

Robs 16 Banks

FBI Hunts 'Big Man'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Police and FBI agents call him "the Big Man."

He's better known as "the Commuter bandit," an elusive gunman who has robbed 16 Pittsburgh banks of $171,593 over the past 5 1/2 years.

He pulled his most recent job Wednesday, melting into the rush-hour traffic with $19,700.

Who he is and what he does when he isn't sticking up banks is anyone's guess.

Money In A Hurry

The most popular theory is that he lives respectably in the suburbs. When he needs a lot of money in a hurry, he holds up a bank.

Officials say the Commuter is big, between six feet and 6-feet-2. He is between 40 and 57, weighs 200 to 240 pounds, with a barrel chest, square shoulders, an oval, clean-shaven face, blue eyes and sandy, receding hair.

Each of his holdups has followed the same basic pattern.

He usually strikes between noon and 3:30 p.m. He walks into a bank and asks for change—a roll of quarters, for example.

He arouses no immediate suspicion because he looks so much like any other customer.

Armed With Automatic

He may wear slacks, a sport shirt open at the neck—a jacket—a cap.

Casualty he pushes a note and a paper bag to the teller. It says something like: "Be quiet—be quick or you're dead—no alarm—put all $5-$10-$25 in bag and hand it to me quietly and quickly or you're dead!"

He is usually armed with an automatic, believed to be .45 caliber. Only once has he fired it, squeezing off a shot at a wooden railing.

He leaves as casually as he enters, gets into a car, usually an older model and usually stolen, drives to the spot he parked his own car and disappears.

Frustrating Grind

When his car engine caught fire as he was making his getaway after robbing a downtown bank on July 1, 1964, he calmly stopped in the middle of a heavily traveled boulevard and stepped away into the sidewalk traffic.

Several police cars, including one carrying FBI agents, were only a few yards away.

"Trying to track down the Commuter has been a long and frustrating grind.

"Our investigations have ranged throughout the continental United States and a few foreign countries," an FBI spokesman said.

Twiggy Vs. Miss USA

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Twiggy's boyish figure would be lost among the 51 curvaceous beauties at the Miss USA pageant.

And the girls here have some definite ideas on how the supermodel would fare as a contestant. "She wouldn't quite make it here," snapped Judianne Magnuson of Phoenix, Arizona's contestant. "Why, she has no shape."

'She's Too Skinny'

Turned up noses and cries of, "She's too skinny" accompanied the mere mention of the big-eyed Briton's name.

None of the girls here would trade in their looks for the more famous — and more profitable — looks of Twiggy.

Would Twiggy make it to the finals Saturday? "Never!" was the solemn judgment of Jean Galata, New Jersey's entry in the 16th annual Miss USA contest. "I think a woman should look like a woman."

Dog Poisoning

Residents were reminded today that there are severe penalties for putting out dog poison. Chief of Police Jay Banks said he had a number of complaints about poisoning, and would take immediate steps to prosecute offenders.

He also pointed out that the city has a standard $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone distributing dog poison. In addition to the cruelty to animals resulting from poison, Banks pointed out that children often are victims of poisoners.

Taxes Reduced

STANTON (SC) — Martin County taxpayers got a break this week, when Judge Jim McCoy and the commissioners announced a 12 per cent tax rate reduction. The rate was slashed from $1.70 to $1.49.

BOTH ARMS IN CASTS Bobby Wash takes a ribbing

Both Wings In Casts

By JOE PICKLE

Robert Wash is not one to do things half way.

When he broke one arm, he promptly broke the other.

So for the next month Bobby is doing his sleeping sitting up.

PRANKING

Bobby, 12, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Wash of Forsan, and he is in the sixth grade at Forsan. One day recently he was pranking with his classmates, walking on his hands. He fell and cracked his right arm about two inches above the wrist. After school he came to town and an X-ray confirmed the break, so he got cast No. 1.

That wasn't so bad, but Bobby was climbing with his good hand in the grape arbor 10 days later. He slipped and grabbed for a rope his brother, Billy, 10, had tied—and it slipped, too. Down came Bobby with his left arm under him.

It turned out that this was broken—and badly—between the elbow and shoulder. That meant a heavy cast below the elbow to weight down the arm and pull the bone back into the proper position. It also meant that he had to keep it in this position so that the pull would be constant—so Bobby has to sleep sitting up.

This created something of an emergency, for Bobby couldn't write. The doctor clipped away part of the cast on his right hand so he could scribble—and Bobby thinks his writing is about as good as ever. Nevertheless, he hoped to get this cast off today (if all goes well), just in time for final examinations.

ODDITY

Another oddity about Bobby's situation is that he has a doctor for each arm, owing to the nature of the breaks.

The worst part of it isn't sleeping sitting up, or perhaps missing his first and only day from school, but the ribbing he gets. Once before he ran through a glass door at school and they suggested he wear a crash helmet. Now they're suggesting a cage.

Texas Solons Seek Money Compromise

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative conferees on appropriations agreed today to accept the House version of mental health and retardation operating expenses as they sought agreement on a money bill that would avoid a special session.

The five senators and five representatives, meeting early, agreed to take the House's provision for operating funds for state mental institutions, which totals $1.4 million more than the Senate allotted.

HALFWAY HOUSES

Senate conferees also accepted a $150,000 in the House bill for halfway houses for youths returning to their communities from state reform schools.

Several major items were passed over after disagreements arose, including $1.35 million in the House bill for a new 300-bed dormitory at Corsicana State Home and $600,000, also in the House measure, to lease a building and operate a 100-bed intensive treatment unit for mental cases in Houston.

PRESS PRESENT

For the first time, reporters and anyone else who wanted to could attend Thursday all meetings of an appropriations conference committee, but there were signs that some agreements might be worked out privately.

Co-Chairmen Rep. W. Healy, Paducah, and Sen. A. M. Aikin, Paris, said they planned to discuss some problems. When asked if newsmen could be present, Healy said, "No, sir."

But all committee members must vote on adjustments between the House and Senate money bills.

BIG PROBLEM

Aikin said the committee would work through the weekend and would try to finish its report by Tuesday, less than a week from final adjournment of the regular session. This is the committee's problem: —Senators passed a one-year appropriation bill that takes $437.8 million in general revenue. They included in it $55.5 million for a teacher pay raise, reducing by that amount the general revenue available for other items. This left a deficit of $13.7 million, on the basis of Comptroller Robert S. Calvert's most recent general revenue estimate.

ARMED FORCES DAY Accent On Youth At Webb Saturday

Armed Forces Day

Schedule At Webb AFB

The accent will be on youth at Webb AFB Saturday when the base observes Armed Forces Day with demonstrations of how the local mission contributes to the "Power for Peace" theme. GATES OPEN The gates will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and the formal program begins at 9:30 o'clock in Building 75 on the flight line, when Col. Chester J. Butcher, 3560th Pilot Training Wing commander, appoints a wing commander for the day and crowns a Webb Armed Forces Day queen. Five students have been selected from area high schools to serve in staff positions for the day, and one of them will be announced the wing commander for the day. The finalists are Gregory Devlin, 18, Big Spring High School; Johnny O. Dolan, 17, Forsan High School; Troy L. Fraser, 17, Coahoma High School; Larry Newcomer, 17, Sands High School; and Butch Robnett, 18, Stanton High School.

The youths were selected on the basis of their community leadership activity, scholastic average, and a short essay on why he would like to serve as wing commander for the day.

4 CANDIDATES Four candidates for Armed Forces Day Queen were selected on the basis of their scholastic average and a theme on why she would like to be the Queen. The finalists are Sara Bledsoe, 17, Sands High School; Beverly L. Clements, 18, Stanton High School; Cornelia Garrett, 16, Big Spring High School; and

Egyptian Troops Mass Along Sinai Border

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The United Nations flag came down all along the Gaza Strip today. The Egyptian military command declared the whole Sinai Peninsula on Israel's border "a forbidden area" to the U.N. Emergency Force.

The flag-lowering was marked only by a simple ceremony at the U.N. post opposite Nahal Oz. A blue-helmeted Swedish soldier played taps. Then Jeeps carrying personnel belongings of the U.N. soldiers drove away, leaving the post vacant for the first time in a decade.

FORBIDDEN ZONE Announcement that Egypt had declared Sinai a forbidden zone to the 3,400-man U.N. peacekeeping force was broadcast by Cairo radio as Egyptian troops and armor massed at the border. Egypt had demanded withdrawal of the U.N. force Thursday.

The Cairo broadcast said the order in the peninsula was given for security reasons and to preserve the secrecy of Egyptian troop movements. Egypt and Syria have charged that Israel plans to attack Syria touched off the current crisis.

U.N. REMOVAL Other reports from Cairo said the U.N. force had withdrawn from the Egyptian-administered Gaza Strip on the Mediterranean coast and Egyptian troops had taken over border positions. But there was no confirmation.

If true, this and the order banning the U.N. force from the peninsula would effectively remove the peacekeeping organization from the 145-mile border between Israel and Egypt that it has occupied since the Egyptian-Israeli war in 1956.

SACRED MARCH With Egyptian infantry, armored columns and field artillery maneuvering in the Sinai Desert along Israel's southwest frontier, Maj. Gen. Abdel Mohsen Mortagi, commander of the "eastern front," declared his troops were "ready for a sacred march into Israel."

Mortagi indicated, however, that Egypt would fight only if Israel attacked Syria or some other Arab state.

There was no immediate word of what counter-measures the Israelis were taking, but the Israeli army announced Thursday that it had taken "suitable steps" to meet the Egyptian threat. Invasion tension, triggered by a series of border incidents between Israel and Syria, has brought Egypt, Syria and Iraq to a state of military readiness

Mrs. Ed Black Named County's New Auditor

Mrs. Ed (Virginia) Black, 1307 Wood, is the new auditor of Howard County.

She was appointed to the post at 11 a.m. today by District Judge Ralph W. Caton, to fill the vacancy caused by the recent resignation of Edgar Phillips. Phillips had served as auditor two years.

Mrs. Black, a bookkeeper and accountant with 17 years experience, is currently assistant to George Thorburn, public accountant. She said that she will take over her new duties as quickly as she can leave her present position.

Mrs. Black has worked for Thorburn since 1963, prior to that she was associated with G. H. Hayward and Fred Rye for 13 years. She and her husband came here in 1950 from San Angelo. She formerly lived in Kaufman County and attended Howard Payne College in Brownwood for one year. She and her husband are members of the College Baptist Church, where she is a teacher in the Sunday school. The

Military Thrust Not An Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States said today the new U.S. military thrust into the demilitarized zone in Vietnam is a purely defensive measure against the buildup of North Vietnamese forces.

"It is not in any sense an invasion of North Vietnam," a State Department spokesman declared.

He also asserted that the United States is prepared to consider any possible solution for restoring the zone as a demilitarized barrier between North and South Vietnam under international supervision.

"Meanwhile," press officer Robert J. McCloskey said at a State Department news conference, "we have no choice but to take the necessary military measures to counteract the buildup by North Vietnam in the southern portion of the zone."

SERIOUS MENACE

The allies had responded to this violation of the 1954 Geneva agreement with air strikes and, for the last three months, with long-range artillery fire, but avoided sending in ground forces until enemy bargages became a serious menace this month to their command posts below the zone.

The U.S. Command reported hard fighting elsewhere in South Vietnam Thursday, with at least 228 other Communists killed. And a relief force reached a platoon of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division that was overrun in the central highlands and found 22 of the American soldiers dead and seven wounded.

28 MARINES DIE

Twenty-eight Marines were reported killed. Officers said 12 were killed and 202 wounded Thursday. Sixteen were killed and more than 40 wounded by Communist shells in a Marine landing force Friday. Communist mortars wounded 14 Marines maneuvering within the zone. There was no immediate report on South Vietnamese casualties.

North Vietnam has been using the demilitarized zone, a six-mile-wide belt that covers both sides of the frontier, for about a year as a staging area and infiltration funnel for a campaign to occupy the northern provinces of South Vietnam.

Reports from Cairo said Egyptian forces have taken up defensive positions along the Egyptian-Israeli demarcation line which the U.N. Emergency Force — UNEF — had been patrolling for 11 years. Delegates at U.N. headquarters in New York said Secretary-General U Thant told them Thursday night he had given the order to pull back the peace force.

OPEN BUILDING

The 3560th Pilot Training Squadron building will be open for inspection, and movies will be shown every hour on the hour. In Hangar 75, there will be displays of the support equipment used in training pilots and maintaining the base. Refreshment stands will also be set up.

CONG PLEDGE

The heavy action marked the 77th birthday of Ho Chi Minh, North Vietnam's president. The Communist North Vietnam News Agency said his nation and the Viet Cong pledged anew to defeat the United States at any cost.

More than 5,000 allied fighting men sought in close-quarter action to root out of the southern half of the demilitarized zone deeply emplaced enemy guns and mortars that bombardments by American jets and artillery had failed to silence.

The Marines said 162 of the enemy were killed in the first 24 hours of the action, called Operation Hickory. It was launched at dawn Thursday.

Planes Blast Targets Near Hanoi's Heart

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops, spearheading a drive that halted on the doorstep of North Vietnam, battled within the demilitarized zone today in a new phase of the Vietnam war.

Far to the north, U.S. planes bombed for the first time a power plant only 1.1 miles from the center of Hanoi. This was their closest raid ever to the Communist capital's heart. The Van Dien army barracks, five miles away, also was attacked.

The U.S. Command said at least three Communist MIG jets were shot down. It mentioned no American losses. Radio Hanoi declared nine raiders were felled and many others damaged.

'TIME IS RUNNING OUT' Gov. Connally Still Trying To Aid Local Governments

AUSTIN (AP) — An aide to Gov. John Connally says the governor is still looking for ways to pass legislation to help local governments, but says "time is running out."

Only two of the six measures first suggested by Connally have been approved for floor debate in the House. Four bills in the package are in a Senate committee. The governor has dropped support of two proposed constitutional amendments.

Connally recommended the legislation after a study by the Texas Research League. In March he called approximately 200 county judges and commissioners to Austin to clear up what he described as widespread misunderstanding of the program.

NOT REPRESENTATIVE

Members of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas rejected three of the bills early in May but approved a county building standards bill. The aide said the vote was not representative because less than 100 members of the 1,200-member association cast ballots. The association failed to endorse a proposal that would make state funds available to councils-of-government (COG) formed by two or more political subdivisions of a metropolitan area or urban region.

PLANNING FUNDS

This is one of the two meaasures approved by the House State Affairs Committee for debate. Each COG would be able to use state funds for planning within its own area.

The governor's plan provides for $3 million in state funds for use by the councils in the next two years for special studies and to promote inter-government cooperation.

Also approved for House debate is a proposal to create a Local Government Assistance Agency to assist and advise political subdivisions and setting up a municipal incorporation review board.

WASTE

The agency would keep local governments informed on the status of state and federal programs in which they are entitled to take part. The review board would have three citizen members, all appointed by the governor and would pass on proposed city incorporations.

Connally said the review board could "prevent proliferation of municipal governments." The judges and commissioners association did not approve the bill.

Still in a House subcommittee are bills to support studies and arrangements among local governments to eliminate waste and to authorize counties to set building standards in unincorporated areas.

BUILDINGS BILL

The interlocal cooperative bill would permit subdivisions to enter into contracts and agreements with each other to provide governmental services. The bill, rejected by the judges and commissioners, also provides for planning and carrying out these contracts.

The building standards bill does not give counties any zoning powers.

The constitutional amendments, which Connally said he would not try to get approved this session, would:

- Permit the legislature to set up optional plans for county government organization.
- Define urban counties and permit them to undertake specific services and levy additional taxes to support them.

Play Opens Tonight

"Streetcar Named Desire," the first of Tennessee Williams' dramas to claim national attention, will open in the Municipal Auditorium this evening, produced by the Little Theatre of Big Spring. Curtain time is 8 p.m. It will be repeated Saturday evening at the same time. Members of the cast include (from left) Jeff Randall, Jeni Shaffer, Wanda Grabau, Haskell Wright, Dick Shaver and Fred Smith. Joyce Sandner (seated) directed the play. Season tickets will be honored, but duets may be purchased at the door at $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for students and airmen. (Photo by Frank Brandon)

Zoo's Raccoons Become Parents

Four new arrivals have checked in at the Big Spring Pet-A-Zoo, A. D. Blount, owner, announced Thursday, and a pair of wild raccoons are proud parents.

The four tiny raccoons were born Wednesday, he said, but Momma Raccoon keeps a pretty close eye on them and it was late Thursday before Blount even found out how many babies she had. Papa Raccoon is also kept at a distance, he added.

Although he has had the raccoons three years, this is the first time they have had youngsters.

Jury Rules For Plaintiff—$5,000

A jury deliberated an hour and a half Thursday afternoon before finding for the plaintiff in the damage suit brought by Mrs. Edna Putz against James Lester and his wife.

The verdict awarded the plaintiff $5,000 as compensation for injuries and damages she claimed in a collision on July 19, 1966, at Fourth Street and Douglas. The plaintiff had asked for $42,652.

Altho East had been placed under pressure by the sequence of plays, his procedure when diamonds were finally led, was not clearly thought out. South, by actual count, has shown up with five hearts and three clubs. West, for his three spade bid, presumably holds a seven card suit—giving South two spades. This leaves declarer with three diamonds. If one of these is the queen, then he cannot be prevented from winning a trick in the suit. Therefore, East cannot gain by playing the king.

When the diamond is led from dummy, East should play low to allow for the possibility that West holds a lightly guarded queen. Even after East puts up the king of diamonds, he still is in position to recover by underleading his ace, next. When the eight of diamonds drops from West's hand, the conclusion becomes unmistakable that he has, at most, a doubleton in the suit, so that the underlead of the ace can hardly cost.

Altho South's four heart contract appears destined for defeat, inasmuch as there is no legitimate way to avoid the loss of one spade as well as three diamonds, the declarer found a way to induce a member of the opposition to lend a helping hand.

West's preemptive opening bid of three spades created a stumbling block for North and South. North's double, even at this level, is primarily for take-out, and South's four heart response is eminently proper, holding five cards in the unbidd major, despite the weakness of his hand. There is the further consideration that he has no assurance the three spade bid can be defeated.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are all stirred up this Saturday to get all relationships just as you wish them to be, so it is essential that you do consider what happens, you are associated with also desires from your joint alliance, so don't try to force issues with others but coordinate your efforts with mutual agreement upon compatible goals.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You feel that arguing with one with whose views you do not agree will cause a change of ideas, but you may be the one to do just that. Try to be a partner. Listen carefully instead of bawling.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You have much energy that should be used wisely in constructive channels instead of getting you into trouble. Be sure you do not overdo, however. Evening is fine for quiet relaxation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Quiet pleasure is the best way to spend this Saturday, since you can advance in this fashion as well, impress others with your charm and know what the aims and ambitions of others are. Assist them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Instead of being so vehement, find a better way of gaining the support of kin for whatever you are doing in your mind. Don't alienate the affection of one you love. Be thoughtful, kindly.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Hit on a course that will see your regular duties performed more efficiently, and in a more orderly fashion. Visit with friends and relations, but steer clear of ticklish subjects. Show that you are genuine.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Concentrate on increasing income and economizing at the same time. Where it is necessary, to property, will add to its value as well as pleasure, comfort.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are so eager to get ahead that you could be very forgetful with others and defeat your own purpose. Be more diplomatic instead and you get much further. Be sure you know what it is you want, that it is not a passing ambition, desire.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You feel you need help to assist you to get what you want, and this may be fine, but approach them in a quiet manner. Listening to them in a quiet manner. Listening to them in a quiet manner. Listening to them in a quiet manner. However, don't interrupt unless absolutely necessary.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day to be with congenials who can assist you to gain your final goals. Be they of a personal or mercantile nature. Show a cheerful face and others respect and respond to it. Don't be so pessimistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Being loyal to higher-ups and taking their advice is the best way to advance right at this time, and ending so much. A direct line to whatever is on your mind is always the best. Gain a reputation for honesty.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Listening respectfully to experts is almost any time wise, since you learn much that way. A "bright" broad-minded attitude is necessary with and by everyone if anything of value is to be accomplished right now. Show that you are understanding.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Your hunches are pretty accurate but be sure you do not barge in like a bull in a china shop. Use good judgment as well as be courteous with others. One you love can be very responsive in a moment.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN tomorrow, he or she will be one of those fascinating persons who will vacillate between being too self-sacrificing one moment, and almost vindictive the next, so be sure to teach early to do only those things for others that one desires, and when asked to do them, stick to one's business otherwise. Then there is success here.

Lawmaker Wants Rangers To Leave

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Lauro Cruz of Houston introduced Thursday a resolution asking Gov. John Connally to remove Texas Rangers from Rio Grande City, scene of union efforts to organize farm workers.

The resolution was referred to the House State Affairs Committee, headed by Rep. R. H. Cory of Victoria.

Cruz's resolution asserted that rights "have continually been, and are today being violated in the greatest degree by the Texas Rangers against farm workers in Rio Grande City."

Three Cubans Aid Venezuela Landing

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba acknowledged Thursday three Cubans helped a guerrilla band land in Venezuela and said it will continue to aid guerrillas in all the world.

A bristling statement from the Central Committee of the Cuban Communist party declared, "We will not avoid combat." The statement said in effect that the Cubans captured in Venezuela were only doing their part as good revolutionaries.

It denied, however, that any of the Cubans were members of the regular army.

The statement was the first official admission since Venezuela announced two Cubans were captured and two others were killed in a landing May 8. Cuba admits only three Cubans were involved.

Price Of A Girl Is 75 Cows; Rustling Spurs Bloody Feuds

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — In the barren Karamoja district of northern Uganda, the price of a girl is 75 cows.

There has been a long drought and cattle are scarce, so the men of the Karamoja tribe have taken to raiding neighbors' herds to get together the cows they need to buy a wife.

The raids have created a major security problem for Uganda's president, Milton Obote.

Russ Border War Looms?

CHICAGO (AP) — Well-informed foreign diplomats in Peking are convinced that shooting incidents have occurred on the border between Russia and Red China, says a newsman who visited China in March.

Simon Malley writes in a copyright story that top Chinese leaders believe a shooting war on the Russian border is "possible and even probable."

Malley, a United Nations correspondent for the French language Jeune Afrique and other African newspapers, quoted Premier Chou En-lai as saying armed conflict is possible "because the Soviet revisionists will do their best to crush the present revolution in China."

Malley's series on his trip to China is appearing in the Chicago Daily News and is based on exclusive interviews he said he had with Chou and other Chinese Communist leaders.

Malley wrote that although foreign diplomats in Peking believe shooting incidents have occurred on the China-Russia border, China has given no hint that this was so.

Chou reportedly said he is sure a change of leaders in Russia would mean an end to any border conflict before it could become total war.

Malley said the Chinese premier is confident Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Leonid I. Brezhnev, Communist party chairman, will be bounced from the posts because of a policy Chou termed "collusion with the United States."

More than 1,000 police and special security forces equipped with helicopters are trying to maintain order in Karamojong and stop the bloody feuds over cattle between rival clans of the Karamojong and with neighboring tribes in Kenya and Sudan.

NO CLOTHES

Karamojong was never brought fully under control during the period of British rule, ending in 1962. The desolate area 200 miles northeast of Kampala covers more than 10,000 square miles but has only 30,000 inhabitants. They are a withdrawn, nomadic people who resisted the civilizing efforts of missionaries and the British administration for decades.

To this day, the men of the Karamojong take a special pride in wearing absolutely no clothes, not even a loin cloth. The women wear a small leather patch.

Child Abuse Tally

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Social Welfare Department says 416 cases of suspected child abuse were reported in New York State during 1966.

having allowed the tribe to retain such customs.

Interior Minister Basil Baturingaya told the Uganda Parliament recently the Karamojong were never pacified because the former colonial regime deliberately "created a kind of human zoo in the area."

STATUS SYMBOL

Karamojong raise cattle as a status symbol and never slaughter their cows—though they drink the cows' milk and blood. They live on corn, wild plants and a pink milkshake made with raw, fresh blood lapped from a cow's veins.

The drought has created near-famine conditions and has led to bloody tribal battles in which many have died.

As the Karamojong are more primitive than neighboring tribes, they often get the worst of intertribal fighting.

Blood Money

By tradition, a boy has to prove his manhood by killing a lion, a leopard, elephant—or an enemy. The enemy usually is the easiest to get. But the killer's relatives have to pay "blood money" by surrendering one of their girls—or the equivalent in cows—to the victim's family.

Modern Uganda politicians tend to blame the British for died in fighting over cattle between different clans of the Karamojong. One problem faced by security forces in suppressing cattle raiding is that stolen cows can rarely be identified. The Karamojong don't brand.

MUST LEARN

To prevent international incidents, some Uganda officials envisage the creation of a broad no-man's land along the border where anyone found roaming would be considered an outlaw.

There is no easy solution to the problem.

Uganda's minister of works and housing, S. K. E. Okurut, himself of Karamojong origin, summed up his people's problem in a parliamentary speech.

"They have to learn that cattle is not everything," he said. "They have to learn that a man can be of high social standing without even a calf to his name. They must learn that we have better doctors than their medicine men."

"They have to know other ways than raiding cattle and better ways of being a hero. And they have to learn that a man can win a girl without having to resort to stealing and to killing a fellow human being."

Sourpuss with false teeth now laughs loudest

"Because of terrible yellow denture stains and bad breath, I always held back from smiling. Everyone called me 'sourpuss.' One DENTUR-KLEEN FOAMING tablet made the difference. All stain and offending food particles were foamed away. My false teeth have never looked so clean and white, felt so fresh, thanks to foaming DENTUR-KLEEN.

State Property Tax Cut Okayed

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposed constitutional change gradually abolishing all but 10 cents of the 47-cent state property tax won House approval Thursday, 102-34.

The measure returns to the Senate for action on an amendment guaranteeing that the 10 cents per $100 valuation tax for college buildings will not be repealed.

If the Senate accepts the change, the amendment will go before the voters in the November, 1968, general election.

Long Might Seek Dodd Debate Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long reportedly may ask the Senate to hold off for six weeks its debate on a proposed resolution censuring Sen. Thomas J. Dodd for financial misconduct.

Robert A. Hunter, Long's administrative assistant, said the Louisiana Democrat may seek a postponement today. The censure resolution now is scheduled for consideration beginning Monday.

The Senate ethics committee recommended several weeks ago that Dodd, a Connecticut

Doctors quit smoking

CHICAGO — According to a recent survey, 52% of American doctors do not smoke. Many quit recently due, according to the Anti-Tobacco Center of America, to the conclusive evidence linking cigarettes and lung cancer.

Many doctors gave up smoking without straining their will power thanks to a new tablet which helps to progressively eliminate the need for nicotine and, as a result, the desire to smoke. Less than 2% of the 150,000 people who tried this tablet reported they still smoke!

Smokers interested in receiving information (free) about this new tablet are invited to contact directly the Anti-Tobacco Center of America, Dept. 1011-H-2, 366 Fifth Avenue, New York 1, New York. It is sufficient to send your name and address. Just a post-card will do.

Tells How To Wash Shirts

Dear Folks:
This is for both men and women.

All of you who want those famous new synthetic shirts, take heed and listen to what I learned this weekend while experimenting with my husband's shirt.

True, the collar sometimes has a dirt line, but it washes away beautifully without losing a thread.

Tricot material has a ribbed material that stretches and wrinkles.

Each time from the collar side, use a hair holding the ends, use it.

After you use the right hand then try the left. You can get all across the collar that way. It is no simple thing at all, but believable.

Dear Heloise:
Our two small boys like to undo and lace shoes. As a result they were always losing the laces.

One day I took each shoe and threaded the lace through the holes until I made its first crossover. At that point I twisted the lace ends together. I showed the boys how to do this.

Now my boys can unlace and lace their shoes and no more lost laces.

Dear Folks:
If you ever want some fresh lemon juice without the pulp, just add a spoonful of water to a lemon and shake it up.

Dear Heloise:
I found another use for your nylon net.

I emptied a box of pickles into a small square of it and tied the corners together. I hung one of them in each of my closets.

Now when I open the closet door it smells divine. — Hestia Aldrin

Mrs. Dorothy Ragan Talks To Credit Club

Mrs. Dorothy Ragan spoke on "Managing Women Employees" from the book by Eleanor Cashier at the Thursday luncheon meeting of the Big Spring Credit Women's Club at Home-Settle.

The professional makeup of a woman or girl in the business world determines to a large degree how successful she will be. Mrs. Ragan said that personality or will be a burden on her efficiency as an employee.

Mrs. Ragan said that the manager or supervisor should eliminate as much stress as possible by explaining the job details and the requirements.

Women need to feel that they are trusted and should be encouraged to develop executive ability in accordance with their potential.

Mrs. Ragan concluded by saying that women employees should be corrected in private, but praised in public.

Mrs. Myrtle Sawtelle, executive secretary of the Howard Glasscock Chapter of the American Red Cross, asked for volunteers to assist in making duff bags for the Armed Forces in Vietnam. The bags must be filled by Sept. 1. Eleven members offered their help.

Chapter delegates will leave today for the Hospital, credit conference May 23. Those going are Mrs. J. E. Apple, Mrs. A. J. Eason, Mrs. Lloyd Waller, Mrs. W. E. Morgan, Mrs. Noel Hill and Miss Pauline Sullivan.

Light refreshments were served.

Half Of Safeway Store Clerks Okay New Pact

DALLAS (AP) — Retail clerks of Safeway Stores in larger Texas cities voted today to accept a new three-year contract "but we still face a strike situation in the country stores," a union spokesman said.

This word came from A. H. Hubbard, secretary-treasurer of the Retail Clerks Union, after a meeting which lasted until 3:30 a.m.

His union represents clerks of 110 Safeway stores in 35 Texas cities. They had voted to strike at midnight Thursday unless there was agreement on a contract to replace one which expired Feb. 5.

CLOSE VOTE

Hubbard said the vote was 196-180 to accept terms offered for about 1,000 employees of the food chain's stores in major cities of the state. The union officials declined to list the cities, however, because contract talks will continue for the others and "we want to keep them (management) guessing."

In the past the union has listed Dallas, Fort Worth, Texarkana, Tyler and Wichita Falls as points where Safeway operates more than one store.

"We got an equitable settlement—you never get all you want," Hubbard said.

PAY HIKES

He reported all clerks under the new contract will receive a minimum pay increase of 10 cents an hour and for most the raise will range from 31 cents to $1.10 an hour.

Hubbard said the present starting rate of $1.59 will rise to $2.69 an hour by the end of the third year. Current wages of other employees were not disclosed.

In addition, Hubbard said, the new agreement provides one week more vacation for older employees, a pension plan, improved health and welfare benefits, a stronger seniority clause and better terms for parttime employees.

The union executive said negotiations continued past 10 p.m. Thursday, were recessed as the latest Safeway offer was laid before representatives of all 110 Texas stores, and will be resumed about Monday.

Merchant Dies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Allen Gundersheimer, 78, one of the leading merchants in Columbus for many years, died Thursday.

Death Claims Mrs. Skakel

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Joan Patricia Skakel, 39, widow of Robert F. Kennedy, died Thursday night when she "apparently choked on a piece of meat while serving as hostess at a dinner party in her home."

Her death was one of a series of tragic incidents that have befallen the Skakel family. Her husband George, 44, was killed in a plane crash last year, and her son Mark, 13, was seriously injured last month when explosives he was experimenting with blew up.

Police said Mrs. Skakel was pronounced dead on arrival at Greenwich Hospital—the same hospital where her son is still recuperating. An autopsy is scheduled.

George Skakel died last Sept. 23 in the crash of a private plane at Riggins, Idaho. His sister, Ethel, is the wife of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. Skakel's parents were also killed in an air crash near Tulsa, Okla., in 1955.

Mrs. Skakel was born Joan Patricia Corroon, the daughter of insurance magnate James F. Corroon. The couple was married in 1948 and had four children—Mark, George III, Kathleen and Susan.

Kathleen, 17, early this year was driving the family convertible when a child riding in the back seat fell to the ground and died. She was absolved of any responsibility in the mishap.

According to an aide, Sen. Kennedy and his wife were flying to Greenwich from their Virginia home to join the Skakel family.

The funeral was scheduled for Saturday at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church here.

'Lindy' Pilot Taking Exams

NEW YORK (AP) — A Texas pilot is finishing his final exams so he can fly to New York and then take off in a single-engine plane for Paris in emulation of the Lindbergh feat 40 years ago.

He is Paul Rachal, 23, an honor student at TCU in Fort Worth.

Seymour Danto, sales engineer for Rea International of New York City, export distributors for Mooney Aircraft in Kerrville, Tex., discussed the projected flight today.

Rachal is the son of Hal Rachal, president of the aircraft company. He has been making delivery flights of the company's aircraft to all parts of the world during his spare time away from school.

The takeoff is planned Monday or Tuesday, depending on the weather, from Kennedy Airport. His projected flight will be Le Bourget Airport, where Lindbergh landed 33 hours and 29 minutes after he took off May 20, 1927, from Long Island.

The aircraft is a new Mooney Mustang, described as a pioneer American pressurized turbo-charged single-engine plane for general aviation use.

The flight will be about 3,600 miles and will be made at more than 20,000 feet in about 16 hours, says Danto. The aircraft has a ceiling of 24,000 feet and cruises at 230 miles per hour.

The flight will be a delivery, with the aircraft going to a buyer in Switzerland.

Houston GI Draws Life

PHU BAI, Vietnam (AP) — A U.S. Marine sergeant who said he killed a prisoner because his lieutenant ordered him to was sentenced Thursday to life imprisonment.

Sgt. Charles D. Wilkerson, 23, Houston, Tex., said he felt he did not get a fair trial in the one-day general court-martial which convicted him of premeditated murder.

"Suddenly, everyone in the platoon became hard of hearing," Wilkerson told newsmen after being sentenced. "They said they never heard the lieutenant give the order."

Wilkerson was convicted by the eight-man court of shooting a Vietnamese in the head with a shotgun while the man's hands were tied behind him. The Vietnamese was a Viet Cong suspect seized in a free-fire zone, an area from which civilians are barred.

Only one of the men in Wilkerson's platoon testified he heard the platoon leader, 2nd Lt. David C. Yorck, order the prisoner killed.

Several others testified they heard no such command.

Wilkerson had testified he was "only following orders."

The lieutenant said, "Peel out of the column and kill him!" he said. "Then I started leading the man down the trail. I was scared and wondered if maybe I could hit the man in the head and leave him there. I stopped, the man turned around fast, and my shotgun went off."

"I pumped the gun and fired another round automatically," Wilkerson was on his first combat patrol.

His lieutenant, who had been in Vietnam only nine days, is scheduled for trial next month.

charges not yet fixed. Yorck did not testify at Wilkerson's trial.

Wilkerson also was sentenced to a dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of all pay. The case must now be reviewed by Maj. Gen. Bruno A. Hochmuth, commander of the 3rd Marine Division.

Science And You

The Dark Side Of The Moon

By DR. LEONARD REIFEL

The next time you're out on a nice clear night and the moon is shining take a good look at it. It looks pretty bright, doesn't it?

In fact, however, when one takes scientific measurements on the brightness of the moon it turns out that the moon's surface material is surprisingly dark. If you were able to look at it closely it would appear about like the asphalt surface of a road—not white at all. The real reason the moon seems so bright is because of the very black sky around it and the enormous brilliance of the sunlight on its surface.

Why is the moon so dark? The answer is not quite clear. Certain scientists have argued that it is dark because of the basic material out of which it's made. Great fields of lava and fragments of old meteorites may cover its surface and these are naturally quite black.

Other scientists argue that this is not the whole story. They feel that one of the reasons the moon is so black is because it's "sunburned." The effect may be caused not only by the light from the sun, but also — and predominantly — by the atomic particles that spew invisibly out of the sun, year in and year out. Over millions and millions of years, these particles — basically fragments of hydrogen and helium atoms — strike the moon at the high velocity of hundreds of miles per second. The result could be a wearing away of the surface, atom by atom, and a simultaneous darkening of the lunar surface.

Scientists have taken hydrogen atoms (really only their nuclei, or cores) and accelerated them in a laboratory device. Traveling very fast, these particles are a good imitation of the streams leaving the sun. This hydrogen was beamed at simulated lunar materials — plain rocks of various types, in other words. The rock turned darker and matched the moon's characteristics. After achieving this result, the scientists felt they had a fair explanation of why the moon is so dark.

The story, however, doesn't end there. Other scientists didn't believe the results. Their doubts became stronger when they discovered that the Surveyor pictures from the spacecraft we soft-landed on the moon came back showing that the surface was actually lighter in color than the material just underneath the surface. The sub-surface material of the moon could be seen because, luckily, the foot of the Surveyor actually kicked a little bit of it out.

Because of this and other lingering doubts, scientists recently began to take another look at their laboratory experiments. Had they really done the job right when they sprayed the rocks and rock powders with the hydrogen beam? Further tests revealed a surprising answer.

There was just enough oil vapor in the containers in which the experiments were carried out to cause a deposit of carbon from the oil on the surface of the rocks. This minute deposit of carbon, being very black, had caused the rock surfaces to become much darker than they should have if hydrogen beam effects alone were responsible.

The laboratory experiments had been highly misleading. Bombardment by hydrogen doesn't actually darken rocks very much.

Now, in a certain sense, it's back to the drawing boards on the question of just why the moon is not a lot brighter than it actually is.

AT TEXAS SOUTHERN Official Asserts Civil Rights Violated In Riot

HOUSTON (AP) — The FBI says it will investigate a complaint of civil rights violation in connection with the recent rioting at Texas Southern University. A rookie policeman was killed and four other persons were wounded in a battle early Wednesday between police and student snipers firing from dormitories. Officers arrested 488 men students. Four students, charged with felony rioting, remained in jail. The others were questioned and released. Police sought Charles Freeman, 20, also charged with rioting.

NO LEADS

There have been no incidents at the school since Wednesday. An FBI spokesman said Thursday the civil rights violation complaint was filed by an official of Texas Southern but declined to identify the official agents will conduct the investigation and send a report to the Justice Department in Washington. If the Justice Department finds a criminal act has been committed it can file charges. Inspector Otto H. Vahldeik, chief of detectives, said there were no leads in the death of patrolman Louis Kuba, 25, who was shot during the rioting.

CAMPUS QUIET

"It is going to require considerable time to go over each statement taken in the county jail and compile them into usable form," he said. "We have got a lot of statements as to who was firing and from what rooms they fired." On campus Thursday night, all was quiet. In the men's dormitory which was the target of the police bullets, few rooms were fit for occupancy. The mayor's office reported that police were investigating complaints from students, teachers, and others of what was called unnecessary destruction by patrolmen who searched the dormitory.

COPS KEVED UP

Chief of Police Herman Short said "the officers were keyed up" but he said there was no intention or instruction for them to be violent. He said there was destruction in the dormitories before police went in. The TSU chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said, "There must be a full

Exams Slated

The opening of a new senior-level examination for federal positions in administration, staff services, technical services, management, and professional services has been announced. Starting salaries range from $12,873 (for GS-13) to $17,550 (GS-15). Most positions to be filled will be in the Washington, D.C. area. Information may be had from the U.S. Civil Service clerk at the post office.

Thank God For Giant Difference

AUSTIN (AP) — "I don't care what anybody says, there are distinctions between the sexes," says Rep. Rayford Price of Palestine. House members guffawed.

Price spoke Thursday in support of his amendment to a proposed constitutional provision calling for equality under the law regardless of sex, race, color, creed or national origin. Rep. David Crews of Conroe supported Price's amendment, which would allow the legislature to retain authority to make reasonable distinctions in laws on the basis of sex.

"It's a good amendment," Crews said, "and I'm sure every member who understands and makes a distinction between men and women will vote for your amendment."

But the House voted otherwise, tabling the amendment by an 87-55 vote.

The proposed constitutional amendment needed 100 votes. It got only 89, with 43 members opposing it. Rep. Paul Floyd of Houston led the fight for the proposal, which already has passed the Senate and would have been placed on the general election ballot in 1968.

Floyd said people who argue that such a constitutional amendment would foul up community property and criminal laws, among others, are wrong. "Sex is not involved here, only prohibitive acts of certain people," said Floyd.

Crews offered an amendment to extend the equality to social and fraternal clubs. He said he simply wanted to illustrate what he felt was the absurdity of the logical extension of the proposal.

Speaker Ben Barnes gavelled down the amendment on the ground it was not germane. "Sex belongs in the home, not in the constitution of Texas," Crews said.

Witnesses Set Meeting

The Big Spring congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses is making preparations to attend a three-day training seminar in Monahans, June 8-11.

According to Frank Davis, presiding minister for the local group, the theme of the assembly will be "Supply to You r Faith Endurance."

Along with the local group, Witnesses from 17 West Texas and New Mexico congregations will convene for the three days of Bible training. The assembly's peak will be reached Sunday when L. M. Dugan, district supervisor for Texas-New Mexico narrates the nationally advertised educational film, "God Cannot Lie."

Guest Speaker

WESTBROOK (SC) — The Rev. Guy White, pastor of the Union Baptist Church, was a guest speaker for the Brotherhood meeting Thursday evening at the local church. Supper was served; C. E. Ranne is president.

Dear Abby

Strange Noise Started It

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved into a new apartment. There, we shortly began hearing all sorts of weird noises which neither of us could identify. It sounded like a buzzing or a "beeping." It went off and on. Sometimes we didn't hear it for hours. Then it went on half the night. The noise seemed to be in the wall, but it didn't always come from the same direction. We tried to describe it to the manager, and he thought we were crazy.

My husband was out of town and I heard this noise again, so I called the manager and asked him to come up here and listen with me. He came, and we were just sitting on my bed listening when his wife suddenly barged in! (She has a pass key.)

Now, I wouldn't have her husband on a silver platter, much less a bed, but she confronted me as though I should apologize. Did she have a right to barge into my apartment like that? I assure you we were only listening.

DEAR MRS. C: She did not. But now that you know what she thinks of her husband, the next time you invite him up to your apartment to "listen," invite her up to "look."

DEAR ABBY: A week ago my 10-year-old son found an American Express credit card. I telephoned the person whose name was on the card, and a lady answered the phone. She said it belonged to her son who goes to a nearby college.

Instead of offering me a small reward, she asked me to MAIL the card back to her. These people could easily stop by here and pick up the card as they live only a short distance from us. In fact, I asked her to do so but she insisted I mail it back to her. I refused.

Abby, isn't a reward due my son? If so, how much? Am I wrong to refuse to mail the credit card back to her? She has my name and address.

DEAR HONEST: It would seem that a reward was in order, but since none was offered in advance, you can't "demand" one. Mail the card back to the

Art Teacher's Grading Flops

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 12-year-old son of singer Rosemary Clooney and actor Jose Ferrer must wonder about his art teacher's grading.

She gave Miguel Ferrer an "A" on a picture he drew in the sixth grade at a Beverly Hills school. It sold Wednesday for $50 among a collection of his works put on exhibit at the Cory Gallery in San Francisco for the benefit of art works damaged in the Florence, Italy, floods.

But the same gallery has put a price tag of $75 on another of his 20 creations which went on display. The teacher graded him "C" on that one.

Negro Financiers Draw Pen Terms

AUSTIN (AP) — Two Los Angeles Negro financiers, convicted of misapplying $189,186 in funds from the First National Bank of Marlin, were sentenced Thursday to two three-year concurrent terms each in prison.

The identical sentences were assessed Joseph Morris, 51, and Bernard Garrett, 43, by the U. S. Dist. Judge Jack Roberts.

"I had no intention of doing anything wrong," Morris told the court. Morris and Garrett, dressed in dark suits, chatted together in the courtroom before being called before Roberts. Two of their three lawyers stood beside them as Roberts pronounced the sentences.

Lawyer Bill Kemp said the verdict on two counts of misapplying the Texas bank's funds would be appealed.

An all-white jury convicted the men April 25, eight days after the trial began.

The first count charged Morris and Garrett with defrauding the bank by misapplying $189,186 in funds Oct. 8, 1963.

Eleven Peace Pickets Held

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Eleven young people advocating "Sabotage the War, Resist the Draft," were arrested Thursday during a continuing demonstration outside the Milwaukee Armed Forces Induction Center.

A number of those taken into custody had joined a line of 82 inductees and made their way into the downtown building.

The pickets included both men and women. They identified themselves as members of the Wisconsin Draft Resistance Union, headquartered in Madison, and said that three members of the group were among the inductees.

Leaflets handed out by the group said in part, "We are attempting to educate the inductees, those taking their physicals and others in the induction center as to their legal rights and resistance to the draft."

Fourteen police officers were on hand when the group, numbering about 70, arrived at the induction center and 21 more officers were sent when the demonstration got under way.

OFF BEATEN TRAIL

Justice Was Rough, Ready

ED SYERS
The old Constitution Oak on Columbus square tells much of the informality with which early Texans went about the deadly serious business of administering justice. It was there April, 1837, when Judge Robert M. Williamson first convened court for the Texas Republic's Third Judicial District and spoke on the new Texas Constitution.

The same Three-Legged Willie (for early polio that stumped a leg), it was who, under similar make-do conditions, faced down a near riot in far-east Shelbyville. A hostile "lawyer" had driven a knife into the judge's makeshift bench, declaring, "This, sir, is the Law of Shelby County!" Instantly he looked into a judicial pistol muzzle.

"This," retorted the judge, "is the Constitution that overrides that law!"

From Hill Country's Junction, Historian Mrs. Frederica Wyatt tells of an also rough-hewn court, recently marked in nearby ghost Kimbleville. It observes that county's first session, 1876, Burnet's District Judge W. A. Blackburn, presiding.

ANOTHER CRUDE COURT
"The jury was seated on two logs under a great liveoak. Another log was the judge's bench and a piece of gnarled liveoak limb, his gavel. Prisoners — largely up for rustling — were jailed as feasible: chained to nearby trees."

A swarm of bees interrupted the judge. Unknowingly, he had convened under their tree. Unruffled, the judge rapped his gavel: "I'll adjourn court to this afternoon if somebody will volunteer to rob that bee tree. I like honey."

And honey they had on home bread in a nearby cabin before the afternoon session handled the rustlers.

Seems we didn't have all the story on Victoria's Dutch Windmill (a Texas rarity). Goliad's Mrs. Frances Johnston stakes a solid part-claim for her old city:

"The two grinding stones were brought from Germany via Indianola to Goliad before 1860. Later the mill was moved to Coletto Creek. In 1870, Mr. Fred Meiss Sr. bought the mill, installed the original stones in the present mill, built at Spring Creek.

"From there, in 1935, the Meiss grandchildren deeded it moved to its Victoria site."

WINDMILL SONGS
Mrs. Evelyn K. Luddeke, Hobbs, N. M., farm-raised, agrees windmills by nature hum a tranquil message. Setting no poetic precedent, some random lines from her:

"Let it be . . . the world's still right," the windmill said to me.

With wind to help . . . she turns her work-worn wheel and sings a lullaby:

"Go to sleep, rest your soul; put troubles in your shoe . . . and yoke beside them lay."

"When morn arrives upon the hill . . . I'll call you out for day."

Oh, windmill with your magic spell . . . your wheel turns on and on:

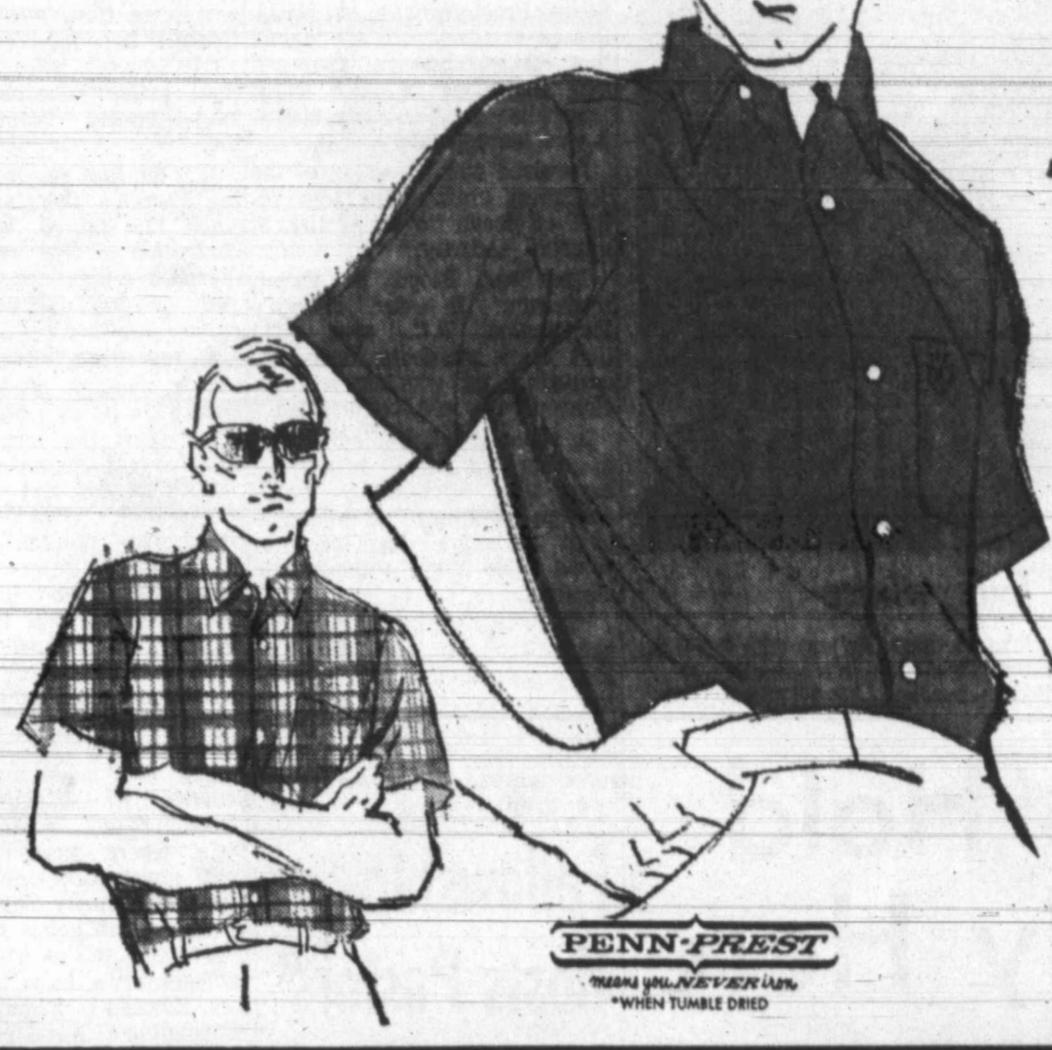

Its knowledge from the winds you tell . . . God, Himself, will see things well:

"All's really right . . . so let it be."

Gideon Testaments Go Everywhere

Chaplain (Capt.) Carter Tucker of Monticello, Ark., carried the New Testament in this fashion to prevent it from getting sweaty as he accompanied U.S. infantrymen in War Zone C in Vietnam. He was with the U.S. 25th Infantry Division in an operation near the Cambodian border. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Gideons To Hold District Rally Here

The Big Spring encampment will be held here this weekend when members of Gideon International converge for a district rally. Sunday they will speak from the pulpits of some two score churches here and in this area to tell how the placement of New Testaments and Bibles by Gideons has been a means of leading numerous persons to salvation or to a more upright life. Registration begins at 4 p.m. Saturday at Holiday Inn, and at 6:30 p.m. Harry A. Kinney, Houston, will speak to the banquet which will honor pastors and their wives. All pastors in this area are invited to be the guests of the Gideons. Around 125 are due to be at the banquet. Theme of the conference is "Open Thine Eyes," based on Psalm 119:18, and Angus MacPherson, Dallas, editor of the Gideon state paper, will develop this in the morning devotion at 7 o'clock Sunday. Gideons are expected here from Lamesa, Lubbock, Abilene, Odessa - Midland and San Angelo as well as Big Spring, and when they arrive they will find their assignments to a New Testament and Bible by church in this vicinity waiting for them. Presiding over sessions here will be Bob Spears, president of the Big Spring camp. Where the Gideons speak, they will receive an offering from those who wish to have a part in distribution of the Testaments and Bibles. Usually the offering is received on an open Bible. The Gideons are an organization of Christian businessmen dedicated to the spread of the Gospel of Christ. Their ministry has majored on making Testaments available to high school students and servicemen, and in placing Bibles in hotels, motels, hospitals, and other institutions. Dr. Fish To Lead Revival Dr. Roy J. Fish, professor of evangelism at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, will be the guest evangelist for a series of revival services at the Immanuel Baptist Church, Odessa, May 14-21. Services will be held nightly at 7:30; morning services will be at 9:30. Dr. Fish is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and received both his Bachelor of Divinity and Doctor of Theology degrees from Southwestern Seminary. He has served as pastor of churches in Arkansas, Texas, and Ohio. He also served as president of the Ohio Baptist Convention and has addressed the Texas Baptist Evangelism Conference on a number of occasions. Dr. Fish has traveled through Asia, Africa, and Europe. He has held his present position at Southwestern Seminary since 1965. The public is invited to hear Dr. Fish in this series of services. The Immanuel Baptist Church is located at 4029 E. 27th Street, in Odessa. Dr. Fish is former pastor of the Salem Baptist Church near Coahoma.

Members Fear Losing Status

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, Associated Press Religion Writer
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Some Presbyterians in classified government jobs are fearful that their church's proposed new confession of faith might jeopardize their security status, it was learned today.

Involved was a section of the document urging efforts in behalf of peace "even at risk to national security." The Rev. Floyd W. Ewalt, moderator in the church's Washington, D.C., area, said that some members "are concerned about whether security clearances would be affected."

In some instances, individuals in classified work reportedly have been advised by lower echelon military or defense plant attorneys that the proposed credo might becloud their standing.

"They've been told they might get in trouble," the Rev. Mr. Ewalt said, adding that he himself knew first-hand of only one specific case of this kind. Other sources said there have been some similar instances around the country. The concern became known as United Presbyterian representatives from across the nation met here for their 179th annual general assembly, with final action scheduled on the long-discussed "confession of 1967."

It is the first major revision of the church's doctrinal position since the famed Westminster confession of 1646, and stresses Christian obligations to work to curb poverty, sexual license, racism and war.

A key point of controversy was a passage reading: "The church, in its own life, is called to practice the forgiveness of enemies and to commend to the nations as practical politics the search for cooperation and peace. This requires the pursuit of fresh and responsible relations across every line of conflict, even at risk to national security, to reduce areas of strife and to broaden international understanding."

The phrase about "risk to national security" has been challenged as "unnecessarily provocative" by the church's local governing unit in Washington, D.C., where many members hold government or military jobs with security clearance.

"We're not going to let the government tell us what kind of confession we have," said the Rev. Edward L. Elson, pastor of Washington's National Presbyterian Church, but he added: "At the same time the church must consider the welfare of these people."

Some local church officers, in the Maryland area adjoining Washington and in Kansas, reportedly have resigned their church positions in protest against the passage.

The Washington, D.C., presbytery, while supporting the confession as a whole and the main thrust of the section on peace efforts, has asked the assembly to initiate steps to delete the dispute phrase.

In its over-all context, Dr. Nelson says, the phrase is simply "trying to say that loyalty to God whom we meet in Christ transcends all other loyalties," the traditional position of Christianity since its beginnings.

However, he added, the phrase "creates the problem of having to explain the whole substance of the text" in order to clarify its meaning.

ALICIA ACOSTA

Alice Acosta Wins Baptist Scholarship

Alicia Acosta of Ackery, a college grant through the Latin American Scholarship Program of the 1.8 million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrado O. Acosta.

Miss Acosta, who plans to enroll as a freshman at Mary Hardin - Baylor College during the fall semester this year, was among six students selected for the $400 per year grants by a nine-member interviewing committee at the Baptist Building in Dallas.

Decisions of the committee were announced by the chairman, Harold C. Bennett, director of the BGCT Missions Division, whose office administers the scholarship program.

Funds are derived from the Mary Hill Davis Offering for State Missions, sponsored by the Woman's Union, a BGCT auxiliary.

The scholarship also provides for loan privileges of up to $300 per year and annual continuation of the grant possible pending the student's maintaining academic standing.

Miss Acosta, 18, will graduate from Sands High School at Ackery on May 18. She has served as editor of her school paper. For the past four years she has been pianist for the La Fe Baptist Church in northern Big Spring and for two years was president of the young people's group. She plans to major in home economics.

Fellowship Hosts Pastors

All ministers and priests of this area are invited to a minister's seminar luncheon June 10 at the Scharbauer Hotel in Midland, being sponsored by the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship, International. The invitation was issued by J. D. Crawford, Midland, convention chairman, who stated the luncheon costs were being underwritten by area businessmen.

The occasion points up a growing emphasis in theology on the operations of the Holy Spirit or paraclete, whom Jesus called the Counselor and the Spirit of Truth.

Recent trends, in the various branches, have brought closer accord on interpretations, although formal differences continue. And there is an increasing attention to the mystery of the Holy Spirit and his action.

The Rev. Dr. W. Sherman Skinner, of St. Louis, former moderator of the United Presbyterian Church, says the doctrine of the Holy Spirit has assumed a "new place in the thinking of the church."

"The seminar in Midland will feature testimonies concerning the workings of the Holy Spirit in the present-day church," said Mr. Crawford.

Crawford reported that J. Samuel Phillips, Lubbock, will be moderator of the question-and-answer panel discussion program following the luncheon. Phillips, a graduate of Ouchita Baptist University, received the bachelor of divinity and master of theology degrees from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville, Ky. He has pastored numerous churches.

LESSON OF FIRST MARTYR, STEPHEN, SET FOR SUNDAY

In previous lessons, Peter and John, emboldened by the Holy Spirit, persisted in preaching in the name of Jesus. Last week's study showed how they barely escaped possible martyrdom because of the timely advice of wise Gamaliel.

In Sunday's uniform lesson, "Stephen — a Man of Faith," becomes the first Christian martyr, and it was because he also was "full of faith and power."

The text (Acts 6:8-12; 7:51-60) details how he faced those who were disturbed by his preaching, and how, when they were smitten by his words, he manifested the spirit of Christ in his death. In fact, there are striking parallels in the death of Stephen and his Master.

The key to Stephen's courage as a witness was that he was full of faith — and certainly of the Holy Spirit. That gave him his power — the power to love those who stoned him to death.

Stephen had been chosen as one of the seven original deacons when the early church leaders met the complaints of the Hellenists head-on by naming men (who all had Hellenist names) who were of good reputation, full of the Holy Spirit and wisdom.

Among those who were "disputing" with Stephen in the synagogue were them of "Cilicia and Asia." Saul was from Cilicia. Is it possible that he was among those who "were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he (Stephen) spake?" It is chronicled that Saul did hold the cloak of these who accused Stephen of blasphemy (they killed Christ on the same accusation) and stoned him to death. But in his urgent message, Stephen makes it known the fatal consequences of resisting the Holy Spirit. Also, like Christ, in death, he prayed for forgiveness of his slayers.

WE ALL HAVE OUR LIMITATIONS

There's a great lesson in blowing bubbles. We're so sure we can blow the biggest bubble ever blown. And, for a second, we're sure we have.

Then the bubble is gone . . . with it our unreasoning self-confidence. So we content ourselves with blowing smaller bubbles — the biggest smaller bubbles we can . . . the kind of bubbles that last awhile!

The best time for your child to begin religious training is before he becomes conscious of his limitations. When he starts gradually to recognize the boundaries of his ability, he'll need real guidance and encouragement in devoting himself to goals which last awhile.

The rich, full, happy, useful life is not wasted on shallow dreams that are but for the moment. It is dedicated to doing one's best.

And, for centuries, it has been our Faith, taught and nurtured in our churches, which has inspired in men their best.

A Devotional For The Day

Be kindly affectioned one to another . . . fervent in spirit; serving the Lord; rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer. (Romans 12:10-12)

PRAYER: Our Father, help us to see that our greatest joy comes in doing our highest duty—our duty to Thee—whether we be adults or children. Fill our hearts with Thy spirit so that we can live in obedience to Thee. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Not Enough

Houston Rep. Glenn Vickery's surprise-visit to conditions at the Austin State School for the Mentally Retarded is sadly reminiscent of the stories it took eventually to get revolutionary improvement of the Texas prison system and still-unsatisfactory upgrading of some other state eleemosynary institutions such as the mental hospitals.

Dr. Philip Roos, superintendent, could not dispute Vickery's shocking findings: Old, ill-equipped buildings understaffed with underpaid employees and miserably poor care for 2,500 unfortunate children. Dr. Roos could only claim his staff does its best with what it has and point to unfilled requests to the Legislature for more support.

When the newly authorized state schools for mentally retarded children are completed at Richmond, Lubbock and Corpus Christi, that may take some pressure off the schools at Austin, Abilene, Denton, Lufkin, and Mexia. But not much. Progress on the new schools is inexcusably slow, and they probably will be quickly filled by handicapped children in these now unserved regions.

Texas is lamentably deficient—far below nationwide averages—in most of its state welfare programs and eleemosynary institutions, even more so than in education which is now rightly getting so much concerned attention. And so long as this is true it can hardly be argued in good conscience that state taxation is too high or that the need for state governmental economy—except in the sense that better efficiency can get more works and services from tax dollars—is urgent. We are simply not doing enough for our people who need help.

Attacks On Authority Intolerable

There is nothing sacrosanct about Houston, but the riots on the campus of Texas Southern University do offer further evidence that no place is immune to the cancer of rebellion.

It is well to remember that the right of protest and dissent was never intended as license for anarchy or rebellion. As with all fundamental rights, it carries with it a tremendous responsibility of exercise within the framework of law.

Passions, spontaneously ignited, are one thing; deliberately fomented disturbances and riots are entirely different and are without defense.

We must have law, for without it not even those who wish to protect will have any security of this right. In a democratic society, there simply is no acceptable alternative to obedience to law unless and until law is changed through due process.

Flagrant and violent attacks on authority simply cannot be tolerated. Those who incite them should be made to answer in courts, which certainly of all institutions should realize the utter necessity for law. In the meantime, the more subtle but equally corrosive appeals to put any cause personally above the law must be faced soberly with reason. Those who lose reason are in a fair way to eventually lose their liberty.

Flagrant and violent attacks on authority simply cannot be tolerated. Those who incite them should be made to answer in courts, which certainly of all institutions should realize the utter necessity for law. In the meantime, the more subtle but equally corrosive appeals to put any cause personally above the law must be faced soberly with reason. Those who lose reason are in a fair way to eventually lose their liberty.

Morton Finds Republican Issue

WASHINGTON—It's become part of our folklore that the Republicans have a death wish, and couldn't possibly bring themselves to nominate a candidate next year who might go out and win the Presidency.

This must be the only good reason why Thurston Morton of Kentucky isn't mentioned ahead of the certain losers whose names are atop the GOP list of choices.

IT'S TRUE that Morton doesn't weigh in with all the conventional traits that are thought necessary to national candidates. But all these political insufficiencies in Morton wouldn't matter if the GOP had a collective will to beat Lyndon Johnson instead of beating their own brains out.

As a good example of Morton's brilliant but inconstant genius, there was his quick recognition the other day that the Johnson Administration had made the blunder of its life in Vietnam.

THE SENATE was droning through the debate on Selective Service, and three Republicans of Presidential mention were hurting their futures with foolish behavior, when Morton got the floor. He handed his party the issue that could crown its efforts with victory in 1968.

Morton pointed out that by putting General Westmoreland in charge of "pacifying" the hamlets of Vietnam, the President had done something the country wouldn't stand for. It's one thing to ask Americans to give their sons and money for military victory, but it's quite a different thing for us to take over a foreign country, and run it. That's what the French had tried, and that's why they had failed, as colonialism is bound to fail these days.

MORTON SAID this. He saw that by militarizing the pacification programs, the Administration had changed the whole nature of the war. No longer were we pledged to fight for liberation and withdrawal. We were undertaking "a long term and massive American occupation to secure a postwar Vietnamese government."

Morton asked that Congress find out the extent and expense of this "new management concept," and then he added a brilliant stroke. He inserted into the record a Stewart Alsop article that went straight to the point. Also, writing last March in the Saturday Evening Post, had anticipated that the President might assign American troops to pacification in a big way, thereby effectively taking over Vietnam from the Vietnamese.

ALSOP, AFTER reporting that the war wasn't nearly so horrible and hopeless as it seemed from the home front, ended his long article on this:

"... I left Vietnam with one strong conviction. If the President . . . gives the U.S. forces the pacification mission, pacification will become occupation, and South Vietnam will become a restless, hostile American colony. Then the agony will be deep indeed, and it will have no visible end at all."

MORTON'S SPEECH, as I say, came in the middle of the Selective Service debate when others of his party—Sens. Hatfield, Percy and Brooke—were digging themselves into some ridiculous positions about the hard business of maintaining our fighting forces. But it was Morton who saw that the GOP, though it should support the war, had no obligation to endorse occupation. And the 1968 election could turn on that.

Peoria Booms

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Peoria's economy is healthy and its cultural resources encourage citizen participation, an economic investigator has revealed.

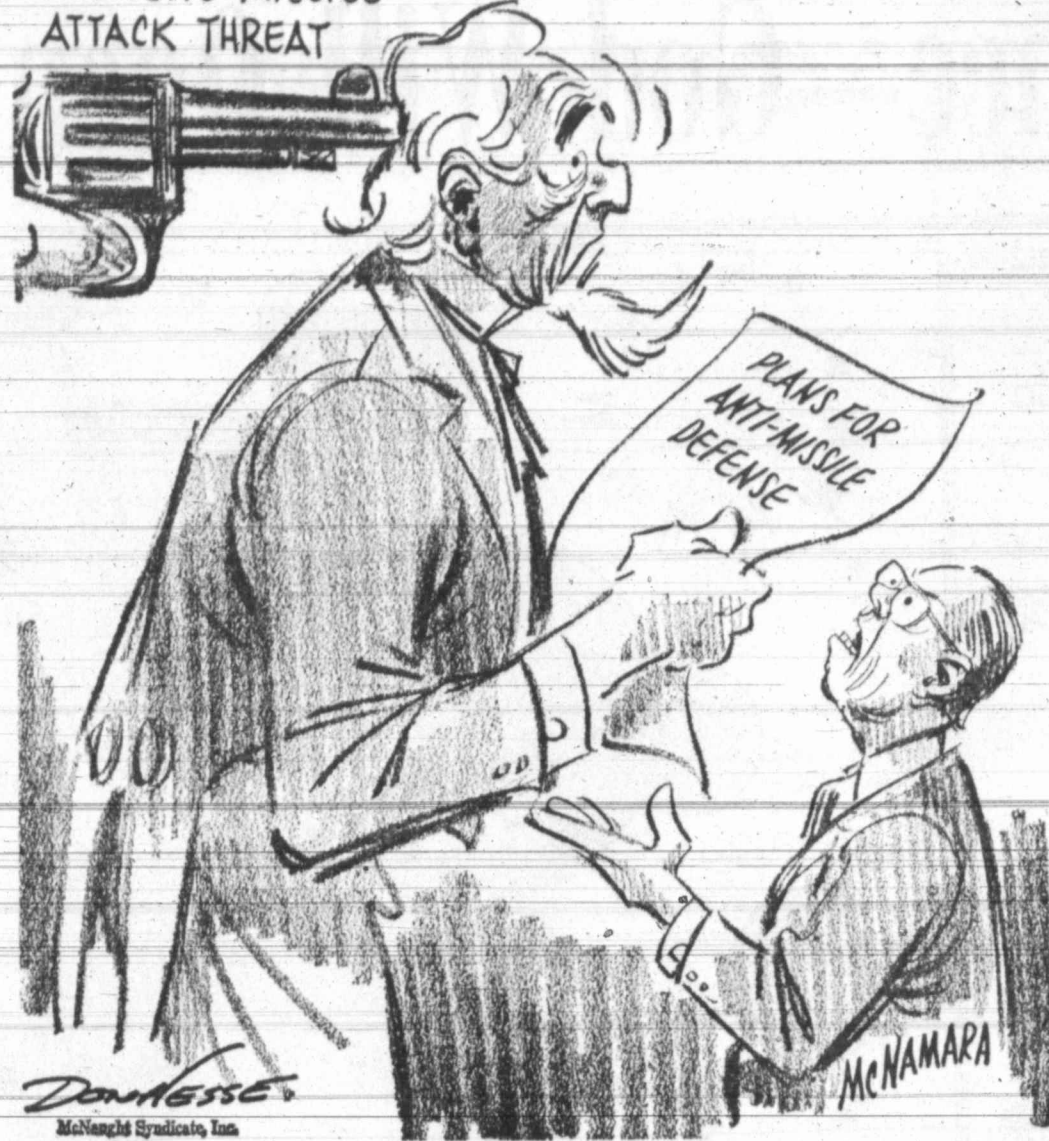

Donald M. Nelson, a mortgage loan supervisor with the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, said Peoria's retail sales have risen from $467 million in 1963 to $611 million in 1965.

"This is a much more rapid rise than any other community that we have surveyed," he said.

Nelson's study of Peoria impressed him "by the grass-roots participation of local citizens in city improvement," he said.

"They manage to get volunteers for everything. This is significant not only in social and economic progress but in increasing its cultural resources."

Johnson Is Changed Man

WASHINGTON (AP) — A recent public opinion poll on the preference for president showed President Johnson even with Michigan's Republican Gov. George Romney although only a month ago in the same poll Johnson was trailing by 10 percentage points.

This indication of increased public confidence in him no doubt has roots in numerous reasons, but probably one of the most important is that Johnson is a changed man in personal appeal.

MORE SELF-CONFIDENCE is a good explanation for that, along with the realization that he had long been overdoing the personal appeal bit with his rhetoric and gyrations.

He gave another example of the change at his news conference Thursday, play it in a low key, which is what he has been doing in almost every public appearance since the first of the year.

At his meeting with newsmen Thursday, he had nothing of outstanding importance to say, and he didn't try to make any of it sound that way. In fact, part of the time he was abrupt.

THERE IS A CERTAIN irony in Johnson's development in the presidency.

For most of his time there his heaviest burden has been the war in Vietnam, both with the responsibilities and the criticisms he has had to endure.

But he had the habit of sand-wiching it in between other problems. And, although there were many times he could have carried his case to the people with full-dress explanations at length and on television, he did little of that.

IT WAS in other fields that he performed before the cameras and in such a way that he seemed hungry for approval, only to lose it with many people by his gestures, his grimacing, and his high-sounding prose.

It took inner strength to remain as quiet as he was about the war and bear the abuse while seldom slashing back. The Asian Communists may have realized this, as they watched Johnson intensify the war, before Americans did.

Meanwhile, because of the way he handled himself—perhaps mishandled is the better word—in other fields of government and the presidency, his public appeal went down, down, down in the polls.

SOMEWHERE along the line Johnson apparently realized he would have to change both his style and his tactics. This realization may turn out to be one of the most fascinating chapters of Johnson's presidency when the full story of his White House years is written.

But change he did. It seems to have begun early last fall when he withdrew more into himself and further away from the political campaigns of 1968. He played a very small role in them.

Then for the rest of the year, after the elections, he lapsed into almost total silence. In that time it would be no surprise to learn he got coaching on how to look on television, and how to act.

Price Of Brides Soar

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

ENUGU, Nigeria (AP)—In Nigeria's defiant eastern region bachelors are urging the military regime to halt the rising price of brides.

"An edict should be promulgated," suggested bachelor I. N. Okeke, "to enable the youths to marry before picking up arms—a duty they owe themselves."

OKEKE, in a letter to the Nigerian Outlook, added: "The decree should make provision for bride price-free marriages. The advantage will be that our youth will be provided the opportunity of procreating before going into battlefields."

Since the eastern region has threatened to secede from Nigeria, talk of fighting in the area has been common.

THE FORESTRY Technical Workers Union has suggested the military fire all bachelor and spinsters civil servants and hold the bride price at $56. The bridegroom gives the money to his future in-laws before the wedding.

Inflation has overtaken a 1956 law that pegged the price at $84.

"A FRIEND of mine paid $1,200," said an American-educated bachelor in the civil service. "and the girl didn't even pass her school certificate exam."

That meant she had not successfully completed high school. Education is one factor behind the rising bride price. More girls are attending high school and university. In a region still about 80 per cent illiterate, educated men prize such girls as wives.

THE 1956 law was passed when Nnamdi Azikiwe, later to become Nigeria's first president, was the eastern region's most powerful politician.

When an outraged prospective bridegroom cites the legal limit while bargaining with his sweetheart's parents, they may say, "That's Azikiwe's bride price. Pay it to him and marry his daughter."

Bride price is an old custom among the Ibos, who predominate in the eastern area of Nigeria. It compensates a girl's family for the time spent in preparing her for marriage and for the loss of her services for the loss of her services. At divorce, the price is returned.

Around The Rim

The Passing Scene

Has anyone ever risen up in just plain indignation? Or has it always been righteous?

This is a confusing age, politics-wise, as we politics wisemen say. POOR-OLD President Johnson is down to a point where 49 per cent of the people polled (and "polled" is a key word) regard his work as satisfactory, and his popularity is said to be at its ebb.

(And if anyone insists on calling it a "low ebb," he's trying to gild the lily.)

If Lyndon Johnson has 49 per cent of those polled willing to say he's doing all right, he has performed a miracle.

THE CONFUSING thing to me is that the stories I have read never tell the rest of the story: Of the other 51 per cent, how many disapprove and how many have "no opinion?"

It's the "no opinion" people who count, for if he stands on the 50 per cent threshold it takes only a few "no opinion" switches to keep him in office.

The main problem, of course, is that he's the only President we have, so with whom do you contrast the job he is doing?

COURTHOUSE CASANOVA Sam Blackburn hopes some day to read Ernest Hemingway's "The Moveable Feast," but he says plaintively, "I'm on a diet."

A great many grand juries adjourn after reporting "We found nothing wrong but recommend that they cut it out."

But it took one in Hot Springs, Ark. to find no organized gambling and recommend making it legal.

THE OLD phrase "Don't go near the water" is on the verge of being changed to "Don't go near the swim suit."

A sign at a Durant, Okla., pest control firm says: "Don't kill a beetle. It may have talent. Call us."

CALLING FOR his wife at a local beauty shop, a young man was overwhelmed by the ultra-feminine atmosphere.

He stood in the middle of the shop wildly scrutinizing each of the towel-swathed, dripping patrons. Finally, in desperation he said:

"I have a wife in here, and she knows who she is!"

THERE IS such a controversy over long-haired boys and beards, it's a wonder no one has complained about the group in the movie on television the other night.

They had long hair, beards and crazy outfits. They called themselves "the Apostles," and they starred in "King of Kings."

For those who like endings, happy or otherwise, I no longer exist in a lonely room. Thanks to several readers I found and rented an inexpensive apartment. Now if I can only learn to cook.

People Don't Want Retreat

WASHINGTON—The Vietnam war issue is deeply imbedded in American politics today. But this doesn't mean that at present there is any clear definition as to how a majority of the voters will record themselves when members of Congress are up for reelection in November, 1968.

MANY SENATORS and representatives have been trying to guess what is "popular" with the voters. For a while speeches of criticism in Congress seemed to be predominant as compared with those which supported a continuation of the war. There are signs, however, that citizens who have not hitherto taken sides on the issues that surround the war itself are beginning to be resentful of some of the criticism and are looking upon it as at variance with a spirit of patriotism.

PERHAPS THIS has happened because vehement dissent, along with "demonstrations," has gotten so much publicity. But the fact is the electorate is not too well informed about the complex issues that brought on the Vietnam war, nor about the real meaning in the long run of American involvement in the Asian conflict.

When people do become aware of the true story of the aggression and the amount of assistance that has been given North Vietnam by the Communists of Red China and the Soviet Union, they realize that a serious challenge presented by communism in any part of the world cannot be brushed aside without dangerous consequences.

LOTS OF VOTERS, of course, who have sons of military age are unquestionably worried about the prospect of seeing a member of their family drafted for war. Many other families, on the other hand, have sons in the Armed Services who are participating directly in the Vietnam war, and they are resentful whenever speeches are made that seem to favor surrender or a disregard of the sacrifices which have already been made.

The sentiment of a large number of voters doubtless is expressed in the oft-heard, though oversimplified, comment that the United States should "go ahead with the bombing and get it over with—or else pull out altogether."

WARS ARE NEVER popular but, when it comes to the method of conducting them, there is an almost universal belief that the military officers and strategists should not be impeded by any supercautious civilians. Some critics of the administration, in fact, want the war fought more intensively, just as others feel that the bombings should be suspended. It goes against the grain of many Americans to accept the doctrine that the United States should forget all about the sacrifices its young men have made, stop the bombing and beg the enemy for peace.

IT MAY BE DOUBTED whether a majority of the American people today would favor an ignominious retreat from Vietnam. There is much more chance that the policy pursued by the Johnson administration in pressing the war vigorously will get the support of a majority of the voters.

THE VIETNAM WAR issue may look today like a big burden for the Johnson administration to carry, but by November, 1968, it could turn out to be a political asset. The responsibility for building this up would belong primarily to those critics who have misunderstood or misinterpreted the basic feeling of the electorate as a whole. Once the American people are engaged in a war to repel aggression, they support a policy of effective military action, as they feel it is the only way to prevent the start of more conflicts by aggressor governments.

Voice Of Reason On Vietnam

WASHINGTON—Of the hundred members of that most exclusive club, the Senate of the United States, none is more thoughtful, more seriously concerned, more, in a much-abused word, sincere than John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky.

His speech in the Senate on Vietnam this week is not only the voice of conscience but the voice of reason. It is also a voice of warning raised as the door to any negotiation—any way out—seems to be irrevocably closing. Beyond is the imminent threat, which Cooper faced up to, of Chinese intervention in the war.

WHETHER COOPER'S proposal for restraining the bombing to infiltration routes near the demilitarized zone, where men and supplies enter South Vietnam, has any chance in the present context of hardened attitudes on both sides is questionable. But at the very least it puts in perspective the military dilemma of America's forces. As Cooper noted, the expanded bombing carried to Haiphong and Hanoi has not prevented the movement of men and material to the South. On the contrary, a substantial buildup of North Vietnamese forces in and near the demilitarized zone accounts for the heavy fighting and increasing casualties in recent days.

RADICALLY CHANGING the nature of the war by an invasion of North Vietnam or by bombing and mining Haiphong harbor would bring Chinese intervention almost certainly. That was the principal thrust of Cooper's speech.

ALL THIS goes back to what was in February perhaps the greatest chance for peace among the missed chances over the past two and a half years. The reason given for resuming the bombing at the end of the pause for the Oriental new year was that the Communists had used it for a massive movement of men and supplies to the south. But Allied forces in the south were taking the same advantage of the pause. If the bombing, when it was resumed had been concentrated, in accord with the Cooper proposal, it might have limited the Communist troop concentrations that are causing so much trouble.

RESTRAINT APPLIED at that time might just possibly have drawn a restrained response from Hanoi.

The absurd nomenclature of hawks and doves, as though little more was at stake than choosing up-sides in a children's game, has obscured the concern of Republican senators such as Cooper, Percy, Hatfield, Morton, Aiken and others. To put this down to mere partisanship—political gamesmanship, as the White House increasingly does—is to overlook the fact that the concern exists not alone in Congress but in the country.

SIMILARLY to score off Fulbright, Church, Morse and the other Democratic critics as though they were seeking political advantage is a great disservice. They must be accorded the right of conscience in taking a position calling down abuse and censure.

Part of the score is the effect that any dissent may have in encouraging Hanoi to go on to the bitter end. These men are aware of that hazard, which is one reason they have enlisted dissenters for a statement declaring that no change of administration in 1968 can bring about a unilateral withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam. Whatever the degree of their dissent they want Hanoi to know there can be no "victory" for the north in an American retreat.

THE OTHER SIDE of the coin is that there can be no "victory" for the south in Hanoi's capitulation. To pursue that end, as Sen. Cooper has suggested, is to invite catastrophe.

Myers Avoids Date With Death Again

John Edwin Myers, the convicted mass slayer with the most good luck, has once again evaded his scheduled midnight date with the Illinois executioner.

Myers, who admitted that he and his teenage girl friend, Donna Marie Stone, killed four persons in three days in 1961, winding up their foray with the slaying of a hitchhiker just west of here, has been granted a new indefinite postponement of his scheduled execution. He was to have been put to death tonight in Illinois.

Returned to Illinois, he went on trial for the slaying of 10-year-old Carole Ballard and was again found guilty and doomed. He has since been successfully evading his date with the executioner by various court maneuvers.

Donna Marie, now 19, is in custody of the Illinois Youth Authority. She pleaded guilty to her part in the slaying of Carole and Carole's father and was committed on an indeterminate sentence.

In Fort Worth, they picked up Arthur DeKraai, a hitchhiking plumbler of Ottumwa, Iowa, just west of Big Spring, they said they shot DeKraai to death because he did not have a dime. They dumped his body in a mesquite thicket where a sharp-eyed highway patrolman recognized the car as stolen. Both Myers and the girl readily admitted the slayings.

They tried in Rusk on a charge of venue from Howard County. Myers was found guilty of murder in the DeKraai slaying. The jury assessed his punishment at death. The appeals court reversed the verdict holding the jurors had been guilty of misconduct.

Rubber Strike Pickets Block Key Employees

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—United Rubber Works union members picketing the Firestone plant refused today to let salaried employees and maintenance personnel into the plant here, police said.

Detectors were stationed in the area to maintain order. A plant guard said even-plant production personnel had difficulty getting to work. He said he believed guards were the only plant personnel at work.

The strike against three of the rubber industry's big five entered its 29th day today. The other two companies, Goodyear and General Tire & Rubber, worked on a day-to-day basis. Talks with General broke off Tuesday.

The union seeks wage increases with upward adjustments in skilled trade rates; elimination of unwarranted wage differentials, whether based on geographic location or type of product, and an employment plan providing 92 1/2 per cent of weekly pay to laid-off workers.

Ike Leaves Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower checked out of Walter Reed Army Hospital today and said he felt fine.

He said he felt as though he could make a worldwide trip, including a visit to Vietnam, if his doctors okayed it later, President Johnson once suggested that Eisenhower undertake a Far East tour.

The 76-year-old general, smiling frequently, said that he had discussed the Vietnam situation with Gen. William C. Westmoreland and that Westmoreland had told him that "militarily things are looking better but he thinks he needs a bit more strength"—specifically more tactical reserves.

GOT TO WIN
Eisenhower declared that "we never have had a nastier war" than the one in Vietnam. And he said that while there are differences of opinion as to American policy with regard to prosecuting the war, "I think we've got to win."

He said he questioned whether anyone in private life knows enough to be a military tactician or a political expert on the war, and anyone giving a formula on how to end the war would have to be very bold.

FINE RATING
Asked about antiwar demonstrators in this country, the retired general said, "I think they are a minority, and most of them are misguided people."

The general, hatless and wearing a dark suit and dark tie, said that he not only felt fine after his most recent illness but that he had been given a "fine" rating on the results of his complete annual physical examination which was conducted while he was convalescing.

X-RAY EXAM
He added, however, that "because of the intestinal upset one part of the examination is not finished as yet."

He said that doctors would give him an X-ray examination employing a barium substance some time this summer.

This presumably will be to determine whether there are any adverse effects from his most recent illness of the gastrointestinal tract, or whether there are any signs of a recurrence of his ileitis attack of 11 years ago.

HAPPY SMILE
When the general emerged from the hospital and as he strolled toward a waiting limousine, close to 200 hospital patients—including wounded men from the Vietnam theater—and hospital employees applauded and waved.

Some of the patients, clad in pajamas and robes, watched the proceedings from windows. There are 615 casualties from the Vietnam theater at Walter Reed.

Heading to Gettysburg, Pa., Eisenhower said with a happy smile, "I am going back to see my farm."

Anti-British Rally Draws 100,000

HONG KONG (AP) — Some 7,000 screaming Chinese demonstrated outside the locked gates of Hong Kong's Government House for the second day today, but again no fighting was reported.

The British colony's governor Sir David Trench, still refused to meet them and listen to their demands for release of Chinese arrested in four days of Communist-led rioting and for punishment of the Hong Kong police.

In Peking, where Security Minister Hsieh Fu-chih addressed an anti-British rally of an estimated 100,000 persons

Thursday, the British Embassy said the situation is "very, very much quieter." An official said the embassy's normal routine had not been disrupted.

PAID AGITATORS
The Hong Kong demonstrators worked in shifts, each group marching up the hill from Hong Kong's main business section with protest notes accusing Trench as the "main culprit in racial suppression of the Chinese."

They posted anti-British posters on outer walls that hours earlier had been scraped clean of posters put up Thursday.

The English-language South China Morning Post said in an editorial: "There is clear evidence that many of the agitators have been paid for their work."

DIRTY RAT
While the demonstrators shouted "American running dog Trench" and "dirty rat Trench," an aide said the governor and his family were "taking it all in stride." Trench's family and some of his staff live in Government House.

Police and military sentries stood guard inside and outside the gates.

Red China and the Communists in Hong Kong, which lies on mainland China's southeast border, have demanded that Britain punish the police in Hong Kong, halt "racial suppression of Chinese," release all persons arrested in the rioting, compensate victims and guarantee against police suppression in the future.

The demonstrators have not made specific threats if Britain refuses to meet the demands, but their posters say "the fascist British authorities of Hong Kong must bear full responsibility for what happens."

The British went ahead with prosecution of Chinese arrested during the rioting, which began May 11 after police broke up a demonstration in Hong Kong's Kowloon district by striking workers at three factories making artificial flowers.

War Stupid

Miss Jeannette Rankin, first woman to serve in the U.S. House of Representatives, says war is nothing more than a method of settling a dispute, and that the whole war system is very stupid. Miss Rankin, 86, is the only member of Congress to oppose this country's entry into both world wars. She addressed an Atlantans for Peace meeting Thursday night. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Miss Rankin Still Fights Against War

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Jeannette Rankin, the only member of Congress to oppose this country's entry into both world wars, says the nation's women should band together to halt the war in Vietnam.

"If we had 10,000 women willing to go to prison if necessary, that would end it. You cannot have wars without the women," she says.

Miss Rankin, the first woman ever to serve in the House of Representatives, said in an interview: "We've had 10,000 women sit back and let their sons be killed in Vietnam. To me, that is worse than the old Hebrew sacrifices."

OLD ENEMY

Now 86, she is still battling her old enemy — war.

"It isn't a question of war against Germany, Japan or Vietnam; it's just that the whole system is very stupid."

"War is nothing more than a method of settling a dispute, but it has nothing to do with the dispute. In fact, you never have the same issues at the end of war that were present at the beginning."

OUTSPOKEN LEADER

Miss Rankin, an outspoken leader in the struggle which eventually allowed women to vote under the 19th Amendment, suggests that women today — as they did on the suffrage issue — band together to "do everything possible" to end the war.

"We — women — should picket everything," she says. "This is no time to be polite. The Army isn't polite when it selects a young man and says, 'come on and fight.'"

"But they don't take the politicians and decision-makers to fight."

ROLL CALL

Miss Rankin is still active. She does not make many public speeches now although she did address an Atlantans for Peace meeting Thursday night.

Miss Rankin was congressman at large from Montana for 1917 to 1919. In 1940 she was elected to the House for one term.

Now living at Watkinsville, Ga., she recalls vividly the dramatic night in 1917 when the House debated the war resolution against Germany. She had taken office only three days before, and she had sat quietly throughout most of that long evening. Finally, shortly after 2 a.m., the time came for the fateful roll call.

NO VOTES

The scene was tense. Monotonously, the clerk called the name of each member.

When her name was reached, Miss Rankin remained silent.

Following the House custom, the roll was called a second time. With all eyes upon her, Miss Rankin rose unsteadily and, with voice quivering, said: "I want to stand by my country, but I cannot vote for war."

Public Works Talk Given

More than half of the city's total budget is expended by the Department of Public Works and the department's range of endeavors covers a wide field. Ernest E. Lillard, director, told the Kiwanis Club Thursday at noon.

He discussed the problem of handling garbage in particular. The handling of discarded material mounts yearly, he said, and its disposition becomes an increasingly difficult task as time passes. The new state law on air pollution put an end to the burning of such material and further increases the problem. However, he said, the city had abandoned fire as a method of handling the situation, even before the law was adopted.

He pledged efficient and ever improving services for the citizens at the lowest possible cost.

A. D. Blount, operator of the Pet-A-Zoo, appeared for a brief announcement of a plan he is developing for a city-wide visiting day at the zoo in which all of the community's children would have a part. He suggested that the civic clubs of the city lend a hand and that each be allowed to share in receipts.

He had an eight-month-old chimpanzee with him as a special feature.

Wife Of Playwright Is Expecting Baby

LONDON (AP) — Sarah Miles, actress wife of playwright Robert Bolt, announced today she is expecting her first baby at the end of the year.

Miss Miles, 24, married Bolt, 44, in February. The author of "A Man for All Seasons" and the screenplay of "Lawrence of Arabia," he has a son and two daughters by a previous marriage.

Atomic Trigger Material Made

PARIS (AP) — Officials announced Thursday that an atomic reactor has begun to produce tritium, which will be used in France's hydrogen bomb expected to be test-fired next year at France's testing grounds near Tahiti.

At the same time, it was reported in Paris that Radio Tahiti had begun to broadcast warnings to shipping companies that an area of 100 miles around the test center on the atoll of Mururoa will be considered dangerous beginning June 1. A series of tests of triggering devices for the H-bomb will be conducted in June.

DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE
HEADQUARTERS 3560th PILOT TRAINING WING APO
WEBB AIR FORCE BASE TEXAS 79722

TO ALL CITIZENS OF BIG SPRING AND THE SURROUNDING AREA

On the 18th annual observance of Armed Forces day, the land, sea, and air power of the United States military forces will be exhibited to the American public and our neighbors throughout the free world.

I cordially invite each of you to visit Webb Air Force Base on Saturday, May 20, and enjoy the activities and displays we have planned.

Since we are putting our accent on youth, the day will begin with the appointment of a wing commander and staff for the day and an Armed Forces Day Queen. These will be selected from the students of your high schools.

Next will come a fly-by of T-37 and T-38 jet trainers, model aircraft flying, and fire-fighting demonstrations. In addition, there will be static displays of our aircraft, training facilities, and equipment.

I look forward to greeting all of you. The gates will be open at 9 a.m. and the ceremonies will begin at 9:30 a.m. Won't you join us?

First Of Two Important Major Events This Year

Armed Forces Day, a highlight of each year for Webb AFB, will be one of two major events this season. In September, the air base is going to celebrate the 25th anniversary of its first activation. The first facility—known as Big Spring Bomber School — was deactivated in 1946, but half a dozen years later it was back in business, this time as Webb AFB, turning out jet airplane pilots. 6,000 GRADS Nearly 6,000 bombardiers had been turned out when the original base ceased operations. The field's AT-11 trainers had flown approximately 400,000 hours, and the fledgling pilots had dropped over 1,200,000 practice bombs. The original base, like Webb AFB, achieved distinction as a training ground for students from allied nations. In addition to American cadets, there were young men who came here from France, Brazil and China to learn the skills of pinpoint bombing. With deactivation of the base, most of the buildings were sold and many of them were dismantled and moved. However, the main hangar as well as several other structures along the line remained to become a part of the new base activities. Among others left were the Officers Open Mess, which subsequently became the NCO Club (it served as the home for the American Legion Post for several years in the interval between bases), and the hospital unit. COLLEGE HOME The hospital buildings became the home for Howard County Junior College which welcomed its first students late in September, 1946. With word that the air base was needed again, HJC moved to a new location in southeastern Big Spring. Curiously, the section once again was activated as the base hospital and served heroically despite limited facilities, space, etc. Recognizing that this had far outlived its expectancy of about five years, a team from the Department of Defense this year visited Webb and gave its blessing to a new and adequate medical center for the base. Congress, however, has yet to provide the funds for this installation. URGENCY One reason that the school turned out so many graduates in so short a space during World War II was the urgency which telescoped the bombardier training into the space of 24 weeks. Today, jet pilots have 53 weeks of training which is even more intense.

achieved distinction in its record of training, having produced upwards of 5,000 jet pilots. In so doing, its planes have flown something like five billion miles and consumed something like 4.5 billion gallons of fuel. The original T-28 and T-33 (the famed T-bird jet workhorse) have given way to the T-37 and the supersonic T-38 jet trainers as well as the light reciprocal engine T-41s. One of the revered T-Birds, Old No. 300, rests on the campus of Howard County Junior College. COMMUNICATIONS Webb AFB almost became a communications center for electronic surveillance of flying objects in this portion of the southern border. In 1955, Webb was ticketed for a $35 million SAGE unit, but before this could be brought about, the lightning progress in electronics made the system outmoded. Webb is named for Lt. James L. Webb Jr., whose mother, Mrs. Rilla Webb, retired from the Webb AFB family of civilian workers last year. Lt. Webb was reared here and fought 38 combat missions in World War II. Briefly after the war he was out of service, but went back in 1948. On June 16, 1949, while returning from a mission out of Hajuake AB in Japan, his P-51 Mustang went into an uncontrollable dive and he crashed to his death in Hatka Bay. NINE CO'S The base here has had nine commanders. The first was Col. Ernest F. Wackwitz, who came here as project officer and remained to operate the 3560th Pilot Training Wing. Others are Lt. Gen. Fred M. Dean, Brig. Gen. (Ret) Charles M. Young, Brig. Gen. Kyle L. Riddle, Col. Donald W. Eisenhart, Col. Wilson H. Banks, the late Brig. Gen. Howard J. Withercombe, Brig. Gen. August F. Taute, and Col. Chester J. Butcher, the commander since 1965.

Webb Turning Out More Pilots Than Ever Before

Webb AFB, after 17 years of continuous operation, is turning out more jet pilots today than ever before in its history. The tempo was picked up in 1966 in the face of mounting demands brought on by the Vietnam war and the stepped-up defense effort. That year Webb produced 324 pilots, and this year's total will be substantially above that figure. OTHER CRISIS Interestingly, Webb AFB was brought into being by another crisis in the Orient. The defense of South Korea suddenly reversed the trend of austerity for the armed services, and the depleted reservoir of pilots had to be systematically replenished. Word came Dec. 20, 1950, that the air base here (which had trained bombardiers during World War II) was to be reactivated. Rep. George Mahon and then Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson carried the appropriations bill successfully. FACTS AWARDED Contracts were awarded in the middle of the following year and in May, 1962, the base held open house on a bitterly cold, cloudy day. The first class of cadets had arrived in April of that year; later the cadet program was to be phased out in favor of all-officer classes. At the outset, trainees got a taste of training in propeller-driven craft, but by 1955 this was shifted to an all-jet situation in hopes that the rate of output could be quickened with the length of training time. Two years ago, however, the Air Force went back to a propeller plane orientation with its T-41A program. DUAL MISSION The base in 1955 took on a dual mission with word that the 331st Fighter Interceptor Squadron of the Air Defense Command was to become a tenant. Last year the squadron, dispersed largely to combat areas, was deactivated and in its stead, the training squadron for Jordanian Air Force crews was established. Over the years, Webb has achieved distinction in its record of training, having produced upwards of 5,000 jet pilots. In so doing, its planes have flown something like five billion miles and consumed something like 4.5 billion gallons of fuel. The original T-28 and T-33 (the famed T-bird jet workhorse) have given way to the T-37 and the supersonic T-38 jet trainers as well as the light reciprocal engine T-41s. One of the revered T-Birds, Old No. 300, rests on the campus of Howard County Junior College. COMMUNICATIONS Webb AFB almost became a communications center for electronic surveillance of flying objects in this portion of the southern border. Communications Service Provided

The 2050th Communications Squadron, a tenant organization representing the Air Force Communications Service (AFCS) at Webb AFB, is responsible for providing voice and data communications, air-drome and radar approach control and navigational aids including weather communications.

BASE COMMUNICATIONS — The base communications center provides tactical, administrative and logistical voice and data communications for the base. The center includes the following sections: Telephone, AUTO-DIN and Crypto, MARS operations and the budgeting section.

The telephone operations section is responsible for 24 hour operation of the base telephone switchboard which consists of 26 local telephone trunk lines to the Big Spring toll office, seven automatic voice network (AUTOVON) lines, one Air Training Command alert network (ATCAN) line, one line to the Midland-Odessa area, and the capability of 800 main stations. The telephone operators handle approximately 3,500 calls per day and notify key and/or appropriate personnel in the event of an emergency.

The AUTO-DIN - Crypto section provides high speed electrical transmission and processing of written communications originated at Webb and received from similar communications throughout the world. The Automatic Digital Network (AUTODIN) system which has replaced the teletype system, is capable of transmitting 1,200 characters (pre-printed on IBM cards of narrative tape) per second to any other AUTODIN terminal in the world. This section normally handles approximately 71,000 cards and 3,200 tape messages per month. A Western Union circuit is established at the AUTODIN section to provide Webb personnel the capability of sending and receiving telegrams directly from the base. Approximately 290 Western Union messages are handled monthly.

The Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS) Section provides back up and emergency communications for voice and data systems. This section is equipped with a fixed station which has radio-teletype, single side band radios and the Mobile Communications Van which also carries single side band radios. Ready to respond on a 24 hour basis, the van is available for military or civilian emergencies. It is available at all parade ceremonies for the base.

The budgeting section is responsible for checking and verifying all bills pertaining to telephone, Western Union and non-tactical radios. Through research and planning, the budget for the hospital and all base communications is planned and funded through appropriate channels.

FLIGHT FACILITIES — This section provides Air Traffic Control services through two facilities, RAPCON (Radar Approach Control) and the control tower. The RAPCON is responsible for maintaining air traffic separation of civilian and military aircraft operating under instrument flight rules (IFR) below an altitude of 7,000 feet and within a 30 mile radius of Webb separate radar systems are available to RAPCON controllers; surveillance radar, that provides the controller with a scope presentation of all aircraft flying up to 30,000 feet within a 60 mile radius, and precision radar, which is an extremely accurate system providing both azimuth and elevation. This system enables the controller to direct an aircraft to within 30 feet above the runway at a predetermined point of touchdown.

The second main flight facilities operation is the control tower. This facility is responsible for controlling all aircraft flying within visual contact of the ground as well as motor vehicles and aircraft operating on the surface within the airport boundaries.

MAINTENANCE SECTION — The maintenance section is responsible for the installation, modification and repair of all ground electronic equipment and associated systems in support of both squadron and base operational requirements.

The section is divided into the following sections: Navigational aids, radar, radio, teletype, crypto and leased contracts. Navigational Aids Maintenance provides 24 hour maintenance service for the ILS (Instrument Landing System), which provides the aircraft with electronics information to make a safe landing in bad weather. This section also maintains the TACAN (Tactical Air Navigation) site which provides the distance and bearing information to an aircraft to insure a safe landing at Webb in any weather.

Radar maintenance section technicians provide 24 hour maintenance on the surveillance and precision radar systems which are used for positive control of air traffic in the Webb area.

Radio maintenance provides 24 hour maintenance on all ground to air radio equipment located at the radar site, control tower and base weather station. This section is also responsible for maintenance on the direct finding (DF) equipment which helps a pilot orientate himself to the base, and the tape recorders which record all ground to air and air to ground transmissions.

Teletype maintenance provides 24 hour maintenance on the AUTODIN (Automatic Digital Network System).

Crypto maintenance provides high speed electrical transmission and processing of written communications.

Leased contracts maintenance handles all leased equipment contracts such as Electrowriters, a machine that electrically reproduces weather information sent from base weather to air traffic control facilities. General Electric, Motor-

Light Planes Give Student His First Task

The first step for a would be warrior of the sky as he tackles the pilot training program at Webb is 30 hours of flying training at Howard County Airport in the T-41 trainer aircraft. The T-41 is a militarized two-seat Cessna 172 used throughout Air Training Command as the initial phase of student flying training.

Training in this craft is monitored by the Air Force but is conducted by a civilian contractor.

This includes a suitable training facility, maintenance of the aircraft, employing qualified instructor pilots and administering the training to the students.

A team of six Air Force specialists serve as advisors to the civilian contractor. Three are instructor pilots, two are maintenance supervisors and one acts as an administrative assistant.

Base Ops Serves As Webb Gateway

One of the most bustling and diversified activities at Webb AFB is base operations. Often called the "Gateway to the Air Base," it is the hub of most of the flying activity and the control point through which most flight operations are governed. Like its civilian counterpart—the terminal building at a large commercial airport—base operations processes passengers, aircrews, flight plans and clearances. It is the focal point for the arrival of visitors; it has complete flight planning facilities for pilots preparing to depart; flight service stations and air traffic control centers.

WEATHER
Also available in base operations is a modern weather station operated by Detachment 16 of the 24th Weather Squadron, a division of the Military Airlift Command. Weather radar and remote controlled meteorological calibration equipment, located on the airfield between the runways, help update and increase the speed of collection of weather data. Electro-writers transmit weather information instantaneously to each of the training squadrons briefing rooms. The dispatch section, which operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, is the center of communications activity. The section transmits and receives flight plans, processes passenger manifests, handles emergency and crash calls, and generally monitors the military flight operations system.

In addition, it also keeps the flight room stocked with the latest charts and flight manuals for the air crews that use it.

FLIGHT PLANS

Flight plans are transmitted through various communications lines to control towers and key air traffic control points. Instructions flight plans are coded on teletype and transmitted to the Fort Worth Air Traffic Control Center where flight data specialists feed the information into electronic computers. Flight information is then transcribed onto flight strips that air route controllers use to monitor the progress of instrument flights along pre-selected airways that blanket the United States with a vast complex system.

Weather Section Keeps Pilots Accurately Advised

Detachment 16, 24th Weather Squadron provides weather service to the 3560th PTW at Webb AFB.

The detachment has 22 personnel assigned to the unit. The unit is broken down into three sections: forecasting section, observing section, and maintenance section. The forecasting section maintains a 24-hour meteorological watch for weather that is affecting or will be affecting the Webb area. Personnel assigned to this section consists of three officers and four NCO's.

The forecasting section issues four 24-hour forecasts daily. When hazardous weather is expected, conducts daily briefings to all flying units on the base, and briefs pilots individually on weather conditions for flights over the entire United States.

responsible for taking representative weather observations of all meteorological data. Observers transmit observation, forecast and other teletype data as required to other weather stations throughout the United States. They assist forecasters by filing, plotting maps and charts when required.

The weather maintenance personnel have the responsibility of repairing and maintaining an array of complex electronic meteorological equipment operating on an around the clock basis. Included in this inventory are instruments for measuring and recording heights, wind direction and velocity, temperature, humidity and a storm detection radar set. There are many more minor meteorologist instruments under their care.

These items are used in preparing aircraft for flight and are also necessary to support flight line maintenance crews.

Webb Training Similar To College Program

Webb AFB's pilot training program is similar to the operation of any college or university, however, many complicated aspects of training must be taken into account.

Student pilots attend classes, whether they be on the ground or 20,000 feet over West Texas. Half of the student's day is spent attending classes in academic instruction and the other half flying in the synthetic trainer or the jet training aircraft.

Webb's student flying schedule is divided into five flying periods, approximately one hour and 30 minutes long. The two training squadrons alternate between flying morning periods and afternoon periods. The afternoon period includes one night flying period.

EARLY START

The instructor pilot's day begins at 5 a.m., if he has the morning periods; or shortly after noon, if his squadron is flying the afternoon periods.

Prior to the arrival of the students, instructor pilots attend a pre-flight briefing. The first thing on the agenda is a report on-up-to-the-minute weather conditions. Cloud cover, weather fronts and conditions that might affect the day's flying are discussed.

The squadron's flying safety officer briefs the instructor pilots on various safety regulations and current safety procedures.

STRESS SAFETY

Following the instructor pilot's briefing, the flight commanders meet with their flights, relaying the information received during their briefing. Flying safety is stressed again by the flight's safety officer and operational procedures new to the student pilots are discussed.

After flight commanders have completed briefings, instructor pilots assemble their students pre-flight "table briefings." It is during these table briefings that the day's training mission is introduced. Individual flight problems are explained and the student receives indoctrination as to the flight maneuvers they will be practicing.

ALL KEPT BUSY

Once the day's training mission has been discussed, the instructor pilot is ready to fly with the student. While each student is flying with his instructor pilot, the other students assigned to that instructor prepare for their mission or receive training in the synthetic instrument trainer.

As one instructor pointed out, "Flight instruction differs from the ordinary classroom; a pilot learns techniques and procedures on the ground, but maneuvers must be demonstrated in the air before the student attempts them."

The instructor pilot is seated along side the student in the T-37 and just behind him in the T-38. The training aircraft have two identical sets of controls. Much of the student's learning is accomplished through trial and error. It takes many hours of practice to achieve proficiency as a jet pilot.

EVALUATE RESULTS

After every training mission, the instructor pilot completes a critique of the flight. The instructor pilot and the student discuss the mission at another table briefing with other students listening in.

The key to the instructor pilot's training technique is to achieve polish and professionalism in every maneuver the student is taught. The instructor pilot is grading the student on his individual progress and in line with how other students apprehend the material.

Youth Center Provided For Young People

The hub of youth activities at Webb AFB is a long low green building near the entrance to Webb Village. It is the center of a complex which includes two lighted tennis courts, an outdoor basketball court, archery range, Little League ball park, a fenced playground, and a terrace with fireplace and picnic tables.

The Youth Center's main social room has beige walls with pumpkin colored curtains. Its atmosphere is gay and collegiate; wall decorations include pennants from the Southwest Conference colleges, framed Old West posters, and collections of foreign currency.

The lounge area is furnished with new sofas and chairs upholstered in beige, nutmeg, chocolate brown, and orange vinyl. Matching coffee tables and card tables have white formica tops. In the game area, two regulation pool tables, a bumper pool table, two table tennis tables, dutch shuffleboard, skittles, pocket golf and a variety of small table games are available.

Other equipment includes a stereo sound system, record library, piano, electric guitar, and snare drums, the latter available for check-out. Sporting equipment — bows, arrows, and shooting gloves for the archery classes; tennis rackets; and basketballs can be checked out at the Youth Center office.

The "Beachcomber Room" in the Youth Center is done in pastel blue, with blue curtains and a wall to wall blue and green tweed carpet. It has a nautical theme — colored fish floats hang from the ceiling, a bamboo screen is festooned with fish netting, starfish and sea shells. Ceramic bamboo lamps studded with marbles provide quiet lighting for TV viewing and lounging. This room is used daily by Girl Scout troops who meet at the Center, Youth Council meetings, and serves as a Senior lounge on dance nights.

Summer plans include a swimming program and classes in archery, judo, tennis, golf and first aid. A summer day camp is planned for first through fourth grades, offering supervised play, athletics and handicrafts.

For the teenagers this summer, there will be a luau, patio dancing, splash parties, and jobs, too, as swimming aides and camp counselors . . . all the action they can use.

HIGH PERFORMANCE

This T-38 is headed up, up to the very fringe of outer space . . . where the staggering extremes of speed, stress and temperature demand nothing less than the best. The men in the planes and on the ground, the equipment they use and the training they receive, all must meet rigid standards. The courage, intelligence, initiative and judgment of the individual have not been rendered obsolete by the fantastic advances. On the contrary, the challenge to man's capabilities has never been greater, nor met more willingly by the men of Webb.

For meeting the challenge successfully, we at Cosden voice our appreciation and extend our congratulations. Thanks, too, for the active role each of you plays in the community life of Big Spring.

Col. Butcher Commands Complex Base

"The Base Mission is Train Jet Pilots and Support Air Defense. Everything We Do Must Be Aimed Toward Supporting and Furthering These Tasks."

Thus is explained the job that Webb AFB, home of the 3560th Pilot Training Wing, is to do.

Col. Chester J. Butcher serves as wing commander for the widespread, yet closely knit, complex which accomplishes that mission. He develops over-all plans and policies for conducting all wing-base activities and insures compliance with directives from higher headquarters. The commander also formulates policies and procedures for his staff and keeps them informed. He prescribes training standards for his command, and insures that all personnel are mission oriented. Keeping higher headquarters informed on the status of his command is also included.

Operating under the dual deputy system, Col. Butcher has four deputy commanders working directly under him, who command the area with which they are concerned.

Col. Thomas J. Rowland Jr. is deputy commander for operations; Col. Gregory H. Perron is deputy commander for materiel; Col. George E. Franks is air base group commander; and Lt. Col. Mount E. Frantz is director of medical services and commander of the 3560th USAF Hospital.

MISSION FULFILLMENT

To fulfill its primary mission, Webb trains and graduates jet pilots for all branches of the Air Force. One of nine undergraduate pilot training bases, Webb is operated under direction of Air Training Command, Randolph AFB, San Antonio, commanded by Lt. Gen. Sam Maddux.

Webb's student pilots come from the U.S. Air Force Academy, Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps units of colleges and universities, Air National Guard, Officer Training School, from allied nations, and from active-duty officers who desire the aeronautical rating of pilot.

For advanced training, Webb-graduated pilots receive assignments to Tactical Air Command, Strategic Air Command, Air Defense Command, Air Training Command, Military Airlift Command, United States Air Force, Europe, and Pacific Air Force bases.

After students have been graduated and have received their wings, they are assigned to the various flying commands. Assignments are made in accord with class standings, student choice, instructor recommendations and requirements of the Air Force.

OPERATIONS

The function of the deputy commander for operations might be compared to that of a graduate school, teaching one of the most complex courses available—understanding and flying supersonic jet aircraft. Student pilots spend 53 weeks of intensive study and training to achieve their "degrees" which are presented in the form of silver wings and certificates of aeronautical rating as jet pilots.

To accomplish the training of the jet pilots, the DC-Operations has an administrative branch, an operations division composed of six branches, a primary training division for T-41 instruction, a standardization-evaluation division, two pilot training squadrons and a student squadron.

The DCO directs and supervises all primary mission activities. Quality of flight, military, upgrade, physical and special training are also DCO responsibilities. All directives pertaining to the training mission are interpreted and implemented. DCO also prepares and coordinates concurrent use and support agreements relating to flying activities; and develops and conducts pilot programs and operational tests of new training methods as assigned by headquarters ATC.

Concerned with all phases of the flying program, men of the DCO complex truly "Prepare the Man" to fly.

MATERIEL

Similarly, it is the responsibility of the DC-Materiel to supply and repair the aircraft vehicle so that the man may fly safely and successfully. These functions are apportioned between the chief of supply and the chief of maintenance, working directly under the DCM.

The chief of supply directs the activities of a squadron section and six branches, covering management and procedures, materiel facilities, supplies, equipment, item accounting and fuels.

The chief of maintenance directs a records-reports branch, analysis-training-standardization branch, maintenance control branch, quality control branch, field maintenance squadron and organizational maintenance squadron.

AIR BASE GROUP

The activities performed by officers and men of the commander, Air Base Group cover a wide variety of services in support of all Webb personnel.

In addition to the headquarters squadron section, the AB Group commander is responsible for 10 divisions. They include administrative services, staff judge advocate, chaplain, personnel procurement, comptroller, security and law enforcement, transportation, and supply. The ABGC also serves as the housing manager, provides centralized control over all base housing functions, except airman dormitories, to insure the most effective management of housing assets.

The many branches and units of the various sections perform innumerable jobs necessary for the housing, feeding, morale, well-being, discipline and pay of almost 3,500 people. From food to fire prevention, from movies to moving of household goods, services are covered by Air Base Group.

The medical services division is responsible for operation of the 3560th USAF Hospital and for the health of Air Force personnel and their dependents.

Communications

S. Sgt. Juan P. Palacios and Capt. Robert L. Carlisle, of the 2050th Communications Squadron, explain the operation of the MARS radio system to Sands High School students.

Instrument Trainers Play A Vital Role

Instrument flight trainers play an essential role in today's pilot training program.

These complex pieces of electronic equipment duplicate the cockpit equipment and approximate flight characteristics for their respective aircraft. They are specifically designed for use in teaching basic instrument navigational flight procedures for normal and emergency situations.

The student wears all the equipment—helmet, oxygen mask and parachute and harness in the simulator. The trainer functions to maintain the pilot's proficiency as well as provide students an opportunity to become familiar with the location of the cockpit instruments and controls. Eighteen lessons are flown in both the T-4 and T-7 trainers. Each lesson is flown first in the trainer and then in the aircraft. The training amounts to 23 hours and 45 minutes for T-37 students and 24 hours for T-38 students.

Student pilots are instructed by qualified airman instructors who are formally evaluated twice per year, in a similar manner to the flight line instructors. This system insures current knowledge and newer teaching techniques. The instructor's duty consists primarily of teaching procedures, demonstrating maneuvers and evaluating the student's performance in the trainer. Additionally, the instructors add a touch of realism by functioning as the lower operator, GCA and RAPCON controllers, and other air traffic controllers. Instructors expose students to simulated in-flight emergencies—such as landing gear failure, engine fire, loss of hydraulic pressure, and rough air during the flight. Students who are predictably competent in these simulated emergencies will be better able to handle actual in-flight emergencies.

Sign Tips Thieves

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Would-be thieves came upon this sign outside the garage of a Hollywood apartment house:

"Notice: This garage watched by closed circuit TV." Rose Rubin, manager of the building, posted the 2-by-3-foot sign. But later police were notified that it was missing. Also missing was a camera mounted near the sign.

Comptroller Keeps Tabs For Effective Management

The Webb AFB comptroller, Maj. Paul L. Braddon, is responsible for advising the commander and his staff on all accounting, disbursing, non-appropriated funds, budgeting, data processing, reporting and related analysis. This includes review and analysis of planning, programming, and operating information to provide management data.

The comptroller is responsible for the supervision of four divisions: budget, accounting and finance, management analysis and data automation.

1st Lt. Paul R. Stagle, budget officer, provides required funds for various operating programs, including distributing funds to meet requirements. The budget office receives allotments and budget authorizations based on the approved financial plan for use of host and tenant organizations. It must plan and perform analyses and evaluations and advise on the results.

The accounting and finance officer, Capt. James A. Talbot, receives, disburses and accounts for funds, and advises on non-appropriated fund activities. This office pays military and civilian personnel, travel claims, vendors and contractors.

The management analysis branch, headed by Boyd McCoy, provides analytical and advisory services, special management studies, statistical data and periodical reports to show progress. This mission is accomplished through written reports of analyses and studies and devised charts and graphs for presentation. This office prepares monthly statistical digests and reviews data accumulations and reporting systems.

1st Lt. Donald Martinez, data automation officer, is responsible for all data collected for reports. The data usually comes to data automation punched on cards. The cards are sorted, collated, checked for correct sequence and put on the computer. The finished product is then routed back to the origin.

Modern Hospital Supports Mission

The 3560th USAF Hospital at Webb AFB furnishes direct aeromedical support to the 3560th Pilot Training Wing and the 4760th Combat Crew Training Squadron.

This includes flying physical examinations on all flying personnel, administration of the aircrew effectiveness program and the physiological training program. Although this is the primary mission, the hospital operation covers a myriad of services from hospitalization and treatment of the pilot to a polio shot for his baby.

The medical support includes medical, surgical and dental outpatient and inpatient services for all military personnel; and all services except dental for their dependents and for retired personnel and dependents residing in the area.

The Hospital Group is headed by the Director of Base Medical Services, Lt. Col. M. E. Frantz. Major Maurice J. Took is the hospital administrator. Administrative sections include the hospital registrar, 1st Lt. Gary L. Weishaar; the medical squadron section, commanded by 2nd Lt. Raymond Bergroos; and the medical materiel section headed by 1st Lt. Robert J. Prather. S.M. Sgt. David E. Twitty is the hospital sergeant major and M. Sgt. Ernest W. Warren is the squadron first sergeant. Functions dealing with the professional care of patients are assigned to hospital services and are under the supervision of the Director of Base Medical Services. Capt. Leo E. Gibson Jr. is the chief of obstetrics-gynecology section; Capt. Lowell C. Suckow heads the pediatric service. General surgery is under the direction of Col. Frantz assisted by Capt. William T. Ward Jr. Capt. Robert N. Disimone heads the internal medicine section, and Capt. Kenneth M. Cox is in charge of the Air Force Clinic. Capt. Byron W. Kilgore is assigned to the general practice clinic and works with Capt. Leo E. Gibson Jr., in the obstetrics-gynecology section. Capt. Charles D. Bell heads the aeromedical services assisted by Capt. Milton G. Mullanax and Capt. Robert E. Winders. The military medical staff is assisted by local civilian and regional military consultants as necessary.

Maj. Janet E. Hager heads the nursing service, with Maj. Sarah N. Graham assisting and nurse in charge of Ward 2. Capt. Betsy L. Ross is nurse in charge of Ward 1 and 1st Lt. Sylvia C. Harwood is nurse in charge of the obstetrical ward. 1st Lt. Barbara J. Andrejkovics is charge nurse in the Air Force Clinic. Others are Capt. Maxine

M. Huggins, anesthetist; and 1st Lt. Susan M. Turley, nurse in charge of the surgical operating room. A total of 19 nurses are authorized.

Ancillary support includes the clinical laboratory headed by T. Sgt. Joseph C. Rawdon; the X-ray department with T. Sgt. Michael J. Coogan as NCOIC; and the pharmacy with T. Sgt. Charles R. Franke, as NCOIC.

The physiological training section is under the direction of Capt. Allen L. Fox, assisted by Capt. David R. Philp. This training includes physiological training indoctrination, chamber flights, parachute training, parasail training and ejection seat training.

Police Division Provides Base Security At Webb

The security police division at Webb AFB is commanded by 1st Lt. Louis J. Fought, and there are 100 airmen and one civilian authorized to man the division. The mission is to provide law enforcement for the base and security support for the 4760th Combat Crew Training Squadron. The division includes six operating sections.

The operations section is under the control of S.M. Sgt. Garret W. Buck. It is his responsibility as security police superintendent to handle the administration of the division and exercise over-all supervision. His chief clerk is Mrs. Pat Smith.

The law enforcement section is under the supervision of T. Sgt. John H. Frair. His operation is divided into four security police flights which function on a rotating basis so that one flight is on duty at all hours of the day or night. The flight chiefs are S. Sgt. F. Austin, S. Sgt. C. D. Brown, S. Sgt. E. Martinez and S. Sgt. E. L. Wilson.

The administrative security section, under the supervision of S. Sgt. J. G. Brady, processes personnel security clearances, monitors security of classified material, conducts spot checks of security procedures and supervises the security education program. Sgt. Brady is assisted by S. Sgt. R. L. Fischer.

The pass and registration section, operated by Airman 2.C. R. A. Gagliano and Airman 3.C. R. F. Christian, has the responsibility for registering private owned vehicles and processing and issuing identification cards.

During the open house, the Security Police will be utilizing many of their special items of equipment. They will be driving radio-controlled vehicles which can be dispatched to any point when necessary. The communications net is centered around the security police desk sergeant who will control and monitor all telephone calls and radio transmissions.

The augmentee security police will be wearing white helmets. They are personnel from other organizations on base who are selected by their unit commander to supplement the regular security police function during periods of emergency and on special events. They are given training by the Security Police training section under the supervision of S. Sgt. G. V. Christensen and Airman 1.C. L. J. Hunt.

Farrow Heads Civilian Office

The Civilian Personnel Office with a staff of 10, headed by Warren A. Farrow, administers a total personnel program for 838 employees at Webb AFB.

The civilian personnel office is divided into four sections. The classification and wage administration section, of which William A. Bryans is chief, insures that all civilian positions are properly classified and graded. This section also conducts periodic wage surveys in the Big Spring, Midland-Odessa industrial community. That data collected during such surveys is used by the Army-Air Force Wage Board in Washington, D. C., as a basis for establishing wage rates at the base for hourly paid employees.

The employe utilization section, directed by Frederick Doelp, recruits and hires new employes, coordinates and provides training and conducts a broad program of employe-management relations.

YOUR FUTURE IS MORE SECURE

America's military units stand perpetually ready, watching . . . knowing what to do in future emergencies . . . and so we salute them, and especially the servicemen of Webb Air Force Base who play a key role in making our future even more secure.

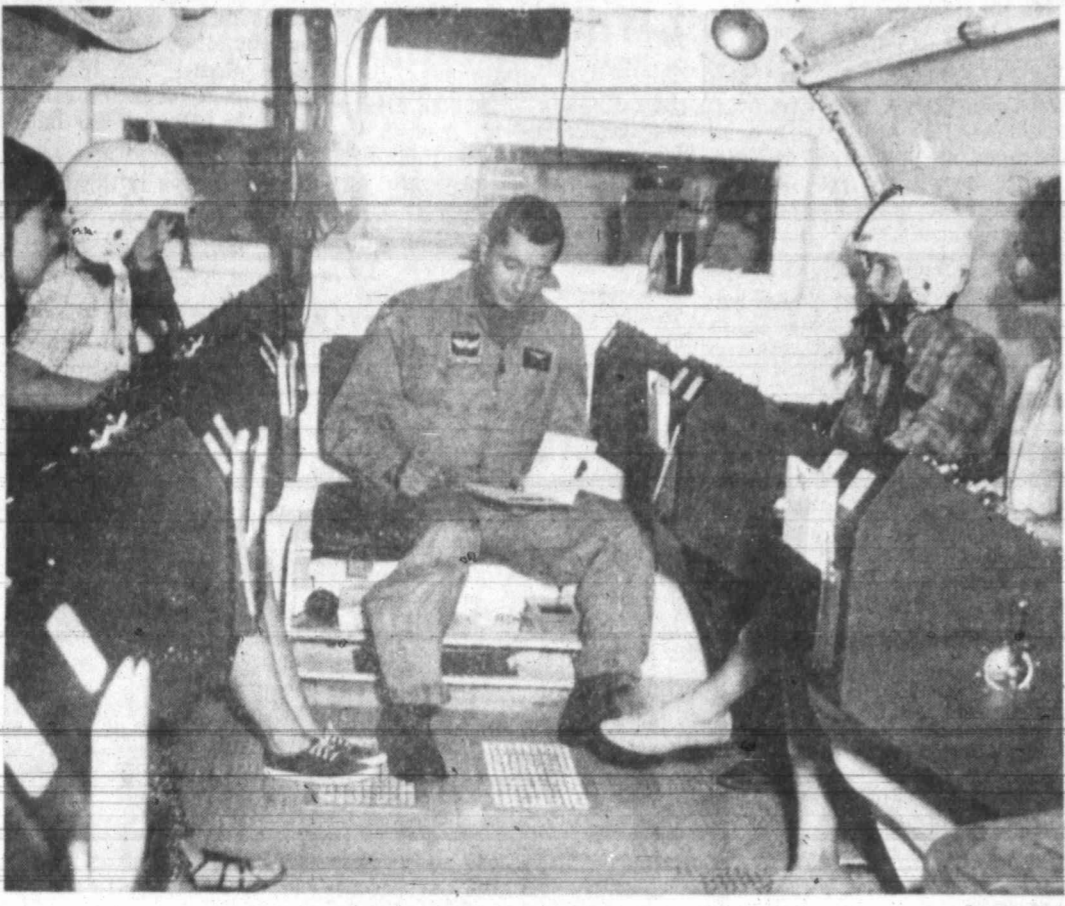

Time and again, the capable men of Webb have proven their reliability, their unflinching dependability.

WAFB ranks high in the United States defense team role . . . a place they well deserve.

County Youngsters Tour Webb AFB

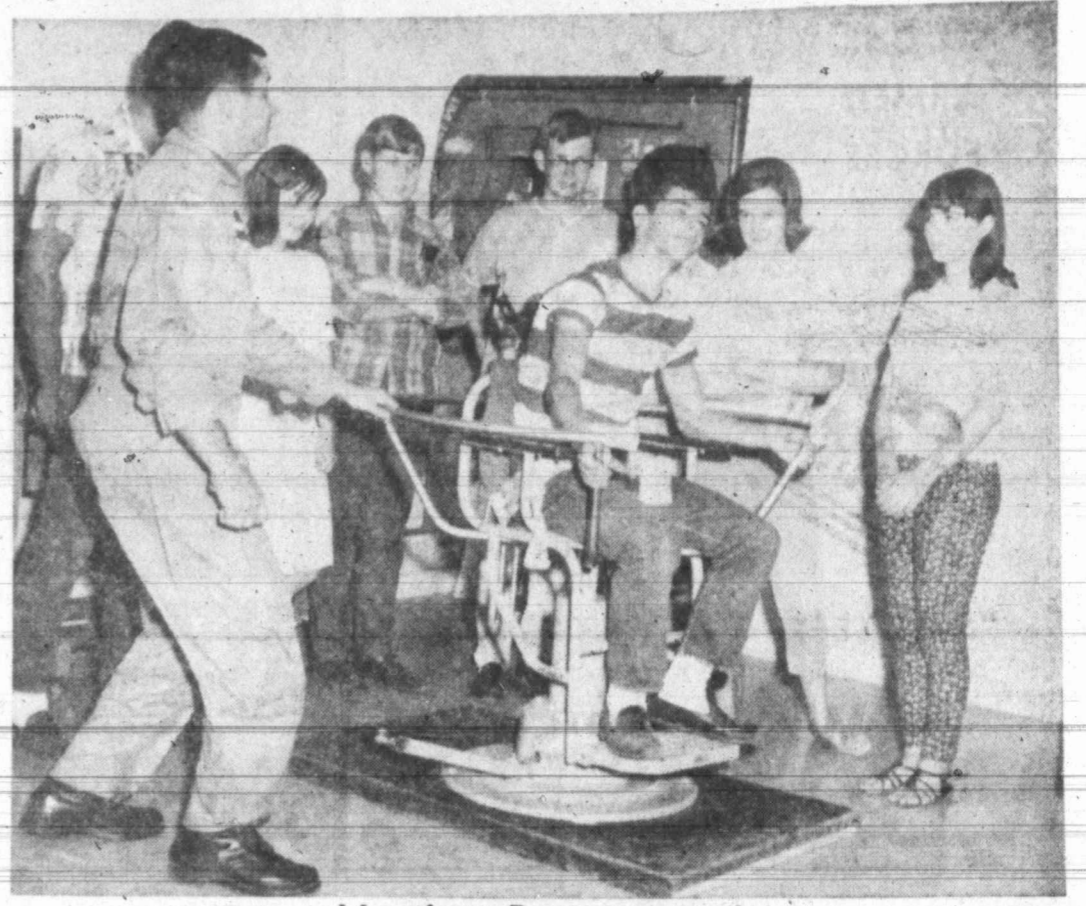

Altitude Chamber

Capt. Allan L. Fox, physiological training officer, explains the altitude chamber to students from the Forsan High School, on a recent tour of Webb AFB.

Day Room

Vertigo Demonstration

John O. Dolan, Forsan High School student, gets a first-hand demonstration of how a pilot can get vertigo when flying an airplane. Capt. Allan L. Fox, physiological training officer, explains the procedure when using the spinning chair. Other students observing the demonstration are: Ruthie M. Hammack, Angie D. Tidwell, Clayton D. McKinnon, Karen M. Moore, Marsha Kirkpatrick and Larry R. Bruns.

In The Cockpit

F. Sgt. Morris L. Richardson, Field Maintenance Squadron (center), helps Joe Lusk and Lynda K. Kirby, Big Spring High School students, become familiar with the T-37 cockpit and instrument panel during a recent tour of Webb.

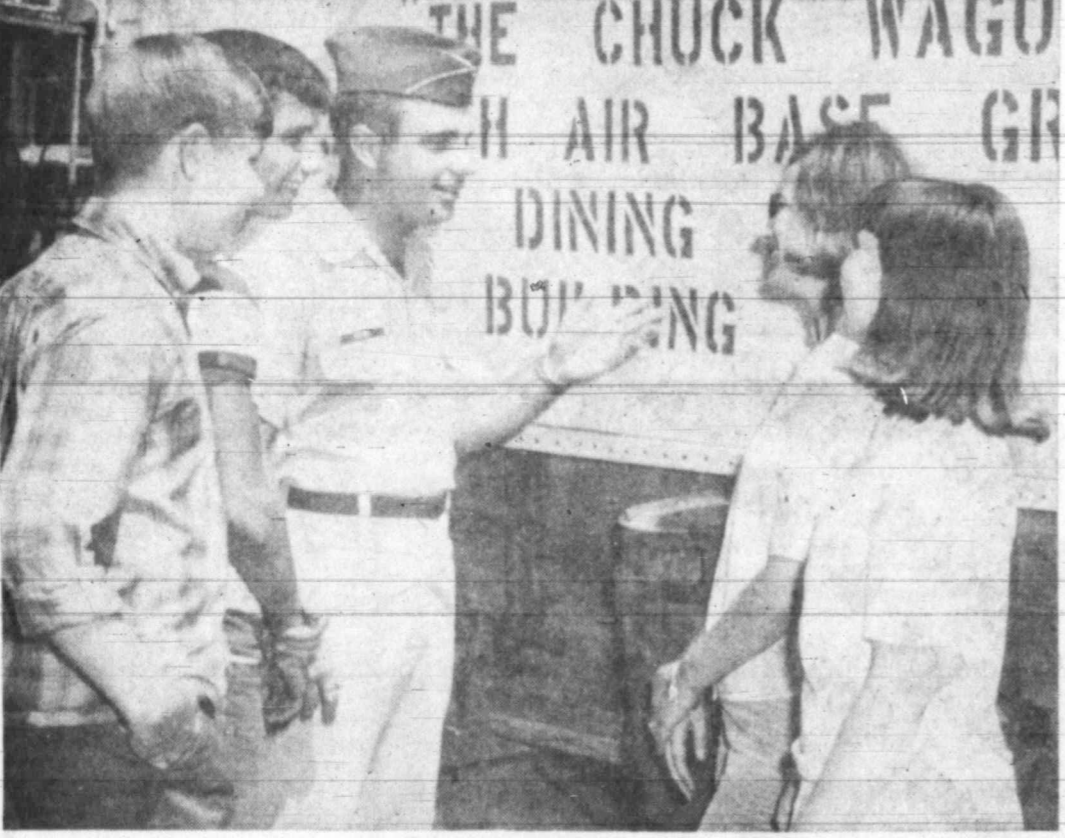

Dining Hall

Marsha Kirkpatrick, Clayton D. McKinnon and Ruthie M. Hammack, students of Forsan High School, are shown the western-style decorations which have recently been added to the Dining Hall No. 220. Adnan M. Morales, (left), Dining Hall attendant, serves as guide.

Ejection Seat

Capt. Allan L. Fox, physiological training officer, explains the ejection seat procedures to Clayton D. McKinnon (seated in ejection seat) as other students from Forsan High School look on.

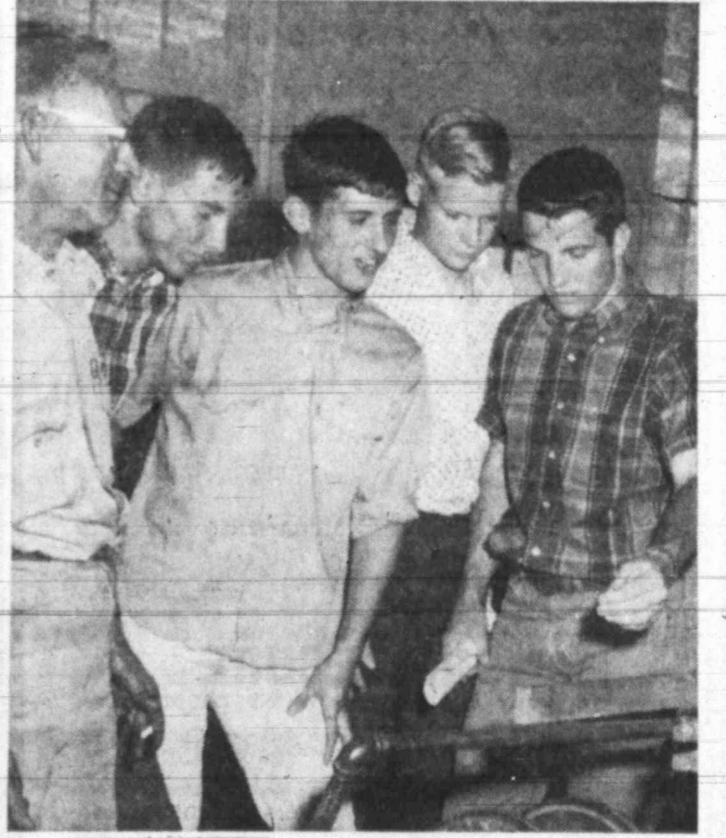

Chuck Wagon

2nd Lt. Thomas J. Weindl, Food Services Officer at Webb, shows the chuck wagon which has become a permanent fixture at Dining Hall No. 220. Larry R. Bruns, John O. Dolan, Angie D. Tidwell and Karen M. Moore, all students of Forsan High School, admire the wagon which was donated by a local resident of the community.

Hospital Visit

Airman I. C. William F. Taylor, laboratory technician, 3560th USAF Hospital, explains various procedures used when identifying cultures, during a recent tour of Webb by the high school students. (Left to right) the students are: Kay Slate, Kay L. Statser, Laura S. Parks and Linda L. Lile.

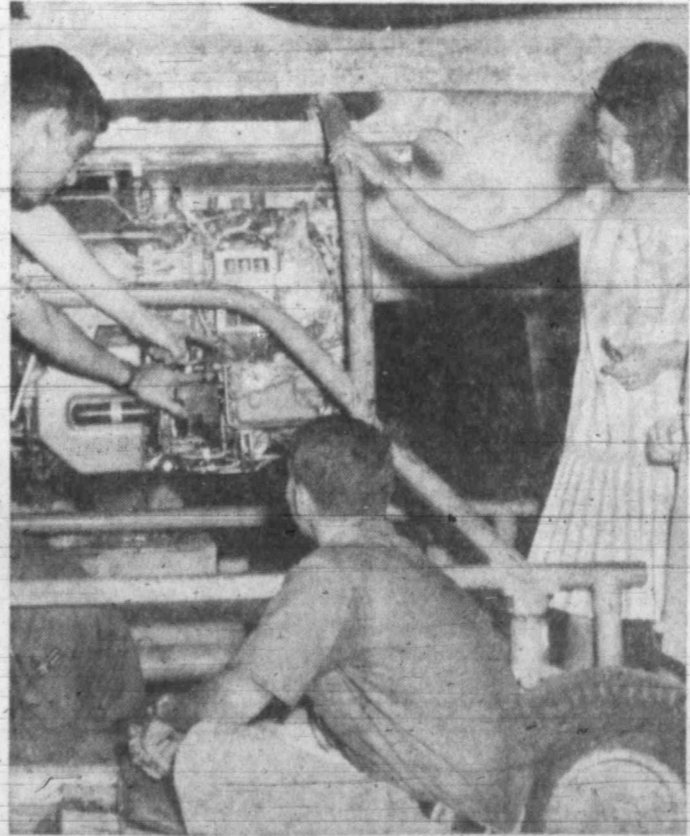

Electrical Shop

Students from Coahoma High School examine a motor wiring machine in the electrical shop of the Civil Engineering complex during a recent visit to the Webb installation.

Talon Cockpit

Maintenance

Frank E. Griffis, Bruce R. Bunn, Kay L. Statser, and Linda L. Lile, students of the Big Spring High School, listen to Airman I. C. J. C. Tribble, of the Field Maintenance Squadron, as he explains how he performs minor maintenance to a jet engine.

Parachute Fitting

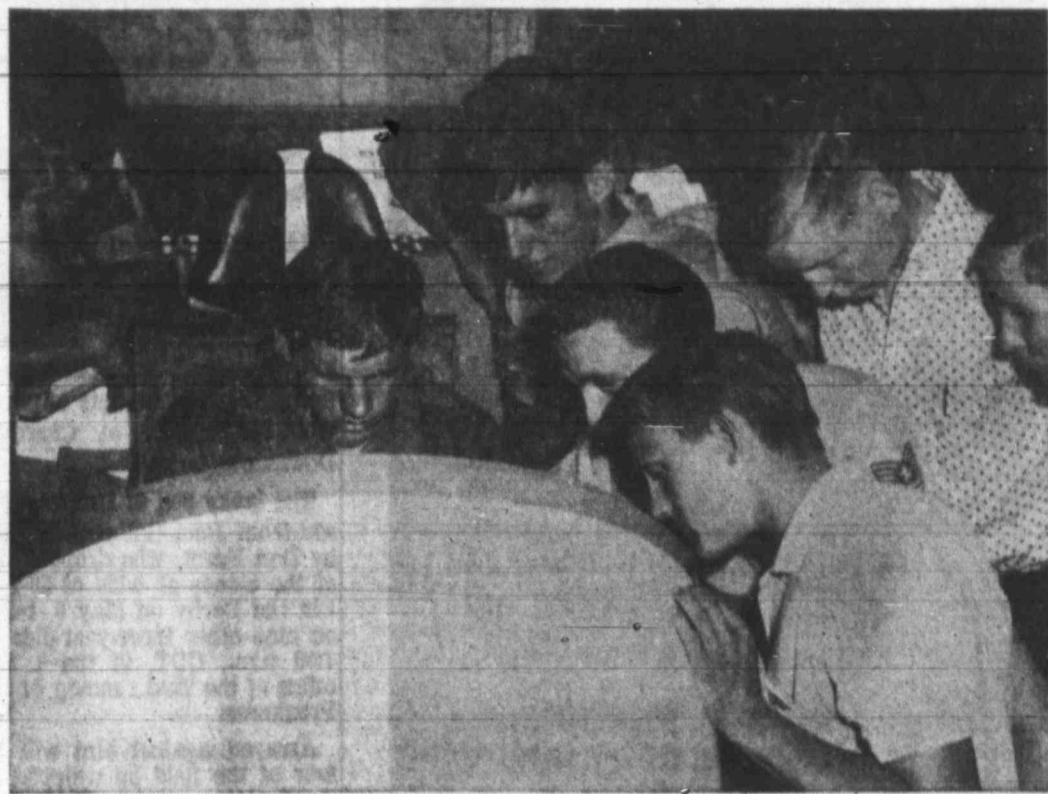

Airman J. C. Wallace C. Stuart, 3560th Supply Squadron, assists in fitting a parachute for Capt. Courtney W. Wells, a student pilot in UPT Class 68-F at Webb AFB. Students from Coahoma High School who were on a special tour of the base, observe.

Troy L. Fraser (center), Coahoma High student, is trying very hard to keep the T-38 Link Trainer in straight and level flight. T. Sgt. Billy L. Truette, Link Trainer instructor, gives assistance.

Keeping Tabs
On Instructors

The Standardization - Evaluation Division "prepares the man to prepare the man."
This is, Stan - Eval monitors the flying of all instructors on the base.
The principle objectives of Stan-Eval are to improve individual instructor pilot and unit performance and efficiency through periodic evaluation, to insure compliance with training and flying directives, and to provide the commander with a system of quality control. Primary mission training units are periodically evaluated and reports submitted to the deputy commander for operations. The synthetic trainer instrument flight training activity is also monitored by Stan-Eval.
When an instructor pilot is assigned to Webb, he files with a Stan-Eval pilot until he is thoroughly current and checked out in his aircraft. The division members also take over the instructor pilots function occasionally to fly with students, checking their level of development against the place they should be. Semi-annually, the Air Training Command Standardization-Evaluation team visits the base to measure the divisions' performance against command standards. The past three inspections have resulted in overall "excellent" ratings.

Makes Sure They Are Ready
After Repairs Completed

The maintenance quality control branch, serves as the "eyes and ears" of the chief of maintenance at Webb AFB. Composed of a ground inspection section and a flight test section, it is the responsibility of this branch to check completely all aircraft which have been repaired to be sure they are operationally ready before they are returned to the flight line and flown by student or instructor pilots.
It is the responsibility of the ground inspection crew to check all systems of the aircraft where maintenance has been performed. These inspections are performed after maintenance for a dual purpose. First, to be sure that the aircraft is ready for flight, so it may be returned to the training program; and second, to check closely on the maintenance crews for quality of maintenance work. Included also are occasional spot checks of aircraft on the line. Every aircraft received these spot checks at least twice a year.
The same type of inspection is included for aerospace ground equipment, to make sure that it maintains a high level of performance.

on all engines returned from the shops.
Another section is the deficiency reporting section, which processes reports on failed parts and material. A technical orders library is maintained, also to keep all men abreast of trends in maintenance, changes in procedures, and improvements in methods of material.
CHECKS WITH BASES
Webb is one of eight Air Training Command Undergraduate Pilot Training bases. The other UPT bases fly the same aircraft, and naturally encounter some of the same problems. Deficiency analysis reports are submitted to the chief of maintenance in every case. Those which indicate trends or point up problem areas are interchanged by wire between bases, so that each base has the benefit of others' experience.
Studying these reports, implementing them at Webb, and seeing that similar ones are sent out from this base — all these are important functions of quality control men.
The branch also conducts special subjects inspections at the direction of higher headquarters. These may be directed toward improvement, or toward the elimination of problem areas in materiel or maintenance procedures.
Foreign object damage (FOD) is also a particular concern of quality control men. FOD is dangerous, not only to the jet engines, but may be brought about by small objects dropped in the cockpit of the aircraft, by mechanics or pilots.
Fuel samples are sent to fuels management branch for testing; a check - list is run, following general procedures; and disassembly of the aircraft is performed, with assistance from field maintenance specialists. The engine is removed and sent to the test cell.
After the trouble has been found and corrected, the aircraft is reassembled, test flown and returned to service. In cases where the quality control men are unable to determine the cause, a special team of experts may be brought in from the aerospace systems division at Wright - Patterson AFB. In any case, the craft must be in the highest degree of operational readiness before it is returned to the flight line.

An Exercise In Fundamental Football

A football team that doesn't block and tackle doesn't fare very well. In the picture here, a couple of Big Spring Steers (including Bill Henry, left) work on their blocking by lunging at a machine which has coaching aide Jack Tavrien at the controls. Among the boys looking on are Chuck Smith, Billy Bob Spier, Steve Riordan, Johnny Hedges and Gregg Lewis. The Longhorns wind up their second week of drills with a scrimmage Saturday morning. Their big test comes a week from tonight when the coaches will choose sides for the annual intra-squad game, which will be sponsored by the Quarterback Club. (Photo by Danny Valdes)

Preakness Run Set Saturday

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Kentucky Derby winner answers horse racing's big question Saturday over Pimlico's history-steeped track when Proud Clarion attempts to prove that his victory at Churchill Downs was no fluke.

The lanky son of Hail to Reason from John Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm, who dropped out of the clouds at odds of 30-1 to win the Derby on May 6, takes on nine other three-year-olds at 1:30 p.m. CDT. in the 1 1/16 miles of the 92nd running of the Preakness.

Arrayed against him will be four of the field he whipped in the Derby, runner-up Barbs Delight, third-place Damascus, fourth-place Reason to Hail and Ask the Pate, who wound up fifth.

To the cast has been added Florida Derby winner In Reality; Great Power, a speedster who has won his last two starts; Favorable Turn; Misty Cloudy and Celtic Air, a stablemate of Damascus and the only surprise

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Ex-Big Springer Billy Maxwell failed by three strokes to make the 36-hole cutoff in the New Orleans Golf Open last week when he put together rounds of 77 and 72.

It's rare when Maxwell doesn't make the cut in any tournament. He rarely wins but he invariably finishes well up in the money.

Linkster Billy Casper intends to depart the tour after the Oklahoma City tournament next week. He'll go to his home in California for several weeks of vacation.

That South Africa Hindu golfer with the impossible name, Sewsunker Sewgolum, probably could make a reasonable living on the U.S. pro tour if he could tolerate U.S. food.

He's an ulcer patient and a fried chicken dinner he ate in Houston recently made him violently ill.

Rives McBe, the golfer playing out of Midland who was an early sensation in the 1966 National Open, sank a hole-in-one in a warmup for the New Orleans Open last week.

McBe shot a 149 his first two rounds in the meet, too, and failed to survive the cut.

The golfing school teacher here, Bernard Rains, toured the many courses one day last week in 65, which happened to be eight strokes below regulation figures.

Another note on golf: Puerto Rican David Jimenez can become a big winner on the tour if he works on his putting game a little more. So says Chi Chi Rodriguez, who has watched Jimenez develop. "All David needs is the magic of believing," says Chi Chi.

One of the younger backs who impressed the coaches in last weekend's football scrimmage at the local high school was Rocky Wooley, who was a whiz in junior high school.

The coaches are counting on getting a lot of mileage out of him the next couple of years.

Larry Cruse, a bell ringer with a basketball when he played for HCJC several years ago, coached the Whitesboro High School cage team to a 22-8 won-lost record last season.

One of the first things spectators notice about the game of soccer as it is screened for TV audiences is that great size probably is a handicap in the game.

The average player seems to stand about 5-8 and weigh 150 pounds.

The world's greatest soccer player, Pele, who earns $225,000 a year in straight salary, is 5-6 and tips the scales at only 160.

Walt Reyna, the former HCJC distance runner, ran last in the three-mile event in the recent Southwest Conference track and field meet at Dallas but his Baylor coach, Clyde Hart, shoulders the blame.

Reyna was told to take part in the mile run earlier on the program and didn't have time enough to rest between events. He was the favorite in the longer event.

Hart vows he won't make the same mistake again next year with Reyna.

Carol Ann Pribyla, the Flower Grove High School cage star, has been offered scholarship help from Ranger College if she will play the game there.

Odessa College likely will enter the 1967-68 Western Conference basketball race as a solid choice to win it all. Coach Larry McCulloch is recruiting as never before.

Already signed are Gary Harris, 6-1, Winton, Calif.; Steve Voss, 6-1, Moccasin, Calif.; and Stan Hutson, 6-5, an Odessa boy who played freshman ball at TCU last season.

Returning from last season's team will be N. S. Hurd, 6-2; Roger McClothin, 6-2; and Chris Dowell, 5-10.

Harold Bradley Resigns Cage Position At Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Harold Bradley, who led University of Texas basketball teams to three Southwest Conference championships in eight years, has retired.

"I feel that this is a good time for me to retire—while I still have my health," the 55-year-old Bradley said Thursday.

Darrell Royal, Texas athletic director, said he had no immediate plans to name a successor to Bradley.

Bradley's 1963 team ran up a 20-7 record and is considered one of the greatest Longhorn aggregations of all time.

His teams won 73 Southwest Conference games while losing 39. Texas' over-all record under Bradley was 125-73. Only Jack Gray had a longer term—12 years—as basketball coach at Texas.

HAROLD BRADLEY

Jayhawks Eye Track Crown

GARDEN CITY, Kansas — HCJC of Big Spring, Texas, Mesa, Ariz., Odessa, Tex., and Victoria, Tex., figured as the four strongest teams in the 1967 National JC Track and Field meet, which gets under way here tonight and continues through Saturday night.

Odessa is represented by 13 athletes in the meet while HCJC, a past champion, has a ten-man squad.

HCJC figures to be strongest in the sprints and relay events. Odessa will enter boys in 15 of 17 events and figures to score heavily with second, third and fourth places.

HCJC wound up second to Phoenix, Ariz., last year, scoring 54 points to 62 for Phoenix. Phoenix has won the title the past two years but doesn't figure to return to the throne room.

Odessa figures to score heavily in the two-mile run, 440-yard intermediate hurdles, high jump, triple jump and discus. The Wranglers could surprise in the high hurdles and the quarter mile.

HCJC and Odessa tied for first place in the recent Western Conference meet at Roswell, each scoring 98 points.

Jimmy Jasper and Linwood Wright give the Hawks good representation in the sprints and will team with Dee Fletcher and Robert Lindsey in the relay event. Joe Tighe of HCJC should also score heavily in the pole vault.

Jets Defeat Colts, 4-3

The Jets ran their American Little League won-lost record to 3-5 by edging the Colts, 4-3, here Thursday night. The Colts are now 2-5.

Barry McGonagill went all the way on the mound for the Jets, yielding nine hits. Wayne Dickens, the losing pitcher, surrendered only six safeties but the Jets concentrated a lot of their fire power in the third inning, at which time they scored three times.

Comets Nudge Sabres, 6-5

The Comets rallied with one out in the final inning to topple the Sabres, 6-5, in an International Little League game here Wednesday night.

Paul Pascale walked for the Comets in that round. Donnie Cockrell followed with a single and Danny David hit a one-baser to load up the sacks.

Claude Jenkins, who returned to the lineup as a pinch hitter, then singled home Pascale to break up the game.

Hogan Casting Long Shadow In Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Ben Hogan cast a long shadow today as young Dave Stockton guided a wind-ruffled field into second round of the Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

Hogan flirted with a course record Thursday, stumbled at the threshold, and relinquished the first-round lead to Stockton, who equaled the record with a 65.

Gary Goswick Stars In Win

Gary Goswick played a major role in the Devils' 5-3 victory over the Wildcats in National Little League play here Thursday night.

Goswick limited the Cats to four hits and banged out two of his own team's six safeties.

Gary Hundley also had two hits for the winners.

The game was productive for Brent Clifton of the Wildcats, too. He pitched part of the game and wound up with two hits.

Al Valdes Jr., timed his only hit of the night perfectly. He connected with the bases loaded to tie the score in the first inning at 2-2. Valdes also contributed a fielding gem when he stopped a Wildcat rally by spearing a ground ball at second base and diving for the bag in time to beat a runner at a time the opposition had the bases loaded. Two were out at the time.

ESTRADA IS TKO VICTIM

LOS ANGELES — Hard-punching Frankie Crawford of North Hollywood, Calif., forced Elio Estrada to go quit with a split lip in the ninth round of their scheduled ten-round bout here Thursday night but Estrada got a standing ovation from the crowd for his efforts.

Estrada is managed by Melton McMorris of the Tarzan community, Martin County, Texas. Both fighters weighed in at 127 pounds.

Quite probably, the two will be rematched sometime during the summer. Seven stitches were required to close the wound in Estrada's mouth.

Estrada carried the fight to his opponent and several times hurt Irish Frankie with his punches.

Public Receives One-Sided Story?

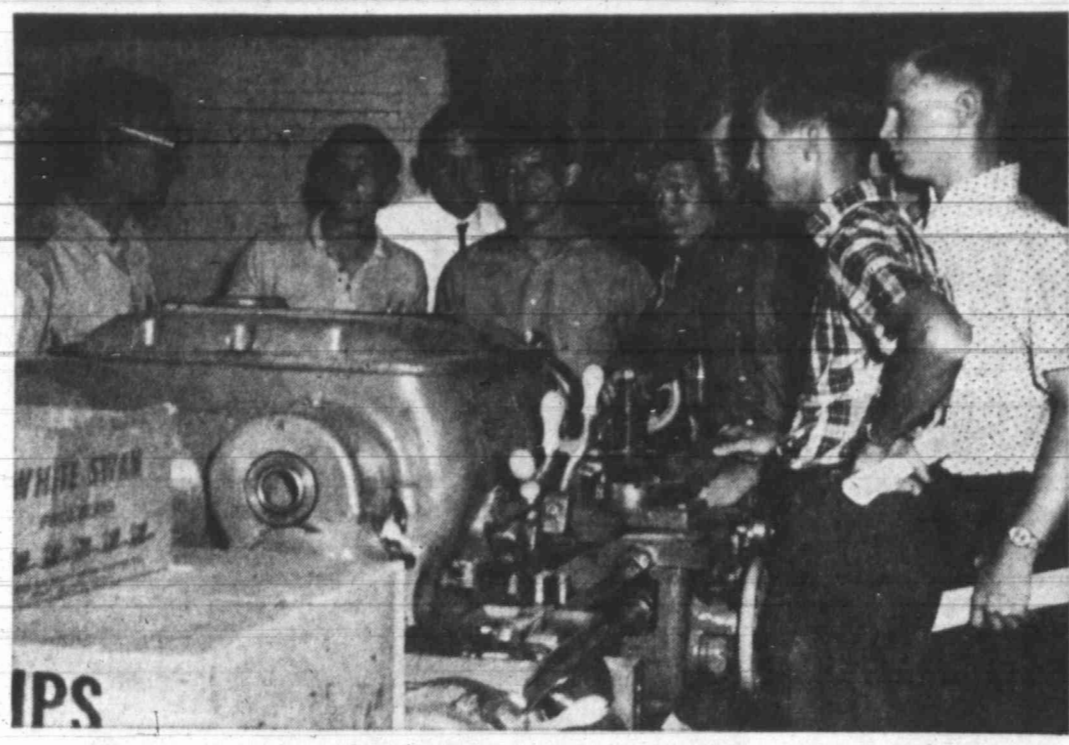

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the House Science and Astronautics Committee says the space agency has been unfairly criticized in the wake of the Jan. 27 Apollo spacecraft fire which killed three astronauts.

He told the National Space Club that NASA has acted to reduce the chances of another such accident.

Physical Conditioning Adds To Student's Work Program

The physical development and conditioning section (PD&C) of the 3561st Student Squadron at Webb AFB, a segment of the officer training branch, organizes and conducts a comprehensive physical training program for undergraduate pilot training.

The aims and objectives of the PD&C program are: to develop and maintain a high level of physical fitness for each officer student; to encourage regular and healthful exercise; and to foster an aggressive team spirit, to increase the confidence of the individual, to develop sportsmanship and to increase unit pride through participation in competitive athletics.

TRAINING
Each of the 16 sections of officer students are given three to four classes of training per week. A minimum of 125 hours in the following activities is given each student, according to requirements:

The first 10 hours consist of calisthenics, running, obstacle course, and other group conditioning exercises, that are intensified gradually, to improve physical fitness.

Prior to the tenth week of training, the student demonstrates his ability to meet the physical fitness standard prescribed by Air Force regulations.

The conditioning phase is culminated with a minimum of 14 hours in increased group conditioning exercises.

On completion of the physical conditioning phase, each student participates in four or more of the following team sports for a total of 25 hours: flickerball, softball and water polo.

After 45 weeks of training, the second and final test is given. Individual sports are scheduled in the afternoons as soon as a class finishes the conditioning phase, and continues on the one physical training period every other week basis throughout the program. A minimum of 16 hours in the following individual sports is participated in: golf, tennis, bowling, archery, gymnastics, handball and diving.

The 25 hours combative training course is conducted by qualified instructors and is given after a class has completed academics, in order to present a solid 25 hour block, for better continuity.

Officer Training Part Of Webb AFB Mission

The 3561st Student Squadron at Webb Air Force Base, is charged with the responsibility of providing administrative control along with academic and officer training instruction for all students in the pilot training program. The squadron is also responsible for the administrative control of airman performing duty with units assigned to the deputy commander for operations.

During a student's first week of pilot training, student squadron administrative personnel coordinate the many details necessary in entering a student in training, and — as is often the case — introducing him to his first tour of military duty. During this one week preflight period, the student has an opportunity to get settled while he begins to study and learn the procedures he will soon practice in flight.

The student squadron has 15 training officers, who supervise the training of the classes. The training officer flies instructional flights with students on a regular basis, provides classroom instruction in officer training subjects, conducts inspections, prepares all reports and ratings, monitors and frequently participates in physical training periods, and is responsible for the over-all coordination of training activities for his assigned class.

The objective of the officer training section is to develop junior officers so that they may assume responsibilities commensurate with their rank. The training officers not only teach officer training subjects, but are responsible annually for evaluating and rewriting the students study books.

All foreign officers are directly under the supervision of the student squadron.

During a year, eight pilot training classes pass through the pilot training program. Because of the need for more Air Force pilots, the student load per class has been growing and continues to grow. In 1964, the average load for a class beginning pilot training was 43. Each new class starts the program with 60 or more. The training officers of the 3561st student squadron are the direct supervisors of these 480 young officers.

Training Is Provided For Maintenance Crews

Field Training Detachment 420A, was formed at Webb Air Force Base Jan. 1, 1960. In March, 1963, the 331st converted to F-104 type aircraft. Personnel of the FTD were sent to Homestead AFB in Florida for proficiency training. In April, 1963, personnel returned to Webb as qualified instructors, and have been supporting the 331st since that time. In February, 1963, the detachment was given the additional responsibility of training maintenance personnel of the 3560th Pilot Training Wing (ATC) on the T-38 aircraft. In early 1965, the detachment was also given the responsibility of training personnel on the T-37 aircraft. Training on the three type of aircraft has been continuous since that time.
