The charred left wing of a twin-engine airplane pokes into a broken window (in foreground) of a Highland Park elementary school in Dallas as wreckage and bicycles litter the yard outside the school where the plane crashed late yesterday. The plane's seven occupants were killed but no children were hurt. The plane crashed just 30 minutes after school let out.

Seven Perish When Plane Rakes Elementary School

DALLAS (AP) — Two aerospace civilian workers and five military pilots perished Wednesday when their small plane nosedived onto a busy street and ricocheted into an elementary school — just 20 minutes after classes let out.

On any other day the Bradford Elementary School yard would have been abuzz at the fatal hour with pupils lingering beside the band hall to pick up their bicycles.

But Wednesday was faculty meeting day and the 633 pupils were dismissed before the two-engine Ling-Temco-Vought Electrosystems plane spiraled down, trailing smoke and with its left wing unnaturally bent.

DRIVER SURVIVES
The craft hit a glancing blow on a passing car — whose driver lived to tell about it — and careened through the bike racks and against a wall of the brick band building. It halted within 50 feet of the assembled teachers.

An 11-year-old sixth grader hurrying to football practice said he barely got out of the way. Tad Heimberger was scurrying past the bike stands when he heard a "wild whirring sound" above and behind him. He ran as the plane exploded nearby.

Almost before firemen had doused the flames in the twisted wreckage, the band hall and three scorched trees, helicopters began ferrying inspectors from LTV headquarters.

LTV EMPLOYEES
A spokesman for the aerospace and electronics firm said the flight was a routine, three-daily shuttle between the LTV Electrosystems plant at Greenville, 50 miles northeast, and Dallas' Love Field, which the plane missed by slightly more than one mile.

LTV employees killed in the crash were Verner Denman Jr., 45, of Greenville, the pilot, and N. E. Chappell, 32, a Dallas-born research scientist who lived in Fort Worth.

Also aboard were Dover, Del., Air Force Base pilots who had ferried C130s to the Greenville plant and were being flown back here to catch flights back to Dover. Carswell Air Force Base at Fort Worth identified them as Maj. Jack H. Culp Sr., Capt. Donald Cook, Capt. Anthony G. Lucey, M. Sgt. Kenneth P. Kennedy and M. Sgt. Julius B. Lee.

METAL MASS
Thousands watched from behind ropes blocking off the charred school ground and littered streets as rubber-gloved firemen searched shrubs and a mass of metal debris for human remains. They used nine plastic corpse-sized bags to take away the disintegrated bodies.

One wing of the plane punctured a window of the band hall but the flames and explosion didn't injure any of the 35 teachers in the faculty meeting down the hall in a library.

Maurice Martin, 40, a truck driver whose personal car was hit by the plane, and Tad Heimberger came closest to death.

LUCKY
"I didn't hear anything—but I felt something when the wing hit the back of the car," Martin said. "Before I knew it, I'd been knocked 50 feet up the street and into the yard of a residence. The car door flew open and the plane blew up about the time my foot touched ground.

"You're not kidding—I feel lucky to be alive."
He refused to be photographed or to approach his crumpled car. Wreckers hauled it away.

U.S. Casualties Nears 100,000

SAIGON (AP) — The number of Americans killed in the Vietnam war dropped sharply last week but the total of U.S. casualties since the fighting began nearly seven years ago approached 100,000.

An unofficial survey of casualty figures for this year, gave no sign that last week's drop in casualties was part of any long-term decline.

The U.S. Command said 128 Americans were killed during the week, 1,434 were wounded and four were missing. A week earlier, U.S. forces lost 236 killed, 1,774 wounded and four missing.

vasion routes to the south have received nearly continuous shelling.

Henry Cabot Lodge, then the U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, had predicted in January that the percentage of U.S. casualties in Vietnam would drop this year.

"I believe the purely military part of the war, which is what the Americans are engaged in, will make tremendous progress in 1967 and that the percentage of American casualties will start declining," he told The Associated Press in an interview.

INCREASE

But official reports show that the rate of U.S. casualties has increased during the year. By March 31, the Pentagon reported U.S. combat deaths running 66 per cent above average weekly losses in 1966.

The number of Americans killed rose from 67 in the first week of January to a peak for 1967 of 337 killed in the week of May 14-20.

By unofficial tally, 13,493 Americans have been killed in Vietnam and 84,877 wounded, a total for the war of 98,370.

COMBAT TOLL

Following are Vietnam casualties from Jan. 1 in four week totals, except for two weeks in September. Figures for wounded were not given until April.

Dead Wounded

Jan. 1—Jan. 28	465	5,197
Jan. 29—Feb. 25	559	6,306
Feb. 26—Mar. 25	892	5,400
Mar. 26—Apr. 22	1,047	5,400
Apr. 23—May 20	846	4,147
May 21—June 17	892	5,039
June 18—July 15	506	3,298
July 16—Aug. 12	506	3,298
Aug. 13—Sept. 9	632	5,039
Sept. 10—Sept. 23	364	3,298

Casualty tolls for South Vietnamese, allied and Communist forces also declined last week. South Vietnamese military headquarters said 96 government troops were killed, 380 wounded and 15 missing, compared with 215 killed, 591 wounded and 47 missing a week earlier.

Other allied forces lost 37 killed, 88 wounded and none missing. A week earlier, the total had been 46 killed, 126 wounded and none missing.

The U.S. Command said enemy casualties included 1,134 killed, compared with 1,744 a week before.

U.S. Deaths In Vietnam

Chart reflects U.S. deaths in Vietnam War from Jan. 1 through Sept. 23 of this year. During the period, 6,569 were killed. The four-week period in which more deaths were recorded than in any other four-week period was April 23 to May 20, when 1,047 died.

'Mr. Fixit' Cuts Red Tape Block

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Even British Prime Minister Harold Wilson's son runs into red tape when involved with the U.S. government.

Robin Wilson had earned $2,500 last year as a freshman math instructor at the University of Pennsylvania and, as an alien working here temporarily, he was entitled to a full refund of the $250 taxes he paid.

But, after repeated prodding the Internal Revenue Service sent him only $39.54.

So Wilson wrote the Philadelphia Bulletin's "Mr. Fixit" column whose operatives diplomatically informed Washington of the delicate international situation that existed.

Vet Widow, Alabaman Facing Murder Charges

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Authorities charged the widow of a Vietnam war veteran and an Alabaman formerly stationed in Texas with murder Wednesday in the shooting of her husband.

Deputy Sheriff Edgar McGraw of San Antonio arrested Susie Helen Bradley, 30, of Mineral Wells, Tex., moments after Sgt. I.C. James L. Bradley, 40, was buried in the Ft. Sam Houston National Cemetery here.

EX-FIREMAN

Ex-fireman Donald McGaha, 24, of Montgomery, Ala., waived extradition, meanwhile, and agreed to return from Montgomery. He was arrested there Tuesday.

Bradley, back from Vietnam less than a month, was shot and killed last Friday at his home in Mineral Wells. He was stationed nearby at Ft. Wolters.

Officers said Mrs. Bradley told them someone rang their doorbell about 3:15 a.m., pretending to be delivering a telegram, and put a bullet in her husband's chest as he opened the door. Dist. Atty. Sam Cleveland of Mineral Wells said the Bradleys formerly lived in Montgomery and were acquainted with McGaha.

SURPRISE

Sheriff Gilbert Sommerfeld of Mineral Wells, in Palo Pinto County, accompanied the San Antonio officer as Mrs. Bradley, clad in black, was taken into custody at the cemetery. The couple's two children were with her.

Chinese Police Arrest Pilots?

HONG KONG (AP) — Red Chinese secret police have arrested a number of ranking air force officers—opponents of Mao Tse-tung—who had plotted to blow up 20 MIG jet fighters at a Canton airport, travelers from mainland China said today.

Tanks came in to protect the planes, part of an air power display for the anniversary Sunday of the Communist takeover in China in 1949, they said. There was no way to confirm the travelers' reports.

County, accompanied the San Antonio officer as Mrs. Bradley, clad in black, was taken into custody at the cemetery. The couple's two children were with her.

Handed the warrant accusing her of murder with malice, Mrs. Bradley told Justice of the Peace Jimmie Gutierrez:

"I didn't do this. How can they say I did it? My husband told them a man did this. How they got this (waving the murder warrant) I don't know."

Gutierrez explained to Mrs. Bradley he had been asked to hold her without bond. He said she could go to jail here and engage a lawyer or she could go back to Mineral Wells and fight the charge there.

Yankees Show Off Embassy

SAIGON (AP) — American officials showed off their about-to-open Embassy today. It's a bureaucrat's dream: "in" and "out" bins on every desk, a white marble executive bathroom, a stove for the ambassador and a baby-blue helicopter pad on top.

You'd normally figure on paying to visit this kind of place. It looks like a swank hotel.

The six-story $2.6 million building opens its doors Friday but there was a preview today. Vietnamese newsmen were ecstatic.

The Embassy, under construction for two years, is the most expensive nonmilitary U.S. structure in Vietnam. All the materials used in the building came from America, down to the stainless steel water fountains and green exit signs.

Four floors contain office space for 250 persons. One floor is set aside for communications and one as the executive suite.

Room 204, behind a solid teakwood door, is Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker's carpeted private office. Like the other offices, it has new furniture, bookcases, chairs and paper bins already in place.

A few feet from Bunker's desk is a small white bathroom, fitted out with white towels. At the other end of the 40-foot room, next to a round conference table and a sofa, is a small kitchen with a sink, electric stove and cupboard.

The building seemed a little more ready than some of its occupants. A Marine operating the elevators got one temporarily stranded on the sixth floor, there was an hour-long drill on how to raise the flag, and an Army helicopter took two practice tries before landing on the roof.

The Embassy also has Saigon-type security—shatterproof glass windows, armed guards and a high wire fence separating the building from the busy street in front.

Red Diplomats Are Confined

JAKARTA (AP) — Indonesia has confined the movements of the nine Chinese Communist diplomats remaining here to Jakarta's city limits. The Foreign Office gave no explanation for the move, which followed Peking's decision to expel two Indonesian diplomats from China.

The Chinese charge d'affaires was expelled recently. Relations between Indonesia and Red China have been deteriorating since October, 1965, when China was accused of aiding a Communist-led attempt to overthrow the Indonesian government.

Probers Find No Evidence Of Conspiracy Behind Riots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators, quietly at work in cities across the nation, have found no evidence of a national conspiracy behind outbreaks of violence—but believe there is "a loose linkage" among militant Negro leaders. That preliminary indication is in line with the report of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to President Johnson's Commission on Civil Disorders.

Senate sources disclosing it said there are weeks, perhaps months of investigation ahead before any report will be ready on the inquiry.

'Even Born Losers Win?'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Its banners shouting about free prizes, its pennants and shimmering ornaments swaying in the wind, the gasoline station continues to glimmer in the sun like a year-round carnival.

As most motorists know very well, this carnival air is more than appearance. Games are played, money is won, premiums such as radios and toys are awarded. "Even born losers win," one oil producer advertises.

NO ABATEMENT

It is now close to two years since the giveaway games and sweepstakes replaced price-cutting as a business stimulator in many of the nation's gasoline stations, and the fact, if it is that, shows little sign of abating.

Several major oil producers admit their dislike of the promotional gimmicks but claim an inability to do much about them. "If our competitor has a game, we must have one to offset his," they said.

There is some truth to this, for soon after Tidewater Oil Co. introduced a cash game in January 1966 sales soared at many of its stations. That did it. Others followed and the sweepstakes war was on.

SATURATION

In theory, when games and gimmicks reach the saturation point they tend to offset each other because nobody has an advantage any more. This, at least, has been the experience some supermarkets have had with trading stamps.

The games and sweepstakes now being played at service stations seem to be avoiding that experience. Games have been refined, their prizes enlarged, their winners heavily advertised as happy customers.

Some oil producers explain that the games, or some sales stimulant, are as necessary to good customer relations as wiping the windshield.

"A customer cannot feel, taste or personally consume the product," one marketing executive explained. "He cannot tell the difference between high quality and low quality gasoline."

The fact is, however, that there are great differences in the quality of gasoline products. If only the industry felt it could effectively promote these differences, oil executives say, the games might go.

Aside from games and product quality, the other major areas of competition are price and service.

Although the price of gasoline is now less than it was a half century ago, largely because of soaring volume, competition by price has fallen into some disfavor after many ruinous price wars.

AGITATORS

Hoover appeared before the President's antiriot commission Aug. 1 and said that on the basis of his knowledge of 52 riots in the past three years, he found no indications of a conspiracy. But he did say there were indications outside agitators were involved in some of these disturbances.

David Ginsburg, executive director of the commission, said after the FBI chief's appearance that the outside agitation was not something to which Hoover "gave a great deal of weight or with which he was greatly concerned."

POISON PLAN

As the Senate investigators worked, word came Wednesday from Philadelphia of an alleged plot to start a race riot there this summer which, authorities said, involved a plan to poison hundreds of Philadelphia policemen.

Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter, announcing an arrest in the case, said the plot was the work of members of the Revolutionary Action Movement—RAM—a Negro extremist group. Specter said his own life and those of the mayor and police chief "were to be taken."

DEADLINE

RAM members previously have been connected with a conspiracy to kill moderate Negro civil rights leaders and with a plan to blow up the Statue of Liberty and other American monuments.

The Senate, assigning its permanent subcommittee on investigations to undertake an inquiry into racial riots in U.S. cities, set next Monday as the deadline for an interim report.

There will be a report of sorts, but it will contain no findings, sources said. Instead, it will cover the steps taken to launch the investigation.

Subcommittee investigators have compiled a list of 137 cities hit by racial outbreaks. The investigation itself will cover 60 to 75 of them.

Deep Thoughts

Minnesota Twins' Cesar Tovar leans on bat with head down as he kneels while waiting his turn at bat in the ninth inning of American League game with California Angels in the Twin Cities Wednesday afternoon. With two out, Tovar flew out to end the game and gave California a 5-1 victory over Minnesota. The Twins have two regular season games left in the hot American League pennant race.

White Hose Out Of It?

Eddie Stanky's Walking Dead finally appear to have died, stricken with the last lethal blows from a most unexpected source.

Poised to seize the lead in the daffy American League pennant race Wednesday night, the Chicago White Sox instead tumbled to fourth place, just an eyelash away from elimination.

The villains were the usually harmless Kansas City Athletics, whose lease to the cellar has been locked up for weeks. The A's swept a two-night doubleheader from the White Sox 5-2 and 4-0, leaving Chicago with nothing more to hope for than a slim chance of forcing a playoff.

They all lose

Front-running Minnesota bowed to California 5-1 and Boston dropped its second straight to Cleveland 6-0 Wednesday afternoon. Detroit was idle. That meant that when the White Sox took the field against the A's, they were a mere one-half game behind the Twins and led the three other contenders in the vital loss column.

Less than six hours later, they were on the brink of being completely out of the picture. The double loss left them with an 89-70 record and a maximum possibility of 92 victories if they sweep their three remaining games against Washington.

Minnesota has already won 91 and Boston 90. Those two teams play their last two games against each other. If they split, Chicago must sweep to tie Minnesota. If Boston wins both games, a White Sox sweep would tie the Red Sox. If Minnesota wins both games, the White Sox are through, regardless of what they do.

It was a characteristic lack of hitting that led the Sox in. They managed just seven hits in the doubleheader and that, Virginia, is not the kind of attack that wins pennants.

Jim Gosger's three hits drove in three runs for the A's and Chuck Dobson handcuffed the Sox on two hits until the ninth inning of the opener. Then Chicago pushed across both its runs but Paul Lindblad pitched out of the jam and saved Dobson's 10th victory.

HUNTER WINS 13TH
Jim (Catfish) Hunter won his 13th in the nightcap, allowing just three hits and started Kansas City's winning four-run rally in the sixth inning with a single.

Co-Op To Make Year's Refunds

Cap Rock Electric Cooperative will make its annual refund to member-owners of the organization next Monday. Checks totaling $234,720 will go to some 2,600 members who were receiving electric service from the cooperative during 1960.

The payment will be the 11th consecutive capital credits refund to members. The current checks average $88 although the amounts vary from a few dollars to several hundred dollars, depending upon the amount of power the member bought during that year.

Including the upcoming payment, Cap Rock has refunded to its members over a million and a half dollars, $1,503,230 to be exact.

While the cooperative makes the capital credits refunds annually, it stays a few years off the current year in order to have a reserve for emergencies.

TO PUSH RENT PLAN

It's Going To Take More Than $1 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's going to take a lot more investment than the $1 billion the life insurance industry has pledged for slum development if the fledgling rent supplement program is to grow into a major operation to provide poor people with decent housing.

The $32 million-a-year program now authorized could soak up half the $1 billion in promised mortgage money, says Philip J. Maloney, deputy commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration.

PRIORITY
In announcing the investment plan Sept. 12, insurance industry spokesmen said priority would be given to rent supplement projects.

The Senate voted last week to give the administration the additional $40 million it asked, which would make $72 million available each year to pay rent supplements.

But an earlier House bill provided no new funds. The matter now goes to a conference committee.

Maloney said in response to a reporter's inquiry that expansion of the program would create a need for much more private mortgage money. Without setting a figure, he said if the money were not forthcoming, the program again could be in trouble.

PLEDGE
Before the life insurance money was pledged, the program was not doing well. Federal officials said about two-thirds of the sponsors of projects couldn't get private financing. The government pumped in federal funds and opposition grew in Congress.

The Senate Appropriations Committee proposed that if a rent supplement project were financed with federal funds the sponsor would have to put up five per cent of the project cost. Most sponsors are nonprofit groups such as churches and labor unions.

Switchboard Orbits Earth

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Pacific 2, a new commercial switchboard satellite, orbited earth today en route to a permanent outpost high over the Pacific Ocean where it can expand communications links between the Far East, Hawaii and the U.S. mainland.

The Comsat Corp. craft, launched Wednesday night from Cape Kennedy into a near perfect path ranging from about 200 to 23,000 miles above the earth, is to fire an on-board motor Saturday on its seventh orbit to settle the spacecraft on station over the equator southeast of Hawaii.

The satellite was designed to double Comsat's communications circuits spanning the Pacific, opening new channels for increased telephone and telegraph traffic.

Comsat officials said new channels provided by the craft also would improve chances for live World Series telecasts to baseball-conscious Japan, live coverage of an upcoming golf championship in Hawaii and more trans-Pacific telecasts of events such as U.N. sessions.

Speck Survivor To Seek Office

MANILA (AP)—Corazon Amurao, the Filipino who survived the killing of eight student nurses at a Chicago dormitory in July last year, will run as a town councillor in November's off-year elections.

In a dispatch from Batangas, Miss Amurao's native province, Philippine News Service said today the 24-year-old nurse is a candidate of the opposition Liberal party.

Miss Amurao's testimony helped to convict Richard Speck last April in Peoria, Ill., of the eight murders.

Tuesday she was named by the South Chicago community hospital as one of four persons to share in a $10,000 reward for her part in the conviction.

'Perry Mason' DA Undergoes Surgery

ENCINO, Calif. (AP)—Actor William Talman, the always defeated district attorney of the "Perry Mason" television series, underwent surgery Wednesday for a lung ailment.

Hospital spokesmen called the problem "minor" and said Talman, 52, is resting comfortably.

Charges Filed In Hog Theft Case

Donald Kirkpatrick, 26, 1801 W. 2nd, charged with felony theft of a hog, was released on $2,000 bond Wednesday afternoon.

Kirkpatrick is accused of being the principal in the theft and slaughtering of a show hog owned by Perry Gamble, young FFA chapter member.

Sheriff A. N. Standard said that Kirkpatrick made a detailed statement.

Earlier, officers had investigated the theft of a hog and the slaughtering of other hogs at the Future Farmers of America pens on the northwest edge of town on the night of Sept. 14. In addition to the hog which was taken, one other was fatally injured, and three were cut badly.

Four men have been questioned in the matter, said Standard, and he said all made statements that appeared to jibe.

According to the sheriff, Perry's pig was slain at the pen, was dragged away, disemboweled and hauled from the scene in the trunk of the car in which four men were riding. Later the pig was placed, unskinned, in the refrigerator at the home of one of the men's home, where it remained until Sept. 17, when it was hauled by a man and his wife to the Loy Acuff ranch, west of town, where it was dumped in an isolated area. The sheriff was led to the carcass Wednesday.

Standard said that the men questioned said they had been drinking, when one of them suggested a barbecue. Another volunteered that he knew where there were some pigs.

Two men allegedly entered the FFA pens and the other two remained outside at the car. Later, two returned dragging a dead hog.

The sheriff said he plans to submit the matter concerning three others as well as the charge to the grand jury. Two others may be involved indirectly.

A felony charge was filed, according to Standard, because theft of a hog, regardless of the value, is a felony under Texas law. Perry estimated that he had more than $300 invested in the hog he lost. He was grooming it for the Howard County 4-H and FFA Pig Show which opens next Wednesday at the fair grounds.

Layettes For Grown Girls?

JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The girl who shops for booties and bonnets and christening dresses may be a long way from parenthood. And the girl of today who haunts the stores for crocheted costumes is a long way from being old-fashioned.

She is young and with it. She is both romantic and daring. She is naughty and nice. She is grown up, baby.

Officers Installed For College WMU

Mrs. James M. Stephens installed officers, Tuesday evening, for the Woman's Missionary Union of College Baptist Church. She presented each a miniature replica of the "Praying Hands" and asked them to use their hands in work and worship.

Those installed were Mrs. Pete Anderson, president; Mrs. Byron Grand, vice president and enlistment; Mrs. Tacoma Draper, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Bill Blalack, program chairman and Girls Auxiliary director; Mrs. Noel Hull, Sunbeam director; Mrs. Wallace Whittington, prayer chairman; Mrs. Pete Hull, missions in action chairman; Mrs. Kenneth Campbell and Mrs. James Shelton, circle chairmen; and Mrs. Bill Draper, social chairman.

As the closing meditation, Mrs. Gorman Rainey sang "Precious Lord, Take My Hand," and prayer was led by the president.

Mrs. Ernest Welch and Mrs. Draper presided at a refreshment table covered with a white cloth, inset with lace.

Yet though modern, she is extremely nostalgic about the first wardrobe she ever wore, her layette.

As with many other fashion fads recently, the craze for crochets began in England among the Mods appropriately about the same time the granny dress was emerging from attic trunks. The Carnaby Street crowd began raiding flea markets until the authentic supply of them was exhausted.

Meanwhile knitwear manufacturers, who are speedier than ever these days at recognizing good vogue, were getting out the crochet hooks, or simulating such on their machines.

Moreover, they were taking a second look at the infantswear industry for additional fashion inspiration. Though the baby look was brought about by Andre Courreges, the monk-like French couturier, his babies were all hard chic. His were dresses architectural with boots and bonnet tailored to match.

Going back to the original way of cuddling kids, that is making boots, bonnets and dresses out of soft wool turned out to be a lot more precious. Really sweet.

See - through sweaters, and dresses, too, that slither over otherwise uncovered bodies - or so it would seem to the naked eye - combine the right amount of old-fashionedness and naughty audacity to please the iconoclastic young. (Actually, most of these are costumes purer than they look. The garments are usually lined with flesh pink fabrics.)

Crocheting has always been romantic. That, above all others, is why the pretty patterns done up in yarns have been able to bridge the generation gap.

Hair Fashions And Wigs Seen By Opti-Mrs. Club

The Opti-Mrs. Club held a semi-monthly meeting Tuesday at the First Federal Community Room with Mrs. Van Perry and Mrs. Sonny Shroyer serving as coshostesses. Thirteen members and three guests attended. The guests were Mrs. Glenn Lepard, Mrs. Harold Bentley and Mrs. Keith Carter.

Mrs. Bentley, assisted by Mrs. Carter, gave a demonstration of new hair trends and the use of wigs, wiglets and falls. Both are associated with the Hair Style Clinic.

A membership contest, with Mrs. Bill Reynolds and Mrs.

Henry Knous serving as team captains, will be conducted through Dec. 1. The losing team will host the winners and their husbands to a Christmas dinner.

Rush Party Held By BSP Group

A LOVELIER YOU

Give Hands Attention In Winter Months

By MARY SUE MILLER

Keeping your hands lovely is never a slapdash affair. But as winter approaches, attention must be stepped up or chap will step in.

Without some special care, hands can become rough and red in just a few days of inclement weather, particularly if they are also exposed to harsh household cleansers. The condition is not only unsightly, but can develop into open, stinging splits.

Surprising as it may seem, one of the best chap preventatives is extra frequent and careful washing. Try to wash your hands with mild soap before they become noticeably stained, and always after contact with strong detergents. In that way you free the skin of invisible irritants that trigger chap.

After washing be sure to dry thoroughly with a soft, absorbent towel. Pay particular visits to the knuckles and between-finger areas. The damp crevice is a chap-trap.

Of course hand lotion is essential to the program. You cannot use too much of it. The most effective kinds combine emollients, moisturizers and healing ingredients.

To those measures add street gloves, proofed against wind and damp; work gloves that suit the job for which you wear them. That way your hand complexion stands a good chance of staying out of harm's way. In fact, it will grow lovelier.

LOVELIER HANDS

Do you have a hand problem? Send today for "Lovelier Hands," a booklet that covers every step in a quest for hand beauty. It tells how to keep the skin and nails groomed; how to overcome weak nails, polish chips, discolored knuckles, prominent veins, wrinkles; how to use the hands with poised grace. To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin.

Nailing Down The Facts Of Eastland's Horned Toad

By ED SYERS

Since we've recently exhumed Eastland's never-say-die horned frog, "Old Rip," let's get his record exactly... for his 31-year slumber may yet be beaten.

From Lubbock's Mrs. J. P. Abbott, 30 years an Eastland native, here's Old Rip, Sr.: "In 1897, when the (Eastland) county courthouse cornerstone was dedicated, Ernest Wood, justice of the peace, noticed his son playing nearby with a horned toad. The idea came to him to place the toad in the stone's receptacle, where Old Rip lived peacefully until Feb. 28, 1928. Then the old courthouse was demolished for a new one.

"Before some 3,000, Judge Ed S. Pritchard removed the Bible and general memorabilia. At the bottom was Old Rip. Oil man Eugene Day lifted out a flat, dust-covered toad, handed it... finally to Judge Pritchard, who held it up by its legs for all to see. Suddenly the legs twitched. The crowd cheered as Old Rip woke from 31 years slumber.

"He was exhibited in many places over the U.S., including a visit to President Coolidge. Old Rip lived nearly a year. Pneumonia took him Jan. 19, 1929. He was embalmed and rests in a little plush casket on display in Eastland's courthouse today."

RIP JR.

What this Lubbock lady may not know is that her own city may yet boast record-breaking Rip Jr., according to Slaton's C. L. Tanner:

"At the time (Eastland's Rip) was making headlines, I was concrete inspector on Lubbock's first two underpasses (Santa Fe). I was so impressed that I carefully placed a toad in the new concrete at each underpass. These were put in covered milk

Tissue Issue Tangle Flares

LACEY, Wash. (AP) — The North Thurston School Board tangled with the tissue issue and the outcome: junior high school gym students will continue to use paper towels after showers.

The district entered into a one-year contract for paper toweling for shower room use.

Parents complained the toweling isn't absorbent and doesn't get the kids dry.

One parent who said he used one of the cheaper towels after his morning bath said, "I sure won't take another (bath) with one of them."

But the board decided to keep the towels for the present.

Reruns Prove More Popular

NEW YORK (AP) — Reruns of old feature movies and established television series proved more popular with viewers than new programs, according to a national Nielsen report issued Wednesday.

The survey put film rebroadcasts into four of the top 10 spots.

The report covers the week of Sept. 11 to 17, when NBC was launching its new schedule. It is a special new weekly report based on projections of the viewing choices in 680 sample homes, about half the number used in the biweekly Nielsen reports which are still the industry's basic audience-measuring tool.

Programs in the top 10 were, in this order: CBS's Friday and Thursday night movies, NBC's "Bonanza" and Saturday night movie, CBS's "Family Affair" and "Gomer Pyle," NBC's Tuesday night movie, CBS's "Andy Griffith Show" and "Lucy Show," and ABC's "Bewitched."

They figured it was some new weapon."

BOOTH'S CABIN
Fort Worth's Mrs. J. A. McNutt adds to the Texas legend of John Wilkes Booth:

"One block west of Glen Rose's courthouse is a one-room log cabin, moved there 90 years ago. Originally it stood across the Paluxy River and was used as a saloon operated by a John St. Helen who, according to local tradition and some credible evidence, was John Wilkes Booth, President Lincoln's assassin."

'WHO'S DELINQUENT?'

Sunday School Pupils Picket

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Picketed for an hour and 15 minutes.

Come Sunday, they'll be back on the picket lines in front of the church, raising the devil with the older generation.

"Who's delinquent?" asks a typical picket sign. And it's obvious that these young people are casting a suspicious eye at some of their parents.

Before you start having visions of smart-alecky hippies using flower power against the elders of the church, hold your fire, brother.

These kids are straight—straight from Sunday school, that is. And their beef is that too few adults are making the scene with them.

'COME ALIVE'

About 150 teenagers dropped out of Sunday school classes at Brookdale Baptist Church last Sunday and demonstrated against "Parent delinquency" from adult Bible classes. They

Mercedes Loses Rio Water Suit

HOUSTON (AP) — The city of Mercedes lost in federal court in a petition seeking to stop any effort to stem the Rio Grande floodwaters gushing into the Arroyo Colorado.

The petition was turned down by a federal judge here Tuesday. It was against the International Boundary and Water Commission.

The petition claimed that if the commission stems the flow into the Arroyo Colorado and confines the flood waters to the man-made channel—the North Floodway—the levees at Mercedes and Weslaco will collapse under the new pressure.

The Rio Grande's excess waters were designed to course through the intricate flood diversion channels constructed by the International Boundary and Water Commission but Sunday a metal gate at a division in the system at Mercedes broke.

The break allowed some floodwaters to flow unimpeded into a natural channel, the Arroyo Colorado, rather than in the North Floodway, and one-tenth of the city of Harlingen has been flooded as a result.

A side result of the breakthrough in the diversion system was easing the pressure on levees of the North Floodway at Mercedes and Weslaco which had been sandbagged heavily since late last week.

Two hundred men have been on a 24-hour patrol at Weslaco where the floodway stretches 1,600 feet wide and 16,000 sandbags are stacked against the levees.

The city of Mercedes' suit, which names J. F. Friedkin, U.S. commissioner on the International Boundary and Water Commission, says diverting the flood waters back to their original North Floodway channel would thwart their efforts to save Mercedes and Weslaco from flooding.

Three Persons Fatally Injured

DALLAS (AP) — Three persons were fatally injured Wednesday in a two-car head-on collision on Interstate 30 about 3 miles west of Rockwall.

Jack Hardy Cumberland, 84, of Dallas and Mrs. Kenneth W. Michells of Commerce were killed instantly.

Kenneth W. Michells died later at a Dallas hospital.

Romney Praises Youngsters, Ignores Protestors

Michigan's Gov. George Romney rubs his cheek as he listened to three Negro youths whom he praised for work they were doing on their own in improving neighborhood conditions as Romney visited Chester, Pa., last night. Gov. Romney ignored signs carried by a white couple protesting his visit to the Greater Chester Movement Opportunity Center after his tour of center.

It's Nippy In Texas

By The Associated Press
It was nippy in the Texas Panhandle and most other sections of the state were noticeably cooler this morning.

Skies cleared throughout the state after the first norther of the new fall season swept southward Wednesday, passing into the Gulf of Mexico by afternoon.

Early morning temperatures tumbled close to freezing in the upper Panhandle, going down to 35 degrees at Perryton and 40 at Dalhart, but there was no report of frost.

Readings elsewhere were in the 40s and 50s except for a 64 at Brownsville at the state's southern tip.

Aside from a few light showers near Waco in Central Texas, skies remained cloudless near daylight.

Rainfall accompanied the cold front on its push downstate. Much of North Central Texas received nearly an inch of moisture, and smaller amounts fell in the state's east and south portions.

Forecasts called for another cool night and fair and warmer weather through Friday.

U.S. Planes Encounter Swarms Of MIGs Again

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes fought nine air battles with swarms of MIG fighters over North Vietnam Wednesday, while the ground war generally slackened and the embattled U.S. Marine post at Con Thien had the lightest day of its month-long artillery siege.

Weekly casualty figures released by the U.S. Command today reflected a lull in the ground war. Last week the United States lost 128 killed and 1,434 wounded, well below the weekly average. Communist losses reported by the U.S. Command for the week were 1,134 dead, also below average.

Most of the American casualties were among the Marines holding positions in the Con Thien area, 2 1/2 miles below the DMZ, against a possible invasion of South Vietnam's northern provinces by 35,000 North Vietnamese troops massed in and near the buffer zone.

Clearing skies enabled American pilots to fly 159 combat missions Wednesday in making a near-maximum effort over the North for the second straight day. The Americans ran into fierce antiaircraft fire and nearly every operational jet the Reds could put in the sky.

JET HIT
Although there were nine dogfights with the MIG17s and MIG21s, no planes were reported damaged or downed in these battles. The one loss listed by the U.S. Command was a Marine A4 Skyhawk jet hit by ground fire above the demilitarized zone, the 685th plane downed over North Vietnam. The pilot ejected over the Tonkin Gulf and was rescued.

The American planes, trying to impair North Vietnam's ability to support its ground forces in the South, struck at communications links and supply points. Air Force planes raked Hanoi's rail lines to Red China and an ammunition dump near Hon Gai, the country's second port.

ROUTES RIPPED
Navy planes from the carriers Constellation, Coral Sea and Intrepid pounded supply routes up and down the coast, and reported hitting a number of barges.

The Communist intercepting force included nearly all the planes the U.S. Command believes are at bases south of the Red Chinese border. U.S. officials say the rest of North Vietnam's air force, totaling 80 to 90 planes, is stationed in Red China and flown south to North Vietnamese bases for use as needed in the air war.

American fliers said the enemy planes darted from clouds, firing air-to-air missiles, then sped out of range with extra thrusts of speed from afterburners. The U.S. pilots, who fired their own missiles, said the MIGs seemed to deliberately avoid long engagements.

PLAYED DOWN
Communist fire on the fortress at Con Thien appeared to be falling off and only 103 rounds were reported Wednesday. Casualties there were listed as two dead and two wounded.

It appeared that Marine headquarters, sensitive to the mounting losses on the red-clay hills was de-emphasizing battle reports from the post, which took 1,000 mortar, rocket and artillery rounds Monday.

U.S. headquarters in Saigon also played down action there. The day's military communique omitted all mention of Con Thien and referred instead to "Marine Corps combat base complexes in northern Quang Tri Province."

GUNNERS REPLY
But Marine gunners were still firing back more than 6,000 shells and tactical jets and high-altitude bombers poured in more. B32s Wednesday night and today flew four strikes in support of Con Thien, laying down 600,000 pounds of bombs in saturation patterns as close as two miles to Marine trenches.

Just two miles below Con Thien, a patrolling Marine company found a North Vietnamese platoon of about 25 men dug into bunkers prepared despite intensive Marine sweeps of the area. A sharp firefight flared and the Marines counted three dead and 15 wounded before the North Vietnamese pulled out, leaving behind two dead.

Communist gunners also dropped mortar shells on American and South Vietnamese camps up and down the country. Four scattered "Green Beret" camps manned by American Special Forces troops were shelled, a handful of South Vietnamese militia posts in the Mekong delta were hit and units in a U.S. 25th Division sweep in the Ho Bo Woods 25 miles northwest of Saigon were shelled.

DEMANDS
In Saigon, Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu agreed to discuss the demands of 1,000 Buddhist monks and nuns who congregated in front of Independence Palace, which houses his office.

Thieu, a Roman Catholic, had previously ignored requests by the Buddhists, members of a militant antigovernment group, for a meeting. They are protesting the government's acceptance of a new Buddhist charter that recognizes a moderate sect as the official Buddhist church of South Vietnam.

The demonstration was considered the biggest show of strength by the militant Buddhists in more than a year.

BUS BLASTED
Eight South Vietnamese civilians were killed and one was wounded when a three-wheeled bus hit a Viet Cong mine 325 miles northeast of Saigon, officials reported.

Officials said Viet Cong terrorists killed 52 civilians, wounded 227 and abducted 59 last week, compared with 69 civilians killed, 19 wounded and 303 abducted in the previous week.

Gerald Defeated By Ray Marshall
CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Bud McKinney of Dallas met Ray Marshall of Lubbock and Webster Wilder of San Antonio went against J. W. Yatman of Galveston today in semifinals of the Texas Senior Golf Tournament.

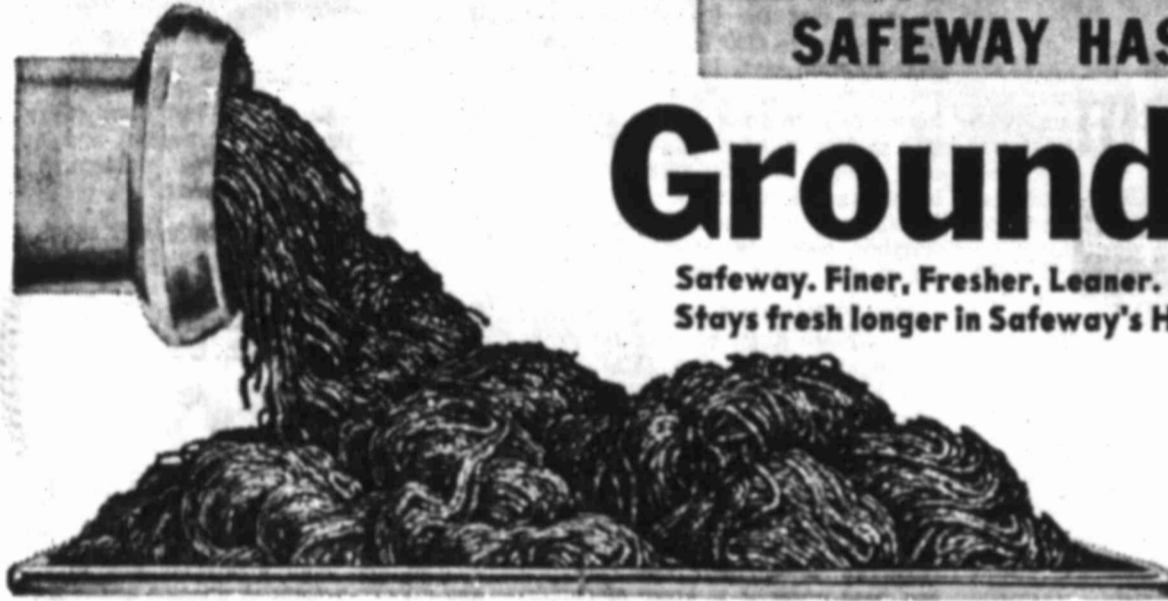

McKinney, the defending champion, beat Frank Sparks of Pasadena, the 1965 title, 3 and 2 Wednesday. Marshall eliminated Pat Gerald of Sweetwater 3 and 2.

Wilder made it to the semifinals by downing Mel Arnett of San Antonio 3 and 1 and Yatman took out Jim Plummer of Houston 1-up.

A Devotional For The Day

I determined not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. (1 Corinthians 2:2)

PRAYER: God, our Father, we are thankful for the gift of Thy Son Jesus Christ, who died for us on the cross. Help us to live by the values that the cross represents: love, fellowship, goodness, and universal brotherhood. For Christ's sake. Amen.

Grist For The Mill

An antitrust and monopoly subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee is in the final phase of a three-year study of profound importance to American business and industry, consumers generally, and the future of the national economy.

Its multi-volume report will be no best seller, but it will be a huge granary of grist for the mills of academic economists, more popular writers in the field, lawmakers' speeches and other channels to public opinion affecting governmental policy. For it is studying, in breadth and depth, one of the most serious problems in this country today — the rapid concentration of economic power.

That rapid concentration is marked by almost daily stories of business mergers, particularly of the new "conglomerate" type that brings diverse industries under one great management umbrella. It is also marked by the trends of statistics on big business expansions and small-business failures or absorptions. The story, in short, is that the reins of control of burgeoning American industry are being held by ever fewer hands. Unchecked, that presages serious trouble ahead, including bigger labor and bigger government to provide what economist John Kenneth Galbraith called the necessary "countervailing forces" generated by any concentration of economic power.

The subcommittee is headed by Philip A. Hart, Democratic senior senator of industrial Michigan, who is experienced in corporate organization, management and finance. So his findings should command respect. And they will not all be adverse, for the subcommittee has determined that the computer has surmised given small and medium-size business and industry some substantial advantages over the giant managements. And it expects to find in current hearings that new technology (inventions and innovations), especially in materials, use, power and fuel, will help assure a higher degree of competitiveness in the national economy.

The subcommittee's report will not be easily or quickly digestible. But it should provide myriad facts and ideas that in time can help devise revisions in public policy that will keep concentrations of economic power down to manageable scope and intensity. And that, to sustain democracy, is something that must be done in regard to any type of power.

The TESCO Family

Texas Electric Service Company Wednesday evening honored members of its Quarter Century Club — those individuals who have given the company at least 25 years of dedicated service. It is significant that over the system, the roll of membership in this distinguished group has reached 384.

This within itself is indicative of the emphasis which management of the company has placed upon its people. A quarter of a century ago, the entire TESCO personnel wasn't a lot greater in number. It is a great testimonial to a company when its people make a career of their service to the public through that company.

It also is significant that amidst the headlong rush to greater automation, mechanization, and computerization that the president, Burt B. Hulsey Jr., devoted his address to the TESCO family not to the usual topic of expansion and improvement — as indeed he might well have done with more than enough to talk about — but rather to reminding the family that the one thing which TESCO hasn't and can't change is its need for good people.

He appealed to his associates to set the pace through personal growth and development, to advance ideas, to speak up in confidence that they and the company will grow together. That sort of attitude speaks well for the esprit de corps of the company — and in the long run it means still better service for the public.

Just A Matter Of Billions

WASHINGTON — The beauty of the American government these days is that nobody pays any attention to a program unless it costs a billion or more.

There was a time when if somebody in the executive branch said the word "billion," it was muted or even whispered in some back room of the White House, since it could only get the Administration in trouble.

But all this has changed and now when somebody mentions a magic number over a billion dollars, everybody sits up and starts applauding.

I HADN'T THOUGHT about it until I had lunch with my friend Oberdorfer the other day.

"Did you see Robert McNamara on television the other day?" he asked.

"I said I had."

"Wasn't he beautiful when he said we were going to build an antiballistic missile system which would cost $5 billion?"

"I hadn't thought of it as beautiful."

"THEN YOU missed it. The $5 billion just rolled off his tongue, and he said it without so much as a grimace or a smile. To me a man who can say something's going to cost $5 billion with a straight face has a lot of class."

"There's something to what you said."

"On the basis of what you've said, whom in the government do you admire most?" I asked.

SECRETARY OF THE Treasury Henry Fowler, Oberdorfer replied. "My esteem for him rose three-fold when I heard him say on television the other night that if we don't have a tax increase the U.S. budget deficit could go as high as $29 billion. A Cabinet officer who can come up with a figure like that is a man after my own heart."

(Copyright, 1967, The Washington Post Co.)

"The trouble with this government is there are not enough people in it who think big," Oberdorfer continued. "Americans are psychologically attuned to getting their bad news in the billions, and they resent it when someone starts talking of piddling tens or hundreds of millions."

"TAKE POSTMASTER Lawrence O'Brien for example. He's a nice enough guy, but how can anyone get excited about his operation when his department is only losing $589 million a year?"

"You have a point."

"Do you know why the President's domestic programs are in such serious trouble? It's because he has not asked for too much money. It's because he asked for too little. Congress has some pride, too."

"I don't understand."

"WELL, LET'S take the rat control bill. All the President asked for was $40 million. This ridiculously low figure insulted the intelligence of the House of Representatives. At first they wouldn't consider it. Then they considered it and laughed it off the floor. Finally they passed it reluctantly. Why? Because anything that costs only $40 million couldn't possibly have any value to the country."

"If the President had asked for a billion dollars, I assure you Congress wouldn't have made any jokes about rat control."

"On the basis of what you've said, whom in the government do you admire most?" I asked.

SECRETARY OF THE Treasury Henry Fowler, Oberdorfer replied. ### History Is On LBJ's Side

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has been denounced in and out of Congress for using the Gulf of Tonkin resolution to justify America's deepening involvement in the war in Vietnam. But history is on his side.

He has congressional blessing for doing what other presidents have done, some with, some without, such approval. There have been only five declared wars in American history but six undeclared ones.

ALTOGETHER the armed forces have been used 137 times without a formal war declaration and in most cases without any say by Congress. In some actions, presidents at first had hearty public and congressional endorsement. Later, when enthusiasm cooled, they were attacked or politically ruined.

On Aug. 7, 1964, Congress overwhelmingly passed the Gulf of Tonkin resolution when Johnson requested it after North Vietnamese torpedo boats attacked U.S. destroyers in the gulf.

IT SAID Johnson, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, could take all necessary steps to repel any armed attack on those forces and "to prevent any further aggression."

While the Constitution says the president is commander-in-chief, it also says Congress alone can declare war. It doesn't say who can use the armed forces without a declaration.

But presidents all the way back to George Washington thought they could do so when they felt they should. It became a custom, not always followed, to ask Congress for approval or authorization.

THERE WERE five declared wars: 1812—war with England; 1846—Mexican War; 1898—Spanish American War; 1917—World War I; 1941—World War II. Three of them might have been avoided.

Here are the six undeclared wars: 1798-1800—naval war with France; 1801-1805—war with Tripoli pirates; 1815—brief war with Barbary pirates; 1916-1917—war with Mexico; 1950-53—Korean war; and now the Vietnamese war.

They Burn Up The Boss

NEW YORK (AP) — Anonymous remarks that every boss gets tired of finding in the office suggestion box:

"Did you know that the guy who was boss here before you is alive and doing well in Argentina?"

"WE'VE TRIED everything else—so why not put some gin in the water cooler and see if THAT'll pep up the office."

"It has been 23 years since I've had a merit raise. What are you trying to do—set a new course record for stinginess?"

"Roses are red, violets are blue, the senior vice president is a mutonhead—and so are you!"

"LITTLE HOLES can sink the biggest ship, and being wasteful in small ways can wreck a business. For example, I have figured out that every one in the office could retire a year early if they would just use a single paper towel when they wash their hands, instead of two or three."

"This wouldn't be a bad place for a nice girl to work if only the executives wore boxing gloves. The next one is going to get sprayed with insect repellent—and I'm not joking."

"HEY, BOSS! I'm one of the cutest secretaries in the office, and I've had a crush on you for months and months. I would just love to paw your chubby cheeks and run my fingers through your thinning hair. Now, don't you wish you knew who I am?"

"Enclosed in this envelope is a dead cockroach. I killed it in the company cafeteria. I'm giving you fair warning: If I find another one there, I'm going to turn the company in to the Board of Health as a public menace."

"I LOVE to listen to the piped-in music as I ride up to our floor in the automatic elevator. But they never play anything by Mozart. Does our firm have an anti-Mozart policy? If they'd just play a Mozart symphony, I'm sure I'd be happy riding up and down in the elevator all morning."

"There is only one surefire way of improving this joint, but who wants to be arrested for arson?"

"IN THE locker room I overheard one of the guys in the treasurer's office bragging that he had sneaked home three office pencils this week for his kids. How long are you going to let him get away with it?"

"There's nothing wrong with office morale that a 15 per cent Christmas bonus wouldn't improve."

"THE SOVIET UNION announced today a big program for delivering MIG jet fighter planes, antiaircraft rockets and other war material to North Vietnam in 1968. No figures were given, but the schedule was believed to be a sharp step-up in Russian military aid to Hanoi. The current level of Soviet aid is estimated at one billion dollars."

A spokesman for the State Department commented:

"WE HAVE NOTED the Soviet statement concerning military aid to North Vietnam. We regret that the Soviet Union does not instead take action which would assist the search for a peaceful and honorable solution to the Vietnam problem."

But the realistic fact is that the Soviet Union is, in effect, a co-belligerent in the war in Vietnam. Russian munitions already are being used to kill American soldiers, and larger quantities are to be supplied next year for the same purpose.

UP TO NOW, the Soviets had not officially admitted their participation in the Vietnam war. The communique issued last Saturday marks the first time the Kremlin has formally stated that it was sending planes, rockets, and other war material to North Vietnam, though the Soviet press frequently has hinted at it.

This is not a new form of participation in war by the Soviet government. Back in 1950, the Moscow regime supplied arms and munitions to the Red Chinese for their invasion of South Korea and at a United Nations meeting defiantly admitted having done so. In Korea, the United Nations itself had mobilized an army

For Calendar Conformity

For a fellow who has to use his knuckles to figure out how many days are in June, any plan of calendar reform that would simplify matters gets a vote from here.

A Hawaiian Democrat, Rep. Spark M. Matsunaga, voices my sentiments exactly when he points out that the superstitions and vanity of Roman emperors should not be permitted to confuse and bedevil the rest of us in keeping up with what day it is. He has introduced a bill that would give us a perpetual calendar with most months being even and my wife's birthday would always fall on the same day.

THE HAWAIIAN'S calendar would start every year with January Zero, falling between Dec. 31 and Jan. 1, and could be used as an international holiday. In leap years, he would have a July Zero. Or if there are opponents to the term "zero," he suggests calling them New Year's Day and Leap Year Day.

With those matters disposed of, he turns to a steady course of having each quarter containing 91 days, with the first two months having 30 days and the third one, 31 days. The year would always start on Monday and holidays would fall on the same day every year.

JULIUS AND AUGUSTUS Caesar

started most of our present problems, because they decided to have months named after them—July and August. But they also considered an even number of days in their month unlucky, so February was robbed of enough days to give July and August an extra one apiece.

Unfortunately, or fortunately as the case may be, the plan being offered by Matsunaga has been around 45 years, and its inventor, William E. Edwards, has visited or written to 90 countries in hopes of getting it adopted. He reports only the state legislatures of Hawaii and Massachusetts have given it a favorable nod.

BEING OF conservative mind, I dislike seeing anyone start a bunch of hanky-panky with something that's been around as long as the calendar. And I'm not sure I could keep up with the months of 30 and 31 days, so I'd be no better off with the new version as with the current one.

Which brings to mind a friend who married his wife on Feb. 29, and delights in watching her blush when he announces they have lived together 12 years, but have only celebrated three anniversaries. Surely, she would be pleased to stop his annual February laugh.

The British Call It A Chasm

LONDON, England — "If LBJ has a credibility gap at home," a fellow newsman advised this one, "you'll find he has a credibility chasm abroad."

The statement is true enough, but in a special English sense. It is not so much that the British press and public seem to disbelieve what President Johnson says, but they have not yet come to believe in him as the leader of a foremost nation. Johnson still suffers by comparison with Kennedy, whose princely aura made him long live in life and death, and with Eisenhower who, after all, was the wartime peer and associate of Britain's own great men.

THE VIEWPOINT from this historic city is more different than the mere overnight flight between Washington and London might suggest. For instance, there is no disposition here to look upon Johnson as a dissembler, or wheeler-dealer, in the controversy raised by Harry Ashmore's much-publicized "peace offer" to Ho Chi Minh. The London newspapers faithfully report that the President has been accused at home of double-dealing, but people here recalled that Premier Kosygin was in London talking with Prime Minister Wilson about the time that Ashmore was supposed offering terms to North Vietnam. The British press, feeling that there was no chance for a cease-fire at that time, are far more lenient toward Johnson in this matter than the American press. Even if Johnson were a statesman — which very few Britons apparently believe — he couldn't have brought about negotiations which had not ripened in the mind of Communist leadership.

THE ANGLE from London affords other outlooks that are not familiar to Americans. From Washington, for example, we do not much blame the President for putting little faith in the United Nations and Secretary General U Thant. But the British, long accustomed to diplomatic compromise, regard the UN as being limitedly useful rather than totally useless.

It is thought that U Thant's unfortunate withdrawal last June of the UN Emergency Force in Sinai does not alter the fact that UN troops or observers are very much needed in the Middle East. They could be used to patrol the Sinai, the West Bank of the Jordan, the city of Jerusalem, and could oversee the refugee problem, according to London sources.

IT IS ALSO believed here that the UN Security Council may well be the agency for reconvening the Geneva Conference on Vietnam since Russia and America are not against going that far, but that meaningful peace talks will have to take place in the traditional atmosphere of secret meetings.

Since the British intend to sit out the next World War, there is little significance given to Defense Secretary McNamara's being forced to change his mind about building an anti-missile system. A defense against incoming missiles seems to strike the British as having less value as a military shield than it has as another investment in diplomacy. The immense cost of engaging in this new form of arms race could, it is thought here, have the effect of bringing the USA and USSR into a bargaining session where the question of what to do about Red China would be discussed.

BUT IN EACH of these subjects, the "credibility chasm," in the British view, yawns between purpose and accomplishment. Past Presidents of the United States, and future Presidents, might bring something of it. But, sadly, the present incumbent of the White House does not strike the British as being up to the job.

Russia In The Vietnam War

WASHINGTON — If the press dispatches and radio and television were suddenly to broadcast the news that the Soviet Union had "declared war" on the United States, this would be regarded as a sensational development. But the equivalent of such an announcement came last Saturday and, as far as can be observed here, there was virtually no significant reaction. The United Press International carried the following dispatch on Sept. 23:

"THE SOVIET UNION announced today a big program for delivering MIG jet fighter planes, antiaircraft rockets and other war material to North Vietnam in 1968. No figures were given, but the schedule was believed to be a sharp step-up in Russian military aid to Hanoi. The current level of Soviet aid is estimated at one billion dollars."

A spokesman for the State Department commented:

"WE HAVE NOTED the Soviet statement concerning military aid to North Vietnam. We regret that the Soviet Union does not instead take action which would assist the search for a peaceful and honorable solution to the Vietnam problem."

But the realistic fact is that the Soviet Union is, in effect, a co-belligerent in the war in Vietnam. Russian munitions already are being used to kill American soldiers, and larger quantities are to be supplied next year for the same purpose.

UP TO NOW, the Soviets had not officially admitted their participation in the Vietnam war. The communique issued last Saturday marks the first time the Kremlin has formally stated that it was sending planes, rockets, and other war material to North Vietnam, though the Soviet press frequently has hinted at it.

This is not a new form of participation in war by the Soviet government. Back in 1950, the Moscow regime supplied arms and munitions to the Red Chinese for their invasion of South Korea and at a United Nations meeting defiantly admitted having done so. In Korea, the United Nations itself had mobilized an army to repel the aggression. But the Soviet government treated the charter with contempt and continued to furnish military assistance despite a formal resolution adopted by the U.N. General Assembly condemning Red China as an aggressor.

THE UNITED STATES has the right once more to demand in the United Nations that the Soviet Union refrain from assisting an aggressor country.

But even more important is the possible exercise by the American government of commercial and economic powers to persuade the Soviet Union that it has embarked upon a wrong policy. If an economic embargo against the Soviet Union as well as its captive nations in Eastern Europe were proclaimed, there would begin to be a realization in Moscow of the dangers of the course it is pursuing in the Vietnam war.

THE OFFICIAL admission by Russia that it is supplying military aid to the North Vietnamese certainly brings up again the question of whether the United States should consider a "declaration of a state of war" so that belligerent ships may be intercepted under international law and demilitarized already are being used to North Vietnam interdicted. For if America intends to vindicate the policy it has followed in Southeast Asia, it will have to recognize formally that not only the Soviet Union but also Red China are enemies of the United States in the Vietnam War.

Billy Graham

I have decided that I really want to be saved. Now, just how do I go about it? I really want to change, and I would appreciate your prayers and advice. I.W. No desire, in heaven or in earth, is more important than your desire to be saved and live for the glory of God.

First, the guilt of your sins must be dealt with, and the Bible says: "If we confess our sins unto him, he is faithful and just to forgive our sins, and cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 Jo. 1:9).

Having done this, privately or publicly, you must then let others know that you have taken Christ as your Savior. Jesus said: "If you confess me before men, I will confess you before my Father which is in heaven."

Then, you must give evidence of being a Christian. Jesus said: "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your father which is in heaven." We don't do good works to be saved; we do good works because we are saved. Let people see you are concerned about them; that you have a new dimension of living; and that Christ possesses you.

Sounds Fishy

Fishermen on the Sea of Galilee used torches to attract fish to their boats at night back in Biblical days. Today commercial herring fishermen on Puget Sound employ the same technique using mercury lamps—the type that illuminates many American streets.

Because herring sleep on the bottom of the sea in daylight, commercial fishing is done after dark when they rise to the surface to feed. One fisherman increased his catch ten-fold.

Red Phone Means Emergency

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on health.—Ed.)

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D. The symbol of a poison center is a red telephone, kept free of all but emergency calls.

"Here's what I've had on duty this morning," the man on duty at one of them told me. "First, a little girl who gave herself a rubdown all over with a perfume stick, and got some in her mouth, either from her fingers or possibly trying to mimic mama with a lipstick."

"Next one was turpentine. Apparently he didn't actually swallow any, and that's good because turpentine is dangerous. His mouth is badly irritated, though."

"And then a person who took some pills in an attempted suicide. We couldn't find out exactly what. Sometimes people don't know or won't tell. Any way, we never find out how a good many cases turn out."

"This young woman took some pills at 2 a.m., but by now she is coming out of it and they have her walking around. All we can do is urge the family to get professional help, and find out why she did it."

PANIC STRICKEN Poison centers got used to the way people act in a crisis. Some refuse to see the seriousness and have to be convinced that getting to a hospital can spell the difference between life and death.

Centers tell where the nearest hospital is, sometimes call police or fire departments or ambulances for panic-stricken people.

Sometimes a frenzied mother can't calm down enough to give the facts. Seasoned staffers know when to shout into the phone. "Now just shut up!" It can shock people into regaining their wits.

One girl, about 14, kept calling and asking, "How much aspirin will kill you?" Asked who she was and where, she hung up. Then the phone would ring again. She'd been eating pills for two hours. At last, raving and not so sure that she wanted to die after all, she gave her address and was treated in time.

Not all have a happy ending. A girl of five died in less than an hour after the first call. Her parents didn't know she was sick—until they found an empty milk bottle in the yard. They had been keeping some spray for the rose bushes. This can have a milky appearance.

IGNORE WARNINGS Yet people go on ignoring the warning: Never use a milk bottle or pop bottle for anything except what's supposed to be in it.

In a grim collection of souvenirs in one center is a jar containing a preparation for straightening hair. "Just a cosmetic," its owner thought.

The label says, in capital letters, that it contains sodium hydroxide. Not everyone recognizes that as the chemical name for lye. So another child arrived at the hospital with burned lips, tongue red and white with ulcers, throat in spasm.

Colleges Can Reach Out For Best Brains With New Network

LUBBOCK (AP) — College and universities in West Texas shortly will be able to reach out to any point in the territory to bring the best brains available, scholastic or practicing in industry, to teach their students.

In turn, the students, sitting in the classroom in, for instance, Texas Tech, can pick the brains of ideas and facts that the instructor may not have covered as he spoke in Wichita Falls, or Plainview or any other city.

USEFUL

The plan already is called the Western Information Network. And it will be useful for many other things, too.

The center of the television network will be at Texas Tech here. The plan has been approved by the legislature and governor.

A distinct feature will be its two-way operation. Students will do more than watch a lecture on a television screen. They can stand up and question the speaker.

Dr. John R. Bradford, dean of Tech's School of Engineering, fathered the concept.

The network is expected to be partly self-supporting through funds from industry and private foundations. Some will come from the legislature and other money from the federal government.

The idea sprang from requests from some industries for graduate-level teaching of their employees, many of them far from the experts in their field. From that, it grew with many arms.

MULTI-USE

The network will permit discussions between professors, allow use of a computer at one school which a second school cannot afford, and puts its finger on any facts or books that a student may need anywhere in the region.

Bradford said the university hopes to launch the pilot program next year by linking Tech with Amarillo College.

Initial planning came from 12 schools: Frank Phillips at Borger; Clarendon Junior College; South Plains College, Levelland; Midwestern University, Wichita Falls; Lubbock Christian; Odessa College, Howard County; Abilene Christian; Hardin-Simmons, Abilene; McMurry, Abilene; and Howard Payne, Brownwood; in addition to Tech.

The circuit will be closed, meaning it will use existing telephone lines, although in the future there could be a private microwave relay system, Bradford said.

WIDE USE

The system will enable a distinguished professor in a special field to teach at any other school via the hookup. Industrial firms will use professors from hundreds of miles away to keep their employees informed of latest developments in their profession.

The professor will be able to teach in several schools simultaneously.

Usage will be limited only by the number of channels leased. Cameras would require only one technician at each sending and receiving classroom or industrial lecture hall.

Bradford said a student needing information will be able to question the network about what is available in any library in any of the schools.

If he should need only a few pages, they could be copied and sent by machine to him in a matter of minutes. If he needed a complete volume, it could be mailed to him.

COMPUTERS

Even the computers are expected to talk to each other.

If a small computer finds itself too ignorant to supply an answer, it can ask a larger or smarter computer in another college and get a reply, coming out of its quandy with a bright new luster.

Pittsburg Residents Get Off Treadmill Of Loans

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — People living on the brink of poverty aren't considered good credit risks. When they need a loan they often go to a numbers operator or tavern owner. The interest is likely to be something like 25 per cent. And the loan starts an endless treadmill of back-breaking payments and more loans.

But residents of Pittsburgh's grimy Manchester district, determined to get off the treadmill, have pooled their money in the Manchester Council Federal Credit Union. The interest rate is a penny a month per dollar.

"These people have been taken by so many loan sharks we have to convince them we're not going to run off with their money," says secretary-bookkeeper Carole Piela, half of the credit union's office staff.

Manager Eugene Taylor agrees: "They were leery as the dickens at first." But since the credit union started last November with $14,000 from the federal anti-poverty program for equipment and salaries, 50 people have taken out loans ranging from $25 to $450 to pay gas and electric bills, to purchase home appliances and in one case to buy medicine for a hospitalized husband.

Larger Tracts May Save Family Farms

DALLAS (AP)—Farms in the Southwest are growing larger for many reasons, but these reasons may be the salvation of the family farm, a recent publication of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas says.

While there certainly are a larger number of corporation-type farms, with professionally-trained managers, the "Business Review" of the bank says that the "transition of the family farm from a way of life to an efficient business enterprise has been accomplished rather smoothly. . . the family farm is expected to continue as the basic unit in the agricultural economy."

DEMANDS

The author of the survey, J. C. Grady Jr., says, that greater demands on agriculture "are being met by fewer but more efficient farms. Improved managerial ability and the increased use of capital have made it possible to produce for markets not visualized a few years ago."

He noted that in 1966, each farm worker produced enough farm products to supply 29 people or about 14 persons more than in 1959.

"This increase is larger than in any previous comparable span of time," said Grady. Higher production has been attained through greater use of irrigation, fertilizers, hybrid seed, improved breeding stock, mechanization and better management.

GAINED

In the Southwest, the increase production has gained with only a fractional increase in farm and ranch acreage. Greatest gain was 3 per cent in New Mexico, while the acreage in Texas declined slightly.

The report said that although acreage changed only slightly, the number of farms in the five Southwestern states declined 10 per cent—to 376,985 between 1959 and 1964. The average farm in Arizona, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas was 733 acres, with Texas showing 691 acres.

LABOR

"Despite the enlargement of individual farming operations, management and a major part of labor continue to be provided by the farm family," wrote Grady. He said farmers have increased their acreage, sometimes by renting nearby land, to take advantage of economies of size, to offset the weather and to adjust for government programs.

The farmers have been encouraged to substitute capital for labor. This simply means investment in farm machines. This has caused a sharp reduction of 29 per cent in the six years of the study in the number of tenant farms.

Mechanization has gone so far, he reports, that some operators of standard-size farms have enough free time to take part-time jobs elsewhere.

Popular opinion has been that the average age of farm operators is increasing, partly because the high cost of land had made it difficult for a young man to get a start.

AGE

But Grady's figures show that between 1959 and 1964, the average age increased by only one year, although the average still shows maturity. The range is from 50 years in Arizona to 53 in Texas. There were decreases in the number of farmers 65 years or older in all the Southwest states except Oklahoma.

By DON MCLEOD
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—While National Guardsmen were battling riots in Detroit, Newark and other spots, 4,000 troops were on duty in Memphis fighting a more elusive but equally dangerous foe—rumor.

In the wake of rioting in the North, Tennessee was swept with a frenzy of rumors of impending racial violence. The situation reached the critical stage in Memphis last weekend.

ALERT

Gov. Buford Ellington put the entire Air and Army National Guard of the state on alert, some 15,000 men.

The danger was the known ability of contagious rumor to create the very disaster it imagines.

"No riot or lynching ever occurs without the aid of rumor," writes Gordon Allport, Harvard psychologist and a leading authority on the subject.

The current wave of riots began in Newark, set off by the arrest of the Negro cab driver and exploded by the false rumor that police had killed him.

Detroit became the scene of the most violent rioting. A Negro, was charged with making up the unfounded rumor that sparked it.

A rumor that whites had tossed a Negro woman and her baby off a bridge started the fighting, and repetition of the story over a loudspeaker at a Negro recreation center the next day sent a crowd surging into the streets as the rioting began in earnest.

POPULAR

Ironically, the same rumor was popular in all quarters of the city. When whites told it, the roles were reversed, but the story was the same.

A riot in Harlem the same summer was spread by an exaggerated story that a white policeman had shot a Negro in the back.

The bloody Chicago riot of 1919 stemmed from a wildly spreading rumor about a Negro boy who drowned in Lake Michigan. The boy had drifted into a part of the beach used by whites, and a scuffle developed between Negroes and whites. The boy sank amid a hail of stones.

Although medical examination found no sign of bruises, rumor at once had it that the boy had been hit by a stone and drowned as a result and that white policeman had refused to arrest the "murderer."

A rumor is believed, the scientists say, because it serves a psychological need for the listener. If he wants to believe it, he will swallow almost anything.

HANGED

After the San Francisco earthquake, rumor had men being hanged from lamp posts because women's fingers were found in their pockets. It seems the ghouls hadn't had time to remove rings while looting.

Rioting usually is preceded by numerous small rumors, but one big, immediate one usually sets it off like a bugle call to action. Once the fighting starts, the rumors fly faster than the bottles and bricks.

At the peak of violence in Detroit in 1943, police received a telephone report from a woman who claimed to have witnessed with her own eyes the killing of a white man by a mob of Negroes.

When police arrived, they found a group of girls playing hopscotch. Sometimes, rumors are started deliberately, as by the Negro in Detroit in 1943, who wanted to "even the score" for being tossed out of an amusement park by whites.

During World War II Americans were subject to a deluge of rumors, some deliberately planted to divide them. Some rumor spreaders were sent to jail for violation of the wartime sedition act.

GOLDEN ERA

The war years were the golden era of rumor in America.

The favorite rumor of the war related that a woman passenger on a bus remarked: "My husband has a better job than he ever had, and he's making more money. I hope the war lasts a long time."

Then, the story goes, another woman got up and slapped her face, declaring: "That is for my boy who was killed at Pearl Harbor. And this (another slap) is for my boy in the Philippines."

A magazine which printed the story as pure rumor was swamped with letters declaring it was true and had happened in cities across the continent.

But an alert newspaper editor in Harrisburg, Pa., recalled that a paper there had printed the same general story in 1896 and one man remembered hearing it from his grandmother in a Civil War setting.

People already ridden by fears about a particular bogey are apt to believe any story which confirms their fear, as illustrated by a "fifth column" rumor. It started with a fire in a car

Observatory Being Revamped

FORT DAVIS, Tex. (AP)—The McDonald Observatory, known throughout the world as one of the best, cranksy though it is, will have a lot of new additions shortly.

Shortly, that is, as astronomers measure time. The face-lifting atop Mount Locke in far West Texas is to be completed in 1969.

TOWER

Already, a 60-foot tower which looks like giant twin chimneys has been added. New roads have been bulldozed around the mountaintop, and large sites for construction have been built or will be soon.

The new face on the mountain is part of an ambitious expansion program. This will involve construction of a 107-inch reflecting telescope and a 30-inch telescope and the transfer of a 16-foot parabolic radio antenna from Austin.

The 60-foot chimneys will support the 107-inch telescope which is being built by Westinghouse at Sunnyvale, Calif.

The entire project is expected to cost $2.5 million. Financing construction of the telescope is the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The National Science Foundation and the university are paying for construction of the dome and supporting facilities.

COMPANION

The 30-inch telescope will be a companion to a present 36-inch instrument and would be used for photometric work. This is measuring the amounts of different kinds of light given off by astronomical objects.

The metal dome of the big new telescope will rise 103 feet, or more than 10 stories tall. The main operating floor will be five stories high.

Transfer of the radio antenna will put all the McDonald facilities across the Pecos River. Two sensitive radio-telescopes are being built at Mitchell Mesa, southeast of Marfa and about 40 air miles from McDonald.

The present 82-inch reflecting telescope will be modernized soon with new wiring, new drive controls and other improvements.

John Weis, superintendent at McDonald, noted that the electrical controls on the 82-inch instrument, which still has its original 30-year-old wiring, have become so cranky at times that staff members no longer are permitted to open the dome or move the telescope for tourists.

The observatory can be visited four times daily.

OPEN

The observatory is one of the few open to the public at all.

Persons wishing to look through the 82-inch reflector may do so on the last Wednesday of each month by writing the observatory and requesting an admission slip.

Party Boats Are All For Fun

By BERNIE SMITH

PORT ARANSAS, Tex. (AP) — Party boat outings on the Texas Gulf Coast are a combination of fish and fun. All is not seriousness.

By the time the day's fishing is over you will have made a lot of new friends and had a barrel of laughs.

COMPLAINED

Don't fish seriously unless you can bring in your own fish. A tough, husky boat captain complained about a boatload of elderly guests that could hook fish, but couldn't bring them in.

"I got tired," he said, "and we're not supposed to get tired."

If you snapper fish you probably will use an electric reel for king mackerel or ling, use stout line. Light line may be sporting, but it ties up others' valuable time when you take 45 minutes to boat a fish. Also, a 50-pound ling or shark can take you around the boat a half dozen times, so learn to walk around others.

By watching your diet the night before fishing you are less likely to have seasickness. Refreshments on board should be taken cautiously. And no one cares if you are a tee-totaler.

FOR FUN

Party Boats are for fun. On the wall of one boat cabin a sign reads: "Marriages performed on this vessel are good only for the duration of the voyage." It's a gag.

On a cruise into the Gulf of Mexico during the Deep Sea Roundup at Port Aransas recently, a pair of friends played pranks on each other, and still speak. One went into the hold to check on looted-down fish. The other closed the hatch, keeping him prisoner 10 minutes. Later, the second angler caught his tormentor in the same hold, kept him on ice a while, and finally turned a hose on him.

The spirit of fun is contagious. A 16-foot outboard came alongside our party boat drift-fishing way out in the Gulf.

"Which way is land," the skipper inquired. "We're lost."

"We don't know," everybody replied.

BATTLER

A cute little matron hung a terrific battler that led her around the boat twice. "Foul hooked," ventured an expert. Another didn't agree. "Shark," he guessed. She had long since become too pooped to pump when her 7-year-old daughter demanded her attention.

"Mommy," she insisted, "why don't you reel it in?"

The line parted in a few minutes, so she'll never know.

A young engineer from Norman, Okla., was aboard. Others weren't sure which of several girls was his wife. A girl crossed another angler's line when they had a fish on, topping it by dropping her rod and reel in the briny.

"Are you from Oklahoma?" someone inquired.

"Yeah," she replied, "how'd you guess it?"

PRAT-FALL

Every fish I hooked headed for the bow. The slanted forward deck became slick, and one fish-fight resulted in a prat-fall. (No the fish didn't get away.)

"I'll bet you don't see a pretty sit-down like that on a lake," a boatman prodded.

"No, but I did see something the other day I'd never seen before," I told him. "A barracuda in fresh water."

"Well, this swanky Barracuda was backing a heavy boat down the ramp—"

Science And You
The Laser As A Scissors
 —By DR. LEONARD REIFFEL

The laser is a famous scientific invention. In principle, it could someday be the famous "death ray" envisioned by science fiction. Indeed, there have been some military projects to determine if it could be so used. Lasers also have tremendous peacetime potential. Three-dimensional photography has already been demonstrated with laser light and a new type of projection TV using a laser beam is under development. Laser equipment has become almost commonplace in scientific laboratories, where it is used for optical experiments or as a source of high intensity light. Lasers, exhibiting remarkable versatility, are even involved in the precision measurement of distances during such operations as the machining of mechanical parts or the digging of tunnels.

Almost all these applications (and there are many others) depend upon one or two peculiar facts about laser light. First, laser light waves can be very "orderly" or "coherent." They move along together like a great series of rolling ocean waves, whereas the waves from an ordinary light source might be likened to the surface of a wind-whipped lake. Second, laser light can be enormously intense and yet can be focused into incredibly fine beams. This last property of laser light may open a whole series of applications in which the device can be used as a cutting tool.

Surgeons have been doing experiments involving the use of a laser as a bloodless surgical scalpel. But one of the latest ideas for using a laser as a cutting tool comes from, of all places, the clothing industry! In Britain, there is great interest in using a powerful laser to replace the tailor's scissors in the handcutting of suits. One company is making about a million suits a year to custom order. Each one takes a skilled tailor about half an hour to cut out. But the whole process could be computerized and made automatic if only there was a suitable scissors for the computer to use. One needs something more sophisticated — something faster, and capable of electronic control.

The clothing manufacturers tried hot wires, sparks, hot knives and flame jets, all of which could be controlled by computers, at least in principle. Their efforts did not meet with much success. Then they got the idea of using a laser beam. A laser has the advantage of making a clean cut and leaving a nicely annealed and sealed edge on the cloth. It isn't at all difficult to imagine a laser beam sweeping across a bolt of British woolen under the guiding hand of a computer which has been programmed to the customer's exact dimensions. This is what is probably coming to Savile Row and to most other large-scale clothing centers.

One problem is the need of a more powerful laser. The type that has been used in experimental trials produces 40 watts of cutting power. Space Age tailors would like at least a thousand watts. If they can get a 1,000-watt laser, they could cut any type of cloth at sufficiently high speed. Even with the 40-watt laser they have found that they can cut light fabrics at adequate speeds. At the moment, therefore, the tailors are trying to decide whether military's undies should be cut out this way!

Nuclear Blast Jars Buildings

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A nuclear device with energy equivalent to between 20,000 and 200,000 tons of TNT was detonated Wednesday at the Nevada test site, the Atomic Energy Commission said.

Tall buildings and light fixtures and desks in some Las Vegas offices, 50 miles southeast of the site, swayed slightly during the 10 a.m. blast, residents here said.

The device was buried about 2,000 feet below the surface of the site.

Needs Legal Advice

DEAR ABBY: After 35 years of marriage, my husband has become involved with a divorcee, 22 years younger than himself. She has four children. Her youngest is the same age as one of our five grandchildren.

My husband moved out of our home and into an apartment, where this tramp visits him regularly. He is spending our money on her, and this includes our life's savings, which I helped him accumulate through 38 years of teaching school (I am 59).

My husband wants a quiet divorce. But I'm not to get any alimony or consolation money. I am going to end up either broke or crazy if he has his way.

Should I let him dump me for a younger woman, or should I fight it out in court?

Texas Loyalty Oath Stay Nixed

AUSTIN (AP)—U.S. Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black has denied Texas a stay in a federal court order forbidding use of a loyalty oath as a condition for state employment, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin has announced.

The Dallas federal court that issued the order Sept. 7 also stayed its effect until Sept. 25, but Black refused the state's request for an additional stay.

"Unless the Supreme Court as a whole rules otherwise, the oath is dead in Texas," Martin said. He said Texas is perfecting its appeal of the case to the full Supreme Court.

As a practical matter, state colleges and universities—from which came the test of the oath—have not been requiring the pledge this fall. The oath stated that an employee was not and had never been a member of the Communist party or other subversive groups.

The original suit was filed by a part-time tuba instructor at Dallas County Junior College. He claimed he was fired for refusing to sign what he regarded as an unconstitutional oath.

Says Automobile On The Way Out

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The automobile is on the way out, an official has told the Canadian Good Roads Association. Dr. Gordon Schrum, co-chairman of the British Columbia Hydro Authority, predicted the automobile would disappear before the end of the 21st century.

He said the main reason would be a shortage of gas and oil. Besides, he said, everyone will be living in urban areas with moving sidewalks where cars won't be needed.
