Heart Transplant Seems Successful

First Words: 'I'm Feeling Much Better'

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A South African man with the transplanted heart of a 25-year-old girl pumping his blood announced today: "I am feeling much better."

Louis Washkansky, 55, a Lithuanian-born businessman, was able to speak 33 hours after a medical break-through operation. The tubes to a respirator were removed from his throat, permitting him to speak his first words since Sunday's surgery.

CRITICAL

But he remained in a critical period at what Groote Schuur Hospital called the world's first human heart transplant.

Heart specialists around the world were waiting to see if Washkansky's body would accept or reject the heart of Denise Ann Darvall, an accounting machine operator killed in a car crash.

"The longer Washkansky goes on, the better," said Dr. Jacobus G. Burger, medical supervisor of the hospital, "although that does not mean the heart will not be rejected later. The body could decide in five or 10 years' time that it doesn't want this heart."

He was being fed anticoagulants to prevent blood clotting. Dr. Burger said that without the transplant Washkansky would have been dead within a few days because his heart's muscle was worn down.

LANDMARK

The landmark operation was supervised by Dr. Jan H. Louw, the hospital's chief surgeon, with Prof. Chris Barnard performing the main surgery.

Surgeons removed the heart from Miss Darvall's body first and kept it going by a mechanical pump while they took out Washkansky's damaged heart. They then transplanted the girl's heart into the man's chest and started it beating with jolts from electrodes.

"It was like turning the ignition switch of a car," said Dr. Louw.

The case was followed with extreme interest in the United States, where heart disease is the nation's leading killer.

"It sounds to me like a damn good job—scientifically valid," said Dr. Norman E. Shumway, head of the cardiovascular surgery division at the Stanford Medical Center.

He said his staff is ready to perform the same operation when the right combination of dying patient and donor—whose heart must be taken no later than half an hour after death—occurs at Stanford.

PREDICTED

Dr. Shumway predicted that within 10 years doctors will be transplanting hearts with the same frequency they now transplant kidneys. About 600 persons throughout the world were living with transplanted kidneys as of last February.

Dr. Michael DeBakey, who led the development of the heart pump, said in Houston the transplant "certainly would be a great achievement if they're able to overcome the rejection."

Wild Cable Car

(AP WIREPHOTO)

Plunging down rain-slick Hyde Street in San Francisco, Calif., last night, a Hyde Street cable car smashed into one passenger car, setting it afire, then plunged another block and a half before coming to a stop. Car at right was struck by cable car. Other was destroyed by fire.

HEARING SET Arsenal, Nazi Material Found

DALLAS (AP) — A peace bond hearing was ordered today for a man in whose home sheriff's officers confiscated nearly a dozen guns, ammunition and Nazi literature.

The held the man, 32, without immediate charge pending an investigation to determine whether the arsenal was stolen.

Deputies Tom Barker and A. D. McCurley obtained a warrant and searched the house about 1 a.m. Sunday. They acted on complaint of a woman who identified herself as the man's common-law wife and told them he violated a peace bond and beat her while drunk.

"The officers said they found six rifles, five pistols and hundreds of rounds of ammunition, part of it government issue, in several closets and a dresser drawer."

They quoted the prisoner as denying these articles were stolen.

Deputies told of finding such items as "The Stormtrooper," news magazine of the American Nazi party, racist party stickers and hand-painted anti-Jewish and anti-Negro posters.

They said the man taken into custody described himself as a member of the American Nazi party.

Runaway Cable Car Hurts 43

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With passengers screaming in terror, a cable car ran wild down one of San Francisco's steepest hills Sunday night, ramming a car which exploded into flames and crashed into nine others.

27 HURT

Ambulances took 27 persons, most of them from the cable car, to hospitals with burns and bruises. Critically burned was James Van Baalen, 30, of San Francisco.

The six-ton Hyde Street cable car, nearing the end of its two-mile run from Powell and Market streets in a heavy downpour, rolled onto the steep grade and went forward out of control on rain-slick tracks.

According to passengers, the cable car careened for a block and a half down Hyde. Some passengers jumped off. At Bay Street the car rammed an auto which bounced off others as its gas tank ruptured.

"A big sheet of flame hit the cable car," said Jim Kosek, 22, of Clarendon Hills, Ill. Kosek, just returned from serving in Vietnam, said the cable car seemed to have "lost its brakes."

Several persons were injured in the autos that were hit after the initial impact.

Another cable car passenger, Lorena Matson, 29, of San Francisco, said: "As the cable car started down the steep hill toward Bay Street, the driver said, 'oh, oh, it looks like we're gonna lose our cable.'"

"We thought he was just kidding the tourists and we laughed. Then we just kept going. Some people jumped off, screaming. There was a white car at Bay Street. Then things were falling. There was fire."

SMASHED

The cable car continued for another block and stopped at North Point Street, its front windshield and the ancient woodwork on the right side smashed. But the steelwork in front appeared intact.

'COWARDLY LION'

Bert Lahr, Famed Comic, Dies Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Bert Lahr, the beloved Cowardly Lion of "The Wizard of Oz" and veteran of countless stage and movie roles, died today at 72.

Lahr's death at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center was attributed to a massive internal hemorrhage. He had been under treatment since Nov. 21 for a back ailment and pneumonia.

One of the great comic actors, Lahr's career spanned some 50 years and ranged from the classic Cowardly Lion in "The Wizard of Oz" to Estragon in the difficult "Waiting for Godot."

Which did he like best? "Strangely enough," he said once, "it was 'Waiting for Godot.' It was controversial. Those that hated it, spit at it. Yet it had its cult, and it created a different type of audience for me."

But it is as a clown that Lahr will be remembered by millions who saw him—and who will see him—as the Cowardly Lion.

BERT LAHR

Lahr, whose real name was Irving Lahrheim, is survived by his widow, the former Mildred Schroeder; their son, John, and daughter, Jane; and a son, Herbert, by his first marriage to Mercedes Delpho.

Toys—And Plenty Of Them

Weekend contributions to the firemen's toy drive promise to keep firemen busy with repair and paint jobs. Pictured is Bill White with an assortment of toys—mostly bicycles —to be fixed. Donations may be made at any of the city's six fire stations or one of nine 7-11 grocery stores serving as collection points.

Cong Unit Boxed In, Pushed Away

SAIGON (AP) — American infantrymen and South Vietnamese Marines boxed in a Viet Cong battalion in the Mekong Delta today and reported killing 200 in a day-long battle that raged into the night.

Initial field reports put U.S. casualties at four dead and 38 wounded, South Vietnamese at 15 killed and 50 wounded.

COINCIDED

The delta battle coincided with more of the enemy artillery and rocket attacks which have become the prevailing pattern of the Vietnam war in recent weeks.

U.S. Command said heavy contact continued throughout the day and that the allied troops pushed the Communists about 2½ miles northward. At nightfall, there was still moderate to heavy contact.

U.S. headquarters said the allied troops also took five prisoners and captured 42 weapons.

Communist troops shelled a U.S. destroyer, killing two Americans and wounding three, made a bazooka attack on the U.S. Army headquarters just outside of Saigon, sank one cargo barge and set another afire, and ambushed an Army convoy.

The fighting in the delta broke out just before 8 a.m. as troops of the U.S. 9th Infantry division and the 5th Vietnamese Marine battalion were being landed by Navy armored troop carriers for a sweep.

The force came under heavy fire from recoilless rifles, small arms and machine guns. U.S. Army helicopter gunships, artillery and Navy gunboats joined in the battle to support the ground troops.

Tinsel Being Used To Confuse Radar

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is buying huge quantities of tinsel-like "countermeasure chaff" to throw a blizzard of confusing images into radars guiding North Vietnam's anti-aircraft guns.

CURB LOSSES

The move reflects efforts to curb U.S. aircraft losses in the war, now totaling 758 over North Vietnam in less than three years of operation.

The chaff, made up of thread-sized strips of aluminum-coated fiberglass, is fired in puffs by American pilots approaching bombing target areas.

The puffs reflect enemy radar signals and create blips on radar screens just like planes; confusing anti-aircraft crews. "It's like someone rolling a bunch of coconuts down a hill toward you with a hand grenade somewhere among them," a Navy officer explained.

In the past few days the Navy has ordered more than $1 million in chaff canisters, equaling its total purchases for the fiscal year ending last June 30. The Pentagon said the Navy will order an additional $3 million more by next summer.

The Air Force is more than quadrupling its use of chaff. Officials said they expect to buy $6.4 million worth, up from fiscal 1967's $1.4 million.

Both services will get fresh supplies of chaff over the next few months as the United States prepares for intensified bombing during the good weather months beginning in North Vietnam about March.

The use of chaff to foil enemy detection gear goes back to World War II. The tactic has assumed increased importance as the Pentagon seeks to counter North Vietnam's unprecedented air defenses.

Blue and silver in color, the chaff now in use resembles the shiny icicles used to decorate some Christmas trees.

STRIKE CRIPPLES NATION'S RAILROADS

Britons Facing New Threat

LONDON (AP) — A go-slow strike by engine drivers crippled British railroads today and jammed the highways with commuter traffic. Most people got to work, though it took them twice as long.

The slowdown, termed by Labor Minister Ray Gunter "the silliest dispute of the decade," threatens the nation's railway economy.

REFUSED

Since midnight, freight train drivers have refused to start with brakemen riding in the rear cars of their locomotives—an economy move imposed by the nationalized Rail Board. Each man who refuses is sent home without pay, so another train can't move. As this spreads among the 36,500 men of the drivers' union, passenger trains have to be rased from the time tables.

Scores of freight and passenger trains were canceled. The engineer of a milk train refused to move, and 20,000 gallons had to be siphoned into trucks. The state railway said up to 25 per cent of all passenger services might be canceled.

Roads into London were jammed even more than usual by traffic 50 per cent above normal. Automobile associations organized car pools and commuter pickup points.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson called his Cabinet to assess the effects of the strike and possibly to declare an emergency, mobilizing all available transport to take over the load from stalled trains.

Army trucks may be used to haul essential goods and Royal Air Force planes to fly the mail.

The engineers claim that train guards, who are members of the rival National Union of Railwaymen, should not be allowed to ride in the empty cars at the rear of locomotives. The Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen said the guards belong in cabooses which were discontinued at midnight to save $600,000 a year.

Said Gunter in a television appeal for an end to the slowdown: "Unless we as a country can come to terms with the technological changes and escape from past habits and attitudes, there is no hope."

HARD HIT

The British economy has already been hard hit this year by a long wildcat dock strike in London and Liverpool. The resulting reduction in exports was one of the causes for devaluation of the pound.

In another labor dispute, pilots of British Overseas Airways Corporation voted to go ahead with a 48-hour strike next weekend. Their union wants company recognition. BOAC told the pilots they would be dismissed if they struck.

HIS POLITICAL PLANS COULD BECOME OBVIOUS SOON AFTER CONTEST

LBJ's Name Won't Be Entered In Primary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is keeping his name off the popularity contest ballot in the New Hampshire primary March 12 but soon after could lose the option of concealing his future political plans.

Johnson has shrugged off questions about whether he is seeking a second elective term. But the bridge he has said he will cross when he comes to it may be just around the bend in the April 2 Wisconsin primary.

INTENTION
In New Hampshire, a candidate's name can't be posted on the ballot until he has been registered in the state.

2-A Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Monday, Dec. 4, 1967

the presidential primary ballot without his consent. In Wisconsin, his name can be entered by a state commission and he must disclaim any intention of running to get it off.

Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., said in an interview Sunday that in line with the President's wishes, Johnson will not be entered in the popular vote contest but will be represented with a slate of Democratic National Convention delegates.

"The President doesn't want to disclose his intentions officially in March in a state where we have only about 85,000 registered voters," McIntyre said.

Democratic conference at Charleston, W.Va., promised Saturday to support the 1968 Democratic nominee. But he did not say whether he plans to become that nominee.

PUBLIC IMPACT
The public impact of New Hampshire's primary has always been out of proportion to the relatively small numbers of voters involved.

When the late Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., trounced President Truman in the state's 1952 voting, Truman said presidential primaries were a lot of "eyewash." But he announced soon after that he wouldn't seek re-election.

McIntyre predicted that those ignoring the denials of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., that he has any intention of becoming a presidential candidate in 1968, will furnish most of the opposition to Johnson's Vietnam policy in the state's balloting. They may stage a write-in drive and enter delegate candidates favorable to Kennedy.

He said he doubts that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., an avowed candidate for the Democratic nomination, will enter the popularity contest, adding McCarthy is little known in the state. If he does come in, McIntyre or Gov. John W. King probably will run as a Johnson stand-in.

PHONE SPEECH
Johnson, in a telephone speech to a six-state regional

Democratic conference at Charleston, W.Va., promised Saturday to support the 1968 Democratic nominee. But he did not say whether he plans to become that nominee.

Without mentioning names, he referred indirectly to McCarthy when he said: "I believe we already have several volunteers for next year's ticket. In general, I like to stay out of these internal party matters."

McCarthy won the unanimous endorsement Sunday of the Conference of Concerned Democrats, meeting in Chicago. The 450 to 500 delegates from 42 states attending the meeting said of the Minnesotan:

"McCarthy is a statesman who possesses the qualities of courage, leadership, humility and vision needed to instill faith in our government."

FAVORITE SON
Actor Robert Vaughn, national chairman of Dissenting Democrats, announced shortly afterward that his group had decided in a closed caucus also to back McCarthy. Vaughn said Dissenting Democrats has chapters in 20 states.

In another weekend development, Sen. Stephen M. Young said he'll seek a favorite son designation in Ohio in a bid to record a Democratic convention protest against Johnson's war policies. Young, a persistent critic of those policies, said that as a favorite son he would back Johnson for renomination after the first convention ballot.

A position paper put before a Detroit meeting of the Michigan Conference of Concerned Democrats called meanwhile for ousting Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey, accusing him of trying to "rig the 1968 national convention" in favor of Johnson.

'DUMP' PLANS
A spokesman for the "dump Johnson" movement said Sunday that strong showings by McCarthy in the primaries could throw open the Democratic convention to a number of possible nominees, including New York Sen. Kennedy.

"You can't elect enough delegates in primaries to carry the convention, but you can elect enough delegates to influence the Democratic political organizations to re-examine whether they want the President renominated," said Allard K. Lowenstein.

Lowenstein, a New York lawyer who is co-chairman of the Conference of Concerned Democrats, was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Bailey later issued a statement calling Lowenstein's assertions "a jumble of confusion." Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., in a separate statement, called Lowenstein "the Don Quixote of the new isolationism in America."

PREVIEW
Johnson was endorsed Sunday by past and present Democratic governors from six states and party leaders from four other states who met near San Diego, Calif.

Support of Johnson's Vietnam policies wasn't specifically included in the resolution, but Utah Gov. Calvin Rampton declared later, "we all support the President in Vietnam."

Johnson gave something of a preview of his expected campaign theme when he told the Charleston meeting: "There are those who say we cannot defend freedom in the world and achieve social justice here at home. We can—and we must do both."

Young New Jersey Jew Becomes Monk

GIA DINH, Vietnam (AP) — A young New Jersey Jew who came to Vietnam with the U.S. Army is staying on as a Buddhist monk.

Stephen J. Shlafer, 25, went through a Buddhist ceremony in a pagoda just outside Saigon Sunday and emerged as a monk with the new name of Thich (Venerable) Thien Hien. His mother, Mrs. Pat Shlafer, said in Springfield, N.J., her son told her during a visit a month ago his stay in the pagoda would be temporary and he would return to the United States next year to go back to the University of Washington. Many Buddhist men spend periods of several months or years as monks, then return to their former lives.

'WILD SCHEMES'
"When I was a kid," Shlafer told newsmen, "I was a Torah (scriptures) reader in the synagogue. My parents didn't get excited about that. I don't think they're excited about this. They probably think it's another, one of my wild schemes."

Shlafer came to Vietnam in 1963 as a Vietnamese interpreter after training at the Army's language school in Monterey, Calif. After his military service he studied Vietnamese literature at Van Hanh University, a Buddhist school in Saigon. Scholarships from the University of Michigan and the University of Washington helped finance him.

THOUSANDS VIEW BODY
NEW YORK (AP) — Dressed in the white, red and gold splendor of a Prince of the Roman Catholic Church, the body of Francis Cardinal Spellman lay in state in St. Patrick's Cathedral today.

Thousands of mourners filed by the catafalque, placed in the center aisle, after a solemn High Mass of requiem sung Sunday night by Archbishop John F. Maguire and nine concelebrants. Archbishop Maguire has been named administrator of the archdiocese by Pope Paul VI to serve until a successor is named.

DOORS OPEN
The great bronze doors of the cathedral remained open throughout the night and early morning hours for mourners wishing to view the body.

Four New York City firemen and policemen stood guard over the coffin of African mahogany lined with bronze which will remain in place until funeral services Thursday for the cardinal, who died Saturday of a stroke at the age of 78.

All seven surviving American cardinals have been invited to the Thursday services.

The six cardinals currently in the United States have indicated they will attend, but whether Francis Cardinal Brennan, head of the Vatican's Sacred Rota, would return from Rome was not known.

MESSAGES
As mourners filed the cathedral and messages of condolence poured into the chancery—including those from the Pope and President Johnson—speculation began on who would succeed Spellman.

Although the selection of a successor is finally made by the Pope, this will be the first major American church appointment under a new nominating system set up to give American bishops more say in the choosing.

Makarios Delays His Reply To Thant's Peace Plans

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — President Makarios of Cyprus delayed his reply today to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant's peace proposals for his island, although Thant omitted parts of a Greek-Turkish agreement to which Makarios objected.

Greece and Turkey accepted the proposals but Turkey had reservations because of two sections that were dropped—calling for a broader function for the U.N. peace force in Cyprus and one providing special rights for the Turkish Cypriot minority.

BROADER ROLE
Thant said only that the U.N. force could play a broader role in keeping peace and quiet on the island.

U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance wound up his talks with Makarios in Nicosia Sunday without overcoming the Greek Orthodox archbishop's objections to those provisions and another one for disbanding the Greek Cypriot National Guard.

Vance went to Athens and then left for Washington, saying he was "gratified that tension in the area had receded." His choice of words underlined that full agreement had not been reached.

At the end of the 3½-hour meeting in Nicosia, Makarios looked pleased, in marked contrast to Vance. He told newsmen: "I don't think there is a crisis. I mean there is no reason for it."

As President Johnson's special envoy, Vance had helped Greece and Turkey reach their agreement on moves to prevent war between the two after the Turks threatened to invade Cyprus because of a clash there last month in which 27 Turkish Cypriots were killed.

SUGAR COATED
But to make Greece's concessions go down more easily with the Greek public, the strategy was to have the governments respond to an appeal from Thant rather than give way to each other. Thant apparently changed the terms of the appeal after Vance informed him of Makarios' unyielding resistance.

Cypriot Ambassador Zenon Rossides informed Thant Sunday night that his government found the new appeal "particularly constructive" and would submit a written reply.

Premiers Constantine Kollias of Greece and Suleyman Dmirel of Turkey sent their governments would "carry out expeditiously" what Thant had asked—an end to any threats to each other or to Cyprus and removal of an estimated 12,000 Greek and 1,200 Turkish soldiers on the island illegally.

Twin Teachers Adopt Daughters

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Twin schoolteachers, Jane and Joan Marhefka, both 29 and unmarried, today had two 5-year-old daughters to care for—orphans from Bogota, Colombia.

The children Consuela and Marisol, arrived over the weekend from South America for their first meeting with the Marhefka sisters and found a little girls' bedroom outfitted with pretty clothes, stuffed pink animals, and jumpers.

There are bicycles hidden away for Christmas.

SAME SEX
Joan and June Marhefka have been studying Spanish since May when they applied to the Colombian government to adopt a child. They were urged to apply to the South American nation by a fellow teacher, Joanne Pruyn of Fort Lauderdale who had taught in Bogota.

Colombian law allowed the unmarried sisters to adopt children of their own sex. The investigations by social workers were completed this summer.

The sisters know about adoption. Although they are the natural children of Mr. and Mrs. John Marhefka of Johnstown, Pa., there was an adopted brother, two foster brothers and a foster sister in the family.

Folksinger Hospitalized

GLENDALB, Calif. (AP) — Folksinger Jimmie Rodgers was reported well enough to make telephone calls from his hospital bed today, although his manager said he is still "in very serious condition."

"He insists on making telephone calls to friends and they are letting him do it rather than get all worked up over it," said Seymour Heller, Rodgers' manager.

Hospital officials refused to comment on Rodgers' condition.

Heller said the 33-year-old singer could be hospitalized "anywhere from a week or two to a couple of months."

Rodgers was found unconscious and beaten along a freeway early Friday. He suffered a skull fracture. He had apparently been attacked with a blunt instrument during a robbery attempt, according to his physician, Dr. William L. Donham.

Heller said Rodgers has no recollection of Friday—"He's lost the whole day." He said the only thing that remains is "the impression that he was hit with a tire iron."

Mrs. Medders Due 'Hot' Check Rule

GAINESVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Former society matron Margaret Medders went on trial today on a charge of giving a worthless $840.15 check to a Dallas photographer who covered some of the lavish parties she and her husband formerly gave at their sumptuous Colonial Acres Farm.

A panel of 150 prospective jurors was summoned.

Mrs. Medders and her husband, Ernest, were tried together last spring on charges of selling mortgaged cattle. The jury here was not able to reach a verdict.

LAVISH PARTIES
The Medders sprang into national prominence first because of the lavish parties they gave at their Colonial Acres spread.

Later developments showed most of their apparent millions came from loans from Roman Catholic organizations.

The bad check trial has been postponed several times because of illness of Mrs. Medders.

Conviction could result in a prison term of two to 10 years. The Medders have been declared bankrupt but claim their

Bridge Test

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(to be in The Chess Times)
ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠5 ♥KJ56 ♦KQ10 ♣AKJ57

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♣ Pass 1♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Four hearts. Even if partner has made a shaded response, you do not wish to play for less than game. Your hand is worth 20 points in support of hearts. Remember that a jump to three hearts would permit partner to pass.

Q. 2—Neither side vulnerable and, as South you hold:
♠1072 ♥AJ10975 ♦K72 ♣3

The bidding has proceeded: East South West North 2♣ Pass West North 2♣ Pass 4♣ ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. You should, therefore, be conscious of slam, and it is suggested that you bid at least five spades. This is a vague sort of bid, of course. At this level it is hard to be precise, but you must get across to partner the notion that you have some cards which will be highly useful to him.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ85 ♥AK96 ♣AK784

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♣ 1♥ Pass 2♥ ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. While you did not choose to open this hand with a two demand bid, prospects are better now than they were at the start, simply because hearts, a suit which would have done us no good, are marked with both opponents. This makes the likelihood very great that we will find a fit with one of our suits in partner's hand.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠9 ♥AQ1086 ♥A75 ♣AQ43

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ Pass 1♣ Pass 2♥ Pass 2NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Six hearts. North has shown a good hand, first by responding at the level of two, then by showing the spade control and subsequently by supporting hearts. He should, therefore, have the necessary ingredients to produce 12 tricks.

partner. North will either raise to four hearts or return to three no trump.

Q. 5—East-West vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥KQ9 ♦AQ852 ♣104

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South Pass Pass 1♣ Dbl. 1NT Pass Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Double again. Even the partner was unable to make a free bid, you should not abandon this hand, which contains 17 points in high cards. A bid of two diamonds is not recommended; the double could result in a late leave-in by partner, which might prove profitable.

Q. 6—As South, both sides vulnerable, you hold:
♠A742 ♥AK864 ♦J6 ♣32

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1♣ Pass 2♣ ?
What do you bid?
A.—Pass. There is no action that you can take with safety. Against an opening bidder and an adversary who has been able to respond at the level of two, it is extremely risky to reach for an eight trick contract with a hand that may well produce no more than four tricks.

Q. 7—Neither vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠864 ♥AQJ1075 ♦K84 ♣A

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ 1♣ 2♦ Pass 1♥ ?
What action do you take?
A.—Our own preference is for a rebid of merely two hearts which is, to be sure, somewhat of an understatement, and yet a jump to three hearts would be a shade too aggressive. There is no need to pass when partner has made a free bid and, therefore, intends to move forward game.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J87 ♥AQ10974 ♥A ♣AK5

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♥ Pass 2♦ Pass 3♥ Pass 4♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Six hearts. North has shown a good hand, first by responding at the level of two, then by showing the spade control and subsequently by supporting hearts. He should, therefore, have the necessary ingredients to produce 12 tricks.

Health Hints

SERIES III

Here is a good case history about a surprise a lady patient had. She came to this office suffering from an aching and pain in the middle of her upper back. This had been coming and going for about 10 years and she finally decided that perhaps she should see a chiropractor as it seemed to be in the spine. In checking her, we also found another heavy nerve pressure and asked if she was nervous or had headaches. This question surprised her and she asked how I could tell something else was wrong. I told her there was a severe nerve pressure in addition to the one which had brought her in. In addition we found some pressure of a nerve in her lower back which further surprised her. The final outcome of her case was that the primary pain of the upper middle spine cleared up in short order and the second nerve pressure was a Migraine headache condition which she thought she had to live with. With the result she does not have to suffer with Migraine headaches any longer. The lesser nerve pressure of her lower spine is gone as well and she can do her house work much freer and easier. No. 3577.

Let a Chiropractor examine your spine to find those irritated nerves and when they are cleared up, you, too, can find health. Hansen Chiropractic Clinic across from Piggly Wiggly at 1004 Eleventh Place. —Adv.

Steel Firms Delay Move

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The next move in the latest confrontation between the government and the steel industry over prices is up to the steelmakers who must decide whether to go along with U.S. Steel Corp.'s rate increases.

Both sides agree the industry, whose profits dipped by 31 per cent in the first 10 months this year, has its problems.

U.S. Steel, biggest producer in the industry, hiked prices Friday on cold-rolled sheets used in cars and appliances by $5 a ton, or 3.5 per cent.

The next day Chairman Gardner Ackley of the President's Council of Economic Advisers urged other producers not to follow U.S. Steel's lead. He said, "Costs and prices are already too high—not too low."

He said improved technology is the way to better profits.

U.S. Steel and other producers had no reply to Ackley immediately but the other producers said they are looking into U.S. Steel's action. If the others follow U.S. Steel's lead, the industry will have raised prices piece meal this year on products accounting for 62 per cent of shipments.

In the past, other producers have assessed government reaction to the first increase then followed in line when they thought the increase would stick.

Travel, Gale Warnings Out

By The Associated Press

Rain whipped by blustery winds sent up travel and gale warnings in the far Northwest today, while a storm that dumped heavy rain and snow along the Northeastern seaboard moved out to sea.

The storm in the Northwest carried snow into the mountains. Travelers warnings were posted for the Northern Sierra Nevada and gale warnings flew along the North Pacific Coast.

Although the storm in the Northeast moved offshore, it sent a backlash of cold air far southward. A freezing chill spread through most of the South early today, and frost was scattered from Texas to extreme Northwestern Florida.

High seas at Portsmouth, Va., sent an anchored merchant ship slamming into the Chesapeake Bay bridge-tunnel Sunday night, causing extensive damage to part of the 17-mile-long structure.

A tornado Sunday ripped through a home on the outskirts of Morehead City, on the North Carolina coast, but both its occupants escaped injury.

Rain and showers spread down the West Coast to the San Francisco Bay area and into New Mexico. Clear skies were the rule for the rest of the nation.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 4 at Rock Springs, Wyo., to 70 at Key West, Fla.

Unlucky Thirteen Die In Accidents

By The Associated Press

Twenty-seven persons died violently in Texas during the weekend.

The toll included 13 deaths in traffic, eight homicides and half a dozen fatalities from other causes. It was recorded between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

These were among the victims: Edward Jackson, 62, died Sunday in a fall down an elevator shaft at the Dallas Sportsweat-

BUGGY DEATH

A sand buggy rammed into a wall of a caliche pit Sunday near Kermit and killed Howard Pilkington, 27. Two other men in the vehicle were injured.

Jose A. Herrera, 30, of Plainview was killed early Sunday when his car ran off US 87 near Abernathy.

Gunfire killed Mabel J. Moore, 35, and wounded two men slightly at a Dallas residence Sunday night in what police described as an argument over a card game. They held one man and sought another for questioning. James E. Jackson, 72, perished as fire swept through a house on Fort Worth's east side Sunday.

GATOR MISTAKE

A shotgun charge killed Jim Clark, 35, of Shreveport, La., while he was competing in a gar spearfishing contest at Caddo Lake near Marshall in East Texas. Officers said a duck hunter apparently mistook Clark for an alligator as he surfaced near a stump.

Army Pvt. Carol A. Hahn, 19, of Spokane, Wash., died Sunday of injuries suffered the night before when a car struck her in a San Antonio street. She was stationed at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

The nine-mile offshore area that belongs to the state, the court said in a 4-1 opinion, should be measured from the state boundary as it existed when Texas was admitted to the Union in 1845.

Under its terms, the department would have been required to go through a lengthy, formal process to cut off funds. The Fountain rider was heavily opposed by the Johnson administration.

But Humphrey said he did not know whether Johnson has decided yet to address the labor leaders, who are among Johnson's strongest supporters on Vietnam war policies and many other administration programs.

The court made no comment except to say it would hear an appeal by a Negro bail bondsman and his white wife who have tried — unsuccessfully — to force a developer in the St. Louis area to sell them a house and lot.

The department said a "single, isolated refusal" to sell a house to a Negro when comparable housing in the same area is readily available may be beyond the reach of the Constitution and federal law.

The FCC regulations, known as the "fairness doctrine," were found constitutional in June by the U.S. Circuit Court here. The Supreme Court's decision to review that ruling came on an appeal by Red Lion Broadcasting Co., Inc., operator of WGBA-TV in Red Lion, Pa.

It was decided that, because the city recently annexed certain outlying rural areas, some confusion might arise among voters in these areas as to where they would vote.

Merchant Ship
Slams Bridge

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A coal-laden merchant ship slipped anchor in high seas late Sunday night and slammed into the Chesapeake Bay bridge-tunnel, causing extensive damage to a portion of the 17-mile-long structure.

The Coast Guard said the 497-foot converted Liberty Ship Mohawk rammed the west side of the bridge-tunnel about three miles offshore and then bumped along the structure until it came to a stop about one-half mile from shore.

The ship was unmanned at the time of the collision, the Coast Guard said, and no injuries were reported.

The extent of structural damage to either the bridge-tunnel or the Mohawk was not immediately determined but bridge-tunnel officials said the damage was greater to the span than in two previous encounters with errant ships, one of which caused damages of more than $200,000.

Writer's Love Song Tough And Tender

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — John Steinbeck's love song to his country and his countrymen, by turns tough and tender, harsh and sentimental, was set to pictures by NBC Sunday night. It proved to be an unusual and effective treatment.

The Steinbeck book "America and Americans" was the foundation for the visual material that repeatedly caught the kaleidoscopic mood, heightening and driving home his meaning.

HECTIC PACE

Henry Fonda read excerpts from the book that grew out of what the author called a "passionate love" for both country and people. It touched upon the bad things and, for a change, the good. It concluded with the author's fierce expression of great hope for the future, rooted in the unique qualities he finds in our people.

We saw the glories of our natural resources, from the redwoods to the Grand Canyon, and we heard Steinbeck condemn man's pollution of air and water. We saw men at work, children at play, busy cities and peaceful countryside. And we also saw some of the uglier sights, suggesting our hectic pace and excesses, our treatment of minorities.

OLD CLIPS
The most unusual aspect of the hour was that it reversed the normal television procedure by matching the pictures to the words.

To underline the writer's points, the program used everything from old newsreel clips dating to the days of Theodore Roosevelt to movie clips and still pictures and even tricks like slow motion and fast motion.

Occasionally, it seemed, the selections chosen for reading leaned a bit too heavily on one or another unhappy portion of our national experience and touched too lightly on others. Sometimes, too, the use of photographic tricks was self-conscious and heavy handed.

But it was an interesting and rewarding hour.

Earlier, Tennessee Ernie Ford had his special hour on

ITU President
Brown To Retire

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Elmer Brown, president of the International Typographical Union, announced Saturday he will retire next July 1.

Brown began his career with the union 40 years ago in Florida. He was elected vice president of New York Typographical Union No. 6 in 1944 and was chosen for the presidency in 1958.

An announcement from union headquarters here advised the ITU's 123,000 members of Brown's decision to retire and listed two candidates for international president.

They are John Pilch, presently a first vice president and described as a member of the Progressive Party from Chicago, and C. Robert Powers, a member of the Independent Party from Los Angeles.

No date for an election was announced.

CBS, an easygoing variety hour with a lot of singing, a couple of effective production numbers, some low-key humor and, curiously, a couple of quite unnecessary excursions into earthy humor.

TV TREATS

The presence of the star was just about the only thing that made the show a "special" instead of just another variety show. Currently, guest stars seem to consist of performers who are seen weekly on their own shows—as are Ford's guests, Andy Griffith and Danny Thomas—or are steady travelers around the TV variety circuit—as are the Supremes, also on his show.

The next three days hold a number of viewing treats. There are tonight's two-hour production of Shaw's "St. Joan" on NBC-9-11 EST; Wednesday night's original drama, "Dear Friends" by Reginald Rose on CBS-9-11; and Jack Paar's NBC special-9-10—an unfortunate conflict on the same night.

Cops, Weatherman Spoil Ice Skating

DALLAS (AP) — Police and the weatherman spoiled hopes of youngsters in a Dallas area of having their own ice skating rink recently.

Police said scores of fire hydrants were turned on by the young people hoping the water would turn into ice during a predicted freeze. Police kept shutting off the hydrants. And the temperature never dropped to freezing, anyway.

Dear Abby

Evidence In The Brush

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an executive who must make occasional business trips. I have been kidded quite a bit lately about his new red-headed secretary. She's Australian, around 30, supposedly very pretty and married, which may or may not mean anything.

Anyway, my husband recently returned from an out-of-town business trip and when I unpacked his things, as I always do, I found a red hair in his hairbrush. I am keeping it as "evidence" in case I need it.

Have you any ideas on how I can get a hair out of his secretary's head without her knowing it? I would like to send both hairs to a chemist to determine whether they are from the same head. My husband's hair (what there is left of it) is decidedly gray. Thank you.

SUSPICIOUS IN SYRACUSE

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: The obvious solution would be for you to engage the red-head in a hair-pulling contest. But I wouldn't recommend it. (I hear the "Aussies" are excellent fighters.) Why not confront your husband with the "evidence." Don't give him the brush. Just ask him to explain it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that concerns not only me, but all the other kids who ride my bus. It is my bus driver, a woman. First of all she drives a little too fast, and second, when she has to put on her brakes because the car in front of her puts on his brakes, she waits until she is about a foot away from the car she is trying not to hit.

these things without hurting her feelings because she is really a very nice lady? I am surprised we didn't have an accident yet, but some of the kids have black and blue marks all over from where she slammed on her brakes and everybody went flying. Thank you. ELIZABETH
DEAR ELIZABETH: First, tell the woman bus driver what you've told me. If that doesn't slow her up, tell your mother.

DEAR ABBY: For reasons which you will understand when you read this letter, I cannot ask anyone I know to help me with this problem. You are my last hope, so don't let me down, Abby. I want to get a Social Security card, but I understand to get one I have to present my birth certificate.

Here's my problem: I am an illegitimate child and I don't have a birth certificate.

Worse yet, there is a question as to who my father was. My mother says one thing, and my relatives say something else. (To be truthful with you, I don't think my mother knows for sure.)

Anyway, I was told that the birth certificates of illegitimate children are locked up somewhere, and it would take an act of Congress to get one out. So what do you suggest I do now?

MANKATO READER

DEAR READER: You don't need your birth certificate to get a Social Security card. Laws differ from state to state, but in your case information concerning illegitimate births may be obtained only by a court order.

CAPTURED IN BATON ROUGE

Hippie Faces Teen Murder Raps

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A hippie who turned 21 papers and Florida officials said he was arrested in the double murder of two teenagers desk of Louisiana Gov. John McKeithen today.

The hippie, Kit Armin Hayden, who dangles a single ring from his ear, was met by five policemen as he got off a bus that pulled into Baton Rouge. He was charged with being a fugitive from justice from Florida, where he and another hippie are charged with the first degree murders of two teenagers.

RING IN EAR

Hayden told investigators he last saw Garrett at 10 a.m. Friday when they parted company in Nashville, Tenn., Warren said.

The 21-year-old, who spent 30 days in jail this fall on a narcotics conviction, told investigators he and Garrett got a ride as far as Nashville from a bald-headed man with a child in the car, Warren said.

BODIES DUMPED

The bodies, dumped alongside US 1 about 15 miles north of Daytona Beach, just where the scenic highway turns inland, were found Wednesday by a passerby. They were shot earlier Wednesday, doctors said.

Howard County's First Hard Freeze Recorded

Howard County's long delayed first hard freeze of the 1967 fall season struck Saturday night and Sunday morning.

The temperature fell to below freezing at 11 p.m. Saturday. By early Sunday morning it had fallen to an icy 23 degrees and even at 8 a.m. the temperature was still 24. The mercury did not get back to above freezing until after 9 a.m.

This frost brought the first ice of the autumn. It also blackened the leaves on shrubs and plants and probably activated general defoliation of the county's cotton fields.

COLD DRIZZLE

The low reading scored here was apparently general over the county and farmers said the way will soon be open to harvest what cotton there is to be handled.

Sunday was not too cold and the high for the day was 57. Last night the low was 41 degrees and there was a light rainfall which began around 6 a.m. Monday.

The heavy overcast continued in the forenoon and the drizzle appeared to be picking up a little tempo at 10 a.m.

State Atty. Dan Warren said two investigators flew to Baton

Dorothy Curtis Hull, 707 Scurry, and Juan Manuel Flores, 4215 Parkway, were in an accident at Third and Gregg Sunday evening.

Vandals, Tire Slasher Sought

Police today are investigating two acts of vandalism and one theft.

A Devotional For The Day

Thus says the Lord: "... I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore I have continued my faithfulness to you. (Jeremiah 31:2-3, RSV)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, deliver us from doubting Thy love when we suffer affliction or defeat. Increase our faith and uphold us by the faithfulness of Thy love. Be our rock and fortress all the days of our life. In the Master's name. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

An Unsound Attitude

The wish being father of the thought, the Boeing Co. has undertaken an effort to make the sonic boom popular. That boom will certainly have to be made popular if Boeing's supersonic transport plane is to fly across the continental United States at its most efficient speed.

The company has issued a brochure labeling the sonic boom "a 20th century sound." A company official is quoted as expressing confidence, in his words, that "the overwhelming majority" of the people would learn to live with the sonic boom.

This vision of a Dr. Strangelove in the realm of sound pollution is at best a highly optimistic one. A 50-mile-wide carpet of sonic booms following in the wake of a plane traveling 1,800 miles an hour at 70,000 feet is not to be dismissed lightly.

The sound, followed by the probable disintegration of crockery, the racking sound of awakened babies bawling, may require something just a bit more persuasive than words to justify.

We have learned in a fashion to live with the atomic bomb, if not to love it. But the only reason we can live with the bomb is because it hasn't yet gone off in anger. But we may not learn to live with the daily sound of sonic booms. Unless the people in the boom's path are resettled in underground homes, there is going to be a comparable sound in Congress, the cumulative outcry of outraged constituents. Members of Congress who yearn for re-election will not ignore that cry.

Utmost Caution

There is an ominous hint of further escalation of the war in Vietnam in a New York Times dispatch stating that certain military officials fear that the Cambodian port of Sihanoukville may become a major inlet of arms and ammunition for Communist forces fighting in South Vietnam.

This may, of course, be nothing more than an inspired rumor. Yet the quagmire of Vietnam would be as nothing to entering the quicksand of Cambodia, well removed from any secure bases of operation.

Sihanoukville, on the Gulf of Siam, is more than 300 miles from the Thailand-Cambodian-South Vietnamese border where supplies presumably would be delivered. The problem of supply would be much greater than along the established supply lines out of Haiphong and Hanoi. Great rivers and forbidding jungle bar the way. Supplies could be delivered, perhaps, but the effort needed would be tremendous.

In any event, it is difficult to rationalize the fear of Sihanoukville as a port of supply for the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong. The fear contrasts sharply with the recent testimony of Robert McNamara as defense secretary. In testimony before a congressional committee McNamara said that only about 100 tons of supplies a day are needed by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam. He said that even the destruction of Hanoi and the port of Haiphong would not prevent the movement of 100 tons a day into the South. He noted, for instance, that bicycles were often used to move up to 400 pounds of supplies each.

An attempt to extend the war to Cambodia at this time should be subjected to penetrating study and the greatest of caution in view of the potential consequences as against positive results.

John Cunniff The Negative Income Tax

NEW YORK (AP) — The concept of a negative income tax, an idea that has floated for years in the sometimes gaseous academic atmosphere, seems once again to have drifted into the world of very practical considerations.

The latest to advocate such a tax, which would aid the poor and substitute for many welfare programs, is also the first major business executive to do so independently. He is Arjay Miller, president of Ford Motor Co.

NEGATIVE income tax plans vary, but generally they set an earnings base below which families receive federal money to bring their living conditions up to a standard, and over which they must pay a tax.

The tax structure, in other words, would be made to do much of the work now handled by many welfare plans. Like a thermometer, it would concern itself with degrees below zero, down into the no-income areas.

SINCE SUCH plans were first suggested early in the 1960s a great amount of research has clarified, refined, exposed and often supported their advocates. The negative tax plans have been winning followers.

Prof. Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago, who was Barry Goldwater's economic adviser as well, is generally credited with first publicly defining and publicizing the concept.

Public interest and discussion grew as the idea was seen as a possibly simple and efficient remedy to the hodgepodge of welfare payments.

THIS DISCUSSION, which includes the position that a negative income tax is socialist, heated up considerably early last year with reports that a blue ribbon commission recommended to President Johnson that every American family be guaranteed a minimum annual income.

The riots of the past two summers undoubtedly have hastened and intensified the consideration of poverty and jobs. It is perhaps no accident that business advocacy, the next evolutionary step, should begin with one of the largest employers in Detroit, the most riot damaged city in the nation.

THE MOST commonly stated criticism so far is that a dose of any sort destroys initiative.

A major problem is to program incentives into the concept. How, for example, do you encourage an individual to cross the line into the tax paying area when he need pay no tax — gets paid in fact — if he remains poor poor?

Even before such problems are worked out, the next step in the evolution could very well come next year, when the negative income tax or its cousin the guaranteed annual wage could very well reach the stage of political advocacy.

Billy Graham

As you know, the Bible teaches "temperance in all things." Personally, I believe this applies to religion too. Christianity is often hurt by extremists, and I believe we ought to be temperate in our faith, as well as other things.

R. D.

The word "temperate" in the Bible is always coupled with "carnal, or fleshly things—things that, if used in the extreme, could be harmful. Restraint should be practiced in eating, lest we "make our bellies our God," and become gluttons, for example.

But nowhere does the Bible imply that we should be "temperate" in prayer. Temperate in faith, and temperate in our love for God. In fact, we are exhorted to be "fervent in prayer," and Jesus said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul, mind and strength."

Our trouble today is: we are too temperate and tepid in our faith, and our service to God. We are more in danger of dry rot than we are of fanaticism. Luke-warmness in our spiritual life, the Bible says, is repugnant to God. In Revelation it says to a half-hearted church: "Because thou art lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spue thee out of my mouth."

No temperance is required in Christian virtues. We cannot be intertemperate, honest, intertemperate in our love, intertemperate in our devotion to Christ. In fact, the early Christians were accused of being "beside themselves." The world will never be won by a half-hearted faith.

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Five thousand older residents of the town of Hempstead are eligible for store discounts and other benefits under a plan established by the Older Americans Advisory and Action Committee.

This many residents 65 or more years old have been issued identity cards which entitle them to lower prices at 125 stores, lower fees at town and country parks, and half fare on one bus line.

The plan was set up by the Hempstead town board and presiding officer two years ago.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: Scientists are puzzled by the increasing longevity gap between women and men. In 1920 women lived an average of only a year longer than men. Today their life expectancy is seven years greater than that of men — 73.5 to 66.5.

ON A LESS mortal level, another thing science can't yet explain is why men tend to lose hair from the top of their head as they age but grow more hair in their ears and nostrils. It really doesn't seem to make much sense, does it?

But it is encouraging to know that, even in this most murderous of centuries, more people are living longer. Of America's 200 million people, 1,124,000 are over 85.

IT'S THE ordinary man making an ordinary salary who keeps Uncle Sam living in the style in which he seems to want to become accustomed. To Your Good Health Wants To Know About Electroshock Treatment

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell me about electroshock treatments that doctors have some people take.

Are they dangerous? I have been told that people have something on their minds that worries them for a long time. What would happen to a person with a good education?

Do they consider a person insane when these treatments are advised? — Mrs. R. W.

Electroshock (or electroconvulsant therapy), called ECT, has been in use by psychiatrists for about 30 years.

Frankly, not much is known about how it actually accomplishes things, yet it does.

In the earlier years the danger consisted of muscle sprains and sometimes even a broken bone because of the muscular convulsions that accompanied the electroshock. Since then improved equipment and techniques have controlled that danger substantially, and I would have to reply "no" to your question of whether it is "dangerous" now.

The benefits sought with this treatment involve the mind and emotions, not the body.

We simply do not know a great many things about how the brain and emotions behave, but the best explanation I have heard of the usefulness of ECT is that in some way it breaks up the patterns, the emotional "cramps" if you want to call it that.

For example, a person nurses some fear, worry or anxiety, and in time it becomes such a habit that even the faintest reference to a touchy subject throws the person into deep and usually unreasoning fear.

Breaking up these emotional patterns with ECT often lets a person go back to a more rational outlook on life; the anxiety no longer paralyzes his thinking.

Another very valuable use of ECT is in treating severe emotional depression. Again, it presumably works by breaking up emotional patterns.

Your question of whether treatments are advised only when a person is "insane" is difficult to answer because "insane" really is a very vague word.

We certainly would not call a person "insane" because he is severely depressed. Yet ECT is sometimes the best treatment for that. It depends, of course, on the individual case.

If, instead of using the term "insane," you will think of emotional illness, you will have a clearer understanding. An unduly nervous person has an emotional problem; the person with schizophrenia who has to be hospitalized also has an emotional problem, but a far more severe one.

ECT may be helpful in less severe cases as well as the severe ones which are inexactly called "insanity."

ECT does not destroy all memory; it does not mean that an educated person will lose his intellectual abilities. The goal isn't forgetfulness, but rather the breaking up of painful mental — or emotional — associations. Emotional "cramps."

To learn the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms; treatment; how to speed recovery — write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald for his booklet, "The Pesky Prostate," enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim It Happens At Christmastime

You can count on it happening around Christmastime: You'll get several greeting cards from friends in other towns who don't bother to put return addresses on them.

The unfriendliest people on the block will put up the most lavish decorations.

Your kids will wonder aloud if the family which doesn't serve turkey Christmas Day is underprivileged.

NO MATTER how well you check your list of people you send cards to, several will arrive from people you either overlooked or do not consider close enough with which to bother.

There'll always be a few lights on the Yule tree that won't light up.

Some street or store Santa will cause a child to break into tears.

Those people who can be found studying the merchandise at the and sex counters are on the verge of investing in presents for middle-aged men — you can count on it.

YOU'LL WONDER if some of the people who put up the most elaborate outside decorations are meeting their bills.

The fellow who complains about the fact that the spirit of Christmas has been lost in its commercial aspects will also gripe about the stinginess of people who send him gifts.

An in-law or a blood relative who lavishes a gift upon a person you regard as utterly spoiled and undeserving will equate matters by bestowing upon you something you regard as completely worthless.

YOU'LL RUN face to face with an old friend manning a charity kettle moments after you have dropped your gratuities in another spot — and you'll feel like explaining the fact to him.

You'll buy more toys which you yourself will have to assemble, then start abusing the name of the manufacturers and the store where you bought them — once you tackle the chore.

IF YOU chance to give a recording to a student, chances are good he already has it in his collection.

A fellow who has wondered all year where he stands with a girl will find out when he gives her an expensive gift and she retaliates with a box of handkerchiefs and a carefully worded "thank you" note.

Holmes Alexander McNamara's Parting Gift: F-111 Performance

WASHINGTON — "The guys who bad-mouth this airplane," said a test-pilot at Nellis Air Force Base near Las Vegas, "are the guys who never got in the cockpit."

He was defending (which is big news!) the Air Force version of the F-111A, an offspring of Secretary McNamara's storm-tossed TFX.

IN AN article for publication Dec. 10, Air Force and Space Digest will be the first anti-McNamara source to speak well of the F-111. Claude Witze, the magazine's senior editor, wrote the piece after extensive interviewing of pilots, maintenance men and Air Force brass. If the news is as good as it reads in black-sheet, the soon-to-be-replaced Defense Secretary may be able to crack a small parting smile of partial justification for these reasons:

Although the U.S. hasn't yet got a "communally" plane (one usable by Air Force and Navy alike), we may have in 1968 a fighter-bomber to shorten the Vietnam war.

Unless there are fresh disasters, we will certainly have a new plane with a remarkable safety record.

AND UNTIL the Russians prove him wrong, McNamara can claim administrative paternity for the best fighter-bomber in the world, and the only thing of its kind.

Advance reports on the F-111 bear out these assertions, and more. The new supersonic plane, automatically piloted and positioned, can go into a target so close to the terrain that enemy flak and fighters can't find it. Its test - performance seems to preclude such travesties as the instance when we sent out 160 sorties and lost 16 planes to destroy one bridge in Vietnam.

THE F-111 in its practice runs is more accurate than its bomb load. Iron bombs are carried in pylons under the wings and dropped by gravitation, a very old-fashioned method. But the Defense Department has just announced the advent in Vietnam of Walleye, a bomb with a television eye that provides guidance in daylight and good weather. The Air Proving Ground Center at Eglin Air Force Base is urgently working to send the F-111A into battle with "terminal guidance" that will steer bombs to the target under all weather conditions.

Despite the bitter arguments between McNamara and his critics, the aircraft itself has had a relatively safe passage into operational production. During the first 5,000 hours of test flying, only two F-111A's and only one F-111B have had what the Air Force lists as "serious accidents." In contrast, using the same time-frame, the F-101 had 11 disasters, the F-104 had 14, and no other comparable jet-fighter has had less than six.

THE F-111 differs from any other known weapons system in that its performance very nearly makes it a manned missile that is guided, recoverable and immensely versatile. No other military aircraft has the aviation - electronics (avionics) to take it to a point in air-space and release its load. Its powerful afterburner gives it an unusual get-away velocity. The F-111 recently flew 2,900 miles to the Paris airshow and had a fuel for two hour flying left over. It also flew the 1,947 miles from Fort Worth to Nellis at less than 1,000 feet without its pilot touching the controls. It also dove from 20,000 feet, with a started Air Force general as passenger, to 50 feet and then continued its flight at terrain level, without a touch of manual control.

The test-pilots at Nellis, all veterans of Korea and Vietnam airbattles, agree that the plane has no equal. Greater accuracy, fewer sorties and lower losses are the Air Force expectations for '68.

David Lawrence The Generals Talk

WASHINGTON — It isn't often in world history that the details of military strategy become the subject of public discussion during a war.

For, with the change in the post of the secretary of defense, the North Vietnamese as well as the Soviets and Red Chinese may learn that the military minds here will have more to say in the future than heretofore about how the war in Vietnam is to be fought.

WHETHER BY coincidence or by design, former President Eisenhower — Supreme Commander of Allied Forces in Europe during World War II — and General Omar Bradley, his right-hand man, happened to appear on television last week to discuss the Vietnam war and the strategy of waging it. This is a most surprising development and certainly could not have taken place without the knowledge of the administration, which presumably could have objected if it so desired.

WHAT GENERALS EISENHOWER and Bradley recommended is a strategy not yet employed in Vietnam — namely, to engage in "hot pursuit" of planes or ground forces to their bases, wherever they might be. It is significant that General Earl G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, promptly announced that "there is no intention or plan to change the character of the Vietnam war." He conceded, however, that the Joint Chiefs have "studied" steps that would have involved invading North Vietnam or the northern portion of the demilitarized zone.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON probably knows all about the reasons for the public dialogue as well as for the subsequent soft-pedaling by the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of any "escalation" plan in the immediate future. The key, however, appears to be something former President Eisenhower said in his television interview. He declared:

"If you're chasing some people and they just step over into Cambodia or Laos... I'd go at 'em as long as they'd come in there in the first place. And in this same way, in the air — if an airplane attacked me, and we wanted to chase him, I'd go in wherever his base was... including China...."

On the subject of demands for peace talks, General Bradley said:

"I SOMETIMES THINK we talk too much about trying to get them to the negotiating table. I think we should say that once, and then shut up, because they take it as a sign of weakness. They think we're in a bad way. Intelligence indicates that's what's keeping 'em going."

General Eisenhower echoed the thinking of a large number of people in America when he said:

"THE FIRST PRINCIPLE of war is to win quickly because it's the time that you're engaged in the thing that brings about the cost and particularly in blood as well as treasure. And I think that if you're going to appeal to force... Then get all the force you can as quickly as you can."

The television interview, which was conducted by CBS correspondent Harry Reasoner, turned at one point to the question of whether Red China or the Soviet Union might enter the Vietnam war directly. General Eisenhower commented:

"I DISCOUNT any attempt of either Russia or China coming into this war on a major basis. I discount it because Communists operate on the basis of their own plans — whether they be aggressive or, for the moment, they want to be quiescent — whatever. They do not do this by reaction, or some firm action they see elsewhere."

Dangerous Job

DENVER (AP) — A process server, Calvin Smith, went to a stockyards auction to serve a complaint and became an unwilling bidder for an Angus calf.

When Smith pointed his finger at the man he wanted to hand the subpoena, the auctioneer called, "I'm bid $400." But Smith didn't have to buy the calf — someone else bid $500.

Demo Delegates Support McCarthy For Nomination

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy has gained the support of the Conference of Concerned Democrats in his bid to wrest the Democratic presidential nomination from President Johnson.

Between 450 and 500 persons from 42 states closed a two-day conference Sunday by shouting their endorsement of McCarthy for the 1968 nomination and unanimously approving a resolution praising the Minnesota lawmaker's "dynamic leadership."

FOUR PRIMARIES

The conference was aimed at finding an alternative to President Johnson's Vietnam policy. The resolution favoring McCarthy said in part: "McCarthy is a statesman who possesses the qualities of courage, leadership, humility and vision needed to instill faith in our government."

McCarthy announced Thursday he would be a candidate in four and possibly more state presidential primaries. During a conference session Saturday he said he will take part in the Massachusetts primary.

The primaries named Thursday were those in Wisconsin, Nebraska, Oregon and California.

'MESSAGE OF FEAR'

In an address to the organization Saturday, McCarthy assailed the Johnson leadership for delivering a "message of apprehension, a message of fear" on the war in Vietnam.

He was asked by a delegate what relationship his campaign had with the activities of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

McCarthy replied: "There's no conspiracy, collusion or common plan between us. What he will do is up to him. Somebody had to make the test and now that we've made it we are going to pursue it."

Gerald Hill, a conference chairman and president of the California Democratic Council, expressed the belief that the conference's stand on Johnson and McCarthy represented a majority view of the American people.

Hill introduced the resolution endorsing McCarthy. It was seconded by Karl Andersson of Eau Claire, Wis., Leonard Robins of St. Louis Park, Minn., and Theodore Wise of New York City.

Before the statement of position was voted upon, Zolton Ferency, who resigned as state Democratic chairman of Michigan in protest of President Johnson's Vietnam policy, addressed the group.

He backed McCarthy but also told the delegates that "there is still time with McCarthy or some other candidate next year" to achieve victory.

The state delegations included Democrats holding positions on the local level. The only national lawmaker besides McCarthy who took part in the conference was Rep. Don Edwards of California, former national chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action. Some campus groups were represented.

Yanks Slated To Leave Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — A planeload of American citizens and their Cuban relatives is scheduled to leave Cuba Tuesday, but a reliable source who reported this could not say whether the flight means resumption of the repatriation airlift.

The source said a Mexican airliner is due in Havana Tuesday to take about 80 American citizens and their Cuban relatives to Mexico. One source said the chance of more such flights might depend on the repatriates refraining from statements attacking Fidel Castro's regime after they reach the United States.

About 900 American citizens — longtime residents of Cuba — and some 2,000 of their relatives have been trying for several years to leave Cuba, but the Castro government has refused to let them go.

They are not eligible for the daily flights, which take about 3,700 Cuban citizens a month from the beach resort of Varadero to Miami. The government has never said why it won't let the Americans and their relatives leave.

Gov. Connally Gains Young Charolais Bull

NEVERS, France (AP) — Gov. John B. Connally of Texas, in France to publicize HemisFair '68 in San Antonio, Sunday was presented with a young Charolais bull named Casimir.

Connally, a guest of Charles de Chambrun, head of the French pavilion at HemisFair '68, traveled from Paris on a special lightweight diesel train to Nevers, 150 miles south of Paris.

Emile Maurice, president of the International Federation of Charolais Raisers, and his son, Francis Maurice, president of the Charolais herd book, were among those greeting Connally at the Nevers railroad station.

Princess Marie-Dorothee de Croÿ, who has visited Texas twice in recent years, gave a luncheon at the Chateau d'Azy for the governor. A quarter of a Charolais was roasted and served for the luncheon.

Prince Leopold de Croÿ came from Belgium to attend the luncheon.

A show of 70 top-flight cattle was displayed for Connally at the Chateau d'Azy.

This is the heart of the Charolais cattle country and it was near the village of Chevenon, on Dessauy spread, that the governor was presented with the young Charolais bull.

Texas Baptists To Fight Gaming

DALLAS (AP) — The Baptist General Convention of Texas will launch a campaign to oppose a May 4 referendum on local option pari-mutuel betting.

The convention has a $19,500 fund to fight gambling through its public information services.

Directing the drive will be Phil Strickland, Fort Worth attorney, who will work fulltime in the Dallas headquarters gathering data on gambling.

A LOVELIER YOU

Crinkled Lips Make Lovelies Look Older

By MARY SUE MILLER

A lovely writes: My lips are crinkled like crepe paper. lipstick seems to emphasize the condition. The color runs along the creases and then spills over onto my skin. If there is a solution I would appreciate knowing it.

The answer: Many women, and some girls, are plagued by a crepey lip complexion. Problems with lipstick just naturally follow. The solution takes the form of improved lip care and lipstick application:

1. Keep the lips lubricated and moisturized 24 hours a day. This is achieved by wearing very creamy moisturized lipstick during your waking hours and by applying a colorless moisturized lip emollient to well-cleaned lips at bedtime.

2. Firm up the muscles around the lips via this routine. Puff the mouth with air. Now press the air under the upper lip, then the lower lip. Repeat 10 times slowly, being careful not to pucker the lips or surrounding skin. If puckers occur, gently press the index fingers to the ends of the upper lip.

3. Become expert in this basic lipstick application: On cleansed lips smooth a bit of lip emollient and blot with tissue. Using cotton swab outline the lips with face powder and blend to infinity. Then apply color within the powdered line.

4. Keep the upper lip fuzz-free. Fuzz accounts for much lipstick smudge.

CREPEY THROAT

To firm and uplift sagging facial muscles and flesh, use my four-way method. It works wonders through corrective exercise, posture, skin care and make-up. Procedures are detailed in the leaflet, "Banish Crepey Throat & Chin." For your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing 10 cents in coin and a large self-addressed stamped envelope.
