GROWS WEAKER Gen. Ike Develops Pneumonia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has developed pneumonia, the Army announced today.

A morning bulletin from Walter Reed Army Hospital said the 78-year-old former president, who underwent abdominal surgery Sunday, "is generally weaker this morning, but is cooperative and determined to overcome this latest complication."

The bulletin, relayed by the Pentagon, reported that Eisenhower "experienced some respiratory difficulty during the night which is due to pneumonia which has developed in the right lung base."

"It is too early to determine how he will respond to treatment," the bulletin said.

He was described as having spent a restless night.

The issuance by the Pentagon of the hospital bulletin was a departure from the usual procedure. Previous ones were announced at the hospital.

Latest to file was Eddie Acrl, 2500 Larry. Incumbent commissioners George Zachariah and Garner McAdams filed Thursday. Blaz Bailon became the first candidate in the campaign when he filed Tuesday.

Smith said that he will be available for any candidate who wants to file his name Saturday.

School Bond Elections

Two area school districts will ballot Saturday on bond proposals aggregating over a million dollars.

Forsan Independent County Line School District voters will decide whether to issue $550,000 in school improvement bonds, while those in the Borden County Independent School District will give their verdict on a $425,000 issue for new construction.

Those in the Forsan district will ballot either at the foyer of the Forsan or the Elbow schools between the hours of 8 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Borden County voters will cast their ballots at one of six places: Pct. 1 at Plains Community Center; Pct. 2 at Borden County courthouse; Pct. 3 at Fairview school; Pct. 4 at Murphy school; Pct. 5 at Ralph Miller residence; and Pct. 6 at Vealmoor teacherage.

Projected Forsan improvements are six to eight classrooms at Elbow; a new business building, bank hall at Forsan, revamping of gymnasium PE plant and football field; and eight to 10 brick veneer teacherages.

Borden County school trustees have in mind the construction of a new science building, one economics building, agricultural shops and band hall, along with a physical training complex added to the gymnasium. If funds are sufficient, there will be some renovation of the high school plant.

Ex-Official Guilty

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Former Alabama Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers and two other men have been convicted of conspiring to extort money from persons and firms doing business in Alabama while Flowers was in office from 1963-67.

A federal jury of eight men and four women returned the verdict Thursday against Flowers, businessman Oscar Hyde of Miami and Birmingham and former Asst. Atty. Gen. Joe Breck Gantt of Birmingham.

U.S. Dist. Judge Clarence Allgood said he would pronounce sentence March 10 and freed the men on their own recognizance. Defense attorneys said they would appeal.

Maximum penalty is $10,000 in fines and 20 years in prison per count.

The jury, which heard nearly five weeks of testimony and saw more than 300 exhibits presented, deliberated 4 1/2 hours.

The government presented testimony that a number of firms and persons were forced to make payoffs to get permission to sell stock in Alabama or to keep the firms out of trouble with the attorney general's office.

Quakes Near LA

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — Two gentle, rolling earthquakes centered 25 miles northeast of Los Angeles — squarely over the San Andreas fault — hit for nearly a minute Thursday night.

No serious damage was reported.

A sheriff's officer six miles from Palmdale said telephone service between Palmdale and Lancaster was cut at the time of the quakes. "The lines may be down," Deputy Charles Jensen said.

San Antonio Might Lose School Funds

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio Independent School District was told Thursday it is in violation of the Health, Education and Welfare Department's desegregation policies. The district superintendent voiced little surprise.

Jerold Ward, chief in the educational branch of HEW's Dallas regional office for civil rights, reported his team's findings in an hour-long statement to the school board. He asked for a new integration plan.

Districts which do not comply with HEW guidelines of "non-racial" school systems are in danger of losing federal funds, Ward pointed out.

The San Antonio district is receiving more than $2 million in federal funds this year for its 79,000 pupils in 103 schools.

"I think the report was presented objectively, and I don't think it presented many surprises in what we could have expected from this investigation," School Supt. Harold Hiit commented.

"I think we can meet the requirements," he said, adding that at this time he did not know what steps would be taken.

Ward told school board members the district's present plan "does not promise a transition to a non-racial system" and asked that a new plan be submitted to his office.

Ward's report was based on visits by a team from his office last September and December.

Bank Employee Retires

Lester Morton, president of the First National Bank, bids farewell to Mrs. Violet Lindley, who left the bank Friday after 27 years employment. Her associates at the bank honored Mrs. Lindley with a farewell party at the bank Friday morning. Mrs. Lindley began work with the bank in 1942.

Mrs. Lindley Leaves Bank After 27 Years

By SAM BLACKBURN

Things aren't going to be quite the same around the First National Bank. Violet won't be there.

Violet, in this case, is Mrs. Violet Lindley, senior secretary of the bank and more recently head of the bank's credit department.

TODAY Effective today, Mrs. Lindley retired. She had been an employee of the bank for nearly 27 years, when she decided to terminate her career in that field.

"I began work at the bank Aug. 26, 1942," she said. "Prior to that I had worked for five years with the Howard County tax collector's office."

She began work as a secretary in the bank — a post she still held when she closed her desk for the last time this afternoon. The big difference is that in the 27 years she has served the institution, she has become so familiar with operations of the bank, that she could — and sometimes did — serve in almost any capacity. Hence her duties for the past several months as head of the credit department.

ENERGETIC Actually, use of the word "retire" is not quite right in the case of the energetic Mrs. Lindley. It would be more accurate to say she has dropped one job in order to devote full time to a second career which she has worked at parttime for the past 17 years. That career is farming and ranching.

She doesn't plan to be an absentee landlady. On the contrary, she proposes to do a lot of work on her farm-ranch herself. And she will live right on the land.

Her ranch comprises a section and a half in Glasscock County, about 20 miles southwest of Big Spring. Mrs. Lindley has lived on the place for a number of years, commuting to and from the farm to the bank. She bought the land in 1952.

She has purebred Herefords grazing on her pasture land and hopes to build up her herd. She has fields which have produced abundant cotton in lush crop years. She proposes to keep them producing. There is good water under the land.

A major oil company, which has a lease on her farm, has staked a location in sight of her residence and will start a test well sometime within the next few weeks.

DRILL "The company officials consulted with me several times about it," she said. "Now they have decided where they will drill soon."

There are oil wells on other property "all around" her place, Mrs. Lindley said. She is a native of Durant, Okla. Her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Reden C. Lindley, were early day settlers in that area. She attended school at Durant and later graduated from Southeastern State College there. She planned to be a teacher.

She came to Big Spring in 1921 and took a job in the middle thirties with the county tax office.

When she moved to the First National Bank, that was it — from then on until Friday she was a fixture of that pioneer establishment.

"I'm not saying I won't hate to leave," she said. "But I do look forward to the future with great anticipation. I have wanted to try my hand at full-time farm and ranch operation for a long time — now I can do so."

What will she do at first?

"Sleep late in the morning," she said promptly. "Get up when I want to, and work as late as I like. I think it will be fun."

MISSED

She will be missed at the bank.

Lester Morton, president, said "We'll certainly have to make some adjustments to fill in when Violet leaves." And her fellow workers, many of whom have worked with her for years, expressed regret that she was no longer to occupy her desk at the top of the stairs, on the southeast corner of the big bank building.

But they were a little envious, too. They feel that Mrs. Lindley, perhaps, has attained something that everyone hopes to attain, but few ever achieve — a chance to do what she really wants to do.

Violent Earthquake Rocks Portugal, Morocco, Spain

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A major earthquake rocked the Iberian Peninsula and parts of northwest Africa today, causing at least two deaths in Spain and Portugal and at least 61 injuries in Lisbon.

The violent, rolling tremor was described by the National Earthquake Center in Washington, D.C., as one of the world's sharpest recorded quakes since the disastrous one that hit Alaska in March, 1964.

It struck in the Atlantic Ocean west of Gibraltar, waking residents of two continents in the middle of the night.

Shock waves sped south to Morocco, panicking Casablanca residents, and north through the entire length and breadth of Portugal and parts of Spain.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

Geologists here said damage was less serious because the quake was centered in the ocean and deep below the sea floor. This absorbed much of the blow, they said.

A peasant farmer was reported crushed to death in his crumbling stone home near the tourist town of Lagos on the southern Portuguese shore. A man died of a heart attack in Sevilla, Spain.

In Lisbon, a city of nearly a million inhabitants that was razed by an earthquake in 1755, 61 persons were treated for injuries in San Jose Hospital.

Four were reported in serious condition. Most were struck by falling debris as chimneys, balconies and parts of walls tumbled onto streets and stairways. At least a dozen parked cars were demolished.

nothing could keep our country from feeling that your country was a friend," the French leader added.

"You have come to see us so that we can make known our thoughts and our intentions on the problems and the affairs of the world, and that you enlighten us on your views and projects."

Nixon also sounded a call to something new and different. "Our Western societies," he said, "different as they may be in culture, history and tradition, face in common the task of creating new goals—goals which will inspire our peoples, goals which will lead them to constructive rather than destructive relations."

The President referred to historic links between France and America and said the two "must once again begin a journey together" in search of something more exciting than any previous adventure they have shared.

"We must discover the way to a just and lasting peace," Nixon said. "The search will be difficult, but we must succeed, for the price of failure cannot be borne. I look forward, Mr. President, to discussing with you how to carry out this essential task."

COMPLIMENT

In a glowing compliment to his host, Nixon said "few leaders of the modern world think so broadly as you."

"Few have so well understood the great historical sweeps of the past," he continued. "Few have thought so clearly about the future. Few have considered the interplay of forces that shape events, the motivations of men and nations, the subtle traditions that lie behind the attitudes of the moment."

Portents of disturbances preceded Nixon's arrival.

The French Communist party called for demonstrations "at the moment he enters Paris" to protest the "new flare-up of American aggression" in Vietnam since Nixon's inauguration.

Early in the day, roving bands of youths shouting "Go Home!" smashed windows at offices of American Express and Pan American Airways, and at the Hilton Hotel coffee shop. Two persons were slightly injured by flying glass at the hotel, and five youths were arrested at the American Express office.

RIOT POLICE

About 4,000 French riot police were mobilized in Paris.

Leaving Rome for Paris, Nixon told Italy's leaders he was "reassured" by his talks with them, which he said had brought the matter of closer consultations to a new stage.

Then he flew off to tackle the toughest task of his eight-day European program—laying the groundwork for a new, closer relationship between the United States and France and pressing discreetly for a greater degree of European unity.

Saying goodbye, Premier Mariano Rumor expressed Italy's appreciation of Nixon's plan to negotiate outstanding issues with the Soviet Union. He told Nixon those negotiations "will be a great contribution toward the solution of the problems which trouble the life of the people and the construction of a more stable and specific international order."

Lodge To Present Detailed Report

PARIS (AP) — American negotiators at the Vietnam peace talks appear to have reached the conclusion that the current Viet Cong offensive thus far has not violated the tacit "understanding" under which the United States halted the bombing of North Vietnam last Nov. 1.

Chief U.S. negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge is due to present a detailed report on the deadlocked conference to President Nixon during a scheduled three-hour meeting Sunday morning.

Conference sources said South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky will attend at least a part of Nixon's talk with Lodge.

They are expected to review the five-week-old stalemate and discuss the possible repercussions of the Viet Cong attacks.

There was a noticeable difference in emphasis between American and South Vietnamese comments on the attacks.

Following the sixth weekly conference session Thursday, South Vietnamese spokesman Nguyen Thieu Dan stressed the large number of civilians killed and injured by what he called indiscriminate Viet Cong shelling of population centers.

Lodge also deplored the civilian victims of the Viet Cong's "wanton violence." But U.S. spokesman Harold Kaplan told newsmen the United States was satisfied the Viet Cong attacks were aimed "mainly" at military targets.

Kaplan said the American delegation kept "under very active review" the question of whether the attacks violated the package deal under which the bombing was halted.

Details of the deal have never been announced, and Kaplan said it was best "for the sake of the future of the negotiations" to avoid spelling them out. North Vietnam has frequently denied that it made any commitment in return for the bombing halt, and Hanoi's spokesman in Paris, Nguyen Thanh Le, on Thursday described American reports of such a commitment as a "pure invention."

American officials said the Hanoi leaders nonetheless could have no possible doubt about the "understanding" they reached with the United States last October. The understanding is believed to have required North Vietnam and its Viet Cong allies to stop "indiscriminate attacks" on major cities and refrain from large-scale troop activity in the demilitarized zone.

Neither the United States nor South Vietnam has formally threatened to retaliate for the Viet Cong attacks. Vice President Ky twice said he would recommend to President Nguyen Van Thieu that the bombing of North Vietnam resume if the attacks continued. But no such threat has come from Ky's government.

Duck Hunters Quacking Loudly In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Duck hunters in Louisiana are quacking loudly over a recommendation that hunting not be permitted next fall.

"Ridiculous," says Richard Yancey, assistant director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission and a nationally known waterfowl biologist.

A large contingent from Louisiana heads to Washington today for weekend meetings of the National Wildlife Federation and North American Wildlife Conference.

The Louisiana group hopes to gain support for their fight against what Yancey calls "an absolutely absurd proposal and the worst thing that could happen as far as the future status of ducks every year."

What got sportsmen and conservationists stirred up was a report earlier in the week that the Mississippi Flyway Council, also meeting in Washington over the weekend, would receive a recommendation from its technical section that the duck season next fall and winter in the flyway's 14 states—which get more migratory waterfowl than any other area—be closed because of a decline in the number of mallards, the most popular duck.

A federal survey last month showed a 3.5 per cent decline in the winter mallard population from January, 1968. The same inventory also showed the entire duck population up 16 per cent last year.

Wiley College Will Reopen On March 12

HOUSTON (AP) — Wiley College at Marshall, which was closed last Tuesday after nine days of boycotts, blocked doors and demands by students, will reopen March 12.

The executive committee of the United Methodist-owned Negro college made the announcement Thursday after a daylong closed session.

Joseph Johnson of Chicago, vice chairman of the college's board, said in a news conference the college will be "reopened for its regular schedule."

Dr. T. Winston Cole, president of the college, ordered the school closed on orders from the Methodist Church.

Johnson said he had been named chairman of a nine-man committee to hold conversations with official representatives of the Wiley College student body, faculty and representatives of alumni groups. The first meetings are scheduled March 7-8 on the campus.

He said the executive committee had confidence in the "integrity and ability" of Cole and would continue to support his closing of the school.

Johnson said the committee also "supports the right of students" to engage in orderly dissent.

He said the committee "ratifies the agreements reached by president Cole and the student body in relation to a list of grievances presented by the students." He declined to indicate what the grievances included.

Bishop Kenneth Copeland of the Gulf Coast Conference of the United Methodist Church, who also is president of the college board of trustees, met with students Monday.

He told them the board wanted to "cooperate in every way possible" with the administration and the student body to help open and keep open channels of communication.

Students continued a boycott, barricading the administration building and some classrooms. Johnson said the decision to close the school was then made "to prevent violence."

RX: Valuables

NEW DELHI (AP) — She was wearing a white coat and a stethoscope, and a look of concern and efficiency. That is how neighbors saw her as the doctor went up the three flights of stairs to an apartment in a residential block.

Then somebody suddenly remembered having seen the third-floor-apartment family go out a little while before and wondered whom the doctor had come to see. They followed her and saw her examining the door lock with a hairpin.

The police later described the 19-year-old "doctor" as a notorious burglar.

CHIEF CODE WORD IS M-O-N-E-Y

Demos Uncover GOP Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats claim to have uncovered a secret Republican plan to capture control of the House in 1970. Details are not known but the chief code word is familiar — M-O-N-E-Y.

Democratic Rep. George Brown of California revealed the GOP plot in the Congressional Record Thursday by re-printing a letter sent out by the National Republican Congressional Committee to prospective party donors. The letter, from Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., chairman of the committee, says Republican party leaders have been hard at work since last November's election on the 1970 campaign.

"Here I have to ask you to trust me," wrote Wilson. "Details of the program must be kept top secret. The plan would lose much of its vote-getting power if the Democrats learned about this new approach."

"But I am free to say this much: the program is starting right now. And it is going to cost more than we have spent in any nonpresidential election year in our history. I wish I could tell you more at this time. But you can appreciate the need for secrecy."

Another document acquired by the Democrats shows the committee also is offering Republican members a wide variety of services and some hard cash to help with their re-election efforts.

SPEECH FILE
Freshmen members and those from marginal districts can get $3,500 a year for public relations activities, with the rest of the members entitled to $2,000. The services being offered included professional art work for their newsletters, help in preparing radio and television programs and photographs for home consumption.

The committee makes available a speech file "broken down by subject matter and type of audience. For instance: Speeches for use over Lincoln Day, before Young Republicans Clubs, business audiences, etc."

If members are too self-conscious to put out press releases praising themselves, the committee will do it for them.

Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., who put the second document in the Record, said he did so "in the manner of a hungry wolf pressing his nose against the delicatessen window."

Demands By UT Student Group Labeled 'Racist'

AUSTIN (AP) — A University of Texas administrator Thursday criticized the 11 demands submitted to the administration by a black student group.

Dr. John R. Silber, dean of the college of arts and sciences, called various demands made by the Afro-American for Black Liberation (AABL) "racist," "unrealistic," "vague" and "ridiculous."

The AABL submitted its demands to university president Norman Hackerman in the afternoon and demanded that "the authorities answer within two weeks."

Silber, speaking at an open faculty meeting, said that a black studies department, as outlined in the demands, would be a racist department.

One of the guidelines demanded in establishing such a department was that it hire 50 black professors. Silber said it would be a mistake to delay such a program until that number of black professors could be hired.

Silber pointed out that demand for qualified black professors far outdistances the supply. "There has got to be some level of realism," he declared. "I'm not surprised or offended by receiving demands. It doesn't mean they can happen."

"We have to be reasonable about our demands." Another demand was for dismissal of the University of Texas board of regents. Silber said the university obviously had no authority to dismiss the board of regents.

The dean of the university's largest school kept mentioning reality with statements like "we have got to come back to the real world."

He suggested that AABL hire someone to draft a bill and submit it to the Legislature if it wanted to have the regents dismissed.

A final demand was for "conversion of the LBJ Library on the campus into a black studies building and that it be named the Malcolm X Black Students Building."

Silber suggested the AABL talk with former President Lyndon B. Johnson or the national archives about that objective.

Hackerman, contacted Thursday night, said he had not examined the demands and would not comment.

He said, however, that Silber's statements did not necessarily reflect those of the university president's office. Hackerman said he expected to issue a statement in a few days.

New Movies Tax Bill Introduced By Fem Senator

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A woman state senator has introduced a bill she says is intended "to take action against the declining moral quality of motion pictures" by progressively taxing them according to whether they are for adults only or for youngsters as well.

Movies rated by the Motion Picture Association of America as "X," to which persons under 16 are not admitted, would be taxed 50 cents a person.

A 25-cent tax would fall on "R" movies, which persons under 16 can attend only if they are accompanied by a parent or guardian.

"M" movies, for mature audiences, would have a 15-cent levy. General audience "G" movies, and any undesignated films released before Nov. 1, 1968, would carry a five-cent tax under the bill introduced by state Sen. Geraldine Neilson, a Republican from Winston-Salem.

Bill Would Allow Solon Six Wives

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Nine New Mexico legislators who says its a joke have introduced a bill aimed at the Senate's Mormon member. The bill would allow members of certain religious sects to have up to six wives.

Sen. William Segoe, R-Albuquerque, the object of the joke, says he wants it understood that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints abandoned the doctrine of plural marriages in 1890.

If anyone did take the bill seriously it could throw doubt on a section of the New Mexico constitution prohibiting polygamy. The bill says this violated the U.S. Constitution's freedom of religion guarantee.

Speaking For The Governors

Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee, chairman of the National Governors' Conference, briefs reporters at yesterday's news conference in Washington. Vice President Spiro Agnew, right, took part in the closed door sessions between the governors and federal officials.

Governors Reject Federal Probe Of Campus Disorders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's governors have condemned campus disorders but rejected a call for a federal investigation out of fear it might stir more unrest.

By overwhelming voice vote, the governors approved a resolution Thursday saying "lawless acts by a small segment of the student population must not be allowed to interfere with the vast numbers of students who are seeking to exercise their educational opportunities."

The action came after Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell assured the National Governors Conference on the second day of its two-day winter meeting that the Justice Department is keeping an eye on campus disorders.

The proposal by California Gov. Ronald Reagan, whose own state has had some of the severest upheavals, would have called on President Nixon to order a study "to determine if there is a nationwide plan or organization behind the current outbreaks."

California has been troubled by sporadic unrest at the University of California's Berkeley campus and at San Francisco State College.

"I see no need to foment trouble in Florida by indicating it is a federal responsibility," said that state's chief executive.

Claude Kirk, "In terms of the Michigan situation, I do not believe a federal investigation is necessary or advisable at this time," said new Gov. William G. Milliken.

The governors, many of whom spent a good deal of the two days talking about the campus problem, thus indicated agreement with suggestions presented by the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University.

GUIDELINES

Hesburgh, who was praised earlier by President Nixon for his policy of dealing firmly with protesters at the South Bend, Ind., university, sent his recommendations to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in a letter made public about the time Reagan made his proposal.

Hesburgh said it is important to assume "that the university community—faculty, students, administration and trustees—are capable, in most cases, of laying down their own guidelines."

In case of trouble, he said, outside help may be needed. But he added: "Let it be understood that the university, and only the university, public or private, makes this determination."

The governors also passed a series of resolutions in which they called for simplification of federal grant programs and revenue sharing by which the national government would return a portion of tax revenues to the states.

Long Dispute Over Will Of Bachelor Continues

CLEBURNE, Tex. (AP) — A summary judgment in favor of three nieces was asked Thursday in a long dispute over the will of multimillionaire bachelor James E. Sexton.

The new court move involves about 6,000 acres in Johnson, Hill and Somervell counties.

Various Sexton documents brought on court fights of wide-spread dimensions because one purported will left the bulk of his estate to Mrs. Agnes Kirk, in whose rest home he lived for a time.

That document was ruled invalid at a trial in Henderson. The decision in effect left much of the estate, valued at $2 million to $60 million, to four nieces.

But the 6,000 acres involved in Thursday's motion was not included in the Henderson action.

The question of the 6,000 acres came up again in February 1968 when Charlie Williams of Fort Worth produced still another will, this one purporting to leave Sexton's estate to Mrs. Kirk and making Williams a beneficiary.

Williams said he received the document in an anonymously sent letter.

The three asking the summary judgment said they acted as executrices and trustees of their late mother's estate. Their mother, named in the Sexton document ruled valid earlier, was Mrs. R. E. L. Silvey. She died in 1959.

They contend the Williams document was filed after the legal four-year waiting period and thus is not valid. The law allows a late-discovered will to be probated but Thursday's motion contends that the existence of the Williams document was known before the four-year period expired.

A hearing on the summary judgment motion is set for 9 a.m. March 14, 1969. Sexton, 71, died March 1, 1958,

Damages Asked Due To Fall

An $8,000 damage suit has been filed in 118th District Court against the City of Big Spring by Octavio Loya, in behalf of his wife, Urina Loya.

The suit, styled Octavio Loya et ux vs. the City of Big Spring, alleges that on Sept. 4, 1968, Urina Loya was walking on a sidewalk in the front of her house at 711 N. Aylford, and stepped on a meter cover on the sidewalk, which gave away and caused her to fall.

Sales Tax On Fun Spots Introduced

AUSTIN (AP)—The chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee has asked the Legislature to consider levying a three per cent sales tax on receipts from admission prices to places of amusement.

Rep. Ben Atwell of Dallas introduced a bill Thursday for a limited sales tax on all amusement place receipts, whether they come from purchase of a club or membership card, subscription, dues, season tickets or regular admission prices.

The bill defines "places of amusement" as any place where there is "conducted, operated or maintained any form of amusement, recreation or entertainment" whether or not such activities are normally carried on in the place.

The owner of an amusement place could not advertise that the tax was being assumed or absorbed by him.

Sen. V. E. Berry of San Antonio proposed a constitutional amendment which would divide the state of Texas into two.

The amendment to create a state of South Texas would go before voters in the November 1970 general election if the legislature approves the resolution.

This resolution contends that the vast geographical area of Texas and "the great variance in social, political and economic requirements of its citizens" has made it difficult for people legislation conducive to the best interests of their area.

The resolution states that under a fair apportionment, Texas citizens are entitled to more than double their representation in the U.S. Senate and there now exists "an inequity in congressional representation."

Boundaries of the new state would extend from the northeast corner of Orange County to the Rio Grande in El Paso County.

The new state would include all bays and islands now belonging to Texas, including Galveston Island.

A bill by Rep. Rayford Price of Palestine would provide for a uniform statewide voting system.

The secretary of state would choose the system to be used in all elections, and all equipment and voting machines would be purchased by the state.

The state would purchase from counties any voting or tabulating equipment purchased prior to the measure's adoption.

Busy Bossy

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — A runaway cow caused chaos in the New Zealand city of Hamilton (pop. 65,000) before taking a swim in the private pool of the New Zealand Dairy Company's general manager, Arthur H. Woolven.

It all started when a Jersey-cross cow took off from the city's saleyards.

Pursued by two traffic policemen on motorcycles and a local resident with a lasso, the cow galloped two miles through the city. It scattered pedestrians and cyclists, rammed a garage door, inspected the window display of a milk bar, left hoof marks on a tennis court, and plunged into the pool of the city's top dairyman.

Finally, the snorting cow was tranquilized, hauled from the pool and trucked back to the saleyards.

'Mostly Just Coastin' Now,' Admits Mose, 101

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — Perhaps because he's seen so much of it, time moves sort of slow and easy for Mose Edeson.

Mose reports he was 101 this month. "I'm mostly just coastin' now," he shrugs. "There's not much left to do, for I've done most of it."

The slender, white-haired Negro lives with his youngest daughter, Mrs. Ella Mae Woods, in Paris.

Edeson has known work most of his life, which began in a farmhouse at Okolona, Ark., Feb. 14, 1868.

He has farmed, chopped wood, dug ditches and claims he's "no stranger to hard work."

When his last set of mules gave out, Edeson retired. He figured tractors were a little too much at that late date.

Edeson figures he's in fair shape for a man his age. His eyesight is pretty good.

He eats about anything he's able to handle with his two remaining teeth. Stew, beets and a gelatin are his favorite meals. But for his 101st birthday, Edeson dealt successfully with fried chicken, blackeyed peas and blackberry pie.

"He doesn't ever get enough eggs," his daughter says. "He asked me the other day what was the matter. Did my hens quit laying?"

Edeson has three children and has lost count of his other descendants. There are more than 100 grandchildren.

Back in his younger days, Edeson used to hold forth as a caller at community dances and "break-downs."

But time has changed all that. Edeson doesn't even bother to listen to the radio now, and television doesn't interest him.

Things, he shrugs, just aren't like they used to be.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — After his wedding reception Richard Stuede started changing into street clothes but discovered he had forgotten a shirt and tie.

One of the guests, James Meagher, shed his white shirt and pale blue tie in exchange for Stuede's dress shirt, stiff collar and formal bow tie.

They traded shirts again when Stuede returned from his honeymoon.

Physician Says Spacemen Should Rest Before Flight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — For years Dr. Charles A. Berry has argued that astronauts should take it easy in the final days before a flight.

The astronauts' chief physician may have made his point Thursday when the Apollo 9 launching was postponed three days until Monday because of colds suffered by the three pilots. Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and David R. Scott and civilian Russell L. Schweickart.

In the last couple of weeks they've worked as many as 18 hours a day training for the flight, most of the time in a cool spaceship simulator.

Berry, the space agency's director of medical operations, has felt that operational officials demand too much of the astronauts in the days before a launching.

Asked at a news conference Thursday whether overwork had made the Apollo 9 pilots more susceptible to the colds, Berry replied:

"I'm glad you asked that question. Yes, I feel strongly about this. We've had 100 per cent post-flight illness on these Apollo flights. I don't think we've got a spacecraft that carries germs around and infects them. And I can't see where the Cape has changed that much from the Mercury and Gemini days.

"What has changed is, the complexity of the flights has increased such that the crew has got to put in considerable training and long hours and they don't get enough rest," Berry added.

"You take a crew which starts out a flight tired and you give them demanding tasks in a back, debrief them for 10 days. Then you put them out with thousands of people, and with their resistance low they've contracted illnesses."

Berry noted that all three of the Apollo 7 astronauts developed colds shortly after they were launched into orbit and that Air Force Col. Frank Borman became nauseated and suffered from an intestinal ailment during the Apollo 8 moon orbit flight.

He said all six of the astronauts on those two flights developed medical problems, colds or intestinal upsets in a two-to-three-week period after they returned to earth. It was Berry's decision to postpone the flight, at a cost of $500,000 to the space agency.

All three astronauts showed considerable improvement Thursday and in the afternoon rehearsed for awhile in a space-ship trainer. They retired early and planned more trainer work today.

Apollo 9 Mission Director George Hage agreed the astronauts may have been tired and said consideration would be given to tapering off the training in the final days before future launchings.

W. Germans Plan Voting As Usual

BERLIN (AP) — Mayor Klaus Schuetz said today that the election of West Germany's new president will take place in West Berlin on March 5 as planned.

Schuetz told a news conference the adamant stand taken by the East Germans toward negotiations with his government made further contact impossible.

The East Germans had indicated they would issue passes for West Berliners to visit friends and relatives in East Berlin at Easter if the election was moved from Berlin. But the West German government said it would change the voting only if the East Germans gave much more than that.

The mayor's personal assistant, Horst Grabert, met with East German State Secretary Michael Kohl in West Berlin Wednesday. On Thursday, the East German government told the West Berlin Senate that the exploratory talks could not continue until the elections were called off.

West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger said on television Thursday night that he assumed the election would be held in West Berlin as planned. The East Germans and the Russians object to the holding of the election in West Berlin because it is a demonstration of West Germany's claim to the former German capital. To harass the election, the East Germans barred all members of the Federal Assembly, which will elect the president, from using the surface routes across East Germany to West Berlin. Instead the electors will come by plane since the East Germans have no control over the airplanes.

The Soviets also have announced troop maneuvers west of Berlin next week, but this saber rattling did not force a change in the election plans. Schuetz's announcement will probably set off new propaganda blasts from East Berlin and Moscow that will increase in intensity over the weekend.

Super Sailors Slip Ships, Snow Ski To Supermarket

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Gloucester men used to go down to the sea in ships. This week they are going down to the supermarket on skis.

Two prolonged storms have left this North Shore commercial fishing center and its 28,000 residents buried under 41 inches of snow.

Mayor Joseph F. Grace gave the Police Department authority snow removal equipment and by Thursday—four days after the second storm hit—some of the major streets were passable.

The rest of the town still is snow bound.

Drifts have blown higher than a tall man's head.

An outbound train which never made it out of town has been buried in snow since Tuesday. Its passengers, all from the area, made it home afoot.

Most grocery stores are still well-stocked and—considering the problems in getting there—fairly well patronized.

"I don't know how they do it," said fireman Leroy Garland, who uses a little snow plow on his jeep to pack down the snow on his street. "I've seen guys ski down to the store and I've seen others come down by snow shoe. With my little plow I manage to get through and I've taken the neighbors down to buy groceries."

"It looks like the only way they are ever going to get the snow out of here is to use a bulldozer on it. Some of the side streets have from six inches to a foot and a half packed down on them."

Some fuel oil dealers reported trouble in making home deliveries, but no serious power or heating problems were reported.

Police Chief John J. Coyle and his men are delivering food to those who cannot ski, sled or plow to market.

At Addison Gilbert Hospital, the only one in Gloucester, they've had a bigger problem in getting people out than getting new patients in.

"We've got the usual influx of broken hips and heart attacks that we expect in any major storm," said hospital administrator Tucker Vye, "and since a lot of patients haven't been able to get home we are a little crowded."

"I wish I could say that a mother delivered her baby in a snow bank, or someone did an appendectomy in the cab of a snow plow," he added. "But the truth is—things are pretty routine."

School Races In Coahoma

COAHOMA — There have been filings for each of the places on the Coahoma Independent School District board of trustees. Deadline for applying for a place on the ballot is March 5.

Wendell Shive has applied for a place to succeed himself and Jack Martin has filed for the other two-year term. Leroy Schager, who presently is on the board, has not indicated whether he will ask re-election.

O. D. O'Daniel Jr., who was named to the board with the resignation of Marion Hays, has asked to serve out the remaining one-year of this term.

Three Thefts In Big Spring

Three thefts were investigated by police Thursday.

M. O. Williams, Dallas bus driver, reported to police that a tire and tube, a box of tow chains and a lawn mower was taken from his moving van while he was asleep in the cab of the truck. He had parked his truck on the parking lot of the North 66 Cafe. The missing property is valued at $210.

The Rev. Leo Gee, pastor of the First Methodist Church, reported that a bank deposit bag containing about $25 was taken from the church office about noon Thursday.

Thomas Kirkpatrick, 1000 E. 20th, reported the theft of a stereo tape player from his car while it was parked at Howard County Junior College. The equipment was valued at $140.

Sirhan Gets His Chance

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the pandemonium that followed the mortal wounding of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy last June, his assailant was heard to mutter: "I can explain. Let me explain."

Sirhan Bishara Sirhan will have his chance starting today when his lawyers begin building the defense that the killing was "unplanned and undeliberate, impulsive and without premeditation of malice, totally a product of a sick, obsessed mind and personality."

In California, such a defense is called "diminished responsibility." Sirhan's attorneys do not deny that he killed the New York senator but hope to show that he did not have the mind to "maturely and meaningfully" plan the assassination.

The prosecution called 56 witnesses in nine days of testimony seeking to establish not only that Sirhan killed Kennedy, but that it was premeditated—a necessary element for a first degree murder conviction.

The maximum penalty for first-degree murder in California is death in the gas chamber.

The three lawyers defending the 24-year-old Jordanian have said they will call Sirhan, his mother and two of his four brothers as well as psychologists and psychiatrists. Their estimates of the number of witnesses have ranged up to 30.

Trustees Filing Deadline Nears

At least one seat on the Big Spring Independent School District board of trustees was up for grabs by noon today with the deadline for filing in the April 5 school election drawing nearer.

Don Crockett, school business manager, said that no one else had filed for the two seats which are open, except Grant Boardman, who is seeking a second term on the board.

Deadline for filing in the election has been moved from March 4 to 5 p.m. March 5, Crockett said.

Besides Boardman's seat, the other position expiring is the one currently being held by Jerry Currie, who has said he will not seek re-election.

Crockett said that he will be in Big Spring Saturday morning and will be available should any person decide to file.

If you're having trouble getting life and vitality into your hair, try this beauty tip.

Starting at the back of your head, hold your 10 fingertips against the scalp and move the skin in small circles. (This is different from the massage used while shampooing.) Do this all over the scalp for about five minutes a day. You'll feel the difference the first day, see the difference in a short while.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise: When I fry chicken, I find that I can make it look a rich golden brown by sprinkling it with paprika AFTER rolling it in flour and BEFORE frying it in the oil! It turns out real pretty! . . . Charlene S.

You angel! Why haven't you told us about this before? I tested it, and it's absolutely number one.

I also found a way to get an even spread of color. I mixed a teaspoon or so of paprika in the flour itself, dumped it all in a sack, and shook the sack up real good. Then I put the chicken in the flour and got a luscious uniform color.

I had baked chicken last night and used your paprika, and it was beautiful. . . Heloise

Come on now, gals . . . if you know how to remove this lacquer yourself (that means without taking it to a professional), tell us how.

I am sure Mrs. O'Brien will answer one of your questions some day when you have a problem. Just write to me in care of The Herald, and remember, your letter does not have to be signed to appear in this column. The important thing is that we are helping each other. Love always, . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise: You know the tape you can see in the dark that people put on their car bumpers? Try putting a piece of it on the lower edge of your bedroom furniture . . . down near the floor.

It won't show at all in the daytime, but is great at night when you don't want to turn on the lights for fear of waking your husband or baby. Saves many a skinned toe, too, Heloise. . . Barbara

Dear Heloise: For ladies who have rough kitchen shears . . .

Take them to a barber supply house where a first-class grinder is employed. The scissors can be polished and ground and this will remove the rust.

After this is done, you should always spread salad oil over the cutting edges and blades every time they are used . . . then dry them.

Household barber, and tailor shears should be treated with sewing machine oil. I use 10 or 12 drops on the blades along the cutting edges and then wipe off with facial tissue. The oil makes them cut smoother, wear longer, and prevents rust. . . Edward H. Stevens

Dear Heloise: I am forever finding myself with apron pockets filled to overflowing with clothespins on washday . . . and usually the pockets are small and awkward to reach into.

I made a laundry and cleaning apron by gathering a piece of material onto a band, sewing a LARGE pocket at an ANGLE on each side where my hands could just slip into them. I find this position enables me to reach into the pockets more easily.

At the bottom of one pocket, I placed a much smaller pocket for safety pins, buttons, etc., which usually accumulate during washday. These aprons are also handy on cleaning days if one "sorts" the odds and ends picked up throughout the house and puts them in the apron pockets as they go along. . . Zora Florek

Dear Heloise: One of my neighbors who has children older than ours . . . turns on the TV but also turns OFF the sound.

The children act out the stories on TV, choosing their parts and trying to keep up with the real actors! It's really fun, just as wonderful as your column!

Other families might try this and see what their children come out with. . . Mrs. J.P.

Says Working Women Denied Job Rewards

"The Professional Woman's Viewpoint on Working - Today and the Future" was explored by Mrs. J. W. Dickens during a program given this week for Spoudazio For Study Club.

"Today, half of all working-age women are holding jobs," said Mrs. Dickens, "and one-third of our present labor force is female. There are capable and outstanding women in almost every area of business, industry and government, as well as the professions and arts. Yet, while they are doing the work, they are not getting the rewards, either in promotion or pay."

Mrs. Dickens continued by saying that even though the civil rights law (which makes job discrimination for reasons of sex illegal) was passed four years ago, things have changed very little.

In citing reasons for the lack of change she said that clients and customers will not accept a woman executive, and men do not like working under a

Bo Bowen Gives Talk On Nursing

The importance of the nursing profession was emphasized by Miss Bo Bowen, county health nurse, when she was guest speaker at the Altrusa Club luncheon held Thursday at Coker's Restaurant. Miss Bowen was introduced by Mrs. Houston Cowden, chairman of the vocational committee.

Mrs. Willard Hendricks was selected club sweetheart, and this was the theme carried out in table decorations. Centering the table was a branched candleabra holding tiny tapers, and places were marked with cups of candy hearts.

Twelve members and two guests, Miss Bowen and Mrs. W. L. Thompson, attended. The next meeting will be March 13.

Mrs. D. King Wins Tall Talkers Contest

For Pretty Nails Use Remedial Care

By MARY SUE MILLER

If your fingernails show scars from pounding typewriter keys, try these remedial measures:

- Always avoid talon-length nails. At exaggerated lengths, nails are most prone to break down to the quick. (They cut down manual efficiency, too.) The pretty and practical shape is a medium-length oval.
- Check your manicure techniques: Be sure your nails are dry before filing, as they are weakest when damp. Because it tears the nail's selvage, never insert a file between the nail and flesh at the sides; let those corners square. Moreover, make use of such strengtheners as protein cuticle treatments and enamels. Polish with a hard, protective finish are also helpful.
- For the reason that any sort of polish chips under abuse, watch out for bad habits such as using your nails instead of scissors to pick knots from cord.
- An immediate solution for all problems comes with false fingernails, short-trim and self-adhesive. Specially designed for busy hands, the nails are short enough to handle any sort of office task and pretty enough to go on dates. What's more, they are applied in minutes, owing to an undercoating of superstick adhesive and a topping of pearly pink color.
- As for removal, a quick rocking motion does it. Just so, your fingers are likely to look lovelier.

LOVELIER HANDS

Do you have a hand problem? Send today for LOVELIER HANDS, a booklet that covers every step in a quest for hand beauty. It tells how to keep the skin and nails groomed; how to overcome weak nails, polish chips, discolored knuckles, prominent veins, wrinkles; how to use the hands with poised grace. To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin.

Methodists Launch Study Of Bible In Seminar

The United Methodist of the city of Big Spring will launch a Bible Seminar in depth Saturday afternoon, continuing through Sunday. The Saturday session is from 2 p.m. until 9 p.m. with the Sunday session from 2 p.m. until 4:15 p.m.

Dr. James Hares will make three major presentations entitled, "In the Beginning Was the Word," "The Word Became Flesh and Dwell Among Us," and "The Word Became Modern." Dr. Hares is the North Texas Conference director of education and social concerns. He has been a pastor, taught at Perkins School of Theology, SMU, attended Westminster College, Garret Theological Seminary, Northwestern University, and University of Pittsburgh. He presently chairs the curriculum for children and confirmation resource committee of the United Methodist Church.

Following each presentation small groups will be assembled into three sections, the adults being led by Dr. Walter Hoffheinz, associate professor of religion, McMurry College, who holds Ph.D. from Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary and is widely known for his preaching and his work with special study and seminar groups. The youth

Festival Opens Here Sunday

Approximately a score of entries have been listed in the Big Spring Baptist Association music festival set for 2 p.m. Sunday at the First Baptist Church.

These are in primary, junior, youth and church choirs, hymn playing, ensembles (a youth mixed quartet and youth madrigal group) and vocal soloists.

The public is invited to hear these perform in a program that should not last beyond an hour and a half.

Judges for the event will place entries according to a standard of merit and will offer a critique after each performance. They are James Stephens, music director of Second Baptist Church, Odessa, Don Roth, music director for Emmanuel Baptist, Odessa; John Stanley and Larry Stanley, who handle the music program, for First Methodist; Mary Grenier, First Baptist organist; and Kenny Shepherd, music director at College Baptist.

The First Baptist bell choir will perform.

Baptist Men Visit Mexico

Four men, representing the 35 churches comprising the Southern Baptist Convention of Big Spring, have returned from their mission to Villa De Fuente, a suburb of Piedras Negras, Coahuila, Mexico.

The four men, Julian Vigil, John Poluko, Melton Arriols and Sam Robertson, met with the Director of River Missions Elmin Howell, area missionaries and several local Mexican missionaries to survey the needs of the Villa De Fuente residents. After an appraisal of the local situation, a plan was established to provide help and assistance in the needed areas.

At one of the meetings, Martin Vera, a Mexican architect, gave an estimate for the construction of a mission in the tiny village. The Big Spring men were enthusiastic when Vera said the mission could be built at a relatively low cost.

Still Unequal

NEW DELHI (AP) — India has a woman prime minister and women members of Parliament, but the country just isn't ready for girl car-pops.

City officials turned down a proposed drive-in restaurant in downtown Connaught Place because the plan called for girl waiters.

BISHOP QUARTERMAN

Episcopal Bishop Here For Confirmation Sunday

Rt. Rev. George H. Quarterman, Episcopal Bishop of Northwest Texas, will preside over confirmation services here Sunday at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, according to Rev. Harland Birdwell, pastor.

The confirmation, also known as the laying on of hands, will be conducted during 8 a.m. services, and Holy Communion will be celebrated by Bishop Quarterman.

A visit with the bishop will be held instead of 9:30 a.m. services, Rev. Birdwell said. Coffee will be served at an informal gathering, and the church members will have the opportunity to meet and talk with the bishop.

Rev. Birdwell Attends Meet

Rev. Harland B. Birdwell of St. Mary's Episcopal Church attended the College of Preachers, one of several educational institutions of the Washington Cathedral, Washington, D.C., Feb. 10-14.

Clergymen come in groups of about 25 from all over the country to the college to be in residence for conferences lasting five or seven days. They explore the relationship between the Faith and the modern world, meet in class for lectures and discussion, read, think, talk and worship together.

With their fellow clergy as listeners and critics, these men preach sermons in the college chapel, and how well the sermon met the tests of today's world is of primary concern.

CHRIST FORETELLS SUFFERING IN LESSON FOR SUNDAY

Sunday's lesson will study Jesus' foretelling of His suffering. Scripture reading for the lesson comes from Mark 8:27-9:50.

The central truth of the lesson is that one must deny himself and take up his cross of full submission to God's will. We are to give our lives to the One who gave His life for us.

He went through His death with full knowledge of what was ahead of Him, knowing that the way of God was best. The way of selfless commitment to Christ and His will is best. He deserves our lives as He calls for them in the last verses of the Scripture reading.

Peter's objection to the crucifixion should serve to remind us that many times we will think the way of God is hard or wrong. At such times we should deny selfish ways and follow the will of Christ.

At a certain point in His public ministry, Christ began to prepare His disciples for His death and "he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem" (Luke 9:51). Knowing that the will of His Father included death in that Holy City, He did not shy away from that but told His disciples and did the Father's will.

Jesus was one who never did the popular thing to be popular. He did what was right. His announcement of death of course was not meant to arouse deeper affection.

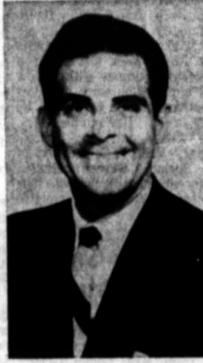

Rev. Longval Conducts College Baptist Revival

Rev. Tony Longval, pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Odessa, will conduct revival services for the College Baptist Church beginning Sunday morning with the pastor, Dr. R. Byron Grand preaching the message. Rev. Longval will preach at the evening service and through the week. The week night services will begin at 7:30. The Sunday services begin at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The public is invited.

Evangelist Longval holds a Bachelor of Arts Degree from Wayland Baptist College and is a graduate of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. He has also done graduate work on the Ph.D. degree at Texas Tech in Lubbock. He was formerly pastor of the Monterey Baptist Church in Lubbock. He has been pastor of the Odessa church for one year.

He has worked for the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention in the West Indies on two different occasions and presently serves as a reserve chaplain in the Army. Rev. Longval was in Big Spring last week leading the Big Spring Baptist Association in a

TONY LONGVAL

Personal Evangelist Institute. The church nurseries will be open each evening. Music will be conducted by Kenny Sheppard, who serves as music director of the church. He will be assisted by Mrs. Don Richardson at the organ, and by twin pianos, played by Mrs. L. B. Thomas and Mrs. Grand.

IN MEMORIAM: GRANDPA

They sent all the way to Boston for that special piece of glass. Look closely, and you may see it in the east front window. From inside you can read the inscription: "In Memoriam . . ." and then his name.

Grandpa called himself "a retired handy-man." But in those days lumber was cheap and labor wasn't. So when they said "we can't afford to build a church," Grandpa disagreed.

"Get me the boards and a few strong fellows to set the beams. I'll build your church," said Grandpa!

Before he finished, there were fifty men and lots of dollars to help him. You can see why they sent all the way to Boston for a piece of glass.

Grandpa is gone. Yet the Christian who is eager to put his faith into action is still able to share God's blessings with hundreds of his neighbors . . . and posterity as well!

College Disorders Picking Up Steam

By The Associated Press

New incidents of violent protest and vandalism have struck at three of the nation's universities where protesters have been most active during the current wave of campus unrest around the country.

Club-swinging police and hit-run dissidents clashed in a day-long series of scuffles at the Berkeley campus of the University of California. Twelve persons were arrested including three demonstration leaders.

One was Ysidro Macias who said earlier, "We're going to close it down whether it be by striking peacefully or by talking or whether we have to burn the s-o-b down." About 50 windows were broken during the day.

In Madison protesters at the University of Wisconsin ran through five buildings tossing stench bombs, overturning chairs and disrupting classes. Some students were forced to flee.

The outbreak followed a noon rally to assess progress on demands for an autonomous black studies department. The disorder ended an eight-day lull on the 33,000-student campus where National Guardsmen were withdrawn only last week.

At the University of Chicago a call for a student strike received little support from the 9,800 students but about 100 dissidents marched on the law school. Six stench bombs were set off in campus buildings, but the protesters denied they were responsible.

In Washington, the nation's governors voted overwhelmingly to condemn campus disorders but rejected California Gov. Ronald Reagan's call for a federal investigation out of fear it would foment more unrest.

The governors' resolution said, "lawless acts by a small segment of the student population must not be allowed to interfere with the vast numbers of students who are seeking to exercise their educational opportunities."

Reagan, whose state has seen some of the worst disorders, proposed calling on President Nixon to order a study "to determine if there is a nationwide plan or organization behind the current outbreaks."

Elsewhere: HOWARD UNIVERSITY — Patricia Roberts Harris, resigned as dean of the law school which has been the object of a 16-day student boycott. She blamed the university president for failing to keep her informed of actions taken to end the protest.

STILLMAN COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Ala. — College officials decide today when they reopen the predominantly Negro school. It was closed last Sunday in the face of class boycotts. The last demonstrators left the union Thursday.

WILEY COLLEGE, Marshall, Tex. — The all-Negro school will reopen March 12. It was closed Tuesday after protests demanding the resignation of the president, T. Winston Cole.

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS — An administrator criticized 11 demands submitted by a black student group as "racist, unrealistic, vague and ridiculous."

RUTGERS UNIVERSITY — A convocation was set on the New Brunswick campus where classes have been called off until Tuesday to consider Negro student demands.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY — Acting President J. Stanley Marshall upheld an earlier order banning Students for a Democratic Society from the campus. He warned that any campus disturbance would be met by quick police action.

UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI, Fla. — Student leaders canceled plans for a class boycott after announcing they had reached accord with the faculty senate and the administration on a 17-point list of student proposals.

Black Hats Go To Four At Banquet

Four Scottish Rite Masons were awarded Black Hats of the Order here Thursday at the annual awards banquet, which was hosted by the Dallas Consistory of the Masonic organization.

Doug Pitts, a 33rd degree Scottish Rite Mason, made the presentations to George McConnell, Fred Ponté, Ray Daniel and Carl Ford. Mrs. Fred Ponté was presented a bracelet by Pitts in appreciation of extra efforts by her husband in behalf of the Order.

Leslie Guber, a local 14-year-old boy, was a special guest at the banquet. Young Guber has been a patient at the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children. In a brief talk he told the Masons how their hospital was equipped for the care and treatment of crippled children.

Rep. Robert Jones, D-Ala., and his subcommittee on the House Committee on Public Works, are conducting hearings on Sabine projects.

Jones indicated the subcommittee might broaden its investigation to cover navigational possibilities.

"There is nothing more wasteful on our national resources than to plan and develop projects for less than their maximum use," Jones said.

Sabine projects are included in a comprehensive study made by federal agencies over the past few years.

Hearings continue Saturday with a helicopter tour of the area.

The panel saw a slide presentation showing damage done during basin floods in 1966, 1968 and this year.

W. W. Potter of Tyler, district engineer for the Highway Department, told of 1966 flood damage.

Col. R. S. Kristoferson of the Fort Worth office of Army Engineers, said damage in the 1966 flooding amounted to $4.5 million. He said the figure could

Money For Sabine River Flood Control Indicated

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP)—The chairman of a House subcommittee on flood control indicated today that he will recommend expediting funds for flood control projects in the Sabine River basin.

W. W. Potter of Tyler, district engineer for the Highway Department, told of 1966 flood damage.

Col. R. S. Kristoferson of the Fort Worth office of Army Engineers, said damage in the 1966 flooding amounted to $4.5 million. He said the figure could be reduced by $2.1 million if proposed reservoirs at Mineola, Lake Fork and Big Sandy had been operative.

Army Engineers headed a comprehensive survey providing for construction of those three reservoirs and rectification of the river channel from Lake Tawakoni near Greenville to the upper reaches of the Toledo Bend Reservoir, 140 miles downstream.

Other proposals were urged by the Corps for extension of the navigation channel from Echo, 4 1/2 miles upstream to Pruitt Bluff, with a turning basin at that point. Estimated cost of that project is $1.7 million.

Kristoferson said that in projecting water needs to the year 2075, the possibilities were considered for surplus water export from the Sabine basin to the Trinity basin for use by Dallas and Terrell and exploitation of Cypress Creek surplus water for use by Marshall.

Speaking on long-range aspects of the study, Kristoferson said construction of Bon Wier hydro-electric and water reservoir should be done by the year 2000. That reservoir would be near Orange. Also recommended was navigation extension from Pruitt Bluff to Longview and that a Carthage reservoir should be undertaken.

Reports were also read by Paul Smith, executive director of the Sabine River Development Association of Texas, for the Sabine River Authority of Texas. That group's main executives are attending water meetings in Austin. The report traced the steps taken to make and complete the Sabine comprehensive survey. Authority was urged for Congress to dislodge the comprehensive report from a division of the Department of the Interior.

Rain, Wind, Snow Lash West Coast

By The Associated Press

Rain, wind and snow lashed sections of the West Coast today as another Pacific storm bore down on the region.

The new storm system moved in while residents of Southern California shored up levees, sandbagged homes and propped boulders against eroding hillsides weakened by three days of heavy rain earlier this week.

Rain from central California northward turned to snow, sometimes heavy, as it spilled inland over the mountains.

Travelers warning were in effect for the Sierra Nevada where gusty winds lowered visibility and churned heavy snow into drifts.

Gale warnings flew along the northern Pacific Coast including portions of California.

Half way across the country, a storm system rolling across the middle Mississippi valley dumped rain south into the central Gulf states and flung sleet and snow northward over the Midwest and plains.

Six to eight inches of snow blanketed portions of the Dakotas and Minnesota. Up to four inches ranged over Iowa and into central Illinois.

The northeaster that buried most of New England under heavy snows early in the week moved well into the Atlantic. Light snow and flurries lingered, but fresh accumulations were not significant.

The heavy accumulation of snow collapsed a garage roof Thursday at Berlin, N.H., killing Joseph Arsenault, 65. It was the second time in two days that a fatality resulted from the collapse of a roof at Berlin.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 10 below zero at Havre, Mont., to 70 at McAllen, Tex.

Phone Strike Vote Staged

DALLAS (AP) — Union and management spokesmen appeared optimistic today that a strike can be averted by the Communication Workers of America against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

"We're in negotiations with the management," said John Agee, president of CWA Local 6215. "Hopefully, we'll be able to work out a reasonable agreement."

Agee said he might have an announcement to make late today.

At issue is the suspension of employees for various reasons, primarily for refusing to work overtime in some instances.

A spokesman for Bell said the two sides were "making some progress" in negotiations.

The union, meanwhile, has not terminated a strike vote which has continued through this week and results of which will be known Monday night.

The Dallas local numbers 3,800 operators, and commercial accounting, and plant workers. Also participating in the balloting, by permission of union international headquarters in Washington, are 113 locals in Texas, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

Housing Bids Are Checked Tabulation of bids received on 91 single housing units in the Monticello Addition was still in progress at the Federal Housing Administration district office in Lubbock on Friday.

FHA officials estimated it would be well into the afternoon before results of the bidding were known.

Proposals on the houses, mostly in the east part of the Monticello housing development area, call for removal of the structures to at least 25 miles distant (unless exceptions are granted for farm or ranch housing) and restoring of the lot to original state. Two small blocks of houses in the area were previously sold for removal.

Deaths Jack R. Clark, Burial Today Bones of an elderly Negro man, who has been identified by clothing fragments as Jack Reddick Clark, 81, were buried late today at the City Cemetery, Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home was in charge of the interment.

The skeletal remains were found Dec. 15 in a lonely pasture west of here. They were first sent to the Department of Public Safety laboratory at Austin where the pathologists said they were the bones of a Negro male well advanced in years. Later they were turned over to the anthropology department of the University of Texas for study.

Meantime, Sheriff L. N. Standard and his deputies had sifted quantities of earth in the area where the bones were found. They recovered a sizable quantity of clothing fragments. Shoes and the ruined remains of an old hat were nearby.

Three personal friends of Clark signed statements that the articles of clothing were those worn by the aged man when he was last seen in April, 1966.

A niece in Odessa was located and confirmed her uncle had been missing about three years.

W. W. Potter of Tyler, district engineer for the Highway Department, told of 1966 flood damage.

Col. R. S. Kristoferson of the Fort Worth office of Army Engineers, said damage in the 1966 flooding amounted to $4.5 million. He said the figure could be reduced by $2.1 million if proposed reservoirs at Mineola, Lake Fork and Big Sandy had been operative.

Army Engineers headed a comprehensive survey providing for construction of those three reservoirs and rectification of the river channel from Lake Tawakoni near Greenville to the upper reaches of the Toledo Bend Reservoir, 140 miles downstream.

Other proposals were urged by the Corps for extension of the navigation channel from Echo, 4 1/2 miles upstream to Pruitt Bluff, with a turning basin at that point. Estimated cost of that project is $1.7 million.

Kristoferson said that in projecting water needs to the year 2075, the possibilities were considered for surplus water export from the Sabine basin to the Trinity basin for use by Dallas and Terrell and exploitation of Cypress Creek surplus water for use by Marshall.

Speaking on long-range aspects of the study, Kristoferson said construction of Bon Wier hydro-electric and water reservoir should be done by the year 2000. That reservoir would be near Orange. Also recommended was navigation extension from Pruitt Bluff to Longview and that a Carthage reservoir should be undertaken.

Reports were also read by Paul Smith, executive director of the Sabine River Development Association of Texas, for the Sabine River Authority of Texas. That group's main executives are attending water meetings in Austin. The report traced the steps taken to make and complete the Sabine comprehensive survey. Authority was urged for Congress to dislodge the comprehensive report from a division of the Department of the Interior.

Attendees included members of the Texas Public Health Association in Dallas Feb. 23-24.

The association is composed of over 1,800 health agency employees. The meeting was designed to inform members of current advances in their specialty. The programs were concerned with comprehensive health planning and a unified approach to community problems.

Money For Sabine River Flood Control Indicated

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP)—The chairman of a House subcommittee on flood control indicated today that he will recommend expediting funds for flood control projects in the Sabine River basin.

Rep. Robert Jones, D-Ala., and his subcommittee on the House Committee on Public Works, are conducting hearings on Sabine projects.

Jones indicated the subcommittee might broaden its investigation to cover navigational possibilities.

"There is nothing more wasteful on our national resources than to plan and develop projects for less than their maximum use," Jones said.

Sabine projects are included in a comprehensive study made by federal agencies over the past few years.

Hearings continue Saturday with a helicopter tour of the area.

The panel saw a slide presentation showing damage done during basin floods in 1966, 1968 and this year.

Farmers Plan To Organize, Disturbed Over Valuation

Farmers of the county, disturbed by various reports of plans for revaluation of farm and ranch property for tax purposes, are planning an organized effort to protect their rights.

Ralph Proctor, former county commissioner, and a leading farmer of the Luther-Vealmoor community, said that while no formal action has been taken, a hundred or more farmers and ranchers have contacted him about the problem.

county commissioners trying to find out just what they have in mind for farm property," he said, "and I have not been able to get a clearcut answer."

"Farmers have no objection to paying a fair share of the tax burden but they do not want their property valued so highly for tax purposes as to put them out of business."

Proctor said he is sure that the rural property owners will take steps to deal with the situation.

Probably, he said, an organization will be formed on a community basis, with each community's farmers appointing one or two county committee representatives. This committee, Proctor says, will probably be empowered to engage a tax expert and perhaps an attorney to guide them in their study of what the county-wide revaluation of farm and ranch land will do to their holdings.

"There are some years," said Proctor, "when a farmer could afford to pay a fairly good tax and there are other years when he couldn't pay anything."

He pointed out that the property was revalued about nine years ago and the taxes hiked.

"Now," he said, "it is planned to raise the values again. We have to be ready to protest if we feel that the program will damage us."

Proctor said that no organizational meeting dates have been set and no meetings of an official nature have been held. He said that so far the program is largely in the "talk" stage.

"I think the fellows have been talking to me about the matter largely because they know I used to be a county commissioner and because I am personally concerned as a farmer," said Proctor.

"I don't know that I will be the spokesman for the farmers if there is an organization."

He also cited a 1966 law which limits valuation of farm property to agricultural values and ranch property to ranch values.

Lubbock County," he said, "and the farmers won the lawsuit. As a result there is valuable irrigated farm lands in that county which are on the tax rolls there for less than the taxes assessed against Howard County farm and ranch land."

West opened the five of diamonds against South's three no trump contract. The ten was played from dummy and East won the trick with the king. The switch was to a small club. South ducked and West was in with the ten. The queen of clubs was continued and declarer played the ace.

South had eight top tricks—three hearts, three diamonds, one club, and one spade—with several prospects for a ninth. He tried the hearts first by cashing the king and then playing to the queen and ace. When West discarded a spade on the third round, declarer attempted to split out the diamonds next. East showed out immediately, however, and, after cashing three diamond tricks, declarer decided to fall back on the spade finesse as a last resort. West turned up with the king and promptly cashed the setting tricks in diamonds.

At the conclusion of the deal, North observed that his partner could have made the hand if he had rejected the spade finesse in favor of an end play against West. After South cashes the dummy's high diamonds, he merely continues with the deuce of diamonds putting West on lead. The latter can take two diamond tricks, but now he is obliged to lead away from the king-eight of spades into South's ace-queen.

North was perhaps guilty of a bit of double-dummy analysis on the deal; however, what is more to the point, he failed to draw declarer's attention to a costly-slip which the latter had committed at the opening gun. Observe that, if South plays the ace of diamonds from dummy at trick one, he has nine tricks when East drops the lone king. The spade finesse now becomes a mere bookkeeping entry for an overtrick.

Dropping the diamond king is admittedly fortuitous, however, declarer had nothing to gain by taking the finesse for, if West holds the king, it is obviously well guarded, and therefore not subject to capture. South might just as well go up with the ace on the off chance that he capture a big prize.

Pajots To Tour Most Of Nation

Maj. Cletus Pajot, executive officer at Webb AFB since September, 1968, retired from the Air Force today.

Maj. Pajot began his military career in 1942. He had been stationed at Webb for the last 26 years. Arriving in 1963, the major initially worked seven months as executive officer for the deputy commander for Materiel complex. He next moved to Wing headquarters and became chief of administrative services. He served in that capacity until assuming base executive officer duties late last year.

Maj. Pajot and his wife will spend the next six to eight months traveling throughout the United States and portions of Canada. Eventually the couple will return to Texas, settling in El Paso.

The major came to Webb from Weisbaden, Germany, where he spent four years serving as the postal officer for the Weisbaden area. The European assignment was Maj. Pajot's third overseas tour. At other times during his military career, the major had served overseas in Korea and Japan.

Both Maj. Pajot and his wife are natives of Michigan. The couple have three children. Their daughter is married to Capt. Joe Lamport, staff judge advocate at Little Rock AFB, Ark. One son is in the U.S. Navy, serving aboard the aircraft carrier Forrestal. Another son is a pre-law student at Texas Tech.

Poerner Elected Representative

UVALDE, Tex. (AP) — John Henry Poerner was elected state representative from the 49th District Thursday to complete the term of D. C. Howard of Uvalde.

Howard died of a heart attack on the opening day of the current session of the Texas Legislature.

Poerner scored smashing runoff election victories in Medina and Uvalde Counties to defeat Gabriel Tafolla, a Uvalde teacher, 7,761 to 4,597 in unofficial returns.

In the earlier election, Tafolla led a 10-man field with 2,056 votes to Poerner's 1,424.

Things Were Much Quieter Last Time He Saw Paris

PARIS (AP) — The last time Richard Nixon saw Paris he had to humor a drunk, repeat his name several times for an unimpressed secretary and watch out for other "mashed potato" dancers on the floor of a discotheque.

It won't happen this time.

Nor will Nixon, as he did when he was here June 19, 1967, hold up a piece of lobster for a photographer at a restaurant on the Left Bank, pass unnoticed at an "in" night club or grab a quick cocktail at the Ritz Bar.

It's all changed now, but Michael Pochna, the American who helped serve as Nixon's guide the last time he came to Paris, recalls how quiet things were then.

The commercial director of Raymond Lowey's industrial design firm here, Pochna is the son of John Pochna, an international lawyer, oil man and friend of Nixon. Pochna senior had the President as a guest once in St. Tropez and twice in Paris during Nixon's years out of public office.

Pochna said, "he last time he came through, the secretary in my office couldn't get the name right. She had to ask for it a couple of times—Dixon or Nixon? Anyway, she was terribly embarrassed when she found out."

The Pochnas and Nixon, after drinks at the Ritz Bar, went to La Mediterranee, a well-known fish restaurant.

Pochna recalls: "An American guy, a sort of friendly-type drunk, came up to Mr. Nixon. I know you from somewhere. We were in college together, weren't we? No, it was the Navy, wasn't it?"

"Then it apparently dawned on the man and he became terribly apologetic. Mr. Nixon took it as a joke and we even asked the fellow if he'd sit with us for a drink. He didn't."

After dinner the group went on to New Jimmy's, a club in Montparnasse run by a woman called Regine. If you mean anything to anyone in France, Regine comes up and says hello. She said nothing to Nixon.

Dancing at New Jimmy's is strictly "jerk" and "mashed potatoes." Nixon took a turn on the floor with Pochna's wife, Marie-France.

During another trip Nixon went to a party where he was grilled about his own politics and American policy by a group of "sharp, French young people." Pochna said Nixon "seemed to love it."

Pochna believes that from his trips here Nixon got the impression that France was somewhat misunderstood by public opinion overseas and that "France is really a country of considerable industrial power with the ooh-la-la aspect only about one per cent."

He said Nixon spoke of President Charles de Gaulle with great respect and recognized France's strong ties in the Middle East and in some areas of Asia.

Team Warns That Heart Vulnerable To Rejection

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Denton A. Cooley's heart transplant team warned today that the human heart appears to be far more vulnerable to rejection by the body than scientists thought a year ago.

Based on their 18 transplants in 17 patients, the team said that in the case of poor tissue matching between donor and recipient, rejecting seems to be "inexorably progressive."

For this reason, the Houston, Tex., transplant team said new methods must be found to overcome poor tissue matches if heart transplantation is ever to become commonplace.

Another way to attack the problem, they said, would be to set up regional and national pools of donors and recipients whose tissue is typed in advance, "with emergency transportation of patients to selected centers."

The report was made by Dr. James J. Nora, Dr. Cooley and 10 others to the annual meeting of the American College of Cardiology.

Dr. Nora and Dr. Cooley said a careful study should be made of the relationship between tissue match and the eventual outcome of the case in all of the more than 100 human cardiac transplants already performed, before going ahead with any more transplants in badly matched patients.

"It must be concluded," the report said, "that human cardiac transplantation at the present time is an investigative procedure which has minimal clinical application."

But Dr. Cooley says all this is no reason to halt the transplant effort.

"We have made a beginning," he said, "now let's proceed."

Dr. Cooley criticized critics of transplantation among the lay public and the medical profession and said they share some of the blame for a recent shortage of donated hearts.

He said he hasn't done a transplant since last November because of the lack of donors—"the stream has dried up."

Meanwhile, Dr. Cooley said, 24 persons have died in the Houston area waiting for transplants and there are eight persons waiting now.

Asked about the attitude of some other doctors, he told newsmen Thursday:

"I think they have become faint-hearted too soon, in the face of a few initial defeats."

"We're taking dying people and prolonging life, and improving the quality of those lives. You have to put this in perspective."

Blair Sadler, a Washington lawyer who has done research for the National Institute of Health on heart transplant problems, maintained that consent is necessary.

Sadler said that ideally the state perhaps should be empowered to use tissue and organs from the dead at will, but that public opinion at this time will not accept such a view.

Dr. Donald Browning, a University of Chicago theologian, took a similar stand.

He said that in the future it may be considered the "religious thing to do" to transplant organs, but at this moment in history the next of kin have rights over the bodies of their dead relatives.

Pathologists Differ On Consent For Transplants

CHICAGO (AP) — A Virginia pathologist said Thursday it may become necessary to authorize organ transplants from dead persons over the objections of their survivors in order to save the lives of persons critically ill.

However, others participating with him in symposiums at the American Academy of Forensic Sciences argued that consent of next of kin should be required.

The Virginian, Dr. Geoffrey T. Mann, said, "We are going to have to educate the public to overcome the unrealistic veneer of the dead in this country."

Mann, chief medical examiner for the Commonwealth of Virginia and a professor at the University of Virginia medical school, said consideration for the living rather than the dead should be paramount when medical authorities are deciding whether to make a transplant.

Mann acknowledged that it is rare for families of the dead to refuse permission for transplants when the importance is explained to them.

DECADES OF ABUSE End Of Patronage Lauded By Blount

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Winton M. Blount says the administration's proposals for ending postal patronage are but a first step toward "undoing decades of abuse, and I mean decades, that have culminated in the conditions that we have here."

Political influence played a role even in routine promotions within local post offices, Blount said in an interview.

"It's been documented time and again about the connections of the people who had positions of responsibility around here," he said.

Turning to the 15 postal regional offices responsible for different sections of the country, Blount said "Political influence within these regions has been almost complete, and it's going to have to be changed."

President Nixon asked Congress this week to abolish political appointments of postmasters and rural carriers and set up a system of appointments based on merit.

"Reform of the postal system is long overdue," the President said in a message to Capitol Hill. "I consider it essential as a first step, that the Congress remove the last vestiges of political patronage in the Post Office Department."

Blount expressed optimism that Congress will go along but added that "the thing that must be understood is that what we're talking about doing is not going to bring any overnight dramatic improvement in the whole postal service."

"If we were ever going to get to the business of improving the postal service we had to stop the political influence and think that's the real significance of this decision."

Asked for comment about disclosures by The Associated Press of political and Mafia influence in contracts for a $40 million mail processing complex under construction in northern New Jersey, Blount replied: "As you know, we also are studying that problem. It's one of the messes we inherited, or one of the problems we inherited. . . . We are investigating it ourselves to see just what the situation is, to see if there are any decisions to be made at this time."

One firm with a subcontract on the New Jersey project has a man who has been publicly identified as a member of the Mafia on its payroll. Blount was asked if firms with links to organized crime should be allowed to bid on government contracts.

"Well, I don't know what the law is in this regard," he said. "If I were making the decision, I wouldn't (permit them to bid.)"

The New Jersey project is being built by a private developer who will lease it to the Post Office Department for 30 years at an annual rent of $1,985,000.

Both the General Accounting Office and the General Services Administration, which builds most government buildings, have criticized the 18-year-old program under which the Post Office Department has leased hundreds of post offices across the country from private builders.

Blount acknowledged that the lease method is more expensive than if the government built post offices itself, but added, "It also is far more economical than not building at all."

He explained that if the department built a $30 million post office from its appropriation "all of that $30 million is charged against your budget this year." On the other hand, he said, "you sign a 30-year lease for this $30 million building and maybe it will cost you a million and one-half dollars a year and only the million and one-half dollars is charged against your budget."

Crash Kills Texan, Pilot

MILAN, Italy (AP) — A plane which cracked up on takeoff carried Maj. Gen. John S. Hughes of Fort Worth, Tex., and his pilot to death Thursday.

Hughes was commandant of the U.S. Southern European Task Force.

The pilot was Maj. Edward G. Haislop of Parkersburg, W. Va.

Critical injuries were suffered by two others on board as the USD plane hit a giant advertising sign beside a street only 300 yards from the Milan airport and burst into flames.

The injured, both suffering from burns and fractures, are Maj. Gordon Cooper, also from Parkersburg, W. Va., and Spec. Wallace J. Runyon, a former Illinois resident now living in Milan.

A Devotional For The Day

Build up your strength in union with the Lord, and by means of his mighty power. (Ephesians 6:10, TEV)

Diversion Merely Postponement

Whether it is constitutional or not, the Cavness Plan to divert part of the permanent school fund (endowment) to the available school fund (annual state aid) is undesirable. That would ease the state tax load for school aid now only to increase it in future; it would not avoid, just postpone, the revenue squeeze for education.

Following an idea of his father, the state auditor, Rep. Don Cavness has a bill to divert some $33 million a year in school land lease money to current state aid. Gov. Preston Smith, viewing the steeply rising state-aid requirements, says there is "no real alternative" to the Cavness plan. But that is absurd.

Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler says he will attack the constitutionality of the Cavness bill if it is passed. There has been no attorney-general's ruling on the bill yet, but Sadler might make a good case.

The Texas Constitution's provisions for the permanent school fund are admittedly somewhat vague, being written before oil and gas lease and royalty income from school lands was thought of. But since 1876, all income from school lands, lease as well as sale, has gone into the permanent school fund. The income from that fund's investments then go into the available school fund for current use.

In 1891 the Legislature submitted, and the people approved, a constitutional amendment to divert up to 1 per cent of the permanent school fund principal to the available school fund in any one year, but that amendment was repealed in 1964. The popular vote in 1964 seems to us a popular mandate to keep the permanent fund intact, and the attorney-general and/or the courts may well look to this in ruling on the Cavness Plan.

The oil and gas in the state school lands are an exhaustible resource. We do not think the present generation of school children should benefit from that to the detriment of subsequent generations. This huge and growing school endowment, this permanent asset to Texas education, should not be tampered with just to make easier the tax problems of the administration and the 61st Legislature.

An Unfortunate Stand

It is most unfortunate that Speaker Gus Mutscher of the Texas House of Representatives has taken an apparent stand that will torpedo the reforming of the conference committee rules.

True to promises, the Texas Senate and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes have adopted rules which limit the conference committee to reconciling differences between bills adopted by the two houses. Under the new Senate rules, the conferees cannot write in new spending items which neither house has considered. The rules also require that the changes made be reported to both houses.

There were indications two years ago that the House (which then indeed took the lead) would impose the very limitations adopted by the Senate. But now Mr. Mutscher is speaker, and says he favors the report but not the prohibition against adding new items by the conferees.

The power to add things not considered by either or both houses is iniquitous. It is imposing the judgment of 10 men for the wisdom of the entire legislative body. Even with limitations imposed a couple of years ago, there is still the possibility that conferees or those in position to name conferees could slip in items for their districts or in which they have some special political or other interest.

Speaker Mutscher's stand on this is regrettable and without sound defense.

David Lawrence What Kind Of Election Reform?

WASHINGTON — Fifty out of the 100 senators have announced their support of a plan whereby the presidential candidate who receives the largest number of popular votes would be declared the winner. But such an amendment to the Constitution will never be adopted. For the states with relatively small populations will not consent to a system they believe would give the big cities the balance of power in every election.

PRESIDENT NIXON, in his recent message to Congress, said he has not abandoned his personal feeling that "the candidate who wins the most popular votes should become President," but he believes that this is impractical because "the electoral system is deeply rooted in American history and federalism."

Mr. Nixon, echoing a similar statement made by President Johnson in 1965, declared he doubts very much that "any constitutional amendment proposing abolition or substantial modification of the electoral vote system could win the required approval of three quarters of our 50 states by 1972."

Billy Graham

Like many people, I suffer from tension. I would like to overcome this, but how?
Tension is not always bad. I always have a certain amount of tension before I preach. Some people are as placid as a cow in a pasture when they ought to be disturbed about conditions around them. The right kind of tension is nature's way of telling us something is wrong or preparing us for a challenge. A snake coils and become tense when danger threatens. A porcupine bristles up when an enemy approaches. When you become tense try to ascertain the reason. While it is most often the product of the noise, speed, and hustle of this modern age, sometimes it is the signal that something is wrong on the inside.

Spiritually, we may be tense because something is out of adjustment within our hearts. We are born with a duality. As Paul said, "When I would do good, evil is present." The New Testament teaches that one of the by-products of faith in Christ is release from this inner tension. Jesus said to His tense disciples, "My peace I give unto you." When He ascended into heaven, He didn't bequeath to His followers a material kingdom, as they had once hoped. Nor did He leave them great wealth. But He did leave them His peace. In a day of great inner friction and tension we need the peace that He alone can give.

Some tension however may be of physical origin — be sure you have nothing physically wrong.

A prediction? The answer is to be found in the way America's population is distributed. More than 43 million people live in the 61 largest cities. This raises the fear among the smaller states that a few states with big cities would virtually decide presidential elections.

Mr. Nixon thinks that some formula should be adopted whereby the electoral votes of a state would be allocated in accordance with the proportion of the ballots for each presidential candidate. Every congressional district could, for example, be given one electoral vote to be cast as the majority of the voters in the district may desire. Each state would have two additional electoral votes, which would go to the candidate who received a majority of the popular votes throughout the state. The election as a whole would then be decided in favor of the candidate who obtained a majority of all the electoral votes.

BUT, BECAUSE a three-cornered race might develop, it would be necessary to provide for awarding the presidency to the candidate who receives the largest number of electoral votes, even if, as has happened before, this is not a majority of the popular vote.

There are defects, of course, in the present electoral system, and the new constitutional amendment could stipulate that no delegate to the electoral college would be permitted to change his vote, as occurred after the election last year.

STATES, OF COURSE, have sectional interests, and there are some areas where agricultural problems are all-important as contrasted with other states where urban questions are of prime consideration. This means that the political factors vary in different states.

IF, UNDER ANY system suggested, regional problems are ignored and the big cities in the different states continue to be given an advantage in the over-all count of the electoral votes, the changes are that the growing preponderance of Negroes in the cities would be a major factor in deciding presidential elections. This possible contingency, aside from many others, would cause the legislatures of at least 13 states to block ratification of any proposed amendment which would let the popular vote in a national election become decisive.

The farmers of the Constitution recognized the importance of preserving the power and sovereignty of the states when it was ordained that any amendment not only has to be approved by a two-thirds vote of both Houses of Congress, but ratified by the vote of three-fourths of the state legislatures.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions: The equal rights movement founders when it comes to the question of alimony. A J. VAUGHN, Big Spring, points out my Revival of Togetherness (ROT) is even worse than Nixon's propulsion in about six months.

YOU'VE GOT to like Moynihan, a Scaramouche among latter-day eggheads, "born with the gift of laughter, and the sense that the world was mad . . ." He chortled to see him working for Richard Nixon. He snickers at the liberal critics who accuse him of knifing up some old friends of the New Frontier in his most recent book about the War on Poverty. He lampoons the pious intention of the Office of Economic Opportunity to achieve "maximum feasible participation" by the poor, and he calls the result "maximum feasible misunderstanding," a gibe that became the title of his book.

How does Moynihan expect to be helpful in the Nixon administration? By humorously playing with all the most solemn of our social contradictions, I think.

HE WILL try to instruct conservatives that a Federal welfare state is as backward-looking as any reactionary might wish. There has been a Common Law in Anglo-American jurisprudence for 400 years, and it says "Nobody is allowed to go hungry." He will try to instruct Budget-balancers that the 12-month calendar was written for rustics who plant and harvest by the four seasons, whereas economic cycles call for telling time in Five-Year Plans. He will try to prove to opponents of Big Government that spending splurges, if figures are adjusted to population increases and such, occur mainly in the military sector. He will try to convince the legislators that the way to keep economic gains is not to save the money but to reinvest it.

THE PARADOXES are so thick, the ironies so biting, that the situation tickles his Irish sense of the preposterous. Moynihan is a free spirit, like Nietzsche or like Shelley, but he's working for a fourth-echelon master. President Nixon is his choice of a leader behind Robert Kennedy, Eugene McCarthy and Hubert Humphrey. Moynihan had previously served under John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Averell Harriman; and if he's got any Republican corpuscles at all, they're Rockefeller plasma. He's on a two-year leave of absence from Harvard University, but he'll be true to form if he blasts out of the White House job under self-close out any opening in the foreseeable future.

ON THE SOVIET side, too, the swift passage of time puts in doubt the hope of a few months ago. Rumbblings from within the mysterious fastness of the Kremlin indicate an upheaval that could spell the doom of the moderates and a new Ice Age, with the door to the West slammed shut.

The disarray in the Communist world is far greater than in the West. The invasion of Czechoslovakia aroused deep fears and antagonisms in Eastern Europe and in the Communist parties in Western Europe.

TO PUT at least a better face on this disarray the Soviets have finally got agreement for a meeting in May, the first since 1961, of the Communist parties from all over the world, with the defectors, conspicuously Red China, expected. Even if the United States were to come forward, prepared to say ready and willing for the missile talks next month, could Moscow respond prior to the May meeting? Or would the meeting of 70 or more party bosses have to vote approval for the talks?

No one on the outside can answer these questions. Premier Alexei Kosygin has both publicly and privately, notably in his talk last November with former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, conveyed his own great sense of urgency. He told McNamara his government was ready to start at once.

THAT WAS as the transition from one administration to another was about to take place. Four months have passed. The fear haunting those who believe this may be a last chance is of another accident.

Let's imagine that the headlines trumpet a new Soviet weapon. Whether fact or Pentagon fantasy, it could mean a full stop. Since the Administration seems to have no plan to advance the Vietnam peace talks, a new escalation would serve those set against any disarmament. These are the accidents increasingly likely as time runs out.

ONE QUESTION now concerns the new Administration. Does Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird's hard line on nuclear superiority represent the Administration or is it merely the Pentagon view of a bargaining position? Laird has talked about a wait of anywhere from six to nine months before negotiation with the Russians can begin. That would be spending the precious wasting asset of time in a way that could well

Marquis Childs Time Pressure On The Nuclear Issue

WASHINGTON — The commodity in short supply for the Nixon Administration is time. The clock ticks relentlessly on and the press of matters that cannot be long postponed grows more urgent daily.

Here at home it is the cities. Basic services threaten to break down completely. Abroad it is the glimmering, and yet perhaps dwindling, chance to get agreement with the Soviet Union on a pause in the nuclear arms race.

THESE ARE MATTERS of life and death that will not wait for an indefinite future. This is true, above all, in light of the next upward spiral looming just ahead in the race for nuclear superiority; for security through armaments that in the missile age is a fatal illusion.

The President's trip to Europe is a necessary undertaking.

He will have demonstrated his concern for the Western alliance and his desire to help straighten out the disarray and the lack of harmony in that alliance. In such a quick visit — five capitals in seven days — he can hardly do more than prove his good will and establish firsthand ties with the leaders of the alliance.

IF THE TRIP is to be really useful it must be seen as a prelude to negotiation with the Soviets. President Nixon will assure the men he meets that he does not mean to go over their heads in dealing with Moscow.

He will convince them that negotiating a pause in the arms race does not mean the two giants are conspiring to divide the world into spheres of domination.

ONE QUESTION now concerns the new Administration. FIVE APPROACHES TO SAFE AND SURE METHODS OF BIRTH CONTROL

'Morning After' Pills For Women Who Forgot

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

Today's advanced new science of birth control is giving birth to its own large new family of scientific "children."

The Pill and the IUD—intrauterine devices—are top results from this modern contraceptive science.

But already on the way is a second generation of new approaches—at least five of them—that may bring safe and sure newer methods of birth control:

- Micro or mini-dose pills that may cause fewer unwanted reactions than the present pills.

PILLS FOR MEN

—Single-shot injections or implanted hormone capsules that might prevent pregnancy for months to a year or many years.

—"Morning after" pills for women who don't take or who forgot regular pills.

—Contraceptive pills for men.

—Vaccinations for women, or even men, against conception.

These promising developments are based upon deepening understanding of the intricate and delicate processes through which within a woman's body, an ovum or egg is prepared and released each month for possible fertilization, and upon numerous other conditions that contribute to a successful marriage of the ovum and viable sperm.

"Considering the myriad steps and interdependent actions which must take place for conception, it is almost unbelievable that the (human) species has been able to reproduce itself at a rate which threatens world safety," says Dr. Harry W. Rudel of the Population Council in New York City.

The better insights being won into these complicated actions offer now new and different ways of interrupting the process.

NOT KNOWN

The IUD—for reasons not yet clearly known—prevents pregnancy, perhaps by preventing a fertilized egg from becoming implanted in the lining of the uterus or womb. IUD's are plastic or stainless steel coils that are inserted into the uterus.

The present pills are either a combination or a sequence of synthetic forms of two key female hormones—estrogen and progesterone. These pills prevent ovulation, the monthly release of an egg.

Here is an accounting of five major lines of research:

Micro- or mini-dose pills: These contain only a progestin, one of the synthetic forms of progesterone. The woman taking them still releases an egg at the usual time in her monthly cycle, but she does not become pregnant.

DESIRED WAY

Taken every day, such pills do not interfere with her normal balance of natural hormones. Dr. Rudel explains. But her fertility is affected in a desired way.

Exactly how the small daily doses of potent progestin do this is not known. But egg and sperm, when and if they meet, do not start new life.

This mini-dose technique, first demonstrated in animals, has been proved out in tests on women by several research teams.

MINI-DOSE

A drawback to the mini-dose pills is that they frequently cause irregular bleeding and irregularities in the monthly cycle. Advantages are that hopefully they do not produce changes in the blood clotting mechanism that might bring on dangerous blood clots, nor do they cause as many other side effects as present pills.

With mini-dose pills, a woman doesn't have to keep the calendar in mind. She takes them every day, not for 20 or 21 days and then a week's halt.

"Shots," and Hormone implants: Since mini-doses work, another approach is to put the doses all together into a long-lasting single injection or implant.

At the Population Council, Drs. Rudel, Sheldon J. Segal and Howard J. Tatum are developing a Silastic capsule filled with a progestin. This kind of porous capsule permits steady, daily release of a little bit of the hormone.

Sealed at both ends, the Silastic capsule is about an inch long and about twice the diameter of the lead in a pencil. It can be placed under the skin with a needle under local anesthetic.

BLOCK PREGNANCY

The capsule could contain enough hormone to prevent pregnancy for a year or even many years. It could easily be removed when a woman decided she wanted to have a baby.

Hormonal balance studies to determine the proper dose of progestin to put into such capsules are starting soon, and human tests with capsules may begin later this year.

Morning-After Pills: On the horizon, from testing in animals and with some women, are morning-after pills in case of oversight or forgetfulness. Dr. John M. Morris of Yale University and Dr. Gertrude van Wagenen have been among leaders in this quest.

LESS VITAL: They are studying pills containing large doses of estrogen, or synthetic estrogens, or drugs that have similar effects. If taken within three or four days after the time when conception might have occurred during a woman's fertile period, these pills apparently prevent the fertilized egg from becoming implanted in the uterus.

Male Pills: Safe drugs that men could take that would prevent production of spermatazoa, or that would make sperm less vital, are being sought, and some potential candidates are looming from newer animal experiments. A few years ago, prison volunteers took drugs—diamine compounds—which were found to stop sperm production within six to 10 weeks time. Normal fertility was restored five to 12 weeks after they stopped the pill-taking.

BABY-LESS: Vaccination: One curious finding of newer research is that some women become immune to pregnancy

Boeing's Big Bird Longer Than Wright's Flight

By PAUL WELLS
Associated Press Writer

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Boeing's unbelievable bird—the giant 747—is built

Longer than a 20-story building tipped flat. As powerful as 87 diesel locomotives. Able to carry up to 490 passengers in a cabin wider than most living rooms.

How will such a colossus—more than 2½ times larger than any commercial airliner in service—fly?

LIKE AN ANGEL

"Like an angel and safe as in church," promises test pilot Jack Waddell, chief test pilot for the 747. His confidence is based on what Boeing calls the most complex, sophisticated and exhaustive test program ever carried out for a new airplane.

The scope of the tests, which began in 1965, is difficult to grasp.

Advanced technology, some of it evolving from space and missile work, has been incorporated in the program along with more conventional wear-and-tear type tests.

Computers, telemetry, data processors and analyzers, flight simulators; a pulse code modulation system, pulse duration modulation system, frequency modulation and fully automated instruments able to record 3,600 independent measurements are all used in the program.

When all test equipment has been installed in the first 747 and taxi runs have been completed, the Gargantuan bird will be ready to try its wings.

On a mid-December day, apt to be raw and gray, the 45-year-old test pilot will ease back on the wheel and the superjet, awaited by 27 45th anniversary of the birth of the age of flight when Orville and Wilbur Wright proved at Kitty Hawk, N.C., a manmade, powered machine could fly.

On the sand dunes of Kitty Hawk in 1903, the pioneering flight by Orville Wright, who won the toss with Wilbur for the honor, covered 120 feet in 12 seconds.

'POWER STEERING' If Wright had taken off from the nose of a 747 he would have landed a little more than half-way to the tip of the tail—231 feet, 4 inches away.

His tiny stick-and-wire plane weighed 750 pounds; the 747 hits 710,000, or 355 tons.

He had a 12-horsepower engine; the 747's four develop 174,000 pounds of thrust equivalent roughly to that number of horsepower.

Wright's wingspan was 40½ feet; the 747's is 195 feet, 8 inches.

He hit barely 40 miles an hour; the 747 cruises at 625 m.p.h.

Wright lay on his stomach and changed the angle of his wing surfaces by twisting from side to side, pulling on wires attached to his waist. Waddell will have feather-light, hydraulic "power steering" and a computerized inertial navigation system—INS—which can fly the 747 automatically anywhere within its 6,000-mile range. This is the first commercial plane designed for fully automated INS operation.

The 747's maiden flight will mark the start of 1,400 hours of test flying by five of the jumbo jets over 10 months to "wing them out" in every conceivable situation and prove them worthy of Federal Aviation Administration certification.

When the first passengers step aboard Pan American World Airways' inaugural 747 flight in December, 1969, they will have little awareness of the tremendous, costly test program leading to that moment.

'IRON BIRD' TEST "We will have a vast store of documented knowledge of the behavior of this aircraft," Waddell said. "This is the great safety factor for the public."

R.E. McDonald, chief of the test program, places its total cost at about $250 million, with Boeing spending $165 million and subcontractors the rest.

Fo Waddell, a balding, 6-foot-3-inch, 185-pounder who grew up in Joliet, Mont., a little town of less than 400 near Billings, lift-off will be a pulse-pounding thrill, but at the same time almost anticlimactic.

"I have flown the plane, figuratively, nearly 300 hours already in flight simulators and our 'Iron Bird' test rig and know exactly how it will handle and land," he explained.

"The results of nearly 14,000 hours of wind tunnel tests have been fed into computers of the highly sophisticated flight simulator at our Kent, Wash., Space Center and an older simulator at Renton, and I have experienced actual flight conditions there."

Waddell said the 14,000 hours "is about double the wind tunnel occupancy" for any other airplane.

Sitting in the Kent simulator, Waddell can look through an exact scale model of the 747's windshield at a three-dimensional televised landscape. Computers programmed with wind tunnel information reproduce the precise motion and feel of the plane and its controls during flight and landing, and show pictorially how the landing will appear from the cockpit.

"I feel as though I'm actually flying the airplane. You see the roll, the yaw, the pitch. It's very realistic," he said.

"All the tubing, wiring, cables, actuators, control surfaces and cockpit controls are there," he said. Sitting in a pilot's chair at the front end, he can move all tail and wing control surfaces and see how they function through closed circuit television.

SPOILERS When Waddell and his fellow test pilots are not using the Iron Bird, it automatically puts the control surfaces—rudder, elevators, ailerons, spoilers and trim system—through test cycles which already nearly match the average lifetime of airline service. The tests will continue "to destruction to measure endurance and reliability" of the components which control the plane's turns, banks, climbs and stability.

In another preflight test, engines are run from low to full power at three propulsion stands in this area to check their operation and noise level.

A set of two regular jet engines was replaced with one of the huge Pratt & Whitney because they produce antibodies to their husbands' sperms. This reaction is similar to that of vaccination, with living or killed viruses or bacteria, against diseases.

This line of investigation holds two potentials. One is to help some few baby-less women achieve their dreams of becoming mothers. The other is to use this phenomenon as a means of vaccinating women or men, against having more children than they want and already have.

Spain's Strolling Singers Popular

MADRID (AP) — Long before the telephone made absentee courtship easy, Spanish students had solved the problem of the iron window grill that kept them from their winsome sweethearts.

They stood outside and strummed a guitar while singing of their passion.

Perhaps these lonely troubadours wanted company or someone figured if one was good, several were better. Anyway, students formed the tuna, a mobile and musical combo of guitars, bandores and tambourines.

PLATONIC PURSUIT These groups of students toured Spanish streets serenading their favorite girls and while the tunas now and again attracted thrown objects from unromantic fathers or sleep addicts, the popularity of the strolling singers grew over the years.

The years have been long. This musical madness began back in the 12th century and continues today.

As always, even in the 12th century, the fast-peseta types invaded this purely platonic pursuit. Deserving romance, they performed and passed the tambourine for good-will offerings, just as their descendants are passing the tambourine in Madrid restaurants and bars to this day.

The tunas have changed over the centuries. Now members are bonafide students. But from the 12th to 18th centuries they were a weird combination of impoverished holy men, humble scholars, roguish scamps and rascally tramps and often a trial to the staid and the strict.

SCAMPS, TRAMPS The scamps and the tramps took up the trappings of students, even if they didn't lift any books, in order to take advantage of the privileges granted students by Spanish kings.

The privileges included tax and military draft exemptions, free lodging at certain boarding houses and special price discounts. On the other hand, students couldn't wear fancy clothing or gamble or patronize houses of ill repute—it said by law. Students paid scant attention. They came to be known as capigrornos, or master free-loaders, or sopistas from their habit of living on soup ladled out to the needy at monasteries or convents.

"This is idealizing a bit, and there are always vagaries of flight that need human attention, but automated operation of a plane is really here."

Waddell said the 747 will be certified for automatic approach and landing, in category 2—permitting landings with only 1,200 feet visibility.

"We have provided for changing from a dual to a triplicated flight system in the future, which will allow certification in category 3 and automatic landings with only 700 feet visibility," he said.

A preproduction INS was installed in a 707 tested on flights of more than 25,000 miles and 70 hours of air time. They were to such places as Samoa; Fairbanks, Alaska; Miami, and Boston. On the 10-hour, 5,000-mile flight to Samoa the system proved 80 per cent more accurate than design specifications called for.

Waddell plans to limit the 747's first flight to 2½–3 hours with a top speed of about 330 miles an hour and altitude of 15,000 feet. After several flights from Paine Field at Everett to prove the plane completely airworthy, tests will be moved to Boeing field in Seattle.

Next year, the first two 747s in the five-plane test stable will spend several months at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., for "heavyweight" tests—the severest of the program. They include rejected takeoffs and maximum load takeoffs.

Waddell heads a team of about a dozen test pilots, an equal number of instructor pilots and about eight flight engineers.

EUROPEAN LOSSES ARE BELIEVED TO EXCEED $200 MILLION

The Art Of Stealing Art Governed By Perverse Logic

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

On the first day of April, 1960, thieves broke into the Colombe d'Or restaurant on the French Riviera and stole 19 paintings that Utrillo, Matisse and Rouault were said to have left to pay for their meals 40 years earlier.

This was the first of a series of major art thefts in Europe and the United States unprecedented in history and unabated to this day.

"It is a continuous crescendo," says Rodolfo Siviero, head of the Italian Foreign Ministry section for the recovery of art works.

THEFT EVERY DAY

In England, France, Italy, the United States and elsewhere, thieves—often operating in rings—are attempting to cash in on the profitability of art. They know what works are in demand where, that British paintings and antiques are wanted in Belgium, France and Scandinavia; the Italian works bring a good price in Switzerland, Austria and Germany. Stolen works are often whisked from one country to another in a clandestine market that at its most brazen is a steal-to-order business.

"Art thefts are more frequent than ever. There's an art theft in the United States every day," said Joseph M. Chapman, a freelance art sleuth. "In fact, there's almost a theft every day in New York City alone."

Chapman works with museums, galleries and Lloyd's of London.

European losses since the cycle of thefts began are believed to exceed $200 million. No estimate is available for American losses, but the figure is high.

Sometimes, paintings are held for ransom. Or, the owners may use insurance money to buy them back. The recovery of stolen works is a nether world of art detectives, secret ransom payments and bribes to informers who quite likely stole the paintings in the first place, or at least are friends of the men who did.

FRUSTRATION Occasionally, out of sheer frustration, thieves simply abandon stolen paintings. They find they are too well known to sell, or that no ransom is forthcoming. Such paintings have been found in railroad baggage rooms, in barns, in old warehouses and even tucked behind bushes in city parks.

The paintings taken from the French restaurant were valued at $600,000. The following year at St. Tropez a museum was looted of $2 million in paintings.

Through the 1960s each robbery seemed more spectacular, more daring than before.

As London rang out the last hours on 1966 thieves invaded the fortress-like Dulwich College Gallery and quietly browsed among the 300 paintings on display. They selected eight works, by Rembrandt, Rubens and two other masters, valued at $7 million. Said a member of the Royal Academy: "The thieves really hit the jackpot."

As it turned out, however, the paintings proved more of a white elephant than a jackpot. A Scotland Yard detective said, "The thieves didn't realize the enormity of the job nor that you just can't sell such paintings."

In less than five days the paintings were back in the museum.

The art of art theft is governed by a perverse logic of its own. The theft of a masterpiece burdens its purloiner with the weight of the centuries. Such antiquities are simply too valuable to insure. Most stolen masterpieces are eventually recovered.

But, the rate of recovery for lesser works—which account for most robberies—is estimated to be as low as 20 per cent.

Said Hugh Leggett, senior partner of Leggett Brothers and chairman of the Society of London Art Dealers: "The extraordinary thing about stolen paintings—and it is alarming that the number of thefts has risen so steeply this year—is that they are rarely offered for sale again, at least in this country."

DEMAND GROWS Art theft is as old as art itself. The most celebrated caper of all was the theft of the most celebrated painting of all, Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa." An Italian housepainter working in Paris walked out of the Louvre with La Gioconda under his smock one summer morning in 1911. It was recovered a year and a half later when he offered it to a museum in Florence.

In the affluence that followed World War II, a new kind of art collector emerged. He was not so much an aficionado as an investor looking for a growth stock. Prices skyrocketed. Art became big business; so did art theft.

"What has launched the boom in art robberies is the boom in art, the increasing demand for great paintings and the continuing rise in the prices paid . . . The demand grows while the supply dwindles as collectors give their collections to museums," Milton Esterow wrote in his book, "The Art Stealers."

Chapman, 39, who organized the FBI's unit on art thefts and frauds and headed it until 1964, said, "When you look at the international monetary scene there are three objects being stolen with greater frequency and in large amounts—diamonds, bullion and works of art."

SAME VALUE "They have basically the same value whether they're sold for dollars, pounds, marks, francs or rupees," he said, pointing out the potential for the international trade of stolen art.

"Diamonds are beyond identification. Bullion can be melted into any shape. But a work of art in order to retain its value must remain unchanged," Chapman said. "That makes its recovery somewhat easier than the other two."

Why do they steal? The reasons would fill a book on abnormal psychology, but the biggest reason, of course, is money. People steal paintings to sell them or to hold them for ransom.

"It is my personal opinion that a great many of the art thefts—perhaps as much as 90 per cent—are committed with the intention of holding insurance companies to ransom," said Leggett.

NO ANSWER "Secondly, there are contrived thefts of convenience where the so-called owner is in conspiracy with the thief and the picture claimed for either never existed or was a dud anyway."

"Where neither ransom nor fraud is involved, it is quite inexplicable—especially where well-known works are involved. The risks are enormous, and when you have the picture there is nowhere in the world you can go with it. There's simply no explanation, no answer, to this type of theft."

But Vincenzo Peruggia said he took the "Mona Lisa" from the Louvre in 1911 for patriotism. He said he resented seeing Leonardo's masterpiece in France, so he took it back to Italy to restore his country's honor.

LEW ALCINDOR

Alcindor Top College Hand

NEW YORK (AP) - Lew Alcindor, UCLA's 7-foot-1 1/2 three-time All-American, was named the 1969 college basketball Player of the Year by The Associated Press today for the second time in his three varsity seasons.

Alcindor, who reportedly will command as high as a million dollar bonus to turn pro after his graduation this year, won by a landslide in the annual voting by sports writers and broadcasters.

Alcindor, beaten out for Player of the Year honors last year by Elvin Hayes of Houston after Houston had snapped UCLA's 47-game winning streak, was in no danger this time.

Expected to lead UCLA to an unprecedented third straight national title in the NCAA tournament in March, Alcindor polled 226 votes in the balloting conducted as a separate category with that for the All-American team.

Some of the 339 who voted for the A-A skipped the Player of the Year category.

Pistol Pete Maravich of Louisiana State, the nation's leading collegiate scorer, finished second to Alcindor with 65 votes. One ballot had Maravich and Alcindor tied, but it was counted as a full vote for each.

As in the All-American balloting, Alcindor and Maravich were far ahead in the Player of the Year category.

Spencer Haywood, the U.S. Olympic star now a sophomore at the University of Detroit, was third with 16 points. Rick Mount of Purdue was fourth with nine.

Jo-Jo White of Kansas and Charlie Scott of North Carolina tied for fifth with five votes each.

Rounding out the Top Ten for Player of the Year honors were Dan Issel of Kentucky with four, Calvin Murphy of Niagara and Bobby Smith, of Tulsa, each three, and Bud Ogden of Santa Clara, two. Rex Morgan, of Jacksonville, Fla., University got one vote.

Joining Alcindor and Maravich on the 1969 All-American team, announced Thursday, were Haywood, Mount and Murphy.

On the basis of five points for a first-team vote and two points for a second team nod, Alcindor polled a total of 1,676, only 19 short of a perfect 1,695.

Maravich received 1,559 points, Haywood 1,288, Mount National Basketball Association.

Doral Leader Has Secret, He Tells Arnie Palmer

MIAMI (AP) - Tom Shaw says he'll sell his golfing secret to Arnie Palmer for a couple of airplanes. After Shaw's record-breaking, first-round 65 at the Doral Open Golf Tournament, Arnie might just accept the offer.

The 26-year-old blond with a goatee, has not only won more money than Palmer on the tour this year, but he left Arnie and the other big names far behind as he moved into today's second-round lead in the $150,000 tournament tied with steady veteran Dan Sikes.

Palmer shot a 68 over the 7,028-yard par 72 Doral layout in this first stop on pro golf's rich Florida tour.

Sikes, 38, known as the Florida Chicken Baron because of his Florida fried chicken drive-ins.

Pistons Deflate Leaders In NBA

By The Associated Press The lowly Milwaukee Bucks and Detroit Pistons got their kicks, but only after a couple of officials gave Earl Monroe and Billy Cunningham the boot.

The Bucks, the last-place club in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association, kicked off their heels again by beating first-place Baltimore 126-117 Thursday night. It was their sixth consecutive victory, a club record helped along when Monroe was ejected from the game in the final period.

The Pistons, one rung above the Bucks, also had some unexpected help when Billy Cunningham was thrown out in the third period and Detroit went on to trip second place Philadelphia 126-123.

In the only other game host San Diego tumbled Cincinnati 127-112.

In the American Basketball Association, Minnesota crushed Houston 136-102 and Denver defeated Los Angeles 115-101.

Milwaukee, the first expansion team to win six straight games, built a 64-46 lead, but had to weather a final period Baltimore rally that ran out of steam midway through the quarter when Monroe was given the boot for disputing a call.

Flynn Robinson led the Bucks with 35 points while Kevin Loughery had 25 for the Bullets. Dave Bing had 30 points and 10 assists and Walt Bellamy added 27 points for Detroit, but added help came when Cunningham was ejected in the third period for arguing over a technical foul.

Cunningham had 21 points at the time and the 76ers missed him in the final period when they rallied from 10 points back to tie four times before bowing. Hal Greer had 28 points for the 76ers.

San Diego rolled to a 93-75 bulge and coasted as Don Kojis dropped in 32 points and John Block 24.

T-BIRDS BID FOR SPOT HERE; ODESSA UPSETS CLARENDON

HOBBES, N.M. - New Mexico Junior College picked up strong support in its bid for a berth in the Region V Basketball Tournament at Big Spring next week by defeating New Mexico Military Institute, 77-68, here Thursday night.

The win left NMJC with a 9-6 Western Conference record. NMMI is 9-5 and gets a chance to improve upon that mark in a game against LCC in Lubbock tonight.

ODESSA - Odessa upset highly touted Clarendon College, 74-72, in Western Conference play here Thursday night.

Freddy Hunter hit two free throws in the last five seconds of play to swing the issue Odessa's way.

The defeat left Clarendon with an over-all record of 18-14 and 11-4 in conference.

Odessa is 15-9 over-all and 9-6 within the league.

Hagood's Nine Plays 2 Games

Coaches Oakley Hagood and Dan Bustamante take their 1969 edition of the Big Spring High School baseball team to Arlington today where Saturday it goes against Arlington High School in two seven-inning struggles.

The Longhorns, building around strong pitching this year, double back to Snyder for an exhibition Monday and then open their home season the following afternoon against Lubbock Coronado.

The action tomorrow gets under way at 1 p.m. while the Monday and Tuesday contests are timed for 4 p.m.

Eighteen boys will make the trip with the coaches.

James Newman, who won eight games last year, will probably hurl the opener against Arlington while Thomas Ham will charge the hill in the afterpiece.

Other starters will probably be David Hanson or Joe Martinez catching, Danny Panchman at first base, Felix Martinez at second, Jimmy Wilson at third, Bill Jones at shortstop, Roger Dixon in left field, Andy Gamboa in center and Rocky Wooley in right.

Others making the trip "are pitchers Jimmy Farris and Moses Flores, infielder Charley Womack, utility man Charley Rodriguez, outfielder Charley McMurtry, another Felix Martinez, and another Felix Martinez, outfielder.

The infielder Martinez is the only returning regular from last season, outside of the pitchers.

In all, 44 boys are working out daily and part of that group will constitute the junior varsity.

Westbrook Fems 10-B Champions

ROSCOE - Westbrook defeated Highland, 57-49, here Thursday night to capture the District 10-B girls' basketball championship.

Westbrook had won the double round robin of competition but Highland fought back to capture last week's tournament, necessitating a playoff.

The Wildkittens now play Sandown for the bi-district title. The contest takes place in Post Tuesday night.

Christene Reed led Westbrook with 31 points, Judy Chambers chipped in with 19.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

I think the baseball players of professional bent made a mistake trying their case for higher pensions in the news organs. Their ever-loving public's ardor may cool considerably. Fact is, that segment of the populace which supports the game may have already become disenchanted, after learning that the horseshoe throwers lusted for (1) retirement pay at 45, (2) assurance of same after only four years in the big tent and (3) a more substantial pension than many of their supporters earn at their 9-to-5 jobs in the salad days.

Reading of contract negotiations in all professional athletics has become increasingly wearisome. Hagglng over pay and fringe benefits seems to have become a lot more important than bases-on-balls or touchdown passes—which, in reality, it has with the people in sports.

When does a game cease to be a game and becomes instead an annual report issued by the Chase Manhattan Bank? Time was when one could turn to the sports pages and escape from the realities of the business world. That is no longer the case.

The club owners have been pilloried by the athletes but the magnates, after all, are the ones risking their investments. The players can cash in their chips tomorrow and walk away without losing anything but next month's paycheck.

I find it increasingly difficult to root for a shortstop, a golfer or a quarterback who wants to talk in terms of annuities or investments or worries about his music arranger rather than wondering how to field a ground ball, line up a putt or spot an open receiver.

I would be quite willing for the major leagues to stop operations for a year. We might all find our interests turning closer to home, supporting those teams who play for the sheer fun of it rather than to enrich the treasury.

Suspension of big time professional sports could help if only to get us outside for a while and take a greater interest in the things going on around us. It might even serve to restore our pride in the old home town.

Don Stevens, who coached the Forsan Buffaloes into the bi-district round of competition, has stressed defense this year with excellent results.

Stevens has attended a coaching clinic the past two years and came away convinced that a team can't get very far without trying to checkmate the opposition. All the coaches of state champions who gave testimonials at the Waco clinic stressed that their teams wouldn't have progressed very far without trying to slow down the enemy's attack.

In 11 district games over the season, the opposition averaged only 48.5 points a game against the Buffaloes. A team like Forsan which goes to the man-to-man deployment has to work a little harder but the results are worth the effort.

Incidentally, Forsan will field a golf team this spring. The candidates are working out twice weekly at the Munny course here. David Redwine is tutoring the squad. Not many Class B schools in the state field links squads.

They say that Dale Harrington, the Odessa Permian athlete who had to quit the basketball team due to illness, hasn't been able to shake his physical miseries.

He was being counted upon as a pitching regular on the Panther baseball team. Harrington's attending physician cautions that Dale may be ill a long time.

Dr. Marvin Baker, the South Plains College president, says his school didn't bid for the 1970 Region V basketball tournament because "it costs too much."

Baker reasons that a community hosting the show is out at least $4,000 before a basketball is bounced.

Steer Tracksters Run In Snyder

Preliminaries in the annual Canyon Reef Relays at Snyder get under way at 2 p.m. today on a new all-weather track. Finals are on tap for Saturday afternoon.

Big Spring is one of the Class AAAA teams entered in the cinder carnival. Coach Gerald Loyd is taking a full complement of boys.

Midland High and Amarillo Palo Duro are favored in the AAAA division while Lubbock Estacado is the likely winner among AAA schools. Lubbock Dunbar won last year's meet when only one division of competition was held.

Fourteen trophies will be awarded in the meet, ten in the relays and the others for the winners and runners up in each division.

In addition, 192 individual awards will be made - first, second and third in each division and for first, second and

Pictured here are members of the Park Hill basketball team, which recently completed Gra-Y League competition without the loss of a game - together with their coaches and cheer leaders. Front row, from the left, the boys are Rodney Ferrell, Paul Prather, Mike Kennedy, Mike Warren and Del Ross. Second row, Freddy Reynolds, Bubba Stripling, Gary Graves, Greg Halfmann, Ricky Watkins and Steve Car-

Italian Students Vent Frustrations

By DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — President Nixon is only one of several targets on which the angry young men of Italy have been venting their frustrations.

Two years ago Italy's students were considered among the most docile in Western Europe. But since student protests last spring erupted into bloodshed, they have become the most militant.

A week has not gone by without police putting down a riot of students occupying a university. For many, the 1968 scholastic year was a loss.

FREE TO RIOT
The University of Rome, with 65,000 students, closed Saturday because of student occupations. This left most of the students free to riot Thursday in protest against Nixon's visit.

Not that President Nixon made any move to antagonize the students.
"He is just one more pretext to fight for reform of the social system, the education system which is full of cobwebs," explained Antonio Taddei, a mathematics student.

Other targets have ranged

Clear Skies Greet Texans

By The Associated Press
Sparkling clear skies greeted Texas today following a cold front that whipped through the state Thursday.

The front set off showers and thundershowers in its wake in East and South Texas but rainfall was generally light with amounts of less than one-tenth of an inch reported.

The front moved out of Texas just after 4 a.m. today when it passed through Brownsville. The Lower Rio Grande Valley was the only area reporting cloudiness early today but blue skies were expected there after 8 a.m.

Temperatures early today ranged from near 30 degrees at Dalhart to 70 at Brownsville. Thursday the temperature climbed to 84 at Laredo along the Mexican border.

Forecasters said today and tonight would be just a bit cooler with temperatures expected to warm up a bit Saturday. Partly cloudy skies were forecast for most of Texas over the weekend, the Weather Bureau said. A five-day forecast through Thursday calls for near normal temperatures and little rain.

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Delhi administration offered attractive terms to lure beggars from the streets — but to no avail.

They were offered free food, free lodging and one rupee (13 cents) a day for expenses. But there was a snag — they had to work on the capital's projects.

The beggars have spurned the offer. They earn more without having to work.
The police have orders to round them up.

from the Venice Film Festival, which students broke up last autumn, to an expensive world championship boxing bout in San Remo. The protest is against "bourgeois" society, display of riches, and authority imposed by "a bunch of bums," as one student leader put it.

Even Italy's traditional leftists—the Communists and independent intellectuals—are ridiculed by advocates of student power.

The leftists, nevertheless, have made a strong attempt to infiltrate student ranks. New printed portraits of Lenin, for example, outnumbered the tattered Guevara posters during the last two anti-Nixon demonstrations.

L'Unita, the Communist party newspaper, devotes at least one page a day to news of student unrest, vandalism and other "cultural activities." At the same time, the Communists have injected their pet project of forcing Italy out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization into student chants and resolutions.

This aspect is causing growing concern at the Vatican. Its newspaper asserted Thursday that "the student flag is passing to other hands which are aiming at the disintegration of the democratic state."

WELCOME SYMBOLS
The Italian student movement has the same general objectives as student movements in France, Germany and the United States: the reform of the educational system which they consider out of date, and change in the structure of society.

To call attention to their demands, they seize on any occasion to demonstrate.

"In a way, Nixon is a welcome symbol in our struggle," said one student leader. "Our struggle against capitalistic society is being fought at all levels. It is obvious that we should prevent two capitalistic nations from forging closer bonds."

Dear Abby
Building Good Will

DEAR ABBY: I am very bitter toward the company for which my husband works and wonder if other wives feel this way.

Right now I am home alone with my four children while my husband is in EUROPE! Before this trip, it was Jamaica, Puerto Rico, Mexico City, and Las Vegas. He's being wined and dined at "sales meetings."

Why do companies have these meetings in such exotic, exciting places and ask the men to leave their wives at home? These same wives who try to be understanding about the long hours, hard work and other absences their husbands take away from their families? (Wives are not even welcome at their own expense!)

I am pleased that my husband is doing so well financially, but what is the money if it ruins our marriage? Why don't companies let wives share in the "rewards," too? Please don't print my name or city for obvious reasons.

LONESOME AND BLUE
DEAR LONESOME: Your letter makes a lot of sense and I shall print it with the hope that the shoe pinches a few executives who are guilty of such practices. I, too, would like to know how they justify building resentment instead of goodwill.

DEAR ABBY: I am miserable and need your help. Three months ago I divorced my husband and now I find that I still love him. Please, God, I hope it isn't too late. Our divorce solved nothing. It just doomed me to loneliness to say nothing of what it has done to our children's morale. Abby, I am willing to crawl and beg. Anything to have us remarried, but I don't know what approach to use with him. Please, please help me.

FOOLISH IN NEBRASKA
DEAR FOOLISH: In your case, the best approach is the direct one. Tell your former husband what you have told me. Or better yet clip this and send it to him with an olive branch. You have nothing to lose but your loneliness.

DEAR ABBY: My problem concerns my boss. He's a wonderful man, and a good employer, but there's one thing he does that bugs me. He's always asking me what my boy friend and I do, where we go, how we spend our time together, etc. He's even asked me "how well" we know each other and if he's proposed to me!

I feel that these are very personal questions and I would rather not discuss them in the office. I don't want to "make waves," because this is a small office and I work closely with my boss, but I really feel that my private life is none of his business. So how do I tell him (in a subtle way) to quit giving me the third degree? I don't want to spoil a good employe-employer relationship.

NO NAME, PLS.
DEAR NO NAME: Don't attempt to be subtle. It never works with one who asks questions that are none of his business. Simply tell him you would rather not discuss your personal affairs. Then quickly change the subject. He'll catch on. If he "forgets" — repeat the same treatment. Eventually he'll get the message.

Death Penalty?

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A constitutional amendment to allow the death penalty for persons convicted of sniping was introduced in the Michigan Legislature Wednesday in a joint resolution calling for a vote of the people at the next general election.

Tells The Truth

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "During their college years," says Ohio State University President Novice Fawcett, "the true activists rarely make headlines." "They're far too occupied with assimilating knowledge, sharpening their analytical powers and building the kind of foundation which is necessary to wisdom." Fawcett made the remarks while speaking before 480 honor students at OSU's 12th annual president's scholarship recognition dinner.
