High Court Refuses To Hear Blue Law Case

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court refused today to consider a Sunday blue law case from Midland on the grounds the state did not file the appeal in time.

The court did not rule on the constitutionality of the controversial state law that says certain items may not be sold on both Saturdays and Sundays.

The technicality of the appeal not being filed in time kept the court from ruling directly on the Midland court's action which held the law was unconstitutional because it was vague and uncertain.

The Midland case was brought by Gibson Distributing Inc. and others who challenged the legality of the 1961 blue law. Several district attorneys filed briefs in the case as "friends of the court" when the oral arguments were heard on Nov. 6.

After the Midland ruling a San Antonio district court made a similar decision, dismissing civil injunction suits against four corporations operating eight San Antonio discount stores. The Bexar County district attorney said he would make no attempt to enforce the law until the state supreme court ruled on its legality.

A district court hearing is scheduled in Austin Thursday on a case in which a store was "sold" to another operator late Saturday night and then rebought by the original owner on Monday morning.

Flees With Baby

FORT WORTH (AP) — A woman dressed in brown and who has "moles or speckles" on her face was sought today after a 4-week-old baby was reported taken from Peter Smith Clinic about 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Nancy Ann Lovel told police she, a daughter and her sister were in the waiting room of the clinic when a woman started a conversation with her.

The woman, described as about 27, with short, bushy hair pulled back on her head, offered to hold the child while the mother used a telephone.

TO FILE APPEAL

Speck Gets Stay

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard Speck, convicted slayer of eight young nurses, has been granted a stay of execution to permit his counsel to file an appeal to the Supreme Court.

The Illinois Supreme Court granted a stay Tuesday for the peck-marked drifter who was sentenced to die in the electric chair for strangling or stabbing the student nurses in a south side townhouse dormitory July 14, 1966.

The execution date had been set for Jan. 31 by the Illinois court after he turned down an appeal by Gerald W. Getty, the Cook County public defender. Getty submitted Tuesday an affidavit declaring his intent to ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review Speck's case.

Three Die In Road Crash

AUSTIN (AP) — Three persons died in a three-car accident early today on US 87 northwest of San Angelo near Water Valley, the Department of Public Safety reported.

The DPS said the dead were identified as Paul Wilburn Swanson, 60, San Angelo, driver of one car; Edgar Alonzo Lawhon, 48, Odessa, driver of a second car, and Juanita Robinson Lawhon, Odessa.

Lloyd Ellis Bradley, 56, Midland, driver of the third car, was injured but reported in good condition later at a hospital.

Packwood Still Ahead

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — With seven counties remaining in the Oregon recount of U.S. Senate votes, Sen. Wayne Morse had 72 fewer votes than he did in the November election count.

His opponent, Republican Robert Packwood, had 123 fewer.

State Blanketed By Weather Variety

Variety was the word in Texas weather today with snow falling in the Panhandle-Plains section, light rain coming down in Central Texas, dust in Far West Texas and a tornado watch issued for northeast and north central portions of the state.

As moderate snow sifted down in West Texas at mid-morning, the Weather Bureau issued a tornado watch for portions of East Oklahoma and Northeast Texas. Twenty-four Texas counties were involved.

Counties included Clay, Collin, Cooke, Dallas, Denton, Ellis, Fannin, Grayson, Henderson, Hunt, Jack, Kaufman, Montague, Navarro, Parker, Rockwall, Tarrant, Wise, Delta, Hopkins, Lamar, Rains, Red River and Van Zandt.

The threat of tornadoes was to exist in the areas until 5 p.m. with the additional possibility of severe thunderstorms, large hail and locally damaging winds.

In the Panhandle-Plains area temperatures were mostly in the mid-20s as the snowflakes fell. Indications from official observers were that one to two inches would accumulate as the snow band moved northeastward.

Meanwhile skies were mostly cloudy over the rest of the state with scattered light rain being reported in Central Texas.

A little snow mixed with blowing dust occurred around El Paso, but was too light and temperatures were too high for it to stick on the ground. Winds gusting up to 50 miles per hour at that Far West Texas city.

Heavier falls of the downy flakes were reported across the state line in New Mexico.

The latest cold front was moving toward the southeast and was expected to reach the coast by night, touching off showers briefly as it passed. Temperatures ahead of the front were in the 50s and 60s.

Clearing and colder weather was promised all sections of the state by Thursday. Temperatures were expected to drop overnight as low as 17 degrees in Northwest Texas, 25 in the southwest, 28 in the north central portion, 32 in the northeast and the upper 30s to 40s elsewhere.

Long range forecasts, covering the period through next Monday, held out a prospect for much as 15 degrees below normal in North Texas and 10 below in South Texas.

The new siege of wintry weather moved in after a day of almost balmy weather over much of the state. Readings ran as high as 79 degrees at Brownsville and Laredo. Texarkana's 57 was the lowest maximum Tuesday.

Predawn marks today ranged down to 23 degrees at Perryton and 24 at Amarillo in the Panhandle. At the same hour it was still 67 at Corpus Christi, McAllen and Victoria, and 72 at Brownsville.

'SANTA, DROP DEAD' Calls Jolly Elf A Ho-Ho Phoney

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — "Dear Santa, drop dead," says a Methodist minister who thinks the jolly symbol of Christmas is getting too much publicity.

"Santa's omnipresence from before Thanksgiving has gone beyond the bounds of even mythic decency," the Rev. Dr. John H. McCombe Jr., head of the Hendricks Chapel at Syracuse University, said in his Christmas sermon.

HO-HO PHONEY

Santa Claus, Dr. McCombe said, "is a ho-ho-phoney whose jingle is the bell of a cash register," and because of him, "many people are ready to overhaul their observance of this midwinter bash."

"Overexposure, I guess you'd call it," the minister said. "His picture is everywhere — literally. Stores, shops, billboards, churches — even a funeral parlor. How much is too much?"

Dr. McCombe, a past executive secretary of the American Bible Society, who has been at Syracuse for one year said members of his own family had reassessed their own Christmas-time practices and found that they "felt miles away from the main event at the manger."

"The jolly old elf has become a pest," he said, "as have his legions of 'helpers' in red baggy pants with their banging, begging bells."

STRIPPED DOWN

"So last year," he continued, "we stripped Christmas down to its faith, streamlined its festivities and kept Santa in his place."

"Instead of a quarterback sneak into the living room and a mad scramble to intercept packages, we went into a prearranged huddle in the dining room that included prayers, carols and the reading of the Christmas story from the Bible."

It was, Dr. McCombe said, "the best holiday ever."

Go-Go Girls Win Law Suit

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Superior Court Judge John F. Crane ruled Tuesday night that a local ordinance banning the go-go girls was unconstitutional.

"Dancing is a form of expression," Crane said, noting that the 1st Amendment to the U.S. Constitution protects freedom of speech, and he said dancing is a form of symbolic speech. He said the ordinance also violated the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

FBI Arrests 31 In Phoney Draft Deferments Scheme

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI arrested 31 persons today — all but one of them residents of the Chicago area — in what it called a "Selective Service scheme which resulted in illegal draft deferments."

The FBI said four other persons are being sought in the case. One of the arrests was in Miami Beach, Fla.

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, said the arrests early today were the result of "an extensive investigation by FBI agents and involved three individuals who were fulltime employees of the Illinois National Guard.

Hoover said the scheme involved phoney documents submitted to local draft boards "indicating that various Selective Service registrants were members of the National Guard when in fact they were not such members."

He said "these fictitious documents resulted in the registrants being granted illegal deferments."

Hoover said those arrested today will be brought before a magistrate. Conviction on the charge could result in sentences up to five years in prison or fined $10,000 or both.

Among those arrested were Willis Everett Vivian, about 49, a full time employe and captain in the National Guard; Willy Britton Jr., 37, and Ben L. Cleveland, 51, both fulltime employes and sergeants in the Illinois National Guard.

Agents Lead Search For Kidnaped Girl

By LAURA FOREMAN Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Where is Barbara Jane Mackle?

That question went unanswered today as federal agents led a nationwide search for the 20-year-old coed kidnaped from her sickbed at a motel near the Emory University campus.

The whereabouts of her multimillionaire parents was not known publicly, as officials — both local and federal — refused comment on the case.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Robert F. Mackle of Coral Gables, Fla., told De Kalb County police that Barbara was kidnaped about 4 a.m. Tuesday by a young gunman and boy accomplice, about 12.

TIED UP

Mrs. Mackle said she was held at gunpoint, chloroformed and then tied up by the boy while the daughter was taken from the motel room clad in her nightgown.

Mr. and Mrs. Mackle, members of a nationally prominent land development family, were last seen about 16 hours after the abduction was reported. Accompanied by FBI agents, the Mackles were riding in a car about the terminal area of the Atlanta airport.

"I don't think there's any reason to think anything will happen in the next few hours," said a De Kalb police captain wearily as the first 24 hours of the investigation drew to a close.

BARBARA MACKLE

Neither police nor federal agents reported any leads in the case.

An Emory official said Barbara had been ill with the flu or a similar ailment for several days and had been staying with her mother at the motel in northeast Atlanta.

The father, secretary-treasurer of Deltona Corp., a $65-million homebuilding business in Miami, entered Mrs. Mackle's motel room with another man about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. The couple left the motel at 7:12 p.m. and drove to the airport.

An FBI agent, Jack Keith, said the couple would spend the night where they could get "some rest, a little peace and quiet."

Mackle, 56, and his brothers, Frank Jr. and Elliott, pioneered the building of large, pre-planned communities in Florida.

The Mackles have a number of real estate holdings, including the Key Biscayne hotel, a long-time favorite hideaway of President-elect Nixon.

Police said they had no ransom note. But Detective Capt. J. L. Smith said Mrs. Mackle was "told what to do."

REFUSED

Classmates of the dark-haired, willowy coed refused, for the most part, to discuss the case. "It won't do any good," one girl said. "I'd really prefer not to talk about it."

Former classmates at Everglades School for Girls in Miami's Coconut Grove section recall Barbara as a shy, studious girl who was "very warm when you got to know her."

The missing girl, who is 5-feet-10 and weighs 120 pounds, was president of her senior class and valedictorian.

Flags Join Table Shape As Block To Peace Talks

PARIS (AP) — The Saigon government's peace negotiators were reported today to have made another proposal that the Communists are sure to reject, raising the prospect of more delay in the start of the Vietnam peace talks even if the delegations ever agree on the shape of the conference table.

FLAG WAVERS

Diplomatic informants said Pham Dang Lam, the nominal leader of the South Vietnamese delegation, had proposed to the U.S. delegation that only the United States and North and South Vietnam be allowed to display their flags and name plates at the enlarged peace talks.

The proposal would deny these sovereignty symbols to the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, the fourth delegation that is to be at the talks, on the ground that it is not a government. Since Hanoi and the NLF contend that the Front is the only legitimate representative of the South Vietnamese people and that the Saigon government is an American puppet representing no one, the Communists are certain to insist on full status for the NLF just as they have in the dispute over the shape of the conference table.

The informants said the Americans have not submitted Saigon's flag nameplate proposal to the North Vietnamese in the private meetings that the men from Hanoi and Washington hold to discuss conference procedure. The American negotiators reportedly warned Lam that Hanoi might offer to meet without any flags or nameplates, a move which could be dressed up as a major concession although in fact, it conceded nothing of significance.

PRESTIGE

Meanwhile, the shape of the table remains the major prestige issue blocking the start of the expanded peace talks.

Flu Epidemic Now Rates As 'Disaster'

By The Associated Press
The American Red Cross calls the nationwide influenza epidemic a "disaster situation," and the health commissioner in the hardest-hit city—New York—predicts it will be even worse there by New Year's Day.

Health Commissioner Edward O'Rourke estimated Tuesday that 500,000 New Yorkers—one in every 16—had recovered from the flu in the past two weeks.

O'Rourke said 300,000 persons were currently in the most critical stage of the disease. And he predicted that the city's epidemic would peak during the first week in January, probably around the start of the new year.

Meanwhile, reports of outbreaks of respiratory illnesses including Hong Kong flu continued to come from all sections of the country.

The Red Cross asked its chapters to provide workers and supplies to hospitals, schools and nursing homes. Hospitals throughout the country restricting visits in order to avoid exposing patients to the flu virus. Many public schools and colleges were closing early because of high incidences of respiratory disease.

Nineteen Big Springers Take Orientation Tour

Nineteen Big Spring business and civic leaders boarded a T-29 on the Webb AFB flightline this morning, headed for a three-day visit to Patrick AFB, Fla. The trip is another in a series of Air Force orientation tours scheduled annually throughout the years by Webb wing commanders.

Last year, a similar civilian group visited the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., and the headquarters of the Air Training Command at Randolph AFB.

Included in the Patrick AFB trip will be a tour of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's facilities at Cocoa Beach, Fla., for a visit to the Air Force Museum, the Titan III launch area, and the John F. Kennedy Space Center, NASA.

Five Webb officers are also making the trip, serving as official military escorts and hosts for the occasion. Col. William C. McGlothlin, Webb wing commander, Col. Chandler B. Estes, air base group commander, and Capt. Jack Buchholz, chief of services, accompanied the group in flight.

Capt. Robert Gobbie, training officer in the 3561st Student Squadron, and Capt. Owen Wormser, chief of information, departed earlier in a T-38 in order to prepare for the group's arrival. The plane is expected back at Webb at 4 p.m., Friday.

Warnings Of Heavy Snow For New Mexico Issued

Snow, freezing drizzle and rain overspread a large part of the midcontinent today and posed a hazard to motorists in an eight-state area from the Rockies through the Mississippi Valley.

Travelers warnings were in effect from Wyoming and New Mexico into Illinois as a growing storm system over the southern plains crept toward the Midwest.

FREEZING RAIN

Warnings of heavy snow were issued for portions of Wyoming,

Nebraska, Colorado and New Mexico, with an additional two to five inches expected. Snow ranged northward out of New Mexico as far as the western Dakotas.

Light snow, freezing rain and sleet pelted an area that extended eastward into Illinois and Tennessee. Rain dampened sections of the country south of the sleet and snow belt.

Rain also soaked the Pacific Northwest and spilled inland as snow in the mountains as a new

Nixon Hints Time Ripe To Ratify Atom Treaty

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon is said by a U.S. diplomat to have suggested he may soon signal that he believes the time has come for the Senate to approve a treaty to control the spread of nuclear weapons.

But officially, the Nixon position is unchanged—and vague. U.S. disarmament negotiator William C. Foster was quoted Tuesday as saying Nixon had told him the time may shortly be ripe for American action to ratify the treaty.

ACTION

Foster made that comment to a newsman after Nixon visited the United Nations and chatted with U.S. and foreign diplomats at a half-hour reception.

The American negotiator was quoted as saying he found the Nixon view encouraging. But he also relayed word that Nixon was not committing himself now to any timetable for action.

Foster told one of the few reporters permitted to attend the U.N. reception, that Nixon had said the time may or may not be right for action now or in the immediate future.

One ranking American diplomat, who asked that his name not be used, said he doubted whether there could be action on the treaty before President Johnson leaves office and Nixon takes over on Jan. 20.

During his presidential campaign, Nixon said U.S. ratification of the treaty should be delayed because of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia. He endorsed terms of the treaty.

In Washington Monday, Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen said after a meeting with the President-elect that he supports the treaty and its swift ratification and is prepared to vote for it if it comes up prior to the inauguration.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press aide, said the President-elect was taking no public position on the issue now, even to the extent of reaffirming his campaign statements. "Mr. Nixon will not be stating positions between now and Jan. 20," Ziegler said.

Nixon went to the United Nations with his secretary of state-designate William P. Rogers and said the visit indicated "our continuing support of the United Nations and our intention in these years ahead to do everything that we can to strengthen this organization as it works in the cause of peace throughout the world."

Tuesday Nixon announced his appointment of Dr. Herbert

Stein to be a member of the Council of Economic Advisors. Stein has been senior fellow of the Brookings Institute in Washington, D.C.

The President-elect also named John C. Whitaker to be his Cabinet secretary. Whitaker, a Washington businessman, was in charge of scheduling appearances during the Republican presidential campaign.

Price Of Gold Up, Dollar Dips On Foreign Exchanges

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold shot up to a six-month peak on European bullion markets today on the basis of speculation that President-elect Nixon's administration may raise the official price for the metal.

Successive American governments have fiercely resisted any increase above the $35 an ounce the United States has been committed to pay since 1934. But the refusal Tuesday of Treasury Secretary-designate David Kennedy to commit himself to defend the present official gold-dollar rate was taken by bullion dealers and speculators as a hint of changing thinking in Washington.

The price of gold jumped 60 cents at the morning fixing in London and 50 cents in both Zurich and Frankfurt. The London free market price was $41.825, the highest level since June 12, when it reached $41.90. It was $41.70 in both Zurich and Frankfurt.

In Paris an ounce of gold jumped from $43.59 at Tuesday's closing to $44.28. Over-all volume amounted to the franc equivalent of $3.3 million, up $865,000 from Tuesday. The all-time high for an ounce of gold in Paris was $45.36 on July 5.

London dealers said turnover was small. Demand was extremely heavy, but sellers were hanging on for a still higher price.

The dollar moved downward on all European foreign exchanges. In London, the pound moved up to $2.38535 from Tuesday night's closing $2.3850.

In Zurich the dollar was quoted at 4.2952 Swiss francs against Tuesday's 4.2957, in Frankfurt at 3.9983 marks against 3.9988, and in Paris 4.9490 francs against 4.949375.

Shortly after the initial high opening in the Zurich market, the price of gold climbed a further 1 1/4 cents to $41.825 an ounce. An estimated five tons of metal changed hands in the first two hours, far above normal turnover but still below the crisis level of last March.

A Zurich banker said much of the demand for the metal was coming from France, apparently in fear of renewed social unrest there. "Demand is very heavy and owners are hanging on to their gold waiting for a higher price," he said.

British commentators were critical of Kennedy's news-conferences remarks about gold. He said he felt he should not "make statements that will cause speculation one way or the other" and that he wants all the flexibility he can get in dealing with the gold issue and other problems.

Rules Close Oklahoma Meat Packing Plants

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Strict new state and federal standards have caused 15 or 16 Oklahoma meat packing plants to close down, but as many as 18 are enlarging their operations, a state Agriculture Department official said Tuesday.

"They have voluntarily quit operating, but we haven't forced anyone out of business," said Dr. John W. Holcombe, veterinarian chief of the agriculture department's meat inspection division.

"We just told them what the new requirements are and they made their own decisions," he said.

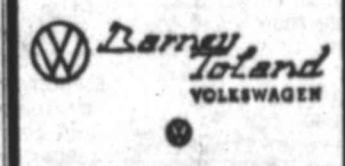

He said 15 to 18 plants have begun new construction, mostly enlargements, because of the new regulations.

"Most of these have outgrown their facilities and overcrowding was part of their sanitation problems," Holcombe said.

The Oklahoma Legislature adopted new meat inspection regulations in March, becoming the first state in the nation to draw up its own laws to match

Haggins Sets Trends

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — If Jon Haggins had been born 10 years ago, perhaps even five years ago, this story might have been different. Indeed, it might never have been told.

It's not so much that Jon is a Negro, although this fact could have stilled his career then more than today. Jon is the new breed in a changing American fashion world.

He is a NAME, a prestige label in chic stores and smart boutiques. Women brag about having his designs on their backs.

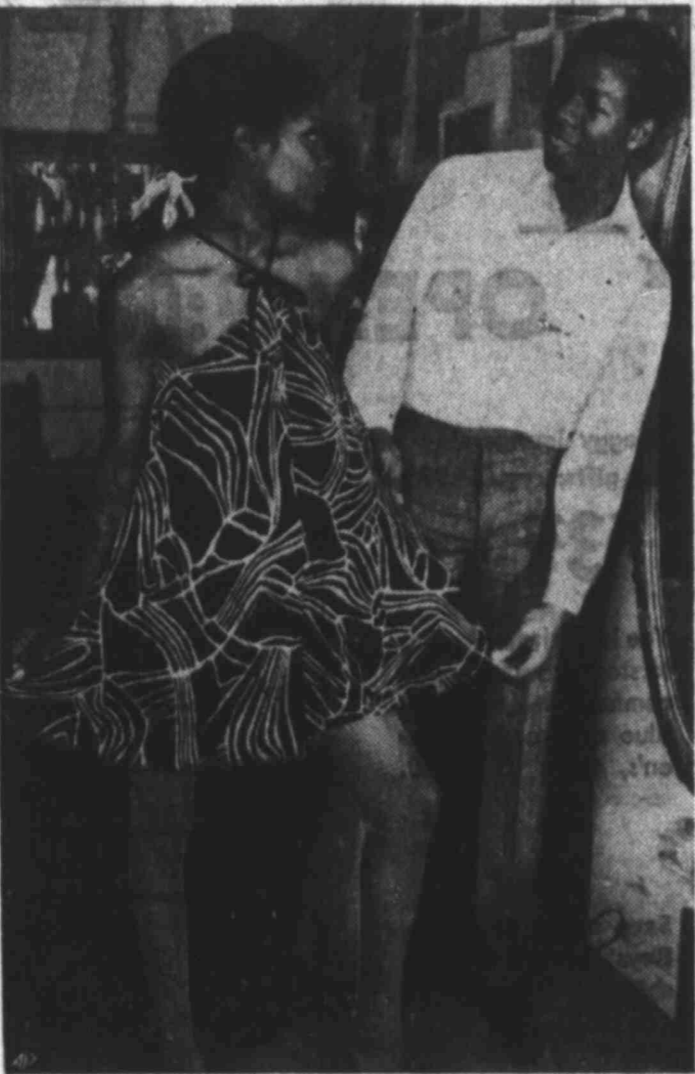

Yet, were they to trace the thread that leads from their labeled creations to its source, they would not find Jon perusing at an aluminum drawing board, or busily pinning in a fitting room, while barking orders to his obedient coterie in a carpeted, Danish modern office with glass walls and fluorescent ceilings.

Instead there is a rangy, young dimpled lad, bounding enthusiastically around a tiny, crowded apartment in an ultra-modern building. Bent over their stitching near the window to catch the fading afternoon light are his production crew, a young man and woman. One hems lace binding in a flamboyant print, the other applies a band of color on a wild black tent dress. The ironing board is up in a kitchen where the sink is cluttered with coffee cups. The walls are covered with paintings by Jon and his friends, and press clippings. The room itself is taken up with bolts of fabric, a sawed off round table, a drawing board, a couch and chair.

COLLECTION
On a rack by the window are his collection — two dozen geometric or floral printed dresses. Here — not fancy showroom — is where fashion magazine editors, prestigious store buyers, and select private customers view his line.

"I've got to find some place else," sighs Jon stepping into the kitchen alcove to perk a pot of coffee. "I've got to separate my private life from my work more."

Up to now though he has not been very successful at that. By day he designs those flat bodied, sometimes tie-shouldered, multi-pleated minidance dresses. By night he is

Tied On And Zipperless

Jon Haggins, who hates closures in clothing, examines this black and white geometric print tied around the neck of model, Myrna.

out with Myrna, a longtime model friend, who tests his designs in local discotheque.

Jon is a phenomenon of this age because, though famous, he has escaped riches.

"When it's a choice between paying the phone bill and buying a bolt of fabric, I have to buy the fabric," is his explanation in case you can't reach him by phone someday.

His fame came fast, considering his mere 23 years. After graduation from a New York design school, working short and not particularly successful stints with a men's wear manufacturer and a blouse company, he stitched up some creations and took them to show to a slick magazine editor.

"Gerry, you've got to see these dresses. They're so young. So fresh," the editor later exuded on the telephone to the president of a well known New York store. Gerry did and Jon had his first important buyer. Others followed suit.

WON RAVES
Soon trade publications and columnists began to rave about his new importance as a trendsetter. This couldn't have happened yesterday when the couturier and the big ready to wear manufacturers were all-powerful.

"Today, the really chic women are haunting the boutiques and the specialty shops for apparel that is really individual," said one editor. "These individualist designers have more influence on style-conscious women than the big boys."

Jon Haggins' timing on the fashion scene has been perfect.

Moreover, he'll probably never be a big executive in a swank Seventh Avenue suite.

"I hate bigness," he says. "I only want to make limited editions, never any more than 25 of the same thing, and these so scattered the owners won't run into each other."

With all this, Jon's dream is for another kind of fame, a kind that will give him more of an excuse for making the night scene.

He plans to be a pop singer.

Show Pretty Legs This Fall Season

Maybe you're not wearing mini-skirts and not the type to decorate your knees, but if you are of the feminine gender it's certain that plenty of your legs will be showing this winter.

Bared, painted, decorated, fishnetted or conservatively stockinged, legs must be well groomed — and that means first and foremost, free of hair or stubble.

Shaving still seems to be the most popular method of defuzzing, but it should be done with a sharp new blade and your mind on the subject at hand. Models, who usually have to shave their legs every day, shorten the time by combining the shaving and softening operation. They simply apply baby oil to the legs and shave. This eliminates the need for a shaving cream or soap, and softens the legs at the same time. Every woman's legs are dry and need constant creaming or lotioning to prevent scaling and flaking.

The new leg make-up goes on evenly, and stays and stays! The quickest most efficient way to remove it is with baby oil. Leg makeup gives a smooth stockinged look and hides any tiny broken blood vessels — and who can question how young it feels to have bare legs.

Members' voices were recorded and evaluated.

Mrs. Gerald Wooten presided and announced that Mrs. Ron Moser's recipes have been submitted for the BSP cookbook contest. Mrs. Jerry Snodgrass reported on the chapter taking cookies to Bennett House.

The chapter will be in charge of decorations for the BSP Valentine Ball slated Feb. 8.

Gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served. Holiday decorations were used throughout the entertaining rooms.

Miss Parks Honored At Shower

Miss Laura Parks, bride-elect of Russell McEwen III, was complimented with a lingerie shower Friday in the home of Mrs. Herman Smith, 2702 Rebekah.

The honoree was attired in a blue plaid dress accented with ruffles at the sleeves and neckline. She was presented a corsage of lemon leaves, as was her mother, Mrs. Wendal Parks, and her fiance's mother, Mrs. Russell McEwen Jr.

The refreshment table was laid with a red linen cloth and centered with a white feather arrangement flanked by red tapers and twin angels. Crystal and silver appointments completed the setting.

The hostess's gift was lingerie. The couple will marry Dec. 27 in the First Christian Church with the Rev. John Beard officiating. Approximately 20 attended.

Mrs. Tom Rosson, 108 Lincoln, was hostess Monday for a joint meeting of Mary Martha Circle and Homemakers Class of First Christian Church. Members donated $30 to be divided among the Christmas Cheer Fund, Big Spring State Hospital children's clothing fund and Salvation Army. A Christmas basket will be presented to a local needy family.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have a suit I bought on sale that I just love, except the buttons just didn't do a thing for it.

Today I cut some small pieces from the side where I had to take it in, then covered the buttons and sewed them on. Those two self-covered buttons make the suit look like it cost at least 10 dollars more!

I had an extra button, so I covered it and fastened it with a tiny safety pin inside the jacket where it wouldn't show.

Now, if the cleaners lose one, I have a spare. Or if I lose one when I'm wearing the suit, I can take out the extra one and pin it on with the little safety pin.

I'll bet a lot of gals have clothes which might look more expensive if the buttons were changed to self-covered ones. Why don't you take a look-see and try it?

When I am covering buttons for a suit or dress which I am making, I always cover an extra one in case of damage or loss. Deanna D.

Dear Heloise: When I defrost my refrigerator, I use a plastic drain tray that goes on the sink under the rack for draining dishes. This almost covers the whole top shelf of the refrigerator.

By putting a square plastic dishpan on the next shelf UNDER the end where the tray drains, there is absolutely no drip in the bottom of the refrigerator when the defrosting is finished. Eileen T.

It works! Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Yesterday I was wrapping a gift for my boss.

When he noticed my way of folding the cellophane roll tape together so that it was sticky on both sides, he suggested I tell you about it.

I simply cut off as much tape as needed and stick one end over the other. The result is a circle with the adhesive side outward. When this circle is flattened, both sides of the flattened tape are adhesive.

It's a marvelous means for attaching bows and ornaments on packages. Also for attaching gift tags without leaving any tell-tale sign of cellophane tape showing. Marion Mango

Ever tried wrapping the tape wrongside out around a pencil? Makes tiny, easy-to-remove circles for your project. Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I had a few biscuits leftover from breakfast and wanted to warm them for supper. But didn't want to heat up the oven for just those few. So I wrapped them tightly in a piece of foil, turned the lid upside down on the boiling potato pot (use a large pot so potatoes won't boil over) and put the biscuits in the upside down lid. Then put another lid over them to cover them completely.

Result? Hot tender biscuits just like out of the oven. Faithful Reader

Dear Heloise: For those of you who have a lot of gummed labels to put on, or envelopes to seal, and you don't have a sponge, just rub them over an ice cube.

Place the ice cube on a doubled wash cloth and it doesn't slide. Ina M. Waldrop

A LOVELIER YOU

Try Perfect Makeup Suggestions Soon

By MARY SUE MILLER

Those little slips that blur makeup, just when you want to look perfect, can be avoided for the most part. Here's a grab-bag of suggestions:

Point an eyeliner brush, when you want a clean line, by swirling it in the color. So treated, brushes paint on the neatest possible outlines as well as lower lashes.

In this year of the de-emphasized eyebrows, brush-on brow cosmetics do a fine softening job. Dusky gray or light brown are the shades to use.

To simplify the placement of fake eyelashes, draw guidelines on your lids with eye pencil. It's like having a road map. Your color's too high? You can tone it down in a minute with a mint colored makeup stick, topped with the merest filming of your accustomed foundation.

Fatigue lines and little wrinkles respond for an evening to liquid "lifts" and light reflecting creams in stick form. To bring the warm, new look to smiling lips, pearlize your deepest shade of lipstick with overcoat of a pearly, peary shimmer shade. So much the better if it is medicated to keep the lips moist and smooth.

Naturally, you have to have the supplies to make the most of any sort of makeup suggestions, including these. How's your stock? It's still not too late to replace missing items.

LOVELIER COMPLEXION

Whatever your skin problems, to find a solution send for my booklet, A LOVELIER COMPLEXION. Detailed advice contained includes the correct care for dry, oily, combination and normal skin types; proper application methods; treatments for blackheads, enlarged pores, circles, wrinkles, crepiness, etc. For your copy write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin.

Giant 'Cowlift' Hints New Era

FORT WORTH (AP) — A massive "Cowlift" has signalled the beginning perhaps of a new era in the cattle industry.

A sleek new jet with 262 Polled Hereford breeding cattle took off Tuesday for the southern tip of Chile and was due to arrive there early today.

"This maiden flight is not only historic, but it is researching airflights with big shipments of cattle," said Orville Sweet, executive secretary of the American Polled Hereford Association.

"If successful, the flight will open a whole new world in livestock movement."

The flight was arranged by the Hereford Association working with the U.S. Agency of International Development and CORFO, the developing bank of Chile.

The cowlift is designed to help Chilean ranchers develop their beef cattle industry.

Sweet said if the first two test flights were successful, eight additional flights would be made in January and 10 next October, totalling nearly 7,000 cattle.

He said there would be 4 per cent commercial heifers, ranging from four months to nine months of age.

Beeman Fisher, president of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, lauded the airlift as an "eye-opener" for the future of the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

"Almost overnight we'll awaken to worldwide transportation," he said. "This is great for Fort Worth. This cattle airlift could open up something really big for world marketing from this area."

The Regional Airport, which will be the world's largest, is being built midway between Dallas and Fort Worth.

The cowlift aircraft, a $10.5 million jet, is scheduled to return to Fort Worth late tonight for a second flight Thursday morning.

Jim Harris of the American Polled Hereford Association said the total shipment would be the largest airlift exportation of agricultural products in history—a $2.2 million package.

Similarities In Documents Of STSC Prexy, Wife Cited

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) — Two professors using slide projectors cited one passage after another Tuesday in support of their statements that more than half the theses of a college president and his wife were identical.

They conducted a public forum on behalf of 10 faculty members who proposed a hearing on the similarities in documents which qualified Dr. James M. McCrocklin, on leave as president of Southwest Texas State College, and his wife Harriet for advanced degrees.

McCrocklin, due back as head of the college here Jan. 21, has served since his appointment by President Johnson last July as undersecretary of health, education and welfare in Washington.

not believe that after serious reflection any person moved by a sense of justice and good will would wish to try the accused in absentia.

"All we ask is an inch of time—one month," said Dr. Robert Walls. "Why not wait until the man is here?"

"Should we hold the hearing?" Archer asked a standing room only crowd of about 600. A loud cheer of "yea" and applause answered his question.

Archer said Pickle was primarily responsible for the "analysis" of the two papers. It alleged that of the 1,765 sentences in the thesis, the following percentage of the sentences appeared in the dissertation: 51 per cent were identical, 5 per cent were the same except for one word, 3 per cent were the same except for two words and 2 per cent were the same except for three words.

The report stated nine per cent had "more than a three-word deviation" and 29 per cent "did not appear in the dissertation. Many of the sentences that did not appear in the dissertation in the same form, it said, were summaries of several paragraphs in the dissertation or were 'connecting' sentences providing continuity to the discussion."

Pickle also said McCrocklin signed his wife's thesis as a member of her master's degree committee—"he validated her thesis."

"What percentage of the material was reference work and was footnoted?" A student in the audience asked.

"None," Archer replied.

A proposal from a member of the audience that state senior college regents set up a 12-member student-faculty-public committee to investigate the papers was left hanging. Archer said the forum "was not intended to prompt action."

Ex-Strongman Plans Campaign

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Elias Wessin y Wessin, former army strongman in the Dominican Republic, says he plans to return home to launch a campaign for the presidency in 1970.

The former tank commander's return was made possible by the announcement of President Joaquin Balaguer that leaders of the civil strife in 1965 could come home.

Wessin said Tuesday, "I'm desperate to return. My family, at least, will be reunited in our homeland."

that he would be unable to pick up all of East's trumps. He played the queen of spades and then led the queen of clubs. East ruffed with the jack of spades and returned another heart to force out South's last trump. Declarer was left with the six of diamonds, and he was obliged to surrender the setting trick in that suit to West's jack.

If South had taken time at the opening gun to count winners, he could have added up to 10 tricks in a cross-ruff. If he is able to score the ace of clubs, the ace of hearts and the ace, king of diamonds, there is an opportunity to make at least six and perhaps seven trump tricks, separately.

By putting up the ace of clubs immediately, declarer is actually in a position to win 11 tricks on the deal. The ace of hearts is cashed followed by a heart ruff. Next comes the ace, king of diamonds and a diamond ruff. A heart is ruffed with the four of spades and then the remaining diamond with North's king of spades. If another heart is led from dummy, declarer can overruff East with the ten of trumps. He loses two club tricks at the end.

South could have recovered from his failure to win the first trick, if he had continued with the cross-ruff instead of cashing North's king of spades. By trumping out both of his small diamonds, he can score all seven spades as well as the two high diamonds and the ace of hearts.

Woman Will Take Top Job At ICC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Man's world will shrink a little bit more come Jan. 1 when the first woman ever to head an independent federal regulatory agency takes over the top job at the Interstate Commerce Commission.

She is Virginia Mae Brown, a chic, brunette lawyer and banker's daughter from West Virginia.

FIND TIME
The $29,500-a-year job of heading the agency that regulates most of the nation's rail, trucking, bus and barge lines falls to her by rotation.

After a year as vice chairman she succeeds Paul J. Tierney, who remains one of the 81-year-old commission's 11 members.

Mrs. Brown, appointed to the ICC by President Johnson four years ago, puts in an 8-to-5 day with plenty of homework but still finds time for a full family life with her lawyer husband, James V. Brown, and two daughters.

And she's just as much at home in the man's world of transportation.

woman, you have to keep up, be well informed and provide solid accomplishment," she says.

The trim, well-coiffed Mrs. Brown went to work for the state of West Virginia the year she graduated from the state university's law school—1947.

She scored a number of firsts for a woman during her state career becoming executive secretary to the West Virginia Judicial Council, assistant state attorney general, legal counsel to the governor and state insurance commissioner.

Her husband, a college sweet-heart, is in private practice in Washington.

The Browns go to occasional social events but Mrs. Brown says "I don't go if Jim can't go with me. I made that decision when we were married."

She says that she has reached a basic philosophy about her work with the 10 men commissioners:

"If you work hard enough at your job and do the best you can, using your best judgment, you become part of the organization you serve. I feel I can do anything I want if I work hard enough."

Persecuted Jeremiah Could Not Keep Silent

Editor's Note: This is the third in a three-part Christmas series about the Old Testament prophets, who looked forward to a coming Messiah.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

BRUISED, lacerated and high-deep in mud at the bottom of an empty cistern, Jeremiah waited for the end. "They flung me alive into the pit . . . I am lost," says his Book of Lamentations. "Men dogged our steps . . . our days were numbered."

The aged prophet had been beaten and dumped into the deep stone shaft to die, about 588 B.C., for condemning slavery and on charges of treason, as a menace to national defense and security.

DEMANDED

"Let this man be put to death, for he is weakening the hands of the soldiers," demanded the chauvinistic courtiers of Judah's King Zedekiah who had ordered armed mobilization against the Babylonian forces of Chaldeia.

It had become the world's new ominous colossus of the East in 612 B.C., crushing the Assyrian empire which had dominated the area for nearly a century, and in rapid order, making Egypt, Judah and other states subject to it.

Through the vicissitudes of imperial overrule, first by Assyria, then briefly by Egypt and now by Babylonia, Jeremiah for almost 40 years had urged internal moral and religious integrity as Judah's only hope.

"Amend your ways and your doings," he had pleaded, and the nation shall endure blessedly, but otherwise, it

"shall become a desolation . . . a lair of jackals . . . this city shall be burned with fire."

It was an appalling insight, but one that could apply to any desperately sick society plunging into oppression, distrust, strife and dissolution.

CLAMOR

"Behold, evil is going forth from nation to nation, and a great tempest is stirring," the prophet said. "The clamor will resound to the ends of the earth, for the Lord has an indictment against the nations."

His dire portents and attacks on prevailing conditions kept him in continual jeopardy.

"Denounce him!" yelled the mob-patriots. "Let us denounce him."

In his tumultuous career, as related in the books of Jeremiah and II Kings, he was repeatedly threatened with death, and at various times, imprisoned, flogged, pinioned publicly in stocks, forced into hiding, half buried in a well and eventually driven into exile.

"We looked for peace," he said, "but no good came, for a time of healing; but behold, terror."

He was a lonely, solitary figure, unmarried, ostracized by his relatives, sometimes even feeling cut off from the divine focus of his own life so that God seemed "like a stranger . . . who turns aside."

AGONIZED

"O Lord, Thou hast deceived me," he agonized at one point. "I have become a laughingstock . . . a reproach and derision all day long . . . Cursed be the day on which I was born!"

Yet if he considered abandoning his calling to declare God's way for man's fulfillment, he said there would come "in my heart as it were a burning fire shut up in my bones," and he could not hold it in.

"My anguish, my anguish!" he exclaimed. "I cannot keep silent; for I hear the sound of the trumpet, the alarm of war."

But even as he recognized the gathering clouds of doom, he, like the other great prophets, sensed so keenly the unshakable divine attachment to humanity that he knew it must eventually bring a reconciliation.

"Behold the days are coming," says the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the House of Israel and the House of Judah, not like the old covenant . . . Jeremiah wrote, in a passage which Christians see as a foreword to Jesus's coming at Christmas.

"And no longer shall each man teach his neighbor and each his brother, saying 'Know the Lord,' for they shall all know Me . . . I will forgive their iniquity and I will remember their sin no more."

Jeremiah's ministry lasted from about 626 to 586 B.C., in the backwash of the abominations left by the vile King Manasseh, who had been totally subservient to the Assyrians and their barbarous paganism.

DENOUNCING

Denouncing the profligacy, the sorcerers and idolatry, Jeremiah said the city was rotten with graft, extortion from the poor, and innocent bloodshed, "heaping oppression upon oppression, and deceit upon deceit."

A brief reform impulse under King Josiah soon collapsed when he was killed in 609 B.C., in a battle with Egypt's forces, whose Pharaoh Neco dictated Judah's next king, Jehoiakim, an unscrupulous, grasping puppet, bringing back mass depravity.

"The harvest is past, the summer is ended and we are not saved," Jeremiah grieved. "Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there?"

With a crowd of sympathizers, he staged a demonstration outside the city walls, breaking a clay flask into bits to dramatize the fate facing Jerusalem. Then, standing in the Temple inner court, he declared that Judah's debauchery would bring its destruction by Babylon.

An officer had the prophet flogged and locked in stocks in the Benjamin Gate as a public enemy.

Released next day, he continued his unrestrained criticisms, assailing Judah's military alliance with Egypt against Babylon. Officials seized him, "You shall die!" He was put on trial for treason. Another prophet, Uriah, already had been executed for similar warnings of a military catastrophe.

SURVEILLANCE

Jeremiah was let off temporarily under surveillance. Barred from the Temple precincts, he dictated a scathing sermon to his amanuensis, Baruch, and had him read it publicly.

Aides to King Jehoiakim seized the manuscript and delivered it to him. He read the scroll, and burned it. "Seize Baruch the secretary and Jeremiah the prophet," he ordered.

The pair fled into hiding. "Woe is me . . . a man of strife and contention to the whole land!" Jeremiah sorrowed. "All of them curse me . . . waiting for my fall . . ."

In 605 B.C., four years after Egypt overcame Judah, Egypt itself was overwhelmed by Babylon in the Battle of Carchemish, making Babylonia the master of the Middle East from the Nile to the Euphrates rivers.

When Judah's King Jehoiakim

turned to warn him that Judah would become "a horror, a hissing, an everlasting reproach." Soon afterward, in 589 B.C., Babylon's forces invaded Jerusalem, sending its leading artisans and king into captivity.

URGED

Jeremiah urged the newly installed ruler, Zedekiah, to concentrate on peaceful social reform. "Do justice . . . deliver from the hand of the oppressor him who had been robbed." Zedekiah wavered, finally giving in to the war planners.

Jeremiah mourned, "They have healed the wound of my people lightly, saying 'Peace, Peace,' when there is no peace."

He was cast into a dungeon, but later removed to a guard house on instructions of the king, who continued consulting him. When a royal order freeing Jerusalem's slaves went unenforced and ignored, Jeremiah thundered: "Thus says the Lord: You have not obeyed Me by proclaiming liberty, everyone to his brother . . ." As a result, he said, the country would be subjected to sword, famine and the horror of Babylon's forces which would "burn it with fire."

Soon afterward, with Babylon's troops pounding at the walls and the city swept with hunger and panic, Jeremiah was arrested, again accused of treason and with the king's approval, cast into the empty cistern to starve.

But even in despair, Jeremiah saw a "future and a hope," which Jews regard as a promise of national restoration and Christians see as a harbinger of Jesus.

"Thus says the Lord . . . In those days and at that time I will cause a Righteous Branch to spring forth for David; and He shall execute justice and righteousness."

PULLED OUT

The stone covering on the cistern was pushed aside and the light poured in. A black Ethiopian slave, named Ebedmelech, lowered ropes to Jeremiah and pulled him out. But he was again imprisoned, with Jerusalem in its last throes.

The city fell in 587 B.C. It was sacked and burned and its people taken into captivity in Babylon for the next 50 years.

Jeremiah, an old man, was led in chains to Mispah in the north, and later, taken as a prisoner into exile in Egypt where he died, unshakably convinced that God is not "afraid" but "at hand." His "everlasting love" shed on men to bring them to a happier destiny.

"O Lord . . . to Thee shall the nations come, from the ends of the earth." He "who scattered" will gather and keep His people "as a shepherd keeps his flock."

Sure Sign Santa Loves Children

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Some children are getting their first chance to pour out their Christmas desires to Santa knowing that he understands them.

Melvin Miller, 19, a toy department clerk, is substituting as Santa. When a small girl sitting on his knee started to speak, stumbled, and resorted to sign language, Santa Claus lifted his hands and replied.

The girl was from the Iowa School for the Deaf in Council Bluffs. Miller's parents are deaf and he has talked to them in sign language since he was a child.

When asked by the deaf children about his ability to talk with signs Miller tells the youngsters who, like all children, ask for trucks and trains and dolls.

"Santa loves all children and I have to learn to talk to them all."

President Enters Bethesda Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson entered Bethesda Naval Hospital today for treatment of what a White House spokesman described as a chest cold and low grade fever.

Presidential press secretary George Christian said Johnson had "a low grade fever which has developed into a chest cold" and was going to the hospital on the advice of his physician, Dr. George Burkley.

The President had appeared to be somewhat hoarse during a speech last night and showed some signs of a cold at a Christmas tree lighting ceremony in chilly weather Monday.

Johnson has a history of bronchial difficulties and spent 3½ days in Bethesda Naval Hospital in 1965 suffering from a heavy cold that left him under par for several weeks.

Last Nov. 23, Johnson told newsmen he was considering going to the hospital for X-ray checks of a long-standing intestinal disorder—diverticulosis, a condition marked by the development of small pouches in the large intestine. The trip never materialized.

Johnson's physicians said last summer, when the existence of diverticulosis first was announced, that it was ordinarily not a serious ailment for someone in Johnson's age group. He was 60 last Aug. 27.

Christian told newsmen last August Johnson's doctors reported X-rays then showed no change in his physical condition. The X-rays were taken while Johnson was undergoing tests and his regular physical examination as an outpatient at Brooke Army Hospital in San Antonio, Tex.

Johnson suffered a heart attack in 1955 while he was Senate Democratic leader. He entered Bethesda Naval Hospital in 1965 for removal of his gall bladder and, again in 1966, for removal of a nonmalignant throat polyp and repair of the incision made during the gall bladder operation.

Postal Rates On Second Class Mail Go Up Jan. 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal rates on second class mail, mostly magazines and newspapers, go up Jan. 1. The increase is a part of a three-step raise enacted by Congress in 1967.

In the first step, which was effective last July 7, rates went up on all classes of mail, including an increase from 5 cents to 6 cents for first class letters and 8 to 10 cents for airmail.

The second step, effective Jan. 1, 1969, does not affect first class or air mail but primarily second class mail.

It includes: For in-county mailing an increase from 1.3 cents to 1.4 cents per pound on pound rate matter.

For outside county mailing, on editorial matter, the per pound rate goes from 3 cents to 3.2 cents. The rates on advertising matter are based on how far the publication is hauled. For zones 1 and 2 the rate goes from 4.4 cents a pound to 4.9 cents and for Zone 8, for example, it goes from 15 to 16 cents.

Another increase for second class rates is scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1, 1970.

Ike's Brother Earl, 70, Dies

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—Earl Eisenhower, 70, brother of former President Dwight Eisenhower, died early today at his home in Scottsdale.

Eisenhower, a former electrical engineer with the West Penn Power Co. of Pennsylvania, later went into public relations and was elected to several terms in the Illinois legislature.

He retired to Scottsdale, near Phoenix, in 1966, after running unsuccessfully for Cook County Clerk in Chicago.

The next youngest brother of the former president, Eisenhower is survived by his widow Katherine, a son, Earl Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Kay Morgan of Rockford, Ill.

The son said his father had not been in ill health, and referred newsmen to his physician for the cause of death.

Eisenhower's last political effort was a losing 1966 bid, running on the Republican ticket for the Illinois House of Representatives.

In 1964, making his first political plunge, Eisenhower topped all Republican candidates in an unprecedented at-large election for the Illinois House of Representatives.

At that time, the 67-year-old Eisenhower was public relations director for the Suburban Life Newspapers, serving 26 Chicago suburban areas. He had taken that job in 1954.

Eisenhower was graduated from the Abilene Kan., public elementary and high schools and then went to live with a brother in Tacoma, Wash.

He was graduated from the University of Washington with a degree in electrical engineering and became associated with the West Penn Power Co., with headquarters in Pittsburgh, one of the largest utilities in Western Pennsylvania.

Eisenhower, then living in Charleroi, Pa., near Pittsburgh, was associated with the utility for 26 years. He also became a member of the board of directors of the Connellsville, Pa., Daily Courier.

Upon his election to the Illinois House in 1964, Eisenhower said he regarded it "a one shot political deal."

Officers Checking Kansas City Clues

Investigation by the Howard County Sheriff's Department into the slaying of A. D. Blount has moved across state lines.

A Howard County deputy and Texas Ranger from Midland left Big Spring Tuesday afternoon for Kansas City to search for more clues in the shooting of Blount, who operated a pet shop business here five years.

Blount, 40, was shot to death the night of Dec. 9 in the hallway of his apartment in the rear of the Pet-A-Zoo, about one mile south of Big Spring on US 87.

Although the pair of lawmen are investigating the case in Kansas City, no complaint in the connection with the killing has been filed by District Attorney Wayne Burns. Burns said Tuesday that more evidence in the case will be needed before a charge is filed.

Sheriff A. N. Standard has uncovered thus far in the investigation a .45 calibre bullet and gun which ballistics tested in Austin confirmed as the death weapon. He also has an artist's conception of the gunman which was made from a description by Blount's 16-year-old son, Gary.

Standard has traced the gun to a man in Kansas City. The sheriff also said that Blount had received threats on his life from a man as far back as April.

Texas Interstate Oil & Gas Co. of Dallas No. 1 McDaniell, 14 miles south of Westbrook, is proposed as an 8,000-foot Mississippi probe in Mitchell.

The location is 1,900 feet from north and 600 feet from east lines of section 22, block 17, SPRR survey, 1/4 mile southwest of the three-well A&S (Mississippi) area.

examined the standard textbooks which said: "School reopens. Taking our satchels, we go to school. When meeting our teacher, we bow to him. When seeing a schoolmate, we say hello to him."

Said the peasant committee—one of thousands now running the mainland's rural schools: "Proletarian politics was not put to the fore in any degree. 'A cat catches fish, a crow drinks water...' and other rubbish were included in the textbooks."

Modernizing House Voting Procedures Gets Go Sign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee today recommended modernizing House procedures to avoid errors in recording votes.

The committee suggestion in the form of an "interim recommendation" to Speaker John W. McCormack grows out of a continuing investigation ordered after disclosures that one member was recorded on several roll calls in September although he was not in Washington.

IMPOSSIBLE
The committee, however, said that so far it has been "impossible" to reach a final conclusion as to the cause or causes of specific discrepancies.

The suggestion comes as House Clerk Pat Jennings has been gathering information on an electric tallying system to replace the current practice of members calling "aye" or "no" in response to their names.

Unlike the voting machines used in some state legislatures, it would not eliminate the calling of the 435 names by a clerk. This procedure, requiring about half an hour, gives members time to come to the floor from their offices and, on close questions, gives leaders a chance to work on wavering members.

The tallying device would eliminate the present complicated manual tallying and counting of the vote. Moreover, it would flash each member's vote against his name on a visible scoreboard, giving opportunity for immediate correction of any mistakes.

COMPANION
The tallying machine also could be tied into a computer already used by the House for payroll and other records and thus could provide printouts of each roll call as soon as it is completed, plus breakdowns by party and states.

Chairman Melvin Price, D-Ill., wrote to Speaker John McCormack that the study of House voting, still going on, has already "disclosed numerous points at which human error can enter the system."

The investigation so far has included a comparison of every roll call vote in the House for a year with official travel records of members. The data is still being worked over, a spokesman said, and it appears the discrepancies are not of significant number and fall into no particular pattern.

It is certain, he said, that discrepancies did not determine the outcome of any vote on any piece of legislation.

He's A Real Gent, Says Trash Man

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — Frank Clarke, the garbage collector whose early morning singing on his rounds at Cambridge University disturbed the sleep of Prince Charles, says all has been forgiven.

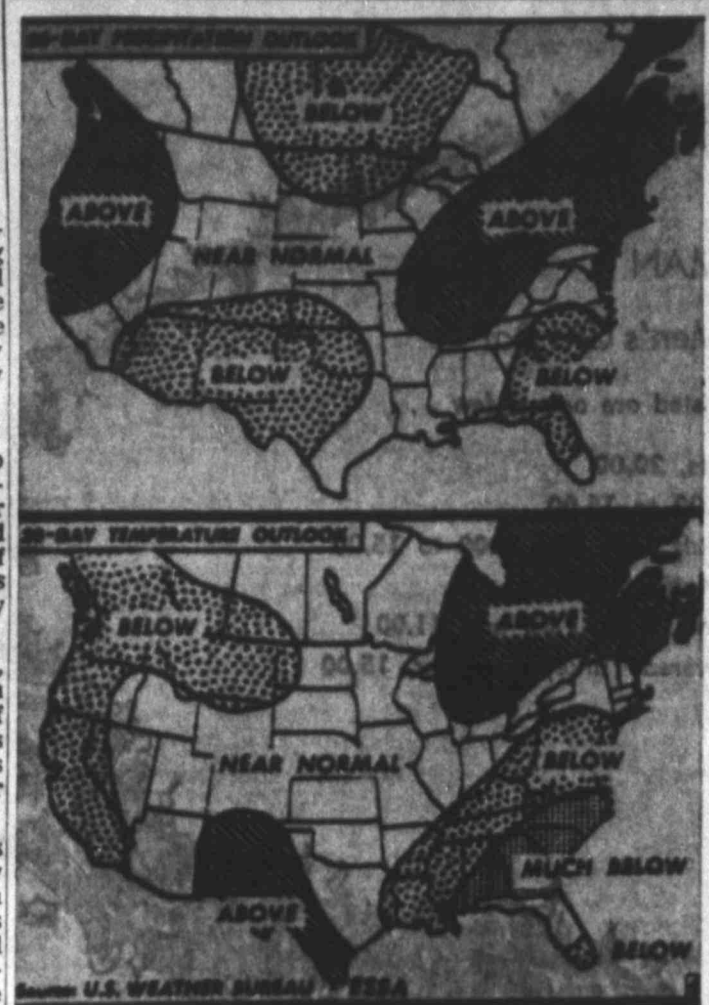

The 20-year-old prince complained in a student newspaper nine months ago that Clarke's dawn rendering of "Oh Come All Ye Faithful" woke him up. Clarke became something of a celebrity and made a record called "Why Don't They Buy Rubber Dustbins?"

Recently the two met again when Clarke's garbage truck blocked a road as Charles was cycling to his studies.

"He said he liked the copy of the record I sent him," Clarke said. "Then he was good enough to tell me that what really woke him was the noise of my truck and not my singing."

"All has been forgiven. He's a real gent."

National Guards Receive Night Scopes To Pinpoint

WASHINGTON (AP) — A device used to pinpoint enemy snipers during night fighting in Vietnam has been added to the weapons provided the National Guard for possible use against rioters in the United States.

One hundred of the devices, called Starlight Scopes, are being stockpiled at key depots for use by state National Guard chiefs, it is needed.

NIGHT FIGHTS
Sources said the scopes probably would be brought into play against snipers firing on guardsmen or police from the darkness during night civil disorders.

The National Guard Bureau has notified adjutant generals that the Starlight Scopes will be earmarked for them in depots at Tobyhanna, Pa., Lexington, Ky., and Sacramento, Calif.

Provision of the scopes is the latest action taken by the Army to prepare the National Guard, police and its own forces for possible widespread civil disturbances in the United States.

These preparations intensified starting last spring when riots broke out in many cities after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Among other things, the Army has given the National Guard infra-red search lights, standard flood lights, radios, public address systems, grenade launchers, shotguns and portable riot gas dispensers.

ANTI-RIOT
The Army has claimed outstanding successes for the Starlight Scope in South Vietnam to detect enemy guerrilla fighters for more than 400 yards.

The device, which is hand-held or mounted on rifles and machine guns, amplifies the glow of the moon or stars, enabling its operator to see objects that otherwise would be blacked out.

National Guard sources said another new aid for anti-riot forces has been the preparation by the Army Map Service of special maps of 115 cities considered potential locales for future civil disturbances.

About 9,000 copies of each city map are being printed, showing location of key installations and facilities.

Atlantic Will Erect Building

MIDLAND — Atlantic Richfield Company today announced that construction will begin here early in 1969 on a modern, two-story office building to house headquarters for the firm's North and South Permian districts of the North American producing division.

District Managers P. E. Fletcher, North Permian, and R. T. Cox, South Permian, said the structure, to be located at Illinois and Pecos Streets, is expected to be ready for occupancy Sept. 1, 1969. It will provide approximately 40,000 square feet of office space for the two districts' combined total of 126 employees.

Children Get Visit From Santa

STANTON (SC) — Santa Claus made his appearance at the Martin-Glasscock Neighborhood Center, where 54 needy children were presented Christmas gifts and sacks of candy and fruit. The youngsters, along with their parents, were served ice cream, cookies and punch.

Mrs. Glenn Cates, director of the center, expressed thanks for success of the party to the Salvation Army, Borden's, Buddie's, Stanton Food Market and the Optimist Club.

Christian Dissension Marks Christ's Birthplace

By RODNEY PINDER
Associated Press Writer

BETHLEHEM (AP) — The ghosts of Christmases past haunt the birthplace of Jesus, but the spirit of Christian unity is hardly discernible. Here, where the first cries of a baby born in a stable gave birth to an era, the celebrations of that night emphasize Christian dissension.

For a start, there are three main Christmases: Dec. 25 for Roman Catholics and Protestants, Jan. 7 for the Greek Orthodox, and Jan. 19 for the Armenians. Bethlehem basks in a month of festive cheer—four weeks of booming souvenir sales, garnishings of holly and, at times, the prickly squabbles of priests.

A rigid status quo—"Each to his own," explained Deputy Mayor George S. Diek—governs celebrations from Christ's birthplace down the fertile valley to the field where the angel appeared to tell the shepherds the news.

The 1,600-year-old Church of the Nativity, a massive, squat basilica of stone, lead and gold, sits over the grotto, the traditional manger.

The Greeks own most of it. The Catholics won a share in 1852, and a southern slice went to the Armenians. All sects can say High Mass somewhere under the sprawling roof.

The biggest celebrations are Dec. 25 when Bethlehem's population of 25,000 is usually doubled by pilgrims. The festivities follow an inflexible script.

The Catholic Church of St. Catherine, built cheek by jowl with the Church of the Nativity, has a High Mass led by the patriarch, Msgr. Alberto Gori of Jerusalem.

A procession winds its way to the grotto below the basilica. The Greeks have given permission—but the Catholics must not stray from their prescribed route.

During Turkish rule, explained the deputy mayor—who once was a tourist guide—priests laid small, round, hard peas on their precincts so that any trespasser would encounter a nasty fall on the cold stone floors.

These days squads of police line the route between the giant pillars of the basilica—below windows which only the Catholics are permitted to clean—to the cave where tradition says Jesus was born.

The actual spot of the birth is owned by the Greek Orthodox, so the Catholics can only say prayers there. They can, however, hold High Mass in the niche where Mary laid her baby to rest, which they own.

The official schedule carries a baleful reminder: "During the Latin (Catholic) services a Greek Orthodox dragoman and sexton stand on the right and the Armenian sexton on the left

"The police officer in charge watches from immediately behind the Latin representative and a party of police constables stand on the southern end of the staircase ... immediately behind the police officer in charge."

The police officer in charge, to insure the strictest neutrality, is a Moslem Arab working for the Israelis, who have controlled access to Bethlehem since June 1967.

Out in the cold, literally, are the Protestants—who have only been allowed to take part at all since the British mandate.

They are in a courtyard adjoining the basilica, singing carols and praying under the frosty skies.

"If it rains heavily," said the deputy mayor, "they are allowed inside the Orthodox chapel. But it is small and only a few can crowd in."

Other Protestants, perhaps distrusting the good will of the weather at this time, pray inside the YMCA building a few blocks away.

Services are also held in the segregated Field of the Shepherds. As each denomination claims it owns the only true spot where the angel appeared, the field is divided among them.

The mayor's office greets Christmas with open arms. It is big business.

The Church of the Nativity, crowned by crosses studded with colored light bulbs, stands against a street of souvenir shops selling Bethlehem mother of pearl and carved wood.

There are 21 souvenir stores in town. Fourteen more will come with the new municipality building planned for one side of the Manger Square.

The square will have a new touch this Christmas.

A giant tree, which graced the town opposite the police station, died two years ago. Last year its dead branches were hung with lights and tinsel.

"This year we shall have a new one," the deputy mayor disclosed with pride.

"The Israelis are growing one for us at Tel Aviv."

United Fund Agencies Receive Full Allocations

Each agency in the Big Spring Howard County United Fund will receive the full amount of money allocated in the United Fund budget, United Fund trustees voted Tuesday.

Full allocation of money set up by the budget committee for each agency is made possible by the $101,500 in pledges to date, plus an anticipated $2,000 more. Also, some money which was set aside in a reserve, and savings in office and campaign expenses will add to the treasury.

Harold Davis, president, was in charge of the meeting and gave a report on the 1968 United Fund campaign. He said that collections have been good this year, which will help in getting each agency the full amount of their budgets.

Participating agencies and the amount allocated to each include the YMCA, $16,500; Lakeview YMCA, $6,000; Girl Scouts, $7,200; Salvation Army, $17,000; Westside Youth Center, $1,800; Summer Recreation Program, $1,175; Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, $10,500; Boy Scouts, $13,600; Texas United Fund, $300; Milk and Medicine Fund, $2,400; American Red Cross, $15,000; Texas Rehabilitation Center at Gonzales, $1,000; Air Force Aid Society, $2,750; Half Way House, $300; USO, $1,200.

There was $9,500 set aside for campaign and operating expenses, and $3,000 for shrinkage and reserve, but some of this money will go to the agencies.

Trustees will meet again in January to elect new officers.

Davis is president of the United Fund and drive chairman was Clyde McMahon Jr. Chairmen of the divisions in the campaign were Raymond Tollett, out-of-town; Jimmy Taylor, big gifts; Charles Bell, special gifts; Lanny Hamby, metropolitan; Don Womack, employee; Col. W. C. McGlothlin, Maj. C. T. Pajot and Lt. Donald Paladino, Webb AFB; Erven Fisher, federal and state employees; Mrs. Bob Galbraith and Mrs. Ralph Caton, women's division; and Alton Marwitz, area.

Paris Police Brace For 'Day Of Action'

PARIS (AP) — Police street patrols were strengthened today to counter a call for a student "day of action" sounded by France's largest student organization. The National Students Union urged undergraduates to spend the day striking, conferring and demonstrating. Students at six universities in various parts of the country already were on strike.

Acting under a new hard line policy laid down by the government, police made a tear gas raid on the Toulouse law school Tuesday, evicted 40 students occupying a classroom in Marseille, and blocked entrances to the Sorbonne in Paris to prevent students from holding a meeting.

Helmeted officers holding their nightsticks in front of them dispersed demonstrating students in Paris's Latin Quarter, arrested 10 young people and set up command posts at major thoroughfares.

The education ministry shut down a high school in Paris Tuesday night in the wake of Mrs. Ralph Caton, women's division; and Alton Marwitz, area.

With a crisis mood growing, the police show of force was designed to rein in the unrest before it reaches the proportions of last spring's student-worker rebellion.

The students contend that the government is paying so much attention to its monetary problems that it has lost sight of the sweeping educational reforms it promised after the rebellion last spring.

Dangerous Bean Necklaces Sought

DALLAS (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration issued a warning today that there are 26 unround jequirity bean necklaces which were sold by the souvenir shop at Dallas' Museum of Fine Arts at Fair Park.

The beans are the same poisonous kind which were on ornamental pins recently recalled from all over the United States.

The FDA warns that the beads are very dangerous when chewed or broken. They are small, orange or red in color and have black ends.

The necklaces sold at the museum shop are approximately four feet long.

Eugene W. Mitchell, operations administrator at the museum, said the shop does not keep records of who buys its articles, and the necklaces may have been sold to visitors from anywhere in the United States.

The necklaces were received by the museum in July.

The FDA says that anyone who has one of the necklaces should contact the local health department or the FDA office so that the necklaces may be destroyed.

Nine Given Extra Stripes

Six new senior master sergeants and three new chief master sergeants were announced at Webb AFB this morning. News of the promotions was announced by Col. William C. McGlothlin, Webb wing commander, in an informal "promotion party" in the conference room of wing headquarters.

Three three non-commissioned officers reaching the apex of the enlisted ranks—chief master sergeant, are: William C. Littlejohn Jr., Chauncey B. Trivett and Donald F. Vanslyke.

Moving one grade closer to that elite circle were six master sergeants who now can add a seventh stripe significant of a senior master sergeant. They are: Leonard M. Benson Jr., Frederick Knecht, Willard E. McGuire, John M. Clarke, Mike Tereletsky and Leo H. Wendel, all of the 3560th Field Maintenance Squadron.

According to S.M.Sgt. Dale McComb of the quality control section of the Webb Consolidated Base Personnel Office, the percentage of Webb sergeants promoted to the "supergrade" status, of those eligible, was well ahead of the command average.

An Instance Of Togetherness

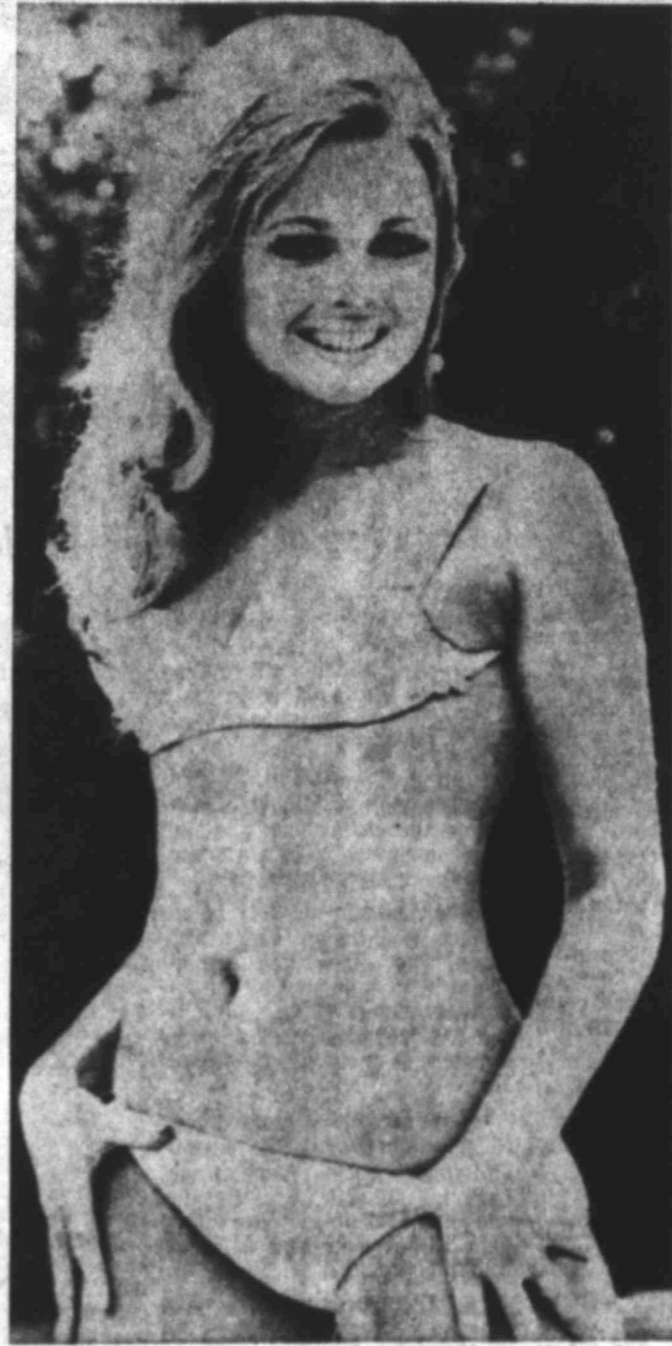

DENISON, Tex. (AP) — An instance of togetherness for the administration and students of Southeastern State College at Durant, Okla., might inspire some strife-torn colleges elsewhere.

When Dr. Leon Hibbs, Southeastern president, accompanied his expecting wife to a hospital at nearby Sherman, Tex., he was directed to the expectant father's waiting room. Two other about-to-be fathers already there broke into broad smiles when Dr. Hibbs entered. Both were students at Southeastern.

Capt. Pedlar Leaving Webb

Capt. Gordon Pedlar, chief of the Webb AFB Consolidated Base Personnel Office (CBPO), is scheduled to leave the base for an assignment at Phu Cat AB, Vietnam, Jan. 2.

The captain has been the CBPO chief since November, 1967. While under his supervision, the Webb CBPO was selected the best Class III in the Air Training Command in 1967 and 1968 and the best Class III CBPO in the Air Force in 1968. The CBPO also received a straight line excellent in the 1967 IG inspection.

Capt. Pedlar previously served as assistant chief of the Personnel Division, Assistance Group, Taiwan, before coming to Webb in December, 1966. He originally served as chief of the career control branch of CBPC before taking over his present position.

The captain has also served at Lowry AFB, Colo., Thule AFB, Greenland, Camp Adair AFB, Ore. (now Adair AFBS) and Makah AFS and McChord AFB, both in Washington.

He was graduated from the Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, with a bachelor of science degree in business administration in 1955. He immediately entered the Air Force through the Reserved Officers Training Corps program.

He and his wife, have two children.

Most Troops Have Left Czech Soil

PRAGUE (AP) — Military experts say the Kremlin apparently has fulfilled its pledge to get the majority of the troops that invaded Czechoslovakia out of the country by today.

The Soviet-Czechoslovakia treaty legalizing the occupation was ratified by the National Assembly on Oct. 18. Premier Oldrich Cernik said then that the pact provided for the withdrawal within two months of the majority of the troops who invaded Czechoslovakia on Aug. 20. No numbers were disclosed.

Military experts who estimated the invasion force at more than 600,000 men now estimate that all but about 70,000 occupation troops have left the country.

Most of the remaining troops are reported camped outside major cities in barracks of the Czechoslovak army. The experts say there is no evidence of unusual troop concentrations near the West German border despite much Moscow talk about Soviet troops being needed to defend Czechoslovakia against West Germany.

Meanwhile, the members of the national assembly gathered in Prague, for a four-day session, starting today, to approve changes in the economic program and in the government adopted by the Communist party central committee last week.

The measures to be approved include a slowdown in economic reforms planned before the invasion and now largely deferred until mid-1969, and the officials of the governments under the federation setup being put into operation next Monday. The assembly will approve the party committee's nominations of Cabinets for the new Czech and Slovak states as well as a new federal government in Prague.

The federation plan was originally designed to decentralize authority by shifting it to the new state governments.

Reliable sources said the Russians balked at plans to decentralize the government as far as originally planned and also at wider economic reforms toward a free market system.

More Haggling On Tap For Holiday Truce Period

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government said today it is ready to talk with North Vietnam about truces for New Year's Day and Tet, the lunar new year festival.

Hanoi was expected either to ignore the invitation or tell the Saigon regime to talk to the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, in line with the Communist contention that the Viet Cong and not the North Vietnamese are fighting the war in South Vietnam.

This would bring the question of further holiday cease-fires back to its present status, since Saigon refuses to recognize the NLF and to negotiate with it.

The Viet Cong has already announced unilateral three-day cease-fires for Christmas, New Year and Tet, which next year comes on Feb. 17. The South Vietnamese government has announced only a 24-hour cease-fire for Christmas, and the U.S. Command says it will observe this truce period also.

A communique from South Vietnam's foreign ministry today said Saigon's 24-hour Christmas truce would not be extended because it has "no confidence in (the Communists') good faith when they announced a three-day truce."

The foreign ministry said it had consulted with the United States and Saigon's other allies and "they have all expressed their agreement with regard to the truce issue."

In the war, meanwhile, a U.S. Air Force transport plane with 40 passengers and four crewmen aboard crashed and burned Tuesday just after taking off from the Chu Lai Air Base, 58 miles south of Da Nang.

Military spokesmen said 14 persons were killed and most of the others were injured, three of them seriously. They said most of those aboard the twin-engine C123 were American troops but there were some South Vietnamese soldiers.

The U.S. Command also announced that another U.S. reconnaissance plane flying over the southern half of the demilitarized zone had been fired on by North Vietnamese troops inside the zone. The single-engine plane was not hit, and the pilot directed artillery fire which silenced the North Vietnamese machine gun, the U.S. Command said.

The Viet Cong shelled three major American bases and a U.S. Navy supply depot Tuesday night and tried unsuccessfully to infiltrate sabotage teams into a key provincial capital.

SHE DOESN'T REMEMBER HIM

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Unfortunately," says former actress Dolores Moran, "for the life of me I can't remember the man."

She was talking of Anthony Ponce, a 58-year-old bachelor recluse who left her most of his $250,000 to $300,000 estate.

Miss Moran, now 41, apparently met him when she was a 15-year-old carhop in Sunnyvale, Calif.

Koseph DeGioia, attorney for the will's executor, suggested Ponce may never have realized how much he was leaving Miss Moran. The will was drawn up in 1947. It left $6,000 to five "all the rest of my real and personal property to Dolores Moran of Hollywood, Calif., formerly employed by Warner Brothers."

The other property included a 10-acre apricot grove that was worth perhaps $1,000 in 1941, when Ponce is believed to have met Miss Moran. Since then, the property has become surrounded by exclusive Sunnyvale housing developments. Attorneys estimate its value now from $250,000 to perhaps $300,000.

The niece and nephew, all married and of modest incomes, say they plan to contest the will, filed for probate Monday.

Ponce lived in a modest house on the grove. Few in Sunnyvale knew him. A long-time friend, George Bonacich, said Ponce "never mentioned anybody. He was pretty close mouthed."

DeGioia also said Ponce never mentioned Miss Moran: "He just remembered her. He took a liking to her when she was a young girl and he dropped in at the drive-in for an occasional cup of coffee." She says her memory of the incident has been "washed away" by time.

Miss Moran, at 16, signed a seven-year contract with Warner Bros. She was called a "new Jean Harlow." She had star billing in "The Horn Blows at Midnight," "Johnny One-Eye," and "Old Acquaintance." She quit acting after marrying producer Benedict E. Boggs. They had one child, Brett, now 29, and were divorced four years ago. Boggs, who produced, among others, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," died last August.

"Life is truly an extraordinary procession," Miss Moran said Tuesday of Ponce's will. "What a beautiful thing. It's phenomenal. I'm not living in poverty, certainly. But my reaction was one of marvel, awe."

A Devotional For The Day

In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. (I Thessalonians 5:18)

PRAYER: O loving Father, whose presence is ever with us and whose hand is upon us all our days, give us thankful hearts, we pray. Help us to see Thy goodness and Thy care for us in every activity and circumstance today. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Shift Of Power

To many a Frenchman, President Charles de Gaulle included, the years of "der alte" when Konrad Adenauer guided the destiny of West Germany, must appear in retrospect as an Indian summer which may never return.

Then, Paris was the financial center of Europe, the political capital of Europe. Today, Bonn is the financial and political capital of Europe. Its mark is sturdier than any other currency in the West. It has become the industrial king of Europe. Its house is in order, its economy booming, its future apparently unlimited—whereas France has fallen upon evil days, its franc under constant pressure, its people forced to accept harsh retrenchment.

West German Finance Minister Franz Josef Strauss brought this new era into focus when he refused to increase the value of the mark. He did this in spite of the combined pressure exerted on him by Britain, France and the United States. The pressure on the pound, the franc and the dollar would have been eased if Strauss had agreed to revalue the mark upward. Thus, we have seen a shift in the economic balance of power in Europe analogous to some degree with the shift in the balance of political power in Europe by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia. The two are, of course, related. The Russians were intent on nipping in the bud any relaxation in relations between Czechs and West Germans. Twenty-four years after the utter defeat of Nazi Germany, Russians still fear the waxing might of Germany, even though West Germany today is utterly dependent on the West—mainly the United States—for protection against Russia.

This show of independence in the financial field will almost surely be followed by rising independence in other fields, save perhaps the military. The future is indeed obscured. No one can tell what direction a powerful, renaissance Germany will take. Hopefully it will be in the direction of closer economic and political ties with the European community and away from any dreams of another Thousand Year Reich.

Reform In Seniority

One of Congress' weaknesses has long been recognized as the seniority system that accords position and power without regard to merit. The main obstacle to reform, besides the obvious difficulty of stripping political power from those who have it, has been the question of who should judge merit and how, for such a judgment itself becomes an exercise of power.

Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., a member of the moderate-to-liberal Democratic Study Group that now claims a majority of that party's House membership, thinks he has the answer. The DSG is studying several proposals, which have only an outside chance for early adoption, but this is the one Bolling favors:

The speaker, now the aging Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, would nominate the party's House committee chairmen. He would also nominate the Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee, who in turn (as the Committee on Committees) make all other party committee assignments.

That would make the House speaker the boss he once was (and which the House Rules Committee was later accorded excessive power to check), except for this: The convening caucus of all party House members in a new Congress could veto the speaker's choices until he offered ones acceptable to the majority.

Such a system may have its flaws, but certainly it would be an improvement over the merit-ignoring seniority system, whose main beneficiaries have been those from safe "one-party," usually rural districts. The DSG reform plans may be foiled temporarily, but eventually some changes must be made if Congress is to be led by leaders.

The remarkable thing is that competent men have been found so frequently among the seniors.

The Election Process Questioned

WASHINGTON — The official figures of the 1968 presidential election which have just been formally announced tell a significant story that may have a bearing on the much-discussed proposals for a reform in the electoral college system.

Nixon got a majority of the ballots cast only within 15 states. This netted him 79 electoral votes. Humphrey obtained a majority in six states and the District of Columbia, for a total of 82 electoral votes. Wallace won a majority in two states and received thereby 17 electoral votes.

IN ADDITION to the 15 states where Nixon won a majority, he collected 223 electoral votes in the 17 states where he had what is called a "plurality." This gave him 302 in all, which is 32 more than the 270 he needed for victory.

Humphrey likewise was a "plurality" winner in seven states with 109 electoral votes, which, together with his 82 electoral votes in the states where he achieved a majority, made a total of 191. Wallace with a "plurality" in three states received 28 electoral votes, and these, added to the 17 electoral votes in two states where he had a majority, made a total of 45.

LOOKING AT IT another way, it will be noted that 23 states and the District of Columbia gave a majority to one or the other of the candidates, whereas 27 states accorded their electoral votes to a candidate who did not win a majority.

WOULD THE principle of a majority be better applied if each congressional district, instead of a state, were the electoral unit? There have been such proposals advanced on the theory that a majority of a district would more often be won by a single candidate even in a three-way race. The argument is based on the idea that attention would be focused on congressional districts and that candidates for the House of Representatives would find themselves less inclined to depart from their own party or to give what amounts sometimes to passive support of a presidential nominee of a third party.

IF THE congressional districts were by constitutional amendment designated as the electoral units, the redistricting process would have to be more efficiently carried out than it is today.

But the mere establishment of the congressional district as the electoral unit would not get rid of the disadvantages of a three-cornered presidential race. The only way to provide dissenting factions with a chance to vote for someone of their own choosing would be to create a presidential-preference primary to be held on the same day throughout the country. The candidate of each party who obtained a majority — or plurality — of all all states would be the nominee for the final contest which would be limited to the two opposing nominees.

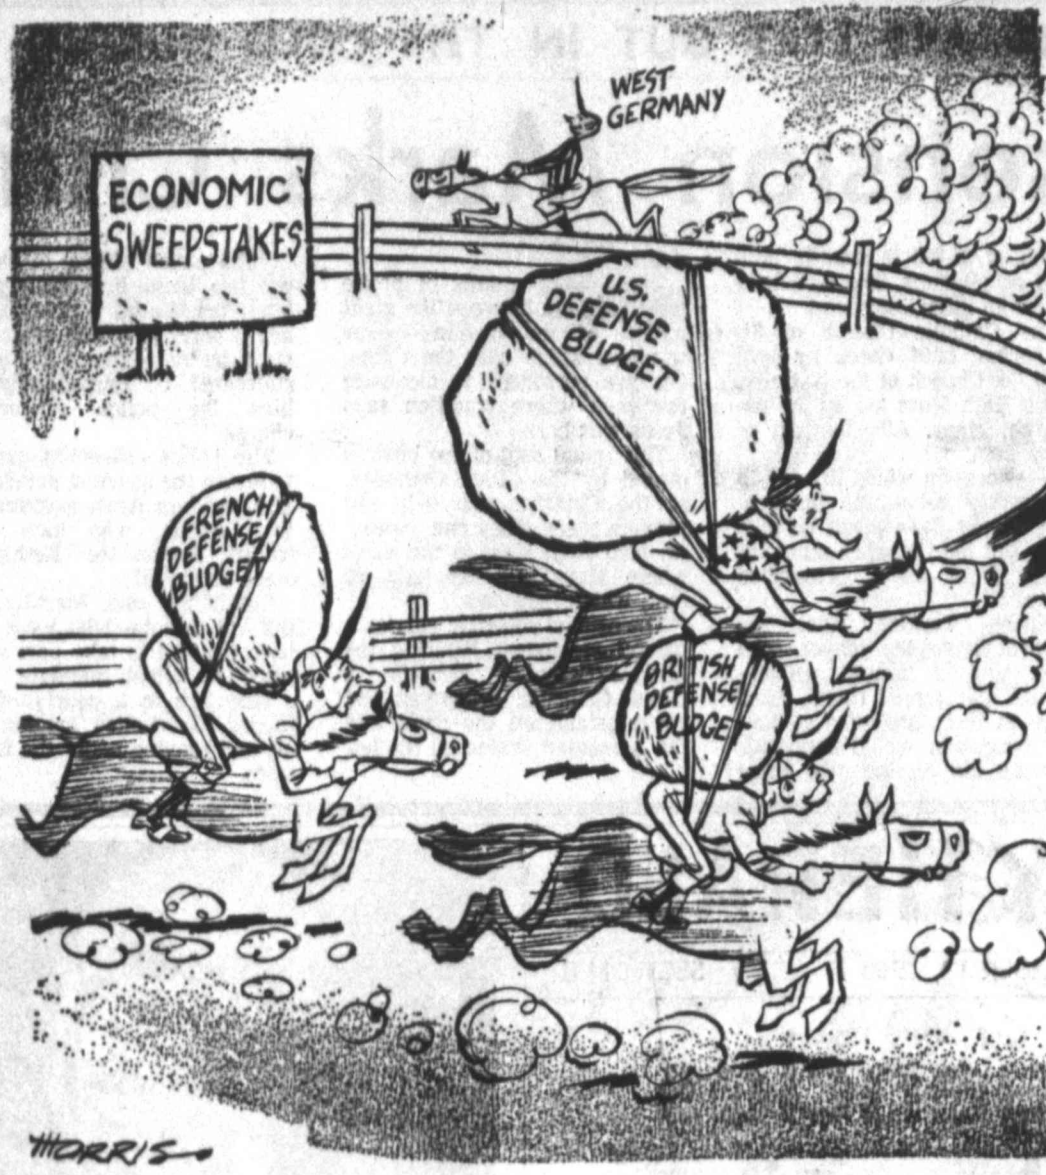

IF THE VOTERS didn't like the nominee who won a majority or plurality in their own party, they still would be free to vote for the nominee of the opposing party in the final election. This often occurs as a result of "run-offs" in gubernatorial primaries. But the country would in any event be spared a multiple race, because at present any candidate can get on the ballot in the November election if he has enough funds and represents a sectional or factional vote of substantial size.

A HANDICAP AFFAIR

John Cunniff

Poor Little Rich Man

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bart Lytton, the Los Angeles financier who built a personal fortune estimated at $15 million and then lost most of it, may soon enter the advertising business.

"I'm contemplating opening an agency or becoming a partner in an existing one," he said in an interview. "Certain propositions are before me."

Lytton said he expects to announce a decision early next year. The matter at present might be complicated by the upcoming mayoralty race, for Lytton has been mentioned often as a potential candidate for the office.

"I HAVE NO present intentions to run," said the founder and until April chairman of Lytton Financial Corp. But he added deliberately: "The filing date is not over and it won't be until January."

Los Angeles will be his base for any advertising venture, he said, "unless I tied in with an Eastern firm and agree to be a partner managing the Western section."

The personable magnate, whose friendships range widely, believes he'll have entry to financial enterprises because of the advertising and merchandising success of his savings and loan association, into which poured as much as $5 million to $7 million a day.

"I have quite a respect in my capacities as a financier, so I think I'll be able to pick and choose my accounts," he said. "Our merchandising was the most effective in the banking-savings and loan field."

LYTTON HANDLED much of his own advertising, which he personalized with his photograph in newspaper ads and his voice on radio commercials.

Early this year a slowdown in the home loan business finally caught Lytton with more bills than he could handle and he stepped down under pressure. The company is now being reorganized.

Sitting in his air-conditioned limousine as it was chauffeured through Hollywood, he stared at the impressive facade of the company he founded.

"TWO MONTHS more and I'd still be there," he said. "I made a decision to turn the place over to the creditors. If I were stubborn for two more months I'd still be there."

The 55-year-old Lytton has agreed not to compete in the savings and loan field for seven years. His "Chairman of the Board" sign adorns the bar in his apartment, which he moved into two months ago after selling his Holmby Hills mansion.

The apartment, an art-filled penthouse in the tallest building in Westwood Hills, overlooks the University of California campus and the Los Angeles Country Club. But it is a big step down, for Lytton is now worth less than a million dollars.

Ready-Made Candles

NEW YORK (AP) — At this season I begin to look with interest upon the displays of beautiful new candles in the stores. I have been possibly the world's most enthusiastic purchaser of commercially made candles—ever since the year we made our own.

We had read in a magazine a bubbly account of how simple it was to produce individual styles "with materials readily available" and what satisfaction it would give you. The writer can have her satisfaction—I'll take the ready-made candles.

AT THE TIME the kids were all for the idea and my husband and I decided it would be a delightfully creative project. It was a creative project, all right. What it created was chaos.

As per instruction, we gathered together bars of paraffin, all of the old broken crayons around the house, pieces of string, milk cartons and assorted glasses and bowls.

Then the fun started. We melted the paraffin in various pots and pans, coloring each one a different shade. Then we poured them into the molds. The hot wax broke one of my favorite glass dishes and flowed over the table and across the kitchen in all directions. The floor needed waxing. It's true, but not that way.

After the rest of the molten material had achieved its final resting place, it was time to insert the strings for wicks. They weren't averse to going into the messy mixture, but they were very much against staying in place and tended to fall down on the job, rather than remain upright.

THE MILK cartons, when peeled away from their cooled contents, were supposed to reveal a chunky candle of dazzling smoothness. What they did reveal was a flaky tower of unevenly colored wax that still had bits of cardboard clinging to it.

But the piece of resistance was to have been our special design—a candle of mixed colors. We had put our hearts—and our best crayons—into its creation.

To produce a stunning effect, we had swirled into the paraffin, red, green and blue additions. Somebody gave it one swirl too many and the whole thing turned a pasty gray—indeed a stunning effect.

Despite the energetic use of detergent, steel wool and other assorted scrubbing techniques it was impossible to get all the wax out of the utensils used for melting it, so a new set of pans went on my Christmas list.

But at least nobody could accuse us that holiday season of burning our candles at both ends. They wouldn't burn at all.

Before his death, Dr. Joseph G. Moizer had completed and published "The Everyday Medical Handbook," which gives the answers to many questions on family health. Copies may be obtained by writing the Fawcett Publications, Dept. H.H., Fawcett Place, Greenwich, Conn., 06039, and enclosing check or money order payable to Dr. Moizer book in the amount of $2.50 plus 25 cent handling. By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am an arthritis sufferer and my doctor has been prescribing indomethacin for about a year and a half. It seemed to help me immediately. However, I read an article in a magazine recently stating that indomethacin has not been fully tested and the side effects are many, including even death. Do you think this drug has been tested enough; or should I stop taking it? I am very upset about this. —Mrs. J.B.

Similar worried letters continue to reach me; I'll answer the best I can — and, I hope, allay a good deal of this worry. Remember, to begin with, that there is no drug known to any man which is 100 per cent perfect. Neither is there any drug about which we yet know all there is to know. That includes aspirin, digitalis, and other old standbys we have had for many years.

A big (and highly technical) argument broke out some months ago in a Senate subcommittee hearing. It was a hearing dealing with business, but the dispute centered around indomethacin. It could have centered around some other drug, perhaps, but it didn't.

The upshot, however, was great worry on the part of patients using the drug.

The facts, as I read them from reports of the dispute, are these: There are differences of opinion on the testing and on the effectiveness of indomethacin.

There are (as with all drugs) side effects in some patients. There are some patients whom the drug does not help. But there have been something like 1,000,000 patients using this drug by now and finding that proper dosage helps them and does not harm them.

The "deaths" mentioned in the hearings are debatable; they were children, already severely ill, and the drug in question — as well as other drugs — was used. Some died. But that is a far cry from saying that indomethacin caused their deaths. For other children, also seriously ill and given the drug, did not die but got better.

There is a suspicion that the drug may, in children, interfere in some way with their ability to fight off infections. The present situation is simply this: the drug is not recommended for children.

For adults, indomethacin continues to have approval of the Food and Drug Administration, continues to help patients for whom it is so appropriate. And, if in adults, there are side effects, the drug can be stopped and the side effects then disappear.

Thus my answer has to be that if your doctor finds it suitable in your particular case, and it helps you, and you have no side effects, why worry? If you do have side effects, then stop the drug.

What causes "balance" trouble? What can be done to correct or overcome it? Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Disay Spells," discusses loss of balance, vertigo and nausea. Meniere's disease and labyrinthitis. For a copy of the booklet write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Around The Rim

The Secret Training Course

Not long ago the High Mayor, smarting against complaints that our garbage men did not handle cans with the proper degree of tenderness, suggested that perhaps us householders were getting too lightweight cans.

WHAT THE HIGH Mayor does not suspect, however, is that they have a secret course at the garbage truck shops where new hands are schooled in can banging before they are turned loose on their rounds. The first lesson is to regard shiny new cans with the same affection that a bull has for a red flag. In fact, some of the better pupils have been known to paw the ground, a la toro, at the sight of a new galvanized bucket in the alley.

IT IS TRUE that the neophytes are trained on the lighter cans. They are taught the nuances of denting, bending, warping and are rigorously graded. Those who learn to administer a reasonably good dent with one quick lick across the truck frame are given a C plus; those who learn to concave the side of a can are rated at least B, whereas those who can whop the can down hard enough that the lid will never again fit are rated A plus. Except for a companion flattening of the lid (which rates A double plus), this is considered just about perfection. When a new hand attains this high proficiency, he is ready to be turned loose on the toughest rounds in town.

THE TALENTED and ambitious ones soon are learning how to swoop up the can and send it flying on its way to the single bounce shot. This only roughs up the can and gets it ready for greater tricks to come. Among them is the arch shot, a thing of beauty when executed with polish and grace. The can is hurled on an elevated trajectory so that when it lands on the truck body, the side is neatly caved in. It is true that some of the heavier cans are not easily susceptible to this trick, and in such cases the operator must resort to the bang shot. This calls for lifting the can high overhead, pausing, and then bringing it down with a thud. Done quickly, this produces not only a cave-in but a crease.

DRIVERS are not left out of the training entirely. They are given a chance to absorb the fine points of lid flattening. Almost anyone can partially flatten a can top, but it takes real skill to drive the truck over one in such a manner that it emerges as though it had come out of the mill as smooth rolled steel.

YOU MIGHT think that there is no chance left for graduates. No indeed. The postal department is on constant look out for the more gifted ones. They are given a chance to work with the super-mangler which is kept under wraps but nevertheless available to test any sturdy packaging. No outside eyes have seen this machine, but it is reported to be a combination of a massive metal press and four-ton trip hammer. Nothing withstands its onslaught, and no wonder men dream of the day when they will get to operate it.

Congress And Texas

Committee Assignments Shifted

By PEGGY SIMPSON WASHINGTON (AP) — The 90th Congress wasn't kind to Texans nominated for judgeships this year.

By filibustering against the nomination of Abe Fortas to be chief justice of the Supreme Court, a coalition of senators in effect also talked against Judge Homer Thornberry of Texas.

By killing the Fortas nomination and thus leaving no vacancy on the high court, the senators also prevented Thornberry from taking a seat on the court. Fortas would have replaced Chief Justice Earl Warren, who did not retire since Fortas was not confirmed.

SEN. JOHN TOWER, R-Tex., at first was silent and later openly opposed the nomination of Fortas. He had been lukewarm about Thornberry, too. Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., warmly endorsed Thornberry, a former congressman and close friend of President Lyndon B. Johnson. He currently is a U.S. appellate judge.

In the closing days of the session, the Senate Judiciary Committee refused to act on the nomination of Barefoot Sanders of Dallas to a federal court in Washington, D.C. Sanders was U.S. attorney in North Texas before coming here to serve in various capacities, among them as a troubleshooter for Johnson. Both Texas senators endorsed Sanders.

THE SENATE did approve Johnson's nomination of two Texans to cabinet posts this past year. Marvin Watson, former chairman of the Texas Democratic party and Johnson's closest aide in the White House since Bill Moyers left, was named postmaster general. C. R. Smith, former president of American Airlines and a Dallas resident, got the Commerce Department secretaryship.

There were other judicial appointments which met with no trouble in the Senate. These were Wayne Justice of Athens to be a U.S. district judge for Eastern Texas; Hal Woodward of Coleman to fill a similar post in Northern Texas; Morton Susman of Houston to be U.S. attorney for Southern Texas; and Eldon B. Mahon to be U.S. attorney for Northern Texas.

The two judgeships had been vacant for nearly two years.

As the session gear near an end, some committee assignments were shifted. The most significant change for a Texan was the capture of a seat on the House Ways and Means Committee by Rep. Omar Burleson of Anson, a Democrat. Republican Rep. George Bush of Houston already is on the committee.

BURLESON GAVE up his chairmanship of the House Administration Committee to go on Ways and Means, the committee which decides how the government will raise its money. The oil and gas industry has a stake in the committee's deliberations since, as Burleson noted in an interview, the pressure is rising to increase taxes on the industry by tamping with its 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance.

Stennis And The Preparedness Policy

WASHINGTON — Senator John Stennis of Mississippi is considered the rare exception to Lord Acton's famous law: "All power corrupts..."

His power as chairman of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee has been enormous in its corrective guidance of our Defense policies. His power as chairman of the Ethics Committee has given him a personal authority and prestige that is second to none. If a sculptor desired to create a figure of superior knowledge, integrity, judiciousness and inflexible attachment to duty, he could do no better in our time than to have the courtly-mannered, square-jawed John Stennis sit for a model.

NEXT YEAR Stennis ascends to the position of Armed Services chairman, the former Chairman Richard Russell moving on to become head of the Appropriations Committee. If he follows Democratic party precedent, Stennis will give up the Preparedness subcommittee chairmanship and allow it to pass to Senator Symington of Missouri.

But there is a Republican precedent, set by the former Senator Leverett Saltonstall (Mass.) in the 82nd Congress. Saltonstall, upon becoming Armed Services chairman in 1963, decided to let the Preparedness Subcommittee lapse into eclipse. He did this by refraining to ask for funds, and by appointing smaller subcommittees to deal with special subjects.

BY FOLLOWING the Saltonstall example (as some believe that he will), Stennis would amass even greater power in himself. He would allow the extra-ordinarily potent Preparedness Subcommittee to run out of operating funds at the end of January, and he would deny Senator Symington a legitimate appointment to a key position.

If any Democrat except Stennis should do something of this sort, he would automatically be accused of power-greed and petty politics. But the Stennis reputation for rectitude is such that an entirely different interpretation is being readied among commentators on military affairs. Considering the man's character, it is fully possible to believe that Stennis is not hanging on to power, but is conscientiously refusing to give up responsibility.

DOWN THE YEARS the Preparedness Subcommittee, or its equivalent, under tough Democratic chairmen Truman, Johnson and Stennis, has been generally friendly to military officers and correspondingly skeptical of the civilian Secretaries and advisors who have run the Armed Forces. This skepticism, taking the form of adamant objectivity, hit its peak under Stennis. From the time of the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty under President Kennedy, and throughout the course of the Vietnam War under President Johnson, Stennis has conducted unapologetic but merciless exposures which eventually pulverized the credibility of Secretary McNamara and others in their pretensions of being military statesmen.

ON FORM, there is no reason to doubt that Senator Symington would carry on in this tradition and would keep the Nixonized Pentagon on the straight and narrow. But Symington, independent and outspoken has never paid much homage to the Senate hierarchy. This alone would not prevent his getting a deserved promotion, but in the past session he parted company with Stennis for the first time on a major and public controversy. Symington opposed construction of the anti-missile Sentinel system which he called technologically unsound and financially wasteful. His position put Symington in the unlikely company of Eugene McCarthy and others who temperamentally oppose military readiness.

JOHN STENNIS could well feel that anybody who opposes readiness should not be Preparedness chairman. Without being power-hungry, at all, but subjectively responsibility-minded, Stennis may decide to keep full authority in his chairmanship of the full committee.

He could do this and get away with it for one reason only. He owns the highest reputation in the Senate.

Knicks Top Warriors To Reach .500 Mark

By The Associated Press
Things are coming up roses for the New York Knickerbockers—at least in their own Garden.
The Knicks reached the .500 mark at 17-17 Tuesday night by topping the San Francisco Warriors 114-99 for their eighth straight at Madison Square Garden. Twelve of the victories have come at home.
In other National Basketball Association action Tuesday night, Atlanta edged Chicago 87-83, Philadelphia outlasted Phoenix 145-125 and Los Angeles nipped Cincinnati 112-108.
Minnesota edged Indianapolis 111-109 and Oakland turned back Kentucky 118-111 in the American Basketball Association.
Walt Frazier and Bill Bradley sparked the Knicks' victory over San Francisco, which played without Nate Thurmond and Clyde Lee, who are injured.
After the Warriors scored eight straight points in the final period to go ahead, 90-87, for the first time since the opening quarter, Frazier and Bradley brought the Knicks back.
Frazier scored a field goal and Bradley followed with another to give New York a 91-90 lead with about 5 1/4 minutes left. Then after Rudy LaRusso put the Warriors in front 92-91, Frazier hit a two straight three-point plays, and the rout was on.

Frazier finished with 15 points, 10 in the fourth quarter, and Bradley scored 20 and pulled down a game-high 14 rebounds.
Walt Bellamy led New York scoring with 24 points, and Dick Barnett added 21. LaRusso topped San Francisco with 28 points.
Two driving layups by Zelmo Beaty in the final minute led Atlanta to its fifth straight victory. Beaty finished with 20 points, while Bob Boozer scored 21 for Chicago.
Philadelphia, which hit eight of its first 10 field goal attempts, built up a 29-13 lead in the first six minutes and Phoenix was never able to get closer than 10.
Billy Cunningham scored 32 points and Hal Greer 27 for the winners. Gary Gregor led Phoenix with 20.
After the game, Phoenix announced it had traded McCoy McLemore to Detroit for Jim Fox and a draft choice.
Jerry West scored 36 points including 17 in the third period as Los Angeles won its 22nd game in 32 starts at the expense of Cincinnati. Oscar Robertson's 28 points were high for the Royals, whose late rally fell short.

After Cincinnati overcame an early deficit to move ahead 49-47 at halftime, the Lakers, behind West, took command 89-70 at the end of the third quarter.
The Royals surged back with Robertson paving the way and closed to 108-104 with 1:12 to go. Baskets by West and Johnny Egan wrapped up the victory for the Lakers, who played without Elgin Baylor. Jerry Lucas was sidelined for the Royals.

Good Deed Costs Driver In Race

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Andrew Cowan, a 32-year-old Scottish farmer, was $24,000 richer today apparently because Paddy Hopkirk of Ireland drove back four miles to make sure an injured auto racer was being looked after.
Cowan was declared the official winner late Tuesday night in the 10,700-mile London-to-Sydney car marathon which began Nov. 24.
He took home the $24,000 first prize after three of the top competitors were eliminated by accidents and mechanical trouble. Hopkirk finished second and pocketed $7,210. Ian Vaughan of Australia won $4,800 for third place.
The lone American entrant, Stan Dickson, was one of the last to check in. He finished 46th in a Rambler.

Dallas Ace, Fran To Share Duties

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Meredith of the Dallas Cowboys and Fran Tarkenton of the New York Giants will share quarterback duties for the East All-Stars on Jan. 19 when East meets West in the National Football League Pro Bowl.
Meredith and Tarkenton headed the East team announced today by the game directors, David Brandman of the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner and Glenn Davis of the Los Angeles Times. The game is sponsored by the two newspapers.
Directing from the field for the West will be Roman Gabriel of the Los Angeles Rams and Earl Morrall of the Baltimore Colts. Members of the West team were announced Tuesday.
Players are chosen for the bowl classic by NFL coaches.
Other key players for the East will be halfback Leroy Kelly of Cleveland, playing in the game for the third straight year, and Dick Scharfath, also of Cleveland, making his fifth appearance.
Fullback Don Perkins of Dallas will be playing for the sixth

LUBBOCK — Howard County JC's thinly clad added to their already-impressive string of victories by defeating Lubbock Christian College's blue-ribbon athletes in two track events held during the halftime of the LCC-Amarillo basketball game here Tuesday night.
Paced by smooth-striding Charles Copeland, a freshman from Fort Worth Kirkpatrick, the Hawks posted a 1:29.5 to capture the 880-yard relay.
LCC's foursome was clocked in 1:30.8.
William Fogel led off for HCJC and was timed in 22.4. Ronald Choice took the baton and ran his furlong in 23.1. Copeland then took over and turned in an electrifying 21.5 to pull away from his Lubbock counterpart by 10 yards. Curly Hudson brought the baton in with a 22.5 leg.
Lubbock's entries and their times for the distance were: D. Johnson, 22.8; R. Johnson, 22.5; D. Tabor, 22.7; and B. Hardin, 22.8.
In an open 880, James Irving, freshman from Amarillo, turned in a victory for Howard County, touring the distance in a respectable 1:37.5.
Archie Pruitt of LCC was second in 1:58.7, Fred Stricklin of Lubbock third in 1:59.4 and Frank Clark of HCJC fourth in 1:59.7.
Coach Jerry Dudley has announced the Hawks will remain idle until Feb. 11, when they return to Lubbock for some more special indoor events.
The Big Spring collegians see their first outdoor action in the Southwest Recreational meet in Fort Worth Feb. 28-March 1.

BROWN FIELD NOW FROZEN

CLEVELAND (AP) — There's a lot of hot air blowing around Municipal Stadium.
Hopefully, most of it will stay under the tarpaulins and put the field in playing condition for the National Football League's Eastern Conference playoff Saturday between Cleveland and Dallas.
Stadium groundskeeper Marshall Bossard says the field is frozen two or three inches deep and he plans to leave special heaters on full blast 24 hours a day until 11 a.m. Saturday.
The heaters blow hot air through hoses which go under the tarp and Bossard thinks the field will be thawed completely unless it gets too cold.

THE TIRE THE EXPERTS HAVE ASKED FOR:

"Looking at our results, it is easy to see why radial ply tires are so appealing. But the more we look, the more we feel that all the advantages are a result of the belt, which stabilizes the tread, and not the radial plies themselves. In fact, the areas where the radial tires show signs of weakness can be related to the radial plies—not the belt. We can't help but think that a combination tire—a cross ply with a belt—would be an admirable solution."

Lawyer Flays Game For Pension Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's long, cold winter is heating up and things promise to get even hotter when players start opening their holiday mail and read a little note Marvin Miller has sent them.

Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, included the note with his recommendations or turning down a million-dollar pension proposal offered by baseball's owners. The words Miller uses to describe the offer run the gamut from "inadequate," to "outrageous," to "fraudulent."

The million-dollar offer would increase the owners' contribution to the pension plan to $5.1 million annually. The plan was presented by the Players Relations Committee which includes Joe Cronin, president of the American League and Warren Giles, president of the National League.

Miller said he had met with the committee and that the offer fell far short of what the players feel is justified.

"This is their first proposal," said Miller, "and it is inadequate and outrageous. Near the end of the meeting they gave us a press release. The written statement is as fraudulent as anything I have seen."

What angered Miller was the owners' contention that the million-dollar offer would substantially increase the pension pool to the pension plan to $5.1 million annually. The plan was presented by the Players Relations Committee which includes Joe Cronin, president of the American League and Warren Giles, president of the National League.

Miller said he had met with the committee and that the offer fell far short of what the players feel is justified.

"Major league expansion plus the owners insisting on paying off the unfunded liability of the pension plan at a faster rate than ever before would reach the $5.1 million total they propose."

The players also want a bigger cut of the $16½ million television contract baseball recently negotiated with the networks and they have threatened not to sign their 1969 contracts unless the owners agree to up the contribution from broadcast income.

But the owners emphasized that their Tuesday offer had nothing to do with revenue from television and radio.

"The pension fund was always financed by radio and TV revenue," Miller said. "Now, for the first time, they want to divorce television revenue and the pension fund."

Miller said the offer would be sent to each player along with his recommendation to refuse it and a ballot with which to vote.

Dallas Places Four On All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Green Bay's domination of the National Football League All-Star honors ended in 1968 when Baltimore and Dallas each placed four players on the 22-man offensive and defensive units picked for The Associated Press by a 48-man committee of sports writers and sportscasters, three from each league city.

Earl Morrall, who has been everybody's back-up quarterback for years, finally moved front and center as the All-Star quarterback with the Baltimore Colts. He replaced John Unitas, the 1967 All-Star who gave way to Morrall at Baltimore this year because of a tennis elbow.

The starting backfield consisted of Morrall and the fleet running back combination of Leroy Kelly of Cleveland, the two-time rushing champion, and Gale Sayers of Chicago, despite the knee injury that put him out of action for the season Nov. 10.

Clifton McNeil, the speedy receiver who was acquired by San Francisco from Cleveland just before the season started, was named the flanker on the basis of his league-leading 71 pass catches.

Pugh Likely To Suit Out

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas injury situation for the Eastern Conference championship game of the National Football League in Cleveland Saturday was both good and bad to say.

Halfback Craig Baynham zipped through a workout Tuesday at full speed, showing no signs of favoring an injured knee that sent him limping from the last regular season game against New York.

But defensive tackle Jethro Pugh was another problem. Dallas officials said Pugh also suffered a knee injury against New York, will probably play but his effectiveness will be hampered somewhat.

Pugh is one reason the Cowboys led the NFL in dumping the passer and stopping the rush this year. Most clubs double-team All-Pro defensive tackle Bob Lilly. This leaves Pugh in a one-on-one situation which he usually wins.

Although Cowboy officials say they are optimistic Pugh will start, Ron East is being groomed as a possible replacement.

Backup tight end Pete Gent is expected to play against the Browns. He missed two weeks with a broken nose and leg injury. Gent is used at tight end on definite passing downs.

Don Meredith of Dallas, Bart Starr of Green Bay and Fran Tarkenton of New York getting any other votes.

Warren Wells Is Given Accolade

NEW YORK (AP) — Warren Wells, who first attracted the attention of the Oakland Raiders when they saw him in Kansas City Chief films, is now a Raider who this week is the object of the Chiefs' cinematic attention.

The Chiefs and the Raiders meet for the American Football League's Western Division title Sunday, and one of Kansas City's main concerns has to be Wells, a split end whose 53 pass catches and 12 touchdowns have helped put Oakland where it is.

His four catches, for 113 yards and one touchdown, helped the Raiders beat stubborn San Diego last Sunday and today brought him The Associated Press' designation as AFL offensive player of the week.

It is ironic that the Chiefs should be studying ways to stop Wells in Sunday's game. They had him for a while last year but released him in their final cut. However, he played for them long enough to get a supporting role in their game films.

"Of course, it turned out that it was Wells. But he looked just like Taylor. They run very similarly, and they're built pretty much alike."

So as soon as Davis saw the Chiefs had put the 6-foot-1, 190-pounder on waivers, he grabbed him. Wells caught just 13 passes last year, mostly playing behind Bill Miller. But this year he developed as fast as he runs.

"He brought an entire new dimension to our attack," Coach John Rauch said. "Everybody used to fault us because we didn't have the bomb, but Warren took care of that very nicely."

So nicely, in fact, that his 12 touchdowns, one of which came on an end-around play, were the most in the AFL this season. His 53 pass catches placed him sixth, but no one caught more TD passes and his average gain of 21.5 yards per reception was second only to New York's Don Maynard.

How did he develop so rapidly in one season? "Well, for one thing, he hasn't been dropping passes this year as he did last. For another, Wells explained, 'I also had the bad habit of looking away from the ball before I caught it to see where I could go. This season Fred Biletnikoff worked hard with me at training camp, and I finally added the concentration that has paid off.'

Stall Saves Cat Quintet

By The Associated Press

To stall or not to stall. Lefty Driesell, coach of the nationally third-ranked Davidson Wildcats in college basketball, faced that situation at Richmond, Va., Tuesday night when his team led the Spiders by three points with 4:18 left to play.

Driesell decided on stalling tactics and Davidson hung on for a 62-60 squeaker for the Wildcats' fourth straight victory against no fourth.

"I figure if you can't win with a three-point lead and they won't come out and get you, it's a good idea," Driesell said afterwards. "I was kind of surprised they didn't come out, but they played it right. They got the ball."

An offensive Davidson foul gave Richmond possession and a corner shot by Kenny Foster pulled the Spiders within one point with 24 seconds to go. Two free throws by Jerry Kroll in the closing seconds sewed it up for Davidson.

"They didn't really beat us, we just lost the game," commented Lewis Mills, Richmond coach. "Driesell was just trying to spread us out, hoping to drive us and I wasn't going to get spread out."

Mike Maloy paced Davidson with 20 points and 10 rebounds. Stan Ryfinski was high for Richmond with 17 points.

Potter Promoted

IDAHO — Wayne Potter has been named head football coach at Idaho High School, replacing Keith Lowe. Lowe resigned recently.

Potter has been serving as an assistant mentor here for the past year.

Big Spring's ace linebacker, Rocky Wooley, is intent upon studying law and is leaning toward the University of Texas in pursuing that course.

Emory Bellard, the University of Texas mentor and former San Angelo coach, viewed films of Steer games here last week and remarked, in effect, that if Wooley wasn't all-district then "those other fellows must be All-American."

Incidentally, Emory Bellard Jr., son of the UT aide, has had a great season at Austin Reagan High School despite an ailing knee that still needs medical attention.

The two most slam-bang clubs in professional football have to be the New York Giants and the Chicago Bears. They probably don't try to maim the opposition on every play—it only looks that way. Some observers would call them alley-fighters and they're all of that.

A high school coach who has had his team in the playoffs for the second straight year would never win a personality contest among his fellow mentors. He's appreciated least of all for his humility, his critics say.

Paul Lyons, the former Midland quarterback, had a stellar freshman football season at LSU and is counted on to play a lot for the Tigers over the next three seasons.

Lyons led the Baby Bengals to a 5-1 season. The LSU frosh beat Ole Miss' Baby Rebs, 33-0, in one outing. Only Rice's Owles measured the Baton Rouge freshman.

Lyons threw for four touchdowns and scored three times himself.

Assistants' jobs at some District 3-AAAA schools have been paying more than Baylor anted up for its football aides.

Who ever moves into John Bridgers' shoes at the Waco school will have to improve the living standards of his help if he hopes to compete with the other teams in the SWC.

Gerald Myers, the former Lubbock basketball mentor, is seeking to change neighborhoods for his Houston Baptist College teams.

HBC has fielded teams only two years but Myers wants to move the school into the NCAA. Houston Baptist is now associated with the NAIA.

The Huskies won seven of their first eight starts this season. They grabbed only six victories in 26 assignments over the entire season last year.

Steve Perkins, the acid Dallas scribe, still takes a dim view of the Americana Football League.

It was Perkins who wrote recently: "Wish the AFL would stop trying to climb into the upper league with such cracks as Don Maynard of the NY Jets 'breaking' Ray Berry's receiving record. Dick Stuart once hit 70 homers in the bushes."

Someone once asked Big Springer Danny Birdwell, now with the Oakland Raiders, if he liked to play professional football.

Danny pondered a while over that and then replied: "Do I like to breathe?"

Danny insisted he hurt more after that recent game with the Denver Broncos than he had all season.

"I think if we had to play them every week, I'd give up football," he sighed.

EFFORT TO OFFSET CURRENT INFLATIONARY TREND

Federal Board Moves To Establish Stiffer Credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board has moved to establish stiffer credit in an effort to offset the current inflationary trend plaguing the nation's economy.

With economic barometers reporting the economy still running too fast the board announced Tuesday the interest rate charged by Federal Reserve district banks on loans to their member banks is going up from 5 1/4 per cent to 5 1/2 per cent.

CUT BORROWING
The move is calculated to discourage the present high level of borrowing by making it more costly. The board said it wants "to foster financial conditions conducive to the reduction of inflationary pressures, with a view toward encouraging a more sustainable rate of economic expansion and attaining reasonable equilibrium in the country's balance of payments."

The new discount rate, takes effect today in eight of the 11 Federal Reserve districts. Since directors of the Federal Reserve banks in St. Louis, Kansas City and San Francisco didn't join their counterparts in the other districts in asking a rate increase, they will continue using the 5 1/4 per cent rate.

Observers expected uniformly throughout the system in a matter of days, however. The board's action Tuesday reverses a decision made last August when it ordered the interest discount rate lowered from 5 1/4 per cent to 5 1/2 per cent.

The board said then the reduction was needed because the 5 1/4 per cent figure was a "crisis" rate that would have had psychological effects on the economy if it stood too long.

Tuesday's announcement didn't indicate how long the return to the 5 1/2 per cent rate might last.

Many bankers and economists praised the interest rate boost, although they said it was expected. Dr. Saul Klamman, vice president and chief economist of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, analyzed the rate cut this way:

"If the discount rate is short-lived, and my own view is that it will be, then mortgage rates will rise temporarily, choke off further economic expansion and dampen inflationary expectations."

Some observers expressed doubts, however, about the effect of the Reserve Board's action.

—A 7 per cent spurt in housing starts in November, mainly in the South. But housing industry spokesmen fear the onset of a tight money period would cut deeply into available funds for mortgages.

—Personal income still climbing, though at a slower rate than a few months ago. Wages and salaries, which account for two-thirds of personal income from all sources, were up 9 1/2 per cent in the first 11 months of the year.

—A 7 per cent spurt in housing starts in November, mainly in the South. But housing industry spokesmen fear the onset of a tight money period would cut deeply into available funds for mortgages.

Earlier this month the government reported unemployment dropped in November to 3.3 per cent, lowest in 15 years. Many economists see rapidly rising prices as almost inescapable when unemployment reaches such low levels—a situation posing unpleasant choices for those trying to steer the economy from Washington.

Though he acknowledged the possibility that housing will suffer from a tightening of credit, Dr. Michael Sumichrast, chief economist of the National Association of Home Builders, said many builders will settle for a period of tight money if it can stop inflation.

This Spring's Emmy Awards Dogged By Angry Rumblings

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Studio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Emmy Oscar's hard-luck, plain Jane little sister, will be 21 next May — if she makes it.

Already there are angry rumblings and threats that some VIPs may boycott TV's coming-of-age party. The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences has—again—revised the rules for candidates for its golden statuette. But instead of placating the critics of its awards procedures, the academy finds itself in the center of a new, bitter controversy.

The Emmy awards, TV's way of honoring its own, at least in theory, seems dogged by dissension and disaster. A few seasons back there was a big rebellion when CBS News led a walk-out in a controversy over judging methods. Eventually this was sort of smoothed over. Then last spring came that embarrassing disorganized awards show that was literally a tragedy of error and mishaps.

Now the awards committee has made some more changes relating to the qualifications of nominations—notably a rule that bars programs and those associated with programs that have been on the air for two years or more.

While there was a lot of grumbling, the first real action was taken by an ABC vice president who complained that network executives were given no chance to discuss the changes before they were put through. Criticism of the two-season rules stems from the fact that several programs and performers have been nominated for Emmy awards in seasons past but never won the balloting. Now they are automatically out of the running. A good example is Mario Thomas and her show, "That Girl."

By the very nature of television, there are too many categories and too many performers ever to make an awards contest very meaningful. And, on the other side of the coin, networks and independent producers—who privately kiss off the Emmys as meaningless—all want to win Emmys because they have a certain exploitation and publicity value.

This year the number of categories has been chopped down a bit—but it still is more than 30 and is too big for comfort. One thing is certain: This spring's Emmy awards show will be better than last season's, or the survival of the awards themselves will be on the line.

ABC has signed Dick Cavett to a five-year contract and will give him a prime-time network show scheduled to start in May on a three-a-week basis.

The Ivy League comedian, whose low-rated ABC morning show will conclude a short run at the end of January, has been fiercely courted by other networks and by independent producers.

Some observers expressed doubts, however, about the effect of the Reserve Board's action. "Unless this increase is an indication the Federal Reserve Board is getting tougher, this thing won't work," said Walter Klein of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

Other developments, reported Tuesday, providing a backdrop for the Federal Reserve policy change included:

—Another rise in the industrial production index, indicating the output of the nation's industries rose in November to 167.4 on a scale that pegs output in the 1957-59 base period at 100. The rise was the strongest in one month since May.

Dear Abby Don't Tell Them Anything

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago, our under-age daughter ran off and got married. She realized it was a terrible mistake and came home to us. Her father succeeded in having the marriage annulled. We are trying to live down this terrible nightmare, and don't wish to discuss it with anyone. When people ask us for the "details," what should we say?

do you suggest we do? Naturally, we don't want to lose their friendship. ON THE SPOT

SMALL TOWN, U.S.A.
DEAR SMALL TOWN: Don't tell them anything. Your friends won't ask. And your enemies won't believe you anyway.

DEAR ABBY: My wife, who works for a large insurance company, has just informed me that they are having an office Christmas party, and this year they took a secret vote and it was decided that husbands and wives will not be invited.

DEAR ABBY: Just what are the responsibilities when one's name is used for a "character reference"? Some friends of ours have decided to adopt a child, and they have given our name as a reference. These people pay their bills, the husband doesn't beat his wife or anything like that, but in our opinion they would make poor parents. Without going into detail, they both drink a little too much. He strays from the straight and narrow path occasionally, and it wouldn't surprise us if she fooled around, too.

I just informed HER that I didn't care what they voted. SHE was not going to any party without me. We had a few words about it and now she's not speaking to me.

We have children of our own and take our parental responsibilities very seriously, so what

I'd like your opinion, Abby. How do you feel about company parties that specialize in drinking and dancing, but exclude the spouses? CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: I'm foursquare against anything that breeds jealousy, misunderstanding, and hostility between husband and wife. And company parties which exclude spouses lead the list.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to "UNHAPPY IN CAL." I can tell this lady that I have lived under worse conditions than she has. For 48 years I have been married to the stingiest man God ever created, but when I said, "I take this man for better or worse until death do us part," I meant every word of it.

It's been rough at times, but Jesus is my personal saviour and He never gives us a heavier load than we can carry, so all I ask is strength to bear my cross until He sees fit to change things according to His will.

I just got out of the hospital with my fourth nervous breakdown. I had shingles in my mouth so bad I still can't wear my dentures, but God knows what is best for me and I have placed myself in His hands. People with problems can do the same.

Students Expelled Seeking Damages

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Testimony in a civil suit filed by the parents of five Mexican-American pupils who were expelled from school after they boycotted classes at Edcouch-Elsa high school was scheduled in U.S. District Court today.

State Sen. Jim Bates of Edinburg is representing the school and the pupils are being represented by Bob Sanchez of McAllen, Mike Gonzalez of Pharr and lawyers furnished by the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund.

$50,000 BID
The suit asks $50,000 in damages from the school district and alleges that the five pupils were expelled from school without a hearing and were deprived of an education.

The pupils were among approximately 175 expelled Nov. 14 when Mexican-American pupils began boycotting classes and holding demonstrations at the school. The expulsions were first ordered for three days by Principal M.L. Pipkin and were later made indefinite by the school board.

BOYCOTT
Judge Garza recently ordered the school to admit pupils expelled without hearings. He further ruled that the pupils could be expelled after the hearings and that the school board acted unlawfully by expelling pupils without first granting them a hearing.

The boycott and demonstrations took place after pupils claimed that the school board would not listen to a list of 15 demands drawn up by a group of pupils. The demands include allegations that school officials have discriminated against Mexican-American pupils and have ordered the pupils not to speak Spanish on the school ground.
