading off from the main stem. After he has trimmed off the smaller branches and leaves (and thorns) he turns his hands palms upward and grasps one of the forks in each hand. The thumbs are extended to permit them to press hard on the ends of the forks to hold the "y" shaped branch firmly in his grasp. With the longer end of the limb thrust forward parallel to the ground, Koger begins walking slowly forward.

In a test of his powers last week, the site was an area where it was known there was water. This was to expedite action, if any.

He had walked about five steps when the end of the long branch began to tilt toward the ground. As he advanced, the tilt became more marked and about 10 or 12 feet from the starting point the limb was pointing straight down perpendicular to his body. The pull had been enough to twist the forks. The portion held in his hands had not turned, but the strain had been enough to peel the outer bark away and leave the gripped area clean. At the point where the fork extended inward from the hands, the twist had been enough to break the bark. Koger's hands were nearly blistered.

REPEATED
The experiment was repeated several times. On each occasion, the branch turned sharply downward at exactly the same spot.

Koger said he believed if someone dug a water well there, they would get a "good well."

"The pull's pretty strong," he noted.

Sometimes, he said, the water witch gets a powerful indication of water and yet, for some reason, no water may be found. However, in most instances, where the divining rod dips sharply, he said, there's a water well.

A lot of landowners call on Koger and other "water witches" for help in locating well locations, but they usually are reluctant to admit they did so. The Encyclopedia Britannica tells of one eminent scientist in Great Britain who was thoroughly convinced there was something to the practice. Even the Encyclopedia does not brush the matter aside—"there needs to be more investigation into this phenomenon," it concludes.

DISCOVERED

Koger discovered his ability to witch for water about 20 years ago. Raised on the plains and arid lands of West Texas, the presence or lack of water has always been of acute interest and concern to him.

"Lots of people have the ability to work the thing," he said, "they've just never tried."

Some witches use complicated metal devices. Others insist on willow tree forks.

Up in Pennsylvania the city council of the town of Litzitz recently employed one David M. King, 83-year-old Amishman, to locate sites for wells to supply the village with water.

King used a pair of pliers for his divining rod. Where the pliers dipped downward, King told the councilmen they would find water. He claimed he located five underground streams on the village tract. His activity was reported by the national news services.

King had a second trick. To determine the depth that water would be found, the ancient Amishman used a 1907 $5 gold piece which had a hole in one edge. He tied thread through the hole. He then placed a water glass on the spot where his pliers had indicated the water location. Dangling his gold piece inside the glass, he counted the number of times it swung to and fro—each time it touched the side of the glass indicated a foot to be dug, he said.

COUNTS SWINGS

Koger said he had never heard of this method. However, he said that by holding the same limb used to locate the water well spot with one hand and by only one of the forks, the longer segment will begin to slowly swing upward and downwards. Counting the number of swings before it comes to a halt and you have a good guess as to the depth of the well to be drilled, he said.

Koger makes no claims for his powers. He is willing to try out his mesquite limb as a service to friends. He makes no charge nor does he make any guarantee.

"I've been wrong," he said. "He recalls an occasion when Marion Edwards wanted to drill a well on one of his ranches."

"Marion," relates Koger, "witched the area. He found the spot where the pull was the strongest and marked it with a nail driven in the ground. He then asked me to try my hand. He did not tell me where he had tried, but took me to the Witchery?

Scouts Plan 50-Mile Trek

Members of Explorer Post 444 will leave next weekend on an intriguing trip—they plan to hike some 50 miles through the San Juan Wilderness of Southwestern Colorado.

Pete Cole, advisor for the post, said eight or nine members of the post will make the trek. He has obtained field maps of the area, and charted the projected course.

They will begin the long walk where the roads end, near Durango. The hike should take about 10 days, following a circuitous route, and wind up in the vicinity of Silverton. The Explorers will ride the famed narrow gauge railroad back to Durango and return home.

Cole said the boys will carry everything in packs, each weighing about 95 pounds. Once they leave the "jump-off point," they will have no contact with the outside world. He pointed out that "Citizens' Band" radio sets would be of no value, as their range would not be sufficient to reach "outside."

"We are well trained and prepared for the trip," he pointed out, "else we would not attempt it." He added that not many Scout groups would attempt such a challenge.

The trip will cost each boy about $20. Post 444 is sponsored by the Big Spring Hunting and Fishing Club, and Cole is a technical service engineer for Cosden.

The post had an exhibit in the recent South Exposition, showing the equipment they will take and the route they plan to follow.

Free Golf Game Goes With Work

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Golf-clothed policemen have been given free access to the city's golf courses in an effort to curb vandalism.

Under instructions from Parks Director George F. Kinkad the policemen are supposed to keep picknickers, people digging for fishing worms, and others off the courses.

The policemen have to do all this while playing golf.

Poll Gives Martin Edge Over Spears

By JOE BELDEN
Copyright 1966 Texas Poll

Crawford Martin was leading Franklin Spears for the Democratic nomination for attorney general when the latest Texas Poll was completed two weeks before the June 4 primary.

Complete returns from the statewide survey show former Secretary of State Martin with a five-point margin over his opponent among the entire electorate, and a 10-point margin among voters considered most likely to turnout next Saturday.

In fact-to-face interviews over the entire state, a cross section of voters was asked, "In the runoff election next month, whom would you like to see nominated for attorney general of Texas, Crawford Martin or Franklin Spears?" These were the results:

All Likely Voters	Per cent
Martin	55 47
Spears	30 37
Undecided	15 16

The Texas Poll has compiled these figures not as a forecast of the election, but as a measurement of opinion at the time of the survey, May 13 through 20. The last two weeks of the campaign, when the candidates' appeals should reach a peak, could change the above division of votes significantly. This appears especially likely in this race because the number of voters who remain undecided—even among the most likely to vote—is relatively high.

The proportion of undecided voters reflects lack of interest in the runoff, in which the attorney general's race is the only one of statewide importance. Martin missed winning the nomination in the May primary when he received 47 per cent of the vote, to 36 per cent for Spears and 17 per cent for Galloway Calhoun. All other Democrats in Gov. John Connally's conservative camp won smashing victories.

The current survey interviewed 1,000 adults, of which about seven out of 10 declared they were qualified to vote. From a series of 11 questions on party affiliation and voting interest, those most likely to vote June 4 were selected as the basis for the 47-36-17 distribution above.

On election day all undecided voters eliminate themselves by making up their minds or not voting for either candidate. If at this time we eliminate the undecided, Martin has about a 56 per cent majority among likely voters.

Time For Action

When Marvin Springer, the city's consultant on the Master Plan, was here recently to urge that the MP committee start pointing toward some new decisions, he listed the development of the "big spring" as one of the items which needed attention. He even had a draft of a suggested plan for improving the spring area by providing some lookout points, nature trails, etc. In due season, he said, there should be consideration for access not only to the existing road and possibly one from the City Park, but also from US 87 highway.

He took occasion to point out that the spring is part of the Big Spring heritage, that this community has some roots in history that many others in the area do not.

Everyone seems agreed that the suggestions are good ones. Everyone

Make A Date For Saturday

When the first primary was held a month ago, Howard County polled only about half of its voting potential.

Unless the public takes the blessing of a free vote a lot more seriously than seems apparent, a lot of observers may be correct in forecasting only a fourth of the voting strength will turn out this Saturday.

For only one out of every two persons to get to the polls on election day is a disgrace. For only one out of four to take time to cast a ballot this Saturday would be a double disgrace and a terribly sad commentary upon our democratic processes.

If you are eligible to vote in the run-off Democratic primary (those who either have not voted in any primary or who participated in the first Democratic primary), won't you make it your first order of business to get to the polls Saturday? And urge your fellow workers and neighbors to do so.

There is yet the serious business of naming a state attorney general nominee, as well as those of two county commissioners.

Fight Over The CIA

WASHINGTON—Given the order of battle, there should be little doubt about the outcome of the Senate battle over the Central Intelligence Agency. The Senate establishment, led by its most conspicuous member, Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, holds the CIA in fond embrace and is determined to repel all invaders.

BUT THERE ARE DOUBTS; and, if the 14-to-5 vote in the Foreign Relations Committee is a portent, Russell may have to use all his skill at parliamentary maneuver to put down the revolt. It is a test that will show whether the interlocking directorate—between the Senate establishment, the intelligence apparatus and the armed services—has the muscle to keep out interlopers.

Partly, of course, it is a personal feud. The challenge comes from members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who are convinced they should be represented on the top-secret Joint Supervisory Committee overseeing the CIA's operation.

This pits chairman J. William Fulbright and his critical view of the Viet Nam conflict against Russell, who, as chairman of the Armed Services Committee, goes down the line for the administration.

BUT THE CONTROVERSY is more than a personal vendetta or even a dispute over Viet Nam. The issue is the use of American power with roots deep in the American temperament. The isolationism of the first decades of this century grew out of a conviction of America's special destiny and the imperative need to stand free of the power struggles of the corrupt Old World.

IN THE RECENT senate exchange those arguing for supervision by members of the Foreign Relations Committee—three to be added to the six from Defense and Appropriations—were not saying the CIA is inefficient. On the contrary, they passed out generous bouquets for CIA performance. Sen. Fulbright suggested that, because CIA men stayed longer in a foreign post and dug deeper into the native environment, they might be more effective than the State Department.

THE ARGUMENT was that the CIA exercises a direct influence on foreign policy and, therefore, should come under the scrutiny of senators concerned with that field. No so, say Russell and the members of the Supervisory Committee, who contend that the Agency has solely an operating function and does not intrude on policy-making.

While the CIA maintains its spunk-like silence in public, the Senate establishment unquestionably speaks for it. The reason for wanting to keep the number of senators overseeing CIA operations to a minimum goes beyond the increased danger of security leaks inherent in an enlarged committee, although this is the argument chiefly stressed in public. What disturbs the CIA is the likelihood that senators with a conviction of their expertise in the foreign field would want to call the shots.

FEW KNOWLEDGEABLE observers would disagree with the criticism that the CIA grew too fast and luxuriantly in the postwar years. Coming out of the wartime Office of Strategic Services, the agency carried into another era many of the free-wheeling habits of a cloak-and-dagger operation sanctioned by the urgency of war. The inhibitions of secrecy, anonymity and restraint guaranteeing obscurity have been acquired in a painful period of trial and error.

The basic question often lost sight of is whether a corollary of American power must be a highly organized intelligence operation. If the answer is "yes," then this must be a secret operation with congressional intervention kept to a minimum.

Economists Watch Which Way Cars Will Bounce

NEW YORK (AP)—Special interest was focused this week on reports from Detroit on mid-May automobile sales.

People in all strata of the economy wanted to read into the indications of which way the economy was going.

When reports of a drop in sales in the first 10 days of May was announced, the stock market slumped and apprehension about the business outlook spread.

This time the report on sales in the second 10 days of May didn't create much of a ripple. That was because the results could be interpreted two ways: a gain over early May and a decline from a year earlier.

Mid-May sales of new cars totaled 342,407, an increase of nearly 50,000 over early May but down about 33,000 from a year earlier.

Top Ford executives predicted that passenger car sales, including imports, would total nine million this year, second only to record 1965, when 9.3 million were sold.

ABOUT THE SAME

An analysis by the Census Bureau said American consumers intend to buy almost as many cars through next April as during the past year.

The proportion of households reporting intentions in April to buy a new or used car within 12 months was 18.7 per cent during the April, 1965, survey. New car purchases were intended by 9.3 per cent of the households, the same as in last year's survey.

Intentions to buy new cars within six months were also about the same as a year earlier—4.4 per cent last month, compared with 4.7 per cent in 1965.

Passenger car production declined this week to an estimated 183,100 from 194,428 last week and 199,083 a year ago.

Production for the year totaled 4,966,676 against 4,266,148 at this time last year.

PRODUCTION CUT

Ward's Automotive Reports, an industry trade publication, reported that the industry has cut 100,000 units from production schedules. This, according to Ward's, was in addition to 175,000 units sliced from production schedules two weeks ago.

The inventory of unsold cars was reported to have topped 1.6 million for the first time.

Steel industry leaders at the New York meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute generally agreed that the steel business continues to boom and may set records for production and shipments this year.

Spasm Can Be Hiccups Or Worse

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a spasm of the diaphragm?—A.S.

Dear Doctor: After a dozen painful attacks, my trouble was diagnosed as a cardiac spasm with blockage of the esophagus, so that during the spasm I cannot swallow anything, even water.

These seem to occur only when I drink something alcoholic, even a small amount. Is there any treatment other than abstinence?—L.L.

These are different types of spasm but having in common somewhat similar areas. A spasm is an abrupt, involuntary contraction of muscles. Common hiccup is spasm of the diaphragm, and there are several causes—dehydration, irritation of the stomach, irritation of the diaphragm itself as from infection or following surgery. Less commonly, there are chemical derangements which can cause it.

Now let's move a few inches upward and discuss spasm of the esophagus, or gullet. This can occur anywhere along that organ, or even at the lowest point at which it enters the stomach. This is cardiospasm.

It can occur in highly nervous persons who often describe the condition as a "lump in the throat," although the trouble really is a bit lower.

Irritating food or drink can cause such a spasm—in the foregoing case, the irritating drink is alcohol. The treatment is obvious: Avoid alcohol. I do not know of any alternative.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 17 and 5 feet 4 1/2 inches tall and weigh 184 pounds. I hope to be accepted by a nursing school, and want to put on some weight so they won't think I'm sickly. I don't eat much for breakfast because my stomach has shrunk and eating a good balanced breakfast sickens me unless I am really hungry. I make up for it at lunch and dinner and eat like a horse, but I still don't seem to put on a pound.—P.K.

The nursing school is interested in brains, not weight, so just see that your grades are good.

And stop making excuses that aren't pertinent. A nurse has to be a realist. If your stomach is "shrunk" at breakfast, it is "shrunk" at lunch and dinner, too. So that's not the real reason why you skimp breakfast.

My guess is that you've just acquired a habit and you can break it. Start eating a better breakfast, and that will help. Try four meals a day, adding one afternoon or evening snack.

"Tips on How to Stop Smoking," by Dr. Molner, will help you give up the habit. To receive a copy of the booklet, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Hera-D enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

What Others Say

We are a fine and generous people, though thoughtless. We go to great pains to repair damage which would not have occurred with forethought.

One example is water pollution. It is a cause today for national alarm. It can endanger our health and stop the growth of our cities.

We could have stopped all this a generation ago, and cheaply. Now that we are filling up our open spaces and ruining our water supply we are beginning to worry about these things and what we will do about tomorrow.

We'll probably do all right now that we have begun to worry and plan and spend a lot of money to make things right.

It is too late for much forethought on water pollution.

But forecasts should start us worrying about air.

The way man is polluting his environment, above and below, some scientists are projecting a future of completely enclosed ecological systems for us to live in. We would be in glassed-in communities (or whatever is a good substitute for glass) with recirculating water and air, and everything else we needed.

We will do this because outside will be so sickeningly dirty.

—ATLANTA JOURNAL

OFF BUT STRONG

Output last week totaled 2,765,000 tons, off four per cent from 2,776,000 tons the previous week.

The pressure for an income tax increase to combat inflation appeared to ease.

Remarks by President Johnson seemed to indicate that his thinking runs against a tax increase right now.

"We are concerned that we don't go too far too fast," he said.

The President's chief economic adviser, Gardner Ackley, told bankers attending a meeting in Madrid that the administration as yet saw no need to resort to higher taxes to control inflation.

William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, commented at the same meeting that the recent cooling of the U.S. economy was salutary and that the question of a tax increase depends mostly on the Viet Nam situation.

Earlier he had called for a prompt tax increase.

New orders for metal cutting machine tools dropped to $13.75 million in April. This was $22.1 million below March but 39 per cent higher than a year earlier.

A Prom-Less Graduation

By reading the papers, one can plainly see that it's not just the end of the school year, it's also the prom season.

It would almost seem that these galas are more important to the young people than passing the finals. Not necessarily true, of course, but there's more glamor in a formal party than there is in "dead" week.

THE WORLD keeps changing, as fuddy-duddies of my ilk are accustomed to remark. Now, blankety-blank years ago in Colorado City, every week was dead week as far as I can recall. At least, the kids had to stay home every week night, haul out their books on the dining table after supper, and pore over the next day's lesson, whether it was working arithmetic problems or drawing a map for the geography class.

Come the end of the year, we were supposed to be ready for those exams without the last-minute cramming. Not that all of us were.

AND ABOUT the only recreational affair we could manage was a picnic out at Seven Wells, the nearest scenic spot available, if you discount a water hole or two along Lone Wolf Creek.

The girls brought their baskets of sandwiches, and the boys brought the pop. And we looked at each other and giggled, then ate the supper, and then came home. This was pretty exciting at the time.

A PROM? Good heavens, nothing could have been further from anyone's thinking, either adult or young person.

First off, there was no place to have the dance. There was that room over Burns & Bell's dry good store, but only the older fast crowd dared show up there. Next, there was no music other than a wheezy phonograph. Only "combo" would have been a few hands out of the town's Gold Medal band, and those people used to playing Sousa marches wouldn't necessarily be so hot at something real snappy, like a fox trot.

NEXT, NOBODY had any clothes for that kind of occasion. In my graduating class, you could not have put together three new suits out of the whole male element. If most of us fellows got through the school year in our overalls, we considered it an accomplishment. And if there was a new suit for graduation, believe me, it had to last for many and many a Sunday afterwards. It was not going to be worn at anything—frivolous—like a dance.

AND, TO TELL the final truth, nobody in that fabulous class of bumptkins really knew how to dance. What few steps had been learned were by stealth, with seldom an opportunity to get practice. You see, children, this was back in the days when boys and girls actually thought they had to HOLD ON to one another to dance. They even tried to match one another in the steps. This seems like something out of another world, but then, we just didn't know any better.

GRADUATION NIGHT itself, actually, was the only big social occasion. There was some sense of relief in getting the diploma, and perhaps some day dreams of going to college—no easy attainment. But principally, it was a matter of waking up the next morning to the realization that now you had to work all day every day, instead of in the afternoons after school. This was not as bleak as it sounds, but still, it definitely was a prom-less graduation.

A Dog For ALL Seasons

WASHINGTON—The Northwest Settlement House of Washington held its annual pet show at Hickory Hill, the home of Senator and Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy, last Saturday, and it was a huge success.

One of the reasons it was a success was that the officials of the pet show had insisted that Brumus, Bobby Kennedy's favorite pet, a 200-pound black Newfoundland dog, be placed in a cage. Last year Brumus, whose name in Newfoundland means "a prolonged meal eaten around two a.m.," was let loose to wander around the show. Not only did he cause chaos among the pet owners and their pets, but he also wandered among the guests picnicking on the Kennedy lawn, using them as he would a fire hydrant. This, of course, gave the pet show a bad name.

WHEN FRIENDS of the Kennedys heard that Brumus had been caged, there was joy throughout the show. It was the first time that Brumus had ever been locked up, and it was the first time guests of the Kennedys ever really felt safe at Hickory Hill.

Brumus is a legend in his own time. He is a large, friendly-looking, furry animal with sad eyes and drooping ears who sits around on the back porch of Hickory Hill wondering whether he'll bite a dog or a child next. In fairness to Brumus, he plays no favorites and he'd just as soon nip a Kennedy child as a stranger.

BRUMUS CAN really play on people's emotions. Mrs. Jackie Kennedy, who rarely loses her temper, once got so mad at Brumus she bit him in the nose with her pocketbook.

If you're invited to dine at Hickory Hill, you must be willing to share your meal with Brumus. And he doesn't want you to give him any food. He insists on grabbing it off your plate.

BRUMUS ONCE played a small part in American history. The head of a Southern university, Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, and Bobby Kennedy were trying to work out desegregation plans for Alabama at the Kennedy house over breakfast. But every time a plate of bacon and eggs was set down in front of the university president, Brumus went over and ate it. After this happened three times, the university president was so frustrated he agreed to everything Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Katzenbach proposed.

Brumus has also left his mark on the United States Senate. When Sen. Kennedy was first elected, he noticed that the late Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia brought his cocker spaniel to the office every day. Bobby asked the senator if he could bring Brumus. Sen. Byrd said he certainly could.

THE NEXT DAY Bobby and Brumus walked into Sen. Byrd's large luxurious office and Brumus went right over to the cocker spaniel and started sniffing. The cocker spaniel was so nervous it started to wet the rug. Brumus joined her and suddenly relations between Bobby and Sen. Byrd took a turn for the worse.

These are only a few reasons why everyone was happy to see Brumus placed in a cage at this year's pet show. To placate him, the judges gave Bobby a blue ribbon for the "Best Dog in Show Belonging to a United States Senator From Either Massachusetts—Or New York—Regardless of Race, Creed or Color."

Viet Nam Issue In Elections

WASHINGTON — The best way to size up what happened in the Oregon primary — in which Representative Robert Duncan won over Howard Morgan in the contest for the Democratic nomination for United States senator — is to imagine the comments that would have been made if it had turned out the other way.

For Mr. Morgan, in his outspoken criticism of the Viet Nam war, reflected the views of Senator Wayne Morse, Democrat of Oregon, and others who have questioned the wisdom of President Johnson's policy. A Morgan victory would have been construed as meaning the administration had been repudiated.

ACTUALLY, there were many other factors in the campaign, as there usually are in primary elections, and it is to be noted that the Republican primary, won by Governor Mark Hatfield, had also raised the Viet Nam issue, though by no means as positively or as unequivocally as was the case in the Democratic primary.

Mr. Morgan had the ardent backing of Senator Morse, Democrat. But the latter points out that, if the votes cast in the Republican primary against the Viet Nam war are added to the Morgan vote, the total would indicate that the Republican nominee, Governor Hatfield, will win the election in November.

THE FACT remains, however, that the Democrats in their primary turned down a prospective candidate who was openly against the administration. Representative L. Mendel Rivers, Democrat, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said of the Oregon primary:

"It shows that the people of the country intend to continue their support of President Johnson and want a vigorous prosecution of the Viet Nam war."

The most significant comment came from Mr. Morgan himself. He said:

"I WAS conducting a campaign under almost impossible conditions — opposing a President of my own party on a war issue when the country was in the midst of hostilities. If anyone had run against the policies of Roosevelt during World War II, he wouldn't have received three per cent of the vote."

But it would have been a different story if Representative Duncan, the exponent of the administration's Viet Nam policy, had been defeated and Mr. Morgan had been nominated. It will be difficult now for even the foreign press to justify any inference that the American People are opposed to the administration's policy in Viet Nam.

ALL THIS does not mean, however, that Viet Nam will not be a critical issue for any Democrats in the November election. It always happens that congressmen who are members of the party in power are either helped or hurt by the standing of the administration at the time of the election. If the war in Viet Nam goes from bad to worse and the voters begin to feel that there ought to be a change in policy, there will be lots of votes cast against the party in power — not only by those who think America should withdraw from Viet Nam, but by many others who feel the war ought to be prosecuted much more vigorously than it has been.

THE WORLD IS WAITING...

In ancient times the world waited breathlessly for every new king. It was always man's crying hope, man's fervent expectation — that under a new king the world would be different.

Today we no longer put our faith in kings — nor in any government that does not represent the people. We believe that tomorrow will be determined by the hopes and ideals of the young men and women who today prepare for their role in life.

There aren't any Christmas bells at graduation time. But it would be well for us to remember those learned men — the Wise Men — who came across the desert to Bethlehem. They came to pay homage to a new-born King... One who did change this world.

And the sons and daughters upon whom we look with fond hopes today must find their foundation of faith in the same Lord.

With its ministry of teaching, its inspiration to service and sacrifice, the Church points their path to tomorrow — and ours!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

STAMP NEWS

Gambia's Birds Shown On New Spring Series

By SYD KRONISH
AP Wirephoto

Spring is here—and it shows even on the new postage stamps being issued around the world.

Gambia has issued a new set of 13 stamps illustrating the birds of that country shown against the foliage of their natural habitat. The birds depicted are: whistling teal, napolean bishop, river eagle, red-throated bee-eater, blue-bellied roller, yellow-bellied fruit pigeon, cordon bleu, pied kingfisher, pigmy kingfisher, spur winged goose, little woodpecker, violet plantain-eater and pintailed whydah.

yl found in the forests of Malawi.

Ceylon also has issued a bird series. This one consists of four stamps showing local birds in beautiful color. The 5 cents depicts the grackle, 15 cents peacock, 80 cents junglefowl, 75 cents oriole.

Malawi has issued a butterfly set of unusual design. Illustrations are (in Latin descriptions) papilio opidicephalus which is peculiar to the Mkuwadzi Forest, papilio magdae found in the mountain regions, epimera handmani first discovered in 1960 and the amauris crawsh-old "lion and sun in a circle."

Australia is looking ahead in its stamp programming. Postmaster General Alan Hulme announced the forthcoming issuance of a stamp set in 1969 to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the first flight from England to Australia. Four Australians left England on Nov. 12, 1919, and reached Darwin, Australia on Dec. 16, 1919, carrying the first air mail to reach Australia from overseas. The aircraft, a Vickers Vimy, is preserved at Adelaide Airport in South Australia.

New stamps have been issued by Iran. A 5 rial honors the nurses of that country. A set of three low values depicts local flowers and is for use on Iranian New Year's cards. A 14 rial air mail stamp is for the oil industry. All future values will bear new watermarks instead of the old "lion and sun in a circle."

Former Siren Likes Getting Her Face Back

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After two years as a pesty-complexioned tele-vampire, Yvonne De Carlo says "I'm relieved to be back in my normal face."

The onetime siren of sex-and-sand movies reflects on the non-renewal for next fall of "The Munsters," her sepulchral television comedy series.

SECURITY

"It meant security. It gave me a new, young public I wouldn't have had otherwise. It made me 'hot' again, which I wasn't for a while.

"It's been nothing but good for me and I'm very sorry to see it go.

"Still, I can't be too sad because now I can do other things. I was getting disinterested, and that's bad. I have a few years left. My figure and acting are better than ever. I know I can do other things with real zest."

The singer-dancer-actress will star in "Pal Joey," the musical comedy, next month in suburban Anaheim.

NO GLOOM

It was the next to last day of shooting for theaters a movie spinoff of the television series — "Munster, Go Home." No gloom could be discerned.

Fred Gwynne, as Herman Munster, the monster who works in a mortuary, was about to race in "Drag-a-la," the dragster built of a golden casket with organ pipes for exhaust.

Al Lewis, who plays grandpa, the mad scientist who relaxes in an old electric chair while reading obituaries, stood off-camera, munching sunflower seeds.

"Two years? That's a long run," he said of the Munsters' television life. "On the stage I've opened on Friday and closed on Saturday."

BATMAN

Batman, who cut heavily into the Munsters' audience, helped cause the Munsters' cancellation. Also, there's an industry feeling that the monster era has run its course. The somewhat similar "Addams Family" also fell by the wayside.

Miss De Carlo doesn't tell her age, but old studio biographies make her 41. She still photographs as beautifully as in roles of yore: Moses' soulful wife in "The Ten Commandments," Alec Guinness' exotic "other wife" in "Captain's Paradise," the glamorous lovely who enacted a torrid love affair with Clark Gable in "A Band of Angels."

Her features are delicate, the large eyes blue-gray. She measures 36-34 — "and I don't know about the hips" — but they're artistically proportioned, too.

MAKEUP

Every working day for two years, the sultry French-Canadian brunette has undergone two hours' make-up for her role as Lily Munster: a mixture of green and gray greasepaint, green tint on the eyelids, half-inch false eyelashes, swooping black brows and a black wig that falls to her calves.

How did the veteran of glamor roles feel about taking the ghoulish part when her agent proposed it?

"Some people thought it was a criminal shame to put me in this make-up. But when I saw the result on the screen it was not too bad. It was not ogre-ish. When they put comedy with it, the whole thing became bizarre."

She had minor roles in "This Gun for Hire," which propelled Alan Ladd to stardom, in Big Crosby's and Bob Hope's "Road to Morocco" and in Gary Cooper's "The Story of Dr. Wassell."

Producer Walter Wanger saw her sitting in another studio's casting office and gave her her first starring role, in "Salome, Where She Danced."

By 1960 her career was in low gear. There were rumors of trouble with her marriage to stunt man Bob Morgan. In 1962 he was gravely hurt on location in Arizona for the movie "How the West Was Won." His left leg had to be amputated above the knee.

Touching Story Of A Betrayal

A COUNTRY OF STRANGERS. By Conrad Richter. Knopf, $3.95.

Richter's novel is a touching, tragic, thought-provoking story of a victim of early America's betrayal of the red man.

Ironically the victim is a white girl, who at a very early age had been captured by the Indians. She has been raised in an Indian family, and given the name of Stone Girl. She has married an Indian, is the mother of an Indian boy named Otter Boy. She has only a few faint memories of her pre-Indian life. She thinks, feels and acts like an Indian.

But when the white men demand the general return of captives, she is taken away from her husband—later she is to learn he has been killed in a raid—and with Otter Boy is sent on a long journey. A French priest takes them and another captive girl back to the white settlements in Pennsylvania to restore them to their real parents.

Disastrously, Stone Girl is rejected by her white father. She becomes lost between the races—neither white nor Indian, but in her primitive way her allegiance is with her dark-skinned son.

Then comes the terror of an Indian raid on the white settlements; a dangerous mission to save her small white sister; a desperate escape, a sorrowful retreat to the wilds.

Richter has told the story from the viewpoint of the almost-Indian girl, with allusions to Indian beliefs and customs, with an expert insight into Indian psychology, language and symbolism.

This is a companion novel to the author's well-known "The Light in the Forest." It contains a deep sense of tragedy and fortitude, and a deep sympathy for the victims of the white man's arrogant invasion of the wilderness.

NOSTALGIC COMEDY
of the early days of flying

Comedy Is A Tribute To Flying's Early Days

"Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines, or: How I Flew from London to Paris in 25 Hours and 11 Minutes" is a film tribute, in the form of a comic valentine, to those daring men the world over who, at the beginning of the century, took to the air in the first outlandish flying machines.

The production, in CinemaScope and DeLuxe Color opens Wednesday at the Ritz Theatre.

For the large cast of "Those Magnificent Men," there is an imposing roster of internationally famous actors. In the leading roles, Hollywood's Stuart Whitman teams with a quartet of English stars—Sarah Miles, James Fox, Terry-Thomas and Robert Morley. They are joined by Italy's Albert Sordi, Germany's Gert Frobe, France's Jean Pierre Cassell and Irina Demick, and Japan's Yujiro Ishihara. In addition, there are portrayals by Sam Wanamaker, Eric Sykes, Benny Hill, Flora Robson, Karl Michael Vogler, Tony Hancock and Red Skelton in a cameo role.

"Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines" is the culmination of a collaboration between director Ken Annakin and screenwriter Jack Davies. Annakin had long been considering a serious film on the early days of flying, when he discovered Davies developing an original screenplay treating the comic aspects inherent in the exploits of adventuring aviators in their bizarre flying machines.

Annakin collaborated with Davies in the writing, and then they joined their talents to those of producer Stan Margulies.

Sharing top-billing with the film's stars, in a sense, are the planes themselves. Exactly duplicated to the most minute detail are such antique aircraft oddities as the Demoselle, Antoinette, Bristol Box-Kite, Avro Triplane, Eardley - Billings biplane and a Bleriot of the type which was the first plane to fly the English Channel. There are more of equally strange name and design, and they were all captured by the pen of Ronald Searle, the famous cartoonist who created titles for "Those Magnificent Men." Each of the six planes which did most of the flying had two stand-ins: one to use in case of mishaps, and another specially constructed so that it could be taken apart to facilitate close-up filming. None of the pilots who flew these ancient aircraft had stand-ins, and fortunately, none were needed.

Most extensive of the many film sets was the Brookley Aerodrome, a mammoth setting covering approximately 80 acres. It was patterned after Brooklands, the aerodrome which, a little more than half a century ago, was the hub of experimental aviation in England. Nestled in England's lush Buckinghamshire countryside, the setting is actually an abandoned RAF base.

'SHANE'
Alan Ladd and Jean Arthur

'Shane' Returning To Jet Screen

The motion picture hailed as the greatest in the Western category, and as one of the all-time great films of any type, "Shane," in Technicolor, starts its re-run Wednesday at the Jet Theatre.

Starring Alan Ladd, Van Heflin and Jean Arthur, with young Brandon De Wilde and Jack Palance, the magnificently directed and photographed "Shane" seethes with the pent-up violence generated by an impending clash between the Johnny-come-lately homesteaders and the long-established cattlemen.

Van Heflin is the backbone of the homesteaders, living a rugged existence with his wife (Jean Arthur) and son (Brandon De Wilde). Into this powder-keg of resentment wanders the buck-skinned, gun-toting Shane (Alan Ladd) a champion of right, who sides with the homesteaders.

Ladd's showdown with the cattlemen and their hired, black-clad killer, Wilson (Jack Palance), is one of the memorable climaxes in Western film history.
