

Herman Home Lisa Lures Hippo Back

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — No one knows why Herman the hippo left home. Most people guess he swam nearly 15 miles up in the ocean before turning up Monday at a health spa for horses.

But everyone knows why he went home. Lisa the elephant lured him.

Herman, all 1,500 pounds of him, had been missing since he wandered away Friday night from his beachfront cage in Huntington Beach, north of here. He had been appearing at a benefit carnival.

Takes Unauthorized Dip

Police, his owner, Gene Holder, and friends could not find him. They theorized that Herman, who often was taken for an ocean swim, took an unauthorized dip.

Monday, Connie Hendricks let her bulldog, Challenger, out for an airing on her thoroughbred sea spa, a health resort for race horses.

"In just a minute, Challenger came rushing back in, so I investigated," she said. "I found Herman in the big swimming pool where we condition horses."

Consumed Horses' Hay

It was evident Herman had breakfasted on the horses' hay and then went into the pool, which is filled with sea water.

"I locked up the horses so they wouldn't get frightened," Mrs. Hendricks said, "then I called the police."

They found Herman's hoofprints leading from the ocean to Mrs. Hendricks' spa.

Owner Holder was relieved.

"He can swim like a fish," he said, "but I was worried that a shark might attack him."

Holder first thought he would rope Herman. But Herman remained submerged in nine feet of water.

Childhood Sweethearts

Then Holder led Lisa, an elephant Herman's age — four years — and his childhood sweetheart, to the edge of the pool.

Holder had bought them as babies — Herman from Africa, Lisa from India.

"I had only one heated stall, so I put them together," he said. "They've been inseparable ever since."

Holder thought Herman would come out of the water voluntarily as soon as he heard or saw Lisa.

'C'mon Lisa, Speak'

"Speak, Lisa," Holder commanded. "C'mon Lisa, speak."

The elephant glared at Holder and let out a trumpet.

Herman remained submerged.

Three times Lisa was led into the chilly water. Three times she scrambled out.

Just as everyone was about to give up, Herman's head popped up. Lisa plunged into the pool. The pair frolicked in the pool — a hippo love-in.

Finally, out marched Lisa. Herman followed — right into their cozy van. Herman had come home.

Nude Fire 'Ghost'

LONDON (AP)—Walking down the corridor of ancient Woburn Abbey, the pretty daughter-in-law of the Duchess of Bedford was sure she saw a ghost.

Except for a white hat with ears that stuck up like a rabbit's, the ghost was nude. It suddenly yelled, "Fire!"

Fernanda Millinaire, the 22-year-old wife of the duchess' son, screamed and fled in the opposite direction.

Hearing the commotion early Monday morning, the duchess jumped out of her bath, threw on a dressing gown and hurried out. The duke rushed from another direction.

They were just in time to glimpse the nude figure with the funny hat still yelling, "Fire!"

When everything got sorted out, the household found out what had happened.

Caroline de Cardenal, who works at the abbey, sighted a fire in the south stable block of the duke's ancestral home about 40 miles north of London. She grabbed the house telephone and in her excitement pushed the first convenient button.

Marie Teresa Gallot, 46, a French cousin of the duchess, took the call in her bath.

"When I was told there was a fire I was terrified," she said. "My home burned down last year and I jumped out of the bath to warn the duke and duchess."

"I wrapped a towel around myself and rushed down the corridor. The towel dropped but I kept on running. I'm afraid that's the way poor Fernanda saw me. My funny hat was a plastic cap to keep one's hair dry when bathing."

The fire, a small one, was extinguished.

Military Alert Sounded When Kennedy Shot

NEW YORK (AP) — Fears of an international plot to overthrow the U.S. government prompted Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to alert every American military base around the world the minute he heard that President John F. Kennedy had been shot in Dallas, Tex., William Manchester says.

"By every readable signal the situation was very red," Manchester writes in his book, "The Death of a President."

The much-disputed book contains 350,000 words of text, plus diagrams, appendices and a list of sources. The price is $10.

WAR FEARED

President Johnson is quoted in the book as saying "there might be war" if Americans became aroused by suspicions that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro had conspired to kill Kennedy.

It was the "wild rumors" about a conspiracy that brought the Warren Commission into existence, Manchester says. The commission, after a long investigation, concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald — and Oswald alone — assassinated Kennedy.

Johnson had difficulty persuading Chief Justice Earl Warren to head the inquiry, Manchester says, because Warren opposed "extracurricular activity" by Supreme Court justices.

OSWALD ALONE

Manchester quotes Warren as saying: "The President told me how serious the situation was. He said there had been wild rumors and there was the international situation to think of. He said he had just talked to Dean Rusk, (secretary of state) who was concerned. He said that if the public became aroused against Castro and Khrushchev there might be war."

Manchester agrees with the commission's finding. But he says its "real work" was done by the general counsel, J. Lee Rankin, and the 14 assistant counsels.

CRITICISM

Manchester also is critical of actions of Secret Service agents before the assassination and immediately after the first shot struck Kennedy.

He makes these points:

1. On the night before the tragedy, "nine agents of the White House detail were out on the town. They started with beer and mixed drinks at the Fort Worth Press Club."

2. "At various times, they were joined by three agents of the 12-to-8 shift — who were officially on duty, assigned to guard the President's bedroom door."

3. A jet airplane pilot is grounded if he fails tests that measure his reflexes. "However, presidential bodyguards were not required to take" these tests.

4. When the first shot was fired, "most of the hunters in the motorcade identified the sound immediately as rifle fire, but the White House detail was confused."

5. Two agents were in the front seat of the presidential car. "They were in a position to take evasive action after the first shot, but for five terrible seconds, they were immobilized."

'FAILED'

Manchester summarizes his indictment in the words, "The central fact was that the Secret Service had failed."

A publishers' note on the title page says, "Harper & Row wishes to make it clear that neither Mrs. John F. Kennedy nor Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has in any way approved or endorsed the material appearing in this book."

The Big Spring Independent School District has been approved for $285,832 in federal assistance under Public Law 874. This is the act which permits payments in federally impacted areas in lieu of taxes.

Of the amount approved, $214,389 will be certified for immediate payment, said Rep. Omar Burleson in his telegram notifying Supt. Sam Anderson of the approval.

Last year the district realized $269,000 from the payments made under PL 874. The increase in approval this year is due to an increase in the state tuition costs (on which the payments are based) and a slight increase in the number of children in the district whose parents are federally connected.

Dozen Quizzed In Gang Rapes

DALLAS (AP)—Police questioned 12 youths today in connection with two early morning gang rapes near a small lake in South Dallas.

Investigators said the rape victims were 24 and 25 years old. Police said the older woman was pulled from a car and attacked repeatedly at gunpoint after her escort was locked in the trunk of his car.

The other woman said she was forced out of her husband's automobile at gunpoint and attacked about 12 youths.

Midland Slayer Marion Fails To Escape Death

Thant Seeks Truce

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States disclosed today that it has accepted U Thant's latest Vietnam peace proposals calling for a general truce. It said it was prepared to begin discussions immediately to work out details.

The U.S. reply to the U.N. secretary-general's proposals was made public shortly after Thant unveiled his plan at a news conference.

The Thant plan envisages a cease-fire to be followed by preliminary talks aimed at convening a new Geneva peace conference.

Thant said he had sent his proposals to all the parties directly concerned on March 14 and that some had replied. He said he did not consider any of the answers as a categorical rejection.

The U.S. note said it was assumed that the government of South Vietnam would be "appropriately involved throughout the entire process."

Thant did not specify which countries had received copies, but informed sources reported earlier that they included the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam, the Soviet Union, Britain, Canada, Poland and India.

Despite the drought, the Howard County Courthouse is fighting a flood today.

A broken water pipe in the ceiling of the third floor doused the office of Jess Slaughter, justice of the peace, with a minor deluge. The water soaked through the walls and added the offices of Mrs. Ruby Phillips, county welfare officer, and Bob Wakefield, juvenile officer, to the wetter parts of the building.

The hallways leading to Slaughter's office became minor rivulets and the running water trickled under the side door of the district attorney's department. Most of Wayne Burns' private office floor was an inch deep in water before the plumbers could tear into the ceiling and bring a temporary halt to the leak.

Three members of the county commissioners court were summoned to check into the situation, and they called the insurance company agent which has the policy on the county building, for a conference.

How extensive the repairs may be was not certain.

Wakefield and Mrs. Phillips planned a leisurely transfer of their offices from their present quarters to the now vacant rooms formerly used by County Superintendent Walker Bailey.

The steady drip-drip which greeted them today sped up the operation and the two officials were hastily establishing themselves in their dryer and larger offices at mid-morning.

Some receipt books and other records in the office of Slaughter were soaked and will have to be subjected to a drying out process.

Negro Scheduled To Die April 10

AUSTIN (AP)—The Court of Criminal Appeals refused today to consider new court action in the attempt of James Lee Marion to escape death in the electric chair.

Judges of the state's highest court for criminal appeals denied Marion's lawyers the right to file a writ of habeas corpus that would carry on his appeal.

Warren Burnett, Odessa lawyer, said he would attempt to file a similar writ in U.S. District Court at Houston shortly.

Marion is scheduled to die April 10.

SOCIAL LEADER
He was convicted of murder in the death of Mrs. Fred Turner, wife of a prominent Midland oil figure and the owner of a Kentucky Derby winner, Tommy Lee. Marion was convicted in Lubbock, where the trial was moved on a venue change.

Mrs. Turner, a social leader, was killed in her Midland home Oct. 29, 1963.

Burnett said he had exhausted his state remedies and that further appeal was with federal courts.

The case already has been up the federal ladder, but on only one point: Marion's right to a court-appointed lawyer under the widely publicized U.S. Supreme Court decision in the Escobedo case.

APPEAL NIXED
The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans decided that point against Marion and the Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal.

In the application turned down today, Burnett argued that Marion's constitutional rights were violated when the Lubbock trial judge failed to hold a preliminary hearing on whether two confessions by Marion were voluntarily made.

This denied Marion his right to a determination on the voluntariness of the confessions as a matter of law, Burnett said.

LOW IQ
The lawyer said the court also failed to charge the jury to determine the voluntariness of the confessions, and Burnett contended this too violated Marion's constitutional rights as delineated by federal court decisions.

Burnett asserted that Marion, a Negro, has a functional intelligence of a 9-year-old and could not be of adequate assistance to his lawyers regarding the confessions, which the lawyers were not allowed to examine.

The lawyer asserted that the state also failed to call as witnesses those who purportedly witnessed the confessions. He said this deprived Marion of his right to confrontation.

were made after Marion had been in solitary confinement 17 days, he said.

Mrs. Turner, 66, was beaten and shot in her palatial home. Marion's statements reportedly said he broke into her home to burglarize it. He supposedly said he beat down the door to Mrs. Turner's bedroom after she threatened to shoot him, and that he took a gun away from her and beat her until she stopped screaming.

More naval and air force planes were immediately readied for a fresh attempt to stem the flow of oil from the 61,263-ton giant's cargo, which had already polluted 120 miles of England's southwest coastline.

The flames set by the first bombing strikes flickered and died, although smoke at one time towered to 8,000 feet above the sunken three sections of the 974-foot-long ship and the planes jettisoned their fuel tanks in an attempt to keep the fire going.

Twin-jet bombers of the British navy were ordered to deliver the coup de grace after attempts to set afire the giant oil slick appeared ineffective.

All ships and aircraft had been warned away from the area seven miles off Land's End. A 20-mile radius was placed under restriction.

FIRE FAILS
The government once thought of piping the oil from the tanker to other ships, but the sheer size of the job and difficulty of bringing adequate tankers close enough to the rocks caused the plan to be abandoned.

The bombing followed a fruitless experiment designed to set the giant oil slick afire by shooting incendiary shells from a helicopter. The devices failed to ignite the oil.

The eight 1,000-pound bombers dropped on the Torrey Canyon hit oil leaking from the bulk and in a restricted area still containing gases.

The first two bombs missed the reef.

BLAZE BALL
The third hit smack in the middle. Coastguards said it exploded the tanker in a ballooning ball of fire and smoke.

Within minutes 1 1/2 miles of oil-laden sea around the tanker was a mass of flames.

The 61,263-ton tanker lay split in three parts on the Seven Stones Reef while chocolate-brown crude oil continued flowing from her ruptured tanks. More than half of the 35.8 million gallons aboard has poured into the sea.

Ike Recalls Stage Triumph

NEW YORK (AP) — As a teenage Shakespearean comic actor, Dwight D. Eisenhower won the accolade "best amateur humorous character seen on the Abilene stage in this generation."

The former president recalls the reviewer's plaudits in his forthcoming book, "At Ease: Stories I Tell To Friends," excerpts of which are contained in a Saturday Evening Post article out today.

Summoning the memories of his Kansas boyhood, Eisenhower also tells about his scraps with other lads, the man who taught him to play poker and a guilt feeling he harbors over his brother's accidental blinding.

His stage triumph came in the role of Gobbo in the Abilene High School senior class production of "The Merchant of Venice."

The article quotes the local newspaper critic as saying Eisenhower "won plenty of applause and deserved it. He was the best amateur humorous character seen on the Abilene stage in this generation and gave an impression that many professionals fail to reach."

Poker was taught the young Kansan by his childhood hero, Bob Davis, a hunter-fisherman and guide who was illiterate but "knew poker percentages cold."

Sticking strictly to the percentages, Eisenhower said, he became a "regular winner" but quit while in the Army "when I found officers around me losing more than they could afford."

Two Soviet Diplomats Ordered Out Of Greece

ATHENS (AP) — Two Soviet diplomats have been ordered to leave Greece by Wednesday night, apparently because they were involved with the big Soviet ring spying on North Atlantic Treaty Organization bases in the Mediterranean area.

The Foreign Ministry issued expulsion orders for Albert Zharov, second secretary in the Soviet Embassy, and Igor Ochurkov, a member of the Soviet commercial delegation. The Foreign Ministry said incriminating evidence had been compiled against them concerning activities incompatible with their status.

SPY LINK

Unofficial sources believe the pair was part of the spy ring disclosed last week with the arrest of three Italians. Since then, one Soviet diplomat has hurriedly left Italy, two Russians have been expelled from Cyprus, several civilians have been arrested in Cyprus, and Swiss police said arrests may be made there.

The three Italians, who were charged last Wednesday in Turin with espionage for the Soviet Union, were Giorgio Rinaldi, 39, an exhibition parachutist; his wife, Angela Maria, 32, and their chauffeur, Armando Girard, 40.

CIA PROBE

Reports circulated in Turin Monday that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency wanted to talk to six American parachutists who knew Rinaldi and participated with him and an Italian group of chutists in a mass jump at Stuttgart, Germany, in September, 1962.

The Americans were not identified, but the CIA was said to be interested in the contacts they had with Rinaldi.

Informants in Turin told newsmen last week that Rinaldi had implicated 300 NATO employees in the espionage operation, but the Italian government denied this.

PICTURES FOUND

Authorities in Turin said microfilms of secret documents and military sites were found in the Rinaldi's home, including pictures of an air base at Aviano, in northern Italy, and of a U.S. base in Spain.

Rinaldi's reputation as a parachutist, they said, allowed him easy access to military bases. He allegedly was trained to take still pictures and movies.

Sources in Nicosia, Cyprus, said the main job of the spy ring on that island was to watch the British Royal Air Force atomic bomber base of the south of the island.

Officials Try To Trace Anatomy Of Lawlessness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crime goes under the microscope today of 500 law enforcement, court and other officials seeking to trace the anatomy of lawlessness that frightens some Americans off the street with violence and preys on others through organized syndicates.

The 500 were called here by President Johnson to help plan tactics for putting into operation what could be the greatest anti-crime drive the United States has mounted.

The broad outline of the problem and about 200 recommendations for coping with it are contained in a 353-page, $2-million report by the President's Crime Commission. The report took 18 months to produce.

WAR CHIEF

The report says it would cost "several hundred million dollars" each of the next 10 years to wage a successful drive.

Ramsey Clark, whom President Johnson saw sworn in as attorney general March 19 to "be our commander in this war on two fronts against crime" is the two-day conference's keynote speaker.

Today's theme is "Planning for Change" the report says must come if today's police forces, courts and detention centers are to be modernized to meet new crime situations.

INCREASING FEAR

The President described two of these problems as the increasing fear among some Americans of the criminal and the increasing fear among others of "the men who seek to enforce" the law.

The crime report recommends a vast overhaul of police organization and techniques in handling crime, and better methods of handling problems that involve minority groups in racial and other disputes.

Conference panel sessions concern such problems as street robberies and attacks so frightening they have "impelled hundreds of thousands of Americans to move their homes or change their habits," burglary, larceny — stealing that does not involve either force or illegal entry — auto theft and other crimes.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Jack of ♣ South exhibited flawless technique by availing himself of every opportunity in successfully landing his four spade contract.

West opened the jack of hearts which was taken by dummy's king. On the surface it appeared that South was confronted with the loss of one trick in each of three suits—spades, hearts, and diamonds, so that the fate of the contract would hinge on the club finesse. Declarer observed that, if he were fortunate enough to find the club suit divided three-three with East holding the queen, he could establish an eventual discard in the suit, for his losing heart.

South was not particularly concerned with scoring an overtrick, however, for if the club finesse lost he would be automatically set inasmuch as the opponents would have time to get their heart trick in before he was able to take charge of the proceedings.

An additional prospect for a discard was available in the diamond suit provided that both missing honors were located in front of the ace-jack. At trick two South chose to lead a small diamond from dummy. East was obliged to put up the queen to prevent the declarer from winning the trick too cheaply.

South played the ace of diamonds and reentered the North hand with the ace of clubs in order to lead another diamond. East played the king, thereby establishing declarer's jack.

A heart was returned to drive out dummy's ace. South hastened to lead a club to the king, eschewing the finesse in favor of taking an immediate discard of North's losing heart on the jack of diamonds. This enabled him to ruff a heart and thereby confine his losers on the deal to one spade, one diamond, and one club.

Finding both diamond honors favorably located was admittedly a somewhat remote prospect, but the play could be attempted at no cost, for if it failed, declarer could always fall back on the club finesse as a final resort.

'BUSINESS CRIMES'

But a whole category of crimes lumped together under the title "business crimes" also are emphasized.

These include organized crime which police say extends throughout the United States, linking fraternities of criminals exacting a huge toll from American citizens each year.

On the eve of the conference the Justice Department reported a record number of criminal indictments on federal racketeering counts issued last year.

The government issued 1,198 such indictments and got 477 convictions. In 1965 it issued 872 indictments and got 410 convictions.

Mao's Wife Calls For Violence End

TOKYO (AP) — Bowing to the moderate policies of Premier Chou En-lai, Mao Tse-tung's militant wife has called for an end to violence in her husband's nationwide purge.

The New China News Agency said Chou sat alongside Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, told a congress of 10,000 young Red Guards in Peking Saturday that "the struggle must be conducted by reasoning, not by coercion or force."

HUMILIATED

Goaded by Chiang Ching and by purge chief Chen Po-ta, the Red Guards had humiliated, spat upon, derided and manhandled Mao's real and imagined opponents, including white-haired President Liu Shao-chi.

The violence softened after Chou called for more humanness to veteran Communists and less harassment of his ministers. But Mrs. Mao apparently held out against him for months, as evidenced by the fact that though she addressed two earlier mass meetings, no official reports of her speeches were distributed.

Kansas City Firemen Call Off Walkout

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Firemen called off a scheduled walkout today as the Missouri Mediation Board moved into their wage-hour dispute with the City Council.

Daniel C. Rogers, mediation board chairman, called a 10 a.m. meeting of city officials and leaders of Fire Fighters Union Local 42 at City Hall.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes ordered Rogers to act after a delegation of deputy fire chiefs and battalion chiefs flew to Jefferson City Monday and requested help toward a settlement.

PHONE REQUEST

The governor told them he would move only if Mayor Ius W. Davis joined in the request. The mayor did so by telephone.

The firemen had timed the walkout to coincide with today's city election in which 12 councilmen and a mayor will be elected. The firefighters union has urged its members to work for the defeat of Davis and other members of the Citizens Association, the controlling faction on the council.

In New York, the Uniformed Firemen's Association voted Monday night to begin a clerical work stoppage at 9 a.m. Friday. Gerald F. Ryan, association president, said the firemen will "respond to alarms of fire and emergencies," but will do no clerical work.

$6,700 YEARLY

The 10,500 New York firemen want a $2,000-a-year wage increase over a two-year period and fringe benefits. First grade firemen now earn $8,483 a year. They have been working without a contract since last July and have rejected an offer of a $1,100 pay boost.

The 850 Kansas City firemen, averaging $6,700 a year while working 56 hours a week, are demanding a 10 per cent wage hike and a 50-hour week. They turned down an offer of 5 per cent boost.

Also rejected was an offer made by the city Monday to give the firemen three more days off a year. Now they work 24 hours and are off the next 48 hours.

The city obtained a temporary restraining order from Circuit Judge Robert Meyers late Monday, enjoining the firemen from walking out. A hearing on the order is set for March 31.

Oklahoma accounted for most of the increase with an average of 665,900 barrels daily, up 29,700. Figures were unchanged for Texas at 2,900,650, Louisiana at 1,988,800 and New Mexico at 354,200.

Short End Of Stick

Americans over 60 years of age outnumber teenagers by about two million. They also have far more spending power. Mrs. Geneva Mathiasen, executive director of the National Council of Aging, has pointed this up by citing estimates that those over 60 spend $35 billion to $40 billion a year, more than twice as much as teenagers.

Despite this, most of the consumer goods market is heavily weighted to appeal to the young. The older is likely to find himself spending his money on unsuitable clothes, cars that are hard to get in and out of, unsafe bathtubs, and a lot of other items geared to young tastes and ways of life.

Many witnesses at a Senate subcommittee hearing seemed to agree that older citizens are getting short shrift on the trade and fashion marts. A highlight of the hearing was Mrs.

Mathiasen's testimony that when she tried to persuade a food chain that the oldsters constituted a mass market well worth cultivating, she was told that if many of the elderly patronized a store this would "hurt its public image and tend to keep away the young."

It also was brought out that the director of a non-profit project in clothing design for the elderly could not interest manufacturers in producing more attractive garments for this age group. Witnesses noted that as things now stand dresses commonly zip up the back and most skirts are too short for ladies in their sunset years. The general attitude among good producers seems to be that if the elderly don't like it they can lump it. Which is an odd way to treat people whose collective spending amounts to more than $35 billion.

Plan Deserves Decision

The U.S. Department of Interior wants that more than $5 billion may be needed to meet federal and state outdoor recreation and park needs over the next 10 years because of escalating land costs. That emphasizes the modesty, reasonableness and urgency of Gov. John Connally's proposed park program for Texas.

The House has commendably approved the constitutional amendment for the program by a 149-0 vote. That should persuade the Senate speedily to give its two-thirds vote approval, and surely the people of Texas will ratify the amendment overwhelmingly.

The plan is for a $75 million bond issue to buy and develop with federal aid, 150,000 acres of state park land within 10 years. The intent is to pay off the bonds from park entrance fees so that the cost will be covered by those who enjoy the benefits, including the additional tourists that better park and recreation facilities would attract.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, drawing on four professional statewide studies made over the past six years, determined the needs and worked out the plan to meet them. The commission found that during the past five years, while Texas population increased 12 1/2 per cent, park visitation increased 48 1/2 per cent. But only one small park was added to the already inadequate 60,000-acre system during that period. (The state has spent less than $500,000 on park land since 1910.) The commission estimates that by 1971 the present state park system will reach its maximum visitor capacity with overloading beginning to cause deterioration.

A vigorous acquisition and development program should be initiated immediately to anticipate rising recreation demand, to assure maximum recreation use of reservoirs building under the state's water-resources plan, to preserve fading scenic beauty and endangered wildlife and vanishing historic sites, to compete with other states for the burgeoning tourist trade, and to get park land before its price becomes prohibitive.

Somewhere in all this, too, there should be more adequate provision of existing parks in order that they provide the utility that they ought to give. Perhaps this will come, for it would be illogical to acquire more land without first making the present system a first class one.

Art Buchwald Liberating The Female Body

WASHINGTON — If anyone has any doubts that the country has gone daft, I would like to refer them to all the fur that was raised last week in the newspapers and magazines over a 17-year-old Cockney model named Twiggy.

Twiggy, who appears to be the latest thing in sex symbols, looks like a boy. The only reason you know she's a girl is that her hair is cut much shorter than most 17-year-old boys'.

FASHION DESIGNERS may deny it, but I believe there is a conspiracy under way to destroy the female body as we know it. The object of the designers this year seems to be to make all women look like Al Capone, Ernest Hemingway or Gunga Din.

This is not merely conjecture on my part. I visited the workshop of a fashion designer the other day and interviewed him about what he was doing with women's fashions this year.

As I was ushered in, Monsieur Alfonso came up to me.

"That's lovely dear," he said, straightening out the handkerchief in my pocket. "And the cigar is such a charming touch."

"MR. ALFONSO," his secretary cried, "this is not one of your models. He is a newspaperman."

"Forgive me," Alfonso begged. "I designed a lady's suit just like the one you're wearing, for tea time."

"Okay," I said, "anyone can make a mistake. Now, about the women's clothes that you people have been designing this year. Why are you making women look like men?"

"WE'RE NOT making women look like men," Alfonso said. "We're liberating the female body from all the traditional garments that have made woman a second-class citizen for so many years."

Just then a model came in. She was wearing a fur hat, quilted jacket and pants, black boots and two bandoliers loaded with ammunition over each shoulder. "I call this dress 'Partisan.' It can either be worn to cocktails or for a small dinner party. I've designed a handbag that goes with it that is shaped like a machine gun."

"It sure looks sexy," I said. He pushed a button, and another model walked in. She was dressed like an Army M.P., including the silver helmet.

"THIS ONE is called 'Distinguished Service.' You can wear it to lunch with or without the billy club. Jeannette, do I detect a bulge in front? Naughty, naughty, you know we're not showing bulges this year."

"Why aren't you showing bulges this year?" I demanded. "Men like women with bulges."

"But, my dear," he said, "bulges are so unsightly."

He pushed the button again, and what appeared to be a big game hunter walked in. She was wearing an Australian hat, a bush jacket, leather pants, heavy wool stockings and Chukka boots.

"I CALL this 'Dawn Over Manitoba.' You can wear it at home when you're having guests in."

"Mr. Alfonso, I don't mean to sound critical, but these clothes certainly don't do much for a woman's figure."

"Of course not. That's the Red Guard influence. I studied the pictures of the Communist Chinese Red Guards day after day, and then it came to me. You couldn't tell the women from the men. I don't know how the Chinese ever thought of it."

AT THAT moment what I took to be a model walking in wearing a black leather raincoat, tall brown boots and a red helmet with a number on it.

"What's that?" I asked.

"I'm not sure," he said nervously. "We're either having a fire or previewing my latest wedding dress."

'IT HAPPEN WHEN HE SLAM DOOR ON LBJ'

LBJ's Relations With Allies Look Tattered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President John F. Kennedy made a big thing of Europe. He went there twice in his 34 months as president. Relations with the allies looked good. Europeans loved him and mourned when he died.

It's the opposite with President Johnson. He has been in office 40 months and hasn't gone near Europe. Relations with the allies are beginning to look tattered and he is widely criticized there for the Vietnamese war.

IF HE went now, his reception might not be happy. Instead he has sent Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey on a two-week tour of Europe. Humphrey is not supposed to be going as Johnson's substitute.

But it's obvious this is a fence-mending mission. Why hasn't Johnson gone in his almost 3 1/2 years in the White House? He may feel, and probably would say, he has been too busy. It seems unlikely he could have been that busy.

In his first full year in office, 1964, Johnson might have made such a trip. But that was an election year. Johnson had a big job to learn. Yet, Kennedy went to Europe in his first year, although 1961 was not an election year.

THEN IN 1965, Johnson was heavily occupied in two directions, one with Congress, one with Vietnam. At home he dumped a tremendous bundle of programs on Congress which responded to his prodding with prodigious legislation.

That was the happy part of the year for him. The Vietnam side was grisly for during 1964 the war there had gone downhill for the American side which had tried to sweat it out without full involvement. It didn't work. In February 1965, in ordering the bombing of North Vietnam, Johnson began to step up the war. Then he piled U. S. troops into the fighting. Vietnam has been a monkey on his back ever since.

Hunter Has Box Office Touch

NEW YORK (AP) — "You have to make your own trip to the moon," said Ross Hunter. "There are no free rides."

Hunter is the youthful-looking former high school English teacher who now, as one of Hollywood's most successful producers, is becoming known as "the man with the box office touch."

Of the 36 films he has made since 1952 only two were financial duds, which he feels is something of a record.

"I have made a profit of $167 million for the studio," he remarked.

"WHY?" Because I don't make pictures for myself. I make them for the public. And what they want is to be entertained.

"Escape is a healthy word. And people are looking for a clean look in entertainment."

"European producers feel they have to give a slice of life. We feel that people get that slice of life in their own homes."

"WE'RE ON the upbeat now in Hollywood. European producers are on the downbeat. I feel that if you subject people to a neurotic film about despair, they go back to their homes and watch television, dull as that may be."

Hunter's latest bonanza is "Thoroughly Modern Millie," a madcap musical romp through the 1930s starring Julie Andrews, James Fox, Mary Tyler Moore, Carol Channing, John Gavin and Beatrice Lillie.

His next opus is "The Public Eye," which Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton will get a million dollars each to star in.

Ross used to be an actor himself. After a spell of teaching English in Cleveland, he put in a hitch in the Army, then took a film test and scored high.

HE ACTED in 19 pictures—remember "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" and "Louisiana Hayride"—and pushed his income up to $1,000 a week. His career was interrupted by an illness that sidelined him for a full year.

When he recovered nobody seemed to remember him. Unable to find work as an actor, Ross returned to teaching at $57.50 a week, spent his evenings studying producing.

"It was the best thing that could have happened to me," he recalled without bitterness. "I don't miss acting, and I don't think the public misses my acting either. I wouldn't be an actor again for anything in the world."

Internal Itching May Be Symptomatic

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss vaginal itching and what can be done to relieve this torture. It seems to be a common problem among women but not much is said about it. Is it more prevalent among women who have had hysterectomies? I have tried all sorts of creams, lotions, etc., without avail. —MRS. R.P.

Yes, this is a common problem, but there is no single answer for it. Causes vary. Ergo, treatment must vary. (Hysterectomy has no bearing on it.)

The commonest cause is trichomonas infection, caused by a tiny and prevalent parasite. This usually causes a heavy type of discharge. Yeasts and molds also can cause a discharge and itching, but in this case a thin type of discharge is more likely.

Infections of the cervix (cervicitis) may be at the root of the trouble. Diabetes must be checked and ruled out. Indeed, vaginal irritation is a symptom which in quite a few cases leads to discovery of hitherto unsuspected diabetes.

Frequent douching sometimes is found to be the cause, which is one of the reasons why routine douching is not advisable. The tissues are tender and readily irritated. Certain soaps can irritate some individuals so changing to a milder one should be considered.

Age sometimes is a factor. Tissue changes at or after menopause sometimes are involved, and in such a case taking hormones, either by mouth or as a local application, frequently helps. Your doctor, of course, must determine the type and dosage.

A remote possibility is sensitivity to certain fabrics in undergarments or girdle — a form of allergy.

Admittedly this problem can be stubborn and difficult to treat, and success depends to a very great extent upon the accuracy with which the basic cause can be determined. As a matter of fact, over-medication, particularly with creams and lotions, can be irritating and make the condition even worse.

One thing to be kept strongly in mind is that with the trichomonas and similar infections, a husband should be treated along with the wife. The woman may clear up the infection, but since it can be harbored by men (but without the irritation) she may find that she is no sooner cured than the itching begins again.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had a pea-size lump on my tongue for four years. It started from biting my tongue and rubbing it against the rough edge of a tooth. It never has bothered me and doesn't grow any bigger. Is there any reason to worry? —MRS. E.C.

Lumps have to be seen to be evaluated. If this hasn't changed in four years, you probably have no cause for concern but I still suggest that you mention it to your doctor or dentist next time you see him. Better safe than sorry.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is allergic to underarm deodorants and can't use any. Is there anything a druggist could mix for him? —MRS. J.M.D.

Probably not, because most of the ingredients a druggist would use would have been in the various preparations your husband has tried.

My suggestion is daily cleansing with an antiseptic soap (there are several on the market), followed by applying talcum or plain baking soda to keep the area dry.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading the booklet "The Way to Stop Constipation." For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of the Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 20 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

Around The Rim

Slight Contrast In Trains

The end of the passenger service on the T&P reminded me of two trips I made in my time aboard trains.

One, back in 1928, was as a passenger on a "special" from Tulsa, Okla., to Washington, D.C. This was a luxury deal. According to the St. Louis Post Dispatch the train was populated with 500 oil millionaires from Oklahoma. Well, there may have been 498 millionaires but not 500. I was on board and I wasn't a millionaire. My boss was with me, and he wasn't a millionaire either.

THE TRAIN was made up of baggage cars, Pullman cars, club cars, and diners exclusively. It was pulled by the best engines of its day, and when we moved on to the B&O, even more luxurious equipment was provided.

That was a ride that I will long remember. I had my fleeting opportunity to sit at the window of the dining cars as our long special roared through small towns, and I looked with bored detachment at the peons on the platforms of the stations we passed. For all they knew I was one of the filthy rich Oklahoma oil men which were on board.

I REMEMBER another train ride. There used to be a little jerkwater line which began somewhere about 80 miles north of Wichita Falls and ended in that city. I suppose it was a child of the oil boom days. When I was a passenger on its train, the golden era was over, and the little line was having troubles.

The one train it operated left Lawton going south at night. It returned to Lawton from Wichita Falls the following day.

THE TRAIN was pulled by a decrepit little locomotive which looked like a museum piece. There was a weathered baggage car which also hauled a few bags of mail.

The one chair car must have been taken from some larger railroad's junkyard. It had all the conveniences of an ox wagon, only it was rougher to ride in. The seats were loosely fastened to the splintered wooden floor and were innocent of upholstery. Some sort of tattered matting was tacked over the rough wooden frames.

The car was heated by a big pot-bellied stove at the rear. A coal scuttle, shovel, and poker were available for passenger comfort. A watercooler, which had never-felt the chill of ice, was fastened to the wall near the heater, and a community cup dangled from a string.

THE LIGHTS were fueled by some sort of oil — whether whale oil or kerosene I do not know. They dangled on short chains from the ceiling and swung to and fro as the train rolled and heaved over the illkept roadbed.

Remainder of the train was mostly cattle cars with a few box cars to complete the list. A little caboose was tied on the end. The conductor, who was familiar with the passenger car, elected to ride in the caboose, which I discovered was much more comfortably furnished. So, we never saw him in the passenger car.

WE LEFT Waurika, which is about 50 miles from Wichita Falls some time around 10 p.m. En route we made many stops. Two or three times we stopped to load cattle and the one other passenger and rather than stay in the freezing car, climbed down and lent a hand at prodding the stubborn cows aboard. Sometimes we stopped just to stopping, insofar as I could tell. The conductor and the engineer would meet about half way down the train (usually beside our chair car) smoke cigarettes, chat about friends and relatives and relax. Then we'd start up again.

We finally pulled into Wichita Falls well after sunrise.

I DECIDED then that the next time I had to make this particular trip and had no means of conveyance other than this train, I would walk.

I am sure I could arrive several hours earlier. And I couldn't have been any wearier than I was.

Bitter Feud Over Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON — The feud between the Senate Foreign Relations Committee — at least Chairman J. William Fulbright and perhaps a majority of the Democrats — and the State Department is reaching a state of private venom. The name-calling indulged in by officials fairly high up in the State Department hierarchy is inflaming an atmosphere already highly charged.

WHAT ARE the rights and privileges of the Senate in shaping foreign policy? Does the executive have a free hand with the Congress following up with a stamp of approval and the funds to implement decisions taken by White House and State? These questions are at the heart of what increasingly has the look of a crisis in the troubled relationship between the two powers.

IT BEGAN with a fundamental difference over Vietnam policy. But the quarrel has long since spilled into other areas. The latest bicker was over the resolution requested by the President approving a greatly expanded program for the Alliance for Progress in Latin America. The resolution came up to the Capitol with the strongly worded plea that it be passed by the Senate by March 23. This was the last day of Senate business before the Easter recess.

A RESOLUTION signed and sealed fitted in with the President's plans. He wanted to hold it up before the Latin American Ambassadors and their wives at the big barbecue he is giving for them at his ranch next weekend. Here would be proof of forward movement for the Alliance looking to the Latin summit in Punta del Este on April 11.

But to Fulbright and other committee members it seemed to be a deadline dictated by the executive. This was a far-reaching commitment and while the resolution itself gave no figure the President in an accompanying message proposed that $1.5 billion be added over five years to what Washington is already putting into the Alliance. Surely, so the argument went, there is time to give this the serious consideration it deserves.

THE COMMITTEE declined to meet what was regarded as the White House deadline. One lengthy hearing was held and another is set for April 3. Conceivably the resolution will not be passed by the Senate before the President leaves on April 11 for the Latin summit.

To embittered officials in the State Department this looks like deliberate foot-dragging. Virtually the only witness at the first hearing was Sen. Ernest Gruening (D., Alaska), one of the stoutest foes of Administration policy in Vietnam and of foreign aid. Gruening put into the record extensive findings out of hearings by his Government Operations subcommittee on inefficiency, waste or worse in the use of Alliance for Progress billions.

FOR THE Administration this could not come at a more inopportune time. As shown by President Eduardo Frei Montalva's article in Foreign Affairs, "The Alliance That Lost Its Way," the discontent not only in Chile but throughout the continent is acute. There are serious doubts that the Punta del Este meeting can accomplish anything. The resolution and the $1.5 billion were intended as the carrot to go with the stick inducing a much faster pace toward a Latin-American common market.

NOT ONLY on Latin America does the feud cut across the aims and intentions of the Administration. The opposition to the foreign aid program will be more massive and more determined this year than ever before. It will be a long uphill fight to get even a part of what the President is requesting and this is smaller than any appropriation thus far proposed. (Copyright, 1967, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

The Great Land Grab Of '67

WASHINGTON — Unless Sen. Alan Bible (D., Nev.) can stop it, some 800,000 acres of mineral deposits in six Western states will disappear down the maw of the federal government at the stroke of a pen by Interior Secretary Udall.

This is quite a land grab, and the President has authorized it. California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico and Wyoming are the affected states. Small wonder that their senators, their industries and their people (if and when the latter wake up to the snatch) can be expected to raise hell about it.

THE IMMEDIATE issue is a newly important energy source — geothermal steam — but the principle at stake goes back to the beginning of the American Republic. Is the President, in effect, a constitutional monarch for as long as he serves? Or is he only the "presiding" officer over the states and the "chief" (but not the omnipotent) executive?

Back in the 1790's came the first test. President Washington declared American neutrality during the European War of that time, and ordered an embargo on shipping. He was relying on the U.S. Constitution, Article Two which "vests" him with "the" executive power, and which makes him Commander-in-Chief.

HAMILTON (writing under the name of "Pacificus") argued through the newspaper columns that the President could do anything not specifically forbidden by the Constitution or by law.

Madison (writing under the name of "Helvidius") argued that the President needed Congressional permission before doing anything not set forth in the statutes. The crisis passed without action by Congress, and the principle slept.

YEARS LATER, in 1915, the U.S. Court of Appeals, 8th Circuit, came to decide whether presidential power reached into public lands. These belonged to all the people, meaning the federal government, but they were leased for private use. Could individuals and companies, under firm contract, feel free to invest money in mines and wells, and take out the minerals for sale?

This right was not much disputed until shortly before World War I when the U.S. Navy had converted from coal to oil. The government objected to buying oil from private developers who had leases on public lands. President Taft, in 1910, asserted his right as Commander-in-Chief to withdraw petroleum-rich public lands from private investors. The showdown came when a man named Henshaw and a firm named Midwest Oil Company deliberately defied the White House proclamation and drilled for oil on public land in Wyoming.

SEC. UDALL has used the silence-gives-consent method to take over vast mineral wealth by freezing private enterprise out of there. Sen. Bible and others are resisting. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Hearing Tonight On New City Budget

The new city budget indicates the City of Big Spring will have an increase in income of $62,873 in the fiscal year beginning April 1 over the current year budget. However, the city will spend $164,808 more.

And as the cash account is starting off $28,906 less than it did for the current year, it is expected the budget will end up with a cash balance of over $100,000 less than it will have at the end of the current budget.

Interested residents are invited to attend the public hearing this evening on the new city budget, which will be held in the commission room of city hall at 7 p. m. It is the major agenda matter before the commissioners meeting in regular session.

The budget calls for expenditures of $2,729,185, based on income of $2,830,775. There is no tax increase being asked, but the garbage collection fee will go up from $1.50 to $2 per month.

The City of Big Spring budget includes three major funds, through which all income and expenditures are channeled. The interest and sinking fund (ISSF) is the control account for all payments of the city's indebtedness. Enough money is put into this account to make the payments on general obligation bonds.

The general fund (GF) includes the accounts of depart-

A cattle company, a road contractor and a flagman employee of the latter organization are named as defendants in a $51,569 damage suit filed in 118th District Court today by a Georgia bus driver.

John Morrison, a flagman for Strain and Sons, Tye, brought the buses to a halt at a point where his employer was working on the highway.

Green alleges that a cattle truck, owned by the McCandless Cattle Co., Fort Worth, came upon the scene and rammed into the rear of his bus. He claims extensive injuries.

Businessmen Urged To Contact Police For Patrol

Big Spring businessmen were reminded today that the police department is not sponsoring or recommending a private patrol service for the city.

Merchants with particular protection problems were urged to contact Chief Jay Banks or Assistant Chief Leo Hull to work out any additional patrol needed. Hull said the department will cooperate with merchants in any way possible to provide nighttime protection of business houses.

Some merchants have been contacted concerning establishing a private patrol service. Banks said, and he advised bringing any problems to the established police first.

Scattered Rain Perks Up Texas Farm Picture

AUSTIN (AP)—Farms perked up last week as scattered showers brightened the agricultural picture, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported Monday.

The department, in its weekly crop and weather report, said small grain was beginning to grow, but added that more moisture was needed. Sorghum and corn planting was moving through the blacklands.

Rains in the High Plains of from insignificant amounts to four inches allowed land preparation where it had been too dry, the department said.

Peanut planting began in South Texas.

Although the condition of wheat improved, the department said the major wheat-growing area of the northern High Plains was critically short of moisture.

The citrus harvest was active. The rains helped revive pastures for livestock, but the department said more moisture is badly needed in all areas except along the Gulf Coast. Stock water remained low in many Western sections.

Shearing of sheep and goats was active in the Edwards Plateau.

Police Order Patrol Cycle

Chief of Police Jay Banks placed an order this morning with the A-1 Cycle Shop for a new Honda (Police Special) CB 450 motorcycle to be used in downtown patrol after April 1.

The two present meter maids, Vivian Rasco and Erma Mosier, will discontinue their tire marking after April 1, and Bernard Johnson will begin work on the motorcycle in the downtown area.

"His job will include solving traffic problems, parking problems, and enforcing general police policies downtown," Banks said.

"It will take time before our police special motorcycle is delivered and until that time, A-1 Cycle Shop will lend the department one of their models," Banks said.

In the meantime, positions are being sought for one of the two meter maids. Mrs. Rasco will become a radio operator.

Book Salesman Faces Rape Rap

HOUSTON (AP)—Textbook salesman Robert E. Gilliland, 33, was held without bond today, charged with raping a 12-year-old girl and two counts of indecent exposure before minors.

Police said the 12-year-old daughter of a woman with a long prostitution record gave a statement that she had sexual relations with Gilliland and three teenage boys in a party at Gilliland's apartment Feb. 17.

Juvenile officer C. Logan Jobe said he and policeman Lila Berner talked with 17 juveniles who told about parties at Gilliland's house with liquor, nude dancing and uninhibited sex.

He said two 16-year-old boys, the 12-year-old girl and her sisters, 13 and 15, would be referred to county juvenile probation authorities.

Charges against Gilliland were accepted by Justice of the Peace Jack Treadway.

Gilliland was arrested outside his apartment Monday afternoon by Jobe and Asst. Atty. Gen. Tim James.

Foreman Ready For Fee Fight

HOUSTON (AP)—Lawyer Percy Foreman says he's ready for a court fight over his fee for defending Candace Mossler's nephew, Melvin Lane Powers, against a charge of murdering her wealthy husband, Jacques Mossler.

Powers and Mrs. Mossler asked in a suit filed Monday that the Houston defense lawyer be made to return $84,000 in jewels and a land deed given him as collateral against a $200,000 fee.

In their Miami trial last year, Mrs. Mossler and Powers were found innocent of murder charges in the death of Mossler.

Foreman said Monday he rewrote his contract with Powers twice and altered one with Mrs. Mossler three times.

"If there be no contract, as they contend, then I will let a Harris County jury decide what is a reasonable fee," he said, adding:

Water and Sewer Service

The budget allocations (with comparative figures from the current year budget) are:

The budget calls for a cash balance of $447,306 ($476,212) in all funds at the beginning of the year, April 1. This includes I&SF, $184,009 ($161,490); GF, $61,163 ($75,246); and W&SF, $202,134 ($239,476).

Income to the three funds will total $2,830,775 ($2,737,902). This includes I&SF, $207,450 ($224,950); GF, $1,483,325 ($1,403,396); and W&SF, $1,140,000 ($1,109,562).

Transfers of funds between the accounts include the usual $250,000 ($250,000) transfer to the general fund from the water and sewer fund; the transfer of $45,000 in "stores" from the general fund to the water and sewer fund; and $202,826 ($202,431) from the general fund to the interest and sinking fund. These transfers are a matter of taking money from one pocket and putting it in another for bookkeeping purposes.

Total expenditures will be $2,729,185 ($2,564,377). This includes I&SF, $202,826 ($202,431); GF, $1,563,876 ($1,465,042); and W&SF, $962,483 ($896,904).

At the end of the budget year the city should have on hand a balance of $346,070 ($447,306) in all three accounts. This includes I&SF, $188,633 ($184,009); GF, $72,788 ($61,163); and W&SF, $84,651 ($202,134).

Motorists Bought License Plates

Motorists bought license plates at the office of Zirah LeFevre, county tax assessor collector, at a $3,000 an hour clip Monday but the $25,286 business for the day lacked much of denting deeply the heavy backlog of untaxed motor vehicles still in the county.

The law makes it illegal to operate a motor vehicle after April 1 midnight, if it does not have current year plates attached.

A severe penalty can be assessed for violation of the law and peace officers are empowered to arrest motorists who are caught driving their cars with out-of-date plates.

A motorist who does not get his license plates before midnight April 1 can evade the penalty by leaving his vehicle parked and making an affidavit he has not operated the machine since the deadline.

Captain Calls War Immoral

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A 12-year Air Force veteran and former instructor at the Air Force Academy said Monday in a news conference that "the war in Vietnam is unjust and immoral, and if ordered to do so, I shall refuse to fight in the war."

Earlier in the day, attorneys for Capt. Dale E. Noyd, 33, filed a suit in U.S. District Court seeking a change in his orders which could lead to combat duty in Vietnam.

The suit, filed in Noyd's behalf by the American Civil Liberties Union, asks the court to order his superiors to accept his resignation or to assign him to duties which are consistent with his religious beliefs.

Named as defendants are Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara; Lt. Gen. Thomas S. Moorman, Air Academy superintendent; the director of Selective Service, and six others.

Noyd contends that prior to Dec. 8, 1966, he became convinced he was opposed to the Vietnam war and tried to resign his commission but was turned down.

He said he then filed for conscientious objector status which was denied Jan. 31.

Picketing Of Milk Plants Continuing

CHICAGO (AP)—Oren Lee Staley, president of the National Farmers Organization, says the farmers' milk withholding campaign—now in its 13th day—is continuing "full steam ahead."

In the affected 25-state area, widespread picketing of dairy processing and delivery plants was reported Monday after an Easter weekend lull. NFO members are seeking a two-cent-a-quart increase in the price of milk paid to farmers. They get eight to 10 cents a quart now.

Near Findlay, Ohio, Raymond Zumbrun, national director of NFO from Ohio, and district coordinator Keith Emehiser told a 17-county NFO rally Monday night that the organization's national headquarters had alerted Ohio chapters to use a "phase two" secret weapon. "I forced to," Zumbrun and Emehiser said it was uncertain when the new, undisclosed tactics may be employed.

VIOLENCE DIPS

In Wisconsin the picketing stepped up Monday after the holiday lull.

Robert Manke, a national director of the NFO, was in the Wausau, Wis., area and reported three contract signings in Shawano between dairies and farmers. Manke declined to name the dairies. Authorities reported that vandalism and violence was at a minimum in Wisconsin.

In Fargo, N.D., the Cass-Clay Creameries—largest processor in the state—signed a four-month contract with the NFO late Monday. Members of the farmers' organization said they would continue to picket to keep imported milk out of the state.

SUPPORT HIKE

The administration in Washington continued to delay possible action to improve producer prices of milk pending the end of the NFO milk withholding campaign.

The administration is being urged by several other major farm organizations to start proceedings before the U.S. Tariff Commission to tighten restrictions on dairy imports and to raise support prices for milk used in manufacturing.

The National Farmers Union, as well as the National Milk Producers Federation and some dairy state congressmen, are urging Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman to increase the government support price for manufacturing milk from $4 a hundred pounds to the legal maximum of $4.16.

Belda Gets KC Hospital

Volmer J. Belda, former director of the Veterans Administration Hospital here, has been appointed director of the VA Hospital in Kansas City, Mo., and will assume his duties April 23.

In Kansas City, he will succeed Dr. Samuel Aspis, who was transferred recently to the veterans hospital in Cleveland, Ohio.

Belda, 54, was graduated in 1937 with a degree in law from the University of Missouri. He served in the Army from May, 1941, to January, 1946. He had practiced law for three years in Omaha, and then served as medical supply officer for the Civilian Conservation Corps at Little Rock. He joined the Veterans Administration in 1946.

He served at the VA branch office in Seattle, and later at the VA Hospital in San Francisco. In 1960, he was appointed director of the veterans hospital in Big Spring and served here until 1964 when he was named director of the hospital in San Fernando, Calif., where he now serves.

Welfare, Juvenile Depts. To Get Bailey's Offices

The big, roomy quarters formerly occupied by the now defunct county superintendent's office will most likely be assigned to Mrs. Ruby Phillips, county welfare officer, and Bob Wakefield, county juvenile officer, county judge, Lee Porter, said today.

Meantime, he said, he is taking care of such county superintendent business as shows up. The next meeting of the county board (of which the county superintendent is the official secretary) will probably be after the election this week. Two members of the board, J. D. Gilmore and H. H. Rutherford, are running for reelection unopposed. An organization meeting after the election will be held.

The offices were vacated by Walker Bailey, county superintendent, last Thursday when the governor signed a bill abolishing the county superintendency in this county. They include one large room and two larger-than-normal offices.

Porter said that a part of the larger room would be retained for the storage of records of the office which have to be retained. There are half dozen large filing cabinets of these in the offices.

Mrs. Phillips and Wakefield are currently housed in two small rooms on the southeast corner of the second floor. The offices are not easily accessible and are not large enough for the multiple duties of the two officials.

Porter said that the offices will be painted and renovated before the welfare and juvenile officers move in.

Asked what was planned for the two small offices now used by the departments, he said nothing has been decided.

"One thing is certain," he said, "someone will want them. We always have applications for office space in the courthouse."

Porter said that the Howard County School Board has not met since Bailey left and that no announcement on just how the county judge is to carry on

LASTING GOOD

By HALVARD T. HANSEN, D.C.

One of the most important things to look forward to in life is its "lasting good." This factor alone is sufficient proof of a good life. It is sufficient to promote interest in a person who is in bad health. One should consider chiropractic upon the immediate onset of sickness, so that the nerve pressures are removed before organic and structural changes occur in weakened tissues.

The response is quicker and I find that the patients who complete the required chiropractic service continue to enjoy good health. I checked with a woman sometime ago who had finished her treatments some six years before. She had suffered from nervousness, hay fever, faulty digestion, trouble in the legs and constipation. Now, six years later the symptoms and discomforts are still gone. No more.

All vital organs of the body function because of their nerve supply. This nerve supply often becomes corrupted when the spine becomes injured or any of its bones displaced. Such displacements may alter the nerve supply to the vital organs, upset their regularity of function.

It is likely that your health problem is coming from your spine. Investigate! Hansen Chiropractic Clinic across from Piggly Wiggly, 1004 Eleventh Place, AM 3-3324. adv.

Maj. Gen. Herman Nickerson Jr. extended the clemency to Pfc. Charles W. Keenan, Nitro, W.Va., who was convicted on two counts of premeditated murder by a Marine court-martial at Da Nang Jan. 4-5.

The two Vietnamese, Nguyen Th Co, and her brother-in-law, Nguyen Qua, were killed Sept. 22 while on a U.S. Marine patrol on a combat reconnaissance mission from its base camp at Chu Lai, 50 miles south of Da Nang.

Another Marine, Cpl. Stanley J. Luczko, 20, Gardner, Mass., was convicted of premeditated murder in the death of the woman and given a life sentence which Nickerson must still review.

A third Marine, Pfc. Ronald A. Platkowski, 18, Trenton, N.J., was convicted of attempting to murder the man and mutilating his body by cutting off the left ear. He received a 10-year sentence.

The sentences of all three also must be reviewed by a military appeals board in Washington before becoming final.

Dear Abby

He Won't Communicate

DEAR ABBY: I just LOVE to write letters to fellows. I don't care if I know them or not, as long as they are a friend of a friend of mine.

My problem is, I have lived around the corner from this boy all my life. I am 23 and so is he. We never played together as children because we went to different schools. Sure, we'd see each other, but never a word was spoken.

Two summers ago, I said to myself, "This is silly!" So when I saw him, I said, "Hi, Tony, where are you going?"

He didn't answer me. He just smiled and kept going.

The next time I saw him, about a year later, I said, "Hi, Tony, where are you going NOW?" He didn't answer me, but smiled and went on. He is now in the service. Should I ask his mother for his address and write to him?

LOVES TO WRITE

DEAR LOVES: If you LOVE to write letters—go ahead and write. He might communicate better by mail. But don't be surprised if he doesn't. A young man who won't talk, probably won't write either.

DEAR ABBY: If I don't get this off my chest I'll burst. I have two sons. There are none better. They are both married and have lovely families.

It hurts me to go into their homes and not see even one photograph of Dad and me in sight.

We have gone to the trouble and expense of taking pictures, having them enlarged and framed, but they must be stored away in a closet somewhere.

We have our home full of pictures of our sons, their wives, and children. Am I wrong to feel hurt? Set me straight.

HURT

DEAR HURT: No. Apparently your sons and their wives are not aware of your feelings.

Marichal Says He Is Ready To Work

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Juan Marichal puts his $100,000 right arm to work in San Francisco's season opener next month, Jack Hiatt figures to watch the action from a front-row seat in the bullpen. But the Giants' reserve catcher prefers the view from behind the plate. The farther he hits, the closer he gets. Hiatt led off the 10th inning

ADLESH

Monday with a towering home run, giving San Francisco a 3-2 exhibition victory over the California Angels... who dealt him to the Giants in 1964 for outfielder Jose Cardenal. Marichal, meanwhile, showed up at the Giants' Phoenix, Ariz., camp, signed his first six-figure contract and promised he'll be ready to pitch in the April 11 season opener at St. Louis. The Dominican right-hander, a 25-game winner in 1966, was the last of this year's holdouts. "I feel I'm in good condition and ready to go right to work," said Marichal, who'll likely made his first spring appearance Friday against the Angels.

Hiatt, a 24-year-old Californian who also plays first base and the outfield, connected off Angels right-hander Jim Coates in the 10th, snapping a 2-2 deadlock. Hiatt got into 18 games with the Giants last season and hit .304 after spending most of the year with Phoenix in the Pacific Coast League, where he had a .270 mark and 13 homers. He is battling Dick Dietz and Bob Barton for the No. 2 spot behind regular catcher Tom Haller. The long ball made the difference in three other games on Monday's exhibition schedule. Sam Bowens' three-run homer lifted Baltimore past Washington 4-3, two talented homers gave Pittsburgh a 5-4 nod over Los Angeles and Atlanta cracked five homers in trimming Boston 6-1. The Chicago White Sox downed the New York Yankees 12-7 in a 31-hit struggle, Houston edged Minnesota 7-6 on Dave Adlesh's RBI single in the 12th inning, Cincinnati whipped St. Louis 7-4, the Chicago Cubs edged Cleveland 5-4 and the Kansas City-Philadelphia game ended in a 2-2 tie when rain stopped play after nine innings. A scheduled night game between the New York Mets and Detroit Tigers was washed out by rain. Bowens connected off Washington's Camillo Pascual, who was making his first exhibition appearance, following two walks in the seventh inning. Pascual had doubled home a run in the top of the inning to give the Senators a 2-1 lead. Dodgers' center fielder Jim Hickman missed a shoestring bid for Andre Rodgers' liner with two on in the fifth inning and it went for an inside-the-park homer. Willie Stargell's sixth-inning shot tipped left fielder Bob Batley's glove and went over the fence for a two-run homer that won it for the Pirates. Felipe Alou, Denis Menke, Mack Jones and Rico Carty all homered for Atlanta off ex-Browns Hank Fisher and Clete Boyer rapped a two-run homer in the eighth against Dan Oatis, another former Brave. The White Sox rapped out 17 hits and battered Mel Stottlemyre for five runs in the eighth inning to outscore the Yankees. Triples by Ken Berry and Tom McCraw sparked the deciding rally. Pitcher Dan Schneider checked Minnesota on one hit over the final three innings and scored the winning run on Adlesh's two-out single in the Astros' 12th.

Mets Seeking Replacement For R. Hunt

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The departure of Ron Hunt has left the New York Mets with a gaping hole at second base that could add a few wrinkles to Manager Wes Westrum's furrowed brow.

Chuck Hiller and Bart Shirley were the early nominees as replacements for Hunt, who went to the Dodgers in the deal for Tommy Davis. Now light-hitting Sandy Alomar, acquired from Houston, will get a shot at it. But none of them is a Hunt.

WOES AT SHORT

Add to that the problem at shortstop where rookie Bud Harrelson has failed to hit and veteran Roy McMillan has reinjured his shoulder. Westrum's eternal optimism has also been dented by the slow start of Don Bosch, the highly publicized rookie center fielder who came from Pittsburgh with pitcher Don Cardwell in the trade for Dennis Ribant.

The Mets finally escaped from 10th place last year and they went to camp with great hopes of moving up the ladder. Some of the flaws have become all too evident as the club swings through its exhibition schedule. And opening day is only two weeks off.

When McMillan temporarily dislocated his right shoulder in a game at West Palm Beach about 10 days ago, hopes of his return to shortstop all but flickered out. Despite the operation on his shoulder last September, there were many who still counted on the veteran for some help.

Harrelson, a speedy youngster with potential who hit .221 with Jacksonville and .222 in a lateral trial with the Mets, apparently has been pressing. Westrum has given him a rest now and then, using the veteran Eddie Bresoud at the position.

Hiller is a solid .280 hitter but no great glove man and there is doubt about the ability of Shirley, ex-Dodger who batted .280 at Spokane, to handle second base.

SANDY HIT .243

Alomar hit .243 with the Braves' Richmond farm of the International League. The Astros obtained him in the Eddie Mathews deal.

Kenny Boyer, now 38, still makes the big plays at third and hit 14 homers while batting .286 as a Met last year. Ed Krane-pool (.254) at first, rounds out the infield.

Bosch's slow start puzzled the experts who had been assured repeatedly that the little man (5-10 and 160) had few peers as a center fielder. Perhaps, it has been a case of pressing at the bat. He hit .283 on the Pirates' Columbus farm.

Bantamweight, Lorenzo Trujillo, San Antonio.

Flyweight, Roland Hernandez, San Antonio.

The victories produced back-to-back championships for Wright and Stark, and marked the second state crown in three years for Avalos, 1965 featherweight king.

Zeke Sanchez of Odessa, the only other contestant here with title credentials, failed in his bid for a second trophy, falling to Welch, a southpaw whose stinging left provided a clearcut decision.

The heavyweight finale turned into a brutal slugfest and Brink, with an 18-pound weight advantage, simply had more endurance.

The decision was a split one and the crowd disagreed loudly with the verdict, drowning out the announcer long after the fight had ended.

NEITHER FAVORED Cokes' Foe Is Highly Touted

NEW YORK (AP) — Welterweight champion Curtis Cokes looked cool and there was a smile on his face as he heard matchmaker Teddy Brenner describe Gypsy Joe Harris as a combination of Beau Jack, Henry Armstrong, Kid Gavilan and Gil Turner. "He's got something of all four," said Brenner, who is as much as a fight fan as he is a matchmaker. "He gets in there and punches and never stops. If you thought Ismael Laguna was spectacular a few weeks ago, wait until you see Harris fight." The four fighters Brenner mentioned rate high on the all-time list of action fighters. Wasn't it a little early to go on the limb for a 21-year-old who has had only 16 fights although he's won them all? "Forget it," said Brenner. "This kid comes to fight."

The 29-year-old champion from Dallas, Tex., and Gypsy Joe of Philadelphia meet in a non-title 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden Friday night. Despite Harris' inexperience, he is rated even money in the betting with Cokes. "I've seen him fight," said the lean, bearded Cokes. "He's good. He's like an octopus but he can be handled."

Both Cokes and Harris will be making their Garden debuts. They were introduced to newsmen at a press luncheon Monday.

Unbeaten in his last nine fights, Cokes has a 45-3 record, including 20 knockouts. He has a little defense coming up in Dallas in May against Francois Pavilla of France.

Tahoka Loses Grid Mentor

TAHOKA — Jim Littlefield, elevated to the head coaching job here only a month ago, has quit to become a junior high mentor in Corpus Christi. Littlefield was chosen for the job here when Don Smith became mentor at Perryton. Littlefield will finish out the school year here.

Longhorns Try Rebs In District Opener

Big Spring seeks its sixth straight victory and its ninth success in 12 starts in its District 2-AAAA baseball debut at 4 p.m. today against the Lee Rebels in Midland.

Although the Rebs are reeling from the effects of three straight losses and are no better than 6-5-1 on the season, the job won't be easy for the Longhorns.

Lee is rated higher than Big Spring in pre-season predictions and the locals have always had trouble with the Rebs.

Either David Mitchell or Jerry Ryan will go to the mound for Big Spring. Both are fully rested. Ryan blanked Lamesa, 1-0, in the Andrews tournament last weekend while Mitchell was on the hill when the Longhorns dropped Andrews in the semifinals, 4-1.

The Steers will play their first two conference games away from home. They go to Odessa

High Saturday for a 2 o'clock engagement and delay their home opener until next Tuesday, at which time they oppose Cooper.

Odessa is the pre-season favorite to cop the title while Cooper is picked to finish just behind the Bronchos.

Big Spring victories this season have come over Snyder (two), Lubbock (two), Andrews (two), Lamesa and Lubbock Monterey. The locals have been beaten by Monterey, Snyder and Andrews.

Although the Steers have the second best record in non-conference play (Odessa is first, at 9-3-1), the locals have outscored the opposition only seven runs. They've counted a total of 44 times, compared to seven for the foe.

Lee lost a doubleheader to undefeated South San Antonio last Saturday, 7-1 and 14-6. Lee out-hit the powerful San Antonio team, 11-9, in the second engagement but the South San team crowded 10 runs across the plate in the third to salt away the verdict.

Lee could counter with either Claude Stewart, Mike Patrick or Jim Henderson on the mound today.

Other starters for Big Spring will probably be Junior Mendosa behind the plate, Lonnie Clanton at first base, Gary Don Newsom at second, Tony Martinez at third base, Bill Bur-chett at shortstop and Dean Gilstrap, Jesse Zapata and R. J. Englert in the outfield.

Season standings:

TEAM	W	L	T	PTS

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue: HOWARD TIPPETT, new coaching aide at the University of Houston: "After playing in Alabama and coaching in Texas, Louisiana and West Virginia, I'm convinced Texas has the best high school football played anywhere."

JOHN ROSEBORO, catcher for the Los Angeles Dodgers: "Race-wise, I think baseball is in pretty good shape. The situation hasn't really changed a lot since I came up in 1957. It was in pretty good shape then. About the only noticeable change has been in accommodations. For instance, they've opened up restaurants in jets where Negro players used to have to eat in their rooms. In our league, most of the super stars are Negroes. I think this has made it easier for us. The Negro hasn't made much progress in Vero Beach, Fla., where we train. This place will never change. I don't think there's a Negro living in Vero Beach... The first year we played in Houston, the team didn't stay downtown because the hotels wouldn't accept Negroes. But it was all right after that. We moved into the Sheraton-Lincoln downtown the next year. I thought we might have some trouble in Atlanta. But Atlanta turned out to be a nice town. If I had a gripe about the racial situation in baseball, it would be that the Negro can't make a lot of money on the side—endorsements and things—the way a white player can. A Negro couldn't truthfully endorse something like Vitamins. But we do shave once in a while... Negroes are very sensitive today. It's gotten to the point where every little thing bothers them. It's not a chip they've got on their shoulder. It's a block. They've got to get rid of it. Both sides are going to have to bend a little, and be a little less sensitive. If we're going to make any more progress."

JACK NICKLAUS

HERB CAEN, San Francisco columnist: "We all learned a valuable lesson from Cassius Clay's recent fights. When Cassius requests you to address him as Muhammad Ali, do it."

JACK NICKLAUS, pro links star: "The big tournaments shouldn't come so close together in golf. It's really going to be tough this year. We play the British Open at Liverpool July 13-16 and the very next week have to be in Denver for the PGA. The PGA should be the grand finale for the summer tour. This should be our No. 1 tournament instead of being rated fourth. It should be the tournament we all point for during the year. Why not space the four big ones out? The Masters, as it now is, would climax the winter tour; the National Open would come at the end of the spring; the British Open would be our mid-summer target. Then the PGA would come at the end of August or in early September."

HORACE STONEHAM, owner of the San Francisco Giants, when asked if he would campaign against locating another big league team in Oakland:

"We are the Giants. It is up to us to give the fans the best baseball we can. There is nothing I can do about a ball club across the bay. Oakland has been declared a separate territory. The precedent stems from a decision made many years ago, when Brooklyn won the right to field a club against New York. Oakland is out of our hands."

JOHNNY RAUCH, coach of the Oakland Raiders: "I was offered a radio show, like each Jack Christenson (of the 49ers), but at the time all the Raiders were holding out for more dough so I thought I'd try the same technique. It didn't work. They took our general manager, Scotty Stirling, instead... Incidentally, my name is pronounced like it rhymes with 'ouch.'"

BY TOM FEARS

Bob Shaw Is Named Aide

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It was a busy day Monday for the New Orleans Saints, the National Football League's newest member.

The Saints hired an assistant coach, completing head coach Tom Fear's staff; signed two free agents, including a former college basketball star who has never played football; and announced the site of a pre-season exhibition game.

Fears said Bob Shaw, 43, had been chosen as receiver coach. Shaw had been coach of the Canadian Football League's Toronto Argonauts for the past two seasons.

An all-star football and basketball player at Ohio State, Shaw played pro football with the Cleveland and Los Angeles Rams, the Chicago Cardinals and the CFL Calgary Stampeders and Argonauts. He was on the Cleveland Rams championship team in 1945 and in 1950 with the Cardinals he caught five touchdown passes against the Baltimore Colts.

Shaw was an assistant coach previously at Baltimore and San Francisco.

With the signing of 6-foot-6 Hugh Barker Monday, the Saints may have a basketball look this fall. Barker, 25, of Fresno, Calif., was a four-year cage star at Edinboro, Penn., State.

"I never played football," said Barker, "but I've gotten some size on me in the past couple of years and want to give it a try."

Barker, who finished at Edinboro two seasons ago, was signed as a tight end.

Also signed as a free agent by the Saints Monday was Jimmy Ebbeling, 6-0 and 205, of Shafter, Calif. Ebbeling played at Bakersfield, Calif., Junior College in 1963-65 and later attended Tennessee and Miami, Fla., but did not play at either college.

The Saints said they would play an exhibition game Aug. 26 at Portland, Ore., with the San Francisco 49ers. It is the third pre-season game announced by the Saints, who'll play the Rams in Anaheim, Calif., Aug. 2 and the Atlanta Falcons here tentatively Sept. 2.

Bob Shaw, newest addition to the New Orleans' coaching staff, is well known in Big Spring, having brought the New Mexico Military Institute basketball team in here several times to oppose HCJC.

Bill Russell Says Celts Will Be 'All Business'

NEW YORK (AP) — The Boston Celtics, optimistic but not overconfident, will try to eliminate the New York Knickerbockers from the National Basketball Association playoffs by winning the game hardly anyone expected to be played.

The game is the fourth of the best-of-5, Eastern Division semifinal series, which most people including the Celtics thought would be over in three games, especially after Boston won the first two.

But Sunday night in Boston, the Knicks stunned the Celtics 123-112, prompting Boston Player-Coach Bill Russell to say:

"Overconfidence beat us. Plainly and simply. I don't think it will happen again."

The Celtics can be excused for being overconfident going into Sunday's game. They had beaten the Knicks 21 straight times dating back to March 17, 1965, and had won 22 straight games with the Knicks at Boston since December, 1962.

Sock Lands American Home For Korean Lad

MALVERNE, N.Y. (AP) — Gary Barone has helped find an American home for a 5-year-old Korean orphan who caught the former U.S. Army sergeant's eye by socking him in the eye.

"He socked me right in the kisser, and showing that spunk, I liked him right away," says Barone.

Barone, 25, who now works for a finance company, met the orphan Lee Yung Soo, when he visited the Chung Duk Won orphanage of Pusan in 1965 while serving with the army.

"Two weeks after we landed in Korea in August, 1965, I went to the orphanage," Barone recalled in an interview today. "Another GI was holding Lee in his arms. I approached the boy and said, 'Isn't that a cute one.' He socked me in the eye."

'HE HAD SPUNK'

"He had spunk. He was cute," Barone continued in explaining why he chose Lee as his favorite out of more than 100 orphans at the home. "He was a tough little guy, a man's man, a little man. I just fell in love with him."

Last April, Barone wrote to his mother, Mrs. Frank Barone, asking her to try to find a family to adopt Lee. Mrs. Barone telephoned the wife of the president of the Parents for Overseas Adoption, a group of Long Island parents who have adopted children.

The wife of the president said Mr. and Mrs. Harold Koch of Lindenhurst might be interested since they had adopted a Korean girl three years ago. Mrs. Barone got in touch with the Kochs and they were enthusiastic.

The boy is scheduled to join the Kochs on April 5, thanks to arrangements made by the Welcome House of Doylestown, Pa., founded by author Pearl Buck.

'I'LL BE THERE'

Mrs. Koch said she and her husband, an aircraft engineer, adopted the Korean girl, named Kristi, because they were lonely after their own three children, ranging in age from 20 to 23, went off to college. Kristi is six now.

"We wanted a little brother for our Kris," Mrs. Koch explained. "We couldn't get young ones in this country because they would think we were too old." Mrs. Koch declined to give her age.

The Kochs are going to name the boy Gary Lee, the first name for Barone and the middle name after the boy's Korean surname.

Barone will be on hand at Kennedy International Airport in New York when Lee arrives from Seoul to join his new family.

"I'll be there," said Barone. "I got special permission from the Army to wear my uniform for 24 hours. I don't think he'd recognize me in civilian clothes. I don't look the same."

Minor Mishaps

Three minor accidents occurred Monday but no injuries were reported. James Basil Apple, Box 1150, and Maxin Ross, 2206 Cecilia, collided in front of Faye's Flower Shop. Frank E. Francis, Forsan, and the parked car of C. R. Russell, Garden City Route, were in collision at Second and Rannels. Frank Kent McCarty, 435 Dallas, and Jesse O. Gilbert, 910 E. 15th, ran together at East Fourth and Union.

Belted GI

Lee Yung Soo, a 5-year-old orphan from Pusan, Korea, is being adopted by a Lindenhurst, N.Y., couple. It all came about because he socked Gary Barone, then a U.S. Army sergeant, in the eye when Barone visited the orphanage where Lee was living in 1965. Barone says he "just fell in love with" Lee. No Trace Found Of 'Silk King'

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia, (AP) — Little hope was held tonight that James Thompson, American king of Thailand's silk industry, would be found alive unless he has been kidnapped for ransom.

More than 300 police and soldiers searched the dark rain forests around the Cameron Highlands hill resort today, but no trace was found of the popular 61-year-old Bangkok American who disappeared Sunday afternoon after he went out for a walk.

The searchers used dogs, two helicopters and junglewise little Sakai aborigine trackers.

"We're really hoping now he was kidnapped and that we'll soon get word someone wants a ransom of $5,000 or so for his safety," said a Dr. Amundsen of Bangkok, a member of Thompson's party.

Kidnap gangs operating in the Cameron Highlands 90 miles north of Kuala Lumpur normally prey on wealthy businessmen, usually Chinese.

Other sources expressed belief that Thompson may have become lost along the maze of jungle trails.

Thompson, who made a fortune developing Thailand's silk industry, was visiting Helen Ling, an American married to a wealthy Singapore Chinese. Thompson, an antique fancier, is an old friend of Mrs. Ling, who has a chain of antique shops.

Bed Check Raids Unconstitutional

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Bed check raids on those getting welfare handouts are unconstitutional, the state Supreme Court ruled Monday. It ordered the reinstatement of a social worker who balked at making the checks.

The tribunal ruled, 6-1, that the Alameda County Welfare Department acted illegally in firing the worker, Benny Max Parrish, 33, in January, 1963. He had refused to take part in bed checks designed to determine whether unauthorized males were living with women receiving aid for needy children.

Actress Hutton Files Libel Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Betty Hutton has filed a cross-complaint against her landlords asking $350,000 in damages on grounds of libel.

In the suit Monday, Miss Hutton named David and Barbara Simmons of Laguna Beach, from whom she leased a home.

The Simmons, in a suit earlier this month, asked for $19,000 in back rent and damages from Miss Hutton and her estranged husband, musician Pete Candoil.

The Simmons' suit accused Miss Hutton of "having a bad reputation" and of being addicted to "vices and alcohol."

Yankee Pilots Plaster Outskirts Of Haiphong

SAIGON, (AP) — American pilots bombed the outskirts of Haiphong Monday and pounded other targets in North Vietnam with the heaviest raids in two weeks.

A slight break in the weather over North Vietnam enabled U.S. planes to fly 107 missions, a spokesman said. This was the largest number since March 14 when American pilots flew 116. The targets included an oil storage depot six miles northwest of Haiphong and a surface-to-air missile site only five miles from the Red port. It was the closest penetration to North Vietnam's major port since the same fuel depot was attacked March 6.

Pilots claimed heavy damage to the fuel depot from their 500-pound bombs and reported a "huge orange fireball" from a secondary explosion. Poor weather conditions prevented damage assessment at the missile site.

PHANTOM LOST

The stepped-up strikes indicated U.S. airmen were prepared to seize any break in the weather to increase pressure on North Vietnam. The seasonal monsoon winds are due to change any day now, providing good bombing weather for the next few months.

The spokesman also announced the loss of an Air Force F4C Phantom jet over the north Sunday. The two crewmen are listed as missing in action. The plane was the second downed by enemy ground fire Sunday, but the announcement of the second loss was delayed while search planes looked for the crew.

The United States has now announced 498 planes lost over the north.

SCATTERED ACTION

Though the tempo of the air war increased, ground action was generally light, with only scattered action reported. Enemy activity included terrorist bombing of three civilian buses north of Da Nang in which five civilians were killed and eight injured.

The biggest U.S. loss resulted from an accident. Thirteen Marines were killed and one wounded when a land mine accidentally exploded during a class in mine warfare at Da Nang.

The U.S. Navy announced that the destroyers Stoddard and Turner Joy were fired on by coastal guns Easter Sunday while shelling the North Vietnamese radar and defense complex on Hon Me island. Neither ship was hit.

Although the weather was clearing over the north, many of the planes went in using radar and all-weather bombing techniques. The carrier Enterprise sent her all-weather Intruder jets against the targets around Haiphong, using air-to-ground missiles and heavy bombs.

FIREBALL

Air Force planes flying from Thailand bombed supply points along the western edge of North Vietnam and down the southern panhandle. One heavy raid went against a supply complex which the North Vietnamese have laid out near the old battlefield of Dien Bien Phu. The bombs set off a blistering fireball and sent black smoke rising 5,000 feet above the jungle area.

Adding to the aerial pounding, three raids by Guam-based B52s hit suspected Communist troop complexes in the south.

BUSES MINED

Ground action was largely confined to the sensitive northern provinces bordering the 17th

Parallel which divides Vietnam, and where the North Vietnamese have a possible invasion force of about 35,000 men.

It was in this area, where political agitation has also been increasing recently, that the Reds mined three civilian buses Monday on the road from Da Nang to Hue. At widely separated points on the road the terrorists waited for the buses and set off mines electrically as they passed.

CHOPPER RAID

South Vietnamese headquarters also reported the Viet Cong fired mortars at the U.S. Army Special Forces camp at Plei Me in the central highlands, causing some military casualties and killing two children and wounding two women and a child in an adjoining village.

A U.S. Marine helicopter scored Monday's biggest ground success, flushing a guerrilla unit out of a shallow lake where the Viet Cong were hiding under water breathing through bamboo straws.

The chopper swept over the area near Quang Ngai City with machine guns blazing and drove the guerrillas toward the shore where a Marine force was searching a village. The action cost the Viet Cong 26 dead and 46 captured. There were no Marine casualties.
