CAIRO (AP)—Three air raid alerts sounded in Cairo today as the capital buzzed with rumors. Radios blared news of a headlong Israeli advance and called on Egyptians to keep fighting. Columns of Egyptian troops were observed in the vicinity of Cairo Airport, presumably to reinforce positions guarding runways and installations.

Fresh Troops?

An Egyptian resident of the western suburb of Heliopolis said several planes landed at the airport during an Israeli air raid. The planes apparently were bringing in fresh troops.

There were earlier reports that Algerian soldiers were on the way to help shore up Egypt's second defense line in the Sinai Peninsula. Damascus radio said Algerian troops had gone into action in Sinai for the first time.

The city was tense as the people heard announcements of the Israeli advance in the desert east of the Suez Canal.

"Impossible," said an English-speaking office worker as the radio announced Egyptian forces had given up Sharm el Sheikh, the vital Red Sea post controlling the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba.

"The Israelis cannot get that far that fast." People listened sullenly to the reports over their transistor sets.

'I Do Not Worry'

"I do not worry," said one Arab who had recently arrived from Yemen, another scene of Middle East fighting. "I am sure that there is some smart strategy behind all this letting the Israelis come into Egypt. Once all the Jews are in, maybe our men will suddenly strike. They will cut them off and that will be the end."

The atmosphere of gloom deepened Wednesday night as arrivals from Suez told of a steady stream of Egyptian army trucks heading westward away from the battlefield. They saw none going the other way.

Nasser Called Hero

But although the drastic setback for the Egyptian military became more apparent with each broadcast report, the popularity of President Gamal Abdel Nasser remained high. Truckloads of youths rolled through the city chanting Nasser's name and proclaiming him the "hero in the struggle against Israel and imperialism."

A deep-throated voice recited Koran verses as the sun set beyond the Nile River.

"Martyrs who die for the Arab cause are never dead," one of the verses read.

In the fading light one could still make out a red poster glued to the wall of an office building. It showed five black bayonets descending upon a dwarfish figure. The midge was supposed to be an Israeli soldier, his steel helmet covering part of a face twisted by anxiety.

Mob Action Fears

In between communique tellings of Egyptian military regroupings and fighting deep inside the Sinai Peninsula came a flood of anti-American invective. "Ghadab, Ghadab, Ghadab," the radio announcer shouted.

"Ghadab," means anger, wrath or fury. There was mounting fear among Westerners of mob action.

"Do you think we should move into one of the big hotels in the city?" asked a European housewife in Heliopolis, a suburb on the eastern outskirts of Cairo where it would be difficult to control crowds.

Americans Guarded

More than 85 American internees were being held under guard at a downtown hotel waiting for a train to take them to Alexandria, Egypt's port on the Mediterranean. They included oil men, teachers, some tourists, and 24 news correspondents. The newsmen could receive visitors and telephone calls but were not permitted to phone out of the hotel.

Aggie Barbecue Tonight

The serving line opens at 7 p.m. today in the City Park amphitheatre for the 15th annual A&M Scholarship Barbecue. Residents are urged to attend the outing and tickets will be on sale at the door, at $1.50, with children under 12 admitted free. The scholarship winner for this year will be announced during the event, according to Alton Marwitz, president of the Big Spring A&M Club.

Israeli Attack Mistake Kills Four Americans

Soviet Vessel Warned

ABOARD CARRIER AMERICA IN THE MEDITERRANEAN (AP)—As many as six and possibly seven Soviet vessels roamed near U.S. ships off Crete at times Wednesday. The commander of the 6th Fleet warned one to clear out of the Navy's way and "discontinue your interference and unsafe practices."

Vice Admiral William I. Martin directed the message by flashing light and a voice radio broadcast in English and Russian after Soviet guided missile destroyer No. 381 approached within 150 yards of a destroyer serving as a buffer for this 77,000-ton air-craft carrier.

At one point or another, four Soviet ships were visible from the America, the heart of a 6th Fleet task group which has steamed off Crete while awaiting possible duty in the Middle East situation.

At nightfall anti-submarine warfare helicopters tracked a possible submarine through the use of sonar. The unidentified object was followed more than an hour.

At dawn today a Soviet cruiser moved within a few miles of the U.S. task group. It was not immediately clear whether she was joining or replacing the missile destroyer in shadowing the fleet, or merely passing through.

NO EVIDENCE
Sources speculated today the 6th fleet might assist the United Nations in policing any truce it arranges.

Despite Arab claims, there is no evidence to indicate that any U.S. 6th Fleet planes aided Israel in the air.

Wednesday night, Adm. Martin said "it would have been impossible" for his aircraft to fly support missions for Israel.

Johnson also said in a message to Congress early this year that he would direct establishment of a system of selecting draftees at random by Jan. 1, 1969.

He now holds authority to do so but the compromise bill specifies that only Congress, which has been cool to the lottery idea, could bring about such a change.

The House version of the draft extension bill would have given Congress only a veto power over such a step initiated by the President.

MED DEFERMENTS
Both houses rejected earlier a presidential proposal that could have led to consolidation on a regional basis of the 4,000 local draft boards.

The conferees scrapped a House plan to establish a national advisory board on deferments and another House proposal to set up national standards for selecting inductees.

Local boards comprised of citizens now choose those who are to be inducted. There have been some complaints of a lack of uniform application of existing regulations.

The compromise bill would empower the President to recommend standards but they would not be binding on local boards.

Existing presidential authority to specify which postgraduate students are deferred would not be changed. The President has said he plans to limit such deferments to medical and dental students.

Draft Bill Okay Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise draft extension bill, including a provision that would strip the President of his power to order a lottery induction system, appears headed for prompt congressional approval.

Final action on the measure, which would extend the draft law four years beyond the scheduled June 30 expiration date, could come by early next week.

House-Senate conferees resolved differences Wednesday in separate measures passed by the two branches.

The compromise version was returned to both houses for final action.

INEQUITIES
The legislation provides for continuing present deferments for college undergraduates and does not change the President's authority, which he says he'll use, to reverse the present induction order and call up 19-year-olds first.

The President has blamed student deferments for draft inequities and urged they be tightened. But he did not recommend specific changes.

Bank Gunwoman Nabbed In Waco

WACO, Tex. (AP) — A woman with a gun held up a bank in downtown Waco today but was captured as she tried to escape in a car.

A vice president of the Citizens National Bank, Hart Nance, said about $7,500 was taken and all of the money was recovered. He said the gunwoman pulled a gun, and then handed a teller a note, ordering the teller to hand over large bills.

She fled in a car, but the license number was obtained and the woman, clad in levis, was arrested a short time later.

Israeli Supply Lines Might Be Overextended

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military analysts say Israeli army supply lines might be dangerously overextended if its armored columns push across the Suez Canal and deep into Egypt.

Although Israeli spearheads may extend 180 miles from the Israeli border, analysts here do not consider supply and communication links strained or exposed.

But U.S. experts said Israeli tank and infantry brigades must stop soon to mop up remnants of the Egyptian army believed scattered behind them all across the rugged, arid Sinai.

OIL FLOW
This cleaning up is essential to secure an uninterrupted flow of gasoline, oil, ammunition, drinking water and food to forward combat elements.

Israeli columns hurried toward the Suez Canal along a few paved roads and many rough desert tracks.

Following behind the tanks, armored infantry halftracks and self-propelled artillery after the way is clear are convoys of trucks — many of them civilian vehicles driven by their army reservist owners. They bear the stuff to feed and power the advancing columns.

FAST OFFENSIVE
Israeli doctrine features fast-

moving offense as the basic tactic from the outset of the war, and the supply units are organized to keep pace.

American officers said it would be risky for the Israelis to carry their offensive across the Suez Canal and deep into Egypt.

They noted that, unlike the sparsely populated Sinai, the routes leading to Cairo pass through increasingly populous country.

In such a hostile populated area, the Israelis would have to leave behind forces to guard their ever-lengthening lines of communication and supply.

They also would have to position forces to defend their bridgehead across the canal or the Gulf of Suez, and this would weaken spearhead elements in the face of probable stiffening resistance.

ROADS GOOD
Cairo can be reached from two directions on fairly good roads — one extending about 130 miles from the head of the Gulf of Suez and the other about 140 miles from Ismailia, an Egyptian city astride the canal.

A move to Cairo would nearly double the distance supplies would have to travel from the Israeli border to advance combat units.

The Israelis have been credited with one enormous advantage — air superiority which will spare their supply columns from strafing or bombing.

PULLED BACK
U.S. military authorities said supply links to Israeli forces at the southern tip of the Sinai Peninsula well over 100 miles from Elath, on the Gulf of Aqaba, are probably secure already.

Egyptian forces are reported to have pulled back from that sector toward the other side of the Suez Canal.

U.S. military professionals anticipated Israeli armor and infantry would carry their offensive as far as the east bank of the Suez Canal but would not go beyond.

TANKS BLASTED
U.S. military men who have studied reports from attaches and other American representatives in the Middle East say they now believe the Israelis were pretty close to the mark in claiming destruction of more than 400 Arab airplanes in the opening stages of the war.

There still is no accurate estimate here of the number of tanks destroyed or captured by the Israelis.

Some American officers said they thought the Israeli claim of knocking out or seizing 200 Egyptian tanks may have been conservative.

DURING SINAI DESERT DASH

Israeli Troops Skip Booty

WITH ISRAELI FORCES IN SINAI (AP) — Israeli armored forces dashing across the Sinai desert left the roads behind them littered with charred tanks, smoldering trucks and huge quantities of boots and booty.

The Israelis had not the time yet to count or even collect the dead from the roadsides and sand dunes.

While the armored columns and the long support columns behind them swung westward along the coastal highway from El Arish and a parallel axis from Abu Agella, the main traffic in the opposite direction was that of scores of trucks filled with prisoners of war.

AIR VICTORY
Overhead the Israeli air force was in command of the Sinai skies, swooping on Egyptian columns without challenge in the air.

"Israel won the war in the air against her enemies in less than four hours on the first day of this war," said Col. Yeruham, who took command of the captured El Arish airfield.

"How," asked a reporter.

"Join the Israeli air force and you'll learn how," the colonel replied.

SOVIET GUNS
At this airstrip reporters saw six MIGs and one IL14 destroyed on the ground. Today the field was being used mainly for flying wounded to hospitals in the rear.

The time element in this three-day-long war has been a crucial factor. For the Egyptians the pace was much too hot. In the ochre sands of Sinai lie literally hundreds of Soviet tanks, trucks, guns and an assorted mass of other military equipment.

Much of this hardware is still intact as its owners had not the time to destroy it. Judging by the boots and socks discarded, the soldiers who were meant to man it ran off into the desert.

But many hundreds did not even have time for this. Israeli military sources said the Egyptians have lost "well over 200 tanks." No figures were available on Israel's tank losses, but these too were considerable.

The Egyptian tanks were Soviet T34 and T34 and British Centurions. Many were simply used as artillery pieces, as they were dug in turret deep.

The wrecked Israeli tanks were American Pattons, Sherburnes and Centurions. A French AMX13 was blasted by a mine in view of a busload of journalists traveling in the opposite direction.

SNIPERS
Pillboxes and labyrinths of silt trenches along heights, built with concrete in the dunes, commanded approaches to Sinai towns and strongholds. They were death traps for the troops inside them.

It was here Wednesday that a trapped commando lifted his hands and when told to advance, suddenly threw a hand grenade into a halftrack, killing seven Israeli infantrymen.

Torpedo Ships, Planes Blast U.S. Vessel

By The Associated Press

A U.S. Navy vessel was attacked mistakenly Thursday by Israeli torpedo boats and planes in the Mediterranean about 15 miles north of the Sinai peninsula and the Pentagon announced in Washington that four Americans perished and 53 were wounded.

The vessel was identified as the USS Liberty, a technical research ship in position to assure communications for U.S. government posts in the Middle East. She carried a crew of 297 and suffered at least one torpedo hit. The Pentagon said the Israeli government had informed Washington the attack was made in error and apologized.

STIFF RESISTANCE

Egyptian forces threw up stiff resistance to Israeli troops in the western Sinai desert, but there was a cease-fire on the Jordanian front. The Israelis said they had seized all of Palestine west of the Jordan river and the Dead Sea, extending their boundary to that of pre-1948 Palestine.

At U.S. request, the United Nations Security Council was summoned into emergency session to consider further action to stop the war.

After announcing Wednesday that its forces in Sinai had fallen back to their second line of defense, the Arab High Command claimed today that its planes had wiped out an Israeli armored unit advancing on a coastal road behind El Arish and resistance inside El Arish was continuing. El Arish, only 30 miles inside Sinai from Israel, fell to the Israelis on Monday, and the Israeli drive since has been reported far west of it.

MIXED EMOTIONS
The mood in Cairo was one of sullen despondency alternating with optimism at the occasional radio claims of local successes and the proclamations of defiance.

Arrivals from the Suez area told of hundreds of Egyptian army trucks streaming westward and none going east. The Egyptian capital bristled with troops and some army units were reported digging in along the eastern Nile Valley, 40 miles east of the Suez Canal.

Israel was silent about the situation on the Syrian front, on its northeast, where Damascus Radio had claimed Wednesday that Syrian forces were advancing through Israeli villages in northern Galilee.

SYRIAN CLAIMS
Today the Syrian radio claimed that Syrian guns shot down five Israeli bombers within half an hour in a battle that began at dawn.

Americans continued to stream out of the Middle East in the wake of the widespread break in diplomatic relations between Arab governments and the United States. A group of 62 arrived in Tehran from Iraq. Nearly 300 from Lebanon got to Cyprus by ship to take planes for Athens. The U.S. Embassy in Algiers ordered the 642 Americans in Algeria to leave.

Lebanon was the latest government to show its displeasure with the Western powers but stopped short of a break in relations. Instead it ordered the British and American ambassadors out of Beirut and said it was recalling its ambassadors from London and Washington.

Seven other countries broke relations with the United States: Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Yemen, Algeria, Sudan and Mauritania.

WHOLESALE BREAK
The wholesale break stemmed from an Egyptian charge that U.S. and British planes had attacked Egypt and Jordan during the first day of fighting Monday.

Cairo Radio had said King Hussein of Jordan told Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser the planes were detected on Jordanian radars, but qualified sources in the British Embassy in Amman and in the Jordanian government said Hussein's government had informed the U.S. and British embassies Wednesday that no British or American planes had been observed over

Sheriff's Deputy Killer Punishment Set At 99 Years

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—An 11-man, one-woman jury Wednesday convicted Larry Wayne Ihlenfeldt of gunning down a sheriff's deputy trying to serve him with a hot check warrant and fixed punishment at 99 years in jail.

The verdict in the case of the 26-year-old Ihlenfeldt came after three hours' jury deliberation on the eighth day of his trial.

Travis County Dist. Atty. Tom Blackwell had sought the death penalty for Ihlenfeldt, who fatally wounded Deputy Benny Berry Feb. 1 as Berry and another officer came to his Austin home to serve a warrant.

New Method To Figure Rate For Compensation

The change from a "separation" to a "cost" system of determining employers' unemployment compensation tax rate is one of the most important of the amendments to the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act passed by the 60th Legislature and signed into law by Gov. Connally, believes Sherman Birdwell, Texas Employment commissioner representing employers.

"The new legislation gives Texas employers their first true cost basis for determining unemployment insurance rates since it will base rates on actual benefits paid to former employees," Birdwell said.

According to Birdwell, two factors will determine an employer's tax rate under the "cost" system. One is the employer's "benefit ratio," which is the total of benefits paid to his former employees during the three years preceding the annual Oct. 1 rate computation date divided by his total taxable payroll for that same period.

For example, if his total taxable wages during the three-year period were $100,000 and his former employees had drawn $1,000 in benefits charged back to him, his "benefit ratio" would be $1,000 divided by $100,000, or one per cent.

The other factor is the "replenishment ratio," a statewide factor designed to move employer rates up and down in accordance with the "replenishment" needs of the state's unemployment insurance trust fund. It is the net amount of benefits paid to all claimants during the year preceding the annual October rate computation month divided by the total amount of benefits charged back to all employers during that period.

In other words, the "replenishment ratio" is the ratio of total benefits charged back statewide to total benefits paid. It will be stated as a ratio ranging from 1 to 1.6 and will combine with individual employers benefit ratio to determine individual rates from a table written into the law.

Under the amendments, "chargebacks" will be benefits actually paid to the claimant from the trust fund rather than wages paid to him during the qualifying year as under the present system. The replenishment ratio will replace the present state experience factor, which is the ratio of total benefit wages (or "chargebacks") to total benefits paid statewide.

"As benefits are paid which are not 'charged back' to employers, this denominator will become smaller and the ratio will obviously become larger, thus raising rates statewide to prevent drainage of the trust fund through excessive uncharged benefits," Birdwell explained.

Traditional Hawaiian Dance

Hula dancers in Hawaii, clad in ti-leaf skirts, perform the hand and hip movements to one of the Islands' tale-telling songs. In Hawaii, it's the hands which tell the story, while in Tahiti it's the hips that count. Passengers will see many hula dancers during the Matson liner Monterey's calls at Honolulu as part of the South Seas cruise tour.

Honolulu Stars As A Major World Tourist Attraction

Honolulu, the "crossroads of the Pacific" and the world's most dreamed-of vacation spot, is a bustling center of tourism, commerce and industry and at the same time Oahu, on which the city is situated, is a serene, tropical isle on which to enjoy a restful vacation.

Members of The Herald-sponsored South Pacific cruise tour in July will see both "faces" of Oahu Island when the Matson liner Mariposa calls at cosmopolitan Honolulu as part of the 42-day holiday trip.

Hawaii is one of the world's fastest growing vacation meccas and Honolulu is its hub. Along with traditional sights such as Pearl Harbor, Diamond Head and Waikiki Beach, are such comparatively new attractions as Sea Life Park, the Polynesian Cultural Center and the Hawaii Wax Museum.

Sea Life Park features trained porpoises, dolphins and whales, heard on entertaining exhibitions every day. The Park also is the center for scientific study of Pacific marine life.

The Polynesian Cultural Center comprises six South Sea villages, inhabited by natives of Tahiti, Fiji, Tonga, New Zealand, Samoa and Hawaii. They demonstrate the arts, crafts, songs and dances of their native lands as practiced in the days of their ancestors.

WAIKIKI
A good share of Honolulu's fun and excitement is concentrated in the three-mile stretch of famed Waikiki. Kalakaua Ave., which runs through the heart of Waikiki, offers a wide selection of hotels, shops, restaurants and night clubs.

The Ala Moana Shopping Center, not far from Waikiki, is a modern complex of department stores, shops and restaurants. Oahu's "quiet side" is best experienced by driving around the island. Your car winds beneath steep cliffs, jagged mountain peaks, past the geyser-like Blow Hole, along the rims of peaceful bays and through lush fields of pineapple and sugar cane.

MIXTURE
The colorful mixture of people who have settled in Honolulu is as interesting and diverse as the scenery. The city of 700,000 is as languorous as Polynesia, exotic as the Orient and as American as "Yankee Doodle."

The Oriental heritage of the 50th state dates back more than a century when immigrants from China, Japan and later, Korea, arrived to help produce sugar cane. Its Polynesian history is as old as the Pacific itself. New Zealand's Maoris, the original Polynesians, sailed their outrigger canoes (via Tahiti) to Hawaii in the 13th century.

Other ports of call on the South Pacific tour of the Mariposa are Bora Bora, Tahiti, Rarotonga, Auckland, Sydney, Noumea, Suva, and Nuafo'ou (better known as "Tin Can Island").

Dry Pacific Front Pokes West Texas

Associated Press Sports Writer
A dry Pacific weather front too weak to cause any noticeable cooling crawled across West Texas along a north-south line today.

Skies were virtually cloudless throughout the state and light to moderate south breezes fanned most sections.

Behind the dissipating front, early morning temperatures sank to 55 degrees at Dalhart and 58 at Amarillo. El Paso cooled only to 73 before the mercury started back up.

Aside from a prospect of isolated thunderstorms in the Panhandle and a few showers near the coast, forecasts promised nothing but warm weather everywhere in Texas.

Top readings Wednesday ranged up to 102 at Presidio in the Big Bend country.

Midland recorded 99, Wink 98, Childress 97, Laredo 96, San Angelo 94, Abilene, El Paso and Junction 93, San Antonio 92, Victoria 91 and Alpine and Brownsville 90.

Syria Boots Two Newsmen

CHTAURA, Lebanon (AP)—Associated Press Correspondent David Lancashire and Finlay Campbell of the British Regional News Service were expelled from Syria today after being held 13 hours in a Damascus jail for sending news stories on the Arab-Israeli war.

Lancashire, a Canadian, and Campbell, a Scot, were driven to the Lebanese border in a sealed police truck. They were escorted by three armed policemen.

The two correspondents were arrested in their Damascus hotel Wednesday night, taken to a military headquarters for questioning and then spent the night on the floor of a cement prison cell together with eight Syrian prisoners.

The only furniture in the cell was a wooden bench. The Syrian prisoners included pickpockets and men arrested for lacking documents.

Lancashire and Campbell said they were courteously treated by interrogating army officers who gave them a cup of tea.

Leukemia Lad Gains Ground

DALLAS (AP)—Frankie Hays, 9, who appeared to have made medical history before leukemia cells again cropped up in his bloodstream, again is gaining ground in his fight with the dread disease.

The boy, a spokesman for the Wadley Institute here said, is in fair condition and is being treated with a new drug, L-Asparaginase.

Dudley Rouse, public information officer of the institute, said the youth "looks good, has a good appetite and should be able to return home in two or three weeks."

April 1 of this year Wadley announced that little Frankie, son of a Dallas salesman, had shaken off an advanced case of leukemia after receiving L-Asparaginase. More than a month later, however, new leukemia cells were found in his bloodstream and the boy was hospitalized May 18 in poor condition.

Rouse said the youth will continue the L-Asparaginase therapy in visits to the hospital after he returns home.

Keys To City?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police today sought a thief who made off with 10 keys that unlock every parking meter in Los Angeles County.

Floyd W. Gary, 29, a county parking meter collector, told sheriff's deputies that his truck was stolen after he left it briefly at an intersection Tuesday.

The unlocked panel truck also contained $400 in change.

America's Spacemen Pay Homage To Dead Comrade

Escapes

Charles E. Bohlen, U.S. Ambassador to France, was driven away unharmed Wednesday after a Polish emigre armed with a long knife tried to enter his car in Paris. The incident was disclosed today. The suspect was quoted by police as saying he had planned to assassinate Bohlen. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Centers For Education Set

Marlin L. Brockette, former superintendent of the Orange Independent School District, has been appointed assistant commissioner of education for Regional Education Service Centers at the Texas Education Agency. Education Service Centers represent a new development in Texas education, explains Dr. J. W. Edgar, Texas commissioner of education. The state plan for their implementation calls for 20 of them to be located regionally throughout Texas in Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, Edinburg, El Paso, Fort Worth, Houston, Lubbock, Madisonville, Midland, Mount Pleasant, Plano, San Angelo, San Antonio, Tyler, Victoria, Waco, and Wichita Falls. When established, these Education Service Centers will provide for the establishment of the Regional Education Centers authorized by the Fifty-ninth Legislature; 2) coordinate and encourage development of supplemental educational services and centers under Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 in accordance with state law and policies of the United States Office of Education; and 3) provide a locally oriented base for state-wide educational planning.

Through the media services, these regional centers will provide participating school districts with such visual aids as motion pictures and slides, a magnetic tape duplicating service for audio and video tapes, and a visual duplication service to reproduce transparencies and filmstrips.

HOUSTON (AP) — America's spacemen paid homage today to a dead comrade of the air, Air Force Maj. Edward G. Givens Jr., the seventh from their ranks to die within three years.

Memorial services were held at the Seabrook Methodist Church, a few miles down the road from the Manned Spacecraft Center, training base for astronauts.

Givens, 37, a rookie astronaut and the father of three, died early Tuesday when his car plunged off a road into a ditch in suburban Pearland.

ATTACK

Jordanian territory during the fight.

The U.S. and British governments denied the Egyptian charge repeatedly, calling it a malicious fabrication. Today the Egyptian Communiqué charged that Egyptian troops had observed three U.S. Air Force planes heading south this morning to "undertake reconnaissance operations for Israel."

Although the Israelis accepted Jordan's offer of a cease-fire, Egypt vowed to fight on despite a second truce call from the U.N. Security Council.

An Israeli army spokesman said Egyptian and Israeli infantry units were still fighting at Bir Gif Gata, about 45 miles east of the Suez Canal on the central highway through Sinai. He reported the Israelis were also meeting tough resistance at the Mitla Pass, just east of the city of Suez and the southern end of the canal.

The Israeli government announced its forces had taken over Jordan's Hebron Hills south of Jerusalem and reached the Dead Sea. Earlier they had reported capture of the Jordanian bulge north of Jerusalem and west of the Jordan River. But Old Jerusalem, despite its capture Wednesday, was still out of bounds to all civilians because some isolated pockets of snipers remained, and some sniping also was reported on the road from Jerusalem to Bethlehem.

Israels forces held key points in vast stretches of Egypt's Sinai Desert including eastern approaches to the Suez Canal and Israel's main objectives, Sharm el Sheikh overlooking the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba. But an Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv categorically denied that Israeli troops were on the banks of the canal despite a report from Israel's delegation to the U.N. Wednesday night that Israeli troops had entered Ismailia, at the midpoint of the canal.

Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, the Israeli defense minister, told newsmen Wednesday: "It is not and was not our aim to go to the Suez Canal. Why go there and get involved in something that is not our business?"

Apparently digging in for the protracted negotiations that are certain to follow the end of the fighting, the Israeli government named Brig. Gen. Haim Herzog commander of its troops in the area taken from Jordan and Gen. Moshe Goren to command the Gaza Strip and the northern Sinai Peninsula.

DEATHS

Graveside rites for Mrs. Nell Margaret Harvey, 71, who died Monday in an Andrews hospital following a week's illness, will be held Friday at 2:30 p.m. with Rev. Francis B. Beazley, pastor of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church, officiating. Burial will be in the City Cemetery under the direction of Singleton Funeral Home, Andrews. River Welch Funeral Home is handling local arrangements.

Mrs. Williams, Dawson Resident

LAMESA (SC) — Mrs. Ida May Williams, 87, died at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Medical Arts Hospital here after a long illness. Survivors include a son, John H. Williams, of Abilene; a grandchild; and three great-grandchildren.

CARD OF THANKS

Our hearts are so full and words seem so futile to tell you how we feel because of your words of sympathy and love, your acts of thoughtfulness including food, the flowers which remind us of our loved one, and the gifts to missions and other benevolences which will continue to flower in his memory. May the peace of God be in your heart as it was in his. Mrs. Leroy LeFevre and Family Mrs. Zirah LeFevre Jay and Zay LeFevre

BIG DREAMS

The Rev. Dallas Lee of Quanah, Tex., Givens' hometown, eulogized the astronaut as a man of outstanding accomplishments and honors and who "dreamed bigger dreams."

"He dreamed of the moon. He wanted to go to the moon," he said. "Life to him was dreams and challenges and a strive for the other side."

Givens will be buried Friday at Quanah, in Northwest Texas, after services at that town's First Baptist Church at 2:30 p.m. The body was to be flown to Quanah by way of Childress, Tex., this afternoon in an Air Force transport escorted by fellow astronaut, Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas Stafford.

About 300 members of the space community, including many of the astronauts, joined the family in mourning Givens' loss.

FINAL SALUTE

The modernistic church had been the site for four previous memorial services, including Tuesday when his car plunged off a road into a ditch in suburban Pearland.

McMahon Jr. To Assist Campaign

Clyde McMahon Jr. has been named vice chairman of the United Fund campaign this autumn, Dick Ream, UF president, has announced. Previously, Harold Davis had been selected campaign chairman. The leaders will begin to shape their organization before long, Ream indicated. Although the United Fund appeal comes in the autumn, much of the ground work is laid during the summer months.

Police Course Slated Here

The Big Spring Police Department will host a criminal law and procedures course June 19-30, taught by Texas Engineering Extension Service staffers.

Roland R. Howerton, instructor, will be assisted by Wallace Beasley, coordinator of police training for TEES. Beasley said classes are set from 9 to 11 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m. at the Big Spring Police Department.

Big Spring Police Chief Jay Banks has charge of registration.

Among topics of the school are laws of arrest, search and seizure, evidence, and analysis of specific statutes, including burglary, theft, robbery, murder, vagrancy, gaming and negligent homicide.

Banks said he is urging all personnel to enroll in the course, as well as reserve officers. Officers must attend one of the two classes offered each day for the full two weeks in order to complete the course.

Two Guilty Pleas Heard

Two pleas of guilty were heard in 11th District Court by Judge R. W. Caton Wednesday afternoon.

At Stanton, Edward Briones, charged with theft of a pickup, received three years in prison. He had taken a pickup at Stanton and made his way to Guthrie, where he took off through the brush on foot when the truck ran out of gasoline. The sheriff thereby went into action on horseback and captured the fleeing Briones.

Later, Judge Caton heard the case of D. M. Rembert, 46, who had been billed for theft by false pretenses. This was in connection with passing a worthless check.

Two Prisoners Go To Huntsville

Deputy Sheriff Sam Roberts took two prisoners to the state prison at Huntsville today. They were William Lee Nichols, 35, who had been sentenced to two years for felony swindle, and D. M. Rembert, 46, also sentenced for two years on a similar count. Roberts was to return by way of Houston to pick up Ira Grayson, wanted here on a warrant charging DWI. Grayson had been free on bond but his bondsman wanted off the bond.

He has been in Big Spring since Monday and has given a two hour program three times a day for employees of the Big Spring State Hospital. He listed carelessness, negligence, ignorance and hard-headedness as the four primary causes of fire and pointed out the United States is the leader of nations with fire loss estimated at $8.50 per person annually. ## Plainview Man's Visit Here To Be Extended

Robert Jennings, 44, of Plainview, allegedly went visiting Wednesday afternoon, but today he was where he couldn't visit much. Jennings was arrested near Third and Austin Wednesday evening after he had been identified by Mrs. Leroy Walker as the man she had seen emerging from the Walker farm home northeast of Big Spring. He was advised before Justice of Peace Walter Grice of his rights and then was charged Thursday morning with burglary. Grice fixed bond at $1,000.

Four Face LSD Sale Charges

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. Commissioner J. J. Brady has ordered four young men, who were arrested last month during drug raids in the University of Texas area, held for arraignment in federal court on charges of possession and sale of LSD and mescaline. Brady issued his order after preliminary hearings Wednesday. He dismissed charges stemming from the same raids against a young woman and a teenage boy after an agent of the Bureau of Drug Abuse Control could not give sufficient evidence against them.

Rev. McMillan Ordained In Presbytery Session

The Presbytery of the Southwest put its stamp of approval on Toney McMillan as a minister of the gospel at a session of an adjourned session of the presbytery here Tuesday. Seventy-five delegates attended. The Rev. McMillan, a graduate of Austin Presbyterian-Theological Seminary, will be installed by a commission at the First Presbyterian Church in El Dorado July 2. The Rev. Dan Sebesta, pastor of the St. Paul Church in Big Spring, and Dr. Glenn Allen, were included on the commission. Received under the care of the presbytery as candidates for the gospel ministry were Philip Hayes, First Presbyterian Church in Odessa, and Lewis Willis, First Presbyterian Church in San Angelo. The pastoral bonds with the Rev. Hubert Travis were dissolved and he was recommended to the John Knox Presbyterian which he has accepted a call to be pastor of the Yorktown Presbyterian Church. He has been at Sterling City for the past six years.

Coin Club Meet

All interested residents are invited to attend the meeting at 8 p.m. today of the Big Spring Coin Club, set in the Settles Hotel.

Cpl. Vigar Has Encouraging Word

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Vigar, 1612 Avion, have returned from Corpus Christi Naval Hospital with the encouraging word that their son, Lance Cpl. Larry Vigar may recover fully from battle wounds. Cpl. Vigar was hit by an unknown projectile on May 15 while in action near Quang Tri, Vietnam. He was flown back to the states and arrived in Corpus June 2. Mr. and Mrs. Vigar met him there the following day. Monday he underwent surgery and came through it fine. His wounds were described as internal and whatever struck him also damaged his hip about an inch from the spine. Larry called his parents after the surgery and said that his prospects were good but that he had a long time ahead in the hospital.

City Program Steadily Filling

The summer fun groups of the Citywide Recreational Program are steadily filling, and parents of children six years and older are urged to register their children for this free program.

This is made possible through the cooperation of the Big Spring Independent School District, the City of Big Spring, the United Fund and the YMCA. The only charge is $1 for material to be used in the arts and crafts work, but even this is no barrier if the child cannot pay it. Since the YMCA is the administrative agency for the program on behalf of the others, parents are asked to sign up for their children there.

Youngsters in the College Heights, Airport Hill, Marcy, Moss and Kirkwood school districts will take part in the Monday-Wednesday group. Those in the Cedar Crest, Boydston, Washington and Kentwood areas in the Tuesday-Thursday group. On alternate weeks, the groups will have Friday sessions. Activities include softball, dodgeball, relays, fitness contests, track and field events, quiet games, nature studies, arts and crafts, swimming, outdoor games, story telling, tumbling. The program will center at the City Park.

4-H Work Outlined

His work as assistant county agent was outlined to the Downtown Lions Club at noon Wednesday in the Settles by James Shelton.

Much of the activity centers around 4-H club work, said Shelton. Currently, the club members are pointing to feeding some 70 lambs, 30 barrows and 31 steers. All of the steers have been secured, about a third of the barrows and half the lambs, said Shelton.

From now until show time, he will work closely with the young feeders, advising on care, rations, grooming, etc. Then will come the big day when the animals are to be shown, and getting ready for this is "where the show may be won or lost," said Shelton.

Last year county feeders showed 31 steers and received $25,000 in prize money (including $9,000 for winning the SAN Antonio show alone). With farming becoming such a complex and expensive operation, educational programs are being stepped up, said Shelton. Part of the work performed by agents toward urban dwellers. There is a large volume of inquiries about care of lawns, garden-trees and about insect control, he added. He was presented to the club by Ludwig Grau.

Cyclist Escapes Serious Injury

Michael McMullen, 12, escaped serious injury this morning when his bicycle was in collision with a City of Big Spring car driven by R. V. (Skeet) Foresyth, superintendent of streets and sanitation.

The mishap occurred near Eighth at Owens about mid-morning, and an Alert Ambulance carried the youngster to the Webb AFB Hospital, where he was treated for a bruised shoulder and released. Police are investigating the accident.

The boy is the son of T. Sgt. and Mrs. Roy McMullen, 1468 E. 6th. Four minor accidents were reported Wednesday, none involving major damage or injury.

Flag Vote

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives today passed a resolution to amend the flag code, making it easier to desecrate the flag. The measure would allow the flag to be used as a tablecloth, a rug, or a pillow. It also would allow the flag to be used as a decorative object, such as a lampshade or a doormat.

Dear Abby Fathers Overdo It

DEAR ABBY: Our local Cub Scout pack had a pinewood derby race. Each boy was supposed to make a six-inch racing car from a block of wood and four wheels. The chairman of the project explained that the dads could "help" — but the kids were actually supposed to make the cars.

On the day of the race, only one kid showed up with a car that looked like he could have made it himself. All the other cars looked like they had been designed and constructed in Detroit. It was a farce. The children were only spectators. I welcome your comments, and those of your readers. — YUK

DEAR YUK: It's said. Projects that encourage fathers to spend more time with their growing sons are fine. But when a father takes over the project and submits it as the handwork of his son, he is giving the boy a lesson in dishonesty.

Then if his son gets in trouble with the law, this father is the first to cry. "Where have I failed? I have always done so much for that boy."

DEAR ABBY: In our office we have about 50 men and 50 women. Recently a good looking little chick of about 18 or 19 joined our ranks. She seems nice enough but she comes to work every day in a mini-skirt or a mini-dress — and I do mean mini!

Everyone agrees that she looks real cute in these outfits, but do you think this is appropriate dress for an office? How does one go about setting some limits on runaway hemlines?

WORKS HERE
DEAR WORKS: The office manager should call in an efficiency expert to calculate how many man hours are lost — "bird-watching" — and the cute little chick will be a dead duck.

DEAR ABBY: My 19-year-old son is in Vietnam with the Marines. The last five nights he was home he dated a girl (I'll call her Mary) every night. He barely knew her and never dated her before that. I was amazed to learn from his first letter that he had sent Mary an engagement ring. Mary is 18. Her mother consented to this. Her father is deceased.

I met Mary only once, briefly, at the airport when I saw my son off, so in an effort to get to know her better and be more friendly, I phoned her and invited her and her mother to my home for dinner. They declined. I called again, inviting them for lunch — or dinner, whichever was more convenient. They couldn't make it. After five tries, I gave up.

Meanwhile my son wrote asking if I had gotten together with Mary yet. I wrote and told him that I had tried five times but Mary couldn't make it. He must have written this to Mary because she called up and said that my son was going to be gone for 13 months and when he got back it would be time enough for us to "get together" — and I should quit bothering her. She was very rude.

I am presently up a tree. Mary is wearing my son's engagement ring, which I have never seen, and as far as I know, their "engagement" hasn't been officially announced. What do you suggest I do?

DEAR PERPLEXED: Nothing. Don't call her. And don't write one word about her to your son. Mary sounds hostile, immature, and aggressive. And as for your son — you should know him better than I do. I wish this couple luck. They will need it.

Four Texans War Victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department identified Wednesday four Texans killed in the Vietnam War.

Killed in action: Army — Spec 4 Michael D. George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton C. George, 3021 Avon, Dallas.

Marine Corps: Lance Cpl. Joe Montez, son of Mrs. Trinidad Montez, 1105 Vargas Rd., Austin; and Lance Cpl. Fidel Ramos Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fidel Ramos Sr., 1345 Hollywood, San Antonio.

Died of wounds: Marine Corps: Lance Cpl. Roberto Bocanegra, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earsmo Bocanegra, 1512 5th Ave., Crystal City.

U.S. Casualties In Viet Reflect Battle Slowdown

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. casualties in Vietnam dropped last week, reflecting a slowdown in the heavy fighting of recent weeks along the demilitarized zone and in the central highlands. Casualty tolls for South Vietnamese and enemy forces were higher than the previous week, however.

The U.S. Command said Thursday that 214 Americans were killed in action, 1,161 were wounded and one was missing or captured.

A week earlier the U.S. totals were 313 killed, 2,616 wounded and 12 missing — the highest combined American casualty toll of any week in the war.

Vietnamese military headquarters said 235 of its troops were killed last week and 55 were missing or captured. The Vietnam Command said 2,420 enemy were killed last week, compared with 2,209 in the previous week.

Other allied forces reported 15 men killed last week and 29 wounded, down from 29 killed and 50 wounded the week before.

The report raised the number of U.S. combat dead in the Vietnam war to 10,780 and the number of Americans wounded to 65,202 by unofficial tabulation.

U.S. spokesmen also reported that the number of U.S. military personnel in South Vietnam reached 462,000 last week, an increase of 7,000 over the previous week. The number of other non-Vietnamese allied forces remained the same at 54,000 and the estimated enemy strength in the country remained at 292,000.

Flag Burning Vote Booked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The way apparently has been cleared for the House to vote June 14 — Flag Day — on a bill making it a federal crime to desecrate the American flag.

The measure, primarily a result of anti-Vietnam war protests which feature flag-burning, won approval Tuesday from the House Judiciary Committee. It provides for a fine of up to $1,000 and a year in prison for violation. All the states have similar laws.

Not all the committee members approved the bill. A main argument against it is that it is vague and infringes on the First Amendment's guarantee of free speech.

Photographer Sets Sail For Africa

CHICAGO (AP) — Francis Brenton, 40, has sailed off onto Lake Michigan bound for West Africa.

Brenton, an adventurous photographer, figures it will take about five months for the 15,000-mile voyage in his 26-foot catamaran.

He will travel the Great Lakes from Chicago to Montreal then out the St. Lawrence River and across the North Atlantic.

Science And You The Newspaper For Spies

By DR. LEONARD REIFFEL

There's a very important and popular newspaper in the United States that few members of the general public read. It's called the Commerce Business Daily, published by the U.S. Department of Commerce. You can be assured that most people interested in research and development or military manufacture read it. You can also be sure that the intelligence units of every one of our enemies or potential enemies read it, too, and with considerable interest.

One can find all sorts of things in it. For example, in a recent issue there is an advertisement for the Navy for a package of research and development aimed at protecting Navy ships against attack by swimmers.

You can well imagine why this is important to the Navy. Just how would you move a large and very valuable ship close into shore, say in Vietnam, and be sure it was safe? A few Viet Cong dragging charges of TNT might just swim through all of your sophisticated defenses and plaster the TNT on the bottom of the ship.

What can be done about such threats? Well, one thing a sophisticated country like the United States can do is try to develop high-powered technology to detect such attacking swimmers. One obvious, probably pretty good way of detecting enemy swimmers is with sonar. But these are likely to be cumbersome, so the Navy wants something better. From its blurb in the Commerce Business Daily, it seems that the Navy is going to try to figure out ways to detect the swimmers with sound.

Detecting things under water with sound is a pretty common practice. It's general knowledge that one can use sonar to "ping" sound waves through the water. The "pings" echo off any object that is large enough and close enough, and thus provide warning.

But pinging, or merely listening, for a swimmer at some dis-

ARRIVES JULY 5 Tech Party Plans Visit

POLK ROBISON

Golf and fellowship will be high on the menu this summer when Texas Tech coaches and faculty members visit 15 area cities, including Big Spring.

The Tech delegation will descend upon Big Spring Wednesday, July 5, and will remain busy well into the evening.

The group will meet with the Lions Club at that organization's regular luncheon at the Settles Hotel, then repair to the Country Club for an afternoon of golf with ex-students and friends of the Lubbock university.

Following the golf, the group will attend a buffet supper at the Country Club's clubhouse, where talks will be offered by such individuals as Loyd Lanotte, Red Raider Club president; and Lee Jackson, the club's executive vice president, will be heard.

celebrated Donny Anderson, the former Red Raider All-American who was pro football's highest salaried star, will be with the group. Anderson spent a summer working out of here several years ago and made numberless friends.

"These trips are always one of the high points of the year for us," Lee Jackson said, in announcing the itinerary. "They provide an excellent opportunity for us to get better acquainted with fans throughout the area."

First stops on the tour will be at Seminole and Seagraves June 13 and Brownfield June 15.

Other towns on the schedule are Levelland June 20, Ralls June 22, Abernathy June 27, Tahoka June 29, Plainview July 6, Post July 11, Muleshoe July 12, Midland July 13, Amarillo July 18, Wichita Falls July 20, Slaton July 24 and Hobbs, N. M., July 25.

Others in the entourage will probably be Berl Huffman, Vernon Hilliard, Jim McNally, George Philbrick, Don Sparks, Burl Bartlett, Gene Henderson, John Conley (formerly of Snyder), Matt Lair, Bradley Mills (formerly of Odessa), Charles Lynch, Clyde Prestwood, Grant Teaff, Tom Wilson, Ralph Carpenter and Bill Holmes. The latter two are sports publicity men connected with the school.

JACKSON

In addition, action films of the Texas Tech-Arkansas 1966 football thriller will be screened. A questions-and-answers session will also be conducted by the dignitaries.

Joe L. Price heads up the local committee planning for the day of fun and business.

Price said the visit of the Tech group would serve to focus attention on a move to organize a local chapter of the Red Raider Club.

Tech athletic director Polk Robison, head football coach J. T. King and head basketball coach Gene Gibson will lead the Tech party into town and attend all the functions.

There is a bare possibility that the 19-year-old rookie said, "I thought he would either pop it up or hit a grounder. It was just one of those things."

In other National League action Pittsburgh blanked the New York Mets 3-0, the Chicago Cubs topped Philadelphia 3-1, Atlanta walloped Los Angeles 13-5 and Houston trounced St. Louis 17-1.

"He's just tremendous," Cincinnati Manager Dave Bristol said of Nolan who has won four of his five decisions. "I told him if he got Willie Mays, I would keep him in. He's such a man in every way you just have confidence in him and go along with him."

Nolan did get Mays. Willie came up in the eighth with Jesus Alou and Tom Haller on base via singles and went down on strikes for the fourth time. McCovey, who also was fanned twice by Nolan, then homered on the first pitch.

Lee came on to end the inning but ran into trouble right at the start of the ninth.

Hal Lanier led off with a single and advanced on a sacrifice. Pinch hitter Jim Davenport walked and, after Alou, who got four hits off Nolan, lined out, both runners advanced on a wild pitch.

Haller drove in the winning run when no play could be made on his high bouncer in front of the mound.

The Reds scored three runs off Juan Marchal in the sixth. Pete Rose homered for two of them. The other scored when Deron Johnson singled, went to second on a throwing error by Mays and came home on Tommy Helms' single.

Manny Mota drove in two runs with a bloop single and Willie Stargell homered in Pittsburgh's victory. Tommie Sisk, 4-3, went the route for the third time in the Pirates' last 36 games. No other Pittsburgh pitcher has completed a game in that stretch.

Ferguson Jenkins set Philadelphia down on three hits. Adolfo Phillips hit a solo homer and Billy Williams a two-run shot for Chicago. Tony Gonzalez homered for the Phillies.

Forsan To Play Vincent Club

FORSAN — Forsan's youthful baseball team, the Astros, meet Vincent at 7 o'clock here Friday night.

Earlier this week, the Astros dropped a practice tilt to the Knott Colts, 11-4. Knott won the game in an extra inning after the regulation contest ended at 4-4.

Managers of the Forsan team are Bobby Cowley, Don Murphy, Raymond Holguin and Elmer Patton.

A concessions stand will shortly be in operation at the diamond site. Profits will be used toward club expenses.

The Colts made it seven wins in 12 American Little League starts by turning back the Stars, 6-1, here Wednesday night.

Randy Dickens was in command of the situation all the way. He spaced six Star hits, two of which were authored by Guy Condra.

The win was the fifth in a row for the Colts, who might have made a serious run at the championship had they jelled earlier. As it is, they haven't yet counted themselves out of contention.

Bob Bryant of the Colts had only one hit in the game but it was a home run. Johnny Tonn

Small Fry Team Guest At Party

Members of the Falcon team of the International Minor Little League were guests at a hot dog party given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cain at their home, 702 Lorilla, earlier this week.

Sgt. Gene Shaw, who has been serving as assistant manager of the team, was one of the guests of honor. He and his family leave for assignment in Germany July 1.

Other adults present included Mr. and Mrs. Gene Bippus, Joe Jackson and Kay Bolen.

Two appropriately decorated cakes were served to the gathering. One of the cakes was topped by a miniature baseball diamond, the other honoring the departing Shaws.

Manager of the Falcons is Jack Phillips, who was also present. An estimated 20 boys were in attendance.

Buick Open Site Real Challenge

GRAND BLANC, Mich., (AP) — Buick Open defending champion Phil Rodgers was hopeful today that a friendly non-monster would make his golfing game well enough.

The stocky 29-year-old Californian — old minus the glamor of Ar-

Palmer, Player-Nicklaus trio, but also Masters champion Gay Brewer. All were reported tuning up for the national Open next week.

Tournament officials conceded that the condition of the course in the mid-year of a three-year renovation program was not the most attractive on the PGA tour this year.

Veteran Johnny Pratt, who has picked up $30,000, conceded that the course "is a little rough in spots, but is in real good shape if you consider the extent of the building program that has been going on here."

Former Buick champion Julius Boros seconded Sneed's opinion that the greens on the back side were a bit rough. Most of the greens were relocated and rebuilt this year.

The par 72 course, especially suitable for long drivers, also attracted former Buick Open champion Mike Souchak and Bill Collins, neither of whom has been at the top of their game this season.

Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player — in a four-day assault on long-playing Warwick Hills Country Club.

Often referred to by the pros as "The Monster," Warwick Hills remains one of the toughest challenges on the PGA tour, and virtually all the pros learned it the hard way Wednesday in a pro-am tuneup.

The 7,280-yard course was chopped to 7,126 this year, but the addition of 33 traps and several clusters of small trees sent the pros to the clubhouse talking to themselves.

"Those greens on the back nine are real rough," said veteran Sam Snead, unhappy with his back nine although he picked up three birdies coming on his tuneup round.

Rodgers parlayed a red hot putter into $68,000 in prize money on last season's PGA tour, including a $20,000 top money in the Buick Tournament. He has had nothing but troubles this year.

His earnings to date for 1967's tour totaled $9,600.

The field which set out after the $100,000 prize money was

The Lions picked up their second Sophomore Teenage league win in three starts by turning back the Angels, 12-0, here Wednesday night.

The league's 10-run rule was put into effect after 5 1/2 innings.

Dickie Stanley, who struck three hits in four attempts, received credit for the victory. In all, the Lions collected 11 hits, the Angels only three.

McCovey Zeros In On Redlegs' Nolan

By The Associated Press

Willie won't soon forget Gary Nolan, and Nolan will long remember Willie.

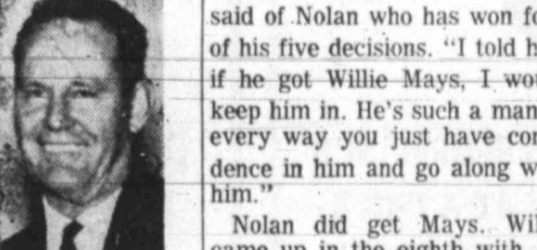

Willie Mays will remember the 12 pitches Nolan threw past him Wednesday night as chief victim of the young Cincinnati right-hander's 15-strikeout performance.

Nolan will remember Willie

McCovey for the one pitch he didn't throw past the San Francisco first baseman—McCovey hit it out of the park for a three-run homer to tie the game, which the Giants won 4-3 by scoring in the ninth inning off Bob Lee, who relieved Nolan after the one pitch.

"It was a good pitch I made to McCovey," the disconsolate

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

A lot of business people don't care for Daylight Saving Time. I'm sure, but managers of golf courses reason it should last the year around.

It's now possible to get in as many as 18 holes of play after 5 p.m., when some businesses close their doors for the day.

J. B. Wetsel, pro at the Muni course, says that facility's receipts jumped $1,100 during the first two months (April and May) of the new fiscal year.

The Muni is averaging better than 100 players a day now. There is no plan afoot to implement a schedule for starting times but no group larger than a foursome will be permitted to play the course.

In May alone, a total of 3,742 anted up their green fees at this city-owned layout.

Infielder Phil Linz, who gained the greatest fame in baseball by playing a harmonica at the wrong time, is chafing because he sits on the bench most of the time.

Acquired by the New York Mets recently, Linz described himself as:

"The best right-handed pinch-runner in the baseball history."

Linz was fined several years ago by Yogi Berra, then manager of the New York Yankees, for playing a harmonica on a team bus following a losing effort at a time the Yanks were in the throes of a losing streak.

When Dan LaGrasta, new head coach at San Angelo Central was sent a questionnaire recently which included a few lines for the listing of "most prominent losses," Dan filled in with the question that suggested mild panic:

"Are you kidding?"

San Angelo, which paraded to the state championship last fall, must make do without something like 26 veterans.

If your son is aiming for a career in athletics and covets the longevity that brings with it pension rights and other fringe benefits, it might be advisable for him to shorten his name if it happens to be something like Jabberwocky Shadrack Millers-ton.

I would suggest maybe names like Don Dee or Joe Fa or even Ed U.

My logic is simple. Sure handles fit in headlines. Long names don't. You can be short a Don Lee or an Ed U. will get the full treatment with the headline writers in newspapers, even though the Jabberwocky Millerstons might make a greater effort toward the club's success.

The working stiffs in the Fourth Estate cater to names that have a ring to them, too, those that roll easily off the tongue.

Cassius Clay has an aristocratic sound in boxing, even though he had to go and ruin it with his demeanor outside the ring. And sports buffs adore heroes like Arnold Palmer, Mickey Mantle and Ben Hogan because the writers find such names easy to put in headlines and because such monikers are easy to remember.

Don McDonald, the Texas A&I basketball mentor, has been in and out of Big Spring for the past several weeks, disposing of his property and getting his family moved.

McDonald, who guided the Big Spring Steers to a record season for victories the past year, says it will probably take him two or three years to build up the Javelinas into a Lone Star Conference power, although he has most of his club back from last year.

Don asked an area athlete down to Kingsville for an interview about a scholarship but the party made such outrageous demands on the school McDonald told the boy he thought he'd be happier some other place.

One of the mandates the young man came up with was a full scholarship for a boy in another sport, one that A&I yet doesn't consider a major endeavor.

Russell Signed By Chaparrals

By The Associated Press

Texas' two teams in the new American Basketball Association each signed an outstanding Texas college player Wednesday.

The Dallas Chaparrals signed Rubin Russell of North Texas State who led the Missouri Valley Conference in scoring last season with a 24.7 points-per-game average.

Houston picked up 6-foot-8 Mike Nau, a two-time all-Southland Conference selection from Texas at Arlington. Nau, a Dallas Bryan Adams High School graduate, was a seventh round draft choice of Houston. He averaged 19.6 points a game last season.

Angel Ace Prospers Despite Dark Cloud

By The Associated Press
Now, if only it doesn't rain on Jim McGlothlin's parade.
McGlothlin, who seems to labor with a constant cloud over his head, has brought a ray of sunshine into the last place existence of the California Angels this season.
The young right-hander hurled his third straight shutout Wednesday night, running his season's record to 6-1 with a 2-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. The blanking extended his string to 33 runless innings and lowered his earned run average to 1.07.

There were only three other games played in the American League Wednesday. New York and Washington split a two-inning doubleheader, the Yankees taking the opener 7-1 and the Senators copping the second game 2-1. Kansas City defeated Detroit 4-2. Boston's doubleheader at Chicago and Cleveland's game at Minnesota were rained out.
McGlothlin has allowed just one earned run in the last 49 2-3 innings he has worked and his only problem has been work—rather the lack of it. The early season rash of rainouts deprived him of several starts but that's nothing new for McGlothlin.
"I don't know what this power of mine is," moaned McGlothlin, while watching a storm wash out one of his early starts. "This is always happening to me."
"Back in 1963, I was going to be the opening day pitcher for Hawaii. It poured for four days."
The Angels got McGlothlin an unearned run off loser Pete Richter in the first inning and the youngster made it stand up against the Orioles, who had scored 27 runs against California in a doubleheader the day before.
Jim Fregosi drove in an insurance run with an eighth inning single but McGlothlin, who allowed four hits and struck out nine, didn't need it.
Fred Talbot hurled a six-hitter for the Yankees in the opener against Washington. New York scored four runs in the second inning—two of them on bases loaded walks to Mickey Mantle and Ruben Amaro.
In the nightcap, Bill Monbouquette, making his first start for the Yankees, was nicked for single runs in the first and third innings and Phil Ortega, with his late inning help from Dave Baldwin and Darold Knowles, protected them for the victory. Doubles by Ed Brinkman and Fred Valentine produced Washington's first run and then Bob Savarin's double followed by an infield out and Cap Peterson's sacrifice fly brought home another in the third.
Ortega was sailing along on a two-hit shutout until the eighth when two-out singles by Mike Hegan, Mantle and Clark gave the Yankees a run. Baldwin returned Amaro to escape the inning and then Knowles set New York down in the ninth.

Rick Monday slashed a two-run inside-the-park homer, giving the Athletics their victory over Detroit and tagging Mickey Lolich, 5-7, with his fifth straight loss.
Monday's shot snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth after Bert Campaneris had walked. Paul Lindblad, a reliever, made his first start of the season for the A's and ran his record to 4-0.

ENTRY DEADLINE 6 P.M.

Interest In Partnership Exceeding Expectations

Interest in the first annual Big Spring Open Amateur Partnership Golf tournament scheduled this weekend at the Country Club is booming, with total number of entries likely to far surpass 200.
Tournament officials were willing to settle for that a month ago but by the time club pro Jerry Green opened the doors to his shop this morning a total of 198 linksters from all over West Texas and parts of New Mexico had already signed up for the event.
Deadline for entry is 6 p.m. today. First round pairings will be drawn up tonight.
Play in the 36-hole low-ball meet gets under way Saturday and continues over Sunday.
Golfers can enter either of two divisions of competition. The top or Open flight will be for scratch players. There'll also be player. More than $1,500 worth of merchandise awards will be presented to winners Sunday evening.

Green predicted that as many as 35 teams would compete for the 16 awards in the Open division — 25 have already entered. There'll be premiums for each member of the top six teams in that class, plus four prizes in the offing for individuals with low medal scores.
Among tandems considered the favorites in the Open class are Jackie Thomas and Ronnie Broadrick, Bobby Blum and W. E. Ramsey, Rick Terry and Tommy Wilkerson and Bill Cheek and Jim Pritchett.
This Amateur Partnership replaces the annual Big Spring Open and it looms as a greater success than the illustrious Open.

Louis Button Takes Lead In Amateur

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Louis H. Button, a San Antonio man who helps to teach youth, did just that — Wednesday — in the Texas State Amateur Golf Championship Tournament.
The 44-year-old flashed past the teenagers and college students who led after the first round Tuesday to post a 36-hole total of 140, four strokes ahead of the nearest teenager and the only sub-par total after two rounds.
The lanky Button, who called his round "a victory for the paunchy set", said he dropped "a 15-or-16-footer on seven" and that's what started me off.
He went on to get three other birdies and carded his only bogey on the final hole where he misjudged the wind and chipped over the green.
John Mahaffey, the Houston 19-year-old who shared the lead Tuesday with a 68, blew to a 76 to drop to a tie with three others for second place. Knotted with Mahaffey at 144 were William Cromwell of Bastrop, Tom Kite of Austin and Steve Holmesley of San Antonio.
Guy Cullins of Victoria, the 17-year-old who also had a 68 Tuesday, cooled off to an 82 and finished the second round far back with a 150 total.
Button, the San Antonio community relations executive for the Camp Gary Job Corps, said putting made the difference in his round.
"I was able to sink the five- and six-footers for scrambling pars," he said. Then he grinned and added: "Now I guess my boss will find out I'm in the tournament instead of working."

Officials cut the field of 192 to the low 120 and ties following the second round and then split the survivors into three flights. The championship flight cut was at 131 and included 45 players. The president's flight cut was at 156, taking in 40 players, and the first flight took in 43 players with the cut at 182.

Aussie Rider Waxes Warm

EPSOM, England (AP) — Australian jockey George Moore and his colt, Royal Palace, have British bookies quite concerned after their classy victory in the English Derby.
Some bookies have given 1,000-1 odds against Moore winning the five classic races of the flat season, and Moore now has won three of them — the 2,000 Guineas, the 1,000 Guineas and Wednesday's Derby. No jockey ever has won them, and the Oaks and the St. Leger in one season.
Royal Palace was an even bet to become the first horse since 1935 to win the three major classics. He has won the 2,000 Guineas, the 188th Derby and now faces only the St. Leger.
Although the St. Leger is not until September, it is difficult to imagine him being beaten.
A lot of money hangs on the result.
More than one million pounds ($2.8 million) was paid out by the bookies on Wednesday's win, a victory which made Royal Palace worth more than 500,000 pounds ($1.4 million).

LOY CARROLL SCORES ACE

Loy Carroll, warming up for competition in the Big Spring Open Amateur Partnership tournament, Wednesday sank his first hole-in-one.
Carroll performed the feat while using a six-iron on the 147-yard fourth hole.
Playing with him at the time were John Barbec, who will team with Carroll in the tournament; Bill Bell and Jim Norman.

NBA Cagers To Benefit From Pension Boosts

CHICAGO (AP) — Owners of National Basketball Association clubs have reached a pension agreement with the league's players association, settling an issue that nearly triggered a players strike during the NBA playoffs last season.
The agreement was announced Wednesday after players from the league's 12 clubs, headed by Oscar Robertson, star of the Cincinnati Royals, met with the owners for approximately an hour.
Commissioner Walt Kennedy, who was awarded a five-year contract with a reported $100,000 annual salary increase to $60,000, said the plan affects all players on the active list as of Feb. 2, 1967.
Under the agreement, players with 10 years of active service will get a maximum of $600 monthly at age 65. Coverage will begin with the player's third year in the league, with those from three to nine years of service getting lesser amounts.
Kennedy said the program specifies that any player who breaches a contract by jumping to another league will forfeit all benefits.
This was obviously aimed at the new American Basketball Association which currently is warring with the NBA for player talent.
Kennedy said the pension will be funded by a contribution of $350,000 a year from each club with each player contributing $400 annually.

Toronto Club Is Given Scorching

MONTREAL (AP) — The National Hockey League's summer conclave, which was moving faster than an Expo 67 ticket two days ago, has come to a virtual standstill.
And no wonder, as it becomes increasingly apparent that NHL club owners and general managers completed most of their wheeling and dealing before Tuesday's unprecedented expansion draft.
Four additions to hockey's Hall of Fame, a pair of non-headline player transactions, a minor league geographic shift and the initial meeting of newly formed players' association were the highlights of Wednesday's session.
Meanwhile, evidence of unauthorized pre-draft agreements continued to pour in, hardly only two disappointed principals — Jack Kent Cooke of the Los Angeles Kings and his would-be coach, Red Kelly.
Cooke and Kelly have charged the Toronto Maple Leafs' renege on a deal to slip the 39-year-old forward through the draft and into the Kings' camp. Wednesday they filed formal protests with NHL President Clarence Campbell, who passed the complaints on to the Toronto club.
There was a possibility the hassle would be resolved before the end of today's closing session.
The meetings opened Monday with the formal admission of the six newcomers — Los Angeles, California, St. Louis, Minnesota, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.
The California Seals who picked Toronto defenseman Bobby Baun and Kent Douglas on the first two rounds after making Charlie Hodge of Montreal their top goalie choice, generally were considered the big winners in the draft. Philadelphia rated a close second, according to most observers.
Minnesota also received a high grade after landing three Montreal prospects — Andre Boudrias, Bob Charlebois and Mike McMahon — in a post-draft transaction. The deal apparently was consummated when the North Stars, picking first in the regular draft, chose Dave Balon from Montreal and gave the Canadiens the quick recall of Claude Larose, whom they had exposed.

Adamson Is Pick Of O's

NEW YORK (AP) — John Michael Adamson, a right-handed pitcher from the University of Southern California, and Ron Bombardieri, a high school first baseman from Atlanta, have been singled out as the top amateur prospects in the game as a result of baseball's free agent draft.
Adamson, who failed to sign when the Philadelphia Phillies drafted him previously, was the No. 1 pick by the Baltimore Orioles in the secondary phase of the two-day selection meetings of the major leagues.
Blumberg, an 18-year-old slugger from Atlanta's Druid Hills High School, was the No. 1 pick by the New York Yankees among the record 975 new prospects selected in the regular phase of the draft.
When the 20 big league clubs had completed their drafts for themselves and their minor league affiliates, a total of 1,169 players had been selected. In the secondary phase of athletes previously picked but not signed.
Adamson appears in line for a sizeable bonus from the Baltimore club which is anxious to bolster its pitching staff with young talent. A 6-foot-3, 195-pounder from San Diego, the Southern Cal sophomore is regarded as a red hot prospect.
The Yanks, too, are expected to dig down deep for Blumberg, a 6-1, 185-pounder whose left swing conforms with the Yankee Stadium architecture.
Of course, there is nothing that compels a player to sign with the team that drafted him. However, he can not negotiate with any other team. If he is not signed, he goes back into the pool at the next draft in January, or whenever he becomes eligible again.
Under the new college rule, adopted last December, college players can't be signed until they graduate or are 21.
However, players drafted previously and then put back into the pool remain eligible in the secondary phase as the rule was not made retroactive.
The draft, now in its third year of operation, subs for the old system of wild-bonus bidding among the 20 clubs for the hot shot prospects. A few still get the big money but only a few.
NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and the Cleveland Indians reached into the Southwest Conference Wednesday for their selections in the secondary phase of baseball's free agent draft.
Los Angeles drafted outfielder David Patrick Brown, 20, of Odessa, Tex., who played this past season for the University of Texas.
Cleveland picked up left-handed pitcher Ronald Henson, 21, of San Angelo, Tex., who performed for Rice. Henson is 6-foot-6 and weighs 200 pounds.

TEXANS AT WAR

Medal Winner Not Talking

By The Associated Press
Sgt. I.C. Robert Lovell is a close-mouthed Texan at war. He's part of the massive security network which the United States employs in battling the Viet Cong.

Lovell, 42, was awarded the Bronze Star medal and a certificate of achievement as he left Vietnam in February en route to a new security post in Panama.

LEADERSHIP

On the way home he stopped to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lovell of Denison, and leave the awards with them—but he didn't talk much about his cloak and dagger experiences.

The Army praised Lovell for his work as intelligence sergeant and non-commissioned officer in charge of the G-2 air section at Long Binh, Vietnam, in the 2nd Field Force.

He skillfully molded an untrained group of individuals into a cohesive and responsive fighting unit, and his leadership and cheerfulness helped the morale of the troops, the commendation read.

Methodist Minister Foster, 65, Dies

SAN ANGELO (AP)—Funeral services were pending today for the Rev. Arthur R. Foster, 65, a Methodist minister and major stockholder in Solar Broadcasting Co. here. He died Wednesday in a San Angelo hospital. The Rev. Foster was pastor of the Lakeview Methodist Church.

"He said the award was for doing things beyond the call of duty," his mother said, "but it's so secret he can't tell much. He got in there and helped out and saved lives."

Lovell received the award "for outstanding meritorious service in combat operations against hostile forces in Vietnam," the Army said.

The career air intelligence analyst was injured in the Korean War and came back from his year in Vietnam with malaria.

Dentist Facing Marijuana Raps

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)—Dr. Franklin Cox, 49, a dentist, was charged Wednesday with possessing nearly 200 marijuana cigarettes. Lt. N. C. Baumann of the police narcotics division said Dr. Cox was seized at his home. Charges were filed before Justice of the Peace Armando Flores.

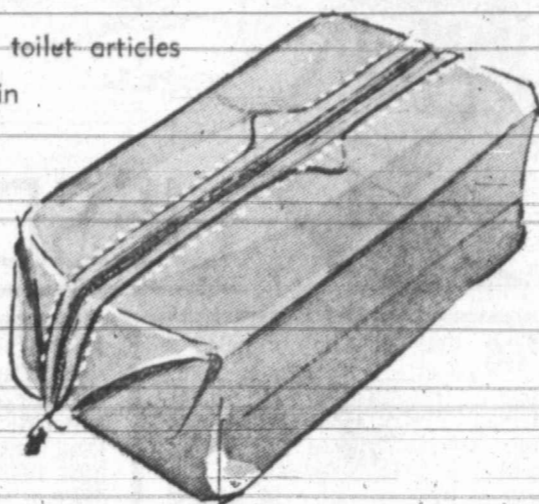

Maritime Academy Exec Will Retire

School President Earl Rudder said Dodson wanted to retire to pursue other development projects. Dodson joined A&M in February, 1962, to establish the facility, now one of the nation's six major accredited maritime academies.

Lawyer Belli Collected 'Thousands' From Ruby?

DALLAS (AP)—Lawyer Melvin Belli was paid $11,000 plus expenses "which ran into the thousands" for handling the Jack Ruby case, Ruby's brother said Wednesday.

Earl Ruby, a Detroit businessman, said that the Ruby family became disenchanted with Belli even before the guilty verdict. He was dismissed in a "last straw" move when he tried to sell pictures of Ruby to Life magazine, Earl Ruby testified.

The case will continue today. SERIES SALE Ruby said the Ruby fund collected $26,000 from the sale of a newspaper series, but expenses "as of today" have been almost $59,000.

Ruby and a sister, Eva Grant, testified in a Dallas probate court hearing over a will or codicil given by Ruby to a guard in the Dallas County Jail.

The family is attempting to prove that Ruby was insane when he wrote the document leaving Norman Hooten a hat, a ring and a suit. Jack Ruby died in January of cancer while awaiting a new trial for killing Lee Harvey Oswald, the man identified by the Warren Commission as President Kennedy's assassin.

PSYCHOTIC? Earl Ruby said his brother told him to kill his family "so they wouldn't suffer" from imagined persecution. Mrs. Grant said he raved of Nazi murders and conspirators in the jail.

Hooten, now unemployed, testified Monday that Ruby always seemed rational during their conversations.

Dr. Eugene P. Frenkel of Dallas said Tuesday that Ruby mentioned a plot against Jews shortly before his death. Dr. Frenkel said that Ruby felt he would die "one way or the other" and "didn't appear to have a great enthusiasm for getting well."

Dr. Louis J. West testified earlier in the hearing that Ruby was psychotic and had paranoid delusions.

The bidding:

South West North East
1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠ East's defensive technique was completely lacking in subtlety, and he provided South—the declarer at three no trump—with a clear road map on how to play the hand.

West opened the jack of hearts which rode around to declarer's queen. When East followed with the deuce, it was reasonable for South to assume that his left hand opponent held all the toppers in the suit. At all costs then, East must be kept out of the lead, for another heart thru declarer's king might enable the defenders to cash sufficient tricks to set the contract.

At trick two, South crossed over to the jack of spades to lead a small diamond. East followed suit with the eight and declarer put in the queen, which held the trick. The ace of spades was cashed next and the remaining spades were run as East and South discarded small clubs. On another diamond lead, East played the jack forcing out declarer's ace, and at the same time revealing that another diamond play was out of the question since it would surely enable East to get in with the king.

Declarer's sole remaining hope was that West held the king of clubs and could be made to lead away from that card in an end position. Since South had not lost any tricks yet, he could afford to let his opponent in to run the heart suit—provided that he has started with no more than five hearts.

Declarer exited from his hand with the king of hearts, and West proceeded to cash out four tricks. With only the king and deuce of clubs left in his hand, however, he was hopelessly employed and had to surrender the final two tricks to South.

East's play of the jack of diamonds on the second lead of that suit was equivalent to giving declarer a peek at his hand. Since he was known to have the king of diamonds by virtue of South's successful finesse of the queen, East had nothing to lose by dropping that card under the ace. This may induce declarer to play West for the jack of diamonds, in which case it would be safe for South to continue the establishment of the diamond suit. If he does so, East will have an opportunity to gain the lead to deliver the fatal salvo thru declarer's remaining heart honor.

Family Of Scholars

Lemons Hold Top Rank Three Years At Sands

By BRENDA GREENE
The valedictorians of Sands High School for the past three years have been lemons — Ruth, Ann, and James Lemon.

Ruth Lemon, 20, graduated in 1965 with a 97.5 grade average; Ann Lemon, 19, graduated with a 95.4 average in 1966, and James Lemon, 18, topped his graduating class with a 92.5 average in 1967.

MAJORITY
In 1965, the Sands student council was a Lemon majority as Ruth, Ann, and James were presidents of the senior, junior, and sophomore classes.

Lee Lemon, 29, an older brother, graduated in 1955 as salutatorian of Ackerly High School, now Sands High School. A graduate of the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston, he is practicing medicine in Wichita Falls.

Ruth and Ann have been attending McMurry College, Abilene, where Ruth is studying zoology and Ann is preparing for a career in elementary education. Ann plans to transfer to Southwest Texas State University in September. Ruth is a junior, and Ann, a sophomore.

MEMURRY
James, who just graduated, will enter McMurry in the fall as a freshman. He plans to major in either chemistry or math.

The Lemon children were active in many high school activities. Ruth and Ann were editors of their yearbooks, and James worked on the staff.

Ann and Ruth were voted class favorites and were class representatives in the Homecoming Queen contests.

James participated in basketball and went to the state tournament last year. He also ran track and was on the team which won second place in district in 1967. At the annual athletic banquet this past year, he was honored as the highest scholastic athlete.

ATHLETICS
Lee played football and was on the team that was runner-up in regional contest when M. B. Maxwell Jr. was coach. He was voted class favorite, and was the editor of the yearbook.

They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lemon, Ackerly.

Single Bullet Kills Doctor

LINCOLDALE, N.Y. (AP) — A single bullet from a high-powered pistol killed Dr. Winifred Franklin, 64, and critically wounded an 18-year-old girl servant as the doctor tried to wrest the gun from the girl, state police say.

The girl, Jean Barrett of Lake Lindale, was shot through the abdomen and was reported on the danger list today at a hospital.

State police said they were unable to determine immediately why Miss Barrett picked up the gun. They said the .357-caliber revolver, which fires high-penetration bullets, is the property of the dead physician's husband, Dr. C. Ray Franklin, an eye specialist.

The husband was downstairs Wednesday when the gun went off on the second floor of the Franklin home.

Police Check On Two Thefts

Two thefts are under police investigation. Roy Box, 1205 W. 2nd, reported two electric saws and a screw driver were stolen from 500 Presidio, and had been located at two used furniture stores.

Miller's Pig Stand, 510 E. 3rd, reported two vending machines opened and the money taken.

Officers Hunt Rebel Leader

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—Law officers, mindful of his reported threat of more violence, pushed their search today for the leader of a group of rebellious Spanish-Americans who critically wounded two policemen in a shoot-out.

Lightning raids Wednesday resulted in the arrests of five of the 16 persons wanted in connection with the violence Monday at the Rio Arriba County courthouse at Tierra Amarilla.

But their alleged leader, Reyes Tijerina, remained at large.

Gov. David Cargo said an unidentified intermediary for Tijerina called him Wednesday and quoted Tijerina as saying he "would not surrender without a fight."

LAND CLAIM
Tijerina headed the Federal Alliance of Land Grants, whose members claim to be heirs to large tracts of land in northern New Mexico. The alliance promised a showdown last week at Coyote but the threat failed to materialize after 11 of its members were arrested the night before. Just after they were arraigned Monday, a band of armed men stormed the courthouse, critically wounding the officers.

Rio Arriba County Sheriff Manny Naranjo, who was at the courthouse, said Reyes Tijerina was in the group.

Santa Fe County Dist. Atty. Alfonso Sanchez issued warrants Wednesday charging 16 persons with kidnaping and assault with intent to commit a violent felony.

UNLUCKY SEVEN
Seven of the 16 were already in custody. They were arraigned and ordered held in the New Mexico Penitentiary without bond after entering no pleas.

Four more named in the warrants and another charged with conspiracy were arrested Wednesday at Canjilon, Coyote, Bernalillo and Albuquerque.

Five others named in the warrants remained free, including Tijerina.

The New Mexico National Guard was sent to the Tierra Amarilla area after the insurrection broke out but the units were sent home Wednesday, leaving about 25 state policemen and sheriff's officers to scan the northern New Mexico mountains for the remaining fugitives.

Robbers Steal Delivery Truck And $123,000

LONDON (AP) — A bank delivery truck containing 44,000 pounds — $123,000 — was stolen today when the two guards left it to make a delivery.

A spokesman for the delivery company said the robbers must have had a full set of keys for the truck "or it was simply towed away."

"When the crew left the truck it was fully locked, alarmed and immobilized," he said.

The truck had stopped to deliver money at a railway depot in one of London's busiest districts.

Wife Arrested

Mrs. Reyes (Ratsy) Tijerina, 19, Albuquerque, was arrested by New Mexico police and charged with conspiracy, in connection with an armed raid on the Tierra Amarilla courthouse Monday in which two policemen were wounded. A search continues in northern New Mexico for her husband and 13 leaders of the defunct Federal Alliance of Land Grants. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Work On Dam Nearing First Quarter Mark

The Colorado River Municipal Water District's dam above Robert Lee is nearing the first quarter mark.

During May, the contractor, Clement Bros. of Hickory, N.C., moved 735,000 cubic yards of earth, by far the largest volume since the project was launched early this year.

So far, the contractor has earned 22 per cent of the money on his $9,000,000 contract, and about 25 per cent of the time for the project has elapsed.

This week, a concrete pour of 865 cubic yards on the north wing wall leading to the stilling basin was made.

Collars on which the 28-foot diameter concrete conduit through the bottom of the dam will rest have been poured.

Workmen are forming for the massive pour of piers and the curved portion of the bottom of the service spillway. This is so large a job that it will require about six weeks to get the forms in place. When they are complete, a 60-foot vertical pour will take place.

At one point near the river channel, the dam has been carried to elevation 2004, which is 24 feet below the maximum height. As the dam passes elevation 1998, which will be the maximum water line, it goes to a 2-1 (instead of a 3-1) slope on the upstream side, making for more rapid work. Rip rap installation on the upstream face of the dam is following behind the dirt work.

Meanwhile, all but about three parcels needed for right of way to relocate SH 158 (Sterling City-Robert Lee) around the south end of the dam have been secured. The CRMWD will let a contract Friday to fence the right of way, said O. H. Ivie, general manager. He is hoping for an August letting on the highway contract.

Narrow Miss

Billy Bilbrey, Dimmitt trucker, had a quick decision to make Wednesday morning. Driving this heavily loaded truck of cucumbers, his brakes failed as he neared the Fourth and Gregg intersection, going north. He picked the high sidewalk, rather than cars parked at the intersection, and guided the huge vehicle clear of other motorists. It mowed down highway signs, a traffic signal pole, and a fire plug, but averted what might have been a tragedy. (Photo by Danny Valdes)

Sardonic Wit Parker Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Dorothy Parker, the short story writer and poet whose reputation for the sharp retort made her a legend, is dead at 73.

She died Wednesday in her Manhattan hotel room. She had been in frail health in recent years and her death was attributed to natural causes. There are no survivors.

Considered in the nineteen twenties and thirties as the wittiest woman of her time, Miss Parker's short poems and cocktail party remarks were widely quoted throughout the world. Her bon mots outstripped the fame of her own writing, which critics have rated among the best of American short story writers.

'ROUND TABLE'

She was best known as a member of the "vicious circle," a group of New Yorkers of the nineteen twenties and thirties who met almost every day for long lunches at the "round table" of the Algonquin Hotel. Others were Robert Benchley, Robert Sherwood, Franklin P. Adams, Heywood Brown, Tallulah Bankhead and Alexander Woolcott.

From these parties emerged almost daily bulletins of the latest Parker wisecracks. In later life Miss Parker claimed that many were fabrications, but the stories persist to this day.

One such: at one party a man followed her around all evening, waiting for her to say something memorable. He finally apologized, saying: "I'm sorry."

Airman Dodges Death Penalty

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—A U.S. airman who faced a possible death penalty for conspiring to give American defense secrets to the Soviets has been sentenced to 30 years in prison.

Judge Oren E. Lewis pronounced sentence Wednesday in U.S. District Court against Air Force Staff Sgt. Herbert W. Boeckenhaupt, 24.

Attorneys for the German-born Boeckenhaupt, a naturalized U.S. citizen who lists Superior, Wis., as his home, will appeal the sentence. They also plan to appeal the May 25 conviction.

The airman was arrested last October at March Air Force Base, Calif., where he worked on electronic code devices used by the Strategic Air Command.

He was charged with communicating at least three times with Aleksey R. Malinin, a one-time Soviet Embassy aide in Washington.

Malinin later was ordered out of the country and now is imprisoned in England after pleading guilty to that nation's Official Secrets Act.

you're not at all the way I thought you'd be."

PASSES, GLASSES

"That's all right," replied Miss Parker. "But do me one favor. When you get home, throw your mother a bone."

On another occasion when a woman friend had made an extreme to-do about her impending motherhood, Miss Parker cabled the woman after the birth of her child: "Congratulations. We all knew you had it in you."

Once, reviewing a performance of Katharine Hepburn on Broadway, Miss Parker wrote: "She ran the gamut of emotions from A to B."

She coined the couplet: Men seldom make passes At girls who wear glasses.

And she took her own advice. Although quite nearsighted, she refrained from wearing her horn-rimmed spectacles in public, preferring to blink her hazel-green eyes.

LEGEND

The legend began with her childhood. Born Dorothy Rothschild to a Jewish father and Scottish mother, she was enrolled in Manhattan's Blessed Sacrament convent.

She married Edwin Parker II in 1917 and divorced him in 1928, retaining his name as her pen name. In 1933 she married actor and screen writer Alan Campbell, whom she divorced in 1947, and remarried in 1950.

Her writing, particularly her verse, almost constantly reflected a bittersweet and sour view of the battle of the sexes, the view generally was that men were disgusting, selfish, irresponsible and vain but, as in one memorable last line, "There was nothing more fun than a man."

SMART SET

Her short stories satirized the smart set of her day, so caustically that critics suggested she dipped her pen in gall and wormwood.

But she also wrote serious stories that dealt starkly and poignantly with the underprivileged.

One, "Big Blone," won the O. Henry Memorial Award in 1929. Others, such as "The Standard of Living," "Soldiers of the Republic" or "Clothe the Naked," pack as much emotional impact today as they did in the thirties.

In her last years she was admittedly lonely. Her friends of the "vicious circle" were dead. Campbell died in 1963. She wrote almost nothing, but she still enjoyed talking to people, kidding her own reputation.

LONELY

Miss Parker, in her sadness and her kidding, reminded some of a verse of one of her poems: "Lonely folk have lines of days, Long and faltering and thin; Therefore — little wax bouquets, Prayers cut upon a pin, Little maps of pinkish lands, Little charts of curly seas, Little plats of linen strands, Little verses, such as these."

War Gives LBJ Boost To Halt Rail Strike?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Middle East crisis appears to have given the Johnson administration the boost it needed to assure congressional approval of legislation to head off a nationwide rail strike.

Some House critics of the President's proposal conceded privately that the fighting between Israel and the Arab states has all but doomed their efforts to revise or block the legislation.

The Senate approved the bill 70 to 15 Wednesday and the House Commerce Committee takes it up today.

Congress has until June 19 to prevent a nationwide strike by some 137,000 shopcraft workers. On that date, a current Congress-ordered 47-day no strike no lockout period runs out.

Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., said his House Commerce Committee will meet again Friday if no decision is reached today in order to ready the measure for consideration on the floor next Wednesday. Administration officials have stressed the Middle East conflict this week in urging action to prevent a rail strike.

They told the Commerce Committee Tuesday and congressional leaders at the White House Wednesday that the new uncertainty — added to the war in Vietnam — makes the railroads even more essential for the nation's defense.

The major critics are Democrats who feel the presidential plan — including settlement if necessary — is unfair to labor and will mean the railroads will refuse to negotiate since they know the workers can't strike.

Reps. Brock Adams, D-Wash., John E. Moss, D-Calif., and John D. Dingell, D-Mich., plan to offer a substitute proposal that would require the President to seize the railroads during the compulsory settlement period. This is designed to put pressure on management to force an agreement.

U.S. Navy Pilots Plaster Site Housing Soviet-Built Missiles

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Navy carrier pilots thrust deep into North Vietnam Wednesday to damage a major MIG airfield and leave a secret Red missile base a cauldron of flames and uncontrollable rockets snaking skyward and across the ground.

The U.S. Command also reported increased ground action after a four-day lull in the war in the South. There were two sharp fights near the demilitarized zone, another near Saigon and a handful of guerrilla raids including the destruction of a 200-foot bridge 10 miles from Saigon.

BIG RAID

The big raid on the secret site housing Soviet-built missiles was made by pilots from the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise after aerial photos disclosed the highly camouflaged base hidden in a forest 50 miles southwest of Hanoi.

Waves of Phantom, Skyhawk and Intruder jets flashed into the area with bombs, rockets and cannon fire. Pilots reported the site erupted in explosions of white, orange and black smoke towering 5,000 feet up.

The narrow 40-foot missiles which pilots call "flying telephone poles" sometimes went slithering off violently when blown from their transport vehicles.

ORANGE SMOKE

"One jumped into an open area, slithered around, then blew up," one pilot said.

Defense Chief Eyes Oil Pinch

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says steps are being taken to insure U.S. troops in Vietnam and elsewhere won't feel the pinch of oil shortages caused by the Middle East crisis.

He ordered into effect Wednesday contingency plans he said will guarantee all defense petroleum requirements "will be met fully and promptly" despite any cutoff of supplies from the oil-rich Arab nations involved in the conflict with Israel.

McNamara said about 65 per cent of the 120 million barrels of oil the United States purchases annually for use in Southeast Asia and the Western Pacific comes from the Middle East.

Should this supply be cut off, as some Arab nations threaten, he said it would be replaced by oil from the Coast, West Coast and Caribbean refineries.

The defense chief said about 35 tankers could be quickly added to the 25-ship fleet already carrying petroleum products to the Western Pacific and Southeast Asia.

Although conceding U.S. forces in Vietnam and elsewhere in Southeast Asia might have to dip into petroleum reserve stocks until the gap is filled, McNamara said such stocks are adequate and "that is exactly their purpose."

Meanwhile, government and U.S. oil industry officials were to confer here today on ways to help Europe in the event the Middle East conflict creates critical fuel shortages on that continent.

The Interior Department estimates Western Europe gets 55 per cent of its oil from the Middle East and another 25 per cent from North African nations, such as Libya and Algeria. The department said the United States gets three per cent of its total oil supply from the Middle East and less than one per cent from North Africa.

Petition Backs Texas Rangers

AUSTIN (AP)—About 1,800 persons in Starr County have sent the Texas Department of Public Safety a petition expressing appreciation for the work done by Texas Rangers in the Valley farm workers dispute, the police agency says.

A spokesman for the agency said the signers wanted the Rangers to stay in the Valley. The department made no announcement of the petition and the spokesman said Col. Homer Garrison, DPS director, would have no comment on it.

The DPS said "less than 10 per cent" of the approximately 100 telegrams and 50 letters concerning the dispute were critical of the Rangers.

Native Of Texas New VISTA Exc

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ross Coggins of Nashville, Tenn., has been appointed Southeastern regional administrator for Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA). Coggins is a native of Wichita Falls, Tex., and holds degrees from Baylor University and Southwestern Baptist Seminary.

Other pilots' reports read: "They were burning and slithering around on the ground. Great big SAMs curling all over the place. Our bombs set off one SAM in a big puff of orange smoke and it went whistling off into the woods."

The Navy reported at least nine of the big carriers for the missiles were destroyed and each one was loaded. One radar van was also destroyed.

The other big raid of the day was against the Kep MIG airfield 37 miles northeast of Hanoi on the main rail line to Red China. Although the field had been hit six times previously, the North Vietnamese air force is still using it, and the Navy pilots said they caught seven MIGs on the ground, destroyed one and damaged at least four more.

Despite the deep penetration raids, there was no report of Communist MIGs rising to challenge the U.S. planes. Neither was there any report of American losses.

SUPPLY TARGETS

Although the weather remained spotty over the north, U.S. pilots flew 112 strike missions and naval craft continued to bombard supply targets along the coast.

The heaviest ground fighting erupted in the wild ridgelines below the western flank of the demilitarized zone dividing Vietnam.

A patrolling force of about 150 U.S. Marines clashed with about 300 North Vietnamese regulars in a running five-hour series of firefights five miles northwest of Khe Sanh. Supported by helicopters and artillery and finally reinforced by another Marine platoon, the Leathernecks drove the Reds from the field just before sundown. The casualties: six North Vietnamese dead, 18 Marines killed and 27 Marines wounded.

SUCCESS

To the east, other Marines reported killing four Communist troops after a platoon on patrol encountered a North Vietnamese platoon two miles northeast of Con Thien. One Marine was killed and 13 wounded in the hour fight.

In the Mekong Delta about 50 miles southwest of Saigon a force of South Vietnamese irregulars and U.S. Special Forces flushed an estimated company of guerrillas today. U.S. Command reported 33 of the enemy were killed and five captured while losses to the U.S.-Vietnamese group were light.

Ten miles east of Saigon, the guerrillas scored a success by collapsing a 200-foot bridge across a major rural route. The bridge was guarded by local militia, but the guerrillas sneaked up and blew out the central span about 4 a.m. The guerrillas were gone before a reaction force could be organized.

les Rangers Needed To Keep Peace, Senators Say After Visiting Rio

By The Associated Press

Three state senators who made a one-day tour of the Rio Grande Valley to see the Rangers in action, said today that the Rangers are needed to keep the peace. Two of the legislators, however, said calling out the Rangers is too much of a tradition in the historically stormy politics of Starr County.

Sens. Don Kennard and A. R. Schwartz agreed in interviews with The Associated Press that the Rangers are viewed as a "panacea" for law enforcement in Starr County, torn by a year-long strike of an AFL-CIO farm labor union seeking a $1.25 minimum wage and union contracts.

PANACEA
"I think custom and necessity calls for the use of the Rangers," Schwartz said "calling out the Rangers" has become an acceptable thing in Starr County. "They've used the Rangers so often, such as in election contests, that it becomes the accepted thing to do," Schwartz said. "I don't think that's a good practice."

'STRIKEBREAKERS'
Schwartz, Kennard and Dallas' Oscar Mauzy talked to 33 persons during their one-day tour Tuesday. Their contacts included farm laborers, union men, growers and Rangers. The United Farm Workers organizing committee, the AFL-CIO union seeking to organize the area's multi-million dollar citrus and vegetable industry, has sought to get the Rangers booted out. State Sen. Joe Bernal of San Antonio supported that view, calling the Rangers "strikebreakers" after his solo tour of the Valley.

Schwartz said it is beyond doubt that the average citizen in Starr County wants the Rangers to stay. "Most people every where would like somebody else's policeman to carry out law enforcement functions," he said. "Most politicians would like somebody else to do all the unsavory things that cost them votes."

Mauzy said he was concerned that no trials have been held following arrests on charges of disturbing the peace, secondary boycotting and unlawful assembly.

JUSTICE DELAY
Mauzy said 153 charges have been filed since last fall and "in no instance has one trial been put off because the defendant requested it."
"In a situation like this," he said, "speedy trials are important."

All agreed they favor settling the year-long labor dispute in civil courts. Schwartz went further, saying the Rangers in some instances are making legal decisions they are not qualified to handle.

'WHITE PAPER'
"I'd rather see a district court decide what the rights of the parties are than have law enforcement officers decide who's right and wrong at the scene of the controversy."
He said there has been no determination by any judicial process that any of these charged people have violated any law.

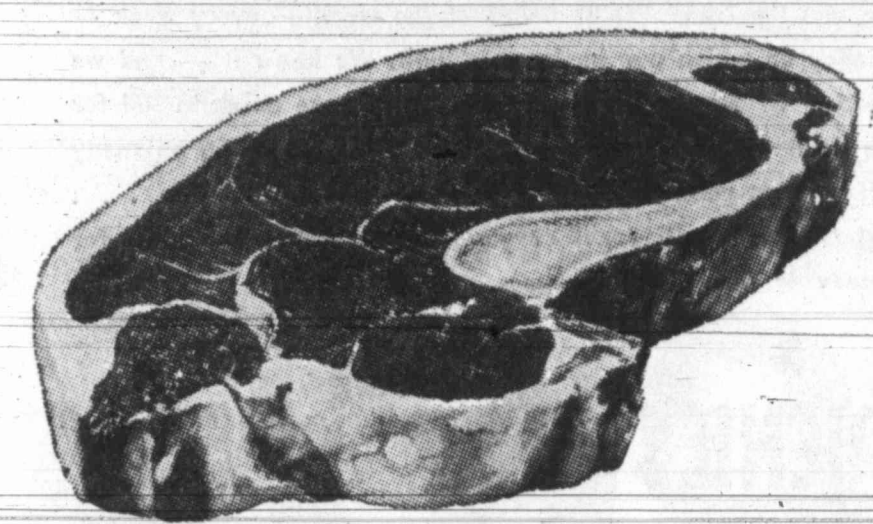

The trio said they will make a "white paper" report expressing their conclusions on the Rangers and other facets of the strike and the Starr County situation.

Winds Pound Broad Areas

Associated Press Sports Writer

Rain splashed broad areas from the northern and central Rockies into northern New England today after another outbreak of violent weather Wednesday in the Midwest.

The stormy weather included tornadoes, gusty winds, heavy rain and hail, following the pattern of Tuesday in most areas.

The Weather Bureau reported a twister damaged five houses in Ames, Iowa. One near Moorsville in northeast Missouri damaged several homes. Two tornadoes hit in east Nebraska, with damage to small buildings in Adams. Funnel clouds were spotted Wednesday night in Des Moines, Kansas City and in other areas in Kansas, Missouri and Iowa.

Heavy rain and high winds pounded wide sections of west Missouri and east Kansas. A thunderstorm which hit Hutchinson, Kan., downed power lines, knocking out electric power in parts of the city for more than two hours. More than 2.50 inches of rain doused the city in 30 minutes.

Winds of 85 m.p.h. lashed Johnson County, Kan., knocking down tree limbs and causing power blackouts in south Kansas City. Some 1,200 customers in Liberty were without power for 90 minutes after a tree fell on a power line. A severe windstorm unroofed an apartment house north of Lansing, Kan.

Areas in Nebraska had a second day of heavy rain, hail and high winds, with roofs damaged at Superior, Beatrice, and Leavitt. More than seven inches of rain have drenched some areas in northeast Nebraska, and caused some flooding and damaged farm fields. Overflows also were reported in low land areas of Lincoln.

Up to 10 inches of rain in Montana caused flooding of some rivers and streams.

The turbulent weather was touched off by a low pressure system and an attendant cold front advancing across the Midwest.

The rain belt extended over more than half of the northern sections of the nation, moving from the Midwest into the Great Lakes and into northern New England.

In other parts of the country more thundershowers dampened areas along the Southeast coast but generally clear skies prevailed in most of the South and northward through the Atlantic states to southern New England.

Academic Mafia Grabs Fed Funds?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A University of Oklahoma professor says several big American schools make up an "academic Mafia" which gets too big a proportion of federal research money.

W.N. Peach named Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Michigan, University of Chicago, University of California at Berkeley and Stanford University. He told a Senate subcommittee that if a proposed foundation for social sciences is to be really national in scope, these large schools shouldn't dominate it.

"It would be difficult to demonstrate statistically that the academic mafia has greater control over federal research funds than the other Mafia has over gambling and other types of pleasure industries," Peach said. "But it will be even more difficult to demonstrate the opposite."

OFF THE BEATEN TRAIL

Marcy's Guide Was Convinced

By ED SYERS
 Many's the story concerning Indian's awed collision with White Man's Magic, and the best often concern the pioneer surveyors' compass. Pick up the 1849-50 trail to Santa Fe with Capt. Randolph Marcy, one of the first Anglos officially charting the trackless high plains. With him was a Delaware guide, intelligent as his cousin Cherokee and no friend of the Comanche, whose highland home he knew he trod.

As best he could, Marcy explained the little needle's constancy. But the Delaware doubted and for a long, silent time watched its unwavering aim for the North Star. He nudged it, moved it, rotated it; and, in growing awe, saw the relentless swing answer him.

Finally the Indian tried a last trick. He walked away disinterestedly, disappeared in the shadows, then suddenly leaped back to glare at the compass. Then he shrugged: "Maybe he tell lie some time."

That testing time was not too far off. The party sought a rendezvous point on the Canadian banks. The Delaware, with feel of the land and a guide's pride, pointed one route. Capt. Marcy, knowing latitude and longitude of his riverbank rendezvous as well as his own, shook his head. Yonder, the better route!

Vehemently, the Delaware protested. How could one who had not even seen the river know the shortest way? The guide followed, but this time surely he would see the thing lie.

Precisely on time and target they reached the Canadian. The Delaware remained silent, but Marcy knew him a good man... finally convinced. How convinced, he would learn with nightfall. The guide approached him, spoke briefly of the Comanche that concerned both, then gestured respectfully toward the compass.

Let the compass ask the stars exactly where their enemies were, he suggested.

(Note: This one's to hand from Texas Surveyor's Association in their excellent and handsome book saluting the pioneer surveyor, "One League to Each Wind" (Von - Boeckmann - Jones, Austin.)

Mailbox - Ox Train & R.R. Answers: (Write OBT, care of The Herald, or to Ingram, Texas 78025. For personal reply, please enclose stamped, addressed envelope.)
 Kerrville's H. V. Elsberry, an antique lock and key collector, adds a note on early Texas railroads, citing Marshall's ox-drawn train. By late January, 1858, some 23 miles of track reached from Caddo Lake to the city. The line's charter would be forfeited by Feb. 1, however, unless the track were in service, and the locomotive would not arrive in time. Ingenious Marshall railroaders found a way round: nothing specified what pulling power be used. At Caddo, they hitched a span of oxen to three box cars and pulled out, holding the line that Jay Gould years later as the Texas & Pacific and would tie into his railroad empire across Texas.

Muskogee Oklahoma's Expert Avery Von Blon answers a couple of recent R.R. queries:

"The Texas & St. Louis Railway was incorporated at Tyler in 1871, became Texas & St. Louis of Texas, and on Jan. 12, 1891, St. Louis, Southwestern of Texas, part of S.P. ... Also since your Port Lavaca query mentions a railroad ditch and the date of 1886, I judge it to have been used by the old Indianola R.R., destroyed by the last storm that took that port." While about it, Von Blon asks if anyone knows a list of the various stagecoach lines that have operated in Texas?

Irish Member Of UN Killed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - An Irish member of the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization was killed early Wednesday as he drove on a road from the village of Quneitra to Damascus, Syria, the United Nations reported.

A U.N. spokesman said the man was killed by a rifle shot of unknown origin. The United Nations did not release his name.

The U.N. truce observer was the 11th U.N. casualty during the current outbreak of fighting between Israel and the Arabs. The others were nine Indian soldiers and one Brazilian, all members of the U.N. Emergency Force.

Bid To Raise National Debt Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans, joined by conservative Southern Democrats and a sprinkling of antiwar liberals, defeated President Johnson's surprise bid to raise the national debt ceiling $29 billion.

The unique coalition voted 210 to 197 Wednesday against the proposed largest debt increase since World War II and forced the administration to come up with a new, probably cut-down plan or face a government bill-paying crisis after June 30.

The victory was doubly sweet for Republicans who called in debate for a vote of no confidence in Johnson's fiscal policies and denounced what they called false budget figures.

Returns

Bundy, former presidential assistant, now president of the Ford Foundation, was named executive secretary of the group. (AP WIREPHOTO)

The defeat stunned Democratic leaders, who had felt the Vietnam war and the Middle East crisis would inspire adequate bipartisan backing for Johnson's money plans.

LEGAL LEVEL

Congress must do something by June 30. On July 1, under existing law, the present $336 billion borrowing ceiling automatically drops to the permanent legal level of $285 billion, well below the actual debt of about $331 billion.

Blount Given A Bear, Lion

The Big Spring Pet-A-Zoo has two new animals on display today, a gift to A. D. Blount, owner-manager.

Riley Miller, who has a ranch in the Justiceburg area, turned over a 900 pound Russian black bear and a 150 pound mountain lion to the indoor zoo this morning. He said the bear is 22 years old and had been in his family a long time. The lion is about two years old.

Blount, meanwhile, is trying to figure out how he can build a suitable cage for the huge bear.

Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, senior Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, offered GOP support for a temporary extension of the present limit to give the administration time to carry out the budget revision the Republicans demand.

But Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said no decision yet has been made on how to proceed.

The $336 billion ceiling would carry the Treasury for several months, but the continued high level of spending on Vietnam and other programs would strip revenues and pile up a deficit that would have to be financed by more borrowing.

TURNING POINT Democrats conceded the deficit for the year beginning July 1 probably will exceed the $11-billion administration estimate.

Summer Classes Are Filling Up

The YMCA's summer program is bursting at the seams. Curtis Mullins, general secretary, said Thursday.

In all phases of the swimming program, 292 youngsters are enrolled. A large number of others have signed for the gymnasium activities, handball, basketball, volleyball, body building, etc. One private school operation enrolled all its youngsters six years of age and over as summer members of the YMCA.

In addition, a number of women and men have enrolled in various programs, including a trim and fit class for the ladies. There also are two special interest classes (which carry an instructor fee) in ballet and tap dancing, and in baton twirling.

Discussing the vote, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said, "I believe this is a turning point away from irresponsible fiscal policies toward responsible ones of cutbacks in nonessential and nonmilitary spending."

Voting against the measure were 116 Republicans and 34 Democrats, including eight Democrats from other than Southern states.

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier of Wisconsin, one of the Democrats who voted against the bill and a critic of Johnson's Vietnam policies, said "some of us felt that it was a war vote."

It was the first time the House had rejected a Treasury request for a debt ceiling increase and only the second time in his nine years as Ways and Means chairman that Mills had lost a major bill in the House.

Not Same Man

The defendant in a check charge in county court is not Raymon Luther Dennis, Box 142, Garden City, who does business in Big Spring under the name of R. L. Dennis, it was pointed out today.

IN ROBBERY ATTEMPT Texas Marine Charged With Slaying Teenager

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — An 18-year-old Dallas Marine private was arraigned Wednesday on charges of gunning down a 16-year-old Texas boy in a robbery attempt at this Marine Corps base.

Robert W. Evans, an FBI agent, testified that Langley allegedly fired four shots into Mozley from his M14 rifle. He had been in the Marine Corps for three months when the shooting happened.

Homes Loan OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Ray Roberts, D-Tex., announced Wednesday a $193,877 loan from the Department of Housing and Urban development to build 14 low-rent homes for the elderly at Farmersville in Collin County.

Columnist Dies

Wedding Solemnized In Independence, Mo.

The announcement is being made here of the May 27 marriage of Miss Dorothy Lorene Crawford and Calvin Moore Boardman in the Guggell Park Church in Independence, Mo.

The Rev. Cecil Ettinger officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Nicholas De Fazio and Kenneth E. Crawford, both of Elyria, Ohio, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant C. Boardman, 2514 E. 24th.

For the Rainbow wedding, candles marked the bridal aisle and lighted the altar where they were arranged with Rainbow ribbons. Nuptial selections included "Love Never Fails," "O Father All Creating" and "O Lord Around Thine Altar Now."

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attired in a formal gown of white satin and embroidered lace. The gown was styled with an Empire waist, bell sleeves and cathedral train which was applied with lace motifs. Her veil of illusion fell from a tear drop headpiece, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and ivy showered with satin streamers.

Mrs. Robert Reinker, the bride's sister, was matron of honor, and the maid of honor was Miss Patty Hughes. Bridesmaids were Miss Paula Auxer, Miss Kit De Fazio and Mrs. David Davies. Miss Barbara Boardman and Clint Boardman lighted the altar tapers, and Kimberly Davies was flower girl. Robert David Reinker served as ring bearer.

The feminine attendants wore gowns with bell sleeves and accented with a bow at the Empire waistline. They chose matching headpieces and carried daisy nosegays.

Mac Smith was best man, and ushers were Bill Bunch, Richard Pennington and Kenneth A. Crawford.

Approximately 150 guests attended the reception which was held in the church parlor immediately following the ceremony. Hostesses were Mrs. Larry Dean, Mrs. James MacDonald, Miss Janis MacDonald and Miss Susan Mead.

For the wedding trip to Lincoln, Neb., Mrs. Boardman wore a navy blue and green threepiece suit with navy accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is a senior at Graceland College where she is majoring in Elementary Education and serves as chaplain of House Belauera. Boardman, a graduate of Big Spring Senior High School, was graduated from Graceland College where he was on the dean's list and president of his fraternity. He is a graduate student at the University of Nebraska, and the couple will reside in Lincoln while he attends school.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at Capri's Restaurant. Approximately 50 guests attended and were seated at tables accented with candles and ivy runners. The bridal table featured two arrangements of ivy, wedding bells and lily of the valley which flanked bridal figurines. The honored couple presented gifts to their attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter Motley spent Monday evening with relatives in Midland.

Mrs. L. B. Hudgins of Odessa and her mother, Mrs. Maedelle Davidson, of Big Spring visited Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Buster Hudgins at Sweetwater. ### Oil Executive Talks At Club

"Noah's ark was put together with asphalt," said Jack Alexander of American Petrofina Company of Texas, as he presented the program at the Monday evening meeting of the Desk and Derrick Club. The group met at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association building, and Alexander spoke on "The History and Use of Asphalt."

"In the beginning, they didn't know it was asphalt," continued Alexander. "But, it does date back to a pre-historic time, and certain early animals have been found in a state of preservation because they fell into asphalt pits. They were earlier referred to as tar pits."

"The latest in the use of asphalt is in the reclamation of worn-out or unfit land."

He explained that a tractor or earth-moving machine digs down into the ground about two feet, and a coating of approximately 1/4 inch of asphalt is inserted into the soil. This forms a water barrier and raises the soil level about six inches.

Alexander concluded by saying that there are about 1,300 uses for asphalt. Eighty per cent is used in highways, 15 per cent in construction, and five per cent is used to make terraces and driveways.

Mrs. S. Gorman introduced the speaker, and Mrs. Paul Sheedy presided. Miss Helen Hurt served as refreshment chairman.

Approximately 15 attended.

Rebekah Lodge Sets Garage Sale

Mrs. Jake Robertson, noble grand, presided and announced a garage sale for June 16-17 at the Tuesday meeting of the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge No. 153.

Members were urged to bring clothing and household items for the sale which will be held at the lodge hall, and proceeds will be used for building repairs.

Mrs. Joe Evans and Mrs. O. L. Buchanan, past noble grands, have had as their project the repair and painting of windows in the lodge hall. Work on this is almost complete. Mrs. Robertson's project is the painting of the hall.

Twenty-seven attended, and 16 visits to the sick and shut-in were reported.

Gift Shower Held For Bride-Elect

Miss Daphne Barnes, bride-elect of Charles Ray Burdett, was complimented with a gift shower Tuesday evening in the Blue Room of Cosden Country Club. Mrs. Jeff A. Hanna Jr. hosted the affair beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The honoree is the daughter of Mrs. Esther Barnes, 1408 Park, and W. H. Barnes of Sand Springs. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Burdett, 408 Circle Drive.

The couple will marry June 16 at the First Christian Church, with the Rev. James A. Puckett serving as officiant.

The refreshment table was laid with a white organdy cloth and centered with an arrangement of straw flowers. Crystal and silver appointments completed the setting.

Approximately 50 attended.

Color Helps Keep Distinctive Look

One way to give your bathroom a distinctive look is by using numerous towels in the same shade, but not the same pattern. For example, combine sunny yellow solids with yellow florals and with yellow and white striped towels. Rather than "fighting" each other, the different towels present an unusual but unified appearance.

To carry this idea one step further, assign a particular style to each member of the family; stripes for Jimmy, flowers for Sue, and so on. This makes it easy for even young children to identify and use their own personal towels each time they wash up.

When a recipe calls for four cups (1 quart) sliced pared apples, buy 1 1/2 pounds — usually six medium size.

MISS SYLVIA LANE REAVES

Bride-Elect Trained In Home Management

By RHODA LEMONS

On the eve of her marriage to Kenneth Patterson, Miss Sylvia Lane Reaves is busy with packing, marking gifts and putting the final cleaning touches on their new home at the rear of 1403 Lincoln.

The couple will marry in the sanctuary of the East Fourth Baptist Church tomorrow evening with the Rev. Eldon Cook serving as officiant.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Reaves, 1517 Kentucky, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Patterson, 602 Holbert.

"I am very excited and very happy," said Miss Reaves. "I just hope that I have thought of everything." Although she plans a simple wedding without too much fuss, Miss Reaves wants everything to be as nice as possible.

Miss Reaves sews many of her own clothes, but was afraid to trust herself for her wedding dress, which was designed and made by her mother. It is a white bonded crepe, demi-fitted street-length shift with long set-in Chantilly lace sleeves featuring scalloped lace edging.

The three-room house rented by Patterson and his fiancée was not vacated until June 1, and they have spent every spare moment cleaning and doing touch-up painting to make it more attractive. The house is rented furnished, but the couple wants to make it as livable and personality-filled as they can.

Before Miss Reaves was honored with several pre-nuptial showers, the only household possessions they owned was a china service given her by her grandmother. They now have a much better supply of linens, dishes and kitchen items to set up their first home.

"I really don't think it is terribly important to have large numbers of things," said Miss Reaves. "I just want to make my future husband as happy as I can, and to be happy myself."

Miss Reaves graduated from Big Spring Senior High School this spring, and has used all her graduation gift money to supplement her trousseau and to buy things necessary for starting their new home. Her fiancé is employed by Pollard Chevrolet Company and has been living as frugally as possible to save for their wedding day.

Miss Reaves has been trained by her mother in home management. She can cook simple dishes, and some more elaborate ones given the time. She knows about shopping and food preparation. She plans to take their laundry to the washateria once each week, and she has ironed her own clothes and occasionally her father's shirts for several years now.

For the first few months at least, Miss Reaves does not plan to work outside the home. She feels that the adjustment of two lives and learning to live harmoniously together is best done when one of the partners works at it full time.

She does plan to attend Howard County Junior College at a later date, and has had book-keeping, shorthand and typing in high school.

"I do, perhaps vaguely, realize how much it will cost to operate and manage our own home," said young brunet Miss Reaves, "but I feel that if we both work at it, we can manage on my future husband's income. We will have to plan on simple pleasures, and the joy of just being together." Both enjoy playing golf and bowling, but realize that they are costly and will have to be curtailed some in the future.

A group of high school friends gave Miss Reaves a kitchen and recipe shower which she has carefully filed away. She has also copied the recipes her mother uses that she especially enjoys and has prepared for the family. It is from this group that the following selections are offered.

Turkey Broth Enhances Meal

Make broth from the leftovers of a turkey to serve "as is" or use in a sauce.

TURKEY BROTH A LA JULIENNE

Roast turkey carcass and bones
2 qts. water
1 carrot, pared
1 rib plus 1/2 cup celery leaves
1 medium onion
Several parsley sprigs
2 bay leaves
Salt to taste
1/4 tsp. peppercorns
Cooked vegetables
Break up carcass and place in a kettle with all the ingredients except the cooked vegetables. Bring to a boil; cover and simmer for a few hours. Strain; refrigerate; remove any fat. Reheat, correcting seasoning, and adding thin strips of such cooked vegetables as snap beans, carrots and celery.

Try Crown Roast For Festive Fare

Royal fare for special dinners is a crown roast of pork. Crown roasts come from the rib section of the pork loin. Usually a special order must be given to the meat man to obtain this cut.

To make the crown roast festive, garnish the platter with cinnamon apples and sprigs of water cress. Fill the center of the roast with whipped sweet potatoes or buttered onions. Paper fills or spiced crabapples placed on the rib bones at serving time give it a finished look.

Sparkling Punch For Festivities

When June wedding bells ring, what could be more fitting than a sparkling orange blossom punch?

It's very much in season, with this year's plentiful supply of orange juice. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, last winter's record crop of fresh oranges blossomed into a gigantic pack of frozen orange juice concentrate—58 per cent bigger than a year ago.

The citrus bonanza means you needn't wait for a special occasion to begin enjoying plenty of vitamin C-rich orange juice. It's a nourishing and flavorful thirst quencher for those longer and longer days of outdoor living.

As a guarantee of flavor and all-round quality, most of the frozen concentrated orange juice is inspected for quality by experts of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. These inspectors also make sure the processing plant is clean and sanitary. They work continuously right in the plant, run lab tests for color, flavor and oil content. For a lively fresh taste orange juice must have just the right amount of oil from the rind. Too little oil means poor flavor and too much gives a harsh flavor. USDA inspectors make sure it's just right.

To make good use of orange juice at June festivities, try this favorite recipe of Mrs. Orville L. Freeman, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture. You'll need six 12-ounce cans frozen orange juice concentrate, three 12-ounce cans frozen lemonade, four quarts water, four quarts tea, two tablespoons white cloves, four quarts ginger ale and sugar to taste.

Tie cloves in cheese cloth. Place in water that is to be boiled for tea. Leave in water while tea is steeping. Remove with tea bags. Combine first four ingredients and chill, adding sugar to taste. Pour into punch bowl over block of ice or ice cubes. Add ginger ale. Float thin slices of lemons, lime and/or mint sprigs on top. Serves 125 cups.

PANTRY PICK-UPS

Party fare: make - your - own sundaes! Serve vanilla and chocolate ice cream with small bowls of sliced preserved ginger (along with some of the syrup), chopped toasted almonds, chocolate sauce; flaked coconut.

Quick Sunday - night supper soup: add milk and diced cooked ham to creamstyle corn and heat to serving temperature.

Add soft butter to gingersnap cookie crumbs and press over bottom and around sides of a pie plate. Bake in a moderate oven for five to eight minutes. Cool and fill with vanilla pudding-and-pie filling. Garnish with poached apple slices and whipped cream for a different and delicious dessert.

As a glaze for ham, you may use a combination of light brown sugar, white wine and pineapple juice.

Sandwich slices of square-pack ice cream between slices of pound cake (loaf size). Serve with thawed frozen strawberries or raspberries.

For a party at which you are serving fruit compote, you might like to put the compote in frosted sherbet glasses. Dip the edge of each sherbet glass in lemon juice, then in granulated sugar; chill in the refrigerator so the frost will "set."

Marinate drained canned asparagus in olive oil and wine vinegar. Serve on salad greens with slices of tomato or red onion.

Add grated cheddar cheese and dry mustard to white sauce; serve with a cooked green vegetable.

Ever add mushrooms to creamed spinach? You can use canned mushrooms or sautéed sliced fresh ones.

BRIDEGROOM'S CAKE Perfect for his wedding

Golden Cake With Fruit For Bridegroom's Table

Here comes the bridegroom's cake and a golden, fruit-filled beauty it is. Although the recipe was developed with wedding-day festivities in mind, the cake is so good that it should not be limited to only one occasion.

The cake is rich and moist with a wonderful blend of dates, apricots, raisins and toasted almonds.

Cakes may be baked as much as a month ahead and wrapped either uncut or sliced for freezer storage. The uncut cakes would be sliced and individually boxed the day before the reception.

Storage tests also indicate that the cake may be baked two weeks in advance, wrapped tightly in foil and stored at room temperature. The day before the wedding, the cake is sliced and put into the individual boxes for the guests at the reception. The texture of the cake is moist and the good apricot flavor has mellowed. The color of the cake will be somewhat darker than it was just out of the oven.

GROOM'S GOLDEN CAKE

1 lb. (2 cups) margarine
4 cups sifted flour
2 tps. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. allspice
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 lb. (2 1/4 cups) packed dark brown sugar
1 cup honey
10 eggs
1 cup apricot nectar
2 tps. lemon juice
1/2 cup cream
2 lbs. pitted dates, sliced
2 lbs. dried apricots, sliced
1 lb. toasted almonds, chopped
1/2 lb. seedless golden raisins
Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, and spices. Cream together margarine, brown sugar, and honey. Beat until mixture is smooth and fluffy. To the creamed mixture add the eggs, beating well after the addition of each. Add 1/2 of the sifted ingredients to the batter and beat until thoroughly blended. Combine the apricot nectar, lemon juice, and cream. Stir into the cake batter. When batter is well mixed, fold in chopped fruits and nuts, which have been dredged in the remainder of the flour mixture. Pour the cake into four 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pans rubbed with shortening and floured. Bake in a very slow oven (250 degrees) for three hours. Cool in pans before removing. Makes four 2 1/2 pound cakes.

Meat Is Source Of Rich Protein

Meat is one of the most valuable sources of high-quality protein. B vitamins and minerals. Together with proper amounts of other nutritious foods, meat contributes to the total nutrition needed for good health in youngsters and adults alike.

Here are some general rules in broiling: To keep steaks chops and ham slices from "cupping" while broiling, slash through outside fat covering at one-inch intervals. Broiling is not recommended for veal. Meats may be broiled in the frozen state, or partially or completely thawed.

A Devotional For The Day

You are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, God's own people, that you may declare the wonderful deeds of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light. (1 Peter 2:9, RSV)

PRAYER: Our Father, hallowed be Thy name. As we humble ourselves to worship Thee, speak to us. Help us to keep our hearts and minds open so that Thou canst enlighten us. Grant us patience that we may learn to wait for Thy word to us. In Thy Son's name we ask these things. Amen.
(From the 'Upper Room')

Down The Primrose Path

By now, it appears that for the second time in little more than a decade, Egypt's Prime Minister Nasser has been led down the primrose path, and with him the family of Arab nations. Latest accounts of the Mid-East war indicate that Nasser is learning that the fellow who eggs on the fight doesn't always rush in to help. Encouragement from Russia turned out to be just that, because when the chips were down, it appeared that sober minds in Moscow took counsel for the overriding necessity of trying to somehow avert a conflict which might blossom into a global war.

There was something of this in the wind in 1956 when Nasser fomented an abortive drive against Israel. His fingers were singed — but good; yet he seems to have learned little other than that brazenness and threats will sometimes gain concessions. However, he forgot the larger lesson that when a bluff is called, the day of reckoning is at hand. Against guns and disciplined fighters, words and hot passions avail little.

Nasser was reported trying to find a way to save face; the way things seem to be going, he needs to find a way to save his hide. The tragedy is that he deluded a number of other nations in the Arab orbit into his ill-conceived adventure, either because they allowed the emotion of hate to cloud reason or because he so inflamed the populace that other Arab leaders were forced to go along against their better judgment.

Intolerable

The penchant of Congress for conducting vital committee business in secret continues to be a matter for concern. Few dispute the justification for excluding the press when questions involving the national security are discussed, but how can closed doors at 45 per cent of all congressional committee sessions be justified? The percentage figure is drawn from a Congressional Quarterly report. It notes that at 386 of the 861 meetings thus far this year, the committee room doors were closed. The House was the worst offender: 57 per cent of its committee meetings were closed.

The corresponding Senate figure is 28 per cent. Taken together, what it amounts to is that the public is barred from nearly half of the committee sessions at which the public's business is conducted. That is intolerable. Saying so, and persuading Congress to reform in this regard, are two quite different things. But the effort should be made — and individual citizens can do their part by asking their representatives in Congress a few pointed questions. Such as: What's so secret about the public business?

Can A Federal Bill Control Honesty?

WASHINGTON — Rutherford B. Hayes, the 19th President, was not one of our great ones, but he was an earnest, upright professional, and one of the few ex-presidents who made useful comments on the holders of that office.

"Now, the wisdom of the fathers," wrote Hayes, "has given to the President a host of motives to be honest and patriotic. Presidents in the past have always been better than their adversaries have predicted. All were free from the least taint of personal corruption. All were honest men. All were, in the best sense, gentlemen."

Nothing has happened to alter or challenge this estimate (Harding was sinned against but not sinning), and the Hayes testimony is very pertinent to the so-called clean election bill now before the Finance Committee.

This is the bill, or at least the idea, which was sprung late last session on a weary Congress in the form of a Christmas tree amendment to provide Federal financing in the area of $60 million for Presidential campaigns. It was recently re-debated for six weeks in the Senate and finally sent back to the Finance Committee for discussion.

THE DISCUSSION, far more orderly than the debate, has suggested to one reporter that the bill could well be titled: "Lead us not into temptation," for that's what it's all about. Under Secretary Joe Barr, the Administration pleader, said that if Federal tax money supplied approximately two-thirds of the funds necessary for a national campaign, there would be less temptation for the candidates to "prey" upon their rich supporters.

Senator Long (D., La.), who put over the bill in the 89th Congress, spoke up again for the purifying effect of direct grabs from the Treasury. He opposed the substitute plan of tax-deductible contributions, he said because the fat cats would get a big tax deduction in the transaction of buying up a candidate.

SEN. ALBERT Gore (D., Tenn.), who helped send the bill back to committee, said it didn't go far enough. If the Treasury could reduce 67 per cent of the temptation for candidates to rely on wealthy contributors (and thus become under obligation to them), why not go the whole hog and wash the candidates in a 100 per cent solution of cleansing suds? Gore proposed that the Treasury pay not only the costs for television, newspaper ads and campaign propaganda, but also the salaries for campaign managers, ghost-writers, door-bell pushers and all the rest. More, Gore added, let the Treasury also save the souls of senators by subsidizing their campaign expenses, lest senators come into office with debts — of gratitude to the plutocrats of their states.

BARR, LONG and Gore weren't trying to out-funny Art Buchwald. They were dead serious. Every argument in favor of the bill still confined to Presidential contests at this writing, comes back to the proposition that the winner of a national election is too weak to resist temptation where money has been concerned.

Rutherford Hayes, the posthumous witness, would quickly dispose of this wicked insinuation. Every President, as Hayes said, "has a host of motives to be honest and patriotic." The high cost of television has not broken these moral tethers, and Federal money won't make honesty come easier in this century than in the last.

BUT THE main objection to the bill is its perhaps unconscious impleity. It makes the U.S. Treasury the receiver and answerer of the prayer: "Lead us not into temptation." It turns the Federal Government, already too much of a giver and ruler, into still more of a godhead.

WHAT OTHERS SAY
The Advisory Commission on Information, headed by Dr. Frank Stanton of CBS, brewed up a dilly with its suggestion that United States Information Agency products be "made available" at home. That little trial balloon was hardly afloat when a bi-partisan array of senators began elbowing their way into line to take shots at it.

UN Mumbles And Bumbles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stupidity of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser precipitated the Mideast war. But the United Nations, the organization which might have been able to prevent it, dawdled instead.

It can never excuse itself on this. And there's no guarantee it will do any better the next time, which may be worse. But the war happened and now the future of the Middle East almost certainly will be rearranged.

ALL LAST week the U.N. Security Council, knowing war might begin any moment, mumbled and bumbled over how to phrase a resolution calling for no war. Even when it began the council took two days to agree on demanding a cease-fire.

The United States, which claimed to be neutral but hardly would have stood by and watched Israel annihilated, and the Soviet Union, which said it supported Nasser, jockeyed around in all this.

THEIR MOTIVATIONS will be a subject of speculation a long time. It was a shabby performance by a world organization supposedly dedicated to peace and preserving it.

But Nasser's performance was irresponsible and it's doubtful the Egyptians will put up with him much longer.

He is 49 now but he was a young man in the Israeli-Arab war of 1948 in which Israel shelled the Arabs. He brooded over the humiliation but, as it turned out, he was impulsive. The first big demonstration of this came in 1952.

ser's air force on the ground and destroy it? In three days Nasser's forces again looked like ragamuffins. This was nonsense, not leadership, by Nasser.

How else explain Egypt's lack of readiness for war after he had threatened to begin one? Thus Nasser brought a new humiliation on his people. Again a lack of planning. If he wasn't ready for war, he shouldn't have threatened it.

HOW ELSE explain the fact his planes were able to catch Nasser's air force on the ground and destroy it? In three days Nasser's forces again looked like ragamuffins. This was nonsense, not leadership, by Nasser.

NEW YORK (AP) — At 51, Eddie Chapman, a self-confessed former safebreaker and wartime double agent for Britain and Nazi Germany, says he has given up villainy for good.

"I haven't reformed," he said matter of factly. "I simply have grown older and retired. I don't particularly have a moral code, one way or another."

Eddie, who combined rascality with personal charm, is six feet tall, has long, gray-streaked hair and darting gray-green eyes that seem always to be thinking ahead of his mouth.

HE ALWAYS managed to live well in the shadow past, and he's doing nicely now as an antiques dealer and writer. One of the five books he has turned out on his exploits has been made into a film for Warner Bros. called, "Triple Cross."

Parachuted into his own country, he immediately contacted high authorities there.

to scrub my past record as a safe-cracker if I would go back to the Germans as a double agent," he said. "As a cover, they blew a hole in the roof of the airplane factory, and announced the building had been destroyed. Then I slipped back into occupied France."

The Germans, suspicious at first, finally rewarded him with an Iron Cross, and he ostensibly worked for the rest of the war with them while secretly reporting to London by radio, using a code within the German code.

AFTER THE war Eddie says he did some cigarette smuggling in Tangier, then became an "investor" at English dog tracks.

"I've never gambled in my life. It was a business. Gambling bores me. I try to eliminate luck and chance when I'm deciding around."

Eddie gave up investing at the tracks after winning $135,000 in 1948 on a dog, which was in the first victory of his career.

Perhaps Talk Is Cheaper

Exposed as we have been the past few days to the many facets of "diplomacy," it is not uncommon to hear comments on the sometimes tiring trade of talk, talk, talk. If there are any results from these long U.N. sessions, it is not readily apparent to most of us.

LITTLE INSIGHT comes through regarding this nebulous art. After watching hour after hour of the "debate" by U.N. representatives, the whole thing comes off a bit comical. Each man reads from a long and lengthy document, prefacing and ending his remarks with apologies for its length. As he methodically maligns his opponents with all manner of fearsome accusations, he nevertheless never fails to refer to him as "distinguished" or "honorable," or at the very least, "learned."

FINALLY, after all have had their say, a vote is taken with some reporting defeat, others coming out overjoyed. But after the conference room noise has died down, we find the war is still going on, while beligerents pledge they seek only peace. This "diplomacy" is complex, akin to necromancy to the observer. It is the only competition in which both sides can claim victory after the smoke has cleared away, and most of us can't tell the difference.

TO BE SURE, it is better that men talk at the table than fight in the field. If it keeps our young men safe from death in some desert or jungle, I say let's invest in more tables and elect more officials to sit around them, and let everyone claim victory at every meeting.

SO FAR, we have rarely had a choice. The conference table comes along only after both sides have become winded, or the tide of battle appears to be turning against the aggressor. Mysterious as it may be — even curious at times — diplomacy is still a better alternative.

If it has not eliminated war, at least it has shortened them; if we have not won the wars, at least we have not lost them.

Mid-East War Must Be Contained

WASHINGTON — The sudden attacks on each other by the armed forces of Israel and the Arab states have scared the world into thinking that a war involving the major powers may yet ensue. But there is every indication that the conflict will remain local and that eventually pressure from governments friendly to both sides will bring about a cease-fire. After this would come a prolonged negotiation for a peace agreement.

THE OUTBREAK should never have occurred. U Thant, Secretary-General of the United Nations, might better have taken at once to the Security Council or to the General Assembly Egypt's demand for withdrawal of the U.N.'s peacekeeping force. He now argues that some of the troops in this group were getting ready to leave anyhow. Substitute forces, however, could have been provided by the U.N. In any event, it was a subject not for the decision of any one man but for action by the Security Council or the General Assembly.

The incident dramatically illustrates how poorly prepared the U.N. is to intervene quickly in an international dispute which could bring on a large war.

WHAT IS even more pertinent is how the Arab-Israeli situation was brought to a crisis in the first place. Encouragement certainly was given to Egypt by the Soviets. Several conferences undoubtedly were held at which the strategy was mapped out. It has been revealed that top men in the Kremlin discussed beforehand with Egyptian officials a prospective trip of some Soviet war vessels from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean. Indeed, several weeks ago the Russians began complaining publicly about the presence of the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean and demanded its removal. Yet this same force is an arm of NATO and has been in the Mediterranean continuously for many years.

THE UNITED STATES has declared its neutrality as far as the issues in the war are concerned, but Ambassador Goldberg has been active in the U.N. trying to persuade the other nations to get behind a movement to relieve the tension and put the problem before competent tribunals for further consideration. At present, while each side accuses the other of aggression, the big question is whether the Security Council will be able to bring about an immediate cease-fire or whether a Soviet veto will prevent such action.

THE UNITED STATES is not likely to take military steps for the time being and will avoid the appearance of exerting economic pressure, at least while negotiations are going on at the U.N. If, however, the Suez Canal is not kept open, the governments of Great Britain and France may join with this country in sending warships to assure safe passage of their merchant shipping through the canal.

THE OUTBREAK of fighting has come as a surprise to many people throughout the world who thought that the U.N. had achieved a position of power either to forestall such disturbances or to clear them up quickly when they arise. With the exception of Vietnam, disputes of a grave nature that have emerged since World War II have been taken care of by diplomatic intervention or by peace-keeping operations — in the case of Korea, by an international force under the auspices of the U.N. Despite an outward appearance of weakness on the part of the U.N., the feeling here is that the members cannot afford to let the Israeli-Arab conflict grow into a major war.

Commercials For Anti-Smoking

WASHINGTON — The decision of the Federal Communications Commission to demand that any television or radio station advertising cigarette smoking give equal time to anti-smoking forces has thrown the cigarette companies and the entire advertising world into a swivet. According to the FCC ruling, cigarette smoking is a controversial issue and therefore both sides must get equal time in making their cases.

IT'S NOT GOING to be very easy for the anticigarette forces to make their commercials as interesting as those of the cigarette companies, but they better begin soon.

I've got some ideas I'm willing to give them if they're interested. The first commercial would show a cowboy riding through the hills and dales, with music in the background. Suddenly he comes to a valley and looks down. Strewed all over the valley are skeletons, each clutching a pack of cigarettes. The next thing heard over the screen is a voice saying, "This is Marlsmoker country. You get a lot to like with a Marlsmoker."

THE FIRST puts the gum in his mouth. "Say, this gum sure tastes different from a cigarette." "That," says the other man, "is because it's got natural milkiness." "Isn't that funny — I thought gum and cigarettes tasted exactly alike." "That's because you've never chewed a cigarette."

A fourth commercial could pan in on one fellow beating up another. A third man comes on the scene and asks why the man is beating the other fellow up.

than switch." THE MAN on the bottom cries "Don't hit me again. I'll switch. I never was much of a fighter." The man on top turns toward the camera and says, "Anyone else I catch smoking gets a poke in the eye."

The final commercial would show a doorman helping a well-dressed man and woman out of a chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce in front of a fancy hotel. He says to the couple, "Show me a cigarette that's better than this and I'll eat my hat."

THE CAMERA comes in close on the wealthy man who looks exactly like Conrad Hilton. He says, "You know you're not allowed to smoke on the job. You're fired. And if you get your teeth anywhere near that hat, I'll have you arrested for destroying hotel property."

The doorman throws his pack of cigarettes in the gutter and says in disgust, "That's the third job I've lost this month."

More Cigarette Sales In Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Cigarette sales in Japan in 1966 increased over 1965 with filter-tipped brands being the more popular, the Japan Tobacco Monopoly Corporation reported.

The corporation said 1966 sales totaled 562,436,000,000 yen ($1,562,323,000) a 5.7 per cent hike over 1965 but below the average 6.2 per cent growth rate of previous years.

The report said the 1966 sales were the equivalent of 183,590,000,000 cigarettes. It did not indicate whether the decline in sales resulted from reports that smoking contributed to can-

To Your Good Health At The Least Strain, His Shoulder Dislocates

By JOSEPH G. OLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: I am 23 and for two years have had shoulder dislocations. I can't play any sports or do anything the least out of the ordinary without a painful dislocation. What can be done? Is there any kind of physical therapy? — G. L. H.

The story of recurring shoulder dislocations chiefly affects young males and it usually comes down to the same history: An injury to start with. Our joints are kept in proper position by the combined action of muscles, ligaments and the joint capsule. Damage one (or more) of these, and a bone can slip out of position — become dislocated.

Physical therapy is not the answer. Exercise isn't going to repair the injury. More likely it will make it worse. The conservative treatment is with some sort of splinting, arranged to suit the particular injury, to prevent strain on the injured tissues until they have time to knit firmly. (Have this done by an orthopedist.) If this does not bring suitable results, then surgical repair may be necessary. Professional athletes, of course, resort to surgery much more quickly, because it is important for them, in terms of money, to get back into action sooner.

Good function of the shoulder can be expected after the surgery. Women also can be subject to dislocations, and from the same cause, an injury. Dear Dr. Molner: What is the cause of skin cancer? Will it spread to other parts of the body? Why would the cure take two years of X-ray treatments? — D. H.

We don't know the cause of cancer. We just know that it tends to follow some types of irritation: Too much sun and wind, some chemical irritants, fumes, repeatedly irritated flaws such as moles, etc. Sometimes no cause can be detected. Like any other cancer, it will spread, but being on the surface it can be seen before it has time to spread, and can be removed and thus cured. Some are removed surgically, some destroyed by X-ray, depending on location, size, type. Extending the X-ray treatment would be to make certain that the cancer has been completely eradicated. Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, requesting a copy of the booklet, "How to Control Emphysema," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling. Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

'Cool' Professionals Snap Up Stock Market Bargains

Big Spring (Texas) Herald Thursday, June 8, 1967 5-C dropped 15.54 points, based on the Dow Jones averages, its sharpest decline since Oct. 3, 1966.
Once again the spring was set, and on the following day the market snapped back with a gain almost as large. Again the large blocks gave evidence that the institutions were bargaining again.

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The morning after a binge of emotional selling spins stock prices downward like a whirlpool is when the cool-headed professionals usually come to market to shop for bargains.
It happened this week. It has happened a hundred times before.

And it is about the most certain prediction that can be made about the future of stock market behavior.
The selling seems to have been done by some of the so-called rank-and-file shareholders. The buying, at least some of it, seems to have been done by institutions.
Those who sold did so on the theory that uncertainty is no time to have money on the stock market. Those who bought did so on the theory that the time to buy stocks is when most people don't want them.

Perhaps as a consequence of this thinking, twice in the past week we have had extremely sharp drops one day followed by equally sharp rises

On May 31 fears over the Midwest troubles put the market into a tailspin, a sell-off described by several analysts in the old cliché as "a crisis of confidence."
"SMALL PANIC"
A "small panic developed among the public stockholders," said another, obviously referring to the absence of big block sales, indicating that much of the selling was small stuff.

Because of the cumulative effect of small investor sales, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 12.42 points. This opened the eyes and the pocketbooks of a lot of big investors who were awaiting just such a dip. They prepared to buy.

On the following day the Dow Jones average rose by the same number of points it had dropped the day before. Cool heads, studying such things as favorable price-earnings ratios and an upturn in factory orders, were buying.
And, as an increase in the number of large block transactions showed, the buyers were the professionals, the big money, the institutions.

The Mideast situation took a violent turn to war in the early morning hours Monday, and so the stage was set again for an emotional display at the opening bell. It came. The market

Pastor Says War Must Go

FORT WORTH (AP) — "War must go," the Rev. Granville Walker, pastor of the University Christian Church, told the Central Texas Methodist Conference Wednesday.

"No amount of summing up of the goods that come from war can offset the irreparable damage to the human race from war," he said.

The Rev. Mr. Walker said each generation discovers something it has inherited which needs to be discarded.

"Some aspects of our heritage must be reinterpreted, dusted off and put in a modern setting," he said.

"To distinguish what we ought to throw away, reinterpret and keep requires intelligence, faith and the willingness to sacrifice."

New Blood Cleaner Solves Old Problem

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Sometimes a person's kidneys fail to do their work of cleaning the blood of the normal castoffs of living.

When both the little 4.5-inch glands near the spinal column stop working you die.

That is, you died until about 16 years ago, when a blood cleansing machine was developed. But it cost $25,000 a year for treatment and few could afford it.

With few machines and the cost high, doctors were wracked by the moral, ethical and medical problems of which person could use the few machines.

COSTS DIP
About 20,000 persons in the United States develop this disease each year.

The cost of blood dialysis (blood filtering) has dropped to $5,000 a year.

But Drs. Harry Sarles, August Remmers and Jay Fish at the University of Texas Medical Branch here may have taken a long new step to restore health and reduce cost.

The team first discovered that filtering the lymph had the same effect as filtering blood. The lymph system is made up of nearly clear fluid that closely parallels the blood system.

TAP WATER
The doctors found that lymph dialysis is cheaper and safer than blood dialysis. The cost is $1,000 a year per patient.

But the patient must spend all his hours in the process of cleaning his blood. He hardly can be useful.

But that was step 1. Step 2 was this: The team discovered that tap water used in place of standard dialysis fluid destroyed the lymphocytes in the lymph fluids. Lymphocytes are white corpuscles arising in the lymph glands.

SKIN GRAFTS
Then came step No. 3. Doctors learned long ago that grafting of organs from one person to another worked only when the persons were close kin. Otherwise, a body eventually rejected the grafted organ.

But studies on animals and later on humans showed that persons called lymphocyte-depleted accepted skin grafts exceptionally well.

Could doctors graft an entire kidney from a person who had just died?

"We knew we could maintain life through lymph dialysis, but our ultimate goal was to make these patients more truly habitable," said Dr. Sarles.

TRANSPLANT
"A successful transplant would be much better than a life of almost constant dialysis," he said.

So the doctors developed a lymph bypass pump. This allows the collection of lymph, its dialysis and then its pumping back into the body with a small machine that is powered by a battery.

The machine also allows irradiating the fluid with a small

Baseball-Style Trade Proposed
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wayne L. Hays, noting Israel's reported military successes against its Arab foes, proposed a baseball-style U.S.-Israel trade.

"I think we ought to offer Israel 400 F111 airplanes for that one-eyed general," the Ohio Democrat told the House Tuesday, referring to Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israel's defense minister.

"Maybe he could take care of things in Vietnam the way he's doing in the Middle East," Hays said.

Actress St. John To Marry Singer
NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Jack Jones and actress Jill St. John say they'll walk down the aisle.

They announced their engagement Tuesday but said no wedding date had been set.

Jones, 29, divorced his first wife, San Francisco model Lee Laurence, last year. Miss St. John, 25, was previously married to Lance Reventlow, son of millionaire Barbara Hutton.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite the deary and the undue deliberation that most everyone seems to be exercising where any practical decisions or money matters are concerned and the tendency for all to feel boxed there is a big chance you can charm those about into doing things your way by a warm and understanding smile plus gentleness.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Off to the pleasure you like as soon as you have completed important duties, but be sure you do not irk kin in any way. Use that fine talent you have that is not connected with business. Be happier, more successful.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Even though outside matters rather dismal, the situation at home is ideal, so stick to that. Avoid getting into risky business. This could lead to much heartbreak later on, if you are not careful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Fascinating correspondence reaches you, although you may not be able to respond at right now owing to other matters at hand. Give support to regular comrades who ask for it. Show that you are truly devoted.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Getting advice from others who are experts can help you to improve in monetary and property matters of importance to you. Learn to budget more wisely. Make your possessions for more attractive.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Forget any limitations of a financial nature and concentrate on the persons which are very satisfactory. Be of your attractive best and then be on the go. Be sure you take the right beauty and health treatments, though.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show your ingenuity in assisting one who is in dire trouble, but don't make a very difficult thing of it. Get problematical affairs handled wisely, but take a charitable attitude with others. This is the key to today's success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try not to be extravagant where recreation is concerned or you lose out in your careful budgeting. That romantic plan you have may take a little longer to be realized than you think now. Be patient.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan what should be done to make those you love happier, and be sure not to lose your temper, say unkind things. Think before you speak. Some big deal you put over can be very impressive to kin.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Clear up situations that have put a crimp into your regular duties, routines. Be more attentive to complaints that have been voiced. These can be the clue to how to ameliorate everything.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 21) Handling those around you with greater care is the keynote to today's success. Be more willing to do what is expected of you. Show admiration for a partner who is doing something very spectacular, clever.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 22 to Feb. 19) Instead of listening to a romantic associate at home, immerse up and follow one in the outside field of your endeavor. Back a partner who is loyal behind your back. Show that you can be relied upon also.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Do whatever will please your surroundings more beautiful, attractive and you attract those you admire more readily. Old friends can also be won back. However, be very tactful with everyone.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN tomorrow he or she will be one of those most sensitive youngsters who early is apt to feel unhappy with his or her lot in life, so be sure to teach early how to be independent, how to weather the buffeting of life. Being obedient is the answer here, since the ideas are ahead of those of most others. Such a child can be great.

Pistol Slaying Relief Denied

AUSTIN (AP) — A divided Court of Criminal Appeals refused Wednesday to free from prison a man who claimed he could have been acquitted if persons charged as accessories had testified at his murder trial.

The court denied relief to Stephen Zerschausky, whom a San Antonio jury sentenced to 30 years for the Jan. 2, 1963, pistol slaying of Michael Coury.

Judges W. A. Morrison and John Onion dissented in the 3-2 decision.

In his majority opinion, presiding Judge K. K. Woodley said the code of criminal procedure in 1963 provided that persons charged as accessories could not be used as witnesses, but a judge's primary duty was to safeguard the rights of the defendant. Woodley said it would have been permissible for the trial judge to allow testimony of three eyewitnesses charged as accessories.

But Woodley said, the trial record reflects no request to call the witnesses.

"In the absence of any ruling of the trial court denying (Zerschausky) the right to call the witnesses under indictment as accessories and have them testify for him, we overrule the contention that (Zerschausky) was denied due process," Woodley wrote.

LEAVES HOSPITAL
Normal transplants and the drugs and X-ray therapies that follow often leave the body vulnerable to a variety of infections. The Medical Branch doctors believed their method of dialysis and surgery would make the drugs and radiation unnecessary.

The operation was performed on Nichols March 30. Now more than nine weeks later, he is in condition to leave the hospital. Doctors hope Nichols can find a job on Galveston Island so they can continue to observe him.

The patient looks well, says he is "feeling very well" and has a good appetite. His lymph pump and tubing are hidden by his clothing.

"I feel sorta safe now," he says with a smile. He says he felt better immediately after the dialysis began in January.

Farming, Oil Backbones Of Warring Countries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil and agriculture are the economic backbones of the warring Middle East countries. All nations involved lack significant industry and have vast pocket economics compared with the United States.

U.S. officials say both Israel and Egypt are beginning to move toward an industrialized economy. But they've had to get their principal weapons — tanks and airplanes, for example — from the major powers.

They are incapable of switching automobile plants to tank production, for example, because neither has an auto-manufacturing industry.

WORKER SHORTAGE
Egypt, Commerce Department officials said, has assembly operations only for Fiat cars, Yugoslav tractors, German trucks and English Ford cars and trucks. It suffers an acute shortage of skilled workers.

Israel, whose skilled worker shortage isn't as severe, also lacks auto-manufacturing plants but has assembly operations.

Auto production in Egypt during 1965, Commerce officials said, was about 3,000 vehicles, mainly Fiat cars made from components imported from Italy.

and services during 1963, the most recent figure available.

For three other nations bordering Israel, the department said 1966 GNP totaled $950 million for Lebanon, $550 for Syria and $470 million for Jordan.

By far the richest Middle East country is tiny Kuwait where the gross national product now exceeds $1.5 billion, about half of it from oil.
