However, it would be advisable to wait a while before conceding the 3-AAA crown to Lamesa. Snyder made quite a splash in coming from behind to upend Andrews. Observers can get a better line on the two teams when Lamesa plays Andrews this week.

One person close to the scene insists this Snyder team is the best he's ever seen over there, and Snyder has had some tremendous clubs down through the years.

A Devotional For The Day

Blessed are they that dwell in thy house: they will be still praising thee. (Psalm 84:4)

PRAYER: O God, our Father, we thank Thee for Thy house and the fellowship of Thy people. Grant us blessings of such fellowship and, above all, the riches of Thy grace, through Jesus Christ our Lord, the church's one foundation. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Sordid Example

The Western world can only watch in morbid fascination as Communist China's officially sponsored mobs of juvenile delinquents rampage in a savage reign of terror through the city streets of an ancient and once great civilization. The Occidental mind simply cannot fathom, at least at this distance and through censorship's distorting screen, what the Mao Tze-tung dictatorship is attempting to accomplish through its teenage Red Guards.

Speculation, however, is irresistible. Is this a sick and aging tyrant's effort to convert the youngest generation, which he distrusts to carry on his perpetual revolution, to "Mao's thought," which oversimplified is a guerrilla concept of world domina-tion? Is he-or his expectant successor - merely using easily excitable children to intimidate a whole national population to resist the temptation to anticipate inevitable change?

There was an older Red Guard-an irregular peasant militia-used some 40 years ago to combat dissension behind Mao's advancing revolutionary forces. But they were nothing like the milling mindless mass of sadists who were stirred up and let loose at a Peking political rally in mid-August under the direction of Mao's heir apparent, Lin Piao. Lin Piao portrayed the new Red Guard as a vanguard of a "cultural revolution," an apparent euphemism for a retrogression to the primitive origins of Chinese communism. But the Peking regime has done little to hide from the world what most countries would conceal in shame, a massive demonstration of juvenile delinquency gone berserk.

The West has consolation, however. The Red Guard phenomenon cannot conceivably hurt anyone but Chinese Communists, and surely it will further blacken communism throughout the more or less civilized world. It may help perpetuate "Mao's thought" in world history, but only as an eternal example of the depths of de-pravity to which man is still capable of self-destructively plunging.

Intersection Hazards

A brief news story says that Beaumont officials have acted to clear 70 street intersections of shrubbery "and other obstructions which prevent adeguate vision" calls to mind that Big Spring has many so-called blind corners.

At various places there are benches standing next to the curb so that a motorist must crane his neck and creep slowly into the cross street before he knows the coast is clear.

At others high weeds or, in at least one place, a planted shrub blocks the a hazard, indirectly it could cause an accident if a driver were straining to ascertain his location to a degree that he failed to see oncoming cars or pedestrians.

The story says Beaumont has a city ordinance forbidding trees or shrubs within 30 feet of an intersection.

Big Spring's city attorney, John Burgess, says no ordinance here spells out such restrictions. In the case of those existing on public prop-erty, however, the city has the right to remove the obstruction, and sim-There are any number of instances ilarly has the right to require owners where drooping tree limbs mask a of benches to place them a safe dis-street sign. ## Around The Rim

Somebody Pays The Bill

It is a sometime complaint that the government should stay out of certain areas and allow the people to take care of such things in their own way. An excellent foundation for govern-ment, provided the people are willing to accept the responsibility. Certain ly, in some areas, the gauntlet of acceptance is picked up; in others, it remains but a theory.

THE AUTOMOBILE makers might be one example. For years they have adopted a few safety features in their cars, but not nearly enough. when the threat of government con-trol loomed, they moved a bit fast-er—but not much. Finally, the gov-ernment acted. Safety, of the built-in variety, had to be required to become a reality.

HERE'S ANOTHER. For the past year, our school district has been turning handsprings trying to live up to all the requirements of the federal government's civil rights act. The fact that our schools are fully integrated was beside the point. There were other obligations to meet. Otherwise, we could lose the federal funds which supplement local taxes. Few of us would ask a tax raise to water, as well as electric power. As a result, they must meet a host of government requirements - among others to maintain certain water levels. Our area has built its own lake in J.B. Thomas and has a new lake in the works. No federal help was asked and the lakes and their waters belong to the people of this area. I suppose if we were so amind, we could drain them at any time or institute an octopus ranch.

BOTH LISTS might be expanded through a wide range of public life, but these make the point. If we are willing to take the responsibility and cough up the money, we can keep the federal government out of local affairs. If not, we will be meeting federal requirements, filling out forms and, perhaps, arguing over a paper theory. In either case, the decision is ours. —V. GLENN COOTES

Holmes Alexander Urban Challenge Of GOP

By EDWARD W. BROOKE (Attorney General of Massachusetts and Republican Candidate for U.S. Senate is guest Columnist today-Ed.)

WASHINGTON, D.C. - I wish to thank Holmes Alexander for his gracious invitation to comment on one of the nation's most urgent prob-

A PRIMARY reason for the decline of our two-party system, as I see it, has been the failure of the Republican Party to come to grips with the social and economic changes that have overtaken both this nation and the world in the past three decades. Nowhere is the challenge of change more critical than in our great urban centers. Here the Republican Party today has a unique opportunity to develop its own distinctive program and solutions—to provide the Ameri-can people new and creative leadshould innovate new public and pri-vate sector partnerships within our regions and communities. Local "community corporations," with tech-nical and other forms of assistance from the larger metropolitan area, could serve as important vehicles of neighborhood self-help for the urban poor. We need more "educational parks" to bring high-quality teaching and superior textbooks into the urban wastelands.

3.) I WOULD propose a program of "sheltered workshops" for low-income urban neighborhoods. These could provide vocational training for persons now unproductive and could furnish the communities with a variety of useful goods.

4.) We should consider the possibility of building new towns within our cities. I visualize them as new "centers of excellence" to upgrade our slums and ghettos. These centers might be the focus for new educational and training facilities, business, and industrial development, cultural art facilities and housing serving all income groups. New multi-level techniques of construction-above and below ground-could be applied. These new towns-within-the-cities should be closely integrated with public transit systems 5.) But there may be another rea-able in modern history - has just taken place in South Viet Nam. The vote by 80 per cent of the persons registered was a larger percentage than has ever been experienced in a national election in the United States. It was not the big turnout, however, but the circumstances under which the election was held that establish it as a unique expression of a free people in exercising their right of selfdetermination.

AS FAR AS the United States government is concerned, it has every reason to be gratified. The fact that an election actually was held without duress and despite the terrorism of the Communist Viet Cong in certain districts is proof that the idealism which has motivated the Americans in defending the right of South Viet Nam to self-government has been fully vindicated.

Prime Minister Ky, in his comment on the result, declared that it "spells the beginning of the end" for the Communist threat to his country. He said that the entire world must recognize that the massive turnout at the polls on Sunday was solid evidence that the Viet Nam people are determined to fight for their free-

Billy Graham

A friend of mine says that if a boy is killed on the battlefield in Viet Nam that he will be automatically saved. Do you believe this is true? -K. S. A.

Many pagan religions believe this, but it is not the teaching of Christianity. The Bible teaches that we are saved through faith in Christ and obedience to Him. I am certain that many of our boys in Viet Nam, through the perils and dangers of war, are brought into a new relationship with Christ. When we are face to face with death, it is natural to appraise our relationship to God. I have no doubt that many men in our armed services are thinking more seriously about their soul's welfare than they ever did. As in World War II, many of them will come back with a new reverence for God, and an interest in the church.

However, if they are saved, it will not be because of their courage on the battlefield, their service to their country, or their military record: it will be because they have trusted in Christ. The Savior said, "No man cometh unto the father, except by me." While we honor our servicemen for their valor and self-sacrifice, there is nothing about such service that merits eternal life, according to the servers-more than 400 news correspondents-at hand to disprove such an allegation.

The latest figures show that 80.8 per cent of the eligible or registered voters turned out. Each voter was permitted to go into a private polling booth, make his choice, and deposit his ballot in a box. Troops stood nearby to guard against Viet Cong attacks, but they had nothing to do with the voting itself. year.

The turnout varied in different localities. But in the coastal provinces, where the Communist Viet Cong are more powerful than the government, the turnout was close to 90 per cent.

UNDOUBTEDLY some votes were cast, and many ballots spoiled. But there is no question bout the complete victory recorded for the selection of a 117-member constituent assembly to draft a constitu-

There were 568 candidates for 108 of the seats-nine being reserved for remote minority groups-so the voters did have a choice, which is something that doesn't happen in Communist countries. Thirty of the successful candidates are Roman Catholics, and 34 are Buddhists. Only 18 out of the 50 military men who were candidates were elected.

AMERICAN OFFICIALS are naturally encouraged by the result, as they did not expect such a huge turnout. Prime Minister Ky himself that predicted somewhere between 60 and 70 per cent would go to the polls.

There were, as some reports have indicated, a certain number who did not know exactly what they were voting for. But this could also happen with a minority in any country. The vote cast in this instance was intended to select delegates for a constituent assembly which in turn would write a constitution and set up the framework of a civillan government.

THE VIETNAMESE people as a whole knew what was at stake. They realize that, in order to get peace, must have a stable government and that the people must select its members. The election of a new assembly is but one step. Once the constitution is written, another election will be held to pick the members of the Viet Nam parliament and other officials of the new government.

The election received considerable publicity throughout the world. The story will become known behind the Iron Curtain. Undoubtedly many persons in the Communist nations will be envious, and wish that some day they, too, might enjoy free elections instead of the dictatorial type which offers a single slate of candidates under government orders.

while the United States refuses to allow wigs made up of Communist hair into the country, it has been a losing battle. It's very hard to tell whether Chinese hair comes from the mainland or Taiwan, or to tell a good head from a bad one, without split-shall give each squad of Red Guards a quota to be filled."

There were some on the central committee who thought the suggestion was too drastic and that the people might react against such a hairraising experience.

"THE PEOPLE won't have to know what we're doing," Ling Poo said. "All they'll think is that the government has gone berserk again, and we'll let the Red Guards beat up citizens and wreck stores and homes so that they won't know that what we're really after is their hair."

They all turned to Mao Tse-tung for his reaction. He said, "Let a thousand foreheads bloom again."

Needless to say the Red Guard campaign was a big success and there will be more women's wigs on the market this Christmas time than there ever were before.

UNFORTUNATELY, some of the Red Guards showed too much enenthusiasm and in one case, reported a Japanese journalist, a Red Guard was severely punished for his actions. His superior was quoted as say-ing, "I warned him twice about bringing in that greasy kid stuff."

One way to discover new foods is to be able to read a menu in any one of five languages. Such is one of the as-sets of Miss Helene Morrow, 3224 Auburn.

"Aside from the advantage of being able to understand directions to the restaurant, in the first place, its nice to know what you are ordering," she ex-plained. "Besides, if you are in a foreign country, or even in a foreign type restaurant, eating the native food is an introduction to the people. Beside all that, food can be a marvelous curiosity. Sometimes the preparation takes days, sometimes it's just an unusual combination of familiar foods; but, always, you can find an exotic dish to change the routine around home."

Miss Morrow, chief librarian at the Veterans Administration Hospital, became a student of food and languages when she was living in New Orleans, La.

die if bypassed. There have been some specific business dislocations, even now.

BOOMS

The booms, and many side benefits, come about through new construction and busines alongside the superhighways and by freeing the downtown streets of through traffic, permitting easier access to local residents who are the bread and butter of local shopkeepers

The Highway Department, after a number of five year surveys, says a period of in-convenience and bad business occurs when major highways are built. In two or three years as traffic increases and firms relocate, business picks up and become better than ever.

The surveys show that building a superhighway through the downtown business district actually drives away business.

The Temple Daily Telegram, for instance, says merchants have new business because decreased through traffic downtown makes it more convenient for residents to shop.

NOTICEABLE

The most noticeable change is the appearance of motels, service stations and restaurants. While some older areas of the towns near the new system have felt a decline in tourist trade, the interstate highways usually have caused relocation of some tourist facilities and building of others

Of the 41,000-mile Interstate System, Texas is building 3,032 miles. Much of the state system is complete and the entire national system is due to be finished in 1973.

The federal government pays $511.6 million of the $863.4 million cost in Texas of the "limited access" routes, whereby there are no crossings at grade and all the interchanges will eventually be either clover-leaf or diamond design.

YOUR TAXES

More than $50 spent nationally for the inter-state system. The government pays 90 per cent from your taxes.

Practically all Texas' seg-ment of Interstate 35 is com-plete. The highway enters from Oklahoma, passes through or near Denton, Dallas, Fort Worth, Hillsboro, Austin, San Antonio and ends at Laredo on the Mexican border.

Here are some reports: At Hillsboro, a Chamber of Commerce spokesman says his city has not suffered from Interstate 35E which crossed the eastern city limits.

J. A. Attebery says there has been an increase in service stations along the route, and a new motor hotel, north of the city, will be finished in August. In November, Hillsboro will be linked with Fort Worth via Interstate 34W.

DESIRABLE

"The Interstate System has been a desirable added attrac-tion to Hillsboro," Attebery said. He anticipates a growth
