Secret Meeting May Have Led To Mrs. Kennedy's Legal Action

NEW YORK (AP) — A highly placed official in President John Kennedy's administration described today a secret conference which - inadvertently may have led to Mrs. Kennedy's legal action to block publication of the book about the assassination of her husband.

"The question of a lawsuit was put down as a last resort," the former official said. "It was only mentioned."

He said he is sure that the publishers of the book learned of the sense of the meeting. And he said he believes they therefore concluded that they could resist further requests by Mrs. Kennedy for revisions or deletions in the manuscript of William Manchester's book, "Death of a President."

When efforts to compromise failed, he said, Mrs. Kennedy brought the suit. Her attorneys will charge breach of contract; arguing that the Kennedys have not approved the manuscript of the book, as agreed upon in a "memorandum of understanding" signed by Manchester and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy

LASTED FIVE HOURS Further, Mrs. Kennedy objects to certain passages in the manuscript describing her emotions and actions in the aftermath of the tragedy in Dallas, one of her friends said.

The former official gave this version of the conference: It was held last October in Sen. Kennedy's New York City apartment. It lasted five hours.

Mrs. Kennedy did not attend. Sen. Kennedy was present "only a short time."

The meeting was called "because things had reached a difficult state with respect to certain parts of the book. The purpose was to work out compromises on them."

The group included Richard Goodwin, Theodore Sorensen, Pierre Salinger, Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., Burke Marshall, James Greenfield, John Douglas and John Siegenthaler,

Except for Siegenthaler, all those present had held important positions in Kennedy's administration, Salinger, former White House press secretary, and Greenfield, former assistant secretary of state, considered the meeting of such importance that they flew to New York from California to attend.

LOTS OF HEADLINES A few of those at the conference had read the whole book.

which had come into dispute. "Some of it was read in the meeting.

The ex-official described the book as "beautifully written," adding, "There's a headline in every page."

But, he continued, referring to Manchester's two interviews with Mrs. Kennedy, "It's clear that Manchester took stuff from the tape recorder when Mrs. Kennedy was not in control of fortunate picture of President Johnson.

Nonetheless, he said, the sense of the meeting was to try to work out compromises on the disputed passages and not to take the case to court.

"Until a couple of weeks ago," he said, "I had the impression that things were getting along pretty well on that. They must have run into a real

Consumer Restraint Slows U.S. Economy

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business News Analyst

er restraint is now playing a powerful role in slowing the American economy. Many purchases are being postponed. Lower-priced items are becoming more attractive.

This change has been developing undramatically for many months. There have been no statements, no announcements. But the evidence is obvious: There is a growing, tendency toward a buyer's rather than a seller's market. Retail sales during the latest calendar month showed a dip from October figures. The increase in installment credit by consumers has turned lower.

Although higher than last year, Christmas sales in some stores are still not as high as had been expected.

DEALERS COMPLAIN

Automobile dealers are complaining of lower sales, and all automobile manufacturers have cut back production. Sales of luxury products and big-ticket items are not up to expectations in many areas.

Some of the major appliance manufacturers have scaled down their expectations for 1967 and have, in fact, announced sizable production cutbacks of such items as home laundry equipment and refrigerators.

Furniture sales are off, related perhaps to the depression in housing. House construction has fallen to one of the lowest rates in many years, the result primarily of high interest rates.

TV SALES BOOMING A big exception seems to be color television set sales, which manufacturers say are booming. Even so, one of the major manufacturers has laid off some workers at one plant. Consumer confidence has been

Pinching An Arms Race

Our agreement with Sen. Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., is something less than automatic, but he has a strong point in deploring the Latin American expenditure on military material that could much better go for economic development and social progress.

Sen. Kennedy has urged that the United States "discontinue sales of these unnecessary arms to Latin America. And if they persist in seeking arms elsewhere, wasting their own resources and depriving their own people, then we should take account of this in determining the amount of our economic aid to them."

President Johnson, who makes no special effort to agree with Sen. Kennedy, does this time. He has said that "resources acquired for (developmental) tasks must not be needlessly spent on arms."

This issue is expected to be a key one when the inter-American meeting of heads of state, expected next spring, gets down to the problem of implementing and sustaining the Alliance for Progress.

It seems that a number of Latin American nations, particularly Argentina, Chile and Peru, have begun something of an arms race, especially to replace obsolete equipment, mainly in their air forces. This could quickly get out of hand, though Latin America is currently spending much less of its gross national product for the military than other underdeveloped areas.

The main point is that Latin America cannot possibly maintain the military strength to defend itself from extra-continental aggression, All it needs is sufficient force to maintain internal order, and certainly not enough to support any regional con-flicts. Latin America has no real choice but to depend on the United States for international security.

While much of Latin America's military forces are commendably employed in national developmental projects, far too much is wasted on maintaining a military bureaucracy, bluntly a lot of high-living generals with no effective commands. Though (as a fact of life) the United States has to be careful about alienating the generally powerful military element in Latin American politics, it must discourage anything approaching a regional arms race.

Housing Hard Hit

The Johnson administration's decision to pump $750 million into the home mortgage credit supply over the next several months is welcome. But as that will help finance only some 40,000 new houses, at a time when housing starts are the lowest since World War II, still further executive action may be necessary, as well as congressional action after the first of the year. It now appears that the Federal Reserve Board's drastic "tight money" policy decision was necessary to check the inflationary trend that had become economically dangerous by mid-1966 because of the pressures of the escalation of the Vietnam war. However, that restrictive move did not hit all aspects of the economy with equal force. Many industries, for example, still had a variety of sources for investment credit at higher costs which high profits could justify.

The housing industry was probably hurt, with a regrettable degree of en- credit at reasonable rates.

forced unemployment also resulting. But these were not, basically, the worst of the consequences.

The most serious concern, from a public interest standpoint, is that the lagging effort to overcome the shortage of standard, or better, housing for an increasing population has been sharply retarded. And it is likely to take years to overcome that setback, even with the corrective action and the further action that may be taken next year

Substandard housing is one of the most difficult problems that American cities face today. The problem is seriously aggravated when new housing starts, now running far below a million-a-year rate, fail to top at least a 11/2-million-a-year rate. Ill effects of the Vietnam war on the domestic economy and social conditions continues, but the depressing impact on housing should be alleviated to the fullest extent possible under federal Ultimately, the anlaw and visions of the industry were badly swer is a full and free flow of private

Marquis Childs The Federal-State Bridge

WASHINGTON - In the rough world of politics and power John W. Gardner has a unique place. Directing the empire of Health, Education and Welfare, a monumental task in itself, he also supplies the cutting edge of intellect to the problems of government in a time of relentless

HIS STATEMENT before a Senate committee on "creative federalism" put into sharp focus the need to scale down the vastly centralized apparatus of the Federal government and build bridges to the states and cities. While certain paragraphs taken out of context suggested that chaos reigned supreme in the Great Society programs with the Great Society itself stumbling to a halt, Gardner's presentation was a sensible prescription for the imme-

THE COUNTRY is trying to make up for decades of neglect-run down

Billy Graham

I smoke cigarettes, have so far been unable to give them up-yet. I have never been fully convinced that they have impaired my health. Do you really think they are all that harmful?

It is not what I think; it is wnat medical authorities say that counts. The Surgeon General of the United States, Dr. William H. Stewart, recently noted that 250,000 premature deaths occur each year among cigarette smokers. He also noted that, despite two and a half years of emphasis on the health hazard of smoking, half of America's teenagers are regular smokers by the time they are 18. He was also alarmed that cigarette sales, due largely to the stepped up advertising of manufacturers, has increased during this period of information giving. It should concern most of us that lung cancer, which fifty years ago was a rare disease, will kill 50,000 people in 1966. That is ten times more than the casualties in Viet Nam during the past ten years. Many of the deaths from lung cancer are attributable to cigarette smoking. In addition to this, heart attacks kill about 100,000 cigarette-smoking men and women annually. Preachers who used to preach against cigarettes were considered extremists, but now medical science has joined the crusade against the dangers of smoking. The Bible, while not mentioning cigarettes specifically, says, "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit?' We should guard carefully the temple in which God dwells.

and overcrowded hospitals, overcrowded schools, disgracefully bad nursing homes. This was the theme of Gardner's statement along with the need to strengthen state and local government to carry a greater share of the administrative load that has been absorbed over the years by Washington. In short, the objective is to reverse the trend of past decades through the wide variety of programs approved by the 89th Congress.

GARDNER IS pushing the provision in the Elementary and Secondary Ed-ucational Act of 1965 providing for strengthening of state departments of education. In the past these departments in many states have been notorious for time-servers and political hacks. Congress voted $17,000,000 for the last fiscal year and $22,000,000 for the current year to develop state educational programs, add professional staff and upgrade teacher certifica-

TOWARD THE same end HEW is helping the states in comprehensive health planning and strengthening state health agencies. Under a program established some years ago HEW is boosting the merit system in the states with guidance and help in personnel practices. As Gardner put t, the only way to preserve the American tradition of dispersed power and initiative is to strengthen state and local leadership so that it can play a role alongside an increasingly powerful Federal government without being submerged.

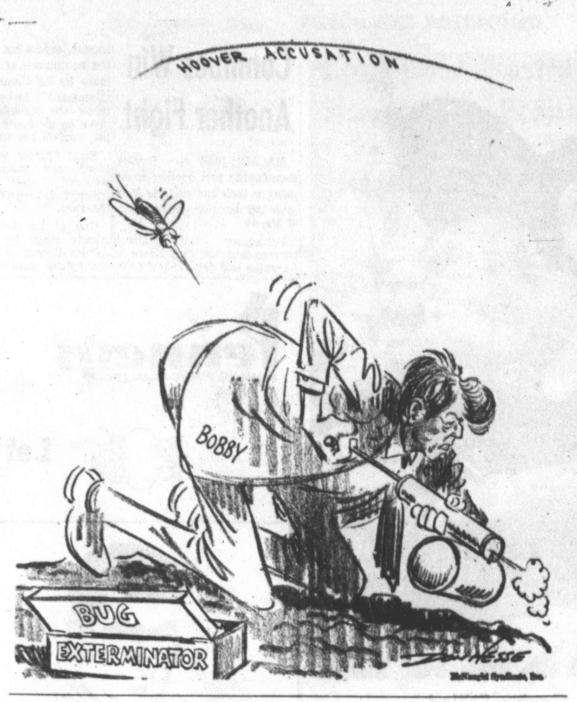

THE DEMAND in the new Congress to turn back a share of the Federal revenue is likely to be irresistible. It could mean the beginning of a healthy treed toward restoring a balance of power as between the Federal colossus and the states. But without certain checks it can be a grab bag for state spenders. One danger is that allocation of the share of Federal tax money to the states will be on the basis of how much the state has paid into the Federal treasury. This would mean that the poorest states, where the need is greatest, would be left out in the cold.

IT IS HERE that aroused citizens' groups, such as the National Committee for the Support of the Public Schools, can play a constructive role. They can also begin to attack the incredible confusion and costly duplication in local government-state, county and municipal. This is a source of waste that makes the wildest spending in Washington look like the very model of civic virtue.

Around The Rim Letter To Santa

Dear Santa-baby: Let me explain right off that I'm certainly not the type of girl who writes letters to strange men. Please don't think for a minute that I'm that type of girl. Really! I'm just not the kind to be pushy, you know?

I MEAN, IF a girl of mature years hasn't accumulated a few fellas with whom to exchange bittet-doux, she's surely to be pitied, right?

Just so you understand from the start that I wouldn't dream of doing this if it were anyone else. Gosh, I'm even blushing as I write it, but I know full well that I'm not the first girl to tell you that you're a very special kind of man.

WHAT I'M trying to say, honey, is that I heard around town that the thing you and Eartha Kitt had going a few seasons ago - has gone. To tell the truth, most everyone thought it would never last; anyway, and she'd take you for all you had before it was over. No one knows for sure what happened, and heaven knows, I'm not one to pry. I just want you to know that I understand how those things are, and if you ask me, she wasn't worthy of you anyway. I'm sure I don't have to tell you that that woman was out for all she could Gosh, I'm probably saying this poor-ly, and I'd just die if you thought I was being forward. You don't, do you? I'm sure you're not the kind of man who would misunderstand a girl's sincere interest and concern for a person she has secretly admired for so long. If you only knew how careful a nice girl has to be these days!

ISN'T IT strange we've never met? Like, right here in the same world and all. Just a coincidence, I suppose, but a buddy of yours, some traveling man - can't remember his name (I was that impressed) said he thought you'd be working this territory next week. I just glanced at my calendar, and would you believe it, I don't seem to have a single thing booked Saturday night.

SAY, I HAVE an idea! I know you traveling men get pretty tired of it all, poor baby. Why don't I fix us a little midnight snack here at home when you get through with your work? You can be comfortable and relax with some good music while we talk and really get acquainted. Can I expect you around twelvish? I'll be waiting-impatiently.

The Greater Of Two Evils

WASHIGTON-Academies of phiiosophers could sit around a long time and, I think, not agree on which has been worse for the U.S.A.-McCarthyism, in its popular meaning; or reverse-McCarthyism, which can be defined as unwarranted and undeserved praise of persons and events.

With McCarthyism a decade dead you can look high and low without finding that its evil has lived after it, yet you can discover a number of historical benefits which were not interred with its bones.

GENERAL MARSHALL and Secretary Acheson, the most highly-placed of Joe McCarthy's targets, are today revered figures. One, in death, is the subject of a massive and laudatory biography. The other is the author of a delightful autobiography and a popular elder statesman who has risen to the status of seer. The attempt at what it was, condemns McCarthy, but it didn't harm these intended victims, nor any others who were inno-

ON THE OTHER hand, McCarthy's most publicized target was Professor Owen Lattimore, whom the Internal Security subcommittee subsequently found to be "a conscious articulate instrument of the Soviet conspiracy." Removed from positions of influence in academic and government circles, Lattimore became an exile and a good riddance.

Can it be said that reverse-Mc-Carthyism has done so little harm Before eating a piece of and so much good as its hated opposite? The practice of heaping reckless, unwarranted praise upon convenient personalities was demonstrated some weeks ago at the 75th birthday of Averell Harriman, when he was virtually cannonized by officialdom and press. Harriman is a dilettante-diplomat, quite unfitted by his deafness and duliness of mind to be entrusted with any serious mission. Yet festooned with garlands of eulogistic bombast, he has been allowed to play roving ambassador at inestimable risks of committing the country to foolhardy propositions, such as the Test Ban Treaty of 1963.

ANOTHER RECIPIENT of utterly undocumented acclaim and rootless puffery is Arthur Goldberg. His inflationary career since leaving the Labor Department includes a tourist's stop at the Supreme Court and an inexplicable diversion to the United Nations. Since the public has been automated to think of Goldberg as a statesman, we hardly question whether he did right in engineering a new term for Secretary-General U Thant or in lobbying through the latest space treaty.

BY ITS INSIDIOUS nature, reverse-McCarthyism presents us with fabricated objects of admirati They are creatures of unnatural birth and accelerated growth. They befuddle any judgments we might otherwise make about their true worth and the worth of what they accomplish.

Quite recently, we made a tentative agreement with Russia on nuclear-free space. The idea is so oversold as a blessing that we do not suspect we may have bought a Trojan Horse. We may well have done so if the space treaty nullifies the military advantages we gained in our experiments at rendezvous-and-docking and in our plans to launch a Manned Orbiting Laboratory. Both these are first steps toward making space an American lake, and we could regret being called to a halt.

FALSE ACCUSATION, the stuff of McCarthyism, however contemptible seldom is lastingly harmful. But over-credibility, the stuff of reverse-McCarthyism, is the most subtle and treacherous form of national delusion.

Independence For The FBI

WASHINGTON - The controversy between the Federal Bureau of Investigation and a former Attorney General as to when wiretapping and eavesdropping are justified or illegal could have a salutary result. For sooner or later the American people will have to face up to the fact that the Department of Justice is a political body, subject to the whims of a President or an Attorney General, and this raises the question of whether law enforcement shouldn't be completely separated in the future from the executive branch of the govern-officer the power to decide how laws shall be enforced means that political pressures can interfere with prosecutions or can lead to the use of the investigative mechanism as a weapon of political reprisal. The Department of Justice, as a law-enforcement agency, logically has a close relationship to the judicial branch of government, and is being constantly supervised by orders or opinions rendered by the courts. It is apparent from the current dispute over "bugging" that there is no clear definition of where public rights begin or end and when privacy must be respected.

CONGRSS HAS the power under the Constitution to write laws that not only prescribe the jurisdiction of the federal courts but also authorize steps to be taken from time to time to enforce the laws of the land.

Law enforcement, moreover, is a task so closely related to interpretations of law that it would be more natural to have the head of the FBI serve a 15-year term and report directly to Congress—as is the case with the Comptroller General-than to make him responsive, as at present, to the edicts of the man in the White House or his Attorney General.

WITHIN THE past 80 years, Congress has established what are known as "independent agencies" - the first being the Interstate Commerce Com- stuffs.

mission in 1887. Many similar bodies have been created since. Their rulings are subject to court review, and they have become quasi-judicial commissions of the government. Their members are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. They are not supposed to be under the duress or pressure of the President, and have the right to act independently of the executive branch of the government. An analogous setup for the Federal Bureau of Investigation would at least permit its detachment from politics and would assure impartiality in handling the rules of law enforcement and investigative pro-

IT IS TRUE that through all the years during which the Federal Bureau of Investigation has operated there have been relatively few instances of political interference by any administration. But the President or his representative in the Department of Justice does have the power to tell the FBI what to do.

IT HAS TAKEN a good deal of courage for J. Edgar Hoover, who has been director of the FBI since 1924, to stand up to all the attorneys general who have from time to time ought to give him instructions as to what his agency could or could not do in law enforcement. Fortunately, most of these differences have been resolved without publicity and in a constructive way. But the weakness in the system still prevails, and will not be cured until the FBI is set up as an independent agency similar to the various federal commissions already established by Congress.

Sheep-Goat Raisers Take Anti-Pollution Position

Ranchmen have called for a halt to pollution and depletion of Texas fresh-water supplies, both surface and underground. The Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association in 51st annual convention in Fort Worth deplored such waste as a by-product of oil production.

The association called for a general Railroad Commission order against use of salt-water evaporation pits, without exceptions. These pits, it was charged, often allow salt water to run into creeks and streams, or to filter into underground strata and ruin water supplies that cannot be replaced for

BRIDGE BETWEEN PROPHECY AND GLAD PROCLAMATION

John the Baptist appeared as a bridge between the messianic prophecies of the Old Testament and the proclamation of the new gospel in the New Testament.

Zacharias, his father, is overwhelmed with joy when he realizes that his son-to-be will be the one to prepare the way for the Messiah. This accounts for his "benedictus," which like the "magnificat" is a pivotal point for the advent of the

Here, as almost always, God used ordinary, humble people for his most important of tasks, the bringing of the "Prophet of the Most High." For Scriptural background of the International Sunday School Lesson, read Luke I, and then Isaiah 40:1-5 for the devotional.

Cheaper in the long run.

Gas will never cost you much. [You'll get about 27 miles to the gallon.)

And the amount of oil you use is like a drop in the bucket. (It only takes 2.7 quarts and almost never needs more between changes.)

And the engine is air-cooled, so you don't have to spend a red cent for anti-freeze or rust inhibitors And you get more than your money's worth out of a set of tires (around 40,000 miles). But don't think buying a new Volkswagen is just another get-rich-quick scheme. You have to wait until the second set of tires returned, dislodging declarer's queen. South was in desperate straits. If he made a move to establish some spade tricks, the opposition would surely put up the ace and then cash a sufficient number of hearts to send him

Declarer's only chance was to run the minor suits without surrendering the lead. If he could win four tricks each in diamonds and clubs, these along with the queen of hearts already in would bring his total up to nine.

Divorce In Juarez

He first cashed the ace and queen of diamonds, so that he might retain a finessing position against West in the event that the latter had started with four diamonds to the jack. When the jack of diamonds appeared on the second lead, however, assuring that the suit divided favorably, South overtook his queen with North's king in order to provide the maximum number of entries to

The four of clubs was played and declarer successfully finessed the jack. The North hand was reentered by leading the five of diamonds over to the ten and on the club return, South put in the queen which dropped West's ten and promoting declarer's nine to finessing rank.

The carefully preserved three of diamonds was overtaken by dummy's four so that a third club could be led. When East followed with the seven, South put in the nine and West showed out. The ace of clubs provided declarer with his ninth trick, and he graciously conceded the balance to the opposition.
