WARM-UP

Sun Chasing Away Heavy Snow Cover

The sun came back to Howard County Thursday and rapidly began erasing the snow which had fallen Tuesday and Tuesday night. The temperature was still chilly early Thursday, but much warmer than early hours of Tuesday and Wednesday.

Yesterday's drizzle added an additional one-tenth inch of moisture to the year's accumulation. The total is now 2.78 inches, of which 1.26 has fallen in February. The year's total is 1.84 ahead of the average rainfall for the first six weeks in the 67 years the record has been maintained.

Schools which had been closed down Wednesday resumed classes today. Slippery streets were becoming slushy and watery instead of icy and dangerous.

Temperature Wednesday never got above freezing. High was 31 degrees. Early this morning, the low was 26 degrees.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies today, tonight and Friday with warm afternoons and cold nights. No additional precipitation is promised.

Second Bank Robbed

HOUSTON (AP) — A gunman robbed the American Bank & Trust Co. today and escaped with $23,000 while holding a woman employee as a hostage. It was the second Houston bank robbery in two days.

Mrs. Irene Heine, 43, was released unharmed two blocks from the bank and her automobile that was used as the escape vehicle was found another two blocks from the bank.

Police said the thug evidently knew exactly what he was doing in that the robbery was timed to perfection just after a timeclock had opened the vault.

Investigator Tommy Carr said Mrs. Heine, a bookkeeper, arrived at the bank after three other women employees.

The gunman followed Mrs. Heine into the bank and ordered the other women to remain where they were while he forced Mrs. Heine into the vault.

"The man scooped currency into a manila folder and ordered Mrs. Heine ahead of him as he went out the door," Carr said.

Mrs. Heine said the man ordered her at gunpoint into her own car and drove two blocks west. He then pushed her out and continued west. Minutes later the car was found abandoned.

Police are seeking two men who robbed the Riverside National Bank of $8,952 Wednesday.

Witnesses said the thugs, both about 25, escaped in a car after the robbery Wednesday afternoon.

The FBI first said $14,000 was taken in the robbery but an agency spokesman said a later audit showed the amount was $8,952.

Hurt At Greenville

Bill J. Leugoud, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Leugoud, 3233 Drexel, is in a Greenville hospital with a broken leg, a broken wrist, and other injuries as result of a car-school bus collision Wednesday afternoon. The accident occurred on a rain-slick Greenville street about 4 p.m.

Young Leugoud is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is currently a student at North Texas University.

His relatives here said they had telephoned the hospital in Greenville and the doctor told them that Leugoud was not believed to have suffered any internal injuries. His condition was described as satisfactory.

Reports said that three of 60 boys and girls on the school bus, all students in the Greenville schools, were treated and released from the hospital. They were identified as Jeanie Allen, 15, Kathy Wallis, 12, and John Taylor, 14.

C-C Man Wounded

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Cpl. John Moreno, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Moreno, Colorado City, was wounded Feb. 6 in the battle for Hue in Vietnam and was flown to the Carswell AFB Hospital in Fort Worth, Feb. 13. He was a member of the Fifth Marine Division and had been in Vietnam for about three months. He was wounded twice before.

Draft Call Up

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas draft boards were asked today to furnish in March the largest monthly quota of men for the armed forces that has been asked in 17 months.

Col. Morris Schwartz, state director, said boards will be asked to provide 1,948 men in March, all for the Army, compared to 1,165 in February and 1,659 in January.

Draft boards also will be asked to give 4,200 other men preinduction examinations in March to fill future draft calls.

Marine Jets Bomb Remnant Red Force

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marine jets bombed the massive brownstone walls of Hue's Citadel for the first time today and American destroyers kept up an offshore bombardment of rockets in the ancient city where North Vietnamese remnants held out for a 16th day.

The Marine fighter-bombers, which had heretofore limited their attacks to rockets, napalm and tear gas, started using 250, 500 and 750-pound bombs in the accelerated land, sea and air attack against the Communist die-hards.

U.S. destroyers fired five-inch shells into Hue in a continuation of a naval bombardment that spokesmen said was begun several days ago to augment the fire of land-based artillery. Hue is near the coast and well within the range of the destroyer guns.

A suspicious number of men of military age among refugees seeking to flee from the north side area of the fighting to the comparative safety of the south side led South Vietnamese soldiers to cut an escape route. Allied authorities believe Viet Cong were choosing this means to get away.

The soldiers towed off a pontoon bridge section that was the one avenue of movement across the Perfume River dividing the city.

Inside the Citadel, U.S. Marines advanced about 200 yards along the walls behind the exploding shells and bombs.

Associated Press correspondent Lewis M. Simons reported South Vietnamese forces followed the same procedure along other stretches of the walls.

Enemy forces were reported still holding the old palace grounds and other areas in the middle of the two-square-mile compound as well as two pockets on the perimeter.

Over North Vietnam, two more U.S. planes were lost Wednesday as American warplanes hit the Hanoi heartland with the heaviest strikes in six weeks. U.S. pilots said they pounded the vital Canal des Rapides bridge just outside Hanoi and two airfields with 3,000-pound bombs and knocked out four missile sites in the protective ring around the Communist capital.

The United States has now announced the loss of 790 American combat planes in the three years of air war against North Vietnam.

Another American plane which the Pentagon said was unarmored—was shot down by Red Chinese over China's Hainan Island Tuesday night, and the U.S. Command reported earlier that American pilots shot down two Communist MIGs Wednesday northwest of Hanoi.

Other U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers joined American ground troops, army helicopter gunships and artillery 13 miles northwest of Saigon in a massive attack on a Communist force caught in the open this morning. A sweep of the area after the battle produced 127 enemy bodies, the U.S. Command reported.

In Hue, U.S. and South Vietnamese pilots unleashed bombs, rockets and napalm on sections of the old walled Citadel where the remnants of a North Vietnamese regiment stubbornly held out. Marine officers said the pilots were bombing with "discretion," trying to avoid historical and architectural treasures.

South Vietnamese soldiers towed away the last floating span of a pontoon bridge across the Perfume River, reducing the flow of refugees from the Citadel side of the river because enemy troops were believed among the crossings.

U.S. troops had noted "a lot of what you call draft age men coming across as refugees," said Maj. Joseph M. Gratto, 31, of Canton, N.Y., intelligence officer of the 5th Marine Regiment. He said that with the pounding U.S. warplanes have been dealing the Communists, "we think some of them are trying to get out."

RUSK SAYS

No Basis Yet To Halt Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest round of peace probing between the United States and North Vietnam has not produced any basis for halting the bombing of the North and opening peace talks.

But Secretary of State Dean Rusk, in reporting this Wednesday, declared the United States remains interested "in a serious move toward peace when Hanoi comes to the conclusion that it is ready to move in that direction."

INTENSE ACTIVITY
Rusk issued a statement after reports from Paris and Rome of intense diplomatic activity on the peace front involving U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant and Foreign Minister Amintore Fanfani of Italy. Both have talked with North Vietnamese representatives.

U. Thant spent 75 minutes in Paris Wednesday with Mai Van Vo, chief North Vietnamese representative there. News dispatches reported he left the meeting convinced North Vietnamese and U.S. positions are too far apart to provide hope for any early peace conference.

Fanfani met early this month with two Hanoi representatives who arrived in Rome Feb. 4 and left Feb. 6, according to an announcement of the Italian Foreign Ministry. A report of his discussions was dispatched to the State Department here immediately after the talks.

The department was also reported to have been informed of Thant's contacts with North Vietnamese officials in the course of a trip that has taken him to Moscow and New Delhi as well as Paris.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey, asked whether Rusk's totally negative report on the probings covered the Thant and Fanfani exploration, replied: "It takes into account everything we know."

ADVANTAGE
"At no time has Hanoi indicated publicly or privately," Rusk said in a statement, "that it will refrain from taking military advantage of any cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam. Nor has it shown any interest in preliminary discussions to arrange a general ceasefire."

FIRE INSURANCE COSTS

Rate Reduction Considered

AUSTIN (AP) — Lower premiums for fire and damage insurance on homes and other buildings are being considered by the state Insurance Board.

The board's rate experts said Wednesday that reduced losses paid by insurance companies indicate policyholders should be paying an average of 3.6 per cent less, statewide, for their coverage.

DECISION DUE
A board decision is expected in about a week. New rates would be effective June 1.

The 3.6 per cent over-all reduction encompasses recommended average cuts of 4.4 per cent for fire insurance, 3 per cent for extended coverage, which includes mostly weather damage—and 3.1 per cent for homeowners policies.

Fire rates are issued on a statewide basis, varying according to amount of coverage, type of construction, use of a building and a city's quality of fire protection and building code.

Extended coverage and homeowners rates are broken down by three territories—seacoast, north-northwest and central—because of differences in weather hazards.

Hurricane Beulah losses will not affect rates until next year.

A group of 10 Northeast Texas counties is rated separately on homeowners and extended coverage because it is being switched from the high-rated north-northwest category to the comparatively lower rated central territory. A board official said the rates are being gradually reduced—this year's recommended homeowners premium cut is 15 per cent—until they coincide with the central territory's premium costs. The counties are Collin, Cook, Delta, Denton, Fannin, Franklin, Grayson, Hopkins, Hunt and Lamar.

The fire insurance reduction is the first since 1962, the extended coverage decrease the first since 1964 and homeowners policy costs are declining for the first time since such policies were first authorized in Texas 11 years ago.

No territory-by-territory figures were available on extended coverage, but homeowners premiums are headed for a decline of 3.1 per cent in the seacoast territory, 1.9 per cent in the central territory and in the north-northwest district by 2.9 per cent.

REDUCTIONS

For a three-year homeowners policy, including fire, liability and weather damage protection, on a $17,000 brick veneer house, typical reductions would be:

Houston (seacoast)—from $284 to $274.

Dallas (central)—from $252 to $247.

Amarillo (north-northwest)—from $431 to $417.

Sherman (10 Northeast Texas counties)—from $345 to $292.

Israeli Jets Strike At Jordan Sites

Both Sides Blame Other For Flare-Up

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli air force jet planes roared low across the Jordan River today to attack Jordanian artillery positions following the shelling of Israeli border settlements, the Israeli army said.

RETALIATORY

The communique said the jets were called in after Jordanian artillery started hammering the Geshur and Beit Yosef collective farms in the Beisan Valley south of the Sea of Galilee.

The army said artillery and tank fire from both sides continued across the river.

The Israeli army said two other border settlements in the Beisan Valley also came under Jordanian guns.

Each side blamed the other for starting the fighting, apparently the most serious in a series of gun duels across the river in recent weeks.

There was no immediate word on casualties.

Israeli spokesmen said the clash began when Jordanian troops lobbed mortar shells at collective farms and that Israeli troops returned the fire and silenced the Arab guns.

A new outbreak then flared to the north, the Israeli army said, reporting a battle involving artillery and tanks.

OPENED FIRE
A Jordanian spokesman in Amman said the Israelis opened fire with medium arms and tank guns against Sheikh Mohammad village and that Israeli reinforcements moved in and began an artillery and mortar barrage.

VANCE RETURNING

SEOUL (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance left for Washington today saying his talks with South Korean leaders had been "good and very useful." South Korean officials expressed general satisfaction, but legislative spokesmen of both the government and opposition parties were critical.

Vance promised the South Koreans "immediate consultations" whenever their security is threatened. But he balked at the demand for a pledge of immediate retaliation.

The official spokesman for the ruling Democratic Republic party said: "It is hard to believe that the contents of the communique would eliminate the people's worries about increased North Korean provocations."

Assemblyman Kim Yung-sam, floor leader of the opposition New Democratic party said: "So little has been achieved that we wonder for what the American presidential envoy came."

Vance and South Korean President Chung Hee Park wound up four days of bargaining sessions with a joint communique which denounced the "increasingly aggressive and violent actions of the North Korean Communists over the past 14 months in violation of the armistice agreement."

The communique said Vance and Park "recognized the need for continuing modernization" of South Korea's armed forces and Seoul's plan to bolster its defenses by arming Korean war veterans.

This indicated that the United States had made some commitment in response to demands for modern arms and equipment, particularly heavy arms. Much of South Korea's arsenal is of World War II vintage.

Vance and Park held their second meeting only 3½ hours after the U.S. envoy had emerged from an all-night session with Foreign Minister Choi Kyu-hah.

PLEDGED
Vance and Park pledged that their governments would consult at once to determine what action should be taken under their mutual defense pact if Communist aggression continued. They also agreed that the U.S. and South Korean defense ministers would meet annually to discuss security problems.

Park and his aides had tried to persuade the United States to commit itself to "immediate retaliatory measures jointly with the Republic of Korea" in the event of a major Red attack.

Winter Relaxes Icy Onslaught

By The Associated Press
Winter showed signs today of relaxing the latest onslaught of snow, ice and chilling rain over most of Texas.

Official warnings for travelers to be on guard against glazed and hazardous highways stayed up through the night, however, across most of the state's broad western reaches and some northern areas.

FREEZING

Rain, often freezing as it fell, continued well into Wednesday night nearly everywhere in the state and there was a little scattered snow late in the day for parts of the white-mantled Panhandle-Plains section.

The overnight icing generally occurred north of a line linking Marshall, San Angelo and the Big Bend country of far West Texas.

Weather-related accidents were blamed for at least seven traffic deaths so far this week.

The driving conditions caused public schools to close in a number of places Wednesday, and officials said some would not reopen for at least another day.

By this morning the moisture had tapered off to light rain or drizzle near the Middle Texas Coast and in extreme East Texas, where temperatures were mostly above freezing.

Snow still blanketed much of the countryside from the Panhandle into the South Plains, with eight inches around Paducah the heaviest cover. Much of the same general area measured two to four inches.

Skies even cleared for a time over Northwest Texas during the night, but clouds and fog returned to much of that section before daylight. It was foggy around such points as Paducah, Big Spring, Midland and Wink.

An overcast covered all the rest of the state this morning.

Moisture amounts before the rainfall slacked ranged up to 1.16 inch at Longview and 1.02 at Tyler in East Texas. Except for .57 at College Station, measurements at other reporting stations were smaller than one-half inch.

The wintry siege held temperatures 20 to 30 degrees below normal for the season at numerous points Wednesday. Afternoon highs ranged from 27 at Childress up to 52 at Brownsville and the mercury failed to climb above freezing nearly everywhere in West Texas.

Readings before dawn today were generally in the 20s from the Panhandle and South Plains southward into the Pecos Valley, with marks in the 30s and to 40s elsewhere.

FORECASTS

Forecasts called for diminishing clouds and a little warming throughout the state by Friday. Another cold night was in prospect for the Panhandle with lows down to 16 degrees. Thermometers were expected to sink into the 20s elsewhere in the northern half of Texas and the 30s farther south.

WHICH PORTIONS OF ANATOMY INTEREST YOUNG?

Justices Eye Obscenity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nine Supreme Court justices, average age 64, are in the process of deciding which portions of the human anatomy are of "morbid interest" to boys and girls.

Although this takes some mind-reading, the task shouldn't be especially difficult. Miniskirts aside, youngsters haven't changed that much over the years.

RACY ITEMS

More difficult will be deciding if such sights are too rich for young blood—and finding a course of action at least five of the nine justices can agree on.

The court's excursion into obscenity law in recent years, while not exactly deft, has made it obvious that virtually any racy material that isn't outright hard-core pornography cannot be kept from adults.

Providing, of course, the publisher doesn't make Ralph Ginzburg's mistake and allow the "leer of the sensualist" to permeate his advertising.

From "Fanny Hill" to "Lust Pool," from girlie magazines like "Swank" and "Sir" to homosexual magazines from Denmark, the court has stayed the censor's hand.

BROAD HINTS

But while so doing, it also has dropped broad hints that it would be receptive to laws designed to keep such material from the young.

For instance, Justice William J. Brennan Jr., in a 1964 ruling, said "We recognize the legitimate and indeed exigent interest of states and localities throughout the nation in preventing the dissemination of material deemed harmful to children."

In fact, Brennan recommended state and local authorities consider laws "aimed specifically at preventing distribution of objectionable material to children."

Chief Justice Earl Warren, in the same case, spoke of material that would be "inoffensive under most circumstances but, at the same time, 'obscene' in the extreme when sold or displayed to children."

And last May, a curious statement appeared in an unsigned decision by the court throwing out a batch of obscenity convictions. In none of the cases, it went, "was there a claim that the statute in question reflected a specific and limited state concern for juveniles."

A New York state law and a Dallas ordinance now before the court reflect this special concern.

The New York law, enacted in 1965, prohibits sale of "harmful" material to boys and girls under 17. And it attempts to set forth precisely the kind of "nudity" and "sexual conduct" that would appeal to an adolescent's "morbid interest."

The Dallas ordinance, enacted the same year, gives a nine-member board of censors authority to classify movies as "not suitable for young persons." This means a youngster under 15 unless accompanied by parents or spouse.

In a little more than two years a total of 580 movies have been so classified. Many are what the trade refers to as the

the First Amendment leaves room for such selective censorship these laws are apt to multiply.

PILOT MISSING

Pentagon Says Raider Strayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says the U.S. Navy A1 Skyraider shot down by Chinese MIGs Tuesday inadvertently strayed into Communist airspace because of navigational difficulties.

There was no immediate word on the fate of the pilot of the slow-flying, propeller-driven rier Coral Sea in the Tonkin Gulf.

It was the ninth reported penetration by U.S. planes of Chinese airspace.

Another Skyraider came within a few miles of Hainan Island only a few days earlier, the Pentagon said, but turned back apparently without incident.

The pilot of a second Skyraider which escaped the MIG attack and fled to Da Nang, South Vietnam, "last saw the other plane in a vertical dive and smoking," the Pentagon said.

Phil G. Goulding, assistant secretary of defense said the two Navy planes were about five miles from China's Hainan Island.

NINTH TIME

Red China, which claims a 12-mile water and airspace territorial limit, accused the United States of war provocations in a Peking Radio broadcast monitored in Tokyo.

"Navy pilots of the People's Liberation Army immediately dealt a heavy blow and shot down one of them and damaged the other," Peking said.

The Pentagon denied several hours later that the second plane had been damaged and said its pilot was unharmed.

The Pentagon said it did not know how many MIGs were involved.

The Skyraiders were on a ferry flight from Cubi Point in the Philippines to the aircraft car-

LBJ's War Strategy Hikes Dissatisfaction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senators who support administration objectives in Asia say public confidence is ebbing in President Johnson's handling of the Vietnam war.

Their assessments paralleled Gallup Poll findings that only 35 per cent of the people it surveyed approve of Johnson's war strategy.

NO END IN SIGHT

Sens. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa., who subscribe to the President's policy of opposing Communist aggression in Southeast Asia, said the people are disturbed because they can see no end to the war.

Byrd, who has called for stepping up the war to a winning pace, told the Senate Tuesday that in talking to more than 500 constituents during a recent tour, "I found deepening concern and increased dissatisfaction with the way the Vietnam war is being conducted."

He said Virginians support the troops sent to fight in Asia and "support our government in time of crisis, but increasingly they question the wisdom and judgment of our leaders."

Byrd called for a reappraisal of policies on the basis of widespread U.S. commitments he said make this country vulnerable in many areas, including Korea and the Middle East.

He said these "dramatize the need for the administration to develop a sense of urgency in bringing the Vietnam war to an honorable and early conclusion, which is not likely to be accomplished without a change in policies and procedures."

FRUSTRATION

Scott told a student audience in Brookings, S.D., the people are frustrated "with an unpopular war to which no one sees an end" and by a "babble of solutions" that seemed likely to solve nothing at all.

Reviewing world problems, he added:

"Wherever on the great globe itself the leaders of the people seem inept and their excuses for errors lack credibility, then the national mood of the country turns to frustration and depression. That is the national mood in the United States today."

Chairman Earle G. Wheeler of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, asked by Capitol Hill newsmen if he felt nuclear weapons might be required to defend Khe Sanh, answered:

"I do not think nuclear weapons will be needed" in defense of the allied base in South Vietnam where a mass Communist attack is believed imminent.

Gen. Wheeler declined to answer questions about circumstances that might require using nuclear weapons. And he wouldn't discuss whether U.S. nuclear weapons were stockpiled in South Vietnam.

Winter Spills Bad Mixture

By The Associated Press

Winter spilled a layer-cake pattern of snow, sleet and rain across the Southern Plains and through the Lower Mississippi Valley today.

The miserable mixture consisted of snow in Kansas; snow, sleet and freezing rain in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Northern Mississippi and Tennessee, and rain along the Gulf Coast.

Bad driving conditions were expected to spread eastward.

Snow flurries doused parts of the Northern states from Minnesota to Northern New England. Snow also was scattered across the Central High Plains and Rockies. A few sprinkles of rain dampened Northern California and Southwestern Oregon.

Temperatures remained on the cold side through most of the country, although generally less severe than in recent days.

AFL-CIO Experts Press Tax Fight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO political strategists plan to urge President Johnson into an open fight against Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., to win enactment of the President's proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

Labor sources believe Johnson income tax bill is dead unless he appeals to the voters over the head of Mills, who is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and a chief congressional opponent of the proposed tax hike.

"Unless pressure is built up in the congressional districts, there isn't going to be a tax bill," said one high AFL-CIO political expert who works closely with Congress and the White House.

"We're going to start giving him hell," the source said of the AFL-CIO's plans to fight Mills in the sense of Johnson's income tax measure.

Asked if he thought Johnson might follow suit with a stiff political attack on Mills, the source said, "we hope he will."

Labor sources think Johnson has been too soft on Mills in trying to work out a compromise on the tax legislation.

The labor leaders will try to sell this point of view to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and other administration officials scheduled to speak to AFL-CIO leaders at their meetings here next week.

The AFL-CIO's concern goes far beyond the tax bill itself. The labor leaders are worried about Mills' demands for big budget cuts in federal welfare programs in exchange for acting on the tax measure.

"He's trying to undo everything Franklin D. Roosevelt did," the AFL-CIO source said in voicing concern that Congress might cut spending for education, health and housing programs if Mills gets his way.

Actress Gulps Sleeping Pills

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Katy Jurado, 40, former wife of actor Ernest Borgnine and two-time Academy Award nominee, was in fair condition today at the University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center after reportedly swallowing an overdose of sleeping pills.

Miss Jurado, best known for her supporting role in "High Noon," was rushed to the center by police who entered her Los Angeles apartment Wednesday night after being alerted by Miss Jurado's agent, Ron Meyer.

Meyer told police Miss Jurado had called him and said: "I have taken 67 sleeping pills and I am going to sleep. There are $1,500 worth of furs in my closet which you can give to my kids."

Miss Jurado has two children — Victor Hugo, 23, and Sandra, 21.

The fiery Mexican actress was married first to actor-writer Victor Velezquez. It ended in divorce in 1953. Six years later she married Borgnine but the stormy marriage also ended in divorce, in 1965.

Dependent Means $600 Subtracted From Income

EDITOR'S NOTE — In filing your income tax returns be sure you know exactly who you can claim as a dependent. If you can save you money. Further details are contained in the fourth of five articles in how to prepare your income tax returns.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dependents are a mixed lot—as you may find in filing your tax return on 1967 income—but you get a $600 exemption for each dependent you can rightfully claim.

Each exemption means $600 subtracted from your income before what's left is taxable. But—the rules on who is a dependent vary, just as the rules on wives and dependents differ. For example:

Anyone filing a return gets a $600 exemption for himself if he was under 65—$1,200 if 65 or older—plus an extra $600 if he is blind. The same goes for his wife. But you would not get an extra $600 exemption for a dependent because he was blind or 65 or older.

KEY FIGURE
You can claim your child as a dependent if he was born or died in 1967—but not a stillborn child—if you contributed more than half his support for that part of the year in which he was alive.

There is a key figure — age 19—in determining whether you can claim your own child, stepchild or adopted child as a dependent. But remember, before going further, that anyone, under or over 19, who had $600 or more income of his own must file a return, taking his own $600 exemption there and paying any tax owed.

But suppose you had an under-19 child for whom you contributed more than half his support. In that case it makes no difference how much income he had, below or above $600, or whether he had to file his own return and take his own exemption.

You could claim him as a dependent and take a $600 exemption on your return for him, and you wouldn't have to report his income.

FULL-TIME STUDENT
The key point there is simply this: He was under 19, your child, and you contributed more than half his support. That was the test.

But the rule is not quite the same if he was 19 or older and had $600 or more taxable income of his own, even though you provided more than half his support.

In a situation like that you could not, unless he qualified as a full-time student, claim an exemption for him. You could claim it if he qualified as a full-time student and got more than half his support from you. He would be considered your dependent.

The key point there was his being a full-time student. You could claim a child under or over 19 as a dependent and take an exemption for him if his income was under $600 and you provided more than half his support, whether or not he was a full-time student.

Your 19-or-older child could not qualify as a full-time student if he was employed full time during the day, even though he attended night school, or took a correspondence course.

But if your full-time student dependent won a scholarship, it is not considered a part of total support in figuring whether you contributed to more than half his support. You could claim a $600 exemption for him.

You can claim as a dependent a friend who lived in your home a full year and got more than half his support from you, but not if he had $600 or more income. Then he'd have to file his own return, take his own exemption.

MONEY BID

Nixon is in Boston today for a $500 per ticket fund-raising event, a meeting with Massachusetts Gov. John A. Volpe and an address to the 101st annual Middlesex Club Lincoln Day dinner.

He told a tightly packed audience of 1,480 at a Republican rally in Derry, N.H., Wednesday, "there is no protest that justifies the use of lawlessness or violence to accomplish its end."

Earlier at the University of New Hampshire in Durham Nixon said of the New York strike, "breaking of the laws of the state of New York, or any other state cannot and must not be rewarded by giving those who break the law what they are asking for."

Mayor John V. Lindsay was correct, he said, in asking Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to send the National Guard into the city. Rockefeller turned down Lindsay's request for guard aid and ended the nine-day strike with a plan for a temporary state take-over of the city sanitation department with wage payments higher than the mayor would accept. But the legislature balked at approving the plan and tossed the ball back to the mayor for further negotiations.

BARBS ROCKY
In supporting the mayor, Nixon impliedly threw the barbs at Rockefeller. The New York governor says he is not a candidate for the presidency, but some Republicans remain skeptical.

One is former New Hampshire Gov. Wesley Powell. He has not endorsed the candidacies of either Nixon or the former vice president's chief opponent in the New Hampshire primary, Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

Powell told a reporter, "most people look on Rockefeller as a candidate for president, his denials have not been effective."

A full slate of Rockefeller delegates, and alternates, has filed on his behalf in the primary.

CRIMINAL DOCKET CALLED FOR FRIDAY
Judge Ralph Caton, 118th District Court, will sound a criminal docket of eight cases at 2 p.m. Friday. Cases announced ready will be set for trial next week — to follow one civil case which is also docketed for jury disposition.

Wayne Burns, district attorney, said he had hopes some of the eight defendants on the criminal list would enter pleas of guilty when the cases are called.

The docket includes the following cases:
John L. Christmas, repeater-burglary; Juan F. Pereira, burglary; Joe Nunez Jr., burglary; James Wylie Daves, DWI second; Russell Headrick, forgery; (two cases) Eugene Williams, burglary; Roy Broadwell, burglary-repeater.

WEAPON CHARGE NAMES ORTEGA
Albino Ortega, arrested by city police, is being held in the county jail in lieu of $1,500 bond on a felony charge of carrying a prohibited weapon.

Wayne Burns, district attorney, said that the prohibited weapon felony complaint applies to persons who have been previously convicted of some felonious crime involving violence. Ortega is a former convict, the district attorney explained, and the felony charge for carrying arms was applied in his case. Normally a carrying arms complaint winds up in county court as a misdemeanor.

ROMNEY SAYS:
U.S. Must Not Be Impetuous

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Gov. George Romney said today that "two or three situations similar to Vietnam could develop simultaneously" in the decade ahead and the United States must not spread its power so thin as to render it impotent.

"We must not be impetuous about jumping off to tomorrow's trouble spots," the Michigan governor said in a position paper on foreign policy. "For our resources are not unlimited."

BUCKET BRIGADE
"We must not spread ourselves so thin that we become impotent," said Romney, campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination. "That is what the Communists want."

"We must not spread our time or consume our energies running around on a bucket brigade, trying to put out every fire that comes along," he said. "I believe we are slipping too far into the role of trying to solve all problems."

Romney concentrated on Vietnam in a speech to some 100 people at a Claremont school cafeteria Wednesday night, saying that escalation of the conflict is self-defeating.

MUST NOT LOSE
"How you can win the hearts and minds of the people, by destroying them and the property you are trying to defend, is beyond me," he said.

Romney called Viet Cong attacks in South Vietnamese cities a setback for the United States, a "tremendous victory" for the Communists. He said they show that Communist support extends beyond the countryside and into the cities themselves.

"One of the things that is needed in Vietnam is an administration in this country that can convince the government in Vietnam to broaden its base and to commit itself to this conflict," Romney said.

"We must not lose the conflict," he said. "We can lose it if we continue to follow the wrong strategy."

He coupled that with another challenge to former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, his role in the New Hampshire presidential primary, to propose a program for settlement of the war. Once again, Romney said his own proposal for neutralization under international guarantees offers a just, realistic course to peace.

Nixon Brings Strike Into His Campaign

BOSTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon has brought the strike of sanitation workers in New York City into his presidential campaign, declaring that breaking the law "cannot and must not be rewarded."

The strike touched off thunderous applause as he campaigned in New Hampshire for its March 12 presidential primary, the earliest in the nation.

American Casualties Dip Slightly In Viet

SAIGON (AP) — American casualties in the Vietnam war dropped slightly last week from the record toll of the previous week when the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese launched their countrywide lunar new year offensive.

The U.S. Command in its weekly summary today, said 400 U.S. military personnel were killed last week and 1,494 wounded. In the previous week, 416 American military men were reported killed and 2,757 wounded. The number missing or captured was not reported.

The command's reporting system apparently was still disrupted by the general offensive, for it said enemy and South Vietnamese government casualty figures for last week "are not available at this time."

ENEMY TOLL
For the previous reporting period, the week in which the Communist offensive was launched, the command issued a revised enemy casualty toll of 15,690 killed. The earlier report for the week had been 15,515 enemy dead, and both figures were far above the previous record for the war.

Of the 1,494 Americans reported wounded last week, 934 required hospitalization, the U.S. Command said.

The weekly summary said 70 members of other foreign allied forces were killed last week and 92 were wounded. Presumably most of them were South Koreans, the largest foreign group in the allied force after the United States.

The report raised to 17,696 the number of Americans killed so far in the war, the U.S. Command said, and increased to 109,922 the number of wounded.

The command said the number of American military personnel in South Vietnam at the end of last week was 500,000, the same figure given for the previous week. Other foreign allied forces totaled 61,000, also the same given for the previous week. Despite the huge Communist losses claimed since the start of the offensive Jan. 30, the estimate of enemy strength in the country was just what it has been for months: 223,000 to 248,000 military men and 75,000 to 85,000 political workers.

A Devotional For The Day

O that I knew where I might find him! (Job 23:3)
PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we confess that life is more than we can meet alone. Thank You for sending Your Son to be with us. Make us always aware of Your presence by the Holy Spirit, that we may walk in the valley of the shadow of death unafraid. In the Savior's name. Amen.

Looking At The Situation

The city has opened bids on electronic bookkeeping systems, and in our view, wisely postponed any action pending further studies.

Specifically, city officials said they wanted to check on an identical system (with that of the low bidder).

The study might be broadened beyond this to include cities with more extensive experience in the field. Still better, the city might inquire, with profit, from experts independent of companies in the electronic calculator-computer field.

That trends are in the direction of electronic computerization is undeniable. But expectations sometimes exceed capabilities within specified costs, and it becomes necessary to replace rapidly outdated equipment with more sophisticated and versatile units.

We still feel that there may be rewarding advantage in inquiring of pool arrangements, whether through cooperation with other public agencies or whether through private channels. What governmental agencies, as well as private business, need to do is to assure themselves of the maximum return on investment and on cost of operation and maintenance.

Better Put Off

It may be conceded that the Texas Legislature has yet to bring its House redistricting, in litigation since 1964, fully into line with federal court standards. And legal questions remain to be resolved on such important issues as proper election procedure in multi-representative counties.

Unfortunately ill-timed, however, is Houston attorney William Wright's expressed intention to bring suit this month, on behalf of the plaintiffs who overturned inequitable House representation in 1964, to try to invalidate the 1967 re-districting bill. He says he will ask the court to impose a "model plan" effective in the 1968 election.

First, it is highly questionable that either court-ordered or court-imposed redistricting could be legally based on current population estimates, as Wright intends, rather than on the official 1960 census figures. And redistricting on eight-year-old census data in this fast-growing, population-shifting state would be a travesty on the one-man, one-vote rule.

Second, it is doubtful that the proposed litigation could be finally completed before the party primaries or even the general election were over. And finally, the 1968 election process has already begun, with the Feb. 5 filing deadline passed. To attempt to reorganize the Texas House districts midstream in a legislative election would cause confusion worse than any deficiencies in existing representation.

Certainly common sense suggests—and we do not think democratic principle would be ill-served by—living with the existing legislative districting until the 1970 census provides accurate official data on which to achieve fair and complete redistricting in 1971.

Holmes Alexander Our Biggest Export Is Aviation

WASHINGTON—My heart leaps up when I behold a Boeing or a Douglas in the sky. I suppose I travel abroad as much as most, and the sight of an American-made airliner says that the U.S. economy, technology, prestige and language are showing-the-flag and doing something about that adverse balance-of-payments which worries the President and should.

My heart flips also at the sight of exported military planes, the Lockheed and the Northrops. I don't believe for a moment were a merchant-of-death nation.

THE POINT is that we export the aerospace production—is in danger of being clipped from two sides. The daffy disarmament lobby comes in from one angle. The President's somewhat frantic program on balance-of-payments comes in from the other. When the President talks of travel restrictions to keep dollars at home, he is talking pennants. When he talks of restraining the immensely complicated cross-financing of aviation sales, he's talking megabucks.

ANNUAL SALES of aerospace products is pushing the $2 billion mark. More important than the gross weight of welcome dollars is the climbing profile of the sales-charts. From the Truman to the Johnson administration, overseas sales of transport aircraft has increased nearly ten-fold, cargo-carrier sales have multiplied by 17, unmentionables (i.e. military) aircraft by ten-fold.

It's the government's lack of a consistent, sympathetic public policy that threatens to gum the works. Briefly, here are the two main interferences with this biggest of private enterprise exports:

1.—THE ANTI-MILITARY lobby was able to hamper the military sales program by revision of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1967. The sense of Congress was to forbid the sale of sophisticated weaponry to underdeveloped countries. One passage specifically stipulates: "When the President finds that assistance... or sales... are being diverted to (unnecessary) military expenditure... the President shall terminate such assistance and sales..." The difficulty of defining such terms as sophisticated, underdeveloped and necessary is manifest, and it'll be remarkable if a lot of aero business doesn't drift to our competition.

2.—THE PRESIDENT'S economic policy aims to repatriate dollars invested overseas. He makes no exception for the extraordinary case of aviation products. To be sure, there is heavy investment in foreign-based airplane plants and workers, but it is an investment which brings $4 billion a year into the U.S.A. against an outflow of less than $3 billion. The pecuniary interest in the production are that U.S. fighter-bombers are manufactured in Australia, Belgium, Canada, Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands and Spain. Beyond doubt, Mr. Johnson's return-the-dollar plans will upset this lucrative and America-saving appellation.

ARE WE ASHAMED of purveying airliners and warplanes to the free world? Don't we have a far better record in morality than the cynical French and the perfidious Britons? If we want the flag withdrawn from the seas and skies, from the cultures and crossroads of the free world, one way to do so is to make a stay-home industry out of aviation.

Hal Boyle Long-Haired Lassies Lot Sexier?

NEW YORK (AP) — "Boys tend to like long hair on girls," Sheryl Karp started out. "It's more feminine..." Then she said it: "Sexier."

The 20-year-old coed—who keeps her own lustrous red hair a few inches below her shoulders—apparently speaks for a majority at Hunter College. The upper East Side school is a veritable stable of long silky manes—in blonde, brunette, brownette and every other imaginable hue.

"A LOT OF girls have short hair," said Sheryl's girl friend, Linda Langsam, 20, talking above the hubbub of Hunter's sprawling basement cafeteria. "But they can wear 'falls.' (That's an artificial mane and they sell for $45 to $125 or so.)"

Sheryl and Linda rabbed Bonnie Karrin as she walked by. Bonnie owns a fall to go with her light auburn hair, which she wears shorter than most boys' hair. "I like it short because it's so easy just to get up in the morning and go," Bonnie said.

SHE ALTERNATES coming to school in short hair and coming in her falls, she said. Some people say hello to her and then blurt: "Hey, your hair grew!"

These college girls, like many other jeune filles from Seattle to Miami, have found that long hair—whether real or "put on"—helps get looks and dates—despite the attempts of coiffeurs to keep hair clipped and knicked.

"My boy friend wants me to cut my hair because he's away," said Betty Franco, a 20-year-old nursing student. Her guy, a Navy Seabee serving at Da Nang in Vietnam, thinks this would help keep the pack away from his dark-haired sweetheart.

Another nurse-to-be, Pat Falco, 20, said she uses "strict orders" to keep her sandy hair lengthy "until he returns." He is in the Air Force at Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base in Missouri.

UPSTAIRS in the offices of the Hunter student newspaper, The Envoy, a pert brunette staff member named Gerry Malerba commented: "Just about every guy I've met says, 'Keep your hair long,' and they even notice how much it's growing and everything."

"It's too much of a hassle to cut it," commented Cathy Smith, 20, the Envoy's editor in chief. "And I like the way it looks around my face. Also, my mother hates it long."

GERRY CHIMED in that that was another of her reasons for letting the strands grow and flow. "It's a big rebellion thing," she said.

The first-hand word from male staffers standing around did not jibe with the favorable male consensus Gerry claimed. A quick survey tallied one for long hair, one for short, one undecided and one dodging the question.

"I don't know; I really don't know," was the comment from news editor Fred Holman, 19.

"I LIKE GIRLS to wear their hair the way they like to wear it," put in Kenny Kerner, who comes on as the staff hippie. His own dark locks were halfway down his back until he lopped off 10½ inches recently.

Jerry Teplitz, 21, the student body president, made no bones about saying long-haired lassies "are a helluva lot sexier."

"I love it short," said Tony Testa, 20, "because I like naked necks. It gives a girl sophistication." He paused. "Besides, my fiancée has short hair."

James Marlow Liberal Raps Mahon, Secrecy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles S. Joelson's recent blast at the chairman and procedures of the House Appropriations Committee points up the difficulty and frustration inherent in efforts at congressional reform.

Joelson, a fourth-term Democrat from New Jersey, is one of the minority liberals on the powerful committee dominated by Southern Democrats and Republicans.

The subcommittees which handle the key domestic programs and most of the giant federal budget are controlled by this coalition. But Joelson, despite ranking 19th among 30 committee Democrats, is last man on two lesser subcommittees—interior and state-justice-commerce.

JOELSON charged Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Texas, has the power to shape committee decisions "in conformity with his own political philosophy" and criticized the secrecy of subcommittee hearings and the way the 51-member full committee ratifies subcommittee bills.

Committee members don't always know what they're voting on, he said, especially when it involves something like funds for the Central Intelligence Agency which are concealed in various other budgets.

But Joelson has virtually no chance of changing the procedures about which he complained. He called them archaic and undemocratic.

IN FACT, the Joint Committee on Reorganization of Congress ran aground with its modest congressional reform bill on shoals consisting of the practices Joelson criticized.

As passed by the Senate, it required that appropriations hearings be open except when they involve national security, information that should be kept secret or matters that might reflect on someone's character.

To Your Good Health Yes, A Hiatal Hernia Can Bleed

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a hiatal hernia hemorrhage? About 10 days ago I had bleeding from the mouth five times in 19 hours, at times so bad it interfered with my breathing.

My doctor thinks it was coming from my esophagus. He advised me to go to the hospital but the bleeding stopped so I didn't go. — Mrs. J. H.

Yes, a hiatal hernia can develop an ulcer which can bleed—not that it is common with hiatal hernia. After all, a lot of people also have duodenal ulcers which don't necessarily bleed. But when they do, it is dangerous.

In hiatal hernia the bleeding can come from either the esophagus or the stomach. I'd say you were lucky that the bleeding stopped.

Even though you rejected your doctor's good advice to go to the hospital, I hope you will now think again, and have X-rays to pin down the source of the bleeding.

If it happened once, it could happen again, and such hemorrhages can even be fatal.

Dear Dr. Molner: In school a question on a true or false test was: "A person can stop smoking immediately with a strong will power."

I always thought this was true, but in school they said it was false. I know many people try to quit and fail, but there are people who can put a pack of cigarettes down and never touch them again.

Please tell me whether the statement was true. — D.B.

I agree that the statement of the test should be answered as "true." Anyone can quit smoking—if he wants to hard enough.

On the other hand, there is no medical or other treatment which will make a person stop smoking UNLESS he wants to.

I had a smoking problem myself. When my own doctor told me to quit in December, 1962, I did so, then and there, and haven't had any problem on that score since.

What I found out, and what medical science has found out, is the basis for my booklet, "Tips on How to Stop Smoking," which I will gladly send to anyone for a dime to cover printing and handling. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of The Herald.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our 5-year-old daughter had a convulsion when she was 2½, and another when she was four. Our pediatrician said we had nothing to

Around The Rim At Long Last

I nominate an announcement this week that something is about to be done to Scurry Street as the best news of recent months. It is far and away a long time coming, for it takes a real pioneer to remember when anything major was done to improve this street. Best I can find out, the State paved it when it was a segment of US 87, and that was the last time it received any attention, other than filling in the holes and stabilizing the ditches.

IN THE MEANTIME, Scurry Street has become the subject for jokes, a sieve for floodwaters, and a handy place to practice your arithmetic by counting the holes waiting to be filled. And it was even said once, when someone mentioned patching one portion, that the existing pavement was not worth patching.

It had long been envisioned as an expensive project to rebuild Scurry Street, and it appeared that the work must await some future bond issue. Now it appears that the taxpayers will get twin benefits—a new surface for the most traveled non-highway street in the city, and also get it at half price.

CITY OFFICIALS are proposing to do the job out of regular budget allocations, rather than through the sale of bonds. As has been pointed out by city and school district officials on many occasions, if capital improvements can be done within the annual budget, the taxpayer is saved the high cost of interest on long term bonds. This interest mounts up to about the same amount as the face of the bond during the long terms for which they are paid off.

EARLIER THIS WEEK, city commissioners announced plans to tackle improvement on two blocks of Scurry Street, spending current budget funds. They plan to use the concrete, that is dug up, for rip-rap in drainage ditches in the northside. To be considered at a later date is the worst single portion of Scurry, between Fifteenth Street and FM 700. Although more expensive, nonetheless it is also charted as a project to be financed without the expensive necessity of going to a bond program.

While commending the city officials for tackling this long-needed project, the added benefit of doing it at the least cost wins a deserved share of the lime-light. —V. GLENN COOTES

David Lawrence Domestic Problems The Main Issue

WASHINGTON—Candidates for political office this year, whether Republicans or Democrats, will find to their surprise perhaps that severe criticism of President Johnson in connection with the Vietnam war will react against them.

The American people are never happy about any war, but history shows that they are much more inclined to support a President during a grave conflict than to desert him in favor of the opposing nominee. In Congress, however, those Democrats or Republicans who are trying to get votes by raising the Vietnam war issue are assuming that the American people will repudiate the administration during wartime solely for that reason.

DOMESTIC ISSUES are far more penetrating and can mobilize more votes for an opposition ticket than international questions. One reason for this is that the public generally is confused about how best to end the war. While participation in it may be deplored, there is a tendency to support the President in office—on the assumption that this will be less risky than a change in the commander-in-chief.

THE ONLY CHANCE the opposition to President Johnson really has is on the domestic side. There are issues which have alienated many voters who supported Mr. Johnson in 1964. Not only are increases in taxes unpopular, but the high cost of living has aroused a deep-seated feeling throughout the country, and the largest part of the blame for the inflation is being placed, as usual, upon the party in power.

DEBATE ON the Vietnam problem has thus far proved unclear. Gov. Romney criticizes the President on the ground that he has bungled the whole thing, but former Vice President Nixon is much less captious. In one of his recent speeches, he said that President Johnson is "a patriotic American doing the best job he can." Mr. Nixon at the same time pointed out that the President has shown a lack of understanding in handling the situation and that it could be improved. This is a much more adroit way of getting votes.

SPOKESMEN for the President during the campaign will doubtless lay the main responsibility for the continuation of the Vietnam conflict on the shoulders of the critics. Inside the government there are many officials who feel that the United States would have gotten the enemy to the peace table long ago if it had not been for the "dissidents" inside this country who have insisted that the bombing be stopped, and the war ended promptly even though American objectives have not been attained.

IF THE DEBATE in the 1968 political campaign were confined solely to the Vietnam issue, this would mean a large number of votes from the Republican side in support of President Johnson. If the Republican candidates are able to subordinate the Vietnam issue and concentrate on the handling of federal finances—as, for instance, the failure to economize—and if criticism is directed at the many internal programs which have been initiated at great expense when the government really could not afford them, there could be a different story to tell about the forthcoming campaign.

As matters look now, the Republicans have not built a case for a change in administration. They have neglected the domestic side of the debate and have not shown that they themselves will be able to do something to cut down the cost of living and avoid further increases in taxes.

Art Buchwald GI's Support The Travel Ban

WASHINGTON — I received an inspired letter from a young draftee friend of mine who is soon slated to go to Vietnam:

"Dear Art,

"I notice that President Johnson wants to put a head tax on tourists traveling outside the Western Hemisphere. As a loyal soldier who supports my Commander-in-Chief, I believe that not only should this tax be placed on tourists, but also on GIs to discourage them from going to Vietnam.

"NOW IT'S TRUE that many GIs I have talked to had their hearts set on going to Vietnam, but I'm sure that a majority of them could be persuaded to postpone their trip if it were explained to them that our balance-of-payments situation was at stake.

"Everyone knows one of the reasons for the U.S. gold outflow is that so much money is being spent in Vietnam. If every American soldier, sailor and marine who had planned to go to Southeast Asia this year could stay home, we could save millions and millions of dollars, which could go toward building President Johnson's Great Society.

"I HAVE TALKED to all the guys in my outfit and you would be amazed and proud of how they reacted to my suggestion. Tony Morelli, who sleeps in the bunk on top of me, said, 'I had my heart set on going to Vietnam, but I think we have to put our country's economic plight ahead of our personal pleasure. I'm willing to make the sacrifice and stay here if it will help the U.S. Treasury Department to get straightened out.'

"Rory Schwartz said, 'Nobody likes to pay taxes, but if taxing GIs so they won't go to Vietnam is in the national interest, then I have to go along with it. Hell, there are more important things in my life than visiting Vietnam.'

"A FEW OF THE noncoms don't seem to have the patriotic spirit. When I suggested our outfit stay at home, my sergeant blew up and said we were going abroad whether President Johnson liked it or not. He said, 'A

Vegetarianism Called Answer

BOMBAY, India (AP)—Vegetarianism is the answer to India's chronic food shortages, claims Mrs. Rukmini Devi Arundale, president of the Indian Vegetarian Congress.

She told a meeting of her group more food is available from the land than through animals. Besides, she said, vegetarianism is a "better and nobler way of life"—even Americans are turning to vegetarianism to avoid excess calories and fat.

Spear Carriers Pick Up Bonnies In Close One

You'd think the Brown Indians of St. Bonaventure, the nation's fourth-ranking team in college basketball, would be beaten if they blew an 11-point lead and lost Big Lanier on personal fouls. Not so.

The unbeaten Bonnies demonstrated their all-around balance with an 81-71 overtime victory over Seton Hall on the road at South Orange, N.J., Wednesday night. It was their 20th straight, 18 this season and a carryover of two from last year.

Lanier, star 6-foot-11 sophomore, fouled out with three minutes left in regulation time after scoring 21 points.

The Bonnies called time out and Coach Larry Weise said later, "I just told the boys to look at the scoreboard." The Bonnies were ahead by only four points 59-55.

Billy Kalbaugh and Johnny Hayes rose to the occasion as the Bonnies pulled the game out. Kalbaugh scored the last eight St. Bonaventure points in regulation time which ended 63-63 and Hayes tallied seven of the first 10 Bonnies points in the overtime.

Hayes took over in the extra period after a three-point play by Bill Butler had put the Bonnies ahead for good in the first 20 seconds of the overtime.

"They don't need me, they can make it on their own," Lanier said afterwards.

In contrast to the Bonnies, the Duke Blue Devils, the only other team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, enjoyed a 105-65 home court romp against Wake Forest. Big Mike Lewis led the 10th-ranked Blue Devils with 31 points and 29 rebounds.

It was the eighth straight defeat for Wake Forest and the Deacons' 10th loss in a row on the road. Duke's record now is 15-3.

Bowling Green, playing at home, beat Toledo 85-78 and took over first place in the Mid-American Conference. Walt Piatkowski led the Falcons with 31 points, including the basket that put Bowling Green ahead for good at 49-47 early in the second half. Steve Mix led Toledo with 29.

Ron Guziak, held to just one basket in the first half, broke loose for 22 in the second to lead Duquesne to a 79-69 triumph over DePaul in Chicago.

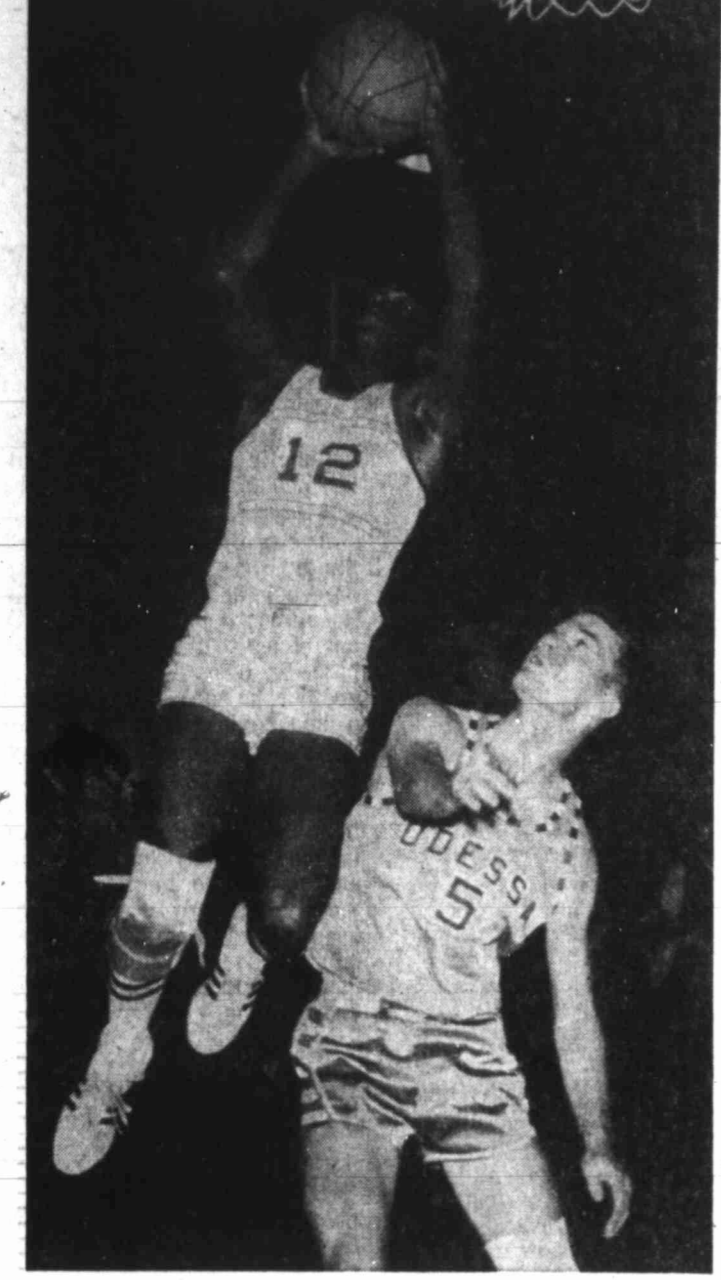

In other road conquests, Davidson, led by Mike Maloy's 19 points and 23 rebounds, beat St. Joseph's, Pa., 66-60 in Philadelphia's Palestra and Western Michigan whipped the Detroit Titans 94-82.

Roger Strong's 21 points led George Washington to an upset 70-66 victory over Fordham at Arlington, Va., and Syracuse snapped a seven-game losing streak with an 83-66 home court conquest of Cornell.

Providence, also playing at home, beat Canisius 83-72 and Holy Cross edged Massachusetts 70-69 at Amherst as Keith Hocjstein scored all of his 20 points in the second half.

Denver also won at home beating the Air Force 86-71.

A BARGAIN

Tickets On Sale

Tickets bought in advance for the Region V Junior College Basketball tournament here will be much cheaper than they will be at the gate, members of the sponsoring organization, the American Business Club, have reminded local fans.

Season tickets — good for all sessions of the Feb. 29-March 12 event — sell for $3 adults and $1 students. The sessions start with a 2 p.m. game the first day of the meet and will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

In all, eight games will be played during the tournament, which means adults would be gaining admission to the gym for about 37½ cents a game whereas students will pay only 12½ cents a game.

Each session will consist of two games. The cost of ductats for the first session, if they are purchased individually, will be $1 for adults and 25 cents for students.

The price jumps to $1.25 and 50 cents for the Thursday and Friday night sessions and to $1.50 and 75 cents for the Saturday night doubleheader.

The tickets can be purchased from any member of the ABCub, among whom are Bill Reed, club prexy; Harold Davis, tournament consultant; Bill Bradford, Elmo Phillips, Bob Rogers, Morris Robertson and V. A. Whittington.

All tournament games will take place in the high school gym rather than the HCJC fieldhouse here.

The field for the meet will be announced sometime next week but, in all probability, will include Ranger, Christian College of the Southwest (Dallas), Clarendon, Hill County JC of Hillsboro and the host school, Howard County JC.

Winner of the meet advances to the National Junior College tournament at Hutchinson, Kan.

THIS WEEKEND Field Trial Set On Winn Ranch

The Permian Bird Dog and Sportsman Club, which was organized in Big Spring several years ago, will stage its annual spring field trial on the Francis Winn ranch 15 miles south of Colorado City Saturday and Sunday.

Drawing for braces will be conducted at the Villa Inn in Colorado City, starting at 8 o'clock Friday evening. Entries are expected from Dallas, Fort Worth, Arlington, Mason, San Saba, San Antonio, Amarillo and Lubbock, as well as Big Spring.

Upwards to ten animals may be entered from this area alone, club officers reveal.

When the club staged a fall meeting at the Winn ranch, a total of 62 dogs were entered. Competition will be held in Open Dog Shooting, Amateur Shooting Dog, Open Shooting Dog Derby plus a Bird Hunters Stake event.

The public has been invited to attend without charge. A mobile gallery will be provided for the spectators' convenience.

Lunch will be served to the public at a nominal cost by Boy Scout Troop 14 of Big Spring Wednesday.

BUT AMERICANS FAIL

Greene, Maier Claim Olympic Gold Medals

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — U.S. ski skiers and men speed skaters, who produced some unexpected showings the past two days, failed to pull out any surprises today as Canada's Nancy Greene and Fred Antone Maier of Norway posted smashing victories in the Winter Olympics.

Miss Greene streaked down the giant slalom course in one minute, 51.97 seconds for a 2.64-second triumph in the last women's Alpine ski race, and Maier shattered his own world record in winning the men's 5,000-meter speed skating race in seven minutes, 22.4 seconds.

The U.S. entries finished far down the lists in both races.

RULING HURT

It was just two days ago that a quartet of American girls took command, if just briefly, of the women's special slalom only to have three of the girls disqualified for missing gates in the first heat and the fourth fall in the second heat.

Then in the men's 500-meter speed skating race Wednesday, Terry McDermott of Birmingham, Mich., revived the memory of his great 1964 victory by surprisingly winning another medal, this one a silver.

Miss Greene's victory in the giant slalom, spoiled any chances for a girl to win two gold medals in skiing as France's Jean-Claude Killy has done in the men's race.

Marielle Goitschel of France, who won the special slalom, had been given a chance to make it a double especially by Miss Greene.

The Canadian girl was the ninth down the 1,610-meter course at nearby Chamrousse, and when her brilliant time was announced just about everyone conceded her Canada's first gold medal of the Winter Games.

"Wait for Marielle, wait for Marielle," she repeated. "She's good."

TEARS FLOW

The French girl wasn't good enough, however, and when her time of 1:56.09 was announced, tears started rolling down Nancy's face. Then a big smile broke through the tears as everyone embraced her.

Among the well-wishers was Annie Famoso of France, who won the silver medal in 1:54.61. The bronze went to Fernande Bochayat of Switzerland, who covered the 68-gate course in 1:54.74.

Judy Nagel of Enumclaw, Wash., the girl who fell Tuesday, was the top U.S. finisher, covering the course in 1:57.39. Suzy Chaffee of Rutland, Vt., finished in 1:58.38. Kiki Cutter of Bend Ore., in 1:59.52 and Wendy Allen of San Pedro, Calif., in 2:00.03.

Besides a gold medal, Miss Greene's victory also brought her the world championship for women's Alpine combined. No Olympic medal is awarded for the girl who is best over-all, but

Viet Advisor Would Help Needy In War Country

Dear Tommy:

It has been almost 14 years since I have had the pleasure of reading your sports column. Needless to say, if it is possible that I remember the column for that period of time, it must have left a favorable impression on me. I certainly would welcome the pleasure of reading it again.

Presently, I am a tech sergeant in the USAF, working as a communications - electronics advisor to the Headquarters, Vietnamese Air Force. It is a very challenging job, but one loaded with certain rewards. A recent example was the part VNAF played in repulsing the Viet Cong attack, which is still in progress, upon Saigon.

Almost to the man, VNAF personnel reported to their appropriate duty stations, leaving their families to care for themselves. As you know, this would be very difficult for any person to do. As a result of this admirable action on their part, many of the VNAF personnel suffered great loss, partly in the form of clothing, food, cooking utensils and baby accessories.

I must insert at this time that what I'm asking you to do is of my own free will and not influenced by any action on the part of USAF.

If you could, somehow, let the people of Big Spring know the plight of these unfortunate people, I'm sure they would respond. If the people in the U.S. could only see how these dedicated VNAF personnel are trying their best to end this conflict, they would help in any way possible. I have read some of the news releases and must truthfully say that in most cases they are true.

However, I also live with the Vietnamese Air Force and I know they will fight for freedom to the very end. They have proven it many times in the last ten days.

Tommy, if you can help me in any way to emphasize that these dedicated VNAF personnel maintain their honor and faith in the U.S., you will be helping the people of Vietnam.

If the Big Spring people would like to help them, they may send any item to the following address and I will personally see that such items are distributed to these needy people.

Editors of Boxing Illustrated Magazine have written Melton McMurry of the Tarzan community that they are restoring the world-rated bantamweight boxers.

Estrada tried it as a featherweight for a while but he can make the bantamweight class easily.

Japanese promoters may book him into their country before long.

Some observers say Sands High School has a better basketball team than it had last year and Coach Arlen White carried the Mustangs all the way to the state Class B meet in 1967.

Sands has won the district championship three years running and apparently is going to win it again. The Ponies would be a great asset to the upcoming Region VI-V tournament, which will be staged here March 1-2.

White brings his teams along slowly and they hit their stride when they wade into conference play. Flower Grove gave Sands quite a game recently but lost four starters via fouls, after which the Mustangs—boasting a stronger bench— took charge and won going away.

Carl Dingler, the Odessa scribe, said it recently: "Basketball officials are normally hard workers who do a good job. But, the few who are not qualified and age just on the court for the extra income certainly give the rest a bad name."

Workmen assigned by Bill Gray are going all out to get the high school baseball park here ready for the 1968 season and it's going to be quite an improvement over the old model.

The rotting wood in the stands has been eliminated and a new roof has been added. (Big Spring has the only park in 2-AAAA with a roof).

The press-box has been vastly improved. The old dugouts, which were catchalls for all kinds of debris and which players rarely used, have been filled in and replaced with modern facilities that protect players from errant balls.

The scoreboard has been moved close to the stands so that, for the first time, it can be read by all the spectators.

New dirt has been hauled into the infield, with the result that it is probably going to be more reliable than ever before. If the grass catches some rain in the next few weeks, the park is going to be ideal in every respect.

Mahon Protests Assignment Of Jet Fuel Import Quotas

WASHINGTON—Rep. George H. Mahon (D., Tex.) chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, has urged Defense Secretary McNamara to "re-sist" efforts to assign all or part of a Department of Defense (DOD) jet fuel import quota to marketers of home heating fuel.

Use of the DOD quota, under which the military formerly imported 30,554 barrels daily of jet fuel, was discontinued in June, 1966, as a means of helping to curb the U.S. balance of payments deficit. Rep. Mahon had urged an end to the military imports as an aid to the nation's balance of payments position and to support the objectives of the Mandatory Oil Import Program.

In a telegram this week to Secretary McNamara, Rep. Mahon expressed doubt that a case could be made for import quotas to marketers of home heating (No. 2) oil, based on "the contention . . . that No. 2 fuel oil is in short supply."

He said that domestic oil industry had demonstrated its ability "to substantially increase oil supply on short notice," during the Middle East crisis of the past summer.

"Furthermore," he said, "the transfer of the DOD (import) allocation which has not been used during the past two years would have an adverse impact on the balance of payments and nullify the contribution DOD has made" toward correcting this problem.

"This certainly is no time for such action and I hope you will resist these efforts," said the Texas congressman. A similar telegram was sent to Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall, who has responsibility for the oil import program.

Rep. Mahon, in releasing his telegram to the Defense Secretary, recalled that when DOD discontinued use of its import quota in June, 1966, it sought and obtained assurances that the quota would not be assigned to other importers.

Noting that 8,700 barrels daily of the unused DOD quota has already been reassigned to the Oil Import Appeals Board and other importers, Rep. Mahon called this "distressing." "Obviously," he added, "reassignment of any part of the quota defeats the purpose Secretary McNamara had in mind when he ordered discontinuance of the use of the quota as an aid to our balance of payments position."

He said the Oil Import Administration ought to "settle any legitimate grievances or hardships" without use of the DOD quota and without increasing oil imports in any manner "at a time when the administration is trying to effectively curb our dollar outflow."

King Willing To Go Back

Tom Norman (Tooter) King, who has been fighting against being returned to Carlsbad, N.M., to face kidnapping charges, has given up the struggle.

He told Dick Miletad, his court-appointed attorney, Wednesday afternoon that he would no longer oppose efforts to extradite him and that he was ready to return to Eddy County.

Miletad had filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of King in 118th District Court Tuesday afternoon in a last-ditch effort to escape an extradition order handed down by Gov. Connally. The writ was to be considered at a hearing set by Ralph Caton, 118th District Court, for 10 a.m. Friday.

Sheriff A. N. Standard said he had contacted Ramon Anaya, sheriff of Eddy County, N.M., and told him of King's decision. Anaya said that roads in his area were slippery and snow covered.

King has been held in jail here since Jan. 11 when he was arrested by highway patrolmen on the Andrews Highway. At the time, King was with a young Carlsbad housewife he had forced at pistol point to drive him from the New Mexico town to Big Spring in her car. At the jail, he refused to waive extradition.

The governor of New Mexico appealed to Gov. Connally for an order of extradition which the Texas governor granted.

British Government Tinkers With Time

By THOMAS A. REEDY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — They're tinkering with time this weekend in Britain.

It's one of the most remarkable tinkers since the invention of the clock.

The British government has instructed England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland to move their clocks forward one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 18. And keep them an hour ahead forever.

This means Britain is going on daylight time all year. That means the abolition of Britain's basic time, Greenwich Mean Time.

BOOMING BIG BEN

Clocks, including booming Big Ben at Westminster, will be on what Britons used to call summer time, now British Standard Time.

In the south, it means an extra hour for golf or gardening or whatever in the miserable winter months. In the north, it means children going to school in the dark.

Industry, commerce, and government agree the idea is good. Lloyds of London put it this way: "In dealing with Europe, we have always lost an hour. Now we gain it. We shall be on the same time."

Other business areas agreed that Britain's retention of GMT always was a handicap.

One industrial spokesman said: "When we were on GMT, we were one hour behind Europe. That put us one hour behind them every morning in doing business. At the end of the day, when it was 6 o'clock here and we had business to do, it was past closing time in Europe, so in fact we lost two hours, not one, every day. Chop out lunch time and we were on something like a four-hour day."

INTEGRATION

The idea behind this, as far as the government is concerned, suggests that Britain is taking a step toward integration in Europe and membership in the Common Market.

GMT goes back to Greenwich, part of London, where Edward VIII, Mary Queen of Scots and Elizabeth I were born.

The Danes really set it up in the 11th century after bashing Etheled the Unready around. It remained for Charles II to create the Greenwich Observatory, at zero longitude, which decided what time it was.

From his time forward, Greenwich Mean Time was what the world reckoned with and it seems still will in many quarters.

The Greenwich team, now operating in rural Sussex, said the new time has little to do with them.

"For meteorology, navigation, aids, ship to shore contact, and in many other areas Greenwich Mean Time will continue to be used," an official said. And one Scotsman forecast: "In Scotland we'll change our clocks when we choose."

Locke Backs Expanded Training Of Officers

FORT WORTH (AP) — Eugene M. Locke, seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, says he will advocate expanded training of Texas police officers to help in the fight against crime.

Locke said he believes the Texas Department of Public Safety should use its existing facilities on the district level to establish training programs for policemen.

"By doing this," he said, "a police officer would be within about 50 or 60 miles of the school and could attend while continuing to hold down his job."

About March 1, Locke said, he will have more fully formulated his campaign program. He was in Fort Worth Wednesday to meet with his executive committee and to talk with community leaders.

Locke resigned as deputy U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam to enter the governor's race, saying he hopes to have the support of Gov. John Connally.

He was Connally's campaign manager in the governor's first political race in 1962.

Two Committee Chairmen Listed

Dr. Milton Talbot, president of the Chamber of Commerce, announced two more committee chairmanships of the chamber have been filled.

Talbot appointed Bill Coleman to head the retail committee and George McAllister as chairman of the aviation committee. Board coordinators are B. B. Hickson, retail, and Jack Cook, aviation.

Other committee heads were named Monday at the annual membership meeting of the chamber. Most of the groups are organizing, with special meetings being held during the next two weeks to outline programs of work.

Coke Calls Quit Reports 'Completely Unfounded'

AUSTIN (AP) — Coke Stevenson Jr., administrator of the Texas Liquor Control Board, says reports that he is planning to resign or retire soon are "completely unfounded."

"I have a job to do and I have not even considered such a possibility," said a brief statement from Stevenson distributed Wednesday by TLCB employees.

There have been published reports that O. N. Humphreys, named Tuesday as assistant TLCB administrator, was scheduled to succeed Stevenson after a few months. Humphreys had no comment on the reports or on Stevenson's statement.

Stevenson, 54, son of the former governor, has been chief administrator since 1949.

He is being replaced by W. D. Noel of Odessa, TLCB chairman, the six heads of divisions of the state agency complained that "disgruntled employees" caught up in the TLCB investigation were responsible for "the attempted character assassination of our dedicated administrator."

The six administrators said that during his time with the agency Stevenson "has never requested or suggested that we not enforce the liquor control act to the fullest extent. He not only gives of his time far beyond the call of duty" to licensees and permittees, but to his employees."

Gay Hill, Lomax Clubs Have Party

GAY HILL — The Gay Hill 4-H Club had a Valentine party to which it invited the Lomax 4-H Club.

The Gay Hill Club members brought box suppers for the Lomax Club to bid on. Those attending from Lomax were: David Adkins, Molly Adkins, Carla Perry, Brad Posey, Gary Posey, Sandra Bridge, Mike Bridge, Steve Fryar and Betty McIlvain. Martha Couch, Betty Little, Debra Buchanan, Darla Buchanan, Noel Brooks, Brenda Jackson, Junior Jackson, Teresa Jackson, Joe Hyden, Robert Hyden and Danny Heckler were also on hand.

Brenda Jackson, president, told the club of the approaching Heart Fund drive. Games were provided by Mrs. John Couch. Refreshments were supplied by the Gay Hill Club. The boxes were auctioned by Mrs. Delaine Crawford. The meeting was held in annex of the Bethel Baptist Church.

Damages Asked In Ladder Mishap

The City of Big Spring has been made a party to a damage suit filed in 118th District Court by a motorcyclist who rode his machine into a step-ladder.

The city is a codefendant with the Perry Vending Co., which allegedly operated a snow cone booth in the City Park last fall.

The plaintiff is Randell Lee Fuson. He claims that the city and the vending company were negligent in that a ladder was allegedly left in a place where he struck it as he rode his motorcycle on Sept. 13. He asks $16,000 damages.

LAUGHING MATTER

COMPLAINTS

The City of Big Spring has been made a party to a damage suit filed in 118th District Court by a motorcyclist who rode his machine into a step-ladder.

The city is a codefendant with the Perry Vending Co., which allegedly operated a snow cone booth in the City Park last fall.

The plaintiff is Randell Lee Fuson. He claims that the city and the vending company were negligent in that a ladder was allegedly left in a place where he struck it as he rode his motorcycle on Sept. 13. He asks $16,000 damages.

WILL BE AIRLIFTED TO ANY TROUBLE SPOT

Army Stockpiling Riot Items

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is stockpiling riot control equipment in strategically located depots across the country, officials said today, and is ready to airlift it to any city if civil disorders break out next summer.

Details of the military establishment's riot duty preparations were disclosed after sources reported the President's Commission on Civil Disorders is dissatisfied with the National Guard's performance in quelling last summer's violence, and is considering recommending creation of a specially trained federal riot-control force.

TOP BRASS
A commission source said the National Guard's effectiveness is limited by lack of proper training and by "the fact most of the Guard is lily-white." He said discussion of a special force has centered on whether it would amount to a national police force; whether it would be a regular Army unit; and at what point it would step into a disorder.

Army and National Guard officials said their planning has been extensive as well as diverse, ranging from obtaining maps of subway, sewer, water and electrical systems in potential trouble spots to preparing menus for mobilized national guardsmen. The North Carolina guard, for example, will have fish with tartar sauce for dinner on the third day if called out.

Strategy sessions have involved thousands of individuals, from the Pentagon's top brass to policemen on the beat.

"THAT'S CLASSIFIED"
"I personally feel assured the planning is adequate," said Maj. Gen. Francis Greenleaf, deputy chief of the National Guard Bureau. Greenleaf and the Guard chief, Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson will tour 40 states this spring, reviewing state and local preparations.

Teams Still Recover Bodies In Wreckage

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — One month after the earthquake that killed hundreds of persons and wrecked or damaged 51 communities, Western Sicily is still stunned, bewildered and afraid.

Nearly all of the 50,000 homeless are still living in tents or in requisitioned buildings miles from their former homes.

PILES OF RUINS
So far 235 bodies have been recovered from the ruins of the 12 farm towns that were closest to the center of the quake. But scarcely a day goes by without another body or two being found by teams digging away at the wreckage.

It may be years before all the wreckage is cleared. Three towns—Gibellina, Salaparuta and Montevago—are but piles of ruin on the mountain sides.

In others, like Santa Margherita Belice, Santa Ninfa, Salemi and Poggioreale, most of the buildings still standing are not safe. Nearly all will have to come down.

Every day trucks and bulldozers pick away at the debris. More earthmoving equipment arrives from other parts of Italy. But one month after the quake Jan. 15, the wreckage looks almost untouched, except for pathways cleared through it.

TENT CITY
For the refugees in the countryside, churches and hospitals have been set up under canvas. At the tent city outside Santa Ninfa, social workers have started a kindergarten. But everywhere one hears the same anguished question: "When can we at least move into the barracks?"

Most of the refugees are living in tent camps miles from their homes. Some of the men tried to get to the fields to work, but the distances were too great. There have been no facilities for truck or bus shuttles. The barracks are close to home. There have been more than 115 aftershocks since the disastrous quake, and almost daily new ones ripple through western Sicily.

Palermo and other major cities escaped serious damage, but panic sent a large part of the population pell mell into the countryside.

PANIC
Palermo and other major cities escaped serious damage, but panic sent a large part of the population pell mell into the countryside.

Fearing that one of the aftershocks may wreck the cities, thousands have still not returned. Thousands more who live on upper floors have moved in with friends or relatives on lower stories.

There is still fear of epidemics. When meningitis broke out early this month, there was a run on sulfa drugs. Fights broke out among customers. A black market sprang up.

Many still take daily doses of sulfa pills despite warnings in the press that this could be harmful.

SCHOOLS CLOSED
The meningitis fears closed Palermo's schools. They have not reopened. Adding to the tension is a growing fear that once the immediate suffering is alleviated, western Sicily—already the poorest part of the island—will end up even more impoverished because of the quake.

An estimated 15,000 persons have quit the disaster area for other parts of Italy. Thousands have already found jobs in the north.

On Feb. 14, all the labor unions of Sicily stopped work for two hours to call attention to their demand that something dramatic and comprehensive be done to help western Sicily and the rest of the island toward a better way of life. The weather is the only bright spot in the situation. Spring has come suddenly. The bitter cold, the snow and rain that beset the stricken zone in the days after the quake have been replaced by sun and warmth. The fields around the ruins are filled with daisies and mimosa in bloom.

By the end of the month barracks outside Gibellina, Salaparuta, Montevago and Santa Ninfa should be ready for refugees.

ers know, he said, that "all they have to do is pick up the phone" to request special equipment.

Training has been broadened. Several hundred Army National Guard and police officials are taking week-long special courses in riot control at Ft. Gordon, Va., home of the Army's military police.

In addition, the Army has supplied Guard units with detailed riot training plans. These include lessons learned last summer in Detroit, Newark and other cities.

Before summer, Army inspectors will personally review units "in critical areas"—those where the potential for violence is greatest.

The Army established at the Pentagon last December a 13-member Special Civil Disturbance Board. The National Guard Bureau beefed up one of its sections and renamed it "The Special Office for Military Support to Civil Authority."

This office has 227 full-time staffers scattered throughout the nation.

Besides maps and menus, detailed tactical planning includes selection of routes into urban situations, assembly points and buildings where troops can be housed.

MAPS, MENUS
There also has been "preplanning for air delivery" of the equipment, Greenleaf said. Local National Guard command-

Filing Deadline For City Election

Filing deadline for the city commission election will be Saturday, March 2, according to Charles H. Smith, city secretary. City commissioners have set the election for Tuesday, April 2.

Terms of Mayor Arnold Marshall and commissioners Walter Stroup and Jimmy Morehead are expiring.

"All qualified electors, those who have resided for one year in the State of Texas and for six months in the City of Big Spring are eligible to serve as commissioners," Smith said. Filing will be with the city secretary's office.

Absentee voting will be held March 13, which is 20 days prior to the election, and will close March 29, three days before. Absentee ballots will be available in the city secretary's office.

Five polling places and the judges have been designated. These include the Central Fire Station, Fourth and Nolan Streets, L. R. Mundt; Eighth and Main Fire Station, George Melear; Eleventh and Birdwell Fire Station, Lawrence Robinson; Northside Fire Station, Andrew Tucker; and Airport Fire Station, C. R. McClenny.

Magazine Board Adds Texas Prof

BEAUMONT (AP)—William H. Matthews III, professor of geology at Lamar State College of Technology, has been appointed to the advisory board of "Science and Children" Magazine.

Matthews has been earth science consultant to the magazine for several years and has served as editor of two special issues.

Filing Deadline For Trustees Set

The first of filing deadlines comes up Friday evening when the list for Howard County Junior College trustees will be closed. Mrs. Horace Garrett and K. H. McGibbon, incumbents, have filed for places. Mrs. Garrett will be seeking to fill the place filled by her late husband.

200 Return Home After All-Clear

LAMISON, Ala. (AP) — Some 200 residents of three small central Alabama farming communities fled their homes late Wednesday night after a Southern Railway freight train derailed and the highway patrol issued reports that deadly cyanide gas was escaping.

However, troopers later reported the gas had not escaped and residents were permitted to return to their homes. State troopers sent to investigate the wreck discovered two tank cars loaded with highly volatile hydrocyanic acid sitting atop a burning trestle amid the wreckage.

EXPLOSION
They launched an immediate investigation of this tiny community fearing that the trestle would collapse within a half hour.

A trooper spokesman said that 20 minutes later, "There was one terrific explosion, and the whole area lit up."

"We really got to evacuating people then."

However, two chemical experts from the Du Pont Co., arriving on the scene from Nashville, Tenn., determined the explosion had occurred in a natural gas-laden car and not in the potentially lethal cyanide compound. Some six hours after the evacuation began troopers permitted residents to return to their homes.

A close check of the cyanide cars showed that they had not ruptured and that none of the lethal gas had escaped. It was first reported the trestle had collapsed, but troopers later said it was still standing.

Memphis Faces Fresh Trouble

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A modest late winter snow was both a blessing and a nightmare today as a showdown approached in the Memphis garbage strike.

Mayor Henry Loeb and 1,300 striking sanitation workers faced a confrontation as neither side gave sign of yielding in an angry four-day-old dispute.

The threat of a showdown mounted after Loeb declared Wednesday that if work was not resumed today, "We will immediately begin replacing those people who have chosen to abandon their jobs and their rights."

Union leaders have said they would not allow the garbage to be picked up by strike breakers.

Police in every area were alerted to stand by for trouble. And National Guard officials conferred with Loeb.

Snow, which began falling Wednesday night, was welcomed in hopes that it would cover the mounting heaps of rubbish and keep down the stench.

But the prospect of icy streets brought compounded trouble since sanitation crews double since spreaders during bad weather.

HINTS FROM HELOISE Get Terry Garments In Larger Sizes

Dear Folks: It seems that using toweling for play and lounging garments is all the rage now. Really there's nothing like it, especially for stuff to wear around the house but...

chicken is one of the less expensive meats. Whole chickens usually sell for far less-per-pound than ready-cut fryers and every few pennies count. After I was married, I discovered that it was one thing I had neglected to learn. My husband got a good laugh out of the first chicken I cut up. He said he could recognize the drumsticks and wings, but the rest was "just-guess-what?"

Dear Heloise: In order to get bread to rise quickly for baking, plug in your electric heating pad, turn it on low, then set the pan of dough on it. This worked great for me, especially when I was in a hurry. Betty D.

LETTER OF THOUGHT A little hint which makes the work a lot lighter for both husbands and wives is for each of them to say, I love you and Thank you — morning, and night. For some special reason or just for no reason at all! It really helps! Pat Johnson

Dear Heloise: As I was cutting up a chicken this morning, I got the idea to write you. Will you please tell all prospective brides to learn to cut up a chicken before they get married? This is very important to a bride because most of us are on a fairly strict budget and...

Another thing is that in different parts of the country they cut 'em up different. My mother always had a pulley-bone, which we all took turns about eating! You can't buy 'em today. Where did that idea go? Remember making those wishes? Heloise

A LOVELIER YOU

Hiding Heavy Knees? Pare Off That Fat!

By MARY SUE MILLER

Not long ago, heavy hips were the big figure problem. Now it's heavy knees. The emphasis shifted when the fashion spotlight turned on the knee. Hippleness now seems of secondary importance—compared to kneeliness.

If you are unhappy about the shape your knees are in, get to work on the following routines. Trim, smooth contours soon result.

- 1. Kneel on floor with feet and legs together; sit on heels and, bending forward, place hands flat on floor directly in front of knees. Now briskly raise and lower hips 10 times. Relax and repeat twice. Throughout, work for a rolling action in knees. 2. On floor, stretch out on right side with left leg atop right leg and pressed to it. Keeping knees together scissor kick feet using short, quick motions. Work for one minute. Then turn onto left side and continue. 3. Sit on edge of straight chair with feet on floor and together. Place a small, firm cushion between knees. Repeatedly squeeze cushion with knees—hard—for 25 counts. 4. Practice keeping knees flexed—slightly bent—when you stand and walk. Practice until action becomes automatic. Flexing trims knees and keeps them trim. It also increases your figure's grace.

Write Mary Sue Miller, in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Pushers Invade Chief's Home

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Marijuana peddlers have invaded "some of the finest homes in Brownsville, San Benito and Harlingen," police chief Gus Krausse told a citizens meeting Wednesday night.

Krausse, speaking at the Newman Center of Texas Southmost College, said the "marijuana crowd"—including those who sell the weed—has been associating with high school and college students.

He even found some "pushers" at a teenage party held in his home, the police chief said.

CLOSE CONTACT
The meeting to discuss the marijuana smoking problem in this border city was organized by the Rev. Jon Bourg, chaplain of the Newman Center. It was attended by an overflow crowd of teenagers, parents, teachers, law enforcement officers and physicians.

At the conclusion, mayor Tony Gonzalez said he would ask the city commission to appoint citizens, including some teenagers, to study the situation and propose remedies.
U.S. Atty. Homer Lopez pointed out the penalties for marijuana smoking and possession, calling marijuana smoking "a serious problem."

"Find out who your children are associating with and where they are going," Krausse urged. "You can send them to church and to school, but you need to keep in close contact with your children."

"We live in a border city and we must face the marijuana problem and do something about it."

RIDDLED BODY
Marijuana smoking came to public attention as officers investigated the slaying of a Texas Southmost College student. They took statements from 27 persons linking at least 64 individuals between 12 and 21 to such usage.

The bullet riddled body of Arthur Ziegelmeyer III, 20, of Fort Worth was found in an irrigation canal near here Jan. 30. No arrests have been made but Krausse predicted there will be.

"We know who did it—we just have to connect some missing links," he said.

"A lot of people have been trying to convict this dead boy (Ziegelmeyer) of something," Krausse said, "but he was just an innocent victim."

Dean Refuses To Resign As Directed By Trustees

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Texas Southmost College Dean W. T. Poulos, claiming the college's board of trustees told him he had fulfilled his "usefulness" said Wednesday he would not resign.

Poulos told a news conference he had been told Monday night to resign effective immediately or have his contract terminated. Poulos said the trustees told him they had no personal or professional charges against him.

'TOO BUSY'
"I will not resign my position as dean of Texas Southmost

Trustees To Meet

Big Spring school trustees will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the board room to discuss contracts of administrative and supervisory personnel and to discuss miscellaneous reports by Supt. Sam Anderson. Tuesday's regular meeting was cancelled due to the weather.

College," Poulos said. C. S. Eidman, chairman of the board of trustees, said he had not heard of Poulos' statement and said he was "too busy" to talk with newsmen.

Eidman, a Brownsville lawyer, said he had been "bombarded" with questions from the news media. "I have got clients in my office right now, so I hope you will understand my position," he said.

'VERY POOR TIME'
Poulos, a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University, said he had heard unsubstantiated reports that he was asked to resign because Paul Bogart, who is to become president of the junior college Aug. 31, had appointed a dean.

"I have served this college and community well and I consider it unfair and unjust that some persons have tried to damage my personal and professional reputation," Poulos said in a prepared statement. Poulos said he felt the board's ultimatum came "at a very poor time."

Salt Water Hikes Fishing Prospects

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Salt water in the vicinity of intense industrialization may actually increase fishing prospects, says Marshall Smith, biologist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Smith said test nets were set recently in the Tule Lake area of Corpus Christi's harbor. Many believed that the water was so polluted in this highly developed area that no fish life could exist.

However, Smith said, the nets produced many fish including small tarpon, trout up to seven pounds and redfish weighing 16 pounds or more.

Ex-Alabama Governor Chooses Running Mate.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Presidential candidate George C. Wallace has chosen as his temporary—or maybe permanent—running mate a former Georgia governor who was championing states rights, advocating segregation and criticizing the Supreme Court long before Wallace.

FORMER PUBLISHER
The former Alabama governor tapped weekly newspaper Publisher Marvin Griffin Wednesday as the man whose name will be paired with him on the ballot of several states which require that vice presidential candidates be named well ahead of time.

The "temporary" tag attached to the Griffin candidacy was not detailed, but Wallace is considering an independent convention and such a convention, if held, might decide to name a vice presidential nominee to pair with Wallace.

"He (Griffin) may well be the vice presidential candidate,"

Wallace said. But he said the main problem now is getting on the ballot of as many states as possible.

"I have agreed to lend my name to Gov. George Wallace as a vice presidential candidate in order to help him in meeting some of the procedural requirements in several states," said Griffin, mentioning Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Nebraska and Virginia.

"I'm on the ticket with George Wallace, and I'm for him," the 60-year-old publisher said.

CARPETBAGGERS
A review of Griffin's statements over the years reveals numerous political viewpoints which would put him in the Wallace camp.

In 1946, Griffin as a candidate for lieutenant governor urged that Georgia retain white Democratic primaries to "save this state (Georgia) from the CIO and carpetbaggers."

In 1954, he announced as a candidate for governor with the charge that the U.S. Supreme Court wants racial intermarriage and pledged to "protect and preserve" school segregation.

In 1956, Griffin, as governor, called for an all-out war against both major political parties, charging they "are trying to see which can sink the knife deepest in the back" of the South.

In 1961, he said, "The Negro may be forced to legislate himself into our schools and churches. But this will be of little benefit to him because he cannot legislate himself into the hearts of the people who know him best."

Be Sure When Buying Insurance

Be sure of what you are buying, the Big Spring Life Underwriters advises individuals responding to mail-order insurance.

In many instances, misleading and deceptive practices have been employed in solicitation of sales. The Federal Trade Commission recently completed a study which revealed a number of abuses in which insurance was sold by mail or other printed promotional material sent by mail. Most of the abuses were primarily in the accident and health insurance field, but there were some life insurance solicitations.

The Underwriters passed on these FTC guidelines in appraising solicitations:

"Implying that insurance policies to parents of servicemen is being made available by the United States government; implying that such insurance to veterans has been endorsed or approved by the U.S. government and is being offered at 'government' rates; representing that policies are 'guaranteed renewable'; using terms as 'medicare' or representing that the policies are in some way connected with the government's medicare program; failing to disclose limitations or restrictions in the policy which prevent the insured from recovering losses sustained under the policy; failing to disclose that premium rates may be increased at some other period of time; using well-known names in the industry or such terms as 'certified' and 'seal of approval.' A careful examination of the company, the agent and the policy should always be made, said T. A. Thigpen, president of the local underwriters. He said the association would be happy to interpret fairly any policy individuals might consider. The association will provide guidance also in channeling complaints which individuals might have.

SBA Seeking Recruits For SCORE Program

Are there retired or semi-retired businessmen in the Big Spring area who believe in American free enterprise enough to help others succeed at it? If so, the Small Business Administration wants to get in touch with them as possible recruits for its SCORE program. Contact can be made with M. T. Klein, Federal Building, 1616 19th Street, Lubbock.

SCORE is the abbreviation for Service Corps of Retired Executives, whose ideas, know-how, brains and experience are being made available to small business operators over the country. These volunteers, who serve without fee and help in many fields such as retailing, production, sales, plant management, and even in the professions, have grown to 3,000 in number over the country since the program was established in 1964. SCORE volunteers catalogue their own talents, elect their own officers and deploy their own services in cooperation with SBA. In most instances SBA plays only the contact role between a businessman and a volunteer. The volunteer counselor visits the small businessman in his operation for on-the-spot observation and analysis. If he doesn't think he has the answers, he may ask other SCORE experts to have a look. This assistance is usually available to employers of 25 or fewer people. They need not be in trouble to qualify; if they have a problem or worry a counselor may be able to help with it. Right now, the need in this area, said Klein, is to obtain a listing on retired or semi-retired men who made a success of their businesses.

The program will follow supper which will be served in Fellowship Hall at 7 p.m. The Rev. L. B. Edwards, pastor, extends an invitation to all men and boys to attend. C. E. Ranne is local president.

WESTBROOK (SC)—The Rev. C. W. McDonald, pastor of Payne Chapel C.M.E. Church, will be speaker for the Westbrook Baptist Brotherhood tonight. He is secretary-treasurer of the ministerial alliance.

Dear Abby

—ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Happy Home, Happy Husband

DEAR ABBY: My husband is not what you'd call "handsome." He's middle-aged, a little on the flabby side, and he's losing his hair. But he's a bus driver, and Abby, I don't think you know how crazy some women are for bus drivers. It must be the uniform, because the women fall all over George like he was a Marine captain or something. George says that most of the women on his run are mental cases. They have tried to tip him, give him their phone numbers, and they fight for the seat right behind the driver so they can blow on his neck. One lady even PINCHED him.

Should I ask George to get into some other line of work? Or should I let him stay on that bus with all those crazy women?

GEORGE'S WIFE: DEAR WIFE: Men who meet the public (in uniform and out) will be tipped, tempted, and even pinched occasionally. Give him lots of love. And trust him. If a man is happy at home, he won't know Sophia Loren from Phyllis Diller.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who has two adopted children. They are cute, but very spoiled. This friend seems to think just because her children are adopted it's all right to brag about them all the time.

She starts out with, "I can brag about my children because they really aren't mine," then she goes on and on telling you how smart they are, and how beautiful, too, until you just want to scream.

Abby, I was taught that it was bad manners to brag about your own, but do you think because children are adopted and their parents had nothing to do with how smart and good looking they are (bloodwise, that is) it gives them the right to brag, brag, brag? And have you any suggestions for shutting this lady up?

READY TO SCREAM: DEAR READY: No one has the "right" to bore others with talk of his or her children, be they adopted or otherwise. If you are a good friend, you could shut her up by tipping her off. But if you can't tolerate her, avoid her.

DEAR ABBY: When my son was living at home he was so fussy about his shirts if there was a little wrinkle in the collar he'd throw it back in the hamper for me to do over.

Well, he's married now, and you should see what he's putting up with. His wife never washes anything unless everything is dirty and they need something clean. I've seen her wash one shirt out in the kitchen sink, and then press it on the kitchen table, right over egg shells and crumbs and so forth.

Believe me, my son wasn't raised like this, and it kills me to see it. He never complains, and you never hear a cross word between them.

Can a man forget this early training so soon? How can I teach this sloppy girl to keep house properly?

STATEN ISLAND: DEAR S. I.: If she asks you to teach her, teach her. But don't volunteer. As long as your son is happy, close your eyes and let your mouth follow suit.

FOR TOMORROW

—CARROLL RICHTER

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning brings difficulties unless you maintain an attitude of charm and affection so that others realize you are really fond of them but then the afternoon and the evening find you able to do down with those you like or with whom you have any dealings to reach a new workable arrangement. Be cooperative.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Show associates that you are devoted to them and gain their further good will. Buy like, this can prove to be a happy day or evening for you. Be content to be in the company of more colorful and interesting persons who can make living worthwhile.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Cooperate more with co-workers instead of going off on some tangent somewhere, as you are limited to do. Take time to purchase some new item or accessory that will make your wardrobe more modern. Be wise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you join with consensuses in pleasures they do not approve of, instead of listening to others' theories. Keep busy all day with business, also. Evening is a around here and there. Don't waste so good time for the romantic.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do whatever will make your home more attractive and comfortable, a place where others will like to come. Make it charmingly colorful. The addition of a piano, other music, would be fine.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show partners that you are pleased with the association by some overt act, gift, etc. Labor more happily with them and accomplish more, having dinner together in p.m. would be a charming gesture.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Think over what you really desire from others and then put your plan in action in a positive and practical way. Confer with experts in business, etc. Gain whatever is vital to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be sure that you dress elegantly early and be out calling on others who can help you to advance in life. Rid yourself of inhibitions. You should do something about some other drawback as well, and new.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find out exactly what is behind some situation you do not approve of, instead of listening to others' theories. Keep busy all day with business, also. Evening is a him or her, to be very precise, but upon maturity the nature becomes more human, more cooperative with others. Social life ceases and much prosperity is possible, success in chosen field, and marital happiness is indicated to a marked degree.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show good points that you support them and will gladly carry through with their worthwhile plans, as they wish, in p.m. you need the backing of another. Be it charmingly colorful. The addition of a piano, other music, would be fine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use a more clever system for gaining the respect of higher-ups who are important to you and can help you to advance. Put in a good day's work, too. Then out in the evening to the social places you enjoy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to be systematic and tactful in carrying through with promises made or you could get into trouble, but p.m. is fine for new outlets. Get into scientific, educational matters. Find your right element.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Better keep busy of your work during a.m. and then be sure to confer with associates tonight. Don't trust your hunches during the day, but let your see every thing in its proper perspective. Be calm, poised.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN tomorrow... he, or she, will be one of those persons who will want everything around

OFF THE BEATEN TRAIL

'Hanging Tree' Info Requested

By ED SYERS
Sure as they'll shortly bud springtime green again, little stirs you more than do our trees.
There seem no wooded bounds to your suggestions for our State Forestry Service's upcoming picture-booklet of Texas leafy notables. From an old scrapbook of San Antonio's Mrs. U. S. Cross, herewith a list of several which have not yet been related.

These, she calls Austin's 'Auction Oak'; Camp Wood's 'Highway Sentinel'; the San Antonio River cypress from which a sharpshooter fired on Ben Milam's men, storming to Veramendi House in 1835; Medina Battlefield's (near San Antonio) 'Sentinel Oak'; the 'Sam Houston Oak' near Gonzales (where the General began his retreat to San Jacinto); and the Bandera County 'Hanging Tree.' She is not sure all are there now. Also we need stories to accompany the names.

Another San Antonian, Mrs. Robert E. Herold, for example, expands a little on the Bandera galls tree: "My grandfather 'Dave' Wharton told my father that this tree near the county line on the Kerrville - Bandera road once hanged five to eight outlaws. I do not know the date; my father is now 75, and my grandfather was 92 at his death."

From the Cross list, we can assume the Medina oak, near Losoya, witnessed the terrible 1813 massacre of Mexican-Anglo revolt from New Spain. You wonder, however, what was auctioned at Austin and what guarded, at Camp Wood on the upper Nueces.

ANOTHER HANGMAN
"Does anyone know the story of the 'hanging tree' that stood on an old stage road just east of Robinson and south of Waco, off U.S. 77?" asks Waco's LeRoy Walker. "The hanging must have happened back in the '80's. The large post oak used to shade the road in the '20's, and its stump was there in 1945 when an old-timer pointed it out to me."

"When you were on All-Dale's 'Talk of San Antonio' (Radio WOAI)," says New Braunfels' Mrs. Ted Schoch, "there was a question of how far east the madrone trees (copper-smooth-limbed, often called 'Naked Indian') grows in Texas. They are abundant around Startzville on the south side of Canyon Lake." She knows none east of that line.

QUESTIONS
Now, New Braunfels' Mrs. Schoch, having located madrones for us, has two inquiries, and they're tough: "To identify an old photograph, which knows where there was 'Wheless and Harper - Photographers'?" and "Regarding the Battle of the Nueces, July 15-16, 1839 (last stand of the Cherokee and East Texas tribes) northwest of Tyler, is there any list of Texas casualties? State archives show nothing; the doctors' reports cannot be located. Also are there markers on the battleground? (Note: Two markers; need help on casualty lists.)"

Robstown's Mrs. L. R. Lehman (Rt. 1): "Where can I purchase the book 'Nine Years Among the Indians,' copyrighted by Maurice J. Lehmann, edited by Marvin J. Hunter. (Von Boeckmann - Jones, Austin, 1927)?" ... Tyler's Mrs. Homer J. Ellis: "How can I locate the book, 'Dusty Trails,' which OBT recently quoted?" (Note: Look for poignant 'Trail Dust' by Douglas Meador, Matador Publishing Co., Matador, 79244.)

Troops Play 'Hide, Seek'
VIETIANE (AP) — Laotian government troops skirmished with Communist North Vietnamese attackers Wednesday morning around Saravane, in southeastern Laos. Laotian military sources reported.

Two Laotian outposts were attacked and the government forces moved out of their positions which were not entrenched. The two forces are engaged in a perennial shifting game of "hide and seek," the sources said.

The area is about 50 miles east of the Vietnamese border and roughly parallel to Da Nang.

Government traffic into Saravane is mainly by air, although some civilians still get through by road from Pakxong and Pakse. The governor of Saravane province and all civil servants remain on duty in Saravane, but some officials have evacuated their families.

ANTON, Tex. (AP) — The weekly Four County News here has been sold to Bob and Velva Johnson of Shallowater by Bill and Nancy McCleskey, owners of the newspaper since April.

The Johnsons also are owners of the Shallowater Star and have combined the newspapers in a community publication named "The Star."

MRS. CARROLL DAVIDSON

Family Shares In Fun, Work

By RHODA LEMONS
"Sharing" is the word that best describes the life of the Carroll Davidson family which resides at 1002 Baylor. There are four children; Lynda, 20, a junior at University of Texas; Barbara, 19, a freshman at Howard County Junior College; Jimmy, 15, an eighth grader at Runnels Junior High School; and Tom, 11, fifth grader at Moss Elementary School.

Davidson is manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Davidson is employed as bookkeeper at the Bill Reed Insurance Agency. Lynda works during summers as a lifeguard, and Barbara edits the Megaphone page at the Big Spring Herald and works on Sundays at Holiday Inn. Jimmy works and young Tom is the only family member who is not gainfully employed. Housework is shared by Barbara and Mrs. Davidson. Barbara often cooks dinner for the family while Mrs. Davidson has a sewing project going. She makes almost her entire wardrobe and all of Barbara's. Lynda makes all her own clothes and gifts her mother and sister with lovely handmade purses or dresses on their birthdays or at Christmas.

Mrs. Davidson has a large freezer which she utilizes well. She buys groceries in large quantities and large sizes, thus making several meals from one cooking project. Mrs. Davidson plans her evening meal the night before and cooks a large breakfast so that her family can be fortified for the day. If she prepares a roast, she will use the leftovers for hot beef sandwiches, soup, stew or just cold slices of beef.

Mrs. Davidson cleans the house thoroughly on Saturdays, and she and her daughter keep things tidy during the week. The Davidsons entertain infrequently and usually on a spontaneous, informal note. Mrs. Davidson feels her home is rather small for large-scale entertaining so they plan more intimate get-togethers with friends. Davidson's job entails a great deal of socializing, and he and Mrs. Davidson both enjoy this part of his work.

The Davidsons share in their fun, too. One of the family's favorite recreations is skiing and during the past weekend, they were on the slopes at Ruidoso, N.M., enjoying the sport. The children accompany them on these expeditions if they can get away at the same time.

Also, as often as they can get away, the family rents a plane and flies to Omaha, Neb., to see her father who resides there. This trip is not made often and the entire family goes along. Davidson is the pilot, and Mrs. Davidson said that she had never actually taken the controls, but she admitted that if she had to, she felt that she could land the plane.

Mrs. Davidson loves antiques, and her home is decorated with many attractive pieces. Her favorite collection is old dishes and plates which she finds much "prettier" than those that are being manufactured today.

The family has varied work hours, and schedules must be "juggled" by Mrs. Davidson to keep a well-run home. However, with everyone contributing his share in the work and in substituting for one another when the occasion arises, the Davidson family is proud of one another's accomplishments and feels a part of each other's successes and failures.

Mrs. Davidson likes to read and play bridge whenever she can find the time.

Cheese Is Better If Warmed-Up

A 20 minute "warm up" at room temperature. Did you know that is the secret to serving cheddar cheese at its peak?

To store cheese safely, you must keep it in the refrigerator. However, just as soon as it is chilled, cheese develops "refrigerator inertia," losing some of its flavor and remarkable texture.

The 20-minute warm up re-activates the flavor and texture, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture cheese graders. They use this technique to determine the grade of the cheese.

Cheddar carrying the U. S. Grade AA mark is the highest quality. It has a fine, highly pleasing cheddar flavor, a smooth compact texture, uniform color and attractive appearance.

U. S. Grade A cheddar cheese is also good quality with a pleasing flavor. However, there may be a slight variation in flavor and texture between packages.

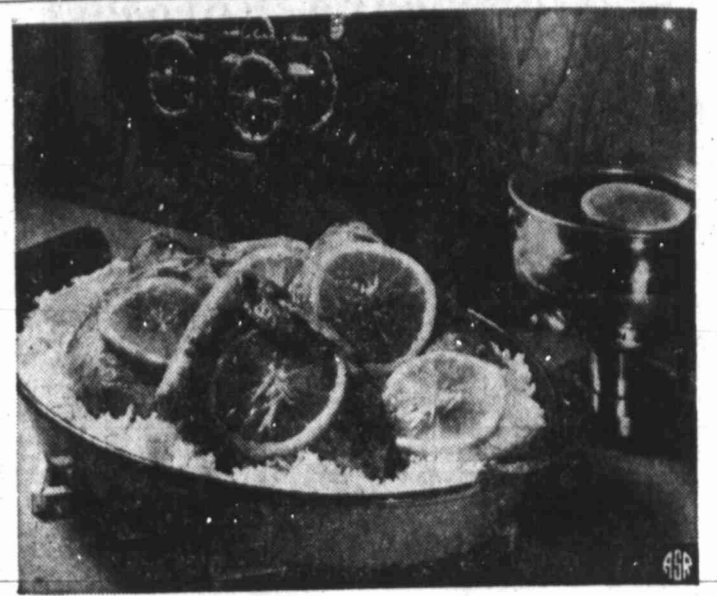

Plants producing federally graded cheese must undergo more than 100 checks based on USDA requirements for facilities, equipment, milk supply, operating procedures and packaging.

What do you call cheddar cheese?

In some regions it is called store cheese, mousetrap cheese, crackerbarrel cheese and rat cheese. But in the trade it is commonly known as American cheese or American Cheddar cheese.

Regardless of name, it is so popular that cheddar cheese accounts for more than 80 percent of U. S. cheese output.

Current stocks of cheddar cheese are above average, so it is listed as a February plentiful food by the Consumer and Marketing Service.

ZESTY CHICKEN CUMBERLAND
Made with orange juice and jelly

Try Unusual Method Of Preparing Chicken

Chicken Cumberland is a delicious dish that combines little money with lots of good taste.

Cumberland sauce is a traditional blend of orange juice and currant jelly; here it's spiced with ginger, mustard and minced onion. Fresh, juicy oranges give the sauce its sweet, rich flavor. As they're high in natural vitamin C and chicken is a low calorie, high protein food, this is a nutritious as well as economical entrée.

Cumberland, the north-westernmost county of England, was the ancient seat of a long line of English dukes originally created in 1525, and for which a number of dishes have been named.

Regardless of name, it is so popular that cheddar cheese accounts for more than 80 percent of U. S. cheese output.

Current stocks of cheddar cheese are above average, so it is listed as a February plentiful food by the Consumer and Marketing Service.

Pour over browned chicken; cover and reduce heat. Simmer until chicken is tender, about 30 minutes. Remove chicken to hot platter. Combine cornstarch with a little cold water and stir into pan liquid; add orange slices. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Pour a little sauce over the chicken and serve remainder in sauce dish. Serve with rice, if desired. Yield: Four servings.

Use Crisp Bacon To Stuff Yams

A little bacon helps vegetables along!

BACON-STUFFED YAMS
4 medium yams
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
6 slices crisply cooked bacon, crumbled

Bake yams in a hot (400 degrees) oven for 15 minutes; continue baking in a moderate (375 degrees) oven for 45 minutes longer or until tender. Cut a slice from the top of each yam; scoop out insides leaving 1/4 inch shells.

Mash yams with butter; fold in bacon. (Taste and add salt if desired.) Return mixture to shells; bake at 375 degrees until heated through — about 15 or 20 minutes. Makes four servings.

Bake one hour and 10 minutes in a well-greased tube pan at 350 degrees. Let cool for 10 or 15 minutes. Remove from pan and pour the following icing over it while still warm.

ICING
1-3 cup margarine
2-3 cup brown sugar
4 tbsps. cream
Melt margarine, add brown sugar and cream. Pour over cake.

MILD BARBECUE CHICKEN
1 3/4 lb. chicken
2 tbsps. shortening
1 med. onion, chopped
2 tbsps. vinegar
2 tbsps. brown sugar
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 cup catsup
3 tbsps. Worcestershire sauce
1/2 tsp. prepared mustard
1 cup water
1/2 cup celery
Salt to taste
Dash red pepper
Cut chicken in pieces. Brown in hot fat. Remove chicken to casserole dish. Add chopped onion to fat and brown lightly. Add remaining ingredients, and simmer 30 minutes. Pour over browned chicken in casserole, cover and bake at 325 to 350 degrees for one hour. Makes six servings. Serve with rice, if desired.

GREEN BEAN CASSEROLE
2 cans French style green beans, drained
1 can mushroom soup and 1/2 cup milk
1 cup onions, chopped

1 can water chestnuts sliced, or almond slivers
1/2 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 can onion rings
Add milk to soup, and add all ingredients except onion rings to beans. Mix in two-quart casserole and bake for 30 minutes in 350 degree oven. Place onion rings on top of casserole during last 10 minutes of baking. If almonds are used, lightly toast in oven before putting in beans.

CRANBERRY SALAD
1 lb. cranberries, raw
2 cups sugar
Pinch of salt
1 cup crushed pineapple
2 pkgs. cherry gelatin
3 cups water
1/2 cup chopped nuts
Grind cranberries and add sugar, salt and pineapple. Dissolve gelatin in water and let thicken. Add cranberry mixture and chopped nuts. Pour in mold and jelly. This is good with meat or poultry.

CHERRY ICE BOX PIE
1 can condensed milk
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup pecans
1 can pie cherries, drained
1 pint whipping cream
Blend milk and lemon juice. Stir until mixture thickens. Fold in cherries and pecans. Whip cream and fold into mixture, and pour into baked pie shell. Chill before serving.

CHILI CON QUESO DIP
1 can tomatoes and green chilies
1 lb. soft processed cheese
Cut cheese and melt in double boiler; drain tomatoes and chop up. Mix with cheese and stir. Use as a warm dip with corn chips or with combination chutapas.

OATMEAL CRISPIES
1 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
2 well-beaten eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cups flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. soda
3 cups quick-cooking oatmeal
1/2 cup nuts or coconut
Thoroughly cream shortening and sugars. Add eggs and vanilla; beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients and then oatmeal and nuts. Mix well. Shape into rolls, wrap in waxed paper or foil and chill thoroughly. Slice into one-fourth inch thick slivers and bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Makes five dozen cookies.

UNBAKED COOKIES
2 cups sugar (1 brown and 1 white)
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup milk
3 cups uncooked quick oatmeal
6 tbsps. cocoa
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cup nuts, chopped
1 cup coconut
Combine sugar, shortening and milk in saucepan. Bring to a boil, and cook for three minutes. Put all other ingredients in a bowl and pour boiling mixture over the mixture and stir until blended. Drop from a teaspoon on waxed paper.

BANANA BREAD
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening
1 tsp. salt
2 eggs
3 tbsps. sour milk
1 cup mashed bananas (about three)
2 cups flour
1 tsp. soda
1 cup nuts
Cream first three ingredients. Add eggs, milk, bananas, flour, soda and nuts. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. You can either use a greased loaf pan or green bean or corn cans, filling them two-thirds full. They will rise to the top and, when sliced, are more attractive for entertaining.

COLE SLAW
1 head cabbage, shredded
2 bell peppers, cut fine
1 large onion, chopped fine
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup corn oil
1/2 cup vinegar
Salt and pepper to taste
Mix all ingredients. It will keep several days covered, and tastes better the day after it is made.

Fit Dough Loosely To Make Pies
To avoid having the pie crust shrink in the baking, fit the dough loosely to the pan. Never stretch it. It is a good idea to fit loosely and let it set for a few minutes before crimping the edge to be sure that it has not been stretched. Chilling before rolling helps to prevent stretching.

BARBECUED BEANS, SAUSAGE
Tastes good on a cold evening

Serve An Old-Fashioned Supper In Front Of Fire

The evening is cool with a crisp hint of winter in the air. It's a good time to light another fire of the season, and gather the family round for a homey, old-fashioned supper.

And what could be more appropriate in the feature spot on the menu than tangy Barbecue Beans and Sausage?

For all of its "yesteryear" aura and flavor, this dish is in the most up-to-date context, thanks to the convenience of canned barbecue beans. As the starter for this recipe, a can of barbecue beans provides four kinds of plump, tender beans, simmered in a tangy tomato sauce, ready to heat and serve. You add savory sausage balls and whole kernel corn, for color and flavor contrast. It's that simple... and simply delicious.

You may want to keep several cans of tasty barbecue beans on hand for the hearty but speedy suppers that ease busy fall schedules. And families really go for that robust, fresh-off-the-fire barbecue flavor.

Complement Barbecue Beans and Sausage with a tray of crisp relishes, and buttermilk muffins, (from a packaged mix). Dessert might be a warm fruit compote, and hot coffee.

BARBECUE BEANS AND SAUSAGE
1/2 lb. bulk sausage
1 can (1 lb.) barbecue beans
1/2 cup whole kernel corn, drained
Shape sausage into eight balls. In saucepan, cook until done; pour off fat. Add beans and corn. Heat; stir now and then. Makes two to three servings.

Tasty Tempters To Whet Appetite

A post-holiday tempter in a casserole has layers of pared, sliced apples with cooked or canned sliced sweet potatoes. Top with sliced smoked pork shoulder roll (butt) or sliced Canadian-style bacon. Since all food are cooked, except apples, use a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes for heating a 1 1/2-quart casserole.

Meaty Shortcake is another treat. Bake cornbread in a round layer cake pan and serve with creamed luncheon meat on top and in between layers.

PANTRY PICK-UPS

Pitted Bing cherries, shelled almonds and cherry flavored gelatin combine to make a delicious crunchy molded salad.

For even slices of corned beef hash, chill the hash in the can. Cut top of can completely away with can opener; cut away bottom of can but leave round of metal in place. Press against the metal round and empty hash; cut hash into four slices.

Either fresh or dry bread crumbs may be used in making a tuna or salmon loaf; but choose a recipe that specifies the particular kind of crumbs.

Cooked flaked fish leftover? Use it in hash! A generous seasoning of black pepper helps the flavor of this dish.

Know how to freshen rolls on top of the range? Put them on a wire rack in a heavy Dutch oven. Cover the oven and place over very low heat for just the time it takes the rolls to get warm.

If you use a breadbox, don't forget to wash it once a week. Dry the inside of the box thoroughly and allow it to air before using it again.

There are various methods for removing the outer shell and inner brown covering from chestnuts. Some cooks like to slit each nut, then plunge into very hot oil for a few seconds. After cooling, the shells and covering are removed and the nuts cooked until tender in salted water.

Ever team canned kidney beans with canned tomatoes for a vegetable dish? Season as you like — with minced onion, brown sugar or chili powder.

Have you ever tried using a swivel-blade vegetable peeler when you want to remove the outer covering from green peppers?

Use custard cups or muffin pans when you want to make individual meat loaves. Or if you have miniature loaf pans, used in making fruit cakes, bring them out to hold the meat mixture.

Ground cumin or cuminseed may be used in making chili con carne.

Rosemary tastes good as a seasoning for lamb, it also — surprisingly enough — complements potatoes.

Cook a few extra strips of bacon and crumble to use as a topping for scrambled eggs.

Government Travel Hikes Uncle Sam's Dollar Drain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government, which wants to tax American tourists to stem the dollar drain, is financing millions of dollars worth of travel abroad without safeguards against foreign carriers getting the money.

MYSTERY
Precisely how much money is involved is a mystery, even to the government.

Officials of the Treasury Department and the Bureau of the Budget conceded they don't know how much the government spends on foreign travel, directly and indirectly. Thus, they have no way of knowing how many dollars may be draining into the pockets of foreign airlines instead of staying home with American carriers.

Government employees are required to use U.S. airlines wherever possible for foreign travel and congressional travelers try to do the same so transportation dollars won't flow abroad.

But requirements and enforcement are spotty in some areas of government-financed travel and nonexistent in others, such as returning Peace Corps men, government contractors and fellowships winners.

$3 MILLION
The Peace Corps alone spends $3 million a year to get its volunteers back to the United States at the end of duty tours.

But it does not make travel arrangements — it merely gives the returning volunteer the cash to buy a tourist-class airline ticket home. The volunteer can travel as he pleases.

A Peace Corps official said the agency had made no study of how its volunteers return or where they spend the money.

The Public Health Service and National Institutes of Health together provide several hundred fellowships or other grants each year for training of Americans abroad and for training of foreign students and scientists in the United States.

These agencies reimburse for eigners eight cents an air mile for travel, and do not require them to ride with U.S. carriers although, a spokesman claimed, "most of them seem to."

Americans traveling abroad with such financing also get eight cents a mile and buy their own tickets.

The National Science Foundation paid out $100,000 in 1967 for foundation fellows to travel abroad. It, too, furnished eight cents an air mile and the traveler purchased his own ticket.

GOOD QUESTION
Fellows are told to take American carriers where possible. They must report on a form their method of travel and give a reason if they did not use an American carrier.

The Department of Defense does not restrict its contractors' choice of carriers for air passenger travel abroad. U.S. law requires government contractors to use U.S. carriers for ocean shipping and for air shipment of household goods and personal effects, but there is no mention of air passenger travel.

The Defense Department awarded $2.8 billion for prime contract work abroad during fiscal 1967. A spokesman said a breakdown of costs showing how much was devoted to contractor travel is not available.

A spokesman for the State Department's cultural exchange programs said he would "be surprised if a vast majority" of travelers under the programs don't travel on U.S. carriers.

A breakdown of travel costs under the $45 million exchange program is not available, he said.

"No one ever asked for one."

Back To Work
Harry M. Hite, left, and Edwin A. Burkhardt, — as they say they've done for 16 months, sat with nothing to do yesterday in their office in a State Department annex building. Later the State Department said new assignments would be found.

Claims 'Heads Should Roll' For Demoting Truth Tellers

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 16 months of inactivity, two State Department employees start new jobs today following congressional charges they had been punished for telling the truth.

In announcing that Harry M. Hite and Edwin A. Burkhardt would begin new assignments, the State Department said the switch in jobs had been in the works "some time."

BANISHED
Just a few hours before that announcement, several Congress members charged Wednesday the men were banished to idleness for testifying before the Senate internal security subcommittee in the controversy surrounding Otto F. Otepka, former chief security evaluator for the State Department.

Otepka was fired despite the subcommittee's protest after his superiors at the State Department accused him of giving classified documents to the subcommittee's chief counsel, J.G. Sourwine. Last December Secretary of State Dean Rusk acting instead that he be demoted, reprimanded and reassigned. Otepka is continuing his appeal for full reinstatement.

TORTURE SYSTEM
During the subcommittee's hearings on the Otepka case, Hite and Burkhardt were on Otepka's staff. Now, the State Department said, Hite's new job is as personnel and contract manager for the new supply and transportation division, while Burkhardt is a personnel security evaluator in the employment division.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., of the internal security subcommittee told the Senate Hite and Burkhardt were quarantined in a remote corner and left without work for 16 months in what he called a "new type Chinese torture system."

He said subcommittee members were "outraged at the cruel and inhuman punishment being meted out against these men because they dared to testify truthfully."

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., said the men were isolated solely because they testified in the Otepka case.

Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, told the House: "Heads should roll" for the way Hite and Burkhardt were treated.

and there were even editorials in important newspapers, all asking me not to do it. They said that 39 had become a symbol of youth and determination for many people, and they wanted me to stay 39.

TOO LATE
"Well, it was too late to drop the show, so we went ahead and showed it. But then we dropped it, forgot it and I went back to being 39."

Benny wears his calendar years lightly. He maintains his enthusiasm for his music and for playing in concerts. He practices the violin for a couple of hours daily, even when he is away from his Los Angeles home. And he works constantly over his comedy material.

Jack discussed the current use of controversial topical material and the injection of risque material into comedy routines.

He is the acknowledged master of timing, and his own style is built around the stinky, vain and somehow lovable character he has been playing for more than 30 years.

RISQUE MATERIAL
"I've never gotten laughs by zinging anybody else," he said. "There is a rapport with an audience, and you've always got to be careful not to spoil it. With an audience it is important to be especially careful with the first couple of jokes. Hope has his way, and I have mine, which is usually getting into things by explaining why I happen to be on stage or why I'm doing a TV special."

"It's a strange thing about risque material," he continued. "Occasionally there may be something that might be considered risque in material I might use in a night club—never on TV, of course. But critics are always writing about how clean my material is. I've got a hospital thing that I do that certainly might be considered risque, except that when I'm talking, it is about how much all these things cost, and everything else seems to slip by unnoticed."

Benny, in his only special of the year, will share honors with Lucille Ball, Johnny Carson and "a cute singing group that you have to put in shows these days for the kids in the audience."

39-Year-Old Benny Films Comedy Special

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television - Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The world's oldest 39-year-old man—or perhaps its youngest 74-year-old—had a birthday Wednesday, but he was much too busy to pay much attention to it.

"I say I'm 39," said Jack Benny with mock severity. "And anything else you want to guess is entirely up to you."

LIKES TENSION
Jack was stopping over briefly in New York, en route from a concert with the Boston Symphony to a night club date in Miami. He will be one of the guests stars next Sunday in an NBC special saluting his hometown of Illinois, and he recently finished shooting a special comedy program to be shown on March 20, also on NBC. He is now busy polishing up some material for use during a four-week engagement in April at New York's Waldorf Astoria.

Even after a half century in show business, he still prefers the tensions and excitements of the theater.

"A few years ago when we were doing the television series we had a show in which I was finally going to celebrate my 40th birthday," Jack recalled. "Before we got it on the air, we started getting all sorts of mail and there were even editorials in important newspapers, all asking me not to do it. They said that 39 had become a symbol of youth and determination for many people, and they wanted me to stay 39.

TOO LATE
"Well, it was too late to drop the show, so we went ahead and showed it. But then we dropped it, forgot it and I went back to being 39."

Benny wears his calendar years lightly. He maintains his enthusiasm for his music and for playing in concerts. He practices the violin for a couple of hours daily, even when he is away from his Los Angeles home. And he works constantly over his comedy material.

Jack discussed the current use of controversial topical material and the injection of risque material into comedy routines.

He is the acknowledged master of timing, and his own style is built around the stinky, vain and somehow lovable character he has been playing for more than 30 years.

RISQUE MATERIAL
"I've never gotten laughs by zinging anybody else," he said. "There is a rapport with an audience, and you've always got to be careful not to spoil it. With an audience it is important to be especially careful with the first couple of jokes. Hope has his way, and I have mine, which is usually getting into things by explaining why I happen to be on stage or why I'm doing a TV special."

Pancake Event Slated Friday

It had better be a nice night Friday and there had better be a lot of hungry pancake fanciers on hand.

Otherwise the Big Spring Kiwanis Club will be a little overstocked on such staples as choice bacon, fine flour, syrup, butter and the like.

The 16th Annual Kiwanis Club Pancake supper is set for Friday from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Howard County Junior College SUB.

Pete Hull, who is the man in charge of supplies, completed his shopping Thursday.

His grocery list included such items as 350 pounds of bacon, 300 pounds of flour, 150 gallons of milk, 45 gallons of syrup, 30 pounds of butter. Other ingredients which go into the recipe for pancake batter are on the list along with paper napkins and other material needed for the supper.

Roscoe Newell, president of the Big Spring Kiwanis Club, said that Walt Davis, ticket sales chairman is waging a campaign to get the club members to step up the advance ticket sales.

He also pointed out that tickets will be available at the door of the Student Union Building on Friday night.

The club is moving in the half dozen specially designed electric pancake grills it owns and getting all machinery ready for the supper.

Noel Reed is general chairman in charge.

Tickets are 75 cents each and holders are entitled to all of the pancakes, bacon, butter, syrup, coffee or milk they want.

A club was led to the ace and when the queen came up from East, South's jack became established as a winner. When East showed out on the next lead; however, West's ten was revealed to constitute a stopper.

'Plaza Suite' Hits Jackpot

NEW YORK (AP) — A top-notch laugh riot, "Plaza Suite," premiered Wednesday night at Broadway's Plymouth theater.

The show is another jackpot for that suave pair of boxoffice champions, playwright Neil Simon and director Mike Nichols. And a comic triumph for two players usually identified with serious drama, Sharron Stapleton and George C. Scott.

Three playlets concerned with marriage and maybe romance are set in a luxury apartment of Manhattan's noted inn with no link beyond the cheeky Simon-Nichols skill at inventing droll predicament.

The whole thing is as significant as last week's weather report, as substantial as a soufflé. Whenever a hint of more than the superficial sneaks in, off we go on wild gag tangent or bit of hilarious stage business.

Rounding out the precision assets are sharp little vignettes by the trio of supporting performers. Claudette Nevins, Bob Balaban and Jose Ocasio; Oliver Smith's smart setting and the attractive costumes provided by Patricia Zipprodt, particularly for Miss Stapleton.

The reservation desk is going to be busy for a long while at "Plaza Suite."

Whoop Crane Kill Costly
HOUSTON (AP) — John Harold Hamilton, 42, of Arlington, has been fined $500 after pleading guilty to killing a whooping crane.

Hamilton, part owner of a machine supply company in Dallas, entered the plea Wednesday before U.S. Dist. Judge Woodrow Seals.

The crane was shot Jan. 4 near the Aransas Wildlife refuge. It was rushed to a veterinarian at San Antonio but was dead on arrival there.

Hamilton said the shooting was accidental. He said it occurred while he and some friends were hunting snow geese on the Gulf Coast near the refuge.

The rare cranes winter at the refuge. Forty-four of them were counted there in the 1966-67 winter season.
